

Vice President Nixon Is Taking Hand In Drafting Of Republican Platform

CHICAGO (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon is taking a hand in drafting the Republican platform on which he confidently expects to run as the party's presidential nominee.

Nixon's interest in the platform extended also to efforts to draft a civil rights plank satisfactory to Negroes.

Charles H. Percy, platform chairman, suggested in a visit to the civil rights subcommittee's session Wednesday that if Negroes were guaranteed voting rights and employees were encouraged to end job discrimination, this might be the answer to the rights problem.

Reports On Congo Are Sent To Ike Presidential Vacation Marked By Work, Preparation Of Address

Young Princess Lives In Western Style Home

Social Calendar

News From Fountain

By KENNETH ISHII
TOKYO (AP)—The Emperor's youngest daughter just can't get away from it.

At the beauty parlor, shopping, or even at home, it's with her wherever she goes.

"It," in this case, is the fame and popularity that goes with being Japan's prettiest (ex) princess.

And the fact that she lost her title and forsook the imperial court last March to marry has, if anything, made her even more popular.

For as Mrs. Hisanaga Shimazu, wife of an official of the Export-Import Bank she is officially free of the tradition-bound chrysanthemum curtain and therefore accessible.

We took 30 minutes of her time for an interview and pictures the other day at her $11,000 bungalow-type, Western-style home in Tokyo's suburbs, presented by the imperial household together with a $41,000 cash dowry.

Stream of Visitors
 "There seems to be an endless stream of visitors every day — except Sunday which my husband and I keep to ourselves," the 21-year-old former princess says.

She was dressed in a simple white blouse and green plaid skirt. An upright piano, television and hi-fi sets occupied the modern living room. Two photos of Perez Prado, who recently composed a mambo in her honor, were thumb tacked to the wall.

In addition to the ex-princess and her 25-year-old husband, the household includes Hisanaga's widowed mother, two servants and an airedale terrier.

For the young Mrs. Shimazu, a week day begins at 7 a. m. with the ring of an alarm clock.

"But I usually lie in bed for an extra 30 minutes," she admits. "After all, it's so much earlier than the hours I kept when I was single."

A breakfast of eggs, toast and coffee, and she sends her husband off to work, then gets ready for her appointments.

"I'm so busy, what with visitors and getting the house organized that we have never been even to the movies, except on special invitation."

Doesn't Ride Trains
 "Being a commoner certainly has its advantages, but even so my former position makes it difficult to do exactly as I please. For example, I'm advised against riding the trains, so when I go anywhere I must go by car."

Neither Mrs. Shimazu nor her husband drive. "But," she says, "we hope to learn."

Princess Suga's Shinto marriage attracted far more attention than the marriages of her three elder sisters. Known as the prettiest of the Emperor's daughters, and raised in the postwar period, she symbolized the "new look" of the imperial court in a Democratic Japan.

And although her marriage was a traditional arranged match, Princess Suga actually had far more say than her elder sisters in being able to accept or reject the choice of the court.

Hisanaga is the descendant of a powerful feudal lord and would himself be titled today were it not for the abolition of the peerage system after the war.

PRETTY PRINCESS
 Mrs. Hisanaga Shimazu stands on lawn of her Tokyo home.

Salary $50 a Month

His present salary is around $50 a month.

"Of course, we can't live on that," Mrs. Shimazu says. Dividends from the invested dowry help make up the difference. And there is some income from her radio and television appearances, "though," she explains, "this is only incidental money. It isn't intended to contribute to the household budget."

Although much in demand, Mrs. Shimazu has accepted only one regular "job." She records comments for broadcasting on a daily, 10-minute music program over a radio station.

She has yet to perform one of the most important duties on becoming a commoner. Imperial family members do not vote, but as plain Mrs. Shimazu, the ex-princess declares, "I expect to cast my ballot like anyone else."

NEWLYWEDS' HOME . . . A cyclist admires the western-style home of Mr. and Mrs. Hisanaga Shimazu in a Tokyo suburb. Mrs. Shimazu was Princess Suga before her marriage to a $50-a-month bank clerk.

PERSONALITY, TOO . . . Now as a commoner, the former Princess Suga, Emperor Hirohito's youngest and prettiest daughter, cuddles teddy bear as she poses for pictures which would not have been permitted while a member of the royal family.

Dr. Jessner Tells: Mother's Role In The Family

(This is the fourth in a series of five articles based on studies in "The Role of the Mother in the Family" by Dr. Lucie Jessner of the Department of Psychiatry of the University of North Carolina School of Medicine. This series is running daily in this newspaper.)

By ROBERT H. BARTHOLOMEW
CHAPEL HILL—It has been suggested that a positive identification with her own mother is likely to give a woman confidence in taking over the mother role. If, however, the relationship with her mother was hostile, it is often seen that a woman tries to treat her child in a different, even opposite, way than she was treated but to her surprise she finds herself at times repeating the pattern which she has so eagerly tried to avoid.

"This shows," Dr. Jessner said, "that at some stage she did incorporate her mother, that is to say her 'bad' mother has become a part of herself.

"Consequently, she is not free to act on her own convictions. Disharmony in her relationship with her mother also makes it more difficult for her to tolerate ill feelings in the child. We often see this type of mother getting depressed if the child, although given all the love and material things possible, does not make a great show of affection for the mother."

Some women still retain a longing for the intimacy and closeness to their mothers that they either missed or never could give up. As mothers, this leads them to create a very close union with the child and try to perpetuate it, thus curbing the child's ability to think and act for himself.

Such prolonged and enforced dependency by the mother in turn brings about rage and aggressive behavior in the child. The child, and even the young adult, is not allowed to think and act for himself by the mother. The mother refuses to give up her hold on the child.

"On the other extreme," according to Dr. Jessner, "we see mothers for whom the child represents a threat to their existence as an independent being. A woman's role is not exclusively in her family. Human beings are bisexual to a varying degree. So-called masculine strivings for creativity, for intellectual achievement, for participation in community or world affairs may—but do not have to—interfere with the role of the mother."

Dr. Jessner tells of a young outstanding woman artist who brought her young daughter to the clinic for treatment. "She was tense and defensive as well as self-accusing because she felt that her profession prevented her from giving sufficient attention to this very sensitive child.

"She had cut down her hours of work on several occasions to spend more time with the little girl. In doing so she became irritable, and the child's symptoms became worse.

"Working with this mother it became clear that the conflict between guilt feelings for neglecting the child and the resentment for interfering with her role as an artist disturbed the basic relationship between them. As this problem began to be solved, the situation began to improve."

Bridge Supper Given Clubbers

AYDEN—On Thursday evening Miss Clyde Stokes and Mrs. Josephine D. Ross were joint hostesses when they entertained at a bridge supper at the home of the latter for the Odds and Ends Club.

A color scheme of red and white was used throughout the decorations and the tables were centered with a candle and gladioli.

At the end of the game, African violets were given as prizes which went to Mrs. Rosa J. Little and Mrs. Keith Brunson for the club members and Mrs. C. C. Little for guest high. Mrs. Rosa J. Little was also remembered with a silver bowl as a parting gift from her club.

The guests included Mesdames Little, Brunson, Little, Alton Gardner, James W. Everett, Jack M. Collins, Misses Susie Dixon and Hilda Sumrell, and Mrs. Helen L. Jones as a supper guest.

W.S.C.S. Meets

BETHEL—Miss Camille Staton, president of the Woman's Society Christian Service, opened the July meeting reading the purpose of the W.S.C.S., after which the group sang the prayer-hymn, "Dear God and Father."

Mrs. John Lloyd Watson was in charge of the devotional and program. For her scripture, she chose the 15th verse from the 30th chapter of Isaiah, pertaining to the quietness in God's presence for meditation. She closed her devotional with a prayer.

"The Christian's Use of Leisure" was the program topic. In defining leisure, Mrs. Watson said it is the time free from responsibility and demand. "We can take advantage of these free moments for creative thinking, reading or for doing something constructive," she said.

This point leads back to the complications created by the present pattern of the role of the mother at her best. The importance of the love and the intimacy which the child needs from his mother has been emphasized.

Therefore, conditions most favorable for such a relationship have been suggested: Natural childbirth, for instance, not only lessens the potential damage to the child through drug effects, but it also gives the mother the actual conscious experience of birth.

Dr. Heiene Deutsch writes, "Woman's active part in the delivery process, her lasting pride in her accomplishment, the possibility of rapid reunion with her child, and some degree of gratification of that primary feminine quality that assigns a place among pleasure experiences in the psychic economy are precious components of motherhood, and an effort should be made to preserve them."

On the other hand, Dr. Jessner points out, "There are other mothers whose fears and fantasies about delivery cannot be alleviated by relaxing exercises; they require anesthesia. It seems important not to arouse guilt feelings in the mothers because of this.

"It is similar with the suggestion of rooming-in, which allows the mother to have her baby with her from the start, undisturbed by outside visitors.

"It also allows the possibility of caring for him, assisted by an experienced nurse, rather than starting on her own with an infant she hardly knows. This is a good suggestion for women who can take

N.Y. Designers Are Becoming Resigned To Feminine Figure

By JOY MILLER
NEW YORK (AP)—New York designers are becoming resigned to the feminine figure. Instead of trying to rise above it, they now are working to cover it with glory.

Herbert Sondheim, for example, in his fall collection shown Wednesday to fashion editors here for press week, contrived costumes to flatter and refine but still to look remarkably like the woman underneath. He used long-drawn bodices, animated skirts, and adroitly fashioned necklines to achieve his purpose.

Sondheim was most preoccupied with the skirt. With the wingaway which flared from the hipline, and the fan flair, which flounced from below the hips, he launched a major offensive against the kind of adhesive, immobile, straight skirt that looks best on undernourished and smallboned adolescents.

In his dress and jacket costumes and separate dresses he attempted the slightly relaxed look—not, as he explained, "to be confused with that ugly word 'chemise,' but definitely in the fashion picture."

Sondheim went all out on fabrics and colors but omitted the beading used so extravagantly by most other designers.

"Sewing on beads gives me palpitations," he admitted. He used lightweight wools—in dark-toned plaids and checks—silks, satins and rich tapestry brocades. His favorite fur was leopard, and prominent colors included browns, reds and shades thereof.

Ben Gershel's collection by Robert Knox featured some truly posh creations, especially in the complete costume range. Jersey or cashmere overblouses were matched to skirts and ensembles.

Miss Cheryl Edwards is recuperating from an operation at Wilmington Hospital at Wrightsville Beach.

Gardening Today

Although the planting season is a while distant, it wouldn't hurt to look forward a bit. So take time out from your weeding and spraying and plan some. If you have a garden or planted home grounds, try some new shrub or tree in your present scheme.

If your planting will be a new one, try some plant that differs from the general run of plants. There are many plants that can bring an added touch to your garden.

A neat little shrub with a big name, Sip honosmanthus (oscantus) delovaya, with its small glossy green leaves and white fragrant flowers, should be used more often.

It is a slow growing shrub that gets up to about four feet. The flowers come in April, and the bluish black berries follow later. The plant may be hard to find but maybe your local nurseryman can get it for you.

Pieris Japonica (Andromeda) with its lily-of-the-valley-like flowers and pleasing foliage makes a good background for dwarf azaleas. It is a compact evergreen shrub that grows to three feet.

Skimma reevesiana grows to one and one half feet. It has glossy green evergreen leaves and crimson berries. The small shrub should do a good job as a face down plant. It also could be used in a mass as you do azaleas. These plants like a moist loamy soil and partial shade.

She stressed the dropped waistline in her styles displayed for fashion editors but never ignored the fact there was a figure underneath. She used sashes or a shaping in of the fabric above the hip seam to indicate the figure line. Skirts, even though slim, were made for walking. Any fullness came below the smoothness at the hip.

Notes On The Passing Scene

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wingate and daughter, Jackie, of 1500 Spruce St. and Mrs. Lloyd Williams and daughter, Ann, leave tonight for Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. to spend their vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Williams.

Miss Cheryl Edwards is recuperating from an operation at Wilmington Hospital at Wrightsville Beach.

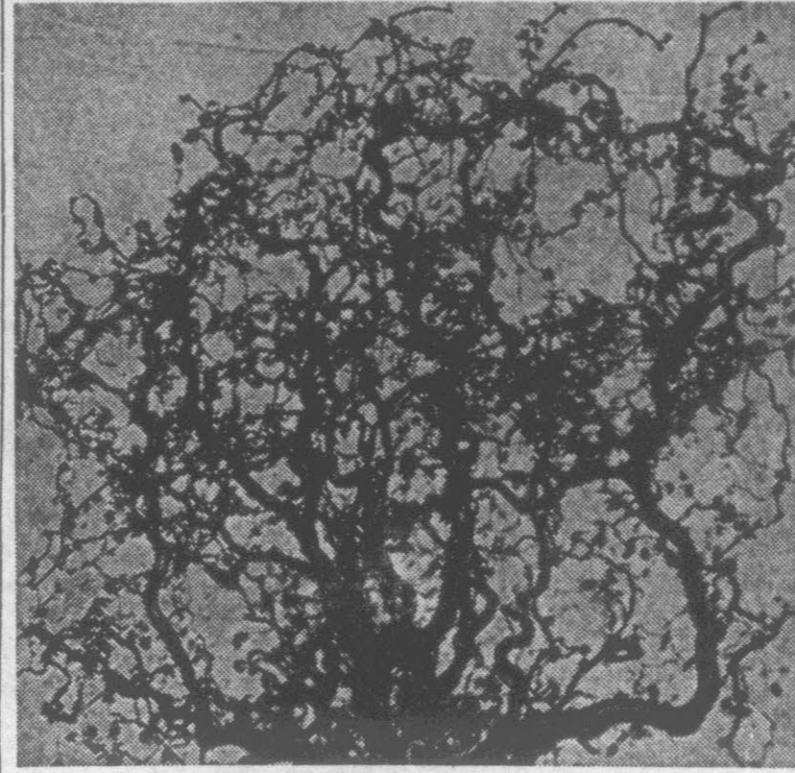

Mrs. John Lloyd Watson was in charge of the devotional and program. For her scripture, she chose the 15th verse from the 30th chapter of Isaiah, pertaining to the quietness in God's presence for meditation. She closed her devotional with a prayer.

"The Christian's Use of Leisure" was the program topic. In defining leisure, Mrs. Watson said it is the time free from responsibility and demand. "We can take advantage of these free moments for creative thinking, reading or for doing something constructive," she said.

Mrs. Watson continued by saying most parents are guilty of regimenting their children's lives to the point that they have less time to think for themselves toward stimulating imagination and creative abilities.

A true Christian always uses his leisure time wisely. He takes time to find God's purpose for him in the world today.

She closed with the thought: "Be still and know that I am God." Miss Staton called for the reading of the minutes which were approved. This was followed by the Circle count. Mrs. D. T. House gave the treasurer's report.

... Harry Lauder's walking stick.

By JOHN G. DUNCAN
Loropetalum, with flowers that look like shredded coconut, is an attractive evergreen member of the Witch Hazel family. It likes a peaty somewhat gritty soil.

If you can get some of the above evergreens this fall, put them to work in your garden.

The deciduous shrubs and trees have a definite place in the landscape plan. Try some of the unusual ones.

Harry Lauder's Walking Stick, Corylus Contorta, is an odd plant that will be a talking piece for your garden. Its twisted limbs should invoke much comment. Wayside Gardens, Mentor, Ohio, has offered these plants in the past, and you should be able to get one tree.

The smoke tree, cotinus coggyria, looks as its name implies, like a puff of smoke rising on the spring air. Lonicera nitida, Box Honeysuckle, is a good evergreen shrub that reaches four feet. You will find this plant useful as hedge material.

Guest Editorial

Pitt's Progress In Tobacco Field

Editor's Note: The following guest editorial was prepared by S. J. WEEKS, Pitt County Tobacco Agent.

Tobacco was grown for the first time in Pitt County in 1879. A total of three acres was cultivated that year. The production of tobacco has gradually increased until it virtually affects our entire economy.

The average income from the 1956, 1957, 1958 and 1959 tobacco crop in Pitt County was $24,241,257.00, or 70.56 percent of the total average farm income—including Government payments to farmers—of $34,351,550.00. In addition to the net income received by farmers, tobacco provides employment for numerous people that work in the tobacco marketing and processing facilities. Also, it provides employment for hundreds of workers during the harvesting season. 44.8 percent of the fertilizer sold in Pitt County (55,912 tons) in 1958-59 was used for the production of tobacco.

Farmers have not been able to mechanize the production of tobacco as readily as they have other crops. Therefore, the net per acre income during recent years has been somewhat on the decline.

Some progress is being made toward mechanization of harvesting and curing of the tobacco crop by our experiment station research workers. But, while these mechanization practices are being perfected, the farmer must continue to use the technical information now available to the fullest extent in improving the quality of tobacco produced, and at the same time producing the crop as economically as possible.

I shall not attempt to define quality of tobacco, but the importance of producing a crop with desirable quality cannot be over emphasized. For example, if the quality of the crop could be improved enough for the tobacco to sell for three cents per pound higher, the farmers would receive $36.00 more per acre, or a total of $1,359,294.00. Farmers would have more incentive to strive to produce better quality tobacco if the prices paid more adequately reflected the quality of tobacco purchased. Quality also needs to be considered from a long range point of view. We should not forget that the quality of our crop is important if we are to continue to keep our share of the foreign market.

There are some cultural practices that can be used to improve the quality of the tobacco crop. Some of these are: (1) Grow quality plants by using the best plant production practices, (2) Avoid planting too much acreage to any one variety—especially a variety that tends to wash out and bleach in the field, and cures pale and sick, and is neutral in aroma and flavor, (3) Careful selection and preparation of the soil, (4) Use enough fertilizer to maintain a good yield but guard against over-fertilization, (5) Space plants and top to a level that will produce 110,000 to 130,000 leaves per acre, (6) Harvest only uniform and ripe tobacco, and (7) Follow a good rotation.

There are some production costs that can be reduced by careful planning. For example, on many farms fuel used for curing can be reduced by using tighter constructed curing barns with controlled ventilation. The tobacco grower can make his crop a more profitable one by avoiding unnecessary production costs such as treating for insect control when there is not enough damage being done by insects to justify the expense of chemicals, labor and use of machinery. However, if insect damage is severe enough to justify the expense, adequate control measures should be taken using spraying or dusting equipment that will give satisfactory coverage to avoid an additional application of insecticide.

I have confidence in the tobacco growers in Pitt County. The progress they have made in improving their yields alone is a good indication that they are taking advantage of the new information on tobacco production that has been obtained through research. In 1888 the tobacco yield in Pitt County was approximately 450 pounds per acre, fifty years later in 1938, it had almost doubled, with a yield of 877 pounds per acre. Twenty years later in 1958, the yield was 1,921 pounds per acre. As we continue to learn, through research, new and better ways to grow tobacco, our farmers will strive to produce a product that the consumer desires to purchase at the market place. Tobacco will continue to contribute in a large way to the economy of Pitt County and eastern North Carolina.

Demo Prospects Don't Look Good

By LYNN NISBET

POLITICAL — Prospects for the Democratic party in North Carolina in the November election do not look good, comparatively speaking. That is particularly true of the national ticket. The Democratic majorities for President of around 400,000 in 1936 and 1940, dropped to less than 300,000 in 1944, about 200,000 in 1948, around 90,000 in 1952 and to 15,000 in 1956. Continuation of that trend would give the state to the Republicans in 1960. The glamour of the Eisenhower name will not be available to help the Republicans this year. And the Democrats have a dynamic young candidate in the person of Jack Kennedy—which they did not have in the scholarly, but once defeated Adlai Stevenson, in 1956.

In 1956 the Republicans capitalized to only slightly less degree than in 1952 on the Eisenhower name and the peace-and-war issue, which they skillfully converted into a peace-and-prosperity issue. They do not have that effective argument this year. There is real doubt whether either peace or prosperity in broad meaning of the terms maintains now.

There is cumulating evidence that the religious, or denominational, affiliation of the presidential candidate may have considerable influence in North Carolina voting. Kennedy is a Roman Catholic, and old timers who recall the debate of the Al Smith campaign in 1928 are disturbed about that. It is remembered that North Carolina gave its electoral vote to Republican Herbert Hoover against Democrat Al Smith in 1928. The announced reason for most opposition was that Al Smith was a "wet" in favor of legal liquor, while at the time North Carolina was in the "dry" column. Many people then and since have thought the real objection to Smith was his connection with the Roman Catholic church.

ANALOGOUS — There is close analogy between the 1928 situation and the present. There also are vital distinctions. Al Smith's Republican opponent was Herbert Hoover, a Quaker. Jack Kennedy's Republican opponent will be Richard Nixon, a Quaker. The United States has never had a Roman Catholic president, and Hoover was the only Quaker ever to occupy that office. It is an interesting coincidence that these two faiths should be pitted against each other only twice in American history.

Roman Catholics through the centuries have been fighters, even sometimes to the extent of conducting "holy wars" against non-conformists to their faith. Quakers, or Friends, are peace-loving non-fighters. So much so that prominent Greensboro business man recently attacked Guilford College for fostering unpatriotic doctrines.

Despite the non-combatant tenets of his faith, Richard Nixon served as a combat officer in the U.S. Navy during World War II. And despite allegations that Jack Kennedy is subject to orders from his church, he also served with distinction in the U.S. Navy in the same war as an American citizen. Both Kennedy and Nixon have served in both branches of the Congress without evidence that religious tenets affected their patriotism.

DIFFERENCE — It may be assumed then that so far as religious tenets or denominational affiliation is concerned the 1928 candidates are on a par. In 1928 the United States, with the help of North Carolina, chose a non-fighting Quaker over a Roman Catholic. In 1928 the war to end all wars was ten years behind and the second and biggest World War was ten years ahead, and at that time regarded as impossible. In 1960 the whole world shudders in shadow of a prospective more destructive third worldwide war.

In 1928, so far as this part of the South was concerned, Democrat Al Smith had two abbatrosses around his neck—Catholicism and liquor. In 1960 Democrat Jack Kennedy has two abbatrosses — Catholicism and civil rights.

The significant difference is this: Protestant preachers and church leaders in 1928 could openly fight Al Smith on the liquor issue, although the main reason might have been his Catholic affiliation. In 1960 the preachers cannot fight Kennedy on civil rights, because they have been his Catholic affiliation. In 1960 the preachers cannot fight Kennedy on civil rights, because they have been his Catholic affiliation. In 1960 the preachers cannot fight Kennedy on civil rights, because they have been his Catholic affiliation.

DISTINCTION — Another distinction that is difficult to make, perhaps possible in popular concept, is between the Roman Catholic Church as a religious denomination and the Vatican State as a temporal civil political entity. The Pope heads both and the civic state is subservient to the church. It does not follow, however, that every communicant of the Roman Catholic Church is amenable to orders from the Vatican State.

The Kennedy-Johnson Democratic ticket has a hard road ahead in North Carolina. If the campaign is to be fought on traditional Democratic-Republican lines, Kennedy has odds to win. The odds will be less if the religious issue becomes dominant, even in face of the non-fighting tenets of Nixon's religious faith.

GOP Is Also A Divided Party

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats almost fractured themselves on the civil rights issue in Los Angeles. But they're not the only ones with troubles. Look at the Republicans in Chicago.

The image of themselves which the Democrats and Republicans would like to project is that of two political parties representing a clearcut difference on issues and solutions.

But since both are composed of liberals and reactionaries at the extreme ends, with a broad band of conservatives in the middle of both parties, their problem is trying to whip together a campaign platform.

It comes down to this: How to take a position which, while it is not possibly reconcile the three main viewpoints inside each party, will at least not be so indigestible that it will compel any of the three groups to leave the room.

In Los Angeles last week the majority of Democrats approved a civil rights plank which goes further in support of civil rights for Negroes than any plank in the history of the Democratic Party.

It infuriated Southerners, some of whom as a minimum wished to demonstrate against the plank on the convention floor. An open break and Southern walkout was avoided.

But the Democratic party has not heard the last of it, even though it picked Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas to be its vice presidential candidate, a move clearly intended to keep the Southern states in line.

As late as Tuesday Mississippi's Gov. Ross Barnett was taking the lead in urging a Southern bolt from the Democratic Party. He called the civil rights plank obnoxious, horrible and repulsive. The liberal and extreme right wings of the Republican party collided Tuesday in Chicago before the GOP committee which is trying to nail together the Republican platform.

On the liberal side was New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller who has run head-on into the ideas of President Eisenhower's conservative administration, particularly on defense spending.

Rockefeller urged an additional $1.5 billion dollars on defense, although Eisenhower has long made it clear he thinks present defense spending is enough.

The extreme right wing of the party was represented in Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona. He calls himself a conservative and is so far from seeing eye to eye with Rockefeller that he previously suggested the New Yorker for president on the Democratic ticket.

Clinton Rossiter, a political scientist, in his recent book, "Parties and Politics in America," goes into great detail to try to distinguish the differences between the parties and within the parties.

There can be no doubt that a wide gap of ideology and aspiration yawns between men like Sens. Case (N.J.), Javits (N.Y.) and Cooper (K.Y.) and Sens. Goldwater, Capehart (Ind.) and Bridges (N.H.).

"The lofty figure of Eisenhower has kept them all working amiably together, but the split may yet deepen into a serious wound."

No one who watches Congress year after year can doubt that except in times of extreme emergency, like the depression of the 1930s, the leadership and the bulk of the action in both parties in Congress is pretty conservative.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

There is an interesting verse in the Gospel of Mark which says, "Many were coming and going, and they had no leisure even to eat." This description sounds just like modern times, not like the slow-moving world of two thousand years ago.

One of the sources of the tragedy of many lives today is the lack of time. There are millions of business and professional men and women—and housewives, too—who are so busy coming and going that they have, sometimes, "no leisure even to eat." While leisure is not our most important activity, it is certainly necessary, and we may be sure that when people are too busy to eat, they are neglecting a good many other things.

There are so many pressures today, so many fascinating distractions, so much to see and hear and do that it is hard to find time to be quietly alone. But we all need, often, to be alone, to be quiet, to stop and ask ourselves who we are and where we are going. Leisure to do this is as important as finding time to eat.

Jesus' answer to this problem came a few verses after the one quoted. It was to go alone up into a mountain and pray. The mountain may not have been necessary, nor is it necessary now, but the solitude and the prayer were. They are still the best answer.

In fact, this may be the needed answer to our deepest questioning.

Castro's Idea Of 'Aggression'

By PATRICIA MOORE

Art Center Re-Visited

"This Reporter" has recently returned from an excursion to The Greenville Art Center, where winners of the N.C. Federation of Woman's Clubs competition are on display.

These artists, as you may have read before, are largely modern, contemporary — of the school which brings forth this comment from the common man viewing their work: "I can't paint, but I can draw jagged lines that would look that good." (Undoubtedly, he cannot, however.)

But we are here to discuss tables, not just modern art. There are three canvases with table titles: Blue Table (award winner of 1959); Yellow Table; and Owling Table.

Look at Blue Table—there is a true blue table upon a dark background and that won a prize. The artist is Bailey L. Dwigings, a true table artist. Now look at the picture across the corner from it: Yellow Table, same artist.

Now, this reporter looked at that oil painting and did what the critics say you should do with modern art. This reporter looked and used imagination to stimulate creativity—and came up with a startling field scene, with bright red sky, orange background and yellow field in the foreground, even though there were four yellow streaks descending from the yellow, underneath which was brown-black.

This reporter was crushed. It was a yellow table; anyone could see that.

Well, so much for that. On to the Owling Table by James Bumgardner, whom you may have heard of before.

Beautiful aqua greets the eyes, with a large white "sphere-shape" off side with a sort of own face in the white. Then on the right is a maze of colors and there are all sorts of legs.

After careful study and consultation with Art Center Hostess Barbara Batchelor, one becomes aware of the aqua table; the owl in the center and presumably a woman seated in a chair at the table.

Now you must wonder where we are going next.

We are off for the "Arena," a thought provoking picture by Miss Ann Mercer Kesler of Winston-Salem who has exhibited here before.

"Arena" is a vast blob, as some would say. In more artistic terms, the arena is centered with a vast void, the dominating feature of most of Miss Kesler's work. To her, the void represents something of the void in nature.

And in these artists' work can be found something of today's generation: the modern artists are supposed to represent or reflect the feeling of today.

Some say they are searching for something in this art and in the world which has become so advanced and mechanized.

A lot of viewers like to look and contemplate. Some buy because bright colors fit in the color scheme of a certain room.

And many more look and buy something of the older school, which they can see and understand with more ease. Something which will live when they do not, something "universal."

But, whether you like it or not, if this is the art being painted, if this is our reflection, it doesn't hurt to look and accept or reject.

Tables are very much with us anywhere, anytime.

Other Editors Saying Can Freedom Flourish?

(Savannah Morning News)

A farmer from Uvalde was sentenced in federal court the other day to a year in jail on charges growing out of his planting tobacco without a federal allotment. A very few other people in the nation have been given similar jail sentences on charges of not complying with federal crop control regulations.

At this time, when minds are turned to the days when death was not too great a sacrifice for Americans to make to establish individual freedom in this land, we believe modern Americans should ask themselves some very serious questions:

Is this the kind of nation we want? Do Americans want a federal government which has the power to jail men for not complying with federal crop control regulations? Was this nation established to permit men to plant and raise crops they believe can be sold profitably and used well, or was it established to regiment farmers to work under a federally planned farm program which is extremely doubtful in its merits?

Was the United States of America established to allow majorities to trample the rights of individuals or of a few, or was the U.S.A. established to protect and guard the rights of all, each and every one? (Majority tranny may be applicable here, for tobacco farmers vote on which set of federal regulations they wish to follow.) Was the U.S. founded to subsidize the farmer at the expense of every taxpayer — including of course the farmer-taxpayers? (A favorite farm-politics defense of crop subsidies and controls is: "Everybody else is getting something from the federal government, why can't the farmers?")

Was the United States founded to guarantee a fixed income to a certain group of people or was it founded to enable those people to work freely to earn whatever they could? (The idea of a fixed income is inherent in the parity price formula for subsidizing farm production while regulating the acreage planted and harvested.) Was America founded to jail men who wish to exercise their Constitution-stated freedoms and rights?

And one last question: Don't the simplest sort of statement of the facts—a farmer was sentenced to jail on charges resulting from planting tobacco in violation of federal government regulations—sound much too much like the methods by which rulers of another governmental system force farmers to become members of a collective, state-owned farm?

Case May Affect All Retailers

By ELMER ROESSNER

Every retailer in the country has a stake in an action the Federal Trade Commission has brought against S. Klein Department Stores, Inc. of New York, alleging deceptive advertising.

If the FTC finds the store guilty, the case will probably be taken to the United States Supreme Court to determine whether the FTC has power to crack down on purely intrastate businesses.

Hitherto, the FTC has acted against companies engaged in interstate business. There has been no question about its powers in this field. The Constitution gives Congress the right to regulate interstate commerce and this power has been delegated to the FTC in certain sectors.

The Klein company operates in New York City, Hempstead and Westchester, N.Y., and in Newark, N.J. The FTC claim to jurisdiction is not that the company operates in two states, but that its advertising appeared in newspapers of interstate circulation and in radio and television broadcasts in interstate transmission.

EXAGGERATION CHARGED — The FTC cited advertisements saying: "From one of the best known makers—Save $25.05—Thomas Cotton Sports Coats—Made to retail at $35-9.95!"

"Cashmere Sweater Event! Precious mink on Cashmere Sweaters—sold nationally at $89 to $139-$50." and "Cultured Pearl Necklaces and Chockers—All hand knotted! All with 14 Kt. white gold clasps. Guaranteed equal to $15 necklaces and chockers, $3.95." Several other advertisements were included.

The FTC charged that amounts designated as "list," "sold nationally at," "value" and "equal to" were not the usual and customary retail prices in Klein's retail area, that these sums were fictitiously high and customers did not save the difference between the higher and lower prices. It also alleged that customers advertised as "pure silk" did not contain any silk, and that no disclosure was made when merchandise was seconds or irregulars.

The company has denied the charges. HEARING ON FACTS — The FTC will assign an examiner to hear the evidence and the defense. The examiner will report this decision to the five FTC Commissioners, who will then dismiss or approve the charge.

The company may then appeal to the Court of Appeals and the loser in that court can take the case to the Supreme Court.

It is understood that the FTC is eager for Supreme Court ruling and withheld action against local retailers until it had a complaint against one financially able to carry the matter to the high court.

If that court holds that the FTC has the right to police interstate retail establishments whose advertisements cross state lines, then it will have power over every business that advertised in printed or broadcast media. Almost all newspapers and magazines cross state lines and every radio and television state can be picked up in another state.

Congress, if it wished, could restrict the FTC to cases in which only interstate sales, as distinct from advertising, are involved.

ARBITRATOR TELLS FIRM TO START A NEW FACTORY — In case that may be unique, Herman A. Gray, New York University law professor, has ordered Jack Meilman, head of Hickory Clothes, Inc., to pay

Stories About Lyndon

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Politics is the science of controlling men. A politician must be self-assertive or nobody would know that he exists. He must be positive in his statements or he would have no following. He must be flexible or he would fall with a shift of atmosphere. Whoever expects a politician to be incapable of compromise, is thinking of a theologian or a philosopher, not a person who thrives on handshakes.

Thus we approach the problem of Lyndon Johnson who was looked upon by many Republicans as well as Democrats as a superior person, who set aside President Eisenhower to nation above party, who assisted President Eisenhower to put his program through Congress. In fact, he was praised for the great sacrifice he made in sticking to his job in Congress while other Senators were trifling about the country canvassing for the Democratic nomination.

It is therefore difficult to understand why Lyndon Johnson accepted the nomination for Vice President, particularly in the face of obvious and even noisy opposition. The stories are numerous and the whole truth may not be known for several years.

One account is that after a short telephone conversation, John Kennedy went to Lyndon Johnson's suite and that the two men faced each other alone.

This account gives it that Kennedy said that the revolt of the Southerners was serious and the Democratic Party could only be successful if Johnson ran for Vice President; that it would be Johnson's responsibility if the Democrats lost. The story goes that Johnson at first refused on the ground that he preferred to remain Senate Leader; that his wife, his friends, and Sam Rayburn were opposed to the Vice Presidency. However, he permitted himself to be convinced and that Sam Rayburn, who was at first opposed, finally recognized its validity.

This account puts Johnson in the light of a man who sacrificed himself for his party, risking the anger of his friends and associates to save the Kennedy ticket.

The other story is less complimentary. It says that Lyndon Johnson wanted the Vice Presidency. That his first discussion on the subject was with Robert Kennedy and that he said that he was entitled to it because of the showing he made at the Convention and that he could carry the South. Shortly after the conversation with Robert Kennedy, John Kennedy came to Johnson's suite and said that he would have to take the question up with the party leaders and they approved.

According to this story, Robert Kennedy subsequently came to Johnson and told Johnson that George Meany, president of the A.F.L.-C.I.O., and Walter Reuther of the United Automobile Workers and Governor Mennen Williams of Michigan were in revolt against Johnson; that the A.D.A. objected to him and that if Johnson wanted to withdraw, he still could.

There is no question as to the opposition to Johnson by the labor groups, the Michigan, District of Columbia and the A.D.A. delegates. This opposition was open for all to see on television and was responsible for Johnson's and for the rust on the part of Governor Collins to travel down the entire discussion. No other candidate for Vice President was nominated.

It is noteworthy that Mrs. Roosevelt did not attend the unity session on Friday night but that Jimmy Roosevelt spoke up for his mother. Since when has Mrs. Roosevelt needed anyone to speak up for her? Secondly, it must be noted that Harry Truman's telegram of congratulations was addressed neither to John Kennedy nor Lyndon Johnson. It was addressed to Governor Collins who presided. It is no secret that Harry Truman is not delighted with the ticket. It is no secret that he

Public Library Held Indispensable

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"The public library is the most indispensable part of the community because it provides for the culture and education and serves all of the people, no matter what their financial or social rating," according to Elizabeth Copeland, Librarian of the Sheppard Memorial Library in Greenville.

"With the aid of books available in a library, anyone, if he wants to had enough and is willing to study can get an education," Miss Copeland pointed out, adding that "there are books written on every subject of interest in the world."

The Sheppard Memorial Library has some 61,927 volumes on the shelves in the building. In addition to the books, there are 535 long playing records and 92 micro film reels at the library for public use.

Last year alone, 4,706 books were added to the large selection available for free public use, the librarian noted.

In addition to the books, records and films, the library subscribes and has on file six newspapers and 139 magazines. "The hardest job," according to Miss Copeland, "is the selection of books—spending the money available judiciously and where it will do the most good."

"The buying is influenced by the community, its needs and interests."

Contrary to popular belief, the librarian pointed out, adults use the library much more than children do. "Last year, 10,000 more volumes were lent to adults than to children," she said, adding that during the winter months the children use the school libraries.

A native of Ahsokie, Miss Copeland attended East Carolina College, Feabody and Vanderbilt. Before coming to Greenville as Librarian in September of 1954, she served at the B.H.M. Regional Library in Washington, N.C., and did research work in Philadelphia, both for the Curtis Publishing Company and for the Bureau of Municipal Research of Philadelphia. She has also worked in Winston-Salem and Edenton.

"Every day is different," ac-ording to Miss Copeland, who likes "helping people to find pleasure in reading and by providing for their individual interests. It is the people and their individual interests that fascinate me the most," she said.

One of the things she likes least about her job is that her administrative duties do not give her the time to work with the public at the desk.

Speaking again of the importance of the library to the public, she pointed out that the library is "a democratic institution which is peculiar to the United States." Foreign nations do not provide free library services, she said.

As Librarian, Miss Copeland is responsible for compiling reports of the activities of the library, compiling the budget, making book selections, publicity, maintenance of the building and grounds and serves as secretary to the Board of Directors of the Library, among other things.

Miss Copeland includes politics, reading, golf, Church work, and water sports among her hobbies. She is also a collector of books, antique glass and stamps.

A member of the St. Pauls Episcopal Church, she is a member of the Executive Board of Episcopal Church Women for the Diocese of East North Carolina. She is also a member of the Pitt County Historical Society, the North Carolina Southeastern and American Library Associations, a member of the Executive Board of the Pitt County TB Association and a member and former board member of the East Carolina Art Society.

In addition, she is a member of the North Carolina Certification Board of Public Librarians, a three member board that certifies librarians for work in public libraries of this state.

Miss Copeland smiles with satisfaction when asked how television has influenced the library. According to her, library records show that there is from 50 to 55 per cent more business now than there was during the first year of television here.

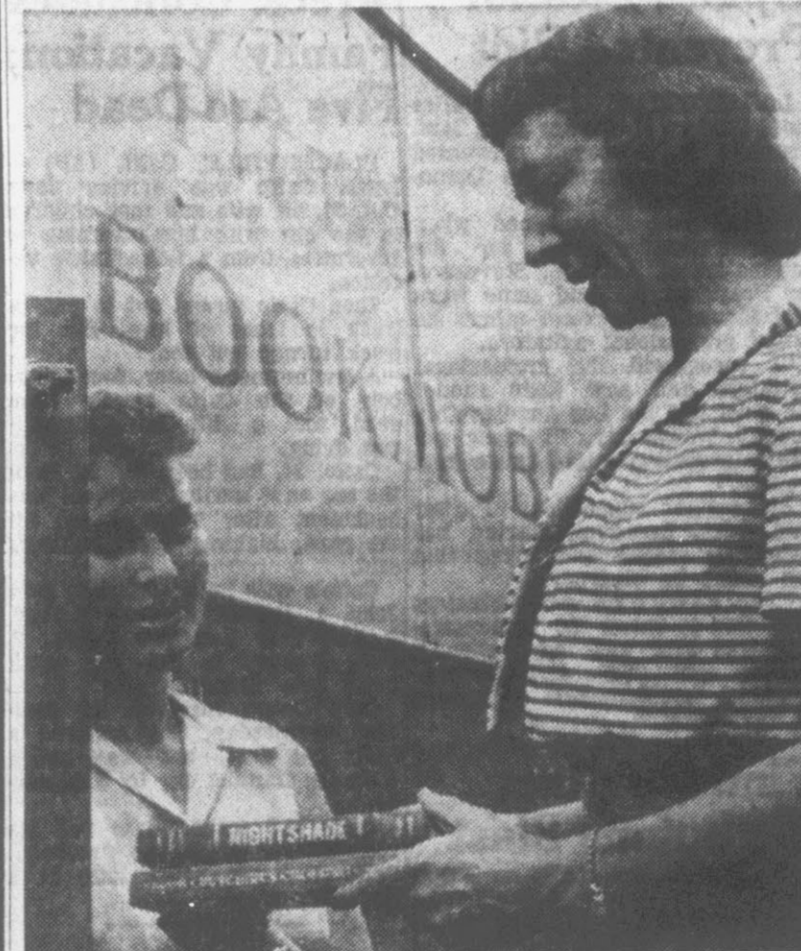

She pointed out that television has influenced reading by causing citizens to become more curious and eager for information on a wide range of subjects.

WILLIAM PEARSON'S rousing bestseller on politics
A FEVER IN THE BLOOD

From the novel published by St. Martin's Press, Inc. Copyright © 1962, by William Pearson. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 18
 At eleven in the evening District Attorney Dan Callahan knocked on the door of Mickey Beers' apartment. The door opened, and Callahan limped into the shabby living room.
 "Where's your wife, Mickey?"
 "Asleep. What gives?"
 "Give me a drink. You'll need one too."

Beers brought out a whisky bottle, glasses, and ice. Callahan watched while he poured. "This Thomas woman's making trouble, Mickey."
 "Yeah, some deal."
 The District Attorney took his drink. "How much you got in the bank?"
 "In the bank? I dunno. Two hundred bucks."
 Callahan closed his eyes. "Mickey, I've done hard things before, but this is the hardest. I'll make it short and sweet. I've got to fire you. Or maybe just suspend you. It depends on how it goes. There's too much heat on because of that little kid."
 Beers gaped dumbly.
 "Somebody has to take the rap, Mickey. You're the goat."
 Beers groped for a chair. "You . . . you can't do this, Boss."

"You think I want to?"
 "I got an invalid wife, Boss. I got kids. You think I can let 'em starve?"
 "They won't starve. I'll see that you get money. I'll see that you get money."
 Beers choked on a bitter, frightened laugh. "Oh, sure. And what happens to me if something happens to you? Who's going to hire a man of forty-seven who's been canned, suspended, from the D. A.'s office. Who?"

"Mickey, what can I do? It isn't my idea."
 Beers took a desperate swallow of his drink. "Boss, the things I done for you, the things I done. All for you. The Hart trial. I got that stuff about Hart going after his wife with a knife into evidence."
 "I didn't tell you to do that."
 "How the hell can you say that? You said, you know you did that if that attorney asked me the right kind of question, I could work it in and get away with it."

Callahan rubbed sweating hands on his trousers. "You're not looking at this right. It's only a few months."
 "I won that case for you." He sat rigid, a man carved from stone. "I won it. You get to be Governor, and you'll get there because I won that case."
 "Okay, you did a lot in that case. But . . ."
 "A lot! That ain't half of it." Beers's squinting eyes became crafty. "How do you think that cocaine bottle got in Hart's desk?"
 Callahan froze. "Say that again."

 "Sure, any old time. I put it there!"
 "You what!"
 "You heard right. I put it there. Me, myself, and I." He saw the look in Callahan's face and cringed. "Boss, I was just trying to help . . ."
 "Help!" The cords in Callahan's neck bulged.
 "You told me to sew the case up, so nobody could say there'd been a fix."
 Callahan groaned. In a voice from which all inflection had vanished and only finally was left, he said, "You're going to write out a statement, Mickey, telling what you did." Then his fury caught up with him. "Go on, get the paper. Get it!"
 "Hugh? Whatya mean?"
 "I can't front for you on this. Not on a felony. You're going to jail."

Beers wrapped his ape-like hands around the chair arms. "No, I ain't going to jail. No, sir. Not unless you want me to say whose idea it was to claim we were on our way to make a pinch when we hit that kid."
 Callahan came out of his seat, his big fists doubled. "Mickey, I walked through that door hating my guts because I was giving you the rawest deal I've ever given a man. But now you're getting bigger ideas than you're man enough to handle. Go ahead, tell 'em. We'll see who they believe. By hell, as far as I knew, we were on our way to make a pinch. All I knew was, you told me you had a tip. That's the story you gave the reporters yourself."
 The solid face of the man cowering in the chair wrestled with the thought. "Boss," he mumbled, "all these things. I was trying to help."
 "You sure helped. Planting fake evidence! Wait till Simon starts to play with that one. He'll laugh me out of the country."

Beers looked up with sudden, frantic hope. "He doesn't have to know."
 "Doesn't have to know! Are you crazy? Hart's been convicted with faked evidence!"
 "But he's guilty. Boss, I can tell by his eyes. By the way he ducked my questions. You get a feel for these things. . . I don't know how it is. . . you just get a feel for them. . . Almost buoyant now, he said, "My aching back, I wouldn't put that bottle in his desk if I didn't know he was guilty."
 Callahan stared at his investigator in almost speechless disbelief. "So this is as far as you've come from Boxer Square! Damn you! You haven't changed one bit since you were a kid. Not one bit! Still the same cheap punk. . ."
 "A cheap punk?" Beers rocked in his chair, a twisted smile on his lips. "Okay, maybe nobody changes. Because you ain't so lily-white either. Who was it told me to work that stuff about Hart's going after his wife into evidence? Then you stood right in front of Hoffman, you liar, and told him you hadn't coached me."

 Callahan trembled with the strength of the emotion he was feeling. "That was no lie, Mickey. I didn't coach you; I said you could do it if the defense asked you a question about it. There's a lot of difference, but what would you know about that? Are you another jail-house lawyer? Anyhow Hoffman had a chance to call a mistrial trial if he didn't like it. Did he? No! He knew I was right legal-ly."
 "You ain't so lily-white some other ways. No, sir." Beers took a deep breath. "Boss, you turn me in. . . you turn me in. . . then I got to tell them how you really lost your leg in Italy." He put up his hands as if he expected to ward a blow. "I got it, Boss. Because I got a sic wife, kids. They'd be out on the street."
 Everything drained from Callahan's face. He found a chair. "When did I tell you about that?"
 "One night. Right after the war. You were pretty tanked. Boss. You passed out cold about ten minutes later. I had to take you home, help Lucia get you into bed. I figured you didn't remember all right."
 "I trusted you," Callahan said.
 Beers shivered. "I don't want to tell. How could I want to hurt you? Look at the injury I done for you. Would I of done 'em if I didn't want you to win? I'm not smart, maybe, like the others, but I'm loyal, Boss. You got to let me keep my job."
 "All right, I'm saddled with you!" Callahan got to his feet, still trembling. "We've got to get Hart a new trial. But how? How? He stood there, a massive tormented figure in the isolation of a search for ways and means. "Yeah," he said slowly. "Yeah. . . He raised his head, clasped his hands behind his back. "I'll join in supporting the affidavit Temple's filed with the Supreme Court. And I'll say that in view of Temple's uncertainty, the defendant be given a new trial."
 He began to smile. "Sure. And I'll tell Charlie Hart what I'm going to do. Then Charlie and I, maybe we'll. . ."
 "Boss. . ."
 Started, Callahan looked around. The smile faded. "And the next time, no cocaine bottle. No nothing from you. You've still got your job, but that's all you've got."
 He limped from the apartment and into the night.

Traditional Bow Takes A Beating In New Japan

By KENNETH ISHII

TOKYO (AP)—Tch! Tch! Everyone is going around shaking hands. The honorable bow is taking a beating.

When fellow political bigwigs meet, more often than not, they'll shake hands Western style.

When college student meets college student, businessman meets businessman, it's getting to be the same.

Traditionalists lament this challenge to the bow, meaningful and expressive gesture that has played an important part in regulating Japanese society.

Let's start with the condescending "nod"—the brief dip of the head plus an ever-so-slight forward body motion from the waist up. It is a greeting for superiors to inferiors.

The boss, for example, will nod to a subordinate who, in turn, will proffer a medium bend if he's not too far outranked, and the deep bow if he's the janitor.

But what if the boss is caught in a deep bow to the janitor? And this can happen.

Then you can be sure the janitor has done the boss a great favor—something like saving his life.

And the janitor will respond with an equally uncomfortable bend—not because he's the janitor, but as a gesture of abasement, as if to say, "It was nothing at all." Self-abasement is an important social virtue among Japanese.

Complicated, you might think, and indeed, more than one uninitiated foreigner has been caught in a deep and reverent bow to his maid.

But the serious bower must ask himself these further questions: How long must I stay bowed? The theory is, the longer the bow the greater the politeness.

The practiced low bender will glance out of the corner of his eye to time his rise with that of his partner.

How many times should I bow? Usually, after three or four bows, the parties agree on an unspoken signal to call it quits. But it can also turn into a subtle contest to see who can outbow the other.

How shall I bow so our heads don't bump?
 It takes but one error to effectively remedy this fault. The participants usually prepare themselves by facing each other at a slight diagonal.

And there you have it, the complete etiquette of the bow and why it shouldn't bow out to the handshakes.

Besides, add the traditionalists, it's much more hygienic.

Opines Eleanor Prevented Riot

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police chief William H. Parker says Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt prevented a possible riot during the Democratic convention.

Parker said it happened when demonstrators agitated for the nomination of Adlai E. Stevenson for President. He said some were real Stevenson backers; others he called professional agitators.

"I recognized the professional agitators and saw their mod," the chief told the Los Angeles City Council Wednesday. "I knew police intervention might cause real trouble."

At police suggestion, Parker said, Mrs. Roosevelt started her seconding speech and asked that the aisles be cleared.

"The sincere demonstrators took this to mean the demonstration was over and they retired," Parker said. "This left the professional troublemakers to beat a hasty retreat."

Find No Clues To Butane Blast

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Fragments of a butane storage tank found in Juarez, Mex., have failed to shed any light on the cause of a July 4th explosion in El Paso.

Schwartz Gas Co. Inc., sending the fragments flying across the Rio Grande into Juarez and killing two workers at the plant.

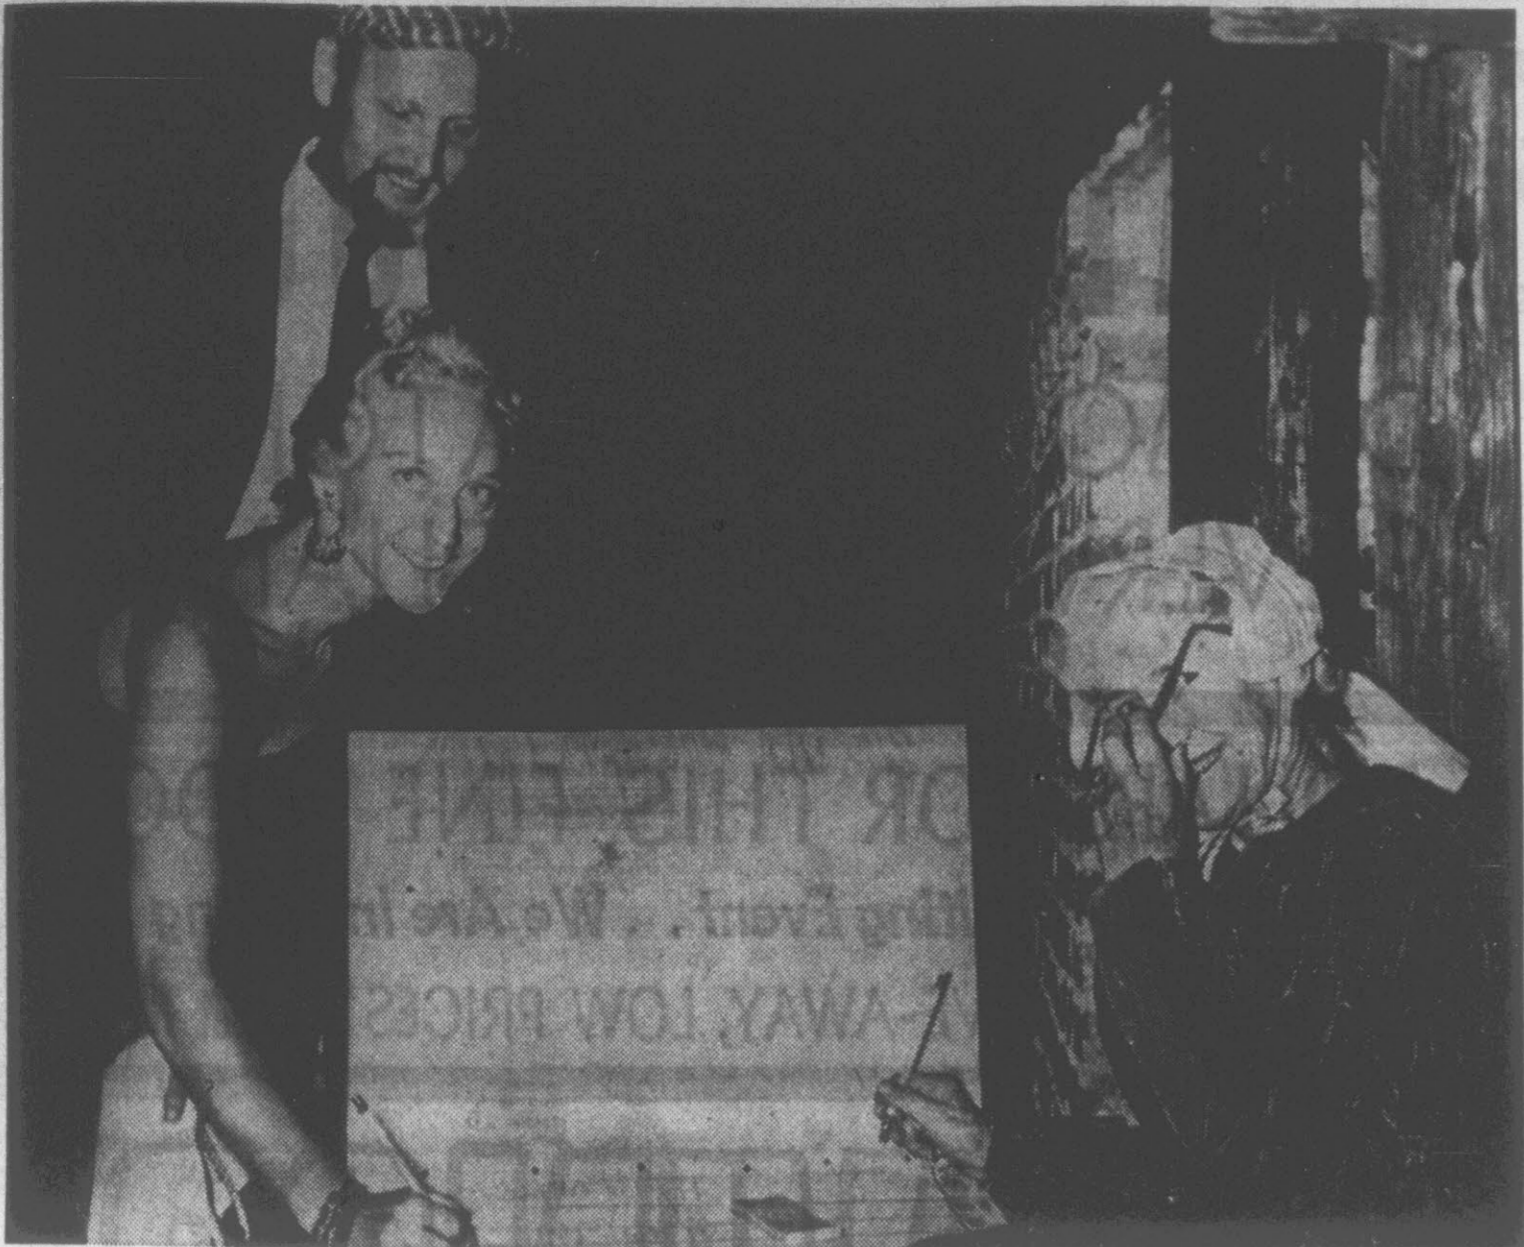

El Paso fire marshal H. L. O'Hara said officials have been unable to find any cause for the blast.

FIESTA WHIRL—Six men, by shifting their weight, activate a human pinwheel at Totonac Indian festival in Papantla, Mexico. The wheel can make 150 turns a minute.

NO BOYS HURT

LONDON (AP)—Lightning struck the Eton College boathouse while it was crowded Tuesday with boys sheltering from a storm. Tiles were hurled about. Smoke filled the boathouse. Six pigeons in the rafters were killed. But none of the boys was hurt.

ATTEND 'LOST COLONY' PERFORMANCE—Mr. and Mrs. Claude Garren of East Carolina College, Greenville, are shown as they registered in the guest book at the 1000th performance of Paul Green's "Lost Colony" in Manteo. Mrs. Mabel E. ones, right, was in charge of the guest book. Mrs. Jones, like the Garrens, is a former member of the "Lost Colony" company. Garren was stage manager and Mrs. Garren, who started with the show as a dancer, was later cast as Eleanor Dare, the female lead. This summer she played the lead role in New Bern's "The Third Frontier." All former members of "Lost Colony" companies were invited to be special guests during the 1000th performance, and among those present was Andy Griffith who once played Sir Walter Raleigh in the cast. N.C. June Job Outlook 'Good'

RALEIGH (AP) — Except for seasonal job decreases in several fields, the June employment picture looked good to Labor Commissioner Frank Crane. He said, "A majority of the state's industries reported increased employment. The June job figures in many industries were ahead of the June totals for last year."

Labor Department statistics released Wednesday showed 1,146,100 persons were employed in off-the-farm jobs last month. It represented a gain of 23,100 over the same month in 1959, but a decrease of 4,800 under the total for May.

Crane said the seasonal decreases were normal and expected. They occurred in public schools, federal agencies and fertilizer plants.

Crane said June's factory employment totaled 491,900, up 1,500 from May, and up 2,800 over June, 1959. The nonmanufacturing job total, 654,200, was down 6,300 from May, but up 29,300 over June of last year.

Some 400 more textile workers were employed in June than in May, but the total remained 2,400 below the June, 1959 level.

The average earnings of the factory workers held steady at $1.55 an hour and the average work week remained unchanged at 40.3 hours.

Job gains were noted during June in construction, service industries, the food products industry and in local government because of the Democratic runoff primary election June 25.

First Big Plunge In TV 'Exciting'

EDITOR'S NOTE — Putting together a TV special, Debbie Reynolds discovers, is something of a challenge, especially since it's her first professional dancing chore in quite a while. She tells about it in the following guest column, one of a series during AP TV-radio writer Cynthia Lowry's vacation.

By DEBBIE REYNOLDS

Written For The Associated Press

The daring young man on the flying trapeze had an easier time of it, I think, than a daring young woman who takes her first big plunge into television.

It has been exciting and exhilarating, rehearsing and putting together a full-hour special, as I'm doing for ABC-TV. This is the first of three for the network on a one-year basis.

Television is a new challenge and adventure for me. It is the realization of something I've planned for a long time and presents me with the opportunity of making new friends.

The new experience has not been without some problems and minor frustrations, such as are apt to arise in any creative venture. But it's also been great fun.

Bill Collieran's the active producer-director for the hour's entertainment, we hope! The title of our show is "A Date With Debbie," and we hit the air Thursday, Oct. 27.

The show is being forged under the colors of Harmond Productions, a company I incorporated last year to encompass all of my independent enterprises, which are chiefly motion pictures, television, and fashions for the girls.

It will-to-do combined with enthusiasm is the criterion, the 60 minutes should be a real fun show. The zest shown by all concerned continually amazes me.

Take those youngsters Walter Brennan and Charlie Ruggles, for instance. Our writers, Carl Reiner and Joe Stein, wonderfully talented fellows, developed the idea of getting them to join me in a dance routine. The idea appealed to me since each had played my grandfather in a movie, Brennan in "Tammy and the Bachelor" and Ruggles in "The Pleasure of His Company," which, incidentally, was halted by the Hollywood writers' strike and will be resumed in November.

Both old-timers went for the concept with glee, but they had previous commitments. It took some fantastic rearranging to get them together, but they were insistent. In fact, they both spent three days taking dancing lessons before our rehearsals started.

I like to work with people I know and in whom I have confidence. Old pal Carleton Carpenter answers these qualifications.

We'll do a musical duet, "Abba-Dabba Honey-moon," a number we did as teen-agers in MGM's "Two Weeks With Love" and successfully recorded several years ago.

The show will mark the first time in more than three years that I have done any professional dancing, and I'm in training something like an olympic athlete. I have a rugged schedule of limbering-up exercises every morning before I sit down to breakfast!

The function of a TV packager—that's what they're calling me these days—is to rein all facets of the production. Hiring the talent, the director-producer, the writers, assembling the performers, making arrangements for the special artists, negotiating for the facilities, the craftsmen, musicians, choreography, costume designing, and many other important details, all take weeks of serious planning. I could never do all that alone. Thank goodness I've had much talented help.

We decided that a girl should become involved in something like this only once a year, especially with my motion picture commitments and other activities.

There has been much debate in Hollywood about overexposure. It is a rare personality, I feel, who can't overstay audience welcome. I feel that by limiting myself to two feature motion pictures and one television special a year, I am giving the public enough of myself.

One big TV show a year allows time for adequate planning and preparation. I have the opportunity to take out the bugs and make the show good. If it is good, people will talk about the show and remember it.

I'll take my cue from my friends, Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly, and try to put together an hour of what we hope will be entertainment for everyone.

DRAWS A FINE REDNAL, England (AP)—Roger Cadbury was fined three pounds or ($8.40) Tuesday for "driving a motorcar in such a position that he could not have proper control." He had a girl on his lap.

Centuries-Old Isolation Of Angola Coming To End

LUANDA, Angola (AP)—Under on a lonely and unwanted prominence. Together with Mozambique, its sister Portuguese province on the African east coast, Angola is fast coming to an end.

It is being replaced by a new kind of isolation. Instead of obscurity—an obscurity that has made this southwest African territory one of the great unknowns of the continent—Angola is taking ciala repeat here with regularity. They conceded that the trend of events seems to be running hard against them. But they contend that the Portuguese are different from the other European colonizers who came to Africa.

Portugal is a dictatorship which stifles political opposition, not only in the overseas provinces but in the mother country as well. Press censorship, a widespread network of informers, and rigid clamps on education all discourage the growth of ideas about democracy and self-determination.

Africans in Angola and Mozambique have little chance to learn the precepts of liberty which, to the Portuguese way of thinking, undermind British, French and Belgian rule in Africa.

Because of Portugal's cradle-to-grave thought control, observers in many parts of Africa believe that organized black nationalism movements are practically nonexistent in Angola and Mozambique, at least so far.

When the slightest inkling of subversive activities is suspected, the authorities crack down hard. The real threat to continued Portuguese rule appears to come from outside, especially from the Leopoldville area where a sizable group of Angolan expatriates will be able to operate openly now that the Congo has black government.

They have the support of Patrice Lumumba, new premier of the Congo, and Kwame Nkrumah, President of Ghana.

Another reason for Portuguese confidence is the economic power that Mozambique and Angola exercise over the Congo. Most of the copper and other mineral exports are mined in Katanga Province, in the southeast corner of the Congo. Most travel by rail is across either Angola or Mozambique to the ports of Lobito on the west coast of Beira in the east.

If Portugal should close these rail links, admittedly at great loss to its own economy, the Congo could be quickly brought to its knees.

First Night Of Judging Is Done

CHARLOTTE (AP) — It's one down and two to go in preliminary judging today for harried judges trying to decide which of 69 lovelies should become Miss North Carolina.

The first of three nights of preliminary judging in the beauty pageant was Wednesday night. The girls were divided into three groups and will alternate nightly in the evening gown, swimsuit and talent divisions.

Ann Herring of Winston-Salem was adjudged a preliminary winner in one of three swimsuit rounds. The trim Wake Forest coed's 35-23-35 figure took the honors. She is 5-7 and a brunette.

Meanwhile, Daphne Bell Fair of Tri Cities (Asheville) took preliminary honors in the talent division. She gave a fine rendition of "He's Gone Away," a North Carolina mountain ballad. Miss Fair accompanied herself on the autoharp.

Winners of preliminary judging in the evening gown category and in personality were not announced. Neither were runners-up in the bathing suit and talent divisions. The various preliminary winners will be revealed Saturday.

The first night's judging drew more than 1,200 to Owens Auditorium.

The 10 finalists selected will appear Saturday night in the various divisions before a successor to Judi Klipfel of Asheboro as Miss North Carolina is chosen. The winner will be crowned by Lynda Lee Meade of Mississippi, Miss America.

Fire Threatens Fabled Mansion

KING CITY, Calif. (AP)—Fire fighters today desperately cut a fire back halfway down a ridge that overlooks the late William Randolph Hearst's castle at San Simeon.

The 26,000 acre brush fire burned to within two miles of the north end of the fabulous estate Wednesday night.

Ranger James Dullitz reported the castle still is not in danger. But the wind could easily change this situation, he said.

An on-the-scene reporter said "if the wind changes the fire will be at the back door of the castle." The multimillion dollar edifice is now the center of a 143-acre state park.

The blaze started Sunday.

Rare Gold Shipment This Week

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—About 15 tons of gold was flown this week from Toronto to New York. It may have been the largest shipment ever entrusted to one plane. But also it's one of the occasions when gold actually comes in or out of this country—occasions that are rarer than most people may think.

There's been much talk in recent years of the flow of gold out of the United States. The flow talk is based on the fact that the Treasury's stock of gold is five billion dollars lower than 10 years ago, with the greatest drop in the last three years.

But very little of that solid metal actually flowed from these shores. Most of it stays right in New York.

Instead of being held by the U. S. Treasury at Ft. Knox, Ky., it has been moved six blocks from the U. S. Assay Office in lower Manhattan to the vaults of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, where it is earmarked for the account of whatever foreign nation is the new owner.

It is stacked in the vaults in the form of gold bars weighing about 27 pounds each, valued at about $14,000.

The Canadian gold came from the Toronto branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Neither that bank nor the Federal Reserve cares to say why the gold was brought here. Nor does the Federal Reserve care to discuss how much gold it holds for foreign account, nor for which countries.

But the Federal Reserve Bank here acts as a financial exchange for the central banks of other nations and is probably the world's largest depository of gold earmarked for such banks.

Other nations can settle their international accounts by having the Federal Reserve Bank move the gold from one pile to another.

For example, if Canada's trade balance with England is running a deficit, Canada could have the New York bank transfer the necessary amount of gold from Canada's account to England's. In turn, if it needed to and wanted to, England could transfer gold held here to the account of West Germany.

All the deals would take place within the vaults of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. Only occasionally is the gold itself moved to another land.

When the United States needed for the last three years to settle its balance of payment deficits with other nations, it trucked into the Federal Reserve vaults gold held in the U. S. Assay Office here. A sizable sum of U. S. gold is kept on hand there, although the big hoard is at Ft. Knox.

Congo Soldiers Said To Blame

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—"All the Congo violence is being perpetrated by Congolese soldiers," says a North Carolina missionary who just recently left the Belgian Congo.

And the Rev. Charles R. Oliver added, he doesn't feel the situation can be eased until "the Congolese themselves want help."

The 27-year-old missionary, who is taking a year-long furlough in North Carolina, added, "We were stationed 800 miles from Leopoldville, where the violence started... but before we left mob violence had spread to our area."

The Rev. Mr. Oliver said 125 persons were evacuated via a crude landing field at the mission compound. He said they had to fly out six and eight at a time in a small plane. The school was 35 miles from the capital of the Kasai province.

Pointing out that the school he and his wife directed had 8,200 Congolese children from six to 16 years of age, the Rev. Mr. Oliver said the 14 million people of the Congo have no leaders and few have any degree of high education.

The Rev. Mr. Oliver's father is a newspaper publisher here.

More Truth Than Mere Platitude

HAZARD, Ky. (AP) — It was more than a platitude when state Sen. George Conley remarked to a Democratic women's club: "I'm glad to be here ladies. You'll never know how glad."

It developed that en route to the meeting Wednesday, the Ashland Democrat's car ran off the road onto an embankment and stopped on a ledge.

"Another few feet and I would have dropped 50 feet," Conley said.

Sokolsky Col.

(Continued on page 8) wanted to come to Los Angeles to "give 'em hell!" and was advised not to do it by Sam Rayburn.

This budget is a footnote to the reports from the Convention. There is no doubt that much of it is correct. It is in the nature of politics that deals should be made, the object of which is to put down dissension. For instance, Kennedy's appointment of Adlai Stevenson and Chester Bowles as his joint liaison with the Eisenhower Administration on foreign policy takes care of the Stevenson followers who dislike Kennedy more than any other group does. Apparently everybody is being taken care of.

Teen-er All-Stars Bow To EC, 3-1

The possibility of gaining a berth in the State Teen-er Tournament, to be held in Greenville next week, was riding on a low cloud this morning following a 3-1 loss to Elizabeth City by the local baseballers last night.

Opportunity knocked seldom for the lads of Coach Tom Money and they cashed in on scoring threats even less, collecting their lone run in the second inning. The Elizabeth City club, looking more of Legion stature, scored in the first inning and tallied the tie-breaking and winning runs in the sixth.

The two teams will meet again today in the best-two-of-three game series. If Greenville should win today, a site for the third game would have to be determined. In the second inning, Gene Hemby got a single, stole second and went to third on a passed ball. He scored when Dick Coltraine, the losing pitcher, singled.

The locals made a serious threat in the fourth when two consecutive errors and a single walking. But Wade Sumerlin hit an infield fly and Coltraine and Mike Cavendish went down swinging.

The only other hit for Greenville came in the fifth when Kenney Joyner doubled. He failed to score when Dale Gidley struck out.

The winners combined three of their four hits for two runs in the sixth. Griffin and Gregory doubled and Sharber had a single, putting the final touches on the rally.

Forbes scored the first Elizabeth City run in the first after

Newcomer Wins Putt-Putt Event

Newcomer to the PPGA tourney circuit, Don Posey, was victorious over 110 other tournament entrants on his home course in Winston-Salem last week. Posey shot a 22 under par. Frank Holt, top PPGA money winner, and John Connor of Greenville, S. C. tied to split second and third money.

The Winston-Salem Putt Putt was also the scene of another tournament held for the sports writers. Jack Horner, Sports Editor of the Durham Herald, copped first place with his 74—two over par—for the 36 hole route. He was awarded a matched set of Swing-Weight golf clubs. Second place went to Smith Barrier, Sports Editor of the Greensboro Daily News, who shot an 83. Third place went to Horance Billings, Sports Editor of the Salisbury, North Carolina Post. Irwin Smallwood, Golf Editor of Greensboro Daily News, gained honorable mention with eight hole-in-ones . . .

Palmer Can Make History

Arnold Palmer can become the first golfer in history to win the three most coveted American golf titles if he can win the 1960 PGA Championship. He already has annexed the Masters and Open.

A victory this week in the PGA would place him ahead of such greats as Ben Hogan and Sammy Snead. The closing rounds of the 42nd PGA Championship will be covered on CBS Saturday and Sunday . . .

Area Golfers Score Aces

Despite all the great shooters in the game, there have been only two holes-in-one on the PGA tour since March and both by area golfers.

Three U. S. Netters Make Semifinals

CHICAGO (AP) — Chances of the U. S. Davis Cup team members making up the semifinals of the National Clay Courts Tennis Championships were wrecked Wednesday when a diminutive South American upset Earl Buchholz Jr., of St. Louis.

Miguel Olivera, a 5-foot 5, 115-pound speedster from Ecuador, humbled the third-seeded buchholz, 6-2, 6-4, in third round competition of the tournament at the River Forest Tennis Club.

Three other members of the U. S. Davis Cup team breezed into the quarter-finals.

Barry MacKay, No. 1 seed from Akron, Ohio, eliminated Eduardo Zuleta of Ecuador, 6-3, 6-4; second-seeded Bernard (Tut) Bartzen, the defending champion seeking his third straight Clay Court title, 1952-53 his way past 20-year-old Rod Susman of St. Louis, 6-2, 6-4; and Charles McKinley also of St. Louis defeated Don Russell of Australia, 6-3, 6-2.

Also reaching the quarter-finals was Jimmy Rice Laver, the Wimbledon champion, who is the No. 1 foreign seed. Laver dropped his first set to erratic Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., 4-6 but rallied from a 4-3 deficit to win the second set 7-5 and then powered his way to victory with a 6-0 decision in the final set.

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The Beaver Lake Invitation Golf Tournament moved into its second day here today with front-runner Gene Ochsenreiter Jr. of Asheville holding a slim one-stroke lead.

The veteran Asheville golfer fired a three-under-par 69 Wednesday, but he was seriously challenged by three men with 70. Eddie Honeycutt, Mooresville; E. G. Sawyer, Asheville; and George Sexton, Hendersonville.

A 76 was the cutoff point in Wednesday's qualifying. Thirty-five made the championship bracket and will continue medal play through Saturday.

Wright Looking For Third Title WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — "These are the ones who will be the toughest to beat." Mickey Wright, the personable pro from San Diego, Calif., was looking over her chances for a third straight title in the U. S. Women's Open Golf Tournament that starts today.

"In order, I'd say my toughest competition is going to come from Betsy Rawls, Louise Suggs, Joyce Ziske and Barbara Romack." She made the comments Wednesday after finishing her preparations for the $7,500 tourney at the 6,137-yard Worcester County Club course.

The defending champion was slightly hampered by an ailing left knee, but said she didn't expect it to be a major factor in the tourney.

TAKES A CUT—Kenny Joyner, Greenville Teen-er League All-Star outfielder, takes a swipe at the ball in last night's action. Greenville travels to Elizabeth City for the second game of the two-out-of-three series for a berth in the State Teen-er League Tourney.

Palmer Choice To Win PGA Tourney

By FRITZ HOWELL Associated Press Sports Writer AKRON, Ohio (AP) — They're calling this 42nd PGA championship an Arnold Palmer benefit.

And the big bettor from Lionier, Pa., has all the weapons to make the forecast come true in the 72-hole medal play test launched today over Firestone Country Club's awesome acres.

But the year's big money winner, Masters and Open champion, faces a potent par and a fast field as he goes after his seventh tournament conquest of the year.

Old man par—his 70—is not to be fooled with since architect Robert Trent Jones revamped the course for the benefit of the play-for-pay contingent. The best par-tourney guess was that 294 or 295, against a par of 280, would grab the $9,000-plus top prize.

Siege gun hitters, firing with the precision of Sgt. Alvin York, were conceded the best chance. The fair ways aren't narrow enough to force a single file procession, but they are unusually slim and are dotted with drive-snaring traps and bordered by heavy rough and dark woods.

The greens are big—some could require 100-foot putts—and they are guarded by ponds, streams, or yawning bunkers slightly smaller than the Sahara.

The dozen par-four holes average 431 yards, seven being 450 or longer. The four par threes average 216, and the two par fives 526 yards—one stretching a prodigious 625 with a beckoning pond stretched across the front of the green.

CHICAGO (AP) — Head Coach Otto Graham today will greet 44 top collegiate football players with the assignment of beating the Baltimore Colts.

The squad—all graduates—will open drills Friday at Northwestern University with the aim of victory over the National Football League champions in the 27th annual All-Star Game in Soldier Field, Aug. 12.

Predicts Braves As Team To Beat LA Cuts Pittsburgh Lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Because Dodger rookie Tommy Davis is kept a promise to his pitcher, the Pittsburgh Pirates are within one bad night of blowing that fat five-game lead they held only a week ago.

The score was tied 5-5 in the 11th inning Wednesday night and Wally Moon was on first base when Davis turned to pitcher Roger Craig and told him: "Don't worry. I'm going to win it for you."

The Davis stepped up and drove one of Elroy Face's pitches deep into the left-field seats and the Dodgers beat the league leaders for the second straight night, 7-5.

The loss left Pittsburgh a scant half game ahead of Milwaukee. A crowd of 51,301 sat in on the 3-hour, 31-minute thriller, running attendance for the first two nights of the series to 102,739.

The Dodgers have won 10 of their last 12 games, 15 of their last 19, and 18 of their last 24. They have pulled to within five games of first-place Pittsburgh.

Manager Walt Alton won't predict the Dodgers will duplicate their dramatic finish of 1959, runs by Pittsburgh's Hal Smith, when they won the pennant in a playoff with Milwaukee. But he does say he looks for the same club—the Braves—to become the team to beat.

Braves Win Again

LA Cuts Pittsburgh Lead To Half Game On 7-5 Win

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer

Maybe Chuck Dresen had the right dope on Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette. Instead of wearing out his two Milwaukee aces in the spring, he has them ready for the second-half pennant drive.

Spahn, 39, ran his won-lost record to 10-6 Wednesday night by pitching his 49th shutout at the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0. The left-hander has pitched only 142 innings this year and made 17 starts as compared to 167 innings and 21 starts at this stage last season.

Burdette, boasting a 10-4 record, had worked only 137 innings and started 22 times.

Dresen's Braves clipped Pittsburgh's National League lead to a half game when Los Angeles knocked off the Pirates 7-5 in 11 innings. Rookie Tom Davis' two-run homer in the 11th did the trick for the Dodgers, despite two home runs by Pittsburgh's Hal Smith.

Glen Hobbie, of the Chicago Cubs pitched seven perfect innings against Cincinnati before Wally Post opened the eighth with a single. Hobbie finished up with a two-hitter for a 4-0 verdict in the second game behind Don Newcombe, who had lost five straight.

Errors by Dave Philley and Orlando Cepeda put Sam Jones in a hole in the ninth inning of San Francisco's game with the Phillies before Johnny Antonelli got the third man out to nail down Jones' 12th victory 3-1.

In the American League, Chicago reduced the New York Yankees' lead to one game by downing Boston 7-1, while the Cleveland Indians were salvaging the last of three from the Yanks 8-6. Kansas City shade Baltimore 4-3, and Washington won its 11th in 14 games, defeating Detroit 8-6.

Spahn scattered seven hits and didn't allow a runner to advance past second base, while Joe Adcock and Hank Aaron did the slugging with a pair of tape-measure jobs against Ernie Broglio. Adcock hit a 450-foot drive into the bleachers for his 15th homer, and Aaron slammed No. 26 into the same sector, extending his batting streak to 15 straight games.

The Dodgers, who have won 18 of their last 23, made it two in a row over the Pirates when Wally Moon opened the 11th with a single off loser Elroy Face, 5-5, and moved to second on Gil Hodges' sacrifice before Davis put his second major league homer into the Coliseum seats.

Roger Craig, 3-1; was the winner in relief. Both clubs loaded the bases in the 10th but scored just once after Hal Smith's second home run of the game had tied it 4-4 in the ninth for the Pirates. His first homer came with two on in the fourth inning. Duke Snider hit his 11th home run for the Dodgers.

Greensboro Sweeps Two In League Play

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greensboro swept a double-header from high-flying Burlington Wednesday night taking advantage of a tie between first-place Wilson and Winston-Salem.

both ends of the twin bill was supplied by home runs by George Banks.

Banks belted three circuit clouts and drove in eight runs. After poking two two-run homers in the opener, he broke an 8-8 deadlock in the second game by hitting his third four-bagger with two men on in the eighth.

Detroit 8-6. Faye Throneberry, an occasional starter in the Washington lineup, drove in five runs with a double with the bases loaded and two singles.

Kansas City's Ray Herbert skirted disaster in the ninth inning while pitching the A's to a 4-3 victory over Baltimore. Marv Throneberry hit a towering 400-foot homer, and Andy Carey came through with a triple and a double in defeating Milt Pappas.

In the National League, Milwaukee continued to pour it on as Warren Spahn shut out St. Louis 3-0, moving to within a half game of the lead when Pittsburgh lost to Los Angeles 7-5 on Tommy Davis' two-run homer in the 11th.

With only one day game on the Thursday schedule in the American — Washington at Detroit — attention turned to the big weekend series at the stadium between the Yanks and White Sox. They meet Friday night, Saturday afternoon, and play a double-header Sunday.

Semifinals Set For Golf Tourney

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Barbara Stark of Asheville, the only North Carolinian still in the championship field, met Kay Eckford of Starkville, Miss., today in the semifinals of the first annual Country Club of Asheville Women's Invitational amateur golf tournament.

In the other match Rose Boring of Concord, Tenn., played Mrs. J. C. Byars of Tampa, Fla. Winners play over 18 holes Friday for the championship.

Barbara Stark, who was No. 4 in Monday's qualifying with a 78, whipped the medalist, Mary Emma Manley 1-up in Wednesday's play. Barbara is the lowest qualifier still in the running.

In other matches, Kay Eckford scored a 2-up win over Mrs. Harry Henderson of Alexandria, La.; Mrs. Byars ousted Joan Lindsay of Bakersfield, Calif., 3 and 1, and Rose Boring scored an easy 5 and 4 win over Mary Wickes, Des Moines, Iowa.

Strong Civil Rights Plank Slated For GOP

By OVID A. MARTIN
CHICAGO (AP)—A Republican senator today challenged Democrats to trot out their bold civil rights plank and try to get it enacted by Congress when it reconvenes next month after the national convention recess.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of New York also insisted that only the Republican party is able to bring an end to racial discrimination.

Keating's statement, prepared for a Republican platform subcommittee, said it would be interesting to test the Democratic plank, adopted at Los Angeles last week, in the Democratic-controlled Congress.

"If action is not forthcoming on such a proposal, the American people will witness again the contradictions between the declarations and decisions of the Democrats," the New Yorker said. "They will discover that their campaign promises are, like their filibusters, only empty oratory."

The civil rights and farm problems issues dominated activity of the GOP convention's 103-member Platform Committee. It followed Wednesday's procedure of breaking up into eight subcommittees to hear platform recommendations of various groups and organizations. More than 100 witnesses testified Wednesday.

The subcommittees plan to get down to the task of putting various planks on paper Friday for submission to the convention next Wednesday.

It appeared that the convention will adopt a civil rights plank as strong as that adopted by the Democrats over strong objections of their Southern delegates. Certainly no opposition to such a stand has been expressed by any of the Republican delegates participating in the hearings.

The farm problem stacks up as the most difficult. Only on this front has any serious criticism of Eisenhower administration policies come from within the party. Rep. Melvin P. Laird of Wisconsin, chairman of a subcommittee on agriculture, hinted to newsmen that the job is to write a farm plank endorsing general features of the Eisenhower farm program but erasing the image of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

well as within the Republican party, and Laird said the farm plank will differ in some respects from Benson's views.

At their Los Angeles convention Democrats wrote a broad farm plank which they believe will help them win traditionally Republican farmbelt states. This plank differed sharply from Benson's position. It promised higher price supports as a major device for boosting farm returns.

Benson, on the other hand, urges lower supports. The question of federal aid to the aged for medical care was to come up today. The American Medical Assn. was on hand with a recommendation that the Republicans reject proposals that the federal government finance such a program through social security taxes. Such a plan was pledged by the Democrats. The same idea has been endorsed by New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who has said he would accept a draft for the Republican presidential nomination.

the AMA, said in a statement that federal aid in this field should be limited to the aged unable to help themselves.

"But the association does not believe this necessitates the creation of massive federal machinery to help those who neither need nor want help and who are capably handling their own problems at the present time," he added.

The platform was expected to go along with the AMA position, which also is the stand taken by President Eisenhower.

The nation's mayors appealed Wednesday for a Republican pledge to lend financial and other assistance to the cities in meeting problems of inadequate housing, inefficient mass transit facilities, sewage disposal, water shortages, civil defense facilities, and juvenile delinquency.

The fuel oil industry has come up with a new oil-powered water heater that mixes oil and air in a gun-like burner head of the kind used in automatic oil heating plants. The National Fuel Oil Council says the heater needs only one hour a day to produce 120 gallons of hot water in a compact 30-gallon storage tank.

One Thousand Gideons Hold Annual Convention

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A convict turns into a minister, a faltering marriage is saved, a wayward woman changes her ways.

Such things happen over and over when nonreligious people spot a Bible in their hotel room or prison library and curiously leaf through it, perhaps for the first time.

That's the word of a man who spends much of his time getting Bibles to places like that. He is P. J. Zondervan, past president and head of the international phase of the Gideons International.

A thousand Gideons are holding their 61st annual convention.

"My life is changed," wrote an inmate recently from a Greek prison where he had read a New Testament in his language. "I want to keep school children from getting into the fixes I did."

He enclosed money which he asked be used for Testaments to go to Greek children.

"It doesn't matter which language or country we're dealing with, the same things occur all the time," Zondervan says. "The Bible has the power to stir the hearts of men everywhere."

The Gideons is a nonprofit group of businessmen with as one purpose: to make the Bible as widely read as possible. It has placed more than 44 million Bibles and Testaments in hotels, motels, prisons, hospitals and other locations since two chance acquaintances—John H. Nicholson and Samuel Hill—got the original idea in a Boscobel, Wis., hotel room in 1898.

Two years ago a superdrive put a Bible into every hotel and motel room in the United States, Zondervan says. New hostilities have been built since, though, and thousands of Bibles are removed by guests.

Of 149,000 Bibles placed the past year, about 49,000 were to replace books that were taken or worn out.

"We can't condone stealing, but we're secretly rather pleased when someone takes one home because he's sincerely interested in reading more," says Howard S. Armrinding, president.

Pensioners' Aid In Difficulties

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Colorado's program of hospitalization and medical aid for old age pensioners, one of the most liberal in the nation, is running into financial difficulties and may have to be cut back, officials said today.

The program is costing $102,000 a month more than is available for payments, the director, Guy Justis, reported.

Under the program—which is written into Colorado's constitution—pensioners are entitled to 90 days of hospital treatment, nursing home care, and the cost of physicians' visits and medicines. There are approximately 52,000 pensioners in Colorado and Justis said 32,733 of them received some type of free care from the fund during the past year.

Lt. Gov. Robert L. Knous, who was chairman of a commission which wrote the medical plan, said he hopes there will be no serious cutback and that the Legislature will appropriate funds to make up any money required.

The medical care plan was part of a package program under which Colorado's pension system was rewritten in 1956. The program calls for a maximum pension of $100 monthly. This has been increased gradually until next month pensions will reach $107.

Lack Evidence Against Sinatra

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The city attorney says there isn't enough evidence to warrant charging Frank Sinatra with battery for his part in the celebrated fistcuffs in the Moulin Rouge parking lot.

Edward E. Moran, 21, a car parker at the night club, said Sinatra pushed him around and that a friend of the singer's, John Hopkins, pummeled him with his fists.

Although charges against Sinatra were dropped, city atty. Roger Arnebergh said there was "undisputed evidence" against Hopkins.

He said Hopkins, tour manager for entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., would be charged with both battery and disturbing the peace.

Tobacco Tips

By S. J. WEEKS
 Pitt County Tobacco Agent
 During the past few years brown spot, a leaf tobacco disease, has become a serious problem to the tobacco farmer. Brown spot is a widespread and well established disease that occurs to some extent every year. Damage caused by this disease is unpredictable because its severity is controlled by weather conditions, soil type and certain cultural practices. Severe attacks of brown spot often destroy a high percentage of leaf area causing poor quality cured leaf. A heavy infestation can greatly reduce the value of the crop.

Brown spot is caused by a fungus. The brown spot fungus produces enormous numbers of tiny spores or seeds that are easily spread by both wind and water. When temperature and moisture conditions are favorable the spores germinate soon after coming in contact with the tobacco plant. Infection occurs most readily when the leaves are wet. Tobacco leaf tissue invaded by the fungus, is killed causing brown spots to form. Spores are produced in abundance on the surface of the brown spot lesions. Those formed late in the growing season live over winter in the tobacco crop refuse and cause the disease again the following year.

A study made in 1959 on the effect of variety on the development of brown spot revealed that there was no variety available that was resistant to the disease. However, there is some difference in varieties with regard to damage caused by the brown spot fungus. It has also been observed that when heavy rates of nitrogen were used in producing the crop the occurrence of brown spot was much more severe than when normal rates of nitrogen were used. Last year, brown spot appeared to be more severe in fields where nematodes were causing damage and in fields where water had caused a semi-drowned condition of the plant.

The brown spot organism lives from one season to another. By destroying crop refuse immediately after harvest many of the brown spot spores will be killed. Therefore, a good practice to follow is to cut the tobacco stalks soon after the harvest is completed. Then, disc or plow the stalks in.

Crop rotation is helpful in controlling the disease. Only crops that are resistant to at least one kind of nematode and do not leave objectionable residues in the soil for the next crop of tobacco should be used. Such crops are corn, cotton, small grain, small grain followed by weeds, weeds alone, fescue, milo and millet. All these are suitable to be included in a tobacco rotation.

If brown spot is in your tobacco field now, the severity of attack in the upper leaves may be reduced by priming off the lower leaves as soon as possible after the disease appears.

The State Market Hog Show and Sale, scheduled for August 16 and 17 in Kinston, is creating much interest on many farms in Eastern North Carolina.

According to C. J. Goodman, assistant county agricultural agent of Pitt County, "There is expected to be a large number of farmers participating from Pitt County this year than all previous years combined."

We believe that this is a good opportunity for swine breeders and producers in Eastern North Carolina to exhibit animals in this show and sale in order to make a bid for some of the nice prizes being offered and also to compare the quality of their hogs with other outstanding breeders and producers from North Carolina to determine if they are keeping pace with the quality standards being achieved by the leading swine breeders and producers of North Carolina.

If you are interested in entering some animals in this State Market Hog Show and Sale, you are invited to contact your County Agricultural Agent's Office.

Sen. Goldwater Is--Or Isn't--Making A Race

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz) is—or isn't—running for vice president.

It depends on the time of day and the senator's prevailing mood whether he classes himself as a candidate for nomination to national office. Once in a while he seems to take the idea seriously. Then he laughs it off as an impossibility.

Whether Goldwater's name is offered in nomination for the presidency at next week's Republican National Convention appears to depend on just how determined his Arizona delegation is to give him this honor. Goldwater indicated it's up to them.

With 30 delegate votes from Arizona, South Carolina and other areas behind him, Goldwater has no expectation of overhauling Vice President Richard M. Nixon in the presidential nomination contest. He has predicted Nixon's nomination on the first ballot.

Nor does he believe that Nixon will want him on the ticket as a vice presidential running mate. The senator explains frankly that he is too conservative for Nixon. He thinks the vice president will want Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations; Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, the GOP national chairman; or a third person Goldwater declined to name.

But that doesn't keep Goldwater from pounding away on his favorite theme that the Republicans ought to be the party of conservatives that they can't win elections by competing with the Democrats for liberal votes.

When he won re-election to the Senate in 1958, Goldwater ran on a brief, conservative platform. He and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York were about the only Republicans who won in big-time

Kennedy Said Planning 'Whistle-Stop' Campaign

By G. MILTON KELLY
 HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)— Sen. John F. Kennedy was reported today planning some old-fashioned whistle-stop techniques in his "new frontiers" campaign for the presidency.

Former President Harry S. Truman, the whistle-stop champion of them all, announced Wednesday his willingness to campaign for Kennedy. He had sought to block Kennedy's drive to the Democratic presidential nomination.

This opened an interesting field for speculation.

Although Kennedy released no public comment about Truman's offer, aides said privately the senator wants the former president's help. Kennedy refrained from any counterattack when Truman boycotted the Democratic National Convention, charging it had been rigged or, as he now phrases it, "fixed up in advance."

Kennedy may disclose more of his go-go-go campaign plans during the day.

He met for hours Wednesday with a high-level group of his campaign strategists. They announced they had discussed plans to use the old system of campaigning from the rear platform of a special train at whistle-stop spots difficult to reach by the high-speed planes Kennedy plans to use extensively.

Kennedy has mentioned plans to speak in all the 50 states.

The senator planned to get back on something of a vacation schedule today. He managed to get in a little boating Wednesday with his brother Teddy while rounds of political talk continued.

Before nightfall, Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, announced the day's work had resulted in:

1. Assignment of John M. Bailey, Democratic state chairman of Connecticut, as personal liaison man to travel with Kennedy wherever he campaigns and to serve as one of the Democratic chief trouble shooters.
2. Appointment of J. Leonard Rainsch, Atlanta and Miami radio-television and newspaper executive, as Kennedy's communications consultant to arrange for radio-TV phases of the campaign.
3. Steps to form a nationwide Citizens for Kennedy organization, through which dissident Democrats, Republicans—dissatisfied with the GOP ticket, and independent voters could support Kennedy without working through official party organizations.

Bailey and Salinger said emphatically this meant no retreat from Kennedy's announced determination to run the campaign through the Democratic National Committee.

Bailey said his own liaison job makes him subordinate to Robert F. Kennedy, the senator's brother

Bank's Request Is Turned Down

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Banking Commission has turned down an application for a Waccamaw Bank & Trust Co. branch at Warsaw.

Most of the delegation of about 50 persons backed the Waccamaw firm's request. Waccamaw president Lacy Tate said he felt the branch was needed and he had received many requests to open one.

However, Ernest Paschall, president of the Branch Banking & Trust Co., which serves Warsaw, said he felt his bank was rendering sufficient service there and there was not enough business to justify setting up another bank.

The commission approved six branch bank applications at its meeting Wednesday and permitted the Hood Industrial Bank of Reidsville to accept demand deposits and to change its name to the Commercial Bank of Reidsville.

Applications approved were: First Citizens Bank & Trust Co. of Smithfield for a branch at Raleigh's Ridgewood Shopping Center; Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., Winston-Salem, for a branch at Sunset Drive and Battleground Avenue in Greensboro; First State Bank of Hazelwood, in Waynesville; Bank of Wilmington, in Wilmington's Winter Park section; Commercial Bank of Lexington, for a branch at 21 West Center St., in Lexington; and Durham Bank & Trust Co. for a unit in Northgate Shopping Center.

Bag Disappeared, So Did $140,000

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Disappearance of a 22-pound green bag containing $140,000 during a flight from Hong Kong to San Francisco baffled airline officials and the FBI Wednesday. Theft was considered a possibility. The FBI checked into that. Pan American officials were more inclined to think the money, in U.S. currency, got aboard the wrong plane at Honolulu. Pan American said the money, being sent by a Hong Kong bank to a bank in San Francisco, definitely was aboard a Boeing 707 jet on arrival in Honolulu from Tokyo.

Hoover Explores Boy-Delinquency

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — To Herbert Hoover, lack of a place to go after school and on holidays is the most important cause of juvenile delinquency.

Hoover spoke at the dedication of a new boys club building.

Questions concerning politics brought a smile—but no comment—from the 87-year-old statesman. He did say that he will attend the Republican National Convention in Chicago to make a "courtesy speech."

Falkland's Lady Mayor Adds To Town's Distinction

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer
FALKLAND — This little Pitt County municipality has added again to its reputation for being unique.

Besides claiming the shortest municipal street network — less than 200 feet — the town now claims another rarity, a woman mayor.

In the biennial elections here in May, Mrs. Virginia B. Stancil was unanimously elected mayor, succeeding Carson Jones. She was opposed in her bid for the town's mayoral position.

The wife of Falkland merchant, James F. Stancil Sr., the new mayor explains her political ambitions:

"I was asked to run for the office and just didn't know how to say 'no.' Before her election, Mrs. Stancil's political experience came from her holding a justice-of-the-peace position in Falkland Township.

County's Smallest
Mrs. Stancil joined a three-man Board of Town Commissioners to compose the county's smallest town's governing body. Recent preliminary U.S. Census Bureau figures showed Falkland's population as 140.

Cuba Regarded As Police State

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has told Latin Americans that Cuba today under Prime Minister Fidel Castro is more of a police state than it was under ousted President Fulgencio Batista.

"One dictatorship has merely succeeded another in Cuba," Asst. Secretary of State Roy R. Rubottom Jr. said Wednesday night in a Voice of America radio broadcast beamed at Latin America.

"The Castro regime has increasingly driven Cuba away from her natural attachments . . . with the West and toward an unnatural and abnormal — and indeed, in the light of the possible consequences for mankind, an amoral — alignment in the Soviet orbit," he added.

The ideals of the Cuban revolution, he said, "have been shattered and discarded by the present government of Cuba.

"There is no election for governmental office," he said, "no voting for officials, no fixed terms, no separation of powers, no legislative assembly, no independent judiciary; and the system of land reform is a travesty on what was promised, a cruel blow to the hopes of the underprivileged and needy."

Landholders' property has been confiscated by the state without proper compensation, Rubottom said, and only 1 part in 40 of the land so taken has been turned over to the needy and underprivileged.

Spokesmen for the Art Museum and the Museum of Natural History indicated little interest in the project. The Art Museum was granted about $750,000 by the 1959 Legislature for an expansion project and the Natural History Museum was located in the new Agriculture Buildings, constructed only a few years ago.

Dr. Christopher Crittenden, archives and history director, strongly defended the proposal and added that the project, he thought, in terms of a "complex of buildings." He said a vigorous effort would be made to tap funds from private sources.

Detroit Water Supply Strained

DETROIT LAKES, Minn. (AP) — This city, with 412 lakes within a radius of 25 miles, is running short of water. The Detroit Lakes 100,000-gallon water tank went dry Tuesday night.

C. H. Nelson, superintendent of municipal facilities, said a record total of 1,824,000 gallons was pumped from wells Tuesday. Nelson asked residents to stop sprinkling their lawns and to refrain from unnecessary use of water.

Algerian Debate Again Asked UN

—Twenty-five Asian-African countries asked Wednesday that the U.N. General Assembly debate again this fall the Algerian rebellion against France. They filed a formal request with Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld that the assembly put the question of Algeria on the agenda of its three-month 15th annual session starting Sept. 20. The question has been on the assembly's agenda annually since 1955, the year after the rebellion started.

Hearing Set For Accused Mother

ALEMARLE, N.C. (AP) — A hearing is scheduled Friday for Patsy Elaine Stallings, 19-year-old New London woman charged with manslaughter in the death of her 10-month-old son.

Police said the baby was beaten and thrown into a crib May 5. Cause of death was described as a fractured skull and ruptured liver.

The woman was released under $2,000 bond pending the Superior Court hearing.

FALKLAND'S MAYOR . . . Mrs. Virginia B. Stancil represents another of the town's unique traits.

Group Plans Study Office Space Needs

RALEIGH (AP) — A special study committee is to decide whether there is sufficient need for office space to justify construction of a building which would house the state's cultural agencies.

A top state official testified at a hearing Wednesday that the case for such a project depended on the practical need for office space around Capitol Square here.

Director of Administration Paul Johnston told a subcommittee of the Commission on Reorganization of State Government that additional space could be made available to crowded departments by drawing the cultural agencies out of their present buildings.

Gov. Hodges strongly backed the proposal, saying the culture departments "out to be housed in a place of dignity and security and a place we can be proud of."

Presiding was State Rep. Frank Snapp of Charlotte who emphasized his group was concerned only with determining whether a need exists for such a structure and what agencies should be included.

May Hand Over Dead Pilot Today

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government is expected to hand over to the U.S. Embassy Friday the body of Capt. Willard G. Palm, 39, of Oak Ridge, Tenn., pilot of the RB47 reconnaissance plane shot down by the Russians July 1.

The embassy said the body will be flown out of Moscow immediately, probably to Wiesbaden, Germany, where American military authorities will take charge of it.

Cuba Assured Of Russian Goods

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev has formally assured Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government that the Communist bloc can supply all the necessary goods that "the United States and certain other countries now refuse to sell Cuba."

A communique on talks the Soviet Premier had with Raul Castro, brother of the Prime Minister, said the trade would be on a barter basis, Soviet oil and other products in exchange for Cuban commodities.

Drowns Trying To Save His Dog

MILFORD, N.J. (AP) — A fisherman drowned Wednesday in the Delaware River trying to save his dog, caught in a current. The dog managed to reach shore safely. The victim was identified by police as Robert Smale of Bethlehem, Pa. Smale and a companion, Raymond Pagan, also of Bethlehem, were fishing from an island in the river some three miles north of here when the dog jumped into the water. The current carried the dog downstream, and Smale went in to save him.

SORRY, NO SUBSTITUTES

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Highway Patrol Capt. Roland Gautsche concurred with a patrolman in the case of a woman who had pasted a more glamorous picture of herself over the one on her driver's license.

He said it amounted to defacing of the license.

AIR TIGHT ALIBI

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Richard A. Smith was certain they had the wrong man when he was hauled into court on charges of stealing junk from a plant damaged by fire.

Smith's attorney produced jail records showing Smith was a prisoner the day of the fire.

NOISY POLICE

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — Authorities at St. Joseph Hospital called sheriff's deputies to investigate noisemaking that was keeping patients awake.

The deputies found the noisemakers were members of the Fraternal Order of Police attending their annual barbecue nearby.

Artist Gauguin was a sailor before going to Tahiti where he painted his "Women of Tahiti" and other masterpieces.

The new mayor, along with commissioners Willard Wooten, James "Pete" Norville, and Brown Mayo, meet the second Tuesday night each month to transact the town's business. Lewis Lawrence, a school teacher, is beginning his second two-year term as town clerk.

Heading a municipality that expends around $1,600 annually, Mrs. Stancil says a major problem confronting Falkland is a method of using excess Powell Bill funds to improve the town's streets.

The town's only street, paved several years ago, depreciates far too slowly to consume the town's $400-per-year Powell Bill Fund allotment.

Administration Plans
As a result, the town has accumulated nearly $2,500 over several years that can only be spent on municipal street improvements.

Under her administration, Mrs. Stancil says, the town will continue its efforts to begin installing storm sewer and curbing and gutter facilities on state-maintained streets through Falkland.

State highways 43 and 222 interest in the heart of the tiny town and heavy rains create drainage problems that cannot be adequately handled without facilities being sought.

According to the mayor, the town's government is seeking state aid in the project through the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

In addition to Powell Bill money, the town has income from ad valorem taxes, auto license plates, and other sources.

Last year's ad valorem collections totaled around $1,000 from a tax rate of $1.20. License sales brought in another $46. The expense budget includes only one salary — that of Policeman Otis Deans. Mrs. Stancil is a 10-year resident of Pitt's smallest corporate town and a Fountain native. She and her husband operate J.P. Stancil Co., a Falkland wholesale, retail, and tire recapping business. They live within the "city" limits and have a foster son, Eugene Tripp, 16, and a three-year-old son, James P. (Jimmy).

First Six Months Of Year Sees 126 Accidents In Pitt

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

For the first half of 1960, Pitt County has seen over 126 motor vehicle accidents on the county's highways, which does not include the many collisions reported inside the city limits of the towns in Pitt, State Highway Patrol Cpl. J. T. Jenkins said today.

According to the officer, who was giving the accident figures for the county through July 1, damage in the collisions investigated by the Patrolmen in Pitt for the first six months totaled $6,360.

Forty-two persons were injured in the mishaps while six lost their lives as a direct result of accidents. Since July 1, one other fatality has been recorded, Jenkins noted, referring to a 15-year-old Farmville youth killed when he apparently fell from a moving car near Farmville July 6.

The first fatality of the year occurred February 25 about one mile East of Bethel at the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Crossing on U.S. 64.

In that accident, 80-year-old Mrs. Elizabeth Edmondson Carson of Bethel was killed when her car went out of control on a curve and overturned.

The second fatal accident in the county occurred within the Greenville city limits. In that case a nine-year-old Negro boy, William Devan Reeves of 513 Ford St., was struck by a car at the intersection of Fifth and Tyson Sts. March 31. He died of brain injuries April 4.

That same night, a beauty supply salesman from Jacksonville, employed by a Greenville firm, died when he ran his truck from Fairlane Road, near Greenville, across Hooker Road and into a farm pond.

His body was discovered floating in the pond two days later, April 2. He was identified as Josephus Daniels Waters, 35.

Fatality number four occurred in Grimesland April 26 when Jerome Daniels, 3-year-old Negro of Tar Street, Grimesland, was struck and killed by a loaded log truck.

Mrs. Myrtle Parisher, 79, of Johnston St., Tarboro, who died June 4 in Tarboro of injuries received in a collision at the Tar River Bridge on U.S. 13-N.C. 11 June 2, accounted for the county's fifth fatality during the first six months, while the sixth fatality happened on N.C. 102 South of Ayden at the city limits June 21.

Mrs. Alice McLawhorn Stocks, 29, of Route 1 Ayden, died of injuries received when she was thrown from an overturning car. She was the mother of four children.

According to Cpl. Jenkins, nine persons lost their lives on Pitt County roads last year. There were 250 accidents investigated by patrolmen in Pitt during 1959. Jenkins pointed out that none of the fatal accidents which have occurred on county roads so far this year, has involved pedestrians. He noted that last year, six of the nine deaths were persons walking on the highways in the County.

He urged drivers to be careful of both pedestrians and bicycle riders, in an effort "to save a life." He said that pedestrians should walk facing oncoming traffic and at night, should carry a flashlight and wear light colored clothing to make them easily seen by motorists.

He also cautioned bicycle riders to "ride with traffic" and to obey all traffic rules and regulations. He also advised bicyclists who ride at night to equip their vehicles with red tail lights and reflectors and a white headlight.

Truman Looks To Campaign Trail

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman said he would campaign for the Democratic candidates this year in his usual style.

You mean the "Give 'Em Hell" style? He was asked by newsmen. "I never had any such style," the ex-President said with a chuckle. "I just told the truth, and the Republicans thought it was hell."

Truman spoke to Democrats here Wednesday and at Utah State University in Logan Wednesday night. He planned to fly to Washington, D.C. today.

1,000th Missile On Test Track

HOLLOMAN AIR FORCE BASE, N.M. (AP)—Holloman Air Force Base has sent its 1,000th missile hurtling down its 35,000 foot captive missile test track.

The firing took place Wednesday morning before a huge crowd attending the base's open house. The missile screamed down the track at 2,860 miles an hour before throwing its nose cone 103 feet through the air to plow into an earthen, steel and concrete target.

Final Support Rates On Wheat Crop Announced

Providing marketing quotas are in effect, the 1961 wheat crop support at a minimum national average has been set at $1.78 per bushel, it was announced today by Wayne L. Wang of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office.

The final rate for all counties in North Carolina stands at $1.97 per bushel for U. S. No. 1 grade wheat, Wang said.

The 1961 minimum rate reflects 75 per cent of the estimated parity price for wheat as of the beginning of this marketing year—July 1. The level is indicated on the basis of wheat supplies available at that time.

Wheat supplies for 1961-62 now are estimated at 2,645 million bushels—1961 per cent of the normal supply. A normal supply includes enough wheat to cover domestic consumption and export needs plus a 20 per cent carry-over allowance.

Wheat support will drop to 50 per cent of parity, or about $1.18 per bushel.

Wheat supplies for 1961-62 now are estimated at 2,645 million bushels—1961 per cent of the normal supply. A normal supply includes enough wheat to cover domestic consumption and export needs plus a 20 per cent carry-over allowance.

Big Mustache Is A Preventive

DENVER (AP)—A Colorado country doctor came up years ago with a simple way for cowboys to prevent lip cancer, the Rocky Mountain Cancer Conference was told Wednesday.

His prescription—grow handlebar mustaches.

The mustache shielded the lower lip from overexposure to the sun.

WARNING

TO USERS OF RADIO AND TELEVISION RECEIVERS

Thomas Radio & TV Service of Greenville does NOT advertise for radio and TV repairs for the purpose of getting prospective buyers for new equipment. Many older models are better built and will give better service at lower cost than many cheaper, newer ones.

Having been in the radio and TV repairing profession since TV came to North Carolina, we have the manufacturers' service data on practically every radio and TV receiver made in the United States, no matter how old.

Patronize a shop where service and repairs are a business, not a sideline.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to drag its heels in moderate trading early this afternoon. Prices were mixed.
 The aircraft-missiles and other space age defense stocks widened their gains somewhat but lacked Wednesday's vigor.
 The spotty nature of second quarter earnings reports remained a depressing factor.
 A decline in housing starts for June and a continued lowering in prices for household appliances also dampened sentiment.
 Oils were slack and Sinclair down about 2 points on news that about company's dividend cut. Steels were narrowly mixed and autos edged off. Rails were up a bit on balance, along with utilities and nonferrous metals.
 Electronics did very little, failing to accompany defense stocks in their rise based on international tensions.
 The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .97 at 623.16.
 The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at 217.80 with the industrials off .50, the rails up .50 and the utilities up .30.
 Corporate bonds were mixed.
 U.S. government bonds advanced.

tor. The Rev. G. Dewey Yeatts of Dry Fork, Va. will represent the board of foreign missions.

Pallbearers will be W. H. Ward Sr., C. J. Cannon Sr. W. B. Peel, Louis Jones, L. W. Gaskins and Marvin Gardner. Honorary pallbearers will be the clergy of the N. C. Conference of the P. H. Church.

Miss Oakley was the daughter of Mrs. Addie E. Oakley and the late J. B. Oakley of Greenville, who died May 31. She was born in Greenville and was a graduate of East Carolina College. She had

Greenville Man Honored At Ceremony

Five Pilgrims of the Loyal Order of Moose last night honored Edwin M. Baldree, of Greenville, with a Robing Ceremony which formally brought him into the fraternal organization's most honored few.

The visiting Pilgrims were R. E. Smiley, J. C. Joyner, J. W. Hawkins, all of Wilson; Paul Jenkins of Burlington; A. R. Proud, of Goldsboro.

Assisting in the ceremonial were a number of holders of the Fellowship Degree, Eastern North Carolina communities represented by these Moose, were: Morehead City, Wallace, New Bern, Plymouth, Wilson, Snow Hill, Goldsboro and Greenville.

The Pilgrim Degree of Merit was conferred on Baldree at the House of God in Mooseheart, Ill. last June 11.

His service to the fraternal order began in 1950 with Kinston Lodge 1505. He served the Kinston Lodge as governor for two terms and subsequently as secretary. Baldree has also been

Temperature Up To 97 Degrees Here Yesterday

Though it may have seemed hotter, Greenville's temperature yesterday only reached a warm 97 degrees, in weathermen's terms. Actually the summer temperature has only passed 100 degrees once this year.

Thursday promises to be another warm day, starting with a low of 75 degrees at 4 a.m. and rising to 79 at 8 a.m., according to V. A. Briley Jr. of the Greenville Utilities Plant. The weatherman has predicted that the high will be in the 90s.

Tonight will be a little cooler with temperatures near the 90s on Friday, the weatherman predicted.

The Tar River level was measured at an even three feet this morning, but is rising, Briley said. Widely scattered showers may fall near the lower coast and vicinity today.

The Wildfowl Sanctuary in Ontario, Canada, stamps bird-bands with passages from the Bible. Eskimos, who have found bands on birds killed for food, travel many miles to the nearest mission post to have "God's message" translated.

Fatally Injured Fleeing Police In Stolen Car

HENDERSONVILLE (AP) — A Brevard youth was fatally injured today at 2:45 a.m. today when he wrecked a stolen car some two and a half miles from here while fleeing from Hendersonville police officers.

Charlie Burlingame, 20, died in Margaret R. Farver Memorial Hospital about 20 minutes after he lost control of the car on a curve and slammed head-on into a power pole, according to State Highway Patrolman L. J. Wild.

A passenger in the car, James Eugene McCall, 17, also of Brevard, was injured. He was admitted to the hospital with cuts of the body and was reported in satisfactory condition late this morning.

Wilds said Hendersonville officers started chasing a car after it ran a stop light.

Suicide Leap From 12th Floor

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Charles A. Fenton, a member of the Duke University faculty, killed himself today by jumping from the 12th floor of the Washington Duke Hotel.

Dr. D. R. Perry, Durham County coroner, ruled the death a suicide. Dr. Fenton's body was found sprawled in the street. He was about 42.

The hotel desk clerk reported that Dr. Fenton, whose room was on the eighth floor, came to the desk at 5:05 a.m. and told him he could not get his car started. Dr. Fenton then took the elevator to the 12th floor. The body was found at 5:18. Officers said no note was found in his room.

Friends were quoted as saying Dr. Fenton had been despondent recently. His family was visiting in Connecticut.

Rites Set For Mrs. C. H. Barnhill, Sr.

Mrs. Katie Wilson Barnhill, 51, wife of Clarence H. Barnhill Sr. died at her home near Greenville in the Hollywood Community at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon after having had a heart attack a few minutes earlier.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel at 2:30 Friday afternoon by the Rev. Lee Willingham, Presbyterian Minister of Greensboro, assisted by the Rev. D. W. Alexander, Free Will Baptist Minister of Bethel. Burial will be in Firwood Memorial Park.

Mrs. Barnhill, daughter of the late David Julian and Lucy Jolly Wilson, was born and reared in Beaufort County in the Leggett's Cross Roads Community. She was a member of the Hollywood Presbyterian Church and the Greenville Chapter No. 149, Order of Eastern Star.

Surviving are her husband; a son, Clarence Barnhill Jr. of Greenville; two daughters, Mrs. Walter M. Taylor of Greenville and Mrs. Bruce Hardee of near the home; four grandchildren; her step-mother, Mrs. Allie Bert Wilson of Stokes; three brothers, Marchall D. and Willis Wilson of Rocky Mount; and seven sisters, Mrs. Julia Ross of Greenville, Mrs. Flossie Goode of Alexandria, Va., Miss Carrie Wilson of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Virginia Holloman of Williamston, Miss Renie Wilson of Greensboro, Mrs. A. T. Weiss of Lynchburg, Va., and Mrs. Grady Andrews of Williamsburg, Va.; three step-brothers, and one step-sister.

Lightning Kills N.C. Fisherman

ATLANTIC, N.C. (AP) — A 53-year-old fisherman was killed near here Wednesday when he was struck by lightning during a storm.

Carteret County Coroner W. D. Munden said Charles Wallace Salter, 53, was killed on nearby Portsmouth Island. Salter's two brothers, Tom and Ben, and a third companion, Alvin Harris, were not injured.

BLUEPRINTING AID

BERLIN (AP) — Churchmen from 30 countries began work Wednesday night on a blueprint for a worldwide program of church aid to the needy. The 140 delegates, missionaries, relief workers and other experts of the World Council of Churches will spend a week drawing up plans to help refugees and combat hunger.
