Elevator Dust Complaint Tabled By Council After Lengthy Hearing

Operator Assures Corrective Action Being Taken To Remedy Situation

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor

City councilmen last night tabled a complaint against Fred Webb Inc. Grain Elevator after Webb assured the council that he was taking action to correct the alleged dust problem in North Greenville.

The action was taken after a group of citizens from North Greenville had presented a petition to the council protesting the dust problem said to be created by the grain elevator. It also followed a talk by Webb seldom equaled in eloquence within the council chambers.

"I'd rather see that elevator go into orbit than to be guilty of continued molestation of some neighbor of mine," Webb told the council and citizens attending last night's meeting.

Webb said he was "most proud" of the grain elevator. He pointed out he did not "fall heir to it by reason of inheritance" but obtained it through hard work.

He described it as modern. Not only does it serve the 2,000 farmers of Pitt County, he continued, but it has "brought people to Greenville from 75 of the 100 counties in North Carolina."

Webb told the group the elevator represented an investment of more than a quarter million dollars, the weekly payroll is in excess of $1,000 and the elevator paid out $5,000,000 last year to farmers and dealers in grain.

He told the councilmen, "You are entitled to the facts over and above what you have read in the press, over and above what you have heard, over and above even what you have seen on one particular day."

The elevator operator said that when he came to Greenville he became associated with a grain mill that blew shucks and was a nuisance.

"I did something about it," he declared. "When I got my hands on $4,000 I built an incinerator. From that day forward I haven't heard from one citizen about the problem," he declared.

He said he did receive one call from the city manager saying that he had had complaints about it and a letter from the city.

"I did not consider one call from an intermediary anything to get upset about," he continued.

There was "not one complaint from my friends in Meadowbrook," he continued.

"If there had been, gentlemen, Fred Webb doesn't operate that way. Fred Webb would have done something about it."

He described an incident of last Wednesday as "one exception."

Webb said he was out of town that day and an assistant supervisor carried on a corn cleaning operation improperly.

"It was an error in judgment and one I'm terribly sorry about," he stated.

Webb listed seven steps which he said he took immediately concerning the problem. Among them were suspending of the operation involved and sending a two-page telegram to the city manager.

On returning to Greenville, Webb continued, he called the Day Co. in Minneapolis, Minn. asking that they send a representative to study the problem. He pointed out that this firm installed the dust collector for the New York Park Authority Grain Terminal.

He said he offered to reimburse the individuals who might have suffered damage from last Wednesday's dust problem.

Webb also presented a petition which stated: "We do not consider the operation of the Fred Webb, Inc. Grain Elevator in any way to be a health hazard, nor do we feel that our business or property has been adversely affected."

"Rather we feel that the grain elevator is an asset to our good farmers in Pitt County and anything that is an asset to them is good for the City of Greenville."

He told the council the petition was signed by 85 persons and he had seen individuals and businesses on all sides of the elevator.

Urges Different Procedure Webb told the group that he hoped "some good will come out of this situation."

"I hope we will refrain from public censure of any citizen until every possible resort is taken that could be taken short of public censure."

He advocated settling such problems in the "traditional and conventional" way. That is, by sitting down around a conference table.

"There are going to be other incidents of two different factions in Greenville," he declared. "Could we not apply the conventional means?"

He urged the council to appoint "a member of your board to sit behind closed doors" to discuss such problems as they arise.

Wooten Elected Chairman Of County Welfare Board

The Pitt County Welfare Board last night welcomed a new member and elected Woodrow W. Wooten chairman of the board.

Succeeding former chairman Vernon Cox as a board member was Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, whose appointment by the State Board of Public Welfare became effective July 1.

Dr. Jenkins, East Carolina College president, joins Wooten and Roscoe Everett of Bethel on the Pitt board.

The board unanimously appointed a routine list of public assistance grants submitted by Welfare Supt. J.S. Grimes III.

Casework Supervisor Upon a recommendation by

Adopted

Greenville's $87,216.07 1960-61 fiscal year budget was officially adopted by the City Council at last night's special meeting.

The budget holds the tax line at $1.38 per hundred dollar valuation for the coming year, the same tax rate as last year.

The tentative budget had been adopted earlier by the councilmen and had remained open for inspection. No changes were made in the tentative budget last night as the councilmen finally approved it.

This year's spending program is another record breaker.

Supt. Grimes, the board unanimously recommended the Board of Pitt County Commissioners be requested to transfer funds within the welfare budget to hire a casework supervisor.

Already earmarked for that purpose is a total of $4,800, but Grimes indicated the cost of such an employe, "who is needed very badly here," would be at least $6,000. The transfer to be requested of the commissioners Monday will be the remaining $1,200.

The board agreed to allow caseworker Paul Hawkins a seven-day leave of absence to utilize a scholarship granted him by McMaster University in Ontario, Canada.

During his leave, Hawkins will attend a school of studies on the problems of alcoholism at McMaster.

Grimes reported the welfare budget for the new fiscal year included: No salary increases, no new positions created, an overall decrease in administrative costs, and "normal and nominal" increases in public assistance grants.

He added the annual welfare budget, including county, state, and federal funds, approximates one million dollars. He pointed out the administrative cost is slightly less than 10 per cent of the total budget.

Pitt County Social Security Consultant W.K. Whichard reported on the nature of the county's Social Security Program, on his own for the first time this budget year.

Declares Sub In Gulf Of Mexico

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—"I saw a submarine and I'm scared," says John E. Daisey of Morgan City, La., a shrimp boat captain whose report has spurred a Navy investigation.

Daisey told authorities he and two crewmen aboard the shrimp boat Linda Mae spotted the sub about dawn Wednesday near Aransas Pass, Tex., in the Gulf of Mexico.

A Navy spokesman at New Orleans said: "We are not admitting such a submarine exists. However, we are following our regular investigative procedures."

Daisey, interviewed at his Morgan City home by telephone, said he was on deck when the "big, dark green" sub with no markings came out of the early morning mist about a mile away, "heading right toward us."

He said he called his brother, Julius, and Gene Wilson to have a look. Both confirmed seeing it. "I know it was a sub because I could see the conning tower and the periscope," Daisey said. "It was about 210 to 220 feet long and a deep, dark green."

"We passed within a half mile of each other. I saw either one man and gun on the deck, or two men."

"She suddenly increased speed to about 18 knots and started to dive. It started to go down and it went very quickly right in front of our eyes."

Keep Morton As GOP Chairman

CHICAGO (AP)—Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky was unanimously re-elected chairman of the Republican National Committee today.

Morton's re-election was recommended by a special committee which had conferred with Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The committee, headed by the Mered Alcorn of Connecticut, re-elected Nixon, GOP presidential nominee, and President Eisenhower favored retention of Morton.

Lake Disclaims Knowledge Of Write-In Plan; Backs Ticket

RALEIGH (AP)—Dr. I. Beverly Lake says he "shall vote for the Democratic nominees"—presumably including Terry Sanford—in the November general election, and disclaims any knowledge of or part in a movement to run him as a write-in candidate for governor of North Carolina.

Dr. Lake, staunch segregationist defeated by Sanford in a bitter run-off primary June 25 for the Democratic nomination for governor, declared in a statement Thursday he intends to keep the pledge he was required by law to sign before the primary.

That pledge is a promise to abide by the primary's results, support the party's nominees in November, and not to run as a write-in candidate.

Lake said he had no knowledge of the organization set up to boost him as a write-in candidate and would give it no support.

Boyce Hanna of Shelby, director of publicity for the North Carolina Committee for Honest Leadership, announced Thursday the start of a campaign for Lake. Hanna said headquarters were set up in Raleigh and that other offices would be opened throughout the state.

He said the movement was touched off by Sanford's endorsement of Massachusetts Sen. John F. Kennedy as the party's nominee for president. Most of the state's delegation supported Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas.

"One reason for our organization," said Hanna, "is to stop the flood of Democrats who have expressed their intention of voting for and working for the Republican nominee." Robert L. Gavin, Hanna acknowledged that Lake and his key advisors would honor the pledge to support Sanford, but declared the campaign for write-ins would continue nonetheless. He added that the committee's legal advisors had given a go-ahead despite the pledge.

In a long statement, Lake said he had rebuffed other suggestions that he offer as a write-in candidate. Asked by a newsmen if he would serve if elected, he declined to make "any off-the-cuff remarks in addition to my statement."

Lake ran in the first primary May 28 and in the runoff as a strong segregationist. He promised, if elected, to create a climate of public opinion against racial integration, and also to fight the operations of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Sanford decried this approach as extreme and plugged for improvements in education, industry and agriculture. In the runoff he defeated Lake by 352,133 votes to 275,905.

The Wake County Young Democratic Club, meeting Thursday night in Raleigh, went on record as condemning and deploring the write-in movement.

Nixon Pledges Building Of A Better, Strong America

CHICAGO (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon left the triumph of convention hurrahs behind him today to plunge into a back-breaking presidential campaign he views as a turning point in history.

To the roaring acclaim of the expiring GOP convention, Nixon Thursday night accepted in what he called "the greatest moment of my life" the republican presidential nomination.

He pledged, if elected, to "build a better America" that "will not tolerate being pushed about by anybody, any place."

He welcomed aboard his "free world victory" ticket as a vice-presidential running mate towering Henry Cabot Lodge, United Nations ambassador and symbol of American resistance to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's challenge to the free world.

He promised in the campaign, and if elected president, to "tell the people not what they want to hear, but what they need to hear."

With his credo for the campaign laid down in a 50-minute acceptance address before a wildly cheering convention, the Republican presidential nominee plunged immediately into the practical business of showing up Republican unity and pepping up the party workers.

He arranged to address the newly constituted GOP National Committee where his support was more solid than perhaps any other Republican candidate had been able to command in this century.

This over, Nixon planned to meet the press for the first time as the party nominee.

The vice president reserved the afternoon for meetings with party leaders. He had to postpone many of these earlier in the week in a combined effort with his back-patting New ally, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, for the kind of liberalized platform the two men wanted and got.

Not all of the state-by-state reports to Nixon and his associates carried good news for the drive he launched against Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the Democratic presidential nominee.

Midwestern leaders, many of them disappointed because a man from their section was not chosen to run for vice president, were said to have been more pessimistic about GOP chances in November than those from some other sections.

In Ohio and Michigan Republican leaders were reported hopeful of beating the Democrats. Illinois was tabbed as a touch-and-go state, as were some others in the Midwest.

Southern delegates got over their first flush of anger at the adoption of a stronger civil rights plank than they liked. They reported some revived optimism about Nixon's chances of carrying some Southern states.

In New England, the optimism was tempered by Nixon's own estimate that Kennedy is stronger than he.

As for the Pacific Coast, Nixon will carry on there next week—after a weekend meeting here with farm organization leaders—the campaign that he said began with his acceptance speech.

In his often-applauded acceptance speech, Nixon called for what he labeled "a strategy of victory for the free world." This was his answer to the "new frontier" slogan laid down by Kennedy in his acceptance speech in Los Angeles two weeks ago.

Kennedy said that what he was proposing was not a set of promises but a set of challenges.

In a similar vein, Nixon said that the next president "must develop a brand-new strategy which will win the battle for freedom for all men and win it without a war."

"That is the great task of the president of the United States," he said. "And this will be a difficult task, difficult at times because our next president must tell the people not what they want to hear but what they need to hear."

Nixon described the Democratic party platform as "the same old proposition that a political party should be all things to all men, and nothing more than that."

"They promised everything to everybody with one exception: they didn't promise to pay the bill," Nixon said.

"It happen to believe," Nixon continued, "that their program would be disastrous for America, it would wreck our economy, it would dash our people's high hopes for a better life."

School Board Okays Bid On Additions At Elmhurst

The Greenville Board of Education yesterday confirmed the low bid of Northside Lumber Co. as contractors for additions on Elmhurst School and ordered that the Trainable School operate during the next school year.

Superintendent J. H. Rose reported to the committee which was appointed to secure bids on the additions to Elmhurst School. Bids were as follows: Northside Lumber Co., $2,241; Pete West, $2,300; and Leo Hawkins, $2,414.

In its action on the Trainable School operation, the board heard the recommendation of Rose that the school continue, and ordered that it operate during the school year 1960-61.

In other action at the board's monthly meeting, Rose showed preliminary sketches drawn by J. W. Griffith for the cafeteria of W. C. Eppe School. This sketch shows the proposed cafeteria to be built on the west side of the gymnasium and adjoining the gymnasium.

The board passed a resolution expressing appreciation to the Taft Furniture Co., Dr. Ray Minges, the Greenville Tobacco Co. and the Person-Garrett Tobacco Co. for the four scholarships which they gave at the recent commencement to graduates of this year's C. M. Eppe class.

Rose said the scholarships will be awarded during the month of August and announced at that time.

The following school calendar was approved for 1960-61 for the Greenville City Schools:

Teachers will begin work August 29, with children reporting on the morning of August 30. The 180-day school year actually begins August 31.

Holidays will include Labor Day, Sept. 5; N.C.E.A. meeting, October 11; Thanksgiving holidays, November 24 and 25, with school being held on Wednesday, November 23. The Christmas holidays will begin with the closing of a regular school day on Tuesday, December 30, and will continue until January 3, 1961. Easter holidays will begin at 12 noon on Good Friday, March 31, and will include Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 3-5.

Schools will close Wednesday, May 31. Report cards are to be issued one week after the end of the marking period, unless it falls on a Friday. In that case they will be given out on the following Monday.

Another resolution was passed making the 24th of each month the "pay day for employees of the city schools, as has been the practice in previous years.

In other business, the board elected nine new teachers in the schools. Rose reported that the N. C. State Highway Commission has agreed to black-top the drive at Third Street School and that the city will put in the curb and gutter of the drive. The School Board would pay the city for this service, Rose said.

The school children's accident insurance was awarded to the Pilot Life Insurance Co. through Godson and Flanagan, as it was last year. Charles Horne was employed to install additional electrical outlets and an additional panel box at Elmhurst School.

It was moved and passed unanimously that thanks of the Greenville City Board of Education go to TV Station WNGT for carrying the science program for the school children of Greenville and eastern North Carolina.

Authorities Hold Suspect In Slaying

MAN SHOT TO DEATH LAST NIGHT . . . Deputy Duke Andrews and Coroner Withers Harvey talk with suspect.

Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey said today that a 42-year-old Roper, N. C. Negro is being held in the Pitt County Jail as investigation into the killing of a second Negro at Bruce early this morning continues.

Delma Wilkins, 42, of Route 1, Roper, is being held in the death of Wilbert Tredwell, also of Route 1, Roper.

Harvey said he received a call about 3:40 a.m. from Constable Frank Peaden reporting the killing. The coroner said that Tredwell was found in a building at Green Wreath Park at Bruce. Both Tredwell and Wilkins were migrant tobacco workers and were sleeping in the structure, Harvey said.

Taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff Duke Andrews and Gerald Davis, Wilkins at first admitted the shooting but later denied he shot Tredwell.

Harvey quoted Wilkins as saying Tredwell hit him (Wilkins) on the head with a piece of wood and knocked him "out." Harvey continued quoting Wilkins by saying Wilkins told officers after their arrival, "I am still out."

Two projectiles from the .22 caliber pistol, which is believed to be the gun used to shoot Tredwell, were found in the woodwork of the building kitchen. The weapon was found on the floor beside the victim.

The two men were working for W. A. Eastwood on the T. M. Moore farm, officers said. They added that Wilkins went to the Eastwood residence and reported the killing to him. He, in turn, notified Constable Peaden.

NEW YORK (AP)—Arkady Sobolev, the Soviet Union's permanent representative to the United Nations, today called Henry Cabot Lodge, his frequent adversary, "a good man."

Sobolev, who left by plane for the Soviet Union, was asked at Idlewild Airport for comment on the nomination of Lodge, U.S. ambassador to the U.N., as the Republican candidate for vice president.

After he smilingly said that Lodge is "a good man," Sobolev was asked if he would miss him at the U.N.

Sobolev said the United States probably would have "another good man" to replace Lodge.

Fresh Corn Available Now And In August

RALEIGH—July and August are the peak supply months for fresh corn in the Tar Heel State. Corn is now plentiful and attractively priced.

Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, advises homemakers to buy corn from a reliable source—direct from a roadside stand or from a retail store where corn is kept cool. Sweet corn loses quality quickly if it is not properly handled.

The sugar content of picked corn may be reduced 50 per cent in just 24 hours of warm summertime temperatures. The golden rule for sweet corn is to keep corn cool. Mrs. Uzzle says you should always be alert to signs of quality. The kernels should be plump, full of milky juice, firm but not hard. The cob should be full of kernels, free from bruises and insect injury. Husks appear fresh, tightly wound around the cob and silks should be dark brown.

In caring for your corn, be sure to cook it immediately or refrigerate it. Store in the husks or in a moisture proof bag to keep it from drying out.

Enjoy Family Living—Learn Safety Habits

By MAIDRED MORRIS

Accidents in the farm home kill more than 2,700 and injure nearly 400,000 farm residents each year. During National Farm Safety Week, July 24-30, homemakers are urged to enjoy family living by practicing safety.

About three farm families out of four enjoy an accident-free year. The one family in four suffers the deaths and serious injuries from farm, home, and highway accidents. But being one of the "happy-three" does not guarantee the next year will be accident-free.

Safety measures should be practiced everywhere all the time. Safety incorporates every area of activity for every member of the family unit.

The housewife and mother must be keenly aware of this as the person operating the combine. The hazards of fires, scaldings, electrical shock, falls from climbing, care of infants or small children are as real and as damaging as an injury received from the whirling snare of a power-take-off. The innocent, routine chore of burning paper can be instantly transformed into a nightmare of flaming clothing and months of inactivity and excruciating pain. The playful adventure of a child chasing its duck or testing the strength of ice on a pond can become the scene of horror and tragedy through drowning.

Homemakers should eliminate hazards as they find them before accidents happen. Matches should be kept in closed containers and dust cloths and oily rags should be stored in metal containers. When cooking the handles of all pots and pans should not stick out over the stove but should be turned in. This prevents children from pulling the pans of cooking food over on them or from someone walking near the stove and knocking it off. Always provide screens for fireplaces and never pour oil on live coals. Check frayed electric cords and repair or replace.

Label all medicines, sprays, and poisons and store out of the reach of children.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
 We had occasion to visit the local Negro library this week to contribute a few of our old books to its shelves. We'll have to admit that we were surprised and dismayed at its dilapidated and ramshackle appearance, since we hadn't been there before—on an unpaved street, in an old and broken-down building, truly a "library" in name only. Despite its condition, it performs a real and important service to many people. Presided over by a very pleasant and knowledgeable librarian, its book circulation was approximately 20,000 during the past year and its use by students and others was extensive. We were glad to learn that the local bond issue, soon coming up for a vote, will include adequate funds for a new, modern library building that we now know is desperately needed—so we hope you'll get out there and vote for it, and eliminate a condition in our city that certainly isn't very conducive to the good reading and love of books that we all want everyone to have a share in.

On Morality
 There's still hope for a country that's willing to criticize itself—which is one reason why we're not very enthusiastic about the political party which just finished its convention, since it seems neither to want or to be able to take criticism of any kind—a sign of weakness as far as we're concerned. Anyway, many books and articles have been coming out lately expressing concern about prevalent moral standards. The newest book we know of is THE OPERATORS, by Frank Gibney, an account of graft, corruption and dishonesty in all walks of American life. Mr. Gibney doesn't just scold us—he's also very worried about the future bad effects of a sort of mass dishonesty that is sweeping the country. . . . His thesis, he writes, is "that our national future is being mishapen . . . by the two-bit chiseler padding his outside expense account, by the corporate dodger who writes off his yacht as a business expense, and the influence peddler who tampers with legislation. . . . And along the same lines is MEN OF GOOD INTENTIONS, a book by Blair Bolles that is coming out in August, discussing corruption in the federal government and its effect on honest presidents down through history—something that ought to make us do some thinking in this presidential year—after all, if the presidents couldn't stay straight, who can? . . .

Marriage and College
 Our good wife has just received her Agnes Scott Alumnae—that spelling is correct—Magazine, and it's as full of good stuff as any periodical of the same type that we've seen. Featured is an article by Margaret Mead, famed anthropologist, who writes on the question, "Is College Compatible With Marriage?" Her answer is "No," and she gives some pretty cogent reasons for her opinion—reasons that are significant for any college student—or high school student, around these parts—and their parents. In college, she says, the scholar should be isolated from the worries of domesticity and social conformity—into which marriage plunges him at an early age. By marrying early, young people doom themselves to "premature imprisonment," sometimes without realizing it, before they have had a chance to really explore their minds independently, without the distractions and obligations that marriage brings. Many folks—especially young married students—won't agree with Dr. Mead, but we'll have to say that she's pretty convincing, and her remarks certainly are worth thinking about. . . . On the other side of the coin is a new book coming out in August, entitled THE LOVE INVESTIGATOR, by Ernest Gebler. It's a novel about a young professor who tries to establish a Professorship of Connubial Love.

Local Scene
 For the first time as a summer project, the East Carolina College Playhouse will present a full-length play, a farce comedy called SEE HOW THEY RUN. It's scheduled for production on two nights—Wednesday, August 10, and Monday, the 15th—and the public will be admitted, in fact welcome. Dr. Joe Withey, faculty director of the Playhouse, informs us that the comedy will be terrific—light, airy, funny. Curtain for both shows will be at eight, in Austin Auditorium. . . . The management of one of our most active local book emporia has recently changed, as many of you have no doubt noted—we can't think of a more appropriate person to run a bookstore than a librarian's wife, and we want to wish Mrs. Elva Smiley good luck on the new venture and hope more and more people will be buying—and reading—more and more books, preferably good ones. . . . A good movie will be coming to the local cinema beginning August 8: THE RAT RACE, based on the successful comedy about ambitious New Yorkers by Garson Kanin, and starring Tony Curtis. . . .

Likens Cause To Marxist Revolt
 HAVANA (AP)—Cuba's left-wing economic czar, National Bank President Ernesto Guevara, today likened Cuba's struggle to a Marxist revolution. He denounced the government of his native Argentina for urging Fidel Castro's regime to reject Soviet meddling in the Western Hemisphere. Guevara, a soldier of fortune and confidant of Prime Minister Fidel Castro, spoke after midnight at the opening session of the Communist-accented Latin American Youth Congress.

Rouse Presides At 2-Day Meet

MOREHEAD CITY—Fifth Solicitorial District Solicitor Robert D. Rouse Jr. of Farmville is presiding over the N. C. District Solicitors meeting that convened here today for a two-day session. Gathered here are district solicitors and other court officials from throughout North Carolina. The meeting site is the Morehead-Biltmore Hotel.

Rouse said today two main features highlight the planned program. Sometime today, he said, a study of the duties and authorities of a district solicitor will be presented to the meeting.

The study was prepared by the Institute of Government in cooperation with a special committee, headed by Roy Hall, assistant director of the institute at Chapel Hill.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.
 Temperatures for the next five days will average near normal. Cool Saturday, otherwise little day to day change. Rain Saturday, scattered showers again Tuesday and Wednesday will average one to three inches.

says William R. Phelps Sr. of Greenville.

He's talking about his recently-ended bout with tuberculosis, from which he emerged victorious, and the fellow patients he met in three different Tar Heel sanitoriums during the past 20 years.

Two weeks ago, Phelps came back to his home on Fairfax Ave. here from McCain Sanatorium near Aberdeen. After a rugged battle with the vicious tubercle bacillus, he is completely cured.

Though the local radio-television businessman was not confined to sanitoriums for the entire 20 years, he feels he spent his share of time in isolation from society.

It all began back in 1939 when Phelps was a Hertford County farmer with a wife and six children. A native of Bertie County, he had moved and settled on a tobacco farm three miles from Ahsokie.

He had no idea the dread respiratory disease would strike him down and re-plan his future for him. But, that very year, 1939, he was whisked away at the state sanatorium at McCain.

Sanatorium officials there admitted Phelps and began treatment; however, they soon told him there was nothing more they could do and he returned home.

After his first nine months of sanatorium care, Phelps was obliged to remain in bed for an additional year and a half.

At that point, in 1942, he became the first rehabilitation patient in the field of radio in North Carolina. His physical condition was sub-par for farming and he was forced to make some sort of professional change.

The training, provided by the department of vocational rehabilitation, took hold with Phelps and he became an expert radio repairman.

In 1945, apparently a healthy man again, he began his business in Greenville. He had come to Greenville to make himself available for the training in his newly-chosen field. The business is still flourishing here under the name of Phelps Radio and TV Service.

With his case of tuberculosis in the "arrested" state, Phelps' new business began to grow. He and his sons worked long, hard hours and the technical business was prosperous.

Years passed merrily and then, on June 4, 1957, the ruthless disease struck a new and more severe blow. Phelps, in severe pain and hemorrhaging, was again admitted to a sanatorium. This time it was Eastern Sanatorium at Wilson.

Here he underwent treatment for his reactivated case for more than a year when doctors began to realize the chemotherapy administered was making little progress.

Phelps had become virtually immune to the drugs and was far from cured. The drugs, doctors said, held the disease in check but could make no gains against it.

So, in September, 1958, Phelps was transferred to Gravelly Sanatorium in Chapel Hill for a different plan of attack—surgery.

Doctors explained to the Greenville man he could have "about a 50-50 chance," Phelps remembers. With a burning desire to win his battle, he asked the doctors to proceed.

The operation, termed thoracoplasty, involved removal of ribs in order to collapse the diseased portion of Phelps' right lung.

Following the surgery, Phelps' family was called to Chapel Hill with the news that he was "critically ill." In fact, he was very near death, but his will to live won another round for him.

Three days after the first phone call, the Phelps family in Greenville received another phone call. Expecting the worst, Mrs. Phelps answered the phone. It was her husband.

Phelps left Gravelly and returned to Eastern in February, 1959, "to rest up after that operation." He returned to Gravelly in July that year for tests that proved satisfactory.

But the battle was not yet over for Phelps. He needed further surgery but doctors refused to operate because of his physical condition. His oxygen intake was insufficient to endure another surgical ordeal.

Still he hoped, he concentrated on how he could "pass that oxygen intake test."

He requested a transfer to McCain Sanatorium and there passed the test. The doctors there agreed to operate and in March of this year, Phelps had the entire upper lobe of his right lung removed.

With that operation at McCain, his infection was gone. His recuperation came along rapidly and two weeks ago he returned home a cured man.

His 20-year battle was over and he had won.

Stayed Busy
 Probably foremost among the reasons Phelps won the life-sapping struggle was his accepting the fact the dread disease had stricken him and only time, patience, and the will to win would overcome tuberculosis.

His desire to live led him to as much activity within the sanatorium as could be allowed. While at McCain, he began to repair radios for patients.

His "business" grew and soon he was repairing sets for doctors and nurses as well as for fellow patients. Some of the townspeople heard about his work and began to patronize him. He had built up another thriving "business."

Phelps believes his staying busy automatically gave him something to look forward to every morning and actually was instrumental in his complete recovery.

Some patients, however, were not so fortunate, Phelps says. He remembers talking with many patients who "would not let themselves believe they had TB."

"There is a lot of that feeling among the patients that TB makes people undesirable," Phelps points out. "We're all still people."

He says he is aware of the fact that "many people on the outside are a little bit shy" about social contact with persons who have "had their go with tuberculosis."

Actually, those persons he refers to need not fear cured TB victims since they are never, under any circumstances, released into society until they are completely cured.

can and does strike anybody anywhere." He says he is aware of the fact that "many people on the outside are a little bit shy" about social contact with persons who have "had their go with tuberculosis."

Actually, those persons he refers to need not fear cured TB victims since they are never, under any circumstances, released into society until they are completely cured.

The real danger comes from those victims who are unaware of the disease's presence and whose cases have not been discovered through vigorous case-finding practices.

Phelps, whose courageous fight has now ended happily, is not a feeble recovered patient. He rebels against the very idea and plans to enjoy his life "from now on like I always have."

He plans to visit his friends in the sanitoriums as often as possible. He also plans to "help the boys with the business."

The father of six and grand-father of 11 has certainly lost something during the long, hard struggle with tuberculosis; but he feels he has also gained.

Recommend More Help To Medically Indigent

RALEIGH (AP)—The Governor's Conference on Aging ended today after presentation of a recommendation that the state increase its aid to medically indigent oldsters.

The recommendation was contained in a report of one of eight workshop groups which met Thursday to discuss various problems connected with care of the aged.

Before closing its session, the delegates heard an address by Dr. Harold J. Dudley, general secretary of the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina. He discussed "Age Is a State of Mind."

The workshop group recommended that the state boost its payments to public assistance recipients from $1.75 to $3.50 a day. Under county and federal matching formulas, the group said, this would permit an average hospitalization payment of $20 a day.

Another recommendation called for a boost from $1.50 to $10 a day the State Medical Care Commission's payment for the medically indigent.

The featured speaker Thursday night was Miss Chloe Gifford, immediate past president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

She criticized what she called hiring discrimination and forced retirement being inflicted on aged citizens. Stressing that medical science has increased the life span, she asked:

"Why should we live longer and not be permitted to lead an active life?"

She suggested that a system of scientific testing be devised to determine when an individual's work load should be lessened.

Miss Gifford, a member of the national advisory committee to the White House Conference on Aging, said many of the nation's top leaders make contributions after they attain the age of 60.

According to the ABC officers, a 10-year-old boy was stopped near Williams' residence yesterday with a half-gallon of illegal spirits and told officers he was delivering the booze for "Will Dog." Williams later told officers he was selling the non-taxed whiskey for $4 per half-gallon jar.

He was released under a $200 bond for appearance in Greenville Recorders Court, Monday.

The Candidates Have Been Chosen

National political tickets of Kennedy and Johnson versus Nixon and Lodge in the battle for the administrative branch of the federal government leave no doubt that 1960 will see one of the most spirited and perhaps one of the most bitter in recent decades.

Both Sen. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee, and Vice President Nixon, the Republican nominee, have proved themselves shrewd politicians and effective speakers with no hesitancy about calling a spade a spade in discussing the problems which face this nation.

The vice-presidential nominees, Johnson and Lodge, likewise are experienced in high-level party politics, they are vigorous campaigners and they possess the ability to command the attention of people when they speak.

Behind the candidates stand the party organizations which this year have the appearance of being better prepared for a difficult campaign than has been the case in other national election years. The fact that both the Democratic and Republican parties chose their candidates on the first ballot indicates an unusual degree of unanimity on the part of various factions of the respective parties in deciding who would be the standard bearer.

In the case of the Republicans, they have had months prior to the convention to make preparations for the campaign because the choice of the GOP was settled long before the convention opened in Chicago.

While Kennedy's nomination by the Democrats was not as certain as that of Nixon by the Republicans, the detailed organization which swept Kennedy to the nomination surely had been projected to the campaign period which would follow.

Each of the candidates on both tickets has a dedicated personal following that will be felt during the campaign. Each of the tickets is a combination which will attract many voters from the ranks of independents throughout the country. And each of the parties is geared to cope with what is expected to be a no-holds-barred battle between young and spirited aspirants for the highest offices in the land.

The respective parties have chosen their candidates and while neither picked a ticket that was the first choice of all its members, each has picked a combination that will bring the issues forcefully to the people. It promises to be a campaign with all the fire and vigor of those of the past, plus considerably more in the way of enthusiasm because of the personalities and the issues involved.

Special Session For Legislature In Order

The calling of a short special session of the General Assembly in January is entirely in order in view of the unusual circumstances that will exist in North Carolina at that time.

According to the constitution of the state, the new governor is to take his oath of office in January. It has been customary in past years for the new governor to be sworn in at a time in January at which the members of the General Assembly are on hand. But since the convening date of the legislature is now in February rather than in January, the only way for the new governor to be inaugurated with the General Assembly in session at the same time is to call a special session of that body.

In the interest of getting the new administration organized and moving as quickly as possible, the inauguration date should not be postponed until February. Since other governors of North Carolina have begun their terms in January as the constitution provides, it is only right that the next governor of the state—presumably Terry Sanford—not be deprived of a portion of his term in office by delaying the inauguration even a month.

A two or three-day special session of the General Assembly called to coincide with the inauguration in January would not cost the state a great deal of money. It would afford the legislature, if leaders saw fit, time to organize itself and be ready to move quickly into the business at hand when the regular session convened in February.

Rather than waiting until late in the year to decide whether or not to call a special session of the General Assembly in January, Gov. Hodges should in the very near future make known his intentions along this line. It appears proper that a special session should be called in connection with the inauguration of the new governor. By announcing his intentions now to do so, Gov. Hodges would afford legislative leaders ample time between now and January to complete arrangements for the brief special session.

Emphasis Is On Basic Purposes

By LYNN NISBET

DIVERSIONS — Members of the advisory budget commission have been concerned for several years with the amount of time and energy college and hospital administrators were required to give to business activities, especially farming and laundries. Majority of the institutional managers are reluctant to give up the farms, even though the educational and therapeutic values they once had have been dissipated, and the food produced might be bought more economically on the market.

It is recognized that prisoners must be kept employed, and farm work is a suitable occupation for them. The therapeutic value of farming at several mental hospitals is offered as justification for continuing these operations, although mechanization has largely replaced hand labor in many instances. Also farm work is required at agricultural colleges and institutes, both for training future farmers and for research.

In these cases profit on operations is secondary, if worth considering at all, to the main purpose of education and therapy. No such justification can be offered for farm operations at several institutions such as Appalachian Teachers College at Boone, Elizabeth City Teachers College, schools for the blind and deaf at Raleigh and Morganton and others.

The budget group's idea for abandoning or greatly curtailing farming operations except where they fit definitely into the training or treatment program got a big boost from Dr. Walter N. Ridley, new president of Elizabeth City State Teachers College.

OFF-COLOR — Dr. Ridley made it clear that he thinks the farm is taking too much of the administrative time of college officers, and contributes nothing to the educational program. He would like to get rid of that burden and be free to give undivided attention to the business of teaching, which he considers the primary function of a college.

With that common attitude on part of the budget officers and the college administration it would seem the solution is easy. Get rid of the farm land and out of the farming business. It isn't quite that simple. The college owns about 70 acres in the farm, approximately a mile from the main campus. If the land is sold the proceeds go into the general fund account of the State, not into the college treasury. Meanwhile the college needs land adjacent to the campus for staff and student housing. There is question whether the need is acute enough to justify condemnation proceedings.

The board of trustees want to hold on to the farm land until some kind of swap can be arranged, either a direct exchange of titles or assurance that proceeds from sale of the farm will be earmarked for purchase of the close-in property.

A somewhat similar situation is found at Appalachian, where the college has a farm that budget people think of doubtful value, while there is admitted need for additional land adjacent to the campus for expansion. Farm lands at the schools for blind and deaf are not immediately needed for expansion of the campuses, but since the farming operations show a book profit and afford guaranteed source of supply for foods, the authorities are reluctant to give them up.

LAND ACQUISITION — The need for more land for expansion of institutional facilities is common all over the state. North Carolina College at Durham and East Carolina College at Greenville cannot grow much without additional land—and they have nothing to sell or swap. Mount Mitchell State Park (and perhaps other parks) needs adjacent acreage to balance property lines and protect present holdings from depreciation.

The State presently is negotiating for property on and around the site of the authorized new State House on Halifax street in Raleigh. Demands of the highway commission for right of way is an ever present and rapidly growing problem—and a very expensive one.

In nearly every instance the needed property could have been bought eight or ten years ago for a fraction of its current appraised value. Almost certainly some of the land now under consideration—and which may not be acquired—will rise in price during the next few years. Question facing the responsible officials is how far they can afford to gamble with State tax money in buying property against future needs, or in holding on to land which presently is not yielding any returns of consequence. Private capitalists have gotten rich by anticipating land values; and some have gone broke by guessing wrong. State policy generally is to play the game tight and not risk the proceeds into speculation, even though in the long run failure to buy now may cost the taxpayers.

Commotion In The Street

Your columnist was driving up the hill on Cotanche St. near the intersection of Eighth St. yesterday afternoon. I passed a car pulling an outboard boat on a trailer, which is not an uncommon sight these days.

Just as I passed this car and its trailer headed down the hill, I heard a terrific commotion. I looked into the rear view mirror just in time to see a crazy sight of the boat bow pitched dizzily into the air.

The trailer had broken loose from the car and was rolling on its own. The heavy motor on back of the boat had pulled the rear end down. The blade on the outboard motor was making quite a bit of racket as it scraped along the pavement.

The driver of the car slapped on brakes but the boat and trailer kept going. It struck the car a glancing blow veered to the left and came to a halt alongside the auto.

By this time the sight was lost to me in my rear view mirror but I circled the block and returned to the scene.

The men in the car had pushed the boat to the side of the street when I arrived. As far as I could determine little damage was done although the motor might have suffered.

Received word from our Scout Jamboree correspondents in Colorado Springs yesterday. Peter Heller and Tom Irons wrote this last letter on Sunday, although actually the Jamboree closed last night.

Pete and Tom said there was a colorful arena show Friday night.

There were Indian dances, colorful fireworks and a talk by James Arness (Mat Dillon in Gunsmoke), the two reported. "There were $10,000 worth of fireworks."

The two said most of the boys attended Protestant worship services Sunday morning conducted by the Rev. Dr. Edwin T. Dalberg.

This was the largest Protestant service ever held for young people in the United States," they reported.

The Greenville scouts also said Herb Shriver was forming a harmonica band at the Jamboree.

Peter and Tom have been acting as correspondents for the Reflector while attending the Jamboree and a very good job they have done.

A total of 58,078 boys attended the fifth National Boy Scout Jamboree. They assembled on 2,400 acres of grassland and hillside.

All 50 states were represented plus 31 foreign nations.

Other Editors Saying Getting Out Of Hand

(Richmond Times-Dispatch)

A tidbit culled from a recent issue of Punch, the British weekly, has not added to our happiness, as the Civil War Centennial approaches. It says: "Kentucky flintlocks, manufactured in Italy, are selling briskly in the United States as souvenirs of the American Civil War. Italian gunsmiths can make them more cheaply than anyone else." No wonder Punch added:

"The story makes one doubt the authenticity of all those blunderbusses in our oldie pubs."

For our part, we are becoming increasingly disturbed by the possibilities of commercialization which loom in connection with this country's Civil War observance. We don't know anything about blunderbusses in old pubs, but we'd view with alarm the wholesale shipment from Italy to the United States of genu-ine Civil War flintlocks, possibly with tags giving battles in which they were fired. (In fairness, it should be stated that one Italian gunsmith is marketing "civil war rifles" frankly as "reproductions.")

Another suddenly launched and thriving business, both in this country and England, is the manufacture of "Confederate buttons." An English concern is using the dies from which it made buttons for Confederate uniforms in the Civil War. "Confederate buttons" are being turned out by the thousands on both sides of the Atlantic, and are being sold already in retail in the United States. We are reliably informed that these buttons are bringing from 35 cents to $5 over here. While we have no evidence that retailers are representing them as originals, purchasers who pay $4 for them evidently think they are the real article. (Authentic Confederate buttons usually bring $30 to $35, so a genuine one for $5 is felt to be a great bargain.)

We've referred previously to the special hats, cigars and rum drinks created in New Jersey in honor of the war's 100th anniversary. Next thing you know, the Czechs or the Japanese will be turning out authentic Confederate uniforms, surrendered at Appomattox, complete with bloodstains, grease spots and moth holes. — Is the centennial observance getting out of hand before it even begins?

And What's Yours? (Savannah Morning News)

There is, it seems, an organization in Los Angeles which calls itself The Let's Have Better Mottoes Assn. At its July meeting, the group selected its favorite motto: "I have great plans for wasting today."

Also rans included the following: "If you died tonight, could anyone straighten out the mess you're making?" — "I'm not talking common sense. I'm talking policy." — "I gave my wife a going-away present, but she won't go." — "I'm accustomed to your face, but it still scares normal people."

Two Real Pros In 1960 Election

By JAMES MARLOW

CHICAGO (AP) — The big political conventions of 1960 accomplished two things:

1. They cleared the ring so a couple of real pros—for the first time in 12 years—could go after each other.

2. They made both parties sound a little more liberal, to the disgust of the ultra-conservatives in both, as shown by the effort to nominate Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, a leader of the conservatives.

Otherwise, they were simply cut-and-dried, longwinded, old-fashioned extravaganzas which needlessly took up too much of everyone's time.

Sen. John F. Kennedy, given the Democrats' presidential nomination two weeks ago in Los Angeles, and Vice President Richard M. Nixon, whom the Republicans named their No. 1 man Wednesday are political pros in the strictest sense.

The last time two professional squared off for the presidency was in 1948 when President Truman ran against and whipped New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

The 1952 match between Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson was an amateur contest. Eisenhower had never run for office before. Stevenson, although governor of Illinois, was new in the business.

By the time they ran against each other in 1956 Eisenhower had learned his way around. Stevenson, in the minds of many, was still amateurish.

It's a lot different with Nixon and Kennedy.

Both have been in national politics since 1946 and when both were first elected to the House of Representatives. In later elections both landed in the Senate, with Nixon going on to the vice presidency.

It was no wonder Nixon had met opposition for the presidential nomination. He had been working toward that for years:

1. By playing it smart as vice president. He stuck close to Eisenhower, got himself identified in the public and Republican mind with the President's ideas, attitudes, and policies, thus making himself appear the natural successor.

2. By building up support for himself around the country for years both by his campaigns for the Republican presidential ticket and campaigns to help Republicans running for office in their states.

Kennedy has been aiming at the presidency ever since 1956 when, to the surprise of many, he came out of relative obscurity and almost captured the Democrats' vice presidential nomination.

In the succeeding four years he traveled the country, surrounded himself with shrewd politicians and intellectuals, and ran and won in the primaries.

While both parties in their civil rights platform planks were more liberal than ever before, the fact is they had to be. Events inevitably pushed them in that direction, beginning with the Supreme Court's 1954 decision outlawing public school segregation.

But the party platforms don't mean much by themselves. There is a big difference between the two parties' promises in the middle of a presidential campaign and what they do about them later.

The conservatives in both parties dominate in Congress, no matter which party wins control of it.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DOORS

Stanley Jones, the great modern preacher and writer, often speaks about the necessity of turning our denials into doors. By this he means that every time a door is shut against us, or every time we shut a door against something in life we very much desire, another door is opened—a door that will lead us into great satisfaction.

The young man or woman intent on lending a pure life shuts the door to uncleanness of all kinds. It takes courage to do that, but every young person who shuts that door should realize that another door of far greater satisfaction will be opened. Every time we close the door on something low, God opens a door for us on something high. Every time we say No to our evil selves, God gives us strength to say Yes to our better selves.

How many people, disappointed and left in despair, have suddenly found that because of this circumstance God had placed their feet on highways which later lead to great service and happiness! It was a personal disappointment in his home life which made Hosea the great prophet of love. It was the blasting of earthly happiness for Savaanarola which turned his thoughts to God and made him one of the great religious leaders of all times. It was the thorn in his flesh which made St. Paul seek more avidly for God's sustaining grace.

Parties Hunting Votes

Both conventions have witnessed splits over what is euphemistically referred to as "Civil Rights." Civil Rights are those laws which protect the individual in his rights under the Constitution, of the United States and the constitutions of the various states. The amendments to the constitution, particularly the first ten and the fourteenth, deal with such rights.

In many states, no issues arise under this heading. In others, where the population is very mixed racially, there are all sorts of discriminatory measures. The South has its Negro problem which in the South continues to be a serious matter. In some Northern states, such as New York, where there are large Negro and Puerto Rican populations, discrimination is severe. In New York, also, social and job discrimination on a religious basis presents a problem. In California, there is discrimination not only against Negroes but also against Mexicans. Some states have laws

I have tried to write the nation.

Jews and Negroes have organized defense media to protect themselves against those who, because of race, religion or color, regard them as second-class persons. In New York State and elsewhere, FEPC laws have been passed which forbid the rejection of persons for employment because of race, color or religion. On the other hand, in some states, such as Arkansas, for instance, a defensive effort has been made to attack the concept of enforced desegregation.

The Ku Klux Klan and similar organizations organize to fight for white superiority. The Supreme Court of the United States has intervened in this situation with decisions to the effect that a citizen is a citizen and is entitled to equal rights and benefits. These decisions for bid segregation as regards schools. This then is the situation as it affects both parties.

above statement objectively as a conflict of ideas, unrelated to strategically this gave them a any selfish interests or motives on any side.

Now let us come to the politics of it. In such Northern states as New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania and there are others, the Negro vote is extremely important. In New York and Illinois, prior to Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Negroes were usually Republicans because Lincoln freed the slaves. Since Roosevelt, the Negroes have been voting Democratic. The Democrats want to hold the Negro vote; the Republicans want to recapture it.

Others who regard themselves as minority groups generally support the Negro position because they feel that unless there is absolute equality for all citizens under the law, discriminatory actions may be taken against them with impunity.

This then is the problem that both parties face in their 1960 conventions. The Democrats met it head on and wrote the toughest Civil Rights plank into their platform that has ever come out of a convention. This plank was resented by the Southern delegates, but they did not leave the Convention. When Lyndon Johnson accepted the Vice Presidency and ran on the platform, the Southerners felt that they had been betrayed by their party.

The Republicans believed that strategically this gave them a wonderful opportunity to win the Southern states as Herbert Hoover did in 1928. However, Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, who has for several years been working on these problems, announced his intention of being a floor figure on the platform which he said he regarded as more important than the candidate, although platforms are forgotten immediately after the Election. The one Republican candidate for President, Richard Nixon, desiring to avoid a floor fight at the Convention, which readily split the Republican Party, rushed up to New York, held

Opinions In Brief

"In the short span of three decades government's tax take has jumped from a proportion of about one dollar out of ten to about one dollar out of three of the national income. If the proportion will soon become one in two, or still more." — Russell Springs (Ky) Times Journal.

"Uncle Sam's generosity toward junketing legislators has been abused in the past. It has been customary, with some exceptions, for members of Congress to travel in great luxury. There are limits beyond which this sort of thing cannot be justified." — Enid (Okla.) News.

"Social tact is the art of making your guests feel at home, particularly when you really wish they were." — San Diego (Calif.) Tribune.

"Not much prestige attaches to being a two-car family, unless you also have a boat to tow behind each one." — Raleigh Times.

Stronger Urge To Merge Ahead

By ELMER ROESSNER

The urge to merge will get stronger during the rest of the year.

Frequency of mergers began to rise shortly after World War II. While the rate has been generally up, there have been a few dips. Mergers tend to increase when corporations are fearful of the future. They also rise when companies speed plans to beat threatened legislation limiting mergers.

The rate of mergers began to rise during the 1957-58 recession, but it has continued to rise since then. There has been considerably more activity in the first half of this year and even more activity is almost sure in the present half.

These are reasons for a further increase in mergers:

1. There are feelings of uneasiness about the latter part of this year and the early part of 1961. Three of five top economists interviewed by the New York Times saw trouble ahead. Leon H. Keyserling, of the Council of Economic Advisors during the Truman Administration, said there has been "economic stagnation" since 1953; Stanley H. Rutenber, AFL-CIO research director, said the Administration is letting the economy slide into recession; Louis F. Licht, Calvin Bullock economist, said that the current recovery is 26 months old and only one-third of all recoveries have lasted more than 30 months.

OTHER VIEWS
Dr. Marcus Nadler, consulting economist of the Hanover Bank, and Martin R. Gainsburgh, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, said a continued high level of business lies ahead.

Even though opinions are divided, their expression is likely to cause many managements to wonder if it wouldn't be best to merge while their companies' assets are high.

The need for diversification is growing. Even though the economy is thriving, there are spots of distress, and the persistent lesson is that being in two, three or more markets is good insurance against weakness in one.

NATIONAL PRODUCT MIX CHANGING
In addition, changing conditions are changing demand so fast that products wanted today are outmoded tomorrow. Planes have gone from prop to turbo-prop to jet in a decade and may go to atomic power in the next. Spread of suburban living has altered the clothes buying pattern enormously; play clothes are way up, conservative sarb way down. The public's choice in autos is shifting; demand is changing for countless products.

The urge to diversify has led to strange corporate marriages. U.S. Tobacco has acquired the assets of a large canner and packager of nuts. A silverware manufacturer has merged with a company making electronic navigation instruments. A maker of rugs and upholstery has wedded a maker of lingerie.

There is fear that tax rates will rise or that tax advantages now available to merging companies may be outlawed. If either party delivers everything its platform promises, higher tax rates will be necessary to pay for them, or there will be another supercharge of inflation. And in increasing revenues, Congress may withdraw the privileges whereby the losses of one merged company can offset the taxable profits of the other.

4. There are several special situations promoting mergers. Many involving electronics companies are in process. There are two reasons. One is that to keep up with the rapid progress in the field, electronics companies need more and more capital equipment and small ones are unable to raise it. The other is that some companies are often unable to handle big government contracts. Mergers tend to solve both these problems.

Railroads, too, constitute a special situation. Commuter traffic is being lost to buses and private cars; overland traffic has been largely lost to the airlines and buses; freight traffic is being lost to truckers and barge operators; wages are going up, up, up. The only prospects are mergers that will permit the elimination of duplicating lines, facilities and administration—and possibly turn up some excess real estate now worth many times the acquisition price.

Idolatry Ruins a Nation

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Hosea 8:1-5; 10:1-12; 13:1-6; 14:1-9.

The prophet Hosea warns his people that God is angry with them because they have transgressed My covenant.—Hosea 8:1.

"They have set up kings, but not by Me; they have made princes; . . . of their silver and gold they have made idols."—Hosea 8:4.

"Mine anger is kindled against them; . . . the workmen made it; therefore it is not God; but the calf of Samaria shall be broken."—Hosea 8:5-6.

"Israel hath forgotten his Maker . . . but I will send a fire upon his cities." —Hosea 8:14. MEMORY VERSE—Hosea 14:9.

Luxury and Idolatry Ruin a Nation

HOW GOD'S JEALOUSY AND LOVE ARE REVEALED IN HIS DEALINGS WITH APOSTATE ISRAEL

Scripture—Hosea 8:1-5; 10:1-12; 13:1-6; 14:1, 4, 9.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. "WE HEAR very little today about the judgment of God, but the Old and New Testaments are filled with this theme," writes the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith in Peloubet's Select Notes. "Yet He is merciful, and in the midst of these stern warnings of the prophets of Christ and the apostles, we hear the wooing note of His inexhaustible love."

among the Gentiles as a vessel wherein is no pleasure."—Hosea 8:7-8. Thus prophesied Hosea, repeating God's words, many centuries ago. And Hosea said further, "The high places also of Aven, the sin of Israel, shall be destroyed; the thorn and the thistle shall come up on their altars; and they shall say to the mountains, Cover us; and to the hills, Fall on us."—Hosea 10:1-5.

Hosea warned his people that disaster would befall them if they did not return to the God of their people. "Israel hath cast off the thing that is good; the enemy shall pursue him," he told them.

"O Israel, thou hast sinned from the days of Gibeath; there they stood: the battle in Gibeath against the children of iniquity did not overtake them."—Hosea 10:9.

GOLDEN TEXT "The ways of the Lord are right, and the just shall walk in them."—Hosea 14:9.

"They have set up kings, but not by Me; they have made princes, and I know it not; of their silver and their gold they made them idols."

"Sow to yourselves in righteousness; reap in mercy; break up your fallow ground; for it is time to seek the Lord, till He come and rain righteousness upon you."—Hosea 10:12.

Their workmen had made a golden calf, which the people were worshipping instead of the God of their fathers. Hosea told them that it should "be broken in pieces."—Hosea 8:3-6.

If the teacher, before the lesson is prepared, can procure and read one or both of two recently published books, it would be helpful. One is The Life to Live by the Rev. Frederick M. Meek, minister of Boston's Old South Church. The other, God Is a Good God, is by Evangelist Oral Roberts.

Pastor Tests Belief In Religious Dramas College Thanked For Contribution

By TOM HENSHAW AP Religion Writer NEW YORK (AP)—"Any play that asks an ultimate question about life or God is basically religious drama," says the Rev. William Bell Glensok. And as such it's worth considering its message in church. The Rev. Mr. Glensok, 33, has been putting his belief to the test this month in a series of church-theater symposiums at his Spencer Memorial Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn.

The pastor bases his sermon on a show currently playing across the bridge in Manhattan—and invites the play's star to church to discuss its philosophical implications with the congregation. Last Sunday the visitor was Grayson Hall, who plays a madam in off-Broadway's "The Balcony," a highly allegorical work by the Frenchman Jean Genet. The setting is a house of ill fame. But neither the setting nor the earthy language of the play had any role in the symposium. The topic for discussion was philosophy, not sin.

Resolutions of thanks for East Carolina College's assistance to the City of New Bern on the occasion of the 250th anniversary of the founding of that municipality have been received by Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, college president. The historic event was celebrated during June. Dramatic highlight of the historical observance was the pageant, "The Third Frontier," written by Kermit Hunter and directed by Dr. Joseph A. Withey, head of the East Carolina Playhouse and director of dramatics. A number of East Carolina College alumni, including Dr. Ralph H. Rives, who joins the English department faculty this fall, and college students participated in this production which was staged nightly for two weeks.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

The Rev. Howard James delivered the evening sermon at the Hobkirkton District Union Meeting of Christian Churches at LaGrange on Wednesday. His topic was "Valley of Decision" as related to the current 10-year program of advance by Disciples of Christ in the United States and Canada. Others from Red Oak Christian Church attending the LaGrange Convention were: Mrs. Lucy Allen, Glenn James, Mrs. Howard James, Claude Manning, and Thurston Wynne. At Sunday's 10:45 a.m. Worship Service, the pastor will preach on the subject "Demas, The Deserter." The Sanctuary Choir will sing an arrangement of "Master, the Tempest Is Raging." Flowers will be provided by Mr. and Mrs. Thurston Wynne. Boy Scout Troop 398 will meet Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. Eight Juniors, ages 9-11, will represent Red Oak Christian Church at Junior Camp No. 2 at Camp Caroline August 8-12. They will be commissioned at the Morning Worship Service on August 7.

Marshals Seize Golden Rooster

SPARKS, Nev. (AP)—U.S. marshals seized a gambler's golden rooster Thursday because, the government says, it isn't art. The 9-inch high 15-pound solid gold rooster was carried off under a court order. "If that rooster isn't art I don't know what it is," said Dick Graves, owner of the Nugget Casino. The complaint said the rooster contains 206 ounces of gold, 156 more than an individual can keep form more than a month without permission unless the gold is used for art work.

Jamboree Scouts Head For Home

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—The long journey home began today for thousands of the 56,078 Boy Scouts who Thursday night wound up their fifth national jamboree. The scouts, representing all of the 50 states and 31 foreign lands, are departing just as they arrived—by air, bus, train and private automobile. By Sunday night, the 2,400-acre campsite where most of them spent the past 10 days will once again be a comparative barren plot of grass and rolling hills. The scouts realized what possibly was their greatest jamboree amulet Thursday when President Eisenhower honored them with a visit to the campsite. The President drove from Denver where he and Mrs. Eisenhower are visiting the first lady's ailing mother, Mrs. Elvera Doud, to see the scouts.

Sokolsky Col.

(Continued from Page 6) a secret meeting with Governor Rockefeller and out of it came a fourteen point guide-line to the platform committee. This fourteen point document contains a Civil Rights plank as conclusive as the Democratic one. The tone of the Convention was antagonistic to this decision both from the standpoint of practical politics and from the standpoint of States Rights which the Republicans claim as their principle. The spontaneous reception given to Senator Barry Goldwater indicated an antagonistic reaction to the fourteen points. In a word, the Negro issue developed into the principal question in both political conventions. The Negro vote in the North has apparently become politically more significant than the old Solid South. Also at issue is the question as to whether the Negro vote in the South is not growing so large that the Washington-based politicians of both parties take that into consideration. Henry David Thoreau, the poet once said: "What is called genius is the abundance of life or health."

Ballard Named Outstanding Player

Gastonia Triumphs 4-0 In Teen-er Loop Finals

Easy-going Kenny Ballard pitched and batted Gastonia to a 4-0 victory over Elizabeth City yesterday morning to sweep the State VFW Teen-er League title with an undefeated record.

Ballard, who was later voted the tournament's "Outstanding Player," stifled Elizabeth City's potent array of batters with a nifty five-hitter. The slender righthander allowed only two runners to reach base after the second inning.

Dexter Bradshaw and Boyce Morrow broke up a tight pitching skirmish between Ballard and Elizabeth City's Danny Balance in the fifth.

Bradshaw led off with a single and scurried to second on Larry Johnson's sacrifice. Morrow broke up the scoreless deadlock with another single, scoring Bradshaw.

In the sixth, the Gastonians put the contest away for keeps with three more runs.

Robert Teague reached base on an error, Fred McMurray singled, and Bill Byant walked to lead the bases. Mark Bucuchump upset the EC strategists with a bunt, scoring Teague from third. Ballard pumped a single into the outfield to score two more runs.

Ballard was off to a rocky start, putting two runners on base in both the first and second inning, but settled down to pick up his second win with little less than a sweat.

With two outs, Marion Harris and Lucian Griffith had back-to-back singles for EC in the first. But the rally failed to materialize.

In the second, Balance and Steve Sharber slapped one-base hits but both were for naught. Butch Smith had the only other hit off Ballard—a single in the fifth.

Ballard struck out and didn't yield any walks. His foe, Balance, retired four batters by strikes and walked three.

Gastonia will advance to Greenville, Tennessee next week, representing North Carolina.

Two Stroke Lead In E. Open For Littler

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gene Littler, a golfer with a seeming penchant for money and shy on prestige, is off and running again today in the race for the $3,500 first prize in the Eastern Open tournament.

The 30-year-old Singing Hills, Calif., pro started the second round with a two-stroke margin. Littler burst ahead Thursday by shooting a 65, seven under par, for the second straight time in the opening round of the Eastern.

It is the lowest score for the two-year-old 7,820-yard municipal course.

Last year, Littler followed up his record round with a 67 and enjoyed a five-stroke bulge halfway through the 72-hole tourney. But he dropped to 71 on each of the last two rounds and Dave Ragan of Orlando, Fla., came on to nip him by a stroke.

Although he has won only the Oklahoma City Open this year and failed to survive the qualifying cutoff for such honored events as the Masters, Littler has collected $20,211 in his last dozen tournaments. Last year, he won five of the PGA circuit and his earnings of more than $44,000 were third highest among the traveling pros.

Littler's record tying round stole the show from veteran Jackie Burke, 37, and newcomer Juan Rodriguez of Puerto Rico.

They came in with 67 a few hours before Littler steamed home. Rodriguez was a real dark horse. It is only the fourth tourney in this country for the 116 pounder who stands less than five feet, eight inches tall.

Four others, George Bayer, Lionel Hebert, Doug Ford and Bob Goaly, were only three strokes back of Littler and par was little more than a figure of comparison.

Out of 152 pros and amateurs who played the first round, 48 were under the standard 72 and another two dozen matched it.

Proposes Pro All-Star Game

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry Wismer, president of the New York Titans of the American Football League, today proposed an annual All-Star game between the AFL and NFL, replacing the one between the College All-Stars and the National League champions.

Wismer also advocated that a major portion of the receipts be turned over to the players to start a pension plan similar to the one covering the major league baseball players.

"Calling this year's college squad All-Stars is a misrepresentation," Wismer said. "Since 75 per cent of the graduated college stars are in the AFL camps and can't play in this year's game, the collegians will have the weakest squad in the history of the competition."

Arnold Palmer won five tournaments this year before taking the U. S. Open.

Piersall Amuses Yankee Fans

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Piersall, Cleveland centerfielder whose antics have made him a conversation piece in recent weeks, continued his droll buffoonery as the Indians lost a twin bill to the New York Yankees Thursday night.

While Cleveland was changing pitchers in the first inning of the second game, Piersall hid behind the stone monuments in centerfield. He came out on orders from Umpire Joe Paparella and took a position, hands on knees, far out on the running track. He finally came in 100 feet to his regular position when Manager Joe Gordon motioned him to move.

In the eighth inning of the same game he amused the crowd of 39,812 by moving to about 100 feet behind second base when Yankee pitcher Ryne Duren was batting.

Second baseman Ken Aspromonte made him go back to a more reasonable distance. After the double-header, Gordon said the only thing he didn't like about Piersall's performance was his coming in behind second base when Duren was at bat.

Serious Threat To U.S. Netters

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Rodney Mandelstam and Tim Heckler, two 18-year-olds from South Africa, posed a threat to ranking United States juniors today in the quarter-final round of the National Junior and Boys Tennis Championships.

The stocky Mandelstam, Wimbledon junior champion, met third-seeded Bill Lenor of Tucson, Ariz., and Heckler, a student at Lamar Tech in Texas, took fourth-seeded Bill Bond of La Jolla, Calif.

Bond defeated Bob Hardcastle of Atlanta, Ga., 6-3, 6-1, and Pancho Castillo of Hamtramck, Mich., 6-6, 6-4.

Mandelstam of Johannesburg defeated Charles Rombeau of Studio City, Calif., 6-4, 6-4, and eighth-seeded Butch Newman of San Antonio, Tex., 6-4, 7-5, in third and fourth round matches Thursday.

Heckler, the No. 1 foreign seed from Kimberley, eliminated ninth-ranked Fritz Schunck of Orlando, Fla., 6-3, 6-4, and sixth-seeded Paul Palmer of Phoenix, Ariz., 6-3, 6-4.

Rawls Named To Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., is the 12th member to be elected to the Women's Golf Hall of Fame.

The announcement was made here Thursday by Fred Corcoran, business manager of the Ladies Professional Golfers Assn.

Miss Rawls joins such outstanding professionals in the hall as the late Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Patty Berg, Louise Suggs and Betty Jameson. Five amateurs have been honored in like manner.

Miss Rawls, winner of the U.S. Women's Open for the fourth time last weekend, holds the record for having won the most prize money in a single year ($25,774 in 1959).

She will be officially inducted into the hall next spring at the time of the annual Titleholders tournament.

Arnold Palmer won five tournaments this year before taking the U. S. Open.

NY Cops First Slot With Twinbill Win

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer Jimmy Piersall may be right, after all.

When the Cleveland players threatened recently to hold a meeting to discuss what should be done about Piersall's scrapes with the umpires, the explosive outfielder remarked:

"While they're discussing me, maybe they should also discuss the hitters who have been taking so many third strikes with men on bases and the pitchers who have been throwing so many home run balls."

The Indians staged one of their most inept performances of the season Thursday night as the New York Yankees mowed them down twice, 4-0 and 9-2, to regain first place from Chicago by .003 percentage points. The White Sox lost their game and in half edge by dropping a daytime 4-2 decision in Boston.

In other American League games Baltimore blanked Kansas City 5-0 and Washington edged Detroit 6-5.

In the National, San Francisco's Giants nipped Milwaukee 3-2 in 10 innings for rookie Juan Marichal's third straight victory. Los Angeles downed Cincinnati 8-6 and Philadelphia defeated Chicago 3-2. Pittsburgh and St. Louis were idle.

Cleveland's glaring weakness — inability to hit in the clutch — was most evident. The vanishing Indians, losers of 15 of their last 20 including their last five, put 22 runners on base in the twin bill at Yankee Stadium, 16 via hits and six via bases on balls. Only two of them scored. They left 17 on base.

Jim Perry, Cleveland's ace righthander with 11 victories, permitted only nine hits in losing his fifth decision in the opener. Three of the Yankee hits were home runs. Mickey Mantle cracked his 26th, Tony Kubek his ninth and Cletis Boyer his eighth.

Piersall provided the comic relief in the nightcap. In the first inning, while Manager Joe Gordon was changing pitchers during a four-run Yankee explosion, Piersall hid behind the monuments in centerfield and had to be ordered out by umpire Joe Paparella.

In the seventh inning, Jimmy field and catching them behind his amused the crowd of 39,812 by throwing up baseballs in the outback. In the eighth, with Duren batting, he crept in almost behind second base, but was waved back by second baseman Ken Aspromonte.

Tom Brewer spaced 10 hits and catcher Haywood Sullivan, a 165 hitter, smashed a two-run homer to give the Red Sox their first victory in their last 10 meetings with the White Sox. Billy Pierce absorbed his sixth defeat.

Jerry Barber hurled a one-hitter for Baltimore over the A's. A sixth-inning single ruined the no-hit bid of the 21-year-old southpaw who fanned 10. Two-run homers by Brooks Robinson and Ronnie Hansen and a solo smash by Gene Woodling paved the way for Bud Daley's eighth defeat. He has won 12.

Washington rallied for three runs in the ninth — as the Senators came from behind to nip the Tigers. Four walks, a sacrifice fly and an error by Frank Bolling highlighted the winning rally.

Warren was graduated at Tri-City High in Rockingham County and played one year of college football at the University of Nebraska in 1953.

He came to East Carolina College in 1957 after serving two years in the army. While in service, he played football and baseball.

At East Carolina, Warren was a member of the baseball squad for three years. Playing on two North State champion clubs, he was used as a pinch-hitter and reliever pitcher. He was also a member of the Physical Education Club.

Warren majored in physical education and minored in social studies, maintaining an overall "2" average.

According to Rose, Warren was highly recommended by members of the East Carolina faculty. "Mr. Dowd, Coach Phillips, and myself feel Warren is a good prospect both as a coach and teacher. We feel sure that he will be a credit on the football field and in the classroom," stated Rose.

Warren, who is doing graduate work at ECC this summer, was unavailable for comment. He is married and a member of the Christian Church. During the past three summers, he has played softball with Carolina Dairy in the Industrial Softball League.

Bosox Have Problems; Geiger Out For Season

By BOB HOOBING

Associated Press Sports Writer BOSTON (AP) — Gary Geiger's collapsed lung has Boston reeling today just when the Red Sox appeared to be mending the outfield riddled by the retirement of Jackie Jensen.

The Red Sox announced sadly Thursday that Geiger, the skinny, left-handed slugging right fielder, is lost for the season.

Dr. Ralph McCarthy, team physician, hastened to add there was no evidence of tuberculosis and that when Geiger's right lung returns to normal and he has had a complete rest he should be ready for 1961 spring training camp.

Geiger underwent minor surgery when a tube was inserted to remove excess pressure from the collapsed lung and hasten its return to an inflated condition.

The 22-year-old sensation had become a local favorite and had lifted his average to .301. His ninth homer of season Wednesday was his third in as many starts.

Jensen had been the long-time right field proprietor for Boston. During his six years as a Red Sox player he knocked in more runs for the total than any other major leaguer. The powerful right-handed slugger fell below 100 RBI only one season.

Beginning with the spring training games, the Red Sox began the twofold job of finding a high-call defensive man for right field and a right-handed power hitter.

Nine players later — Gene Stephens, Lu Clinton, Vic Wertz, Jim Marshall, Marty Keough, Jerry Mallett, Bobby Thomson, Geiger and Carroll Hardy — Geiger won the assignment. Only first baseman Wertz and Hardy are left on the Sox squad today though the club is expected to recall Clinton from the Minneapolis farm.

Deals were swung for right-handed hitters Thomson, Ron Jackson, Rip Repulski, Ray Boone and Hardy before Willie Tasby showed up with some heft to his swing and exceptional fielding class in center.

June 5 — the day at Yankee Stadium left fielder Ted Williams returned to the lineup to resume his wholesale assault on the record book — Geiger took over undisputed residence in right.

Since then Williams (.311 overall) has hit .331 and 15 of his 17 homers. Geiger has a .363 mark from the date including 25 of his 33 RBI and eight homers.

June 11 Tasby came from Baltimore and has hit .304 for the Red Sox.

Pothast Still Leading Field

CHARLOTTE (AP) — No. 1 seed Bob Pothast still led the field today as other top seeds in men's singles expected to see action in the rain-delayed Carolinas Open tennis championships.

Pothast, former Big Ten champion now stationed at Ft. Bragg, defeated Ken Oettinger of Chapel Hill Thursday, 6-0, 6-2 in a second round match.

Other seeded players in the men's singles scheduled to play today included No. 2, Herb Browne of Charlotte; 3, Sam Daniel of Leaksville; 4, Bill Cullen of Winston-Salem, and 5, Malcolm Clark, Chapel Hill.

In junior singles Thursday, unranked Bill Poore of Belton, S.C., eliminated the No. 4 seed, Donnie Dial of Columbia, S.C., 7-5, 7-5. Malloy Evans of Belton, the No. 1 seed, won 6-1, 4-6, 6-0 over Fred Craft of Columbia; then downed Tom Thornhill of Charleston, W. Va., 6-3, 6-3 in the quarterfinals.

Women's singles reached the semifinals today, with top-seeded Sally Seebek of Charleston, S.C., paired against Lillian Seabrook of Charleston and Joanne Cooper of Charlotte playing Nancy Grubb of Charlotte.

More Confidence

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A putting tip from Betsy Rawls sent long-hitting Mickey Wright into the second round of the $7,500 American Women's Open Golf Tournament today with renewed confidence in a one-stroke lead.

Miss Wright, from San Diego, Calif., stroked a 4-under-par 36-35-71 in the opening round Thursday of the four-day, 72-hole event to lead Minneapolis's Patty Berg and Barbara Romack, Sacramento, Calif., by one stroke.

The first round came just four days after Mickey took 38 puts for an 82 in the final round of the Women's National Open at Worcester, Mass.

"It was a tip from Betsy that did it," said Miss Wright. "She spent a half hour on the practice green with me Tuesday and noticed that I wasn't meeting the ball squarely with my putter."

Marlene Bauer Hage, Delray Beach, Fla., was third at 74. Kathy Corbett of U.S. Springfield, Ohio, and Marilyn Smith, Jupiter, Fla., each had 75.

CHAPTER 25

Delicately balancing respect for the memory of Alex Simon against the imperative need to choose his replacement, the Vacancy Committee waited until three days after the funeral to hold its first formal meeting.

When the decision was announced, Matt Keenan, publisher of the Herald, was in New York on business, but the morning he returned to Rowton - October was now into its second week - he summoned Phil Stimson to his office.

"You can't beat a somebody with a nobody. Today Callahan's a somebody. And if ever a man was a nobody, it's Governor Hasper. A political accident. I remember when he was still lieutenant governor, presiding over the State Senate. There was a hell of a ruckus one day - a big, world-shaking bill as to whether the sale of fireworks should be banned - and the place was in an uproar. In the middle of a speech nobody was listening to, one high-spirited member was shooting off a cap pistol. A lobbyist for the fireworks companies was about to have a fight with a couple of anti-noise senators. Someone said to Hasper, 'Pound your gavel; for heaven's sake, man, pound your gavel!'"

"That happens all the time," Keenan clamped a pipe between his teeth. "Find something on Callahan."

"I'll try, but after yesterday, I'd say he was riding pretty high."

"Why? What happened?" The Supreme Court granted Norman Hart a new trial. Mostly because of Temple's affidavit. But also, the opinion said, because the Court gave the affidavit extra weight as a result of the District Attorney's intervening himself to petition for a new trial. Callahan was commended for putting the rights of the defendant first. "I'll bet Hoffman feels great, sticking his neck out the way he did, and now he finds it wasn't even necessary."

"What'd Callahan say about the Supreme Court's action?" "Patted himself on the back. Then spoke vaguely of retrying Hart at an early date. The early date, naturally, is going to be after the November election."

Keenan bit down on his pipestem. "Phil, write this prediction in your memory book? Callahan's another Huey Long - unless somebody stops him. And that human pickle he has for a campaign manager, Bosworth, he's another Rasputin."

"Is Hasper the solution?" "Damn it, Phil, you've got to choose from the guys who are running. You can't afford to sit an election out. It's either Hasper or Callahan. We have no choice but Hasper." The publisher stood up. "In fact, I'm going to call on Hasper right now."

Governor Hasper munched his toast thoughtfully. "Well, Mr. Keenan," he said, "that's an easy question. My campaign is dedicated, I'd say, to a crusade for modern Republicanism."

Keenan now seated at the breakfast table with the Governor and his administrative assistant, George Lowden, growled, "Governor, my advice to you is, dedicate it to a crusade to get rid of your croquet course and your 'croquet cabinet.'"

Drawing himself up, Hasper said sternly, "Mr. Keenan, the men who are in what your newspaper has called my 'croquet cabinet' are trusted friends of long standing. The jobs I have appointed them to - such as head of the Parks Commission, head of the State Fair Advisory Board, and so on - carry no salary. I consider myself lucky to have such dedicated public servants available."

"Besides," Lowden interjected in an amiable, bantering peacemaker's role, "in most of those agencies, luckily, there are always civil service personnel to keep things on an even keel." He smiled slightly. "We, the people, save the qualification tests for the file clerks and janitors. They have to be good!"

Keenan laughed, and Hasper said, "Naturally, Mr. Keenan, I'd like your support, but I have my own ideas about what the people want in their Governor, and one thing they want is..."

"One thing they want, Governor," Keenan said, "is a human being."

"I have to be what I am," Hasper replied with unassuming dignity. "More sympathetically, Keenan said, 'In public life, I'm not sure that's enough. Right now, for example, Callahan's public image is that of a prosecutor so interested in justice that, merely because one witness was uncertain about his testimony, he asked and succeeded in getting the Supreme Court to reverse Norman Hart's conviction. It doesn't have much to do with whether he'd be a good governor, but it has a lot to do with how many votes he'll get.'"

"Yes, I realize the problems involved in winning an election," Hasper said. "Perhaps more than you're aware. Mr. Keenan, the things a man has to submit to when he runs for office are unbelievable."

Brooding, the Governor stared into space. "For example, I went to three coffee parties in project developments yesterday morning and talked with a lot of women for what seemed like hours - mostly about dogs and babies. Whenever I tried to bring the conversation around to the Constitution and economy, I sensed I was losing them."

"I spent the afternoon introducing myself to housewives outside supermarkets. I think I carried groceries for thirty-three women, and after all the lifting and hauling was over, I decided that if I didn't have a heart attack then, I'd never have one. Yes, it's all very well for you to chuckle, Mr. Keenan, but I'm the one who has to endure these things."

Grinning, Keenan said, "Governor, for an old mossback born in the wrong century, you're a pretty nice guy, but you'll still get a heck of an uphill fight to beat Callahan." He took a last gulp of coffee and stood up. "The Herald, by golly, will be slugging right in there with you!"

Nixon Entering Campaign With Assets And Enemies

Editor's Note - Richard Nixon enters the presidential campaign with some formidable assets—but he has also left a backtrail strewn with political enemies. This is the second of three articles.

By SAUL PETT CHICAGO (AP) - It was an extraordinary night in the history of politics and the performing arts.

It was Sept. 23, 1952 and, from a television studio in Los Angeles, the Republican candidate for vice president of the United States was, it seemed, baring his soul and emptying his pockets.

"I am going at this time to give this television and radio audience a complete financial history; everything I've earned; everything I've spent; everything I owe."

At the moment, Richard Milhouse Nixon, only two years a senator and six years a politician, hung by his thumbs from a rope about to snap.

Would Richard Nixon be able to explain the $18,000 "Nixon fund" contributed by California supporters? Would Richard Nixon, aged 39, who had come up high and fast, now be dropped into political darkness or would be able to climb back to safety; would Richard Nixon, candidate of the party set to "clean up the mess in Washington," resign or be lumped off the ticket by Dwight D. Eisenhower?

About 50,000,000 people were turned in for the unprecedented sight of a candidate putting himself under a microscope for a national audience.

Nixon stared earnestly at the camera as though it were an old friend, suddenly grown cold and suspicious, who was about to turn his back on him.

Nixon said he had never made personal use of the fund, that it had been used only to cover political expenses, that no contributor had ever received special consideration from him as senator.

He described in painful detail his career, his finances, his family situation, the mortgages, the houses they bought, the borrowed money. His daughters' little cocker spaniel, Checkers, which he would never give up, no matter what.

And as the camera dwelled on his wife, she said: "Well, that's about it. That's what we have and that's what we owe. It isn't very much but Pat and I have the satisfaction that every dime that we've got is honestly earned. I should say this—that Pat doesn't have a mink coat. But she does have a respectable Republican cloth coat. And I always tell her that she'd look good in anything."

The telegrams poured in by the thousands. A change of heart came over Republican leaders and newspapers which had demanded his scalp. Dwight D. Eisenhower was convinced, Richard Nixon remained on the ticket.

The crisis was past although the nation divided itself, in unknown proportions, between those who thought they had just seen the greatest display of heart and candor and those who thought it was a new low in contrived soap opera.

The "Checkers speech" was more than just a passing crisis in the life of Richard Nixon. It probably helps to explain why even today the feeling that surrounds him is high, intense and sharply divided. He is a man who has been involved in many highly emotional moments recorded on the national cardigraph.

There were the campaigns of 1952 and 1954. Richard Nixon, the "man who had trapped Alger Hiss," was swinging wide and hard.

He repeatedly charged the Democrats with being "soft on communism." He said Secretary of State Dean Acheson suffered from "color blindness—a form of pink eye toward the Communist threat in the United States."

He called Adlai Stevenson "Adlai the appeaser—who got a Ph.D. from Dean Acheson's college of cowardly Communist containment."

In 1954, he said Harry Truman, Stevenson and Acheson were "traitors to the high principles in which many of the nation's Democrats believed." A coast to coast storm blew up over the use of the word, "traitor."

Nixon protested that he had said only that they were traitors to their party, not their country. But it was 1954 and the nation was still shaken by a divisive tremor called "McCarthyism" and the word "traitor" in any context had a special impact.

From the standpoint of his morale, 1954 was "the worst of Nixon's first 12 years in politics," wrote Earl Mazo, who apparently was given more time with the vice president than any other biographer. Nixon even talked about retiring from public life.

It had been a rough year, politically and personally. The Republicans lost seats in Congress. And there had been incidents.

In his home town, Whittier, Calif., a citizens group killed a move to name a street after the vice president. At his alma mater, Whittier College, where he was to deliver the commencement address, several seniors protested. A separate receiving line had to be created for those (it turned out to be two) students who preferred not to shake Nixon's hand.

At Duke University, where Nixon had received his law degree, a faculty meeting took the unusual step of voting an honorary degree voted by the trustees for the vice president of the United States.

Brothers Burn To Death In Play With Matches

SWARTHMORE, Pa. (AP) - Two small brothers—apparently playing with matches—perished Thursday when a two-gallon can of gasoline caught fire and turned them into human torches. Their mother made a desperate attempt to save them.

The victims were Keith Stremmer, 7, and his brother, Jeffrey, 5. Both suffered third degree burns of the entire body.

The boys had been playing in the basement stairwell of their home when the mother, Wilda, 36, who was in the kitchen, heard screams. She found them enveloped in flames. She wrapped Jeffrey in a sheet and smothered the flames. Then she tore down some wet sheets from a clothes line and wrapped them around Keith.

Mrs. Stremmer said the boys apparently had taken the gasoline can from the back porch and were playing with matches. She said that earlier this month she had reprimanded one of them for playing with matches.

The first subway in the United States was opened in Boston in 1897.

Fifth Anniversary

At 5 Points

Five years is not such a long time when compared with the generation in which the old landmark in the above picture has served the people of Pitt County. But it has a personal meaning to me, for it was just that long ago that I moved to this community and became associated with this bank. It has been one of the best periods of my business life, and I am grateful that I had the opportunity of coming here. The old flat-iron building has had its face lifted in these five years, inside and out, our assets have almost doubled, and a constant stream of new customers has made us proud of our progress.

Economic Aid Is Pledged By U.S. To Congo Govm't

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba leaves Washington today with pledges of U.S. economic aid but minus any backing for the idea of sending American troops to his revolt-torn country.

Amid full military honors, Lumumba takes off for Ottawa where he hopes to garner further promises of financial help. The African got State Department assurance of economic assistance during his two-day stay. He also conferred with Eugene Black, President of the World Bank. U.S. authorities declined to name any specific amount pending further study.

The question of sending U.S. soldiers to the Congo was brought up by Lumumba at a news conference Thursday. He read dispatches from officials of his government portraying Belgian soldiers as weakening havoc in the former Belgian colony. One message suggested calling in American troops.

Lumumba declined to specifically endorse this idea. "I am not opposed to the arrival of American or any other troops," he said. "What I want is thousands of troops so that the Belgians can be evacuated immediately."

He said the United Nations troops dispatched to the Congo are disarming Congolese soldiers but are allowing the Belgians to keep their weapons, and this "might bring us into another world war."

The goateed premier became irritated, but refused to answer yes or no, when newsmen kept asking whether a Congo request for "any other" troops could include Soviet soldiers.

As for sending in American troops, U.S. officials stood by the position Washington took early in the tumult following the Congo's independence July 1: the United States will consider only economic assistance to the new country, and that through the U.N.

Titan Missile In Another Failure

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Air Force, after running through a complete test series of the Titan missile without mishap, has encountered a second straight failure with the operational prototype of this intercontinental range weapon.

A "J" model Titan spiraled into the Atlantic about 90 miles off Cape Canaveral Thursday when its first stage engine quit early. The first "J" rocket was destroyed by the range safety officer on July 1 when it lost hydraulic pressure shortly after launch.

The double setback for the "J" series follows six straight successes over a 5,000-mile course in the earlier "G" series. Primary difference between the two is that the newer model has an improved engine that weighs less and has fewer parts.

Youth Charged In Home Bombing

BELLEVILLE, N.J. (AP) — A 19-year-old youth charged with bombing a home has admitted carrying three eight-inch bombs with him on a transcontinental air flight, police said.

They said that Reggie W. Yates had told them he bought the bombs in San Francisco's Chinatown and brought them in his luggage to New York on an airliner last March. He did not name the airline.

Yates and two other youths, all Negroes, were charged Thursday with tossing a bomb against the home of 19-year-old Jolie Swin, for reasons undetermined by police. No one was injured.

Money Returned By Unusual Thief

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Five days after discovering about $100 missing from his cafe, Buford Witt got a package in the mail with $99.63 enclosed.

A note included with the money said: "Sorry. My conscience won't let me keep this." There was no signature. The package bore 54 cents worth of stamps.

"I'm glad his conscience is clear," said Witt Thursday. "He's done real good to redeem himself."

"A most unusual thief," said police Capt. E. C. Wilson. "I'd like to tip my hat to him."

Miss Strawn To Address Meeting

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market rally carried through into its second straight session on reduced volume early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.00 to 214.30 with the industrials up 1.60, the rails up .40 and the utilities up .40.

The advance faltered early in the day when prices were mixed and trading slowed. The spur of lower margin requirements for stock purchases seemed to have worn off. Renewed buying support entered the market, however, as steels and autos sparked the upturn.

Chemicals, nonferrous metals, electronics and other "growth" issues were among gainers.

Advances of pivotal issues ran from fractions to a point or more:

STRIKING A PRETTY POSE—Two majorette instructors at the current two-week East Carolina College Music Camp convened here pause a moment to flash a pose and smiles and a Reflector photographer. Lib Rogers (left) of Greenville and Karen Kaiser of Grand Rapids, Mich., were among the majorette tutors adding beauty and talent to the staff of the seventh annual camp on the ECC campus. Miss Kaiser, a past national twirling champion, is serving for the third time on the staff of the local college's music camp. The two-week session, attended by some 415 high school music enthusiasts, ends tomorrow afternoon.

Kept 3 Children Hidden 11 Years From Landlords

TECUMSEH, Ont. (AP)—A mother told police she kept three of her six children hidden indoors for 11 years to keep landlords and friends from learning she had such a large family.

Police said the teen-age children, two girls and a boy, are retarded in growth. Hospital officials who treated them after their case was discovered Thursday night said they are "certainly in bad shape."

Authorities identified the youngsters as the children of Shirley Leach by a previous marriage. The boy, Gordon Dickerson, 15, stands only 3 feet 11 inches. His sister, Connie, 16, is also under-size, and the younger sister, Glenda, 13, appears unable to walk or talk properly.

They were allowed the freedom of their two-story frame house that they shared with 15 cats. They slept in a single bed. They had a playroom with toys, a TV set and were well-clothed. An older sister, now married and away from home, taught them reading, spelling and arithmetic.

The three other children, Donna, 22; Carol, 20; and Donna Veronica, 12, all led normal lives with outside contacts but never disclosed the family secret.

Police said the mother and her husband appeared relieved when the case was discovered. The mother said she had been bothered about the situation for some time but did not know what to do about it.

It began when the mother moved with her second husband from Detroit to neighboring Windsor.

May Not Allow U.S. Lawyers

MOSCOW (AP)—Sources today said U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers will not be allowed American lawyers when he goes on trial for espionage.

The trial opens Aug. 17 before a military made up of a judge advocate and two "assessors." Informed sources said the tribunal will be of the "first instance," meaning Powers probably can appeal any sentence to a higher court. Death is the maximum penalty for espionage.

Art Program For Civitan Club

Dr. Wellington Gray of the East Carolina College art department last night presented a modern art slide program to the Greenville Civitan Club.

Dr. Gray explained during the slide presentation the impressions the artists were attempting to convey in their paintings.

Guests of the club for the dinner meeting were Warren Whitehurst and Gene Gurganus.

Final plans were made for the Northeastern District Softball Tournament, sponsored by the club, to be held in Greenville next week.

The arriba, a Latin American measure of weight, is worth 25.32 pounds in Argentina and 32.38 pounds in neighboring Brazil.

Party Bolt Talk Muffled In South; No Place To Go

ATLANTA (AP)—Party bolt talk is muffled this year among Southerners seething over the strong civil rights stand taken in the national Democratic platform.

Elevator Dust . . .

"Then and only then bring in the old cleaver of the legal instrument," he continued. "Then if we have to go to the press we can learn: 1. We should be factual; 2. We should tell the whole truth; 3. We should avoid being ambiguous."

Webb referred to an interview with Mayor S. Eugene West which appeared in last Saturday's Daily Reflector. He said a reference to a feed mill operation was incorrect. He described as a grave error the mayor's allegation that the dust problem had been going on for four years.

Mayor West later exhibited a letter from the city written Dec. 5, 1956 concerning the corn shuck situation. He said the matter was taken care of and dropped.

He also exhibited a series of letters written in 1958 concerning the problem.

The mayor said that for a time the problem "did seem to slacken up."

Then last Thursday morning, Mayor West stated, he arrived at his construction company office in north Greenville, a little late.

"It looked like a light snow had fallen," he declared. "I spent the next hour and a half listening to complaints on the telephone."

West said he called members of the council, the health director and other officials to view the scene "so they had first hand knowledge of what had happened."

"I feel it is my responsibility as mayor of Greenville to try to look out for the welfare of all citizens and not just a few."

West told Webb, "I have a business over there and I am bothered just as much as these people but I haven't bothered you because of my position as mayor of Greenville."

"We appreciate the fact that you have a business in Greenville and wish you well. But we are going to give the fellow who lives over there consideration."

Reference to a legal paper apparently prepared before hand for the council consideration came up in the discussion.

City Attorney Recommendation
City Attorney R. B. Lee explained, "Every man has to use his property so as to not injure the property of another. That's the law."

He said of the legal paper, "This doesn't call for closing Mr. Webb down. It calls for abatement of a nuisance."

Lee advised the councilmen to take no immediate action in view of Webb's pledge to correct the situation.

Several Meadowbrook citizens and business operators spoke concerning the problem.

Buck Johnson, operator of Bright Leaf Motors presented the protesting petition.

"I want to assure you we are not trying to close up anybody. We are just asking for relief, that's all."

Councilman M. W. Aldridge offered the motion to table the complaint until some future date.

However, the council asked that city representatives meet with Webb and the Day Co. firm representative once his survey is completed. Webb said that would be agreeable with him.

Mayor West designated Councilman W. S. Stafford and City Manager Leonard Bloxam to do this.

Webb's letter to the city stated: "With reference to the alleged dust hazard our grain elevator operations, this is to insure that the operation will not be one that would constitute a hazard or nuisance to our neighbors."

"Specifically, we have instructed our elevator superintendent not to clean further corn containing high foreign material. In addition, we have asked the Day Co. of Minneapolis, specialists in dust control, to give us recommendations in what further, if anything, should be done to insure that our dust is not a problem. We plan to follow their recommendation."

"We are sincerely sorry that the exceptional incident of last week occurred."

There is no place for them to go. For the Republicans came along and adopted a plank on racial issues just as repulsive to the dissident Dixie politicians as that of their own party.

"Both platforms are equally obnoxious on civil rights," said Georgia's Gov. Ernest Vandiver, 42, a champion of continued segregation on all fronts and a critic of presidential nominee John F. Kennedy as being too liberal.

So the writhing Southerners are like a boy who may want to run away from home to end repeated spankings but knows that he will be walloped equally hard by foster parents. The Republicans offer no haven.

Charles J. Bloch, 66, Macon attorney who was one of Georgia's members on the Democratic Platform Committee and co-authored the minority report of 12 Southern states which sought futilely to water down the racial plank, summed it up:

"Certainly Georgia and the South can expect no comfort from the Republicans, nor from any candidate of the party which has in the past six years given us Chief Justice Warren, Attorneys General Brownell and Rogers, and associate justices who voted with the chief justice in the Little Rock and other so-called civil rights cases."

Only Mississippi is talking tough now. And the bolt talk of its leaders does not include consideration of a third party. They are thinking of unpledged electors and a light race which might throw the presidential election into the House of Representatives.

Mississippi will reconvene its state party convention Aug. 16 to map presidential strategy. Both Gov. Ross Barnett, 62, and Vandiver see the possibility that withholding of electoral votes might result in neither presidential candidate getting a majority in the Electoral College.

That, they say, would put the South in a position of being able to seek states rights concessions. Under a unique plan advanced by Vandiver, Georgians will vote two months ahead of the rest of the nation whether they want Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson for president and vice president.

State law provides for selection of unpledged electors at the Nov. 7 general election. But Vandiver and the state Democratic Executive Committee will place on the Sept. 14 party primary ballot the question of whether the voters want those electors to support the nominees or be unpledged.

"The electors will be morally bound to do what the 1,200,000 voters of Georgia say they want done," Vandiver said.

In neighboring South Carolina—where integration is fighting talk—the state Democratic convention will reconvene in August to decide what to do about the platform candidate situation. In 1948 South Carolina led a Southern bolt which resulted in Strom Thurmond carrying four states under the Dixiecrat banner.

Lake's Manager In Pitt Voices Surprise

Dr. K. B. Pace, Pitt County campaign chairman for Dr. I. Beverly Lake during the May and June Democratic primaries, told the Daily Reflector today he knows only what has been publicized about a bid to elect Lake governor in November through a write-in campaign.

The local retired physician, who stood solidly behind a vigorous Lake campaign here, said "The first I heard of it was yesterday. I was right much surprised. It sounds like they're trying to start something."

Talking by phone from Maxton where he is visiting a brother, Dr. Pace continued, "I don't know what's behind it. I don't have enough background on it to even have any opinion. And at the present time I don't have any opinion."

"I still think Dr. Lake is a capable man," he said, "but I'd like to know something else about this thing—what the ideas are, and so forth."

From Shelby yesterday came the announcement from the North Carolina Committee for Honest Leadership that the write-in campaign was being launched. Later in the day Lake told newsmen he would stick by a pledge he had signed against running for the office unless nominated.

According to the Raleigh News and Observer, Lake said he still intended to vote for the party's nominee—Terry Sanford.

Would Vote Lake
Dr. Pace indicated, should the opportunity materialize, he would "definitely vote for him (Dr. Lake)."

"This whole thing came from the clear blue sky to me, but I have not changed my opinion of the candidate we supported through the primaries," he said. He said his opinion of the write-in campaign attempt, however, was not yet formed "by any means."

"I'd want to get some more information from Dr. Lake himself before I could form my own opinion."

The Shelby announcement yesterday indicated the new campaign did not include the defeated candidate's "active campaigners" of the primaries.

The new campaign has opened state headquarters in Raleigh's Hotel Sir Walter.
