Vows Are Pledged

Miss Patricia Parker Congleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Elade Congleton of Stokes, became the bride of Julius David Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jule H. Adams of Greenville, in an informal ceremony of simplicity and dignity, solemnized Saturday, July 23, 1960, at four o'clock in the Stokes Christian Church.

MRS. JULIUS DAVID ADAMS

The Rev. Harold Tyer, pastor of the bride, officiated using the double-ring ceremony.

The vows were spoken before an altar with a background of palms and two seven-branched candelabra holding tall candles and stands of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and fern.

The couple knelt for the benediction on a prie-dieu holding a white satin pillow. The pews were marked with nosegays of white shasta mums tied with white satin bows.

A program of nuptial wedding music was rendered by Mrs. James Keel of Raleigh, pianist. The traditional wedding marches were used for the processional and recessional. Mrs. Jean Cannon of Greenville, soloist, sang "Because," "Whither Thou Goest," and "The Wedding Prayer" for benediction.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street length dress of white pima cotton batiste, deeply inserted with eyelet or-gandy. Her headband of pearl-tipped silk petals was attached to a short length veil of silk illusion.

Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with a purple-throated orchid tied with white satin streamers.

Mrs. Jimmy Tripp of Tarboro, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a pale pink street-length dress with matching headband and carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations tied with pink satin streamers.

The bridegroom had as his best man John David Cannon of Greenville. Ushers were Harold Mills and Lavons Austin, both of Greenville.

Mrs. Congleton wore for her daughter's wedding a light pink dress of cotton with eyelet lace insertion and white accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid. The bridegroom's mother chose a dress of light blue eyelet embroidery with matching hat and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Paul Calahan directed the wedding.

Following the ceremony, the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to the mountains of Western North Carolina and Tennessee after which they will reside in Greenville.

Mrs. Adams is a graduate of Stokes High School and attended East Carolina College. For some time she served as school secretary at Stokes and at present is em-

Auxiliary To Have Picnic August 10

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars made plans for its annual family picnic at its meeting on Thursday evening held in the home of Mrs. J. A. Joyner Jr.

The picnic will be on Wednesday, August 10, at Elm Street at 6:30 o'clock. All members of the auxiliary, the Post, their families and guests are invited to attend.

Mrs. C. B. West Jr., president of the local auxiliary, will represent the Department of North Carolina in her capacity as immediate past chaplain at the District Two meeting to be held in Kinston on Sunday, July 31. Mrs. J. A. Joyner Jr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brown will attend the meeting with Mrs. West as delegates from the local auxiliary.

Mrs. Ralph Bailey, chairman of the youth committee, reported that refreshments were served the participants of the Teen-League Tournament following the baseball game on Tuesday night.

A cash donation was authorized for the Veterans Hospital in Ocean for the use of five patients there. A donation was also made to the Department of North Carolina Hospital Fund for use in the VA hospitals in the state.

The Ladies Auxiliary sponsors a cancer fund from which a member may receive monetary aid. A contribution was made to this program.

Mrs. Ruth Garner was the recipient of the attendance prize. During the social hour, refreshments were served by Mrs. Joyner, hostess of the evening.

Cotton Is Star Attraction In Every Girl's Fall Wardrobe

RALEIGH—Cotton is the star attraction in every college and young career girl's wardrobe this fall of 1960. It's the answer to what to wear on every occasion and ranges from the most rugged of country attire to the most glamorous of evening wear.

Silhouettes remain looser — a trend which was important in the spring collections — and special emphasis is placed on the "bulky yet light" effect. Coats for rain or shine allow room for ease in wearability and capes and cape coats are extremely popular. These appear mainly in poplin, corduroy and velveteen.

For casual wear, pants, the all-time favorite still lead the field. Along with tight tapered pants which appear with tunic overblouses, culottes continue their whirlwind success and appear in lengths from a few inches above the knee to street length. These are found in cotton print, corduroy and quilted cotton and are worn with matching tops or as jumpers.

A big story this fall is knickers. They suddenly appear everywhere and are worn with matching vests, overblouses or jackets and sometimes have short button skirts covering them.

Day clothes continue a line of easy grace. Softly belted or sashed, the waistline is often slightly lowered and the look is simple. Suits and two and three piece ensembles are popular in cotton tweed, knits, suitings, and corduroy. Sheaths remain important but are found in a looser version and are worn with matching jackets.

For date and evening wear, cotton tulle and solid and printed velveteen are two of the most popular choices. The fluid line prevails and the waistline is definitely dropped and indicated in most cases by a lowered sashed belt. A trend noted at the collections is toward full-length skirts and culottes—an extremely elegant appearance. And the covered-up look is fast replacing the bare one.

Mrs. Pittman Honor Guest

Honor guest for a shower given in Winterville Saturday afternoon was Mrs. K. A. Pittman, until her recent marriage Mrs. Maude Baynor Poy of Kinston. Hostesses for the party were Mrs. "Doc" Worthington and Mrs. Elizabeth Jolly.

The Worthington residence was decorated with summer flowers. A miniature bride and groom within a large white satin wedding ring was centered on the living room mantel.

Receiving at the entrance were the hostesses and honoree. Amusing contests entertained guests prior to the serving of refreshments of bridal loaves which emphasized the bridal motif. Mrs. Pittman was served a bridal couple, molds of wedding bells and bridal slippers being served other guests. Gifts were opened and displayed. Approximately 40 guests from Kinston, Ayden and Winterville attended.

Social Notes

Mrs. Ann Beckmann and sisters, Ethel and Loretta, of Hempstead, N. Y. were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Holmes of Ayden.

Mrs. Clara Adams and Miss Judy Adams left Sunday for Formosa, Kansas. They will be joined there by William H. Adams of Riverside, Calif., who on August 7 will wed Miss Bernita Stafford. Miss Adams will be an attendant in the wedding. While there, the Adamses will be houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew L. Stafford.

Economy Note

In the midst of the splendor and luxury of a $150-per-plate "April in Paris Ball," New York City's most lavish charity affair, one economy note was spotted.

The washable red velvet tablecloths from the 1959 ball had been laundered and returned to the tables for an encore appearance!

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank all my friends for the lovely flowers, get-well cards, and visits while in the hospital. And since coming home, thanks for the visits, trays and flowers.

God bless you, each one.

Miss Upchurch Given Buffet Supper By Bridesmaids Recently

CHAPEL HILL—Miss Sarah Upchurch of Greenville, bride-elect of this month, was honored Thursday evening at a buffet supper given by her chosen bridesmaids, Mrs. Bob Farmer, Miss Sally Beard and Miss Sylvia Bonner, at Miss Bonner's apartment in Chapel Hill.

Upon arrival, the guests were served appetizers of melon balls and grapes on frosted fig leaves. This was followed by a main course of country ham, tomatoes stuffed with chicken salad, buttered corn-on-the-cob, hot rolls and ice tea.

The dessert course consisted of orange sherbet and individual party cakes decorated with miniature bridesmaids' hats.

The honoree was presented a corsage of white Fuji mums and silver in her chosen pattern.

Out-of-town guests present were Mrs. Percy B. Upchurch, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. W. S. Bonner of Greenville, and Miss Helen Dunlop of Durham.

Other guests were Miss Edith Cavenish, Miss Vicki Lambeth, and Miss Betty Karnsak.

A Guide For Women's News

(Editor's Note: In order to clarify and standardize Reflector policies on the handling of social page news, the following standards have been set by the Women's Editor.)

Deadline for the Women's Department is 10 a.m. All material such as club activities and social happenings must be in by 10 a.m. in order to appear in that day's edition, if the page space is not limited.

Social notes, births and calendar additions will be accepted over the telephone prior to the morning deadline. All parties and other write-ups must be phoned in during the afternoon or either written and mailed to the Daily Reflector, Women's Dept. The department hours are from 8:30 a.m. 'til 4:30 p.m.

The Women's Department reserves the right to edit all stories to appear on the women's pages. Engagement and wedding pictures should be glossy, 5" x 7". They will be held two weeks after publication.

It is preferred that all wedding information and wedding pictures be in the office three days prior to the ceremony, unless other arrangements have been made with the Women's Editor. Parties given bridal couples prior to their marriage must appear in the paper before the wedding write-up or with the wedding publication.

Wedding write-ups brought in a week late or later will be edited according to the diminishing news value.

Bride-To-Be Jane Bullock Is Honoree At Shower Party

BETHEL—On Thursday morning Miss Jane Bullock was honored at an informal hour and shower in the home of Mrs. J. H. Andrews.

Guests were introduced by Mrs. John Mayo Jr. to the receiving line composed of Miss Jane Bullock, her mother, Mrs. J. M. Bullock of Stokes; Mrs. Willie Barnhill, mother of the groom; and two brides-elect, Miss Shirley Whitehurst, Miss Shirley Hardy and her mother, Mrs. Dennis Hardy.

On arrival the honoree was presented a corsage of white french carnations. The brides-elect and their mothers were presented corsages of pink gladioli.

Mrs. F. E. Price greeted the guests on the porch. Mrs. C. E. Brown received their gifts.

Mrs. B. F. Manning Sr. directed them to the dining room, where each guest was served from an appointed table. Mrs. W. E. Andrews served the bottled drinks from a separate table. The guests were then shown to seats by Mrs. Frances Rowlette, Mrs. H. L. Rives, and Mrs. J. P. Harris Sr. After refreshments, a bride's basket filled with gifts was placed before the honoree.

Miss Whitehurst and Miss Hardy were presented gifts of silver by the hostesses.

The lower floor was decorated throughout with mixed flowers.

The dining room was decorated in pink and white with fern.

The dining room table was covered with a white cutwork linen cloth. Featured in the center of the table was a silver candelabra filled with white tapers and a pink and white gilded nosegay.

On either end was a miniature bride and groom and miniature wedding bands.

On the buffet was an arrangement of white gilded gladioli, pom poms, dahlias with fern.

The hostesses assisting Mrs. Andrews were Mrs. C. E. Brown, Mrs. W. E. Andrews, Mrs. N. G. Beverly Jr., Mrs. J. P. Harris Sr., Mrs. W. M. Mizelle, Mrs. John Mayo Jr., Mrs. B. F. Manning Sr., Mrs. H. L. Rives, and Mrs. F. E. Price.

Goodbyes were said by Mrs. J. H. Andrews and Mrs. N. G. Beverly Jr. to approximately 85 guests.

August Bride Given Dessert Bridge Party

Bride of August 13th, Miss Cynthia Cranford, was honored Friday evening at a dessert-bridge party by Mrs. Polly Dall at her home on Evans St.

A yellow Fuji mum corsage was presented the honoree upon her arrival by the hostess.

Parfait refreshments with frosted fruit, assorted sherbert, and lemon cake were served. As the games progressed, drinks with nuts were served.

The game rooms were decorated with Fuji mums, tritomes, Garza mums and white water lilies. High score prize, a hot bun napkin, was won by Miss Cranford, and low score went to Miss Jane Perkins, a wrought iron trivet.

The hostess' gift to the honoree was a set of Thermo-Temp insulated tumblers.

Miss Cranford will wed Dickie Haar in the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church on August 13th.

Have Clean Sheets—Will Travel!

You will rate as "houseguest of the year" if you volunteer to bring along your own freshly laundered bed linens and towels when visiting a friend's beach house or summer cottage.

This is particularly important when an entire family accepts overnight or weekend hospitality. Sometimes even the most hospitable households just aren't equipped to supply the mountain of clean linen required for the occasion.

Here's How To Avoid A "Hot Foot"

Stockings are a boon to hot feet, according to the New York Hospital for Special Surgery, because they absorb heat. That's why it's important to wear stockings even during intense heat waves.

Of course, it's equally important to studs all hosiery soon after every wearing.

Democrats Say Nixon Lacking Convictions On Farm Problem

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy today released a statement signed by five Democratic Midwestern governors and three Democratic senators accusing Vice President Richard M. Nixon of a "lack of basic conviction" on farm aid and other issues.

The statement was signed by Govs. Herschel C. Loveless of Iowa, George Docking of Kansas, Ralph Herseth of South Dakota, Gaylord A. Nelson of Wisconsin and Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota; and Sens. Quentin Burdick of North Dakota, William Proxmire of Wisconsin and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

The statement likened Nixon's break with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson to a political captain leaving the sinking ship.

"Vice President Nixon—a member of the Eisenhower administration team for the past 7½ years—in the short span of 38 hours since his nomination has repudiated two key parts of that administration's program," the statement said.

"This is just the first evidence of his lack of basic conviction on the issues to which Gov. (Nelson A.) Rockefeller alluded so eloquently before the midnight confrontation in New York."

The reference was to a midnight conference between Nixon and Rockefeller at which they agreed on provisions of the Republican platform.

The statement from the Midwesterners charged that Nixon up to now has "wholeheartedly subscribed" to Benson's farm policies but in a sudden switch has repudiated him.

"Those in the farm belt are acutely aware of the failures of the Republican policy on agriculture, a policy to which Vice President Nixon has wholeheartedly subscribed until yesterday," the statement said.

It quoted Nixon as having said in a 1954 speech in Des Moines, Iowa, that history would record Benson as "one of the best secretaries of agriculture in our history" and as a friend of the farmer.

It said he also spoke out in support and praise of Benson in Rapid City, S.D., in 1956, and quoted Benson himself as claiming in 1957 that he had "every evidence of the support of the vice president."

The statement was released through Kennedy's press office. Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, in reply to a question, said the statement was drafted "by people connected with the Kennedy campaign," and then submitted to the five governors and three senators for their approval, and signatures.

Salinger said Kennedy had invited Gov. Loveless to come here Thursday for talks on farm policy. Kennedy declined to comment on reports Loveless might become secretary of agriculture if Kennedy is elected president.

College Chapel Awaits Money

Merchant Helps Snare Murderer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A small town merchant's interest in FBI "wanted circulars" led to the jailing of one of the nation's 10 most wanted criminals, an escaped murderer who lived quietly as a farm laborer.

Smith Gerald Hudson, 32, a convicted Pennsylvania killer, was brought to Omaha Sunday night and jailed to await arrival of Pennsylvania authorities.

Hudson was arrested early Sunday in the small house he occupied on the Carl Hueftel farm near Cozad, Neb. Taken before a U.S. commissioner, he waived preliminary hearing and was held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Hudson, who used an alias of Gerald Bennett, refused at first to make a statement. Later he told of falling in love and embracing Christ "for the first time in my life."

Glendon Maline, operator of a chain store at Cozad, looked over some FBI circulars last week and spotted a picture that looked familiar. He thought it was Bennett, with whom he did business, and it was.

Hudson escaped from the Pennsylvania State Penitentiary at Bellefonte Aug. 2, 1957 after "I had served six years of a 10-20 year term and had only four to go."

"All the time I never had a card or letter or visit from my sisters and brothers. I just got disgusted and walked away."

He was sent to prison for the 1951 shotgun murder of an acquaintance, John Ferguson, in Fayette County, Pa. The FBI said Hudson started his career with a series of auto thefts at the age of 16 and was free on bond on a charge of involuntary manslaughter when Ferguson was killed.

Set October As Polaris Deadline

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Navy has set October as the operational deadline for its Polaris missile system.

The first combat-ready Polaris submarine may go to sea sooner if the test program continues to progress as well as it has in recent weeks.

This was hinted by project officials hailing the third straight successful underwater launching from the nuclear submarine George Washington.

The submarine unleashed another squat missile from beneath the waves 30 miles off Cape Canaveral Saturday. It hit a target area 1,100 miles away.

The George Washington and Patrick Henry, first of a hoped-for fleet of 45 Polaris subs, are scheduled to go on patrol by the end of the year. Each will carry 16 missiles capable of raining nuclear destruction on targets up to 1,380 miles away.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration continued to search for a clue to the failure of the first test of a production-model Project Mercury capsule. The test to subject the capsule to severe re-entry conditions ended 65 seconds after launch last Friday when the Atlas booster exploded.

Chunks of the capsule and rocket were retrieved from the Atlantic five miles offshore. Technicians are piecing them together in an effort to learn the cause of the blowup.

Report Drop In Farm Receipts

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Crop Reporting Service says cash receipts from the state's farm marketings last year dropped 3.8 per cent below the 1958 total.

The service reported over the weekend that sale of all farm commodities in 1959 amounted to more than 968 million dollars as against slightly over a billion the previous year.

Crop receipts were down 23 million below 1958 and livestock receipts were down 15 million. Tobacco sales brought more than 420 million, a decline of about 18 million below 1958.

A campus chapel for East Carolina College, long under consideration by college officials, may be under construction in the near future if necessary financial support is secured, President Leo W. Jenkins announced.

The tentative plans call for a chapel costing an estimated $350,000 to be built on the mall in the center of the campus, the only available space for such a project.

It is hoped that funds for the project can be secured from students and friends of the college, Jenkins said. State funds are not available for this project. Plans to finance the chapel include selling individual bricks for $10 each through individual sources, the donor being registered in a permanent book to remain in the vestibule of the proposed chapel.

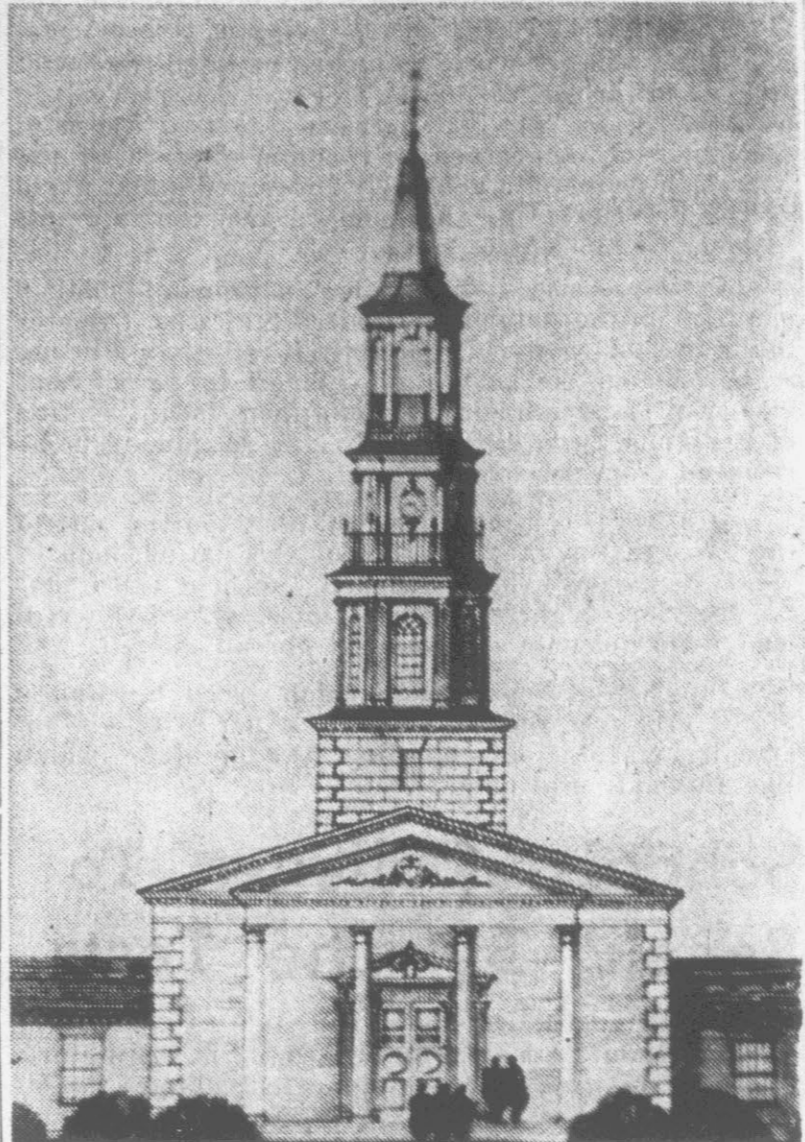

Some donations have been received already, Jenkins said. He added, discussing construction, "We would like to start as soon as we get the money."

Jenkins said the chapel would be "a great unifying fact in terms of the religious life on the campus." The chapel, which would be interdenominational, would be used for regular chapel services during the week as well as for programs and speakers of a religious nature.

Jenkins noted that "on some campuses, the religious life revolves around the campus chapel." He added that after graduation students return and are sometimes married in these chapels. The chapel would seat about 500 people and would include offices and other rooms, Jenkins said, according to proposed plans. The building will be constructed of brick. An office for the director of religious activities will also be located in the building.

For years, the weekly services have been conducted in Austin Auditorium.

A CAMPUS CHAPEL . . . may be erected on the East Carolina College campus in the near future through financial backing from students and the interested public.

Demo Rally Set For August 9 In Arena At Raleigh

RALEIGH (AP)—A Democratic rally urging straight ticket voting will be held here Aug. 9 with top leaders, officials and candidates on hand.

The pep talks, scheduled for the State Fair Arena, will come after a meeting of the state's Democratic Executive Committee.

To be honored at the rally are the party's members and nominees to Congress, State Supreme Court members, the Council of State and nominees to General Assembly.

Gubernatorial nominee Terry Sanford will be one of several sponsors of a luncheon to be held before the rally. Others include Paul H. Thompson, Democratic national committeeman, H. Cloyd Philpott, nominee for lieutenant governor and incumbent Sen. B Everett Jordan, up for re-election to a full six-year term.

Special recognition will go to Gov. Hodges, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. and Party Chairman Woodrow W. Jones.

Needed A Posse To Shoot Cow

DETROIT (AP)—Rounding up a lone spooked cow proved too tough for the farmers of western Wayne County. They had to shoot him. It took a posse to do the job.

The steer arrived at the Bertram Barr farm near Romulus two months ago. He knocked down his new owner, jumped off a truck crashed through a barbed wire fence and headed for the woods.

The last roundup came Sunday. Sydney is a city in New South Wales, Australia. It forms a fine harbor with Port Jackson.

Ohio Community Going On A 'Tremendous Toot'

TELL CITY, Ind. (AP)—With boilers stoked to a full head of steam, this Ohio River community goes on a tremendous toot tonight.

Sponsors of the community's annual Schweizer Fest have arranged a unique "grand steam whistle concert" of 33 genuine steam whistles collected from factories, museums and private owners in a half-dozen states.

Bootleg Charges Facing Woman

CARRIE WILLIAMS, 56-year-old Negro of 215 Wade St., was released under a $250 bond for appearance in Greenville Recorder's Court August 8, after being charged with possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale, by Pitt County ABC officers Saturday.

According to the officers, a gallon and two pints of illicit booze was found in traps in her home when a search was made of the premises.

Officers noted that the woman has a record of three previous arrests on liquor law violation charges.

Hints Stress On Missile Subs

MOSCOW (AP)—The commander of the Soviet navy hinted Sunday that his forces—like the U.S. Navy—are concentrating on missile subs fired from submarines.

Adm. Sergei Gorshkov, in a broadcast statement marking Navy Day, hailed the Soviet Union's big submarine fleet as the major weapon for modern naval warfare.

Gets No Refund In Losing Emma

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—A note has been pinned to one page in the marriage license record book in the office of County Recorder John G. Utz. It reads: "phoned. He said Emma would not marry him."

Utz says he pinned the note to the record to show why the license date was not complete. He adds there would be no refund to the man who lost Emma.

Claims Kluxers Threatened Life

MONROE, N. C. (AP)—Mrs. Robert F. Williams, wife of the president of the Union County chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, says her life was threatened July 23, the night of a Ku Klux Klan rally here.

Mrs. Williams, 28, told police a man telephoned and "threatened to come over and kill all of us." Police sent squad cars to patrol the area. Police said Sunday no further incidents were reported.

Mrs. Williams, who is secretary of the NAACP chapter, said her husband answered the telephone. She said the man first asked for her husband. Williams was not at home.

She said the KKK held a rally Saturday night, July 23, and that a number of cars drove by her house, many of them with South Carolina and Georgia license plates.

Mrs. Williams said friends patrolled her home during the night. Williams is in Havana, Cuba. Mrs. Williams said her husband is there "to see for himself what the revolution is."

Williams was suspended for six months as president of the NAACP chapter May 6, 1959, by Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary. The suspension stemmed from publication of remarks Williams made advocating that Negroes "meet violence with violence."

BAN REMOVED

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Military authorities today lifted a two-week-old ban on the Communist party paper Harijan Rakjat. The ban was imposed because the paper printed the party's lengthy criticism of President Sukarno's guided democracy cabinet.

College Official On Reserve Duty

Dr. Ralph F. W. Brimley, director of extension and public relations at East Carolina College, begins a two-week tour of duty at the Commanding General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Monday, August 1.

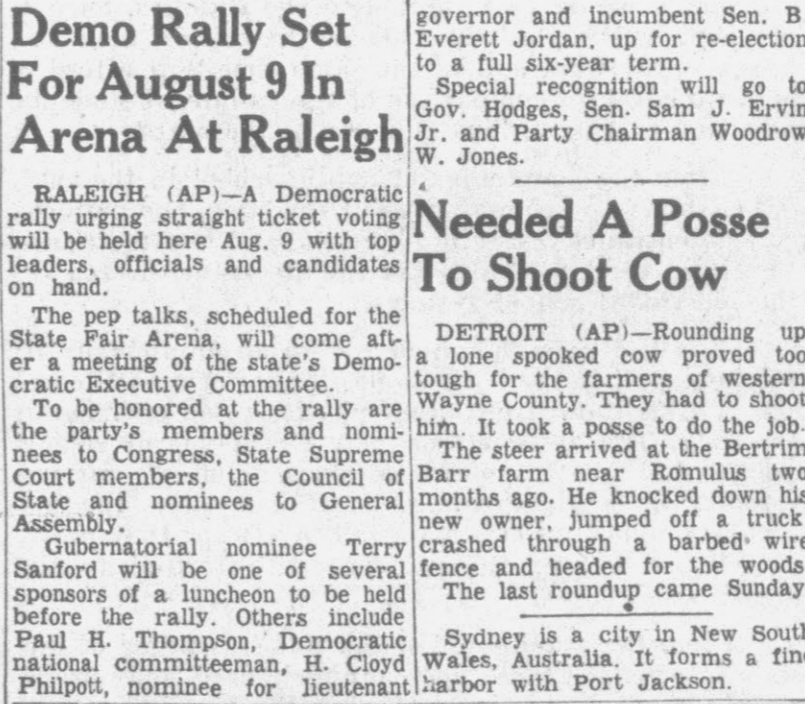

Dr. Brimley holds a commission as major in the U. S. Army officers reserve, having been promoted to this rank a few months ago.

Dr. Brimley served in Washington, D. C., during World War II as a captain in the Armored Division and later in Ordnance. He was chief of the reconditioning branch of Walter Reed Hospital in Washington when he was separated from the U. S. Army at the end of the war.

Greater Stress On Foreign Affairs

Will the issues of international affairs overshadow the domestic problems of the United States in the forthcoming presidential campaign?

In recent years presidential campaigns have been fought primarily on domestic issues with the matter of international affairs playing a less important role in the quest for voter approval. This year, however, signs at the outset of the campaign point to greater emphasis on the role of this nation in international affairs with domestic issues, while important, taking a somewhat secondary place in the campaign.

The acceptance speech of Vice President Nixon was weighed heavily with the importance of the United States assuming a more forceful position in the framing of world events. The fact that the GOP nominee picked Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador to the United Nations, as his running mate suggests that international affairs will be a key point in the Republican bid for voter support.

While Sen. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, has so far made a pitch which is more nearly balanced between domestic and international issues, it appears that even in the Democratic campaign international affairs may be accorded the paramount position. Certainly the address of the keynote speaker at the Democratic convention set the stage for such a position the United States must take in the changing world. There can be no doubt that the keynote address reflected the course the party leaders had decided to follow in the campaign.

In recent years, as the world has developed into an increasingly closer community of nations, the people of the United States have become considerably more interested in international affairs. To a greater degree than at any other time in history, Americans have come to realize that events in Cuba, the Congo, Asia, Europe, the Middle East and every other part of the globe vitally influence the well being of this nation.

The battle for world influence between the Soviet Union and the leaders of the free world is recognized as a battle for survival between the two powerful ideologies of democracy and communism. That the American people are genuinely concerned about world affairs is reflected by the domestic reaction to events in every section of the globe.

Perhaps these things reflect a growing political maturity on the part of the United States as it relates to the rest of the world. Certainly it reflects a growing realization on the part of the American people that we can no longer ignore what happens in any section of the globe regardless of how far it appears to be removed from us.

It also reflects a growing maturity on the part of the two great political parties of this nation, both of which apparently have reached the conclusion that the nation's highest officials must afford forceful leadership not only at home, but abroad as well.

International problems which face the United States are now regarded as on a par with—if not actually more important—than the problems which face this nation at home.

Schools, Colleges To Benefit By The Tests

Public school systems of the state as well as the colleges should benefit from the uniform testing program of applicants to state-supported colleges recently adopted by the State Board of Higher Education.

In requiring state-supported colleges to administer the uniform tests to all applicants beginning in the fall of 1961, the Board of Higher Education left it to each individual college to determine how much weight should be attached to the tests in determining which applicants would be admitted to the colleges. Such a provision will afford the colleges leeway in their admission programs, and at the same time will afford a uniform basis for comparison of the calibre of students admitted to the various colleges in the state.

From the standpoint of public school in the various counties and communities of the state, the uniform college entrance test will afford at least one more factor to be used in evaluating the program offered by the individual school systems.

It will give each school system an opportunity to see how well its students do on the uniform tests compared with those from other public school systems in the state. The uniform tests may well point up strong points and weak points in curriculum of various schools. By evaluating results of the tests, the individual school systems may well take steps to improve the calibre of preparatory education afforded its students.

From the standpoint of the public schools of the state as a whole, these tests, properly used, may prove an important factor in improving the level of public education throughout North Carolina. They will afford each community another method of measuring how well its youngsters stack up scholastically with those who are graduating from high schools in other communities throughout North Carolina.

A 'Miracle' In That $1 Billion

By RALPH ROBEY
We have just witnessed what properly may be called a financial "miracle" in connection with the federal budget.

Last January it was estimated that the budget for fiscal year ending June 30 would end up with a surplus of $200 million. Although that was a Budget Bureau forecast, and although there was only a little over five more months to go, it appeared that the figure was on the generous side. The next news we had was that corporate income tax payments would be down sharply, perhaps by half a billion dollars. That meant, should it prove to be true, that the fiscal year would result in a deficit. Now we have the final accounting for the year, and it shows a surplus of $1.1 billion.

The figures on this budget showing have been widely publicized and we do not propose to repeat them here. None the less, there are a few items which deserve emphasis.

First, the forecast on corporate income tax payments was wrong only in the sense that the decline was even larger than anticipated in the statement of a few months ago. In fact, revenues as a whole were below the January estimate.

Second, the surplus was not the result of reducing military spending. This item was up a quarter of a billion dollars from the January estimate, and at $4.2 billion was almost identical with military expenditures in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1959.

Third, the total spending was $3.4 billion below the 1959 level and the reduction, except for the military, was scattered pretty well across the board.

decline in agricultural expenditures. That came about because farmers did not make as heavy demands upon the government as anticipated, and had they made the demands there would have been no alternative under the present laws but to make larger payments.

The substantial drop in interest payments on the public debt also was not because the Treasury did or did not do anything. It was the result of the decline of interest rates in the open market.

But, in general, it is accurate to say that the surplus is the result of our having a prudent administration—an administration which is not only interested, but determined, to spend no more than necessary. Of course the Administration was not completely successful in this effort. There is, and probably always will be, waste of enormous proportions in our federal spending.

At least in the past fiscal year, however, there was some needless spending eliminated, and for that we should all be thankful.

It would be encouraging almost beyond words if we could believe that an equally good record would be made in the current fiscal year. At the moment it does not appear that is probable. Already a needless and quite unjustified $700 million has been added for increased pay to government workers, and no one can know what will happen in the presumed brief session when the Congress reconvenes. We do know, however, that there are some enormous spending proposals on the docket, and back of that is a Democratic platform which, if enacted, would cost billions.

The one great point to bear in mind is that there is no economic necessity for spending this year to be above that of the fiscal period just ended. Some categories may need more, but other items can be reduced by more than enough to take care of these increases.

Proprieties Of Politics

Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Every human activity has its rules and regulations. Some are simple, such as the propriety of eating with a fork; some are very complicated like the complex proprieties of family life.

Politics is, of course, a science. It is the science of controlling men's minds and wills. It is also a way of life for those who engage in it actively. The first rule of a really successful politician is that "his finger is always good." This term comes from auctioneering, in the course of which a man raises his finger and that closes a transaction which might involve large sums. The "finger" is an inviolable contract. Whoever breaks it once is never trusted again.

This must be true of the politician. Once he gives his word, there is no turning on it or he is a dead man politically. The politician also must have a long memory. He cannot pretend that he has forgotten. He cannot deny that he has given his word. He dare not lie to one of equal rank with himself. These are the proprieties of the game. Every form of social existence has its proprieties. They may not be violated.

The reason, for instance, that a man like James A. Farley, who has long been inactive in politics, is still of importance and still stands out as a figure in national conventions, is that he has the reputation of never having broken faith with any man, of having lived up to his promises and of having quit over a principle and not as the result of a personal row. This rule applies to every man who wants to succeed in politics. His greatest crime is to go back on his word.

Politicians of the two parties do not hate each other usually. Sometimes they are even very close friends, as, for instance, Joe Martin and Sam Rayburn always have been. General Eisenhower was amateurish when he snubbed President Truman on Inauguration Day — no pro ever cares what an opponent says about him; that is all part of the great game of politics. Harry Truman appointed President Hoover to a very honorable position and they attacked Hoover's reputation. They have remained close friends.

Were it otherwise, these men of different parties and diverse views would not work together. They have to work together in governors' conferences, in the Senate, in the House of Representatives, on committees. Therefore, there are proprieties and etiquettes which must be adhered to, even in debate. Such Senators as Huey Long and Joseph McCarthy sometimes, in the heat of debate, forgot the proprieties and it cost them dearly. Lyndon Johnson, the Democratic leader, and Everett Dirksen, the Republican leader in the Senate, never forgot the proprieties and they managed to put through legislative programs in the national interest, despite vast differences of opinion.

The maverick in politics often does not understand the proprieties and he is shocked when he gets hurt. This happened to Nelson Rockefeller who put his faith in speech writers and public relations men rather than in those who understand both the science and art of politics. John Kennedy set up one of the most competent and effective political organizations ever seen—surely since the days of Mark Hanna. Richard Nixon has proved to be astute and sure-footed. He is probably the most brilliant political strategist of recent years. Wendell Wilkie did not understand politics at all; he messed up his own show. Thomas E. Dewey is a smart politician, but fails to make people like him. Perhaps he is too cagey.

I have been close to many political figures in several countries. The best operator I ever

Other Editors Saying Lodge A Logical Choice

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Richard Nixon's choice of Henry Cabot Lodge as his running mate on the Republican ticket must be regarded as astute as Sen. John Kennedy's selection of Sen. Lyndon Johnson for the Democratic ticket. This is true for two reasons. First, Lodge, as possibly no other man in the Republican party, is a national figure. He has gained a reputation through his position as U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations. And second, Lodge fits perfectly into the strategy of placing major campaign emphasis on foreign affairs which Nixon is expected to follow.

In truth, there is still a third reason why Nixon should prefer Lodge over some of the other prominent Republican prospects. Lodge is from Massachusetts, the home state of Kennedy, and that fact is expected to help counter some of Kennedy's influence in New England and the Northern tier of states. Lodge, like Kennedy, comes from an old, wealthy, leading New England family. His people have been in government service for years.

Obviously, Nixon's reasoning went something like this. So long as Kennedy has strengthened his position in the South with his selection his position in the South with his selection of Johnson then the GOP position must be strengthened likewise in other areas. What more logical move than seeking out a man from his opponent's own state? Such a move could be expected to divide the loyalties of New England—even of powerful New York—in a manner calculated to weaken Kennedy's position in that area.

Sen. Kennedy himself, in commenting on Lodge's selection, predicted a tough battle in the coming campaign. He recognizes the respect and influence a man of Lodge's stature possesses in the heavily-populated Northeast. Too, Lodge is older than Nixon, just as Johnson is older than Kennedy, a fact that lends an air of maturity and experience to a pair of men whom many regard as mighty young in years to be aspiring to such a high office.

Of one thing we can be sure: Lodge is tough with the Russians, he has had almost eight years experience in the field of international relations, a quality that in these days must be regarded as extremely valuable, for whether we admit it or not, foreign affairs and national defense are the two major issues of this campaign.

True, there are side issues, such as agriculture problems and civil rights, but in comparison with the grave problem of encroaching international communism, these issues on the domestic side appear to diminish in significance. The Kremlin has expressed its bitterness over the selection of Richard Nixon—with good reason. It remembers him as the man who stood toe to toe with Nikita Khrushchev last year in Moscow and slugged it out with him in a verbal hassle. We can well imagine what their reaction will be to Lodge's selection as a running mate. Lodge has called for bluff at every turn in every major clash with the Russians in the United Nations over a wide variety of issues. Lodge is a man who knows his Russians—and how to deal with them.

Time To Review Requirements

By ELMER ROESSNER

This August is a good month for employers and their personnel executives to review present and future requirements. They may now have an opportunity that will not recur for many months or possibly for several years.

These are the basics: 1. Unemployment is high. Mid-June unemployment was 4,423,000, up a million in a month. July figures may show some, but not much, improvement. While the figures may include many agricultural workers and also includes some talented white-collar workers. Note that the May-June rise a year ago was only 600,000, which indicates that a large part of the current increase is not seasonal workers.

2. Included in the total are many high school and college grads thrust on the labor market. Many of them are skilled and talented. Some are competing for jobs with older workers, making more of these older workers available. In this frame of reference, an "older worker" can be anyone from mid-twenties to early sixties.

ON PRACTICAL BASIS 3. To get away from theory: employment agencies in most cities have stepped up solicitations for jobs. A year ago, many agencies were advertising only for applicants. Today, they are advertising more heavily for openings.

A year ago, one company was struggling to find a secretary who could spell and type reasonably well and succeeded in finding only a fresh graduate of a business college. Seeking another secretary today it has interviewed a parade of skilled girls, half of whom have college backgrounds.

4. Many employees on administrative and executive levels have become doubtful about long-term prospects of their concerns and will listen to offers of jobs.

WHAT TO DO

Under these circumstances, it may profit many managements to re-examine present personnel efficiency, and to review requirements for the rest of this year and 1961. They may find it better to make replacements now than in a tight labor market later. They may find it expedient to recruit now for expansion in the fall. They may find good material with which to fill gaps in present organizational charts.

It may also be an excellent time to hire talent for new projects: to assemble teams to launch a new product, to establish a new section, or to mount new campaigns.

Time is relatively short. The "after Labor Day" pick up, which now begins some time before Labor Day, will absorb many of the nonfarm unemployed. In addition, many personnel departments are aware of the facts noted in paragraphs No. 1, 2, 3 and 4, and are already beginning to screen people for fall em-

Prices Of The Future

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Now that fears of further drastic price inflation in the U.S. appear to have temporarily subsided, this is an opportune time to check the over-all situation with regard to wholesale commodity prices. I also venture a forecast on the outlook for a few selected groups.

RECORD OF THE INDEXES

Although commodity prices as a whole are at a relatively high level, it is interesting to note that very little of this price inflation has occurred during the past two or three years. The Bureau of Labor's overall price index recently stood at 119.5, compared with 119.7 a year ago, 119.2 two years ago, and 117.4 in June 1957. Industrial prices also have been fairly stable, the 1960 June average of 128.2 comparing with 128.2 a year ago, 125.3 two years ago, and 125.2 for June 1957. Farm products prices are slightly under the year-ago level.

Despite the over-all price stability of the past several years, there have been wide shifts up and down in prices of many individual commodities. I expect such shifts to continue. Hence, it is vitally important to buyers and sellers to study and appraise the supply-demand ratios prevailing, or likely to prevail, in individual items. These ratios will largely determine price action of group members, whichever way the group itself may be moving.

INDUSTRIALS AND METALS

I see nothing in the near-term picture, barring war, that could exert strong upward pressure on prices of industrial commodities. Supplies, for the most part, will easily suffice for requirements in the months ahead. However, allowance must be made for higher wage and transportation costs, not all of which can be absorbed by producers.

Under the circumstances, I forecast moderately higher prices for industrial commodities sometime before the year is out. Outstanding in the metals group is the fact that supplies, in almost all instances, are easily ample for prospective near term requirements. Thus, a sustained price rise over the immediate future is unlikely. A fall pickup in business, and especially automobile production, could increase over-all demand for metals; but such an increase may not mature. The steel makers, however, face higher wage costs on December 1, and may have to pass a part of them along.

FARM PRODUCTS, CATTLE AND HOGS

Some supply stringency is indicated in a few near-crop canned vegetables, particularly corn and peas. This could mean higher prices. Generally large plantings of feed and food grains last spring point to a sizable total output, but serious crop damage. The new crops, plus generally big carryovers, should exert downward pressure on prices of most farm products over near-term months.

Prices of feed cattle may weaken further, owing to sizable marketings, but should recover moderately later in the summer. With pasture conditions generally good, ranchers are in no hurry to sell feeder cattle, but I forecast rather heavy runs by late summer or early fall, with some price weakness. Hog prices are working up to a summer peak — perhaps around $20 per cwt. The next broad move should be downward, though the fall or early winter low should be above that of a year ago.

MORE INFLATION AHEAD?

Despite the over-all price stability of the past few years, the issue of further inflation is by no means a dead duck. Should the Democrats win the forthcoming national election, the groundwork for further price inflation will have been laid. If the Republicans should win, inflation might be held in abeyance. In either case, a small Korean-type war would be inflationary. In conclusion, on the basis of available statistics I see little in the near-term picture pointing to further general price increases. Supplies for the most part are ample, and productive capacity in many instances is excessive. Such conditions are now not conducive to a price spiral in either the metals or farm products. But war or certain sudden deaths could quickly change the outlook.

Post-Election Mob Rioting Campaign Will Air Foreign Policy Problems Spreading In South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—Post-election mob violence and rioting spread in South Korea today. About 100 persons, most of them police, have been injured and 322 arrested.

Unconfirmed reports said two persons have been killed.

Caretaker Prime Minister Huh Chung accused politicians of instigating the mobs, in which students took a big part. National Police Chief Kang Sur-ryong blamed losing candidates and their political workers.

Troops fired tear gas shells to drive off 300 demonstrators who invaded a vote-counting station and burned 45 ballot boxes at Narwon, 150 miles south of Seoul. At least 10 of the demonstrators were reported injured. They blamed fraudulent vote counting for the election of a member of the victorious Democratic party.

In six election districts the targets were members or former members of ex-President Syngman Rhee's Liberal party who made strong showings in the parliamentary election Friday despite the general disrepute in which the party fell after Rhee's overthrow.

A mob of 5,000 at Sam Chon Po, 200 miles south of Seoul, wrecked the police station and the police chief's home, demanding that an ex-Liberal candidate be turned over to a kangaroo court to face vote-buying charges.

The candidate had been under police protection since Saturday, when he was rescued from a vigilante mob that beat him and his campaign worker and paraded the candidate through the streets wearing a sign saying "I am sorry I got rich on money embezzled from the people."

Mobs at Honchon, 70 miles east of Seoul, and Unsong, 70 miles southeast of Seoul, wrecked the homes of campaign workers for ex-Liberals who won re-election to the House of Representatives.

In two areas mobs surrounded police stations and demanded the release of demonstrators arrested earlier.

Disturbances were reported in 17 election districts.

Major newspapers urged stern measures to restore order. A number condemned Huh Chung's government for allowing "counter-revolutionary" Liberal candidates to run in the election. The prime minister promised punishment for those responsible for the violence.

Former Vice President John M. Chang's Democratic party, which won two-thirds of the seats in the House of Representatives, also pulled far ahead in counting of returns for the less powerful, 58-member upper House of Councilors. Counting was expected to be completed Tuesday.

Returns for the 233-member lower house were incomplete because of burned ballot boxes and suspended counts in some districts, but the Democrats won 174 seats. New elections were ordered in 11 districts.

The Democrats thus were sure of electing the new prime minister and the figurehead president when the new Parliament meets.

Editors' Note — in a world of crisis and change, few issues will be aired more thoroughly in the coming presidential campaign than foreign policy. How do the candidates stack up in this crucial field? First of five articles on the major issues confronting Nixon and Kennedy.

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's press secretary recently handed newsmen an imposing list of world leaders with whom Nixon has talked, at home and abroad.

Included, of course, was Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, Nixon's opponent in the much-publicized "kitchen debate" in Moscow, as well as leaders of virtually every other important nation.

News secretary Herbert G. Klein left it up to the reporters to draw their own conclusions as to the importance of such a broad acquaintance in the forthcoming presidential campaign — a campaign in which foreign policy is expected to play a major part.

Nixon's Democratic rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy, already has indicated he will counter this international name-dropping by pointing to his membership on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, his own extensive travels abroad, his foreign policy writings and his 14 years in Congress.

And, if Nixon can boast of his nearly eight years of service in policy making at Cabinet meetings and as a member of the National Security Council, Kennedy can talk, as he has been talking, of the collapse of the Paris summit conference, the cancellation of President Eisenhower's visit to Japan, the Cuban and other crises, and try to put part of the blame on Nixon.

The campaign will have to define the areas of disagreement on reaching the broad foreign policy goals common to both candidates.

Kennedy and Nixon both are on record in favor of continued foreign aid, particularly to underdeveloped countries — with possible differences in emphasis.

Both would give the President power to extend economic and financial aid behind the Iron Curtain if he feels it would help loosen satellite bonds to Moscow.

Neither has ruled out future summit conferences, though both have indicated that primary reliance in the future should be placed on negotiations at the foreign minister and ambassadorial levels.

Both are on record favoring greater reliance on the World Court for settlement of international disputes by repealing a reservation against the court's jurisdiction in disputes involving the United States.

In a major speech to the Senate last June Kennedy declared that the issue in the campaign is not who "can best stand up to Khrushchev" or "swap threats and insults."

"The real issue is who can stand up and summon America's vast resources to the defense of freedom against the most dangerous enemy it ever faced," he said at the time. "We must make invulnerable a nuclear retaliatory power second to none."

In addition, he said, the United States must (1) be ready to intervene quickly in limited wars which threaten the peace, (2) rebuild the NATO alliance, (3) increase the flow of capital to underdeveloped nations in Asia, Africa, and Latin America, (4) reconstruct relations with South America, (5) find a new approach to the Middle East and (6) devise a long-range solution to the Berlin problem.

These are goals to which Nixon subscribes, although he sharply challenges Kennedy's claims that the United States has allowed its defenses to lag.

The United States, Nixon insists, is and under proper leadership will remain, "the strongest militarily, economically and morally," in the world.

Nixon told a recent meeting of the SEATO Council of foreign ministers the United States must be guided in the years ahead by the "all-important" principle of "firmness without belligerency."

After Khrushchev torpedoed the summit conference, Nixon declared, "we must continue to explore every possible avenue for negotiating the outstanding differences we have with the Communist nations."

In his Senate speech, Kennedy said the summit collapse marked an end to the illusion that "personal good will is a substitute for good, carefully prepared bargaining on concrete issues, the illusion that good intentions are a substitute for good, carefully prepared bargaining on concrete issues, the illusion that good intentions are a substitute for strong creative leadership."

Alabama Lawmen Hunt Six For Kidnapping, Flogging

HARPERSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Law enforcement officers today continued a search for six white men wanted for kidnapping two young Negro brothers and flogging the older one.

Police Chief Raymond Rogers said he hasn't been able to establish a motive for the abduction Saturday night of Henry Jones, 20, a service station attendant, and his brother, David, 13.

Rogers said authorities think they know at least two of the white men and have put out a pickup order for them.

The Negroes said they were kidnaped at their home by two carloads of white men, forced at gunpoint into one of the cars, and taken to an abandoned farmhouse just across the line in Coosa County about 23 miles southwest of here.

The white men stripped the older Negro to his underwear, Rogers said, and tied him to a tree in the yard where he was whipped with belts and knotted ropes. The younger brother was not harmed.

Jones said he was warned by the white men that if his employer, C. B. Miller, "hired another Negro, we're going to do worse to him."

The white men also reportedly threatened Mrs. Miller, wife of the service station operator.

"We'll tie her to the same tree and beat her if they hire another Negro," the men were quoted as saying.

Rogers and others said they were at a loss to explain the flogging.

"There's more to this than meets the eye," the police chief said. "Negroes have worked in service stations for years around Harpersville. That's not the issue. There's some other reason."

Although he was severely whipped, Jones was not seriously injured, Miller excused him from work Sunday, but said, "He certainly can continue working at the station."

Jones had worked at the gas-line station about two years.

Three Generations Of Wynns In Movie

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It was a warm and sentimental event — three generations of the Wynn family playing in a movie together.

"This makes my cup of happiness very full," said Ed Wynn.

Sharing the historic event with him were his son Keenan and grandson Ned. The trio is appearing in "The Absent-Minded Professor."

"I don't believe this has ever happened before," commented grandpa Ed, as alert at 73 as his 19-year-old grandson. "At least I could find no record of three generations making a film together. Twenty-six years ago I was able to watch Keenan's acting debut. Now comes Ned. I think it's pretty wonderful."

How does Ned's father feel about it?

"I'm encouraging him in every way I can," said Keenan. "But encouragement isn't all he needs. There has to be a tremendous drive on his part or it doesn't mean a thing."

Ed agrees. "I'm praying for the boy's success, but he's got to want to be an actor himself. So far he shows a great desire for it.

That's good. He's a good-looking boy and intelligent. If he can keep up his desire to act, he might make it. He would be the fourth generation of an acting family that goes back to 1876. That's when Keenan's grandfather, Frank Keenan, got his start."

Ned is tall and lean, his looks favoring his mother, Evie Johnson, rather than the Wynn branch of the family. He made his movie and stage debut simultaneously, during filming he worked nights at the La Jolla Playhouse in "Dark at the Top of the Stairs."

One thing about the boy's future worries Ed.

"Having two famous forebears is going to be tough on him," said grandfather Wynn. "People will be telling him for years, 'You'll never be the actor your father is and you won't be able to touch your grandfather.'"

"Keenan went through the same thing."

Use Wild Plant Fiber For Cloth

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist China is using wild plant fibers to make textile products.

The official China News Agency reported from Peiping nearly 30 million yards of about 400 varieties of "substitute" cloth have been successfully produced from more than 60 species of wild plant fiber.

encountered was Chiang Kai-shek who manipulated himself to a top position to which he was not entitled by rank or seniority by the sheer assertion of will. John Kennedy's maneuvers in 1960 reminded me of Chiang's in 1925 and 1927. In this country the most astute political manipulator I have ever known is Richard Nixon who parlayed a single event, the unearthing of the "Pumpkin Papers," into a Presidential nomination by acclamation.

The art of politics is universal. Those who play it badly always lose. Stalin had to murder his colleagues because he had no political art to hold them. Franklin D. Roosevelt brought together a heterogeneous group who had never before agreed on anything. It was absolute political genius.

CONSTRUCTION BEGINS

NEW YORK (AP) — The construction program for New York's 1964-65 World's Fair is under way. Fair president Robert Moses announced Sunday that the contract for the first structure, a temporary administration building, has been let and the building should be finished by January.

Idaho still has plentiful supply of bear, deer, coyotes and mountain goats for hunters.

Tosses Sox Win

Withered Right Arm Back In American Loop Race

By BEN OLAN Associated Press Sports Writer Off to a late start, Early Wynn has finally thrust his withered right arm smack in the middle of the American League pennant picture just as he did a year ago when the Chicago White Sox took all the marbles for the first time in 40 years.

Puttle and 40 in the first half of the season, his 21st in the majors, Wynn is still 40. However, this 22-game winner of 1959, has bounced back to record three straight victories. Meanwhile, the White Sox have opened up a game and a half lead over the runner-up New York Yankees.

Sunday, Wynn won the early game 5-2 over Washington while Bob Shaw and Gerry Staley combined to give Chicago a doubleheader sweep with a 9-5 victory in the nightcap. Wynn hurled his second successive complete game, a four-hitter, and lifted his mark-more than Bobo Newsom. Wynn pitched shutout ball after the second when Billy Gardner homered with Julio Becquer aboard. Minnie Minoso, another snappy veteran at 37, homered in each game and collected two singles in the second. White Sox teammate Roy Sievers blasted his 20th off Jack Kralic (4-1) in the first inning of the nightcap.

Indian Pinned With Probation

Big Ten Is Now 'Big Nine'

CHICAGO (AP)—The Big Ten becomes the Big Nine for the 1960 football season — Indiana being knocked out of the championship race as a punitive measure for recruiting infractions.

Conference standings in any other sport are not affected. Conference action was considered the most drastic since 1929 when Iowa was suspended for one year for lavish recruiting.

Head football coach Phil Dickens, who sat out his first year at Indiana in 1957 under Big suspension for recruiting violations, again was within target range of Wilson's probe.

CHAPTER 27
 When Dan Callahan entered his house late the night of his return to Rowton, a private detective hired by Keenan to watch the house alerted the publisher. Keenan in turn informed Bob Vinquist. The private detective had tapped both Beers' and Callahan's phones and the lines were being monitored by wire-recording machines.

At eleven o'clock, Bob knocked on the door of Mickey Beers' apartment. When the door opened, Beers, hostile and suspicious said, "What do you want?"

"I want to save your neck," Bob stepped around the investigator before the door could be slammed in his face. There was a pathos, he thought, in the squall of this cramped apartment with its unframed calendar artwork tacked to calcimined walls and its cheap throw rugs hardly concealing the peeling linoleum. Beers earned a salary from which he could have rented quarters far better than these, but medical bills for an invalid wife, Bob supposed, took their grim margin share. In this moment, he faltered. Then he thought of Dan as Governor.

"Mickey," he said, "I could drag it out, make you sweat, but there wouldn't be any point. You see, I know everything about that Fourth of July accident. I know about Dan's making up the story that you were on the way to arrest a dope peddler."

Beers laughed caustically. "If I had time, I might listen to your fairy tale. But I don't. So beat it, will you?"

"The papers are going to run the story, Mickey. Because they have proof you never got any telephone calls from an informant before you left the Barbecue. The man who has the cigarette counter in the dance pavilion is right opposite the phone booths, Mickey. He says nobody used them that day. You know why? They were out of order."

"They weren't out of order!"

"You don't know. You were never there." Bob felt a little sick. Even now the story, so carefully rehearsed, sounded too contrived to panic Beers into phoning Dan. Restraining the impulse to overplay his part, he said quietly, "You know what'll happen when the story breaks? Dan will say he had nothing to do with it. He took your word, and that's all he knows."

Beers advanced on him, his reddish eyes cruelly narrowed, but a queasy white cast to his face gave away the bravado. "You're asking for it, Vinquist. I'm giving you ten seconds to get out of here."

Bob stood up. "You might still be able to save your neck, and your job, if you want to say Dan made you tell that story. You've got a sick wife, haven't you? You got children?"

"Ten seconds!" Beers said. Shrugging, Bob walked to the door. Then he turned. "You're going to be the fall guy, Mickey. You've made a false statement about official business. Read the statutes. It's two years in the pen." He opened the door quickly. "You know where to reach me if you change your mind."

It was close to midnight when Bob Vinquist, waiting with Keenan, Stimson, and Polly Hoffman in the publisher's office, heard the elevator door slam open on the other side of the City Room. Moments later the private detective who had made the telephone taps entered and, after introduction, put his wire recorder on the desk and adjusted the dials. The first sounds were static, and in the charged stillness they leapt from the loud speaker like the crackle between hot wires. Then an indistinct voice came in above them:

"Boss, I don't know how to begin. Vinquist... he's got the goods on us. The Fourth of July. He was here a couple of minutes ago." Beers laughed nervously. "But he don't know any more than when he walked in." Beers hesitated. "Only he knew too much then. He knew I didn't get no phone call before we left the Barbecue."

"How could he know something like that?"

"Because the phones in the dance pavilion were out of order that day."

"You fell for a story like that! You're a moron!"

"I don't have to take that from you. You've pushed me around long enough! I think I'll phone Vinquist, tell him he's right. Tell him a few other things too. Tell him... tell him, how you really lost your phoning Dan. Restraining the impulse to overplay his part, he said quietly, "You know what'll happen when the story breaks? Dan will say he had nothing to do with it. He took your word, and that's all he knows."

Beers advanced on him, his reddish eyes cruelly narrowed, you take this tape to a judge." "Take it easy. Nobody's going to get you involved," Keenan said.

The detective took the recorder by its handle and smiled bleakly. "It stays in my possession, Mr. Keenan."

Keenan raked him with his eyes. "Then you be sure it's still there when I want it."

Keenan waited until he heard the elevator open and close behind the detective. "I wouldn't put it past him to try to get a bid from Callahan for that tape." He turned to Stimson with almost boyish glee. "Phil for once even you look wide-eyed and bushy-tailed. What do you make of that business about Italy and the leg?"

"Beats. But there's something awful rotten in Denmark." "Did you ever check back on his OSS service record while you were digging around?"

Stimson shook his head, but Keenan was temporarily too elated for reprimands. "Never mind. I'm going to send a wire to Washington."

"They won't release those records, will they?"

Keenan swung in his chair and glanced up at his framed letter of commendation for wartime services. "I know a man who can blast it out if there's any trouble. To hell with the Fourth of July business now." He spun in his chair to face Bob. "Callahan will be indicted for that Hart case evidence."

Skindiving Suits Are Custom-Made

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Skindiving members of Syracuse rescue squads no longer have to struggle girdles after deep-water missions.

That's because sympathetic members of the Syracuse Skindivers, especially the women, have been making safe, more comfortable suits for the police and sheriff's departments.

Mrs. Olive Klaver and friends went into action because pressure almost glues some types of suits to divers who have been down 60 to 80 feet.

The suits are custom made. The diver, clad in bathing suit, lies on a sheet of heavy paper which is cut to size. The suits are made of three-quarter-inch neoprene foam rubber. All seams are cemented and reinforced. About $35 worth of material goes into each suit.

Jealousy Believed To Be Behind Two Killings

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—Authorities say jealousy apparently was behind a wild shooting spree Sunday in which a farmer killed two persons, one of them his daughter, wounded his estranged wife and another daughter, and took his own life.

The farmer, Dock Mains, 50, of the Meat Camp community, first fired on a car in which his wife and two daughters were sitting. One of the daughters, Mrs. Iona Potter, 24, of Elkton, Md., was killed. The other two women were wounded.

Sheriff E. N. Hodges said Mains then drove five miles to the home of E. A. Ellison, who neighbors said Mains had accused of "chasing after" Mrs. Mains. Ellison was slain as he stood at the kitchen sink, shaving.

Mains then went home and turned his .38 pistol on himself. He died later in a hospital here.

College Drama Group To Stage Farce August 10

A 3-act comedy, "See How They Run," by East Carolina College students, is in rehearsal now for presentation in two performances in Greenville and later a two-week run at Carolina Beach.

Lead roles in the farce in three acts have been taken by Howard Mallard of Smithfield as the Rev. Lionel Toop, Dornier Jenkins of Greenville as his wife, Mrs. Penelope Toop, and Doug Mitchell, also of Greenville, as Corporal Clive Winton.

Dr. J. A. Withey, director of the East Carolina Playhouse, is directing the comedy which makes its debut on August 10, in Austin auditorium on the East Carolina campus, and is offered again in the same auditorium on August 15. Curtain time is 8 o'clock.

Volunteer Observers Are Still Service's Backbone

WASHINGTON (AP) — In this age of automation, of radar and weather-spy satellites circling the globe, the U.S. Weather Bureau proudly clings to its voluntary observers.

"The backbone of the service," a bureau spokesman calls these 12,000 men and women who, rain or shine, every day in the year, year after year, keep faithful records of the weather and mail them each month to the U.S. Weather Bureau.

The bureau has no plans whatsoever to replace them by automation.

The 12,000 are a voluntary corps of contributors to public service. They are mostly unheralded and unsung. But they are faithful.

The Stern family at Logan, Iowa, has been taking weather readings for Uncle Sam for 77 years.

At Fort Ross, Calif., George W. Call started recording rainfall for the bureau in 1874 and his son, Carlos began in 1907. That makes the combined family record 86 years so far.

Irwin A. Draper, 77, Red Lodge, Mont., once estimated he had measured enough snow officially to bury the tallest building in Montana—around 6,000 inches in more than half a century.

Louis Hardtla, official observer at Philo, Ohio, applied for the voluntary job so he could settle arguments about the weather. That was in 1901. He's still at it.

Ralph E. Weber, Oakland, Md., recording at his family farm, read the lowest surface temperature ever registered south of the Mason-Dixon line: 40 degrees below zero, on Jan. 13, 1912.

Practically all of the volunteers record precipitation, including the time it began. About half of them report high and low temperatures, and some report wind measurements. They also include any special phenomena such as hail or thunderstorms.

The data they send is in constant use, the bureau says. It helps solve problems of industry, commerce, agriculture and recreation as well as answers to questions like "is the climate changing, and if so, how?"

Johnson Asserts Farm Surpluses Nat'l Disgrace

MONTICELLO, Iowa (AP)—Democratic vice-presidential nominee Lyndon B. Johnson says American farm surpluses are "a national disgrace" and proposals of Republicans to get rid of them won't help.

He pledged Sunday that if Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts wins the presidential election next fall, Democrats will push a "food for peace" plan of using American abundance to help other nations.

Johnson addressed a crowd of about 10,000 who turned out in about 90-degree heat at the Jones County Fairgrounds for a baked beans and barbecue fund raising luncheon for U.S. Rep. Leonard Wolf.

After his speech, Johnson visited a farm and then flew to Austin, Texas.

The partisan crowd cheered Johnson repeatedly as he criticized Vice President Richard M. Nixon and rapped the Eisenhower administration record on farm matters.

He also said Nixon changed many of his own views on various issues after a conference with New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller just before the Republican National Convention in Chicago.

"Any man who can turn Nixon flip-flop in just one night, you've got to admire," Johnson declared. "But think what would happen if Khrushchev got Nixon in the kitchen all day."

At a news conference, Johnson said Nixon has two solutions to the farm problem—"his own and one from Rockefeller, a pattern which may become permanent."

He said Rockefeller wants to dispose of surpluses by putting a year's supply of food and storing it in event of national disaster, and Nixon wants to "turn the problem of disposing of surpluses over to the United Nations."

Rockefeller's idea, he said, would benefit "the middle man and the chains—not the farmer."

Regarding what he termed Nixon's idea, he said "we must not mix the United Nations into the partisan domestic politics of 1960."

"We have a 10-year supply of food we don't know what to do with now," he said. "That may not be a national disaster, but it is a national disgrace."

BUILDING A CLUB
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Tony Curtis says he plans to turn a $600,000 hotel at Palm Springs into a 1½-million-dollar tennis club. He and his wife, actress Janet Leigh, are the owners. He said he hopes to get Pancho Gonzales as club pro.

Pension May Be Open For Queen

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP)—Queen Mother Elizabeth may become eligible this week for a $7 a week pension.

If she does, almost no one will know for sure. And she probably never will collect it.

On Thursday the mother of Queen Elizabeth II will be 60. At that age a British woman can collect an old-age pension—usually of 2 pounds 10 shillings—if her husband made his regular, compulsory contributions to the government health, insurance and pension plan.

But probably only a few officials and members of the royal family know if the late King George VI contributed. By law the sovereign is exempt from many taxes that tax, customs and death duties for example. Royal wills, inheritances, property sales, bank balances and the like are carefully guarded secrets.

If anyone raised the question of the pension with the Queen Mother, she would probably treat it as a joke.

Light-hearted, highly considerate, possessed of a quick sense of humor, she is the most charming of women, the sort of person who walks into a crowded room and speaks first to the shy guests along the walls.

At a gathering at Balmoral Castle not long ago she turned to government officials and diplomats and said with her winning smile: "I know you'll excuse me for making my farewells in advance. You see me so often. I want to spend my last few minutes here with some of the local people."

Once at a reception a bewildered photographer got caught up in a line of dignitaries. With a sniff, an elderly courtier whispered "He's only the press."

But the great charmer held out her hand to the cameraman and said: "This gentleman is an old friend of mine. How are you?"

She will no doubt take to 80 with the same easy grace with which she reacted to bring 50.

On that milestone, a well-known court photographer sent her a set of pictures he had taken of her. They had been touched up.

The portraits were returned with thanks and a note that said: "Her majesty feels that having

Former Solicitor General, Philip Perlman, Dies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Philip B. Perlman, 70, former solicitor general of the United States, died Sunday.

Perlman was found dead in his hotel apartment, apparently the victim of a heart attack.

He had served as vice chairman of the platform committee of the recent Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles.

As the government's chief spokesman before the Supreme Court from 1947 to 1952, Perlman set a record for the number of cases argued personally by a solicitor general.

A native of Baltimore, Perlman worked there on newspapers before being admitted to the bar in 1911. He held city and state legal posts until he was named solicitor general by former President Harry S. Truman.

In 1952-53, he served as chairman of the President's Commission on Immigration and Naturalization. In recent years, he practiced law here and remained active in Democratic party affairs.

Monterey is a city in northeast Mexico. Population is about 75,000. It was captured by U. S. troops in 1846.

Lodge Visiting New Grandchild
BEVERLY, Mass. (AP) — Republican vice-presidential nominee Henry Cabot Lodge puts aside politics briefly today to visit his newest, and eighth, grandchild, John Ellerton Lodge.

The infant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Lodge, was born at a Boston hospital five minutes before the U. S. ambassador was nominated last Thursday night at the Republican National Convention in Chicago.

Lodge, given a warm but wet welcome on his return from Chicago Saturday, conferred for more than an hour Sunday with Secretary of State Christian A. Herter at the latter's summer home at Manchester, Mass.

Lodge left for Washington Sunday night to talk with GOP presidential nominee, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, but he told newsmen at Logan International Airport at Boston he would be back today for the visit with his grandchild.

Spectator Dies In Racing Wreck

BUTLER, Mo. (AP)—A spectator was killed and six others were injured when a racing car crashed into a fence on a dirt track Sunday night.

The modified stock car knocked a heavy wooden post into the bleachers. Everett L. Page, 41, of Garden City, Mo., was killed. Six others were treated for cuts and bruises.

The driver of the car, Roscoe Wirt of Fort Scott, Kan., was not hurt.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled back into an irregular condition early this afternoon after an earlier slight upside tenancy was erased.

Any leaning apparent to tape watchers around noon was downward, although changes of most issues were narrow in both directions. No follow through to Friday's big rally was evident.

Trading continued at a moderate pace, once the accumulation of weekend orders was cleaned up at the opening.

Business news remained on the dull side with earnings for the second quarter still showing a spotty pattern.

Oils held to small advances, but steels turned mixed after Republic Steel, the nation's third largest producer, reported a 38 per cent drop in earnings during the first half.

Republic was off nearly a point, while Jones & Laughlin, Lukens and Youngstown were down a point or more.

Motors declined, but most other major groups had both pluses and minuses.

The Dow Jones average of industrials was up 1.15 at 617.88 at noon.

The Associated Press stock average at noon was unchanged at 216.10 with industrials down 0.30, rails down 0.10 and utilities up 0.10.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government issues were unchanged to slightly higher.

Gunsmoke Haze Over Film City

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—That blanket of haze over this film factory town isn't smog. It's gun smoke, pardners, caused by all the shooting now going on.

Although most of us viewers are presumed to be lolling somewhere far from our TV sets, vacation time is over in the film city. Production is in full swing, and it's pretty noisy.

The mills of the TV gods are grinding exceedingly fast, turning out the staples of our fall and fall and winter entertainment diet.

A few months ago, the trendspotters were predicting that TV's action fad was on its way out and that the big thing this fall would be comedy — family comedy, situation comedy. Well, the experts were all wrong.

Almost half the programs in production are Westerns, which means the horse is still king. In second place are the police, private-eye and other gunplay-type series. Comedy shows are a poor third.

More than 80 per cent of the network shows this fall will be on film. CBS alone has 29 series shooting; and each of the other networks has about the same number.

The one thing, possibly, which may make the approaching season a little different is that there may be less violence in the action shows. That rumor goes around every year, but this time it may be true because television has been criticized so widely about it.

Falling Mountain Rock Struck Couples' Auto

A boulder crashed through the windshield of a car in which two Greenville couples were riding in the North Carolina mountains last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hill of 1710 Greenville Blvd. and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Garner of 1718 Forest Hills Drive were on their way to a relative's wedding in Greenville, Tennessee Friday. They were about 30 miles west of Asheville, near Marshall, on U.S. 70. Suddenly, off the side of a mountain, a 30 to 40 pound rock crashed down onto the right-hand corner post and windshield of the car. The boulder then bounced to the left-hand side and came through the glass, landing on the driver, Frank Hill.

According to Hill, who was taken to a doctor in Mars Hill, eight stitches were required to close the wound to his right arm. He also suffered a badly bruised leg. Hill pointed out that Garner, who was seated in the right-hand front seat, escaped injury.

Damage to the Garner car was estimated to be about $200.

Hill, who said this morning that signs along the mountain road cautioned motorists to "Look for Falling Rocks," jokingly suggested the signs be changed to read "Look for Falling Rocks."

The two men said old timers in the area said it was the first time they could remember a car being struck by rocks falling from the mountain side and onto the road.

Incidentally, the two couples got the windshield patched and continued on to the wedding.

Want UN Take UP Disarmament

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union proposed today what would amount to a summit conference on disarmament at the U.N. General Assembly opening Sept. 20.

In a letter to the chairman of the 82-nation U.N. Disarmament Commission, the Soviet Union said it opposes a U.S. proposal for an early meeting of the commission, composed of all 82 U.N. members.

It declared that the Assembly is the best forum for taking up disarmament.

"The Soviet government believes that personal participation of the heads of government of member states of the U.N. in the discussion of the disarmament problem at the General Assembly would answer this purpose best of all," it said.

It suggested that Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold issue invitations to the government leaders.

The letter declared this "would be of great significance, since the participation of the heads of government, especially of the states possessing the greatest military power, would largely contribute to the success in the consideration of the disarmament problem, as well as of some important political issues and would thereby reduce international tension and improve the entire international situation."

There was no immediate comment here from U.S. sources.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, who had proposed a meeting of the commission early in August, was in Washington.

Lodge, the Republican nominee for vice president, had been asked by President Eisenhower to present the U.S. position before the commission.

Requesting the meeting, Lodge accused the Communist bloc of "causally disrupting" disarmament talks in Geneva. He said the commission should give prompt consideration to the decision of the Soviet Union to break off the Geneva talks.

Troubles For Farmers And Highway Crews From Rain

Troubles continued during the weekend for highway maintenance crews and Pitt County farmers, plagued by mounting high waters from a seven-inch rain beginning last Wednesday and ending Sunday.

On highway 264 near Ballard's Crossroads and on N. C. Highway 121 near Farmville, water was flowing across the roads Sunday. C. W. Snell, division engineer with the N. C. Highway Commission, said maintenance crews were out helping control traffic. In some cases, flagmen remained all night at the trouble spots.

However, the water was receding today, Snell said. Maintenance forces were checking all roads Monday and were working on repairs of washed out sections.

Greene and Lenoir Counties encountered the same experiences, Snell said.

As for the farmers, S. C. Winchester, local farm agent, said today that the "Additional rain over the weekend, of course, will multiply troubles in connection with tobacco harvesting."

He said there will be "right much" drowned tobacco, and some had already "flopped" this morning. There is very little that can be done about these unusually heavy rains, Winchester said.

As for the other crops, the cotton crop may be damaged somewhat because growers have been hampered by bad weather from getting in their fields to treat for boll weevil. The corn crop, however, will experience very little damage, Winchester said.

L. P. Bloxam, Greenville city manager, reported no difficulty in Greenville from weekend rains.

A Greenville Utilities Plant employee, Ray Padgett, said today exactly 6.9 inches of rain has fallen here. The deluge of water has caused the level of the Tar River here to rise to 13 feet.

Hammarskjold Prolongs Congo Stay In Peace Role

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold delayed his departure from the Congo by 24 hours today as he sought a compromise in the bitter dispute over the future of rich Katanga province.

Hammarskjold sent his top African expert, Hans Wieselhoff, to Brussels, Belgium, to confer with the Belgian government.

The secretary-general resisted pressure from the Congo's cabinet for U.N. forces to move immediately against secessionist Katanga.

The U.N. Command announced Belgian soldiers had pulled out of three more towns—Banningville, Libengi and Coquilhatville, all in Equator province—but so far have made no move to leave Katanga.

It was not learned whether the withdrawn soldiers were being sent to Belgium or to the two Belgian military bases in the Congo. The Congo government is challenging the right of the Belgians to keep these bases.

Brussels announced last week that 1,500 of the 10,000 Belgian soldiers in the Congo would be brought home. These are to be flown to Belgium in the next few days.

A Belgian spokesman said except for Katanga and the bases of Kitona and Kafina, only about 500 Belgian soldiers are stationed in the Congo's other five provinces.

These include about 100 in Kasai province, where Belgian sources say fierce tribal warfare has broken out between the Lulua and Baluba tribes.

A Belgian spokesman said the entry of U.N. forces into Katanga must be effected gradually after thorough psychological preparation of the thousands of Belgians in the province to prevent a panic at the prospect of the withdrawal of the Belgian soldiers.

About 60 Belgian soldiers in Leopoldville province will withdraw to the Kitona base. Some 300 are still on station in Kivu province, holding on until the Irish battalion is in position. Forty-five Belgian soldiers are still in Oriental province, at Bunia, but Ethiopian soldiers are gradually taking hold. The fifth province, Equator, is free of Belgian soldiers.

Brussels announced last week that 1,500 Belgian soldiers would be brought home. About 10,000 Belgian troops are still in the Congo, most of them at the Kitona and Kamina bases or in Katanga province.

No nation has recognized Katanga's proclamation of independence from the federal Congo government. The breakaway of the rich province—if it sticks—would intensify the acute economic crisis already facing the month-old African nation.

Congo Vice Premier Antoine Gizenga gave in a weekend speech that the U.N. forces had fallen down on the job and had permitted "secession to consolidate" in Katanga.

Hammarskjold sharply replied: "We cannot adopt the line of action which in our minds would not correspond with our responsibility to the community of peoples."

Rural Store Is Robbed In Night

Approximately 25 cartons of cigarettes and $40 in cash were reported missing from the Wilbur Stokes store following a Saturday night break-in.

The store is located on N. C. 102 south of Ayden.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said the thieves entered a window. The break-in was discovered yesterday morning.

Dairy Survey In Pitt Completed

A survey of agencies producing and distributing milk and milk products in Pitt County has been completed. It was undertaken by E. S. King, Eastern N. C. District Sanitarian for the State Board of Health, assisted by E. L. Kilpatrick, Pitt Sanitarian.

Results of the survey received by Kilpatrick are: USPHS rating of raw milk sold to plants, 94.6 per cent; pasteurization plants, 97.1 per cent; pasteurized milk, 95.9 per cent, and enforcement methods, 96.3 per cent.

A letter was received by Kilpatrick from John Andrews of the Sanitary Engineering Division, N. C. State Board of Health, complimenting the achievement of the local department on the high level of excellence in milk sanitation control work.

East Germany Again Demands Separate Treaty

BERLIN (AP) — Communist East Germany today renewed its demand for separate peace treaties for East and West Germany.

The demand was contained in a memorandum addressed to all nations which fought Nazi Germany. Its delivery was timed for the 11th anniversary of the signing of the Potsdam agreement.

The memorandum, disclosed by Deputy Foreign Minister Otto Winzer at a news conference, declares the Potsdam agreement's aims of demilitarization, denazification and democratization of Germany have been carried out only in East Germany.

"The Western powers, particularly the United States, have assumed great responsibility by breaking the Potsdam agreement and giving active support to the revival of militarism in West Germany," the memorandum said.

Terrorists Raid Bathing Beach

ALGIERS (AP)—French army units and helicopters combed the hill country west of Algiers today for a rebel band that killed 11 persons and wounded seven others in a terrorist raid on a crowded bathing beach.

A dozen rebels swooped down in three groups Sunday from the bluff overlooking the Caroubier beach 50 miles west of here.

The beach was closed last summer because of the danger of rebel attack but was reopened this year when the area was considered clear.
