Security Council Action Sought To Halt Flow Of Arms To Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary General Dag Hammerskjold today called for Security Council action to halt the flow of outside aide to warring factions in the Congo.

The call presumably was directed against Soviet military aid, although it might apply also to Belgian arms.

Hammarskjold also told the 11-nation council in a special post-midnight report that it may be necessary to disarm Congolese military units temporarily since these forces are an obstacle to the re-establishment of law and order.

The secretary general did not say which country was sending military supplies into tre Congo independently of the U.N.

His statement followed closely President Eisenhower's blast at the Soviet Union for its alleged interference in the troubled African nation.

News dispatches have reported a small fleet of 14 Soviet troop transport planes, trucks and about 200 technicians are in the Congo to help Premier Patrice Lumumba put down secessionists.

But a spokesman for the secessionist Katanga provincial government said Wednesday considerable shipments of arms were being received from Belgium. A plane carrying nine tons of arms landed in Katanga Wednesday, the spokesman said. The arms were described as having been ordered by the Congo army before independence, but were now being delivered to Katanga.

Officials in Washington indicated there would be strong U.S. pressure for a move to halt the flow of Soviet technicians and military supplies. Washington reports said Hammarskjold already had complained privately to the Soviets about the amount of Soviet aid arriving in the Congo and to have received an indignant reply.

The council is expected to meet Friday, or Saturday, to consider the new Hammarskjold report, which urged a new appeal to all countries to refrain from actions which might aggravate the situation.

Tunisian Ambassador Mongi Slim, only African member of the council, was understood to be working on a resolution embodying this and other recommendations by the secretary general aimed at easing the Congo conflict.

These include: An appeal to the warring factions to settle their differences by peaceful means.

A clarification of the mandate of the U.N. military force.

Establishment of a special account of $100 million for the immediate financial support of the Congo government to avert economic collapse.

Hammarskjold described the situation in the Congo as increasingly grave and said the internal conflicts "have taken on a particularly serious aspect due to the fact that parties have relied on and obtained certain assistance from the outside, contrary to the spirit of the security council resolutions."

Lumumba Claims UN Interfering

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Premier Patrice Lumumba's press office charged the United Nations with interfering in the Congo's political conflict today and said important decisions concerning the United Nations would be taken tonight.

Lumumba's office put out the statement in the wake of the National Assembly's action Wednesday voiding attempts by the premier and President Joseph Kasavubu to fire each other from their jobs.

The press office communique described the Assembly's action as an annulment of Kasavubu's ouster order.

It also indicated that the premier intends to pursue his policies despite mounting indignation over his acceptance of Sovet aid in the troubled Congo.

"The government confirms that the army and the police have not obeyed the order of the chief of state to lay down their arms," said the communique. "On the contrary, the army and police remain loyal to the republic. The latter has the situation in hand."

The announcement indicated a showdown was at hand with the U. N. which has silenced the Leopoldville radio, and shut down traffic at airfields despite the premier's protests.

It appeared almost certain that Lumumba intended to demand that the U. N. pull its forces out of the Congo.

The U. N., acting under its Security Council mandate, has taken a stronger stand in the past few days to try to avert civil war in Kasai Province where Lumumba's soldiers have been trying to stamp out a secessionist movement with Soviet aid.

Albert Delvaux, Lumumba Cabinet minister who defected to join the Kasavubu ranks, charged in the Senate today that arms had been delivered by Soviet planes to Stanleyville in the northeast Congo.

Soviet planes have also been used to transport Lumumba's soldiers to Luluabourg and Bakwanga the center of his fight with followers of Albert Kalonji who has set up a self-styled Mineral State in Kasai Province, in eastern Congo.

Screaming Congolese senators today barred Lumumba from addressing the Senate.

The Congo could become one of the most dangerous spots in the cold war in view of obvious Soviet insistence on gaining a foothold here.

The Soviet Union is known to have 14 troop-carrying planes in the country already, and has delivered 100 trucks for transporting soldiers and supplies for Lumumba.

Just what quantities of arms and ammunition have been delivered is uncertain.

The tone of today's communique was in sharp contrast to the conciliatory note adopted by Lumumba Wednesday when he called on the assembly to set up a committee to iron out his differences with Kasavubu. The legislature said it would appoint such a committee.

Supporters Of Gavin Meet Here; Candidate Plans Greenville Talk

A group of some 135 Citizens for Gavin for Governor began laying plans here last night to support Republican candidate Robert L. Gavin.

Jim Rawleigh of High Point, state chairman of the citizens committee, told the Gavin backers the committee has 'aken over a "major portion" of the financing of Gavin's state-wide campaign.

The group here last night, representing a five-county area, began an organized effort to promote a major Gavin address scheduled for Austin Auditorium on the East Carolina College campus at 8 p.m. Monday.

Gavin is scheduled to arrive in Greenville around 5 p.m. to visit a tobacco market before his 8 o'clock Monday.

Gavin is scheduled to arrive in Greenville around 5 p.m. to visit a tobacco market before his 8 o'clock address. He will leave Greenville Tuesday at 10 a.m.

Gavin's visit here is a part of his tour of Eastern North Carolina's major tobacco markets.

The five-county area, including Pitt, Greene, Lenoir, Wilson and Wayne, is one of 17 sections of the state that are organizing behind the Gavin movement.

The local area is planning a fund-raising dinner to precede Monday night's address. The time and site of the dinner will probably be announced this weekend, a spokesman said today.

Of last night's crowd, 80 persons represented Greenville. Wiley Gardner, who heads the Greenville group, reported today 75 per cent of the meeting's attendance represented registered Democrats who "do not wish to support Democratic candidate Terry Sanford. Rawleigh pointed out there is a "need to raise $350,000 of which $150,000 will be spent on television."

John A. Wilkinson, Washington attorney, also spoke to the group.

Gardner said today the area organization will distribute bumper stickers, lapel buttons, and brochures, but not posters "since the Sanford organization has shown such destructive tendencies" during the recent Democubernatorial primaries.

Rawleigh emphasized the committee does not endorse any other GOP candidate, "although it will charter Nixon-Gavin citizens committees."

The High Point businessman said this morning, "we will probably be Nixon-Gavin state-wide by tomorrow."

He said, "If a local committee desires to support both men, our organization will charter it."

He said the committee is a nonpartisan amateur organization designed to "provide a home" for persons not desiring to support Sanford.

Gardner told the Daily Reflector today the Greenville committee is in the process of organization and will probably elect and announce its officers this weekend.

Farmers Casting Votes Today In ASC Election

Pitt County farmers at 7 a.m. today began casting ballots for community committeemen under the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation program.

Elected today for each of Pitt's 22 ASC communities will be a chairman, a vice-chairman, a regular member, and two alternate members to serve on the respective community committees.

The 22 community chairmen elected today will choose the Pitt County ASC committee for 1961 at the Sept. 23 county ASC convention.

An average turnout of Pitt's 9,000 eligible ASC voters was indicated by the balloting during the morning hours.

Candidates with the highest vote totals in the respective communities will be declared community chairmen. Second highest will be proclaimed vice-chairmen and third, fourth and fifth highest will be regular member, first alternate, and second alternate, respectively.

Pitt ASC Office Manager Wayne L. Wang told the Daily Reflector today unofficial returns might possibly be announced as early as tomorrow noon.

Following the preliminary announcement, the ASC office staff will review any challenged ballots to determine eligibility and announce the official vote count before filing the returns with the state ASC office in Raleigh.

At the Sept. 23 convention, the 22 community chairmen will be authorized to elect the three-member county committee from the county's eligible voters.

Last year's committee will be eligible for re-election, at the discretion of the convention. J. Lyman Edwards, chairman, of Grimesland heads the 1960 committee. Vice-chairman is William Francis Tyson of Stokes. The regular member is Winterville's A. Poe Worthington and the two alternates, W. P. Thigpen of Bethel and J. B. Smith of Grimesland.

The committee chosen by the convention will take office Oct. 1 and remain in office for 12 months.

School Officials 'Ignore' Sit-Ins

DUNN, N.C. (AP) — For the fourth consecutive day Indian children defied a court order by entering all - white Dunn High School today and taking seats in classrooms.

The school officials continued a policy of ignoring the Indians.

Two Indian girls have attended the school every day this week. An Indian boy joined them Tuesday.

The Indians are asking for the reassignment of a number of their children to the Dunn school. Formal applications of four youngsters, including the three demonstrators, have already been turned down.

Trial of two Indians—James A. Chance, 35, and Claudie Groves, 17—on trespass charges brought after a demonstration at the school last week has been postponed until Sept. 22.

Meanwhile, with one day to go before a threatened lawsuit deadline, Harnett County business and government officials were to meet tonight to try to solve the Indian-school problem.

Harnett School Board attorney Robert Morgan, a state senator in 1959, said Wednesday arbitrary admission of the Indian youngsters to Dunn High "might well destroy the state's pupil assignment plan."

Morgan said the board did not intend to change its decision assigning the youngsters to Eastern Carolina Indian School, located 36 miles away from here in Sampson County.

He said any exception on behalf of the Indians could result in integration attempts by Harnett County Negroes.

Morgan said the Indian applications were rejected because they were not filled out properly. He said the board did not consider race in its decision and added that a greater number of white students were denied admission to Dunn High for the same reason.

"The board cannot legally change its decision no matter what the public sentiment is or no matter how much pressure is brought," he commented.

The Dunn chamber arranged the meeting in the wake of an international reaction to the story which gained national attention last week when Indians began sit-in demonstrations at the school.

Letters from points as distant as Mexico, California and Alaska have been mailed to District School Principal A. B. Johnson, who said the pressure has been intense. All the mail favored the Indians, he said.

The chamber arranged the meeting with its board of directors, the county and town school boards, the Harnett County commissioners and the City Council.

Virtually all the parents of Indians students assigned to Eastern Carolina Indian School have refused to send them there. They have contended the school is too far away and not up to a par educationally with white schools in the county.

For the third straight day Wednesday Indian youngsters defied a court order by staging an all-day sit-in at Dunn High. They were not ejected.

Though the court order prohibitee them from entering the school, principal Johnson said policy has been to ignore the youngsters.

Councilmen Will Consider Letter

City councilmen will consider a letter of welcome for Sen. John F. Kennedy who is visiting Greenville Sept. 17.

That item is on the agenda for tonight's monthly meeting. The councilmen meet in City Hall at 8 p.m.

Also on the agenda is a resolution concerning the proposed merger of Atlantic Coast Line and Seaboard Air Line railroads.

Councilmen will consider the values placed on city property for insurance purposes, according to tonight's agenda.

There will be a report on the GE Grain Mill alleged air polution situation. The report will come from City Manager Leonard Bloxam and Councilman W. S. Stafford.

A proposal to rezone property at the intersection of Farmville Blvd and Line Ave. will come up for consideration tonight.

DON'T CALL HIM THAT

OSLO, Norway (AP)—A Norwegian taxi driver was fined 200 kroner ($28) Wednesday for calling a policeman "cardboard-brained"—square head—after the officer had cautioned him about leaving the key in the ignition.

Hurricane Flags For Cuba Coast And Florida Keys

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane warning flags went up today on the north coast of Cuba and in the Florida Keys as rising winds signaled the approach of hurricane Donna.

It appeared that the densely populated lower east coast of the Florida mainland would escape with nothing worse than a gale-force blow, but a hurricane watch was maintained as a precautionary measure.

Interests along the north coast of Cuba were urged to take immediate precautions against hurricane force winds, tempestuous rains and abnormally high tides which will flood lowland areas.

In the Florida Keys, between Key Largo and Key West, winds were expected to build up to gale force by midnight and to reach hurricane velocity Friday morning.

Gale to hurricane force winds, high tides and very rough seas were forecast for the central and southwestern Bahama Islands.

Hurricane Donna, with at least 116 dead in her wake, was located at noon about 20 miles west of Ragged Island in the Bahamas and 355 miles southeast of Miami.

The danger to south Florida faded as Donna failed to swing into a more northerly path as hurricanes often do in approaching this area.

"It rarely happens but in this case it appears that the storm center might hit the north coast of Cuba," chief storm forecaster Gordon Dunn reported.

"We expect a slight turn to the north but Donna could remain far enough south so that Miami will get off rather easy."

Dunn emphasized, however, that Dade and Broward counties on the lower Florida east coast should continue to keep in close touch with the hurricane advisories. There also remained a possibility that Key West will get a stiff blow, Dunn said.

The hurricane raged through the southeastern Bahama Islands today on its way to the Florida Strait between Cuba and Key West.

Very high tides were forecast for the north coast of central Cuba.

Raging seas were building up in the Bahamas. Tides were expected to reach 12 feet above normal in some places.

There was no word from Mayaguana Island, which apparently took the full force of Donna's 150-mile center winds. Communications to the island went out when the storm hit Wednesday afternoon.

Acklins Island and Crooked Island also were hard hit.

In Nassau, capital of the Bahamas, residents were ordered off the streets and Red Cross emergency stations were set up in all districts.

The rains that took a heavy toll of lives in Puerto Rico continued to pour out of the great storm.

Thousands of Florida's "Gold Coast" residents, along the 350-mile strip from Key West to the Cape Canaveral Missile Center awaited word from the Weather Bureau whether hurricane warnings would be posted. The area was put on hurricane watch Wednesday.

Second Inquiry Into Defection

WASHINGTON (AP)—A second congressional committee is going to look into the defection of two U.S. code clerks.

A special three-man subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee was formed Wednesday to check on how the Pentagon and Central Intelligence agency "recruit, screen, re-screen and clear their personnel."

The House Committee on Un-American Activities already had set a hearing for Sept. 16. The group wants to find out how the two turncoats, Bernon F. Mitchell and William H. Martin, got jobs in the first place with the supersecret National Security Agency. The two men charges Tuesday at a Moscow news conference that the United States was threatening world peace.

The Justice Department, in a formal statement late Wednesday, described as erroneous reports that the FBI furnished unfavorable information on the pair to the Defense Department before the two were hired in 1957 by the NSA, a branch of the Pentagon.

Chairman Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., of the Un-American Activities group, said earlier he understood the FBI had informed the NSA before Mitchell and Martin were hired that one of them was a homosexual. He did not identify which of the two he meant.

A Defense Department spokesman said there is nothing in the personnel record of either man indicating homosexuality.

County School Enrollment Points Up Need For Space

Enrollment statistics for Pitt County schools at the end of the first week indicate an increasing enrollment and limited space, D.H. Conley, superintendent of county schools, said today.

The enrollment as of the end of the first week, with all schools reporting, was 13,135. This is 146 less students than reported at the end of the first month of school for last year. Since Conley expects population in the Negro schools to grow another hundred or more students by the end of this month, the enrollment this year likely will top 13,330.

Comparatively, last year's total enrollment at the end of the first month of school was 13,281.

For the white schools, enrollment at the end of the first week this year was 5,930 compared to the enrollment of 5,898 at the end of the first month last year. The enrollment in white schools in expected to remain relatively stable, with little, if any, increase.

For the Negro schools, enrollment at the end of the first week this year was 7,205 compared to the enrollment of 7,383 at the end of the first month last year. However, enrollment in the Negro schools this year is expected to increase to 7,400 by the end of the first month.

Some relief from "tight" space in the Negro schools may be in sight, however. Conley said it is hoped that one auxiliary room each will be constructed at Pitt County Training School and at the Roberson Union School, which would relieve some of the heavy enrollment burden.

Construction is already underway for a seven-room addition at the Sallie Branch School.

U. S. Ambassador And Khrushchev Talk; No Results

MOSCOW (AP)—U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson talked with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev today about two U.S. fliers held prisoner by the Soviet Union since their RB47 plane was shot down more than two months ago. The Soviet leader was preparing to depart by ship for a session of the U. N. General Assembly in New York.

"We discussed matters of interest to both governments," Thompson told reporters after his 90-minute talk with Khrushchev, "including the detention of two RB47 fliers."

President Eisenhower said in Washington Wednesday that one prerequisite for any meeting he might have with the Soviet premier would be release of the two airmen, held prisoner since their plane was shot down July 1.

Khrushchev, for his part, made it clear that he still thinks President Eisenhower should apologize for the U2 flight of May 1.

Thompson declined to go into details about today's talk but reporters gained the impression that he made little progress in the newest effort to free Lt. Freeman Olmstead of Elmira, N. Y., and Lt. John McKone of Tonganoxie, Kan. The Soviets have announced they will be tried for espionage.

The Soviet premier is going to New York aboard the 7,494-ton ship Baltika—called the Vyacheslav Molotov before Molotov fell into disfavor several years ago. Leaders of Soviet-linked countries in Eastern Europe may join Khrushchev for a Communist summit meeting aboard the ship in New York. All of them also are going to the Assembly.

Khrushchev may get away Friday.

The New York correspondent of Pravda, the Communist party organ, wrote that Khrushchev's decision to lead the Soviet delegation to the General Assembly "has thrown into confusion U.S. official quarters."

The dispatch said Washington officials "are afraid of Nikita Khrushchev's attendance at the U.N. sessions," and that "an unbridled propaganda of hatred is being conducted in the (American) press and radio."

"Some members of the U.S. Congress openly urge emigre scum, the fascists who were thrown out of the countries of Eastern Europe in their time, to stage provocations against the Soviet delegation to the U.N. Many local newspapers already carry advertisements publicizing hooligan provocations."

In Washington, the State Department press officer, Lincoln White, said he knew of no request by the Soviet premier to go anywhere in the United States other than the New York area. Communist delegates to the United Nations must get special permission from the State Department to travel outside the area.

Diplomatic sources here said the top leaders of the Soviet Union's European allies would be Khrushchev's shipmates for high-level strategy talks during the Atlantic crossing, which may take nine or ten days. The Communist delegation is expected to arrive in New York Sept. 19, the day before the General Assembly opens.

Khrushchev's announcement he was going by water came as a surprise. The Soviet premier usually travels by air. This will be his first ocean voyage although he made a shorter sea trip to England in 1956 aboard the cruiser Ordonzhikidze with the then Premier Nikolai Bulganin.

At a Kremlin reception Wednesday night he quipped that he was depending for his safety on NATO since crossing the North Atlantic would certainly be in what the Western alliance considered its territory.

Khrushchev was in an alternating expansive and threatening mood in chatting with U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson and his wife at the reception for a visiting vice president of the United Arab Republic, Nurriddin El Khallal.

Grasping Thompson by the arm, Khrushchev said the Soviet Union had information the United States, aided by NATO powers, intended to send a plane over the Black Sea area in September and warned that Soviet troops had orders to shoot it down.

The ambassador replied tartly that the statement was a most serious one and asked whether it meant that the Soviets would shoot down any plan flying over the Black Sea.

Khrushchev replied no, only those that cross Soviet borders or flew too close to them.

The Soviet premier raised again the U2 incident and said he still was not convinced that President Eisenhower knew about the May 1 spy flight by Francis Gary Powers.

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union still would have to have satisfaction over the U2 incident. Thompson replied: "Let's not aggravate the situation any more."

Making a gesture as if to step on the ambassador's foot, the Soviet premier went on: "If I step on your foot you expect me to apologize. Why don't you apologize for the U2? If you are strong, you can afford to apologize."

Khrushchev carried on a conversation more than half an hour with Thompson and his wife and said kiddingly that they would "have to answer for this to Allen Dulles." Dulles is head of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Prices Generally Firm On Area Leaf Markets

Tobacco markets in Farmville and Robersonville posted sales averages yesterday of $57.28 and $56.15 per 100 pounds while continued large volume lower grade tobacco held Greenville's average to $54.46.

Grade-for-grade prices on the three area markets were reported about the same and constant.

Yesterday's activity the 17-market Eastern Belt marked up a sales average of $57.52 from the total of 12,561,956 pounds. Total growers receipts were recorded as $7,225,829.

According to figures furnished by the Federal-State Market News Service in Wilson, season totals for the belt through yesterday were:

Total pounds—120,337,503; total receipts—$68,163,928; and sales average—$56.64.

Raleigh Bound For Deb Weekend

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Editor

This morning six young Pitt ladies left for Raleigh to spend one of the most memorable weekends of their lives. They will be among the 180 ladies presented to North Carolina society for 1960.

Among the local debs are Miss Anne Evans, Miss Ginger Lang, Miss Ann Moore, Miss Carol Ann Tadlock, Miss Betsy Whedbee, and Miss Margaret Hadley Morgan of Farmville.

Their "debut-making" weekend begins with registration today at the Hotel Sir Walter. At 4:30 p.m. Gov. and Mrs. Luther H. Hodges will receive at the annual Governor's Tea. Assisting in receiving will be the ball leader, Miss Susan Carrington Kilgore, and the 14 assistant leaders. Miss Morgan was selected as one of these.

Rehearsal for the presentation will be held in Memorial Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Friday at noon a coffee hour honoring the debutantes' mothers will be held at Carolina Country Club. The ball's honorary chairman, Mrs. Louis N. West, will be hostess.

Beginning a weekend of excitement, merriment and glamor will be the luncheon planned at one o'clock in the Virginia Dare Ballroom, Hotel Sir Walter, for debutantes and their chief marshals.

The Terpsichorean Club will hold its 34th annual Debutante Ball opening in the Memorial Auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

The debs will be presented around 8 o'clock which will be preceded by the traditional cartwheel figure formed with an inner circle made up of the leader and the 14 girls selected as assistant leaders, seven from west of Raleigh and seven from east.

Dancing will be enjoyed until 1 a.m followed by parties in various clubhouses and hotels throughout the night.

Saturday will be filled with more dances including the morning dance at Carolina Country Club given by the Girls Committee and Honorary Chairman.

Again at 9 p.m. the debs will be honored at a formal dance in Memorial Auditorium.

Breakfast For Betsy Whedbee

Betsy Whedbee, debutante, was honored yesterday morning at breakfast by Mrs. Jack R. Edwards at the Episcopal Parish House.

Guests included the Greenville debs, their mothers, and close members of their families.

The featured table held an arrangement of red sweetheart roses. Each deb was remembered with a souvenir of the occasion.

Deb, Bride Share Honors

Deb Anne Evans and recent bride, Mrs. David Evans Jr., were recently honored with an informal hour at the Wesley Harvey home.

Hostesses were Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Carl Wade Jr., and Mrs. Ercell Webb.

Among the guests were the 1960 Greenville debs, who were given red roses by the hostesses.

Mrs. Evans was rmembered with silver and Miss Susie Pope, bride of Sunday, was also remembered with a gift.

Of focal interest in the refreshment area was a frosted watermelon basket filled with melon balls tied with a red bow. Ivy and clematis encircled the basket.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

When you plant your shrubs and trees this fall, take a little time and give your plants a good home to live and work in. Too often, we pay a good price for a plant and throw away any chance it has for survival by bad planting.

Three of the worst planting faults are planting pits too deep, too shallow and too narrow. Planting too deeply puts roots at an unaccustomed level and the results are death of plant or a poor plant. Camellias and azaleas are two plants that don't tolerate planting too deeply.

Planting too shallow exposes parts of the plant to injury by drying out and exposure to injury from cultivating. This loss of roots can cause your plant to die or at best do badly.

Planting in pits too narrow forces roots into unnatural positions and the results are tragic as far as the plants are concerned. Narrow planting pits do not allow room for soil and air pockets often occur when soil is not tamped in around plants.

Too often the only soil used in planting is of an inferior quality. Even with correct depth and width of planting area poor soil will offset this. Good soil mixed with damp peat moss and enriched with shredded cow manure should be placed in bottom of hole and used around the plant.

The planting pit should be at least six inches deeper than ball of plant and 12 inches in diameter more than diameter of plant. For example, a plant having a diameter of 12 inches and a depth of 10 inches should be planted in a hole 24 inches in diameter and 16 inches deep.

When pit is dug, put six inches of the planting soil in hole and tamp it. Place plant on top of this soil and in center of hole. Fill in around plant to about half way, then pack in with foot or tamp. This done, finish filling in around plant, packing soil as above. Build a ring around plant about three or four inches in height. Turn water in this ring or cup (let it run slowly) to settle soil. Fill cup to rim and let stand.

Check back on plant later to see if soil has settled too much. Fill in if needed and fill the cup with water again. After this settles, fill in cup with rotten leaves or pine straw. Check on cup to see if walls are firm. This is important as the cup will take advantage of any rainfall, thus insuring the plant adequate moisture in normal season. This cup should be retained for a growing season.

Good planting will help a sickly plant, but even the healthiest plant can't stand a poor planting job.

Meetings...

The Major Benjamin Chapter, D. A. R., will meet Saturday, Sept. 10th, at 3 p.m. at the Chapter House in Farmville. Hostesses are Mrs. Frank Davis Jr., Mrs. Henrietta Williamson and Mrs. C. S. Eagles.

News From Stokes

Mrs. H. F. Congleton was hostess to the members of her bridge club Thursday night.

As the guests arrived, they were invited into the living room where two tables were set up for play. After three progressions the hostess served a congealed salad with crackers and iced tea.

Mrs. C. S. Whichard was winner of high score while Mrs. H. L. Watson was winner of low.

Dessert - Bridge Shower Fetes Couple

Tuesday night amid a setting of early Fall flowers, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kittrell and Mr. and Mrs. J. Knott Proctor Jr. entertained at the home of the former at dessert bridge honoring Miss Susan Pope and Robert Thompson Jr., who will be married Sunday afternoon.

Covers were laid for 16 bridge guests and Miss Jenny Lynn Thompson, sister of the groom, and Mrs. L. O. Gross, grandmother, and Miss Frances Gross, aunt of the bride.

The honoree's table was laid with an imported Italian cutwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink roses and pink candles in a crystal swan whose neck was tied with pink net, rosebuds and lilies-of-the-valley.

The three additional tables held similar center arrangements and the dessert course was served in crystal swans with lilies-of-the-valley and pink ribbon neck bows.

For variety the groom-elect was the center of attraction. Upon arrival, Mr. Thompson was presented a corsage and Miss Pope a boutonniere. Following the dessert course, a mniature red car, similar to Mr. Thompson's German-make car, was rolled in, containing many useful gifts for the groom-elect, each having an appropriate verse which he read for the amusement of those present.

Following the spirited games of bridge, Mr. David Evans held the floating prize while Mrs. Tyson Bilbro was the recipient of the high score prize for women and Mr. P. K. Andresen the high score for men.

The hostesses presented the honorees a gift of china in their selected pattern.

MR. AND MRS. HUBERT A. JOLLY . . . of 414 E. Third St., Ayden, were honored with a surprise family dinner Sunday evening in celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary. The couple have two daughters, Mrs. Charlie Horn of Winston-Salem and Miss Jolly Jolly, and twin sons, Hubert and George Jolly.

Time For Fried Chicken

RALEIGH — Time for fried chicken.

During September we should have more broilers on the market than a year ago, says Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist at N. C. State College.

Try broiler parts. They cost more per pound than whole birds, but they are sometimes a cheaper way of satisfying family preference.

Egg prices advanced again this week from one to six cents per dozen. Medium and small eggs remain the better buys.

Look for plenty of turkeys on the market during September. Larger turkeys furnish the most meat for the money.

Beef supplies are expected to be about 10 per cent higher than last year. Time for homemakers to choose and use beef often in menu plans. Chuck and rib roasts are two excellent choices carrying low price tags.

As you evaluate your beef buy, Mrs. Uzzle says keep in mind that price per pound is only one cue to economy. Another very important consideration is the amount of edible meat in the cut.

Pork shows little price change. Best pork buys are in whole or half loins, picnic shoulders and some grades of bacon.

Many late summer vegetables are in good supply. Local crops of field peas, tomatoes, cabbage and green beans are beginning to decrease in volume. Local sweet potatoes are increasing steadily.

Local early fall apples, pears and grapes are in heavy supply. North Carolina is the first state to begin any general harvesting of standard varieties of apples. There is a good crop and movement of delicious apples getting started.

Kieffer pears and scuppernong and Concord grapes are in peak supply in our state. The watermelon season is lasting longer than usual because of favorable weather conditions.

More Sick, Confused Men On Job?

It is difficult indeed to reconcile the statements of the Pentagon and the FBI concerning the two members of the National Security Agency who turned up in Moscow this week leveling charges against the United States.

It is not difficult, however, under the circumstances, to find oneself in agreement with President Eisenhower's assertion that the government's security machinery needs a check-up. The security machinery might well need a complete overhaul.

The Pentagon has said one of the two defectors to communism was mentally sick and both were obviously confused. It has also said that the FBI files on the two contained no derogatory information.

One big question is whether the fact that one of the defectors was mentally sick and both confused became obvious to the Pentagon before the pair made their jump behind the Iron Curtain or after hearing the statements made by the min Moscow.

If the Pentagon was aware of fact that one of the men was mentally sick and both were confused, certainly it should have taken immediate and positive steps to remove them from sensitive positions in the government's National Security Agency. To allow persons of that sort to remain in sensitive positions is to invite the divulging of secret information to the Soviet Union.

There is also the question of other employes in very sensitive government positions who may also be "mentally sick" or "obviously confused." Does the Pentagon or the FBI have information now that indicates other such persons being employed by the Security Agency or in other sensitive positions? Has any step been taken to safeguard the security information these people handle?

The situation calls for a careful and detailed evaluation of security machinery throughout the government designed to avoid leaks of secret information to potential enemies. The sooner such steps are taken, the more secure our vital information will be. And the sooner the defects in the current system are found and remedied, the better security the government will have in the future.

Lake Holds Key To Many Votes

By LYNN NISBET

KEY MAN—Information gathered from numerous personal interviews on a recent trip through the west and from scouts asked to report on other sections indicates that Beverly Lake holds the key to a lot of votes in the November election. Whether or not he will turn the key to open the door has not been determined.

Dr. Lake has stated many times he expects to support the entire Democratic ticket, including a vote for Terry Sanford for Govennor—the man who beat him in two primaries. He requested that friends desist from any organized movement for a write-in effort in his behalf. Yet, from some areas in the Piedmont of which Iredell county is the center, and in the middle northeast, embracing Halifax, Northampton and adjacent counties, reports are that a stronger, more emphatic public deliverance by Lake will do more to help the Democratic ticket than any other one thing.

Somewhat paradoxically, the disaffection in these areas is more marked among primary supporters of other candidates than among original Lake people. The Lake folks reason that they tried and lost, and they are going along with the primary winners. Many original Sanford voters still feel resentment at his early endorsement of Kennedy for President — although that resentment is much less apparent than it was a few weeks after the national convention. Several party leaders have told your reporter that apathetic acceptance of the ticket could be turned into enthusiasm for it in many instances if Beverly Lake would spark the rally. They say he has a rare opportunity in this situation to consolidate his position as a recognized leader.

CO-ORDINATION — The need for closer coordination of activities among State agencies and departments bobs up at unexpected places. At the budget hearings this week "Admiral" Leon Williams, director of ports, was outling plans for expansion at Morehead City. "I am glad you are able to expand, despite the bridge," quipped Governor Hodges. (Reference was to the long time feud between local people and the highway commission over location of the Newport River bridge between Beaufort and Morehead.)

Thea Warren Weldon, chairman of the Kerr Reservoir commission, was asking for capital funds to build a restaurant, which would be leased to private operators on a rental of 3 per cent of the gross take. It developed that the restaurant operated at Mount Mitchell State Park pays 7 per cent—and Weldon confessed he didn't even know there was a restaurant at Mount Mitchell. "Another instance," quipped the Governor: "of one State agency attempting to make plans and programs without coordinating with comparable agencies."

POLICY—Another interesting sidelight on budgeting policy developed at that first public hearing on "B" budgets. William P. Saunders, director of Conservation and Development, was outling his requests for expanding services, and giving them priority ratings. He was asked if it was found impossible (and it certainly will be) to grant all the items, would he like to have part of all or all of some. Saunders replied that he and his staff and board had gone over the matters thoroughly and they wanted enough to do a good job in some fields, rather than botch up the works with inadequate allocations widely distributed. One of the troubles has been that agencies would ask for $1,000 for some purpose and the budget group would approve $400. Saunders insistence upon enough to do one job, and let the others wait if must be, rather than botching up all of 'em, seemed to please the budgeteers.

NOT SIMPLE—Actually, the problem is not quite as simple as that. Sometimes part of a loaf is better than none, sometimes part of a rope is not better than none. It was explained this way by a State official sometime ago: "If a man is hungry and needs six biscuits for breakfast, he can get along and do part of his job on two biscuits. But if he is down in a hole and needs 20 feet of rope to get him out, a ten-foot rope ain't worth a d - - - -."

That's why the budget folks have to consider all phases of all requests and determine whether it is a case of an inadequate meal, but enough for limited service; or a case of a two-short rope, which would be completely wasted.

PORTS — Leon Williams, director of North Carolina ports, gave the Advisory Budget Commission a balanced report on activities at Morehead City and Wilmington. These two port cities have been engaged in a running feud for priority consideration. If plans are carried out the Morehead City harbor will be the deepest on the Atlantic coast south of Norfolk. It will accommodate bigger ships than Wilmington. Also, he said that because of peculiar characteristics of the ground, it costs about twice as much to build at Wilmington as at Morehead. Williams balanced these observations with a recommendation for providing adequate berths for passenger cruise ships at Wilmington. That is something P.M. (Pete) Camak, manager of the Greater Wilmington chamber of commerce, has been fighting for through the years. He has spent a lot of time and energy promoting cruises originating at his port as a contribution to the commerce and travel industry of North Carolina almost as important as the freight cargo moving in and out of the Wilmington docks.

Prompt Strengthening Of UN Forces Needed

In spite of United Nation efforts the situation in the Congo has degenerated from one of confusion and unrest to chaos and civil strife.

The present United Nations forces in the explosive Congo may well find themselves unable to cope with the situation confronting them unless they are afforded reinforcements in terms of men and equipment and broader authority to deal with the circumstances in the Congo.

At the outset it was the purpose of the United Nations' troops in the Congo to maintain order, replace Belgium troops and assist in the orderly establishment of the Congo republic. In the place of the conflict between the natives and the Belgium forces in the Congo, the UN troops now face what may well be a general civil war as competing forces vie for control of the huge African territory.

Premier Lumumba has alternately supported and condemned United Nations efforts to maintain order in the Congo. The latest series of events, however, suggests that Lumumba is seeking to force UN troops out of the Congo in order that he might take over full control—probably with Soviet support—and set up a Congo government with close ties to the communist bloc.

The situation in the Congo has now become a threat not only to the people in that large territory, but to all of Africa and the world as a whole. The brush-fire war that is brewing in the Congo could quickly spread to other parts of Africa and engulf a large part of the world if it is not stopped.

It is important that the UN forces in the Congo be given the facilities and the authority to stamp out the conflict that is now brewing and stabilize the situation there before it erupts into general warfare. There is more at stake than just the Congo. There is the entire continent of Africa and perhaps the entire world.

Once Again On Receiving End

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again Russia has forced this country to do what it did in the U2 spy case: admit the whole story only after the Soviets exposed it to the rest of the world.

This time it involves two young mathematicians—William H. Martin and Bernon F. Mitchell—who defected to Russia from their jobs in the highly secret National Security Agency.

It raises a question. Since this government could have taken the sting out of Russian propaganda by revealing the truth before the Russians had a chance to, why didn't it do so?

It failed in the same way when U2 pilot Francis Gary Power and his plane were brought down over Russia last May. When Premier Nikita Khrushchev disclosed the downing, he said the plane had been spying.

Not knowing whether Khrushchev was guessing or could prove what he said, the State Department denied Powers was on a spy mission. As it turned out, Khrushchev had been merely baiting the trap for such a denial by withholding all he knew.

Then he announced Powers had been captured alive and admitted the spying. The State Department then admitted the spying, too.

Last Aug. 1 the Defense Department announced it was searching for Martin and Mitchell who were overdue, after vacation, in their jobs at NSA, which is involved in very secret communications and codes.

The department said the two men, both bachelors and long-time friends who had served in the Navy together in the mid-1950s, had flown to Mexico City June 24. They were traced to Cuba.

On Aug. 5 the Defense Department said "it must be assumed that there is a likelihood" that the two missing employes "have gone behind the Iron Curtain."

What the Pentagon didn't disclose until Tuesday — and then only when forced into it by Mitchell and Martin — was this:

Early in August government investigators had found in a safe deposit box, where Martin and Mitchell had left it, a letter saying they had defected to Russia.

Tuesday in Moscow the Russians, with a great propaganda whoopdedoo, put the two Americans on exhibition at a news conference before Soviet and foreign newsmen.

The two code clerks, admitting they fled to Russia and expect to become Russian citizens, said the United States spies on its own allies. As an example, they mentioned Turkey. The Defense Department referred to their "false statements," but did not say which were false.

The pair read from what they said was a copy of a statement they had left in a safe deposit box, in Mitchell's name, in a Maryland bank in June.

On the envelope of the original statement, they said, they wrote a request that the contents be made public so that the American people would get an explanation of "why we decided to ask the Soviet Union to grant us political asylum."

Mitchell and Martin charged that the U.S. government took that statement and kept it secret because the "Eisenhower-Nixon administration does not wish certain aspects of its pol-

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DO YOU MEAN BUSINESS?

The Sermon On The Mount.

Have you ever asked yourselves why Jesus went up into a mountain to preach? He went to a mountaintop to experience Transfiguration, and we can understand this. He prayed in the mountain. But why in the name of all that is apparent and sensible did he betake himself to a mountain when he wanted to make the most significant utterances of his career?

Because the Sermon On The Mount is meant only for the type of person who really means business. It is not for weaklings. It is not for moral trimmers and compromisers. It is not for those who harbor prejudice. It is not for people who think more of themselves than they do of others. Jesus knew that if he went up on a mountain to preach then those who were really serious about the moral issues of life would follow him to find out what he had to say. The easy livers, the indifferent, the compromisers would stay below. Jesus uttered many helpful and dramatic truths in places other than the mountain, but when he had the greatest of all truths to utter he went up into the mountain knowing that those who were really serious about truth would follow him.

Don't be so silly as to say that you have no use for theology because the Sermon On The Mount is good enough for you. It will take all the truth and grace which theology sets forth to enable you to live up to the Sermon On The Mount—which, by the way, is not easy but very difficult.

Inspiration For Today

Let's dream awhile.

The first part of our dream has a practical start, I'm thinking of the urban renewal project for Greenville's river front. It has taken its first few shaky steps with the formation of a Re-Development Commission, headed by M.E. Cavendish, as chairman and the granting of federal funds for planning the project.

Now the commission is looking for a qualified man to serve as a full-time executive director during the planning and eventually, the actual work on the project.

If it is approved, the Federal government will put up $2 for every $1 the city puts in the project. Under urban renewal the entire area would be carefully planned. Substandarding housing would be removed and the land would be re-sold to private enterprise for re-development either as business or residential area. area.

All this Greenville has to look forward to if plans go along as they are now headed.

The big question is what will be done with the area under consideration, which is bounded on the west by the ACL railroad, the east by Skinner's ravine and the south by Second and sometimes Third St.

Well, many folks think now that the area should be reserved for business development and there is talk of perhaps including a riverside park with boat launching facilities.

But here's another suggestion for use of a portion of the property. Let's think of reserving several acres for eventual construction of a municipal auditorium.

Well, why not? Greenville is fast becoming a convention city for Eastern North Carolina. There are two church meetings scheduled here within the next few weeks and by now everyone knows that Democratic leaders have chosen Greenville for Sen. John Kennedy's only stop in eastern Carolina.

It's not at all unusual to find the big area gatherings coming to Greenville.

Maybe its because East Carolina College is located here with its fine facilities. Any maybe local leaders just outhustle those of other towns. Or it could be because Greenville is centrally located between Raleigh, another gathering point, and the coast.

Anyway its a fact that Greenville has more than its share of such area gatherings. So why not start thinking about truly superior facilities for handling these various functions now?

Its a great dream.

The Spark Of Decency

(Washington Daily News)

Courts are places where people go who are charged with infractions of the rules. Some cases offer defendants who are victims of what might be termed accidental infractions. Others go there who are charged with crimes which certainly cannot be termed accidental.

A recent case in Recorder's court in Washington challenges every spark of decency which a peace loving people ought to have. When 15-year-old girls become the victims of a conniving adult, then we are witnessing delinquency at its worst.

Fifteen-year-old children hardly have a sense of values which can compare with adults. They do not always stop to think of consequences. Their parents will try to instill a sense of values in them, but parental caution and parental advice to a 15-year-old boy or girl often times is looked upon as but the alarming carrybacks to former years.

Times do change, and yet sin remains sin. Progress does give us many new gradgets, but values ought to remain fairly constant. Decency and self-respect are qualities which are eternal.

It is easy sometimes to see why there is so much juvenile delinquency today. The trouble is that far too many people try to ignore it. Attend a session of court where juvenile offenders are present, look upon them and the circumstances which bring them into court, and one will begin to understand that delinquency might sometimes be a natural tendency rather than an inadvertent act. It is a sad commentary on decent behavior which faces us so often.

We don't blame parents for being upset. We can blame parents for not being more alert to certain possibilities. So many people try to blame schools for what happens when in reality in most cases schools have nothing to do with what is taking place.

Only when a public becomes aroused to what is happening will improvements come. When the public acts to stamp out the forces of moral destruction and hold high the spark of decency will improvement come.

It is not the punishment of a 15-year-old child which will do the job. It is the realization among old timers who see the problem and search for the answer diligently which will bring the desired results.

So long as so many are indifferent to what is taking place, then all the courts in the world cannot improve the juvenile delinquency picture.

Actually juvenile delinquency often comes when no law is broken. And in that case courts are helpless to do anything about it. The law of the home in such cases is far more powerful than the law of the land.

So long as parents take an attitude of resignation and say "My child was led into this thing," and then do nothing more to correct it, we are not going to improve. Positive steps are needed.

We need to exalt every spark of decency within us.

Drug Store Shoplifting Is Low

By ELMER ROESSNER

Shoplifting is only a minor problem for drug stores using self-selection and self-service, William T. Kelley reports in the latest issue of New York University's Journal of Retailing. Mr. Kelley is associate professor of marketing in the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at the University of Pennsylvania.

A survey by the American Druggist showed there was 17,020 drug stores using self-selection in early 1959. This was 33.5 per cent of the total. The rate of increase indicates that almost 40 per cent are now making customers wait on themselves.

Mr. Kelley said studies showed that losses by theft did not rise when food, variety hardware and other stores shifted to self-service. "From evidence gathered by our survey, the same would appear to be true in the self-service drug field as well," he wrote. Of 33 drug stores queried, "only one said that pilferage had been higher after the instalation of self-service."

Two stores reported more breakage since customers start to handle the products, but not more stealing.

WATCHED SHOPPERS STAY HONEST

"Several reasons were given for this," Mr. Kelley said. "One is that personnel are constantly in the self-service area on the look-out for pilferage." One store officer said that "mirrors, peepholes, light signals help reduce shoplifting. However, floor supervision will do more to reduce shoplifting than anything else we have tried."

Mr. Kelley continued:

"Another respondent attributed it to the psychological atmosphere engendered by self-service. The customer knows he or she must pass through the check-out and will be subject to inspection at that time. Moreover, since pilfering looks too easy, some respondents said, people sense that there must be some observers or secret cameras about. Another respondent pointed out that the clerk's attention is distracted in service stores by waiting on customers. He said it was easier to make off with merchandise in his service stores than in the self-service units.

LESS CASH LOOT, TOO

"Finally, respondents point out that another source of loss, stealing of money by employees, has been reduced by self-service. Fewer employees handle the money, and it all goes through the recording cash register at the check-out point under the observation of the customer. 'Shrinkage of cash has been reduced to almost zero,' reports a respondent."

The evidence that watchfulness will reduce shoplifting in self-service drug stores as well as in other lines is especially significant because so many drug items are small in relation to their price. A bottle of vitamin tablets, for example, small enough to be slipped into a pocket, may be worth $5. The tablets themselves, if poured from the bottle, would not even make a noticeable bulge in the pocket. Evidence along these lines may encourage more druggists to shift to self-service or self-selection.

FOR THOSE WHO COMPULSIVELY SAY "CHARGE IT!"

Mrs. James R. McManus, a Mill Valley, Calif., housewife, has organized a group called Charge Accounts Anonymous. Patterned along the lines of Alcoholics Anonymous, members agree that they cannot resist the temptation to use the magic words.

As with AA, when a member feels she is unable to resist the urge to start a new charge account, she phones the CAA and another member is sent to talk to her and give her courage to resist temptation.

PERFUME OILS FOUND TO BE HEALTHY

If your girl douses herself with perfume, don't complain. Sniff it up, fellow, and live!

A team of Long Island University scientists, headed by Dr. Jasper C. Maruzzella, has found that of 100 perfume oils tested in liquid and vapor form, 75 were found to have effectiveness in killing bacteria and fungi. The oils tested are used in the manufacture of virtually all commercial perfumes.

Splinter Groups Persist

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Herbert C. Holdridge, Brigadier General, U.S. Army (Retired) is a very busy man. He conducts a mail enterprise entitled "Reveille."

There are those who say that one should disregard such publications, but I disagree. There are others who say that one should not give publicity to all the odds and ends of ideas and personalities and movements that appear and disappear, but I disagree. These splinter movements are very significant, particularly when they persist over a long period, develop a following and get themselves financed. In the present campaign there are many of them which are particularly violent against John Kennedy.

But General Holdridge is not only opposed to John Kennedy; he is also opposed to Richard Nixon. He conducts a propaganda against both candidates. He says of them:

". . .Rigged political parties, rigged national committees, rigged primaries, rigged conventions, rigged nominations, rig ged campaign strategies — the total government of the United States, including the two political party monstrosities, rigged by the International Front of the Wall Street (Big Money — Vatican (Jesuit) Axis."

Now to some this may sound like mad talk; to others it represents the Conspiracy with a capital C. Be a columnist and every day you will receive mail about the Conspiracy. The big conspirator, according to such folks, now is Governor Nelson Rockefeller who has bought both political parties. Holdridge says:

". . .We do not have two political parties, as we claim, or even one political party as is ascribed to Russia. Our political campaigns become shadow-boxing between rival gangs of puppets carrying out the orders of the 'riggers'. To isolate campaign issues from the poisonous concoctions brewed by these political bed-fellows will be beyond the powers even of the Madison Avenue boys — true sons of the Jesuits — who are experts in scientific falsification and double-talk.

The 1960 elections are already null and void by reason of criminal fraud and treason against the Constitution, perpetrated by international outlaws operating through internal puppets. . ."

Now, who are these international outlaws? Well nowadays it is the "Invisible Government." This invisible body is a union of Wall Street and the Vatican. Years ago, it was all run by Bernard M. Baruch but this year, it is Pope John XXIII. Having called Joseph, John and Robert Kennedy all sorts of names, General Holdridge turns on Nixon:

"'Slippery Dick'! Kennedy's counterpart in the Republican Party, holds a record for criminal, ruthless assassinations of political opponents (Jerry Voorhis and Helen Gahagan Douglas). Raised to power primarily by Big Money as Kennedy was by the Vatican. . .

"When the dirty fight between these two dirty fighters is over, the election will go to the one preferred by the Invisible Government. 'Owning' both 'boys' in the ring, how can they lose?"

After a long harangue against every person associated with either party as a leader of any kind, Holdridge reaches this amazing conclusion:

"If it were not for the hatreds distilled by the Vatican against the 'commies', in support of Big Money, the world would be at peace!"

What General Holdridge advocates is a national plebiscite without regard to political parties. His alternative:

"The ultimate alternative is civil war — opening the road to economic, religious and racial hatreds under our competitive economy and inspired by Wall Street and the Vatican. The result —a holocaust of blood-letting! An era of corruption, of exploitation, of expropriation, of bankruptcy, of national and international hatreds will blow itself up in an H-bomb war and civil war. God help the man holding the office of President, whoever he

Grandma Likes Golf

By SY RAMSEY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)— As soon as 73-year-old Mrs. W. W. German Sr. arrives at the golf course with her teen-age grandson, she gives him the usual pep talk:

"Don't get upset or disgusted if you make a bad shot. Forget it, keep your head down and swing naturally on the next shot."

GRANDMA GOLFER . . . Mrs. W. W. German Sr. takes a swing.

Mrs. German has been following her own advice for the 17 years she has been playing.

The white-haired widow believes golf was invented for fun and no other reason.

If anything looks like competition or pressure—any kind of tournament—she won't get on the links.

"That's what keeps me out of the rocking chair and in good health," she says.

She gave up bridge long ago "because I got too upset when I made a mistake."

Her husband played golf daily and their two sons caddied for him, so Mrs. German succumbed and learned the game.

Once she almost quit forever.

"I saw this covey of red-breasted blackbirds. They looked a good distance away. My husband told me to go ahead.

"I went in there with my driver and I saw the bird fall. We tried to revive it by putting it in the water, but it was dead.

"It just made me sick. I bawled like a baby."

That incident hurt Mrs. German more than the time she was hit by a golf ball.

"The man said he didn't dream he could hit so far. I had an egg in the middle of my forehead."

These days Mrs. German, oblivious to birds and other golfers, plays at least once a week, usually with one of her grandsons.

Occasionally a younger woman smiles patronizingly, then looks awed when she watches Mrs. German's form.

"I guess the best I ever did was 47 for nine holes."

Lately Mrs. German has been perplexed by the behavior of her golf clubs.

"I was doing nicely with my woods, but I was just so bad with my irons. I concentrated on them. Then I played wonderfully with the irons and went sour with the woods."

Suds Help Control Allergy Irritants

If there's an allergy victim in the family, it is important to keep your home spotless and dust-free. Floors, walls, woodwork, and all other washable surfaces must be scrubbed faithfully with soap or detergent suds.

As an added weapon against irritants, you can now add to your suds—or rinse water—a new concentrate which is claimed to kill most molds, germs, and bacteria. Mops and scrub cloths used with this concentrate are also said to become germ- and fungus-free.

WOOLEN SOCKS

Always wash men's woolen socks right after wearing since perspiration left in woolen fibers weakens them. Use mild soap and lukewarm water. Don't rub, wring or stretch.

PAN-FRIED STEAK AND POTATOES

Ingredients: 1 package (9 ounces) frozen French-fried potatoes, celery salt, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 T-bone steak (about 1¼ pounds and 1-inch thick), garlic salt (if desired), salt, pepper.

Method: Turn potatoees onto paper toweling; wipe away frost. Sprinkle lightly with celery salt. Over moderate heat, melt butter in heavy skillet (9 or 10 inches); add potatoes; cook, stirring, until thawed and hot — about 6 minutes. Push potatoes to one side of skillet. Sprinkle steak with garlic salt (if used). Add to skillet and brown on both sides, cooking to desired doneness. Sprinkle meat with salt and pepper. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Note: Have "tail" of steak ground and use another time.

Deaf Students Prove Talented Designers

One of New York's most successful fashion shows was presented recently by students of the Lexington School for the Deaf, by girls who designed, made and modeled the high-style bridal and trousseau collection with professional skill.

The audience, made up of ordinarily blase fashion editors and proud parents and friends, applauded each costume with more than casual enthusiasm, amazed that such young girls were so informed on every new fashion trend.

The students had worked for five months preparing the garments for the show, with professional assistance by such noted designers as Pauline Trigere, Tina Leser and Mary Kay Dodson, who acted as commentator.

The girls, most of whom have been deaf from birth, take directions by lip-reading. Dr. Clarence D. O'Connor, superintendent of the school, said he is confident many of the girls will have successful careers in fashion despite their handicap—and the editors and designers present heartily agreed.

FASHION PRO . . . Barbara Farley, deaf student, models white linen sheath with navy piping and matching cashmere sweater, which she designed and made for school showing.

Flashlights work better and last longer if the contact points are frequently cleaned with sandpaper.

Fabric scarves, varied in width and length, can be tied many different ways — on the shoulder, or in a gypsy knot, for example.

Actress Gives Dating Tips

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

"A girl sets the pace with a man on their first date," says teen-age movie star, Sandra Dee. "It tells him what kind of girl she is. If she doesn't behave, she can't blame him for not being a gentleman."

Explains Sandra, one of Hollywood's most popular young stars:

"I went out with one man that everyone called a wolf, but he treated me like a lady because I acted like one. He was perfectly charming all evening. I think girls who have problems with men must lead them on, or give them the wrong impression. A man likes a girl he can respect."

Sandra who believes you "should kiss a boy because you like him, not because it happens to be night time," says "A lot of men say 'yes,' anything you want' when they date me. It gets boring. But I am fondest of one who doesn't 'yes' me all the time. I guess I like a man who dominates me."

The 5 ft. - 6 beauty has had a phenomenal rise in Hollywood—with nine movies in two years.

"I've really gone Hollywood," she says laughing, "and why not? I love it. I have a big swimming pool, the most fabulous blue white mink coat. I've got French poodles, but I haven't begun to dye their hair to match my clothes or anything like that, nor have I painted their toenails. But I may even get to that."

Sandra shrugs her shoulders and says "If you're a movie star, why not act like one. People expect it. I won't be disappointed if things don't continue this way. That's the way I am. But I'm sure going to enjoy it while I can.

Most things do work out for Sandra, though.

"I did a fashion show for the Girl Scouts because a friend was too small for the clothes. It resulted in a magazine cover. From that I got six more covers and started a modeling career. I made $78,000 in one year.

"Then I was sent by the agency to see a man, I thought for a modeling job. It turned out he was a director—Ross Hunter of Universal Puctures—on a talent hunt. He gave me a script to read. When I read in a newspaper that I had been chosen to go to Hollywood, I couldn't believe it. They had told everyone but me."

Sandra was 15 at the time. Her mother went to the coast with her, and she was tutored privately for high school.

"Then they asked me to make a record," Sandra continues. "I said, 'so who sings?' They said, 'you do'. I did. The record sells. You figure it out."

Sandra confesses her voice isn't the greatest, but adds she "never gives up."

"As a matter of fact my most recent movie, 'Snow Queen,' is all voice, no face. It's cartoons."

Sandra is not all face and form in spite of her 18-inch waistline, and other measurements she'd rather not reveal because she's "developing." She can cook too, and just about everything. She loves babies.

Bobby Kennedy Avoids Discussion Of Integration, Civil Rights In Georgia

ATLANTA (AP) — The brother and campaign manager of Democratic presidential nominee John F. Kennedy today veered away from a discussion of integration and civil rights as campaign issues.

Robert S. Kennedy said he has gathered from discussions with party leaders at a five-state campaign strategy gathering that his brother's Catholic religion is the No. 1 issue in the South.

He agreed in an interview that integration-civil rights is a big issue but declined to comment on how he thought it might affect the campaign.

Asked if he feels that the civil rights plank in the Democratic platform might go strongly against the party in the South, he replied only that the Democratic and Republican planks on this issue are similar.

Kennedy meantime announced that Georgia's Gov. Ernest Vandiver has agreed to campaign for the Kennedy - Johnson ticket in Florida and South Carolina.

The nominee's brother, making his first major campaign trip to the South, said his reception has been highly encouraging.

"I feel much better about Georgia, for instance," he said, "now that I have come here and spoken to the leaders."

He discounted talk of a rising trend for Nixon in the South saying he thought there was a good chance for the Democratic party to carry all Southern states.

Kennedy said a visit to Georgia by his brother has not been ruled out. "I certainly hope he can come here," he said.

Kennedy said there were plans for groups to counteract religious bigotry in many Southern states, but he did not know of any such plans in Georgia.

"I am very pleased with the Georgia reception," Kennedy said. "I think we are in good shape in Georgia."

Kennedy and Govs. J. Lindsay Almond of Virginia and Luther Hodges of North Carolina said "scurrilous anti-Catholic literature" directed at the nominee was being circulated throughout the South.

All three, here for a five-state campaign meeting, said they had no evidence that Republicans were responsible, but Georgia Secretary of State Ben Fortson charged that the GOP instigated the literature. Georgia Republican leaders issued a prompt and emphatic denial.

Kennedy said he believed his brother has a chance to carry every Southern state in the November election, but predicted a real battle in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky and even in Texas, home state of the Democratic vice presidential nominee, Sen. Lyndon Johnson.

"We're in better shape in Louisiana and Georgia — better in Georgia than in Louisiana—Alabama, Arkansas and Mississippi," he said.

Kennedy, campaign manager for his brother, said he thought the recent appearance of Republican nominee Richard Nixon had little effect on Democratic chance in the South. "The problems were already here before Nixon came to Georgia," he said.

He declared: "The question in this election should not be where my brother goes to church on Sunday but whether the United States is to become a second class nation."

Georgia Gov. Ernest Vandiver, who has endorsed the Democratic nominees but shown strong dislike for the national party's civil rights platform, welcomed the conferees. Vandiver said he would attend the workshop "merely as a guest."

States represented at the conference are Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina and Virginia.

Florida's U.S. Sen. George Smathers, party campaign leader in the South, said the main purpose of the conference was to discuss technical campaign problems, but he and others conceded that the Catholic issue would have to be faced squarely.

Kennedy said he felt his brother can convince the people of the South that he is strongly in favor of separation of church and state. But he added, people who "think Sen. Kennedy is going to make a tunnel to the Vatican and bring the Pope over" won't be convinced.

Hodges agreed that the presidential election would be close in North Carolina, but the governor said, "If it were not for the religious issue Nixon would suffer the worst defeat in modern political history."

Almond said "undeniably a two-party system is developing in the South," but said the GOP's showing in the last two national elections was due primarily to President Eisenhower's personal popularity and that this would not be a factor again this November.

Report Success In Kidney Graft

PARIS (AP)—A team of French doctors reported today a successful kidney graft between persons of no blood relationship.

The patient was Maryse Geneix, 26, who suffered from a kidney malformation since birth. She has now lived 78 days with her new kidney and is recovering successfully, the doctor said.

Similar grafts have been made between identical twins. Recently U. S. and French doctors performed the operation successfully in the case of two nonidentical twins. The French team was headed by Dr. Rene Kuss of the Foch Hospital in Paris.

The donor was Robert Fayet, 33, brother-in-law of Mrs. Geneix.

Suspect Bomb In Airliner Crash

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) —Officials suspected today that a bomb caused the crash of an Argentine airliner in which all 31 aboard were killed, including two American women.

Two explosions shattered the plane in flight before it crashed in pieces Wednesday in northern Uruguay.

Miguel Moragues, president of the Argentine airlines, said a preliminary investigation ruled out the chance the explosions originated in the engines. He said experts were investigating the possibility of a planted bomb.

The four-engine DC6 was on a regular run from Asuncion, Paraguay, to Buenos Aires, Argentina, with 25 passengers and six crewmen.

The two American women killed were secretaries attached to the U.S. Embassy in Buenos Aires returning from a vacation.

One was Lorraine Connaughton, 39, a native of Randolph, Wis.

The other was Miss Astrid Phoebe Egeland, 31, of Chicago.

Only TV Football Will Interrupt Great Debate

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

If the enfranchised American public doesn't get its full quota of "great debates" between the two presidential candidates, the reason may be a conflicting college football game.

Candidates Nixon and Kennedy are scheduled to make three joint broadcasting appearances — on Sept. 26, Oct. 13 and 21. But a fourth, on Oct. 8, remains up in the air because ABC will be televising the Washington-Stanford game from California. With time differences across the nation, the game may not be over by 7:30 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time, when the nominees would be facing the cameras.

The hour-long programs will be carried live by the four major television and radio networks and the problem was to find times convenient to the two campaigners which would fit into the schedules of the networks. At preliminary meetings, ABC representatives said they would refuse to come into a program already in progress when their football game was ended.

"But we also told them that we would be perfectly willing to knock off the football game when it was still going on," said Donald Coe., ABC news head, "if the candidates understood that they would be alienating a certain percentage of the audience more interested in knowing how the game came out than in watching a political debate."

CBS' drama about the 1919 Chicago Black Sox scandal, scheduled to start the season's Show of the Month series, has been cancelled. Reason given was that packager David Susskind was unable to get legal releases from a 71-year-old former ballplayer who figured in the unsavory episode.

Meanwhile, CBS' new "Witness" series about famous rogues and criminals, starts out Sept. 29 with a program about still-living Lucky Luciano—made by packager David Susskind.

Maybe the sponsor also had some second thoughts about a show recalling a seamy side to the beloved national pastime, particularly after baseball czar Ford Frick announced forcefully he didn't like the idea of the show at all. Knocking baseball could be as alienating as sneering at motherhood or criticizing the national anthem.

Show of the Month, now plans to start off with a Susskind specialty—an adaptation of a provan theatrical hit. It will be "Men in White," a 1933 Broadway play.

A mailing to thousands of persons in this election year of this sort of propaganda is expensive. According to a Financial Report, General Holdridge Minute Men operates on a small budget. Of this, the Report says:

"Yet with a pitiably small budget we have accomplished miracles, proving again that Truth (the Pen) is mightier than the sword. Our materials have reached hundreds of thousands of individuals in the United States. They have been translated and printed in foreign countries, major offices of Government, Federal, State and political headquarters: the large newspapers, Church organizations: labor, veteran & economic organizations, the United Nations, foreign embassies, major centers of public decision have been circularized . . ."

This is one example of a continuous mail that pours into this office from many sources, indicating not only an unrest but a financially supported unrest.

Tuesday a Defense Department spokesman was asked why the government had kept this Mitchell - Martin letter under wraps since finding it in early August.

He said it was a statement of "two turncoats," its publication would have served Communist purposes only, and it was part of an investigation.

Court Will Not Block Monitor

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Court of Appeals has declined to block the appointment of Terence F. McShane, a onetime FBI agent, as chief monitor of the Teamsters Union.

The court action Wednesday was a setback for James R. Hoffa, president of the big union of truck drivers. Hoffa has fought the monitors since they were named to supervise his union nearly three years ago.

The appeals court in effect ruled that it should not act now until such time as McShane might actually be appointed chairman of the three-man monitor board. Hoffa was left free to challenge him again then.

The court asked the U.S. District Court to consider new material that had been presented at an appeals court hearing.

The new material was not specified. It could include affidavits by two New York truck drivers filed with the appeals court Wednesday. The two said that Robert F. Kennedy cursed them and browbeat them in an effort to get their support for McShane.

Kennedy, brother of Democratic presidential candidate John F. Kennedy, made no immediate reply to the affidavits. Robert Kennedy was chief counsel for the Senate rackets committee at the time it was investigating corruption charges against some teamster leaders.

Eyewitness Relates Story Huey Long's Sudden End

(EDITORS Note: The sudden death of Lousiana's former Gov. Earl K. Long on Monday came three days before the 25th anniversary of the assassination of his brother. In this AP interview, an eyewitness recalls the Huey Long shooting.

By DAVID ZINMAN

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Huey Pierce Long — kingfish of the bayou country — strutted down the marbled halls of Louisiana's skyscraper capitol. His bodyguards hustled at his flying heels.

It was 9:19 p.m., Sept. 8, 1935. Huey Pierce Long had one minute before catasrophe, 31 hours before death.

At that instant, he was 42 and the dictator of Louisiana, and he might have been thinking of his next move in an obvious campaign for the White House, now that he had been governor and was U.S. senator.

At 9:20 p.m., however, Dr. Carl Austin Weiss, 30, spotted Long leaving the office of Gov. O. K. Allen. Witnesses said Weiss fired a bullet into Long's side.

The assassination took place 25 years ago today.

One of the few eyewitnesses still alive is John B Fournet, 65, chief justice of Louisiana's Supreme Coutt. This is how he described the assassination in as Associated Press interview:

"I went to see Huey about a political matter that night. A special session of the Legislature was going on, and I waited to speak to him after the House adjourned.

"When the session ended. . . Huey went into Gov. Allen's office. I noticed two or three people standing nearby. . .but I didn't think anything of it.

"As Huey came out, he saw me and walked toward me. I looked to my side. A small fellow in a linen suit and dark-rimmed glasses was advancing with a little black automatic.

"It was a hot night. . I was holding a panama hat in one hand and a handkerchief in the other. I dropped my hat and pushed the man. At the same time, Murphy Roden, one of Long's guards (and today Louisiana's public safety commissioner) grabbed the gun.

"A shot was fired. I believe if I hadn't pushed the fan, the bullet would have hit Huey in the chest.

"Huey was spinning around, trying to get away. He made a complete turn and the bullet got him in the side. He gave one cry, 'Ohhhhr,' and took off down the hall like a scared deer.

"Roden slipped to the floor, struggling for the gun. Weiss stood over him trying to wrest it free. A second bullet knocked off Roden's watch. Then, Roden's hand caught in the trigger mechanism. The gun jammed.

"Another guard moved in and shot twice. I was later informed it was Elias Coleman. Weiss shuddered with his whole body. He stopped struggling with Roden.

At the second shot, he suddered again and fell. Then, Joe Messina, George McQuistion and other guards emptied their guns into his body on the floor.

"It sounded like machine - gun fire. The whole thing lasted only a few seconds. Weiss never said a word."

Since Weiss died on the spot, the motive was clouded. Some say all the facts have not been disclosed to this day.

Weiss, an eye, ear, nose and throat doctor, was an intense, quiet-spoken man. Apparently he was happily married to the former Yvonne Pavy, daughter of Judge Benjamin Pavy.

The most widely held belief about the assassination is that Long's attacks on Judge Pavy unbalanced Weiss. Pavy was an anti-Long, one of the few who had successfully opposed Huey at the polls.

President To Decicate New Space Flifht Base

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — President Eisenhower arrived today for dedication of a space flight center to the memory of his World War II Army chief, Gen. George C. Marshall.

Eisenhower also planned a personal check at the center, operated by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, on progress in development of the Saturn superthrust rocket.

The President's private plane, Columbine III, landed in bright sunshine at the Army's Redstone airfield at 9:58 a. m., after a flight from Washington.

Making the trip with him were Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, newly named chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; T. Keith Glennan, chief of the NASA; and Dr. George B. Kistiakowsky, special assistant for science and technology.

No president has visited Alabama since September 1940 when the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt attended the funeral of Sen. William Bankhead.

Eisenhower declined an invitation from Huntsville Mayor R. N. Searcy to tour the city. The White House said the tight schedule required a return to Washington during the afternoon.

Anyway, He Left All Bills Paid

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—In a divorce action, Doris Cohen complained she painted their house inside and out, mowed the lawn and brought her husband's dinner to him while he was "glued to the television set."

But she said when she returned from a month's visit with a daughter in Chicago she found her husband, Benjamin, missing.

On a table was a stack of bills, all paid, and a note saying he was leving town and "everything is yours."

Also missing, she said, in the suit filed Wednesday, was $1,900 from their $2,400 joint bank account.

A total of 303,218 airplanes were produced in the United States during World War II years, 1940 through 1945.

Threats Forced Family To Leave

BURLEY, Idaho (AP)—A Negro family of 10, objects of threats and abuse for more than six months, has abandoned its shantytown home in this southern Idaho farming town.

Potato plant worker, A.J. Thomas, 43, sent his wife and eight children away last Friday, a few hours after a burning oil flare was thrown onto the porch of their $35-a-month shack. He continued working until Tuesday, then followed them.

No one will say where they went except to say they are in New Mexico.

Thomas told police the flare was thrown from a car which circled the house several times while he and the family cowered inside. Police said that last February a bullet was fired through a bedroom window of the Thomas home. Mrs. Thomas had told friends that teen-aged whites had threatened to burn the house. And, she said, the daughter of a prominent Burley man had thrown firecrackers at her children, aged 8 to 16.

City editor Gayle Norton of the Burley Herald-Bulletin said it all began after rumors circulated that potato processing plants planned to import Negro labor.

But Norton said he didn't know why the violence was aimed at Thomas.

William Reid, a segregationist who was a neighbor of Thomas, told the Twin Falls Times-News of a recent attempt to force Negroes out of the neighborhood. But four other Negro families still live in the area and they have not been bothered.

Alcatraz Inmates Continue Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Striking Alcatraz convicts stood firm today in demanding more privileges, but Warden Paul Madigan refused to worry.

After all, how long can a man stand bologna and cheese sandwiches?

The 255 convicts in the toughest of federal prisons continued a refuse-to-work strike begun Tuesday. Since then they've stayed in their cells.

Their diet consists of a choice of bologna, cheese or tuna sandwiches prepared by guards. The convict-staffed kitchen is closed.

Kentucky comes from an Iroquoian Indian word "Ken-tah-ten" meaning "land of tomorrow."

Two Breeds From The Same Cow

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP) — A cow belonging to a farmer near here had a multiple birth recently but the offspring can hardly be called twins.

One is a Hereford heifer; the other a Guernsey bull.

The two different breeds from the same cow is the result of some scientific meddling. The Guernsey is attributed to artificial insemination; the Hereford to later service by a bull.

Space Expediter Title Misleads

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP — The official title of Bill Armstrong's job with the State of Florida is "space expediter." But he doesn't have a thing to do with the missile space probing program at Cape Canavaral.

His job is to determine what agencies occupy what space in the state's jam-packed office buildings. If an agency needs more room, it tells Armstrong, and he expedites getting it.

The first residents of the White House in November, 1800, were President and Mrs. John Adams.

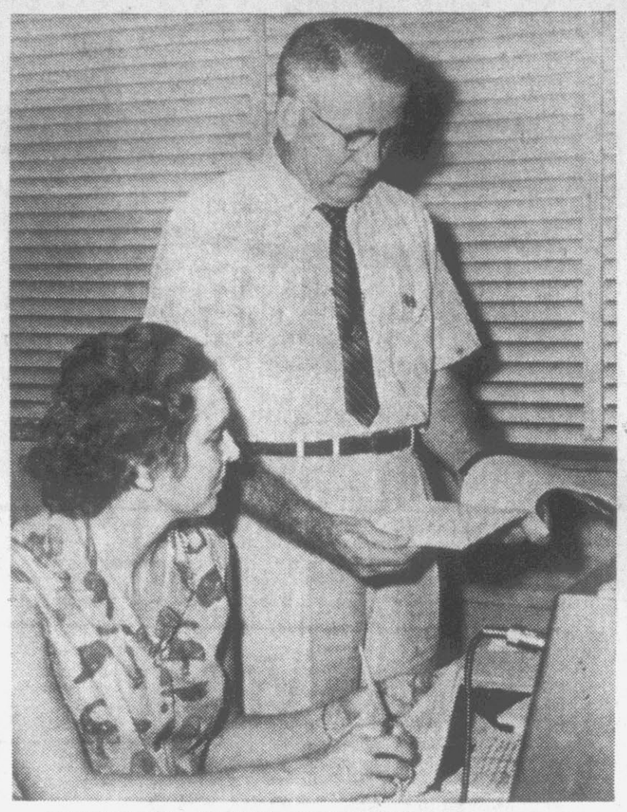
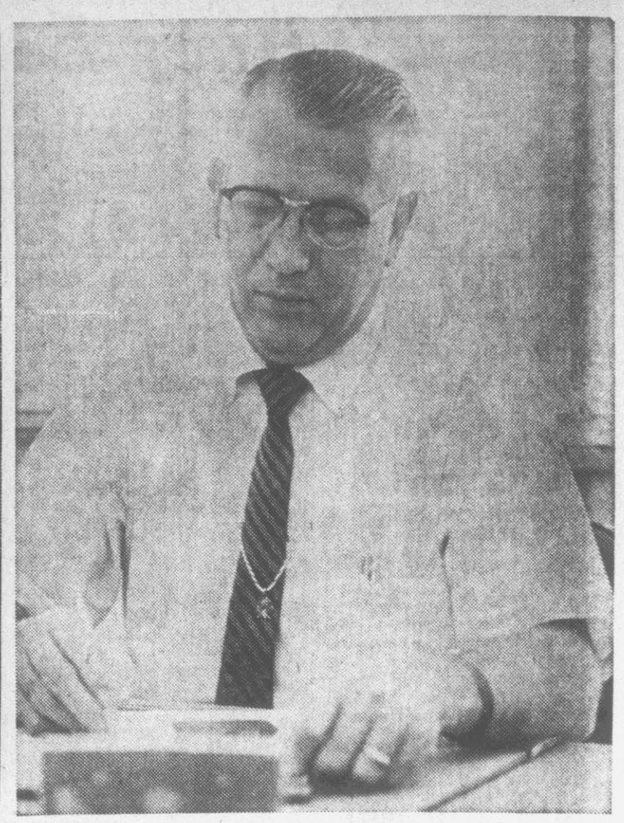
Virtual College Prep School Is Guided By O.E. Dowd

O. E. DOWD . . principal of J. H. Rose High School



CHECKING CLASS SCHEDULES . . . with secretary in office.

TALKING WITH STUDENTS . . . about school activities.



DOWD . . . at work at his desk.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Junius H. Rose High School is largely a college preparatory school, with 75 per cent of the students going on to higher education, but the school also tries to give the group not planning to attend college good vocational training, according to the school's principal, O.E. Dowd.

Dowd, a native of Chatham County, graduated from Dunn High School and attended Duke University where he received his AB degree and his Master of Education Degree. Dowd then went to New York where he worked for four years before coming back to North Carolina.

After returning to this state, he taught at Pikeville, Mt. Olive, Durham, where he was assistant principal and teacher at a junior high school, and Washington where he was principal. He then came to Greenville as principal of Greenville High School in 1942.

Dowd pointed up the growth of the school by saying in 1942 "G.H.S." had about 450 students and a faculty of 17, while today Rose High School has 715 students and 28 teachers.

As principal, Dowd is responsible for the supervision and operation of the school during the school year. He plans and sets up the high school program with the faculty and the superintendent of schools.

According to Dowd, during the years the school has placed "added emphasis on hard work" and preparing its students for careers." New courses have been added to meet the needs and demands of the students. . .both for college preparatory and vocational minded students," he added.

The principal pointed out that "the students make this a good school. There is little turnover in the faculty here and the parents give us awfully good material to work with." Dowd also noted that "the students get splendid training in the school system here from grade one through the 12th grade."

Dowd likes working with young people. He noted that there are an unusual number of young people here "who know what they want to do with their lives and are serious about their work and take advantage of the opportunities the school has to offer." He also likes to see the students "grow in their belief of God, good citizenship and education." He commented that "this group is the best I have ever worked with. . .they frown on anything that is not wholesome, good, and moral."

"The most pathetic thing," Dowd commented, "is the few boys and girls who throw away their opportunity for education and don't take their work seriously enough. . .don't take advantage of what the school has to offer.

"Most of the students in the school are good citizens and get good training through the democratic operation of the school," he noted. "They are used to hard work and accept responsibility . . .they have a lot of freedom."

"They are taught to give service to others and they have high ideals and ambitions." You can "see the results of the high school training her in the civic, religious and professional leadleaders of the community," he concluded.

Dowd is an active member of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and has taught Sunday School and the Men's Bible Class there. He is also a member of the Board of Stewards of the church. A member of the Lion's club for 21 years, Dowd is past president of the local club and a past district governor. He is also active in the Red Cross, the Pitt County Safety Countil where he is program chairman; and the North Carolina Education Association.

He is also past president of the State Principal's Association and a member of the National High School Principal's Association and the National Education Association. He is a member of the seven-man committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary School, of which Rose High School is a member, also.

Dowd's hobbies include hunting, fishing, playing golf and gardening.

Recreation Centers Attracting Visitors

RALEIGH — The Kerr Reservoir, which many North Carolinians and nearly all Virginians still insist upon calling Buggs Island, is a major attraction for travelers and vacationers.

Warren Weldon, chairman of the State commission administering the facility, gave attendance figures in his appearance before the Advisory Budget Commission the other day. During the fiscal year ending last June 30 the record srows that 523,000 people visited the area. On the Fourth of July weekend this year, not counted in the 523,000 last year, there were 47,000 visitors, and on Labor Day (Monday of this week) the count was 32,000.

No breakdown was made as to residence of the casual visitors, but campers have come from Canada, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Virginia and West Virginia, as well as from North Carolina. The commission spent early this year $1,092 fixing up camp grounds—and since May receipts from usage fees have amounted to more than that—in excess of $1f00.

A policy question is involved in the administration of Kerr Reservoir in relation to other State parks and private enterprise recreational facilities. Just now far should government go in providing accommodations? Where is the dividing point between Federal and State government, if one owns the land and the other administers facilities?

What is the legalistic distinction between Kerr Reservoir and Mount Mitchell State Park? One owned by the Federal government, administered under lease by an auxiliary agency of C&D, the other owned by the State and administered like all the other State parks by tre parks division of C&D.

The Lean Rider by CLIFF FARRELL

CHAPTER 24

Paul Drexel led the way across the river, followed by Shadrack with the remuda. Lisa Randolph knew now why all the riders had been so selective in roping out particular horses from their strings for this task. These mounts, she now comprehended, were the ones they depended on for their skill in the water.

Soon they were in swimming water and the current had its way with them, the bobbing heads stringing out and curving downstream.

The point of the herd, guided by Micah Jones and Ygnacio Valdez, came down to the ford at a steady trot and was given no chance to refuse. The cattle plunged in, foundered to their eyes, then to their bellies. They began swimming. The sun reflected from their horns and Lisa could hear their snorting and bellowing.

The drive flowed steadily into the river. Lisa saw Matthew Barbee, on swing, enter the ford. The main body of the herd was in the water now. Paul was nearing the far shore. The current had carried him nearly a quarter of a mile downstream.

Lisa uttered a thankful sigh. Paul's horse had reached shallow water. Paul rode onto dry land. The remuda made it also, the horses lurching ashore, with Shadrack and Paul riding to control them.

The herd leaders reached safety also. Cattle began to splash ashore and scatter along the margin, blowing and lowing. The river was bridged by a wide ribbon of floating animals. Lon Melton and Nephi Smith were in midstream and in swift current, on either flank of the herd, their horses swimming.

The drag entered the river, driven by Abel Barbee and Tom Zook. Hester Barbee spoke in a strangled voice and pointed. A wedge of cattle, caught by an eddy or some break in the current, was sweeping down upon Nephi. These steers were panicky and scrambling over each other for support. Nephi, occupied with trying to turn back other animals, was unaware of his danger.

Abel was standing in the stirrups, spurring his horse into swimming water. Lisa could not hear his voice at that distance above the cattle, but knew he was shouting a warning.

Milling cattle surrounded Nephi. Frantic animals, rearing, striking with their hooves, drove his horse under. Nephi also vanished.

He came to the surface for a moment in an opening among the thrashing steers. Lisa screamed wildly. Nephi, it was evident, could not swim!

She saw that Abel had left his horse and was stroking frantically toward the scene. He was the only one within reaching distance. Cattle blocked his route and he pulled himself over their wet backs. At one point the Longhorns were massed so compactly that he rose bodily out of the water and leaped from one to another before plunging into the river again.

Nephi grasped the horns of a steer. This kept him above water for a time, but the animal went under, carrying him with it. He returned once more to the surface, splashing and clawing frenziedly. He sank again.

Abel reached the spot a moment later and dove. Hester kept saying hysterically, over and over, "Abel! Oh, Abel!"

Around the spot where the two men had vanished cattle foundered and milled, and some were drowning.

Again Lisa drew a deep sigh. Two heads had appeared. Abel had Nephi in his arms and was fighting his way clear of the swirl of cattle. Nephi's horse emerged in the open also. Abel grasped its tail and the animal towed them toward the west shore.

Paul came galloping along the margin and rode into the river, swinging his lariat. His cast sailed within reach of Abel's arms, and he pulled them to safety.

The two of them lay on the shore for a time. Paul standing over them. Presently Abel arose. Then Nephi.

"Nephi ought to learn to swim," Hester said, trying to be matter-of-fact. "It was lucky Abel could get to him."

The scattered cattle milled in the river. The majority made it to the far shore. A hundred or more returned to the bank from which they had started. A few did not make either shore. Soon Horsehead Crossing as clear again, the river rolling silently past.

Lisa tried to climb into the wagon. She found her strength unequal to it. She had to lean against the wagon for a time before her nerves stopped quivering.

"Damn all cattle!" she said aloud.

Abel and Matthew and other riders returned, bringing a raft which they had improvised of driftwood. The cattle that had retreated to the east side were hazed into the river and forced to make it across. The wagons were lightened, and their contents were rafted to the far shore separately. The mules were led, swimming, astern to the raft.

It was deep twilight when Lisa stepped ashore on the west bank of the Pecos.

"How many did we lose, Abel?" Hester asked.

"Not much more'n a dozen is my guess," he said. "We'll tally out when it's convenient, to make sure."

In camp that night Nephi, his return from the shadow of death apparently already forgotten, was laughing and playing a tune in jigtime on his mouth harp. Ygnacio Valdez had Hester splint a broken forefinger which he had sustained during the stress of the day.

Matthew read again from his Byron, and dreamed his golden dreams.

Paul shaved meticulously, preened himself and bided his time until he was able to trap Lisa alone when she was arranging cooking gear at the rear of the chuckwagon. He kissed her on the lips when she turned, suddenly aware of his nearness.

He tried to draw her closer, but when she merely stood passively looking at him, he released her. He laughed. "You've got to weaken some time, Elizabeth," he said. "You're not ice, you're fire. I know that. You know it, too."

A deep and heavy sound arose in the night. Lisa, in the first instant, thought it was the beginning of a distant peal of thunder, although there was no cloud in the sky. The sound increased to a heavy rumble. In the next breath she knew that it was the herd! The cattle were running.

Paul raced toward his horse. Abel and all the men were in the saddle and gone, speeding through the darkness toward the stampede before she reached the open firelight.

She and Hester stood listening. The roar reached its peak and then faded rapidly into the distance. It became for a time a murmur that was the prey of the wind. Finally even this ended. Silence came.

Hester spoke, and it was as though she had not been breathing for all those minutes. "It was a bad run. What could have spooked the critters, tired as they was?"

They waited. Two hours passed. Three. It was past midnight when they heard riders coming. The arrivals came into the firelight, and Lisa saw the way Hester's eyes sped from figure to figure.

Abel was there. And Matthew.

Abel looked at his mother and saw the question in her face. "Everybody's accounted for," he said. "Paul stayed with the herd, along with Nephi, Shadrack an' Tom. The bunch hung together pretty well until we got 'em stopped. What few skittered away ought to be easy to find come daybreak."

"What started 'em?"

Abel did not answer that. He walked to the wagon, got out his bedroll and threw it on the ground.

"Get off the horse and walk back. We don't want a man that changes point with every swing swing o' the wind," is a challenge issued as the story continues tomorrow.

ACC Has Over 300 Freshmen

WILSON, N. C.—Life came to the campus of Atlantic Christian College here as more than 300 freshmen students converged on the campus to begin their four-year experience of getting a college education.

All modern modes of transportation were employed by new students and their families to get personal belongings to the ACC destination. Well into tonight students will be unpacking and getting their new homes in order.

Arrival of the Class of 1964 signaled the opening of ACC's fifty-ninth academic year. A full week of orientation will be started in the morning as freshmen meet with faculty advisors to begin mapping the individual curriculum of each student.

All of the hustle and bustle brought back to life this campus which has been quiet since Summer school classes ended August 19.

On hand to greet new students were upperclass campus leaders from various college organizations. Activity is guided to help freshmen make the transition from home life to life on campus.

With transfer students and upperclassmen scheduled to arrive during the weekend and on Monday, enrollment at ACC is expected to match last year's figure of 1,219—a record number for the College.

Old and new members of the faculty and staff were welcomed to the campus Tuesday night by Dr. Arthur D. Wenger during a dinner given in their honor by the President and Mrs. Wenger.

HE LOSES NOTHING

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Thomas Little didn't lose much when the County Election Commission took his name off the ballot because of insufficient nominating signatures. Little sought the job of county surveyor, a position that carries no pay and has no duties.

The Apostle Paul left such an impression on the Island of Malta during his visit in the year 60 that even today half of the male residents of the island are named Paul.

Little Boy Got His Big Shark

DESTIN, Fla. (AP) — To 11-year-old Terry Burnett, it was an irresistable challenge when a 500-pound shark cruised by the pier where he was fishing.

The boy was outweighed 10 to 1 and had only a light rod with a reel carrying less then 200 yards of 50-pound test line. But he tossed his bait in front of the monster, which took it, and the battle was on.

For an hour an' a half, they tugged back and forth. Three times the shark dragged the boy the 650-foot length of the pier. When the shark approached the pilings, Terry yelled "stomp" and the crowd of onlookers would stamp their feet on the boards to scare the monster back to open water.

Finally, the youngster was able to hold the shark's head on the beach long enough for other fishermen to drive home snatch hooks. It took 10 men to drag the boy's catch onto the sand.

They Enjoy Surveys Despite Dogs And Other Hazards

ON HER WAY . . . to conduct interview samples for the Survey Research Center, University of Michigan, is Mrs. Dorning Jenkins, office contact for Greenville. Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell is an interviewer for the center.

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

For 10 years Mrs. Dorning Jenkins and Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell of Greenville have been menaced by growling dogs, greeted with guns and other weapons an have been stuck for hours on muddy backwoods roads in an effort to perform their assignments.

But for 10 years they have steadily enjoyed their task, and Mrs. Jenkins says she hopes to continue for many more years.

The job? Mrs. Jenkins is Pitt County and Greenville office contact for the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich. Mrs. Shackell is an interviewer for the center.

Working with such an organization takes the two women into vast areas of sample interviewing, covering varied subjects which, when tabulated, are constantly being published and used as basis of production of many areas. Thus, their work has far reaching effects, as well as providing something new every moment.

Types of Interviews

They have interviewed samples of the local population to obtain information concerning family life, automobile production, durable goods, foods, clothing, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts (within the schools), banking and voting trends. However, they do not forecast election results.

They send their interviews into the Survey Research Center in Michigan, where the information is compiled and published. Information published on the basis of findings of these interviewers, located all over this country, definitely influence the population of automobiles and durable goods. Findings may alter the banking field.

Mrs. Jenkins commented that the Survey Research Center is "the most copied survey in the United States." It is a nonprofit organization and one of the most important factors to note is that all information is strictly confidential. No information given by a person being interviewed is ever divulged to any source, including government agencies.

How did Mrs. Jenkins become involved in such a job, and how did Pitt County enter the picture:

Qualifications Met

Mrs. Jenkins was approached about the position, and having met all the qualifications, she felt she would be interested in the Survey Research Center.

Pitt County and Greenville also met the qualifications — as a representative area of agricultural interests located on the eastern seaboard of the United States. It is one of 66 sample points in the United States, including 12 metropolitan areas. This may be a little known fact, but it certainly should be noted by the population.

Asked why she enjoys her work so much, Mrs. Jenkins said, "It is because I am able to contact everyone of every class." She continued, "The majority of people in the United States are grand. They are cooperative, understanding and willing to give information if they know it is confidential."

But it isn't just the people she interviews who make her work so fascinating, it is also those with whom she works at the Survey Research Center. They are "the most elegant set of people I have ever seen or hoped to work with, culture and education combined." She also enjoys contact with other interviewers at their occasional meetings.

The Unexpected

Mrs. Jenkins admits that she expected the job to be fascinating and bringing something new every moment—but it has far exceeded her expectations, and has added much to broaden her scope of human understanding, and knowledge. And, it doesn't interfere with her home life.

As for the job itself, many humorous events have occurred, many precarious situations. But there is very little Mrs. Jenkins can reveal, as the information is of the confidential nature. As a matter of fact, she confided that while she listens intently and records the necessary information, she leaves that within the home when she leaves. The success of this great survey, which is widely publicized in national magazines and newspapers as well as in books, is confidence in the interviewer.

After 10 years, Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Shackell can boast that they haven't said one word about information given them.

But there is one humorous event which defies tradition. Mrs. Jenkins once asked a person whether he would prefer to have money invested in government bonds, a savings account or common stock. The person enthusiastically answered "common stock."

Asked for the reason, the person said, "If I had those hogs I could eat them right now."

Within city limits, Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Shackell work separately. But in rural areas, they work together. And it's a good thing—Mrs. Jenkins admits that she is scared to death of dogs, and Mrs. Shackell affords some comfort as she is not as afraid of dogs.

The two have had dogs "sicked" on them, as a matter of fact.

They have been confronted with weapons, and once Mrs. Shackell had a gun actually drawn on her.

As for natural obstacles, there have been times when they were working in rural areas, and rain washed out a road. So walk they have for several miles, to reach one house designated for sampling by the Survey Research Center. And, occasionally muddy roads have detained them for as long as three or four hours before they were able to get the automobile free.

Success

In spite of these things, they have managed to get the information they were after, with a couple of exceptions. Of all the sample interviews conducted in 10 years by Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Shackell, only two have refused to cooperate.

All sampling is directed by the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan, which designates which areas and which houses are to be contacted in an individual survey, and also which person in the household to see: the head of the household or the wife of the household. Though members of the family may be present when the interview is conducted, only answers from the designated member are used in the interview.

Interviewers take credentials with them in order to insure proper identity and purpose when interviewing people, Mrs. Jenkins said.

Both Mrs. Jenksins and Mrs. Shackell joined the Survey Research Center at the same time.

Mrs. Jenkins and her husband, James, reside at 1046 E. Rock Spring Rd. and have two children, Dorning, a junior at East Carolina College, and Jimmy, a midshipman at the Naval Academy, Annapolis.

Mrs. Shackell, who resides at 543 Evans St., is president of the Women's Society of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Gavin Opposes Deficit Spending

MAIDEN, N.C. (AP) — A policy of no deficit spending was advocated by Republican Robert Gavin in a speech to a party rally here Wednesday night.

Winding up an all-day campaign tour, Gavin said public records on expenditures will be made available to the public at every opportunity.

Speaking to some 250, the Sanford attorney also reiterated his stand for a strong state civil service program. He charged the present Democratic administration in Raleigh is herding state employes "into the ballot box" for that party.

Gavin also said by working together on a non-partisan basis, Democrats and Republicans could together settle the state's problems of low per capita income and public education. He said both are ranked in the bottom 10 among the 50 states.

Rep. Charles R. Jonas, R-NC., introduced Gavin.

Earlier in the day Gavin told a Gastonia civic club audience that the Democratic presidential nominee poses a threat to North Carolina's textile industry.

"Yet," he declared, "Terry Sanford, the Democratic candidate for governor, says (Sen. John F.) Kennedy is the man North Carolina should have in the White House."

Gavin said that although Kennedy "has said he wants to help the textile industry, he himself spoke in the Senate, deploring the loss of New England mills to North Carolina.

FBI Joining In Investigation Of 6th Explosion

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—The FBI and local police today were investigating the mysterious explosion of an outdoor telephone booth, the sixth blast in the area in the past two months.

Flying metal from Wednesday night's explosion crashed through the windshield of a passing car and injured Mrs. D. A. McCullough of Atlanta, police said. She and her husband, who escaped injury, were visiting relatives here.

Two teen-age girls made a call from the telephone booth, located on U. S. 27 about eight miles north of downtown Chattanooga, shortly before it was shattered by the explosion.

Police said the blast apparently bore no relation to the five explosions. Officers have said the other explosions, all near homes, apparently were aimed at keeping Negroes out of previously all-white neighborhoods.

Local Firm Is Opening New Home, New Shop

The formal opening of Perkins-Proctor Company's new home and their new shop, The Campus Corner, will be held tomorrow at 9 a.m. according to the firm's vice president, J.G. Proctor.

Proctor said Perkins-Proctor Company, was first opened here May 1950 and has been noted for selling only branded lines of merchandise. "Perkins-Proctor has and will continue to be known as "The House of Name Brands" he stated, and will be located at 206 East Fifth St., across from it's old location.

The newly organized store, The Campus Corner, will occupy the old home of Perkins Proctor at 201-203 East Fifth St., Proctor noted, and will cater to young men. The slogan for The Campus Corner is "Dedicated to a Young Man's Taste", he added.

Proctor noted that Julian L. Perkins is president of the firm while J. Vance Perkins is secretary-treasurer. Curtis Perkins is also affiliated with the scores, he commented.

A new innovation in clothing stores — self selection—has been instituted in the two stores, according to Proctor, who said the new system permits customers to see and handle the merchandise for themselves. Proctor pointed out that "plenty of service will be offered" by store employees even though the stores have been arranged for self-service shopping.

For the opening, 42 prizes will be given away, 26 at Perkins Proctor and 16 at The Campus Corner. Value of the prizes which include Botany "500" Suits, Campus Corner Suits, sport coats, rain coats, hats, sweaters and many other prizes, totals about $600.

The stores will be opened from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Proctor noted, and persons may register for the prizes until 3 p.m. Saturday. Drawing for the prizes at The Campus Corner will be held at 4 p.m. Saturday while the Perkins Proctor drawing will be at 5 p.m.

Navy Reports First 'Signals' From Saturn

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy today reported receiving "the first conclusive signals" from the planet Saturn and from a nebula that is 3,000 light years distant from the earth.

The signals were picked up by an 85-foot radio telescope by scientists at the University of Michigan under contract to the Office of Naval Research.

The Navy said that this research may make possible a study of the temperature and density of the rings of Saturn and of the distribution of the gases in its atmosphere. The radio observations of nebulae, it added, can help astronomers determine how stars age and die and possibly how planetary systems are formed.

The Michigan radio astronomers used a frequency of three centimeters for measuring the radio wave emitted from various depths in Saturn's atmosphere.

LOBSTER-SIZE

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — A fresh water shrimp big as a lobster was netted in crystal-clear Silver Springs near here.

The 26-inch monster was trapped after weeks of effort as it ventured out of a deep underwater cavity from which the huge stream flows.

Except in size, the fresh water giant looks about like the salt water variety.

Nationalist China, Formosa, which ranks 10th among the world's sugar producing countries, is second to Cuba among sugar exporters.

...and its next class of 770 young men

AS WITH every new class its members will come from all of the 50 states. They will be between the ages of 17 and 22 and they will be uniformly above average ... morally, physically and scholastically.

During the rigorous four-year Academy program, some won't make it. It's not easy to get in, and it's not easy to stay in.

Those who do graduate will find unparalleled career opportunities awaiting them in the Aerospace Age. During the next decade a great number of Air Force officers who entered the service in World War II will be retiring from active duty. Academy graduates of this newest class of 770 young men will have the highest command positions opened to them before they will have completed half of their service career.

The 700 Congressional Nominees

Almost 700 members of the Academy's new class will be nominated for appointment by Senators and Representatives from their respective states and congressional districts. Should you (a young man) or you (a parent) be interested in how application for such a nomination may be secured, write to your Senator, Representative ... or to the Registrar, United States Air Force Academy, Colorado.

The Others

Other appointments in the new class are open to: members of the regular and reserve components of the Air Force and Army; sons of deceased veterans; sons of members of the regular components of the Armed Forces; sons of Medal of Honor winners; and honor graduates of honor military schools. The Academy will furnish complete information.

770 Young Men... And Their Next Four Years

Winning an appointment to the Academy is a signal honor in itself. Exacting standards and a fast-building tradition of uncommon achievements will soon impress this upon new cadets during their first year. It's a test that every upperclassman has gone through. A cadet receives four years of collegiate and professional education. He graduates with a second lieutenant's commission in the Regular Air Force. In addition he receives a bachelor of science degree. A cadet with special ability may take elective courses and major in a subject area of his choice. One with unusual ability and previous college work may fulfill the requirements for a master's degree during four years at the Academy.

Required Examinations Prior to Appointment

The College Entrance Examination Board tests, the Air Force Officer Qualifying Test, a Physical Aptitude Examination and the Academy Medical Examination determine which young men are best qualified for appointment. For full information on how one becomes one of the 770 men of the next new class, write Registrar, United States Air Force Academy, Colorado.

To Ask Action On Dominican Gov't

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union was reported ready to demand before the Security Council today that all members of the U.N. join in worldwide pressure against the Dominican Republic.

Informed sources said Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov would make his appeal in a resolution calling on the 11-nation body to approve the Aug. 2 resolution of the Organization of American States.

Kuznetsov requested today's council meeting last Monday. He contended any punitive measures adopted by a regional organization, such as the OAS, were not valid unless approved by the council.

Members of the OAS, including the United States, have taken the position that they had full authority to condemn the Dominican Republic for alleged intervention in Venezuelan affairs and call for diplomatic and economic measures of enforcement.

OAS foreign ministers, meeting last month at San Jose, condemned the Dominican Republic on charges of violating human rights and recommended that American republics cut diplomatic relations with the Dominican Republic and take economic measures against it.

The United States was understood to feel that the Soviet request should be aired by the council despite the American belief that no U.N. action was needed and that the Soviet move was another attempt to meddle in the Western Hemisphere.

The United States has always followed the practice of not voting against the inscription of any item on the Security Council agenda even though it disagrees with the complaint.

Members of the Latin-American bloc met privately on the Soviet move Wednesday, but no decision was taken. Argentina and Ecuador are members of the council and are expected to argue that no council action is necessary to validate enforcement measures adopted by the OAS.

Vaccinations Are Now Certified

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Tucson Rotarians carry their small pox vaccination certificates now when crossing the Mexico border.

Recently 76 of them had to be vaccinated again when they crossed into Mexico for a one day trip. They'd left their certificates behind and immigration authorities insisted on giving them the shots.

Grade Averages Remain High On Tobacco Marts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Grade averages were steady to higher Wednesday in the Carolinas coming on the heels of Tuesday's seasonal highs on Carolinas Border Belt and North Carolina Eastern Belt tobacco markets.

The Federal-State Market News Service said North Carolina Middle Belt prices were steady with the opening day levels reached Tuesday. The Middle Belt's first day sales averaged $59.76 a hundred pounds.

The high average reached Tuesday on the Border Belt was an even $64 per hundred while, on the Eastern Belt, it was $58.55.

Volume on the Middle Belt was light Wednesday with a decline in quality which might cause a decline in the overall average, the service reported.

Border Belt prices climbed a little for most grades Wednesday. Only a few losses were reported. Sales on the belt Tuesday were 164,048,927 pounds for the season, averaging $60.78 a hundred.

There was no marked change for grade averages on the Eastern Belt, the service said. Gains and losses were nearly equally divided while poor to fair leaf and nondescript made up about 60 per cent of the offerings. Volume remained heavy.

Auction bid averages a hundred pounds on a limited number of representative U.S. grades on the Middle Belt Wednesday were:

Leaf — Fair lemon, 69, unchanged; fair orange 68, unchanged.

Smoking leaf—Low orange, 69, unchanged.

Lugs—Good orange, 70, unchanged; fair orange 69, unchanged.

Primings—Good lemon 69, up 2; fair lemon 66, up 2; fair orange 66, up 1; low orange 49, down 6.

Nondescript—Best thin body 30, unchanged; substandard 16½, down ½.

Kennedy Tells California He'll Push Water Program

By JACK BELL

With Kennedy in California (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy whistle stopped his way across critical California today, calling for action to avoid a "second-rate America."

In this water-conscious state Kennedy promised if he is elected president he will launch a crash program of research to convert salt water into fresh.

On another issue prime for Californians, the Democratic nominee fired off a telegram to a meeting of his farm supporters in Indianapolis, Ind.

In it he said, "I regard the agricultural problem as the No. 1 domestic issue facing the nation today and I intend to attack it on a national basis."

Kennedy told Claude Wickard, a former secretary of agriculture, who presided over a Farmers for Kennedy-Johnson session that "American agriculture's economic condition today is desperate."

As in the past, Kennedy did not spell out specifically the remedies he plans to offer.

Bidding for the 32 electoral votes of the home state of his GOP rival, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Kennedy bore down critically on what he called the Republican administration's "short sighted" policies of permitting no new starts in hydroelectric power and other projects.

"Today, in a close-knit tumultuous world, the development of our natural resources is not only vital to the survival of our western states and the survival of our nation, it is vital to the survival of the entire free world," he said in a speech prepared for a stop in Redding.

Criticizing the administration's "partnership" power policies, Kennedy said, "We must appoint a Federal Power Commission that will uphold the public interest and not serve private interests alone."

He said if he is elected president he will bring into the White House a council of resource and conservation advisers.

Kennedy's foray into California was billed as two-day affair, mostly by old fashioned campaign train.

Campaigning in Oregon Wednesday, Kennedy drew attentive but not excited crowds. He avoided at Eugene, Ore., the first potential heckler encountered in his September drive.

An elderly woman stood in the middle of a section of spectators and waved frantically. Kennedy paid no attention to her. Later she passed out printed anti-Catholic literature.

Kennedy told a cheering crowd that overflowed Portland's 5,300-seat Civic Auditorium Wednesday night peoples of the world are afraid of Eisenhower administration policies he said "Teeter on the brink of war."

"They are dismayed that our negotiators have no solid plans for disarmament," he said "and they are discouraged by a philosophy that puts its faith in swapping insults with the Russians."

Complaint Over Magazine Cover

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—It's the cover, not the contents, that made the post office complain about the magazine.

"To bright," clerks said, and the Post Office Department backed them up by telling Little Rock chapter No. 123 of the American Society of Tool & Manufacturing Engineers it would have to use another cover on its magazine.

The cover is a brilliant, glow-in-the-dark red, and a post office spokesman said addresses written on it are too hard to read.

J. D. Bonnell, chapter chairman, said a Little Rock firm supplied the covers with the promise they would make the magazine eye-catching.

And, Bonnell agreed, they have

Stolen Bike Is Part Of A Story

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A stolen bike is partly responsible for an American gold medal at the Rome Olympics.

Six years ago, when he was 12 and weighed 89 pounds, Cassius Clay's bike was stolen. The boy went into a gymnasium to look for a policeman.

He saw boxers working out and told Police Sgt. Joe Martin he wanted to learn to fight—so he could punch the bike thief in the nose.

Martin became his first teacher and still is his trainer.

This week Clay, now 18 and a polished Golden Gloves light-heavyweight champion, trounced Poland's Bzigniew Pietrzykowski for an Olympic first-place medal.

Wreck Of 'Lady Elgin' Stole The Headlines

Editor's Note—A century ago today the nation was in the midst of a crucial presidential campaign with Lincoln the central figure. But the headlines of that Sept. 8 weren't of politics. The black print told of the wreck of the Lady Elgin whose loss of 287 lives is the heaviest toll in Great Lakes history.

By MARY CAMPBELL

WINNETKA, Ill. (AP) — "A most appalling calamity has burst upon our community—without parallel in the marine annals of our lakes."

Thus began the Chicago Press and Tribune account of the sinking of the Lady Elgin in Lake Michigan off Winnetka on Sept. 8, 1860.

And all over the land, instead of the expected stories about presidential candidates Douglas and Lincoln, shocked and pitying Americans read reports of the collision in which 287 lives were lost.

For a century the disaster has had no equal on the Great Lakes.

For Union Guards, Democrats from the Irish colony in Milwaukee's 3rd Ward, had wanted to go in style to Chicago for a rally honoring their party's little giant, Stephen A. Douglas.

They hired for the weekend, a steamer, the Lady Elgin, built in 1851 and named for the wife of a former governor general of Canada. The vessel was an elegantly furnished, all-wood excursion paddle-wheeler, 300 feet long.

After the Douglas rally they left Chicago at 11:30 p.m. Saturday Sept. 7 for the 85-mile return trip to Milwaukee.

The sky was overcast but kerosene lamps brightened the social hall where Union Guards talked politics and danced with 3rd Ward colleens. At best count there were 385 aboard.

The steamer was not long out of Chicago when a rain storm blew up. The sky grew completely black. Capt. John Wilson hugged the Illinois shore.

By 2 a.m. the wind had increased and the steamer rolled. The Lady Elgin was 10 miles off the coast of Winnetka, 17 miles north of Chicago.

Then, out of the storm and darkness, came a freight schooner bound for Chicago. She was the Augusta, traveling under full sail and showing no lights. She rammed the Lady Elgin, almost cutting her in two below the water line.

Within half an hour the Lady Elgin had plunged to the bottom. Lightning flashes illuminated a mass of wreckage floating on the stormy lake and struggling survivors trying to find bits of wood to buoy them.

The lightning did not show the schooner Augusta. She was out of sight, continuing on her way to Chicago, her hold laden with lumber which, thrown overboard, could have provided life rafts for some and space on board for others.

Hours later the first survivors in three lifeboats reached the 40-foot bluffs of Winnetka.

A witness that day, H. E. Hamilton, wrote: "As we stood on the shore, but a few rods from them, perfectly helpless to save, we watched them one after another, go down to death. Raft after raft reached breakers only to be overturned or washed clear of its passengers."

Rescuers could not launch a boat because of the breakers and undertow.

Two powerful swimmers became heroes of the day.

Edward W. Spencer swam out into the breakers 16 times with a safety line tied around his waist to rescue 17 persons, one time bringing back both a man and his wife.

And James O. Cramb, prevented from reaching a woman by the shortness of the line around his waist, commanded that the line be released. He dived farther out and brought the woman to safety.

Capt. Wilson drowned while trying to help a woman.

But J. B. Rodie of the Union Guards floated safely all the way to the beach on a snare drum.

When they finally counted, only 98 were saved.

Milwaukee, draped in black, suspended all business while funeral mass was said in the Roman Catholic cathedral.

Some persons, hearing a report that Capt. Wilson had megaphoned to the Augusta that he needed no help, blamed the pride of the master for the catastrophe. But most public opinion and most newspaper editorials blamed Capt. D. M. Malott of the Augusta.

Capt. Malott was arrested.

Officers of the Augusta testified they saw the lights of the Lady Elgin in time to avoid a collision but that Capt. Malott was asleep and they didn't wake him or change course. Survivors of the Lady Elgin testified the steamer's whistle was tied down after the collision and her bell rang continuously. The Augusta's crew should have heard these distress signals, they insisted.

The examiners released Capt. Malott and laid the blame on a law of the sea that permitted schooners to operate withoutlights (since changed) and obliged steamers to keep out of the way of sailing vessels under all circumstances.

Lady Is Happy As A Guinea Pig

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — Mrs. Carrie May Nichols of Johnson City, Tenn., says she is a guinea pig for scientists at this atomic city and very happy with the arrangement.

"I've had $10,000 worth of treatments during the past 15 years for a leukemia condition, and all free," she says.

Mrs. Nichols, 73, travels from her home for regular treatments which are now injections of irradiated phosphorous.

She adds she's helping the scientists all she can. At the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies recently she was wheeled into a conference room where 40 top scientists from across the country were gathered.

"I listened to them and learned all about myself," she says.

Drinkers Follow Honor System

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies say the honor system of self-service drinking underwent a successful test at the Walmore Inn, Town of Niagara.

Answering a report of four men being inside before opening time, they sped to the tavern. Sure enough, the men were inside "drinking and paying for each drink and taking the right change from the till."

Owner Stanley Gibbs said he forgot to lock the door. Officers took the drinkers' names but no charges were placed.

Differ As To Whether Recession Is In Works

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Business spokesmen differ as to whether a recession is under way or in the offing or unlikely. But many executives appear to be taking the same measures now they would if an actual one were here.

They are cutting inventories to a minimum. They are holding up new orders. They are trimming payrolls. They are giving price concessions to hold customers. They are clipping overhead costs at every opportunity.

Slipping sales volume has inspired some of the belt tightening. But in many cases the spur has come from dropping profit margins. Rising operating costs have turned record sales into smaller net income. And management is going after those higher costs.

The slowdown in ordering and the trend to lower inventories has put a crimp in the output of several basic industries—one of the few signs so far that anyone could point to as foretelling a recession.

Some of the cost cutting is hailed as trimming away overhead fat that crept onto corporate muscles during the lush days that followed the 1957-58 recession and again during the rebound from the steel strike. And some cost cutting is long range, aimed at installing more efficient machinery in more economical plants.

But some economists warn that hasty cost cutting can cause more trouble for a company than it cures.

For example, care has to be taken in laying off workers. You may lose a skilled man altogether, one you would sorely miss later. And also you would lose the cost of training a man and have to start all over when you rehire. Too, layoffs or salary trimming can hurt morale and sometimes lead to a bigger loss in the long run.

A favorite cost-cutting device in slow times is to drop less profitable market areas and customers who add little to your total earnings. This often pays off in higher profits. But here care must be taken. There is the loss of the investment in building up the potential market and also the question of whether it might later turn into a very profitable one.

Many business managements are weighing these procedures. As profit margins drop, corporate accountants study salesmen's expense accounts very closely. Some firms are buying tourist tickets on planes instead of first-class tickets.

Purchasing agents are under pressure to get the lowest possible price for needed materials—but here the warnihg is against the risk of lower grades and untried materials that could cut product quality and hence torpedo sales.

Tobacco Tips

By S.J. Weeks,
Pitt Cocnty Tobacco Agent

The use of a suitable crop rotation will improve the yield and quality of tobacco. Residues (such as fescue, small grain, weeds, etc.) improve the soil structure, improves the water penetration, and slightly improves the organic matter in the soil. Rotations aid in the control of some soilborne diseases, especially nematodes. However, four to eight years is required to give complete nematode control, depending upon whether a two, three, or four year rotation is used.

Fescue is one of the best crops to use in a tobacco rotation. It can be seeded alone or can be interplanted with small grain. For best results, it should occupy the soil for two growing seasons, however, if only a two year rotation can be managed on your farm, it can occupy the soil for one growing season with good results.

Results of crop rotation experiments conducted at the Oxford Tobacco Research Farm in 1959 show that on plots planted in tobacco continuously from 1956 through 1959 the per acre value in 1959 was $7999.00. In the same experiment another plot of tobacco was grown in 1956, oats and fescue in 1957, fescue in 1958, and tobacco in 1959. The tobacco in this crop sequence produced a per acre value of $1009.00 per acre — a difference of $210.00 per acre.

A good seedbed should be prepared before the seeding fescue. If your tobacco stubbles have been plowed out for a period of two to three weeks, you can begin preparing your seedbed immediately. This can be done by discing the bedded tobacco fields and smoothing with a smoothing harrow. The fescue should be seeded at the rate of 20 pounds per acre and should be seeded betwen Sptmbr 15 and October 30.

There are crops other than fescue that have also given good results in a tobacco rotation. For best results, include crops in your rotation that are resistant to one or more of the tyree types of nematodes present on most tobacco farms. Do not include Crotalaria and other legumes immediately before tobacco in your rotation.

Horse Rode, He Had To Walk

OMAHA (AP) — Paul Revere had to walk but his horse hitched a ride.

It happened after Gary Young, 16, had donned a cocked hat and frock coat and prepared to ride several miles through the city to publicize a charity horse show.

What spoiled the plan was a city ordinance prohibiting horses on Omaha thoroughfares without a parade permit.

Despite 89-degree heat, Gary covered the planned route—on foot. The horse rode along beside him in a trailer.

In Kenya, East Africa, a game license to shoot elephants costs $210; to shoot lions $70.

Phantoms Invade Ahoskie Domain In Quest Of Victory Number One

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

A contingent of Greenville Phantoms bent on writing Rose High football history were set for a light workout today before opening their season at Ahoskie tomorrow night.

Saddled with coaching chores for the past month, Coach Bud Phillips was prepared to turn over authority to his assemblage of muscle and brain. "I think we've been coming along about as well as could be expected," informed Phillips last night.

Full confidence was expressed in the first unit by Phillips, but he was still skeptical concerning reserve depth, especially in the line. Only Dallas Clark, who suffered a knee injury Tuesday, was counted out of the Ahoskie fray.

Skip Wright, sidelined a great deal of pre-season practice, was in full gear yesterday and will play Friday night. With Wright back, the starting club will be intact with the exception of Clark. Russell Fields has been promoted to the first unit, replacing Clark.

The array of Phant backfield stars has come to the front in the mind of Greenville foes and with good reason. Phillips' crew will unpack a double-barrel onslaught tomorrow night.

"We think we can keep their defense honest with our passing and running game," commented Phillips concerning the means of attack Rose High will apply.

Erskine Duff, starting quarterback, will have a couple of capable receivers in Layne Jorgensen and Wright and the trio of Alan McArthur, John Adams, and Wayne Sumrell figure to provide the infantry fireworks.

Starting at tackle, a spot Phillips has been weeping over, will be Larry Roberts and Tex Hooks. Teaming with Fields at the guard slots will be Don Joyner, who will back the line on defense. Bill Wade, also a linebacker on defense, will open at center.

Coach Jack Young, an East Carolina College graduate starting his 14th season at the helm of Ahoskie football, just returned with his club from practice in the mountains of western Carolina, a trip Young deems of full value in preparing his team for the season grind.

"We are not as strong as last season but should reach this level by mid-season," explained Young by telephone. "We are starting with a young team that must gain some expenrience. Our line is almost the same as last season but we have had to replace three of our starting backs, including quarterback."

The Indians have 10 lettermen back from the '59 club which posted a 7-2-1 record, finished third in its conference.

According to Young, the starting team will be heavier and little has been sacrificed in speed. His problem spot is definitely quarterback where Ruffin Odum and Charles Tayloe, a couple of juniors, have been waging a battle for the past month.

Other vacant slots in the backfield will be filled by either Melvin Shamley or Joe Williams, both juniors, at the other halfback slot and sophomore Spencer Barrier at fullback.

A couple of linemen bearing the same name are set to provide the most damage in the Ahoskie line. Benny Williams, 180 guard, who is billed for All-Conference this season, and Bill Williams, 200 pound tackle, offer big obstacles for the Phants.

Young, indicating respect for Greenville's backfield, declined to predict the outcome of the non-conference game. "Greenville is a larger school but we hope to give them a good game," said Young.

Last season, Greenville opened with Ahoskie, striking for 14 points before the Indians could execute an offensive play and holding on for a 28-12 victory.

Although not probable, the Phants are hoping to apply the same famed howitizer early in the game. Yet, Ahoskie will be angling for revenge and the fullest degree of strength might be anticipated from the Indians' multiple offense.

Football forecasters are going along with Greenville as a touchdown favorite.

Kick-off for the contest is 8:00 in the rejuvinated Ahoskie stadium. A crowd of over 2,000 is expected.

BRUSHING UP—Greenville's Phantoms put the wraps on their pre-season rough work yesterday with a short scrimmage. Tomorrow night, Rose High opens its season at Ahoskie.

'Snow Hill Can't Be Taken Lightly'

Ayden Heavy Favorite In Home Fray With Snow Hill

AYDEN — The prevention of over-confidence has been Coach Stuart Tripp's main pain in preparing for the Ayden home opener against Snow Hill tomorrow night.

Last week, Snow Hill was coldclogged 38-0 by Farmville in its first football contest since 1954. At the same time, Ayden was toying with Havelock to the tune of 27-6.

"We can't take Snow Hill too lightly," reported the Ayden mentor this week while pushing his club through some rough scrimmage sessions. "They have some inexperienced ball players but improvement can be expected from them each week."

At Snow Hill, the gridders were still licking wounds of their opening game defeat. Coach James Corbin was optimistic over seeing an improved club take the field against Ayden.

Harold Edwards, the star in Ayden's first win, is scheduled to handle the quarterback spot for the Tornadoes again. He will be backed by All-Conference Dinky Mills, Danny Willoughby and Mac Tripp.

Operating in the forward wall for Ayden will be Ted Norris and Emmitt Gibson at the flanks; Donald Carmon and Carroll McLawhorn at tackles; Robert Cannon and Artie McLawhorn at guards; and Brunson Tripp at center.

Ayden, blessed with an abundance of talent, has been platooning its offense and defense and Tripp doesn't plan a change in tactics for Snow Hill.

Figuring to enter the picture on defense will be Bud McGlahorn, Jimmy Persinger, Kenneth Jolly, and Jackie Collins.

Jolly is the "giant" in the Ayden forward wall, weighing 230 pounds.

Following the win at Havelock last Friday, Tripp was still uncertain over the strength of his club. "It's still hard to tell how strong we are because we made a lot of mistakes," cites Tripp.

The Snow Hill engagement isn't expected to offer any more indications with the Tornadoes favored by at least 30 points.

DINKY MILLS . . . will be one of the backs Ayden will turn loose tomorrow night against Snow Hill in a non-conference contest. Mills was All-Conference in 1959.

Champ To Defend Title More Often

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Boxing champions are going to have to defend their titles every six months from now on, the National Boxing Association voted Wednesday in closing sessions of its annual meeting.

In other moves the NBA:

1. Elected David Ott of Cleveland, Ohio, president and re-elected Abe Greene, of Patterson, N.J., national commissioner.

2. Selected Hersehey, Pa. as the site for the 1961 convention.

3. Accepted the retirement of undefeated World Bantamweight Champion Jose Becerra of Mexico, who appeared personally before the NBA to announce he was quitting the ring.

The now vacated bantamweight title will be filled by an elimination contest. The first fight is scheduled from Los Angeles in November between top-ranking Eder Jofre of Brazil and Eloy Sanchez of Mexico. The winner of this match later will meet the winner of an Alphone Halami (France) and Freddie Gilroy (Ireland) fight.

Weekend Race

A field of about 30 cars is expected to be on hand at the Hickory Speedway Friday night for the 250-mile Buddy Shuman Memorial stock car race.

The $4,200 event is for 1958-60 model cars. A number of top drivers, including Joe Weatherly, Rex White, Richard and Lee Petty and Ned Jarrett, have entered.

The usual amateur racing card Saturday night at the Greenville-Pickens Speedway in South Carolina will be fortified by a 15-lap NASCAR "99 Claim" race. The winning car in the special event will be sold for $99 after the race.

Injury List Mounts For Farmville's Home Opener

FARMVILLE — Another crucial blow was dealt Farmville today on the eve of its opening Coastal Conference game in its season-long battle with the injury jinx.

Danny Dilda, All-Conference halfback and one of the few key players Coach Elbert Moye had placed his 1960 hopes on, was reported a "doubtful starter" as an improved Contentnea eleven prepared to invade the Farmville domain tomorrow night.

Dilda joined a long list of Farmville injuries when he came up lame yesterday with a pulled ligament.

Jimmy Pollard, halfback who missed the first game, also reinjured his leg in practice this week and was on the shelf for tomorrow's conference encounter.

Billy Walker, starting end, was the other key man lost from the starting lineup this week.

Thus, the Red Devils will bid for their second win of the season with only a few specks of veteran know-how sprinkled in their lineup.

Farmville emerged with a couple of backfield standouts in Alex Corbett and Dean Oglesby. Moye hopes to have these two in rare form for Red Devil fans tomorrow and can expect stellar performances from linemen Mitchell Cannon and J. Y. Monk.

Contentnea, under the tutorage of new coach Charlie Bland, a Greenville native, put up a good battle with LaGrange last week before bowing, 20-7.

Bland hopes to improve on the 2-7 record of last season but feels it may be mid-season before any true rays of light are spotted. "We are improved over last season but it will take the club a couple of games to get our system under their belts," states Bland.

David Williams, senior tackle, has been lost to the Contentnea squad and a virus has also dampened Bland's hopes for victory this week. He was hopeful yesterday the virus wouldn't sideline any of his squad.

Contentnea will present a backfield filled with three seniors and one junior. Starters will be Billy Smith, Daniel Hill, Wilkie Stallings, and J. K. Hall.

Billy Pritchard, a 210 pounder, will replace Williams in the Contentnea lineup, joining Derring Phillips, Jimmy Barwick, Carroll Oaks, Keith Daughety, Ira Rice, and David Jones as starters.

Yanks Lead In Carolina Series

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Burlington returns home tonight to resume the Carolina League championship playoff after two straight one - run defeats at Greensboro.

The Yanks pushed across a run in the bottom of the ninth Wednesday to break a scoreless tie and win 1-0. The victory gave them a 2-0 edge in the best of seven series.

George Banks singled home Fred Carpenter who had gotten on base on an error and had moved to second on a sacrifice.

Jack Cullen, who gave up five hits, no walks and who struck out six was the winner. Jerry Lisk allowed only four hits, three walks and he fanned eight.

Some 1,225 fans saw the 1 hour, 55 minute contest. Lisk helped speed it along by retiring 16 men in succession. Only a walk with two out in the second kept the streak from reaching 20.

The teams play here tonight and tomorrow. If a fifth game is needed it will be at Greensboro. The next would be played at Burlington and the seventh, if necessary, at Greensboro.

U.S. Athletes Show Form In Final Track Events

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor

ROME (AP) — Russia, its unofficial team lead threatened by a strong United States comeback, collected its 27th gold medal of the Olympic Games today when Sergey Filatov was declared winner of the Grand Prix of Dressage, one of the premier tests of horsemanship.

The best U.S. showing was sixth place by Pat Galvin, 21-year-old rider from Santa Barbara, Calif. Jessica Newberry of Au Sable Forks, N.Y., was 12th.

Filatov dethroned two-time Olympic champion Henri St. Cyr of Sweden in winning Russia's first gold medal ever in Olympic equestrian competition.

Gustav Fischer of Switzerland was second, Josef Nackermann of Germany third, St. Cyr fourth and another Russian, Ivan Kalita, fifth.

With track and field moving into its last full day—only the marathon on Saturday remains after today's events—several of the so-called minor sports dominated the morning Olympic program.

Following the dressage completion, the unofficial team point score of the leaders looked like this:

Russia 515, United States 485½, Germany 263½, Italy 222.

The United States had a touch of high life for a few hours in the Olympics Wednesday. They seized the lead in the unofficial race for team honors after a splendid day in track and field, weightlifting and yachtings.

Up to midnight, the American Olympic squad had compiled 477½ points to take a slim lead of 3½ points over the Russians.

The United States had the most gold medals, 30 to Russia's 26. But the American 15 silvers and 15 bronzes fell short of the Soviets' 17 silvers and 21 bronze medals.

Uncle Sam's forces started Wednesday 28 points behind.

Then Al Oerter, defending Olympic champion from West Babylon, N.Y., cracked his own mark in the discus with a heave of 194-2 to lead an all-American sweep. Behind him with the silver medal was Rank Babka, Manhattan Beach, Calif., with 190-4½ and in third for the bronze was Richard Cochrane of Brookfield, Mo., with 187-6⅜.

American pole vaulters made it one-two as Don Bragg, the world champion, won the gold medal and Ron Morris, Burbank, Calif., took the silver with Eecles Landstrom of Finland third. Bragg, Pennsville, N.J., cleared 15 ft, 5⅛ inches. Morris was second with 15-1⅛.

A gold medal came also to the United States from Charles Vinci, of Cleveland, in the bantamweight weightlifting, his second straight Olympic triumph in the event.

He equaled the games mark with 231½ pounds in the press, broke the Olympic record and equalled the world figure with 237 in the snatch and then topped it with 292 in the clean and jerk for 760½ pounds to tie the world standard.

In yachting, the gold went to George O'Day of Dover, Mass., in the 5.5 meter class.

Liston Outpoints Machen In Bout

By JACK HEWINS

SEATTLE (AP) — Sonny Liston of Philadelphia was a disappointed fighter today although he had proven a few hours earlier that he was better than the second best heavyweight contender—Eddie Machen of Portland.

The victory left Liston No. 1 man behind Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson.

Weighing 211 pounds to Machen's 196, Liston pursued the agile Machen for 12 rounds Wednesday night and caught up just often enough to score a unanimous, but close, decision in the nationally televised fight.

"Couldn't do anything. He was running," grunted Liston.

He landed a few good jabs, hit the Portlander high on the head, on both arms and a couple of times below the belt. One of these underhand pitches dropped Machen to his knees in the 11th and the referee took the round away from Liston. He also gave Machen a minute of mid-round rest.

That was the only time either figher was on the canvas.

Machen landed a few solid lefts but spent most of his time circling away from the plodding Liston. The Portlander said after the fight he did not throw a right because he strained the ligaments in his arm while sparring with Bill Besmanoff in training.

"Only my manager and trainer knew about it," he said. "Maybe I could have gotten a postponement, but everything was set for the fight."

The poker-faced Liston, who had said he didn't expect it to go the distance, called it a poor fight. "Takes two to make a fight," he said. "Machen wouldn't."

Under the 10-point must system one judge favored Liston 118-114, the other 118-116, the referee had it 119-112 and The Associated Press card had Liston by 118-115. The 11th was taken away from the winner because of the foul.

Chisox Blunder Puts NY Back In Race Contention

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pinch hitters had been such a flop for the New York Yankees that they went out looking for help. But it was a couple of guys they had all along—Yogi Berra and Johnny Blanchard—who delivered in the clutch and put the Yanks within a half game of the American League lead.

After an error loaded the bases, Berra and Blanchard each slammed two runs across with pinch hits as the Yankees came from behind in a four-run eighth inning and defeated the Chicago White Sox 6-4 Wednesday night.

It was only the third victory in eight games for the Yankees, but it put them on the heels of Baltimore again after the first place Orioles had lost 3-2 at Cleveland.

Washington clung to fourth place by beating Kansas City 5-3, and Boston rallied for a 5-4 victory at Detroit.

In the National League, second place St. Louis cut Pittsburgh's bulge to six games by beating the Pirates 2-1. Third place Milwaukee defeated San Francisco 6-5 in 11 innings, Cincinnati beat Los Angeles 4-3 in 15 innings, and Philadelphia rapped Chicago's Cubs 2-0.

The Yankees, down 4-1 after Sherm Lollar's two-run homer for the Sox in the seventh inning, got rolling when Sammy Esposito, subbing for the ailing Nellie Fox at second base, booted Bill Skowron's doubleplay grounder. Berra, batting for Elston Howard, then tagged a two-run single off loser Early Wynn (11-10), and Blanchard, batting for Clete Boyer, ripped a winning, two-run double against reliever Gerry Staley.

Luis Arroyo (4-0), was the winner.

After Blanchard's double in the eighth, a White Sox fan charged out of the stands and brawled with Esposito before ushers closed in.

The Orioles blew several early scoring chances and misfired again in the ninth when, with two on and one out, Cleveland righthander Jim Perry picked off Dave Philley at first base. Jackie Brandt then followed with a run-scoring double, but Perry still had a one-run lead for his 16th victory.

Both clubs had 11 hits, but the Orioles didn't score until the seventh. Milt Pappas (13-9) was the loser.

Ted Williams, given a night at Detroit, doubled home the first two runs as Boston came from behind in a four-run, eighth inning. Frank Sullivan (6-15) was the winner. Frank Lary lost his 15th.

Washington built a 5-0 lead, getting the final three runs on Reni Bertoia's fifth-inning double and a solo homer by Earl Battey in the sixth. Don Lee (8-4) was the winner. Johnny Kucks (4-9) lost it.

There's no panic in Pittsburgh, but there's still the question: Can the Pirates do it without Dick Groat?

Playing their first game without the sparkplug shortstop, sidelined with a broken wrist, the Pirates lost a 2-1 decision to the second place St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night.

That left the Bucs with a still healthy six-game bulge and 20 games to play in a bid for their first National League pennant in 33 years. The Cards wound up their season series against the Pirates with an 11-11 split by beating 19-game winner Vern Law—the big right-hander who had whipped them five times this year and 11 times in a row since June, 1958.

While the Cards were dropping the Pirates, third place Milwaukee moved within 6½ games of the top with a 6-5, 11-inning victory over San Francisco. Cincinnati edged Los Angeles 4-3 in 15 innings, and Philadelphia defeated Chicago's Cubs 2-0.

Right-hander Ernie Broglio, who singled home the Cards' first run in the second inning, needed help from Lindy McDaniel but put away a 4-0 record over the Pirates with his 18th victory against seven defeats.

The Braves beat the Giants and reliever Stu Miller (5-6) on Billy Bruton's one-out triple and a single by Del Crandall. Carl Wiey (6-7) was the winner.

A pinch double by Eddie Kasko gave the Reds a 3-3 tie in the ninth, and they then won the NL's longest game of the year when winning reliever Marshall Bridges (5-2) singled and scored on Frank Robinson's one-out single. Danny McDevitt (0-4) lost it in relief.

Gene Conley, after losing six in a row, beat the Cubs with a four-hitter, striking out eight for his eighth victory. Don Cardwell (7-13), the ex-Phil, was the loser.

Kono Will Meet Urgent Need For US Strong Men

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

ROME (AP)—Tommy Kono of Honolulu, who goes after an Olympic hat trick tonight, is the chief trouble-shooter and Soviet-beater of the U.S. weight-lifting squad.

They call him "The Elevator Kid." His weight is always going up and down as Uncle Sam either fattens or slims him down to meet a desperate situation.

Weighing 148 pounds, he won the Olympic lightweight championship at Helsinki in 1952. Four years later, at Melbourne, he weighed 181 and captured the light-heavyweight crown. The title he is going after tonight is the middleweight. He is down to 165.

"As a matter of fact, five months ago I weighed 185 pounds and fully intended to compete here as a light-heavy," Kono said. "But the Russians turned up with a very tough middleweight named Alexandr Kurinov and so here I am."

The scholarly-looking Hawaiian said the weight-shifting campaign never posed a problem for him and never left him in a weakened physical condition.

Light or heavy, Kono is generally regarded—even among the Soviets—as the king of the barbells. In addition to his third straight Olympic gold medal, he also is seeking his ninth world championship, more than any active lifter ever has achieved.

As a boy of 14, Tommy was skinny and asthmatic, weighing less than 100 pounds and pushed around by every bully in the neighborhood. So he started lifting weights. It wasn't long until the bullies were in headlong flight.

Now Kono is 30, veteran of 10 years in international competition, and aiming at four Olympic weight-lifting championships, an unheard-of accomplishment. "I'll only be 34 for the Tokyo games in 1964,' he says. "A man can lift until he's well past 35."

In the first day of their head-on clash Wednesday, the Soviet Union and the United States split. Charles Vinci of Cleveland, Ohio, won the bantamweight title and the Soviet's Evgeniy Minaev defeated defending champion Isaac Berger of York, Pa., for the featherweight crown.

MacKay Top U.S. Tennis Choice

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — America's No. 1 hope in the National Tennis Championships isn't the least bit impressed by the fact that some of the top Europeans failed to put in an appearance this year.

"What difference does it make?" shrugged big Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio. "When you get down to the end, you still run into the Frasers and Lavers."

MacKay is seeded No. 3 behind defending champion Neale Fraser and his Australian Davis Cup mate, Rod Laver. That officially makes MacKay the top U.S. hope.

"Being seeded down at No. 3 doesn't ease the pressure on me," MacKay said. "If anything it increases it. I like to be up there and at No. 3. I know I'm not regarded as the top man. I prefer them not to expect me to win. After all I've never done well in the Nationals—never got past the quarter-finals. It's been sort of a jinx tournament for me."

MacKay gained the round of 16 Wednesday when he downed young Rafael Osuna of Mexico, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. Osuna is the Wimbledon doubles champion with Dennis Ralston.

There were no startling upsets. Vic Seixas, 37-year-old champion back in 1954, won a marathon two hour, 45 minute struggle from Chris Crawford of Piedmont, Calif., 6-4, 7-5, 3-6, 13-15, 6-2. He'll meet Chuck McKinley of St. Ann, Mo., in the round of 16. McKinley got past Joaquin Reyes of Mexico, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4.

Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn, seeded No. 7, stopped Frank Froehling 3rd of Coral Gables, Fla., 6-4, 6-3, 6-2, and goes aginst Ralston, who downed Bob Jewitt of Australia, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

Laver defeated Make Franks of Los Angeles, 4-6, 8-6, 6-3, 6-4. He meets Lt. John Lesch (USN) of Coronado, Calif., who eliminated Al Driscole of Belmont, Tex., 7-5, 6-2, 9-7.

Guide Patriots

BOSTON (AP) — A couple of old pros from the Canadian ranks will guide the Boston Patriots and Denver Broncos Friday night when the new American Football League officially opens its first season.

Battle-scarred Butch Songin, 3', will quarterback the Patriots and Frank Tripucka, a 12-year veteran, will be at the Denver controls when the two clubs open the new professional league's schedule.

The other six teams get into action later in the weekend. Dallas is at Los Angeles Saturday night, and Sunday afternoon Houston is at Oakland and Buffalo at New York. Each team plays a 14-game schedule with each of the other seven.

Nixon Says U.S. Must Push Research Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon says the United States must provide the facilities, the opportunity and the freedom for exploration by "the scientist with the vaulting imagination."

To meet the Soviet challenge in science, he proposes government sponsorship of a major new program for basic research, calling for federal matching funds for university operation of cooperative programs across the country.

Nixon discussed "the scientific revolution" in the second of a series of papers, released Wednesday night, aimed at giving his views in depth on various subjects. The first, dealing with communism, was issued Aug. 20.

Nixon said the next Congress should authorize the National Science Foundation to take the leadership in sponsoring the vast new program for basic research.

"By sponsor, I do not mean control, finance and operate," the vice president stressed. "The program should be conducted through a number of basic research institutes located in the principal geographical areas of the country.

"Financial support of these institutions should be as much as possible a joint public and private enterprise with both federal and state governments participating on one hand an universities private industry, and foundations on the other. The federal funds should be made available on a matching basis with state and private contributions."

Nixon said that the Soviets lead today in the development of high-thrust rockets, but that "over-all, in the field of science, we are well ahead of the Soviet Union."

Nixon cautioned against complacency, however, saying that to stay ahead, the United States must move ahead by giving creative men and women freedom to explore and encouraging and backing them.

Eastern Crabs Invade The West

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco, famed for its seafood, is being invaded by Chesapeake Bay crabs. Not a warlike move; just sort of a crustacean tit-for-tat.

Last spring restauranteur Dick Bernstein and the Junior Chamber of Commerce airlifted a battlion of California crabs to Baltimore, seeking to establish a beachhead. But Baltimore folks seemed to like theirs better.

Mayor George Christopher sat down to the Chesapeake Bay variety Wednesday. There was an air of suspense. Would he favor the Baltimore invader? He hammered at the hard shell and said finally: "Very tasty, yes, but how do you get inside the crab?"

Competition Moves Along In Miss America Pageant Contest

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Miss Michigan and Miss Alabama have both won in the Miss America Pageant preliminary talent competition.

The competition was held Wednesday night before a crowd of 6,000 persons.

Miss Alabama is Teresa Rinaldi of Birmingham. Miss Michigan is Nancy Anne Fleming of Montague. Miss Rinaldi sang an aria from "La Boheme" and Miss Fleming modeled fashions.

The preliminary swim suit competition was won by Miss South Carolina, Edith Sandra Browning of Greenwood.

There are 54 young women entered in this year's pageant, which will pick a winner Saturday night.

The three girls are now assured of at least a $1,000 scholarship each, even if they should not make the semifinals. All three were visibly thrilled by their success.

Miss Alabama plans a music career while Miss Michigan plans to major in economics and journalism when she enters Michigan State University this fall.

The swim suit winner, Miss South Carolina, wore a creation of white satin lace with an embossed design from bodice to hipline, a straight cut back and narrow straps. There were 18 girls in the swim suit competition Wednesday night, 18 others in talent and 18 in evening gowns.

The contestant chosen Miss America will receive a $10,000 scholarship plus an estimated $50,000 from personal appearances.

Popular Sitter Puts On A Show

Some TV Actors 'Suffer' For Their Art On Scene

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — While most of television's filmed series are neatly spliced together in Hollywood's film studios, some actors are suffering for their art.

The crew and cast of "Route 66," for instance, are on the road and will stay there for the next nine months. The gimmick of the new hour-long series is that the whole show is being filmed on location.

Martin Milner, one of the stars in the forthcoming CBS program, managed to make his way back to Hollywood, his wife and family, for a two-day weekend between the end of one episode in Louisiana and the beginning of another in Utah.

"I am now a big mosquito expert," he announced, scratching an ankle. "We've just finished shooting in Grand Isle, which turns out to be the mosquito capital of the south. It seems that mosquitoes lay their eggs during dry spells and the eggs hatch when rain comes. We hit Grand Isle when they hadn't had rain for a month and it started to pour the minute we arrived."

When they went to Kentucky to shoot the pilot film last February, Milner became a big blizzard expert—most of that first show was shot in the mountains when the roads were glare ice.

Later, when the film company was working on a floating oil rig in the Gulf of Mexico, a storm churned up eight-foot seas, halting work and stranding the crew for a night. Then, when they wanted some hurricane seas, the Gulf was calm. The technical crew had to improvise a storm with metal drums of salt water, pumps and wind manufactured by the propellers of swamp boats.

The series is based on the adventures of two young men driving across the country. Route 66, in truth, is a highway running west from Chicago to the Pacific Ocean and it seemed strange that the first two episodes were made in spots far off the beaten track of the title.

"That's the beauty of the show," explained Milner. "We can go anywhere. We're not tied to the highway because the title is just a symbol of the heartline of a nation.

"We can go anywhere, shooting real places and hiring people on the street. Real people with real faces."

Finding real places and real faces is a pretty expensive and complicated operation. The producers sent a cavalcade of five trucks, carrying $225,000 worth of cameras, lenses, 146 miles of film, cable, lighting effects and dark room equipment, more than 2,000 miles from Hollywood for the Grand Isle show. The cast and crew numbered well over 50 and they never did get around to counting the flat tires, broken down motors and other incidents of the trip.

"Anyway," conceded Milner, "I'm seeing the country, and it's one way to build audience interest in advance."

Favors Increase Tax Exemption

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Democrat David Clark, campaigning for the 10th District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives, said today the federal personal income tax exemption should be increased from $600 to $700.

Clark, of Lincolnton, told the Charlotte Kiwanis Club the $600 exemption "was based on the cost of living in the 1940s."

"That figure is no longer fair to the little taxpayer and his family," he added.

Clark is seeking to oust Rep. Charles R. Jonas, the state's only Republican member of Congress.

Clark proposed a five-point program of tax reduction, which he said would be possible "if we plug the loopholes at the same time."

He advocated:

Tightening income tax collection procedures to pick up $5 billion in taxes being evaded annually.

Applying the withholding principle to dividend payments where practical "to insure honest payment" and to conform with procedures applied to wage and salary earners.

Placing a 75 per cent ceiling on income tax rates "with a scaling down through all brackets to remove the federally imposed penalty on success." The present ceiling is 91 per cent.

Providing a standard business tax deduction, patterned after the personal deduction, for as many occupations as possible.

Ready To Help UN Halt Soviet Shipments To Congo

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strong U.S. support was indicated today for a United Nations move to halt the flow of Soviet technicians, planes and supplies to the crisis-torn Congo government.

Meanwhile officials said this country will avoid any independent action.

Without mentioning the Soviet Union or any other country, U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold early today called for Security Council action to halt outside aid to factions in the Congo. U.N. sources said the council may meet Friday or Saturday to consider the resolution.

In advance of today's announcement, Hammarskjold was understood to have complained privately to the Soviet government about the amount and purpose of Soviet aid provided outside U.N. channels.

The informal Soviet reply, a bit indignant, reportedly was that they were merely trying to help restore order out of chaos in cooperation with the U.N. objective of bringing peace to the troubled area.

President Eisenhower, breaking the official administration silence on the problem, denounced the Soviet Union's action Wednesday as seriously aggravating the bloodshed in the new African nation.

The international repercussions, he said, "would be doubly serious" if it was found that Soviet military personnel were piloting the planes supplied to Premier Patrice Lumumba's regime.

Administration leaders strongly suspect that some of the Soviet technicians who have moved into the Congo are Soviet military men in civilian uniforms. Eisenhower said, however, that he has no solid evidence on that yet.

At the same time he urged the Soviet Union "to desist from its unilateral activities and to lend its support instead to the practice of collective effort through the United Nations" to bring a peaceful solution.

Diplomatic officials, in backing up Eisenhower's remarks, said that if the Soviets continue to send in men and equipment the U.N. Security Council should act to ban aid by any single nation to the Congo except through the United Nations.

At present, the Congo as an independent government is not barred from accepting such assistance. Lumumba has repeatedly said he would accept direct assistance from individual governments as well as through the United Nations.

Eisenhower's stern words set off reports that this country would consider acting alone in the crisis if the United Nations did not.

But top officials said today the United States, at present, would continue to work solely through the United Nations to preserve the Congo's indpependence.

No thought has been given, they said, to offering Americon troops for duty with the 17,000-man U.N. police force now drawn entirely from smaller U.N. countries.

The government's future course undoubtedly will depend greatly on the outcome of the struggle for power in the Congo between Lumumba and the more moderate President Joseph Kasavubu.

If Kasavubu wins out, most Eisenhower administration authorities would rely on him to control the Soviets already in the Congo and turn to the West for balancing aid. But if Lumumba stays in power and continues to accept Soviet assistance, the feeling of most officials is that the United Nations should step in to ban such supplies.

Some administration authorities, however, are known to be sufficiently alarmed at what they consider the extent of Soviet penetration of the Congo that they would favor direct intervention by the American government unless the United Nations acted Swiftly.

ECC Band Will Play For Demo Candidate Here

East Carolina College's Band, organized this week for the 1960-1961 term, has begun rehearsals for its first fall appearance scheduled during the visit of Senator John Kennedy to the city. The Democratic candidate for the Presidency will speak in the college stadium September 17. An audience from all over Eastern North Carolina is expected to attend.

More than a hundred students, chosen for their talent as musicians make up the ensemble this fall. Herbert L. Carter, director of bands at the college, will direct the group in a series of programs during the school year. Working with him as graduate assistants will be Jay Collins of College Park, Maryland, and Leon Cole, Jr., of Columbus, Georgia.

Officers elected to head activities of the group this year are Edgar Williams of Wilmington, president; Jerry Liles of Belmont, vice president; Ronda Dandliker of Greensboro, secretary; Sue Gallagher of Culpepper, Virginia, treasurer; and Marcelle Vogel of New Bern and Sam Branson of Thomasville, publicity directors.

James Burns of Sumter, S.C., will act as drum major of the band this year.

Six majorettes chosen this week include Elizabeth Rogers of Greenville, head majorette, and Judy Bledsoe of Raleigh, Jolinda Brewer of Greenville, Barbara Pleasants of Raleigh, Gail Walser of Lexington, and LaVerne Blackley of Durham.

Among major appearances of the band during the fall quarter will be half-time programs at home football games of the East Carolina Pirates.

Where The Stars Of Yesteryear?

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Remember the movies of 25 years ago?

If you do then you lived through Hollywood's golden age.

Young timers of today who watch old movies on the late show may wonder what all the shouting was about. Perhaps the films of the 1930s have faded with time.

But, during the first decade of the talkies, Hollywood saw a burst of creativity it has never equaled.

BILLIE DOVE
Housewife

And so many stars!

A quarter century later, some of them are still big names in the film world—John Wayne, Clark Gable, James Stewart.

Some have stuck around in television — Jackie Cooper, Loretta Young, Ann Sothern.

Some have combined stage and TV work — Lee Tracy, Walter Pigeon, Henry Fonda.

But what ever happened to the others?

A Hollywood reporter often gets queries from fans who want to know what their favorites of long ago are doing now. Here is a rundown on some of them:

Tim McCoy travels with a circus.

Dancer Ruby Keeler is a housewife at Balboa, Calif.

William Haines is a Los Angeles interior decorator.

Ramon Novarro tends to his real estate and does occasional TV roles.

Richard Barthelmess lives in retirement in New York.

Bebe Daniels has a TV show in England with husband Ben Lyon.

Hoot Gibson is a hotel greeter in Las Vegas.

Bill (Hopalong) Boyd is retired at Palm Desert, Calif.

Shirley Temple is a Burlingame, Calif., housewife, appears occasionally on TV.

Jeanette MacDonald sings at concerts.

Nelson Eddy stars in a night club act.

Bruce Cabot does films in Italy, has business deals with King Farouk.

Irene Dunne limits herself to public service and rare TV appearances.

HOOT GIBSON
Hotel Greeter

Alice Faye lives in Palm Springs, Calif, with husband Phil Harris.

Dorothy Lamour works in night clubs, may return for another appearance.

Fay Wray does character roles in TV films.

Marion Davies looks after her financial interests.

Stan Laurel lives in Santa Monica, disabled by a stroke.

Virginia Bruce is married to Turk tycoon Ali Ipar, recently made a film return.

Tim Holt has a cattle feed business in Marshalltown, Iowa.

Olivia DeHavilland lives with husband Pierre Galante in Paris, makes a film a year.

Billie Dovie is retire in Palm Springs as Mrs. Robert Kenaston.

John Boles lives in Beverly Hills and tends his investments here and in Texas.

Priscilla Lane lives as Mrs. Joseph A. Howard and mother of four in Andover, Mass.

Big Helicopters Help Fight Fire

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP)—Huge Banana-shaped helicopters from the Army went into action today transporting Indian fire fighters to a stubborn 900-acre blaze in the rugged northwest corner of this tourist mecca.

"But it's a tough 900," emphasized ranger John Straten who Wednesday flew over the fire, three miles northeast of San Francisco's Hetch Hetchy Reservoir near Mount Gibson. "All up and down," he said.

He said it presented no danger to the reservoir or to any settled area and expressed cautious optimism that if the weather holds the 340 fire fighters will have it contained shortly.

SC Independent Movement Dies

COLUMBIA (AP) — A move to put presidential electors on the ballot in the presidential election in South Carolina next November sank in a sea of apathy Wednesday night.

This means South Carolina will have a clear cut contest between Republicans and Democrats next November for the first time in 20 years.

The 1960 independent movement, headed by John Wheeler of Myrtle Beach, met last night and recognized the impossibility of presenting petitions bearing 10,000 signatures to the secretary of state by the 5 p.m. legal deadline today.

The group counted 2,318 signatures, took a look at an envelope bearing an estimated 1,000 signatures collected by State Rep. Nat Cabell of Charleston, and then gave up.

However, the 17 persons attending the meeting formed a committee of all present to work for independent electors on ballots in South Carolina and in other states in future elections "to advance the cause of conservative government."

Rep. Cabell was elected chairman of the committee and was authorized to call meetings as he deems necessary.

Cabell told his independent associates he could not personally vote for either the Republican or Democratic presidential nominees but added ruefully that those who feel they must vote would find the "lesser of two evils voting with Nixon and the Republicans."

GREASE TO GREECE

BALTIMORE (AP)—The clerk at the library thought the little girl asked about Greek fiction.

That is, until the child produced an assignment note which said: "How to reduce friction—example, grease."

Rep. Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) has been speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives for 16 of the last 20 years.

Hawaii Concern Grows Over Big Impact Of Tourists

CROWDED WAIKIKI: View of the famous Hawaiian beach on a typically busy day.

By CLAUDE BURGETT

HONOLULU (AP) — Hawaii is experiencing its greatest tourist boom in history. But there are fears that the Islands' friendly "Aloha spirit" will be sacrificed in the rush to keep pace with the influx.

The growing pains are most evident in the famous sun-bathed Waikiki Beach community. The skyline is changing. Giant hotels are rising higher and higher above the palm trees.

An estimated 342,000 tourists visited Hawaii in 1959 and spent about 101 million dollars, according to the Hawaii Visitors Bureau. This year's tourist crop should be even larger. In 1930, there were only 18,651 visitors.

The tourist industry is fourth in Hawaii's economy ladder behind the military, sugar industry and pineapple.

The sands were Hawaiian royalty once played is taking on a Coney Island look — crowded with people as well as neon signs. Today, an estimated 20,000 persons are permanent residents of Waikiki.

What caused the sudden rush of mainlanders and foreigners to see the Pacific paradise?

Surf, sand and sea, to be sure. But, there were many other contributing factors:

The Hawaiian Visitors Bureau has kept up a mammoth campaign to put Waikiki vacations within reach of persons of moderate means. Real effort was made to promote the islands as an easily-accessible paradise. Scheduled air and sea service was increased and improved.

Seven multi-deck hotels rose in rapid succession.

Then, the standard of American living rose. The jet age put Hawaii within five hours of California.

The sudden influx of tourists was most noticeable immediately following statehood last year. Hotels weren't ready for the boom.

Airlines and tour agencies complained they had to turn travelers away because of hotel room shortages. There were cries that advance reservations were cancelled. Crowded, hotels snuffed some occupants into small rooms without baths. Th hotels don't want this to happen again.

More than 2,000 additional hotel rooms in Waikiki will be completed this year — a 46 per cent increase over the present number.

Also, there will be 352 new rooms on nearby islands.

With all the good things have come some bad:

Too many people — tourists and residents — are crammed into too small an area.

A few Waikiki businessmen are overly concerned with extracting that last buck from the visitor.

There have been cries that Waikiki's charm mustn't be lost. Oldtimers say they don't want it to become another Miami.

Waikiki has grown too fast for its surroundings. It is a little shabby around the edges. Outlying areas are referred to as "high class slums."

Howard L. Cook, an architect, says, "There's nothing authentically Hawaiian in Waikiki. Examine the true Hawaiian grass shack culture — that isn't what the tourist wants.

"Waikiki is different, certainly, but it's not the tropical paradise people come 2,000 miles to see. That's what they picture—a tropical paradise. But then they insist on all the features of a good hotel."

Cook adds, "Waikiki is a residential area we're trying to make into a resort."

Tropical foliage is disappearing under hotels and parking lots. Architects demand more land for landscaping. Hotels need the land for more rooms.

To keep the semi-tropical atmosphere, gardens, palms and ferns are planted everywhere. Giant palm trees can be found in hotel lobbies.

Harland Bartholomew of Washington, D. C., head of a national planning firm which has a Honolulu office, has summed up the fears of local city planners.

"You musn't overcrowd the land to the point where you lose the things which bring the tourists here."

Bartholomew describes recently-constructed apartment buildings at the foot of famous Diamond Head as "warts on the face of a beautiful woman."

Not Worth Life Of Holdup Man

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—George Rideoutte, 60 - year - old liquor store operator, doesn't think the money in the cash register is worth a life—even that of a holdup man.

Held up by a nervous Army private, Rideoutte quietly picked up his own gun. But he let the 18-year-old private take the money and get away.

"I'm going to get rid of this gun," said Rideoutte. "I could easily have shot him. I'm glad I didn't."

Clara Bow is in a Culver City sanitarium with a nervous ailment.

In This Distant Century, Old Hemon Didn't Have Many Birthdays Left

By PENN GRAY
Robesonian Staff Writer
Written for The Associated Press

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — It was spring and old Hemon Hooper woke with a good feeling—and a bad feeling. But the good feeling was partly because he was going to cure the bad feeling.

Hemon hadn't exactly dreamed, he'd just remembered, either as he drifted off to sleep again or as he drifted back awake. He's remembered another spring day 60, maybe 65 years ago. He'd had a good feeling, and a bad feeling, then, too.

So he rose at his old home in The Meadows with a good feeling, and as the morning drifted along, one of the neighbor boys came by in his car and he agreed to take old Hemon into town.

They went to Fourth Street and it all looked unfamiliar to old Hemon. He was sort of lost. There used to be a livery stable there—right where those trucks were parked now.

On that other spring day, old Hemon remembered, he'd had an itch—an itch to get up and go—an itch to do something big. But to get up and go big took money. Still young Hemon had an itch he couldn't scratch.

Seems like he must have known the white man at the livery stable real well. Seems like he rented the best horse in the stable and a shiny buggy, for a dollar, just to take a ride and see if that itch would go away. Seems like he did and seems like the itch did go away.

But he still didn't have a dollar. And seems like there was some trouble about that, but seems like nothing bad happened. And it seems like young Hemon just walked away.

And now in this distant spring of 1960—in another century—old Hemon hadn't many springs left. He'd worked and he'd worked, and then he'd worked some for the Lord preaching a little, forgetting for a time that he wasn't square with the world. He was worried, now, about that dollar.

Perhaps the neighbor boy was a little impatient, but he was patient, too. So he left old Hemon in the car and went to the oldest stores on Fourth Street. And somebody told him who could tell him the name of the man who had owned the livery stable that other spring.

So the neighbor boy took old Hemon to Mrs. Johnnie McNeill's house. She wouldn't remember that other spring herself, but she kept up with the family in the town, and her Johnnie Mac had seen to the city's lights and water and streets since World War I. She knew everybody — and their kin.

Old Hemon was feeble; even on this spring day in 1960 he'd bundled an old muffler around his neck as he went to seek out someone he could pay his last debt to. So he sat in the car; the neighbor boy went to her door and gave an explanation, and she came out of her house to listen to old Hemon's story.

He faltered in his tale and he was deaf. But they talked together there and she thought of names that might have been the name of the man with the horse and buggy so long ago.

They remembered together, and after a while the name emerged—Joe Stone, who's gone now.

But old Hemon still wanted to pay that dollar. Who was Joe Stone's kin?

She knew.

So old Hemon fumbled in an old purse and unfolded a stained and creased old dollar bill and gave it to Mrs. McNeill.

Old Hemon smiled. "Now," he quavered. "I'm ready to go, and my call'll come most any time."

And the old dollar bill is now Mike Stone's; he's Joe Stone's grandson. Mike keeps it at his civil engineering office down on Fifth Street.

Repository For Other Buyers

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (AP)—His station wagon is becoming a repository for other people's purchases, Douglas Stuart complained to police.

He returned to his car recently, he explained, to find two rolls of heavy duty rope and a claw bar inside. A few months earlier, he discovered $45 worth of groceries in the car.

Stuart said he located the owner of the groceries. Now he'd like to find the owner of the rope and tool.

Floodtide Of Freedom Is Still Rolling Across Africa

SUITED FOR SPACE—Jerrie Cobb, 29, of Ponca City, Okla., first U.S. woman to take and pass space flight tests, poses for New York cameramen. She's 5-7 and weighs 121 lbs.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The "winds of change" are blowing over Africa with unspent force, sweeping in one of the most momentous revolutions in history.

By the end of this year 180 million of the Dark Continent's 240 millions will be under Negro rule.

The colonial structure shaken by World War II is rapidly crumbling.

Africa is really divided into two parts—North Africa and Black Africa below the Sahara.

The early postwar years brought independence to all North Africa except Algeria where Nationalists are waging war against the French.

With Britain granting self-rule to its Gold Coast colony (Ghana) in 1957, the floodtide of freedom began to roll over the entire continent.

It is still rolling.

Fourteen new nations have come into being since January and two others are only weeks away from independence to make a total of 26 sovereign African nations.

Before World War I there were only two—Ethiopia and Liberia, the latter created and protected by the United States as a haven for former slaves. Ten years ago there were only four.

For Africa's 5,700,000 pioneering white settlers it's been a time of grave despair—doubts about the natives being ready for independence, despair at finding themselves under black rule for the first time.

Among three major white-ruled strongholds remaining are the color-conscious Union of South Africa; the British-controlled Rhodesias; and Angola where the Portuguese have attempted to stem the tide by a policy of absorption rather than color bars.

For the world it means a shift in power blocs, especially in the United Nations. The traditionally neutralist Asian - African grouping totaled 29 nations in the old General Assembly — 20 Asian, 9 African. With new admissions this year, the African states will number at least 23.

For the Africans themselves freedom means new troubles—both political and economic.

The continent—so vast that the United States, China, India and Pakistan could fit within its boundaries—has divisions almost as wide as those between East and West.

There are great barriers of tradition and language and systems of law, especially in the areas developed by the British and French; regions of fantastic primitiveness and poverty and regions of potentially fabulous riches.

Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah, 50, is talking of a "United States of Africa."

"Nkrumah is a great dreamer," says Auguste Denise, a leader in the neighboring Ivory Coast Republic.

Other African leaders have been slow in warming up to Nkrumah's plan though they concede it would be advisable for the new nations on the continent to cooperate.

Freed after 80 years of Belgian rule, the Congo erupted into turbulence bordering on civil war. This land of 14 million people has 200 tribes speaking more than 38 languages and dialects.

A mutiny of the Congolese army against their Belgian officers brought out into the open tribal and personality clashes which simmered during the campaign for independence.

Belgian intervention against army mutineers led Premier Patrice Lumumba to appeal to the United Nations for help to keep the infant nation from falling apart.

President Joseph Kasavubu, seeking to prevent a fratricidal war between Lumumba's forces and secessionists, tried to dismiss Lumumba and appealed to the U. N. to keep order.

Katanga, richest of the Congo's six provinces, proclaimed its independence. Provincial Premier Moise Tshombe denounced Lumumba as a Communist and said: "Let us face the truth. Democracy does not exist (in the Congo) at the moment. It will be years before Africans here consider themselves Congolese rather than members of individual tribes."

Lumumba accused Tshombe of being a stooge for the retiring Belgians.

The policy gyrations of Lumumba and the motives of some of the tribal chiefs rebelling against him are not so easy to define.

Lumumba pictures himself as a fervent nationalist. He angrily told an interviewer that calling him a Communist was "an insult." But his flirtations with Moscow and threats to appeal for Soviet help have given his regime the tinge of a potential Communist-style dictatorship.

Men around the goateed premier are a mixture of Marxist extremists and moderates inclined to cooperation with the West.

The Soviets sent a fleet of cargo planes to help Lumumba move troops in combating rebel elements. The Congo crisis gave the Soviets a chance to move further into Africa after an earlier step in that direction through Guinea.

Guinea's Prime Minister Sekou Toure, after breaking with the French Community organization, made an economic alliance with the Soviet Union when the West was slow with offers of aid.

But the West has friends among the rising young nationalist leaders and even some of the older nationalists who have made their peace with their former colonial rulers now that independence has come or is imminent.

Nigeria, Africa's biggest territory with 35 million people, is due to join the ranks of new nations Oct. 1 under a leader friendly to the West. Alhaji wsir Ahamadu Bello, 51, the Sardauna of Sokoto, whose party controls the Nigerian Parliament, says the transition will be smooth and businesslike.

"The British were good tutors," he says proudly. "We have attained our independence without riots, without hatred."

Dr. Holt To Be Sunday Speaker

MOUNT OLIVE, — Dr. Robert L. Holt, dean of East Carolina College, will address an assembly of students, faculty, Board of Directors and guests, Sunday at 4 p.m. when Mount Olive College officially opens its ninth academic year.

Mount Olive College, chartered in 1951 by the North Carolina State Convention of Original Free Will Baptists, anticipate an enrollment of 150 students for the fall semester. Classes begin Friday (Septemmber 9) but President W. Burkette Raper has announced that registration will remain open through September 30. The college is still accepting both day and resident students, he reported.

Abraham Lincoln's son, Robert, served as secretary of war in the cabinet of President James Garfield.

SBI Director Wants Agency Keep Up Cooperation With Local Offices

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Bureau of Investigation director feels his agency should continue its close cooperation with local law enforcement officers if the state is to be kept free of organized crime.

Walter Anderson made the comment Wednesday after Advisory Budget Commission Chairman J. K. Doughton suggested that the counties help pay the bill for services the state bureau performs for them.

The commission continues its round of hearings today with the Supreme Court, state auditor's office, Labor Department and Wild life Federation scheduled to make requests during the morning.

State cultural agencies, including the Archives and History Department, the North Carolina Symphony and the Tryon Palace Commission, were to make their pleas during the afternoon.

The commission is to continue until Sept. 16 to hear agencies make their requests for funds which would pay for new and increased services during the 1961-63 biennium.

Anderson requested $198,297 for the next two years to expand the SBI's activities.

Gov. Hodges, who attended most of the Wednesday sessions with Democratic gubernatorial nominee Terry Sanford, offered Anderson a strong vote of confidence, saying, "This man and his agency have done a tremendous service to the state."

State Welfare Commissioner Ellen Winston requested $5 million to strengthen programs of aid to needy children and old persons and to help counties offer more efficient administration of welfare programs.

If $593,000 is not provided to continue old age assistance on the present basis of 85 per cent of need, she forecast a cutback to 75 per cent of need by the end of the biennium.

Other agencies which appeared Wednesday:

The State Board of Correction and Training, $404,753 for improvements at six training schools and $57,996 for overall administration of the correction and training program.

State Library, $134,403 for administration, $1,419,762 for state aid to libraries, and $1,942,000 for a new building.

Attorney general's department, $1,500 for additional personnel.

Alexander Schools, Inc., Union Mills, an increase in state aid from $22,000 a year to $40,000 a year.

Elizabethan Garden, Manteo, $10,000 a year for maintenance and $3,600 for jetties to protect against erosion.

Oxford Orphanage, an increase of $100,000 a year in state aid.

State Blind Commission, $22,207 for payments to needy blind persons.

College Adds 2 Radio Programs

East Carolina College has added this fall to its radio programs two new series of taped recordings which will be heard during the school year over stations throughout the state, Rosalind Roulston, director of radio and TV at the college, has announced.

The East Carolina television program "Let's Go To College," broadcast over WNCT of Greenville, Channel 9, will be continued this fall each Sunday at 4:30 p.m., Miss Roulston stated. Next Sunday, Sept. 11, student leaders at the college will be presented.

A new radio series entitled "The Short Story" will present Dr. Frances Winkler of the English department in fifteen-minute broadcasts of reading and comment.

"Idea Laboratory," with Dr. John Howell of the social studies department as moderator, is now being prepared. It is a series of half-hour discussions of current and controversial subjects. The panel of speakers will vary with each topic.

East Carolina during the last school year had more than 3,000 broadcasts scheduled on 22 stations from Marion to the coast. Six series of programs, prepared under Miss Roulston's direction, were presented during 1959-1960 and will be continued this year. They are "Concert," and "Organ Reveries," music programs; "Why Education?" and "Home Economics and You," discussions of educational problems; "Pirate Sports," based on college athletics; and "College News," broadcast only over WPTF of Raleigh.

Asks Authority To Protect Govm't In Buying Of Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief buyer of medicines for the armed forces asked Congress today for more authority to protect the government against overcharges by drug manufacturers.

Rear Adm. William L. Knickerbocker testified he has had some "pretty frustrating" experiences with identical bids from rival manufacturers for contracts at prices he deemed too high. He said he has referred some of these instances to the Justice Department for investigation. His prepared testimony did not name any firms involved.

Knickerbocker is executive director of the Military Medical Supply Agency in Brooklyn, N.Y., which spent $65.4 million last year to buy medical supplies for the armed forces.

The Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee planned to hear more testimony from Dr. W. G. Malcolm, president of the American Cyanimid Co, of New York City, before calling Knickerbocker to the witness stand.

The subcommittee headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., is exploring allegations of monopolistic practice and profiteering by the drug industry.

Malcolm Wednesday vigorously defended his company's record, insisting the 17.7 per cent profits earned by its medicine-producing Lederle Laboratories division last year were "fair and reasonable."

But Kefauver questioned that conclusion, setting off a row with Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill. Dirksen suggested sharply that "maybe someone has in mind here a profit control or a price control" by federal law. Kefauver denied any such desire.

Knickerbocker said he had saved the taxpayers $1.9 million within a year by awarding five contracts to Italian and Danish firms because he felt American bidders were asking too high prices.

He advocated enactment of a new law to let his agency demand a satisfactory proof of cost factors before determining whether a bid is reasonable. He also asked for authority to review contracts for medicine and to recover unreasonable profit margins. He said this is permitted by law in other types of defense procurement.

Bank Officer Favors A Budget In Every Family

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The honeymoon is over and the summer bride is ready to keep house. The first skill she must develop is handling money, says Mildred F. May, officer of a Phoenix, Ariz. bank.

"Your future happiness as a wife may depend on how well you handle your husband's income," says Mrs. May, quoting surveys which show money is the biggest single cause of trouble between American men and their wives.

Mrs. May who conducts "Preparation for Marriage" classes in schools, clubs and churches to help young people budget, offers this advice:

When you set up house, set up a spending and saving plan.

Base your plan on take - home pay, not total income. If a woman works after marriage, she should not, unless absolutely necessary, include her paycheck in the regular family income. (This could set a false standard of living, impossible to keep after children come.) This income is better used for a few family luxuries, a vacation trip, and financing the first baby. Pay bills by bank check so you can tell where your money goes.

Keep total instalment debt under 15 per cent of take-home pay. (This does not include mortgage payments on the home.) Save ahead for other home appliances.

Here's a plan Mrs. May suggests. All figures are based on take-home pay:

SAVINGS. . .Try to save between 10 and 20 per cent. Be realistic. Start with a small sum. Make it a habit to "pay" your savings account every payday, just like you pay your utilities and other bills. The goal should be to keep an amount in the bank equal to at least six months to a year's living expenses. If you live in an area where you need a car, adjust savings, allowing about 7 per cent to cover instalment payments and upkeep on your car.

FOOD. . .Spend anywhere from 15 to 40 per cent depending on the size of your income. Include money spent at restaurants (husband's lunches). Shop for bargains. Plan menus by the week.

HOUSING. . .Earmark between 15 to 25 per cent. Stick to these figures whether you buy or rent. Shade them upward if you buy. Then, you are making an investment. What you spend depends on where you live, how big a family you have, and the type of house you want.

HOUSEHOLD OPERATION. . . Figure on 5 to 10 per cent. This covers heat, water, electricity, gas, telephone, cleaning supplies, minor repairs, outside help lawn and garden care.

CLOTHING. . .10 to 15 per cent. The percentage drops somewhat at high income levels.

MISCELLANEOUS. . .Allow about 12 to 17 per cent. This includes entertainment and incidentals. It covers transportation fares, coffee breaks, movie and theatre tickets, contributions to charity, presents for family and friends, books, records, magazines, newspapers, etc.

Mrs. May says a young couple with a net income of $4,200 after taxes or $350 a month might budget their money like this:

Savings—$45, (13 per cent) Car—25, (7 per cent) Food—87, (25 per cent) Housing—70, (20 per cent) Household—30, (9 per cent) Clothing—35, (10 per cent) Misc.—58, (16 per cent).

This scale does not allow for medical or insurance costs, which will cut into the amount a family is able to save.

Only Honor Roll Pupils Can Park

EAST WINDSOR, Conn. (AP)—The board of education has dropped an unusual lure for pupils to try for high grades.

The parking lot at the high school will be off limits for all cars except those of seniors listed on the honor roll.

Board chairman Robert J. Raber says it's an effort to make an added incentive for scholastic attainment.

Feeling Fine In His Hospital Bed

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—John Dejiacomo celebrated his 54th birthday today, feeling fine after 11 major operations and 12 bouts with pneumonia.

Because of an automobile accident that paralyzed him in 1956, he's still in a hospital bed.

"The doctor says 'Johnny, fight!,' explains Dejiacomo with a confident grin. "And I say 'okay' and come back every time."

Costa Rica claims to be the only Central American nation that spends more money on education than on its armed forces.

Touch Of Color On License Tags

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A touch of color is going to be added to the drivers' licenses issued to Colorado motorists.

Color photographs will adorn the licenses, just as soon as equipment can be installed, says William Cassell, chief of the State Motor Vehicle Division.

The colored pictures cost a penny more per license, he explained, but will be used because they can't be forged like black and white pictures can.

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Scientists range from a view of the hot heart of the earth to prospects of radar discovery of secrets of sister planets:

The heart of the earth is a great hot ball of pure iron.

New support for this theory comes from Soviet laboratory experiments compressing iron by shock waves, and from study of earthquakes, says a Tass report quoting Dr. Vladimir Zharkov of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

These indicate the earth's core is pure iron, rather than alloys of iron as other theories hold. Interior temperature is estimated at 12,000 degrees, rather than the 4,000 to 6,000 degrees in other estimates.

People Pods

"People Pods" may be one answer to big city commuter problems, says Lt. Col. F.C. Goodwin of the Federal Aviation Agency. The pods — detachable passenger cabins for helicopters. These passenger coaches would be spotted at strategic depots, then flying crane helicopters would swoop down, and carry them into town. The helicopter could make six to eight trips in the time a bus made a single run. Between rush hours, the flying cranes could transport freight.

Microscopic Headache

One man's meat is another man's poison. This holds for bacteria and fungi, also. Some 15 kinds of bacteria and several forms of fungi actually thrive on jet aircraft fuel, forming a troublesome sludge in the fuels. The sludge is suspected of causing malfunction in refueling equipment in KC97 tanker aircraft and in the fuel system of B47 bombers. Scientists are seeking additive chemicals which could stop the feasting and growth of these organisms.

Heart-Less Life

Frogs without hearts are being produced by Dr. Willis C. Owens, Michigan State University zoologist. Into frogs eggs, he injects antibodies or agents which specifically act against heart tissue. Later, many tadpoles are born and live and swim for five to six days with only a hollow cavity, or just the beginning of a heart, where their hearts should be.

The tadpoles apparently are nourished by yolk material remaining in their bodies.

Purpose of the research is to explore the chemical mysteries through which specialized body organs develop in an embryo from a mass of cells which are alike in the beginning.

Exploring the Planets

Long before men place rockets on the earth's sister planets, radar astronomy may answer such puzzles as the meaning of Mars' "canals," and whether Jupiter may boast the mightiest volcano in the solar system hidden behind a blanket of jovian clouds.

In radar astronomy radio signals are beamed at distant planets, then records their echoes. The radar pulses are distorted in significant ways by solid objects or gaseous regions.

This permits a method of "seeing" hidden features.

Preliminary tests indicate radar can be developed to surpass the optical telescope in revealing surface details of objects within the solar system, Drs. Von R. Eshleman and Allen W. Peterson of Stanford University write in Scientific American.

Farms for Fish

In the Bay of Manila, Philippines, fish and shrimp are being grown on scientific farms—great walled-off ponds where they are fed soybean meal, corn and barley, and are harvested regularly.

This offers a new way of growing food in the tropics to feed burgeoning populations, explains Dr. James Dickson of the University of Wisconsin.

From larvae to full six-inch shrimp takes only six months of growing time. One difficulty is the fish must be fed imported grains, which are foods suitable for people.

Homecoming At Alcoholic Center

RALEIGH—Sunday, September 11, is Homecoming Day at the State's Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, Butner, N.C.

Medical Director Dr. Donald E. Macdonald and his staff have extended invitations to all former patients and their families to attend Open House at the Rehabilitation Center on September 11, from 1:00 to 6:00 p.m. Light refreshments will be served and members of the staff will be on hand to welcome the guests.

The occasion marks the Tenth Anniversary of the establishment of the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program. The ARP's Treatment Center at Butner received its first patient September 1, 1950. Since then, nearly 3,500 alcoholic patients, men and women, have participated in the treatment program. Alcoholic patients representing all of North Carolina's one hundred counties as well as some from nearby states have come to Butner for help with their problem.

Located fifteen miles northeast of Durham, the N.C. Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center is a state-supported facility, operated by the N. C. Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program under the Hospitals Board of Control. The program is jointly administered by Dr. Macdonald, a psychiatrist, and Dr. Norbert L. Kelly, a sociologist.

The Rehabilitation Center admits white male and female alcoholics on a voluntary basis. The treatment is 28-days and the standard fee, payable on admission, is $75.

OIL CONFERENCE

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — The Iraqi Oil Ministry announced today an international oil conference will be held in Baghdad Sept. 10 with a view to unifying the attitudes of producing countries and to prevent oil companies from acting individually on reducing prices.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market stemmed a further retreat and displayed a mixed pattern early this afternoon as trading became moderately active.

Gainers and losers were about evenly balanced, with price changes going from fractions to a point or so for most key stocks.

Some specially-situated issues or heavy casualties in Wednesday's selloff moved up a few points.

The market still hungered for some inspiring business news and it was not forthcoming. Nevertheless, trading opportunities seemed more attractive because of the battering taken by prices Tuesday and Wednesday.

Steels, autos, utilities, tobaccos, and nonferrous metals were mostly higher. The tone was generally lower for drugs, spotlighted again by a Washington investigation, rails and mail order-retails.

The market was mixed at the opening, settled lower, then firmed as dealings became more active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .40 to 216.40 with the industrials off .80, the rails off .10 and the utilities off .10.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .15 to 612.42.

Corporate bonds were lower.

U.S. government bonds were practically at a standstill.

Take No Action On Athletic Field

The Pitt County Board of Education has taken no action on a request by the Farmville School Board for additional land, to be used as an athletic field.

However, D.H. Conley, superintendent of country schools, said W.W. Speight, the county attorney, is working on the matter.

The Farmville board submitted the request for 9.43 acres of land located about 100 yards away and across the street from the school at the county board's meeting here Tuesday. The matter of financing, as well as other items, "is something that will have to be workedout," Conley said today.

The board also heard an evaluation report submitted by Principal E. B. Bright of Grifton High School. After being read, the report was ordered filed with other high school reports formerly received. Four more high school evaluation reports are to be received, Conley said.

Opine Catholic President Subject Church Pressure

WASHINGTON (AP)—A group of individuals from dozens of Protestant denominations say after a conference here that Roman Catholic president would be under great pressure "to breach the wall of separation of church and state" in both foreign and domestic affairs.

Making only sparing direct mention of Sen. John F. Kennedy, Democratic presidential nominee and member of the Catholic Church, the statement says religion "has become one of the most significant issues" of the current campaign.

It says persons of that faith "can be just as honest, patriotic and public spirited" as any others, but adds:

"The key question is whether it is in the best interest of our society for any church organization to attempt to exercise control over its members in political and civic affairs. While the current Roman Catholic contender for the presidency states specifically that he would not be so influenced, his church insists that he is duty-bound to submit to its direction."

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, New York writer, presided at the meeting, which was called the National Conference of Citizens for Religious Freedom. He said it included about 150 invited individuals from 37 denomnations, and that it was aimed at handling the religious issues in a spirit of truth, tolerance and fairness.

One key contention is the statement is that a Roman Catholic president "would be under extreme pressure by the hierarchy of his church to accede to its policies with respect to foreign relations in matters including (diplomatic) representation to the Vatican."

Another is that there would be such pressure with respect to church efforts "to gain further funds and favors for its schools and institutions, and other wise breach the wall of separation of church and state."

The statement makes a point of an allegation that the Roman Catholic Church is unwilling to concede other religious groups even the theoretical right to exist.

"The record of the Roman Catholic Church in many countries where it is predominant is one of denial of equal rights for all of other faiths," the statement says.

One of the speakers was Dr. L Nelson Bell, Montreat, N.C., Presbyterian layman and father-in-law of evangelist Billy Graham. After the conference reporters were given the text of a speech made by Dr. Bell at Montreat, Aug. 21, with the implication that the same ground was covered Wednesday.

Dr. Bell did not refer to Kennedy by name but said the country is confronted by a religious issue not because of the candidate himself "but because of a system to which he belongs and of which he is a part — unless he repudiates that system, and this he has not done and cannot do."

The conference statement reiterated the same idea — that the religious issue is not over a candidate but is created by the nature of the Roman Catholic Church.

Bell said "Protestants should evaluate protestations of freedom from Rome's domination in the light of Rome's most recent pronouncement that she, as a church, has both the right and the duty to interfere in the civil affairs of a state — because it is her avowed duty to dominate both spheres of man's existence."

The speaker said further that the election of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) as vice president would mean tha Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont, a Roman Catholic, would be in line to become majority leader of the Senate. Rep. John McCormack (D-Mass), another Roman Catholic, he said, is floor leader of the House.

"These are all good men," Bell said, "but this will indicate how completely political leadership wil be in the hands of men whose church has its headquarters in the Vatican."

'Rock Bottom' Offer Rejected

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania Railroad today rejected a "rock-bottom" offer from the Transport Workers Union to end a strike which has shut the nation's largest railroad since Sept. 1.

"Upon examination, the so-called 'rock-bottom' proposals made by the striking unions were found to be nothing more than proposals made previously by the unions with slightly different language," James M. Symes, chairman of the railroad board, said in a statement.

Symes said negotiations would continue.

President Michael J. Quill of the TWU made the offer for the TWU and the System Federation. About 20,000 members of these unions are on strike.

Neither Quill nor Symes spelled out specifically what the "rock-bottom" offer involved. Quill said only that his proposal covered "a number of important issues," not just those the company has been saying are the only ones blocking settlement.

The railroad's turndown of Quill's proposal came shortly after Secretary of Labor James P Mitchell said in Washington that he has reason to hope for an early settlement. Mitchell told a news conference he had been in close touch with federal mediators handling the strike settlement ngotiations in Philadelphia.

County School . . .

Fountain school were transferred to South Edgecombe School, since they lived in Edgecombe County, Conley said. The Edgecombe County Board of Education had requested the transfer.

Enrollment in white schools chiefly has increased in the Grifton, Farmville, Pactolus, Belvoir and Stokes schools. Here, Conley said, "We have adequate room, but no surplus room."

Statistics

In a school by school breakdown, information giving the name of the school, enrollment figures for the end of the first week this year and the end of the first month last year is as follows:

Grifton School, 657 and 635; Winterville, 805 and 830; Grimesland, 346 and 353; Bethel, 382 and 383; Ayden, 734 and 741; Falkland elementary, 223 and 246; Belvoir, 455 and 409; Pactolus elementary, 306 and 289; Farmville, 884 and 863; Stokes, 351 and 342; Fountain elementary, 190 and 217 (some went to South Edgecombe); Chicod, 597 and 590.

Sallie Branch elementary, 457 and 483; North Fountain, elementary, 250 and 329; H.B. Sugg School, 1,124 and 1,115; Bruce elementary, 454 and 425; Roberson Union, 853 and 877; Simpson elementary 167 and 162; Haddock elementary, 154 and 145; Grifton elementary, 332 and 315; South Ayden, 840 and 822; Stokes elementary, 657 and 649; Nichols elementary 189 and 203;Pitt County Training School, 708 and 787; Bethel Union, 1,020 and 1,071.

It should be noted that the comparisons are based on the end of the first week this year and end of first month last year. Some changes may be noted by the end of the first month this year.

Possession Of Lottery Tickets Charged Woman

A 36-year-old Negro woman was charged by Pitt County ABC officers with possession of lottery tickets yesterday after they found a quantity of tickets hidden under a rug in the kitchen of her home.

According to officials, H. B. Lilley and Walter Taylor discovered the tickets while searching the home of Edna Corbett at 703 Cherry St. for illegal liquor at 3 a.m. yesterday.

She was placed under a $200 bond for her appearance in City Court.

Officials also noted that six arrests were made by ABC enforcers over the past weekend for law violations.

Harry Mitchell, 58-year-old Negro of 404-B 12th St., was arrested Saturday night by Lilley and Taylor when they found a quart of non-tax-paid booze in his possession. He was charged with possessing the liquor for the purpose of sale and released under a $200 bond.

Also Saturday, ABC officers Lilley and Taylor, and Deputy Sheriffs Loyd Manning and Duke Andrews arrested two Negroes for possession of a gallon of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale following a search of their houses. They were identified as Alice Mae Atkinson, of 315 Wade St., and Bennie Robert Roundtree, 25, of 211 Nash St.

The four officers also charged Charles E. Ainsley, 45, of 1009 North Railroad St., with being drunk on the highway.

About 1:30 a.m. Sunday, Lilley and Taylor arrested Walter Taft Jr., 25, Reade St., on multiple charges after he allegedly interfered with the officers' search of a house on Pamlico Ave.

Charges brought against the man included: disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, and hindering an officer in the performance of his duty.

Sunday night, Lillian Ellis, 39-year-old Negro of 119 Barwick St., Ayden, was arrested on charges of possessing non-tax-paid liquor for the purpose of sale after officers searched her home and found a quart of illegal booze.

She was placed under a $300 bond for her appearance in Ayden court.

Taking part in the arrest were ABC officers Lilley, Taylor and Ayden policeman Herbert Gardner and Acting Chief James Ross.

Mystery Objects Said Terrestrial

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory has ruled out the possibility fiery objects found in a Hartford, Conn., backyard last Sunday night came from outer space.

After two days of study and analysis, the scientists reported Wednesday night the objects are not fragments of a meteor or space vehicle.

They are, said the report, composed primarily of common compounds and metal that had been subjected to high temperature, and of terrestrial origin.

Refraining from speculation, the report concluded: "The specific origin of the fire remains undetermined."

Methodist Gathering Will Hear Alternate Proposal

Methodists convening here Friday morning for a special session of the Annual Conference will hear an alternate proposal for their office headquarters building to be erected in Raleigh.

The announcement of an alternate building proposal came from Rev. Graham A. Eubank, Raleigh District superintendent. He said the proposal would be presented at the special session to be held in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church at 10:30 Friday morning.

The building, according to alternate plans, would be constructed not to exceed 10,000 square feet and not to cost in excess of $175,000. The building would house only the agencies and boards of the Annual Conference, the alternate proposal states, with no space for rental.

The original proposal for the building calls for 44,616 square feet of construction at a cost of about $600,000. The building would be spacious enough to provide rental space for agencies outside the church, which would help finance the building.

These originals plans raised controversy at the Annual Conference meeting in June, held in Rocky Mount, when some Methodists objected to renting space to agencies outside the church. Rev. H. M. McLamb, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, said these members objected to the church's entering the business world.

At least 500 or more of the 1,000 conference delegates are expected to attend the Friday special session, when a special reporting committee will make their recommendation approving the original plans. The special committee was appointed to make a study following the controversy at the Annual Conference meeting. This committee voted 20 to 3 to approve the original plans. Rev. Mr. Eubank was one of the three who voted against approval. He is expected to have some support for the alternate proposal when the Methodists meet here tomorrow.

Bishop Paul N. Garber of Richmond, Va., will preside at the meeting. Attending from Greenville, aside from host pastor Rev. Mr. McLamb, will be Reynolds May, member of the special reporting committee; Sam Underwood, church lay leader, helping with local arrangements; Rev. C. F. Hirschi, pastor of St. James Methodist Church.

Paraders Assail Visit By Nikita

NEW YORK (AP) — Disclosure that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev plans to stay at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel during his United Nations visit brought out a picket line Wednesday night.

About 100 persons paraded in front of the hotel with anti-Communist placards.

They were not on hand this morning, but another demonstration is scheduled Sunday.

The placards bore messages such as:

"Killer Khrushchev insulted our President. Don't give him shelter."

"Murderers belong in Sing Sing, not in the Waldorf."

Organizations represented in the demonstration included the American Hungarian Federation, the Chinese Student Association, the Serbian—Americans and the Hungarian Freedom Fighters.

Sixty-five policemen stood by.

Khrushchev is due to arrive Sept. 19 aboard the Soviet ship Baltika.

Where the ship will dock appeared uncertain.

One rumor was that the ship might dock or moor in the East River near the United Nations building, but Coast Guard and other officials said this would not be possible.

Gen. MacArthur Denies Criticism Of Jack Kennedy

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — General of the Army Douglas MacArthur has denied a columnist's report that he said Sen. John F. Kennedy "should have been court-martialed" for his actions as a PT boat skipper in World War II.

The columnist, Drew Pearson, quoted MacArthur as saying::

"Those PT boats carried only one torpedo. They were under orders to fire it and then get out. Kennedy hung around, however, and let a Japanese destroyer mow him down. When I heard about it I talked to his superior officer. He should have been court-martialed."

MacArthur denied it.

"The quotation attributed to me is false and does not reflect my views," he said in a letter to the Berkshire Eagle. "I regard Sen. Kennedy's service in the Pacific War as that of a brave and resourceful young naval officer. His decorations were well-earned."

Favoring Most Of Relief For Poorest Nations

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Sentiment was growing at the inter-American economic conference today for the poorest nations and areas in Latin America to reap the most benefit from a new fund being set up for social development.

The committee of 21 reached virtual agreement on the shape of the program, which will be pegged to a $500-million grant from the United States.

Mexico's Rodrigo Gomez suggested giving priority to backward areas.

The Inter-American Development Bank, which would handle the special fund, would have to decide on projects submitted to it.

The U. S. plan for social purpose projects coupled with a pledge of continued econimic assistance won almost unanimous support, with only Cuba openly critical.

Reveal Transfer Of 23 Pupils

Twenty-three pupils have been transferred from the North Fountain to the Bruce School it was revealed here this week.

A report on the transfer of the 23 pupils was made at the Pitt County Board of Education meeting here. The reason for the transfer was that there is more room available in the Bruce school, and the transfers lived closer to the Bruce school, D.H. Conley, superintendent of county schools, said.

Bruce school is located about eight miles from Greenville, just off Highway 43.
