Dressing Right Question Boils Down To Three Factors: Expert

RALEIGH—Better grooming is he-man stuff! Dressing for the occasion means wearing neat, clean clothes that are suitable-functional and flattering and appropriate—for all the things you do. Miss Mary Em Lee, clothing specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, says one wardrobe can't possibly be right for all occasions. She advises the fellows to establish a sense of appropriateness and then the question of dressing right will boil down essentially to three factors: Whether your clothes fit you and flatter you; whether your outfits are coordinated as to color, texture and fabric; and whether your wardrobe is well rounded. When buying a jacket, make sure the collar is set smoothly at a level exposing about a half-inch of your shirt collar; have the sleeves long enough to show about a half-inch of your shirt sleeve; be sure the sleeves do not wrinkle where they are joined to the jacket at the shoulder; and the jacket is the right length when the tip of your thumb meets the bottom of the jacket when your arm is in a relaxed position. As for the style that flatters you, this is not a problem these days. All male apparel has been slimmed down and blessed with a more natural look. Padding has been removed, styling has been streamlined, and the result is less weight for you to carry in clothes that boast cleaner, neater lines. Miss Lee says that no wardrobe is better than the care you give it, so take good care of the entire wardrobe.

Dr. Perry Case of Wilson officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. D. Woodrow Worthington, organist, and Mrs. Lela Jackson, soloist, presented the nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of satin and lace. Her elbow length veil was attached to a cap of lace with tulle and pearl trim. For her bouquet she chose a satin covered prayer book centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Lloyd E. Butler of Stokes, matron of honor, wore a street length dress of blue lace over taffeta. She carried a bouquet of white peonies.

W. B. Lancaster, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man. A reception and cake cutting followed the wedding at the church.

TIME — The Grassy Creek Home Demonstration Club members in Ashe County had a club meeting and did not lose a minute of their valuable time during canning season. Many of the members were at the community cannery peeling apples.

Mrs. Jane Davidson, home economics agent, decided not to stop the women from their work. She went over to the cannery and discussed new inheritance laws with the women while they continued to peel apples. "I feel like I accomplished a lot this afternoon, getting my apples peeled and learning all about the new inheritance laws at the same time," remarked Mrs. Verna Mae Davis.

ROADSIDE MARKET GAINS NEW FRIEND — The Newport Home Demonstration Roadside market in Carteret County has made a big hit with personnel from the local air station. An unidentified sergeant asked permission to make a sign for the market. Of course, he got the club members "okay." A few days later he returned with the sign and put it up for them.

Mrs. Floy Garner, home economics agent, reports the welcome visitor informed the women that he wanted to give them the sign in return for selling him fresh product. High returns are rewards for small favors.

Miss Mary Johnson, home economics agent, says many of the women will be using the ideas gained to make their own Christmas gifts between now and the holiday season.

PICKLED PEACHES FOR HOLIDAY MEALS — Canning is an important activity for some residents of Hoke County. For others it is just a way of having products which they can give to their friends on special occasions.

Mrs. Mary Lou Roman, assistant home economics agent, says Mrs. Arthur Gore of Raeford has pickled peaches so she will have them as gifts and holiday treats. She can use her peaches by recommended methods so she will have only "top-notch" conserved foods.

MILK DRESSING

MOLD-A-CAKE

A Truly Great Day For Greenville

It was a great day for Greenville Saturday when Democratic presidential candidate Sen. John F. Kennedy brought his campaign into Eastern North Carolina.

Easily it was the biggest political event this section of the state has seen in many years, and there is no question about the response the candidate received in this area compared with that in the larger cities of the state he visited later in the day.

While estimates of the crowds that saw Sen. Kennedy during his visit vary, it is safe to say that at least 20,000 people saw and heard him during his 87 minute visit here. Certainly none of the larger cities of the state he visited later in the day could boast of much larger or enthusiastic crowds than were in Greenville for the first visit of a presidential candidate to the East in more than half a century.

The many people who worked so hard on local arrangements for the visit are to be commended for the thoroughness with which they planned and carried out their tasks for the day. Sen. Kennedy was scheduled to be here for 87 minutes from the time his plane landed until it was back in the air again. Considering the places he was slated to go while he was here, the problems of crowds, traffic and movement, it was a major problem to keep the tight time schedule allotted.

Everything in Greenville went off without a hitch, and the candidate was within three minutes of the allotted time schedule when his plane left the Pitt-

Precedents And Govm't Activity

By LYNN NISBET
PRECEDENT — Few people realize how much precedent, or the fear of precedent, influences governmental activity. Through the centuries of the advancement of popular government over autocratic individual control judicial precedent has been the most controlling factor. Two hundred years ago one "Junius" (pseudonym for an anonymous author believed to have been Sir Philip Francis) wrote that "one precedent creates another; they soon accumulate and become law."

A century later Lord Alfred Tennyson paid high tribute to his native England as a "Land of old and fair renown, where Freedom slowly broadens down, from precedent to precedent." History and literature are replete with illustrations of how one act precedes another, and how precedenters and so had far greater impact than intended at the time the act was performed.

Bringing the story down to the present, the Advisory Budget Commission, during its hearings of requests from State agencies and institutions has often been reminded of precedents established by budget allocations.

Paul Reid, president of Western Carolina College at Cullowhee, supported his request for additional cafeteria employees in order to shorten work hours of present employees, by reminding the budget folks that he understood they had approved shorter hours for highway patrolmen and prison guards. We do not ask for special privilege, only the same treatment which has been set as precedent, he said. Spokesmen for other colleges have argued that such and such places have this or that facility. We want comparable consideration.

Sometimes the fear of precedent prevents action which seems sound on merits of the individual case.

COMMUNITY COLLEGES — Take the matter of community colleges, which presently are built and operated on State-local matching fund basis. Asheville and Wilmington colleges are asking for full State construction, eliminating the local matching requirement. Charlotte comes along with a proposition challenging the State to match local funds for basic activities, both in buildings and operational costs. But — the Charlotte folks insist that the State should put up about a million dollars of non-matched funds for classrooms and laboratories in order to accommodate students from other counties. Budget folks privately concede that this proposal has real merit. The two little words that block action are "but" and "if."

If the full matching basis for community colleges is broken down any little break will be pleaded by other communities as precedent for abandoning the program. Dozens of communities could come in and say "you did it for Charlotte, why can't you do it for us?"

The community college idea has been heralded by education administrators as holding the key to solution of the education problem above the public school level. So far the division of costs has been heavier on local government, with the State giving aid only in the phases that fit into a general statewide program. Complications are unavoidable.

Back to the Charlotte situation for example. Mecklenburg county has put up approximately two-thirds of the cost of buildings and facilities and about the same ratio of operating expenses. But because something like one-third of the costs come from State funds, students from other counties demand — and are granted — the right to participate. Charlotte folks say they have proposed that the other counties come in on a cost-sharing basis, but so far without success.

PROBLEM — That condition poses a problem in ethics. If the State provides approximately one-third of the total capital investment and operating costs, then it would appear that students from anywhere in the state might be entitled to one-third participation. The other side of the picture is that without the Mecklenburg two-thirds there could not be any college. Maybe the community college idea should be expanded to a sectional or regional college, with several counties required to join in matching State funds, and students from these counties entitled to attend on ratio of amount contributed by their local governments.

LONG RANGE — There is widespread belief that the Charlotte college folks are playing a smart game with long range implications. When the present plans for Charlotte College and Carver College (the Negro unit under the same board of trustees) are completed there will be a plant in which more than four million dollars have been invested, more than half of it by Mecklenburg county. It will have capacity for 2,000 students, and something like one-fifth of them will come from outside Mecklenburg. A map accompanying the brochure presented shows that while Charlotte is the metropolitan center for nearly two million of North Carolina's population, the nearest four year State supported college is 100 miles away.

The budget folks and others believe that within a few years the Charlotte folks will make a pitch to have their community college adopted into the State higher educational system as a full-fledged four-year college. But it must prove that worth before being accepted — and the budget folks are not disposed now to extend any special privileges or concessions.

Greenville airport.

In his address at East Carolina College Stadium and in his remarks at Farmers Warehouse, the Democratic candidate made clear his support of an "affirmative" farm program that will benefit the agricultural sections of the nation and afford them the equal footing they should have with other phases of the nation's economy.

There can be no mistake about the favorable impression Sen. Kennedy made upon the people who saw and heard him in Greenville. His forceful, forthright manner in his talks and his friendly, pleasing personality as he moved among the crowds of people struck a note of sincerity and genuine interest in the people and the problems which face this broad agricultural region of Eastern North Carolina.

As for Greenville, the Democratic candidate's visit here projected this community into the nation's political limelight at least for a fleeting instant in this national election year. In the newspapers throughout the nation Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning, his visit to Greenville received considerably more attention than his other stops in North Carolina. It was true not only in North Carolina, but throughout every other state where the actions and words of the Democratic presidential nominee are of interest and importance to the people. Greenville received more nation-wide publicity from the visit of Sen. Kennedy here Saturday than from any other one single event in the history of this community.

All in all, it was a great day for Greenville. It was a great day too, we think for the Democratic nominee, Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Situation In Congo Continues To Be Fluid

For the moment at least, the communists have been thrown out of the strife-torn Congo, and their efforts to take over the new nation thwarted.

It is clearly a victory for the Western world and for the United Nations which has had to face not only internal conflict, but Soviet support of internal strife as the U.N. sought to bring some peace and order out of chaotic conditions in the Congo.

The removal of Soviet officials from the Congo on order of the president and the emerging military strong man will not end communist attempts to take over the huge African nation. It is apparent now that the communists had pinned their hopes on the fiery Premier Lumumba who has since been stripped of power. Lumumba remains under U.N. protective guards in the Congo now, but he must still be considered a threat to restoring peace and democratic rule in that new country.

If nothing else, the rapid series of events in the Congo in recent weeks has shown that conditions can change completely from one day to the next. Lumumba appeared in complete control at one point and moved rapidly to turn the country over to the communists. Within a day he was stripped of his office and his power, his own army troops seeking to lynch him. The tables could turn in his favor again just as quickly in the fluid situation which exists.

Any way one looks at it, the Congo crisis continues to pose a threat to world peace.

Decline Since The Last Survey

By RALPH ROBEY
Optimists on the business trend, and we are one, have had some real body-blows in the past few weeks. Steel production cannot get on an appreciable upward curve, housing starts and construction as a whole are far below what had been anticipated, inventories are no longer going up, machine tool orders are down, automobile sales are disappointing, and so forth. Now we have a new report on projected investment in plant and equipment for the remainder of 1960 and it reveals a decline from the last survey.

These reports are made each quarter by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Department of Commerce. The current survey, made in late July and August, covers the plans of business management as of that time for this and the final quarter. The reduction from the total of the preceding study is only 2 per cent, but this means that this item will not be a rising plus factor from here on.

One of the reasons this is so important is that the amount involved is enormous. The all-time high was in the third quarter of 1957. That figure was just short of 33 billion dollars. During the 1958 recession the total dropped to below 30 billion dollars. Since then it has been rising and originally it was forecast that the aggregate for the year would be well over 37 billion dollars. It is clear that we shall not attain that total.

Two questions need to be answered: What has caused the downward revision? What affect will there be on the business trend?

Among the reasons for the downward revision the following probably have been most important. Present capacity is adequate to take care of not only the immediate but the probable demand of the foreseeable future in many industries. Under these circumstances only an investment which will increase efficiency of output can be justified. Profits are being squeezed and there is no indication that this situation will be improved in the near future. This curtails the volume of funds available for investment, and also lessens the incentive to make investments that are not absolutely necessary. There is continuous discussion over the possibility of another recession in the relatively near future, which lessens the urgency to expand output capacity. There is little or no likelihood that prices will increase by enough to make a delay more costly. And there is a possibility that prices may be lowered by at least enough to offset the constantly rising wage level. With uncertainties and problems over such a wide area, this is a time when it is both comfortable and wise to have surplus funds, and they can be kept invested in securities which yield at least some income. As to the effect of the downward revision (Continued on page five)

AVOID IT AT ALL COSTS
As I waited in an automobile to pick me up, I saw the traffic officer stop the approaching car and say a few stern words to the driver about the speed and carelessness of his driving. Then, when I was in the car and we were driving to our destination, several children stood on a runway above the car and were impertinent in word and act to the driver. Suddenly his face became suffused with hatred. That is the only word for it — hatred. Not in years, I think, have I looked into a face more distorted with uncontrolled rage than was the face of this driver. It was only in response to my insistence that he drive on that he was re-

Ambassadors To Cuba

Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee called before it two former American Ambassadors to Cuba, Arthur Gardner and Earl E.T. Smith, to ask them what they knew about the State Department and Fidel Castro. Both testified to the glooming economic conditions of Cuba while they were there and the general sense of economic security on the part of the Cuban people which disappeared after Fidel Castro took over. Gardner made it clear that Castro's assistance came from the United States while the Batista government was in control and recognized by the United States. Gardner said:

"... during the time I was there, the last year, Castro had landed, and was hiding in the hills. And there had been an endless number of shipments of arms and other things to Castro which could only come from the United States. Every once in a while we were able to catch such a shipment, and stop it. But we were not very active about it. And one factor which I think was one of the most serious was that the former President, named Prio, was living in Miami. I don't know whether you know this or not, but he was arrested, convicted, and paid a fine of $5,000 for gun-running. And he was also indicted a second time. And yet no action was ever taken on it. My personal reason for thinking it was serious was that many times Batista would send for me and ask me why this was."

Ambassador Earl E.T. Smith confirmed Ambassador Gardner's judgment:

"Primarily I would say that when we refused to sell arms to the Cuban government and also by what I termed intervening by inuendo (which was persuading other friendly governments not to sell arms to Cuba) that these actions had a moral, psychological effect upon the Cuban armed forces which was demoralizing to the nth degree. "The reverse, it built up the morale of the revolutionary forces. Obviously when we refused to sell arms to a friendly government, the existing government, the people of Cuba and the armed forces knew that the United States no longer would support Batista's government."

"It is also true, and I believe that I can confirm the story now because the following story was reported by associates of Batista. Further, I was asked by the press last winter to comment on whether we had told Batista to leave the country. At that time I refused to answer the question and referred all comments to the State Department."

"It is also that, upon instructions, I spent 2 hours and 35 minutes on December 17, 1958, with Batista, and I told him that the United States or rather certain influential people in the United States believed that he could no longer maintain effective control in Cuba, and that they believed it would avoid a great deal of further bloodshed if he were to retire."

"Senator Eastland, That was on instructions of the State Department?"

"Mr. Smith, An ambassador never would have a conversation like that, sir, unless it was on instructions of the State Department."

"A decision such as prohibiting the sale of arms to a friendly nation can have devastating effects upon the government in power."

"We even did not fulfill our promise to deliver 15 training planes, which had been bought and paid for by the Batista government, in accordance with instructions from the State Department. I informed Batista that delivery would be suspended, because we feared some harm might come to the 47 kidnaped Americans. The kidnaping by Raul Castro of 30 U.S. Marines and sailors, 13 American citizens, and 3 Canadians occurred at this time."

"After the kidnaped Americans were returned we still refused to deliver these training planes because we feared that bombs could be put on the planes even though they were strictly for training purposes."

"I reiterate that decisions such as these may determine whether a government can remain in power."

Other Editors Saying School Fees

(The Warren Record)

During the recent Democratic primaries Terry Sanford stressed, as his number one objective increased pay for teachers and the general improvement of North Carolina public schools.

Sanford said that much of his goal to make North Carolina schools, not the best in the South but among the best in the nation, was a long-time program in accordance with the growing financial ability of the state.

Not mentioned by Sanford, but worthy of consideration in any school improvement program, we feel, would be the elimination of textbook rentals and other special fees which bear heavily on many parents at the opening of schools.

A point may be well made that the county and the state are doing a great deal to educate the children of North Carolina and it is not asking too much for the parents to bear the relatively small cost of rental and other special fees. However, as a matter of principle this does keep the state of North Carolina from offering a free public school education to all its children. As a matter of practices it often works a real hardship on parents with several children in school, and there are many such in Warren County.

It may be that limited financial resources of the state may make impractical the elimination of book rental and other fees at the present time, but we feel strongly that the elimination of these should be a part of the goal of any long range school plan.

We also feel that any and all courses taught in our public schools should be offered without charge to the children of North Carolina. We are well aware of the fact that in many small schools of the state, it would be very difficult if not impossible to have taught some of the subjects which enrich the curriculum, such as Latin, Band, and possibly Home Economics in the John Graham High School. But we feel that every effort should be made to make all courses in the public schools free. To do otherwise favors the children of the more wealthier patrons, may tend to block the study of a needed course, and certainly does nothing to encourage the children to participate.

We should all work to make our public schools free in fact as well as in a name.

Sunday Business Before Court

By ELMER ROESSNER

An issue affecting almost every businessman in America will be taken up by the United States Supreme Court in the term starting October 3. And if it reaches a decision that decision may influence American life almost as much as the court's desegregation ruling.

The question is whether the Constitution permits states to forbid business on Sunday. This issue has gone to the court more because of discount selling than because of religion.

Sunday closing laws existed long before the Constitution was written. But their constitutionality was never carried before the court until discount selling generated so much fresh competition.

HOW IT ALL BEGAN
Enforcement of Sunday laws generally depends on local attitudes. Where certain Christian sects of non-Christian faiths predominate, such laws, if they exist at all, are ignored. For example, in New York City from time to time police arrest merchants who sell on Sunday, but this is only done in Christian neighborhoods. The law is never enforced in strongly Jewish neighborhoods, where stores are normally closed on Saturday and open on Sunday.

As discount houses across the country extended selling to Sundays, other merchants tended to clamor for the enforcement of Sunday closing laws. A Fairchild News Service survey found:

"Almost uniformly traditional retailing is using the technique of public pressure to eliminate Sunday business, rather than meeting the enemy on his Sabbath grounds by remaining open."

GURCHES ENLISTED
It quoted a chain-store spokesman: "We have evidence that a leading store in the Minneapolis area lined up most of the churches in the area to fight Sunday openings. Before the big store entered the fight, the churches had avoided the issue."

The Fairchild study also noted that on one Sunday after a closing drive had been launched practically every clergyman in St. Joseph County, Ind., discussed the religious aspect of the situation from his pulpit and suggested that churchgoers not shop on Sunday.

As cities and towns have acted to stop Sunday sales, discount houses have begun to establish stores along highways out of towns. With low rentals and no city taxes, these stores have been able to undercut city stores even more. Urban merchants have found they are losing sales not one but seven days a week.

This has led to demands for state as well as city action against Sunday sales; these demands have led to determination to appeal the issue to the Supreme Court.

In accepting the Sunday closing issue last April, the court agreed to hear arguments this fall on three cases.

In one, Massachusetts is appealing a decision of the Federal District Court holding the state's Lord's Day Act was un-

Brief Stop In Ireland

By ROGER BABSON
DUBLIN, Ireland.—The Steamship Mauretania, upon which Mrs. Babson and I were traveling, stopped at Cobh, Ireland to drop off a few passengers on its way to Liverpool. As neither of us had been to Ireland, we thought this was a good opportunity to spend a week there. Hence, we disembarked at Cobh, THE O'DOUGHERTY CASTLE.

The island which we normally think of as "Ireland" consists of two distinct divisions politically. The Republic of Ireland (Eire) comprises four-fifths of the area; its population is independent, and largely Catholic. Northern Ireland, consisting of six counties is still a member of the British Commonwealth and is largely Protestant. It was settled chiefly by the Scotch.

The northwestern tip of this Protestant section is O'Dougherty country, which has the remnants of a Castle which Mrs. Babson's ancestors built two hundred years ago. It was constantly in trouble. It was taken by the English some forty years after it was built; then the O'Dougherty's got it back for about forty years, and thereafter the occupancy of it switched from one to the other. There is a lesson here which may apply to other countries where property has been seized by the Russians or other Communists. Although the O'Dougherty buildings were burned and the cattle and tools stolen, yet the title of the real estate finally returned to the original owners. This makes me feel that well-lodged real estate is one of the safest investments in this troubled world.

THE PEOPLE OF IRELAND
The people of Ireland are most courteous and warmhearted. They have laughter and humor as well as curious superstitions. They are known as chronic exaggerators, due to their kissing of the Blarney Stone! Both the men and women are healthy, athletic, and handsome. They are very trustworthy, God-fearing, working people, charmingly graceful in my travels over the world. I have never met more friendly or happier inhabitants.

We started at Cobh and went along the South Coast, passing wonderful old castles such as the Dronoland Castle, built in the Eleventh Century, the Ashford Castle, and the Ballynahane Castle. Hotels are reasonable, the food is good, but bathing is scarce and expensive. The rooms are heated by open fireplaces, burning peat rather than coal. Little wood is left in Ireland, but the fields are verdant.

VALUE OF PASTURE LAND
Although Ireland is smaller in area than Pennsylvania, yet it has marvelous ocean frontage exceeding that of Florida. Some of this is meadow farm land extending down to the water; in other places there are high cliffs.

As I worked up the West Coast and noticed the beautiful unoccupied ocean frontage, I systematically took sample of the soil. These I will bring home with me and have analyzed. This land sells at a low price per acre and is fairly rocky, suitable, from our standpoint, only for pasture. It also is difficult to purchase large tracts of a thousand acres. However, I should think this land might be an excellent investment for those with patience who are willing to visit Ireland once every other year and talk with those to whom they rent.

I was much surprised at the temperature of Ireland. I saw palm trees growing in the southern portion, and I was told that, due to the Gulf Stream, even the northern portion is seldom freezing cold. The Killarney Lake section in Southwest Ireland is beautiful, and many other lakes abound throughout Ireland providing fishing, hunting, and other sports.

TRANSPORTATION
Dublin has an excellent airport with planes going to all the leading English and Scotch cities, as well as to Paris, Rome, and elsewhere. Planes from the United States land at Shannon, a hundred sixty miles southwest of Dublin, near the famous Blarney Castle. The population of Northern Ireland is almost 1,500,000, while the rest of Ireland (Continued on page five)

Bellamy Believes Theater To Benefit From Pay-TV System

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—The American theater is in one way like a Bowery bum.
Everyone knows there is something wrong with it, and nearly everyone has figured out a way to lead it to salvation.
Ralph Bellamy, president of Equity, the actor's union, has a solution, too. He sees pay television as the remedy.
To Bellamy the plight of the theater is financial rather than artistic.
"It's a result of a general economic pressure from all sides," he said.
"Even a simple play now costs $75,000 to $100,000 to produce. The same play 20 years ago would have cost $25,000 at the most.

"There are 75 to 80 plays brought into New York each year—and we are lucky if 25 to 30 stay awhile—but only four or five of these are real hits. Too often a play is either an instant hit, or an instant flop.
"There wasn't so much money lost in the old days. Even a flop might last a season. Everybody went to the theater then. There weren't so many other distractions."
Bellamy is convinced that pay television is on the way and that it will give the theater the biggest revival it has ever seen.
"The best of Broadway—everything—will be made available almost instantly to 180 million people," he said.

"There will be no flops. Every play will recover its money in one showing. All the big movies will be shown first on television, thus creating the world's biggest box office.
"In order to compete, commercial TV will have to improve its standards, so the public will gain all around."
A veteran of 89 films and more than 600 roles in the theater and television, Bellamy started acting at 18, never took a lesson in his life.
Recently he completed the film "Sunrise at Campobello," in which he appears as Franklin D. Roosevelt, a role he did on the stage 87 times. Currently he is rehearsing a role as Thomas Jefferson in "Odd Destiny" in the American Heritage series on CBS-TV. He played Jefferson before in the initial program of the series.
"This is becoming a professional problem," said Bellamy. "I'll have to find a way to escape presidents."

Nixon Calls For Freeing Of Satellite Countries

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon said today freedom must be restored in the Communist satellite world—and that this can be done without war.
The Republican presidential candidate addressed the American Nationalities for Nixon-Lodge, a group of citizens with ties to foreign countries, including some now behind the Iron Curtain.
The speech opened the second week of Nixon's active campaign and came as Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and satellite heads of state arrived in New York for a United Nations General Assembly meeting.
Nixon said the Communist leaders could be expected to hurl charges against the United States and wage a propaganda campaign that the Soviet bloc is on the side of peace and progress.
"To applause from his audience, some of them wearing costumes native to Poland and Lithuania, Nixon said the United States must never make deals simply to preserve its own prosperity and strength.
Nixon said some people bring up the tragically crushed Hungarian uprising and ask how any liberation of satellites can be achieved without war.
"My answer is that tyrants have always underestimated moral force. As long as hope lives in the heart of a people, the tyrant is not safe," Nixon said.

"We must work for these hopes at the diplomatic tables, we must insist that any competition for ideas must take place on the other side of the Iron Curtain as well as on this side.
"We must achieve our goal without war and we can achieve it without war."
Nixon said the greeting a quarter million Poles gave him and other American officials when they visited Warsaw made it plain that "the United States was right in refusing to draw a line across the middle of Europe and said 'all this belongs to Khrushchev.'"
"We cannot allow him a privileged sanctuary from which to launch his attack."
Nixon was introduced by former Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland as "one of the best-known men in the world" and "the undisputed champion in the cold war with communism."

Ayden Billiard Parlor Robbed Sunday Night

AYDEN—Police are investigating the theft of $270 from the Ayden Billiard Parlor between 6 and 11 o'clock last night.
Police Sgt. J. L. Ross said the thief apparently crawled through the blades of a three and a half foot exhaust fan to gain entrance to the building.
The money was placed in a box, Kenneth Mills, around 6 o'clock.
Mills told officers he returned about 11 o'clock and found the money missing.
Sgt. Ross said the intruders didn't tear up anything.
Ayden police assisted by Pitt County deputies investigated the theft.

Doctor Offers New Approach To Severe Burns

BETHESDA, Md. (AP)—A new approach to saving lives threatened by severe burns was suggested today by a St. Louis doctor.
It would involve use of strong drugs, such as digitalis, to stimulate the pumping action of the heart—with the objective of lessening the burn shock, which is a principal cause of death in burn cases.
Shock in burns means a state of general collapse, arising from an acute reduction in the circulation of blood to and from vital tissues, and the piling up of unwanted fluids in such tissues. In severe burns, death can occur in a few minutes to a couple of hours—with the immediate cause of death usually being pulmonary edema, a swelling of the lungs with fluid.
Dr. Henry A. Fozzard of Washington University's School of Medicine reported the new approach to scientists from 17 nations at the first international conference on research in burns. The meeting is sponsored by the armed services and the U. S. Public Health Service.
His prepared report said new evidence suggests that the potentially lethal shock is triggered by an actual injury to the muscle of the heart in some still-undetermined manner.
Hitherto, the immediate cause of burn shock has been attributed to various factors, including reduction in flow of blood back to the heart because of loss of plasma from the blood system into the open area of the burn.
Up to now, a major means of combating shock has been the administration of fluids, such as plasma and plasma-substitutes, in order to restore reduced blood volume.
Under Dr. Fozzard's concept—suggested by experiments with dogs—a heart-stimulating drug would be administered with the customary fluids to step up the volume of blood pumped by the heart.

Navy Test Mine Under N.C. Pier

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP)—A Navy mine washed up under Crystal Pier and kept everyone on edge for several hours Sunday.
Marine Chief Warrant Officer Earl Pike of Camp Lejeune, rushed to the scene in a helicopter, identified the device as a harmless test mine dropped by the Navy March 1 at Charleston, S.C.

The spotlight will be on the all-star cast, but the 1960 session of the General Assembly would have attracted unusual headlines even without the big names.

The real significance of the three-month meeting lies in two developments which have drastically affected the international picture in the past six months:

1. The acceleration of the cold war following the collapse of the Big Four summit conference last May.
2. The growing trend to channel world problems to the United Nations rather than deal with them independently.

Scanning the outlook for the coming session, it is difficult to see anything but a colossal propaganda circus.

Most of the 85 questions before the Assembly have been there in the past and will be there again. But the changed international atmosphere is reflected by one new item in particular.

The world already has had a sampling of what is coming when this question comes up. They can expect a slashing Soviet attack on the United States along the lines previously made in the Security Council on the U2 spy plane and RB47.

Another major issue, the problem of disarmament, has been discussed for years but it takes on special importance because of the breakdown of the 10-nation talks in Geneva which dumped the whole question back into the lap of the assembly.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and President Eisenhower both are expected to submit arms proposals—and there is little doubt that they will exchange charges which will turn the debate into another major cold war battle.

One of Khrushchev's likely objectives is to administer a severe propaganda beating to the United States, to isolate it, if possible from the underdeveloped nations of Africa, Asia and Latin America.

He may seek to create the impression that the session is a sort of summit rally of "peace loving forces" at a critical turning point in history to defeat the forces of imperialism.

The session will see bitter clashes on such cold war issues as the seating of Red China, the repressions in Hungary and the chasing of the Dalai Lama from Tibet by the Chinese Communists.

The discussions will be complicated by the new East-West struggle over the Congo problem and the Soviet attacks on Secretary-general Dag Hammarskjold.

There is little optimism that any major achievements will be recorded by the Assembly under the circumstances. One of the few will be the admission of 14 or more new African nations, which will in the future add to the strength of the growing neutralist force in the world organization.

The decline is not enough to reverse the business curve and, if present projections hold true, the total will be a powerful sustaining force. After all, even with the decline, investment in plant and equipment in both the third and fourth quarters of this year will be at an annual rate of about 37 billion dollars, and for the year as a whole will be some 12 per cent above 1959.

We see no reason therefore, to change our belief that the remainder of the year will be a period of gradual upswing in over-all business.

I spent nine days in Shanghai. On three separate afternoons, I saw my brother, Bishop James Edward Walsh, who is serving a 20-year sentence after conviction on espionage charges. These prison interviews were, of course, my purpose in coming to the People's Republic of China, but in the intervals the representatives of the Chinese Travel Service and the Chinese Red Cross urged me to visit places of interest in this biggest city of China.

They seemed very anxious to have me do this, so I acquiesced in their suggestions, saying I would leave the selection of the places to them.

I was taken to various department stores, to Sun Yat Sen Park, and to what was called "The Export Hall" which displayed a number of articles I was told were produced in China. There were some pretty good-looking automobile tires, including a set of white walls, a piano and other products.

I was also taken to two Chinese operas, a movie, and a recreation center featuring a variety of entertainments, including opera, films, shooting galleries and the like. I saw a very good acrobatic show there.

I also visited a commune about 20 miles from Shanghai, which I was told was the latest in that area, with 10,000 families and a total population of 50,000. Of these, 20,000 men and women worked—18,000 in agriculture, 2,000 in industry—while the others were children or people too old to work.

I was told there were many schools in the commune, including kindergartens, primary schools and what they called middle schools, which apparently correspond to our high schools. They told me there were some 40 teachers in the commune.

Since it was summer, the schools were closed but on the afternoon of my visit some Chinese ladies were having a singing class for about 30 youngsters from 3 to 5 years of age. This group was being led by a little girl about 3 years old, and when I appeared the singing stopped and all the children came up and shook hands with me.

I did not visit any of the schools and factories in the commune but I saw several stores and the mess hall, and I noticed some of the conveniences which included electricity, water and toilet facilities. I was also taken to what they called a satellite town. This community was about 20 miles from Shanghai. I was told the town had been established in 1958 and now had about 70,000 inhabitants. Here, as in the commune, the buildings were new. The satellite town also had electric lights and water and I was told it had been laid out in such a way as to allow for future expansion.

There was a hotel, a movie house, stores and factories, but I didn't go through the plants since I told my guides I didn't know much about machinery.

My guides continuously asked me if there was anything particular I would like to do, and while I couldn't suggest any special points of interest, I did tell them that I was a lawyer and that some of my fellow lawyers in the United States would be sure to ask if I had seen any Chinese courts or had met any Chinese lawyers or judges.

On several occasions I expressed a desire to do so, but the gentlemen in charge said they had never been in a court, and they didn't seem to know much about lawyers and judges either. I never visited a court or met any attorneys.

During all the time I spent with the Chinese Red Cross and travel service representatives they continuously talked to me of the progress which they said had been made under communism in China. It was quite obvious they wanted to impress me with these accomplishments and they frequently asked my opinion of what I saw.

I told them that since I had never been in China before, it was impossible for me to make any comparison between the situation now and before the Communist regime took over. Furthermore, 14 days in the country obviously don't make one an expert on Chinese affairs or qualify them to express any views or opinions about the progress or nonprogress of the country.

My final meeting with my brother in Shanghai prison was on the afternoon of Thursday, Aug. 11. On Friday evening, I left the city by train to Canton.

The train was comfortable, and I was given sleeping space in a compartment which provided accommodations for four people. My meals were served there, so I had no difficulties on that score.

No Chinese Red Cross or travel service representatives accompanied me on this trip, but at Canton I was met at the station by two ladies. One represented the Chinese Red Cross but could speak no English. The other was from the Chinese Travel Service, and she did speak English.

There was a wait of more than two hours in Canton, and I sat in a reception room with the two ladies. I was served tea but no breakfast, and the travel service lady also undertook to advise me about the glories of communism. She had a low opinion of the United States, claiming that we are imperialistic. And I might add that Red Cross and travel service representatives in Shanghai had the same opinion of the United States.

I had a good many friendly arguments with these people trying to persuade them that the United States was not imperialistic. I finally wound up by telling them that I did not expect to convince them. I told them also that there was an old American saying that it is "hard to teach an old dog new tricks" and that in view of this I did not think they would be able to persuade me.

I might note that all these representatives also assured me that none of them believed in God or religion or in any future existence and when I was leaving they told me that China was entirely materialistic and believed that we live only during this life and that death is the end of everything.

The train from Canton reached Schumchun at 11:20 a.m. Sunday, and after going through customs and other formalities at the border, I was escorted to the frontier. Here I met Mrs. Walsh, who had been in Hong Kong but was allowed to come to the border to greet me, together with representatives of the British and American Red Cross, and one of the Maryknoll Fathers.

This wound up my trip to the mainland of China. But naturally it did not end my thoughts about my brother, remaining behind in the Shanghai jail.

He first went to China in 1918 as a Catholic missionary. He is now the only American Catholic priest left in China, and I was told there are few foreign missionaries of any faith now left on the mainland.

My brother's mission to China was solely religious, and he has dedicated almost his whole adult life to teaching the Chinese about Almighty God and religion. He had often told me in the past how much he admired the Chinese people—their industry, thrift, devotion to their families and other virtues, and how much he enjoyed working among them.

There are 650 million Chinese on the mainland. I was told this population is increasing at the rate of 11 million or more a year, so within 30 years there will be a billion Chinese.

It is perhaps difficult to understand, but my brother obviously hopes that through some inscrutable plan of divine providence, his presence in China may, in some small way, aid in keeping alive belief in God and religion in that country. And because of this he is apparently willing to stay there if that is God's wish.

Whether this hope will be in any way realized, I do not know. But I am confident that the vast population of China cannot be ignored by the rest of the world, and I do not believe that the problem which is presents can be solved solely through material means.

In view of this, I join in my brother's hope that he may be able to make some spiritual contribution to the welfare of the Chinese people.

He has particularly asked me to thank his friends for remembering him in their prayers. And, as his position is not an easy one, I trust that those who have been praying for him will continue to do so, to the end that he may have the strength to carry out God's will.

I had the plot figured after the first five minutes. This one, however, is nicely produced and has some good performers. Anne Baxter was the first guest star.

The show has the usual assortment of detectives: a bearded Nero Wolfe sort of chap for those who like characters; the handsome, strong fellow for the older feminine viewer; and the young blonde, college boy type for the teen-age crowd.

The best viewing of the weekend was coverage of the United Nations and its surrounding excitement by NBC and CBS. CBS did a good job of handling live the arrival in New York of Fidel Castro, and NBC pulled the U.N. session together nicely in a program presided over by Frank McGee.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—It's safer to be lost in the woods than to cross a street, nowadays. Just ask Russell Cone, Los Gatos, operator of a pack of bloodhounds.

Cone, 39, delivered a lecture on what to do if lost in the woods to a group of Cub Scouts in Pleasant Hill Friday, and left the hall to get one of his bloodhounds. As he crossed the street, he was hit by a car and suffered fractures of the pelvis and right leg.

Yep, Yanks Have It Made

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer Suddenly the New York Yankees are in a position for "magic number" talk about pennant clinching instead of a nail-biting percentage lead.

The Yanks rose to the occasion to put down the Baltimore challenge over the weekend, sweeping all four games to break the American League race wide open.

Friday afternoon they led the Orioles by one percentage point. Today they sport a four-game lead over both Baltimore and Chicago.

The Yanks have 11 games to play, Baltimore and Chicago each have nine. Any combination of seven Yank victories or Orioles and White Sox defeats would nail it down.

There still is danger ahead for Manager Casey Stengel whose Yanks have found Washington their most troublesome rival. Five of their last 11 games are with the Senators, the other six with always tough Boston.

After beating Baltimore 7-3 with a slashing 12-hit attack in Sunday's opener, the Yanks came up with a gilt-edged pitching job by Ralph Terry in the 2-0 second game.

Terry had a perfect game going until he walked Brooks Robinson on a 3-2 count with two out in the seventh. Ronnie Hansen broke the no-hit spell by driving Terry's first pitch in the eighth over third base for a single. Jackie Brandt collected the other hit, a single with two out in the ninth.

Chicago missed a chance to take over second place all by itself. The White Sox whipped up a 15-hit attack, drubbing Detroit in the first game 8-4 with Nellie Fox chipping in three singles. The Tigers eked out a 7-6 margin in the second game.

Boston trimmed Washington 3-1 on a five-hit job by Bill Monbouquette and Mike Fornieles. Despite two-hit pitching by Cleveland's Bobby Locke and Don Newcombe, Kansas City edged the Tribe in the first game 3-2. Cleveland won the second 9-2 behind Barry Latman.

Pittsburgh closed in on its first National League pennant since 1927 by beating Cincinnati twice 5-3 and 1-0, opening up a 6-game lead on St. Louis which downed San Francisco 4-3. Milwaukee remained in third place, 6 1/2 games back, with a 7-1 romp over Philadelphia and Chicago defeated Los Angeles 5-2.

A crowd of 53,876 waited 53 minutes for the rain to let up at Yankee Stadium and then sat through a drizzle most of the afternoon. They saw the Yanks score a third-inning knockout of Jack Fisher who shut them out in their last meeting. They thrilled with Terry's perfect game bid in the second game in which both Yank runs were driven in by sacrifice flies.

Despite homers by Rocky Colavito and Charlie Maxwell, the White Sox took charge of the first game at Detroit. They led in the long second game, too, but lost it in the seventh inning. The winning run scored from third while the Sox were running down Eddie Yost between third and second base, for the third out.

Willie Tasby's home run and a two-run single by Lu Clinton were the big blows for the Red Sox against Washington.

Dick Williams' two-run homer nullified Cleveland's two-hit pitching in the first game but Walt Bond knocked in three runs with a homer and double as the Tribe squared matters with the A's in the second game.

With 11 games to go, Danny Munstugh's Pirates led by six full games over St. Louis and 6 1/2 over Milwaukee. The Cardinals have 13 to play, the Braves only 10. The "magic number" is seven.

Vern Law and Vinegar Bend Mizell did the strong arm jobs Sunday that gave the Pirates a doubleheader sweep over Cincinnati 5-3 and 1-0. For Law it was victory No. 20 on the fourth try. Mizell, the ex-Cardinal, chimed in with a neat three-hit shutout for his 12th triumph.

The Cards also won, edging San Francisco 4-3 as Ernie Broglio joined Law and Milwaukee's Warren Spahn as 20-game winners. Milwaukee thumped Philadelphia 7-1 on Joey Jay's four-hitter and homers by Bill Bruton and Joe Adcock. The game was called in the bottom of the eighth by rain.

Chicago hit three homers in a five-run sixth inning and hung a 5-2 defeat on Los Angeles. The defeat left the defending champion Dodgers mathematically eliminated from anything better than a tie.

Don Hoak was the big man for the Pirates at Cincinnati. The fiery third baseman drove in two decisive runs in the opener and scored the only run of the second game on Dick Schofield's double after hitting a double off Bob Purkey.

Dick Stuart and Hoak hit home runs in the first game. The only Cincinnati runs were homers by Willie Jones and Frank Robinson.

Mizell, acquired from St. Louis with a 1-3 record, boosted his season performance to 12-4 with the three-hitter. Old Vinegar Bend had a stormy moment in the eighth when umpire Stan Landes called a ball for a 3-2 count on Roy McMillan. Mizell threw his glove on the ground and jawed with the ump. On the next pitch he got McMillan on a fly ball.

Broglio had beaten every other club in the league but the Giants who traded him to St. Louis last year. He became the Cards' first 20-game winner since Harvey Haddix in 1953. Stan Musial drove in two Card runs and Ken Boyer and Daryl Spencer each knocked in one to beat Mike McCormick.

Milwaukee knocked out rookie Art Mahaffey in the second inning. It was his third straight defeat after winning his first five. Only 10,561, smallest ever for a Sunday game, turned out at County Stadium in Milwaukee.

Full Slate For Northeastern Teams Friday

NORTHEASTERN STANDINGS table with columns for Conf., All Games, W, L, T, and rows for Tarboro, Greenville, New Bern, Roanoke Rapids, Jacksonville, Elizabeth City, and Washington.

The prominent powers of the Northeastern Conference, Washington and Kinston, were brooding today following the second full week of action which saw three upstarts, Tarboro, Greenville and New Bern, leading the conference pack.

The three leaders were the only undefeated conference clubs this morning as the football action boils down to one-hundred percent conference feuding this Friday night.

Tarboro, seeking its first title since entering the league several years ago, will be put on the spot Friday against a dangerous Jacksonville club.

Smarting from a 21-7 licking from Greenville, the Cardinals, who had been dickered with championship hopes of their own, will have to knock off Tarboro to keep alive in the race.

Tarboro opened the season with a 19-7 win from Kinston but had a rough time in handling Elizabeth City, 12-6, Friday night.

Greenville and Kinston will renew an old rivalry Friday night in East Carolina College's stadium. The undefeated Phanis still remember the 1959 curtain-closer which saw Kinston spoil an otherwise successful season with a slightly more than mid upset.

The Red Devils have received their blows in consecutive losses to Tarboro and Raleigh but Bud Phillips isn't "counting his chickens" yet.

New Bern, sporting a new system and coach, have soared to a couple of surprise wins, capped by a 21-0 decision over Washington Friday, and will be favored to add another notch against Roanoke Rapids Friday night.

In the other league game, Washington and Elizabeth City will try for victory number one. Both have suffered single defeats outside and within the conference.

East Carolina Rolls To 21-6 Win In Warm-Up Tilt

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. — East Carolina College, using a freshmen-studded lineup most of the night, ran and passed almost at will against Newport News here Saturday night but had to call on its "bread and butter" star, Glenn Bass, to provide the scoring punch in a 21-6 victory.

Playing only an estimated nine or ten plays, Bass scored three touchdowns—two on passes and one on an end sweep—as the Pirates warmed up for their season opener with Guilford at Greenville this Saturday.

Coach Jack Boone, using the game as an opportunity to give some experience to his younger boys, went with his second and third units most of the contest and liked some of the things he saw

Pete Thorell, freshman fullback, clipped off 55 yards in three carries, including a 49 yard run, to pace the yearling backs.

Dan Rouse, playing in his hometown, steered the starting team. The EC sophomore completed three of five pass attempts, including a 23-yard touchdown toss to Bass in the final period.

Bert Stafford, expected to start at quarterback against Guilford Saturday night, saw only limited action but took to the air while in the game. The Hamlet senior completed four of six passes, covering 112 yards. His first pass went to Bass for a 65-yard touchdown.

The second touchdown for East Carolina was scored on a seven yard run by Bass, climaking a 95-yard drive.

Henry Kwiatkowski, senior tackle booted all three extra points for East Carolina.

The Pirates moved through the Apprentice defense at will, gaining 267 yards on the ground and 140 through the air.

Coach Jack Boone wasn't disappointed at his club's showing but emphasized that plenty of work lay ahead. "We just have a lot of green boys," noted the East Carolina coach yesterday.

One of the big flaws detected by the Pirate coaching staff was a weak pass defense—an item ECC ranked number one in last season within the conference. Newport News completed 10 of 24 attempts for 116 yards.

The Shipbuilders could manage only 90 yards on the ground. Newport News scored its lone touchdown in the final period when Jim Ferrer completed a pass to Harold Selve, the play covering 55 yards.

Texas, S. Cal., Pitt Lose

Pre-Season Favorites Dumped In First Week

By ED CORRIGAN Associated Press Sports Writer

National champion Syracuse rolls its heavy artillery into firing position Saturday when it opens its 1960 football operations against battered and bruised Boston University.

Steve Sinko's terriers bit off more than they could chew when they scheduled Penn State and Syracuse for their first two opponents. The Nittany Lions, usually a power in the east, shut out BU in the opener for both schools last Saturday, 20-0.

The Orange should do even better. They were voted No. 1 in the country in the pre-season Associated Press poll, and against BU they should do no more than flex their mighty muscles in preparation for more important future business.

About half the teams in the country opened last week. The rubble that remained of some of the big boys was still being picked up after some of the opening day shockers.

Texas, Southern California and Pitt, ranked Nos. 4, 6 and 7, respectively, in the pre-season poll, were rudely dumped. Texas, the Southwest Conference co-champion, lost to Nebraska, 14-13; Southern Cal fell before Oregon State, 14-0, and Pitt was humbled by UCLA, 8-7.

Texas could be in for more trouble this week. The Longhorns play Maryland, a sleeper, that chopped down West Virginia, 31-8. The Terps, who have been having rough sledding since the glory days of 1955, think they have a winner this year.

Southern Cal will try to pick up the pieces against Texas Christian, while Pitt entertains Michigan State, another rough customer, and No. 8 in the pre-season poll.

Nebraska's victory over Texas and Kansas' surprising 21-6 triumph over TCU, the other Southwest Conference co-champion, bodes no good for Oklahoma, which has won the Big Eight title the last 12 years.

The Sooners open this week against Northwestern. Nebraska will be at home to Minnesota and Kansas will try to make it two in a row at the expense of Kansas State.

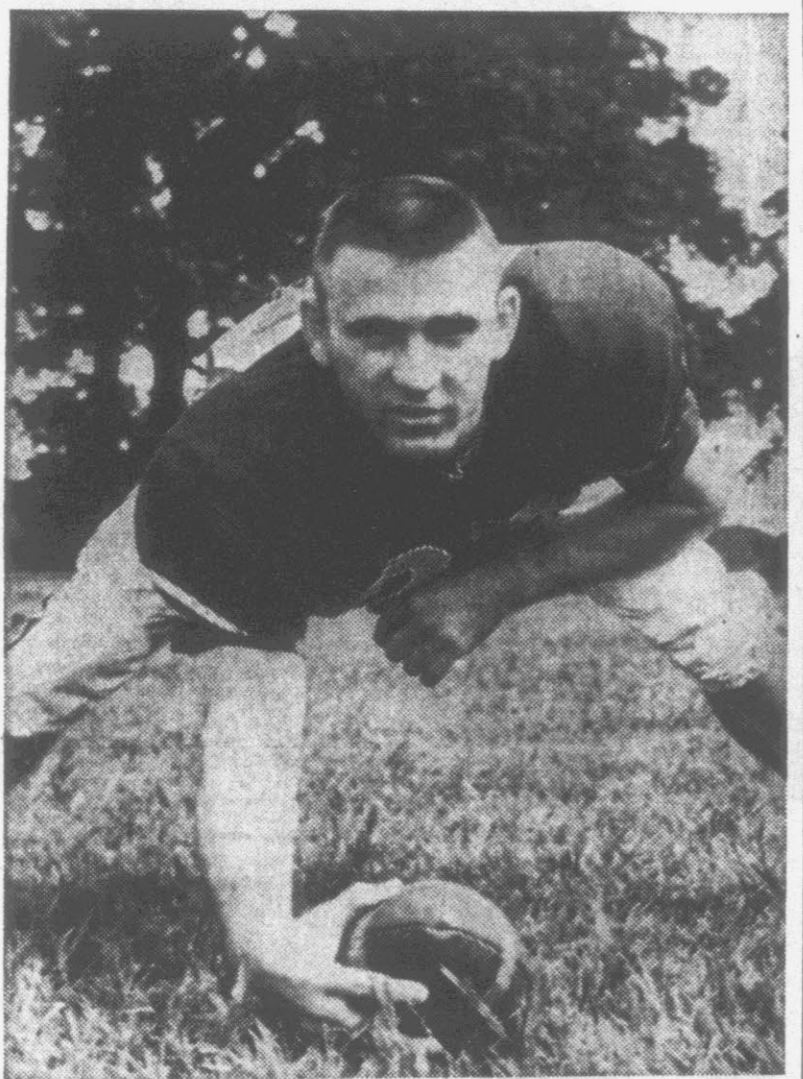

Alabama provided another eye-opener by whipping Georgia, 21-6, in the national television game of the week. Georgia stormed through the tough Southeastern Conference undefeated last year. Alabama takes on Tulane this week while Georgia tackles Vanderbilt.

Other important Saturday scores included Navy 22 Boston college 7, Army 37 Buffalo 0, Missouri 20 Southern Methodist 0, Arkansas 9, Oklahoma State 0, Georgia Tech 23 Kentucky 13, Louisiana State 9 Texas A&M 0, Washington State 15 Stanford 14.

Major League Stars By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Bating, Don Hoak, Pirates — Drove in two decisive runs in 5-3 first game victory over Cincinnati and scored the only run of second game after hitting a double.

Pitching, Ralph Terry, Yanks — Held Orioles to two hits in 2-0 second game, pitching perfect game until he walked Brooks Robinson with two out in the seventh. A leadoff single by Ron Hansen in the eighth and a two-out single by Jackie Brandt in the ninth were the only Baltimore hits in second game after Yanks won opener 7-3.

Newberry, Blue Hose Lose To SC Toughies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An unheralded junior halfback from Furman found himself tied with two established stars for the individual scoring lead in Southern Conference football today after the first Saturday of action.

Tony Carmignani, a fleet 187-pounder from Clarendon Hills, Ill., scored only six points all last season for the Hurricane and wasn't even a starter going into Saturday night's game with Presbyterian.

He's a starter now, though, for reasons crystal clear. Gaining his spurs with a brilliant first half exhibition that included a 44-yard punt return, Carmignani went on to score two last-half touchdowns that brought Furman home in front, 20-12.

The first of these came on a 20-yard pass from quarterback Billy Canly, the second on a 12-yard run that capped a 69-yard drive. Carmignani's 12-point production—double his 1959 total—was equalled on opening day by quarterback Howard Dyer of VMI and halfback Jim Porach of William and Mary, each a star in his own right.

Dyer's two touchdowns, each a modest one-yard plunge, came as VMI's conference champions staggered past William and Mary 33-21 at Williamsburg.

Of the seven games matching conference teams with non-conference foes Saturday afternoon and night, the conference clubs won three, lost four.

Besides Furman, the victors were The Citadel (19-0 over Newberry) and Davidson (16-7 over Catawba).

Canly got off two touchdown passes for Furman—the one to Carmignani and another, for 11 yards, to end Tom Walter. Quarterback Tom Redding had a 15-yard touchdown pitch for Davidson to end Ron Zirkle. The Citadel capitalized on a fumbled punt and a pass interception for two of its three touchdowns against Newberry.

West Virginia, bowing for the sixth straight time, was beaten by Maryland, 31-8; N.C. State finished strong to whip Virginia Tech, 20-14; Florida buried Georgia Washington, 30-7, and Florida State trounced Richmond, 28-0, in other Saturday openers.

Two conference games are on this Saturday's schedule. Virginia Tech and West Virginia collide in Richmond's Tobacco Festival feature Saturday afternoon; The Citadel goes to George Washington that night.

Other night games have VMI at Buffalo, William and Mary meeting Virginia at Norfolk, Furman at Tampa, and Davidson at Wolford. Richmond is idle.

Same Old Story For North State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It looks like the same old story again this season in the North state Conference football race: Lenoir Rhyne in a walkaway with the big Bears, who have won the conference title seven of the past nine years and the last five years running, opened their season Saturday night with a convincing 30-6 victory over Wofford, a strong South Carolina foe.

Lenoir Rhyne last year dropped only its final small college play-off game, came on the field with seven of last year's eight top backs still going strong.

Tailback Lee Farmer picked up where he left off last season, amassing 208 yards.

In the only conference game, Elon dropped Guilford 19-7. The rest were non-league affairs with Western Carolina defeating Carson-Newman 7-0, Appalachian edging Emory and Henry 7-0, East Carolina dropping Newport News Apprentice School 21-6 and Davidson of the Southern Conference stopping Catawba 16-7.

Two conference games are set this week, Guilford at East Carolina and Appalachian at Western Carolina. The rest of the schedule has Newberry at Catawba, Newport News Apprentice School at Elon and Lenoir Rhyne at Presbyterian.

Hard Scores Win Over Brazil Star

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP) — Darlene Hard, the new U.S. women's tennis champion, gasped in horror today when it was suggested that she was the master of Maria Bueno.

In the 10 times the two have met, Darlene, a bouncy pre-medical student from Montebello, Calif., has scored eight victories including a 6-3, 10-12, 6-4 decision in the final of the National Championships Saturday.

"That's true," said Darlene. "But most of my victories over Maria were scored when she was just a beginner. She has most of the big ones."

Maria, 20-year-old Brazilian did win two big ones. She beat Darlene in the Wimbledon final last year, then a couple of months later eliminated her in the semifinal of the Nationals.

The 6,000-odd spectators in the stadium at the West Tennis Club were astounded at the ease that Darlene tucked the title away. Only in the second set did Maria make a real fight of it, and although she won it, her back was to the wall all the time.

The men's final ran true to form with defending champion Neale Fraser crushing Rod Laver, his Australian Davis Cup teammate, 6-4, 6-4, 10-8.

It marked the fourth year in the last five that two Aussies have fought it out for the U. S. title. But it was the first time ever that two left-handers got to the final.

Edwards Smiling After 29-14 Win Against Tech

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Who could blame North Carolina State's head football coach Earle Edwards when he said, "It feels good to see so many smiling faces again."

Edwards made the statement as he looked at his team in its dressing room Saturday after the Wolfpack dumped VPI 29-14 in the season's opener. The victory broke a nine-game losing streak which started with the second game of last season.

Saturday also provided another good day for another Atlantic Coast Conference coach, Tom Nugent of Maryland, who saw his Terps roll over West Virginia 31-8.

Both Edwards and Nugent got fine first game performances from their teams, heavily sprinkled with sophomores and juniors. "Roman Gabriel was terrific," said Edwards of his quarterback.

a strapping 6-3, 218-pound passer deluxe. "He passed very accurately and called a fine ball game. If there's anything I want him to improve on, it would be to start throwing sooner, instead of waiting and setting in a hole." Gabriel completed 23 of 20 passes for 122 yards.

Edwards also was pleased with the work of his halfback Al Taylor, a 195-pounder who gained 93 yards. He and fullback Jim D'Antonio each scored two touchdowns.

Maryland showed a strong well-balanced team in its thumping of the Mountaineers. Nugent got effective quarterbacking and passing from Dale Betty and Dick Novak and some fine running from fullback Pat Drass who gained 74 yards in 14 tries.

All eight conference teams will be in action next week and the three league games should be exciting. Defending champion Clemson is at Wake Forest, North Carolina State is at North Carolina, and Duke is at South Carolina in a night game. The UNC-N.C. State game will be played at Chapel Hill, but will be a home game for N.C. State.

The two non-conference games have Texas at Maryland and Virginia meeting William and Mary at Norfolk.

Runnels Reveals Season Ailment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pete Runnels, the American League batting leader, has played the last month for the Boston Red Sox with a stomach ulcer.

The Red Sox second baseman disclosed his ailment Sunday before slamming out two singles in four trips to hold his average at .321.

Runnels found out what had been bothering him after an examination at the clinic of Dr. George Resta, Washington Senators' team physician.

Western Division of the fledgling American League.

Undaunted while his charges were pushed around in losing all five pre-season exhibitions, Filchock concentrated on providing the Denver club with a semblance of cohesion and balance by deftly analyzing his personnel, making the proper shifts and teaching his wing T offense.

With two games gone in the young AFL season, Filchock's Broncos have moved into first place in the west with an unblemished record after a 27-21 come-from-behind triumph over the Buffalo Bills Sunday.

Johnny Pyeat's 33-yard run with an intercepted pass for a fourth quarter touchdown won it for Denver and Filchock, who brewed his coaching formula in the Canadian leagues where his teams finished in the playoffs eight of nine years.

A native of Grindstone Gulch, Pa., Filchock played pro ball for the Washington Redskins and New York Giants, and now has placed his future with the AFL which drew increased attendance in its second week of operation.

Over 15,000 turned out to see the Broncos and Bills and 20,156 were on hand as Houston's Oilers riddled the vaunted Los Angeles Chargers 38-28. Another 19,200 saw the Boston Patriots edge the New York Titans 28-24 on the final play of a Saturday night thriller.

The National League—set to inaugurate its 41st season Friday night—wound up the exhibition season with the Green Bay Packers completing a 6-0 slate by walloping winless Washington 41-7 as Bart Starr passed for three touchdowns.

In other pre-season windups, Norm Van Brocklin pitched Philadelphia to a 35-21 victory over defending champion Baltimore; Bob by Mitchell went 10 years for the deciding TD in Cleveland's 14-10 triumph over Detroit and St. Louis beat San Francisco 24-17.

Denver trailed Buffalo 13-6 at halftime before a quarterback Frank Tripucka passed the Bronco into the lead with touchdown tosses of 8 and 3 yards to J. W. Brodnax and Dave Rolle. A 56-yard heave from Tom O'Connell to Elbert Dubeon put the Bills back in front before Pyeat pilfered an errant O'Connell pass for the clincher.

Veteran quarterback George Blanda personally put the Oilers into first place in the east, setting up three touchdowns with his passes and scoring them on a 1-yard plunge while adding a field goal and five conversions for 26 points. He was ably supported by a running attack led by Billy Cannon that overcame four TD strikes by Los Angeles' Jack Kemp. Chuck Shonta, Boston defensive specialist, scooped up a loose ball that eluded a New York punter and scampered 25 yards for the winning score as time ran out. Al Dorow had passed the Titans into the lead with TD flips of 8, 16 and 38 yards and it stood up until the fatal kick play began with only 12 seconds left.

The Lean Rider by CLIFF FARRELL

CHAPTER 33

The supply wagon had taken the brunt of the explosion. It was tilted on smashed wheels, its top blown off.

Hester Barbee was huddled beside it, her face ashen. Lisa Randolph and Abel Barbee raced to her side. She was unhurt, evidently, but dazed.

Lisa became aware of a new, deep sound. The herd was running, panicked by the blast. The morning star was dim through a haze of dust thrown up by the concussion. The mounted men were gone. The rumble of the stampede covered any sound of their retreat.

Abel kicked brush on the fire and they had better light. He looked around. "Anybody hurt?"

Tom Zook spoke. "Come here, Abel."

He was bending over one of the men, the only one who had not gotten to his feet. It was Nephi Smith. Lisa started to move to the place, Paul put out an arm, halting her, but she pushed it aside.

Nephi was dead. A rock had struck him on the temple.

Abel and Paul lifted him back on his blankets and drew a quilt over him. Lisa and Hester wept.

The stampede was a fading mutter in the distance. Evidently the run was already slowing down.

"There were two riders," Lisa told Abel. "I saw one of them light that think and throw it."

"I'd have killed half of us if it had exploded in camp," Abel said. "They must have used dynamite."

When the dawn strengthened, Abel picked up the tracks of the shod horses in the frosted grass and followed them. Lisa caught up her horse and overtook him. The trail led to a swamp stretch along a stream where the tracks had been swallowed by the oozy underfooting. Abel aimed for higher ground. They reached a vantage point as sunrise came. They pulled up there.

Far in the distance, perhaps half a dozen miles, two cattle herds grazed in the basin. They had been there all the time, hidden from view by this ridge.

Two riders, mere specks at that long range, were near the wagon which stood east of the bedgrounds.

"One might be Coe Slade," Abel said. "Can't be sure at this distance. But neither is Kemp Travis."

He sat motionless in the saddle, his features hard and gray, studying those wagons. Finally he swung his horse around. "We'll still deliver the cattle," he said. "Other things can wait."

He did not speak again until they were nearly back to camp, where the harsh fumes of the explosion still hung in the air.

"First Matthew, then Nephi," he said. "Travis ordered this thing last night. He's worse even than Slade."

They buried Nephi on a knoll overlooking the green valley. To his grave Abel made the same promise he had made to Matthew's memory. "We'll be back. This is where we hope to live. You won't be alone here."

The cattle had held together fairly well in the open flats, and by noon the riders had them bunched. The drive was soon in motion again, heading north.

The damaged supply wagon was abandoned. All of its necessary contents were added to the chuckwagon.

To the east of them, Travis's two herds came into view. Travis held an advantage of less than a mile.

Abel, for the first time pushed their Longhorns. The cattle at times broke into a trot. Travis's herds were being crowded to the limit also.

Lisa soon realized the reason for this race. The basin was walled on the north by a chain of rocky bluffs, broken only by a gap through which the trail led northward through broken ridges.

"If Travis gets into that notch first, he'll block us, or worse, when we try to pull through," Micah Jones told her.

But Travis had lost this contest many weeks earlier when he had weakened his cattle in the fast drive through Arizona and the desert. By noon, his herds had fallen abreast. By mid-afternoon they were dropping astern.

Lisa saw a group of Travis's riders gallop to the remuda and saddle fresh horse. "Abel!" she shouted.

Abel had foreseen something like this. He and Paul, Shadrack and Micah Jones were already changing to untired mounts.

Hester came hurrying up with the wagon and handed out rifles and ammunition. The four spurred ahead toward the notch.

Lisa watched Travis's men. He was leading them. She recognized his heavy figure. There were eight of them in all. But they had a disadvantage of nearly half a mile in distance. It was evident that their attempt to take physical possession of the gap was a losing one also.

Travis's contingent suddenly separated into two groups. Travis and three other men, one of whom Hester said was Coe Slade, drew ahead, but the other four had slowed their horses.

Travis and his companions finally pulled up and awaited the others. It was plain an angry discussion was going on. Eventually all of them rode back to take their places with their incoming cattle. Their attitudes were those of sullen men at odds with each other.

Abel waited a few minutes to make sure the gap was not to be challenged, and he and his group returned to the herd.

"Leastwise we separated the ones they'll fight from the ones who don't think it's worth it," he commented. "We'd have been hard to handle if we'd got hunkered back of rocks in the notch, an' they knew it."

Looking back, Lisa saw that Travis was throwing off both herds. He had decided to bed his cattle in the basin for the night.

Abel pushed their drive ahead. Sundown was near as they mounted the long talus ascent toward the gap. They left the green basin behind and moved into a narrowing route that tightened for the last quarter of mile into a gorge with rugged walls.

They emerged abruptly into the open on a downslope. Open country stretched as far as the eye could carry in the purple dusk. The lights of a settlement glinted far ahead. Abel said that this must be a town called Walkerville, which was a supply point for mining camps.

They drove toward those lights. Full darkness came when they were still five miles away. Abel ordered that the cattle be kept moving. He took over the point and veered the course westward, at right angle to their former route.

He maintained this direction for nearly an hour before he gave the word to bed the animals. The site was an open sagebrush flat dotted with scattered pines.

"No cookfire," he said. "Cold grub, if any, will have to do. No smokin'. We might have visitors ag'in. If so, we don't want to make it easy for 'em to locate us."

He ordered the chuckwagon unloaded. Working fast, he and Paul tossed out bedrolls and lifted food boxes to the ground.

"What are you goin' to do?" Hester asked anxiously.

"There's bound to be a store in Walkerville where a man can buy things," Abel said. "I'll need what money we got left in the sack, Mother."

"Coal oil, maybe, or powder. Anythin' they'll burn fast an' hot. Maybe even a barr'l of cheap whiskey, if I can't do any better. An' a few pieces of dynamite, if it's for sale."

"A woodblock friction match spluttered into life. Again it was to be an explosion!" The story continues here tomorrow.

Congo Delegate Not Giving Way

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Thomas Kanza, who was designated to represent Patrice Lumumba at the United Nations, said Sunday Lumumba is expected to arrive here in several days to head the Congo delegation to the U.N. Assembly.

Kanza and Jacques Lumumba, secretary of state for the Lumumba cabinet, issued a statement denying a published report that they would give way to representatives of President Joseph Kasavubu.

Says No Charges Against U. S.

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Dominican attorney general said Sunday his government has made no charges against any U.S. diplomat in connection with a recently discovered plot against the government. Luis Suero said accusations Saturday against a former cultural attache in the U.S. Embassy here made only by local newspapers, not by any official of the government.

Assures No 'Take Over' By Electronic Brains

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you have nightmares about electronic brains getting out of control and taking over the world, you can rest easy. An IBM expert says they're no threat to mankind.

However, he also says scientists are trying to cook up something new—a machine that would really imitate the operation of the brain and nervous system of animals, or even a human.

The International Business Machines man, Arthur L. Samuel, started a lively scientific dispute on the subject with Dr. Norbert Wiener, a resident genius of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and originator of the science of cybernetics—the study of electronic computers as they compare with the human nervous system.

Wiener, in an article in the magazine Science, said sophisticated computers might have advanced "moral and technical consequences" for mankind.

Samuel, in the latest issue of Science, made this reply: Wiener seems to believe that machines CAN possess originality and that they ARE a threat to mankind. "It is my conviction that machines cannot possess originality in the sense implied by Wiener and that they cannot transcend man's intelligence."

"A machine is not a genie. It does not work by magic, it does not possess a will, and, Wiener to the contrary, nothing comes out of it which has not been put in, barring of course, an infrequent case of malfunctioning."

"Since the machine does not have a mind of its own, the 'conclusions' are not (the machine's own conclusions.) The so-called 'Conclusions' are only the logical consequences of the input program and input data."

Looking to the future, Samuel said scientists are now trying to develop something different from present-day computer machines. The projected ones would have a "neural net" to simulate a complex living nervous system.

Some serious-minded researchers believe, he said, that it might be possible to make such a machine exhibit purposeful activity—just as some animals can be trained to do.

"Since the internal connections (of the machine) would be unknown, the precise behavior of the nets would be unpredictable and, therefore, potentially dangerous," Samuel said.

"At the present time, the largest nets that can be constructed are nearer in size to the nervous system of a flatworm than to the brain of a man and so hardly constitute a threat," he added.

Terms Film An Insult To Vets

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Disabled veterans' leaders think the movie "Ocean's 11" is an insult to all veterans.

The state executive committee of Disabled American Veterans expressed its disapproval Sunday in a resolution, calling it "an attempt to besmirch and ridicule the name of America's veterans."

The movie stars Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., Peter Lawford and Angie Dickinson. It has to do with a group of parachute troopers, trained to disrupt enemy installations, who get together in Las Vegas for a crime spree.

See No Excuse For 'Mischief'

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Carl W. Bright, 74, admits he got mad when the state drivers license bureau denied him a license after he had driven cars since 1920.

But officers decided that was no excuse for his three subsequent visits to the bureau's parking lot where he scattered hundreds of carpet tacks that punctured tires on many cars.

The retired railroad fireman was booked for malicious mischief.

Slight Pickup In Steel Orders Cheers Industry

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — A slight pickup in steel orders is bringing some cheer to the much beset metals industries.

Copper, lead and zinc markets are plagued with worldwide over supplies and price weakness. Aluminum has a cost squeeze on profits.

Steelmen, though thankful for the belated gain in orders reported in recent days, still are mostly reconciled to only a moderate increase in tonnage output until at least November. The Federal Reserve Board has made the prediction of a less than normal advance in September official, after reporting a disappointing August.

The metals industries tend to be up-and-down propositions, closely tied to business cycles. Now their situation is complicated by overseas political and labor uncertainties.

Long-range considerations include technical and mechanical advancements that magnify their current capacity to produce well in excess of demand. Most observers think this could last for a few years longer.

There is also growing competition, not only with each other, but with the steadily increasing number and volume of substitutes to which their customers can turn when metal prices seem too high.

Slackness of demand for steel is most noticeable in the United States. In West Europe it still finds a prime market.

But American steelmen have one consolation. After a period of our steel imports topping exports, American steel once more is flying overseas in greater volume than European and Japanese steel is coming here.

The best domestic customers for steel are still not ordering in old-time volume.

Auto makers either are using less steel for smaller cars or still living to some extent off their stockpiles. Appliance makers are ordering a little better, but not much.

The construction industry has slowed down a bit, and also has taken a fancy to other materials—concrete, aluminum, glass, plastics. The oil industry has its own excess capacity problem and isn't buying steel for new wells, pipe lines and refineries the way it once did.

Copper shares some of these problems with steel. It usually moves up and down in much the same way with the business cycle.

But copper's problems involve, in addition to worldwide over-capacity to produce, the uncertainties of political upheavals in Africa and Latin America.

The Congo, for example, has copper which Russia could use to advantage. You might remember that during Khrushchev's visit to Manhattan Island.

Fluctuations in the costs of producing and finishing metals—with mechanical advances constantly spurring with rising wage scales—add to the zest of the competition with other materials.

Hold Hearing For Indian Parents

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Judge W. Jack Hooks holds a hearing today for Indian parents whose children staged a sit-in at the all-white Dunn High School.

The six parents will be asked to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court because their children continued to go to the school in spite of a court restraining order.

The Indians are protesting assignment of their children to a school 35 miles away.

Lola Believes Thirties Are Tops For Women

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"One day I looked in the mirror and I saw some lines in my forehead," Lola Albright said. "I was aghast." If the same thing has happened to you, ladies, you're over 30. But don't despair. Lola says the best is yet to come.

"I used to worry about encroaching age," she admitted. "Now I realize how foolish that was." "The thirties are a wonderful period. I think a woman in her thirties is happier, better looking—yes, and sexier than a girl who is younger."

This statement carries Lola far out on a limb, but she's not averse to limb climbing, even at 36. She is unashamed about admitting her age, and that's part of the adjustment to the thirties.

"I think I'm much better adjusted to life," she observed. "Now I take everything as it comes." "That's one reason I think women are more appealing after 30. They've lost that anxious air that a young girl has. Most women have become contented with their life."

"They also have more background and character with which to interest men. Unless they have failed to grow emotionally and mentally, as some do, women over 30 have more appeal as conversationalists."

On the matter of sexiness, Lola pointed to the reigning sex queens of films: Marilyn Monroe (32), Susan Hayward (41), Ava Gardner (37), Rita Hayworth (41).

Lola herself is enjoying a success that eluded her when she was a starlet type. She is a hit as Craig Stevens' sexy companion on the "Peter Gunn" TV show. She'll soon be seen in a new film, "Cold Wind in August," in which she plays a woman who has a tragic love affair with a boy many years younger.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market fell through the 1960 closing lows in the Dow Jones industrial average in active trading early this afternoon.

Key stocks dropped from fractions to more than 2 points.

The Dow Jones industrial pierced the so-called "600 level" in the first hour then plunged deeper below it in heavier turnover as the session wore on.

The ticket rape ran late as selling snowballed in the afternoon. The so-called "triple bottom" formed around 600 in the Dow Jones industrial had formed a support area on three "tests" in March, May and July when prices rebounded from it. Last week the average sank close to it again but failed to rally, moving indecisively. The action today was a vigorous penetration which, according to Wall Street theory, should cause the list to drop further and find a lower support.

Trading sentiment also was dampened by the United Nations meeting which some traders feared could have unsettling results.

Steels, autos, rails, utilities, chemicals, oils, aircrafts, electronics, rubbers and nonferrous metals joined in the broad retreat.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was down 9.80 to 596.30, this year's closing low was 596.10 on March 8.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 1.50 at 213.10 — remaining above the year's closing low of 207.8 also reached March 8.

Long-range government bonds continued to forge ahead, but other treasury issues and most corporate bonds were mixed.

College Safe Is Found Robbed

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina Methodist College opened formally today on somewhat a sour note—the discovery that the school safe had been cracked during the weekend and looted of $2,500 to $3,000 in cash.

School officials said the thief or thieves broke a glass pane to enter Sunday night or this morning. Checks in the safe, received in payment of registration fees, were ignored.

Authorities examined the business office and said the thieves left no fingerprints. Papers were left scattered about the floor. The loss was insured.

Eighty-two freshmen were registered as day students, since no dormitories have been completed. They were to be entertained at a tea this afternoon by the college president, Dr. L. Stacy Weaver, and his wife.

Bishop Paul N. Garber, the resident Methodist bishop for the Richmond area, was to speak.

Three buildings have been completed on the 600-acre campus five miles north of here off U.S. 401. Plans are eventually to accommodate some 1,000 students in a four-year college.

At Age Of 90, He Seeks Comeback

COLLINSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—At the age of 90, W. J. Jackson is attempting a political comeback.

Jackson, mayor in 1932 and 1940 in this north Alabama community of about 1,500 population, is one of the four candidates in today's municipal election. His opponents are Dr. H. G. Greesler, the incumbent; S. A. Shaw and C. V. Smith.

Order Library To Be Integrated

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—Negroes have won their fight to use Greenville's public library.

City and library officials have announced it will reopen on an integrated basis today. It was closed two weeks ago after seven Negro students sued to end what they called discrimination solely on the basis of race in the use of a facility supported by public tax money.

U.S. Dist. Judge C. C. Wyche dismissed the case, ruling that with the closing there was no question for him to decide. But he left the door open for a new suit if the library were reopened on a segregated basis.

Rampaging Man Shot To Death

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Davila A. Colon, 30, was shot to death Sunday by a policeman after he wrecked the living room of his apartment with seven blasts from a shotgun and threatened policemen at the scene.

Police said the rampage was prompted by an argument with their wife, Heide, 23, who fled with their two children, David, 6, and Richard, 4, when Colon threatened to kill himself. Officers said the couple had been quarreling for several months.

Hodges Speaks To Businessmen

CHICAGO (AP)—Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina plugged for the Democratic ticket today at a luncheon for Chicago businessmen.

Hodges serves as chairman for a national committee aimed at drawing support for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket from the ranks of business and professional people.

The North Carolina chief executive goes to Washington Tuesday, where he will attend a campaign dinner that night for the Democratic national ticket.

Red Regime Bars Envoy Of Pope

BERLIN (AP)—The Communist regime of East Germany has barred the Pope's envoy from East Berlin.

Archbishop Corrado Bafie says he was prevented from attending a prayer service in a Roman Catholic church in East Berlin Saturday night. The archbishop is an Italian national with ambassadorial rank as the papal nuncio to West Germany.

Leave To See Wreck Victim

LEXINGTON, Mo.—Mrs. R. F. Thompson and Miss Jenny Lynn Thompson left Greenville, N.C., this morning to join Mr. Thompson in Lexington where their son, Robert Jr., is a patient in Memorial Hospital in Lexington, following injuries suffered in an automobile accident Thursday.

Dr. Ralph Riley, attending physician of Lexington, said this morning that the condition of Thompson is still critical, but improving. "At times Thompson is conscious and he has spoken to his father, the nurses and me. If he continues to improve, he will be out of immediate danger in another few days."

Thompson has not yet been told of the death of his wife, Katherine Susan Pope Thompson. Funeral services were held for Mrs. Thompson in Greenville, N.C. yesterday.

Thompson is suffering from multiple fractures, lacerations on the face and internal injuries.

Sweden Is Going Still Further In Welfare State

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Sweden decided Sunday to march ahead to a care-for-all welfare state under the command of Socialist Premier Tage Erlander.

General elections to the powerful second chamber of the Swedish Parliament gave the head of the world's oldest Labor government a strong vote of confidence.

Preliminary figures showed the Social-Democratic Labor party, which has dominated the Swedish Parliament since 1932, outpolled the Conservatives and Communists.

Central campaign issues were:

1. The 4.2 per cent turnover tax imposed by the government to pay for the steadily rising costs of the social welfare system.
2. The compulsory pension bill, adopted by Parliament last year, which will give every Swede, retiring at age 67, 65 per cent of his average salary during his 15 best working years.

Accounts Ledger Gives Up Money

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—An old account ledger has been among the children's playthings at the Donald Bolley home for several years.

The boys, Mike, 11; Mark, 8, and Jim, 6, have mauled it, scribbled in it, and torn out pages.

Saturday, one of them ripped off the cover, and out fell three $100 bills.

"I don't remember where the book came from," Mrs. Bolley said Sunday. "I think the boys found it in some trash. All the used pages were cut out and there was no name in it."

Mrs. Bolley said a coin dealer offered $120 each for an 1882 gold certificate and a 1903 bill. The third bill is an undated Federal Reserve note. It will be cashed.

Univ. Of Illinois Bulging At Seams

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—Eighty coeds at the University of Illinois are lodging temporarily in dormitory lounges and recreation rooms and the university hospital because of a record enrollment.

Another 250 to 300 undergraduate women were turned away because of lack of rooms. A university spokesman said enrollment will reach 22,200.
