

Candidates Plan For Full Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Presidential candidates Richard M. Nixon and John F. Kennedy planned to leave the heat and turmoil of Washington this weekend and head north.

Vice President Nixon, the Republican candidate, scheduled a head start. He was set to take off for Maine today while Sen. Kennedy, the Democratic candidate, remained behind to fight for his minimum wage bill in Congress.

Nixon plans to take part in the 200th anniversary celebration of Cumberland County. And he won't pass up the opportunity to put in some words for his bid to the presidency.

Before flying to Maine, Nixon meets with university and college professors who are forming a "Scholars for Nixon" committee. It is headed by Prof. Lon L. Fuller of Harvard.

The plans for Nixon could change if his vote were needed in the Senate. As vice president, Nixon presides and may cast a vote in the Senate in case of a tie.

The plans of Kennedy could change. He had announced a trip to Hyde Park, N.Y., but a tragedy in the Roosevelt family may cancel the trip.

Kennedy planned to meet with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and then take part in ceremonies commemorating the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Social Security Act by President Roosevelt.

But Mrs. Roosevelt's granddaughter, 13-year-old Sara Roosevelt, died Friday, apparently of head injuries received in a fall from a horse. It was uncertain if this would change the Massachusetts senator's plans to visit Hyde Park.

Meanwhile, Kennedy was running into strong opposition in an attempt to speed a Senate vote on his bill. He wants to increase the minimum wage and extend it to five million more workers.

"Instead of delaying a vote day after day, let us at least begin to vote on some of the amendments," Kennedy said Friday night.

But Sen. Spessard L. Holland (D-Fla.) said he would object to any vote before Tuesday. And Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) said the bill's opponents must "have an opportunity to debate it."

No Casualties In Freighter Crash

DETROIT (AP) — Finnish and British freighters collided Friday night in the Detroit River, the boundary between Canada and the United States. The Coast Guard said there were no casualties.

The motor vessel Maria, owned by Finland's Nordkiska Line, received a 30-foot gash amidships. It went aground in about 18 feet of water, the Coast Guard said.

Awakened Beauties Are Juvenile Court Wards

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Two "sleeping beauties," awakened at last from their strange, drug-induced world of sleep, have been made wards of Juvenile Court.

That action was taken Friday night after police asked the court to protect the girls from any further sleep-inducing drugs which tests showed had been secretly administered to them.

Police questioned the parents, Vincent and Lillian Fratanotio. They steadfastly denied drugging Bernadette, 3, and her sister, Venita, 5.

Detectives said an eye dropper showing traces of barbiturates had been found in Mrs. Fratanotio's purse in her Cleveland Heights home. She was questioned at St. Ann Maternity Hospital, where she has been since giving birth to a third daughter, her fifth child, Tuesday. The father was questioned.

Meanwhile, at Mount Sinai Hospital, the two girls played happily. They have been placed in an isolated room—no visitors permitted. Authorities disclosed Friday they had found the cause of the mysterious ailment that had puzzled doctors for months.

County Coroner Samuel R. Gerber said traces of barbiturates had been found in the bloodstreams of the two girls and that the drugs were responsible for the sudden lapses into coma.

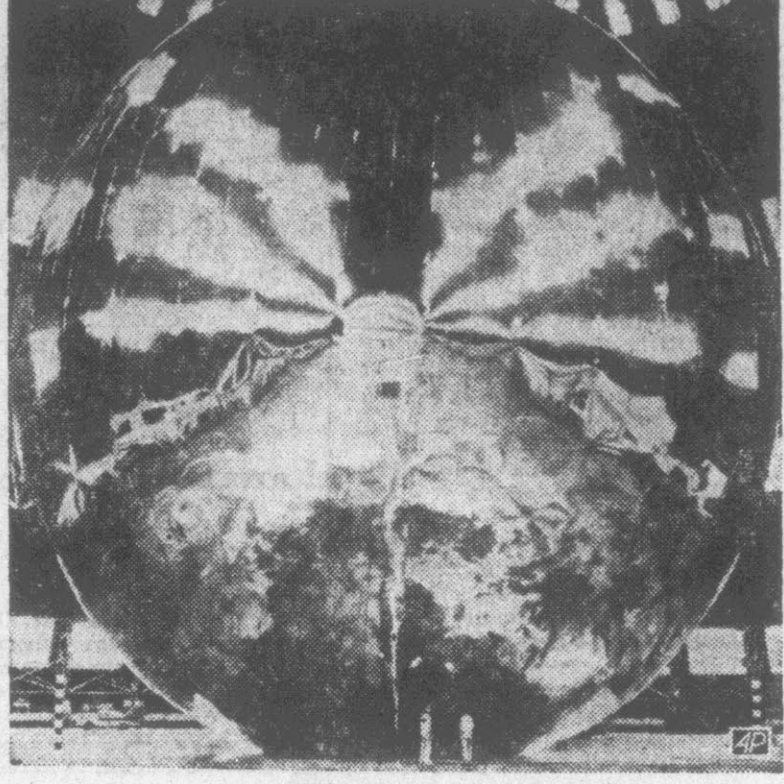

"No, no, no!" cried Mrs. Fratanotio, 29, after questioning by police. "How could I have done a thing like that?" she asked a news reporter. "I never had the chance. I was not there all the time."

After searching the Fratanotio home, Detective Sgt. Norman Ferris, along with Detectives William Mueller and Stanley Slivka went to Juvenile Court Judge Margaret Spence. The judge signed an emergency order saying the condition of the children was such that "the state should be warranted in assuming their guardianship."

A hearing has been set for Aug. 19 on the merits of the case.

The case of the sleeping beauties had been given wide publicity, and thousands of dollars were spent trying to cure their "ailment." Bernadette had been hos-

Mammoth Balloon Satellite

Men appear as midges in front of the 100-foot diameter plastic balloon of the type rocketed into orbit as scientists at Cape Canaveral, Fla. took another step toward establishing a worldwide radio communications system. The balloon rode into space in the nose of a three-stage Thor-Delta rocket. Radio signals will bounce off the aluminum coated balloon as it orbits 1,000 miles above the earth. Echo I Orbiting; Sparks U.S. Hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's giant Echo I balloon satellite orbited high around the earth today, sparking hopes for exciting strides in worldwide communications.

The success of the 100-foot Echo I hinted that the future might see a television in Cincinnati, for example, flicking on his set and catching the Olympic games in Europe.

And it also might see someone in, say, St. Louis or Boston picking up his phone, asking for a friend in Russia, Japan, or South Africa, and hearing him loud and clear almost immediately.

In fact, Echo I was the relay station today for man's first telephone call through space.

Using the satellite, laboratories in New Jersey and California had their conversation at 5:19 a.m. It wasn't much of a conversation, a spokesman for Bell Telephone Laboratories said, but there were live voices both ways.

One glimpse into the future came early today when messages were exchanged by relaying them against the satellite. It was history's first two-way communication in space.

First, a station in Holmdel, N.J., as it had Friday, bounced the voice of President Eisenhower off Echo I into a station at Goldstone, Calif.

Then, the California station replied with a recorded message from Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas. Johnson's voice hit Echo I and bounced into New Jersey.

But, before any of this world communications dream can be reality, scientists will launch more Echo satellites, using them to transmit photos, television pictures and even letters between continents.

As the first Echo streaked 1,000 miles high, visible to people throughout much of the world, it also reminded nations of one of America's most spectacular days in the space age.

Besides launching Echo I from Cape Canaveral, Fla., Friday, the United States, within 24 hours, also counted these achievements:

1. The Air Force shot a man higher into the sky than anyone had ever reached before. The experimental X15 plane carried its test pilot, Maj. Robert M. White, more than 24 miles high. "This is really fantastic up here," White radioed back to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

2. For the first time, the Air Force recovered a space capsule that had been tossed toward earth by an orbiting satellite. Navy frogman Robert W. Carroll, working from a helicopter, jumped into the water and tied the capsule so it could be pulled out of the Pacific Ocean. The recovery put the United States closer to the day when it will try to send a man into space and back.
3. Two powerful military missiles, the Atlas and the Polaris, had successful test flights from Cape Canaveral. The Atlas zoomed 5,000 miles to its target zone off Ascension Island in the South Atlantic. Its nose cone, however, was lost. The Polaris, designed to be launched from submarines, rushed 1,100 miles from a land pad on the Cape to its target northeast of Puerto Rico.

Scientists at the Bell Telephone Laboratories in Holmdel, N.J., failed Friday night in attempts to contact California by bouncing communication signals off the satellite.

Pitt Man Held On Rape Charge

A Negro man is in Pitt County jail, charged with raping a nine-year-old Negro girl.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson identified the arrested man as John Luther Moore, 25, of R. 1, Winterville. He is charged with rape in a warrant signed by a member of the girl's family.

Sheriff Tyson said Moore will be given a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Luther Moore Monday morning.

The sheriff's office was called by members of the family around 1:30 yesterday afternoon. The child was taken to a physician after deputies arrived. The doctor's examination showed that the girl had been assaulted, Sheriff Tyson said. She was treated by the physician and released.

The assault allegedly took place in a field between Winterville and Winterville's Crossroads.

Moore is a farm hand. He is being held without bond pending the preliminary hearing.

'Just Routine Day,' Says AF Height Record-Setter

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—"It was just a routine day," said Maj. Robert M. White, returning from the longest sky flight ever made by man.

Maj. White on Friday took the X15 rocket plane just short of 25 miles into the fringes of space—almost a mile higher than the world's unofficial altitude record. But White, 36, a man of notable calm, called it just another day's work.

"In test flying," he said, "you don't start picking out special days. That might cause some strain."

Probably the second calmest person at this big test center was the pilot's wife, Doris. While Maj. White was rocketing aloft, Doris White was in a beauty parlor having her hair done.

Everyone else who could get outside at this southern California desert base was staring into the blue sky, watching the dot that was the X15 separate from the bigger dot that was its B52 mother ship at 45,000 feet.

The X15, trailing a streaming contrail from its engines, got smaller and smaller, disappeared to the naked eye, then to watchers with binoculars.

Minutes later the black, dart-like X15 was out of fuel, coasting like an artillery shell at the top of its trajectory. Top of the arc was at 131,000 feet.

"White, his body weightless, his eyes feasting on the widest panorama ever seen by man, radioed: 'This is really fantastic up here.' Then he was falling. Minutes later the ship reappeared to ground observers, a speck high in the sky. Thunderous sonic booms rocked the ground as the X15 spiraled down toward Edwards' miles-long runways. At 200 miles an hour, flanked by a jet fighter, White skidded in for a landing. Later he described his day's work to newsmen:

It was a very deep blue up there, but not exactly like night. There was distinct contrast. Your view encompasses three distinct bands—the earth, the light blue of the sky and very deep blue of the extreme altitude. It was very impressive.

He thinks more powerful engines will lift the X15 easily to more than twice the altitude he achieved Friday. The old unofficial record was 126,000 feet, set by the late Iven C. Kincheloe in the X2 rocket plane in 1959.

The official record—which must be made by a plane which takes off by itself, instead of with a mother ship's help—is 103,395 feet, set last Dec. 14 in an F104C jet fighter by Air Force Capt. Joe Jordan.

White, a Korean and World War II veteran who was shot down and captured by Germans in 1945, says he is now looking forward to further X15 flights. He and his wife, parents of three small children, don't look at his line of work as more than a normal job.

"I was much less apprehensive than on the first flights," he said after Friday's trip. "Everything has become known quantities."

Belgian Troops To Begin Congo Withdrawal Today

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Belgian troops will begin to withdraw from Katanga Province tonight, United Nations headquarters here announced. U.N. troops will take over their duties.

The Belgians will be replaced gradually by U.N. reinforcements for two companies of Swedish troops. The Swedes arrived in Elisabethville Friday with U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, who has been conferring with Premier Moise Tshombe on details of the U.N. takeover.

The new troops will be drawn from the Irish, Moroccan and Ethiopian contingents.

Most of the 220 Swedish soldiers of the U.N. task force, who arrived peacefully Friday with the U.N. secretary general in the lead plane, were billeted at a school seven miles outside Elisabethville. Small units remained at the airport to guard the planes that brought them here from Leopoldville.

Tshombe, who only a week ago was warning the United Nations that its international police force would have to fight its way into Katanga, complained that 220 soldiers was a large number than necessary for Elisabethville.

He has maintained that Belgian peace in Katanga. The Belgians were still on guard in strategic points around Elisabethville hours after the U.N. troops landed.

The troops arrived under a mandate from the U.N. security council to replace Belgian soldiers who have maintained order in Katanga while chaos reigned in the Congo's five other provinces because of a Congolese Army mutiny.

The Belgians also lent support to Tshombe, who has proclaimed Katanga's independence from the central government of Premier

Laos Gov't Agrees Premier Will Quit

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Vientiane Radio reported today that the pro-Western government of Laotian Premier Tiao Samsouth has agreed to rebel demands that he resign. The leader of the revolt said later that if Tiao does not make good on his agreement to quit it will mean "bloody war."

The Vientiane radio station, captured by the rebels in their coup Tuesday, reported still later that an envoy from Tiao's government, Gen. Ouane Rathkone, had arrived with an announcement the Tiao cabinet was ready to resign.

It was not clear whether this would satisfy the rebels.

Capt. Kong Le, commander of the rebel forces, had set a deadline of 1 p.m. for the government's resignation, and Vientiane Radio said Ouane arrived two hours after the deadline.

Kong Le declared any "governmental delay has an evil intention to instigate a bloody war among Laotians; therefore, compatriots throughout the country must rise up."

There was no confirmation from any other source of the report broadcast by the rebel-held radio station. Samsouth and his cabinet are not in Vientiane, the country's administrative capital, but in the royal city of Luang Prabang, 140 miles northwest of Vientiane.

Another rebel communique broadcast from Vientiane denied reports that the revolutionary committee, which seized control of Vientiane Tuesday, planned to expel all U.S. personnel from Laos and appeal to the Soviet Union for assistance. There are 753 Americans in Laos, 261 of them connected with the U.S. military aid program.

The situation in Vientiane appeared calm and Capt. Kong Le, commander of the rebel forces, announced shortened curfew hours for the city.

The radio quoted Gen. Sing Ratanasamy, chief of a rebel delegation, on the government resignation. It said the general had submitted rebel proposals to the government in Luang Prabang and reported:

"The government delegation agreed with these proposals and agreed to resign so that the revolutionary committee may form another government that conforms with the aspirations of the people."

"The government delegation promised to come to Vientiane Saturday morning to submit its resignation," the general said. There was no word on whether the ministers had yet reached Vientiane.

The government was stranded in Luang Prabang when Kong Le's forces seized the capital. They were arranging the funeral of King Sisavang Vong, who died last year at the height of the Pathet Lao Communist crisis.

Patrice Lumumba in Leopoldville. In private talks with Hammarskjöld, Tshombe pressed his demand that U.N. intervention in Katanga be prevented from serving as an opening wedge for Lumumba to extend control to his rich copper, cobalt and cattle province.

They began their conferences an hour after Hammarskjöld arrived and continued through dinner. A brief communique said only that the talks were held in a cordial atmosphere and on the basis of notes the two men had exchanged earlier outlining their positions.

The United Nations was busy elsewhere solidifying its position in this troubled African state, which all but fell apart in the first days after gaining independence from Belgium June 30.

In Leopoldville, U.N. Undersecretary Ralph Bunche made a personal visit to Lumumba to warn the fiery young premier that the United Nations plans to carry out its mission of maintaining order throughout the nation despite interference by the Congolese army.

Opens Southern Campaign Wed.

GREENSBORO (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon and his wife Pat will come here Wednesday to open his Southern campaign for the presidency.

The rally in War Memorial Coliseum is billed as a "Welcome to North Carolina" for the Republican candidate who attended Duke University Law School.

An ice-skating and coffee party is scheduled for 7 p.m. and Nixon will speak at 8:30 p.m. The visit is sponsored by the Republican Executive Committee and the North Carolina Volunteers for Nixon-Lodge.

William E. Cobb of Morganton, state GOP chairman, said the welcoming committee will include himself; Robert L. Gavin, gubernatorial candidate; National Committeeman J. E.—Brothill of Lenoir; National Committeewoman Mrs. Louis G. Rogers of Charlotte; U.S. senatorial candidate Kyle Hayes of North Wilkesboro; Charles R.—Jonas (R-NC); and one other Republican congressional candidate.

what used to be the solid South. Nixon's people are talking about capturing Florida and are whistling bravely about Texas, despite the presence of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of the Lone Star State in second place on the Democratic ticket.

Klein said Nixon's trips will be subject to cancellation if any situation develops in the Senate which he might be needed as presiding officer to make an important ruling or to break a tie vote.

Through Klein, Nixon protested Friday that Kennedy is "directing the Senate for his own purposes." Sens. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY) and Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) complained that Democratic leaders abandoned a scheduled night session Thursday so Kennedy could fly to New York to keep a political engagement.

Johnson replied this wasn't so. He said the Senate had simply run out of speakers on the pending minimum wage bill, which Kennedy is sponsoring, and had quit.

The Democratic leader said he would ask his party's colleagues not to "condemn" Nixon for flying off Friday while the Senate continued debate on the bill.

Father Will Appeal In Person To Soviet Premier

MOSCOW (AP)—Oliver W. Powers said today he will appeal directly to Premier Nikita Khrushchev "as one father to another" for the sake of his son, Francis Gary Powers, who goes on trial next week accused of espionage.

Speaking at a news conference several hours after arriving in Moscow to attend the trial, Powers said that on Monday he will appeal to the Soviet Premier.

The trial starts Wednesday in Moscow's ornate Hall of Columns.

"Mrs. Powers and I have come to the Soviet Union for the sole purpose of doing all that we can to help our son," the gray-haired shoemaker from Pound, Va., told newsmen in the lobby of his Moscow hotel.

Throughout the news conference, which lasted only a few minutes, Powers either sobbed or fought to stifle his sobs. His cheeks were wet with tears.

Mrs. Powers, who is suffering from a heart ailment, rested in bed upstairs after their plane journey to Moscow.

Powers said he isn't sure whether he will ask to see his son before the trial.

"I will see him after the trial, I know," said Powers. "I don't know if I'll try to see him before."

Most of the news conference was taken up by Powers' reading a small statement handwritten on a brief piece of stationery. He sat in a deep armchair as he read. Before he began, he took a deep breath, looked up at his friend and adviser, Sol W. Cury, and asked in a husky voice, "Do I have to read this?"

After a pause, Powers added, "It's what I made up."

The statement said: "Mrs. Powers and I have come to the Soviet Union for the sole purpose of doing all that we can to help our son. I am sure that any other parents would do the same if their boy was in trouble, and I appeal to Mr. Khrushchev as one father to another, for the sake of my boy."

"I understand he lost a son in the war against Nazi Germany, fighting alongside the United States for the same cause."

"One reason I am here is that Mr. Khrushchev cabled me promising to help me in this matter, and I have taken him at his word."

"My son is not the son of a millionaire. He is the son of a working man from a plain American family like millions of others not only back home but in the Soviet Union and throughout the world."

"And as a father, I appeal to this common bond of human sympathy which I believe is stronger than all the issues of politics that separate us and which is, if I may say so, mankind's greatest hope that the peace of the world shall be kept and the world saved from the disaster of nuclear war."

Powers and his wife arrived in Moscow early this morning, fatigued by their long trip from the United States. They were greeted by an official of the U. S. Embassy after a jet flight from London.

Their son's wife, Barbara Moore Powers of Milledgeville, Ga., was flying to Moscow with her mother.

The pilot's wife, on a stop-off in Brussels, Belgium on the way to Moscow, talked briefly to reporters.

She said so far she had received four letters from her husband which were mostly personal and intimate letters.

"From his first letter to his last," she said, "he indicated he had plenty of food, had enough rest, and was allowed a daily walk. But all through he sounded very lonesome."

She said she understood from the embassy in Moscow and from Washington that she would be able to see her husband only after the trial.

"I think the word 'spy' is a very harsh word to apply to his work," Mrs. Powers said. "Everyone should realize his service was part of a program supported by Congress and the government. I would rather say his mission can best be described as being that of a reconnaissance scout."

"I feel real bad about the trial," Powers told newsmen at the airport.

In London he had said Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev "has promised us he will do all he can to help us see our boy."

He said he had received the assurance in a letter from Khrushchev.

But when Powers arrived in Moscow he said he had not received any official word he could see his son, whose U2 reconnaissance plane had crashed 1,200 miles inside the Soviet Union on May 1. The Soviets say they shot it down.

To all other questions Powers simply repeated "No comment, no comment." He and his wife have been instructed by American magazines who reportedly paid for their trip to say little to other newsmen, and Western correspondents who went to meet them at the airport were brushed aside. No Soviet correspondents were present.

The couple appeared distressed by all the attention they have received since starting their trip from Virginia.

Powers was glum when his plane arrived from London, 55 minutes late. At one point he indicated he was tempted to turn around and go back, but this appeared a sign of his low spirits.

Mrs. Powers, a tall, slender woman in a black silk dress with polka dots, was too tired to pass through customs. She was quickly escorted to an automobile where she sat back breathing heavily.

She suffers from a heart ailment and was accompanied by her physician, Dr. Lewis K. Ingram. To newsmen in London, Ingram had said: "They are only poor country folk. All this has been a terrible strain for them, especially Mrs. Powers."

Also arriving with the Powers was Sol W. Cury, a friend of the family.

After customs formalities were completed, the party sped into town. Rooms had been reserved for them at the Sovetskaya Hotel, Moscow's finest.

Nixon Strikes At Jack's Stronghold

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon is striking at two of the strongholds of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) in his first quickie campaigning during the summer Congress session.

Nixon takes off today for Portland, Maine, to appear at the 200th anniversary celebration of Cumberland County. He can be expected to wedge in a few good words for his own presidential candidacy and for Maine's Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, who seeks re-election.

Next Wednesday Nixon will plunge into the Democratic South with a visit to Greensboro, N.C.

Before he leaves for Maine, Nixon will drop by a meeting of academic leaders who are forming a "Scholars for Nixon" committee. It is headed by Prof. Lon L. Fuller of Harvard, who taught Nixon some law at Duke University.

Ordinarily the Republicans wouldn't be worried much about Maine. Along with Vermont it withstood the Franklin D. Roosevelt sweep in 1936.

But things have changed in Maine. It has a Democratic senator who was its Democratic governor. It had a Democratic governor until he died and was succeeded by a Republican, John Reed, former president of the State Senate. Reed is running for the remainder of the Democrat's unexpired four-year term.

Nixon's associates concede that Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee, is strong throughout New England. For though Maine has become a battleground.

In future campaigning, they don't intend to overlook the ordinary Republican states of Vermont and New Hampshire.

Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, said the vice president's visit to North Carolina is the first of several trips the Republican nominee will make into the South in the next 90 days.

Nixon's supporters have been making some polls that indicate to them he may have a good chance to carry North Carolina. That would represent an achievement that President Eisenhower didn't accomplish in either 1952 or 1956 despite his inroads into

1st Week Ends; Price Is Steady

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The abbreviated first week of flue-cured tobacco sales closed Friday on Carolinas Border Belt markets, with prices steady to slightly lower as compared to prices on opening day.

Decidings were mostly $18 to $2 per 100 pounds Friday, chiefly in lug and priming grades. Quality was lower because of more nondescript. Volume was light.

Opening day sales Thursday totaled 9,073,138 pounds at a $5.60 average, down $1.84 from 1959's opening day and off in volume by about one million pounds. The Flue - Cured Stabilization Corp. took 7 per cent of gross sales under the government price support program, a compared with 8.4 per cent on first day sales last year.

South Carolina markets sold 4,208,889 pounds Friday at a $58.51 average. North Carolina markets 4,864,249 pounds at $56.97.

Auction bid averages per 100 pounds on a limited number of representative grades:

Cutters: Low-lemon 71, low orange 71.

Lugs: Good lemon 70, fair lemon 69, low orange 64.

Primings: Good lemon 68, fair lemon 65, low lemon 54, good orange 67, fair orange 64, low orange 60.

Nondescript: Best thin body 36.

Scientists Hold First 2-Way Talk Through Satellite

HOLMDEL, N.J. (AP)—Scientists early today held the first two-way communication via an artificial satellite whirling in space.

The voices of President Eisenhower and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson bounced off the giant Echo I balloon satellite, a spokesman for Bell Telephone Laboratories said.

The Bell Laboratory successfully transmitted Eisenhower's message—as it did Friday for the first time—to Goldstone, Calif. Then the Goldstone lab replied with the Texas senator's recorded message.

CASTRO-LESS? MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Cuban political situation has affected a real estate transaction here. Two Cuban couples, seeking to lease a house, refused a lease beyond Jan. 1. They told the realtor they would return to a "Castro-less" Cuba by then. Oakland, Calif., has 945 acres of city-owned parks.

Meet The Deb In Party Whirl

MISS CAROL ANN TADLOCK . . . looks over the new fall fashions while relaxing and sunning.

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of personality sketches of the 1960 Pitt County debutantes.)

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

With only four weeks remaining before the 34th annual Debutante Ball in Raleigh, the debs from Pitt County are being kept quite busy—attending parties and preparing just the right thing to wear on that "big weekend."

Petite Carol Ann Tadlock is no exception. Besides attending many deb functions in Greenville and other surrounding cities, she has been the honoree at many.

Next on the agenda which should be "a great deal of fun" is a Japanese breakfast next week to be given by her sister-in-law, Mrs. C. B. Tugwell. Everyone plans to come in Japanese attire and actually "sit on the floor to eat."

The Greenville debs, Miss Tadlock, Miss Ann Moore, Miss Anne Evans, Miss Betsy Whedbee, and Miss Ginger Lang, are planning a patio dinner-dance August 18 at the Greenville Country Club. Approximately 100 guests are expected with 35 debs in attendance.

Escorting Carol Ann to many of the deb events are Bob Shackelford, her chief marshal, and Jack Spain Jr. and Dick Evans, her other two escorts.

During the deb weekend, September 9-10, the marshals, her mother, Mrs. A. C. Tadlock, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Tugwell, will be Carol's guests at the Hotel Sir Walter.

For her debut, she plans to wear a gown of tissue taffeta with appliques of Alencon lace touched with seed pearls and sequins, designed by Marie of Pandoro. The gown has a softly scooped neckline and tiny short sleeves.

The gown features a princess line which extends down the front with extreme fullness to the sides which leads to a back bustle effect.

For the morning tea dance, Carol will wear a Lanz dress of black velvet with a fitted bodice and a belted skirt of black peau de soie.

She will attend the luncheon in a light weight red wool twill dress by Anne Fogarty. The skirt of the dress is deftly shaped and the waist is accented by a soft bow.

Making a striking picture will be Carol when she attends the Governor's Tea wearing a black velvet sheath dress fashioned with bell sleeves, edged with faille at the shoulders.

After reading her selection of fashions, you would think she had been to the presentation before, but she hasn't. Three of her closest friends, Margaret Ruffin, Stuart Bost, and Marietta Northrop, made their debuts last year and were a "big help in selecting the right thing to wear," she said.

College Doings

"Education is definitely important in a girl's life," Carol Ann said. She is a rising junior at the University of North Carolina where she is majoring in elementary education.

She thinks that maybe her major stemmed from her enjoyment of being "an assistant teacher in Sunday School and the Junior Dept. at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church where I am a member. I especially like to work with children between the fourth and sixth grade level."

"It's a big jump from high school to college, but not as much when you go to a small college, as I did," she commented. Carol recently graduated from St. Mary's Junior College in Raleigh.

Dancing and painting take up a great deal of this deb's spare-time.

"Modern ballet is my favorite type of dancing; but, I enjoy ballroom dancing too," she noted. Carol Ann has been dancing since she was three years old. Last year at St. Mary's Jr. College, she was president of the Orchestras, a modern dance group.

Her love of painting oriental style came from watching as a little girl a neighbor, Mrs. T. Y. Walker, who was an artist.

Like all the other debs, bridge is also a favorite pastime. She says a good way to learn how to play bridge is to "start in a group which is made up of beginners. Have someone to teach you by placing out dummy hands and actually go through the bids with all hands face open."

Notes On The Passing Scene

Deb Honored

Miss Ginger Lang, who will make her debut to N. C. Society in Raleigh in September, was a recent honoree at a weekend house party given by Robert Childs of Sanford, one of Miss Lang's marshals.

Among the festivities were a picnic, buffet supper and a swimming party. Miss Lang was presented a gold charm bracelet by her host.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Adcock of San Diego, Calif. are visiting her mother, Mrs. Sermons and family, of 403 Student St.

Dixie Lee Smith of 12 No. Vance St. left yesterday via plane from Raleigh for Clarksville, Tenn. to spend two weeks with his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Drum.

Now The Battle Is For New Nations

Will freedom and democracy or communism and its enslavement of people eventually prevail in the sprawling Congo where a new nation has been created and is now seized in the throes of establishing itself?

The rate at which new nations are emerging to take their place in the world community is unparalleled in history. The struggle between the free world and communism to win these emerging nations around the globe is likewise unparalleled. The gigantic battle between the two conflicting ideologies has projected into a place of unprecedented importance the future of the people of even the smallest and poorest emerging nations.

Even before a territory, colony or protectorate becomes an independent nation it becomes in effect a prize which each of the opposing sides in the international struggle hopes to win. No sooner has a nation been born than it is expected to choose between democracy and communism, with each using its own methods in an effort to win favor from the people of the new nation.

When a new nation is created there is naturally unrest among its people, trying to learn what to do about charting their own future. The internal struggles for political power, the economic problems and often chaotic domestic conditions are only a part of the situation with which a new nation today is confronted. To some degree at least, these are the result of the international struggle between the two world camps. They reflect "outside" influences which have been brought to bear upon the people of the new nation for the months and even years before independence day arrived.

We often wonder whether the leadership and the people of the United States and other nations of the free world have grasped the full importance of this battle for men's minds. Surely over the years we have learned the importance of affording established friends with military supplies and equipment with which to protect themselves. In the past decade we have recognized the importance of helping these same friends maintain and improve their economic conditions.

To some degree we have begun the establishment of a program for providing greater assistance to the emerging nations, but in this field we lag far behind our adversary in the international struggle. In the peaceful conflict for international friendship, as in a hot military battle, the ultimate winner often is the one who get there "firstest with the mostest."

Which road will the Congo ultimately choose? Future events may influence the final decision to be sure, but the most decisive moves by both East and West for the friendship of this emerging nation may have been made long ago without the people of this or another nation realizing it.

Johnson A Candidate For Both High Offices

In an editorial in Wednesday's Daily Reflector which discussed the prospects of a new Democratic Leader in the Senate next year, we misled our readers with the statement that Sen. Lyndon Johnson was not a candidate for re-election to his Senate seat.

Under a special act of the Texas legislature, Sen. Johnson is being carried on the Democratic ticket in November as a candidate for re-election to the Senate in addition to being the Democratic nominee for vice-president.

Following the precedent set by Texas when J. Rance Garner was the running mate of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Sen. Johnson will be running for two offices on the November ballot in his home state. Under the special Texas legislative act, if Johnson is elected vice president, and is also re-elected to the Senate from Texas, a special election will be held later to determine who will fill his Senate seat.

If the Democrats fail to win the administration in November, it is a matter of conjecture whether Sen. Johnson, as an unsuccessful candidate for vice president would be returned to the post of leader of his party in the Senate.

Khrushchev Up To Old Tricks

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—There's that man again.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev, when unsure of the outcome, acts like an early bather sticking one toe in the water to see if it's cold before diving in. Back in 1959 he put out a feeler for an invitation to the United States. Once he got it, he came bouncing over. That was last September. Came the spring.

He torpedoed the summit conference, called off President Eisenhower's trip to Russia, and for weeks insulted and belittled the President.

He said he'd never have another summit get-together with Eisenhower. American-Soviet relations took a perilous dive. This week Khrushchev acted like a man putting out feelers again.

He said he would deem it a great honor to head the Soviet delegation to the United Nations to discuss disarmament in September.

That would bring him here in the midst of the presidential campaign. He didn't say he would come. And, actually, he wouldn't need an invitation if he decided to.

Unlike Moscow, where Eisenhower couldn't go without an invitation, Khrushchev could go unasked to New York since the U.N. is an international arena.

By talking wistfully of the idea of coming, instead of saying he would, Khrushchev gave himself a chance to see what Eisenhower thought of it.

Earlier Khrushchev had suggested the heads of government discuss disarmament—a situation which would be a kind of worldwide summit conference—although the United States had rejected that proposal.

But, while Eisenhower at his news conference Wednesday avoided saying he would meet with Khrushchev at the U.N. to discuss disarmament, he also avoided saying he wouldn't.

So, at this moment the idea of the two men's getting together once again is nebulous.

Nothing would please the Russian better if he did make the long journey to New York, than to be invited to visit some of the Latin American countries.

So far Fidel Castro's Cuba is the only one which has shown any enthusiasm for that notion. Just why Khrushchev would want to come back to this country whose President he ridiculed just a few months ago is not clear.

1. He's getting worried about the serious downturn in American-Soviet relations and would like a chance to patch them up with Eisenhower.

2. His visit would be just a propaganda stunt.

3. He might even want to stick his nose into the American elections.

But a man with his unpredictable temper-tantrums would be a hazardous kind of visitor. If he got displeased with the United States position on disarmament, he might start insulting Eisenhower all over again, but this time in the President's own country.

If the two men met and worked out some agreement on disarmament—a highly unlikely prospect—it would be a big boost to the Republican campaign.

Quote

"The double set of rules under which gas producers operate is a condition unparalleled in American business. We have all the hazards of free enterprise. Everyday we compete with each other for additional business—or to hold on to what we already have. Yet, when it comes to selling the gas, the Federal Power Commission holds us under a utility status. We are required to live as utilities without the guarantees ordinarily granted to them. We are not even permitted to recoup the cost of gas replacement because of unrealistic price ceilings set by the FPC."—Charles E. Webber.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE HAD BEST RELAX

For some reason or other we have fallen into the habit in the Christian Church of thinking that the story of Christ's resurrection is only to be alluded to on Easter Sunday. The truth is that it was a belief in this resurrection which gave such spiritual power to the early Christian church that the faith and devotion of no generation has surpassed the zeal of those early days.

One thing which the resurrection stories point out is that, as the women went to the tomb, they kept asking themselves who would roll away the stone for them. It had undoubtedly been on their minds ever since the body of Jesus had been laid in the tomb. Now as they pressed on to the tomb to pay their honors to their beloved leader, this query became a great anxiety. "Who will roll away for us the stone from the door?"

Of course, when they got there, they found the stone had been rolled away. Who could have done it but the hands of angels? Their worry had been in vain. It had been wasted time. It had been folly.

We have many anxieties today and we keep asking ourselves how we will ever meet this situation or that. Behold, God is in His heaven and His angelic powers still stand ready to roll back any stone for us.

To be sure, we cannot do it ourselves. But God has powers so far above our own that we can relax and be at peace.

Gleanings From The Mails

Things you find on your desk:

A SELF-PORTRAIT of the American executive—based on a survey of 6,500 top businessmen conducted by Newsweek—reveals that he is just about as interested in religion and culture as in business news. The survey also shows that 72 per cent of these leaders are members of civic organizations.

RECREATIONAL boating has become this country's fastest growing sport. More than $2.5 billion will be spent on it this year by some 40 million enthusiasts, according to the American Petroleum Institute. At the peak of the season an estimated 8.2 million pleasure craft have been plying our rivers, lakes, and oceans. Their 1960 gasoline consumption will run around 533 million gallons.

SOME 70 million registered motor vehicles now inhabit America's highways, and traffic congestion has become a major problem.

However, as the old saying goes, "We ain't seen nothing yet."

A Bureau of the Department of Commerce estimates that the figure will reach 114 million by 1976. This would mean one vehicle for every two men, women and children, or three vehicles for every four persons of legal driving age.

Like we said, "We ain't seen nothing yet."

THURMAN SENSING of the Southern States Industrial Council says: "As late as 25 years ago there was only one federal aid program of any consequence extended to the states, namely, the highway program costing $50 million per year. Now grants by the federal government to state and local governments total about $5 billion per year under 62 different programs of federal aid."

TAXES paid by Class One railroads in the first quarter of this year amounted to $266,237,113, a rise of 7.2 per cent over the corresponding period of 1959, according to the Association of American Railroads.

About 25 per cent of this outlay went for federal income taxes, 37 per cent for payroll taxes to finance retirement, survivor, and unemployment and sickness benefits, and 38 per cent for all other taxes.

THE President of the United States cannot be arrested for any crime, even murder. While he is in office no court can judge him, but Congress can remove him from office.

Once removed, he can then be judged as a private citizen.

A NEW YORK Spanish-Language newspaper, probably because of the Cuban premier's Communist ties, has referred to him as Fidel Castrovis.

Somebody said yesterday "Moscow's Pravda might return the compliment by calling Lotta-Noiss Nikita—Comrade Khrushko."

"Of this I am certain: America's economic strength is not in Washington, D. C., nor in public spending. It is in the creativeness and industry and spirit of our people."—Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The history of man is replete with lost causes, with hopes that disappear like a river in a desert. There are men and women in the United States who used to vote for Norman Thomas as an expression of protest against inadequate candidates.

The lost cause is not always lost. The New Deal accepted many of the ideas of the revisionist socialists; the Soviet Communists accepted some of the ideas of the Bakunin anarchists. Emma Goldman would be regarded as a reactionary square in 1960 by many young ladies.

What happens is that ideas never die and whereas the fashion of the day may require ridicule of the reactionary or the radical, at the Right or the Left, at those who advocate great changes and those who believe that the changes are already too great, the historic fact is that the mind of man reverts to thoughts and solutions which at one time or another others held to be true. When President Eisenhower extolled those who walk neither in the Left nor the Right gutter but remain in the middle of the road, he employed a metaphor which in these days is absurd because whoever blocks traffic by walking down the middle of the road would be arrested as a jay walker.

President Eisenhower would never favor a lost cause because he is a man of the moment, a man of fashion. Perhaps that is why he is so beloved. His very passivity satisfies a public that wears of heavy thinkers—the President is really a man of the people; an average man, born and brought up in an average small town, who has had some extraordinary breaks after pursuing an average army career. To the American people, he is O. K. because he is like that. His press conferences do not touch the heart-strings as Roosevelt's fireside chats did, but then he speaks without too much grammar, no big words and sometimes he gets his words mixed up—so who really cares?

Senator Barry Goldwater is a characteristically Lost Cause. There are always such men and they become very attractive to a particular following. Robert A. Taft was such a man. He once sat up here in the Berkshires on a Summer day and we were discussing his chances for the Presidency. I could not forget the incident because at that moment, Taft displayed the full characteristics of a New England Lost Cause. He would not, by statement or gesture, give ground even for his own advantage.

Barry Goldwater rose to ask his followers not to violate party unity by voting for him. That too is normal with the men who never learn to win small battles when there is a great war to be fought. Theodore Roosevelt made the mistake of organizing the Progressive Party prematurely. He did not create a new party; he lost an election for the Republican Party; his influence was shattered.

The fighter for a Cause always asks the question: "Which side is to fight from inside or go altogether on the outside and battle against the stone walls. The Republican Party started as a radical party, opposed to the theory of state's rights, favoring the Hamiltonian idea of federal authority and by the time of Theodore Roosevelt coming close to a national state with imperialistic designs. Thus, the party which started with such social radicals as Horace Greeley and John Fremont by the beginning of the 20th Century included such economic radicals as Mark Hanna and John D. Rockefeller.

Today, the labels of both parties remain but what are labels? The Republican Party includes Herbert Hoover and Jacob Javits and also Charles Percy who even attempted to write a new ideology for it and ended with a jumble of sentences. The same is true of the Democratic Party which runs an incongruous ticket headed by the pro-labor John Kennedy and the conservative Lyndon Johnson. The Democratic Platform, no more than the Republican (Continued on page six)

Sizzling Cardinals Clobber NL League Leaders, 9-2

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

There is an old theory in baseball that the way to win a pennant is for a club to at least hold its own against its leading rivals, and knock the stuffing out of the second division clubs.

Until recently the St. Louis Cardinals had been a little negligent about the first part of that advice. They have been whopping the weaker clubs with monotonous regularity all right. They are 12 and 7 against Cincinnati, 12 and 5 against Philadelphia, 9 and 5 against the Cubs.

But the one leading rival they weren't holding their own with was the Pittsburgh Pirates. They have been doing all right against the Los Angeles Dodgers, with a 7 and 6 record. They are all square with Milwaukee at nine games apiece, and they are 7 and 6 with San Francisco.

When they started their current series on Thursday with the Pirates, however, they had won five and lost eight, a situation not conducive to pennant aspirations.

The Cards suddenly seem to have realized that the Bucs must be made to walk the plank if St. Louis was to have a chance at the pennant, and they are doing something about it.

Friday night they turned in their second straight victory in their five-game series with the National League leaders, 9-2, and in so doing narrowed the margin to 7 and 8. And incidentally cut Pittsburgh's lead over them to three games.

Milwaukee beat San Francisco 4-2 and climbed into a third place tie with Los Angeles which lost to Cincinnati 3-2. Philadelphia beat the Chicago Cubs 10-6.

While this was going on the American League race was growing even tighter. The leading New York Yankees lost to Washington 12-7 and had their lead cut to 5 percentage points as Baltimore defeated Boston, 4-3. The Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City 6-4, and Detroit downed Cleveland 6-4 in 10 innings.

It was a costly victory for the Cardinals. Catcher Carl Sawatski had to have seven stitches taken in his throwing hand as the result of being hit by a foul tip, and second baseman Julian Javier was conked sliding into second. He was only stunned, but Sawatski will be lost for a week at least.

It was the sixth victory in a row for the Cardinals.

Drop 32-7 Decision

All-Stars Hustle But No Match For Colts, Unitas

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Johnny Unitas still is the best gun this side of the Pecos.

The triggerman of the Baltimore Colts fired three touchdowns and an assortment of other shots Friday night in sending the National Football League champions to a 32-7 victory over a scrappy bunch of College All-Stars.

A crowd of 70,000 saw the game in Soldier Field in balmy, moonlight weather and countless others watched it on television.

They saw that the Colts are ready for a fast draw in aiming for their third straight NFL title this season.

Unitas' passing was in midseason form, and so was his main target—halfback Lenny Moore. For Coach Otto Graham's graduated collegians, virtually all of whom now will report as rookies to NFL camps, the game was a valuable lesson in professional football.

Johnny hit Moore for a 3-yard touchdown in the first period; he rifled 3 and 18-yard scoring passes to him in the second, and, in all, connected 17 times in 29 tosses for 237 yards.

Other principal Colt receivers, as usual, were ends Ray Berry and Jim Mutscheller, who combined for 9 catches good for 153 yards.

In addition to adding all extra points, Steve Myhra booted two field goals of 27 yards and another of 38.

Baltimore also got a safety, in the third quarter as George Izo of Notre Dame (who will report to the St. Louis Cardinals) was mobbed behind the goal line.

The Colts scored in each quarter and more or less coasted home after rolling up a 24-0 halftime

Washington Uses Yank Weapon For 12-7 Win

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees, who practically invented the home run, now find the monster rising up to plague them.

They not only are being on occasion out-homered by their opponents at the moment, as they were Friday night in losing to the Washington Senators, 12-7, but their most persistent rival in the pennant race—Baltimore—suddenly has discovered the right button to press to put the monster in motion.

The astonishing, and possibly astonishing, Orioles have hit for the circuit 18 times in their last eight games, and all but one of their last 17 runs have been the result of four-base wallops.

They punched the button twice with Jim Gentile and Ron Hansen hitting for the circuit in Baltimore's 4-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

It was the seventh straight triumph for Paul Richards' surprising collection of youngsters and oldsters, and brought them to within 5 percentage points of the American League-leading Yankees.

Since Babe Ruth made the home run fashionable the Yankees have been almost perennial league leaders in that department, winning or tying in the home run derby 28 times since 1920.

The chances are very good that they will win again in that department this year, but if the Orioles maintain their current pace, there will be some competition.

Baltimore is timing its circuit blasts very neatly. They were responsible for the Orioles' victory Friday night, while the Yankees wasted the pair they hit.

Hansen's blow came in the ninth with the score tied, and the tie score was the result of Gentile's two-run blast in the eighth when Baltimore was trailing 3-1.

The Sox had taken a 3-0 lead in the third inning, chasing Orioles starter Steve Barber in the second with one run, and collecting two more in the third off reliever Wes Stock in the third. Chuck Estrada, who pitched the final two innings, was the winner.

Meanwhile, back at the stadium, the Yankees were having their troubles. Manager Casey Stengel paraded five pitchers in an effort to stop the suddenly-aroused Senators, who cracked out 13 hits, including home runs by Bob Allison, Harmon Killebrew and Jim Lemon.

The New Yorkers spotted Washington two runs in the first inning, which Allison opened with a homer, and never could catch up despite two-run home runs by Moose Skowron and Yogi Berra. Berra was in left field, where he helped the Senator cause by dropping Earl Battey's drive for an error in the Nat's three-run fifth.

Washington scored five times in the seventh, prolonging what turned out to be the longest stadium game of the year.

The Chicago White Sox, thwarted and frustrated in 17 innings without a score, finally blew their top in the sixth inning of their game with Kansas City, scoring six times. They then subsided but the six runs were enough to give them a 6-4 victory and move them up to within a game and a half of the top.

Eleven men went to the plate in the big inning. Bud Daley and Ned Garver were victims of the assault. Bob Shaw got the victory, his fourth over the A's this year. Daley had defeated the Sox three times this season.

Chicago did it all without a home run. Norm Siebern hit one for the A's in the eighth.

Joe Gordon beat Jimmy Dykes in the first meeting between the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians since the two managers swapped jobs. The Tigers won it, 6-4, with Charlie Maxwell belting a two-run homer in the 10th inning. He had hit another two-run homer in the third, when the Tigers scored their other four runs and chased starter Jim Grant. Bobby Locke came in and pitched 5 1-3 innings of runless ball before he was relieved for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Johnny Klippstein followed and was clipped for Maxwell's decisive home run in the 10th.

Cleveland, after scoring a run in the second, tied it up at 4-4 with three runs on four straight hits off Jim Bunning.

U.S. Netters Reach Semies

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP)—Top-seeded Rod Laver moved into the semifinals of the Eastern Grass Court Tennis Championships today, along with three U.S. players—Don Dell, of Bethesda, Md., Ron Helmsberg of Brooklyn, and Mike Franks of Los Angeles. Dell followed up his Thursday upset for third-seeded Australian Bob Mark by ousting Ham Richards, Fanwood, N.J., 6-3, 1-6, 6-2.

Holmsberg eliminated Australian Bob Hewitt, 6-4, 11-9, to set up a semifinal match with Dell while Franks defeated Mike Green, Miami Beach, Fla., 6-3, 3-6, 9-7, to set up a match with Laver. The latter defeated Whitney Reed, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

In the women's division, 17-year-old Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., routed Deirdre Catt of Great Britain, 6-1, 6-1.

U.S. Captures American Cup For Fifth Time

OTTAWA (AP)—The United States overcame a spirited battle from Canada and captured the Americas Cup Golf title Friday for the fifth straight time.

Canada's narrow lead in the two-day international amateur matches lasted until the final 20 minutes when U.S. veteran Don Cherry swept past Mexican and Canadian competitors with one singles victory and two U.S. victories.

The American team ahead to stay.

Young John Konek of Buffalo gained a split in points with Vancouver's Ron Willey of the last match to cinch the U.S. victory at 2½ points, 1½ better than the disappointed Canadian squad.

The young Mexican team, trailing throughout largely because of erratic putting, finished with 12½ points—nine points behind the leaders. Each match victory in the tournament counted one point, ties a half-point.

The American win might have been recorded earlier had it not been for a decisive technical setback in the morning's alternate-ball sixomes when the U.S. pair of Jack Nicklaus and Deane Beman lost both their matches after being penalized by carrying an extra club.

The 15th club was discovered in Beman's bag when he became trapped inside the fifth green.

The error, attributed later to carelessness by caddies in cleaning clubs before today's rounds, allowed the Canadian squad to retain a full one-point lead.

Boston Wins In Coastal League

Boston defeated the Giants 7-2 yesterday, winning the Coastal Boys League playoffs in three straight games at the South Greenville Park.

The victory ended the series which was slated to be the best three out of five games and gave Boston the title for the second straight year.

Boston blasted Giant pitching for seven runs in the first inning and coasted to the victory.

Winning pitcher was Luke Best, yielding only four hits and two runs.

Harold Little hit a three-run double in the first to trigger the Boston victory.

Coastal Boys League director Dennis North said this morning that a barbecue dinner will be served for all players on August 19 at 8:00.

Miami, Americus Win In Little League Play

Finals Set For Elm St. Park At 4:00 Today

The representative teams from Georgia and Florida will play this afternoon in the finals of the District III Little League Tournament, after having won their games yesterday afternoon in the first round of the tourney.

Georgia Defeats Tenn., 2-0

In the first game, the Americus, Georgia Little Leaguers, paced by their pitcher David Reavis, who came just shy of a no-hitter, defeated their opponents from Elizabethtown, Tenn., by a score of 2-0.

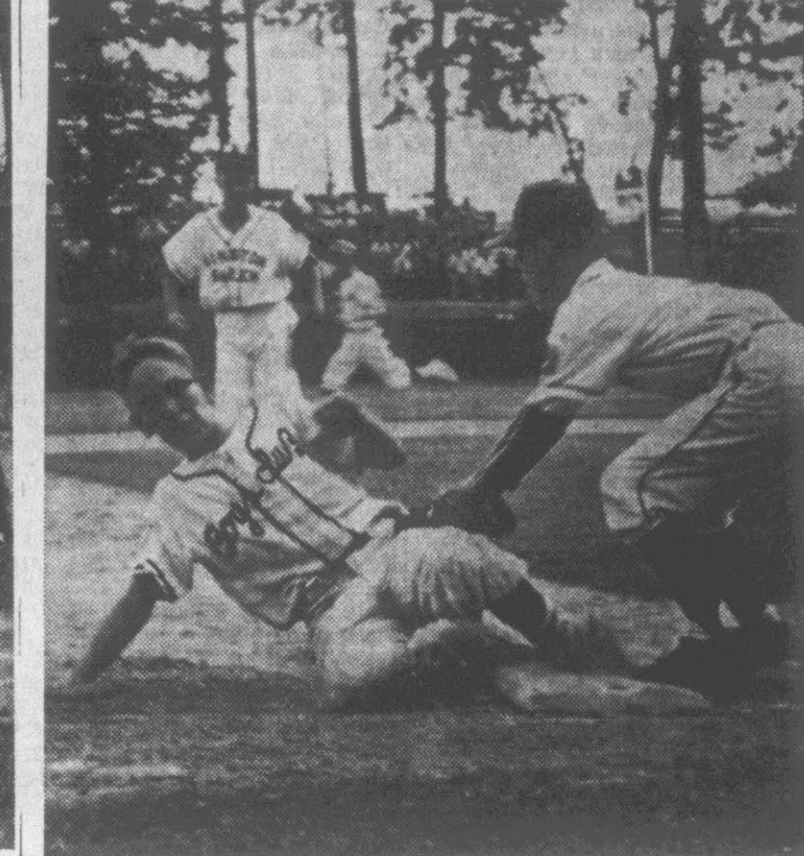

Georgia scored first in the fourth inning when the hurler, Reavis was hit by a pitched ball, and advanced to scoring position when John Ferguson collected a walk. Reavis then fent to third on another walk, and came scampering home on a wild pitch.

Georgia's second tally came in the fifth inning, when Wayne Spence who had rapped the only Georgia hit of the game, a single, scored from second base on an infield error, after he had been advanced there on a sacrifice.

Tennessee was a victim of "no breaks" as far as the game was concerned. Their hurler, Bobby Collins, who struck out nine Georgia batters, while walking four, and giving up only one hit as was the case with the Georgia hurler. The only hit for Tennessee was a double in the fifth inning when Johnny Stanton collected a double.

Oldest Track Mark Broken By Boston

CHICAGO (AP)—"I'm happy to see the record broken, and I'm just thankful that it stood up this long," Jesse Owens said Friday.

Ralph Boston of Tennessee A&I had just broken Owens' 25-year-old world record jump record with a leap of 26 feet, 11½ inches, ¾ inches better than the old mark.

"It's about time the record was broken. . . . 25 years is a long time," Owens said.

"This shows that progress is being made in track and field. It also shows that youngsters have come along today much better than they did 25 years ago."

Owens flew with flailing arms one day in May of 1935, when he set a record that looked as though it might survive challenges as long as George Herman Ruth's 60 home runs.

"Jesse said it was all right to break it," Boston told reporters. "He's tired of it."

Boston's historic leap was just one of four world record-breaking performances in the U.S. team's final pre-Olympic meet at Mt. San Antonio College.

The others:

Hal Connolly, Southern California Striders, 230 feet, 9 inches in the hammer throw (bettering his own record of 225-4, set in 1958).

Bill Nieder, Army, 65 feet, 10 inches in the shot put (bettering his pending record of 65-7, set last August).

The team of Eddie Southern, Earl Young, Otis Davis and Jack Yerman, 3:05.6 in the mile relay (bettering the record of the U.S. national team of 1956). The second team in Friday night's relay—Cliff Cushman, Ted Woods, Jerry Siebert and Glenn Davis—a 4:1 broke the record, finishing in 3:06.1. Two other world records

Records Broken In Time Trials

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Eighteen records were broken in time trials and finals of events Friday night in the first half of the Carolinas Junior Olympics swimming meet here.

Kathy Helfrick of Spartanburg, S.C. swam the 50-meter breaststroke for girls 10 years old and under in 43.5 seconds, bettering the old mark by 1.5 seconds. She also won in the 50-meter freestyle.

More than 700 Carolinas swimmers took part. More time trials were scheduled today and finals tonight.

Boxer, Pigeon Have Rescuers

NEW YORK (AP)—A weary pigeon and a Brooklyn boxer dog were in trouble Friday. An Italian ocean liner came to the rescue of the bird and a humane judge saved the dog.

The Italian liner Cristoforo Colombo was a few miles off Long Island en route from New York to the Mediterranean when an exhausted pigeon fluttered aboard.

A foot tag indicated the bird was from Long Island or New Jersey. The ship's captain, Osvoldo Magagnoli, ordered the pigeon placed in a cage and given special care. The bird will get a free round trip to Europe.

The boxer, named Schnapps, had been condemned to death for biting several Brooklyn residents. But the dog's owner, June Breslau, 15, and her mother had appealed to the State Supreme Court, saying Schnapps was frisky but not vicious. They insisted he doesn't bite.

Justice James C. Crane ruled: "It is true that a dog is man's best friend and it would seem to be the humane thing to try and rehabilitate him."

He ordered Schnapps released from captivity where he had lost 20 pounds since his incarceration.

One sad note: Schnapps must leave his old neighborhood and live in New Jersey with his owners' relatives.

Driverless Auto Results In Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Louis Hayward is suing because an auto ran into his. But he isn't suing the driver, because there wasn't any.

He is suing the restaurant and the owner of the car.

Grants Awarded To Five Local Students

SADIE MARIE CLARK

Five 1960 graduates of C.M. Eppes High School have been announced winners of scholarships to North Carolina colleges by J.L. Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools.

The scholarships are for $800 each and are sponsored by local individuals and groups.

Neomi Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jenkins of 115 N. Green St., Greenville, is the winner of a scholarship given by William H. Taft and Joseph M. Taft. She will attend State Teachers College in Elizabeth City.

Junior Earl Baker was awarded a scholarship given by Dr. Ray Minges. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Baker of 1503 W. Pitt St., Greenville, and plans to attend North Carolina College at Durham.

Winner of a scholarship given by Greenfield Terrace is Willie scholarships or other sources. Brewington of 1309 S. Pitt St. plans to attend Livingstone College. Members of the Greenfield Terrace group are Hoover Taft, Marvin Blount and Tom Rivers.

Sadie Marie Clark is a fourth winner. The daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Shady Clark of 304 Moore St., she plans to attend Johnson C. Smith University of Charlotte on a scholarship given by the Greenville Tobacco Company.

Evelyn Jean Simpson is the winner of a scholarship given by the Person-Garrett Tobacco Company. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Simpson of 1201 Battle St., Greenville. Miss Simpson graduated with honors this year from high school. She plans to attend North Carolina College at Durham.

Conditions under which the scholarships are awarded specify that the recipient must be of character above reproach and attend a North Carolina college.

He or she must have proved by past school records that he has made the most of opportunities presented and must be a person with sufficient mental ability to enable him or her to do college work. He must have ambition. It must be known that the recipient intends to graduate from college. And he must be assured of enough financial help in addition to this scholarship to enable him or her to stay in college four years. The other financial help may come from parents, friends, self-help jobs, loans, other scholarships or other sources.

Parents or guardians of the recipient must keenly desire a college education for their child or ward and pledge themselves to this end.

Reports or grades will be sent to J.H. Rose from the college and should J.H. Rose decide that the recipient is not working, the scholarship will be withdrawn. The unpaid portion of the scholarship would then be awarded to another person from Greenville either already in a North Carolina college or to a graduate of succeeding classes in C.M. Eppes High School.

If it is decided by the Super-

If you like plenty of horseplay and slapstick comedy, we'll advise you to go see the East Carolina Playhouse farce, SEE HOW THEY RUN, to be staged for one more performance at Austin Auditorium on Monday evening, the 15th of August, at 8 p.m. . . . We want to the first showing last Wednesday and got a lot of laughs as well as a big kick out of the good acting of a show that is very demanding on the performers, especially with the temperature flirting with ninety.

Dee Jenkins of Greenville took the female lead and played with grace and dignity a part that could easily have degenerated into bathos, but didn't. Judy Wilson as the offensive, fat Miss Skillion and Sandra Wade as the maid, Ida, took care of the other female parts in fine style. Howard Mallard was almost too stuffy as the Reverend Lionel Toop, but he was supposed to be stuffy anyway. Doug Mitchell, another Greenvillean, played an American corporal misplaced in an English village with his usual smooth facility, and Marshall Braddy and Gerald Harrell were more than adequate in minor roles. Ray Tolley as The Bishop grew in stature as the play progressed, in another part that demanded a lot of good acting. And almost stealing the show while he was on was Jimmy Parker, who was a sinister and realistic escaped Compy spy. . . . All in all it was a good evening's entertainment and we think SEE HOW THEY RUN will be well worth your while next Monday evening—rain or shine, hot or cold.

HIRSHBERG

Scheduled for publication in the fall is another new book by another ECC professor, Ralph R. Napp, newly returned from Duke after a stint of graduate study at Duke. He co-authors a book with Reiner Rodenhauer, to be called BREAKING DOWN THE BARRIERS, subtitled "A Human Document on War," that already has received great praise from pre-publication readers. Mr. Rodenhauer is a former officer in the German Army, a veteran of World War II, and much of the book details his battle experiences. The book's importance, though, lies in the ideas on the costs and consequences of war, and on defense policies, many of them new departures in current political thought. . . . Out in early September will be a novel by Phyllis Brett Young called PSYCHE, about the psychological effects of childhood after Achilles kills Hector every thing else is anticlimactic anyway. I was glad of the omission.

Whether or not readers of this translation of the Iliad will glean any come from this ancient narrative seems to be unimportant. The important reason for reading this book is that it is a brilliant and dramatic re-telling of the most famous war story of all time.

By Jasper Jones, Jr.

Robert Graves translated the Iliad into prose with rhymed verse reserved for invocations, prayers, hymns, similes and the like. The effect of prose on the Iliad is wonderful. The story moves at a thrilling pace, and the battles take on a new realism. Graves retains all the precise description of where the spear goes in and where it comes out, how long it takes the soldier to die, and then how bloody the ground is afterwards. The highly rhythmic verses are like incidental music to the prose. The prose breaks into verse with no introduction, and the verses crystallize the predominant mood of the prose at the moment.

A number of the funeral games for Patroclus' funeral in Book Twenty-Three were left out of this translation, so that the Trojans could go ahead and have Hector's funeral in Book Twenty-Four, but after Achilles kills Hector everything else is anticlimactic anyway. I was glad of the omission.

THE ANGLER OF ACHILLES: HOMER'S "ILIAD"
Translated by Robert Graves
Garden City, New York:
Doubleday and Company, Inc., 1959

Though this translation of Homer's Iliad appeared last November, there has been much controversy about its literary worth or importance since its publication. Discussion about the book started when the book's preface appeared in the "Atlantic Monthly" before the book itself was available. In the short essay, Robert Graves explained his theory that the Iliad is not a great tragedy but a satirical poem for entertainment. According to Graves, Agamemnon is a swagging buffoon and Helen's avenging husband, Menelaus, is more interested in saving his own skin when the battles begin than in regaining fair Helen.

To emphasize the Iliad's essential "humor", Doubleday and Co. commissioned illustrations by Ronald Searle, the famous cartoonist of the British magazine, "Punch". The cartoon-illustrations are really hilarious, particularly the one in Book Three entitled "The Rescued Paris from Menelaus by Aphrodite", and in truth they do more to emphasize Graves' theoretical satire than Graves' own translation.

The satire that Graves claims to be so evident in the Iliad is fortunately no more pronounced in his translation than it is in the translations of Alexander Pope or W. H. D. Rouse. I had feared that the new translation would be filled with little exaggerated remarks to emphasize that the new comedy and substantiate the translator's theory, but it is not. Actually it is not so funny as Alexander Pope's Greek translation in which the Greeks do everything in rhymed couplets and converse as Greek barbarians who suddenly learned to speak perfect Augustan Age English.

Robert Graves translated the Iliad into prose with rhymed verse reserved for invocations, prayers, hymns, similes and the like. The effect of prose on the Iliad is wonderful. The story moves at a thrilling pace, and the battles take on a new realism. Passenger May Be Orbited Soon

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—The recovery of the Discoverer XIII space capsule may herald the orbiting of a vehicle carrying a passenger—one of a number of specially trained chimpanzees.

The chimps have been in training for more than a year at several locations, including the University of Kentucky, and are nearly ready to soar into space.

Their reactions to such conditions as heavy acceleration, weightlessness and the crucial re-entry period could give the answers needed to send a man into orbit.

The chimps have been trained to respond to visual signals and, when told, to press buttons on a panel.

Special computers will tape information about the chimps' reaction and, at the same time, will transmit it back to earth.

If the capsule is recovered, the tapes may provide all the answers we need. If it can't be found for one reason or another, the transmitters will take over.

Pitt ABC Officers Destroy 2 Stills

Pitt County ABC officers this morning destroyed two 55-gallon stills and one 60-gallon unit, all part of one outfit operating near the old Webb Schoolhouse in Pacolus Township.

According to the enforcers, the stills' 60-gallon drum boiler, a 55-gallon doubler, the 55-gallon cooler with copper condenser and one 200-gallon mash box containing 300 gallons of mash and five 55-gallon mash barrels containing 100 gallons of mash were also destroyed.

According to officers the 60 gallon still was an extra and was not being used.

The wood-fired unit was not in operation at the time and no arrests were made, according to officers. The outfit was destroyed by axes.

Participating in the raid were J. M. Ward, H. B. Lilley and Walter Taylor.

Minor Injuries In Bike Mishap

A six-year-old girl bicyclist rider received minor injuries yesterday when she rode the vehicle into the path of a truck at the intersection of Fourth and Sycamore Sts.

Investigating police stated Sally Soyette of 2403 East Third St. said she did not stop at the intersection and ran into the path of the truck, which was operating on Fourth St.

The driver of the truck was identified as Joe Ward, 32-year-old Negro of Route 5, Greenville.

No damage resulted to the truck, officers said, while damage to the bicycle was estimated to be about $15.

No charges were placed in the accident.

FRANKLIN, N.C. (AP)—Within the space of two weeks, bitter mountain men in three different North Carolina communities have killed their families with bullets—the only solution they could muster to domestic difficulties. Ten people have been killed, five wounded.

Frank Jackson Hannah, 42-year-old mountain carpenter, was the latest to resort to firearms. Friday he ambushed his father-in-law, Robert Welch, 72, in his barn eight miles from here, killing him with four bullets from a .22 rifle. Then he pursued his wife, Mrs. Wilma Hannah, 35, who first hid in a closet with their son Ricky, 2, then fled to the fields. When Hannah caught up with them he wounded both with shots from a .32 pistol taken from the house, then mortally wounded himself.

Sheriff J. Harry Thomas said the Hannahs had been separated and Mrs. Hannah had charged her husband with assault two weeks ago. But the sheriff said the judge who heard the case postponed trial until December and urged the couple to try to straighten out their difficulties.

A physician said Hannah's wife and son were expected to recover from their wounds. Nancy Hannah, 13, a daughter, was in the home, holding Welch's pistol, when her father entered. He disarmed her but did not harm her nor 2-year-old Robert Welch, son of Mrs. Hannah's brother.

The first of the murderous frenzies occurred in the Meat Camp community of Watauga County, some 190 miles northeast of here, on July 31. Dock Main, 50-year-old farmer, killed one daughter, wounded his wife and another daughter, then drove five miles to the home of a man he thought was chasing his estranged wife, and killed him. After that Main returned home and fatally wounded himself.

Monday night near Weaverville, 70 miles from here, Wayne R. Franks, 29, service station attendant, took a pistol to the home of his parents-in-law. There he killed his mother-in-law, fatally wounded his three children and mortally wounded himself. His estranged wife had been sent away for safety's sake by the father-in-law, who was wounded.

Camp Slated For Young Prisoners

RALEIGH (AP)—If funds are approved by the Legislature, Camp Polk Prison near Raleigh will be changed into a vocational training center for young prisoners.

The change, embodied in a broad plan of expansion and consolidation for the prison system, was approved Friday by the State Prison Commission.

Other changes approved include: (1) Transfer of all close custody convicts in the state to a new prison being built in Northampton County; (2) construction of a prison unit for treatment of alcoholic prisoners; (3) abandonment of nine prison road camps in bad repair; (4) construction at Central Prison of a unit to house some 400 honor grade prisoners needed for work in state offices and institutions in Raleigh; and (5) a plan under which minimum security and maximum security prisoners will not be confined in the same prison camps.

The General Assembly will be asked to appropriate $1,594,333 to carry out the program. Prison Director George Randall said some of the changes will actually save money in operating costs.

White Mouse Ends Stay In Chamber

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A white mouse named Amphex Friday ended a 66-day stay in a sealed chamber in which algae kept him alive by providing oxygen.

The test at a Chance Vought laboratory aided scientists seeking to create a closed ecological system which, on a larger scale, would produce vital oxygen and food for man in space or on a lifeless planet.

Amphex stayed in the chamber more than twice as long as any mouse before him. Amphex stands for animal photo-synthetic experiment.

The algae, a single-cell plant found in lakes and ponds, sustained itself from carbon dioxide from the mouse.

Cracked Skull For Playful Husband

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP)—Jesse Key crept up behind his wife as she was cooking and tickled her.

The pan came down on Key's head, fracturing his skull.

He was reported in good condition.

Broken Fixture Blacks Out City

PIRRE, S.D. (AP)—Downtown Pierre was in a blackout Friday night, reminiscent of wartime. It was due to a broken transformer.

Stores and street lights were darkened to conserve what electricity there was for water pumping, hospitals and home lighting.

With the temperature in the mid-90s, air conditioners had to be shut down, traffic signals were not operating, barbers couldn't cut hair and the Capital Journal, the afternoon daily, didn't hit the streets on schedule.

Pierre's 10,000 persons have been on rationed voltage since Thursday morning when the transformer failed.

Water Bath Saves Zoo's Animals

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP)—Firemen turned hoses on the animal cages at Washington Park Zoo Friday as ammonia fumes spread over the area. The sudden bath probably saved the lives of many animals.

A fox and a husky Siberian dog died from the deadly fumes. Foilage in the park withered. A man and two children were taken to a hospital for treatment but were released. The zoo was closed for two hours.

The fumes came from a hose that broke while a tank truck was transferring 500 gallons of ammonia to a water pumping station.

ON TV SHOW . . . WNCT announcer Clint Long, Barbara Garland and Bradshaw bring information about Social Security to the citizens of Eastern North Carolina each Wednesday.

THE FIRST PITT FARMER . . . to receive Social Security payments was William M. Adams of the St. John's community near Ayden. Adams, born February 4, 1883, started receiving his payments April, 1956. Adams, who consented to having his case story released, is one of over 1,000 Pitt farmers who have filed for Social Security benefits.

FIELD REPRESENTATIVE . . . Bradshaw is shown discussing Social Security payments with Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Smith of Greenville. Mr. Smith started receiving disability payments in August of 1959 after suffering a stroke earlier and becoming unable to work. Mrs. Smith is also receiving payments and will use them to send their teenage son to college. The Smiths gave their consent for their story to be told.

Social Security Observes Twenty-Fifth Anniversary

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

Tomorrow begins the special week set aside for "celebration" of the 25th anniversary of the Social Security Act of 1935.

All around America, people, agencies and organizations will turn attention to the progress seen during the past quarter-century of Social Security—the tremendous federal social reform.

In Pitt County, as in other areas, preparations have been made with local personnel and agencies mindful of the special observance.

Greenville's Mayor S. Eugene West, this morning, signed a document proclaiming "the week of Aug. 14, 1960, as Social Security Week."

The proclamation continues: "I urge our citizens during this period to learn more about their many rights, their privileges and their responsibilities under the Federal Social Security Act."

Pitt County's Commissioners, at their August meeting, also officially set aside the week for special Social Security observance.

Good Reason

And Greenville and Pitt have good reason to "celebrate."

While the special insurance and compensation legislation was not felt appreciably at the outset, the past five years here have seen Pitt's Social Security insurance payroll grow to above $3 million.

The turning point was in 1955 when the initial act was amended to allow farmers to receive the insurance benefits today going to hundreds of thousands.

And as the turning point loomed, Pitt's government was quick to implement the rise in local Social Security income.

The commissioners and Pitt's citizenry closely cooperating, established and made successful the Pitt County Social Security Program.

Headed by W.K. Whichard — known to many as "Kenny" — the county's program is independent of the federal agency's district office in Rocky Mount.

The Rocky Mount office serves Pitt along with nine other area counties. Its chores are receiving and forwarding applications for benefit payments through the Social Security Administration.

The Pitt program is mostly educational. Whichard describes it as one that "speaks the terms of Social Security in the language of the people."

He is quick to explain that many people—even "well-informed" people—cannot begin to comprehend the techniques and mechanics used in the Social Security Administration.

That's where Pitt's program goes to work. Whichard, acting in a consultant capacity, aids potential recipients in filing applications properly.

Gratifying Results

Since the program went into effect here, Pitt's Social Security payroll has increased by nearly 100 per cent each year.

In 1955, a total of 1,522 Pitt Countians were receiving payments totaling annually $695,000.

The county program, in conjunction with the Social Security Act's amendment, has effected a sharp rise in total recipients and in total benefits.

This year, according to latest available records and estimates, nearly 4,200 recipients are receiving an annual total of nearly $3 million.

According to Whichard, a large degree of the increase has been due to better Social Security education of the county's citizens.

He attributes a large degree of the program's success to "total cooperation." He declares Pitt Countians have "given their 100 per cent cooperation in helping us reach and help eligible recipients."

Once reached, instructed, and treated properly, applicants can be virtually assured of receiving the payments for which they are eligible.

District Office

While meaningful locally, the Pitt program is an integral part of the whole Social Security scheme. The county is served by a district office of the Social Security Administration in Rocky Mount.

The Rocky Mount office also serves nine other counties — Bertie, Edgecombe, Greene, Halifax, Hertford, Martin, Nash, Northampton, and Wilson.

Under the management of N.A. Avera, the entire district has experienced rapidly increased Social Security payments and recipients during the past five years.

The district's recipient and payment totals have risen at a rate comparable to the local experience.

District totals rose from 9,172 recipients with an annual payroll of $4.2 million in 1955 to this year's totals (partially estimated) of 25,155 receiving $14.2 million.

Pitt's slightly higher rate of increase has been attributed by many to the county-sponsored program.

Extensive Program

Pitt's program has been effective for several reasons.

Untiring efforts, says Whichard, of the county's citizens in locating and educating eligible recipients have been the key to "getting the ball really rolling."

District Field Representative W. G. Bradshaw has worked closely with the Pitt program — linking its applications more effectively with the Rocky Mount office.

The Greenville television station has been used during the past five years the weekly telecast of "Your Social Security Program."

Bradshaw and other agency personnel have appeared on the Wednesday TV shows that have served to educate thousands of Eastern Tar Heels on the subject.

In addition to the regular program schedule, WNCT has provided many special programs to help tell the story of Social Security. During the past three months three hour-long programs have been telecast.

Whichard, though very modest about claiming any credit for Pitt's progress in Social Security, is the main cog in the local program.

While he is "well-blessed with splendid cooperation," the consultant coordinates the program to realize the result being sought — procurement of benefits.

Other Segments

But, anniversary observers stress, the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance payments are but one of the nine segments of the massive Social Security Act.

Under the act also are unemployment insurance, old-age assistance, aid to the need blind, aid to dependent children, aid to the permanently and totally disabled, child welfare services, maternal and child health services, and services for crippled children.

These benefits are administered through the Social Security Administration as well as other local, state, and federal government agencies.

Pitt County's Welfare Department, under the direction of J.S. Grimes III, handles the public assistance grants (OAA, ADC, APTD, and aid to blind) with a formulated combination of federal-state-local funds.

The unemployment insurance segment for the Pitt area is under supervision of the Greenville office of the N.C. Employment Service Division, headed by W.B. Dillingham of Winterville.

Anniversary Purpose

According to agency-connected officials, the purpose of the special week-long observance of Social Security's birthday is creating a better public understanding of benefits available under the act.

Many spokesmen feel "we have just begun to feel the effects of Social Security."

Many believe America has just begun to feel the full effect of Social Security — and then in only certain geographic areas.

Whichard says: "A quarter-century of Social Security! And yet, even now, we have not begun to feel the full effects of this tremendous social reform."

His office, as well as the Rocky Mount district office, is urging special emphasis on Social Security education during next week.

Special invitations have been extended to the public to visit the Pitt program's office at 213 Washington St. in Greenville, the district office at 225 Hill St. in Rocky Mount, and district representatives in the Greenville City Hall's Council Room next Wednesday from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

Says Whichard: "It is truly 'Later Than You Think.'"

Complain About Private Builders

WARSAW (AP)—Poland's supreme chamber of control is complaining about private homebuilders who simply ignore red tape and put up homes without permits. The newspaper Zycie Warszawy says 18,800 cases of unapproved buildings were uncovered in 1958. It tells of "illegal legalization" or cases where officials granted permits to builders after their homes already were finished. A number of cases have been sent to court and some officials removed from their posts.

and work on the addition of lobbies and parlors to Slay and Umstead Halls will take about four months. The cafeteria improvements include completely rebuilt terrazzo tile floors, an additional entrance at the west end of this unit, and new serving counters. The cafeteria will be air-conditioned, also. Total cost of this project is $130,000.

Dormitory Conversions
In addition to providing adequate lobby facilities in Slay and Umstead Halls, these two buildings are being converted from men's dormitories into residence halls for women students. Counselor's suites are also being provided. The dormitories will be used in the Fall quarter for women while the construction of the $117,000 additions continues.

Maintenance Building
Ground has been broken for a two-story addition to the Maintenance Building to provide 10,000 more square feet of space for Buildings and Grounds Department. The addition will cost $63,000.

Graham Building
Low bids totaling $98,709.74 have been submitted to ECC for the construction of an addition to Graham Building, a classroom get under way within a few weeks. The contractors submitting the low bids for this new wing at Graham Building are: general construction, DuBose Construction Company, Kinston, $77,670; plumbing, Kinston Plumbing and Heating Company, Kinston, $2,954; heating, Goldsboro Heating and Plumbing Company, Goldsboro, $3,911; electrical, Davis Electrical Company, New Bern, $8,045; architect's fees, $6,073.81.

A. J. Maxwell Jr., of Goldsboro, is architect for the Graham Building three-story wing which will contain classrooms, laboratories and offices.

Heating Plant
Mr. Duncan said plans are being prepared for an addition to the heating plant which call for the installation of a new boiler, steam distribution system, ash and coal handlers.

Also, there will be a renovation of the electrical distribution system, new switch gear at the central heating plant, and the replacement of the overhead electrical lines with underground conduits in the modernization of these utilities.

Reports Secret 2-Year Marriage

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Jack Dempsey says he has been secretly married for a year and a half to a New York businesswoman.

The 65-year-old former world's heavyweight boxing champion said Friday his wife is the former Deanna Fietelli, 38, proprietor of a jewelry store.

Beyond that, he wasn't saying much. He explained his blonde bride wanted to keep the wedding quiet and those who took part in it were pledged to secrecy. The couple was married in the East but the ex-champ would not say where.

Dempsey has been married three times previously and he said, "I hope this is my last." He was married to Maxine Wayne, actress Estelle Taylor and singer Hannah Williams and had two daughters by the third marriage. He has five grandchildren.

Many youths have volunteered to photograph drunken men, and the next day the offenders and their families are shown the evidence of their misbehavior. Smirnov said. Some photographers go around in patrols.

The Lean Rider by CLIFF FARRELL

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Lisa Randolph's education in the 19th century manner to be a lady among aristocrats in the settled country wasn't of much value to her after her parents died with their fortune gone. Lisa's thumbs turned realistically and helpfully to Frank O'Hara whose impulsive proposal of marriage during a trip of his east she had taken lightly. She submerged her pride in his arms and now she is in Texas, in a hired wagon with a stranger, being driven to O'Hara's ranch to marry him.

CHAPTER 2
Micah Jones straightened in the seat of the spring wagon, peering. Lisa Randolph became aware of cashing sounds in the brush. These came rapidly closer. She heard hooves and the grunting of animals laboring under great stress.

A wild, screeching shout that highly sounded human arose in the thickets. Lisa had heard that Indians were still to be reckoned with in this wild land. She gazed at Micah in alarm. "Easy, m'am," he said. "That's nothing to be afraid of. It's only a brush popper rounding up Barbee stock."

An animal burst from the chaparral a distance away and came racing toward the wagon. Lisa stared, shocked. To her, all bovines came under the general classification of peaceful remnants, lying in green meadows, chewing their cud. This creature seemed from another world. It had powerful sharp-tipped horns spreading as wide as a man could reach. It was the color of brown suede and its eyes had the greenish shine of pure fury. It moved with the springy, lithe stride of a wild animal and its whistling breathing was a savage sound. It was a Longhorn steer.

A horseman appeared from the brush in pursuit. His aspect was as startling as that of his quarry. He rode low in the saddle, hugging the neck of his horse, his hat jammed well down, a leather-cuffed arm shielding his face from the thorned branches. He yelled again—the high-pitched, primitive sound that had frightened Lisa. The fierce, challenging shout of the hunter.

The steer was heading toward the wagon. Micah leaped to his feet, waving his arms and whooping. The animal broke stride and whirled to dart in another direction. That was its undoing. The pursuer was upon it. Lisa saw the falcon dart of a looped rope. In the next instant the steer was yanked sideways to land on its flank with a violence that brought a gasp of sympathy from her.

The rider left the saddle and raced down the rope, hand over hand. He carried a shorter length of rope in his teeth. He threw himself bodily on the steer and in seconds of concentrated activity bound its legs securely. It was all done so swiftly Lisa did not realize what was happening.

The hunter lay back, using the body of the breathless animal as a support, and looked up at them in the wagon. He blew from laboring lungs. "Double damn his 'o'ney hide!" he wheezed. "I got him at last."

His features were lean and ruggedly molded. He had very dark hair and dark straight brows. His eyes were dark also, but they were eyes that were alive—very much alive. He looked at her boldly, as though estimating her weight and age.

He wore a jacket made of heavy leather which bore the marks of long use in the thickets. He had heavy leather leggings buckled to his thighs. He was dusty and in need of a shave. His horse also wore leather, and the shape of a heavy breast-armor which protected it to its knees.

"Muy bueno, Micah," he said, his lungs still laboring. "If you hadn't turned that bunch quitter I'd still be bustin' brush on his tail."

"Abel," Micah said, and his manner was suddenly as formal as though they were standing on a polished floor. "I want to present you to Miss Elizabeth Randolph. Miss Randolph, this is Abel Barbee."

Abel Barbee got to his feet and removed his hat. Lisa judged him to be in the late twenties. He was well above medium height and there was power in his shoulders. But about all he gave the impression of being a person who made his own decisions and was ready to stand by them.

He continued his unhurried way of sizing her up. Lisa endured this inspection and felt embarrassed color rising over her. She sensed that he resented her. She wondered if it could be her garb. The little bright festoon of blue ribbon that had adorned her poke bonnet was drooping now, shaken partly from its moorings by days of jolting wheeled travel, its springiness faded by sun and dust.

Abel Barbee's glance swung to the portmanteau and the carpetbag and two hatboxes which were lashed to the scant afterdeck of the small wagon. He seemed to disapprove of these items also.

"No'erna," he inquired. He evidently was a very truculent person. Lisa did not answer his brusque question. "How do you do, Mr. Barbee?" she said with strict formality.

"No'erna, shore enough," Abel Barbee said.

Miss Randolph comes from Chicago," Micah said. "She wants to get in touch with Frank O'Hara. I'm driving her to O'Hara House."

Abel Barbee was frowning. Lisa sat primly gazing off into the distance, ignoring him. She was determined to let him flounder in his own curiosity before she would offer a word of explanation. Suddenly, intuitively, she sensed that he knew why she was here. She looked at him quickly. And then she was sure. Once again she felt warmth sweep over her and into her face. This continued as Abel Barbee's critical inspection of her went on.

Her fingers, slim and well-cared for, were tightly locked together in her lap. She resisted the desire to smooth her skirt and tuck into place a strand of her hair which had crept from beneath the band of the bonnet. It was becoming hair of a deep golden, coppery hue. She was a slender young woman of twenty-four, made thinner of face by the doubts and anxieties of these past months, but obviously of excellent figure. Her eyes were a fine,

Pitt County Has Oldest Church

Pitt County has the oldest church of the Disciples of Christ in North Carolina in the Roundtree Christian Church, about two miles west of Ayden.

The Roundtree Church dates back to the year 1827 and has had throughout its continuous history the set date of worship as the fourth Sunday of the month.

However, in recent years the church has provided two Sundays of worship on the second and the fourth Sundays.

Sunday School convenes every Sunday at 10 o'clock and the preaching service at 11.

Dr. H. G. Haney, retired after 17 years of service with the Eighth St. Christian Church in Greenville, is now serving the Roundtree Church.

warm shade of gray. She was well-bred and trained in the ways of social grace. This background was very evident in her demeanor.

Abel Barbee's inspection went on for seconds and the silence deepened. He finally spoke. "You better stop by Monte Vista and let Hester handle this, Micah."

The way he said it brought a chill of apprehension to Lisa. She saw a glance pass between the two men.

"I'd already planned on doing that," Micah said. He paused, then added, "So that's how it is?"

Abel Barbee shrugged. "I had counted on Frank helpin' us round up. An' you too, Micah. You could have pitched in, instead of settin' around San Ysidro."

"I will," Micah said hastily. "I will, Abel. I'll start riding in the morning."

"I hoped to be trailin' no'th days ago," Abel said wearily. "But here we are, still poppin' knotheds out'n the tules."

He looked at the supine steer and said, "I wished you'd bust-ed your cussed neck!"

Astronauts May Need Disposables

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Astronauts may need disposable space suits for those long trips around Mars and Venus.

Rollin Gillespie, a scientist at Lockheed Missiles and Space Division's research laboratories here, said laundering is out of the question for trips which may last a year or longer. That would require too much water and energy.

What would the clothing be like? Gillespie said suits probably would resemble old-fashioned long underwear and have a texture like felt-porous enough to pick up body odors.

The suit would be used in the same manner as a disposable diaper. After wearing, it would be jettisoned and a new one put on.
