Pilot's Family At Trial

The parents and wife of American U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers listen to proceedings from their box in Moscow's Hall of Columns at the opening session of the pilot's espionage trial.

Powers' Attorney Voices Hope Of Leniency By Russian Court

MOSCOW (AP)—Francis Gary Powers' Russian defense attorney expressed hope today the Soviet military court trying the American U2 pilot will be lenient with him.

The U2 pilot completed his own testimony in 80 minutes on the stand today. He reiterated that he was sorry he made the May Day U2 flight. He told his Soviet judges he did not think at the time that the flight might torpedo the Paris summit conference or provoke a military conflict.

It is the Soviet view that the Powers flight torpedoed the summit, while the United States contends that Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's reaction to the flight, including insistence that President Eisenhower apologize, was responsible for breaking up the May 16 meeting in Paris.

The second day's session ended at 5:40 p.m. The trial resumes Friday with prospects that it will be completed before nightfall.

In questioning today Lt. Gen. Victor Borisoglebsky, chairman of the three-judge military court, brought from Powers the comment that he thought he had done the United States a disservice by the U2 flight.

Nixon Kicks Off Vote Quest In N. C. By Espousing Civil Rights, Sit-Ins

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon has kicked off his vote quest in the racial-minded South with an espousal of civil rights, an endorsement of sit-in demonstrations and a plea to keep religion out of politics.

ponents have outpromised us in that field. They cannot outperform us on the results and the goals.

At an earlier news conference, Nixon said he supported the objectives of sit-in demonstrations which students started here early this year and which spread to other states.

Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, is a Roman Catholic. "Religion is not a proper issue," Nixon said. "The way I am going to deal with the religion issue is to talk always about other issues and not about that."

Demo Leaders Struggling With Dissent, Defections

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic leaders struggled today against Republican dissent and defections in their own ranks in their efforts to write a legislative record they hope will attract votes.

Party leaders, obviously irked by the slow pace, took steps to speed action in a Congress session they apparently think is making them look bad politically.

The GOP committee didn't say, however, how many of these were major measures, how many represented duplicate action or how many became law.

No Business

WASHINGTON (AP)—A quick adjournment today blocked the daily effort of Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) to produce a quorum of House members.

Cautious Hope That South Will Remain In Fold

ATLANTA (AP)—Party leaders predicted cautiously today that the South will remain in the Democratic fold this year but also forecast a tremendous upsurge of Republican voting.

They came to Atlanta from six other Southern states to discuss with the treasurer of the Democratic national committee, H. W. McCloskey of Philadelphia, plans to raise funds for the campaign of John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson for president and vice president.

Their tone was more hopeful than confident in interviews before they went into a closed session with McCloskey. Virtually all were critical of the party's strong civil rights platform plank.

Miss Shirley Hardy And Mr. Herald Exchange Wedding Vows

BETHEL—The marriage of Miss Shirley Ann Hardy of Bethel and Jerry Vinson Herald of Mount Holly was solemnized Saturday in a formal double ring ceremony at the Bethel Methodist Church. The Rev. Carl W. Barbee, pastor of the bride, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hardy of Bethel and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Kathleen Lineberger Herald of Mount Holly.

The church was decorated with floor standards containing emerald greens of plumose and Oregon ferns. Branches and spiral candelabra holding cathedral candles, entwined with plumose and floor baskets of white Shasta chrysanthemums and pom poms formed the setting for the ceremony.

A satin covered prie dieu was placed at the altar and on either side was a single candelabrum holding a tall cathedral candle. The aisle pews were decorated with clusters of gladioli and pom poms. Groups of cathedral candles graced the church windows.

Mrs. R. Harold Stator of Bethel, organist, and Mrs. Thomas R. Andrews Jr. of Bethel, soloist, rendered the nuptial music. Mrs. Andrews sang "How I Do Love Thee" by Browning and "My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice." "The Lord's Prayer" was sung as the benediction.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white bouquet taffeta and alencon lace. The basque bodice was designed with a portrait neckline edged with lace and embroidered with pearls. The long sheath sleeves pointed over the wrists, and the belted skirt, with appliqued lace medallions and with a bow bustle, extended into a long circular train.

Her mantilla veil of silk illusion was fingertip in length and was edged in alencon lace. She carried a bouquet of French carnations and tulle centered with a white orchid and showered with streamers of tulle accented with delicate arrangements of French carnations.

Miss Mary Jo Wynne of Bethel was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were: Miss Mary Anne Manning of Bethel; Miss Carolyn Cooper and Mrs. Franklin Hall of Raleigh; Miss Virginia Bryant White of Rock Hill, S. C.; and Miss Dena Fasul of Fayetteville. The junior bridesmaid was Miss Linda Matkins, cousin of the bride, of Roanoke Rapids.

The attendants wore identical gowns of beige silk orkanza over Celestion green taffeta. The gowns, of original design, were fashioned with a scoop neckline, fitted bodice accented at the waist with an extended, fringed cummerbund which was centered in the back with a self rose. They carried bouquets of bronze mums designed with magnolia leaves and streamers of English ivy.

Everett Yates Springs of Mount Holly served the bridegroom as best man and ushers were: Thomas Bethune of Charlotte; Henry Massey of Mount Holly; Turner Neal Burton II of Richmond, Va., nephew of the bridegroom; George Thomas Whitehurst of Greenville, uncle of the bride, and William Beckman of Hemmingway, S. C.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hardy chose a periwinkle blue dress of lace and silk chiffon. She wore matching accessories and her corsage was a white orchid.

Mrs. Herald, mother of the bridegroom, chose a sheath dress of Dior blue lace over taffeta. She wore matching accessories and her corsage was a white orchid.

Mrs. Herald was a 1959 graduate of Salem College where she received a B. S. degree in Home Economics. For the past year, she has been employed as an assistant buyer with J. B. Ivey and Company in Charlotte.

Mr. Herald served with the U. S. Marine Corps during the Korean conflict. He is employed as a construction engineer with J. A. Jones Construction Company of Charlotte.

For traveling, the bride selected a costume suit of green and beige Italian silk. She wore beige accessories and the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

After a wedding trip through the New England States and Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Herald will be at home in Argentinia, Newfoundland, where Mr. Herald is engaged in construction work at the U. S. Naval Base there.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

This is the ragged edge of summer. The gardener has been a battler with elements and hordes of insects. He has planted, hoed, sprayed, pruned, and sprinkled through the hot sweaty days. His springtime hopes have, in some cases, gone weedy. He is filled to the gills with the smell of Malathion and political promises.

He is confused by the claims of the many detergents, soaps, and other daily necessities. He has been warned about fallout, loath decay, and being betrayed by a fickle deodorant. His ears have been buffeted by the rantings of the Russian piglaric and the yapplings of the Cuban fice.

He stands, upon the summers going and falls coming, undecided as to the wisdom of it all. He wonders if there is some nose-ome with his number on it. Is there any use to look ahead to new springs and summers? Should he shelve his trowel and spade and over to the utter uselessness of it all?

He brushes the sweat from his eyes with a hand just healed of poison ivy, and then kneels to weed with a vengeance. The sun beats down on his reddened neck and pokes through his ventilated shirt trying to find some untested spot.

He wonders how he ever let the god of twig and leaf enroll him in this course of agricultural agony. Rising from his knees that have never gotten use to the universal gardener crouch, he feels his years swimming before his eyes.

There he stands, the battle scarred veteran, victim of gnats, mosquito, and occasional wasp and bee-builder of beauty, coworker of nature, and humanly skeptical of it all.

But to him, there comes a faint call. There is something different in the air—a slight tinge of autumn. Is there, in all this heat, he knows that far to the north, the wild geese are readying themselves.

Soon, the leaves will become restless and the colors will come. Soon, the flowers will quit, and frost will come; the year will flow into its final seasons.

He will plant his bulbs, put out more plants, plant his grass, and wait for the snows. And then again plan for spring, and the many things he must do—the chores so many that go into the business of gardening making.

For he will do all these things as he has so many times before—planting, pruning, hoeing, spraying, sprinkling, and mowing—spring, summer, and fall. All of these things, so that he will come again to such a day as this, at the ragged edge of summer, to wonder if it all is worth while.

Stretching Dollars

RALEIGH—Fine weather the past few weeks has loaded the grocery stores with fine vegetables.

Snap beans, butter beans, corn, squash, peas, cabbage, cucumbers and peppers—take your choice of good quality at lower-than-average prices, says Mrs. Ruby Uzzie, marketing specialist at N. C. State College.

Local tomatoes are in peak production. That means it's a good time to put them up for juice and in cans.

Other good buys in vegetables: celery, carrots, lettuce, potatoes sweet and Irish.

Beef heads the list of meat buys. Look for thrift in chuck roasts, shoulder roasts, many cuts of steak, stew beef and ground beef.

Pork is still high. Most economical pork prices are on cured hams and picnics. Bacon prices are still rising slightly.

Fresh and frozen fish offers other good meat values.

August is the time when medium and small eggs are in biggest supply. Watch for egg sizes that offer the most for your money.

Fryers, one of the more economical buys, are unchanged in price—except for weekend specials. You can save on hens and turkeys, too.

Fruits are plentiful, with steady to lower prices. Best buys are peaches and melons.

Freeze some peaches and watermelon balls—these fruits won't be plentiful much longer.

Cantaloupes are scarce. California Bartlett pears are on the market.

Other fruits in good supply: Thompson seedless, Red Cardinal and Red Malaga grapes.

Local coppernong and muscadine grapes are ripening. New on the market are locally grown fresh figs.

Agnes Markham Becomes Bride

Miss Agnes Peyton Markham and James David Blankenbecker of Radford, Virginia, exchanged wedding vows on Sunday afternoon, August 14, at 4:00 o'clock in the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. The Rev. Howard M. McLamb officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Peyton Markham of Greenville and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKinley Blankenbecker of Radford, Virginia.

The church was decorated with areca palms, seven branch candelabra covered with rich green huckleberry and holding white cathedral candles. Single candleholders with bouquets of white mums and satin ribbon, white gladioli and white chrysanthemums in brass vases were at the altar. The pews were marked with white satin bows and plumosus greenery.

Music was presented by Mrs. Paul A. Toll, organist, and Mrs. Alison H. Moss, soloist, both of Greenville. Mrs. Moss's selections included "O Perfect Love" which was rendered prior to the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer" was sung as the benediction. Purcell's "March Maestoso" and "Trumpet Voluntary" were used as the processional and recessional, respectively. Mrs. Toland H. Boykin was mistress of ceremonies.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of peau de sole, fashioned with a scoop neckline of Alencon lace and seed pearls. The waist, highlighted with Alencon lace, flowed into a bouffant skirt and ended in a chapel train. The bracelet sleeves were edged in lace. Her fingertip veil flowed from a Juliet Cap of lace trimmed with pearls. She carried a white satin prayer book with white carnations and showered with French carnations.

Mrs. Horace Lee Moore of Havelock was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. William Dennis Bush, sister of the groom, Winston-Salem; Miss Jo Ann Cregar and Miss Harriette Emily Duncan, both of Richmond, Va.; and Miss Elizabeth Ann Williams of Greenville.

All wore identical dresses of peacock silk organza, styled with a round neckline and short sleeves with an empire waistline; the dresses styled princess lines in front with fullness to the back with a bow of self material and in ballerina length. They wore headpieces and shoes to match, and carried bouquets of pink asters tied with matching ribbons.

James Ray Miller, Jr. of Washington D.C. served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were William Dennis Bush, Winston-Salem, N.C.; Linwood Banks Simmons and Thomas Pollard Bove, Jr. both of Richmond and Mack Harvey, Jr. of Radford, Va.

For traveling the bride selected a navy blue sheath jacket dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations, lifted from her bouquet.

State Department of Health.

Mr. Blankenbecker, a graduate of East Tennessee College, Johnson City, attends the Medical College of Virginia School of Dentistry.

After August 22, the couple will be at home at 202 Menole Avenue, Richmond, Va.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the church parlor.

The refreshment table was covered with a white satin cloth overlaid with white net. A silver epergne filled with Fuji mums and bride's roses with white candles centered the table.

A silver punch bowl encircled with ivy, grapes and wild roses filled with fresh fruit juice punch over lemon ice was at one end of the table. Silver trays filled with decorated petit-fours were at the other end. Salted nuts, decorated mints and French pastry cheese straws were also served.

The bride's table was covered with satin and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake which was iced in white and decorated with pale pink rosebuds. This was encircled with a garland of greenery and orange blossoms. On top of the cake was a miniature bride and groom.

Hints On Storing Summer Wardrobe

During the rush to get the children decked out in fall and winter clothes for back-to-school, don't forget that summer clothes need to be stored, warns the American Home Laundry Manufacturers' Association.

In most instances the whole family's summer clothes will have to be put away in order to make room for a new season's wardrobe. And apparel prices being what they are today, every homemaker wants to make sure the clothes she stores will be in good condition when she takes them out of storage.

In order to be sure, AHLMA offers these suggestions:

Put clothes away clean, for soil not only helps wear out garments, but attracts moths.

All washables should be washed and put away unironed, without starch or bluing. Vegetable starch attracts silver fish. If any starch is left in, it should be one of the so-called permanent starches which has a resin base. This does not appeal to the silver fish.

Clothes should not be sharply folded, but rolled if stored in drawers or bags. For wear begins at the sharp crease.

Before sealing woolen garments into packages or boxes they should be moth-proofed. While this would apply primarily to winter clothes, lightweight woolens have found their way into summer wear. Preparations marked poison should be used with care and should be stored on high shelves or in locked cupboards away from children and pets.

Effective moth-proofing materials contain E. Q. 53 paradichlorobenzene, chlordane, or DDT. It is often the carpet beetle rather than the clothes moth which attacks woolens. Since the adult carpet beetle is not killed by DDT it is wise to use an insecticide which contains 2% chlordane instead of DDT.

Finally, off season clothes should be stored in a cool, clean, and dry place. A clean closet, chest, or sealed package will do. Being dry is most important as dampness invites mildew.

Notice To Book Clubs

A suggested list of books is now available in the Sheppard Memorial Library for Book Clubs.

An annotated list of interesting books published this year is available to Book Club committees in selecting volumes for purchase and reading.

The list is available to all interested people but it must be kept in the Library, which is open daily from 10:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays, and from 9 to 6 Saturdays.

Household Hints

Picnic salads can be kept cold if you place them in the upper part of a double broiler and place ice cubes in the lower section.

The clean garments can be easily slipped off the forms — still neatly folded—for storage or packing.

Thimbles can ruin daily finger nails. Melted wax in the thimble tip will protect finger nails from breaking.

Ever add sliced frankfurters to hot potato salad? Good!

A Deterrent For Demo Defectors

If there were a carefully laid plan for the Southern wing of the Democratic party to capture the balance of power by withholding its electoral votes from the Democratic nominee, that plan has now apparently been exploded.

In the case of North Carolina, there was at the outset no serious thought that North Carolina would join such a move by naming unpledged electors. Those in control of the Democratic party machinery of the state already have shown themselves solidly behind the national Democratic ticket.

This week at a reconvened state convention in South Carolina, the Democrats of that state voted to adhere to the party nominees by approving electors pledged to the Kennedy-Johnson ticket. Almost simultaneously in Mississippi party leaders were overruled at a similar gathering and a slate of unpledged electors was elected to cast Mississippi's electoral votes as they see fit in January.

With such a difference of opinion among Southern states as represented by these three cases, there appears little possibility that an effective bloc of "hold-out" independent electors will be created between now and November. For such a bloc to be effective, certainly an almost solid bloc of the Southern states would have to participate in the move. Obviously now, the South will not hold out in a solid bloc.

The fact that Democratic organizations in North Carolina and South Carolina have indicated their support of the national ticket will serve as a deterrent to other states which may still be considering unpledged party electors. Because of this, other states that have been considering independent electors may decide to go along with electors pledged to the national ticket.

Beyond this, however, there is the matter of obvious misgivings among Democratic voters of the South with the national ticket of the party. With the independent elector movement pretty much removed as a threat, the problem focuses on the voters of the individual states. Will they support the Democratic nominees, or will they swing to the Republican ticket?

The threat to the Democratic ticket in the South this year is perhaps more serious than even in 1948 when there was a Dixiecrat ticket to split Southern votes from the Democratic ticket. Throughout the South this year there will be a genuine test of the strength of the Democratic organization to hold the votes of the respective states for the national party ticket. The party cannot rely on past sweeping victories to automatically deliver the Southern votes again this year. The November election, which on most occasions in the past has been merely perfunctory will be a real test in 1960.

Good Record Of Rehabilitation

By LYNN NISBET
CORRECTION — The State Board of Correction and Training operates six schools for youthful delinquents between the ages of 10 and 18—with 16 maximum age for admission and the average running around 14 years. The schools have rated capacity of 1300, but present occupancy is 1371-554. Negro boys, 220 white girls and 124 Negro girls. Total operating cost is around $4,500,000 a year. Most of the "pupils" are committed by domestic relations and juvenile courts, although a few come from superior courts. Average stay is about 14 months, and some 10 to 15 per cent of those released come back.

Some of the others wind up in adult jails, but there are heartwarming records of rehabilitated boys and girls going on to successful business and professional careers. Each of the schools has extensive farming operations, numerous other vocational training courses and a year-round school with State approved curriculum. Pupils go to school half a day and work the other half. Because of the 13-month arrangement the school teacher salaries are included in the institutional budget rather than in the county public school system. Buildings generally are in fair condition, but aggregate requests for renovation and new construction presented to the Advisory Budget Commission amounted to just under $2,000,000. Judge Gordon Gentry of the Guilford domestic relations court and a staunch believer in the correctional schools, observed that there is need for these additional facilities, but reminded that the worth of the institution depends more on the program than on buildings.

Here is a summarized breakdown of the institutions:
JACKSON—Oldest and largest in rated capacity is the Stone-wall Jackson Training School. Located on a 984-tract just east of Concord, the school was built for 300 white boys and now has 325. The boys do all the work on an 800-acre farm, including the dairying, canning and related activities. The school has an excellent printshop and a self-contained cotton mill, which uses five to six bales of cotton a year.

The boys prepare the land, plant and cultivate the crop, pick the cotton (which is taken away for ginning), put it through the spinning and weaving process, then cut the cloth and sew it into garments which they wear.

A new academic and vocational school building is the major item in the request for $487,000 capital improvements. The rest is mostly for renovation of farm buildings.

EASTERN CAROLINA—The other school for white boys is Eastern Carolina, situated on 675 acres near Rocky Mount with a current overload of 148 pupils. This school has a good outdoor swimming pool, which has proven so helpful in the rehabilitation recreation program that the other units are asking for similar facilities. Principal items in the $518,000 improvements request are renovation of two cottages, construction of another and an infirmary, and repairs to water lines and farm buildings.

MORRISON—Located on a 761 acre tract near Hoffman in the infertile sandhills section of Richmond county, this unit has a rated capacity of 285 Negro boys—and a current population of 356. Principal need is for two additional cottages, swimming pool, and modernization of utilities. Total requested, $296,600. Real need at all the units is for "security quarters" for recalcitrant pupils. No locks are on buildings or grounds, and occasional need arises for confining a few of the youngsters.

LEONARD—Newest unit in system is the Leonard School for 200 Negro boys, mostly under 14. Those over 14 are at Morrison. Opened less than a year ago in the completely converted and remodeled former Negro building of McCain TB sanatorium, with a nearby 100-acre truck farm, this unit asked only for a swimming pool in the amount of $60,000. Policy is to have separate cottages of around 25 capacity, but the big building at Leonard is so arranged that 200 can be housed under one roof in separated sections of 25 to 50.

SAMARCAN—The State Home and Industrial School for White Girls is situated on a 430 acre tract near Eagle Springs. Originally housed in Samarcan Manor, an abandoned private school, the place retains that name although the old manor has been replaced with a modern administration building. Rated capacity of the cottages is 200, but population has gone as high as 232, and average for several months past was 220. The average IQ of pupils here is 90, compared with 70 at Morrison—and a system wide count of 81. An additional cottage and a swimming pool account for most of the $172,500 in improvements asked.

DOBBS FARM—Smallest of the units is the State Training School for Negro Girls, located on the 342-acre Dobbs Farm (the old women's prison colony) near Kinston. Present population is 124, with facilities for a total 135 in the making. A new cottage for 25 (bringing capacity up to 160) and enlargement of the school building are major items in the $429,000 improvements requests. Renovation of existing cottages and housing for the staff, plus the swimming pool, make up most of the balance. Proven need for security quarters here was taken care of by budget commission adjustment in plans for a cottage under construction.

Another Straw In The Wind Suggests Rift

Another straw in the wind suggests the deterioration of relationships between Soviet Russia and Communist China may be progressing more rapidly than the West had imagined.

The exodus of Soviet technical experts from Red China in recent days has not been confirmed although officials comments say merely that the experts have completed their assignments and are returning to the Soviet Union.

With competition growing between Red China and the Soviet Union for the top place in the Communist world, there is the possibility that the Red Chinese are anxious to get the Moscow agents out of key positions in their regime as rapidly as possible. It is not unlikely that no new Soviet experts will replace those now leaving Red China. Neither is it unlikely that the removal of the Soviets from Red China was brought about by the Chinese rather than by the Soviets.

Over a period of months there have been increasing signs that Mao was unwilling to continue indefinitely playing second fiddle to Premier Khrushchev. There have been numerous instances in which the words and actions of Red Chinese leaders did not follow the party line laid down in Moscow; and some of these even went so far as to accuse those in charge of the Kremlin from departing from the genuine communist doctrine.

The removal of a large number of Soviets from Red China suggests a growing distrust between leaders of the two major communist powers. While this feeling of distrust has been veiled in the past, perhaps the time is growing near when an open controversy will develop between these two. Perhaps Red China now feels it has sufficient strength and prestige to make demands of its own—upon the world as well as its Soviet ally—without first clearing the matter through the Kremlin.

If such is the case, there will be in the making a new period of increased international tension, not just between Red China and the Soviet Union, but between Red China and the free world.

Cautious Move In Medical Bill

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Since this is the foot-in-the-door period of American history, that may be the kind of medical care program for the aged Congress will produce in 1960.

In time of national crisis, urgency and emergency, you can look to Congress for fast, drastic and far-reaching legislation. When the country is prosperous, as it is now, and pressures are mild, Congress gets cautious and conservative.

It limits itself pretty much to foot-in-the-door legislation which, while it may set out down a new road, won't be extreme. What it does is open the door for more extensive legislation later, usually bit by bit.

Congressional action under the crisis and pressure was demonstrated in the New Deal days of the 1930s when the country was stopped dead by depression and Congress passed the social security law, the 40-hour week, the Wagner labor act.

Under the stimulus of the Supreme Court's 1954 decision outlawing public school segregation, Congress in 1957 passed the first civil rights act of the 20th century. This was a comparatively mild piece of legislation which, while it angered white Southerners, left Negroes and northern liberals displeased because it didn't go further.

The 'Fence'

By DON SCHLIENZ

Shoulders To The Fore

Let it be said I am now a wide shoulder enthusiast. Not the kind for leaning on, weeping on, nor the padded sports coat kind, nor yet physical culture addict type. . . but the highway kind.

Henceforth when travelling these eyes will not only admire orderly centerlines on the pavement, the neat traffic signs, the rear bumper on the car in front of me. . . but also the grassed and level shoulders of the highway.

This spirit of admiration isn't mine alone. A neighbor shares it. I was telling him about rounding modest curve on the other side of Vanceboro and coming face to face with two damp trucks racing along side by side, one apparently trying to pass the other.

There was just one place to go, and I hit the grassy shoulder hoping there were no deep ruts or obstructions that would spoil my day.

This neighbor then told me he too had just recently rounded a curve to be faced by two oncoming cars. . . and he was thankful for the smooth and well-packed shoulder on his side of the road. Then, later, another acquaintance has similar tale to tell.

One of the primary things a motorist is presumed to know is that it isn't safe to try passing on approaching a curve.

Glad I am that highway builders leave, whenever possible, smooth and firm shoulders for use to avoid occasional knuckleheads.

Thanks, gents. After weeks of confiding personal worries to the world at large about the result of our family's younger edition going fishing, it seems only proper to report he caught his first fish.

There was a matter of waiting for "hide's in"; and then the start was delayed further by a shower.

For at least thirty minutes we fed some little fish, making them bigger (they were robbing our hooks at a fearful rate); then smaller hooks were thrown into action. In minutes he pulled in three fish that would make good bait for his Pappy. Even the baby of the household pulled in a pair of diminutive fish (she loved them).

Then showers again intervened. The outing was further curtailed by an upset tummy, and all of a sudden it seemed nothing could be so comforting as good old Greenville. . . so home we came.

The little fish were accorded a proper burial. Maybe I'm not cut out to be a satelliteseer.

Four times the writer was ventured out to crane his neck skyward and had nothing to show for it.

This morning I was greeted by two who saluted me with the "I saw it last night" routine. One saw it on both passes.

Night before last there was a haze in the sky during the early part of the evening. On the second passage my attention was distracted by a who-dun-it on the home screen. Last night's intentions were frustrated by being late on both attempts.

Trouble is, that Echo satellite is so punctual. . . and once it rises over the horizon it wastes no time in reaching the other side.

Well, at 15,000 miles per hour. . . what can one expect?

Other Editors Saying Like GOP North?

(Goldshere News-Argus)
A glory of the United States is and has been its stable, competitive two-party system.

Within the ranks of the Democrats there is a variety of groups each with its own particular brand, ideas, or emphasis. Within the Republican party there is an equal diversity and divergence.

But the strength of the nation has been that the two parties were of such great central theme that the differences, divergencies and minds could be accommodated within the parties.

We were interested at a Rotary meeting in Monroe when those of us at one end of the table started talking politics. The Republican convention was about ready to open. Nelson Rockefeller again was stirring up the Republicans with his insistence upon a more liberal line.

"He is no Republican; he is a Democrat," said one man had lived away from North Carolina for years.

More recently Richard Nixon has been moving in the direction of the liberal Democrats. He knows his politics. There are in the nation an estimated seven to eight million more registered Democrats than there are Republicans. Another large bloc is independent and votes for the man and the principles he espouses. Nixon is playing for this segment. Note what a large part of the progressive (for Republicans) program of Rockefeller he finally espoused. Note also how he got the Republican platform to espouse programs which the old liners and mossbacks found anathema.

A Durham native lived a long time in New Jersey. He was discussing party labels. He observed that the Jersey Republican was pretty much the North Carolina Democrat.

The native Tar Heel particularized. In that part of the world the Republican is the conservative. He believes in personal freedom, equal opportunity under the law. He is unhappy with the welfare state and the increasing trend of government to assume functions which once were completely the function of the individual himself.

The majority of Southern Democrats support the same sort of government principles. In one phase they are even more insistent on state's rights and personal rights. Many a Southerner who has migrated to the North has found that he is more at home in the Republican party than in the big city Democratic groups.

Supermarkets Boost Packaging

By ELMER ROESSNER
A new law in Paris prohibits wrapping fish in old newspapers. In Paris and elsewhere outside the United States and Canada, most products are given bare to consumers. It is a common sight to see a Frenchman bicycling home with a three-foot, unwrapped loaf of bread under his arm; it is common to see Russian housewives taking string bags and baskets to market to bring home the makings of borscht.

But in North America everything is packaged. The housewife's fish is double wrapped. If she buys it frozen, it may have lost nature's wrapping, the skin, but there may be wrappings of translucent paper or cellophane, a waxed box, another wrapping of cellophane, and the market's bag.

Packaging has reached a high art—if it is an art—here. Products come contained in paper, cellophane, cardboard, plastics, aluminum, steel, tin and many other substances. In many, many instances the packaging costs far more than the raw materials. Corollary: consumers often pay more for the package than the contents.

THE WHY
Much of this packaging is necessary because shoppers insist that manufacturers do a larger part of the processing, and processed foods require a greater amount of packaging. Few today make their own bread; they want it sliced and therefore sealed at the store. Even fewer puff their own wheat and rice today; they want the factory-puffed kind and are willing to pay for airtight packages—as well as the air in the package.

The egg came before the chicken and the package came before the supermarket. Yet today the supermarket controls the packaging of its wares just as the hen controls the packaging of hers.

The extent to which the egg-hen relationship has been changed is shown by Stanley C. Collard of Michigan State University of New York University's Journal of Retailing, which is entirely devoted to "self-selection."

ALL-IMPORTANT
"WHITE SPOTS"
Self-selection (or self-service) has exacting requirements for packaging. Prof. Hollander states: "The package must protect the contents under rough handling. It must be susceptible to convenient and stable stacking in minimum space in stockrooms and, especially, on display shelves. It must have, properly located, white spots for price marking. Shipping cartons should be packed in such a way that the white spots can be price-stamped in efficient fashion.

"The package has to be designed to thwart the shoplifter's baser instincts. Small, inconspicuous items have to be attached to large cards or holders that will not conveniently drop into purses. Bottles and jars that are price-marked on the caps of lids must not have tops

How does that touch your life and mine? First of all by showing us that we are part of a system from which there is not the slightest possibility of our ever being able to separate ourselves. I shall kill myself and end it all." You may kill yourself, but you will never end it all. The universe hangs together. Tyrants, criminals, men of awful violence to themselves and others, take matters in their own hands and try to break out or break into the world and its life. But the project is futile. Everything in this universe hangs together—from the hairs of our heads to the whirling of the most remote sun.

Don't try to buck the universe. Destiny will only toss you into new—and perhaps more painful—circumstances.

Ideals, Symbol Needed

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It may be corny, but a flag exists as a symbol of the nation. Similarly, the National Anthem of any country is sung as a mark of respect. When a large public gathering is assembled for whatever purpose, the flag should be present as a symbol of national unity.

I was told a story recently which I do not know to be true; therefore I omit names and places. It concerns an American composer who was conducting an orchestra at rehearsal. He was apparently disturbed by a carpenter putting a flag in position. Angriely he turned to the carpenter and said: "Take that thing away or I won't play."

The carpenter walked to the podium and told the great composer: "I don't give a damn whether you play or not, but if you call that flag a thing, I'll lay you flat."

It would have been a front-page story if the carpenter had laid the conductor flat. Perhaps we might have played Berlioz's "Requiem" in his memory. The significance of my tale is less whether it is true, which I do not know, but that it is in the gossip as an example of the resentment that lack of patriotism and internationalism is arousing in circles which once were sympathetic to the "One World" idea. There are so many worlds today, that even the heavy financial supporters of anti-patriotism are turning to faith in and respect for their country.

Some of us who go to concerts have been asking why the National Anthem does not open performances in this country as it does in most others. Various replies are given. One is that "The Star-Spangled Banner" is such unmusical music. Is it less musical than "God Save the Queen" which is our "America"? Yet Sir Thomas Beecham opens concerts with "God Save the Queen" and I even listened to him conduct "The Star-Spangled Banner" at Carnegie Hall.

Up in Tanglewood, it was explained to me that it might offend some if the National Anthem were played. My answer to that was utterly and completely vulgar. The offended ones could, of course, stay away. In fact, they should be asked to stay away.

I am usually opposed to laws regulating taste but we need to consolidate the nation behind ideals and symbols. We are neither an imperious nor an internationalist society—we are a nation. Our young people need to be made conscious of our nationalism. They need to be made to feel their affiliation with their own country. The flag and the National Anthem are initial steps in that direction. During wartime, the National Anthem is played everywhere, in theaters, at concerts, wherever people are gathered.

Why not always? Who issued the law to stop playing it? If the thousands who go to baseball games and prize fights can rise to the National Anthem, those who go to theaters, concerts and movies can do the same thing. The stuffy superior persons who are citizens of a nation only to have a passport to go elsewhere need not concern us. They do not belong.

Some always try to run away from reality. If they are born into one religion, they try to get into another. If they are nationals of one country, they seek to go elsewhere need not concern us. They do not belong.

Politics Out On Limb

BIPARTISAN . . . The girl in these hand-painted nylon stockings is about as impartial as you can get this presidential election year. Conference, Retreat Scheduled August

Approximately 150 Episcopal Churchwomen throughout the Diocese of East Carolina are expected to attend their annual Retreat and Conference at Camp Leach Monday, August 22-24.
The three day program will begin with a "QUIET TIME" with Mrs. William Gordon of Spray as leader and her theme will be "The Presence and Power of the Holy Spirit."
There will be Bible study and practical applications of the theme, with Mrs. Gordon and Miss Alma Gordon directing the channels of thought and discussions.
The Retreat will begin on Monday morning with registration and a luncheon. During the Conference, the Diocesan Departmental Chairmen will hold clinics and discussion groups, and assist with plans for the work and programs of the Churchwomen for the year.
An evening will be devoted to Missions when there will be a showing of pictures and slides of several Mission fields, especially those in Alaska where the Rev. Mr. Patterson Keller is located.
Evening Vespers will be conducted by the Chaplain each evening at the outdoor Chapel. For recreation there will be swimming in the Pamlico River and hikes along the river banks and into the forests.
Mrs. Heman Clark, Fayetteville, President Episcopal Churchwomen, Diocese of East Carolina, will direct and preside over the conference. Bishop Thomas H. Wright, Wilmington, will also attend the conference and address the group before adjournment.

With The Farm Women

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Granger, Elizabeth City, Rt. 3, are working on an interesting hobby. They have built a 3x8 foot cold frame for the propagation of camellias and azaleas. They have filled two sections with small cuttings from their own plants.
Miss Elizabeth Chappell, assistant home economics agent, says the Grangers have worked out landscape plan for their new home and will use the cuttings in their landscape plans.
Jelmeters in Demand
More and more homemakers in Transylvania County are using jelmeters. Mrs. Ruby P. Corpening, assistant home economics agent, says more homemakers are calling each day to get information on purchasing jelmeters.
The jelmeter is a graduated glass tube with an opening at each end. The rate of flow of the juice through this tube is used as a measure of the jelling power of the juice and therefore, an index to the amount of sugar to use.
Savings and Investments
Do you have a fire proof metal lock box in which to keep all your important papers? Mrs. Martha McK. Harris, home economics agent in Montgomery County, showed her Home Demonstration Club women the boxes as she urged them to keep all important papers in a safe place.
Mrs. Harris was explaining savings and investments with her club women. She discussed how to plan a wise investment program; safe dollar-type investments; investments with more risks involved; and four good basic rules to follow in planning investments.
Follow-Up of State Symposium
Mrs. Charles Kirby, Selma, Rt. 2, is using the information she gained at the state-wide Home Demonstration symposium for planning meetings in Johnston County.
Miss Sarah Ann Butts, home economics agent, says Mrs. Kirby presented brief highlights of the symposium which dealt with the social, economic, and technological trends affecting families in North Carolina with emphasis on human values. With these things in mind, the women made preliminary plans for their home economics program next year.
Lasting Friendships
Mrs. R. L. Timmons of Forest City and Mrs. Montogers Mercer, Lenoir County, have been meeting each year following the music workshop to visit and discuss the music work in the state. Miss Eugenia Ware reports this year others visited with them including Mrs. Ernest Magness, Mrs. W. L. Stallings, Mrs. Maud Lovelace, Miss Naomi Wells, and Mrs. Mabel Smith.
They not only had a luncheon and chatted about the workshop but made plans for furthering the music program in the state.

FOREST FUN

All eyes are on Dad as he starts cleaning the fish he caught. Neal McConaghy, 10, a family friend, holds part of catch.

Stew will be the dinner dish for the Prichards this day in camp. Mama keeps stirring the pot.

The nation's forests have spread a vast, green welcome mat for the recreation hungry Americans who camp, hunt, fish and boat.

Deep in the cool recesses of the forests, and along their lakes and streams, hundreds of well laid out camp sites and recreation areas beckon the summer traveler.

These areas range from a simple, undeveloped and secluded glen for the rugged individualist who prefers really roughing it, to fully developed public and privately owned areas for families who must have the comforts of stoves, fireplaces, tables and benches, water spigots and restroom facilities.

Typical of this latter type is the Bald Hill Lake Park, deep in the forest in western Washington, and typical of the American family who enjoys such facilities is the Robert G. Prichards of Tacoma, Wash.

Besides Mom and Dad are Dennis, 18; Christie, 16; Diana, 13, and Robin, 7. Dad makes industrial patterns in Tacoma, but outdoor living has been as much a part of the Prichard family life as his business. Camping is one thing they all enjoy together—and when summer comes they pack their gear and head for the woods.

The camping Prichards, and two of their little friends they brought along, are pictured here.

It takes a lot of water to cook and clean in camp. The youngsters love to man the pump.

Dennis Prichard prepares to hoist a big one aboard in Bald Hill Lake, as sister Robin looks on.

Dad sets up tent for the night while Christie, in back, gets table ready for dinner.

"Room for me?" Duchess, the family pet, envies Robin and her friend, SaraLee Smith, as they turn in for the night.

Radio Link For Mechanics Who Service Buses

A radio communications service has been provided for mechanics who service school buses, D.H. Conley has announced. The radio service works from the garage and enables communication with mechanics who are already out in the county serving buses. Conley said the service will enable mechanics to work more quickly and efficiently.

For instance, when a mechanic in the Bethel community servicing a bus, he may be radioed to service another bus in the same vicinity with the radio. Heretofore, mechanics answered one call, reported into the maintenance office here, and often had to return to the same vicinity where they were just working.

Conley said the unit cost $3,079.50. The Pitt County Board of Education approved it in February but had to apply for a permit and a bond from the Federal Communications System.

The Greenville Utilities Commission put up the large pole, about 106 feet high at the Pitt County School bus garage, located on Third Street Extension.

This type of radio system is in operation in other areas in the state, Conley said.

Just A Child, But 'Miss X' Begins Facing Adult Problems With Baby

Washington Daily News Staff Writer

Written for The Associated Press WASHINGTON, N. C. (AP) — What thoughts run through the mind of an unmarried teen-aged mother just after she has given birth to an illegitimate child?

Is there remorse or regret, or does she somehow find a strength or faith to carry on despite the unfortunate circumstances in which she finds herself?

By chance I happened to be a hospital patient myself when such a young girl entered to give birth. I saw her name on the hospital list published in the daily newspaper each afternoon. I recognized it as that of a young girl who a few years before had been a regular client of the Firemen's list of underprivileged children who were feted by the firemen at Christmas.

Her doctor told me that the Salvation Army was paying her hospital bill, and that he was giving his services free.

"She's just a child," he said, "and her mother gets a little relief money while her father has been dead since she was a babe in arms."

She was in a ward in which there were four beds, but at that particular time she was the only patient there. For the sake of anonymity, we shall call her "Miss X."

Visiting hours were over at 9 p.m., and shortly after that hour I made my way to the ward where she was. As I entered the room, she was lying there on the bed with a child's coloring book in her hands. She was busily engaged in putting just the right colors on the outline of a doll baby which appeared on one of the pages.

There were no flowers nor fruit nor candy in the room. And as I entered, she looked up, smiled a big and said, "How did you know I was here?"

I told her that I had read it in the newspaper patient list. She seemed rather thrilled that her name appeared in the newspaper, and she asked me to bring her a copy.

Then she said, "I want you to see my baby — it's the prettiest little thing you ever saw." Then she looked away and wistfully added, "I'm going to keep it and raise it myself. I want to get me a good job so I can make money to support it."

Then I asked, "Who is the father of your child?" Hesitating a moment, she looked out the window and then said rather sadly, "It doesn't make any difference — he's no good . . . he doesn't care anything about me or the child."

Then I asked, "Well, does he know about what has happened to you?"

She replied, "Yes, but he only laughed and said 'You can't prove it.'"

She turned her head slightly and observed, "I've been bad and I know it. I can't be like other girls anyway. . . . We never have any money at home. . . . My mother has had such a hard way to go, and now this. . . ."

Just then I said, "After I saw your name on the patient list, a nurse asked me to come in here and speak to you. She said you had no visitors and that you didn't have any money to buy a soft drink or a piece of candy."

Quickly, she said, "Give me a cigarette." She puffed furiously on it as if she hadn't had one in several days.

"Have you thought about allowing the baby to be adopted?" I asked.

"No sreee," she said. "Nobody is going to have my baby." Tears came to her eyes, so I changed the subject.

"Do you belong to any church?" I asked.

"Yes, but I seldom go because I never have any decent clothes," she replied.

"When did you quit school?" I asked.

"I quit after the seventh grade, and now I ought to be in the tenth grade," she said.

Just then the nurse came in holding a cooing red-haired baby. It was hers. The nurse said, "Isn't it cute?" I nodded in agreement as I left the room.

Early the next morning I visited several other patients on the floor and told them about "Mrs. X" without mentioning her name.

Within the space of a few minutes, patients had donated flowers, fruits, candy, magazines, and even money. By visiting time that day her room's appearance had been changed considerably.

The next day she and her baby left the hospital. As of now the mother and child are wards of the welfare agency, and they are still both children of God.

College Summer Session Is Ended

The 1960 summer session of East Carolina College officially ended today, August 18, with record registration for both terms.

Opening June 6, the first term ran through July 12 and registration totaled 2,254, almost one hundred larger than the same period in the 1959 session.

The second term which began July 13 saw 1,772 students registered, 201 more students in school than during 1959's second term.

Registration figures from Dr. John H. Horne, registrar, indicate that the summer session ending this week is one of the best recorded at East Carolina.

According to Dr. Horne, the 1960 term which opens on Thursday, Sept. 1, when freshmen and transfer students begin arriving on the campus, will set another high mark for Fall quarter registration.

First faculty meeting of the new college year will be convened in McGinnis auditorium on Thursday morning, Sept. 1, at 9 o'clock and will be addressed by Dr. Lee W. Jenkins, East Carolina College president.

Dr. Sudor Talks To Ayden Club

AYDEN — Dr. Stephen Sudor, local optometrist, spoke on "Preventing Blindness" at the Lions Club meeting recently.

Several types of eye diseases which lead to blindness were illustrated by means of charts. Dr. Sudor said that if most of these diseases were diagnosed in time, blindness could be prevented.

In the business session, the members decided to invite all Little Leaguers who played on the Lion's team to a supper Friday night at 7 p.m. Kenneth Branch will be in charge of the program.

Mary Sayland was a guest of Ben Phillips at the meeting. The on-time prize was won by Dixie Cannon.

(Continued from Page 4) to defame it. I was once told by a foreign lady that she did not always understand some Americans. She said that she had been advised by a very fine lady not to be seen too often in restaurants and night clubs with too many Jews. She said that she was told that it wouldn't do her any good. But, she answered, "I knew your father intimately. Was he not a Jew?"

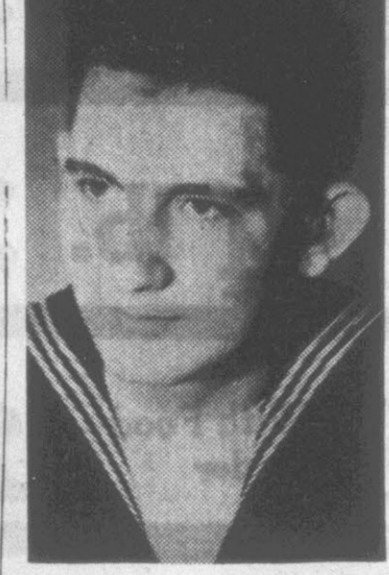

So it is with Americans who think that they are internationalists — except for the passport. They are running away from things — like the girls who clip off pieces of their noses. Perhaps the new nose is prettier but does it fit the old face? It is like so much name-changing which is a current fashion. A man who loses a noble grandfather by changing his name has lost more than he immediately realizes.

An American belongs to the leading nation on Earth. If that does not mean enough to him to fly his flag and sing his National Anthem, he ought to find a flag and song that could please his barren soul.

New Agency To Draw Up Strategic War Master Plan, Specify Targets

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new central agency will draw up a strategic war master plan stating which U.S. weapons will be used to hit specific targets behind the iron curtain if nuclear war should come.

Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. Wednesday named Gen. Thomas S. Power director of the planning agency to be located at Omaha in conjunction with the Strategic Air Command headquarters. Power will continue to serve as SAC commander and will have an admiral as a deputy for the new agency.

A staff of about 40 top specialists will develop a long-range target program that will be under constant review. The plan is expected to be ready by December for approval of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In announcing the new agency, Gates emphasized that the current strategic target plan is a good one. But he noted it is based largely on SAC's manned bomber force capabilities.

Formation of the new agency is expected to quell a long-smoldering argument between the Air Force and the Navy. Some Air Force quarters have been advocating a separate and over-all strategic command to control long-range weapons of all the services. The Navy opposed this concept.

Gates said the new setup rejected such a concept. He said his decision would centralize planning but would decentralize the actual execution of the plans by the various senior commanders.

The new plan does not represent any change in established national military policy or in relations with U.S. allies, Gates said.

He added that when the new plan is worked out any part of it affecting allied preparations will be fully explained.

Gates said it had taken him and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the joint chiefs, exactly one year to reach the strategic target decision.

The secretary announced his decision Wednesday to the service chiefs and to senior military commanders summoned from their headquarters at home and overseas.

There was little argument within the military services about who would hit what with what as long as SAC possessed a near monopoly on big bombers and big nuclear bombs.

The disagreement blossomed when the Navy came up with its atomic powered submarines, each carrying 16 nuclear tipped polaris ballistic missiles.

As soon as the Polaris submarine began to look like it would succeed, the Air Force began advocating an over-all strategic command, under Air Force direction, to operate not only Air Force bombers and the intercontinental missiles then nearing operational readiness but also the Navy's missile launching submarines. The Navy objected strenuously and the problem was dropped at Gates' doorstep.

Under the new plan, the Navy will have several means of making its voice heard in the targeting operation. It also will retain control of its Polaris submarines as well as the aircraft carriers from which some strategic bombing missions would originate.

Other Air Force commands, in addition to SAC, will be part of the plan.

Actors Neither Born Nor Made But, Incorporated

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television stars are not born or even made. They are incorporated.

Nowadays, when a performer reaches the point at which he can be referred to—and paid as—a personality, he is instantly transformed into a company.

It isn't a matter of whim. It is just that the tax laws are kinder to legitimate corporate structures than they are to individuals.

Probably one of the best known of these is Desilu, which started out as a little corporation owned by Desi Arnaz and Lucille Ball to make "I Love Lucy." It has now become a TV giant making many shows—and with a sentimental name completely ironic since the divorce of the couple.

In many cases the derivation of the corporate names is more interesting than what the company really does.

Ann Sothern heads up Anso Productions—the first two letters of her first and surname. Jack Benny's production company is "M and J," for Mary and Jack.

Other star corporations are a bit more obscure in nomenclature. George Burns' McCadden productions is named after a Hollywood street on which he once had an office. Mickey Rooney's Fryman Enterprises are named after a street on which he once lived.

Paisano Productions, which owns "Perry Mason," is named after the home of author Erle Stanley Gardner, Rancho del Paisano.

Perry Como, head man of Romcom Productions, named the company by stringing out his wife's first name, (Roselle) and the first name of his eldest son (Ronnie) and the first three letters of his last name Danny Thomas achieved the name Marterto Productions from the names of his three children, Mary, Terry and Tony.

Less sentimental is Shento Productions which is making the new Tab Hunter show. That comes from the surname of the creator of the series, Stanley Shapiro; Hunter, the star, and Norman Tokar, director-producer.

There are hundreds of others. But my own personal favorite is Lawrence Welk's corporate structure: Telekiew. The last syllable is just "Welk" spelled backwards, nature's own way.

Unwary Can Be Tripped Up By Corporate Name

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Picking your way through the maze of corporate names that sound alike can sometimes trip you if you're an expert and throw you if you're a novice.

As the number of companies in the United States grows each year, the sound-alikes multiply. And the postwar trend to diversification of products is the opposite of helpful.

Most persons have to stop and think to tie the right end product to the various glass companies with the proper nouns, Libbey, Illinois, Owens, Corning, Ford, in different combinations.

Even knowledgeable stock traders might stumble over the Ohio Oil Co. and Standard Oil Co. (Ohio). And many gasoline buyers get mixed up between all the other Standard Oils—Jersey, California, Indiana, Louisiana, Kentucky, Texas. Some Standards of old have telescoped their names. Example: Socony Mobil—the Socony was once Standard Oil Co. of New York.

The various Colas can trip the unwary—Coca, Pepsi and Royal Crown. How about U.S. Gypsum and National Gypsum, American Can and Continental Can, General Foods and General Mills? Some persons confuse B. F. Goodrich and Goodyear, especially as both rubber companies are in Akron, Ohio.

The Owens shared by all three comes from Michael J. Owens, who worked for Edward Drummond Libbey, and devised the first automatic glass bottle making machine. The bottle company became Owens-Illinois in 1929. It still makes glass containers, but also packages of plastic and paper, and glassware for industrial, electronic and scientific use.

The two men also formed the Libbey-Owens Flat Glass Co. which in 1930 merged with another firm to become Libbey-Owens-Ford. It makes flat glass for buildings, autos, and so on.

There are any number of companies with Ford, Owens, Illinois or Libbey as first names, but having no connection with the glass companies.

And way out, if you're really confused, is Libby, McNeill & Libby, known for its canned and frozen foods.

"These trails would shake the cab off an ordinary truck...but not our Chevy"

Few trucks are subjected to the body-racking beatings that are part of a day's work for this Chevrolet Series 60 pulpwood hauler. It's owned by J. E. Fox, North Carolina logging contractor. As Bobby Fox, a partner in the business says, "Loaded with pulpwood, we drive over stumps and potholes you'd think would tear the truck to pieces. These trails would shake the cab off an ordinary truck, but not our Chevy. We can average an extra load a day... make $45 to $50 a day more with this Chevy than we can with the others."

In every weight class these Chevies are doing more work at less expense than trucks have ever done before. Drive one at your Chevrolet dealer's. It's an experience that could pay you big dividends.

That 6-cylinder engine really performs," says Bobby Fox. "It's got the lugging power we need in the woods and walks right along with a full load on the highway."

A Stirring Western Suspense Novel
The Lean Rider by CLIFF FARRELL

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Lisa Randolph's education in the 19th century manner to be a lady among aristocrats in the settled country wasn't of much value to her after her parents died with their fortune gone.

Frank took one of the first drives up north from the San Ysidro. Lisa said nothing. Once more Hester's voice softened. "Maybe I'm beginnin' to see. You only laid eyes on him that once. Why, you couldn't have been much more'n a child."

of myself Let me tell you that I had given myself a few little twinkles an' dimples that I didn't rightly have. But Tom Barbee wasn't Frank O'Hara. Lisa fought against outward display of emotion. Inwardly, she was in complete chaos.

CHAPTER 6
"Did I hear you right?" Hester Barbee asked Lisa Randolph. "About you aiming to marry Frank O'Hara?"

"An' lost every cent when both cotton an' cattle went smash," Hester commented. She studied the picture. It was of a man of perhaps thirty, impeccably garbed from wing collar to elktooth watch charm. Frank O'Hara had the sensitively-cut features of blue-blooded ancestry, but there was self-indulgence in his handsome eyes and straight mouth.

Lisa was silent. I seemed so pointless to explain to Hester now the satin pillow had been lost. Her father going to his grave penniless. Her mother following him a few months afterwards. Trained only in the social graces, there had been few ways to earn a living decently.

MONEY-SAVING SHEEP
FT. SILL, Okla. (AP)—A herd of 3,000 sheep is saving the government $12,000 a year at this post, the Army estimates. The sheep eat grass in the ammunition storage area and the savings come from what it would cost to mow the area.

Watchman's Car Stolen In Night

SHELBY, N. C. (AP)—Shelby Constable Joe Moore, a night watchman at an automobile agency, had his 1957 car stolen Wednesday.

Moore was sitting in the dealer's showroom before dawn, sipping a soft drink and munching peanuts. His car was parked at the curb about 25 feet away.

He turned away from the street for an instant, and when he looked up, his car was gone. Moore telephoned police. Officers found the car on a nearby street. A man jumped out and ran when police approached the car.

STONINGTON, Conn. (AP)—Stonington voters, in a recent election, chose three street commissioners and adopted a new borough charter.

The new charter abolished the street commission, effective immediately.

Balloon Satellite Again Sighted, 'On Schedule'

For the second night in a row, Greenville residents watched the Echo I Satellite as it made its trip through the skies.

Douglas Dailey, an employe with the employment office here, said that he and his family observed the satellite at both the 8:12 and 10:21 times last night. He said his daughter, Peggy, 7, was the first to sight Echo I.

Dailey observed that the time tables as announced were correct both in timing and direction. Though he used field glasses at times to observe Echo I, he said the naked eye could find the satellite without difficulty, as a fairly bright star traveling slowly. It is white in color, he said, like "the other stars."

A time table for the next four days has been announced by Morehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill, A.F. Jenzano, director, said time tables denote times when the satellite will have reached its designated elevation above the horizon. It begins rising above the horizon six to eight minutes earlier than the times contained in the table, he said.

The time table, with elevation and direction is as follows:

Thursday, 7:50 p.m., 39 degrees above the horizon, traveling south to northeast; 9:59 p.m., 60 degrees, north to northeast.

Friday—12:04 a.m., 42 degrees, north to northeast; 2:10 a.m., 39 degrees, north to southeast; 4:18 a.m., 49 degrees, south to southeast; 7:27 p.m., 35 degrees, south to northeast; 9:36 p.m., 62 degrees, north to northeast; 11:42 p.m., 42 degrees, north to northeast.

Saturday—1:47 a.m., 55 degrees, north to southeast; 3:56 a.m., 53 degrees, south to southeast; 7:05 p.m., 31 degrees, south to northeast; 9:14 p.m., 65 degrees, north to northeast; 11:20 p.m., 42 degrees, north to northeast.

Sunday—1:25 a.m., 53 degrees, north to southeast; 3:33 a.m., 58 degrees, south to southeast.

Kiwanians Hear Talk On Cuba

Johnson, who has spent approximately six years, prior to and during the Castro revolution and since in Cuba in the tobacco industry, related many brutal instances he had witnessed and told of Castro's laws and economic changes put into effect since he has taken over the government.

Load Limits For Two Pitt Roads

Load limit restrictions are being placed on two Pitt County roads and on one road in Beaufort County, according to Division Engineer C. W. Snell, Jr., of the State Highway Department.

In Pitt, restrictions of 13,000 pounds per axle are being placed on road 1755, from N.C. 43 to the junction with road 1774, and on this road, from road 1755 to N.C. 43.

The same weight restrictions will be placed on road 1410 in Beaufort County, from its junction with N.C. 33, to the junction of U.S. 17.

Snell said the restrictions will be placed into effect on Wednesday, August 24.

the North Carolina State Highway Patrol, the State Bureau of Investigation and the Greenville Police Department.

Gibbs, who enlisted in the Navy in 1940, was discharged in 1946 as a Chief Petty Officer after serving 27 months on the U.S.S. West Point, a troop transport and made "three or four trips around the world". He also served for 25 months on the headquarters staff of the Commander of the Amphibious Training Command of the Pacific Fleet.

Following his discharge from the Navy in 1946, Gibbs attended the 10-week-long highway patrol school at Chapel Hill and became a patrolman in December of 1946. Gibbs was stationed in Greenville with the patrol until May 15, 1949 when he transferred to the State Bureau of Investigation. While with the Bureau, Gibbs was stationed here and remained here until he resigned his position with the state and accepted the job as Chief of Police in November of 1952.

As chief of the local department, Gibbs' main duties include the general supervision of the overall operation of the department and is "responsible to the city manager for the proper functioning of the department."

Gibbs also participates in major investigations conducted by the department.

Since becoming chief, Gibbs has attended the 12-week Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy and has participated in inter-department training schools and schools conducted in this area by the FBI.

Gibbs, who likes criminal investigation work most, gets highest satisfaction from "clearing or completing a case. . . a feeling of satisfaction that other jobs or other types of work just cannot give."

"When a case is brought to it's final conclusion it is worth all the effort, lost sleep, and hard work that has gone into it," he points out.

"One of the most unpleasant duties," according to the Chief, "is dealing with a case in which a youngster runs afoul of the law."

According to Gibbs, "During the past few years, there has been extensive progress in the field of law enforcement work, through training programs which today recognize the fact that the individual officer has a desire to learn more and gain more knowledge about his chosen profession."

Gibbs counts his work — and hunting—as his main hobbies but also likes football games.

He is a member of the Board of Directors of the North Carolina Police Executives Association, a member of the State and National Chapter of the FBI National Academy graduates and a member of the Pitt County Peace Officers Protective Association.

A member of St. Peter's Catholic Church, Gibbs is married and has two daughters.

Trades Don't Help Situation

Thursday's Ramblings... From this corner, the bizarre late-season trade involving Joe Gordon of Cleveland and Jimmy Dykes of Detroit has done little to help either club but probably leave a sour note in the 1960 baseball season.

Frank Lane has developed a knack for coming up with unusual trades. This one takes the cake. Having traded everybody else in sight, Lane may get around to trading himself and that might not be a fatal step.

Why 18 Holes Of Golf?

A recent survey showed that there are about four million golfers in the United States, and it is probably a safe bet to say that less than two dozen know why they play 18 holes.

Why 18 holes? Why not 12, 14, 30 or 35?

The origin of 18 holes as a standard for a round dates back to a decision of 1764 at the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, St. Andrews, Scotland. The explanation is in "A History of Golf," written by Robert Browning, editor of Britain's Golfing Magazine from 1910 through '55. It is passed along via USGA Journal.

Local Gridders Show Enthusiasm

Rose High gridders reported for football practice this week and apparently were ready to launch an attack on the conference title. Looking forward to the new season, most of the 16 lettermen were in good physical shape for the opening session—a rarity for most high schools.

The enthusiasm shown by the lettermen will help make the opening practices easier for Coach Bud Phillips and will probably eliminate many blisters and sore muscles.

A quick look at the squad shows backfield material matching any in the conference and a formidable line but one shallow in depth.

Labine: Ready To Quit, But Not Now

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "Just guess you'd call it a short curve," Labine said. Clem Labine, veteran right-handed pitcher, after starring in the Pittsburgh Pirates' 5-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, made that statement Wednesday night in the dressing room.

Manager Danny Murtaugh was one of the first to congratulate Labine for preserving the Pirate victory and keeping the Bucs' first-place margin at 7 1/2 games ahead of second-place Milwaukee. "That was safe performance," Murtaugh said. "If Labine can keep up that sort of pitching he will be a real help."

Labine, 34, signed as a free agent only Tuesday, pitched 3 2/3 innings of hitless relief ball and struck out six. He walked three. The Pirates were leading 4-2 and two Phillies were on base with one out when Labine took over for starter and winner Harvey Haddix in the sixth. Labine walked the first man he faced. The Phils scored their final run of the night on a fielder's choice. Labine then walked another man, and had the crowd uneasy before he struck out pinch hitter Tony Curry.

Labine was released by Detroit two weeks ago and signed by Buc General Manager Joe Brown. "Boy, I thought I was washed up until Brown called," Labine said. "I turned down a couple of chances to go to a minor league club and had no idea Joe Brown or anyone in the majors wanted me as I didn't do well at Detroit and wasn't so hot at Los Angeles earlier in the season."

Labine, who has an over-all major league record of 70 victories and 51 losses, didn't win a game with either Los Angeles or Detroit this year. He lost one game with the Dodgers where he had a 5.82 earned run average. At Detroit, where he lost three games, his ERA was 5.21.

"I tried a new pitch against the Phils and it worked pretty good. I'm keeping my fingers crossed that I can keep it up, but still throw an overhand curve ball but I was experimenting with a sort of three quarter throw — Moore.

National League Cast Off Perks Up In Buc Uniform

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer Clem Labine has bounced back to the National League with a flourish for Pittsburgh's first place Pirates — and he did it against the Philadelphia Phillies, one of the clubs that "read" him out of business.

It was after Los Angeles traded him to Detroit of the American League in mid-June that the one-time Dodger bullpen ace learned some NL clubs were reading his pitches — getting tip-offs on what he was about to throw from the wa: he held the ball. Labine got wind of it from Al Dark, then playing for the Phils and now with Milwaukee, after Clem left the league. Wednesday night, he came back, stepping in on a sixth-inning rally by the Phils and saving a 5-3 victory for the Pirates with 3 2/3 innings of hitless relief. That kept the Bucs 7 1/2 games ahead of the second place Milwaukee Braves, who trimmed Cincinnati 11-4. San Francisco sent third place St. Louis skidding to a sixth straight loss, 6-5. The Chicago Cubs beat Los Angeles 1-0. In the American League, New York scored an unearned run in the 10th inning for a 3-2 victory over Boston and a 1 1/2-game lead over second place Chicago. The White Sox lost 3-2 at Cleveland. Washington rapped Baltimore 11-7 in 12 innings. Detroit beat Kansas City 5-2. Labine was signed as a free agent by the Pirates Tuesday. Trying a new pitch, "a short curve," the feisty right-hander struck out six, fanning pinch-hitter Tony Curry with the bases loaded and two runs home in the sixth after the Phils had chased winner Harvey Haddix (8-7) and trimmed the Bucs' lead to 4-3. The Pirates broke a 1-1 tie against loser Johnny Buzhardt (4-11) with three runs in the fourth on four singles and a clinching, two-run double by Don Hosk. Milwaukee walloped the Reds with two scoring bursts, putting across five runs in the first inning and six in the eighth, when Hank Aaron walloped his 32nd home run, with a man on, and Ed Mathews lined a two-run double Six singles, a walk and an error took care of things in the first inning against Jim O'Toole (10-11). Reliever Joey Jay (4-6) was the winner. Rookie Sherman Jones, second of three Giant pitchers, singled home the deciding run in the fifth inning for his first major league victory. Johnny Antonelli saved it. Felipe Alou socked a three-run homer off loser Ray Sadecki (6-7) as the Giants swept the three-game set. Walt Moryn and Daryl Spencer homered for the Cards. Ernie Banks' 34th home run won it in the ninth for the Cubs, who had been blanked on three singles by loser Don Drysdale (10-13). Glen Hobbie (11-16) was the winning pitcher.

LOUIS CLARK

Clark Is New President Of Touchdown Club

Louis Clark, 1955 East Carolina College graduate and assistant manager of Sinclair Refining Company here, has been named new president of the Greenville Touchdown Club, succeeding Lou Collier, first-year president of the young organization.

Named to office with Clark for the 1960-61 term were Roger Collins, vice-president, and Billy Woolfolk, secretary-treasurer.

"Promoting more football interest at East Carolina College" was the main goal set up by the incoming prexy.

Other aims of the new slate of officers are to sponsor a drive for more members and assist in forming a stronger alumni group for the college.

The current membership of the club, which was organized last fall, is 60. Dues for the 1960-61 year have been reduced from $12 to $6 and the club hopes to build its membership to over 100 this fall.

Tuesday night has been set aside as the weekly meeting date for this fall. Guest speakers, including coaches from the Big Four schools, will be invited and film highlights of East Carolina College games will be shown.

Clark stated last night that no meeting will be held this week in order to give the officers time to start functioning and contact members in advance. Tentative plans call for the next meeting on Tuesday night August 30.

Semifinals For Junior Girls

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Sharon Fladoos, recent winner of the Western junior championship, enters the National Junior Girls Golf Tournament semifinals today in good position to become the "little slam" champion of junior golf circles.

The 17-year-old Dubuque, Iowa, star defeated Sandra Haynie of Austin, Tex., in her quarter-final match, and meets Ann Baker, Maryville, Tenn., in today's semifinals. Miss Baker defeated Heidi Prentice, Wilmette, Ill., 1-up with three straight pars starting at the 14th hole.

Miss Haynie provided some fireworks in the second round when she defeated Judy Rand, Aurora, Ohio, the defending champion and a comedialist, 2-up with a pair of 4-foot birdie putts on the last two holes.

The youngest player in the championship flight, 13-year-old Roberta Albers, Tampa, Fla., carded Carol Sorenson, Janesville, Wis., to the 20th hole before she lost to a par 4 on the 358-yard hole.

Judy Torluemke, St. Louis, made the semifinals with a 4 and 3 decision over Robby Lee King of Arlington, Va.

Miss Sorenson meets Miss Torluemke today. Larry Grantham, a candidate for the New York Titans football team, went to the University of Mississippi on a baseball scholarship.

Olympic Heads Huddle In Rome For Decision Making

By TED SMITS Associated Press Sports Editor ROME (AP) — The Olympic games, eight days away from real competition, moved today into the arena of debate and intrigue. The International Olympic Committee meets Friday to tackle the ever-thorny problem of Nationalist China and find a successor as president to Avery Brundage of Chicago, now apparently not unwilling to be drafted.

The big Finnish and Canadian teams both arrive and the Modern Pentathlon Federation opens sessions, first of the world-wide sports groups to convene.

I.O.C. members huddled through the night in swank hotel rooms and at open air tables on the Via Veneto, Rome's gay white way.

They must decide: 1—Whether to draft Brundage, stern-visaged defender of the amateur code, or choose between Lord David Burghley who won the 400 meter hurdles in 1928, and an iron curtain representative.

2—How to find a name under which to admit Nationalist China to these games.

3—When to start the 1964 games in Tokyo. The Japanese are supposed to favor mid-May. The United States and many European nations consider this too early.

Eighty-seven Soviets came in Wednesday. Among the star squads still not in Rome are the United States track and basketball teams, both barnstorming.

There has been the usual rash of minor injuries, but only one top flight athlete has been hurt. He is Tsuyoshi Yamanka, Japan's bright hope in the 400 and 1,500 meter swimming events. He fell and bruised his left hip, but the Japanese believe he will be back in the water shortly. If he cannot compete at top speed, the United States' chances in men's swimming would be enhanced.

The United States, which lost the use of Phil Baldwin (Muskegon, Mich.), a welterweight boxer because of a kidney infection, petitioned to replace him with Vince Shomo of New York. There was no immediate decision.

The games open Aug. 25 with nearly 8,000 athletes from 87 nations competing — almost double the entry list of any other games.

Politics Play Part In Russian Sports Picture

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Sports Writer MOSCOW (AP) — Although the Russians like to say politics have no part in their sports picture, a fierce nationalistic spirit nevertheless permeates the Soviet's drive to athletic glories.

"Long live the Communist party of the Soviet Union!" reads a huge Red banner stretched across the 70,000-seat Lenin Stadium, where the Olympic trials are staged.

Giant medallions bearing the hammer and sickle and other Communist insignia hang from the ceiling of the Palace of Sports, scene of basketball, gymnastics and other events.

Soviet officials and athletes make no effort to conceal the fact that they are dedicated to a program of world wide sports superiority and that America, with its long time role as an athletic giant, is a particular target.

"Certainly, we like to beat America," said one top Olympic official in an interview, "but only because America is very strong—and we want to be stronger. The Americans remain our very best friends in sports."

The famed Russian decathlon star, Vladimir Kuznetsov, says he considers America's Rafer Johnson one of his strongest friends. "I work hard to beat him and he strives to beat me," says the brilliant all-around Soviet athlete, "but there is no bitterness—only high respect. That is how it should be."

The Soviet's flaming urge to gain athletic dominance is stoked by the government, which offers every enticement to sportsmen.

Workers are encouraged to join athletic clubs of which there are hundreds scattered throughout the Soviet Union. Every factory has a society, every society its own athletic club.

An example is the Wings of Soviet Club, located at 24-A Leninograd Ave.

Stroll into this club at any time and you are apt to find gymnasts whirling through routines on rich oriental rugs in one place, with boxers, wrestlers and basketball players active in others.

The club has 1,900 adult members, 1,200 children. The fee is 3 rubles (thirty cents) a year per family. This club, just one of many in the neighborhood, boasts sixty masters of sports.

In the hall hangs a flag with this inscription from the late Comrade Stalin: "Grow up a new generation to make them healthy and cheerful and they will defend the country from all who attack it."

Ivan Kusmich Ochnev, a big, bushy-haired man, runs the club, an unpretentious yellow stone building of three floors which is hidden behind a tall fence off Leningrad Avenue.

"This is just an average club," he explained. "We accept members of any trade. Some of our bigger clubs are connected with the work societies.

"Our members are mostly workers who live in this neighborhood. They work in the factory all day, come here in the late afternoon and night for training. Their families come with them."

FIRST BLUE MARLIN NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Virginia's first blue marlin, a 10-footer weighing over 250 pounds, was caught by Al Noyes, of Portsmouth, some 55 miles off Virginia Beach. They have been catching the big bill fish off North Carolina's coast to the south for some time. Virginians, trying to get them at home, have sighted several but Noyes was the first to score.

Rose High

Rose High football candidates spent most of the morning practice session getting physical examinations but Coach Bud Phillips did get the opportunity to work on condition and signal drills.

Yesterday afternoon, some 50 aspirants worked in the fundamentals department. Coaches Bud Phillips and Jerry Warren drilled the linemen on pulling and trapping in offensive drills and also added work on defensive line play.

Coach Bo Farley worked with the backfield on pass defense and blocking and tackling fundamentals.

Other than minor injuries, the squad continued to be in good physical shape. Heavy work was again slated for the afternoon workout today.

PINCH PITCHER by Pap'

In his first four trips from the Yankee bullpen, Luis Arroyo put out the fire every time and did not allow a single run to score. That's pretty fair relief pitching. And downright welcome to Manager Casey Stengel and his faltering mound staff. All the more so because purchasing Arroyo from the New Jersey club of the International League was nothing short of a desperation move. At 33, and a National League castoff, Arroyo was an undistinguished performer with a minor league club and hardly figured to set the American League afire. The Yankee took a chance and it has paid off handsomely.

"I was very much surprised when the Yankees brought me up from Jersey City," said Arroyo. "Nobody wanted to draft me from the Havana club last year even though I had an earned-run average of 1.20. They thought I was too old."

Arroyo revealed that the addition of a screwball made a different pitcher of him. When he was toiling for the Cardinals, Parade Problem Solved For U.S.

ROME (AP) — The crisis over having to bench nearly 70 American athletes from the inaugural Olympic parade has solved itself. The Americans, Russians and Germans were allotted 245 places each. With their delegations numbering over 300, this meant some participants would have to sit out the parade.

Wednesday night, however, the U.S. boxers and water polo team members said they'd rather rest. They must compete only a few hours after the parade. The 31-man rowing team members said they wanted to practice. The equestrians and the yachtsmen won't be here.

Moose Lodge Hosts Team At Dinner

The Moose Little League team and their parents were guests of the Greenville Moose Lodge at dinner last night.

The occasion marked the final get-together of the 1960 Moose team, and its members were presented individually inscribed trophies as mementos of their just-completed season.

Governor Aurbrey Taylor briefly voiced his appreciation, and that of the lodge to boys of the team, and to their coaches, Joe Keel and Billy Neal James.

Six members of the Moose team played their last season in the Little League. They are: Ricky Webb, Danny Keel, Steve Hodges, Joel Johnson, Billy Keel and Bradley Cole.

Soviets Give Athletes High Spot In World

By WILL GRIMSLEY Associated Press Sports Writer MOSCOW (AP) — Every morning at 11 o'clock, the program on Radio Moscow is interrupted by a crisp voice announcing in militant Soviet accent:

"Now for our exercises." Throughout this sprawling metropolis and its environs, machines suddenly stop humming. Workers leave their lathes, secretaries desert their typewriters, clerks whenever possible abandon their stations. Then for ten minutes, while the announcer barks the routines, thousands go through a series of calisthenics. "One . . . two . . . arms out . . . breathe in . . . knees bent" . . . and so forth.

This is the Soviet version of a growing American tradition—the coffee break—only the Russians refresh themselves with pushups and knee bends.

It is a twice-a-day ritual of this country which places such tremendous emphasis on physical fitness. Next to their scientists, the Russian people appear proudest of their athletes, whom they like to hold up to the world as symbol of strength and power.

To the Russians, sports are a dedication, a powerful propaganda weapon in the cold war between capitalism and communism. The Russians are determined to rule the world in athletics. This is obvious in a study of their training techniques and talks with their sports officials.

They won 98 medals, more than any other nation, in the 1956 Olympic Games at Melbourne. Their arm at Rome, in the games starting later this month, is 100-plus.

"We had 16 million trained athletes in 1956," says Konstantin Andrianov, chairman of the Soviet Olympic Committee. "Today we have 23 million. We should do better."

Andrianov pointed out that the figure does not include 35 million student athletes — tykes being groomed for later years. The scope of Russia's broad sports program touches virtually every life in the Soviet Union.

The government sets up the various athletic clubs—there is normally one attached to every factory—and more or less demands all workers participate. In this country when the government says do it, they do. The Russian child is set on the road to athletic activity and possible stardom almost from birth. If he fails it is not because he isn't given every chance. In school, sports are compulsory. If he shows unusual aptitude, he is sent to a special children's sports school for special training and instruction.

At maturity, the boy or girl may join an athletic club attached to one of the trade union societies. Facilities and instruction are stepped up. Everything is free.

While the average Russian lives a rather drab existence, devoid of the luxuries and gaieties of the Western world, the sportsman is given every privilege. He is pampered and lionized. He is the darling of the state.

Week-Old Dream Became Reality

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — One night Edward Dacey, architectural draftsman, thought he dreamed that he saw someone sitting on his bedroom dresser.

It wasn't a dream he learned a few days later when a burglar took police around to six La Jolla homes he had entered. One of them was Dacey's. He had sat on the bureau while he smoked a cigarette.

U.S. Cindermen In Switzerland

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — America's Olympic track and field squad—including at least a dozen gold-medal hopefuls—arrives in Switzerland Friday for a final warmup meet before the Rome American team, studded with world record holders, is certain to swamp the relatively weak opposition from seven other countries. Even Switzerland's best men are absent from the 50 entry field, and only Poland's javelin thrower, Janusz Sidlo, is considered to be in the world's top class.

The American squad arrives in Zurich by charter plane from New York and will travel immediately to Bern for the weekend meet. The squad is scheduled to continue its flight to Rome on Monday.

ning brought the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory at Boston Wednesday night. That gave the Yankees a 1½-game edge over the second place Chicago White Sox, who lost 3-2 at Cleveland on an unearned run.

And the third place Baltimore Orioles, carried into extra innings because of an unearned Washington run, dropped their fourth in a row, 11-7 in 12 innings, and fell 2½ games back. It was the Senators' fifth in a row over the Orioles, who have lost nine of 14 to Washington.

Detroit defeated Kansas City 5-2 in the other AL game. In the National League, Pittsburgh stayed 7½ games out front with a 5-3 victory over Philadelphia while second place Milwaukee clobbered Cincinnati 1-4. Third place St. Louis lost 6-5 to San Francisco. The Chicago Cubs beat Los Angeles 1-0.

A walk, Tony Kubek's single and a wild throw by second baseman Pete Runnels gave the Yankees their third straight victory. After being shutout on three hits for seven innings by Billy Muffett, they had come from behind for a tie with two runs in the eighth, scoring one on a walk and singles by Kubek and Bob Cerv, then getting the other as Mickey Mantle hit into a doubleplay.

Bobby Shantz (4-3) was the winner in relief. Mike Fornieles (7-3) was the loser in relief. The Indians handed White Sox relief ace Gerry Staley his sixth defeat after tying the game with two runs in the seventh. It was only the fourth loss in 13 games for the White Sox, who were shut out over the last five innings by Jim Perry and winning reliever Johnny Klippstein (4-5).

The Orioles ripped five home runs—all solo shots by Jackie Brandt, Al Pilarcik, Ron Hansen, Jim Gentile and Gus Triandos—and socked four doubles, but a six-run seventh inning, with one unearned, gave the Senators a 7-7 tie after nine. Washington then put it away against reliever Wes Stock (2-1) when he walked the bases loaded in the 12th and then gave up two-run singles by pinch-hitter Julio Becquer and Billy Gardner. Tex Clevenger (5-8) was the winning pitcher in relief.

Frank Lary won his 11th for the Tigers with a six-hitter. After the A' scored twice on half of their hits for a 2-all tie in the third, loser Ray Herbert (7-13) hit Charley Maxwell with a pitch in the fifth inning and he scored the winning run on singles by Rocky Colavito and Ossie Virgil.

Jesse Owen Can't Get In Olympics

ROME (AP) — The great Jesse Owens, who won four gold medals for the United States at the 1936 Olympics in Berlin, can't get into the Rome Olympics — as a reporter.

As a one time Olympic star, however, he's getting a warm welcome. Owens' application for accreditation as a reporter for an American magazine (Ebony) was turned down. "Too late," said a spokesman for the U.S. Olympic Committee, "and for no other reason. We accredited all American correspondents on a first-come first-served basis."

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP) — Whit Reed of Alameda, Calif., will leave strategy behind as he meets Rod Laver of Australia today in a feature quarter-final match of the Newport Casino Invitation Tennis Tournament.

Laver has met Reed three previous times this year and has won each time. "The heck with strategy. I've tried all kinds against him, so I'll just get out there and play the game." Today's other quarter-final puts Bobby Wilson of England against Chuck McKinley, Davis Cup player from St. Louis.

Schools In New Orleans 'Taken Over' By State

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—A new federal-state school integration showdown loomed here today in the wake of Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' take-over of New Orleans public schools.

Davis acted Wednesday to supersede the Orleans Parish (County) school board under a 1960 legislative law permitting him to take over schools to prevent racial integration.

U.S. Dist. Judge J. Skelly Wright has ordered the first grade of New Orleans public schools integrated at the start of the fall term next month.

A three-judge federal court meets Aug. 26 to hear a suit by 31 white parents and the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People for an injunction to prevent Davis from interfering with integration.

"Enactment of the injunction would strike at the constitutionality of the law under which Davis acted."

It would also cancel an earlier order by State Dist. Court Judge Oliver B. Carriere ordering the Orleans Parish school board not to comply with Judge Wright's desegregation order. Carriere thus upheld the validity of a state law giving the legislature sole power to reclassify schools as white or Negro.

Another new state law passed by the 1960 Legislature permits the governor to close all state schools if any one is integrated.

Davis' action gives him control of the schools pending a meeting of the recently-organized four-man legislative committee to reclassify them.

A special legislative session to ratify classification may be necessary, unless the courts void the governor's action.

Davis designated James F. Redmond, Orleans Parish school superintendent, as his agent to run the schools.

He told Redmond to open the schools Sept. 7, the day before they had been scheduled to open.

Lloyd Rittiner, Orleans Parish School Board president, said his personal opinion was that Davis' attempt to keep schools open and segregated "won't work."

Home Is Bombed In Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A white real estate salesman's home was blasted by two explosions—about 30 seconds apart—Wednesday night. It was the third residential bombing in a week.

The salesman, N. Ross Walker, and his wife, who were in the living room watching television, and their 11-month-old daughter, asleep in the bedroom, escaped injury.

Police said one of the explosives—either dynamite with a long fuse, or a timebomb—was set at the rear of the house and the other in or under a car standing in a carport.

The carport and two cars parked in it were badly damaged. House windows were shattered, pictures knocked from the wall, cabinet doors were blown open and a hole was blown in the brick foundation.

The Walker home is in the fashionable Murray Hills section near Lake Chickamauga.

The real estate firm for which Walker works had advertised houses for sale to Negroes in racially mixed neighborhoods. The advertisement was run over Walker's name in both Chattanooga daily newspapers.

Last Friday, a vacant house advertised for Negroes was blasted just a few blocks away from those advertised by Walker's company.

Earlier this week, a house—occupied by Negroes in a racially mixed neighborhood—was ripped by a similar blast. Several weeks ago, still another blast occurred at a Negro dwelling in still another racially mixed neighborhood.

Rapist Is Menaced By Crowd

BOONVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A convicted rapist accused of killing 11-year-old Avril (Honey) Terry was held under close guard today after an angry crowd of townspeople gathered outside the jail.

Emmett O. Hashfield, 53-year-old trinket maker, was ordered held without bail Wednesday on a preliminary charge of first-degree murder after the little girl's dismembered body was found.

Sheriff Robert E. Shelton and State Police Sgt. Wendolin Opel said Hashfield orally admitted dumping Avril's dismembered body on the Ohio River bank and in the river, 25 miles southeast of Boonville.

The little girl disappeared Tuesday on a trip downtown to buy candles for a birthday cake for her 8-year-old sister, Candace. Hashfield was arrested Tuesday night and at first denied any knowledge of the case.

His statement and discovery of the body came Wednesday.

Sheriff Shelton said a crowd of about 200 persons gathered outside the Warrick County Jail Wednesday night.

"They want a quick trial, and they had a tree picked out across the street they wanted to use," Shelton said. He said that he saw no ropes but that several tomatoes were thrown at his deputies, two of them scoring hits.

Shelton said Hashfield paced his cell nervously but said nothing.

"We had a worse case when we had a race riot here a couple of years ago," the sheriff said. "If it gets too hot they'll have two locked iron doors to come through. Just let them try to get in."

The crowd dispersed before midnight.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Howard Bradley, Hashfield refused to talk.

"I ain't making any statements till I get me a lawyer," he blurted.

Hashfield wore overall pants and a blue shirt in his court appearance. He had a black eye, and police said it was the result of a blow from Avril's father, Dr. Robert H. Terry, who had been allowed to question the man.

Police said Hashfield reported meeting the girl when she stopped to help her pick up some pennies she had dropped on the sidewalk. He said she accepted ride in his car — something her parents had warned her not to do.

Hashfield said they drove to an abandoned strip mine south of Boonville and then went to his home. Sheriff Shelton said the man stated he blacked out and could recall nothing more until after he tossed the body in the river.

Sgt. Opel said bloodstains indicated the girl was killed in the living room of Hashfield's home.

State police said Hashfield had served sentences for rape, assault with intent to rape and sodomy.

Pets' Funerals Given Dignity

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Pets may lead dogs' lives, but their deaths can be beautiful.

Pet cemeteries such as the one operated by Clint Harris are dedicated to that proposition.

Harris furnishes a 3-by-6 foot cemetery plot and buries the pet for $25. The owner can provide a wooden box or Harris will build one for a charge.

Of course, the $25 fee covers only the most simple kind of funeral. Pet lovers also can get caskets, headstones and concrete vaults if they wish.

Some of the funerals are elaborate. The biggest at Harris' cemetery was for a Pomeranian.

"The dog was embalmed, was wrapped in a silk blanket, placed in a casket and then lowered into a vault," Harris recalls. "Two Cadillac cars loaded with people were present. One large spray of flowers covered the casket and there were two other baskets of flowers."

"Those folks have been back three times with fresh flowers."

A widower who traveled all the time had his dog put to sleep and buried in Harris' cemetery.

"He came by here every two weeks to visit the grave and he would weep," Harris says. "That was six years ago and he still comes by occasionally. It really gets you sometimes."

Harris says the pet cemetery started by chance. He was operating a kennel when a tourist asked him to bury a dog in a marked, well-kept grave that the man could visit from time to time.

"Later there were more requests and before my wife and I knew it, we were in the pet cemetery business," Harris says.

He will provide pet owners almost anything — except a funeral service.

"We just lower the animal into the four-foot-deep grave, cover it and walk away," he says.

Forgetful When Filling Out Form

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Daniel J. Murphy, Jr., manager of the district Social Security Office, says a lot of young people have poor memories when applying for a Social Security card.

A common shortcoming, he says, is not remembering their mother's maiden name — or the date of their birth.

Recently, one youth, filling in the space calling for his mother's name, wrote: "Ma."

PHOTOGRAPHY is gradually

submerging in an underwater world as skin-diving becomes increasingly popular. Whenever there is a body of water, there are people taking up the new sport of exploring beneath its surface. A camera is rapidly becoming as essential as goggles, swim fins, snorkel or aqualung.

The fine points of underwater photography were first explained to me about three years ago by Elgin Ciampi, a New York City expert who started skin-diving in 1943. It was an interesting discussion as he described the thrill and adventure for camera fans in tackling a new world of pictures. A couple of weeks ago, Ciampi's specialty was put to a grim task. He was called on to photograph the wreckage of the Navy blimp in which 17 crewmen lay entombed 73 feet below the surface off Barnegat Light, N.J. His pictures made a two-page spread in Life magazine.

It coincides currently with the appearance of his latest book, "The Skin Diver" (Ronald Press), a complete handbook of underwater information illustrated with almost 300 photographs, most of them taken by Ciampi himself. Here you'll find detailed descriptions of all the equipment used in snorkeling, spearfishing, aqualung diving and in exploring marine life and sunken ships.

It also contains the latest information and most complete guide for underwater photography. A few years ago, waterproof housings for cameras were very expensive, techniques were haphazard and the results were generally poor. Today, economical underwater housings are available, techniques have been improved through experience and exciting underwater pictures are no longer a rarity.

Camera fans should become somewhat proficient skin divers before taking a camera below the surface. Box cameras can be used if the lighting conditions are very good. Such ideal lighting may be found in some outdoor swimming pools, in the clear, warm waters of the South and in some lakes and quarries. When visibility falls off, better cameras will give better results.

Beginners who wish to experiment occasionally with their present cameras could start with an inexpensive plastic housing, Ciampi says. This soft, waterproof bag

Courtroom Conduct Of U-2 Pilot Wins Admiration

LONDON (AP) — The courtroom conduct of U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers on the first grueling day of his Moscow trial won him the sympathy and even admiration of many of West Europe's newspapers. They pictured the young American flier as a luckless casualty in the cold war.

Many West European observers also felt the early pattern of the espionage trial confirmed their opinion that the whole thing was a well-staged propaganda show, with U.S. policy rather than Powers as the target of the Soviet prosecutors.

Most newspapers, including many with their own correspondents attending the trial, were convinced there had been no attempt to brainwash Powers. Britain's Daily Telegraph said Powers' unprecedented position of a secret agent who had been acknowledged by his principals.

"Given this fact, and assuming he was right in assisting the court at all, the American pilot was magnificent," the Conservative newspaper said.

The London Daily Mail reported that "In his straightforward, almost simple way, Powers fought back at the prosecutor on some points." The Daily Express correspondent wrote: "Out of it all I felt overwhelming pity for the Powers family. One gets the impression of simple people caught up in the vortex of a quarrel between the two greatest powers on earth."

All over Western Europe reports of the trial were carried under banners in big type stretching over several columns. "Powers confessed quietly and with dignity," said the headline of a Copenhagen newspaper. Another Danish paper described the trial as "a big Soviet propaganda show with a small super-numerary in the leading role."

Il Messaggero, Rome's biggest independent morning paper, termed the trial a "sad comedy." Its front-page editorial declared: "The powers trial is not a legal process. It is a show."

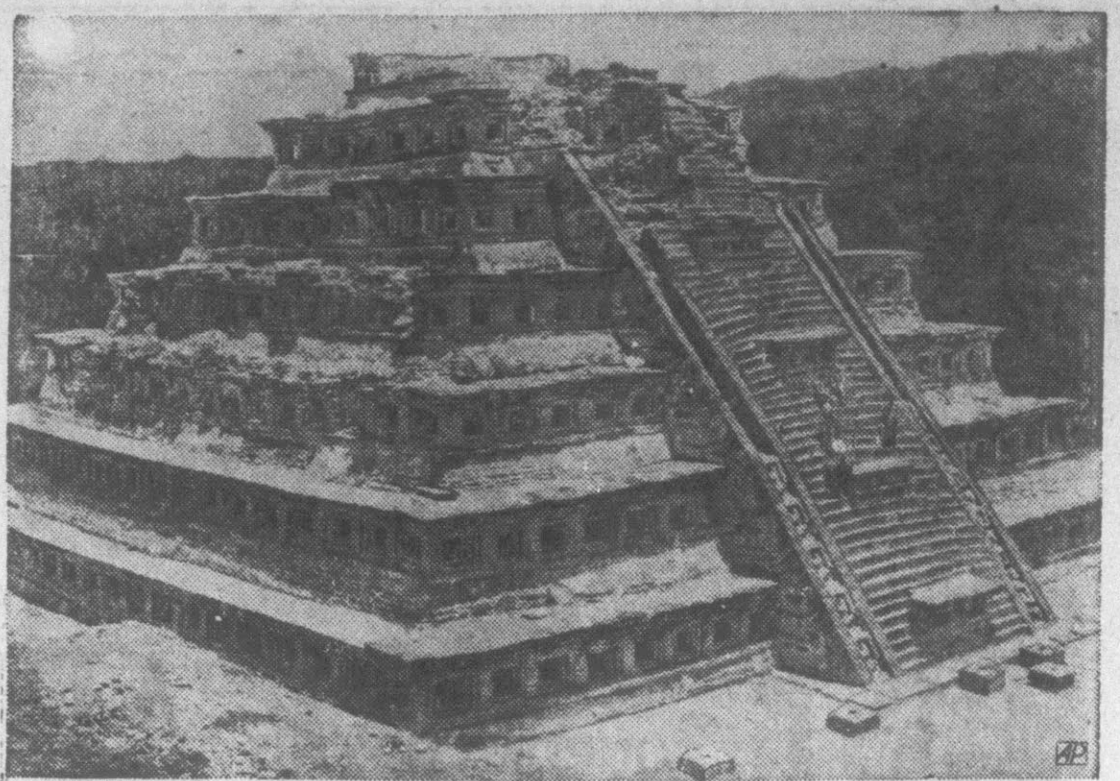

In reality the process in Moscow does not seek to fix the degree of responsibility of the young Powers. It has the sole intention of making accusations against the U. S. State Department and the Pentagon, even the entire American nation and all the Western world.

"This is the truth. It is sad that the life or the liberty of a man is the object of this painful comedy. But it is even sadder that a great country and a great people like the Russians should make themselves believing spectators of the process. One speaks of brainwashing in reference to the young Powers. But the true brainwashing is that which the Russians undergo continuously."

France's independent Parisien carried its report under the headline: "Powers does the best he can before the Soviet judicial machine."

In neutral Sweden the Stockholms-Tidningen editorialized: "One can perhaps venture to hope that even the Russians will recognize this little man who got into a squeeze between the big shots as a comparatively innocent party and that his punishment will be in accordance with this estimate."

German newspapers carried no editorial comment on the trial.

Policeman Saves Policeman's Son

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — Patrolman Joseph Montedoro was manning his post on a downtown corner when a 2-year-old boy broke from his mother's hand and dashed into the street. Montedoro sprinted in front of an oncoming delivery truck and swept up the youngster. The truck narrowly missed them.

Then Montedoro discovered who he had rescued—the son of Patrolman Gerald Landrigan, who was walking his beat a few blocks away.

Survivors include two sisters, Mary E. Peters of Portland, Ore., and Effie McKinney, Lockwood, Mo.

Forgetfulness Saved Building

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — A moment of absent-mindedness by Mrs. Clara Purdy was credited with saving a building on the Oklahoma State University Campus.

At the end of the day, she left to go home—the last one out of the building. Once outside she remembered she had forgotten her purse. When she reentered the building she smelled smoke and called the fire department which found a blaze in a partition.

Earth's Shadow; May Collapse Echo Satellite Will Move Into

By VERN HAUGLAND
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Echo I communications satellite, now shining brightly in the night sky, will move for the first time into the darkness of the earth's shadow next Sunday night.

For the next month or two space scientists will be watching to determine what effect, if any, the changed conditions will have on the 100-foot sphere.

Will the huge and fragile ball of plastic film collapse, as some experts fear, and lose its ability to reflect radio waves?

Or will it shrink just a little in the cold darkness, and then blossom out into the sunlight again, as good as ever?

Whatever happens, the sphere will have company of a sort as it orbits around the globe once every two hours for the next year or so.

The Air Force's National Space Surveillance Control Center at Bedford, Mass., says it has identified four separate pieces in orbit with the big ball. One is the third stage of the Delta launching rocket, carrying a sun-powered radio tracking beacon like the two imbedded on opposite sides of the giant balloon. The other orbiting objects presumably are other parts of the rocket and launching apparatus.

John W. Townsend of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the Echo satellite will travel in darkness for only a brief period Sunday night. But the dark periods will increase thereafter for some weeks, until the satellite is spending 60 per cent of its time in darkness.

This is caused by Echo's steady orbit and the earth's rotation around the sun, putting the sphere periodically in the earth's shadow. Four times a year Echo will ride in continuous sunlight as it has in its first week. Four times a year the sphere will be chilled by the two-thirds of its orbits that are in darkness.

Scientists disagree on what is likely to happen.

Townsend said one school of thought holds that if there is any gas remaining in the balloon satellite when it starts going dark, the gas will cool and contract and the plastic covering may collapse.

Another believes that the forces involved are so small, the pressures so light, that the sphere will retain its shape.

Jenkins, Merritt At Eglin AFB

A two-day conference of college and university administrators at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, is being attended by Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, president, and Lt. Col. Norman F. Merritt Jr., head of the Air Force ROTC detachment, East Carolina College. The session is scheduled for August 18 and 19.

President Jenkins, accompanied by members of his family, left Monday night for Eglin AFB. They were to be joined by Col. Merritt and members of his family on Wednesday.

During the brief whirl-through program, the college and university people will visit AFROTC cadets from their respective institutions who have been on a four-week summer training program as part of the pre-commissioning exercises. They will attend seminars on the AFROTC college program.

The four East Carolina College AFROTC cadets at Eglin AFB this summer include Wilson T. Arnold of Supply, N. C.; Harry P. Bayley of Swansboro, N. C.; Frank E. Graille of Tarboro, N. C.; and George T. Ippock Jr. of Greenville, N. C.

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Some 100 babies are born in England each year—the result of artificial insemination with the seed of a donor from outside the marriage, reports Lancet, a British medical journal.

The practice apparently has doubled in England in the past ten years and in the United States apparently is still more widespread, the report states.

It is invoked in childless marriages where the husband is sterile or suffers from some hereditary disease that would endanger the life of children. The British report suggested laws should cover such cases.

A special committee did not favor the practice for unmarried women, widows or separated marriages, nor for married women without the consent of the husband. The children of such cases should be considered legitimate by the law, the committee said.

Aspirin Danger

British researchers find a danger of anemia for some sufferers of rheumatoid arthritis who rely on aspirin for treatment. Aspirin has serious and unpredictable disadvantages in a minority of cases, says a British Medical Journal report.

Small amounts of blood are lost through bleeding in the stomach and intestines by some persons showing that anemia is sometimes due to aspirin sensitivity, the researchers from London's Ham-mersmith Hospital indicate.

Aspirin Help

Aspirin may be an inexpensive aid in relieving symptoms of diabetes and in lowering blood cholesterol, reports an article in the New Physician, Journal of the Student American Medical Assn.

Taken in frequent doses it spurs the body's hormone system and is known to reduce blood sugar, as well as its common uses in reducing fever and pain.

Pay Now, Pull Later

A prepaid dental care plan for the children of labor union members has been labeled a success by all parties concerned, reports the Journal of the American Dental Assn.

Some 2,300 children of members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union-Pacific Maritime Assn. took part in the plan during the past three years.

The Oregon State Dental Assn. operated the plan for the union. Dentists were appreciative at first. But in a poll, they indicate that the plan is a great success, and should be broadened and extended to other unions.

No Easy Way

Fat persons who want to be hypnotized out of their overeating habits had best forget such seemingly easy, quick methods, a California psychiatrist reports.

Not only is such treatment usually ineffective, it is potentially dangerous and may heighten or create new psychological problems, says Dr. Charles W. Wahl of the University of California at Los Angeles.

When should hypnosis be considered as a diet aid?

Only when the dietary condition threatens the life of the patient—and outweighs the risk of later psychological damage that may come from hypnosis, he writes in the Journal of the American Dietetic Assn.

New Car Backed Into The Lake

NORTH ADAMS, Mass. (AP)—Mrs. Donald Goodrew of Cheshire unintentionally launched her new 1960 automobile in Hoosac Lake Wednesday.

She backed the car to the water's edge to float a boat from a trailer attached to the car.

When she left the car to unhitch the trailer, the car backed into the water. It sank up to the roof.

A passing truck pulled it out. The car is now in drydock in a garage.

County Has 23rd Case Of Polio

SPARTANBURG, S. C. (AP)—The 23rd case of polio this year has been reported in Spartanburg County.

The state board of health said Wednesday the previous high during the 20 years from 1939 to 1959 was 22 cases in 1955.

Governor Plans 'Move' Capital

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—When the people seem to be having trouble getting to the capital to see the governor, there is one obvious solution—and Kentucky is taking it.

Moving the capital to the people, Gov. Bert Combs is making arrangements to move his office, for two days each next week, to Mayfield, 250 miles away in western Kentucky, and to Maysville, in northeast Kentucky.

"This not only will give the people an opportunity to talk directly with me," Combs said, "but will give me an opportunity to find out what is on their minds."

Church Portrays Biblical Figures In Modern Garb

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Jesus and his disciples were portrayed in highly unconventional portraits today as modern figures clad in casual shirts and clam-digger type slacks.

There were many other bold departures from the traditional images, which show the Master and his men in the flowing robes of antiquity.

In the old-style pictures the beards of Christ and his followers are full and of classical contours; the hair falls nearly to the shoulders, or is a luxuriant mane. Now the beard is slight, hardly more than a tuft. The hair is no longer that of the popular notion of an esthetic.

It is all part of a program by the United Church of Christ to make Sunday School more interesting to children, to make Bible pictures come alive.

Church leaders have spent eight years and a million dollars on the development of the new curriculum. The first unit, for children 3 to 6, is being previewed at a workshop sponsored by the Pennsylvania, New York and Potomac Synods of the Evangelical and Reformed Church and the Congregational Christian Conference of Pennsylvania.

The United Church of Christ was formed by the union of the Evangelical and Reformed Church with the General Council of the Congregational Christian Churches.

The Old Testament prophets and patriarchs, the kings and psalmists, also have a mid-20th century look in this new approach to religious education. Bible stories are retold in nursery rhyme fashion.

The pictures of Bethlehem, of the crowded inn and of the stable steaming from the breath of cattle and sheep, are in keeping. There are no wise men bearing gifts, no flights of angels in the story of the Nativity. The accent is on the manger, the domestic animals. That is because children grow up with gentle animals, make them a part of their lives. Thus the children are made to feel more personally involved in the stories.

The Rev. Allen Kroehler, of Philadelphia, director of children's work for the church, said: "The 3-to-6-year-olds are creatures of the here and now. They understand best their own immediate experiences. They have little sense of time and space. They are not skilled with words, and have almost no ability to deal with ab-

"We have found that children cannot accept the old pictures, which are formal, often grim, unrelated to what the children know as reality. The new pictures, always colorful, always reverent, of course, have a simplicity of feature that appeals to youngsters. We have smiling faces in these new books instead of the old austerity so strange to a child."

Used Car Sales Are Restricted

NEW DELHI (AP) — An Asian diplomat preparing to leave India agreed after some dickerings to sell his 1960 Chevrolet to a New Delhi dealer for the equivalent of $13,800.

Before the car could be handed over, another New Delhi dealer offered $15,300. The diplomat hesitated long enough to get a bid of $1,380 from a Bombay dealer. He then sold to the original bidder, who by now was willing to pay $17,000.

The incident brought whistles even in a city grown cynical through years of wheeling and dealing by foreign diplomats. The Times of India figured the diplomat spent about $3,500 for the car, including duties. He had kept the automobile six months.

Under import controls, virtually all luxury goods are excluded from India's regular trade channels. As a result, departing diplomats find a thirsty market for virtually all their possessions—even used bathing suits.

Until 1957, there were no restrictions whatever, and some diplomats retained a succession of automobiles. The government then began requiring permission before such sales. The general effect was to restrict each diplomat to the sale of one car for each two-year tour of duty.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The current 2 1/2-day stock market rally faltered early this afternoon as prices turned mixed. Trading slackened.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 20 to 220.30 with the industrials down 10, the rails off 40 and the utilities off 10.

Since the market averages have advanced on nine of the ten past sessions—Monday was a losing day—analysts said profit taking was logical.

The market was higher at the start but the advance was labored. American Motors was bought heavily as Wall Street continued to respond to expansion plans and forecasts of a 20 per cent sales gain in 1961. As trading wore on, however, AMC was the only auto stock to hold a gain and it was fractional.

Aircrafts also were early leaders but they turned ragged. Steels, chemicals, rails and airlines declined. Building materials and drugs worked higher.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 1.40 at 625.14. Corporate bonds advanced.

U.S. government bonds rose for the first time this week.

Tranquilizer Gun Now Helps Dog - Catching Business

TRANQUILIZER RIFLE . . . here utilized to quickly and painlessly capture stray or loose dogs by Pitt Warden Bell, is rapidly becoming integral part of county's Rabies Control Program.

By ROY MARTIN
Reflector Staff Writer

Science has taken a hand in the business of dog catching these days . . . in the form of a tranquilizer gun now being used by Pitt County Dog Warden, Willie Bell.

The gun, called the "Cap-Chur" gun, is a Crosman pellet rifle, operating on carbon dioxide, which has been modified from shooting pellets to propelling a syringe containing tranquilizing drugs.

According to Bell, his department has had the gun about two weeks, and it has proven to be quite satisfactory in its performance.

The gun is used, not only for dogs, but also for goats, cows, deer, or horses. It has an effective range of about 40-50 yards, but will not do permanent damage to the animal.

The purpose in the acquisition and use of the gun by the Pitt County Health Department, according to Bell, is dogs "we can't afford to shoot."

Bell, in explaining the effect the drugs have on the dog, said, "It saves killing a throughbred dog, by just knocking them down and putting them to sleep."

The gun was purchased for the use of the dog warden's department, in conjunction with the rabies control program, underway since 1954.

Under this program, every physician treating any person bitten by a dog or any other animal must report the biting to the County Health officer. If the person is not treated by a doctor, according to the Pitt County Rabies Control Program adopted in 1954 by the board of health, "it shall be the duty of the person bitten, if over sixteen years of age, or in case of a child sixteen years or younger, it shall be the duty of the parent or guardian to report this fact to the health officer."

The animals concerned in the biting incident, are required by the Health Department to be confined for ten years of observation, and during that time, the animal shall be impounded.

Dr. Georgia V. Mills, Pitt health director, has specified that the animal shall not be confined and observed at home, but shall be observed in the county pound or at a veterinarian's office.

"In this way," says Dr. Mills, "all such animals can be observed at one of two locations, which is a factor when many dogs that have bitten people in Pitt County are under observation at the same time." The main object is close observation of each animal in case it shows signs of rabies, and the physician can start anti-rabies treatment on the bitten person immediately, according to Dr. Mills.

Dr. Mills added, "As the number of dog bites has increased along with the threat of rabies by stray dogs, the two animal wardens (Bell and George Crawford) have instructions to treat all dogs without collars and vaccination tags as stray dogs and dispose of them immediately."

In the cities of Greenville, Ayden, Grifton, Farmville and Bethel, where the leash-law is in effect, all dogs not tied up, penned or on a leash and without collars and tags will be disposed of as strays.

All dogs running loose but with collar and tags will be taken to the pound and kept for five days. If free-running dogs with collars and tags cannot be caught, they will be medicated with the tranquilizer gun and held in the pound five days. If the dogs are unclaimed at the end of the five day period, a place will be provided for them elsewhere.

Tobacco Tips

By S. J. WEEKS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

Nematodes are costing tobacco growers more money than any other tobacco disease. However, much progress has been made in reducing losses caused by nematodes.

The results of experiments and farm demonstrations indicate that certain soil fumigation practices such as plowing out tobacco stubbles immediately following harvest and the rotation of tobacco with nematode resistant crops will give good nematode control. Immediate control can be obtained with a soil fumigant. It must be remembered that soil fumigation pays only in fields where nematodes are a problem. In fields where the population of nematodes is low and a suitable rotation and cultural practices are being used, the use of a soil fumigant might not be a profitable practice to use.

Therefore, it is very important for you to know the level of nematode population for each field on your farm in which tobacco is grown. Once this information is obtained you can then plan the best nematode control program for your farm. If an accurate nematode population is not determined it is not advisable to take the risk of not fumigating.

The only way to determine the severity of nematode disease is by checking the roots immediately following tobacco harvest. This system has been used for many years in connection with crop rotation, soil fumigation and fall practices experiments and demonstrations. It has been found to be fairly accurate in predicting what will happen the next time the field is planted to tobacco. Once the severity of nematode damage is determined a control program is planned for the next crop of tobacco, which may be two or three years in the future.

Any farmer making a request will be shown how to make reading of root knot damage in his field. After you have completed the survey for your farm I will be glad to assist you in preparing a suitable nematode control rotation and will make other control suggestions, that will help reduce the nematode population.

It is very important that this important task be performed immediately, in order to plan a nematode control program for your farm.

Want Gunshots At Dump Ended

Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs today requested that persons stop discharging firearms at the city dump.

According to the chief, contractors are engaged in construction work near the dump and the discharging of firearms in the area is endangering the men.

City Manager Leonard Bixom said that in the past, the police department has not been overly strict about people shooting at the dump. He pointed out that the shooters were killing rats which infested the area.

Bixom continued, "now, workmen are engaged in clearing land for the construction of a pipeline and pumping station for the sewage disposal plant" in the area and the shooting was "endangering their safety and it would have to be stopped."

Bixom noted that men working at the dump have been instructed to tell people to leave the area and, he added, the police department will also patrol the area in an effort to stop the shooting.

He pointed out that state and local legislation prohibits discharging firearms within one-half mile of the city limits.

Both Bixom and Gibbs said they did not want to see anyone arrested for shooting at the dump, but if necessary to protect the workmen, arrests would be made.

Cool Weather To Continue In Eastern Carolina

Cool, man, cool, is the weatherman's forecast for today, tonight and Friday.

Yesterday, the low temperature dipped down to 69 degrees, and the high was only 86 degrees, which is a bit chilly for this time of the year. Today the low went even lower to 67 degrees, and at 8 a.m. Thursday the temperature had climbed to 74 degrees, J. M. Fleming of the Greenville Utilities Plant said.

The weatherman further predicted considerable cloudiness with a few showers possible for the upper coast today and tonight. He predicted Thursday's high would be 80 to 88 degrees with the low tonight in the 60s.

The Tar River level is at an 8-foot standstill today, Fleming reported, with no rain recorded in the past 24 hours.

State Theater Reopens In Greenville Tomorrow

The State Theater, closed for several years will reopen tomorrow under the management of Van Jones, a native of Ayden.

The theater, which was built in 1913 and opened for business in 1914, has been completely redecorated. A new screen has been installed, new projection and sound equipment put in place and a concession stand added. The seats in the building have been cleaned and rebuilt also, Jones said.

Jones said the new State will be in direct competition with other theaters in town and will present first-run shows. The opening picture, "It Started in Naples" starring Clark Gable and Sophia Loren is a pre-release, according to Jones, especially for the opening. The picture was originally scheduled for release Sept. 12.

Long-stemmed red roses will be given to the first 300 ladies attending the newly remodeled movie Friday Jones pointed out. Jones said he decided to open the theater last October but had to wait until the lease on the building expired. The theater was formally leased by the North Carolina Theaters Inc. which has held the lease on the building since 1930.

Jones started to work for the Stewart-Everett Theaters in Ayden in 1954 after attending East Carolina College. He later became manager of the Myers Theater in Ayden and then went into business for himself in Warrenton.

While operating a theater in Warrenton, he bought a drive-in theater in Roanoke Rapids which he still owns.

Jones married the former Jean Cox of Greenville and has two children, a boy 7 and a girl 4.

Illegitimate Births In Pitt Fell During July

Pitt County's illegitimate birth rate fell sharply by nearly 50 per cent in July, according to vital statistics records at the Pitt Health Dept.

Following June's high total of 1960 of 38, July illegimates dropped by 17 to 21, including 2 white and 19 Negro. June's 38 included 37 Negro and one white.

The decrease was seen in spite of a slight rise in the live birth column for July. A total of 150 births, second highest for 1960, were recorded during the month. Of these, 66 were white; 84 were Negro.

Deaths, recorded as 42 during July, took a turn upward—13 more than June's total. Of the 42, 20 were white; 22 were Negro. Cancer took four lives.

Other July totals:
Stillbirths — 6 (4 white, 2 Negro); deaths under one month—4 (2 each); and deaths under one year—6 (2 white, 4 Negro).

Remind Deadline For Nominating

Offices of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee reminded Pitt growers today of next Tuesday's deadline for nominating candidates for community committees by petition.

Community election boards met Aug. 12 to select at least 10 community committee candidates.

Nominees may be added to the slate chosen by the local boards by using a petition signed by 10 eligible voters.

Election of community committees is set for Sept. 8. The county committee will be elected from the community chairmen at the county convention Sept. 23.

Baton-Twirlers Go 24 Hours In Endurance Test

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two tired but determined 11-year-old girls have passed the 24-hour mark in their bid for an endurance record for baton twirling.

Donna Bell and Carol Ann Short, both of Fayetteville, are leading in a baton twirlathon being put on by a Fayetteville television and appliance store. It's a move to drum up interest for the International Majorette Championships scheduled here next week Aug. 22-27.

Donna and Carol Ann began twirling their batons at 8 a.m. Wednesday. They were still going at 8 a.m. today, but looking a little tired. They took five-minute breaks each hour throughout the night, munching cookies and sipping coffee.

New entrants in the twirlathon include 18-year-old Kathryn Wilkins of Portsmouth, Va., and 12-year-old Billy Birchfield of High Point. They started off this morning.

Buzzards Forced Plane To Land

KING, N.C. (AP) — A flock of buzzards smashed the windshield and punched holes in a crop-duster airplane today, but the pilot landed the craft safely.

The pilot, 31-year-old Ed Gibbs of King, suffered minor cuts from the broken glass.

Gibbs said he was en route to a dusting job when the buzzards rose from the ground into his path near the Quake Gap community. Three or four of them struck the craft before he could turn away.
