Big Dream To Be Realized For One Of 69 N.C. Girls

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Tonight is the night a dream comes true. A chance at fame and fortune awaits the girl who will be chosen Miss North Carolina. She might be the next Miss America. She'll be selected tonight from among 69 beautiful girls who have competed in preliminary judging for three nights.

A red-haired, future teacher from Hickory, a Kingston girl studying operatic singing, and a 3-week-old fawn made the news Friday in the Miss North Carolina beauty pageant.

Hickory's Tenita Ann Deal staged a swinging tap and modern jazz act that wowed an audience of 2,000 and the judges in the final round of preliminary judging Friday night.

She joined Miss Salisbury, Neita Stout, and Miss Tri-Cities, Daphne Fair, as preliminary winners in the talent division.

Miss Deal was graduated from Hickory High School in June and plans to enter Lenoir Rhyne College this fall.

Carolynn Faye Howard of Kingston, who stood out in earlier talent competition as an operatic singer, won the swim suit preliminary Friday night. She stands 5-6 and has measurements of 37-24-36.

The contestants picked as Miss Congeniality Miss Sanford, Charla Anne Marcum, 19, a raven-haired product of Southern Pines. She was selected in a vote by the other 68 girls and will receive a trophy tonight.

Earlier preliminary winners in the swim suit division were Ann Herring of Winston-Salem and Vickie Lemmons of Thomasville, Miss Lexington.

How did the fawn get into the act? It's like this.

Mrs. George Creed, chaperone for Miss Laurinburg, Gwyn Hutchinson, left the 3-week-old deer, Little Bambi, behind when she came to Charlotte.

The pet fawn stopped eating and became so weak he could scarcely stand.

About midnight Wednesday, Mrs. Creed's husband drove Little Bambi to Charlotte.

He was happy again, and started pulling on a bottle of warm milk Mrs. Creed gave him. She and Gwyn decided to keep him in their motel room, and they thought it best to keep it quiet because objection might be raised.

"He likes to take walks and look around, but we were afraid," Gwyn said. "We haven't even let the malds come in . . ."

But the secret leaked out Friday, and no harm was done.

The fawn is eating regularly and happy to be with Mrs. Creed again.

Mayor Asserts Action Due On Grain Mill Dust

Greenville Mayor S. Eugene West yesterday lashed out at "continuing operations" of Fred Webb Grain Mills, Inc., that have created a "health hazard" for residents of the Meadowbrook section of Greenville.

West charged the mill has "broadcast the dust from its feed-mixing operations" over the residential section "for nearly four years."

The mayor added he had been assured by the management on occasions that equipment to catch the dust would be installed. "But," West said, "nothing has happened."

"Many complaints," he said, have been heard from residents and personnel employed in the mill's just not right," West said, "to allow such practices to continue. And if they do, we intend to do something about it."

The mayor said facilities to remedy the situation would consist of some type of vacuum equipment to catch the waste material and some method of disposing of the dust.

The dust is blown from an outlet atop the grain elevators on N. Greene St. and sifts down into the surrounding area, he said.

West, a member of the Pitt County Board of Health, introduced the matter before the board at its meeting Thursday. No action was taken, but board members apparently were in agreement with the mayor's position.

He told the board action to correct the situation "must be taken immediately."

J. Fred Webb, president of the grain firm, was not available today for immediate comment.

Russian Diplomat Expelled As Spy

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. officials today saw the newest Soviet spy case as further evidence of the Kremlin conducting widespread espionage while professing peace and accusing the West of aggressive acts.

The expulsion of Petr Y. Ezhov for spying, announced Friday, was the 12th ouster of a Soviet diplomat from the United States in 10 years.

Authorities said the expulsion was ordered after thorough evidence was collected against Ezhov, rather than being deliberately timed as a counterpunch to Moscow's propaganda on the downed American U2 and RB47 reconnaissance planes.

They did not expect the Soviets to retaliate by booting out an American diplomat, although Moscow has expelled seven U. S. Embassy personnel on spy charges in the past decade.

Ezhov, like another Soviet diplomat since expelled, was reportedly undertaking his undercover activities in part during the time when Premier Nikita Khrushchev visited the United States last September as an honor guest.

The State Department said Ezhov, 39, a Soviet Embassy third secretary, was engaged for months in getting aerial photographs of American cities and defense installations.

The department gave this account in saying Ezhov, a press aide, "flagrantly abused his diplomatic status by engaging in espionage activity."

Ezhov paid a commercial photographer to take pictures of selected sites from a private plane. While under FBI surveillance, he gave the man more than a thousand dollars.

He also paid for flying lessons for the photographer and hinted the Soviets would buy him a plane so he could carry out further aerial reconnaissance.

Photos included pictures of U. S. Navy installations and what the department called "other intelligence targets," said to be mostly along the East Coast.

Soviet diplomats, in retaliation for similar restrictions against U. S. envoys in the Soviet Union, are forbidden to acquire such photographs. The pictures were reported not available on the open market.

Ezhov apparently carried on operations organized several years ago by another Soviet diplomat, Vladimir F. Ginsky, a former assistant naval attaché at the Soviet Embassy.

Informants said Ginsky left for Moscow before getting caught in his spying.

Meeting Monday On Opening Date

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—A committee of the Eastern North Carolina flue-cured tobacco belt will meet here Monday to recommend an opening date for the beginning of auction sales.

W. C. Thompson of Wilson, president of the Eastern Belt Assn. has called the meeting for 10:30 a.m. in the office of the Tobacco Board of Trade here.

MORE REFUGEES

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Tibetan refugees in India presently total 21,000 and more are still coming down from the Himalayan Mountains, an Indian Foreign Ministry spokesman said Friday.

College Testing Plan Approved

RALEIGH (A) — A uniform testing program for persons seeking to enter state-supported colleges is due to become effective in the fall of 1961.

The State Board of Higher Education approved the compulsory entrance examinations Friday, but emphasized that testing scores must not be used as the only basis for admission.

The board also received a petition from the Pasquotank County Board of Education, asking that a community college be set up for the Elizabeth City area. The county board proposed to use the present Albemarle Hospital building, being replaced by a 2½ million dollar new structure, for the college.

Action on the request was delayed to allow a study of educational needs in the area.

In another move, the board of higher education placed students at state-supported colleges on guard that more Saturday classes may be in the offing. Dr. J. Harris Purks, higher education director, said a study is in progress on the subject. Chairman L. P. McLendon said colleges must be alerted "to the possibilities of longer work weeks."

A study committee of five college presidents recommended the entrance testing program. President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, the chairman, said test scores should be used to help students make the best decision on continuing their education.

Each college would be left free to decide how much weight to give to entrance exam scores.

Nixon, Rockefeller Meet; Agree On Platform Issues

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Vice President Richard M. Nixon met in secret today and the governor declared Nixon agreed with his views on basic platform issues.

Rockefeller also said he had re-emphasized he would not be Nixon's running mate as vice presidential candidate and that Nixon respected his stand.

On the platform agreements, the governor asserted: "These constitute the basic positions for which I have been fighting."

"If," he added, "they are embodied in the Republican platform as adopted by the convention, they will constitute a platform that I can support with pride and vigor."

In a move to smooth over differences with the national convention only two days away, Nixon flew from Washington for the meeting at Rockefeller's Manhattan home.

The two were alone as they conferred, except for Rockefeller's press secretary, Robert McManus. But as they ranged over the platform issues they contacted members of the platform committee by phone.

In a statement issued after the meeting, Rockefeller announced they had achieved agreement on issues ranging from foreign policy and defense, to the national economy, farm policies, education and a program for civil rights.

It was Rockefeller's protest Friday that preliminary planks on such key issues were lacking strength that reportedly moved Nixon to try for an eleventh hour meeting of minds.

Nixon flew back to Washington this morning. A Nixon aide in the capital said the vice president would make no comment there on the meeting.

The broad aspects of the agreement between the party's titans on issues ranging from foreign policy through disarmament, defense, the national economy, education, farm and civil rights issues left little for Republicans to quarrel over in their platform.

It was evident from Rockefeller's statement that there had been compromises on both sides.

Rockefeller appeared to have obtained Nixon's endorsement of a more flexible defense establishment, geared not only to meet surprise attack but to stop any local aggression. But there was no mention of the 3½ billion dollar increase in defense spending he has advocated.

The two men reached a compromise on the issue of medical care for the elderly. Instead of linking health insurance directly to social security taxes as he has advocated in the past, the New York governor agreed to a system "under which beneficiaries have the option of purchasing private health insurance."

Rockefeller dropped his demand for pledged efforts to increase national productivity by 5 per cent yearly. Nixon has called this "growthmanship." But Rockefeller pointed out that Nixon had said in a 1958 speech that achievement of such a rate of growth would produce an additional 10 billion dollars in tax revenue in 1962.

These and other agreements might not elicit unanimous support from the Republicans, but they seemed likely to satisfy the great bulk of the delegates.

They go beyond the conservative views of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, who has about 30 votes pledged to him for the presidential nomination.

Whether Goldwater might be presented to the convention as a protest candidate remained to be determined.

Nixon and Rockefeller agreed that the GOP program of civil rights must—as Rockefeller put it—"assure aggressive action to remove the remaining vestiges of segregation or discrimination in all areas of national life—voting and housing, schools and jobs."

Rockefeller also got over a point he has been making on labor matters. He forecast that the Republicans will call for "improved procedures for the resolution of disputes endangering the national welfare."

He had been critical of the settlement of last year's steel strike on a basis he said might lead to inflationary pressures.

He said then some method must be found to settle such strikes without this threat. Nixon took a leading role in the steel settlement.

Despite their agreement on the platform, the Nixon camp appeared to be standing on the position that any movement to draft Rockefeller for second place on the ticket will have to come from other sources.

Herbert G. Klein, the vice president's press secretary, said there is no change in the position he expressed at a news conference Friday.

At that time Klein said there are no future plans to try to pressure Rockefeller into changing his mind.

ECC Plans Ask For $7,769,500 At Budget Meet

The N. C. State Advisory Budget Commission is scheduled to meet with East Carolina College officials here Monday to study capital improvements for the college proposed by ECC officials.

Requests for capital outlay funds, presented by the state's colleges to the commission during alternate years, for East Carolina are "in keeping with the needs of the growing college," according to Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, ECC president.

Appropriations requested by the local college total $7,769,500. Heading the list of requests are another mammoth men's dormitory at a cost of $1,475,500; $1,255,000 for a new health and physical education building that would include a gymnasium; and a classroom building to replace aging Austin Building at a cost of $905,000.

Concerning the outlay requests, Jenkins asserted, "This is an honest request based on the best information obtainable regarding the specific and definite needs of this college. There is not an item in the request that cannot be fully justified."

Congo Rebels Attack Official

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Rebellious Congolese soldiers attacked the Congo's finance minister at Stanleyville and tried to keep him from flying to this capital with funds badly needed by the government, a Canadian pilot said today.

The incident in the capital of the northeast Province of Oriental pointed up the chaotic conditions in outlying provinces confronting swelling U. N. forces in the Congo.

The finance minister, Andre Tshibangu, had to be rescued by officers of the U. N. command so he could proceed here with 400 million Congo francs—eight million dollars—needed by the Congo government's depleted treasury.

Capt. Michael D. McCallum of Winnipeg, pilot of the DC4 plane of the Sabena Airlines, said Tshibangu and an accompanying U. N. official were attacked by the Congolese soldiers at the airport on their arrival at Stanleyville.

Later, when they returned to the airport with the money from a Stanleyville vault they were detained by the Congolese again and were taken to a group of U. N. officers who intervened and let them proceed, McCallum said.

Classroom building to replace Austin—$905,000; auditorium to replace Austin Auditorium and to seat 1,000—$340,000; dormitory for women to replace Wilson Hall—$537,000; Student Union addition to Wright Building—$648,000; repairs to Wright—$38,500; elementary school building—$351,000; addition to library—$423,000.

Health and physical education building including gymnasium—$1,255,000; outdoor athletic facilities—$250,000; additional land (Branch tract, 13 acres, and Lloyd Tucker tract, 60 acres)—$217,000; one-half cost of dormitory for men—$625,000; laundry equipment—$13,000; dormitory for men (capacity: 520) with cafeteria—$1,475,000; addition to Whitehall Hall—$335,000; addition to Flanagan Building—$350,000; addition to maintenance shop—$58,000; and air conditioning for Rawl Building—$70,000.

All Prepared For Gavel-Pounding

CHICAGO (AP) — The Republicans are well prepared for some heavy gavel-pounding during next week's convention.

A huge post mounted in the concrete floor is set next to the podium in the International Amphitheatre. It is not part of the rostrum.

That way, when the chairman gives a lusty whack on the post, he won't gifle microphones and teleprompters on the rostrum.

Chief Of CIA Arrives To Brief Senator Kennedy

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Allen W. Dulles, Central Intelligence Agency chief, arrived today to give Sen. John F. Kennedy a secret briefing on the state of the world from the official government viewpoint.

Dulles was uncommunicative on what the briefing will cover. He told reporters he will talk to Sen. Kennedy on "the points on which Mr. Kennedy is interested." And he said it depends on Sen. Kennedy how long it will take and whether there will be any additional briefing.

Dulles said he might stay over the weekend. But if he decided to it would be to visit friends, he added.

President Eisenhower has declared it in the national interest for the presidential nominees and their running mates to receive top secret briefings on foreign policy problems periodically during the campaign.

CLINIC STANDING BY

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—The 700 delegates to next week's 11th international polio conference here can feel safer about heart attacks. At two previous conferences, delegates died following heart attacks. This time in a roof next to the main meeting hall will be a fully equipped heart clinic.

All Indications Point To A Fine Corn Crop For Pitt

As Pitt County farmers prepare to harvest one of the best corn crops on record, County Agent Sam Winchester urged today they take "every step necessary to keep the quality high."

"We've been criticized in the past," Winchester pointed out. "Buyers, especially foreign buyers, say the quality of our corn has been dropping. They blame our quality drop on early harvesting and handling methods."

To remedy the criticism Winchester announced a list of suggestions for the county's corn producers:

"First, we must delay harvesting until corn reaches a moisture level that will permit efficient operation of harvesting and drying equipment," the agent said.

When corn is harvested with field-shelling equipment at moisture levels above 18 per cent, the chances of mechanical damage increases as moisture rises. The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture recommends against field shelling when moisture is above 25 to 28 per cent.

Winchester predicted that price advantage for early harvested corn that has existed in the past will disappear if the corn is not properly dried and handled. Elevators are unable to dry corn and maintain its natural quality as rapidly as it is harvested, Winchester said.

Farmers were urged to check with Winchester's office and elevator operators for cash price and discount schedule to determine the advantage and disadvantage of harvesting and selling corn at various moisture levels.

Discounts are placed on corn with excessive moisture to cover shrinkage and the cost of drying. Discounts, according to Winchester, are expected to be higher this year.

Winchester said corn should be harvested only as fast as it can be dried to safe storage levels or it can be taken to the elevator for drying. "Temperatures in August and September make it impossible to keep high moisture corn for long periods of time," he cautioned. "Corn can heat and sour when kept overnight on a truck during hot, humid weather. It will keep better on the stalk."

Farmers were also urged to "know their dryer." The agent advised growers to "determine the dryer's capacity and then follow proper drying temperatures to prevent damage to the corn."

He added, "Regulate the dryer so that the temperature of the grain as it is being dried does not exceed 140 degrees. Cool grain to within five to 10 degrees of outside temperature and then aerate in storage."

"Do not dry any of the kernels below 13.5 per cent regardless of the final average moisture content. Over-drying increases kernel breakage, resulting in excessive foreign material."

"Corn exposed to excessive temperatures in drying is poor raw material for the processing industry. For example, in the wet milling operation, corn dried at excessive temperatures causes refining problems and a poor yield of starch. In dry milling, the kernels shatter."

As a final suggestion, Winchester urged farmers to market high quality corn.

"Don't mix dried and natural corn for average moisture content," he said. "Previously dried corn will be dried again. And this will cause excessive broken kernels and foreign material. Buyers will complain."

The agent pointed out that "once corn is damaged, nothing can be done to restore its quality."

He declared, "Already, the corn from the Virginia-Carolina area is stigmatized. If we don't do something about it, the stigma will grow."

"Markets will become fewer. There will be no advantage for early harvested corn. And our later harvested corn will be hurt, too."

SCENE OF TRAGEDY—The body of William George Ralph, 28, of Belhaven, is shown wrapped up on a stretcher on the stern of a U. S. Coast Guard boat at Belhaven shortly after his body was recovered from the waters of the Pungo River about 7 a.m. today. Ralph and a second man, Lloyd West, were thrown into the water after the boat in which they were traveling crashed into a break-water (background) about 10-10:30 p.m. yesterday. Officers said West was wearing a life preserver at the time and was rescued by a second boat. Members of the Greenville Rescue Squad responded early this morning to a call from the Washington Rescue Squad and took several drags to the scene to aid in the search for the body. American Arts Trio To Perform Sunday

The American Arts Trio of West Virginia University will perform a program of works by Mozart, Pistor, and Mendelssohn in McGinnis Auditorium on the campus of East Carolina College on Sunday evening. Concert time is 8:15 p.m.

The trio, formerly the Pro Arte Trio, was formed in Washington, D.C. in 1955. Each member is well-known as an individual performing artist, but as a group, their combined talents have brought them even greater success in concert performances.

Arno Drucker, pianist; Donald Portnoy, violinist; and Jon Engberg, cellist, met at the Eastman School of Music. They served together in the Armed Forces as a Trio in Special Services. They were also students at The Juilliard School of Music and are now on the staff of the School of Music at the University of West Virginia.

They have concertized widely over the Eastern United States and have recently returned from a three-month tour of Germany. Drucker also studied at the Music Academy of the West, the Akademie für Musik in Vienna, and the Mozarteum in Salzburg. Portnoy was formerly a member of the New Symphony of New York. Concertmaster and soloist with the Arts Club Chamber Orchestra of New York, and first violinist of the Knight String Quartet.

Engberg was a member of the Rochester Symphony Orchestra, the Rochester Civic Orchestra, the Eastman-Rochester Orchestra and the U.S. Marine Band. The concert, sponsored by the East Carolina College Summer Session Student Government, is open to the public.

Blaze Quenched By Watermelons

PRESOTT, Ariz. (AP)—A veteran firefighter, forest ranger Richard Heninger went into action Thursday when he saw an overturned truck-trailer catch fire.

As the fire spread to weeds, Heninger hauled a passing truck laden with watermelons.

By squashing melons on the flames, Heninger soon put out the fire. No one was hurt and damage was confined to the truck, a few weeks and lots of melons.

In his official report, Heninger added, "and to top it off, I'm sure bloated."

Discloses Vessel Stopped At Sea

NEW YORK (AP)—The skipper of an American freighter reports that an armed Soviet patrol vessel stopped his ship July 7 in the North Pacific about 350 miles from the Soviet Kurile Islands.

The incident, disclosed Thursday, was termed by admiralty lawyers a violation of international law.

The ship involved was the Ocean Eva, a 10,370 ton C2 carrying wheat from Portland, Ore., to India.

The ship's captain, J. J. Buskin of the Bronx, described the episode in a letter to his wife Naomi.

Stephen Foster, composer of "Swanee River" and other songs, was born on the same day that Thomas Jefferson died—July 13, 1757.

Meet The Deb —

Who Wants A Job In Foreign Service

A BRIDGE ENTHUSIAST . . . is debutante Anne Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Evans of 1501 E. Fifth St.

(Editor's Note: What type of life does a debutante lead? This article is the first of a series to appear each week on the Women's page concerning Pitt County's debs. The six young ladies will bow to North Carolina society in Raleigh at the Terpsichorean Club Ball September 9-10.)

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

Deb Anne Evans' interest in languages has stemmed from a determination to become a foreign service worker.

A student at Salem, she is majoring in French and minoring in Spanish.

Salem is tops with our featured deb. "You feel more a part," she commented. "There's a closer student-teacher relationship in a small college."

Continuing she said, "You know the upperclassmen as well as the freshmen. The faculty seems to want to help anytime."

"Going to college has made me gradually accept responsibility," she said.

On the subject of steady-dating, Anne feels that a "person in college is old enough to go steady, but they are missing something by not circulating."

Summer Doing
Bridge tops the list of summer interests for this blue-eyed deb. Her advice to a beginner is to play and know the rules.

After a visit with her roommate, Kitty Anderson, in Spartanburg, S. C., Anne decided to fill her sparetime by entering summer school at ECC.

Since her mother is in Europe, she has been "keeping house" for her father, D. A. Evans. She hopes to spend sometime at their Pamlico Beach cottage where she will enjoy her favorite sports—skiing, boating and swimming.

Deb Weekend
On September 9, Anne will step in North Carolina's social spotlight wearing a Madame Barnes creation of peau de soire and chantilly lace.

Louis G. May, chief marshal, Joseph S. Moye Jr. and William B. Cox, all of Greenville, will have the pleasure of escorting this blue-eyed blonde deb to all the festivities.

For the second night dance Anne plans to wear a light green tulle gown featuring a puff in the back. Among her other deb fashions will be dresses of blue, beige or champagne.

Does she like the "relaxed-look"? Definitely not. Her wardrobe for the fall will have the tailored-look, rather than frills and ruffles.

Members of the marshals' families and Miss Kitty Anderson will be among Anne's guests in Raleigh during the deb weekend.

What does it mean to be a debutante?

This charming, poised young girl feels that the friends she will meet will probably remain friends through the adult part of her life.

Women In Key Jobs At GOP Convention

Editor's note — When the gavel sounds opening the Republican National Convention in Chicago July 25, women will step into some of the confab's key jobs—from parliamentarian to executive director. These are some of the women and the roles they will be playing.

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Newsfeatures

Mrs. Clare Williams—The first major speaker on the Republican convention program in Chicago, Mrs. Williams is an indefatigable, blue-eyed blonde with a lifetime love of politics.

For the past two years, she has been assistant GOP national chairman in charge of women's activities.

It has taken her over 120,000 miles to almost every state—plugging the GOP.

Mrs. Williams, who once taught speech and oral English and had a career as a high fashion buyer, is putting all her prior training and experience to good use in the political field.

Born in Syracuse, N.Y., widow of a prominent St. Louis attorney, Frank Williams, she lived for many years in Florida and got her training in politics there from the precinct up.

She's a Florida national committeewoman and was appointed assistant GOP chairman in July, 1958.

Mrs. Williams, who is tall and thin and never worries about her weight, lives in a Washington, D.C., hotel when she's not traveling. She works fulltime for the GOP and thrives on the rigors of campaigning.

To be successful in politics, she says, a woman must "look like a girl, act like a lady, think like a man and work like a dog."

MRS. ELIZABETH HEFFELFINGER—The roll caller for the Republican convention, Mrs. Heffelfinger of Wayzata, Minn., the convention secretary, describes herself as a "Progressive Republican."

Wife of Minneapolis grain executive F. Peavey Heffelfinger, former chairman of the GOP national finance committee, she got into politics two decades ago, working for Wendell Willkie.

One of her five children is the wife of Wendell Willkie Jr., son of the late GOP presidential candidate.

Mrs. Heffelfinger has attended every national convention of her party since 1939.

She says she plans to retire as a national committeewoman when her term expires this year "to make way for younger blood." She has been national committeewoman from Minnesota since 1949.

She also served as a delegate to the U.N. Economic and Social Council twice, under appointment by President Eisenhower.

The Republicans have had a woman convention secretary since 1948. The Democrats named a woman, Mrs. Dorothy Vredenburg, in 1944. She is still serving.

MRS. CONSUELO NORTROP BAILEY—Mrs. Bailey made history by being the first woman lieutenant governor in the United States when she was elected in Vermont in 1954.

Now, she's done it again as the first woman chairman of the GOP convention committee on call.

Her job in connection with the call of the convention is now just about over, but she also goes to the convention as a national committeewoman from her state and as a vice chairman of the GOP national committee. She hasn't missed a convention since 1936.

Mrs. Bailey's long career in politics and public service includes a stint as speaker of the Vermont House of Representatives, the first woman in her state and second in the country in such a post.

She also has been in the Vermont Senate and held the post of state attorney for Burlington county, Vt. As the prosecutor, she GRIFTON—Mrs. John Glenn was hostess Friday night when she had as guests members of her contract club and invited players in honor of Mrs. W. L. Daws who will be leaving in the near future to make her home in Roanoke Rapids.

Throughout the home pink snapdragon, gladioli and other summer flowers were used as decorations. At the refreshment hour the hostess served a salad plate with iced tea.

During the games Mrs. Conrad Hart scored high and Mrs. Clifton Jackson second among the club members. Mrs. Tom Gower was guest high scorer. Mrs. Daws was remembered with a carnation corsage and a gift of linen.

Completing the guest list were Miss Ruth E. Smith, Mesdames G. L. Tucker, Albert Tyson, Walter Murphy, Johnnie Smith, Frank Davis, David Parker, Howard Holcomb, Wilbur Murphy, Edwin Reeves, Gay Gnagay and Joseph House Jr.

The Thursday Contract Club met on Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Alton Chapman at her home near the city.

Garden flowers decorated the living room where the guests were received. A delectable barbecue supper was served as the guests arrived.

During the bridge games club high scores were compiled by Mrs. J. L. Quinerly and Mrs. Robert Mewborn. Miss Ruth Chapman was remembered with the guest prize.

Playing were Mesdames H. P. Quinerly, W. I. Bissette, L. L. Mewborn, J. S. Chapman, Thurman Williams, Tom Gower, Charlie Stone, Miss Marie Chapman, Miss Lucy Fleming.

Mrs. W. E. Rasberry had as guests for bridge on Friday night at her home on Queen Street players for three tables.

Garden flowers were used as decorations. Fruit sherbert, cake and coffee were served at the dessert hour.

Mrs. Woodrow Smith scored high and Mrs. Ben G. Tucker, second high for club members, and Mrs. W. L. Daws, high for guests. Other players were Mesdames Kenneth Talton, Paul Bradley, Grace Lehman, Howard Holcomb, G. L. Tucker, Milton Hart, Sam Nelson, Mark Phillips, Roy Jackson.

HOME DECORATING TODAY

By MRS. R. W. DAVENPORT BACKGROUNDS FOR FASHION

Color in the home has become a delightfully personal thing. Today it can be "individually yours" to provide a stimulating background for you and your family, your tastes, your temperament, your way of living. It can even influence your moods.

With proper emphasis placed on these functions, the Home Furniture Store can help you select a whole new galaxy of decorating colors for your enjoyment.

Think of the lilac family and blues—from aqua and turquoise to "real blues-greens," particularly the soft mossy tones, and in some instances the blue-greens. Reds, from coral to true red. Perhaps white, would you prefer oyster, oatmeal or bone?

Call the Home Furniture Store and make an appointment with Mrs. R. W. Davenport to help you with a color scheme that will be individually yours.

was the first woman ever to try a murder case in Vermont.

Mrs. Bailey, an attorney, has been admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court, and she and her husband operate a law firm in their home town.

REP. KATHARINE ST. GEORGE (R-NY)—As GOP convention parliamentarian for the second time, Rep. St. George doesn't expect any problems.

She got through the 1956 convention without a hitch and expects her fellow Republicans to make things easy for her again.

The GOP convention has a set of rules spelled out, unlike the Democrats who go by precedence and the ways of Congress.

A widow, she has represented the wealthy Tuxedo Park, N.Y., district in Congress since 1947.

When she was picked to be convention parliamentarian for the 1956 convention, she was the first woman named to that key spot in either party.

MISS JOSEPHINE GOOD—For two years now, Jo Good, a tall, slender blonde, has been planning the GOP convention—from allotting tickets to reminding committees to meet.

She's the first woman executive director a convention as far as political veterans of either major party can remember.

Miss Good will cart along several big file cabinets to set up her convention office in Chicago.

She'll even provide a prompt script so the chairman will know what he's supposed to do every minute.

A native of Denver, Colo., wartime member of the coast guard SPARS, secretary to congressman and onetime aide to Postmaster General and GOP Chairman Arthur Summerfield, Miss Good was selected for her job in 1956.

At that time, her predecessor, the man who ran the GOP conventions for 30 years, the late William Donald, was in failing health.

For the 1956 convention in San Francisco, Donald was too ill to attend and Miss Good went in his place, working with an occasional assist from Donald 3,000 miles away.

"Nothing came up that I didn't feel equipped to handle," she says. This year, she's on her own for the first time, responsible for keeping the convention rolling along by handling the infinite details.

Circle Meets

FOUNTAIN—Circle No. 2 of the Fountain Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. W. R. Mercer Tuesday evening with 11 members and one visitor.

Mrs. E. C. Newton, circle chairman, gave the July Bible study on the book of James. Mrs. Adrian Gardner led a discussion on the emphasis of the month, Christian Citizenship.

Commission on Membership And Evangelism

The Commission on Membership and Evangelism of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will hold its organizational meeting Tuesday, July 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the church office. Mr. K. T. Futrell, chairman, will preside.

The members of the Commission on Membership and Evangelism are as follows: Mr. K. T. Futrell, chairman; Mrs. J. F. Arthur, James W. Brewer, Wyatt Brown, Dallas Clark, Mrs. George A. Douglas, Mrs. Helene Higgs Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Charles Hudson, Mrs. Joseph S. Moye, H. M. McLamb, John Shannonhouse, Ralph C. Tucker, S. B. Underwood Jr., and Mrs. J. H. Waldrop.

Meeting The Changes In Education

Editor's Note: The following guest editorial was prepared by O. E. DOWD, principal of J. H. Rose High School.

The American high school of this century is entirely different from those of any other century or foreign equivalent. Under one roof and in one high school building we are trying to give each student a good general education, provide elective subjects for a group to develop useful skills, and to educate those who have talents for handling advance subjects in math, science, and foreign languages.

To meet the changes taking place in education today, a high school must study its philosophy of education and adjust it periodically to meet the needs of boys and girls in the community. There must be a willingness to experiment with new ideas and then to study the changes that need to be made and evaluate for results. The school staff, administration, school board, and community must have a part in the study of the high school program.

The general purpose of an effective educational program must be twofold: First, to bring students to full self-realization of their talents; second, to assist the pupil in finding himself in worthy group membership. Generally, the work of the public high school could be stated in this manner: First, the school should concentrate on doing a thorough job of reading, writing and arithmetic in all subjects; second, provide for individual activities and as broad an educational program as possible; third, prepare capable students for higher education; fourth, give adequate training for vocational work to students who need these opportunities; fifth, extra-curricular activities should be provided, but so as not to interfere with or detract from the instructional program; sixth, assist each student through guidance to find where his abilities are and to provide for and develop these abilities to the fullest.

Our citizens want educational opportunity for every child regardless of his ability. A school should operate in a climate that will assist each pupil in discovering his talents. Quality teaching makes quality learning. Quality education can only be provided when each agency assumes its proper role in providing such a program. Society therefore should provide the framework to give each individual student a sense of purpose and direction in his life. Favorable learning environment for the student will develop him mentally, emotionally, and physically. Education therefore is everyone's business and should be supported by all our citizens.

Not Much Of A Tiger, But It's Time To Act

Three sugar mills and properties estimated as being worth around $75 million were seized yesterday by Castro's Cuba.

The announcement said the American company involved was accused of failing "to liquidate its obligations, leaving thousands of Cuban cane growers in a state of ruin."

This hardly clarifies the case for readers in the United States. Accusations here are not yet tantamount to judicial conviction.

However, such action does fall in line with the traditional acts of totalitarianism; as have other such characteristic traits as muffling the free press, unbridled propaganda by government, secret police, military tribunals, the avoidance of elections and appeals to the mob spirit.

Such things, coupled with anxious toadying to the Moscow line are symptomatic of Communist rule . . . a possibility anticipated by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles six years ago when he got the Inter-American Conference at Caracas to agree that domination or control of the political institutions of any American state by the sovereignty and political independence of the American states.

True, Sec. Dulles was not at the time thinking of Cuba as a festering sore in the Western hemisphere, but of Guatemala. Still, the agreement remains in effect today.

Trouble is, while we're satisfied Castro and Co. are within the Red fold, he disavows Communist influences pervade his thinking; and is apparently able to deny party membership with no proof to the contrary.

All in all, it seems the time has come for Uncle Sugar to stop pretending the big striped cat that walks like a tiger, eats like a tiger, growls like a tiger . . . is not a tiger; and act accordingly.

It isn't that Castro's Cuba makes a very good tiger, but the real front lines are elsewhere; and those distractions made-in-Cuba should be promptly handled.

Faltering Plan Of Containment

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was like drawing a circle around a frog and telling him not to jump out of it. This is what the United States did with Russia. And it worked, too, until the frog jumped.

And that's what put America in its latest dilemma.

Back in 1947, when George F. Kennan was head of the State Department's policy planning staff, he outlined an American plan followed ever since. As he said, it meant "holding the line and hoping for the best."

The idea was to ring Russia—then infinitely weaker than the United States—with military bases and alliances to keep it from pushing or overrunning her neighbors.

At that time, 13 years ago, the Soviet Union had no hydrogen bomb, no missiles, and Red China didn't exist. The mainland was still being run by Chiang Kai-shek, the American ally. But Kennan was doing some wishful thinking:

1. That this containment policy — military encirclement — would not only keep the Russians behind their own frontiers but would put internal pressure on the Soviet government.

2. That the pressure might hasten Soviet collapse internally or at least force a change of direction or intent because, Kennan felt and wrote, Russia contained within itself the seeds of its own destruction.

Up till now the containment policy has kept the Russians from bulldozing their immediate neighbors. But, contrary to Kennan's hopes, instead of collapse the Soviet Union's internal development has been phenomenal.

Now, 13 years later, the Russians have the hydrogen bomb, missiles probably capable of hitting America, an industrial production second only to that of the United States, and a population apparently content and loyal.

Russian strength has increased so tremendously that only this week New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said the balance of power has shifted to the Soviet Union. The Russians have been acting as if they believed that, too.

They still can't, without risking war, push directly against the American circle drawn around them. So that they have done the obvious and next-best thing for them. They have leaptfrogged out of the circle.

They have done it not only by the usual propaganda and intrigue but by promises of both economic but even military help to countries on the American side of the circle. This is the most glaring example: the economic deals with Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cuba and a warning to the United States to keep hands off. Thus the Russians, without resorting to war to smash the circle, have hopped over and are trying to set up shop in America's backyard.

This almost certainly is only the beginning of such efforts to penetrate, by one means or another, the Latin American world. And Russia's efforts to penetrate Africa will be even more barefaced.

The American government can hardly dissuade the Russians from encroaching in areas close to the United States by complaining this is a backyard. The Russians can answer by pointing out that for years the United States has linked itself to the Soviets' next-door neighbors

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE SCHOOL OF LIFE

We often find it hard to believe that there is purpose in all that happens, even in the mistakes we make and in the sorrows we endure. The idea that this world is plunging on, thoroughly out of hand so far as God is concerned and beyond his control, is a tragically mistaken notion for anyone to hold. There is a reason for everything that happens.

The poet Keats died when he was a very young man, and his great contribution to English literature was made as he experienced much physical suffering. In writing to a friend, Keats once said: "The common cogno-men of this world among the misguided and the superstitious is a 'Vale of Tears.' Call the world, if you please, a 'Vale of Soul-making.' Do you not see how necessary a world of pains and troubles is to school our intelligence and make it a soul—a place where the heart must feel and suffer in a thousand diverse ways? As various as the lives of men are, so various become their souls, and thus does God make individual beings souls of the sparks of his own essence. We were not put into this world to be rich, happy, or anything else usually deemed desirable. We were put into the world to grow souls and to prepare ourselves for an eternal destiny in fellowship with God himself.

The 'Dream Ticket'

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Now A Mobile Ham Unit

Charlie Wells of Southern Bakers dropped in the Reflector office yesterday afternoon.

He told your columnist he had something outside.

I went out with him. Parked in front of the office was a newly-painted bus complete with Charlie's amateur radio call letters.

Charlie, an avid "ham" operator, plans to install all his equipment in the bus, thus creating a mobile unit.

When he is operating his rig at home the bus will be wired for 110 volt current and his tall antenna will be plugged in.

But Charlie also plans to install a generator on the bus and an antenna on its top.

The outfit could prove invaluable in time of severe emergency at some future date.

Charlie received national attention a few months ago when he made contact with Ghana in Africa and helped arrange aid for an Israeli boy critically injured in an accident.

Strange thing about human nature. One afternoon this week your columnist was walking along Fifth St. between Evans and Cotanche.

There was a recently completed manhole squarely in the middle of the block. I couldn't resist the temptation to look inside, of course. And, of course, there; only a concrete hole awaiting the installation of underground electric lines.

Just to prove I wasn't nuts, I watched other people passing by to determine their reaction to a hole in the street.

I didn't take an accurate count, but I'd say two out of three walked over and took a look in the hole.

It must be simply human curiosity.

Frankly, I think those who looked inside would have been more surprised if there had been something there.

Received a call yesterday afternoon that a workman has fallen through the aluminum awning at Roses Store.

I raced down to see what it was all about.

Someone had, indeed fallen on the metal overhang.

The aluminum sheeting was crumpled in one section. I asked a workman at the scene if someone had fallen.

"Yeah," he replied. "There he is up there."

The man had luckily escaped injury because the aluminum overhang didn't break completely through. Apparently it was all in a day's work, for he had re-mounted his ladder and gone back to the job of drilling holes in the brick wall for hanging the sign.

The man on the ground said he didn't know the name of the worker who had fallen. He was too high up and his drilling apparatus made too much noise for me to attract his attention. I decided against climbing the ladder for additional information.

The crew works for Colonial Sign Co. of Columbia, S.C.

While this much is easily recognized (and a great deal is said about it) it is the reality that seemingly escapes the West. Only the illusion that Soviet occupation of Germany is temporary can account for this quick in British and American thinking. The Soviet frontier, in fact, as well as the fiction of People's Governments in Germany, Poland, et al, lies at the Elbe rather than at the Oder-Neisse or Curzon Line."

Lotich further calls attention to the fact that Soviet Russia has made many attempts to correct this error. The so-called "captive nations" are all countries which for centuries related to Germany and even more particularly to Austria. Lotich says: "Allied control in West Berlin may well be the key to estoppel of Communist aggression in central Europe. Certainly it is this Western foothold in Berlin that blunts the Soviet thrust westward. The Red Army, entrenched in the north German plain with solid bases in Poland, points its sword towards Western Europe."

This is a novel point of view but it is worthy of consideration. Sometimes the smartest men outsmart themselves.

Perhaps the best example of that is Khrushchev's attempt at intervention in American politics. Thus far, nobody who is even suspected of being preferred by Khrushchev has had a chance. The suspicion that Adlai Stevenson has found favor in the Russian's eyes has hurt Stevenson.

Soviets Not So Smart

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

At the Democratic Convention, too much was made of the perfection of Soviet Russia. The impression was given that the Democrats really believe that Soviet Russia has taken first place in the world — particularly in production — and that the United States has become a second ranking nation.

These statements cannot be sustained by facts or figures. They are assumptions as to what may happen by 1970. One speaker, I can no longer recall who it was, made a point that although we are the greatest manufacturing nation on Earth, Soviet Russia beat us to the Sputnik. But what is the record today? Are we not ahead of Russia in actual accomplishment in missiles, rockets and atomic submarines?

Much was made of the rate of growth. If Ghana went in for steel production, its rate of growth would be greater than that of the United States and greater than that of any country in Europe, including Soviet Russia. Starting at zero, if they produced 100 tons of steel a year, they would have a rate of growth of 100 per cent. For the United States to show a similar rate of growth, we should probably have to produce about 250,000,000 tons of steel a year.

The rate of growth involves many factors, some of which are to be made more complicated if the whole of the Democratic platform is to be implemented as, of course, it cannot be. The travel of events moves too swiftly and the Russians make as many errors as we do, and they make them for the same reason that we do, namely, that the pressures are so numerous and so constant that it is impossible always to find the exact solution. John Kennedy will face this difficulty as Richard Nixon will face it.

For example, I have come across an article by Professor Kenneth V. Lotich, published in "The Sudeten Bulletin" (in Munich), in which he calls Berlin Stalin's greatest blunder. In the West, we have generally held that Berlin was an American error, that we agreed to hold part of a city without an assured entrance or exit. We have held that this error has turned out to be very expensive to us, in the cost, for example, of the Berlin airlift and the necessity of maintaining large numbers of troops, etc. But Professor Lotich puts up a very good argument for his side of the case. He says: "From the Soviet standpoint, a tactical error in geopolitics occurred at Berlin — an error of the first magnitude. The free world gained an outpost, a showcase, as it were, well behind the Curtain."

While this much is easily recognized (and a great deal is said about it) it is the reality that seemingly escapes the West. Only the illusion that Soviet occupation of Germany is temporary can account for this quick in British and American thinking. The Soviet frontier, in fact, as well as the fiction of People's Governments in Germany, Poland, et al, lies at the Elbe rather than at the Oder-Neisse or Curzon Line."

Lotich further calls attention to the fact that Soviet Russia has made many attempts to correct this error. The so-called "captive nations" are all countries which for centuries related to Germany and even more particularly to Austria. Lotich says: "Allied control in West Berlin may well be the key to estoppel of Communist aggression in central Europe. Small, Unique Units In Gaston

By LYNN NISBET

GASTONIA — The State of North Carolina has three institutions in Gaston county, all small and each unique in its field. The visit of the budget group to these places was happy, because there were no requests for capital improvement money at two and very little at the other.

The Vocational Textile School at Belmont is about ready to let contract for an auditorium-classroom addition to the main building, for which funds were allocated in 1959. Needed minor repairs are being handled through the operating "A" budget. This school was established in 1943 for special training in textile work. The student body of about 400 comes chiefly from employees in nearby mills. One of the most popular courses is in tailoring. The school has a board of trustees and an advisory committee of business men, but it is in fact attached to the division of vocational education in the State Department of Public Instruction.

The North Carolina Orthopedic Hospital was established in 1921 and for many years has been a favorite of budget commissions. Requests for money are very modest, and proven results highly gratifying. With rated capacity for 140 patients average occupancy is one or two more than that.

Chief need is a new elevator to take children from the first floor wards to the operating room. Estimated cost $15,000. Next requirement is replacement of laundry equipment at $10,000. Other items include renovation of the colored ward kitchen, and miscellaneous painting and repairs.

The laundry request occasioned discussion of the whole policy of handling State institutional laundry through the prison enterprises system. Dr. W.M. Roberts convinced the budget folks that need for retaining control of surgical linen and the distance from Raleigh justified the laundry operations here.

Dr. Roberts noted the change in type of patients now as compared with earlier years. Arthritis TB cases are rare, and it is difficult to get enough polio cases for teaching purposes. The stay of patients is longer, because this hospital gets only the more serious cases. In 1928 there were only five orthopedists in North Carolina. Now there are more than 50, and most of the simple cases are treated at home.

The hospital operates a clinic at Goldsboro one day a month at which about 125 patients are treated, including adults. The school classes here fit into the State public system. One of the interesting sights is a class of seventh grade kids sprawled on beds or sitting bolt upright in heavy casts, with twisted arms and legs and bright eyes, studying history.

The Gaston Technical Institute has the status of a two-year junior college in engineering technology, a branch of State College at Raleigh. Present enrollment is 210, with a goal of 350 as soon as faculty and laboratory equipment can be obtained. The institute is housed in a large building donated by Firstone several years ago. Students come from 95 counties and three other states. There are no dormitory facilities on the "campus" but a privately owned house nearby houses 30 boys. The others find quarters out in town.

A few courses are offered for which credits can be transferred to higher classes in four year colleges, but chief purpose is a two year terminal course in engineering technology. The 69 graduates this year had an average of six job opportunities each. About two thirds of them stayed in North Carolina — a considerable number with the highway commission.

The Institute has its own admission tests although majority of the students are referred here through the State College counseling service. The budget for this school is included in that for State College, so details were not discussed. One of the immediate needs is an adequate library.

POPPOURRI—The print shop at Jackson Training School does some printing for other State agencies, but the only thing sold from the farm, said Superintendent Frank Scott, is chitlins. Elton Edwards, Greensboro attorney and member of the State Board of Correction and Training, got a laugh from the budget party when he referred to a gift from the "King's Women"—when he meant the King's Daughters . . . waiting lists both most institutions, but Dr. Roberts at the orthopedic hospital is not happy without a waiting list of 100 or more. He wants to keep tab on prospective patients to know how best to treat them when they come in. . . One member of the budget party, who declines a direct quote, has discovered the qualifications for service on that commission. "There is nothing like a background of universal experience to qualify a man for service on the budget commission," he said. "In short, it is better to know everything if you are going to be able to discuss everything learnedly."

Palmer, Sneal Slice In Second Round Of Tourney

By FRITZ HOWELL
AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer is going to have to come from behind — as he did in the Masters and National Open, and didn't in the British Open — if he's going to win the 42nd PGA championship.

Proving that even the best can get the worst of it at times, the year's leading money winner ($36,000) from Ligonier, Pa., carved out a startling 74 in Friday's second round to surrender the lead his opening 67 had given him.

Out front as 95 survivors of the cutoff (at scores of 151) went into today's third round was Jay Hebert (he pronounces it ay-beer), from the bayous of Lafayette, La.

Jay, 37, whose younger brother Lionel won this fixture in 1957 when it was at man-to-man combat instead of medal play, had five birdies and two bogeys for the day's best round of 67 and a two-day total of 139, one under par.

Palmer's unexpected collapse on the front nine left him in a three-way tie at 141 with three-time champion Sam Sneal, who had a second round 73, and Doug Sanders, Miami Beach, Fla., who had 70-71. Between them and the leader was Don January, the Dallas hotshot, who put together a pair of 70s.

Hebert fired his round early and let the others worry in the 90-degree temperature the rest of the day. Only Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., was able to ship par in the late going, over the windy, dried-out 7,165-yard Firestone Country Club course, and his 69 put him in a three-way deadlock at 142 with Ken Venturi, Palo Alto, Calif., and John O'Donnell, Baltimore.

Although only six sub par scores have been fired in two rounds by 185 of the country's finest, the first two days were a picnic for the pros. With the field cut to the low 90 ties, the PGA committee hauled out the pipe wrenches to day and tightened up the long layout for the stretch drive.

Markers are on the back of all tees, adding as much as 30 yards in some cases, and players have to peek at the flag across the corner of a trap, or seek it in some far corner.

The awesome challenge of this mighty remade course is no myth. Ben Hogan, who just seven years ago won the U. S. and British Opens and the Masters in a single year, hasn't scored a birdie in 36 holes of trying here.

"I can't remember when that happened to me before. I don't believe it ever did," Hogan said.

Of the leading 42 at the end of two rounds, only seven are club professionals. The other threatening teachers are Fred Wampler, St. Louis and Ed Griffiths, Youngstown, Ohio, at 145, and Brian Charter, Greenville, S. C., Mike Korf, Morgantown, W. Va., Bill Bisdorf, Denver and Shelley Mayfield, Jerico, N. Y., at 146.

Sports Scope

Saturday's ramblings . . .

The semi-pro Tobacco League is finding East Carolina College baseballers a big asset to its summer program. A recent list of the league's All-Stars included Jerry Carpenter, Wally Cockrell, Nathan Green, Jimmy Martin, and Merle Bynum.

The EC collegiate performers are split up between New Bern and Smithfield . . .

Butch Smith of Bethel admittedly enjoys officiating high school basketball during the winter months but can recollect a batch of shakey experiences.

First Game Brought Jitters

There is naturally that first game jitters and Smith had an overdose. Officiating at Belvoir, he stumbled over a spectators foot while racing down the court trying to keep up with a fast break. A quick tinge of red appeared and to make matters worse, the agitator of the acrobatic act had a few scolding words for Butch.

Last winter, Butch took a little roughing from an unrefined coach. During a close-to-the-vest important game, the mentor darted off the bench, grabbed the helpless official by the collar and administered a "good country shakedown". After recovering from the shock Smith retaliated by calling a technical foul to restore order. Yet, Smith relates, he was happy to return to Bethel that night unscratched . . .

Prepares Change In History

Coach George Tucker, new Elon football coach, is preparing to make a dent in the history legends. Says Tucker, "You've heard of the Christians being led to the Lions, well, from now on, its going to be the Lions, Bears, and Pirates being led to the Christians." ("Christians" is the nickname for Elon squads)

A week can mean a lot in baseball standings. Last week at the All-Star break, Pittsburgh and New York looked well on the way to pennants in their respective leagues. But the entire complexion has changed and its almost anybody's race in either league.

An early season forecast appeared in the office yesterday with an "I told you so" smile written across his face. He had picked New York and Los Angeles to win the titles and now his eyes were gleaming with dollar marks. Yet, it was his first visit since the season moved into full swing . . .

Boone Away On Vacation

East Carolina coach Jack Boone is mixing business with pleasure during his vacation time. The EC boss is in Portsmouth and besides trying to get a little sun and fun before the rugged grid campaign, he is checking prospects and is even booked for a couple of speaking engagements . . .

As for the rest of the Pirate staff, Coach Bill McDonald is teaching summer school this session. Coach Frank Madigan is doing graduate work after teaching last session and the new addition to the staff, Odell Welborn, has just returned from vacation . . .

Tommy Matthews, Gary Cannady, Clayton Piland Earl Sweet, Bert Stafford, Bob Gregson, and Mac Thacker are just a few of the EC footballers in summer school . . . Vernon Davis and Henry Kwiatkowski have been involved in summer accidents but both are expected to be ready for practice September 1. Davis was in an automobile accident and Ski was spiked while playing Industrial Softball. . . .

And it was one year ago today that the sports world, especially North Carolina, was shocked by the death of UNC coach Jim Tatum.

Bartzen, Laver In Semifinals Net Play

CHICAGO (AP) — In a possible preview of Davis Cup championship competition, Bernard (Tut) Bartzen of the U.S. team and an Australian star, Rod Laver, met in a semifinal battle today in the National Clay Courts Tennis Tournament.

The winner will face the top man of the U.S. Davis Cuppers, Barry MacKay, for the championship Sunday.

The 32-year-old Bartzen, a precisionist who won the Clay Courts crown in 1954, 1958 and 1959, will be up against a powerful player in the red-haired Laver.

While Bartzen and Laver sat out men's singles competition Friday, MacKay turned on a burst of power and temperament in taking a three-hour marathon match from unseeded Jon Douglas, a 23-year-old Marine from Santa Monica, Calif.

In the 90-plus heat, MacKay overcame faulty net play to outlast Douglas 4-6, 6-4, 10-12, 6-3, 6-3.

The match ended with the 2,000 River Forest Tennis Club fans soundly booing the Davis Cup star. MacKay, apparently disgusted by his numerous errors, sent his racket wizzing at the backcourt canvas during the 74-minute third set. It just missed the head of a ball boy and nearly crashed over the canvas into the crowd.

Later MacKay threw his racket toward the sidelines, making the net court judge duck. Then he started snarling at a ball boy. He threw a ball in the boy's direction and the lad began crying and was replaced.

Little League Playoffs Locals Play In Tarboro Tourney

Greenville's two Little League All-Star teams will travel to Tarboro next week where they will take on some of the state's top teams, with the hope of clinching a berth in the state tourney, which will begin the following week in Lenoir.

The Greenville teams, from the Tar Heel and North State leagues, will play on Monday and Tuesday afternoons of next week, both games beginning at 4 p.m. The Tar Heel league stars will meet Tarboro on Monday afternoon, while the North State team plays Warsaw on Tuesday afternoon.

According to W. C. James, Greenville Little League commissioner, Tarboro is celebrating its 200th anniversary during the week of the tourney, and have several activities planned for the visiting teams. James said that the tourney committee in Tarboro "feels sure that the tournament will be a big success."

As far as Greenville chances of a tournament win and the ultimate advancement of the locals to the state tournament in Lenoir is concerned, James said, "Both the Tar Heel and the North State teams are about equal to teams in the past." The tourney in Tarboro is a single elimination affair, and with this in mind, James commented, "Of course, with one game elimination, it is rough, and the teams must play top ball all the time to advance."

In conclusion, James said, "Both our teams appear to be in good spirits, and desire to play ball. Both teams have some good hitting and defense, and if they come through we should be able to make a good showing, win or lose."

Records Broken In AAU Meet

TOLDEO, Ohio (AP) — More records were certain to go tumbling today as the nation's top young stars swung into the second day of the AAU National Men's Swimming and Diving Championships.

There were three swimming events Friday and new records are up for acceptance in all of them. That acceptance is a mere formality.

Diving competition, always one of this country's strong points in the Olympic Games, was an overwhelming triumph for Mike Peppe's team from Ohio State.

But the big surprise came in the swimming events — the 100-meter freestyle, where Jeff Farrell hung up a new American record for recognition, the 400-meter individual medley in which Dennis Rounsaville bettered the world mark, and the 1,500-meter freestyle, where George Breen lowered his Olympic record time.

Rounsaville, a Southern California junior who will be 20 next month, splashed home in a blazing 5:04.5 in the 400-meter medley. That's more than four seconds under the world record set last year by Scotland's Ian Black.

Farrell, a two-time winner in the AAU meet last year, lowered the American standard with a 54.8 time in the 100-meter freestyle. Jon Henricks' 55.7 mark is the current accepted record.

Breen, 25, streaked home a winner in record time in the 1,500-meter freestyle. His 17:33.5 was 18.5 seconds under his own Olympic record set in 1956.

Sam Hall, who was graduated in June from Ohio State, scored 47.80 points in the three-meter diving. OSU teammate Don Harper, the defending champion, was second.

The first-day record breaking caused Dr. Harold Henning to say, "The swimming and diving team that the United States will send to Rome this summer will be much stronger than any of us expected."

Dr. Henning is chairman of the Men's AAU Swimming Committee.

Single Finals For Net Tourney

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Inez Long of Atlanta and Sally Seebek of Charleston, S.C., met today for the women's singles title in the North Carolina Open tennis championships.

In the men's singles division, Jim Winstead of Roxboro, N.C., met Bob Burns of Columbia, S.C., in the finals.

Winstead gained the finals Friday with an upset of top-seeded Keith Stoneman of Greenville, S.C., 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, and Burns, seeded second, turned back Bob Gallows of Greenville, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

In women's play, Miss Long trounced Louise Fowler of Covington, Ga., 6-1, 6-3, in a semifinal match, and Miss Seebek upset second-seeded Julia Blake of Belmont, S.C., 6-2, 6-1, in a quarter-final match, and then defeated No. 3 seeded Joanne Cooper of Charlotte, N.C., 3-6, 6-4, 6-2, in the semifinals.

Chisox Tramp NY In First Of Series

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Chicago White Sox, charging back from the grave, have streaked within .003 per centage points of the American League leading New York Yankees — the club that left 'em for dead.

The Sox, tearing up their obituary that was typed by New York writers when the Yankees swept a four-game series at Chicago in mid-June, busted back for 18 hits and a 11-5 romp in the opener of four-game set at Yankee Stadium Friday night.

It was the sixth straight success for the Sox, their longest string of the season, and 20th in their last 28 games.

The Yankees, now have lost 10 of their last 15.

Third-place Cleveland stayed 2½ games back, losing 6-4 at Boston as Vic Wertz drove in four runs with a homer and two singles. Baltimore's fourth-place Orioles, ending their home losing string at seven, trailed two games after beating Detroit 2-1 with a pair of unearned runs. Kansas City netted six unearned runs in defeating Washington 9-4.

In the National League, Pittsburgh padded its lead to 2½ games over Milwaukee again, winning 4-1 at San Francisco after the Braves lost 8-7 to the last-place Chicago Cubs. Los Angeles regained third place by one percentage point over St. Louis, defeating Philadelphia 2-0 on Don Drysdale's four-hit, 14-strikeout pitching. The Cardinals won 8-3 at Cincinnati.

The White Sox, trailing by six games in fourth place on July 4, simply kept rolling on a tear in which they have knocked 70 hits in five games. They've scored 47 runs in that spree, getting five of them in the fourth inning Friday night to beat Bob Turley (6-2), who had won six straight.

Early Wynn, starting pitcher, singled in the first run of the frame, breaking a 2-all tie. Minnie Mino, who batted in three runs, clinched it with a two-run double.

Bill Skowron, who hit in a double play with the bases loaded in the fifth inning against winning reliever Frank Baumann (7-4), drove in two of the Yank runs.

At Boston, Wertz walloped a three-run homer, his 11th, in the third inning for a 4-3 lead against loser Jim Grant (6-5), then singled home the winning run in the fifth. Ted Williams also homered for the Red Sox, his 15th and No. 507 of his career.

Singles by Walt Dropo and Brooks Robinson and errors by Frank Bolling and Chico Fernandez gave it to the Orioles and reliever Jack Fisher (6-8), who blanked the Tigers on six hits for seven frames.

The A's wrapped it up with four unearned runs in the sixth at Washington, thanks to an error by Jim Lemon, who hit his 24th home run for the Senators.

Fifth Win For Mizell As Buc

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wilmer Mizell had his troubles in St. Louis, but the stringbean from Vinegar Bend, Ala., is coming through for Pittsburgh as the Pirates forge ahead in the National League race.

Mizell, traded from the Cardinals May 28, won his fifth game for the Pirates Friday night, a nine-hit 4-1 victory over San Francisco.

The decision put the league-leading Pirates 2½ games in front of the Milwaukee Braves, who lost to Chicago.

Mizell was 1-3 before the trade. He's now 6-5.

"I was pitching good in St. Louis," he said, "but I kept having one-inning trouble."

He drew that the nine-hitter, in which he got out of jam after jam, was far from his best effort, "but I'll take it because they scored only one run."

The loner was Willie Mays' first inning homer, his 19th.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wilmer Mizell had his troubles in St. Louis, but the stringbean from Vinegar Bend, Ala., is coming through for Pittsburgh as the Pirates forge ahead in the National League race.

Mizell, traded from the Cardinals May 28, won his fifth game for the Pirates Friday night, a nine-hit 4-1 victory over San Francisco.

The decision put the league-leading Pirates 2½ games in front of the Milwaukee Braves, who lost to Chicago.

Mizell was 1-3 before the trade. He's now 6-5.

"I was pitching good in St. Louis," he said, "but I kept having one-inning trouble."

He drew that the nine-hitter, in which he got out of jam after jam, was far from his best effort, "but I'll take it because they scored only one run."

The loner was Willie Mays' first inning homer, his 19th.

runs with a homer and two singles. Baltimore's fourth-place Orioles, ending their home losing string at seven, trailed two games after beating Detroit 2-1 with a pair of unearned runs. Kansas City netted six unearned runs in defeating Washington 9-4.

In the National League, Pittsburgh padded its lead to 2½ games over Milwaukee again, winning 4-1 at San Francisco after the Braves lost 8-7 to the last-place Chicago Cubs. Los Angeles regained third place by one percentage point over St. Louis, defeating Philadelphia 2-0 on Don Drysdale's four-hit, 14-strikeout pitching. The Cardinals won 8-3 at Cincinnati.

The White Sox, trailing by six games in fourth place on July 4, simply kept rolling on a tear in which they have knocked 70 hits in five games. They've scored 47 runs in that spree, getting five of them in the fourth inning Friday night to beat Bob Turley (6-2), who had won six straight.

Early Wynn, starting pitcher, singled in the first run of the frame, breaking a 2-all tie. Minnie Mino, who batted in three runs, clinched it with a two-run double.

Bill Skowron, who hit in a double play with the bases loaded in the fifth inning against winning reliever Frank Baumann (7-4), drove in two of the Yank runs.

At Boston, Wertz walloped a three-run homer, his 11th, in the third inning for a 4-3 lead against loser Jim Grant (6-5), then singled home the winning run in the fifth. Ted Williams also homered for the Red Sox, his 15th and No. 507 of his career.

Singles by Walt Dropo and Brooks Robinson and errors by Frank Bolling and Chico Fernandez gave it to the Orioles and reliever Jack Fisher (6-8), who blanked the Tigers on six hits for seven frames.

The A's wrapped it up with four unearned runs in the sixth at Washington, thanks to an error by Jim Lemon, who hit his 24th home run for the Senators.

Marks Broken In Swimming Meet

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — The Spartanburg County Aquatic Assn., helped along by the individual effort of Kathy Helfrich, has moved into the scoring lead in the 4th annual Peach Blossom Invitational swim meet which ends here today.

Kathy won twice in Friday's competition as her team picked up 145 points, 10 more than Raleigh, N.C.

Five American and 14 meet marks were broken Friday.

Record breakers were:

Bruce Beiderbeck of Charlotte, N.C., in the 100-yard backstroke for boys in the 11-12 age bracket with time of 1:11.8.

Frank Williams, also of Charlotte, 100-yard butterfly in 11-12 boys bracket in 1:17.4.

Nancy Kummer of Roanoke, Va., 100-yard girls butterfly in 11-12 bracket in 1:19.3.

Barbara Gibson of Raleigh, 200-yard breaststroke for girls 13-14 bracket in 3:04.6.

Locally-Sponsored Missionaries In Congo Safe, So Far As Is Learned

As far as the Daily Reflector has been able to determine, Greenville sponsored missionaries to the Belgian Congo and other parts of the African continent have either returned to the United States or are in trouble-free parts of the continent.

The Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth S. Jones, missionaries sponsored by Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church of Greenville, returned before the Congo crisis began, church spokesmen said, on their annual furlough. They were due for their leave before the crisis, and were not vacated due to the situation.

The Jones returned to Baltimore, Md., where they recently departed for the west coast. They are scheduled to visit Greenville in the fall.

Miss Ernelle Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Brooks of Greenville, is a missionary nurse for the Southern Missionary Baptists in Nigeria. She remains in Nigeria, which is not in the current troubled region, her parents said.

So far, no word on the crisis has been received by local ham radio operators, who have established contact in the Belgian Congo. Charles Wells, local ham operator, said he himself had contacted Leopoldville as late as last week, but his contacts were evasive as to the situation there.

$5 Millions Asked Traditional Inauguration By Appalachian In January Now Likely

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—The Advisory Budget Commission received a request Friday for five million dollars for building projects and repairs at Appalachian State Teachers College.

Terry Sanford, Democratic nominee for the post, said Friday the idea appeals to him. Gov. Hodges also has indicated he likes the plan.

If it is followed, the Legislature will have to be called into special session. A constitutional amendment approved by voters in 1956 switched the time of convening the Legislature from January to February.

After the inauguration, the Legislature would end the special session and come back a month later to get down to business.

Sanford said he felt legislative leaders should be consulted about the proposal. He also noted the November general election still lies ahead. Robert Gavin of Sanford is the Republican candidate for governor.

At his news conference Friday, Sanford also repeated his determination to campaign hard for the Democratic national ticket of John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Sanford said the presidential candidate, as a Catholic, faces "a political handicap in North Carolina." He expressed his contention that Kennedy, because of his religion, would "lean over backward to avoid even the appearance of favoring any Catholic positions."

The Democratic candidate for governor also took note of criticism voiced over his vote for Kennedy at the national convention. "Everybody cannot be expected to agree with my every decision and I surely will make mistakes, but whatever decision I will make will have first met the test of 'do you think this is the best thing for the people of North Carolina?'" he asserted.

Jenkins Will Be Speaker At Manteo 'ECC Night'

ROANOKE ISLAND, N. C. — East Carolina College Night program at "The Lost Colony" Saturday evening will include an address by Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, newly installed president of the institution of higher learning at Greenville, and a pre-curtain musical event.

In an address prepared for delivery in the pre-performance ceremonies, Dr. Jenkins pledged to the Eastern North Carolina college "full co-operation of local dramatic productions, musical offerings, and exhibitions in art."

The state should feel the results of this effort within the next few years, President Jenkins predicted.

"East Carolina College is anxious to lend all of its resources toward making possible more cultural programs in Eastern North Carolina. There is a great weakness at present in orchestral productions. The college is in the process of initiating a strong drive for instruction in string music so that more communities will be able to organize school-community orchestras," Dr. Jenkins points out.

Noting the participation of 103 East Carolina College alumni and students in 20 years of production of "The Lost Colony," Dr. Jenkins indicated the pride East Carolina has in association with America's leading outdoor drama.

"We feel a close relationship with this production because an alumnus, Mr. Clifton Britton, is director and many of our faculty, staff, and students have also participated in the production from time to time," declared President Jenkins.

Britton was stage manager of "The Lost Colony" for four years, associate director for two years, and for the past seven years has been director of the drama.

As a part of the Saturday evening preliminary features, the program includes two vocal solos by Mrs. Allison Hearne Moss.

Dr. Oscar Brown Joins Dentist In Ayden Practice

AYDEN — Dr. Oscar Hubert Brown, the son of Mrs. Nannie Hudson of Greenville, has joined Dr. Wes Gooding in the practice of dentistry in Ayden.

Dr. Brown, 33, graduated from Greenville High School and received his B. S. degree in science at East Carolina College in 1954. He graduated from the University of North Carolina in August of last year.

Brown recently passed the board of examiners of the dental division. Previously he was associated with the State Board of Health for several years as a school dentist and worked in this area.

A native of Edenton, Dr. Brown is the son of Mrs. Hudson and the late Oscar Hubert Brown. He is married to the former Hazel Wetherington of Winterville. They have two daughters, Rebecca and Hazel. They plan to move to Ayden in the near future.

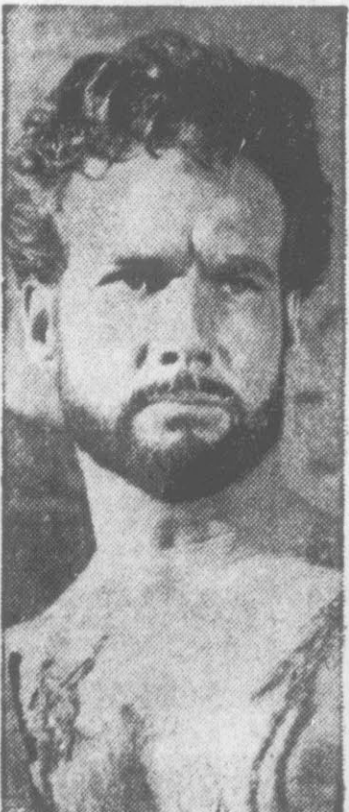

Dr. Brown is a veteran of the U. S. Navy.

Showers Slated During Weekend

Some cloudiness and possible showers have been forecast by the weatherman for the weekend.

Already this morning, some parts of Pitt County experienced light showers, though there was no rain in Greenville proper. John Lynch of the Greenville Utilities Plant said there was a light rain near the Washington Highway this morning, but there has been no rain measured at the Greenville Utilities Plant in the last 24 hours.

Warm temperatures have also been predicted, with highs in the high 80s and low 90s.

Temperatures yesterday rose to 94 in the Pitt County area. Saturday's low temperature was 74 recorded at 4 a.m., rising to 79 at 8 a.m. The midnight temperature was 76 degrees.

GOP Platform-Writers At Work 'Modifying' Planks

CHICAGO (AP) — Republican platform writers today started reshaping planks to conform to an understanding reached during a dramatic night meeting between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The full 103-member platform committee scheduled a meeting which was expected to bring agreement on this as the final form of the party declaration, in all its general statements.

Joseph F. Carline of New York, chairman of the civil rights subcommittee, had said Friday that any final word from the top—he meant Nixon but took Rockefeller into account—would be taken as guidance by the entire committee.

Upon being advised of the Nixon-Rockefeller settlement today, Carline said it certainly would expedite final approval of the platform.

The shape of the platform had been the one issue in which Rockefeller had maintained a position of opposition to Nixon.

Although he had said he was receptive to a draft for the GOP presidential nomination, there had appeared to be no chance that Rockefeller was a real threat.

But Rockefeller, keeping close touch with platform deliberations here this week, had served notice he wasn't pleased with the way the GOP campaign banner was taking shape. On this point, he remained a storm center in an otherwise calm convention scene.

The eight-hour huddle with Nixon in New York, arranged at Nixon's request, smoothed out this last somewhat mountainous boundary between their positions.

It was a compromise. Rockefeller worked in some of his most cherished language, but the document seemed hardly to deviate in any important respect from the Eisenhower administration line on these key issues.

Nixon has said he would use the Eisenhower record as a base and build upon it. The compromise appeared to be a start in that direction.

The platform must still be adopted next week by the Republican convention, of course. But the agreement of the two Titans of the party seemed to make that a foregone conclusion.

Before the New York meeting, these were major points which Rockefeller had insisted should be in the platform:

1. A 3 1/2 billion dollar increase immediately in defense spending. This figure was not mentioned in Rockefeller's account of the compromise, although there was language about the need for "new efforts."
2. The financing of a medical care for the aged plan through the existing social security system. This was opposed by President Eisenhower, who favored a state-federal voluntary plan. The compromise mentioned a "sound fiscal basis," and the "option of purchasing private health insurance."
3. A strong civil rights plank. In this, Rockefeller seemed to make his most solid gain. The compromise specifically endorsed the sit-in demonstrations Negroes have been staging throughout the South. However, it did not endorse giving the attorney general injunctive power in fields other than voting. It only talked of "aggressive action."

Helicopter Will Check Acreage

The Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office learned today a helicopter will check the county for hidden fields of tobacco Monday, office manager Wayne L. Wang reported.

Wang told the Daily Reflector the "copter was hired by the State ASC office in Raleigh in an effort to further strengthen our production control programs." The craft is scheduled to arrive Monday morning.

According to the office manager, the local ASC office will furnish aerial photographs for the flight. The purpose of the check, Wang said, is to check for any existing tobacco fields that have not been identified and reported by an ASC reporter.

"I feel sure," Wang said, "that there are no hidden fields in Pitt County; however, if any do exist, we will find them with this positive check."

The manager added: "The tobacco program has worked extremely well for all tobacco producers, and if we are to continue to enjoy the benefits from tobacco, all producers must support and comply with the program's regulations."

"One of the main reasons why the program has worked so well is that the majority of the producers cooperate and enthusiastically support the program — and violators are severely penalized."

"The helicopter flights," he said, "are just another positive step toward maintaining our strong tobacco program."

Farm Ponds Also Pose A Hazard

PEACEFUL FARM SCENE . . . but death can lurk in these placid waters.

AS PITT FARM PONDS GROW IN NUMBER DROWNINGS INCREASE . . . here rescue squad members work over a boy pulled from a pond.

By ROY HARDEE

Commander, North Carolina
Association of Rescue Squads

The farm pond, source of good . . . or death?

Intended for certain special uses, the increased growth in rural farm ponds has brought many heartaches to families
as well as blessings to parcelled farm crops and its outlets for recreation.

Here in Pitt County, in the few short years that pond construction has been started, nearly 500 ponds of varying size, depth, and construction have been completed. More are planned.

Farm accidents have always been a serious concern of safety officials and now more so than ever.

Recently a program was started by the newly organized North Carolina Rural Safety Council to promote farm pond safety in the State. Eight counties, including Pitt were selected as pilot counties to see if a planned program of safety education might not pay off.

Home and farm accidents in North Carolina in March accounted for 101 lives being taken.
During the first three months of the 1960 year a total of 612 deaths occurred in North Carolina, of which 258 were from farm and home accidents.

Being Prepared

Safety officials recommend that certain safety precautions be taken to preserve lives of those working and using the farm ponds. No matter what the intended purpose of the pond might be, irrigation, fishing, or swimming, safety measures should be provided. Inflated innertubes securely fastened to a stake should be stationed along the banks and long poles, which could be extended to a victim in trouble are just a few of the many items, simple and small in cost, which each pond needs.

Supervision is possibly the key factor in pond safety. An adult should be at any pond

when it is in use. A small boat, which could be used to reach a drowning victim should be kept ready for action.

Signs should be posted around ponds warning of dangers of swimming or other hazards, but this does not relieve the farm owner of responsibility in the event of an accident.

Boat Accidents

Most boating accidents don't just happen, they are caused by someone's carelessness.
Speed, standing in a boat, overloading and improper use of a craft are the leading factors in the majority of boating accidents.

Most boats will support their occupants even if overturned and filled with water. Most new boats now being constructed have special floatable materials, which help keep a boat up indefinitely.

Keeping a cool head in the event of an accident will do more to preserve a life than being the best swimmer.

Here in Pitt County the Farm Agent's office has prepared a list of dangers and things which every farm pond owner can do to help make his farm a safer place.

Next year the farm office
along with the Greenville Rescue Squad plans to conduct water safety programs over the County and to conduct first aid classes stressing the importance of everyone knowing artificial respiration.

The first few minutes are the vital factors in the saving of any person who has drowned or is the victim of electrical shock. Even the best equipped and trained Rescue Squad can be of little assistance if it has to travel five to ten miles to reach a drowning scene. It is just too late unless someone has started manual artificial resuscitation or rescue breathing, the newest form of resuscitation, sometimes called mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

This new method is simple to learn and even small children have been able to save lives because they had seen someone perform artificial respiration or watched it on television.

The dangers of water accidents will increase with the increased use of water facilities and the new construction of farm ponds.

The people of Pitt County, however, can help protect the welfare of their families and those in the rural communities
by preparing for the unexpected and providing safety facilities as well as being trained in the ways of first aid and artificial respiration.

The farm pond, source of good or bad . . . it can be both.

Paris Most Exciting Of The Places Seen By Local Visitor

By RUTH COTTON CLARK

Of all the many places I have yet to visit in Europe, Paris has by far been the most exciting and intriguing!

Fireworks from the Eiffel Tower the Champs-Elysees amid millions of happy French people, the Folies Bergere and all its gayety... all these things and many more combined to give me a simply fantastic three full days in Paris, center of European entertainment and world fashion.

How lucky we were to be in Paris on the French independence day, July 14. Bastille Day was celebrated by a parade of 11,000 soldiers who marched down the flag-bedecked Champs - Elysees under the observant eye of President Charles de Gaulle. (And I was right in the middle of the whole thing!)

Also during the parade we viewed French jet fighters as they flew high above the city leaving trails of red, white and blue smoke behind them. A little pang of homesickness hit me as I saw these familiar colors trail by for

I realized that I had missed our own American independence day on July 4.

We topped off our celebration of Bastille Day by watching fireworks from atop the Eiffel Tower. French tradition makes fireworks a must at all big celebrations and of course, Bastille Day is the biggest of them all!

A sightseeing tour of Paris included a visit to Notre Dame Cathedral, Napoleon's tomb, and also the Louvre, home of the world-famous Mona Lisa. As I looked into the eyes of this very well-known lady, I realized what art critics have raved about for centuries.

The Mona Lisa actually stared back at me with eyes that held sadness, joy, and even a little mischief. Her moods are many and each time I glanced at her, she changed her appearance. Leonardo da Vinci held a power of expression that few, if any, other human beings have ever managed to obtain. What a wonderful gift he was blessed with!

Shopping in Parisienne stores on Saturday was even more of an experience than trying to walk through the Kennedy supporters in Los Angeles on July 14! Never have I seen so many people rushing about trying to buy Dior originals or "My Sin" by Lanvin.

Now, don't misunderstand me! I'm afraid that I was not among the lucky shoppers with a pocketful of "green-stuff" but I did have a simply great time just looking around and dreaming in the shops of Paris!

How I hated to leave this thriving metropolis but, as always, all good things must come to an end. Our tour was nearing an end as we boarded the huge KLM airliner and flew to Amsterdam for one last look at Europe.

Members of the tour flew back to the States Sunday night, July 17, at 11:15 p.m. But I chose to extend my little "excursion" across the Atlantic so at this moment I am sitting in Voerendaal, Holland about 150 miles from Amsterdam.

Here I am visiting the warmest possible example of Dutch home life, the J. Colton family. The Coltons have been friends of my family for years but until yesterday, we had never met. It was through them that in 1945 I received pictures of my father's grave.

He was killed during the war and is now buried in Margraten, Holland, in a vast American cemetery for the World War II dead. Today the Coltons took me to Margraten and what a wonderful experience to at last be able to place flowers upon my dad's grave.

There I also saw the graves of some 8,000 American soldiers who now rest beneath the soils of Holland. At one time 24,000 Americans as well as 8,000 Germans were buried in Margraten, but many have been returned to their respective homes for burial.

Indeed this short visit, with a real European family is the highest point of my trip. I feel completely at home here and I only wish that I could stay longer. However, on Thursday I must return to Amsterdam and catch a plane back to the States. Probably by the time this is published, I will be back in the U.S.A. once again.

Despite all the splendor of Buckingham Palace, the Eiffel Tower and the ancient Colosseum of Rome, it will be nice once again to see the familiar sights of North Carolina.

Ask Re-Hearing By High Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—Five Negroes convicted of trespassing on a segregated golf course at Greensboro, N.C., have asked the U.S. Supreme Court for a rehearing on their appeal.

Their conviction was recently upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court. They were convicted of trespassing on the Gillespie Park Golf Course. The golf course had been leased by the city to a private operator.

Attorneys for the Negroes, in seeking a rehearing, raised the contention that the North Carolina Supreme Court, in upholding the convictions, changed the state law on criminal trespass to cover public lands as well as private lands.

Believes Move On Berlin Ahead

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Rep. Daniel J. Flood (D-Pa.) says information he has on a buildup of arms and men leads him to believe there is imminent danger of a Communist military move against West Berlin.

Relying on what he said are sources of "great integrity" outside the government, Flood told the Pennsylvania American Legion Friday that such action by the Soviet Union and its East German satellite might come within 30 days.

His speech came after the White House and the State Department had disclaimed knowledge of similar reports.

TOWN OF GRIMESLAND, NORTH CAROLINA

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION

Notice is hereby given that a special election will be held in the Town of Grimesland on the 27th day of July, 1960, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of said Town for their approval or disapproval the following proposition:

YES () Shall the qualified voters of the Town of Grimesland approve the withdrawal of the sum of $10,000.00 from the principal sum now held by Carolina Power and Light Company and representing the purchase price of the Town's electric distribution system, said $10,000.00 to be used and expended by the Town for the extension of the water distribution system in said Town whenever in the discretion of the Board of Aldermen such extension shall become necessary?

NO () The polls will be open on the day of said special election from the hour of 6:30 o'clock A.M. until the hour of 6:30 o'clock P.M., and each person whose name may be registered shall be entitled to vote.

Notice is also hereby given that the election precinct of the Town of Grimesland shall be the same heretofore established for Town elections and the registrar and judges of said election shall be as follows:

Registrar: Mrs. Lela Belle Hoell
Judges of Election: Annie W. Buck and Lucille Eiks
Precinct: Corporate Limits Town of Grimesland

There will not be a new registration of voters for said election. July 2-9-16-23

The registrar will be furnished with the registration book of the Town of Grimesland and it will be her duty to revise the registration book in such manner that said book will show an accurate list of the electors previously registered in said election precinct, and still reside therein, without requiring such electors to be re-registered anew.

If a majority of the voters voting in said election shall vote "Yes" for said proposal, then the Board of Aldermen shall be authorized to withdraw said further sum of $10,000.00 from the principal sum in the hands of Carolina Power and Light Company for the purpose aforesaid. But if a majority of the voters voting in said election shall vote "No," then said proposal is disapproved and the Board of Aldermen shall have no authority to withdraw the further sum of $10,000.00 from said principal sum for said purpose.

The registrar shall, between the hours of 9 o'clock A.M. and 5 o'clock P.M. each day, except Sunday, beginning on the 2 day of July, 1960, and ending on Saturday, the 23rd day of July, 1960, keep open said book for the registration of any new electors residing in the precinct and entitled to register, whose names have never before been registered in said precinct or do not appear in the revised list. Such book shall be open until 9 o'clock P.M. at the polling place on each Saturday during such registration period.

By order of the Board of Aldermen of the Town of Grimesland, LELA BELLE HOELL, Town Clerk of the Town of Grimesland, North Carolina July 2-9-16-23

Summer Workshop Series At ECC In Summer Term

A two-week summer music camp which opened Monday, three workshops in different educational areas and a seminar in counseling are being held in the second term of the summer school at East Carolina College.

The 7th annual music camp under the direction of Prof. Earl E. Beach, chairman of the music department at East Carolina College, has a capacity enrollment of 425 students from six states and a staff of 38 instructors. A graduate level workshop has been added for the first time in the history of this summer program here.

Underway is a Visual Arts Workshop conducted by Mrs. Marguerite V. Crenshaw of the library staff, from July 18 through July 29, meeting in the forenoon in Joyner Memorial Library auditorium.

A workshop in Family Life Skills with Dr. George A. Douglas, professor in the Social Studies department, as director, begins Monday, with daily 3-hour sessions at 2 p.m. through Friday, August 5, also meeting in the Joyner Library auditorium.

The annual workshop for kindergarten teachers begins August 1 and will continue five days through Friday, August 5, in the band room of the Whitchard Music Building. Miss Annie Mae Murray, director of the ECC kindergarten school, is conducting the workshop. Guest speakers during the workshop include Miss Patsy Montague, Miss Ruth Jewell, Miss Bobbie Pritchard, music specialist, and Mr. Homer Lassiter of the Division of Elementary Education of the State Department of Public Instruction.

Theme of the kindergarten workshop will be Problems of Early Childhood Education.

A 5-week seminar in counseling problems and supervised practice counseling under the direction of Dr. Frank G. Fuller, professor of education, continues through August 18.

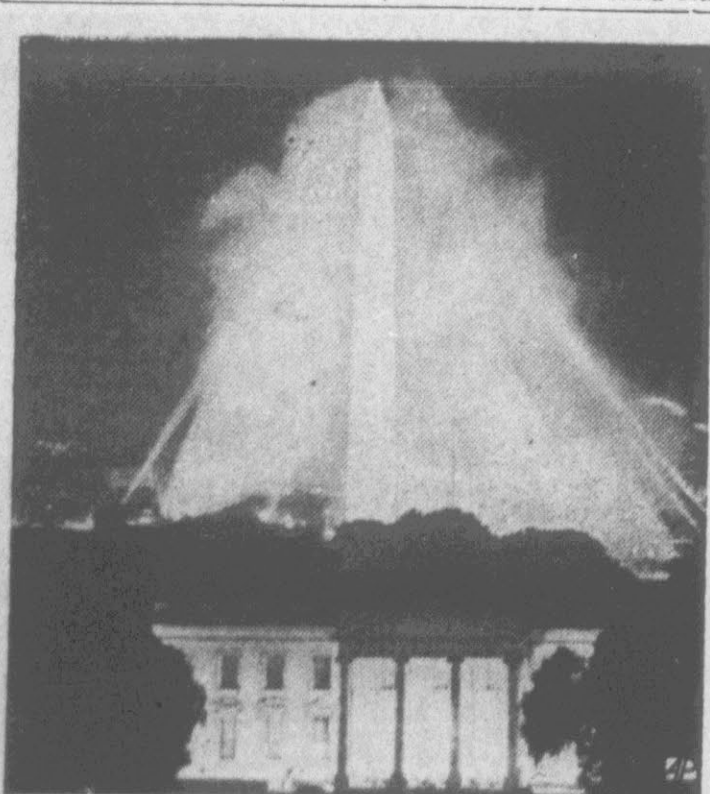

Just Checking On The Record

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Convicted bank robber Theodore (Teddy) Green, serving time in Alcatraz, has asked a Westbrook, Maine, judge for a rundown on his status there.

Municipal Court Judge Francis C. Rochelleau said Friday he got a letter from Green asking whether "any warrants or indictments are" currently pending against me." The judge said there are three indictments and two warrants on hand. All stem from a $24,000 bank robbery in the Maine town eight years ago.

Green's letters didn't indicate what he plans to do with the information. He is serving a 25-year term.

Return From Four-Day Washington Convention

Jehovah's Witnesses from the Greenville congregation have returned home after visiting the nation's capital to attend a four-day district convention, presiding minister W. R. Nichols announced today. Witnesses from 30 states and Canada gathered in Washington from July 14-17.

Attendances reached a peak in Washington's Griffith Stadium on the final day when 28,551 heard Fred W. Franz, Watchtower Society vice president, talk on "Security During War of the Great Day of God the Almighty."

The local delegation of 30 heard Franz tell his audience: "Man's means of survival could come only from a source higher than man, from someone mightier than man. . . . Only God himself can tell us what security measures will be adequate."

Franz said present nations are being gathered to the battle of Armageddon spoken of in Revelation 16:14, 16. "Their certain destruction is foretold," he said, "but those who find out what God's will is now, and do it, will have security during that battle."

A baptism of 694 persons on the morning of July 16 was another highlight of the assembly. After hearing a talk on the meaning of baptism and dedication, the candidates for immersion traveled by motorcade to a nearby swimming pool to "symbolize their dedication, thenceforth to do God's will by 'witnessing' to His name and purpose." Each resolved to devote his life to serving God.

The Washington convention, one of fourteen scheduled this summer in the United States and Canada, was operated entirely by volunteers. A total of 6000 volunteer workers, distributed among twenty-one convention departments, did everything from locating living accommodations for 15,000 visiting delegates to sweeping the stadium.

A cafeteria, set up on the stadium grounds, used over 1,000 of the volunteer workers to prepare and serve 60,000 meals during the four days.

"All of Jehovah's Witnesses in the Greenville congregation feel the assembly has given them valuable instruction and renewed their enthusiasm for the ministry," Nichols said. "Since our lives are dedicated to God's service, the most important thing we have to do right now is to help everyone we can to gain a better understanding of the Bible."

Regular meetings of the Greenville congregation are being resumed this week.

CHAPTER 20

Returning to the city from a campaign tour, Dan Callahan and Phil Stimson stopped at the Dome for the League of Women Voters Candidates' Dinner in the ballroom downstairs. Stimson used the phone to check in with the Herald office. Startled by one item related to him, he put his hand over the phone and said, "A flash from the penitentiary Dan. Norman Hart tried to commit suicide."

Callahan's jaw dropped. "He must be guilty," he blurted. "Innocent men don't do that."

Stimson raised his eyebrows. "Ever seen Death Row? You lose perspective down there pretty fast."

"Yeah, but he's going to get a new trial."

"I'll raise hell if he doesn't." "You move too fast for me, Governor. A second ago you said Hart must be guilty. So why the big push for a new trial?"

"I told you this morning, so quit needing me! If Temple isn't sure of his identification, Hart's entitled to another go in front of a jury."

"Don't shoot!" Stimson gave him a tired cryptic grin. "You and Vinquist must have really had a session this afternoon. Because you're sure been on the warpath ever since."

"The reason," Bob Vinquist said, "I wanted you to come here for supper tonight is—" he smiled down at Polly Hoffman — "well, take a guess."

"It couldn't have been," she answered, "because you wanted the pleasure of my company."

"I've broken with Dan," he said.

She drew back, wide-eyed. "You disapprove?"

"Good heavens, no!" She sat down on the terrace glider. "I just wasn't expecting it. How do you feel? No, how did it happen?"

He sat down beside her and held her hand. "It was after lunch. Dan called me into his office with a proposition about his rally tonight. Wanted me to kick in some money to start an educational fund for the little Negro boys hit on the Fourth of July."

Then it came out that Dan and Beers never had been on their way to make an arrest. I got so sore that half the time I didn't know what I was saying."

He held her hand more tightly. "Anyhow, we're washed up."

Hesitant, solicitous, Polly said, "No regrets?"

"He looked away. "Some," he admitted ruefully. "A lot of dreams have tumbled. I'd have liked being Dan's administrative assistant at the statehouse. There was a challenge, a terrific opportunity. Well, it's all kaput now."

"I wish I knew something to say to make you feel better."

"Let me let the words fade, making a place for you to fill. But that about the Fourth of July?"

"Are you going to tell the papers they weren't on their way to make an arrest?"

"Polly, I can't do that. Dan told me in confidence."

"Oh?" She tossed her head. "That seems a peculiar kind of morality."

Bridling, he said, "As I recall, your dad once told me something in confidence too. About Alex Stimson and a mistrial motion in the Hart case. I didn't go and wasn't asked to go running to the papers then. What's the difference?"

"Maybe," she said unhappily, "there isn't any. Maybe it's about time for me to admit it."

"I wish I hadn't expressed it that way. You know how much I respect your father. I don't want him to have to risk his job and his reputation. But if the Supreme Court doesn't grant Norman Hart a new trial..."

"They've just got it! Bob, I couldn't bear to see Dad lose everything he's built up over the years."

Bob clenched his fists. "Polly, my quitting today, it wasn't just that Fourth of July accident. It was an accumulation of things."

She looked toward the portable radio. "Bob, that's strange. They've stopped right in the middle of the music."

Then they heard the announcer's voice: "We interrupt this program for a bulletin. Norman Hart, convicted of the murder of his wife by a Rowton jury last spring, tried to kill himself in his cell at the state penitentiary this afternoon. The trial before Judge Samson Hoffman attracted wide attention because..."

Bob said, "My God! I wonder if your dad knows. Let's dig right over. Polly, this is terrible. For Norman Hart of course. But your dad..."

He shook his head. "We must get over there. Right away."

Smiling dispiritedly, Judge Hoffman kissed his daughter and shook hands with Bob Vinquist. Still standing, Bob said, "Sam, you've heard about Norman Hart?"

"Sit down, Bob. Polly. Yes, I've been telling Eloise that I've decided..." he hesitated, "to bring out the full story of the mistrial motion. I'm sure you can see why I have no choice."

Bob looked at Polly anxiously then said, "But the Supreme Court, Sam. They'll be handing down their decision at any time."

"Another ally, Eloise," Judge Hoffman smiled, looking at his wife.

"What I mean was," Bob said, "the people at the penitentiary will have Hart under twenty-four-hour surveillance now. He won't be able to do this again."

"Then you wouldn't agree that what I propose is this expensive word-honorable thing to do?"

"Sam is a romantic," Eloise interrupted unhappily. "Romantics are fascinated by gestures."

"No, my dear. I'm a middle-aged bureaucrat, and a tired one at that. Tired, particularly, of running away."

Polly, finding her voice said, "Dad, are you going to file a petition of some kind with the Supreme Court?"

"Yes. Yes. I suppose that's the way I'll do it. He knits his brow. "I'll tell the truth as I know it. If Alex wants to deny that truth, then I suppose that this primary resolves itself into a contest between him and me. Which man is telling the truth? People aren't going to vote for Alex—they couldn't—if they believe me. He bowed slightly to Bob but said without enthusiasm, "They'll vote for Dan. Well, he should be pleased with the development anyhow. Bob, you might suggest to him that..."

Bob said grimly, "I broke with Dan this afternoon."

Staggered, Judge Hoffman groped for words.

"I think Bob's still in a state of shock," Polly said, and gave her fiancé a warm glance. "But I'm not. I couldn't be happier. Because he's acted according to a... well... according to a principle. And Dad, what you're doing is right too. So right. It isn't that Mother, that we, are really against it. You know that. It's just that..."

Now Judge Hoffman found the heart to smile. By George, she was determined to straighten out the bumbling old duffer who happened to be her father. Grateful in spite of his amusement, he turned to his future son-in-law.

"Well, Bob, I hardly know what to say, but it sounds as if I should be congratulating you."

"I'm through as an assistant district attorney."

"I see," Judge Hoffman regarded Bob's somber, frowning face. He said, "I hardly know how to express this next thought, but Bob, I must—of this I am sure—carry out the decision I've made tonight. I would say it makes Dan's victory almost certain. For I can't imagine the public believing I would lie about something so fundamental as when he wins and I hope you can appreciate why his not winning would be a personal disaster for me—it will be in part my doing. As a result, you may feel a certain resentment toward me. I deeply regret putting our relationship under such a strain."

"There won't be any strain." With an air of earnestness, Bob added, "I'm a lot more interested in having you believed than I am in having Dan lose."

They were two among 1,000 or so, listening to Henry Wilkinson who used to be mayor of this one-time capital of Rhode Island. In the background was the Newport County courthouse and just across the way was the historic State House, now a museum.

Ranks Communism 3rd In U.S. Problems List

BLUE RIDGE, N.C. (AP)—Director George V. Allen of the U.S. Information Agency says communism may be the most acute problem faced by the free world, but he puts it third on the list of long-range problems.

He puts inequality and international order ahead of communism in his list of problems.

"If communism disappeared in the ground tomorrow, and I wish it would, we would still have these problems," Allen told the Southeastern World Affairs Institute here Friday night.

He cited three fields of inequality—racial, colonial and economic—as problems.

As for international order, Allen said, "Man is just as primitive as the day he came out of the jungle. Nations are just as primitive as animals."

Today's program at this seventh annual institute includes a debate by representatives of the Republican and Democratic parties on which party offers the best hope for peace.

Gov. Luther Hedges of North Carolina also will address the institute, and will present the American Freedom Foundation World Peace Award for 1960 to Dr. Arthur Larson, director of the World Rule of Law Center at Duke University.

Another speaker Friday night, Helmut Sonnenfeldt, a State Department intelligence and research specialist, said the United States seeks "a world where law prevails and force is controlled internationally."

Sonnenfeldt listed these three reasons why Russia should be interested in disarmament:

(1) The danger of nuclear war "and its very great potential for destruction on both sides."

(2) "They are interested in finding ways in which a chance of accidental, unwanted war might be prevented."

(3) "If the Soviet leaders thought they could get the West to reduce armaments, they might be willing to lose a little of their own. They would like to see the 'free' world's umbrella America has spread over much of the free world reduced."

Honoree Touched By 'Gracious Incident'

The former mayor, kindly Mr. Wilkinson, was talking—and the ruddy-faced man and his wife eased to the edge of their chairs, the better to hear.

Mr. Wilkinson was noting that the small park in Washington Square—right where all this was going on—was being named for an important man. For many years the park had simply been called The Mall. Now that was being changed. And Mr. Wilkinson was telling why.

He was saying that this nation's first president, George Washington, was known as first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen.

And he was saying, too, that the important man being honored Friday afternoon—the man after whom the park was being named—also is, in a modern way, "first and foremost" in peace and in the hearts of his countrymen.

When Mr. Wilkinson said that, the ruddy-faced man shifted his feet and listened solemnly. The man's wife, wearing a little white hat and a black and white checkered dress looked intently at Mr. Wilkinson. She seemed mighty proud.

Then the important man got up—the man for whom they were naming the park. The crowd applauded. He smiled a big smile. And then he said:

"I am deeply touched by this kind of gracious incident and thought."

He went on to say something about having a "rather long and unusual name," and he wondered whether future generations would wonder why in the world the little park has been named for him.

The wonderful thing about it all, he said, was that in this land of liberty, Newport folks years from now could change the name of the park if they decided they didn't like it—or got just plain tired of it. He seemed to be implying that in some places outside of this country folks don't have that kind of freedom.

A moment later the ruddy-faced man and his wife—Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of the United States, and his wife, Mamie, drove off.

Reject Appeal Of School Decision

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—The Chapel Hill School Board has rejected an appeal from an earlier decision denying the requests for transfer of five Negro children to an all-white junior high school.

The action, taken Friday night, was approved by a 3-1 vote. The Rev. R. J. Manley, only Negro member of the board, voted to permit the transfers.

The five requests were among nine rejected by the board last month. At that meeting, the board approved applications of three Negro children for assignment to the first grade of an all-white school.

Red-Faced, But 'Crime' Solved

RICHMOND, Ky. (AP)—A local television shop has a red face and Jewel Thorpe has a new antenna.

Thorpe reported last week someone removed his rooftop antenna while he was out.

Now the TV shop says it solved the case. It sent its men on an order to move an antenna. They got the right house number—on the wrong street.

Business Notes

Appointed Chairman

Announcement of the appointment of Walter E. Lewis of the Carolina Dry Cleaners at 111 W. Tenth St. as chairman of the Pitt County Chapter of the National Federation of Independent Business was made today by C. H. Thompson, district manager of the federation in this area.

Each business and professional man member of this organization maintains a voting membership and is polled by ballots regularly throughout the year on bills and issues that affect independent enterprise at the national and state levels.

In an effort to do everything possible to maintain the American way of life and keep a free competitive system of business, the businessmen express their own personal opinions on the ballots each month and turn them over to Lewis, who makes tabulations of the total number and the manner in which they voted.

These tabulations are sent, with the underlying ballots, directly to the desk of Congressman Herbert C. Bonner at Washington, D. C. and to State Senator Robert L. Humber.

Based on the 19th annual farm lending summary of the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association, Marston reported that "at the beginning of the year, North Carolina bankers were supplying farmers with 48 percent of the production credit provided by institutional lenders."

"Total bank credit to the state's farmers stood at $85 million, 14 percent more than a year previous. The total included $43 million in production loans and $42 million in farm mortgages. At the same time, $36 million in farm loans were held by insurance companies; $48 million by Federal Land Banks; $37 million by Production Credit Associations; and $36 million by the Farmers Home Administration."

UNDER RED TUTORS
JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—At least 60 Indonesian students will study in the Soviet Union and Poland next fall under a cultural exchange with the two Communist nations. Fifty Indonesian students will be sent to the Soviet Union for three to six years of study.

Larger than Nevada, Utah and Idaho combined, Chile covers 288,000 square miles.
