Sudsy Oasis On The Prairie

A sight calculated to make a traveler's eyes pop is this gleaming white bath tub rancher Joy Shay set up on wide open land near Pierre S. D. A 2,150-foot artesian well, normally used for watering cattle, gushes water at just the right temperature to sluice away the summer dust. Shay says ranch hands line up from miles around to use the tub. Shay has provided a canvas curtain for a bathroom, but his friend, Jack Sparjur, demonstrates here how you can take a tub bath in broad daylight, in the middle of the plains—with your hat on. Congo Police Arrest Some UN Personnel

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Premier Patrice Lumumba's Congolese police swept through Leopoldville homes and hotels today, arresting Europeans and United Nations personnel. U.N. Undersecretary Ralph Bunche intervened personally to obtain the release of two U.N. officers. The police said the officers "were Belgians camouflaged under U.N. uniforms."

Expect 'Trouble' At OAS Session

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—Washington warned that the Reds might try to stage another outbreak like the one that occurred during the Bogota conference in 1948 when Gen. George C. Marshall was secretary of state and headed the U.S. delegation. The warning came in a 250-page report of the Inter-American Peace Committee, made public as the Organization of American States—OAS—prepared to open its conference of foreign ministers to-night.

Fullbright Urges Plan's Adoption

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) urged congressional support today for a modified version of President Eisenhower's Latin-American development program. He put before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee a resolution designed to pledge congressional support for whatever future appropriations may be necessary to meet this country's share of the cost of raising living and cultural standards of neighbors to the south.

Find Wealth In Littered Rooms Of Dead Recluse

NEW YORK (AP)—Police today seized assets of more than $157,000 from the litter-cramped apartment of a dead semi-recluse. A night-long count, started after the body was discovered Monday, showed $45,087 in cash, over $112,000 in bank balances, plus assorted savings bonds, securities and checks.

Judge Overrules Parents; Child Said Now Safe

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP)—Karen Kemline, 9, is out of danger and recovering today after blood transfusions to which her parents objected. Karen severed a major artery in her left leg Sunday when she stumbled and fell through a window. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan R. Kemline of Albany, first tried to treat the cut themselves, then took Karen to Kaiser Foundation Hospital here.

Soviet Trawler Off N.C. Coast

MANTEO, N.C. (AP)—A fishing boat captain reported today that he encountered a Soviet trawler off the North Carolina coast Monday. Capt. Dan Lewark said he sailed within 20 feet of the trawler a few miles off Oregon Inlet. He said the trawler was equipped with fishing equipment that looked as if it never had been wet. Lewark said he saw Navy planes flying over the trawler.

Chosen President Of Florida State Univ.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, now chancellor of the Woman's College of the Consolidated University of North Carolina at Greensboro, today was chosen as president of Florida State University. Dr. Blackwell, 49, was recommended as successor to the late Dr. Roger Strozler by the State Board of Control. At a meeting in Gov. Leroy Collins' office, the State Board of Education voted unanimously to accept the recommendation.

Miss Bullock, Mr. Barnhill Are United In Church Ceremony

BETHEL—Miss Mattie Jane Bullock of Rt. 1, Stokes, became the bride of William C. Barnhill of Rt. 1, Robersonville, Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Bethel Baptist Church.

The Rev. Justice McKeel officiated during the exchanging of wedding vows. The vows were spoken in a setting of seven branched candelabra holding cathedral candles with white gladioli, lilies, chrysanthemums, bridal greenery of Emerald and plumosus fern.

Nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Selma Meadows, organist, and Walter Dixon, soloist, who sang "Whither Thou Goest," "The Lord's Prayer" and "My Hero."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, John M. Bullock, wore a formal gown of peau d'ange lace fashioned with a basque bodice and sabrina neckline embroidered in iridescent sequins and pearls.

The gown featured flowers in the back and classic long tapered sleeves which formed calla points over the hands. The bouffant redingote styled skirt revealed lace ruffles at the front and extended into a chapel train in back. Her circular fingertip veil of pure silk French illusion was attached to a scalloped pillbox and halo tiara of lace and pleated tulle.

The bride carried a crescent bouquet of Frenched carnations centered with a white hybrid orchid tied with lace matching her bridal gown.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Herman Harrison of New Bern, a former college roommate. Bridesmaids were Miss Joyce Bullock of Stokes, the bride's sister; Miss Ann Couch of Morehead City; Miss Cynda Briley of Kinston, a cousin of the bride; and Miss Linda Perry of Greenville and Selma, a former college roommate.

The honor attendant wore a nile gown of silk chiffon which was designed with a southern belle neckline and had a softly pleated bodice with a floating back panel. The other attendants' gowns were designed like the honor attendant's in pastel colors of yellow, pink, orchid, and blue.

The groom's father, Willie G. Barnhill, was best man. Ushers were Jimmy Bullock, USAF, Mendenhall, England, the bride's brother; Kenneth Bullock of Stokes, also a brother of the bride; and Ned Everett of Robersonville, both cousins of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bullock chose a mauve lace dress and matching accessories. She wore as a complement a purple hybrid orchid.

The groom's mother wore a blue lace sheath dress and white accessories with a white hybrid orchid.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed to a white dress of floral print and matching bolero. She chose brown accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. William C. Barnhill

Upon their return the couple will reside at 308 Jarvis Street, Greenville.

The new Mrs. Barnhill is an East Carolina College graduate and a teacher with the Williamston school system. Mr. Barnhill attended ECC and is employed at Farmer's Warehouse in the Bookkeeping Dept., Greenville.

Among the pre-nuptial events in the couple's honor was a rehearsal dinner given by his parents and a cake cutting at Sweet Gum Community Building given by the bride's aunt, Mrs. C. A. Briley.

Lakewood Pines Garden Club Selects New Civic Project

The Greenville Art Center will benefit from the Lakewood Pines Garden Club's civic project for the new club year.

The garden club will landscape a portion of the grounds under the direction of the Art Center officials. The plantings will conform to the overall plan of landscaping of the entire grounds.

Proceeds of the last Spring Fair will be used for this project. Work on the project will begin in the early fall.

Mrs. H. R. Billica, the newly-elected president, presided over the August meeting of the Lakewood Pines Garden Club at the home of Mrs. S. A. Sewall. Mrs. Billica replaces Mrs. R. E. Wilfong, who is moving to Wilmington, Del.

Other officers for the coming year are Mrs. R. P. Heller, vice president; Mrs. J. T. Barnhill, secretary; and Mrs. T. J. Morris, treasurer.

The program committee announced plans for the year which includes a study course on what to grow in your garden for arrangements, a forum looking forward to fall and winter, a quiz on identification of shrubs, Thanksgiving arrangements, unusual containers and bases, colored slides of garden club flower shows, and a program on natural gardens in North Carolina.

A small flower arrangement show is planned for March at the Greenville Art Center and the Spring Fair will be held in April. The club also voted to decorate the Greenville Art Center for Christmas.

The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. R. P. Heller.

Attention Mothers:

Back-To-School Laundry Tips

An educated mother will chalk up her washer, dryer and ironer as being one-two-three in getting little Sammy and Susie off to learn their ABC's.

For this mother knows well the clothes saving, space saving, time and money saving her automatic laundry affords her and her family, reports the American Home Laundry Manufacturers' Association.

When shopping for back-to-school fashions, for example, she need buy only about half as many clothes for her children as the mother who is not blessed with these convenient appliances.

For instead of having to have six or seven sets of undergarments, several pairs of pajamas, a week's supply of jeans and so on down the line for all the garments it takes to dress the children for the week between washdays, she can get by with half.

Her handy automatic laundry will wash and dry daily if necessary the needed garments during the time mother is getting the children up, getting breakfast and feeding the family. Nor will she worry if it's raining or snowing, Junior's Levi's and Sister Susie's jumper will still get dry in time in the automatic dryer.

Any ironing that must be done can be turned out on the ironer in less than a third of the time it would take to do the same amount by hand ironing.

So the mother with the up-to-date laundry is sending her youngsters to school in clean clothes, rain or shine. She's saving money by not having to buy as many clothes for her family, and this adds up with even a small family when styles change season after season.

Fewer clothes means less space needed for storage. And as every mother knows, no house ever seems to have enough drawer and closet space. Having to purchase fewer clothes also means fewer to worry about the children out-growing.

For how many times has the mother of growing children said, "I spent a small fortune trying to get Johnnie and Mary ready for school last year and now both have sprouted up until they can't wear any of their clothes." If there are younger children in the family, the clothing may be handed down, otherwise perfectly good clothes must be thrown or given away. Because her washer and dryer do work automatically, once mother loads them, sets the dials or punches the buttons, she can be off to do the myriad other chores expected of today's homemaker while the laundry literally "does itself." This may mean taking her turn as chauffeur in the car-pool to get the children to school or to one of their various extra-curricular meetings—music lessons, football practice, Girl Scouts, and so on.

Or it may mean time to be a room mother, volunteer in the school library or in the many other civic duties that will make the school and community a better place in which to raise her children.

Church Circles

Circle No. 1
BETHEL—Circle No. 1 met in the home of Mrs. M. W. Lassiter last week with 12 members present.

Mrs. R. L. Goodall had charge of the devotionals and the program. She gave them as a combination. Her scripture reading was taken from II Timothy. "Our Children" was her topic. She gave a challenge to parents to so live that they may exert the Christian influence upon their children and that this should be done without apparent force or direct authority. During the social hour, cherry pie topped with ice cream was served with nuts and iced drinks.

Sarah Whitehurst Circle
The Sarah Whitehurst Circle met with Mrs. Howard Keel in her home. Mrs. Jim Warren and Mrs. Mamie Whitehurst were co-hostesses.

The devotional lesson and the program were given by Mrs. S. C. Whitehurst. Her topic was "Our Children." She discussed the needs here and in other countries, touching on the conditions existing in each. Special prayer was made for the needs of all.

Burton Circle
Mrs. Wayne Rogerson was hostess to the Marion Burton Circle in her home on McWhorter Street with nine members present.

Mrs. Edward Mathews, chairman, opened the meeting with the goals as given by the Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Mrs. Harold Manning gave the devotionals and Mrs. Clayton Purvis gave a program on the topic "Let the Children Be Heard." An illustration was given by the use of a child to represent each continent.

At the close of the meeting it was announced the circle will meet with Mrs. William E. House next month.

Lambeth and Tucker Circles
The Mary Lambeth Circle met with Mrs. James Crandall last Monday night. The Sallie Tucker Circle met with Mrs. Tom Andrews Jr. the same night.

 The bride-to-be wore an Alice blue sheath dress and a yellow corsage, a gift from the hostesses.

Household Hints

Play it safe this summer—give your family food iron and B vitamins they need with enriched bread and rolls. The bakery foods you buy are enriched, too—enriched, too—check the labels and be sure.
 When your telephone rings, don't cause an accident by breaking your neck to answer it. If the call is important they will call back.
 If garbage pails have an odor, clean by pouring in boiling water and a good quantity of household ammonia. Let stand for several minutes and then wash out with a small broom.
 Judge grapefruit by its weight, to get the most for your money.

Party Marks 87th Birthday

The Ordinary Rules Don't Apply

Congress is being asked to authorize something like $600,000,000 for a bootstrap lift-job in Latin America.

In some respects, the Administration's plan to help our neighbors toward developing their economies and easing their plight of poverty and handicapped economic structures, is on a more solid footing than other such programs of the past.

Basically, it aims at fundamental causes of inertia and deterrents to prosperity.

The biggest and most pointed question raised to date does not involve the amount of money needed nor how it is to be used, but of an administrative nature.

As a self-styled foe of U. S. imperialism, Fidel Castro's Cuba is omitted from the program. He is no problem; but the attitudes of other free peoples in South and Central America pose grounds for concern.

We want and need their friendship. On the other hand, our help in the past has not been doing all we'd expect it to accomplish in the field of public relations.

The reason? Dictatorships as well as democratic governments have been sharing equally in past U. S. programs to help underdeveloped countries and poverty-ridden peoples. Our aid has not been politically oriented.

As a result, the democracies complain dictators are helped to stay in office by virtue of these U. S. programs.

So it leaves this country with some dubious choices in matters of policy:

- (a) To render indiscriminate help; or
- (b) To help only those regimes considered "democratic"; or
- (c) Throw up our hands in despair.

To retain full control of how the relief money is allocated and spent, is no solution. The beneficiaries would only complain of "economic aggression" or intentions along that line. Too, such action would insult any leadership of a proud people.

To help only those considered "democratic" would also wound some governments who consider themselves as the best friends the United States could have in that part of the world. And chances are, in some instances, they would be right.

A policy of indiscriminate aid, as aforementioned, has objections, too. And yet,

The problem does not lie in merely three, five or six nations. It covers half a continent. And aiding half of these countries involved does not promise permanent relief for in a sense their fates are closely linked.

Then we have this to face . . . it is not merely governments this country would help, but the people whom they govern.

This program . . . inspired by the difficulties aroused in Cuba . . . has its difficulties in just getting off the ground.

There is a problem, but the ordinary rules for meeting it just don't seem to apply in this case.

They No Longer Meet At The Tobacco Barn

The old wood-burning tobacco barn has all but disappeared from the farms of Eastern North Carolina, and with them has gone what for decades was a part of the annual ritual in the life of the farmer.

It was only a few years ago that lanterns twinkled around the curing barns throughout Pitt and other counties from early July until late August. Like so many huge fire-flies, the yellow glow of the lanterns dotted the roadsides. They blended with the brighter flare of the blazing wood fire that could be glimpsed from the mouth of the curing apparatus within the tobacco barn.

During the tobacco curing season the early evening air seem filled with the aroma of burning wood mellowed by the curing leaves inside the barns. It cast a pleasant spell that drifted with the white whisps of smoke rising from the flues of the barns.

The farmer, wearied by a long day of getting his rapidly ripening crop from the fields, stretched out on his cot at the tobacco barn to keep his night-long vigil. Between naps he checked the huge thermometer, stoked small logs into the furnace to keep the fire just right, and endured the annoyance of mosquitoes which in retrospect seem more numerous than those which populate the present August nights.

After nightfall, the tobacco barn became the gathering place for the family's after-supper get-together. Mother brought the youngsters from the house to visit with daddy until it was time for the children to go to bed. Many times the early evening hours at the tobacco barn was the occasion for cutting the watermelon that early in the morning had been taken from the field and nestled in a shady spot to avoid the day's heat.

For a few weeks out of the year the tobacco barn was the hub of farm life in this broad tobacco producing region.

Times have changed, curing methods have been improved and the old wood-burning barns have become a rarity. The tobacco barn is no longer the gathering place for the evening hours during the harvest season. The night-long vigils have given way to periodic checks. And even the aroma of curing tobacco doesn't seem to hang as heavy on the evening air as it once did.

Curing time is still the busy time of year on tobacco farms, and tobacco barns represent a center of activity. But the tobacco barn of today isn't nearly the gathering place its wood-burning predecessor was a few decades ago.

Responsibility For Welfare

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security Act is just 25 years old but it has taken a long time—most of American history—for the government to accept much responsibility for the individual welfare of its citizens.

The idea is still being fought. The Constitution says "We, the people, in order to form a more perfect union, . . . promote the general welfare, . . . do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

What did "general welfare" mean? Did it include the general welfare of individual persons? James Madison, called the father of the Constitution and one of the signers, said later the welfare clause had no meaning because Congress' powers "to provide for the 'general welfare' were not spelled out."

Even Charles Beard, American historian, admitted himself baffled on how the words "general welfare" got into the Constitution. So did others.

What developed through most of American history was not concern for the welfare of individuals but the legend of rugged individualism which had its roots in many sources.

For example, the expanding frontier which carried with it the concept of unlimited individual opportunity, the free enterprise economic philosophies of the 18th and 19th centuries; in the preachings of Herbert Spencer, the British sociologist who originated "survival of the fittest," which meant the devil take the hindmost.

Through most of American history there was no control on the accumulation of wealth—like the antitrust laws the first one in 1890 or graduated income taxes (starting in 1913). But enterprise in America has never been entirely free. The first Congress passed the first Tariff Act to protect American business from the competition of imports.

More recently there have been government subsidies to farmers and businesses of various kinds in the midst of arguments, still going on, against any government interference.

Still, the seeds of government responsibility were planted early in America, the first British settlers brought with them the Elizabethan poor laws under which local communities assumed responsibility for the poor.

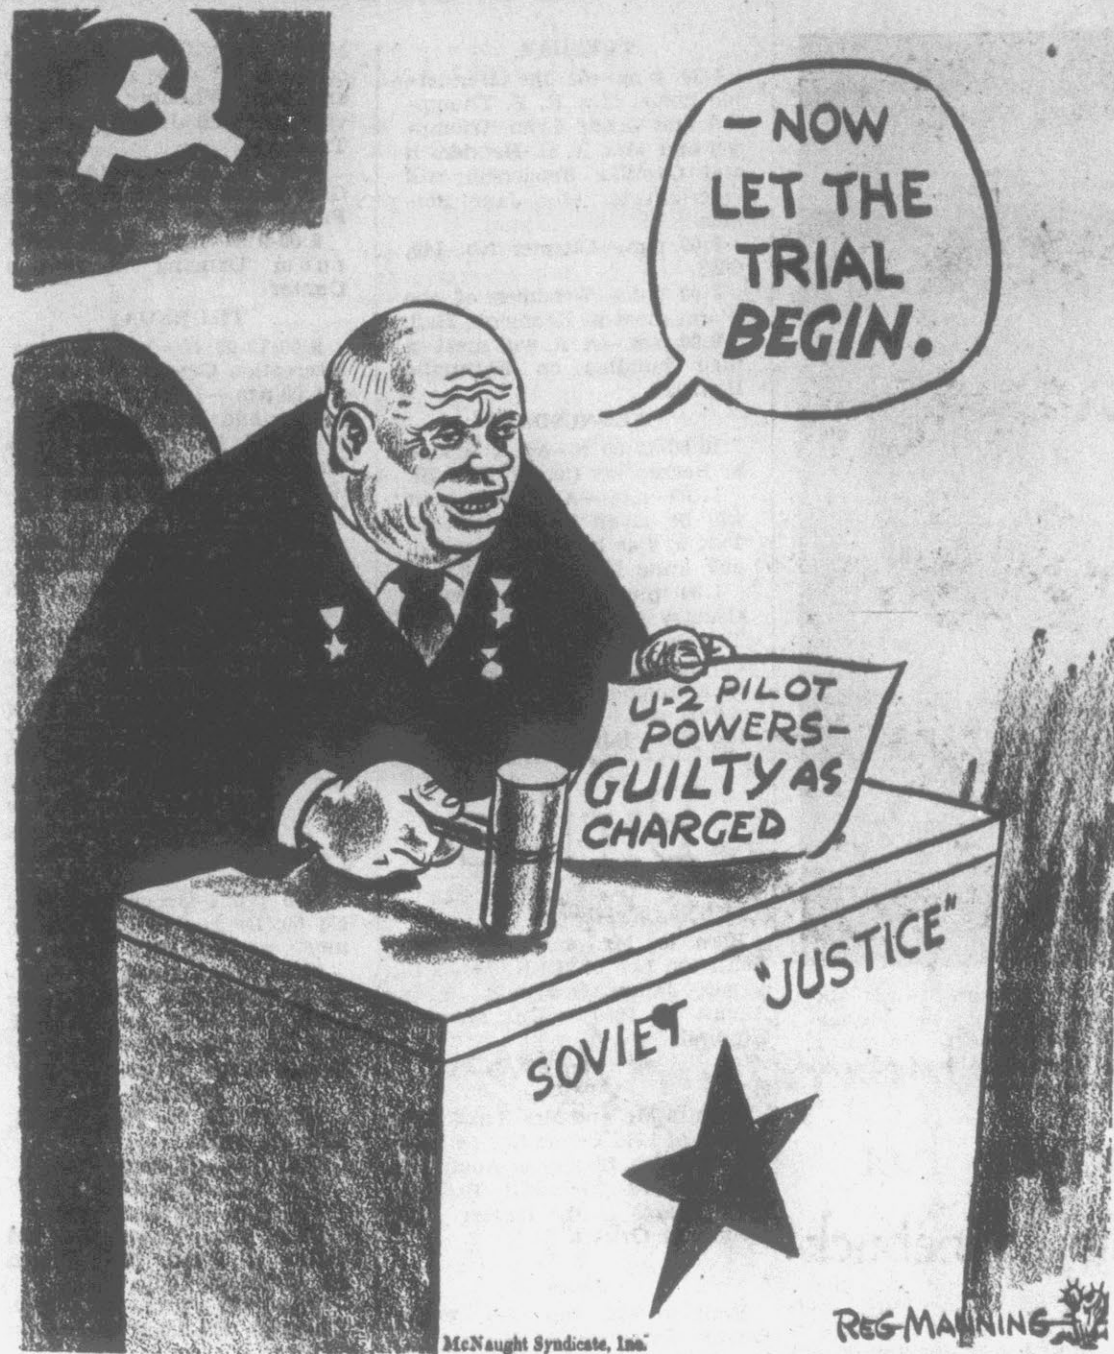

Later, states assumed it and, finally, the federal government. In the increasingly complex American society the real problem to retain a maximum amount of freedom while government control and interference of necessity increase.

But the realization of Federal responsibility was a long time in coming. In 1854 President Franklin Pierce vetoed a bill giving federal lands to states for the benefit of the insane. He said "the welfare clause in the Constitution did not give Congress the right to provide money for the indigent insane nor for any indigent persons."

For more than three-quarters of a century Pierce's veto controlled Federal relief policy. In 1887 President Grover Cleveland said, "I do not believe that the power and duty of the general government ought to be expended to the relief of individual suffering, which is in no manner related to public service."

This remained the national attitude until 1933 when, under (Continued on page five)

SOMEWHERE IN GREAT DISMAL SWAMP. . . Yes, I know I placed the Rev. Thomas Money in the wrong church last column writing time. I lost count of the number of late Hooker Memorial Christian Church members who told me so, before I left for parts unknown.

Hooker Memorial is a Christian and not a Methodist Church. I know. I know. I know.

Well, maybe the heat will die down in a few months and I can come out. These mosquitoes here are real mean eaters.

Your columnist's brother Bill

Taylor had ready answer when some of the gals down the street asked him about the holes being dug presently at Five Points and earlier at other spots in the downtown streets.

"Those?" replied, "Oh, they're fall out shelters in case of atomic attack."

I checked with Utilities Supt. Leonard Bloxam. He indignantly denied it.

Mayor S. Eugene West told complaining citizens at a recent Council meeting that the police would check on speeding autos in the vicinity of First and Easttern St. "And I just hope they don't catch the mayor because he used that street at times," he added as an afterthought.

Had a nice conversation with Nancy Harris, who is going to France for a year on a Rotary International Fellowship.

Nancy wouldn't own up to it but her friends told me she had stocked up on seaskip pills in preparation for the ocean voyage awaiting her.

At any rate, I must say the Rotarians couldn't have picked a prettier or brainer representative.

And at the local cinema, I took in Alfred Hitchcock's latest "Psycho".

As those who saw it know, movie goers were admitted only at the beginning of each showing. So patrons waiting outside had the opportunity to hear the comments of those who came out. Never had I heard such a difference of opinion about a movie.

Apparently you either liked it or you didn't. There was no in-between.

Your columnist, incidentally, found it an extremely interesting movie. Not Hitchcock's best, but still a real spellbinder for me.

"GIVE THE UNITED WAY"

Wrong View Of Wealth

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A correspondent writes on a postcard:

"Here is a phase of American life, a child sees his parents living in dark dingy rooms. The parents are doing their best. Then you read of all the (swells) with several homes something like yours. I think this system is rotten; the same applies to many other things. What do you think?"

There is nothing rotten about the system. The writer of this card objects to anyone having more than he has. My father, I am sure, had as little or less. He was a holy man whose earnings were limited by religious impediments. There were too many things he could not, in conscience, do, but which others, of different religions, could, in conscience do. These limitations prevented our family from becoming wealthy, although we were, on the whole happy.

My father could have gone in for cloaks and suits or manufacturing pants or being a butcher. Many of those whom we knew in my childhood became enormously wealthy from such lowly beginnings. I knew of a tailor who became a banker and a butcher who became a chicken king. In fact, my father lent the latter five dollars to start him in business and he became enormously rich out of that five dollars that my father lent him. How, is another story. But, in the end, his competitors bombed him because he used to undersell them by feeding the chickens gravel and water in New Jersey. My father was never bombed — perhaps because he never did very much.

Nevertheless, we all managed to live — there were nine of us in the family, including our parents. None of us ever became very wealthy, but we managed. And if this reader objects to my owning a farm, in addition to living in a New York City tenement, I can only tell him that I have worked many years since I got my first Summer job at the age of 10 and have never found that the system is until recently, when the income tax began to take too much of my earnings.

Naturally, I do not know my correspondent and therefore do not know what psychological or physical impediments prevent him from making out. This is still the land of opportunity as anyone must know who works at it. For instance, lots of folks make money over Leonard Bernstein, but he was not born of the Rockefeller or Astors. His father was a small self-employed merchant in Lawrence outside of Boston and Bernstein achieved his enormous success by working hard and learning much.

Ah! My correspondent will probably say: "Bernstein was great talent but I am a common, ordinary person." Every man has some gift that God gave him. So many do not take advantage of their gifts or their opportunities.

Look at Richard Nixon, now running for President. His father was a small town grocer who had never done too well. Dick tended store and poured gasoline into automobiles and when I first met him I am sure that his suit came from one of those stores that give two pair of pants with each suit. And now, he is a great man. Vice President of the United States. And there is a chance for the rich man, too, although there was a time in this country when if a man was not born in a log cabin, he could not for President. Our prejudice against the born rich has lessened. In this campaign year, Kennedy and Johnson are wealthy, and Henry Cabot Lodge comes of a family of great distinction and social prestige. The prejudice against the rich no longer excludes them from opportunity.

My correspondent is all wrong. This is still the land of great opportunity for those who will work hard, who will build mind and character, who will take advantage of what is offered them. The sorpass, the sorhead, the man who prefers his hates to his blessings, will, of course, get nowhere. That is (Continued on page 5)

Discount Store Now Acceptable

By ELMER ROESSNER
The discount store has moved to dull respectability.

Before World War II, the discount store was a sort of consumer-goods speak-easy. They were often upstairs in lofts, or down alleys. They were as hard to get into as old-time speak-easies were, and for much the same reason. Price cutting, like selling hooch, was against the law in most places. Discount houses had to make sure the customer wasn't a spotter from some price-fixing corporation.

I remember buying a fountain pen. I climbed to an upstairs loft and found myself in a miniature department store. I examined pens, each marked with the manufacturer's fixed price. I selected a pen, marked $10.

"How much is this?" I asked in a knowing voice. "Ten dollars," said the man. "Have you a membership card?"

"No," but Sid Margolis sent me, I whispered. "It's $5.49," he said. I bought it and got it in a plain wrapper.

TIMES CHANGE

After the war, there was a great expansion in the discount house business. There were several reasons. Goods were relatively scarce and manufacturers used that situation to enforce fixed prices. A dealer who offered discounts would be cut off from supplies. In fact, many were willing to pay list prices in their eagerness for products.

The so-called "fair trade" laws were tough then, too. But discounters found ways of getting goods at less than manufacturers' prices. An over-expanded store here, a surplus stock there and discounters got the goods to offer. They moved down to street level. Some actually courted arrest on price-cutting charges. When fined, they had the basis for full-page newspaper ads reporting that they had been convicted of cutting prices. They made back their fines twice over in a few hours.

Department and other price-maintaining stores at first screamed for enforcement of "fair trade" laws. But as they, too, found themselves stuck with slow-moving merchandise, they began to discount their own prices.

Non-discount houses started advertising credit, deliveries and other services. So then discount houses offered the same services — and discounted their prices a little less, or applied an add-on for these services.

Meanwhile, under legal action by discount houses, supreme courts in state after state began to declare price-maintenance laws unconstitutional.

In that phase is the grim joke of the entire discount battle. It was discounters who financed the suits to have price-fixing laws declared void. Yet when they won, they lost. When the laws were nullified, department stores were legally able to cut prices to compete with discount houses. In many instances, they undercut dis-counters.

And now, the situation has settled down to a live-and-let-live situation. Discounters, just like others, use newspaper and electronic advertising to peddle wares. Department stores discount list prices as often, if not as deep, as discount houses. And they offer services many discount houses cannot meet.

In this settling-down, one important ingredient — excitement — is gone from discount house buying. A cop on a downtown corner recently commented, "Nobody ever asks me where a discount house is any more." His father, 26 years ago, might have remarked, "Nobody ever asks me where a speak-easy is any more."

WOULD YOU CALL THIS "LUCE LIVING"?

Coming TV Shows Are Like The Past

By CYNTHIA LOWRY HOLLYWOOD (AP)—'The trouble with television,' said one successful producer of an anthology series, 'is that people are only interested in doing things that were successful last year.'

It is well known that the basic number of plots, boiled down to their bare bones, total seven, and that book, play and script writers for generations have been threading their way among them.

For instance, 'Lassie' is a successful series about a boy and his dog; the new 'National Velvet' will concern a girl and her horse.

The old 'Bob Cummings Show,' now in re-runs, was about a carefree photographer and beautiful girls; Tab Hunter's new 'Bachelor-at-Large' series will be about a carefree cartoonist and beautiful girls.

'Angel' concerns an American man married to a French wife, and will be a situation comedy. Its producer is a man who once produced a situation comedy about an American girl who was married to a Cuban man. It was called 'I Love Lucy.'

None of this genealogical study is to suggest that any or all of these can't be perfectly wonderful shows.

There's a lot of talk out here about how Hollywood has replaced New York as the television capital, but little about how television has become king of Hollywood. At the moment, there are only 27

7,000 Doughnuts For GOP Rally

GREENSBORO (AP)— Seven thousand doughnuts and enough coffee to wash them down have been ordered for Wednesday's Republican rally, billed as a "skating and coffee party with Pat and Dick."

The party is being staged for Vice President and Mrs. Richard Nixon. It will be Nixon's first trip to the South since his nomination for the presidency.

War Memorial Coliseum Manager Robert Kent said a special platform over the south end of the Coliseum is being put up for the Nixon party.

Sections to the right and left of the platform will be reserved for the press.

A choir made up of choir members from Greensboro churches will be directed by Ralph E. Hunter, director of the choir at the Republican national convention.

The rally also is a "welcome back to North Carolina party" for Nixon. He was graduated from Duke Law School.

The vice president will hold a televised news conference before his address at the Coliseum.

He's also scheduled to visit briefly with Duke University classmates and alumni before his address.

Vote To Appeal Integration Order

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The Houston school board voted Monday to appeal Federal Judge Ben Connally's order that its schools integrate the first grade Sept. 7.

The board voted to ask for a stay of Connally's order and adopted a plan putting limitations on transfers of first grade students from one school to another.

Under the board's proposed plan, all elementary school students in one family must attend the same school.

The board's plan, approved 4-2, allows the transfer of students to other schools if they do not "measure up to standards."

Kid Pitchers Gain Wins In Tight NL Pennant Race

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

A couple of kid pitchers, Art Mahaffey of Philadelphia and Jim Mahoney of Cincinnati, picked a pip of a time for their first major league victories — right in the midst of the National League pennant scrap.

Mahaffey, 22, a right-hander who missed decisions in his first two starts, gave up nine hits, but came out a winner as the Phils knocked off first-place Pittsburgh 4-3 Monday night.

Maloney, 20, a right-hander who had lost three, also allowed nine hits while winning the first game of the Reds' 5-3 and 4-0 two-night sweep over third-place Milwaukee.

Despite the defeat, the Pirates retained a six-game bulge over the St. Louis Cardinals, who dropped their fourth in a row, 5-3 to San Francisco. Los Angeles and the Chicago Cubs were idle.

In the American League, the New York Yankees regained first place as Mickey Mantle ripped a pair of two-run homers for a 4-3 victory over Baltimore. That put the Yanks a half-game ahead of Baltimore and the Chicago White Sox, who were beaten 4-1 by Detroit. Boston belted Washington 11-3 in the only other AL game.

The Phils, escaping the cellar again, beat Pirate relief ace Elroy Face (6-6) with a ninth-inning run on a pinch single by Clay Dalrymple and a double by Tony Gonzalez, who was batting for Mahaffey. Chris Short then saved it with a perfect mop up in the ninth.

Mahaffey walked five and struck out five. He twice was jarred out of a lead by Pirate homers Don Hoak's 10th home run, with a man on, tied it 2-2 in the fourth for the Bucs, and Bill Virdon's solo seventh home run made it 3-2 in the seventh. The Phils got their first three runs and seven of their nine off starter Vinegar Bend Mizell.

The Reds managed only four hits off Juan Pizarro (6-5) in the opener, but Wally Post drove in four runs, three with a double and the other with a home run, to make it easy for Maloney. The rookie giving up a home run by Wes Covington, walked four and struck out four. He needed Jim Brosnan's two-out relief in the ninth after being shaken up when he crashed to the ground trying to stab Lee Maye's liner.

Four doubleplays and Frank Robinson's bat made Bob Purkey (12-7) a winner in the nightcap as he blanked the Braves on 11 hits. Robinson, who got into a first-game scrap with Ed Matthews after sliding into the Milwaukee third baseman, doubled and scored a sixth-inning run on Ed Bailey's single, then hit a two-run homer in the seventh. Carl Willey (5-7) was the loser.

Home run power and Johnny Antonelli's neat relief pitching did it for the Giants against Ernie Broglio (14-6), the Cards ace who had won four in a row. Willie Mays drove in three runs with his 23rd and 24th homers, and Willie Kirkland socked his 13th in an 11-hit attack. Antonelli saved it for Billy O'Dell (7-8) by getting Bill White and Curt Flood on pop flies with two runs home and the bases loaded in the eighth.

Robinson Preps For Title Bout With Fullmer

BATIMORE (AP) — His suspension lifted by the Maryland State Athletic Commission, Sugar Ray Robinson plans to begin training in a couple of weeks for a middleweight title bout with champion Gene Fullmer.

The 39-year-old ring veteran said he will go to Los Angeles at the end of August. The fight is scheduled for the Coliseum there on Oct. 8.

"I still think I'm the best fighter in the division," said Robinson, who has held the middleweight crown five times, I may be alone but I still feel that way."

Robinson was suspended by the Maryland commission May 1, for failing to show up for a May 1 fight in Baltimore against Pedro Gonzales. California joined New York and the National Boxing Assn. in recognizing the Maryland ruling.

The suspension was lifted at a commission hearing Monday.

Sugar Ray apologized for not mission chairman, said the California Boxing Commission interceded on Robinson's behalf.

Subar Ray apologized for not appearing for the Gonzales fight, saying it "was just a big misunderstanding which I am extremely sorry about."

Robinson was chided by Rosenbaum for missing the fight here and also for "not respecting the suspension" by going through with a bout against Paul Pender in Boston. Pender won to retain the New York-Massachusetts version of the middleweight title. Massachusetts did not recognize the Maryland suspension.

"If there ever was a time boxing needs a life, it is now," Rosenbaum told Robinson. "You should be setting an example instead of what you are doing."

Robinson and Fullmer have met twice. Fullmer decided Sugar Ray for the title in January 1957, but Robinson won the crown back with a five-round knockout in May 1957.

Asked if his age would be a detriment in his coming fight, Robinson answered: "They've tried before to see how far my birth certificate would stretch. You don't win fights with a birth certificate."

With Two Homers Has Apologies For Boner

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

Of the 320 home runs Mickey Mantle has hit for the New York Yankees, how many do you remember?

Maybe you recall the grand slam on reliever Russ Meyer's first pitch at Ebbets Field in the fifth game of the 1953 World Series. Or that 565-footer at Washington in '53. How about that Memorial Day shot in 1955 that came within 18 inches of being the first to clear Yankee Stadium? Well, forget 'em.

Not one of those comes close to matching the two he crashed Monday night—a pair of two-run shots that wiped out the humiliation of his Sunday boner and sent the Yankees back into the American League lead with a 4-3 victory over Baltimore.

After being thumbed to the showers by Manager Casey Stengel for failing to run out a ground ball Sunday, the Mick twice brought the Yankees from behind against the Orioles. The second shot, overhauling a 3-2 Baltimore lead in the eighth, came on an 0-2 pitch — after catcher Clint Courtney, fumbling with an oversized mitt, had dropped a foul pop for an error that gave Mantle a second chance.

Mantle's one-man show powered the Yankees a half-game ahead of Baltimore and Chicago. The White Sox were beaten 4-1 by Detroit and rookie Bob Bruce, who won his first in the majors with a two-hitter. Boston clobbered Washington 11-3 in the only other AL game.

In the National League, Pittsburgh lost 4-3 to Philadelphia, but retained a six-game lead over St. Louis, beaten 5-3 by San Francisco. Cincinnati took two from third-place Milwaukee, 5-3 and 4-0, in a two-night doubleheader. Los Angeles and the Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

Mantle, who hadn't homered in 16 games and hadn't driven in as many as four runs in one game all season, had the crowd of 24,233 at Yankee Stadium on its feet and cheering with his 28th and 29th home runs of the year.

Both came with Hector Lopez on base. The first, after Lopez had singled, tied it 2-2 in the fourth against starter Jerry Walker. The clincher, after Lopez walked, was off reliever Hoyt Wilhelm (9-7).

Art Ditmar (12-7), top winner on the Yankee staff, won his fifth in a row with a fivehitter. He allowed two home runs, by Ron Hansen in the second and Jackie Brandt in the eighth, but walked only one and retired 19 of the last 21 men he faced.

Bruce, 0-1 with the Tigers in a brief 1959 stay and a loser in his first three decisions this season, permitted only two Sox to reach base while out-dueling Herb Score (3-7), who allowed only three hits, but walked nine. The 26-year-old Detroit right-hander was tagged for a fifth-inning home run by Gene Freese. The only other hit off Bruce was Roy Siever's double in the seventh.

Score gave up first-inning walks to Chico Fernandez and Al Kaline, who pulled a double steal and scored on a wild pitch. The other runs, unearned, came in the ninth on Kaline's home run—after right fielder Al Smith had dropped his foul fly.

Lou Clinton drove in five runs for the Red Sox with a home run, sacrifice fly and squeeze bunt. Frank Sullivan (4-12) was the winner with 4-2/3 innings of two-hit, shutout relief.

Stengel: 'Get Both Of Us Off The Hook'

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—"I'm glad he hit those two home runs. He got us both off the hook."

Casey Stengel was talking about Mickey Mantle's two homers Monday night, each with a man on base, which provided all the New York Yankees' runs in the 4-3 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles that moved the Yanks back into first place in the American League and the Orioles into a tie for second with Chicago.

"I guess I can forget all about that fine," Stengel quipped.

He was referring to Mantle's failure to run out a double play grounder in Sunday's second game of a doubleheader with Washington which prompted the manager to yank his star center fielder and the writers to speculate on a possible fine for Mantle.

"You can't very well fine a fellow after he wins a game for you the way he did tonight."

Actually, Stengel had made his decision before the game—to let Mantle get off without a fine.

"I did not have a meeting with him," Casey said, "but I told him that not running out grounders is a bad habit for him to have and if he continues, it will be a costly proposition for him.

"That should be a warning to him. And it should be a lesson to two writers on my club."

"I'm not going to say who they are but they know that I know they don't run when they should. Mantle got the idea. The others should, too."

Mantle, normally impassive following an exceptionally good day at the plate, didn't attempt to conceal his joy—and his relief—in the clubhouse.

"Boy," he grinned happily. "I certainly feel a lot better than I did yesterday."

"I guess I never wanted to have a good day as badly as I did tonight. Another bad day on top of yesterday's would really have put me in the dumps."

Mantle, roundly booed in his first appearance, bounced out meekly to first base in the first inning. He ran it out.

Mickey hit his first homer, with Hector Lopez on base, in the fourth, off starter Jerry Walker. It was a tremendous wallop into the Yankee bullpen, tying the score at 2-2.

Mantle flew out in the fifth but in the eighth, with the Orioles leading 3-2, he slammed a Hoyt Wilhelm knuckle ball on a low line into the same bullpen for his 28th homer.

Again Lopez was on base.

The crowd, which had been booing him, gave Mantle a standing ovation as he crossed the plate.

Mantle's ovation from the fans surprised even Stengel.

"That's the loudest I've ever heard them cheer him," he observed. "In fact, it's the first time they've cheered him in a long time."

"I don't know if it's because they're National Leaguers, or if Mantle brings it on himself but every time he comes up, he gets a terrible boozing in this park."

"You'd think he was aiming at their foreheads with a bean shooter whenever he walks to the plate."

"Mantle's been very fair about it. He never complains. In fact, he must like to play here because he has asked us not to trade him."

It remained for Yogi Berra to make the funniest crack.

"Hey, Mick," Yogi yelled out before ducking under a shower, "you ought to get in the doghouse all the time."

Practice Briefs Rose High

Work on fundamentals was the basic operation for Rose High gridgers yesterday as they opened the 1960 football campaign with an early morning and late afternoon practice session.

The gridgers wore light toggs during a hot and humid morning drill but were dressed to the hilt in an afternoon session which was afforded cool weather following an August weather forecast.

Coach Bud Phillips greeted 52 prospects for the opening day turnout which "was the largest turnout since I've been coaching here..." stated the Rose High mentor.

Phillips was pleased with the condition his club reported in. "The returning boys from last year's squad were in good spirits and physical condition. Overall, they are in better shape than I had expected. We have about 18 or 20 boys ready now for rough work."

Drills today were expected to be confined to work with the dummies and more fundamentals. The squad spent time on signal drills, plays, and its kicking game this morning. The afternoon agenda will call for developing tackling and blocking form — a phase touched on yesterday afternoon.

Touchdown Club

The Greenville Touchdown Club will hold its first meeting at the South Dining Hall at East Carolina College.

The meeting, which will be informal, has been called by President Lou Collier with the purpose to elect new officers for the coming year. Plans for the 1960 season will also be discussed.

Putt-Putters

The third putt-putt tournament of the summer, scheduled for last Thursday but rained out, will be held tonight at the Greenville Putt-Putt Course.

Starting time for the tournament tonight is 7:00. Three rounds of 18 holes will be played with the winner being determined by meral play. Cash prizes will be awarded to the top four putt-putters.

Hyndman Leads In First Round

OTTAWA (AP) — Starting out with two straight birdies, 44-year-old Bill Hyndman 11 of Philadelphia filled a 3-under-par 70 Monday to take the lead in the qualifying round of the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship. It gave him a one-stroke advantage over Bob Wylie of Calgary.

The field will be cut to the low 6; after today's second 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying round. The survivors start match play Wednesday with the 36-hole final Saturday.

Game Cancelled

Coach Bud Phillips has announced the football game scheduled between Greenville and Scotland Neck October 28 has been cancelled by Scotland Neck.

The cancellation leaves the Phantoms with an open date and only a nine game slate. Any club wanting to add a game to their schedule for the 1960 season on this date should contact Coach Bud Phillips at Rose High.

Fraser After New Swim Mark

SYDNEY (AP) — Dawn Fraser, one of Australia's star swimmers, has swum 200 miles in preolympic training and will swim another 100 miles before her first heat in Rome, Aug. 26, her coach, Harry Gallagher, said today.

"Dawn will be the fittest, woman athlete in Rome," Gallagher said on his return from the team's Townsville training camp. "I am more convinced than ever that she will break the magic minute barrier (for the 100 meters freestyle) in Rome."

Dawn, in a special training swim at Townsville Monday night, reeled off times of 1:05.7, 1:05.1, 1:04.4 and 1:03 for the 110-yards with a 1 minutes break between each spring. Her world record is 1:00.8.

Soviet Cagers Unaware Of U.S. College Stars

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

ROME (AP) — The "Big O" may mean big trouble in American basketball circles, but it means nothing to the Russians.

"Robertson? Robertson?" Stephen Spandarin, a little, gray-haired coach of the Soviet team, repeated a question today about Cincinnati's famed Oscar Robertson. "We don't know him, so how can we fear him?"

Spandarin said his boys were familiar with only four members of the U.S. squad — Bob Boozer, Burdette Halderson, Allen Kelly and Lester Lane.

"We played against them when we were in the United States last year," the coach added through an interpreter. "They were on the AAU teams. But your college boys we do not know."

Spandarin, who coached the Russians both at Helsinki in 1952 and at Melbourne four years ago, brought in his basketball forces with the first Soviet delegation to reach Olympic Village Monday.

It is an impressive squad — lean, tall and young. Many of the boys have a doped American crew-cut.

"Our biggest man, of course, is Jan Kruminsh, who played in 1956," the coach said. "But he is not a regular. He is just a spot man for us."

Kruminsh is an awkward giant of seven feet three inches and more than 300 pounds.

"We are a young team, mostly schoolboys, and very fast," Spandarin added. "Alex Petrov and Genoi Volnov are only 19, still students. Petrov is 6-9, Volnov is 6-6."

"Viktor Zubkov is a soldier, 23 years old and 6-7 1/2. Albert Valtin also is a soldier. He is 22 and 6-6. Our best defensive man is Geurman Meinashvili. He is only 6-2 but he is very quick."

The Soviet instructor said he did not expect to beat the American team, which is striving to uphold an unbroken string of U.S. victories, but he believed the Yanks would know they have been in a fight.

Rocky Considers Return To Boxing

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — Rocky Marciano, former heavyweight champion, said today he may return to boxing as a trainer and manager if he can find an outstanding young fighter with determination and heart.

Marciano, 35, who retired from the ring in 1956, came here Monday night to referee an amateur card and to look at Ed Yakencheck, 21-year-old Mount Bethel, Pa., dairy farmer who was making his third start.

Yakencheck, who had won his two previous amateur fights, made it three in a row with a unanimous three-round decision over Wilson Camada of Philadelphia in the feature heavyweight bout.

"Yakencheck looked all right," said Marciano. "He beat a pretty good opponent with more experience. But I just don't know yet, I'd definitely like to see him fight again under more favorable conditions. I could get interested."

By more favorable conditions, Marciano explained that the two boxers were slipping all over the ring since rain fell during the outdoor show.

DR PEPPER CELEBRATES ITS DIAMOND JUBILEE 1885-1960

It's been a successful 75 years since a young soda fountain clerk in Waco, Texas invented Dr Pepper—named after his sweetheart's father. Dr Pepper was a growing part of the turn-of-the-century scene, along with the bustle, the pompadour hair style and the Stutz "Bearcat". Today, still growing more popular every day, Dr Pepper's distinctively different natural fruit flavor is enjoyed from coast to coast and in many foreign countries. It's America's "more than refreshing" soft drink.

We're proud to be 75 years old. And we're grateful to you (and your parents and your grandparents) for making every year more successful than the last.

A Stirring Western Suspense Novel
The Lean Rider by CLIFF FARRELL

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Lisa Randolph's education in the 19th century manner to be a lady among aristocrats in the settled country wasn't of much value to her after her parents died with their fortune gone. Lisa's thoughts turned realistically and hopefully to Frank O'Hara, whose impulsive proposal of marriage during a trip of his east she had taken lightly. She submerged her pride, wrote him, and now she is in Texas, in a hired wagon with a stranger, being driven to O'Hara's ranch to marry him.

CHAPTER 4
Removing his hat, the new-comer looked at Lisa. "Good afternoon, ma'am. And you, Micah." Micah Jones made the introduction. "This is Kemp Travis," he informed Lisa. "He owns a ranch just east of here. Kemp this is Miss Elizabeth Randolph."

"A pleasure, Miss Randolph," Travis said. "You must be the young lady who arrived by stage today."
"How do you do, Mr. Travis," she said.

Travis twisted around in the saddle and eyed the captive steer. He shifted his horse to inspect the original brand and also the fresh mark Abel Barbee had burned in the creature's hide. He rode closer and Lisa saw that he was eyeing the animal's ears, one of which seemed to be disfigured.

Abel Barbee continued to calmly smoke his cigarette during this. "Everything proper Kemp?" he inquired. "Brand? Earmark? Road brand?"
"I smelled smoke," Travis said.

"You got a real sharp nose," Abel Barbee commented.
Travis smiled. Lisa noted that he had a holstered pistol beneath the skirt of his coat. "It won't be long before it'll be against the law to build a branding fire on open range," he said.

Abel Barbee nodded. "That'll help stop some thievin'."
"Or pack a running iron in a saddle boot," Travis added.
"That's where I carry mine," Abel said.

"I was on my way to Monte Vista to see if I could talk Hester into pounding some sense into your head," Travis said.

"That'd take some doin'," Abel replied. "I got a head like a rock."

There had been no outward change in the tone of their voices. Yet there had been a change. Lisa felt a small prickly sensation move upward along her spine. She glanced at Micah Jones for reassurance. Micah had been smiling. The rigid form of the smile was still pasted on his lips, but it was a sickly thing. With a shock of apprehension she realized that she and Micah were in the presence of a dark and bitter antagonism between two unyielding opponents.

Travis spoke. "Abel, I'll raise my offer to five dollars and two bits a head for up to two thousand head of prime beeves, fours and up, delivered to me within a week."
Abel shrugged. "They might fetch ten at Abilene. Maybe more. Market might rise by late summer."
"But it's more likely to fall," said Travis. "Trail herds went begging last year up north. Some are still up there, eating leased grass and putting their owners deeper in debt. There's no sign of things bettering themselves. Then what'll you do when you get there?"
"Keep goin'," Abel said. "Find range somewhere an' squat. This is more than a trail herd we're gatherin'. We're moving' everything—hoooves to horns."
"What does Hester think about quitting Texas?" Travis demanded.

"She's sad," Abel admitted. "But when a man can't road-brand his own cattle, without a neighbor come bustin' over the hill, bent on hangin' him as a rustler, like you just did, it's time to make a move of some kind."
"I'll make the price five dollars, four bits," Travis said. "That's final."
"If the market is so bad why are you so all-fired eager to buy?" Abel asked.
"The only way a man can make expenses is to operate big right now," Travis declared.

"I'm trying to shape up two drives. Maybe three. If I can come out two bits ahead in the clear up there, it's better than sitting on my hands all season down here. Even a dime a head will keep me in coffee and cigars next winter."

"Sounds reasonable, when you look at it your way," Abel remarked. "Lookin' at it my way I ain't interested in keepin' you in cigars an' coffee, Kemp."
Travis's voice sharpened a trifle. "You never give an inch, do you, Abel? I hope you and I never have any trouble."

He turned to Lisa. "If there is any way I can help you, Miss Randolph, I'm at your service."
"Thank you," Lisa said.

He awaited further explanation, but when she offered none he broke the awkward moment by lifting his hat and turning to ride away. "I hope that we will meet again, soon," he said. He went jogging away in the direction from which he had come.

Micah Jones released the team, and the wagon lurched into fast motion. Micah drew a long breath as they went bounding away over the chuckholes. "That," he said, "was like sitting too close to a redhot stove."
"Those two men didn't seem to care much for each other," Lisa observed.

"No," Micah said. "No, they don't."
Lisa looked back. Abel was walking toward his horse. The last view she had of him was of him lashing his rolled leather brush coat back of the cattle.

Abel concluded this task, mounted, and sat a moment gazing toward the empty trail where the spring wagon had rounded out of sight.

He glared accusingly at the captive steer. He started to dismount but decided against it. He rode a few paces, pulled up and fought it out with himself for a moment. At last he leaped from the saddle and walked to the animal. He snubbed its head tight against the mesquite tree.

He drew a sharp knife and removed the stitches he had so recently placed. The steer, when he loosened the snubbing rope, snorted and tried to gore him.

Abel evaded that effort and stepped back into the saddle. "Damnation to you!" he addressed the steer fervently. "An' to all cattle."
He added, as he rode away. "And to all high-nosed females who look at a man like he wasn't fit to be seen!"

Lisa sat rigid and uncompromising in the spring wagon as she rode onward. Her thoughts kept swinging back to Abel Barbee. She felt that, in his eyes, she had made a fool of herself. And she had to confess that he had considerable justification. She could not imagine what had come over her to impel her to try to use a buggy whip on him.

"What will become of that poor creature?" she asked Micah.
"Become? You mean Abel?"
"Of course not! It's that dumb beast I'm concerned about. That cow."
Micah stared. "Why, bless you, Miss, in a week's time that steer will be raising hell—I mean, Cain—just like he was before."
"How cruel can a man be for profit?" she demanded.

GOP Conservatives Said Backing Nixon

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) said today Republican conservatives are volunteering their help—a move he said increases the November chances of the Nixon-Lodge ticket.

Goldwater had fought as too liberal the GOP platform largely dictated by Vice President Richard M. Nixon, but he said later he would support actively the national ticket of Nixon and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge. He said he is encouraged that other Republicans who shared his views are heading his pleas to get out and work for the nominees. There has been some fear in the Nixon camp that party conservatives might sit out the campaign. But Goldwater, who heads the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, said in an interview it isn't working out that way.

"Conservative leaders from all over the country have been writing me, volunteering to do what they can for the ticket," he said. "The mail has been very encouraging."

Goldwater added that Lodge is proving to be a surprise candidate as the vice presidential nominee. "I have found in traveling about the country there is great interest in him and support for him," Goldwater said. "In some ways he has become the image of the anti-Communist movement by his vigorous tactics of opposing the Russians in the United Nations."

Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, also had some nice things to say about Lodge. He said the U.N. ambassador is "adding considerably to the ticket, particularly in New England."

Klein told a news conference Monday that because of the reception given Nixon on his visit to Maine and because of information gathered in a telephone check of all 50 states, the vice president now feels he has pulled abreast of Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, his Democratic opponent.

Noting that Nixon had said at the Chicago convention that the Republicans were behind at the start, Klein said the GOP nominee "now feels he has closed the gap."

To this, Pierre Salinger, press secretary for Kennedy, replied: "Mr. Klein may be right."

Kennedy's camp has disputed Humphrey's remarks on what he called Nixon's about-face on farm policies brought prompt return fire in the Senate from Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.).

Keating said Humphrey had contended in the May West Virginia primary that Kennedy voted against the people's interests on issues involving farm and other matters.

Humphrey said he did that at a time when he was trying to make a case against Kennedy as a primary opponent. "I didn't succeed and that's just what is going to happen to Mr. Nixon," he declared.

In any event he said Kennedy's farm record was better than Nixon's.

Noting that Nixon had said at the Chicago convention that the Republicans were behind at the start, Klein said the GOP nominee "now feels he has closed the gap."

To this, Pierre Salinger, press secretary for Kennedy, replied: "Mr. Klein may be right."

He glared accusingly at the captive steer. He started to dismount but decided against it. He rode a few paces, pulled up and fought it out with himself for a moment. At last he leaped from the saddle and walked to the animal. He snubbed its head tight against the mesquite tree.

He drew a sharp knife and removed the stitches he had so recently placed. The steer, when he loosened the snubbing rope, snorted and tried to gore him.

Abel evaded that effort and stepped back into the saddle. "Damnation to you!" he addressed the steer fervently. "An' to all cattle."

He added, as he rode away. "And to all high-nosed females who look at a man like he wasn't fit to be seen!"

Lisa sat rigid and uncompromising in the spring wagon as she rode onward. Her thoughts kept swinging back to Abel Barbee. She felt that, in his eyes, she had made a fool of herself. And she had to confess that he had considerable justification. She could not imagine what had come over her to impel her to try to use a buggy whip on him.

"What will become of that poor creature?" she asked Micah.
"Become? You mean Abel?"
"Of course not! It's that dumb beast I'm concerned about. That cow."
Micah stared. "Why, bless you, Miss, in a week's time that steer will be raising hell—I mean, Cain—just like he was before."
"How cruel can a man be for profit?" she demanded.

Lisa looked back. Abel was walking toward his horse. The last view she had of him was of him lashing his rolled leather brush coat back of the cattle.

Abel concluded this task, mounted, and sat a moment gazing toward the empty trail where the spring wagon had rounded out of sight.

China's Industry Faces Slowdown; Experts Leaving

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Chinese industrial production is menaced after continuous departures of Soviet experts from Red China, Branko Bogunovic, special correspondent of the Yugoslav official agency Tanjug said today in a report from Peiping.

For several days, he wrote, special trains have left Peiping with Soviet experts on their way home. It was authoritatively announced in Peiping, Tanjug's report said, that "their terms have expired" and that they are leaving after completing their obligations.

The correspondent added: "There are, nevertheless, other versions which present things in quite a different light." He did not elaborate.

Puerto Rico has 674 people per square mile, one of the highest population densities in the world.

Von Braun Tell Saturn Rocket Plans At Meeting

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Rocket scientist Werner von Braun today outlined plans for a four-stage Saturn rocket with twice the payload capacity of the three-stage Saturn now undergoing tests.

He said a cousin of the larger Saturn may be sufficient to send a space crew safely to the moon. The three-stage Saturn now under test is designed as the United States' first rocket capable of putting a multi-ton payload into outer space.

It is expected to be capable of effecting a soft landing—as opposed to a crash landing—on the moon.

It is scheduled to make its first flight in 1964.

The expanded, four-engine Saturn is scheduled to enter the testing stage in 1965 or 1966, Von Braun said.

He said a revised and larger Saturn-type rocket would need the aid of refueling tankers in orbit around the earth to power a space crew to the moon.

A direct shot with a space crew from the earth to the moon, without any pauses in orbit for refueling, will have to await the development of new systems, he said.

The huge Nova rocket, now in the planning stages, is expected to provide the possibility of the first actual direct space travel to the moon.

Von Braun's remarks were prepared for delivery at a meeting of the 11th International Astronautical Congress in Stockholm, Sweden, today, and were made available here by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Von Braun is director of NASA's George C. Marshall Space Flight Center at Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala.

Using what he called the "building blocks" philosophy of stacking rocket stages, Von Braun said the Saturn's fourth stage probably would be inserted between the first and second stages of the original three-stage Saturn.

The additional stage, a cluster of four engines, will add a total thrust of about 200,000 pounds, Von Braun said.

The three-stage Saturn now undergoing tests has a thrust of about 1,500,000 pounds—figured to be enough to put 20,000 pounds of payload into low orbit around the earth, 6,000 pounds into an escape from the earth's gravitational pull, and 1,000 to 2,000 pounds on the moon in a soft landing.

The addition of the fourth stage would double most of the figures, Von Braun said.

Von Braun said a direct journey from the earth to the moon with a space crew, without a pause for refueling in orbit, would require a rocket system with a lift-off thrust of about 12 million pounds. This would be more than six times as powerful as the three-stage Saturn now undergoing tests and would require development of a new and larger system than the Saturn, he said.

Three Arrested On Booze Counts

Pitt County ABC officers and Sheriff's Deputies arrested three Negroes over the weekend on charges of possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

The first man arrested was identified as Charlie Little, 42, of Route 3, Washington.

Officers said he was arrested when three quarts of bootleg liquor were found in his place of business near Pacolus. He was placed under a $200 bond for his appearance in County Court today.

"Happy" Reese, 46, of Route 3, Washington, was the second Negro arrested. He was charged with possessing the illegal booze for the purpose of sale when the lawmen found a small amount of non-taxed whiskey and five gallons of home brew in his home. He, too, was released under a $200 bond for appearance in court today.

The third Negro, Tommy Thigpen, 45, of Route 5, Greenville, was arrested on the same charge when he came to the officers and said the whiskey Little had in his possession was actually his (Thigpen's).

He was also released under a $200 bond and was scheduled to appear in court today.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—A renewed buying urge put stock market prices higher in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon rose 30 to 220.40 with the industrials up 1.20, the rails up .60, and the utilities up .60.

The rally followed more than a day of cautious "corrections" which came in the wake of seven straight days of advance by the average.

Gains of key stocks went from fractions to about 2 points amid a scattering of small losers. More volatile issues added several points.

After the initial surge, which was accompanied by a briefly late ticker tape, some gains were trimmed. Advances were spotted among steels, motors, coppers, aircrafts, electronics, photographic and vending machine issues.

Most drugs were slightly backward following news of price cuts by four large firms. Oil lagged.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was 1.89 at 625.86. Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds declined.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog prices 25 lower. Tops of 17.00 to 18.50 at Wilson; 17.25 to 18.25 at Nahant, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive and Newton Grove; 17.50 to 18.00 at Rocky Mount; 17.50 at Clinton, Fayetteville, Elizabethtown, Albion, Greensboro, Goldsboro and Castle Hayne; 17.25 at Lillington, Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck, Winterville and Rich Square.

Wilson cash cattle prices steady: steers and heifers, choice 24.00 to 26.00, good 21.50 to 23.50, standards 18.00 to 21.00; cows, beef type 14.00 to 16.00, heavy cutters 13.00 to 14.50; bulls, light weights 13.00 to 16.00, heavy weights 17.00 to 19.00.

Sees 'Only Hope' Of Medical Care Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Russell B. Long (D-La) says the Senate's only hope of getting a medical care plan for the aged this year is to accept its Finance Committee's version.

That would provide a limited federal-state program of medical aid to elderly persons unable to pay their own medical costs. The House already has passed a similar bill.

Long, a committee member, told the Senate Monday night he believes President Eisenhower would be sure to veto a substitute plan writing medical benefits into the social security system.

Many Democratic senators, including the party's national ticket, Sens. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, favor the social security approach which is part of the Democratic platform.

Officially the Senate doesn't take up the medical aid bill until next week. But in the rambling way it has, it devoted several hours of debate Monday to that subject rather than to the minimum wage bill formally under consideration.

Long said Eisenhower forced Senate Democrats to cut down a social security bill substantially in 1958 by threat of a veto.

"That came when the Congress was about to adjourn and we had to take when he would sign or nothing," Long asserted. "It's the same situation now."

The President has repeatedly stated strong opposition to putting a medical plan for retired persons into the social security system.

Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla), another finance member, agreed with Long.

"We can give the old people some help now with their medical bills or we can get a veto and have a political issue," he said.

Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla), chief sponsor of the Finance Committee plan, denied that the committee acted "under presidential veto."

Long and Kerr agreed in contending the committee plan would go far toward meeting the health bills of persons over 65 who need help.

However, Democrats supporting the social security financing method declared that the Kerr plan would demean old persons by making them plead poverty to get aid.

Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn) called the committee bill "a public charity approach."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) assailed the plan as nothing but "souped up old age assistance."

BILL MOYE

Only Explorer From Greenville

Bill Moye, the only Greenville Explorer to take part in the Philmont Scout Ranch Expedition this year, returned home last week from the 23-day trip to the 127,000-acre ranch at Cimarron, N. Mex.

Moye, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Moye, 1401 E. Fifth St., was chosen as one of the two senior patrol leaders in his group of 25 scouts during the expedition.

The 23 days included 5,000 miles of traveling to and from the ranch with visits to Pikes Peak; Indian Ruins at Pueblo, Colo.; and the National Scout Jamboree at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Twelve days were spent on the ranch, camping and hiking in Philmont's high back country.

Optimists Plan For Bigger Sale

The Greenville Optimist Club last night voted to order more Christmas trees than were sold by the club last December as an Optimist project.

The trees this year are scheduled for arrival around the first of December and will go on sale immediately at Elm St. Park.

Included in the order will be trees ranging in height from four to 15 feet.

Christmas tree sale proceeds go to support local Optimist-sponsored boys projects including the Junior Rifle Club, an annual oratorical contest for boys, the club's Little League entry, Youth Appreciation Week, Bicycle Safety Week, and other projects now in the planning stage.

Around mid-October, club members will begin a campaign of ticket sales. The tickets can be used toward purchase of Christmas trees from the club in December.

Wally Howard of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co was the club's guest speaker at the weekly dinner meeting.

He described the organization of various departments in the banking firm and related Wachovia's history.

Fred. Walter Whitehurst presented Howard with a copy of the Optimist Creed as an expression of appreciation for his address.

Suspect Blast Due Gas In Oven

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—An accumulation of natural gas in a paint-baking oven may have caused a thundering explosion Monday that killed three men and injured 11 an arson investigator said.

The explosion hit the Rheem Manufacturing Co. plant shortly after noon.

Killed were Jacob Floyd McDierson, investigator D. A. Whigham said a faulty pilot light may have sparked the blast.

McDierson, 55, production superintendent with 35 years service; George H. Greene, a trouble shooter with 21 years service, and Raymond William Mobley, 36, a machine operator with 14 years service.

Surviving are two daughters, Miss Martha Speight of Philadelphia, Pa., and Mrs. Emma Newby of Newark, N. J.; two sons Jessie of Snow Hill and Jarvis of Washington, D. C.; one sister, Mrs. Annie Taylor of Farmville; one brother, William Dupree of Newport News, Va.; seven grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

HEAVY CALF — CLEBURNE, Tex. (AP)—A Holstein cow gave birth to a 153-pound calf near here, farmer Elmo Woodard said Monday. The average weight of Holsteins at birth is about 60 pounds, he said.

Four Traffic Wrecks In City Investigated Monday

Over $1,000 damage resulted yesterday in four wrecks investigated by Greenville police.

An estimated $400 damage resulted to a car driven by Mrs. Jean K. Barker of New Bern when it collided with a second car at the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and Memorial Dr. about 9:40 a.m.

Damage to the second vehicle, operated by Mrs. Hazel Harper Minton of Route 2, Greenville, was set at $200.

Police, following the investigation of the mishap, charged Mrs. Minton with operating a vehicle with no operator's license and with failure to stop for a red light.

In a second wreck, cars driven by Mrs. Edna Hales Edwards of Route 5, Greenville, and John Franklin Avery, 69, of Route 1, Greenville, collided at the intersection of Allen St. and Mumford Rd. at 8:07 p.m.

Police set damage to the Edwards car at $150 while damage to the Avery vehicle was estimated at $100.

Avery was charged with failure to yield right of way as a result of the investigation.

Ocie Lee Chapman, 20-year-old Negro of 1208 Battle St., was charged with failing to keep a proper lookout while backing after his vehicle collided with a truck operated by J. D. Dillard, 34-year-old Negro of 1408 West Ward St., on Ford St. near the intersection of Fifth, at 2:23 p.m.

Damage to the Dillard truck was set at $10 while damage to the Chapman car was $75.

In a collision that occurred at the intersection of Ninth and Cotanche Sts. about 11:55 a.m., Mrs. Lillie H. McLawhorn of Route 1, Winterville, was charged with failure to yield the right of way after her vehicle collided with one driven by Mrs. Leona D. Tripp of 1307 Forbes St.

Damage to the Tripp auto was placed at $65 by investigators who set damage to the second vehicle at $25.

No injuries were reported in any of the collisions.

Monsoon Rains Flood Provinces

MANILA (AP)—More than two weeks of incessant monsoon rains have flooded most of three central Luzon provinces and brought death to 42 persons and great damage to public and private property.

Philippine and U. S. Air Force helicopters are shuttling food, medicine and other relief supplies to isolated areas.

Mr. Julius Haskins died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Monday. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

FOUNTAIN—Mrs. Rosa Speight died Saturday at her home in Fountain. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 1 p.m. at St. James F.W.B. Church. The Rev. E. M. Rodgers will officiate. Burial will follow in the Bullock Cemetery.

Surviving are two daughters, Miss Martha Speight of Philadelphia, Pa., and Mrs. Emma Newby of Newark, N. J.; two sons Jessie of Snow Hill and Jarvis of Washington, D. C.; one sister, Mrs. Annie Taylor of Farmville; one brother, William Dupree of Newport News, Va.; seven grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Two Lightships Off N.C. Coast In Their Final Years

RALEIGH—The two lightships guarding Diamond and Frying Pan shoals off North Carolina began their final years of sea-duty when the U.S. Coast Guard announced that it would replace all lightships, except two on the West Coast, with fixed offshore lighthouses.

Diamond Lightship is anchored about 12 miles off Cape Hatteras. Frying Pan Lightship is stationed 5 miles off Cape Fear, which is on the point of Smith Island off Southport.

A third North Carolina lightship, off Cape Lookout on the Core Banks of Carteret County, was removed from its station in 1933 and replaced by a buoy.

The two remaining vessels won't be weighing anchor immediately, since the Coast Guard plans elimination of 22 lightships at the rate of about two a year and will begin by replacing one lightship in Massachusetts and another in Rhode Island.

It is unlikely that the final years of lightship history along the North Carolina coast will be as harrowing as those of the past, rassed the vessels and their crews. A lightship at Frying Pan was a casualty of the Civil War, and old Lightship 71 at Diamond Shoals was victim of a German submarine during World War I.

Attempts to establish a lightship at Diamond Shoals were made as early as 1824, only four years after the first lightships were put into service along America's shores. A lightship went on permanent station in 1897 at Diamond Shoals, and there has been a lightship there ever since except for brief intervals. When the lightship at Diamond in the summer of 1918 wireless a warning that a German submarine had fired on a merchant vessel in the area, the submarine fired on the lightship and ordered her crew to abandon ship. When the crew had pulled away in lifeboats, the sub sank the lightship with a burst of shell-fire. The lightship crew reached shore safely.

A beacon guarded Diamond Shoals until another lightship was stationed there the following year. Shortly after Pearl Harbor, all lightships were taken off station by governmental order and replaced with sea buoys for the duration of World War II. Diamond Shoals, long referred to as the "graveyard of the Atlantic" because of its treacherous waters, became known as "Torpedo Junction" as Axis submarines preyed on shipping there.

In recent years, the waters off Cape Hatteras have become known as "Gamefish Junction" because of their abundance of northern and southern species of game fish. Diamond Lightship more than 100 miles to the southwest, are noted landmarks for sport fishing craft as well as for liners and cargo vessels.

Frying Pan Shoals was first marked with a lightship off Cape Fear in 1854. The lightship was burned in December of 1861, after the Confederates had seized it and annoyed Federal ships by hoisting false light signals. In 1930, a permanent lightship was again established on Frying Pan Shoals.

Barn, Tobacco Lost To Blaze

Fire Chief Ed Hemingway of the Station House Fire Department reported that 650 sticks of tobacco and one barn were destroyed in a weekend blaze near here.

The fire occurred on the Holly Hardy farm, located about a mile from town on the Belvoir Highway.

However, the firemen saved an oil drum, racks, looping shelter and a barn which was only about 200 yards from the burning barn. Cause of the blaze is unknown, Hemingway said, though a burner may have flared up.

Support Rate On Corn Announced

The 1960 crop corn produced in North Carolina will carry a support rate of $1.15 a bushel.

This rate, according to J. Lyman Edwards, Chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, is based on a national average rate of $1.06 a bushel for corn grading No. 3 or better except for moisture or corn grading No. 4 for test weight only but otherwise grading No. 3 or better.

Under the present program, as authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1958, each county corn rate reflects the national average support price with an adjustment for location and historical price pattern.

The price-support program for corn will be carried out as in the past through farm and warehouse-stored loans and purchase agreements. These will be available from harvest time through Feb. 28, 1961. Loans will mature on July 31, 1961.

To be eligible for support, corn must have been produced in 1960. It must grade No. 3 or better except that corn grading No. 4 because of test weight only will also be eligible. Corn must meet certain moisture requirements. The corn must also be in adequate storage.

The 1960 loan program provides for premiums and discounts in connection with corn placed under loan. Complete information on these premiums or discounts as well as availability of storage may be obtained from any ASC county office, Edwards said.

Sanford Begins Round Of Visits

RALEIGH (AP) — Democratic candidate for governor Terry Sanford will make two appearances in western North Carolina this week as he starts a two-week round of visits in the mountain area.

Thursday night, Sanford will attend a Buncombe County Young Democratic rally. Friday night, he will make the commencement address at Western Carolina College in Cullowhee.

Sanford still plans tentatively to talk with Democratic party leaders and with members of the North Carolina Congressional delegation.

MASS WEDDING — MEXICO CITY (AP) — More than 600 Mexican soldiers married their common-law wives at a mass public ceremony Monday. The president's wife, Eva Lopez Mateos, and the wife of Defense Minister Agustin Olachea Aviles, were the bridesmaids and presented gold rings to the couples.
