Militiamen Grab U. S. Property

HAVANA (AP) — Armed Cuban militiamen were in full control of most of the American property in Cuba today following its nationalization by Fidel Castro's regime.

The revolutionary government's new retaliation against the United States came only a few hours before the island's Roman Catholic hierarchy warned against "the increasing advance of communism in our country."

It was the church's first official criticism of the steadily increasing influence of the Communist bloc on the Castro regime.

Prime Minister Castro and his ministers made plain that they stood firmly with the Soviet Union as an economic and military ally, regardless of what other Latin American governments might think.

Foreign Minister Paul Roa declared that Cuba would reject any resolution of the Organization of American States, at its meeting opening Aug. 16, might adopt protesting Soviet interference in the Western Hemisphere. He asserted the Soviet Union's offer to defend Cuba against aggression could not be interference in the hemisphere's internal affairs.

Castro got out of a sick bed dramatically to announce the seizure of $770 million worth of American-owned property before a cheering crowd of 50,000 at the Red-tinted Latin American Youth Congress early Sunday morning.

Within hours armed militiamen began moving into the plants that included the Cuban Electric Co., the 300-million-dollar subsidiary of the American and Foreign Power Co. of New York and the largest single investment in the island.

A ranking official of the firm told a reporter "we don't have access to the building."

Other major American businesses nationalized were the Cuban Telephone Co., in which the International Telephone and Telegraph Co. has a 27 1/2-million-dollar equity; the Standard Oil New Jersey refinery, about $70 million; Texaco refinery, $45 to $50 million; Sinclair Oil Co. operations in Cuba, worth about $5 million and 36 American-owned sugar mills worth about $200 million.

Some of these plants had been under Cuban government control for some time but had not been formally expropriated.

Castro said that the seizures were in retaliation for "economic aggression" by the United States—and made plain he meant President Eisenhower's slash in U. S. imports of Cuban sugar.

However, the seizure decree did not extend to American banks, Katanga but the Brussels government said they have withdrawn from all other parts of the Congo to the two bases they hold in the republic by treaty.

Belgian troops in the Congo are gradually being reduced. Brussels said 1,550 were flying home tonight and 750 others are en route home by ship, leaving 7,750 still in the Congo. A Belgian government spokesman said further withdrawals are planned.

President Lays Bulky Plan Before Returned Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower laid before Congress today a bulky program ranging from foreign aid to medical help for the aged but warned against "reckless spending schemes."

"This truth we must take to heart: in good times, we must at the very least pay our way," he said in a special message sent to the Senate as it resumed its election-year session. The message also will be waiting for the house when it reconvenes a week hence.

In the face of Democratic, and some Republican, criticism that the nation's defenses are growing relatively weaker in the face of Communist threats, the President insisted U. S. military power "is second to none and will be kept that way."

Saying he was taking measures to improve the armed forces' readiness, he said these may necessitate "a modest increase" in military personnel and money. If funds are needed, he said, he will ask for them.

But national security demands congressional action too, Eisenhower said, and called for appropriation of the full amount authorized for foreign aid. He noted the appropriation bill for the mutual security program, as it now stands, is half a billion dollars under this.

"The nation's security and our inescapable interest in a stable world demand that these amounts be restored," Eisenhower said.

Congress authorized appropriation of $4,086,300,000 for foreign aid and mutual security, but the House voted to hold the actual appropriation to $3,584,500,000. The Senate has not yet acted on the appropriation bill.

Eisenhower advised Congress that he had already taken some actions to strengthen this country's military posture, and that the Defense Department would carry them out "with its available resources insofar as possible."

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President's wording meant that some funds impounded by Eisenhower were being unfrozen, and that Congress would be asked for more money if needed.

Hagerty estimated the impounded amount at $1,600,000,000.

The President also told the legislators he wants:

1. A 100-million-dollar increase in flexible foreign aid funds "to keep America poised for sudden developments such as those in the Congo where a U. S. airlift and other efforts were needed suddenly and critically."
2. A 600-million-dollar authorization by Congress for a program of aid to Latin America. He asked approval for this fund by the time the economic conference of the American republics starts in Bogota, Colombia, Sept. 5.
3. Advance approval for a food-for-the-hungry proposal which he said will be presented to the United Nations General Assembly in September.

Eisenhower said this will be a program, "whereby we and other fortunate nations can, together, make greater use of our combined agricultural abundance to help feed the hungry of the world."

On the domestic side, Eisenhower listed upwards of a score of actions that he said Congress should attend to now and not let them "go begging for months to come."

Eisenhower declared only 6 of 27 measures he had named last May as required by the national interest have been enacted into law so far.

He said Eisenhower could ask more money now; could unfreeze money already appropriated but not being spent; or could speed up other defense spending now and ask supplemental appropriations in January.

A backlog of other politically controversial bills before the session includes the always touchy foreign aid appropriation; proposed increases in minimum wages; medical care for the aged; federal aid for schools; and housing legislation.

Many of these were bitterly fought over in Congress before last month's recess. Their political import becomes stronger with the approach of the election campaign.

Leaders talked hopefully of adjourning by Labor Day, Sept. 5. But some members predicted mid-September would be a more likely adjournment date.

Most of the major figures in the national campaign will be involved in the Senate battles. Kennedy's Republican opponent, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, has the official job of presiding over Senate sessions.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, plays a major role as his party's Senate leader.

The rival national party chairmen, Sen. Thurston B. Morton (R-Ky) and Sen. Henry M. Jackson (C-Wash.), are leaders of their respective parties' campaigns.

Among the top nominees only Henry Cabot Lodge, the Republican vice-presidential nominee and himself a former senator, will be missing from the Senate. As U. S. ambassador of the United Nations, he will be busy with official duties in New York.

The first major senate fight probably will be touched off by Democratic efforts to increase the minimum wage to $1.25 an hour. A House-passed bill limits the increase to 15 cents over the present $1 minimum.

An even bigger battle may come over legislation to provide medical care for persons over 65. Although the Republicans hope to embarrass the Democrats by demanding action on civil rights, prospects are dim that there will be any.

Aside from the certainty of a Southern filibuster should civil rights action be sought, GOP leaders concede they just don't have the votes to force action.

Rival Proposals May Go Before UN Council Today

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Two rival proposals may be put before the Security Council today to get U. N. troops into the secessionist Congo province of Katanga.

Diplomatic sources said Ceylon and Tunisia probably would introduce a resolution specifying that the 12,000-man U. N. force in the Congo will not intervene in internal conflicts.

The aim would be to assure Katanga Premier Moïse Tshombe, who says his own troops will fight if the U. N. force will not try to bring the are entirely behind Tshombe's government. He told one reporter Katanga's 4,000 - man army is strong enough to beat Lumumba's, which he described as "none at all."

U. N. Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjöld reported to the Security Council Saturday that the "fanatical opposition" of Tshombe and his government made it apparent the U. N. troops would have to shoot their way into Katanga.

Hammarskjöld said the U. N. troops were not authorized to shoot except in self defense. He suggested that the council make clear that the U. N. force would not turn the province over to the central government against its wishes.

Ambassador Caba Sory of Guinea told a reported his government stands by its offer to put its troops in the U. N. force under the direct authority of Lumumba's government if the U. N. does not send them into Katanga.

Ghana also has offered its troops to Lumumba's government.

Kuznetsov, after a visit to Hammarskjöld, called the Congo situation "very grave." Chief U. S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge of the United States said the whole business was "very dangerous" and that possibly an emergency session of the General Assembly would be called within 24 hours if the Soviet Union vetoes a Congo resolution in the council.

Congo Premier Lumumba faced a challenge to his leadership from supporters of President Joseph Kasavubu that threatened to divide the central government.

Jabako, the youth arm of Kasavubu's Abako political party, sent a telegram to Hammarskjöld siding with Katanga in favor of a confederation to replace the young nation's republic structure. Jabako called Lumumba's regime fascist.

The Belgian radio also reported that Abako's central committee has approved a motion expressing distrust in Lumumba and urging the U. N. to approve the confederation advocated by Tshombe.

A spokesman for Jabako said Kasavubu, whose party has five ministers in the Lumumba cabinet, had always favored a loose confederation of Congo states.

In Leopoldville 100 youthful supporters of Lumumba demonstrated for immediate U. N. intervention in Katanga.

Tshombe told a newspaper in Elisabethville, capital of Katanga, that he was willing to meet with all other Congolese leaders—except Lumumba—to discuss a federation with other provinces. The provincial premier charges that Lumumba is a Communist tool.

Belgian troops still patrolled Katanga but the Brussels government said they have withdrawn from all other parts of the Congo to the two bases they hold in the republic by treaty.

Belgian troops in the Congo are gradually being reduced. Brussels said 1,550 were flying home tonight and 750 others are en route home by ship, leaving 7,750 still in the Congo. A Belgian government spokesman said further withdrawals are planned.

S. C. Growers Have Good Crop

FLORENCE, S. C. (AP) — South Carolina tobacco growers have a very good crop ready for the auction block when the state's 11 markets open this week.

Frank Kearse of Florence, district agent for the Clemson Extension Service, said the crop, generally speaking, is excellent although it may be a bit smaller than last year's production.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has estimated the crop will average 1,725 pounds per acre. That would be 40 pounds below last year's record per acre yield.

Tropical storm Brenda caused some damage to the golden weed in some low-lying sections of South Carolina.

The South Carolina markets are at Conway, Darlington, Dillon, Hemingway, Lake City, Lamar, Loris, Pamplico, Timmonsville and Mullins.

proceeding under the control of Premier Patrice Lumumba's central Congo government.

The resolution by Ceylon and Tunisia also was expected to call for withdrawal of Belgian troops from all the Congo.

Indications were that the Soviet Union might introduce a resolution to authorize U. N. units to use any force necessary to get into Katanga.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov told a reporter Sunday he had not yet decided whether to submit a proposal but in Moscow the Soviet Communist newspaper Pravda said the Congolese wanted the Security Council to "issue an order to the U. N. forces for the immediate liberation of Katanga from the Belgian occupiers."

The council meeting was postponed until noon today so that a delegation from Lumumba's government could attend. Vice Premier Antoine Gizenga was expected to demand that the council send U. N. troops into Katanga immediately.

A three-man delegation from the Katanga government flew in Sunday night. Finance Minister Jean Kibwe told newsmen he would ask the United Nations to "declare a moratorium" in the dispute over Katanga's future, await the withdrawal of Belgian troops and then supervise a provincial referendum on independence from, or unity with, the Congo.

Kibwe said the referendum would show Katanga's people

U. S. Accuses Castro Regime Of Moving To Red Control

By STANLEY MEISLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, branding its bluntest criticism of the Fidel Castro regime, has accused Cuba of racing into a Communist-controlled dictatorship.

The accusation was further evidence that both the United States and Cuba will step into an historic meeting of Western Hemisphere foreign ministers next week in an angry, unbudging mood.

The hardening of Cuban policy was made clear over the weekend as the Castro regime, boasting of its close link with the Soviet Union, ordered the seizure of almost all American-owned property in the island.

More evidence of hardening may accumulate today as the 21-nation Council of the Organization of American States considers the agenda for the foreign ministers meeting in San Jose, Costa Rica Aug. 15.

The ministers tentatively are scheduled to discuss tensions between Venezuela and the Dominican Republic, and between the United States and Cuba.

But Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa has said, "We'll laugh at any resolution that condemns Cuba." His government has asked for a new agenda, which would feature Cuban accusations that the United States has committed economic aggression against Cuba and has interfered in her internal affairs.

The agenda change, already rejected by an OAS committee, will be considered here by the OAS Council.

The U. S. charges against Cuba came in a 78-page memorandum made public by the State Department Sunday but given to newsmen well in advance of Castro's newest charges. The memorandum had been filed earlier with the Inter-American Peace Committee, an OAS unit that will report to the foreign ministers meeting.

"Not only in Cuba under its revolutionary government being transformed into a dictatorial political state," the memorandum said, "but a state in which the reins of political control are increasingly being concentrated in the hands of the Communist party."

The document also said that the "greatest danger to the security of the Americas is to be found in the developing military relations between Cuba and the Soviet Union."

The Soviet Union and Red China, it continued, "are attempting to use the Cuban revolution as an instrument of foreign policy with the objective of increasing world tensions, undermining hemispheric solidarity, and carrying forward their aggressive attacks against the free world."

Premier Castro's brother, Raul Castro, said Friday night "we are grateful for and we accept" Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's promise of military support.

Raul Castro's speech was followed Sunday by an announcement from the ailing prime minister that he would seize almost all the remaining American-owned property in Cuba.

Farmville Family Donates $50,000

FARMVILLE—The A. C. Monk family of Farmville is to furnish the sum of $50,000 toward a $125,000 proposed chapel for the Methodist Home for Children in Raleigh.

In announcing long-range plan for improvement and development, Superintendent, the Rev. Robert L. Nicks, said the Monk family will participate in the chapel financing.

The chapel, included in plans for the near future, will have a seating capacity of 300 persons, according to proposed plans. It will be of colonial architecture and placed in the heart of the campus.

The modernization and expansion program has been developed along lines suggested by a special study committee of the Methodist General Board of Hospitals and Homes in Chicago, the Rev. Nicks said. The 60-year-old Methodist institution will remain on its present 70-acre campus in Raleigh, but the future plant will be centered on the eastern or Glenwood Avenue, side.

Proposals call for building five modern-type cottages and the construction of seven additional cottages and a student activities center later, at an estimated total cost of over $2 million.

RR Told Business Justifies Station

RALEIGH — East Carolina Railway Co. was told Friday that business is sufficient to justify continued operation of its agency station at Fountain.

The Utilities Commission, in a majority opinion, turned down East Carolina's request for permission to close the station. It also denied Railway Express Agency's request for authority to close its office at Fountain.

The railroad, which operates between Farmville and Tarboro, said that shipments to Fountain could be handled at Macesfield and Farmville at a saving of $3,000 annually.

There was vigorous dissent from commissioners Richard Long and Thomas Eller. They felt the majority was wrong in requiring the railroad to continue serving the small town with less-than-load shipments.

In writing for the majority, Commissioner Clarence Noah said shippers using the station needed the service and it could be provided by the railroad at a profit.

He said the railroad failed to show that public convenience and necessity no longer required the operation.

East Carolina Railway Co. is a subsidiary of Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

Evidence was presented by the railroad which it said showed a loss of $4,452 from its Fountain operation during the 12-month period ending in February. Noah used a different formula and said the operation showed a profit of $599.

The commission said the railroad tried to apply a ratio of costs and revenues from its entire system to the operation at Fountain. Such a formula is not valid, he stated.

Long said that Fountain is six miles from Macesfield and Farmville, both served by the railroad. He cited the 1899 legislation which gave the commission power to regulate opening and closing of railroad stations.

He said the law regarded the maintenance of stations closer together than five miles as unreasonable.

"Now, 62 years later, under dramatically changed circumstances, the protestants ask us to require the railroad to continue to maintain its station six miles from two other stations and the majority orders that it be continued," Long said.

Opposing the railroad's petition was the Fountain Merchants Association which presented a group of merchants and farmers who said there was a need for the agency.

Fire Losses Prompted Organization Of Volunteer Firemen

STATON-HOUSE FIREMEN . . . are shown looking over a gas mask beside their new fire-fighting unit which was put into service July 22.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

After seeing one neighbor's home burn down, then witnessing the destruction of a second man's pack house by fire, the people from four communities North of Greenville joined together and organized a fire department.

The firefighting group, known as the Staton-House Volunteer Fire Department, Inc., held their first organizational meeting June 21, following the burning of the Frank Taylor home about six miles North of Greenville on N. C. 11 June 8, and the burning of a packhouse on the Wadie T. Carson farm one week later, on July 15.

The meeting was attended by representatives of the House's Staton's Mill, John's Town and the Mount Pleasant communities, and plans were laid for the purchase of a fire truck and the setting up of a volunteer fire department for the protection of the area.

Ed Hemingway was elected president of the board of directors of the organization and made chief of the department, while William D. Brown was made vice-president of the board. Milton Spain was elected secretary and treasurer of the group. Brown and Harry Cooke were made assistant chiefs of the department.

Members of the board include W.T. Carson, E.L. Osborn, Howard Forbes, George Tetterton and C.H. Hagan.

The 20 volunteer firemen were selected . . . four from each community to be covered by the truck.

The truck, financed by public donations, was purchased from the State, and when fully equipped, will represent an investment of about $1,700-$1,800, according to Hemingway.

A 1,200 gallon water tank was installed on the truck, which was delivered and put into service last Friday. The pump on the vehicle will deliver 100 gallons of water per minute, Hemingway noted, at 85 pounds per square inch pressure.

Hemingway said the truck is being kept at Harry Cooke's Store about seven miles north of Greenville and will cover about a four mile radius.

In case of fire, Hemingway said, the department may be contacted by calling PLaza 8-1827.

Hemingway commented that the community owned and supported fire unit was "a much needed" thing. He also commented that in the future, and if finances will permit, the department may try for an insurance rate reduction from the state Department of Insurance.

Hemingway pointed out that to qualify for a rate reduction, the department must meet certain specified standards set up by the Insurance Department.

The newly organized department responded to their first fire call early last Wednesday morning when a house in the Greenfield Terrace subdivision North of Greenville burned.

CHECKING THEMSELVES . . . on the operation of the fire truck's pump are firemen Thomas Whitaker, Ed Hemingway, Harry Cook, William D. Brown and James Ray Roberson.

Miss Sylvia Satterthwaite Becomes Bride Of Lt. Rohrbough

Mrs. John Davis Rohrbough

Miss Sylvia Jenkins Satterthwaite and Lieutenant (jg) John Davis Rohrbough, United States Navy, were united in marriage at four o'clock Saturday afternoon, August 6, 1960, in the First Presbyterian Church.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Dr. William J. B. Livingston of Hampton, Va., assisted by the Rev. Sheldon N. Koesy of Greenville. "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee" and "O Perfect Love" were the vocal selections rendered by Mrs. Alison Hearne Moss in the nuptial music. Mrs. Paul A. Toll was the organist.

The church was decorated with palms, white gladioli, and seven branched candelabra. Tall cathedral candles in single candleholders were placed on either side of the prie dieu. Pews were marked with white satin bows and plush greenery.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, the bride wore a gown of Italian silk and Alencon lace featuring a sabrina neckline of re-embroidered lace and a basque bodice. The long sleeves of the gown tapered to points over her hands. The bouffant skirt of silk with lace appliques was caught in the back in a Polonaise drape and extended into a chapel train.

Her chapel-length veil of imported illusion was triple-tiered and attached to a Spanish heart-shaped cap of matching Alencon lace and pearls.

The bride carried a white satin covered prayer book topped with a pure white orchid and showered with frenched white carnations. She also carried a handmade lace handkerchief belonging to the bridegroom's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Iva Davis, who carried this handkerchief at her high school graduation and in her wedding. The bridegroom's mother used the same handkerchief in her wedding. Miss Sue Perry White of Hertford was the maid of honor. Mrs. Joe H. L. Kue of Norfolk, Va. was matron of honor. They wore ballerina length gowns in royal peacock blue, styled with a scooped neckline, short sleeves, petal bodice, and a full skirt accented by a petal overskirt. They wore matching headdresses. Cascade bouquets of yellow Fuji chrysanthemums tied with matching satin were carried by both the maid and the matron of honor.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. Gene Vann of New Bern, Mrs. David E. Lane of Reidsville, and Miss Katherine Susan Pope, Miss Sarah Elizabeth Ewell, Miss Terry Roberts Tripp, Miss Elizabeth Ann Karsnak, and Miss Sylvia Meade Bonner, all of Greenville. They carried long stem yellow Fuji chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom's father was the best man. Ushers were Lieutenant Paul E. Westphal Jr., U.S.M.C.

and Lieutenant Robert Keith Featherston, U.S.M.C., Camp Lejeune; Lt. (jg) Stephen Young, U.S.N., Little Creek, Va.; Midshipman George Dewhurst; and Jesse B. Smith of Mount Olive.

The bride's mother wore a pink sheath dress with white accessories. The mother of the bridegroom wore an Avocado dress with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of cymbidium orchids.

Following the ceremony the bride's mother and stepfather entertained at a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The Women of the Church were in charge of the reception.

For their wedding trip Mrs. Rohrbough wore a Raffle linen sheath dress with a matching jacket and beige accessories. The orchid from her bridal bouquet was her corsage.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. George Earl Dunn of Atlantic Beach and Jenkins R. Satterthwaite of Tarboro. She is a graduate of East Carolina College, Little Creek, Va.; Midshipman of H. Wilson Thorpe Junior High School, Hampton, Va.

Lieutenant Rohrbough is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvon F. Rohrbough of Popocous, Va. He attended Greenville State College, Greenville, W. Va., and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. He is presently assigned to the DE Base in Norfolk, Va.

After their wedding trip Lieutenant and Mrs. Rohrbough will live in Hampton, Va.

With The Farm Women

(Items this week from Perquimans, Mitchell, Granville, Surry, Lee, and Mecklenburg Counties.)

Farm Festival Planned
Instead of singing "Come to the Fair," Perquimans County folks will soon be singing "Come to the Farm Festival." It will be held at the Hertford High School August 9.

Miss Ila Grey McIlwain, assistant home economics agent, says there will be Home Demonstration booths, commercial booths and some individual booths. Following a fish fry late in the evening, there will be a talent show featuring a variety of 4-H and other local talent.

Jelly Making
As a result of the program last year on "Successes and Failures of Jelly Making," Mitchell County Home Demonstration members are reporting excellent results this year as they put into practice recipes that assure a perfect product.

Mrs. Mary Margaret Deyton, home economics agent, says the women are using grapes, plums, apples, crabapples and blackberries when just mature so they will contain enough acid and pectin necessary for good jelly.

Smart To Be Well Fed
Granville County has just celebrated food emphasis week by stressing production, preparation, conservation and consumption of the daily food needs. Mrs. Dorothy G. Wilkinson, home economics agent, presented the demonstration on "It's Smart to be Well Fed."

The women were encouraged to plan meals ahead so as to get daily needs, save time in preparation, make better use of foods available, save money by buying wisely, and serve more attractive foods.

Community Service Project

The Little Richmond Club, Surry County's newest Home Demonstration Club, has planned a community service project as their first effort to assist other people.

Mrs. Evelyn G. Nifong, home economics agent, says Mrs. Richard Wilmoth of Elkin, Rt. 1, and her women are planning to furnish clothing for a child in the community who is blind and will be going to a school for the blind this fall. Many of the club women will be making some of her clothes but will buy other items.

Vacuum Cleaner Uses
Do you know how to really use all the attachments to your vacuum cleaner? Miss Mary Estelle Doyle, home economics agent in Lee County, showed the Home Demonstration women in Lee how to use all the attachments.

Miss Doyle found that 59 per cent of the women had not been using all their attachments. She also discussed storage facilities for their cleaning equipment.

4-H Garden Judging

Fifty boys and girls received free garden seed in the spring in Mecklenburg County for writing an essay on "The Value of a Garden to a Family." Recently the best gardeners were selected on the basis of productivity, cleanliness, insect control, number of plantings, food conserved, and records kept.

Miss Maude Middleton, assistant home economics agent, reports the blue ribbon winners were Jane Bates, Dorene Williams, Carolyn Helms, Phyllis Hough, Earnest Ronald Thompson, Dickie Calloway, Frances Ford, and Sara Jane Long.

USE WHITE PEPPER

Keep white pepper (ground) on your spice shelf and use it in light-colored foods where specks of black pepper would mar the appearance of a dish.

Fall Hats Put You In Clouds

SWAGGER . . . Somali leopard, with high draped crown. Brim facing, band, of wool jersey. BOMB . . . Jeweled white satin, with rhinestones, pearls and gilt. By Irene of New York.

FEATHERS . . . Bandeau of pink and black ostrich; satin bow, jewel at back. By Emme.

HATS ARE GOING high, wide and handsome this fall—especially high.

New York millinery designers are topping the new season's fashion with a variety of silhouettes: cloches, turbans, swaggers, domes, and shapes called bomb, ball, and bubble.

The most important trend is height, which should short women feel important and tall women goddess-like.

New luxury in fabrics, including fabulous furs and fake furs, brocades, feathers and jewels, is consistent with the overall feeling of substance and elegance in fall fashions.

CLOCHE . . . High, heavy crowned, of soiled brown beaver-type felt with amethyst pin, plume. By Lily Dache.

Why Women Love Hats

JOAN CRAWFORD . . . Her fabulous hat of pink roses sparks simple black dress.

ALEXANDRADANILOVA . . . Halo of black lace gives dramatic effect on nostrum.

CAROLINE K. SIMON . . . Gay flower hat in orange and white offsets severe suit.

By DOROTHY ROE AP Women's Editor
ONE DEFINITION of a successful feminine executive is: a woman who wears her hat in the office.

A quick look around the glossier advertising, publishing and fashion firms in any big city bears out this view. It's easy to spot most as much satisfaction as winning a case in court.

DOROTHY DRAPER, noted decorator: "I like the well-groomed effect of a hat planned to go with an outfit. I wear my hat in the office all day, so as not to spoil the effect."

ALEXANDRA DANILOVA, ballerina and choreographer: "I always choose a dramatic hat for a lecture date. I even wear a hat while directing rehearsals."

JOAN CRAWFORD, business executive and movie star: "I could not imagine dressing for the day and leaving off a hat. Hats are the very spice of life of a costume. That's why I wear my hat in the office — taking it off would spoil the complete effect. I created so carefully that morning."

the boss lady — she's the one wearing the hat.

Some prominent women in and out of New York recently aired their views on the subject of hats:

MRS. CAROLINE K. SIMON, lawyer and Secretary of State for New York: "Choosing the right hat to go with a costume gives me all."

"The dress and hat are a unit, and neither should detract from the other. I interpret this rule by wearing a simple hat with an elaborate costume and gay flowered hats with simple outfits."

MRS. T. MARKO ROBERSON, society leader: "A hat is an exclamation point to what you are trying to say about yourself. I like hats so well that I pick the hat first and then the outfit to go with it."

ANN SOTHERN, TV and movie star: "I don't think anything else a woman wears has more subtle sex-appeal than a hat."

Medical experts advise that bites from those annoying little insects called chiggers should be washed thoroughly with soap and water. Allow the lather to remain on the skin ten minutes before rinsing. Then, an anti-itch preparation can be applied.

Potatoes when boiled in their skins will taste much better if you use some salt in the water.

McLean-Edwards Say Wedding Vows

WASHINGTON, N. C. — Miss Nancy Jean Edwards and Colon Weisiger McLean, Jr., were married in an impressive 5:00 o'clock ceremony Sunday afternoon, August 7, in the First Baptist Church. The double ring vows were pledged before the Rev. Earle J. Rogers, pastor of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Silas Edwards of Greenville, formerly of Washington, and Mr. McLean is the son of Mrs. and Mr. C. W. McLean of Summit Ave., Washington.

Banked palms were the background for baskets of white chrysanthemums, forming the wedding setting, which was in candlelight from white tapers in branched candelabra.

Miss Gladys Allgood, church organist, played a program of nuptial music prior to and during the ceremony, using the traditional Lohengrin and Mendelssohn Wedding Marches as the processional and recessional offerings. Bobby Smith was soloist, and his selections were "Through the Years" and "The Lord's Prayer" as a benediction.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of imported tissue taffeta and Chantilly French lace. The gown was designed with a lace applied taffeta bodice with long lace petal pointed sleeves, and low V front neckline which rounded at the back.

The fitted basque dipped to points forming a hand-span waistline, and the bouffant taffeta skirt was applied with hand-run Chantilly lace, the extreme fullness sweeping into a chapel train.

Her French illusion veil was attached to a half-hat of taffeta studded with seed pearls and sequins, and she carried a bride's bouquet of white roses and valley-lilies centered with a white orchid. The bride's jewelry was a diamond heart necklace and earrings, a wedding gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Barbara Jones of Washington and Chapel Hill was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Barbara Ann Harrington, Barbara Ruth Morris, Helen Virginia

Williams and Sallie Rhodes Brinkley, all of Washington.

The bride's attendants wore matching gowns in Nile green styled in silk organza over taffeta. The fitted basques featured rounded necklines and the bouffant skirts were accented by back hemline bustles. They wore matching green bandeaux with circular veils, and carried bouquets of assorted summer flowers.

Little Elizabeth Faye Edwards, the bride's niece, was flower girl and wore a dainty white silk organza dress over taffeta in formal length with big white back bow. She carried a miniature colonial bouquet of white summer flowers.

Master Willie Stanley Edwards, Jr., a nephew of the bride, was ring bearer, carrying the rings on a white satin cushion. He was dressed in dark trousers and a white dinner jacket.

Colon W. McLean served his son as best man and other attendants were Willie Stanley Edwards, Sr. of Rocky Mount and Lester Robinson Edwards, both brothers of the bride, Charles Edwin McGowan of Baltimore, Md. and Rayfield Mixon Neel.

Mrs. Norman Winslow and Mrs. Earle J. Rogers were church hostesses and assisted the wedding wedding party.

For the wedding Mrs. Edwards chose a pink lace afternoon dress styled over matching taffeta, with which she used pink accessories and a corsage of white cymbidium orchids. Mrs. McLean's costume was an afternoon dress of blue linen, blue accessories and she also wore white cymbidium orchids.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Edwards entertained with a reception in the social rooms of the church.

Later for the wedding trip to Fontana Dam in Western North Carolina, the bride selected a blue linen sheath dress worn with a matching jacket, black kid accessories and a white orchid corsage from her wedding bouquet.

Mrs. McLean is a 1959 graduate of Washington High School and attended Atlantic Christian College in Wilson. She plans to accept a position at the Wilson Branch Bank after the honeymoon.

Mr. McLean, a 1956 graduate of Washington High School, attended Davidson College for two years, transferring to Atlantic Christian College, Wilson. He is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Upon their return from Western North Carolina, Mr. and Mrs. McLean will be at home at 109 Gray St., Wilson.

Among the out-of-town wedding guests were Mr. and Mrs. Norwood Robinson, Reidsville; Mr. and Mrs. James Franklin Robinson, Portsmouth, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. Josh Taylor of Chapel Hill.

Miss Millie Bowden, Sally Ross Simpson, Jean Moyer, Judy Jolly, Martha Lee Moyer, Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Trivillan Lyon, all of Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. Billy Edwards, Rocky Mount; Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGowan, Baltimore, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Horace McLean, Greensboro; Bobby Dunn, Billy Edwards, Miss Myrna Harrell of Pinetops; Miss Gracie Gwantney, Miss Brenda Tyndall, John Cutler, L. C. Brewer of Kinston; Mrs. Eddie West, Winston-Salem; Mr. and Mrs. Bill McLean Jr. of Portsmouth, Va.

Reception Following the McLean-Edwards wedding Sunday afternoon, the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie S. Edwards of Greenville, entertained with a reception in the social rooms of the First Baptist Church.

Guests were greeted in the entrance hall by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hodges Jr. and directed to the church parlor where Mr. and Mrs.

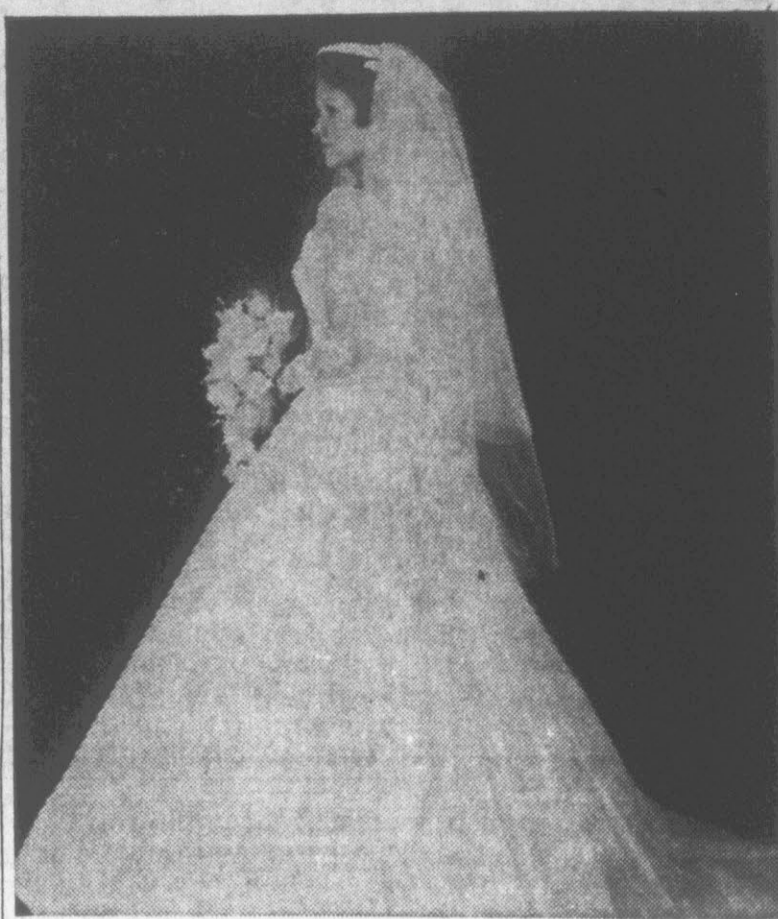

Sidney Hoffer introduced the receiving line.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Edwards were Mr. and Mrs. Colon W. McLean, parents of the bridegroom, the bride and bridegroom, and members of their wedding party. Mass arrangements of white gladioli and mums with banked palms formed an effective background for the line, and matching flower arrangements were used about the room.

In the fellowship hall the wedding table was unique in its setting, featuring a central arrangement of white carnations and fern in silver. The floral appointment was flanked by silver candelabra with lighted white tapers, and at one end of the table Mrs. Norwood Robinson and Mrs. Trivillan Lyon presided at the silver punch service. Silver containers held cake squares, assorted nuts and bridal mints which the guests served themselves, assisted by Mrs. Billy Edwards and Mrs. Lester Edwards. Others assisting with the serving were Mesdames John Linton, Wesley F. Veasey, Gertrude W. Daniels and Lavenia Basnight.

Miss Nell Bowen and Miss Cathie Salle invited guests to sign the bride's book which was placed on an auxiliary table near a miniature white arrangement, and magnolia clusters and white mums decorated the piano.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Charlie T. Bowers.

The Greater Waste Lies In Apathy

Time and again over a period of years the federal government has found itself confronted with charges by its General Accounting Office that this agency or that has wasted money in the millions for things which were needlessly bought or built with taxpayers' money.

It is important to the people of the nation that these matters are brought to light, and the GAO, watch-dog of federal funds, has done an excellent job of exposing waste in government operations.

The disturbing factor, however, is that time and again the waste exposed by the GAO involves practices and programs that have been exposed before and have gone uncorrected by the federal government.

Such is the case with the latest GAO charge that some $147 million has been wasted by the military in needlessly building housing projects at U. S. bases. On a number of previous occasions the accounting department has called attention to the waste of tax funds in housing projects at military bases. Each time there is a stir and commotion, the waste is denounced in Congress, the charges are denied by key officials of the agency involved. Soon it is forgotten and the government lapses back into its traditional practice of spending taxpayers' money like it was water.

Many of the practices which lead to the waste are not altered. Procedures which permit the squandering of federal funds are not corrected. A few years later it is announced that several million more in tax funds have subsequently been wasted in a similar manner.

While Congress cannot keep tab on every dollar spent by the multiplicity of federal agencies, members of Congress, as the direct representatives of the people, have the ultimate responsibility for safeguarding federal funds. It is the responsibility of Congress to see that every possible precaution is taken to prevent this repetition of waste of federal money.

It is not enough that members of the legislative branch of government make indignant speeches about the terrible waste in government every time such an exposure is made. It is not enough that the incident hold the limelight for a few days or a few weeks without basic reforms being instituted to prevent the recurrence of the same thing at a later date.

Perhaps it is too much to hope at this late date something concrete will be done by Congress to eliminate such practices as those recently uncovered. Reforms have been passed up under similar conditions over the years. Too many billions in taxpayers' dollar have gone down the drain in unnecessary spending.

And yet, there remains the hope that some day Congress will devote as serious attention to preventing waste of federal funds as it does to appropriating new millions that will find their way down the same drain.

Carteret Bridge Is Of Statewide Concern

Were it not for the location of one of the state's deep-water ports, the location of the proposed new highway bridge between the towns of Morehead City and Beaufort in Carteret County would be of only passing interest to most people in other parts of North Carolina.

The fact that the proposed new bridge is close to the property of the state port at Morehead, however, removes the bridge location matter from purely local interest to a matter of state-wide importance.

Upon approving the new location, Highway Director W. F. Babcock explained that the 65-foot high span over the inland waterway channel later could be converted into a drawspan if necessary. This factor, of course, may someday be of utmost importance to the expansion of facilities at the Morehead City port. It would have been shortsighted indeed, had the Highway Commission constructed a new $2 million bridge that would have cut off possible expansion of the port facilities.

The state's ports at Morehead City and Wilmington are yearly increasing in importance to the economy of the state. The goal of making them major port facilities on the Atlantic seaboard will depend in part on the ability of the state to provide necessary areas to expand facilities as greater demands are made on the ports.

While approval of the new bridge location—along with the stipulation that a high drawspan can be provided later—apparently is satisfactory to everyone concerned, the state should make sure that at some later date the bridge does not become an obstacle to expanding the port facilities at Morehead City.

Basic Difference In Two Platforms

By RALPH ROBEY
By all odds the greatest controversy in the Republican National Convention was over the platform. The particular points upon which there was disagreement were civil rights, defense, and to a lesser degree the proposal for federal aid to education. Until the last it appeared there would be an argument on the floor, but that did not happen. None the less, this is the most liberal platform ever adopted by the Republicans.

But just as in the case of the Democratic platform, we are concerned only with those pledges and policies which have a direct bearing upon the business trend. There is a vast and basic difference between the two platforms in this regard.

The Democrats, it will be recalled, pledged whatever policies that may be necessary to have a national growth rate of 5 per cent, and made it clear that this was a responsibility of government. The Republicans are in favor of more rapid growth (they mention no specific percentage) but insist that this must result, not from government action, but through the decisions of free men. Their proposals, therefore, are designed primarily to create a climate which will encourage growth.

The exact words in the Republican platform are: "To build a better America with broad national purposes such as high employment, vigorous and steady economic growth, and a dependable currency, responsible management of our federal finances is essential. Even more important, a sound economy is vital to national security."

They state it as their belief that "except in times of war or economic adversity, expenditures should be covered by revenues" and "our tax structure should be improved to provide greater incentives to economic progress, to make it fair and equitable, and to maintain and deserve public acceptance." They pledge to support the independence of the Federal Reserve System and this is directly contrary to the pledge of the Democrats.

A most unusual item in the Republican platform is the priority assigned for the use of federal revenues. This is, first, to meet the needs of national defense; second, take care of the "urgent needs of the nation" that cannot be handled by local government or private action; third, reduce the public debt; and fourth, "improve our tax structure."

An argument can be made for this order, but in our judgment it is not so sound. Obviously

Must Know Russian History

Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It would seem that Soviet Russia benefits from the ignorance of history and geography, the schools nowadays teaching the social sciences. There are more than 1,000 years of Russian history that need to be known if we are to understand the Russian people. If we go into the story of the Scythians or the Uzbeks, we need even more history than that.

Thus when one writes about Russian gold — an immediate economic problem in the world today, he is not discussing something that is novel in 1960 or that started in 1917. Gold has had a unique place in the history of man. No matter how taste has changed, gold has at least 6,000 years of history. Gold is rare; its color is attractive; it does not corrode or rust. Although Lenin ridiculed the value of gold, his government has always hoarded the metal. C. H. V. Sutherland, in his book "Gold" estimates that during the past five centuries about 100,000,000 lbs. of gold has been taken from the Earth for the use of man. This metal does not appear in quantities everywhere. Russia possesses three large areas that have produced gold in enormous quantities; the south Urals, the Lena fields and the Altai field.

Gold has always been found in what is now Russian territory, being exported into Persian, Greek and Byzantine civilizations. But it was in the 19th Century that the Siberian fields were exploited to a degree that made Russia the principal gold producer of the world at that time.

Sutherland writes: "... Alluvial gold from the Urals was generally of high purity. . . it made up the great bulk of Russian gold output down to the eighteen-thirties; for the years 1814 to 1839 the total yield has been put at over 175,000 lbs., with an annual average of 5,000 lbs. or more. At this point, however, a decline set in, either because of the alluvial gold had its richest deposits removed or because attention was switched to new and very rich sources lying in the remote territory west of Lake Balkal in the valleys of the Altai Mountains.

For here too there were numerous alluvial sites, the combined yield of which quickly surpassed that of the Ural region: 40,000 lbs. were obtained in the decade 1830 to 1840, and the annual average rose thereafter very sharply to 13,000 lb. and, even higher, to 17,000 lb. . . .

Today, we have no figure on the production of Russian gold. Sutherland estimates:

"... But the bulk of this massive annual quantity — a quantity, each year, which it would have taken Roman miners more than a hundred years to extract from their deposits in Spain — comes from five areas in particular. Australia supplies just under 5 per cent of the annual world total. From the United States there comes just over 6 per cent. Russian output is veiled behind the curtain that hides so much else, but is put around 7 per cent. Canada furnishes over 15 per cent, and her figure may rise substantially with the discovery and exploitation of new goldfields in the Quebec region. And, finally, South Africa claims the astonishing figure of nearly 50 per cent. . . ."

Of the known figures, about 80 per cent of all gold mined comes from the British Commonwealth. But in all these figures there remains the dubious quantity from Russian territory. There are no reliable statistics but estimates are possible, particularly in view of the prior knowledge.

Now, we come to the serious political problem in the Cold War of the Russian plan to establish a gold ruble producing a coin in international commerce which can be harder money than the American dollar. If you talk to an optimist on this subject, he will say that money is based on confidence and that whereas there is universal confidence in the American dollar, there is no confidence in the Russian ruble.

This is like the statement so often made by American business-

Maine Rich In Forests

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — It has been my custom to spend a part of each summer visiting a different section of the country. This summer I have chosen the State of Maine. I have been truly astounded by its size, its coastline, and certainly its natural resources.

POTATO INDUSTRY
Through the compliments of the able President of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad, Mr. Gordon Robertson, I have been able to travel through the approximately 150,000 acres of growing potatoes. The plants were in full bloom with their white blossoms when I took the trip, and I was able to talk with some of the leaders in the industry. The potato growers are more than "just farmers." They are progressive businessmen who are constantly seeking new varieties of potatoes and attempting to improve the quality of the crop. The best potatoes are marketed, while the small ones are used for producing frozen "french fries," premashed potatoes, starch, and other by-products.

When you eat a finely flavored meal, you have no idea of the patience, brains, and hard work which have been put into raising the potato. Apparently the only thing which Aroostook County cannot control is the rainfall, which may be too much, or too little, or occur at wrong intervals. I understand that the two reasons why Idaho potatoes are such a strong competitor to Maine potatoes is because the Idaho potato growers use considerable irrigation and freely spend money on advertising. Maine people need education on the value of advertising.

UNIVERSITY OF MAINE AGRICULTURAL DEPT.
Preceding my trip through Aroostook County I spent several hours with Dean Winthrop Libby, who probably knows more about potatoes than anyone in Maine. He explained that the potato is really a part of a stem, and not a seed, or a bulb, or a root. In fact, the tiny potato seeds which come from the blossoms are of no use to the industry. As most readers know, new potatoes are obtained by cutting an old potato into several pieces, each containing one "eye," which develop sprouts and give us the new potatoes.

Dean Libby's wife, who was a teacher of Home Economics, says that the perfect menu from a dietician's standpoint is a potato with a piece of butter thereon, a glass of milk, and some orange juice or fruit. Furthermore, the potato contains only 20 per cent starch compared with 40 per cent in bread and 60 per cent in rice — hence it is really a food for reducing, rather than being fattening. Maine is very backward in not advertising this.

THE PAPER PRODUCTS INDUSTRY

I am told that 90 per cent of the great State of Maine is covered with growing timber; also that this timber is growing faster than it is being cut and used. I was astounded to stand at the Searsport terminal of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad and see a ship 400 feet long loaded with newsprint made from Maine trees by the Great Northern Paper Company. There, however, are several other paper mills in Maine. Your newsboy probably delivers to many of you each day State of Maine newsprint; and even the books which you read and your telephone directory might well have been printed on paper made by Maine mills. Maine is also benefiting from the growth in packaging of almost everything sold in supermarkets, as well as from the increase in use of cartons and cardboard. These products, however, are suffering from lack of proper advertising.

The State of Maine is doing very little to help the manufacturer of these paper products. This especially applies to newsprint, which is absolutely dependent upon newspaper advertising. Radio and television advertising and the beautifully colored magazine advertisements are all indirectly aided by the federal government; but the State of Maine is doing nothing. Other Editors Saying... Traditional Whipping Boy

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
Political expediency almost certainly indicates no farm legislation at the shirt-tail post-convention session of Congress. Sen. John Kennedy, with his advantage of Democratic control of both houses, says only that he is consulting his advisers on several proposals. Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen has said he would like to see a wheat bill that would "at least meet the emergency" of a mounting surplus. But the Democrats have a "must" program of their own which does not extend to the problems of farmers.

Besides, Kennedy made it quite clear he wanted to keep the tag of association with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson securely pinned on the lapel of Vice President Richard Nixon. The sequence of events starts with Nixon, who dissociated himself from Benson, for whom he had the "highest regard and respect," and called for new leadership and promised for agriculture a new massive program.

Kennedy backers charge that Nixon had hailed Benson as "the greatest Secretary of Agriculture in our country's history." Benson finds himself in much the same boat as his predecessor, Charles F. Brannan, in 1952. The program of neither man was wholly put into action at any time during his incumbency. Indeed, Brannan was so put upon that in 1952 he denied authorship of the controversial program calling for non-recourse loans at 100 per cent of parity for storable commodities and direct payments to farmers on non-storable commodities.

The program had been tagged the "Brannan Plan" for political purposes, Brannan claims. In any event, the GOP platform in 1952 condemned the Brannan Plan as aiming "to socialize agriculture." And Gen. Eisenhower campaigned against the Brannan Plan as a political monstrosity amounting to moral bankruptcy. Ironically enough, the President was to propose in his 1954 farm message special treatment for wool, subsequently adopted by Congress, which was immediately likened to the Brannan Plan.

Benson, like Brannan, denies having a "plan." But Benson appears to be fated to be the same sort of whipping boy for the Democrats in 1960 that Charles Brannan was for the Republicans eight years ago. The truth seems to be that the Secretary of Agriculture, the traditional "friend of the farmer," is anything but his political friend in election years — unless the farmer can afford to drive to the polls in a Cadillac.

Should Men Trust Hunches More?

By ELMER ROESSNER
A suggestion that businessmen trust their hunches more has provoked a storm of praise and abuse for the suggester, Eugene Raudsepp, Director of Psychological Research for Deutsch & Shea, Inc., a manpower and industrial relations consulting firm.

Mr. Raudsepp advanced his idea in the April issue of the Management Review, published by the American Management Association. Since then both he and the magazine have been bombarded with letters from business executives. Opponents have called him an enemy of progress and a subversive attacker of the electronic brain. Supporters have called him a new leader in the fight of man versus machines. Glenn J. Christensen, dean of Lehigh University, called his article a stride forward in the science of behaviorism.

"Intuition has fallen on bad days," Mr. Raudsepp wrote. "There was a time when it was considered a precious mental faculty—a direct pipeline to the essence of truth. Now, however, the pendulum has swung the other way, and intuition is scorned as a prescientific concept and certainly has no place in the hardheaded world of business."

HUNCH DECISIONS SCORNE
Today, he said, business cherishes the nonthinking executives; it stands in awe of the man who does not think for himself but who feeds facts and questions into an electronic machine and comes out with an incontrovertible answer. He quoted Irving Langmuir, philosopher and chemist: "In complicated situations of life, we have to solve numerous problems and make many decisions. It is absurd to think that reason should be our guide in all cases. Reason is too slow and too difficult. We do not have the necessary data or we cannot simplify our problems sufficiently to apply the methods of reasoning. . . . We underestimate the importance of intuition."

He also quoted Albert Einstein; philosophers Susanne K. Langer and Jacques Maritain; and mathematician Jacques Hadamard in defense of intuition.

PRODUCT OF SUBCONSCIOUS
Mr. Raudsepp said that hunches and intuition are usually the product of unconscious thinking, below the threshold of unconscious awareness. He conceded there is no way of telling the validity of the hunch until it has been acted upon. But many executives, he found, know that their intuitions often have a sense of certainty that an intuitive decision is the right one.

"And intuitive decision is also frequently accompanied by a sense of compulsion that urges the executive to do something about it immediately," he wrote.

Furthermore, he added, most important business problems are an inextricable mixture of factual and other characteristics, and many of the latter are "inaccessible to any directly verifiable observation."

In other words, business problems involve human elements that cannot be calculated by formulas or electronic machines. Therefore, the machine cannot give a complete answer but a human mind can.

Mr. Raudsepp said he is collecting histories of cases in which hunch decisions proved correct.

"Reliance on formulae or electronic machines is especially bad at this period in our history," he said. "We need leadership with the confidence that it can make the right choice."

Dependence on machines and formulae makes executives reluctant to assert their powers of leadership. "It may even affect their personal life. The executive who may decide to make an intuitive decision may eventually be unable to make decisions for himself and family without the benefit of calculating machines—and so few homes have them these days!" he said.

U.S. EXPORT OF GOODS EXCEEDS OUR IMPORTS
In the recent column about the drain of United States gold, it was incorrectly stated that U.S. imports exceed exports. The U.S. still sells more goods abroad than it buys.

However, we are spending more abroad than foreigners spend on travel, foreign aid and private investment abroad is considered our deficit in our balance of payments is great and, as stated, will probably be about $2.5 billion this year.

New Bank Opens Tuesday

Eastern North Carolina's newest banking facility—a modern "full service" bank erected at 301 Washington Street by The Planters National Bank and Trust Company—opens for business in Greenville on Tuesday morning at 10:00 a.m.

The bank will be open for business and all-day open house from 10:00 a.m. until 9:00 p.m.

Brief ribbon cutting and opening ceremonies will be conducted from 9:45 a.m. until 10:00 a.m. Everyone is invited to attend the opening ceremonies.

Frank L. Little, Jr., Vice President and Manager of the bank, today said "We will be ready tomorrow morning—and we plan to make banking fast, pleasant, and convenient for our customers."

"It is our hope," he commented, "that the many weeks of preparation and planning will pay off in first-rate service to every customer of the bank, and that our resources and energies will give added impetus to the prosperous growth of this great Pitt County area."

In inviting everyone to Open House, Little emphasized that free refreshments and souvenirs will be available for all visitors, and "special gifts" will be given for the first 500 checking accounts of $100 or more. This offer, he explained, is of course, limited to 1 gift per customer.

As a token of its appreciation for the privilege of serving the Greenville and Pitt County area, Little pointed out the bank's elaborate celebration program, which the bank refers to as "Customer Appreciation Month". Beginning on August 9th and continuing through September 10th, hundreds of premiums and prizes will be made available to visitors and customers of the bank.

As an incentive to savers, the General Foods Kitchens Cookbook, acclaimed to be the most unique cookbook ever published, will be given free for the opening of savings accounts of $25 or more.

Beautiful "Book Banks" designed to establish the habit of thrift early in life, will be presented free for children's savings accounts of $1 or more.

Separate registrations for children and adults offer many wonderful free prizes to lucky winners.

On Tuesday, August 16th, a matched set of Samsonite table and chairs will be given to the winner of a drawing to be held in the bank lobby at noon. One the same date, a children's winner will receive ten silver dollars.

The following Tuesday, August 23rd, the prize will be a complete set of Firestone white-wall tires to fit the winner's car. The child's prize is fifteen silver dollars.

On the 3rd Tuesday, August 30th, a masterpiece of stereophonic high fidelity sound, the Sylvania Custom Stereo High Fidelity Phonograph console, goes to the lucky winner; and the child's prize is increased to twenty silver dollars.

For the Grand Prize drawing on Tuesday, September 6, a skid-mounted, full-size, Ford Fairlane Club Sedan automobile will be presented to the person whose name is drawn in the lobby at noon. The prize for the children's registration for this week will be twenty five silver dollars.

Little listed the rules for registration as follows:

1. Register once each banking day.
2. You need not be present, nor do you have to be a customer to win.
3. Registration is limited to residents of Pitt and adjoining counties. (Enrolled students and staff of East Carolina College will be considered residents of Greenville.)
4. Bank personnel, Board members, and their immediate families are not eligible.

Ben O. Yelverton, Jr., Assistant Manager of the bank, pointed out that the very latest and most efficient drive-in teller window, night depository and 24-hour envelope depository facilities have been installed for customer convenience.

In addition to these features, Yelverton said that residents and businesses will have access to check-cashing and change-making services and the availability of all bank items, such as traveler's checks, cashier's checks, out-of-town exchanges, etc.

Other members of the bank staff are: Walter E. Oakes, Assistant Vice President and Manager of the Time Payment Department; Mrs. Bonnie B. Avery; Charles L. Chappell; Miss Martha Faye Corbett; Mrs. Mary Ruth Highsmith; Miss Helen Overton; Mrs. Ma-

Jetta B. Robinson; Mrs. Kay R. Allen; and Willie Joyner.

Serving on the local Board of Managers are: H.T. Chapin, Jr.; B. Alton Gardner; Charles P. Gaskins; David T. House, Jr.; William L. Jenkins; B.D. Johnston; Frank L. Little, Jr.; Edwin E. Rawl, Jr.; Robert L. Smith; Lester E. Turnage, Jr.; and S. Eugene West.

In commenting on the opening, Little expressed the bank's gratitude for the "confidence and encouragement which the people of this area have shown in our bank. We are extremely proud of these splendid facilities, and we shall do our utmost to serve the banking needs of businesses and individuals."

Little paid tribute to the foresight and dedication of bank officials and members of his Board of Managers, which made the new institution possible. He declared that "the future of The Planters National Bank and Trust Company, and that of the people we serve, are closely interlocked. The growth and development of one is an accurate measure of the growth and development of the other. This magnificent building is an indication of the confidence which we have in the future of this great section of Eastern North Carolina."

In 1956, a new Drive-In office was opened in Roanoke Rapids, bringing the advantages of Drive-In Banking to that area for the first time.

The system's 10th office was established in Rocky Mount's Walnut Shopping Center in November of 1957.

In July 1959, permission was granted by the Comptroller of the Currency to establish an office in Greenville. The awarding of the construction contract to the P.S. West Construction Company brought workers to the "Quinery Manor" site without delay.

Following the same procedure used at offices in Plymouth, Ahoskie, and Roanoke Rapids, operations of the Greenville Office are under the supervision and jurisdiction of a local Board of Managers which has been functioning for the past several months.

So it is with gold. Suppose the Russians now flood world markets with gold rubles, the effect on our commerce, our productivity and our employment will be extremely severe.

Demo Rally To Seek Party Unity

RALEIGH (AP)—Faced with write-in campaigns and an all-out effort by Republicans, North Carolina Democratic party leaders will attempt to sell straight ticket voting at a rally here Tuesday.

Invitations have gone out to Tar Heel leaders from Gov. Hodges to General Assembly nominees. State Democratic headquarters expects about 1,000 persons for a rally-luncheon at the State Fair Arena.

Purpose of the session is to close the ranks of the party's faithful behind gubernatorial nominee Terry Sanford, presidential nominee John Kennedy and the rest of the Democratic ticket.

Speakers include Dr. I. Beverly Lake who presently—and against his expressed wishes—is the object of a write-in campaign for governor. Lake was defeated by Sanford in the party's gubernatorial primary runoff June 25.

Lake will be joined by John Larkins and Malcolm Seawell, the other unsuccessful candidates for the nomination for governor and U. S. Sens. Sam J. Ervin Jr. and B. Everett Jordan.

The rally will follow a meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee scheduled for 11:30 a.m. in the hall of the State House of Representatives.

Development, or Dr. Robert G. Doyle of the State Geological Department. I especially commend the good work of Dr. Robert L. Doy of the Sea & Shore Fisheries Department. Any ambitious young person can well spend two or three days at the State House at Augusta, Maine, where he will find intelligent experts eager to help him. The greatest of all opportunities lies in selling advertising to Maine potato growers, to Maine's manufacturers of paper products, and to those in the State producing a hundred other commodities. Natural resources are of little use unless accompanied by the courage and "gumption" of advertising.

Will Again Try Balloon Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States will try again next Tuesday to launch a 100-foot balloon communications satellite into orbit about the earth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Thursday it believes it has solved rocket troubles that ruined the first attempt last May 9. This effort failed because of a malfunction of control jets in the upper stages of the Thor-Delta carrier rocket.

RESIGNED

BONN, Germany (AP)—Another member of Cuba's foreign service, Ignacio Bustillo Garcia, the trade attaché in Bonn, has resigned, a spokesman of the Cuban Embassy disclosed today.

Bustillo went on vacation July 12, one day after Cuban Ambassador Eric Aguiro Montoro resigned to go to the United States.

Second Trip To Imprisoned Son

HONG KONG (AP)—Mary Downey of New Britain, Conn., arrived by plane today en route to her second visit to her son in a Chinese Communist prison.

John T. Downey, 32, a civilian employe of the U. S. Army, was sentenced to a life term on espionage charges in 1952. He was captured with another American after an Air Force plane crashed in China on a flight from Japan to Korea.

ARCHIE W. MCLEAN

Manager of Personnel for the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, Ohio; and as Vice President of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in Charlotte.

McLean's record of activity and leadership in business, professional, and civic organizations is well-known throughout the state. In Rocky Mount he has served as president of the Chamber of Commerce, president of United Community Services, president of the Y.M.C.A., and as director in numerous civic and business enterprises.

He is a Rotarian, a Presbyterian, and the father of four children. His wife is the former Serene Lee Turnage of Farmville.

During the years 1955-57 McLean was a director of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

ing to increase newspaper advertising.

The State of Maine is doing very little to help the manufacturer of these paper products. This especially applies to newspaper, which is absolutely dependent upon newspaper advertising. Radio and television advertising are all indirectly aided by the federal government; but the State of Maine is doing nothing to increase newspaper advertising. The promotion of which is left to individual newspapers. Yet, the State of Maine is largely dependent upon the advertising which the newspapers of the country—yes, and of the world—carry. As newspaper advertising increases, the number of pages of newspapers increases and the demand for newspaper increases. Inversely, as the number of pages of newspapers decreases, the demand for newspaper decreases proportionately. Furthermore, the continued prosperity of this nation depends upon increased use of newspaper advertising. I only wish the Legislature of the State of Maine would realize its responsibility in helping to build our nation's prosperity by stimulating newspaper advertising.

CHAPTER 33
 Leaving the courthouse at the end of the day, Judge Sam Hoffman dropped in at the Rowton Athletic Club bar.

Convinced that his judicial career was now over, conscious that his very presence here with a drink in his hand, innocent enough not too many months ago, now probably tended to confirm those rumors about his trouble with the bottle, he stood in austere isolation at the end of the brass rail and amused himself counting club acquaintances who were doing their embarrassed best to pretend not to see him.

Yet occasionally friends did approach him to express good wishes, and their kind, simple gestures so overwhelmed him that at first he could not trust himself to speak.

Arriving home an hour later, Judge Hoffman found Eloise in the kitchen preparing supper. She came to him and put her arms around him.

"After the hearing this morning, Sam," she said, "I wanted to stop by chambers, but I knew you had Bob in there, and then that you'd be having other people."

He held her tightly before releasing her. "Yes, the day went somehow."

"Dispiritedly, he went to the refrigerator to get ice and, conscious that his clumsy movements as he assembled glasses, soda, and whisky must exaggerate the effects of the drinks he had already had, he exerted himself to establish sobriety."

Measuring portions into the fitter with a fine balance between precision and nonchalance and surely a man the wrong side of his drinks would find such a feat beyond him, he said, "I suppose you've heard the sordid story of Callahan's war injury in Italy?"

"Yes, and the paper says he refuses to resign. That he's going to give the public his side of the story on a state-wide telecast. Sam, can he still win next Tuesday?"

"I don't know, Eloise," he said. "I don't know any more. Callahan had, really, an outstanding record overseas. Sometimes people sympathize with a man in his present position. As for the innuendoes of fraud in the Hart case, it appears, from what I just heard on the car radio, that he's rather cleverly attributing them to his political enemies, sarcastically pointing out that, if he himself had been responsible for any fraud, it was hardly likely he would have asked the Supreme Court to grant Norman Hart a new trial."

Eloise had been watching his bartending operations with a worried frown. "Sam, you look so tired. Don't you want to lie down a while before we eat?"

"I think I'd rather talk." As he passed her a drink he added dryly, "I know I'd rather talk." He shook his head. "There seem to be so many paradoxes. In fact, I feel as if I've been involved all day with people who were misreading their own motives, and I'm sure I did my share of misreading mine."

"Keenan, for example, is honestly convinced he's protecting something he calls 'the public interest' by exposing Callahan, through any means, but I suspect he's also unconsciously avenging his vanity because once Callahan made a fool of him. Then Bob, as you saw, stood up in my courtroom and tried to destroy Callahan with something that could never be proved in a court of law and Bob, too, believes he was acting honestly. I mean to cast no doubt on that."

"Sam," Eloise interrupted, "what did you say to him when you called him into chambers? You were just shaking with anger. I know the strain you were under, yet Bob . . ."

Judge Hoffman smiled faintly. "You can relax my dear. Your future son-in-law is not in danger. I gave him a dressing-down but we parted friends. I was going to say, though, that while I mean to cast no reflections on Bob, a rumor's circulating that Keenan wants him to head a recall movement against Callahan—if he loses to Hasper. Could it be, then, that Bob sprang to his feet today because the opportunity to champion, publicly and dramatically, a cause called 'justice'—an occasion well covered by the press . . ."

"No, Eloise, you must not misunderstand me. I don't think that these were conscious thoughts Bob had, and anyhow, he's smart enough not to fall for Keenan's bait. After all, if he ever became District Attorney one of his first duties—assuming Callahan doesn't beat him to it—would be that of indicting Keenan for wire tapping. In view of Bob's own relation to that whole affair, in view of the obligations he'd have to Keenan, he'd be faced with a moral dilemma. I wouldn't envy."

He turned to replace the ice tray, and his arm brushed the soda bottle, knocking it into the sink. "Damn!"

"How many have you had, Sam?"

"I've had a few." But then the self-pity he had somehow contained and controlled for the past eight hours took hold, and he could no longer conceal what he felt.

"Yes, I hoisted a few at the club on the way home. Indeed, why not? If I'm going to lose my job, if I'm going to be disbarred, the club membership's probably the first thing we'll have to drop."

He swayed slightly. "Modern man's ultimate disaster: losing his club membership. What a sorry mess the human race is!"

He walked unsteadily to the kitchen table and sat down. "Oh, Eloise, this terrible Bar Association censure. And the fiasco in my courtroom this morning. My judgment, my common sense, deserted me. That's what comes from trying to be a hero to yourself."

"I don't care about whether you're a hero. I'm proud of everything you've done."

"Who so blind as a loving wife? But thank heaven, Eloise, I still have you."

A trace of a smile crossed Eloise's face. "It's not as last-ditch as all that." She sat down opposite him. "And even if it was, you still did the right thing today when you tried to expose Callahan."

"Callahan? Callahan? The name is familiar."

Exhausted by his outburst, emotionally spent, he said with an inner quietness, "You know, Eloise, they say power corrupts, but I blame more the pursuit of power. The Callahans of this world, once they get what they want, seem to become genuinely devoted to whatever cause they believe chosen to serve. Demagogues crave respectability. And if Callahan does win next Tuesday . . . oh, Eloise, I should have stopped him. I should have said from the Bench today, 'This man, knowing of false evidence in a murder case, kept silence. This man coached his own witness to volunteer prejudicial and inflammatory testimony. This man . . .'"

"You did all you could."

"I didn't. No man ever does." Raising his head, he drew his shoulders back.

"Eloise, I sometimes forget I'm supposed to be a grown man. I had to get certain things out of my system, and now, well, they're out. In my heart I know that indeed no man is an island, and that other men have survived greater misfortunes than mine. Events test us all in

Ocean's Floor Now Becoming TV Series-Makers' Busy Set

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television series-makers, always hunting new places to hold the same old chases and fights, are looking at the ocean's floor.

One result is that a tourist attraction called Marineland, a few miles south of here, has become one of TV's busiest sets. During one recent week, a dozen television shows were clamoring for a chance to shoot underwater sequences through special portholes built into the sides of the tanks.

Although a number of the action series occasionally go underwater, one half-hour series, "Sea Hunt," specializes in skin-diving. It has been so successful that CBS is planning an hour's adventure show "Aquanauts," along the same lines. It's not fair to call producer Ivan Tors a copycat; he also dreamed up and produced "Sea Hunt."

"Aquanauts" hero Keith Larsen is a lean and bronzed young man who in the past few weeks has become more at home two fathoms deep than a TV cow town marshal in bushwack country. His working costume, however, leaves something to be desired in the way of creature comforts. He usually wears something called a "scuba outfit," skin-hugging rubber tights, jacket and helmet, flippers plus 45 pounds of tanks and breathing gear strapped to his back. Under water this is weightless and comfortable. But in the studio shots, he's literally a fish out of water—gasping from the heat.

"It's worth it," Larsen exclaimed breathlessly, staggering and sweating under his load of costume. "There's not a horse in the whole show."

The three major networks have now toted up their hours of political convention coverage, and it comes out around the 300-hour mark — about 100 hours per network. Somehow, to this speechified, eye-weary viewer, it seemed longer than that. Now that "Father Knows Best" has retired into re-runs, all the new TV family comedies are being talked about as "like 'Father Knows Best' but there's a switch." The principal switch is that mother knows best, as usual in TV.

George Gobel, without a show of his own next season, will co-star with pal Fred MacMurray in one episode of MacMurray's forthcoming "My Three Sons" series on ABC. William Frawley, once Fred Mertz in "I Love Lucy" plays Fred's father-in-law.

MacMurray, incidentally, is so tied up with movie commitments, that they've had to go ahead shooting the scenes in the series without him.

Editors: Cynthia Lowry will review the Esther Williams show—NBC, Monday night—in her Tuesday column.

Woman President Said 'Good Idea'

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Maurine Neuberger today said it might be a good idea to elect a woman president because women mostly are nicer than men.

"I have never heard of a woman political leader being accused of corruption or engaging in questionable deals," said Mrs. Neuberger, the Democratic candidate for U. S. senator in Oregon.

"Can this same standard be applied to men?" she asked.

She said the vital measuring stick for the presidency is whether the candidate "shows a quality for moral leadership."

The mountain republic of Andorra maintains its independence by paying an annual tribute of 960 francs to France and 460 pesetas to the bishop of Urgel, Spain.

Has Fingerprint Of Honest Abe

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Lloyd Ostendorf, an avid collector of Lincoln data here, has Honest Abe's fingerprint. It's only a partial print, accidentally recorded, but it's significant because fingerprinting wasn't used in Lincoln's day.

The fingerprint is on a 99-year-old letter that Ostendorf recently acquired. Written on the president's stationery, the hastily-scrawled note proposes that the secretary of war promote an Ardor captain. The smudged fingerprint, probably the result of the president's haste, is in front of the "A. Lincoln" signature.

Catholic Congress Ends Sun.

By FRANK BRUTTO
MUNICH, Germany (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church's 37th world eucharistic congress ended here Sunday after making three things clear:

1. The Catholic Church is urgently concerned with the necessity of improving the lot of the world's hungry, poorly clothed and inadequately sheltered. Some of its leaders see the plight of the less fortunate as grist for communism's mill and a greater peril than nuclear bombs.
2. The Church is more anxious than ever that all Christians draw closer together, minimizing their differences, emphasizing their similarities and healing the wounds of past religious conflicts.
3. The Church is more anxious than ever that all believers in God tighten ranks against atheistic, materialistic communism as the common enemy.

Speeches by cardinals, archbishops, bishops and prominent laymen brought out that the Church is convinced a true Christian life, with justice and help for the underprivileged, is the only means of combating communism.

In virtually all the speeches, whether they emphasized the needs of the poor or the peril of communism, one thing stood out starkly: The world today faces grave danger.

Pope John XXIII, in a radio-television message during the concluding ceremony of the congress, prayed that the human race be protected "from the danger of death."

"Above all," he prayed, in an obvious reference to Communist areas and the world's poor, "protect men from the death which is especially feared, the spiritual death to which innumerable souls are now exposed or by which they are crushed in wretchedness."

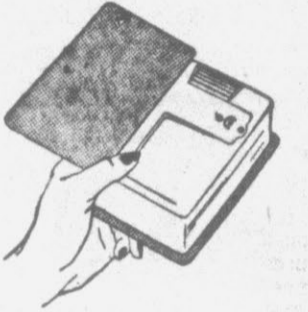

A throng in Munich's Theresa's Meadows — estimated by some at a million and a half — listened to the address. They had come from virtually all parts of the world except Communist countries, whose authorities boycotted the congress.

Football Is Here Again

Bucs Sweep Doubleheader

Groat Still Capt. Of Pirate NL Cruise

Braves Regain Second Position

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer

Dick Groat may not hit a home run or steal a base all year but today, with the National League season two-thirds over, he must be rated a leading candidate for most valuable player honors.

The slow-foot, light-on-power shortstop is the spark plug of the league-leading Pittsburgh Pirates, the glue that holds the team together.

A brainy player—the kind the late John McGraw would have loved — Groat makes up for his lack of speed and power by his alertness, aggressiveness, ability to figure out situations and inspirational leadership.

The 29-year-old Duke alumnus gave an example of his ingenuity as the Pirates swept a doubleheader from San Francisco Sunday 4-1 and 7-5 to pull away to their biggest lead of the season — 5 1/2 games over Milwaukee and St. Louis.

It happened in the eighth inning of the nightcap. The score was tied 5-5 and Pittsburgh's Bill Mazeroski was on third following his single and bunt by pitcher Elroy Face and Joe Christopher.

Groat did the last thing the Giants' defense expected. He bunted — the Pirates' third straight bunt. There wasn't even a play on Mazeroski at the plate and when Orlando Cepeda threw wildly to first, Christopher also scored.

Groat also played an important role in the opener, with three hits and one run batted in. His five hits in the two games gave him a league-leading total of 137 and boosted his batting average to .312, fourth high in the circuit.

double triumph. Roseboro doubled Davis home in the ninth to break a 7-7 tie in the opener. Sherry, who finished with six scoreless innings after a shaky start, received credit for his ninth victory. Koufax struck out 11 and allowed only four hits in the nightcap. Davis provided what proved to be the winning tally with a home run in the fourth. Willis had seven hits in the two games.

Kenny Boyer's bases-loaded single in the seventh of the nightcap drove in the winning runs as the Cards overcame a 2-1 deficit. Cincinnati's attack in the opener included a grand slammer by Jerry Lynch, three doubles by Wally Post and five hits by rookie third baseman Cliff Cook.

Warren Spahn registered his 12th triumph of the year for the Braves and raised his lifetime victory total to 279 but he had to survive an eighth-inning rally. The Cubs shelled him from the mound with a four-run attack that included Frank Thomas' three-run homer.

Groat also played an important role in the opener, with three hits and one run batted in. His five hits in the two games gave him a league-leading total of 137 and boosted his batting average to .312, fourth high in the circuit.

The Braves regained second place from St. Louis, eking out a 5-4 victory over Chicago's Cubs while the Cards were held to a split by Cincinnati. The Redbirds won the nightcap, 4-2, after the Reds had amassed 21 hits for 18-4 victory in the opener. Los Angeles' four-run Dodgers comeback to within a game of second, taking two from Philadelphia 8-7 and 2-1.

Chicago's White Sox whittled New York's first-place lead in the American League to 1 1/2 games by winning a pair from Washington 8-7 and 3-2 as Kansas City held the Yankees to a split. The Athletics triumphed 13-3 after New York had won the first 3-2. Baltimore trampled Cleveland twice, 6-6 and 9-2. Detroit and Boston divided a pair. The Tigers won the first 7-2 and the Red Sox took the second 1-0.

Bob Friend scattered seven hits, struck out six and coasted to his 12th Pittsburgh victory in the opener. A seventh-inning home run by the Giants' Hobie Landrith cut him a shutout.

Fine Players On Carolina Team, Sweep Virginia

By JOHNNY HUDSON Reflector Sports Editor

GREENSBORO—East Carolina coach Jack Boone raced around the Senior Stadium turf here Friday night like a man in a hurry and about to miss his bus.

Only a few minutes before Ball spoke Sunday, the Carolinas golf team had rudely shoved the Virginia team aside, 85-59, to win the coveted Captain's Putter for the ninth time in 12 tries.

Ball's comments weren't subject to much argument from the 23 other players who joined him in competing for the two Virginia trophies over the Cascades course.

Here the Virginians seem to have enjoyed an advantage, but in the end the Carolinas' margin of victory was nearly as great as at Pinehurst, N.C., in April, when they won 96 1/2 to 47 1/2.

After two-man team, best-ball skirmishes Saturday the Carolinas led only by 37-35. But the individual excellence of the Carolinas players came to the fore in head-to-head combat Sunday when they outscored the Virginians counterparts 48-24.

In the Sunday play, no fewer than nine of the Carolinas golfers won by 3-0 shutouts—Clyde Mangum, Gabby Bryant, Charles Smith, Bill Harvey and Dillard Traynham and seniors Edison Ford, Rocky Zamello, O. G. McCombs and Bill Yates.

Low scorers were Traynham, the South Carolina champion, and the Virginians' Jimmy Watts, both of whom posted one-under-par 70s.

GREENSBORO—East Carolina coach Jack Boone raced around the Senior Stadium turf here Friday night like a man in a hurry and about to miss his bus.

Other future East Carolina grid-diggers on the East roster were Buck Hodges of Hamlet and Bobby Hood of Lumberton.

Hodges was a starting defensive back for the East and Hood worked as an offensive flanker, snagging one of quarterback Earl Cole's aeriels.

PROBABLY the biggest surprise to the college scouts was the performance of Bruce Owen, Tarboro fullback.

A 195 pound tank-type runner, Owen almost broke loose on the opening kickoff but was stopped by the last two West defenders.

He was the most effective piece of running machinery, netting 27 yards in seven tries, that the East could put together.

Owen was also the East kicker and put the West in hot water several times during the night. His long boots probably kept the East from suffering a more humiliating defeat.

COACHES George Tucker and Gary Mattocks were trying to pull a couple more recruiting tricks prior to opening their first season at Elon.

Another Golf Win For Arnold Palmer

By LOU BLACK

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Is a Palmer finish going to replace a Garrison Finish among sports fans?

Time was when a solid way to describe a fantastic, heart-pumping, come-from-behind victory was to call it a garrison finish, after famed jockey Snapper Garrison of another day.

But the way Arnold Palmer has been winning golf prizes this year, he may be the Garrison of today's generation of sports fans.

the No. 1 golfer. Five strokes behind Jack Fleck, and three behind Bill Collins, with 18 holes left to play in the 72-hole grind, Arnie caught the 1955 National Open champ on the 70th with a birdie. Collins joined them in a triple tie on the 71st with a sub-par. They went on to tie at 270, 14-under par, necessitating a sudden death playoff for the $3,500 top prize.

Fleck and Palmer birdied the 73rd. A par eliminated Collins. The two survivors battled the long 74th on even terms. Then Arnie set up the kill.

He hit the green 18 feet from the cup on the par-3, 183-yard 75th. Fleck was short, but approached within four feet. But while iron-nerved Palmer holed out in regulation, Fleck's putter failed the veteran.

Gastonia Voices Withdrawal Edit

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — The Gastonia club's wound at the 90-day suspension of playing manager Doc Queen remained an open sore today. A threat was voiced that the club will be withdrawn from the Western Carolina League unless something is done within the next few days.

George Lubnanek, general manager of the Class D team, said Saturday night he will withdraw the club unless the executive committee of the National Professional Baseball Assn. meets "in three or four days" to talk over the matter and lighten the penalty against Queen.

Queen was suspended for 90 playing days—extending into next season—for his part in a row at a league game. Queen allegedly refused to leave the field after being ordered to do so and minor leagues President George Trautman held him responsible for a crowd disorder that followed in which a fan attacked the umpires.

Graniteer's Retain NE District Honors

The Graniteers once again rode the strong right arm and hitting of Jessel Curry Saturday night to retain the district softball title with a 7-0 victory over J. P. Stevens of Roanoke Rapids.

It was the third victory for the Graniteers in the double elimination tournament and Curry was the winning pitcher in each. The defending champs defeated Goldsboro 6-3 and J. P. Stevens 5-4 before blanking the latter club in the finals.

Curry, named the "Most Valuable Player" in the tournament, helped break his pitching duel with Clippard in the fourth when he opened with a single, went to second on wild pitch, stole third, and scored on a fielder's choice.

In the fifth, the Graniteer hitters tore into Roanoke Rapids ace with the strength of a culture landing on its prey. Winfield Tingle, Johnny Poell, Mack Roebuck, and Ike Riddick hit successive singles and Curry and Harold Ingram followed with booming doubles.

By the time the Graniteers were retired, a total of six more runs had scored and they had the district trophy in the bag.

In winning his third victory of the tournament, Curry clipped the Roanoke Rapids team on two hits — both singles. The losers were unable to send a man past second.

The EC graduate student had three hits in four trips to the plate, giving him a total of 10 hits for the week-long tournament.

Poell, Roebuck, Ingram and Riddick had two hits for the winners.

Dr. Kenneth L. Quiggins, president of Civitan Club, presented trophies to Roanoke Rapids and Graniteers following the game. Quiggins also made the presentation to Curry.

Large Field For Qualifying Play

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—J. C. Hyatt and Gene Ochseneiter, who between them have won five Country Club of Asheville Invitation tournaments, were in the field today as qualifying play began in the 1960 amateur tourney.

There were 176 entries, including Paul Tarnow of Tampa, Fla., 1958 winner; Woody Weaver of Petersburg, Fla., 1951 victor; Wilson Doe Jr., Montgomery, Ala., who won three times, in 1939, 1940 and 1942.

Hyatt won in 1949, 1952 and 1955, while Ochseneiter took the honors in 1954 and 1957. Others in the field were Dave Smith of Gastonia and Asheville golfers Bill Winkenwerder and Jim Dowd.

Match play, with 32 in the championship flight, starts Wednesday, to continue through Saturday.

Another ECC Prospect, Richard Jackson, Attributed to the Resounding West Victory

The 170 pound wingback helped ground out the first West touchdown, picking up several first-downs on reverses.

A Hickory native, Jackson was persuaded by ECC coaches to bypass Lenoir Rhyne in favor of East Carolina College.

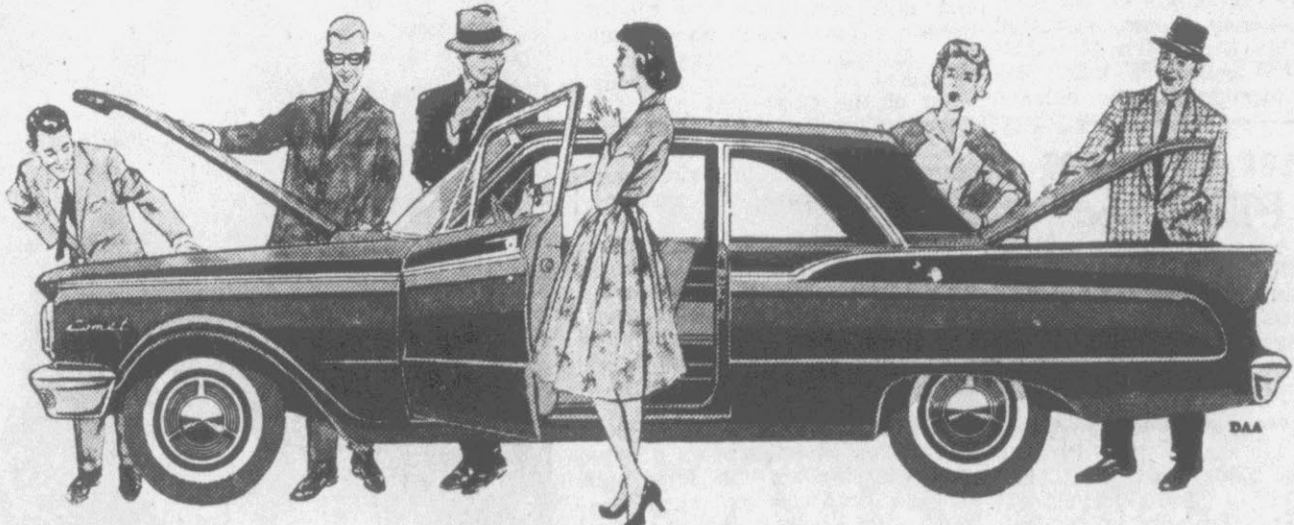

Another wingback on the West club, Ricky Jarrell of Kernersville, saw plenty of action Friday night and will take up residence at East Carolina this fall.

Jarrell, weighing 175, saw duty on offense and defense.

FRAND Galloway of Wilson was one of the lone pests that the East could muster up in trying to execute a potent T-formation attack.

The former Wilson scooter was used as one of East's starting offensive halfbacks. He also saw duty on defense for Coach Roger Thrift.

OUTSTANDING PLAYER—Jessel Curry, Graniteer pitcher and hitting star, receives the "Most Valuable Player" award from Dr. Kenneth Quiggins following the Graniteers' 7-0 victory Saturday night.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An irate father who charged pep pills were used at the U.S. Olympic swimming and diving trials plans to remove his daughters from championship competition.

Weikko Ruuska, whose daughter, Sylvia, made the Olympic team for the second time last claimed three top West Coast teams used pep pills in dominating the Detroit trials.

In an interview with Indianapolis Star sportswriter Bob Williams, Ruuska said, "women seem to be more vicious than the men. They will try almost anything in order to win."

The Santa Clara Calif. Swim Club and Multnomah Swim Club of Portland, Ore., two of the teams the former Berkeley, Calif., swimming coach accused, took top honors in all six individual events in the women's trials. Ruuska said the Los Angeles Athletic Club also used the stimulants.

The coach of the 1959 Berkeley "Y" women's national champions said pep pills were found in locker rooms at the trials and that the cases has been turned over to the chairman of the Women's National Swimming Committee.

and walked only 50. In 1959, Marichal posted a 18-13 record with Springfield of the Eastern League and struck out 208 in 271 innings. Juan was 11-5 with 119 strikeouts in 139 innings when the Giants called him up on July 11.

It was Andy Gilbert who first touted Juan as a future big league pitching star last spring. Gilbert managed the Springfield club, and with Marichal's help, won the Eastern League pennant.

"Marichal came to us from Class D," said Gilbert, "but he had all the qualifications of a big league pitcher—fine control, good stuff and a major league arm. In addition, he had police, desire and determination. I figured he would move up to the Coast League and be ready to help San Francisco in 1961. It looks as though Juan was well ahead of the schedule I figured for him. He's a solid, level-headed boy and success isn't going to spoil him."

Baltimore Orioles Getting Base Hits

Wrestlers Lack Killer Instinct

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — "These boys sure could use some 'mean' pills. Most of them don't have that killer instinct but we hope they have it by the time the games begin."

And with that Coach Port Robertson plucked his Olympic freestyle wrestling team into their final workouts before heading for Rome.

Robertson and Briggs Hunt will put the finishing touches on the 16-man team today, Tuesday and Wednesday. Thursday the grapplers leave for New York and Sunday they fly to Rome.

The training camp — the first one in history for Uncle Sam's wrestlers—opened July 22. Last week was devoted mostly to the elimination matches that produced eight Greco-Roman and eight freestyle winners from the original squad of 35.

Both men feel this is the best conditioned squad to represent the United States.

But Robertson says the freestyle team may be hard put to match the 1956 edition which got only one silver medal.

"Our boys all seem to know a lot more about wrestling," Robertson says, "but they haven't developed those two or three holds you just have to, in order to win in international competition."

In all the matches here last week, only two pins were registered. However, Robertson, former coach here at the University of Oklahoma, believes they will be a little more aggressive since they have made the team.

Retired trainer Preston Burch, 75, saddled his first winner in 1902 at Brooklyn's Gravesend track.

Lopes To Test Ambitious Youth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Lopes, once the No. 1 lightweight contender but now a trial horse, tests the rising ambitions of young Eddie Perkins Wednesday night at Chicago Stadium in a bout that could catapult Perkins into a title match.

Rated fourth among the lightweights by the National Boxing Assn. after beating Chico Rollins, Larry Boardman and Paola Rosi this year, Perkins is supposed to be in line for a crack at Joe Brown's championship if he can handle Lopes.

The weekly Wednesday night television series and the spot reportedly is reserved for Brown and a challenger. Perkins, a 25-year-old Chicagoan with an 18-7 record, hopes to be it.

Now 28, Lopes has had 75 pro bouts, and shows a 49-20-6 record with 18 knockouts.

Perkins stopped Rollins this year for only his fifth kayo, and two of those have been because of cuts.

The 10-rounder will be telecast nationally by ABC at 9 p.m. EST.

And now they've got hitting, too. The main rap against the Baltimore Orioles was their almost total lack of power.

The experts last spring conceded Paul Richards' kidne crew had speed, defense and pitching. But who besides Gus Triandos and Gene Woodling were capable of providing the long ball?

Richards showed 'em Sunday. The supposedly weak-hitting Orioles banged out 30 hits, including six home runs and two doubles in their 8-6 and 9-2 sweep of a doubleheader from Cleveland. They slammed five home runs in the first game to set a club record. Woodling hit one. The others were made by Jim Gentile (2), Jackie Brandt and pitcher Jack Fisher.

Baker Second In Stock Car Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only a car length separated winner Johnny Beauchamp and runnerup Buck Baker in a scheduled 200-mile late model stock car race at Nashville, Tenn., Sunday. The race was halted by rain after 166½ miles.

Buck Baker was third and Lee Petty, of Randleman, N.C., was fourth in a 1960 Plymouth. The first three finishers drove 1960 Chevrolets.

Beauchamp of Harland, Iowa, earned $3,666, including lap money. White, from Spartanburg, S.C., picked up $2,390, and Baker, also from Spartanburg, won $1,225.

The race was slowed by a number of caution flags after crashes, but there were no serious injuries.

Sixth through 10 in order were Joe Lee Johnson of Chattanooga, Dick Petty of Randleman, Jim Paschal of High Point, N. C.; Roz Howard of Atlanta, and G. C. Spencer of Inman, S.C.

Bryant Wallace of Statesville drove a Ford to victory in the 100-lap late model limited sportsman race at Hickory Speedway in which several sportsman events were held in the Carolinas.

Runners' up to Wallace were Clem Little and Gary Sain of Hickory.

Brothers Bobby and Charles Webb ran one-two in a 100-lap sportsman feature at Rockingham, N.C. Thomas Cox of Asheboro, N.C., won the 50-lap amateur.

Bobby Isaac of Newton, N.C., won a modified sportsman race at Rambi Raceway in Myrtle Beach. He was trailed by Earl Moss of Creedmore, N.C. and George Dunn of Raleigh.

Driving a car borrowed from Pee Wee Jones, Whitey Norman of Winston-Salem won a 50-lap modified sportsman feature in his home town. Jones was second, almost a lap behind.

Fisher, who won his seventh game, in relief, cracked his in a two-run rally in the eighth that snapped a 6-6 tie. Brandt added another homer, his ninth, in the nightcap as Milt Pappas spaced seven hits for his 10th victory. Gentile's homers were his 13th and 14th.

The double triumph boosted the third-place Orioles to within a half-game of second and two games of the top.

The runner-up Chicago White Sox whittled New York's first-place lead down to 1½ games by winning a pair from Washington 9-7 and 3-2 while Kansas City was holding the Yankees to a split in their twin bill. The Athletics won the second game 13-3 after New York had won the opener 3-2.

Pittsburgh boosted its National League lead to 5½ games by flattening San Francisco twice 4-1 and 7-5. Milwaukee regained second place from St. Louis with a 5-4 decision over the Chicago Cubs as the Cards were held to a split by Cincinnati. The Reds took the opener 18-4 and the Cards won the second 4-2. Los Angeles took two from Philadelphia 8-7 and 2-1.

Ninth inning clutch hits by Gene Freese and Minnie Mino provided relief ace Gerry Staley with both White Sox victories. Freese slammed a two-run homer in the first game to break a 7-7 tie. Mino cracked a run-scoring single with two out in the final inning of the second game to break a 2-2 tie.

Staley, in winning his 10th and 11th victories, worked 3 1-3 innings in the first game and relieved starter Buck Shaw in the ninth of the nightcap when Washington tied the score on Reno Bertola's sacrifice fly.

Bud Daley scattered eight Yankees hits and finally posted his 13th victory after five consecutive defeats. His Kansas City mates supported him with 14 hits. They shelled Ralph Terry from the mound in the first as the first four batters hit safely.

Bill Skowron won the opener for the Yankees with a two-run homer in the ninth that spoiled Ray Herbert's bid for his fifth straight triumph. Skowron drove in two runs in the nightcap, too.

A crowd of 31,384—largest of the season at Municipal Stadium—brought joy to the Kansas City businessmen seeking to assure a season total of 850,000, the minimum needed to make sure the franchise remains in the city under a contract which has three years to run. The A's have drawn 524,763 in 50 home appearances so far.

Billy Muffett not only pitched a fourth shutout for Boston but made three hits himself and scored the only run of the game as the Red Sox gained a split with the Tigers. Jim Bunning fanned 11 to win his seventh for the Tigers in the opener. Rocky Colavito cracked three of the Tigers' 11 hits and Coot Veal drove in two runs. The opener was Detroit's first victory in four games since Joe Gordon started running the club Friday.

Davis Cup Team Leading Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The closest American Zone Davis Cup eliminations ever played between Mexico and the United States winds up today with Barry MacKay tangling with Mario Llamas and Earl Buchholz meeting Rafael Osuna.

The United States leads 2-1 after a narrow doubles victory Sunday which was not decided until the eleventh game of the fifth and final set.

In opening singles, MacKay, badly off form, was beaten by Osuna, only Mexican ever to win a Wimbledon doubles title. Buchholz upset Mexico's top Mario Llamas.

MacKay will start today's play against Osuna, the pressure lifted by the doubles victory Sunday in which Buchholz and Chuck McKinley defeated Osuna and Antonio Palafox, 2-6, 6-4, 7-9, 6-4, 7-5.

Says Tax Concessions Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP)—The head of the nation's largest textile firm said here today permanent U.S. tariff concessions would force this country's textile manufacturers to either liquidate or move overseas.

Inc., was one of several textileists who appeared before either the U.S. Committee for Reciprocity Information, or the U.S. tariff Commission.

countries of the world. The granting of any additional tariff concessions now would be taken as a signal to the world at large to concentrate on developing their textile exports to the United States.

Love, who testified before the Committee for Reciprocity Information, said close inter-relationship of various segments of U. S. textile industry causes the entire industry to be affected by broad government policies in foreign trade.

Schwarzenbach requested removal from the proposed negotiation list of man-made fiber fabrics, silk manufactures and cotton textile products. He said foreign producers can enter the U.S. market "at will, in quantity, over existing rates of duty and substantially below the domestic cost."

Negro Students Begin 'Kneel-in'

ATLANTA (AP)—Negro college students have initiated a new "kneel-in" campaign in the South by attending services at white protestant Atlanta churches.

Love, who testified before the Committee for Reciprocity Information, said close inter-relationship of various segments of U. S. textile industry causes the entire industry to be affected by broad government policies in foreign trade.

Commenting on items listed for possible tariff concessions in the GATT negotiations, Love said: "Over the vast range of textile manufactures, it is perfectly clear that U.S. tariff rates are already no barrier to imports from most

Love added that "the ample fact is that textile products are being imported into this country in ever-increasing quantities only because they are cheaper, and are cheaper only because they are made under working conditions that are either illegal or impossible here."

BASEBALL'S "MAN IN BLUE"

Ban Johnson, pioneer president of the American League, once said: "A good umpire is an umpire you don't notice. He's in the game all afternoon (that was before night ball) and when the game is over you can't remember his name."

That apt description of the perfect "man in blue" fits Charley Berry about as well as any of the 36 major league umpires now operating.

This is Berry's 18th season in the American League, and he's really enjoying it. "I wouldn't care to change places with anyone," says the six-foot, 212-pound caller of balls and strikes.

He's had a lot of ballplaying experience as well. He was a catcher before donning mask and protector, and even tried his hand at managing a team. That was in Wilmington, Del., in 1940. As catcher, he caught some of the great pitchers like Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw with the Philadelphia Athletics, and Charley Ruffing when both were with the Boston Red Sox. He also played with the Chicago White Sox. He played in 709 big league games and hit .267.

Charles Francis Berry was born 57 years ago in Phillipsburg, N. J., and like most umpires has a family—his wife Helen and three daughters, Helen, 32, Charle, 23, and Lynn, 21. The Berrys were married in 1926.

Umpire Berry is pictured here, on and off the field.

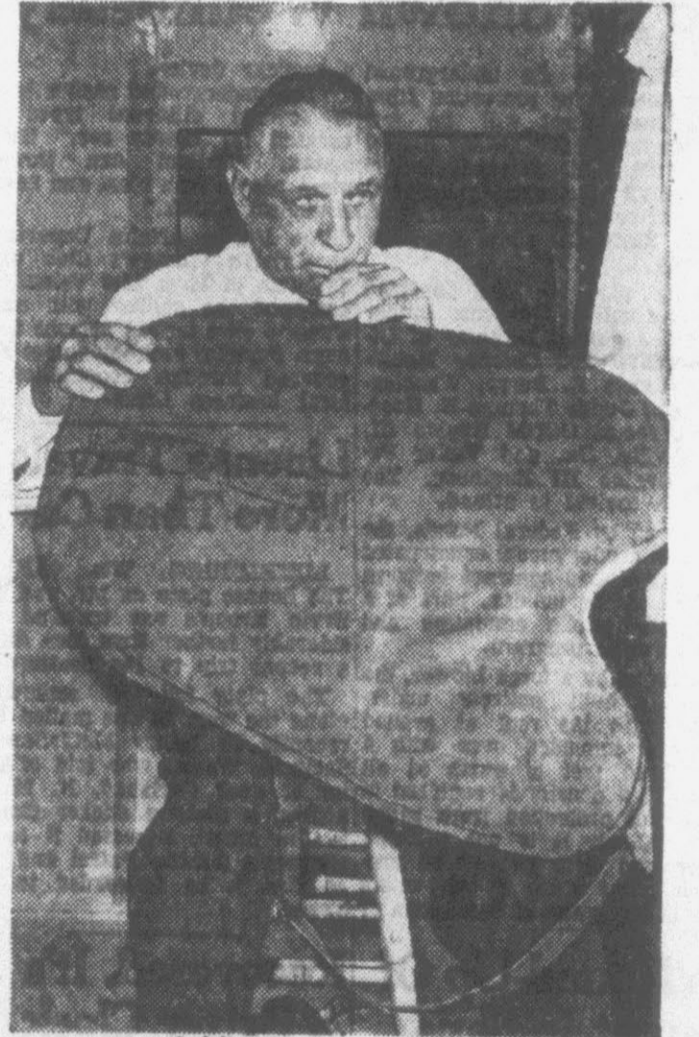

THE BEEF: Manager Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox complains about a Yankee pitcher who was taking too much time to enter the game. As usual, Umpire Berry had the final word.

Five Men Have Conflicting Views On Hiroshima Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifteen years after the first atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, Japan, five men connected in different degrees with the project have conflicting views on its use in that manner.

The views of the five were recorded in interviews published today in a copyright article in the magazine U.S. News and World Report. They generally agreed the bomb should have been used in some way, but some contended a demonstration of its power would have brought a Japanese surrender without destruction of a city and its inhabitants.

Military use of the bomb as soon as it was ready was recommended to President Harry S. Truman by a special eight-member committee. But Truman later wrote in his memoirs:

"The final decision of where and when to use the atomic bomb was up to me. Let there be no mistake about it. I regarded the bomb as a military weapon and never had any doubt that it should be used."

Use of the bombs at Hiroshima

Aug. 6, 1945, and at Nagasaki three days later, and the Japanese surrender the following day, are generally credited with avoiding the need for a U.S. invasion of Japan which could have caused U.S. casualties estimated as high as a million men.

James F. Byrnes, Truman's personal representative in some of the bomb discussions and later secretary of state, said the possibility of such heavy casualties from invasion led to the recommendation for using the bomb.

Others interviewed by the magazine were Dr. Leo Szilard, a pioneer in A-bomb development who later opposed its use; Lewis L. Strauss, then an assistant secretary of the Navy and later chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission; Ralph A. Bard, then under secretary of the Navy; and Dr. Edward Teller, often called the father of the hydrogen bomb. Some were asked to give their reactions at the time of the decision, others in the light of subsequent events.

Byrnes supported use of the bomb in the light of the overall situation. He commented:

"There was a question of giving the Japanese fair warning about the time and place of the explosion, but we rejected it because we feared American prisoners of war would be brought into the designated area. We were told by experts, too, that whatever the success of the test bomb, they could not guarantee that another bomb would explode when dropped."

Although Szilard helped persuade President Roosevelt to launch the atomic bomb project, he said he opposed dropping the atomic bomb on Japan "with all my power." He told the magazine:

"I don't think Japan would have surrendered unconditionally without the use of force. But there was no need to demand the unconditional surrender of Japan. If we had offered Japan the kind of peace treaty which we actually gave her, we could have had a negotiated peace."

Strauss, emphasizing the word "manner," said "in my opinion, it was a mistake to use the bomb in the manner that it was used . . . I proposed that the weapon be used in Japan over either an uninhabited area, or after a warning over a sparsely inhabited area, preferably a forest near Nikko, where the effects of blast and heat would be demonstrable after the explosion.

"In the late spring of 1945, Japan was defeated before the bombing, except for the formal act of surrender."

Bard was one of the eight-man committee which made the recomommendation that the bomb be used without warning, but was the only committee member to go on record against that recommendation.

"I think that, in the light of what's happened since the dropping of the bomb, it seems perfectly evident that a warning to the Japanese at that time — before dropping the bomb — would have resulted almost certainly in peace. In my opinion, the Japanese war was really won before we ever used the atom bomb."

Teller, calling use of the bomb "a mistake," said "I would have been much happier if we had first demonstrated the bomb, by a harmless explosion over Tokyo at too high an altitude to do damage, so that everyone could see what could have been done."

"I think it would have been much better if we had first tried other ways than the destruction of a city."

COMING INTO PORT—The luxury liner Leonardo da Vinci is escorted by a helicopter as she steams up New York harbor to complete the maiden voyage from Genoa, Italy. The 33,000-ton, 761-foot long turbo vessel is the new flagship of the Italian Line.

Top Official Reports NASA's Project Mercury On Schedule

By VERN HAUGLAND

Associated Press Aviation Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — A top space agency official said today that the Project Mercury manned satellite program is "essentially along the same time schedule" as was initially planned.

Despite some published reports of serious lags in the program, "no major problems" have developed, Dr. Abe Silverstein said in an interview. He is director of space flight programs for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Silverstein reported that everything inside the Mercury capsule fired from Cape Canaveral, Fla., July 29, worked properly even though the Atlas launching vehicle failed.

The agency still plans to launch Mercury astronauts into suborbital flights this year and into orbits around the earth next year, as nearly on schedule as is possible in any ambitious research and development program, Silverstein said.

Seven men are being trained for orbital flights of 17,500 miles an hour, three or more times around the earth, at altitudes of 120 miles. These full-scale Atlas-launched missions will be preceded by sub-orbital test hops, in Redstone rocket-launched capsules, to an altitude of 125 miles and a distance of 200 miles down range from Cape Canaveral.

Dr. Homer Joe Stewart, NASA's director of program planning, told a National Rocket Club luncheon July 28 that the Mercury program, under way now for 18 months, has had "some small slippage."

Stewart said a suborbital manned flight "is still technically possible by the end of this year, but the margin is getting a little small."

What might have been a major step forward in the Mercury program—the first attempt at an Atlas-launched ballistic flight of a Mercury capsule — turned into a sharp setback when the rocket exploded 65 seconds after launching July 29.

Silverstein said the reason for the Atlas failure was still a mystery.

"But we recovered 95 per cent of the capsule—got 50 feet of water—and got good information on it," he said. "We recovered all the instrumented data—information on temperatures, acceleration forces and the like. Everything worked inside the capsule, but it did not reach flight conditions."

Silverstein said the whole Mercury program is on an accelerated scale.

"In such a program you have to anticipate failures. We expected some failures and designed the program for them."

Can Now Report Tastes Do Vary

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) —Do you "taste" as well when you're young as you do when you're old?

Researchers at Rutgers University are experimenting with over 200 persons to find out why youngsters refuse to eat some things that they may find delicious when older. So far they report "there's a tremendous difference in taste" as any child with a plate full of spinach could tell them.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Aircraft and missile stocks lost their early gains, or turned lower, in a mixed stock market early this afternoon.

Apparently responding to publication of President Eisenhower's message to the reconvening Senate, defense-related issues fell off suddenly and sharply. Failure of the message to recommend any big new defense spending ran counter to Wall Street's previous hopes.

Avco, last week's most active issue, sold off nearly a point on a block of 18,000 shares at 15 1/4.

Boeing and Martin were down nearly a point, while Douglas, North American Aviation and Martin also lost ground. United Aircraft was slightly higher.

The overall market continued to reflect a balance between the uncertain business and international situations on one hand and the market's good technical position on the other.

Trading proceeded at a moderate pace.

Steels and motors also eased, but oils, airlines and electronics were higher. Other groups were mixed.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 0.61 at 64.90.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was unchanged at 215.40 with industrials down 0.10, rails up 0.40 and utilities unchanged.

U. S. government and corporate bonds were mixed.

Chief Says Refusal Was To Non-Member

WINTERVILLE — Winterville Fire Chief Lloyd Worthington said today his department had refused to answer a call to a burning tobacco barn Sunday afternoon because the owner had declined to join a Community Fire Association and had not paid a bill for previous service.

Worthington identified the farmer as Amos Mills, whose farm is located on the old New Bern Rd., below Worthington's Crossroads.

Worthington explained that when the Winterville community set up their fire association, each farmer was asked to participate by being assessed five dollars per building. The assessment paid for the community truck, equipment and services. Those who joined are entitled now to service by the fire department, which is manned by a volunteer squad and no further fees are required unless for new equipment.

Regulations were set up that the volunteer squad would answer calls not answered until he had the association and paid the fee, but that these people were to be assessed $50 per fire. If the $50 bill is not paid, the farmer is placed on a blacklist and future calls are not answered until he pays his previous bill.

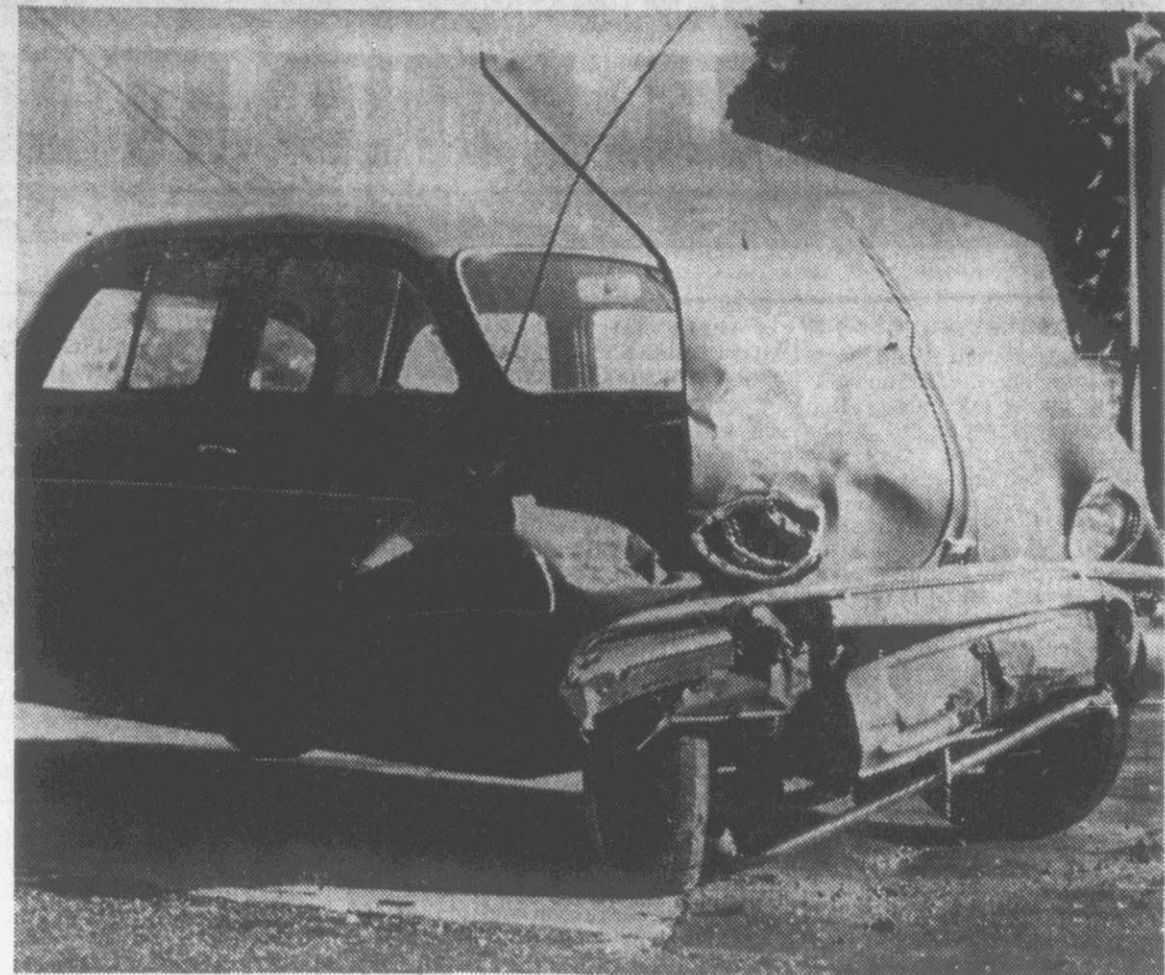

Worthington said Mills had declined to join the association when he, along with others of the community, were approached. It was several years ago that the department answered a call to the Mills farm, when a tobacco barn was burning. The fire department saved surrounding barns and sent Mills the notice of the $50 charge.

When Mills did not pay it, he was placed on the blacklist, Worthington said.

The chief further explained that the town of Winterville has its own fire truck, which serves the town and which was financed by town taxes. The community truck was bought by the people.

The fire squad receives no pay for its services as a Community Fire Department.

Two Weekend Wrecks Cause $1,300 Damage

HEAVY DAMAGE . . . resulted to this car after it collided with a truck at the intersection of 14th and Charles Sts. early today.

Two wrecks reported by the Greenville Police Department during the weekend caused an estimated $1,300 damage to the vehicles involved, officers said.

Damage estimated at $400 resulted to a small foreign made vehicle this morning about 7:10 when it was involved in a collision with a truck at the intersection of 14th and Charles Sts.

Investigators who identified the driver of the car as Henry L. Borholmer, 23, of 2302 Bay St., Morehead City, said the vehicle was traveling East on 14th St.

Driver of the truck was listed as Henry Parrott Rhodes, 34, of 412 Drum Ave. Damage to his vehicle was set at $300.

Rhodes was charged with failure to stop for a stop sign following investigation of the mishap.

Both men were treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for minor injuries and released.

In the second collision, which occurred at the intersection of 10th and Washington Sts. about 8:02 p.m. yesterday, Richard Nobles, 53-year-old Negro of 1204 Clark St. was charged with failure to yield the right of way after his vehicle collided with a car operated by Seward Elliott Selby, 43-year-old Negro of 1417 West Sixth St.

Damage to the Selby car was set at $400 while damage to the Nobles vehicle was placed at $200.

No injuries were reported, police said.

UF Training Program Set At ECC Tomorrow

An all-day training program will be in store for presidents and campaign leaders from United Funds in Eastern North Carolina when they meet at East Carolina College tomorrow.

Robert L. Martin of Greenville, president of the Pitt County United Fund, will preside over the meeting sponsored by Carolinas United, the two-state service organization of United Funds in North and South Carolina. The highlight of the program will be an address by William Beery III, Belk-Beery Co. in Wilmington, who will represent Irwin Belk of Charlotte, state campaign chairman for North Carolina's United Community campaigns.

Individual workshop discussion groups will fill the remainder of the day's schedule. M.C. Meador, executive director of Carolinas United will chair a workshop on campaign techniques; Ben Park, of Ben Park Public Relations Agency in Raleigh is chairman of the workshop on publicity and promotion; Earle Lippincott of United Fund presidents on administration.

During the luncheon session there will be a report on the program of the United Medical Research Foundation of North Carolina by its president, Dr. Nathan Womack of Chapel Hill.

United campaigns in North Carolina are expected to campaign for approximately $8 millions this fall for support of local, state and national health, welfare and recreation programs. In 1959 the United effort in North Carolina raised $7,616,000. The amount raised actually exceeded the aggregate goal and recorded a nine percent increase over the 1958 campaign. Approximately 50 United campaign leaders are expected to attend.

Joseph J. McClees Succumbs Saturday

AYDEN — Joseph J. McClees, 75, died at his home here Saturday afternoon. He had been in declining health for sometime.

Funeral services were conducted from Britt Funeral Chapel Monday at 11 a.m. by the Rev. Robert Eason, Methodist minister of Raleigh, burial, was in the Ayden Cemetery.

He was a native of Tyrrell County and was the son of the late J.J. and Martha McClees. In 1920 Mr. McClees moved to Ayden and was owner and operator of the McClees Grocery Co. until his retirement in 1953. He was a member of the Ayden Methodist Church and prior to moving to Ayden, Mr. McClees had resided in Jamesville and Middlesex, N. C.

Surviving are his wife, the former Clida Peacock of Roper; one son, Roy W. McClees of Williamston; two daughters, Miss Estelle McClees and Mrs. Rhoderick Sumrell, both of Ayden; four grandchildren.

Registered Nurse Hired As EC Nursing Instructor

Mrs. Ray Martinez of Greenville, registered nurse and a former graduate of East Carolina College, has been hired as a teacher in the nursing program of East Carolina College for this fall.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, E.C.C. president, said for the present Mrs. Martinez and Mrs. Eva Warren, dean of the nursing program, will be sufficient staff, since the first year of the four-year program is essentially academic. This academic work will be handled by the regular staff of the college. Dr. Jenkins said.

During the second year of the program, however, the staff will be increased to seven professors and the dean of nursing, Dr. Jenkins said.

At the present time, an application for accreditation as a school of nursing at East Carolina College is before the North Carolina Board of Nurse Registration and Nursing Education, Raleigh. It will be acted on at the October 25 meeting.

Mrs. Martinez, wife of the swimming coach in the college's Department of Health and Physical Education, is a native of Alabama, having attended Springhill College in Mobile, Ala. She is a registered nurse. She worked for seven years as surgical nurse in the well-known Osmer's Clinic located in New Orleans, La.

Later, Mrs. Martinez attended East Carolina College and received a B. S. degree in primary education in 1959. Her husband joined the college staff in 1954, coming from New Orleans.

Forty students are enrolled in the nursing program this fall, Mrs. Warren said. Thirty-one of them are from the eastern part of the state. In addition to those who have completed their applications, over 100 inquiries have been received from others, some of whom are still in high school, Mrs. Warren said.

First year nursing students will pursue the academic subjects with an introduction to nursing. As the student progresses from year to year, Mrs. Warren said, there will be increasing hours of nursing and less general academic subjects. This program will lead to the degree of bachelor of science in nursing.

And as the program develops, various hospitals in eastern North Carolina will be utilized in the program, Dr. Jenkins and Mrs. Warren said.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Leona E. Owens

FOUNTAIN — Funeral services for Mrs. Leona E. Owens, 73, who died Saturday night, were conducted Monday at 3 p.m. from Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church, by the Rev. L.B. Manning and the Rev. Ed Miles. Interment was in Queen Anne Cemetery.

Mrs. Owens was the wife of the late James F. Owens. She was a member of the Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Jesse Proctor of Walsenburg, Mrs. Horace Baskette of Richmond, Mrs. Lawrence Clifton of Blackstone, Va., and Mrs. Jasper M. White of Baltimore, Md.; five sons, F.C. and J. Leroy of Fountain, Jeff of Stanonsburg, Gordon of Walsenburg and Dr. G. Chester Owens of New York City; 25 grandchildren; five great grandchildren.

No Injuries From 3 Pitt Accidents

No injuries were reported by Pitt Highway Patrolmen in three accidents which were investigated in Pitt during the weekend and which caused damage estimated at about $1,600.

Heaviest damage was caused Saturday night about 8:45 when two cars collided at the intersection of Memorial Drive and West Third St.

Patrolman J. B. Surles of Greenville identified the two drivers as Rent Hill, 34-year-old Negro of 1610-B West Third St., and Jack Sawyer, 22, of Route 1, Winterville.

Surles, who said the Hill car was headed south on Memorial Drive and apparently made a left turn into the path of the oncoming Sawyer car, charged Hill with driving under the influence of alcohol, operating without an operator's license and making an improper left turn.

Damage to each car was estimated to be about $500.

No charges were placed in an accident which occurred about one and one-half miles south of Ayden about 8 o'clock last night, according to Investigative Patrolman W. K. Chapman.

According to the officer, about $150 damage resulted to a car operated by Henry Kenneth James, 27, of Route 1, Ayden, when the vehicle was struck in the rear by a car being driven by Mrs. Mildred Eilers Winders of Warsaw.

Damage to the Winders auto was placed at $200.

Patrolman H. R. Winslow, who investigated the third wreck which occurred yesterday about 10:45 a.m. on N.C. 43, 10 miles south of Greenville, charged Mrs. Hope Hardee Smith of 301-A East Ninth St. with failing to see her intended motor could be made in safety and with operating to the left of the center line, after her car collided with one being driven by Samuel Joseph Saporito, 35, of Columbus, Ohio.

According to Winslow, the Saporito car was headed south on N.C. 43 when the Smith vehicle headed north, made a left turn in front of the oncoming car.

Damage to both vehicles was set at $150.

Coffey Elected Jaycee Director

WILMINGTON — John Coffey of Raleigh was elected national Jaycee director at the state organization's first quarterly board meeting here this weekend.

Coffey succeeds Mack Moore of Goldsboro who recently resigned due to a job transfer to another area.

Included in Coffey's area are are Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh W. K. Chapman.

A special guest at the session was Miss North Carolina of 1960-61, Ann Herring of Winston-Salem.

Greenville Jaycees attending were: Mr. and Mrs. George Coffman, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hardee, Mr. and Mrs. Max Ray Joyner, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Laughinghouse, Mr. and Mrs. J. Carlton Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Bob T. Smith and Leon Moore.

Ayden Jaycees attending were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stroud, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Baladre.

George Saleeby represented the Grifton club.

Mrs. J. W. Jackson Dies At Her Home

Mrs. Mattie Brown Jackson, 73, widow of John Wesley Jackson, died at the home of her son B. Evan Crisp near Robersonville, at five o'clock Saturday morning after having been critically ill for the past three months. Funeral services were conducted at the Rehoboth Holiness Church near Beargrass at 3:30 Sunday afternoon by the Rev. O. T. Howard, a former pastor, assisted by the Rev. A. B. Ayers, Primitive Baptist minister of Beargrass. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery in Williamston.

Mrs. Jackson, a native of Pitt County, was married to John Henry Crisp in 1905, and he died in 1915. She was married to Mr. Jackson in 1916, and he died in 1929. During that time she lived in the Old Ford community near Beaufort County. She had lived with her son near Robersonville since the death of Mr. Jackson. She was a member of the Rehoboth Holiness Church.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Evan B. Cherry of near Washington; two sons, B. Evans Crisp of Robersonville and Nathaniel Crisp of Washington; three step-daughters, Mrs. Julius Cherry and Mrs. Alex Beachum of Washington, and Mrs. B. Evan Crisp of Robersonville; a step-son, Asa Jackson of Washington; 23 grandchildren; 23 great grandchildren; a brother, William A. Brown of Beargrass, and a sister, Mrs. Carrie B. Crisp of Washington.

Funeral GREENSBORO — Funeral services for Mrs. Juanita Boyd, who died at her home, 804 Best St., Friday, will be conducted Wednesday at 2 p.m. at Phillip Baptist Church in Simpson. The Rev. Leroy Perkins will officiate. Burial will follow in the Phillip Cemetery.

Mrs. Boyd resided most of her life in Greenville, but in recent years she had made her home in Greensboro.

Surviving are her husband, Clayton Boyd; three sons, Elmer Ray, Lemuel Earl and Jesse Lee Boyd, all of the home; three sisters, Martha Little, Rosa Moore of Greenville and Mavis Williams Williams of Simpson; one brother, Joe Brown of Simpson; three grandchildren.

The body will be carried to the church prior to the funeral.

Local Firemen Snuff Out Blaze

Greenville firemen, responding to an alarm from box 422 at the intersection of Greene St. and Eastern Airlines, about 6:30 a.m. today, extinguished a fire which caused heavy damage to a filling station at the intersection of North Greene St. and the Pactolus highway.

Cause of the fire, in the station owned by Paul Whitehurst, was undetermined, according to fire officers.

Greenville firemen extinguished the blaze in the small structure which was outside the city limits because when fire units arrived, it could not be immediately determined where the city limit line ran, officers noted.

R. L. Laughinghouse Dies Of Gun Wound

VANCEBORO — Robert Lee Laughinghouse, 45, died Saturday afternoon about two o'clock near Vanceboro as a result of a gunshot wound suffered a few minutes earlier. Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Vanceboro Methodist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Jim Jones. Burial was in the Laughinghouse Cemetery near Vanceboro.

Mr. Laughinghouse was born in Craven County and spent nearly all his life in the Vanceboro community. He was a farmer.
