Khrushchev And Castro Meet In Solidarity Show

NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev suddenly left his residence today to visit Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro. The Soviet leader's move came without warning. He traveled in a motorcade to the Hotel Theresa in Harlem, about four miles from the Soviet delegation residence on Park Avenue. Because of the surprise move, police had to improvise a security motor detail to escort the premier. Shortly before noon, the Soviet Premier, wearing a dark blue suit, white shirt and blue tie, strode from the Soviet delegation building. Smiling, Khrushchev raised his hand in salute to waiting photographers. Khrushchev met earlier in his heavily guarded Park Avenue residence with Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa. It was the Soviet leader's first known contact with any foreign leader except those from Europe, as satellites since he arrived amidst boos and catcalls Monday morning. The visit strengthened belief that Khrushchev would follow up his United Nations stay by making a visit to Cuba as honor guest of Premier Fidel Castro. Soviet security agents helping guard Khrushchev's residence meanwhile turned aside all questions about whether their chief would attend the opening session of the United Nations General Assembly which opens this afternoon. Soviet officials at their delegation headquarters in New York would give no hint of the Soviet Premier's plans. But at the U. N. diplomatic sources considered it highly improbable that Khrushchev would pass up the opportunity to make an appearance in advance of the speech scheduled Thursday by President Eisenhower. It was even considered possible that Khrushchev would intrude on the opening ceremonies—in his role as chief of the Soviet delega-

Off Hatteras

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The Navy said today two officers are missing in the crash of a twin-engine S2F tracker plane in the Atlantic 300 miles off Cape Hatteras, N. C. Monday night. Two enlisted men were injured seriously in the crash of the plane, operating from the Carrier Randolph. The enlisted men were rescued by a helicopter within three minutes after the crash, which occurred as the plane was on a night training mission. Names of the enlisted men were withheld temporarily. The Navy said the missing officers are Lt. John Lowe Brainerd, the pilot, and Lt. (jg) Bobby Stuart Broome, copilot.

Wreck Kills 2 Policemen Chasing Car

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP)—A bridge car plunged through a bridge railing near here, killing two Goldsboro officers late Monday. Authorities early today were pressing a search for the driver of the car the men were chasing. Killed in the accident were Lt. Frank Faircloth, 34, and Officer Mahlon Parks, 56, a veteran of 8 1/2 years on the force. Faircloth had been a member of the Goldsboro force 18 years. The bodies were recovered and the car pulled from the stream some two hours after the accident. The chase took place on the Stevens Mill Bridge road. "They ran off the road on the left side as they came around the curve. Evidently they lost control," said Sgt. T. W. Fearing of the State Highway Patrol. Sgt. Fearing said he rushed to the scene. When he arrived two young men, Edgar E. Pipkin and Billy Ray Howell, stripped off their clothes and dived into the water. They tried to free the men, the patrolman said, "but they couldn't do it... it was a good try." The rural paved road dips at the bridge, eight miles southeast of Goldsboro. "The car hit the bridge railing sideways," Sgt. Fearing reported. Goldsboro police were not immediately able to ascertain why Parks and Faircloth were chasing the car. Sgt. Fearing said he was getting set to head off the car when he lost contact with the Goldsboro officers. The two policemen did not give a reason for the chase in their radio reports, authorities said. Both Faircloth and Parks were married. Faircloth was the father of six children and Parks the father of three.

Kennedy To Give Policy On Nikita

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy goes on nationwide television tonight to outline how he plans to deal with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev if elected president. The Democratic candidate, making his first coast-to-coast TV address since accepting his party's nomination in July, will speak at a $100-a-plate dinner rally here. The 30-minute program starting at 8:30 p. m. EDT, is scheduled on 180 ABC network stations. "The theme of the senator's speech," said a Kennedy aide, "will be what he believes America's response to Khrushchev should be—what he believes we must do to build a stronger America abroad and at home." Kennedy returned to Washington early today after a day of campaigning in Atlantic City, N. J., and Charleston, W. Va. In Atlantic City he got rousing welcomes and endorsement of his candidacy at separate conventions of two labor unions, the Steelworkers and the Chemical Workers. In Charleston the senator addressed a cheering audience of about 6,000 in the Civic Center. Speaking in a state hard hit by ed again that "we start this country boiling again" and reverse what he called a Republican administration policy of stagnation at home and in foreign policy. Saying four million Americans are unemployed and another three million "are forced to work only

Tough Chicken

RALEIGH (AP) — James Dunn of Raleigh, R. I. 6, was en route from Sneed's Ferry to Raleigh when his car hit a chicken Monday. Dunn said he was driving about 55 miles an hour when he saw a white chicken standing by the side of the road near Faison. "And then there was a bump," he added. "I knew I had killed a chicken." When Dunn got off work Monday night, he walked around in front of his car and glanced down at the grille. "There was a hole in the grille," Dunn said, "and there was the chicken between the grille and the radiator, standing up as live as he could be. Nothing's wrong with that chicken."

Record Missile Flight By Atlas

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force has proved again that its Atlas missile can hit a target 9,000 miles away. But it does not know if the nose cone survived the super-hot trip back through the earth's atmosphere. The big intercontinental range rocket Monday covered the 9,000-mile course for the second time, streaking from this test center to a bulls-eye in the southern Indian Ocean about 1,000 miles southeast of Capetown, South Africa. The two tests—the first by another Atlas on May 20—are the longest surface-to-surface missile flights on record. A major purpose of the flight was to check changes made in the nose cone's protective surface as a result of a weakness that developed on the first long-range trip. Telemetry signals showed the magnesium structure of the first cone caught fire and it would not have adequately protected a hydrogen warhead. Ships and planes stationed in the impact area Monday received telemetry data from the cone as it made a fiery dive back through the earth's atmosphere from an altitude of nearly 1,000 miles. Data will be flown here for evaluation. An official expressed confidence that General Electric, which makes the cone, has solved the problems that occurred on the first flight.

Overwhelming Support Is Voted Hammaraskjold By UN Assembly

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Squashing Soviet opposition, the General Assembly gave overwhelming support early today to Secretary-General Dag Hammaraskjold's actions in the Congo. Debating until after midnight to wind up the emergency session on the Congo before the regular assembly opens this afternoon, weary delegates voted 79-0 with 11 abstentions for a 17-nation Asian-African resolution backing up Hammaraskjold. The nine-nation Soviet bloc, France and South Africa abstained on the resolution. The Assembly's action was seen as a vindication of the secretary-general who has been under bitter Soviet attack for his Congo policies, and as a slap at Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev on the eve of his heralded appearance before the world body. The Soviets had accused Hammaraskjold of interfering in the internal affairs of the Congo and heaped strong criticism upon him when the U. N. command departed Moscow-favored Patrice Lumumba, now ousted as premier, of the use of the radio and the airports. Lumumba had been using Soviet

Castro And Delegation Quite Happy In Harlem Hotel After Big Rhubarb

NEW YORK (AP)—Tempestuous Fidel Castro, settled in hotel quarters in Negro Harlem, planned today to attend the opening session of the United Nations General Assembly. The Cuban premier stormed out of the Hotel Shelburne in midtown Manhattan Monday night, complaining of tight security restrictions and the hotel's rates. He threatened for a time to camp out in Central Park or on the United Nations lawn. Despite the ruffled feelings, Dr. Raul Roa, the Cuban foreign minister, said Castro would attend the session as scheduled. Roa talked with newsmen as he breakfasted at a counter restaurant near the hotel on an orange drink, a hot dog and coffee. He said Castro would not address the opening session. The foreign minister said Castro and the rest of the Cuban delegation are satisfied with their new quarters in the Hotel Theresa. "We are happy here and they are very courteous," Roa said. A police detail of almost 150 men, including members of the bomb squad, is on duty at the Theresa. The bomb squad men reported they were examining all packages addressed to the Cubans. Castro is staying in a ninth floor

Survivor Recalls Engine Trouble

AGANA, Guam (AP) — A survivor told today of signs of engine trouble on takeoff minutes before a World Airways transport crashed into Mt. Barrigada killing 78. Aviation-seaman William P. Baxter of Nashville, Tenn., who Monday rescued three Chinese officers from the flaming wreckage, talked with newsmen at a Guam hospital. "I told my seating companion something appeared wrong with the engine. Within a couple of minutes I felt several jolts and the next thing I knew I was about 10 yards away from the plane with the plane seat under me." Just before takeoff, Baxter said, the man next to him—whose name he did not know—remarked that one of the DC6B's four engines died. With Baxter at the informal press conference was Edgar W. Schwoyer of San Leandro, Calif., the navigator and the only surviving crew member. Both received cuts and bruises. Schwoyer said that the plane's lights began flickering, apparently when the transport scraped some trees. The day was clear and there was no fire before the impact, Schwoyer said. The navigator broke a cockpit window and climbed out. "There were several violent explosions and a vicious fire," he said. Baxter said he got up from the ground and ran into the plane. "There were a bunch of people trying to get out. They were all panicky and I told them to calm down but they wouldn't listen to me. "There were fires inside the plane but it had not yet exploded. I noticed the hand of one of three Chinese officers move. They were all still fastened to their seats. I unfastened their belts and pushed them out of the plane," he related. Sixteen persons survived the crash, worst in Guam's history. Investigators combed the wreckage today for clues to the crash while soldiers stood guard.

Commission Will Get Responsibility In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The Congo's strongman, Col. Joseph Mobutu, announced today the government is to be taken over until the end of the year by a technical commission headed by Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko. Bomboko is at present in New York where he heads President Joseph Kasavubu's Congolese delegation at the U. N. General Assembly. The announcement, made on Mobutu's instructions over Radio Leopoldville, left in doubt the future of Premier-Designate Joseph Ileo, named by Kasavubu Sept. 5 to replace the Communist-supported Patrice Lumumba. Mobutu's soldiers surrounded the administrative offices of the Congolese government and evicted at bayonet point the Lumumba appointees still entrenched there. None of the ministries of the central government has been operating since Kasavubu fired Lumumba. Lumumba refused to accept the presidential order, and as a result the Lumumba and Ileo administrations have remained nominally in existence side by side for more than two weeks. All normal government activities came to a standstill in the resulting chaos and only technical work continued under the guidance of U. N. experts. U. N. sources reported a Congolese police major was foiled Monday night in an attempt to reach and kill Mobutu. It was the second attempt in three days. Congolese troops arrested the assailant. The major's name was not announced. A Congolese army supporter of Lumumba was subdued Sunday in another assassination attempt on Mobutu. He was identified as Maj. Vital Pacasa, a former friend of Mobutu. Kasavubu had given Lumumba a chance to stay in the government if he would take a back seat. It was announced Monday night the pro-Western president offered him a cabinet post in an effort to bring peace in the country.

Sanitation Boss Glum Over Nixon

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — City sanitation director John W. Leake is glum about Vice President Richard M. Nixon's visit here Wednesday. Republican officials have prepared five tons of confetti to be showered along Nixon's motorcade route. Leake's job is to see that what goes down comes up. To do it, he plans to have cleanup crews use a huge vacuum machine designed to pick up leaves.

C-of-C Board Endorses Upcoming Bond Issue

The Chamber of Commerce's board of directors has gone on record as endorsing the upcoming bond issue for municipal improvements. A resolution was prepared by the Chamber's Civic Affairs Committee and approved at a recent meeting of the board. "The mayor and City Council of the City of Greenville, realizing the urgent need of improvements to and the expansion of public facilities within the city in keeping with the continued growth and expansion of the city, have seen fit to call a special election to be held on the 27th day of September, 1960," the resolution reads. Recreation Plans Talked At Meet

Recreation Director Gordon Goodman reported last night at the Recreation Commission meeting that the Department's 1960-61 budget had been approved and totaled $49,699. According to Goodman, the only item requested by the department and not approved by the city council was $5,000 needed to light an additional softball field for night play. In his report, Goodman told the Commission members that work on the parking lot, including drainage has been completed at the Elm St. Recreation Center. He also announced that the play school program at Elm Street Park will be held on Tuesday and Friday mornings. The Arts and Crafts program and the Sewing and Bridge lessons will begin next month, he pointed out. He also said that the midweek football program would start this week and include fourth, fifth, and sixth grades boys from Third Street, West Greenville, Elmhurst and Wahl-Coates Schools. Maximum weight for the boys is 105 pounds he noted. The Commission passed a resolution during the meeting endorsing the United Fund Drive in Greenville and Pitt County and went on record as saying they would aid the campaign in any way possible. The Commission also approved a request from the Optimist Club to sell Christmas trees at the tennis courts at Elm Street park again this year. At the close of the meeting the Commission instructed Goodman to prepare a plan and preliminary order for playground equipment for the new playground between Engelwood and Coghill, which was purchased by the Recreation Department several months ago. The Commission said it would take action on equipping the playground at its October meeting.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force has proved again that its Atlas missile can hit a target 9,000 miles away. But it does not know if the nose cone survived the super-hot trip back through the earth's atmosphere. The big intercontinental range rocket Monday covered the 9,000-mile course for the second time, streaking from this test center to a bulls-eye in the southern Indian Ocean about 1,000 miles southeast of Capetown, South Africa. The two tests—the first by another Atlas on May 20—are the longest surface-to-surface missile flights on record. A major purpose of the flight was to check changes made in the nose cone's protective surface as a result of a weakness that developed on the first long-range trip. Telemetry signals showed the magnesium structure of the first cone caught fire and it would not have adequately protected a hydrogen warhead. Ships and planes stationed in the impact area Monday received telemetry data from the cone as it made a fiery dive back through the earth's atmosphere from an altitude of nearly 1,000 miles. Data will be flown here for evaluation. An official expressed confidence that General Electric, which makes the cone, has solved the problems that occurred on the first flight.

Survivor Recalls Engine Trouble

AGANA, Guam (AP) — A survivor told today of signs of engine trouble on takeoff minutes before a World Airways transport crashed into Mt. Barrigada killing 78. Aviation-seaman William P. Baxter of Nashville, Tenn., who Monday rescued three Chinese officers from the flaming wreckage, talked with newsmen at a Guam hospital. "I told my seating companion something appeared wrong with the engine. Within a couple of minutes I felt several jolts and the next thing I knew I was about 10 yards away from the plane with the plane seat under me." Just before takeoff, Baxter said, the man next to him—whose name he did not know—remarked that one of the DC6B's four engines died. With Baxter at the informal press conference was Edgar W. Schwoyer of San Leandro, Calif., the navigator and the only surviving crew member. Both received cuts and bruises. Schwoyer said that the plane's lights began flickering, apparently when the transport scraped some trees. The day was clear and there was no fire before the impact, Schwoyer said. The navigator broke a cockpit window and climbed out. "There were several violent explosions and a vicious fire," he said. Baxter said he got up from the ground and ran into the plane. "There were a bunch of people trying to get out. They were all panicky and I told them to calm down but they wouldn't listen to me. "There were fires inside the plane but it had not yet exploded. I noticed the hand of one of three Chinese officers move. They were all still fastened to their seats. I unfastened their belts and pushed them out of the plane," he related. Sixteen persons survived the crash, worst in Guam's history. Investigators combed the wreckage today for clues to the crash while soldiers stood guard.

Recreation Plans Talked At Meet

Recreation Director Gordon Goodman reported last night at the Recreation Commission meeting that the Department's 1960-61 budget had been approved and totaled $49,699. According to Goodman, the only item requested by the department and not approved by the city council was $5,000 needed to light an additional softball field for night play. In his report, Goodman told the Commission members that work on the parking lot, including drainage has been completed at the Elm St. Recreation Center. He also announced that the play school program at Elm Street Park will be held on Tuesday and Friday mornings. The Arts and Crafts program and the Sewing and Bridge lessons will begin next month, he pointed out. He also said that the midweek football program would start this week and include fourth, fifth, and sixth grades boys from Third Street, West Greenville, Elmhurst and Wahl-Coates Schools. Maximum weight for the boys is 105 pounds he noted. The Commission passed a resolution during the meeting endorsing the United Fund Drive in Greenville and Pitt County and went on record as saying they would aid the campaign in any way possible. The Commission also approved a request from the Optimist Club to sell Christmas trees at the tennis courts at Elm Street park again this year. At the close of the meeting the Commission instructed Goodman to prepare a plan and preliminary order for playground equipment for the new playground between Engelwood and Coghill, which was purchased by the Recreation Department several months ago. The Commission said it would take action on equipping the playground at its October meeting.

Commission Will Get Responsibility In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The Congo's strongman, Col. Joseph Mobutu, announced today the government is to be taken over until the end of the year by a technical commission headed by Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko. Bomboko is at present in New York where he heads President Joseph Kasavubu's Congolese delegation at the U. N. General Assembly. The announcement, made on Mobutu's instructions over Radio Leopoldville, left in doubt the future of Premier-Designate Joseph Ileo, named by Kasavubu Sept. 5 to replace the Communist-supported Patrice Lumumba. Mobutu's soldiers surrounded the administrative offices of the Congolese government and evicted at bayonet point the Lumumba appointees still entrenched there. None of the ministries of the central government has been operating since Kasavubu fired Lumumba. Lumumba refused to accept the presidential order, and as a result the Lumumba and Ileo administrations have remained nominally in existence side by side for more than two weeks. All normal government activities came to a standstill in the resulting chaos and only technical work continued under the guidance of U. N. experts. U. N. sources reported a Congolese police major was foiled Monday night in an attempt to reach and kill Mobutu. It was the second attempt in three days. Congolese troops arrested the assailant. The major's name was not announced. A Congolese army supporter of Lumumba was subdued Sunday in another assassination attempt on Mobutu. He was identified as Maj. Vital Pacasa, a former friend of Mobutu. Kasavubu had given Lumumba a chance to stay in the government if he would take a back seat. It was announced Monday night the pro-Western president offered him a cabinet post in an effort to bring peace in the country.

Tough Chicken

RALEIGH (AP) — James Dunn of Raleigh, R. I. 6, was en route from Sneed's Ferry to Raleigh when his car hit a chicken Monday. Dunn said he was driving about 55 miles an hour when he saw a white chicken standing by the side of the road near Faison. "And then there was a bump," he added. "I knew I had killed a chicken." When Dunn got off work Monday night, he walked around in front of his car and glanced down at the grille. "There was a hole in the grille," Dunn said, "and there was the chicken between the grille and the radiator, standing up as live as he could be. Nothing's wrong with that chicken."

46 Years Perfect Attendance By Northampton County Woman

By MAIDRE MORRIS "No organization can function without a leader, neither can one function without faithful members," says Mrs. F.E. Bristow of Conway. Mrs. Bristow has not missed a Home Demonstration Club meeting in 46 years. Not only has she been a faithful member, but has been a leading figure in community activities. She recalls tomato clubs which were held in her community before H.D. clubs were organized. "In 1916, we had an agent for three months," reports Mrs. Bristow. "But the next year we had money appropriated for six months and in 1918 we had an agent for 12 months." "At first we only had canning demonstrations in the summer and cooking and sewing demonstrations in the winter," says Mrs. Bristow. She reports they had been drying snap beans and brining other vegetables before learning new ways of conserving their food. Mrs. Bristow says she remembers the first demonstration given which was on cooling milk.

Greenville Garden Club Hears Talk By District President

Mrs. Norman Winslow, of Washington, N.C., president of District 10 of the North Carolina Federation of Garden Clubs, was guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Greenville Garden Club at the Woman's Club recently. Mrs. Winslow, a former resident of Greenville, said the beautification work of the various garden clubs in Greenville is evident. "Not one person alone, but a group together, can do much," she said. Work for the coming year was Mrs. Winslow's main topic for the day. Although the Elizabethan Garden, which has been the state project of garden clubs of North Carolina for a few years, still needs money for maintenance and annuals, she asked the club to remember the new garden — the Botanical Garden at Boone — this year. Mrs. Winslow suggested that the local club send pictures of flower shows or beautification projects to the "North Carolina Gardener." Helpful hints for program planning can be found in "The National Gardener" magazine. A "books chairman" was a suggestion for clubs so that books bought through the National Book Store will bring in a percentage of profit to the individual clubs and to the state federation.

Today's Menu

- Franks and relish are cooked the easy way — in a skillet at the same time. Split Pea Soup Croutons Frankfurters with Sauerkraut Relish Mashed Potatoes Green Beans Bread Tray Molasses Brownies Beverage FRANKFURTERS WITH SAUERKRAUT RELISH Ingredients: 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 medium-sized onion (cut in thin strips), 1 can (1 pound) sauerkraut (drained), 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce, 2 tablespoons dark brown sugar, 1 bay leaf (broken into quarters), 3 frankfurters (about 1 pound). Method: Lightly brown onion in hot butter in 9- or 10-inch skillet. Add sauerkraut, tomato sauce, sugar and bay leaf; mix thoroughly. Add frankfurters whole or cut in half. Cover and simmer until flavors blend and franks are hot—about 20 minutes. Stir a few times so as not to scorch. Makes 4 servings.

SAVES ON DISHES

It is perfectly safe to store part of a can of food not used in the original container. Because now-days the inside of the container is lacquered, even an acid food such as tomatoes will not take on a metallic taste when stored this way for a few days.

Try Shish-Kabob For Cookout

RALEIGH — Shish-kabob, the new way of serving lamb that has spread to American backyards, offers a pleasant solution for the homemaker puzzled by what to feature at a September cookout. Lamb shish-kabobs are prepared for cooking over a barbecue grill by placing the cubes of meat alternately with fruit or vegetables on skewers. The fruit or vegetables are carefully selected for the right flavor and color combination. A pound of lamb cubes will fill about 12 inches on two or three skewers, depending on the size of the cubes and the quantity of fruit and vegetables used. Meat from either a leg of lamb or boned lamb shoulder is ideal for shish-kabob use. Cut the meat into 1 1/2 or 2 inch squares. If a leg of lamb is used have the butcher cut the squares from the shank end. In this way, the loin end of the leg may be used as a roast. To make the shish-kabobs, place the pieces of lamb meat into a bowl and sprinkle with salt and

'Playmate' Role Is Fun To Beauty

PLAYBOY'S PLAYMATE, Joyce Nizzari, of Miami, here yesterday.

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Staff Writer
Working with the promotional angle of men's clothing is different for pretty Joyce Nizzari, a 1958 Playmate in the widely-circulated Playboy magazine, but it is "something new and a lot of fun" according to the Miami, Florida beauty.

Joyce was in Greenville yesterday, serving as host in Coffman's fifth annual "Open House" for college men students. And her presence was one of the reasons for the unusual stir of men students on the streets of Greenville last night.

The Miami native is only 20 years old, stands five feet seven inches, and her 120 pounds are becomingly distributed over a marvelously supple body-dimensions 34-23-35.

According to Joyce, her visit here was "an enjoyable one." She went on a whirlwind tour, much like the one Senator John Kennedy experienced last Saturday. "One of the first visits was to a tobacco warehouse which was a first. "I even kept some tobacco leaves to carry back home," she stated.

From there yesterday afternoon, she visited East Carolina College and took a quick spin through three of the college fraternity houses.

The pert brunette, who presents a pleasing impression herself, was impressed with the college campus. "I shouldn't say it but I think I like the campus better than the one at Miami U. With all the trees, it looks like it would be so much fun to walk back and forth to classes," opines Joyce.

She was a little disturbed about the female population on campus. "All I saw was men," she beamed with a teasing smile.

As for her career with Playboy, it all started in Miami when she met the editor of the magazine as a youth. Several years later, she was working in Chicago and appeared on the cover of Playboy in an advertising role. According to Joyce, a flow of letters followed her cover appearance and the magazine staff decided to record her as the December, 1958 Playmate.

A vote at the end of the year choosing the "Playmate of the Year" also went in Joyce's favor and she was featured in the July edition. All in all, she figures she has appeared in the magazine about eight times.

Her picture appearing in Playboy has indirectly led to several "breaks," Joyce thinks. One of the results, she feels, was her part in the movie, "Hole in the Head," starring Frank Sinatra.

Although a future hope of the Florida native is to become a movie star, her real-life role now is every bit as dramatic as specialized as any on the screen. Besides dancing in a current show at the Carolina Hotel in Miami at night, Joyce finds time to model some and travel with Playboy executives. She frequently makes trips with the magazine's vice-president to luncheons and banquets. "Usually," she admitted, "all I do is flip the slides of a movie machine."

As for the men in her life, there have been many. "Tops at the current list is a self-made musician of Miami who is playing

Greenville Lions Give $400 To N.C. Boys Home Fund

A check for $400 was presented by the Lions Club to R. N. McCray, director of Boys Home of North Carolina, Inc. last night. Presenting the funds was J. A. Taylor, co-chairman of the East-West Baseball Game. It was sponsoring of this game that raised the funds which the local club presented to the Boys Home.

McCray told the Lions he came to North Carolina to direct the Boys Home because "it presents more of a challenge to help young boys." He is a former Lead coach and athletic director at William and Mary. Speaking of the Boys Home he said, "Its purpose is to develop as many boys who need help as they can."

McCray said Boys Home is supported by the people, Lions Clubs and other civic clubs and religious groups.

"No boy has ever been to Boys Home over seven weeks before he joined some church on his own," the director stated.

Religious education and fundamental education are stressed, he pointed out.

Each boy has a job to do, McCray told the Lions. "They wash dishes, scrub floors, make beds and do all their house work except cooking."

The boys arise at 6:30 and get off to school by 7:40. At 3:30 they return for a one hour's work period and one hour's recreation. Dinner is at 6 and a study period begins at 7. From 9:30 to 10 they may watch television and 10 o'clock is bedtime.

Each cottage provides a home for 16 boys with Christian house mother, McCray said.

Attending last night's meeting were Carmi Winters, district governor from New Bern; Gordon Weeks of Goldsboro, deputy district governor and Roy Sandlin of Wrightsville Beach, international councillor.

Indian Fathers Told Pay Fines

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Fines for contempt of court were ordered in Harnett Superior Court Monday for fathers of two Indian girls who staged a sit-in in an effort to enroll at the all-white Dunn High School.

Judge W. Jack Hooks, who indicated some sympathy for the Indians' complaints, ordered James Chance to pay a fine of $150 and Eugene Chance to pay a $100 fine. The parents were accused of allowing their daughters to continue going to the school, despite a restraining order issued by the court.

"I don't know as I blame them except doing it in the face of a court order," remarked the judge. However, Judge Hooks said the question before him was not a matter of school enrollment. "It is a question that if the court orders cannot be obeyed, the courts might as well close up," he added.

Juanita Chance, 15-year-old daughter of Eugene Chance, and Ima Jean Chance, 13-year-old daughter of James Chance, went to the school every day during the week of Sept. 4-9. Several days they were accompanied by Julie Paul Maynard, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Carter.

Judge Hooks cleared mothers of the Chance girls and the Carters of contempt of court.

The Harnett County Board of Education for two years has rejected applications of the Indians to enroll at the Dunn High School. The Indians protest assignment of their children to East Carolina Indian School in Sampson County because of the long bus ride and low standing of the school.

No Integration Incidents Seen

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—The Greenville City Library — apparently the first public facility in the state to integrate — did so without incident Monday.

A number of Negro youngsters and some adults were in the library during the day. Some applied for library cards and checked out books, others read at tables and some appeared to be studying.

The library reopened integrated after it was closed two weeks ago as a suit for integration was heard in Federal District Court. Because the library closed, the suit was dismissed.

Some quasi - public facilities, such as buses and railroad passenger cars have been integrated for years. But no publicly-owned or operated facility in the state is known to be integrated—until the library here reopened.

The Negro branch library also was reopened to both whites and Negroes.

Donald Sampson, attorney for the Negroes who staged a sit-in demonstration at the white library before bringing their case, said no further action is contem- store's best Scotch whisky. Value:

Fear 67 Miners Were Drowned

TAGAWA, Japan (AP)—A swollen river burst into a coal mine early today, swallowing 67 miners who were given up for drowned.

Seconds ahead of the torrent 151 other miners scrambled to safety from the coalpit 500 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Hope for rescue of any of the 67 lost men virtually ended as 400 miners, police and firemen worked all day but were unable to drain the flooded mine or divert the 35-foot deep river.

Injured Woman Said 'Improving'

Doctors this morning said the condition of Mrs. James G. Smith, III, who was seriously injured in an automobile collision near Grimesland Sunday was "consid- erably improved."

Mrs. Smith, of 706 South Elm St. was injured and her nine-month-old baby girl, Cynthia Lynn, died of injuries received when her car was struck almost headon by a car driven by 29-year-old Negro, Frank Dixon of Route 1, Washington.

According to doctors, Mrs. Smith suffered five fractures to her left side, including a fractured elbow, pelvis, hip, knee and foot. She also suffered from internal injuries they added.

This morning physicians said she was "improving considerably," but is still in considerable pain. They concluded by saying she is out of immediate danger. She is Investigating Patrolman J. B. Surles, who reported Dixon has been charged with manslaughter, operating under the influence of alcohol and operating on the wrong side of the road, said two other vehicles, both trucks were also struck by the Dixon car. He quoted the driver of one of the trucks as saying he "saw the car coming", and estimated its speed to be about "75 miles-per-hour or more". The collision demolished both the Smith and Dixon cars, Surles stated.

Backslider, But Not A Republican

What does the party name mean? That question will be debated from now until November as conflicting views on the major political parties, their platforms and their candidates are voiced in public and in private.

Already in North Carolina there attempts to woo usually Democratic voters away from support of the Democratic nominees by such names as "Independent Democrats", Businessmen for this candidate or that, and many other titles. There are those who will argue, particularly in the conservative South, that the Democratic party is no longer the party of the South; that the party's philosophy and platform are far afield from the thinking of most of the party members of the section.

In spite of these and many other arguments, however, it is significant that the Republicans of North Carolina who are seeking support from Democrats are trying in every way possible to avoid the "Republican" label.

There may be in North Carolina many who count themselves Democrats who will not vote for either the party's gubernatorial or presidential nominee. But will they call themselves Republicans? No! They choose another name for themselves because the Republican label is more distasteful to most Tar Heels than the liberal movements that have grown up in the Democratic party in recent decades.

The Democratic party has been and continues to be the party which has taken the interest of North Carolina at heart. It is the party which has afforded North Carolina its political leadership and political progress.

2-Party System Well-Diffused

By LYNN NISBET

DIFFUSION An interesting development which has been in progress for several years and accelerated during the current campaign, is the diffusion of Democratic and Republican party affiliations. There are no longer any areas of the nation and not many counties in North Carolina that can be classified as safe or solid for either party.

Not so many years ago Maine was considered "rock-ribbed" Republican. But Maine now has a Democratic Governor, one of the United States Senators and two of the three representatives in Congress are Democrats. Observers of the national political scene are even suggesting probability that New Hampshire might elect a Democratic Governor and one or more members of Congress.

Meantime, North Carolina, Virginia, Florida, Tennessee and Texas, once rated as part of the "solid" South because of affiliation with the Confederacy, have regularly elected Republican members of Congress.

The migration in North Carolina has been east and west, rather than North and South. There are mountain counties in which for years the Democrats did not offer local tickets, because they were hopeless and many eastern counties in which Republicans saw no glimmer of a chance. Madison county has gone Democratic several times recently—and this year the Republicans have a vigorous campaign for a legislator in Hertford county, an unthinkable development for nigh about half a century. There will be more Republicans in the 1961 Legislature than for several sessions past, and big odds are more than half of them from east of the Blue Ridge.

ANALOGOUS — Robert Gavin, Republican candidate for Governor, has called upon Terry Sanford, Democratic candidate, to require that all money solicited from State employees for the Democratic campaign be refunded to them. Criticism has come from numerous other sources, including a number of newspapers, of the letter written by the executive secretaries of the State employees associations suggesting that the members support the Democratic party with money and votes. There may be basis for criticism of the method used to distribute the solicitation letters through State offices during working hours. Governor Hodges voiced that criticism at a news conference, but saw no objection to the letters per se.

A distinction which some of the critics fail to recognize is that these solicitations did not emanate from any State official or from the Democratic party organization. They came from the headquarters of the employees' own associations and signed by secretaries whom the employees had chosen to represent them. No tax money was involved, except in the indirect sense that salaries of State employees derive from tax money.

In that respect the employee associations are analogous to the North Carolina Education Association (school teachers), and in less degree to the Association of County Commissioners, the League of Municipalities, sheriffs, clerks of court and other groups of taxpaid officials. These organizations have been active for many years in promoting their interests in elections and before legislative committees.

TAX SOURCES — Members of the North Carolina State Employees Association and of the N.C. State Highway and Prison employees Association, just like members of the North Carolina Education Association, derive their livelihood from State tax funds. Once they receive the salary check for services rendered, it is their very own and loses any virtue or stigma as to its source. If they want to spend some of it to improve their working conditions by promoting legislation and officials sympathetic to their objectives it is their full right to do so.

To that end the NCEA maintains a full headquarters staff housed in its own office building, and a corps of field workers. It also publishes an interesting and instructive magazine, dedicated to improving conditions by raising salaries and reducing work loads of teachers. The State employee group are younger and smaller, but are following the same general pattern of activity and for the same reasons.

The official associations — county and municipal — depend less upon taxes for livelihood, but in most instances the employing agency, whether State, county or municipal, pays their dues and expenses for attending meetings of their groups, by direct allocation of tax money, under statutory authority.

There would appear distinction without much real difference in the activities of the teachers and the other employee groups, and a real difference—still subject to discussion as to full propriety—between all these employee groups and the official organizations. Yet the objectives are the same—to improve conditions in their respective fields.

In spite of the objectionable connotations which may be attached to some of the programs fostered by the Democratic party, they are not nearly as objectionable to most North Carolinians as the history of the Republican party, its principles and its programs.

Political parties, like other living things, grow and mature, accept new responsibilities and move to fulfill new needs as they keep abreast of the times in which they live. The programs of both major political parties have changed in recent decades as conditions in the nation and in the world have changed.

The names, however, still carry considerable weight with individual citizens when they determine with which name they would like to be associated. It is significant that many people—particularly in North Carolina—who say they cannot support the Democratic ticket determinedly insist they are not Republicans.

Apparently it is preferable to be a back-sliding Democrat than to be any kind of Republican. The reason must lie in a comparison of the contributions the respective parties have made to the state and the nation.

Disarmament Talk Is Used For Propaganda

There is certainly no logic in the proposal by Premier Khrushchev of the Soviet Union that he and President Eisenhower enter into discussions of disarmament plans before the United Nations General Assembly.

For several years now representatives of the United States and the Soviet Union have handled the disarmament negotiations through proper diplomatic channels. There has been no genuine progress because of the Soviet position that there will be no free access for inspections of treaty.

On occasion negotiations have reached the point where there appeared to be some hope that a truly constructive agreement might be reached. But on each occasion the Soviets have either broken off negotiations with a propaganda barrage against the West, or they have injected some condition which the West could not possible meet.

Khrushchev's proposal that he and President Eisenhower discuss disarmament before the U.N. General Assembly can only be viewed as another attempt for the Soviets to use the body for propaganda purposes. Khrushchev had the opportunity to discuss disarmament and other pressing international matters with Eisenhower at the summit conference in Paris. Instead he chose to call off the summit meeting by setting forth prior conditions the United States was unwilling to meet.

If the Soviets had genuinely desired progress toward a realistic disarmament program much already could have been accomplished. Their actions of the past, however, give no indication they have a real desire for a workable disarmament program.

Candidates Are To Get Rougher

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — This presidential campaign begins to sound monotonous. The candidates are repeating pretty much the same two themes everywhere they go.

The themes are leadership and the contest with Russia. The only heat has been the religious issue. Neither candidate created that. It came from Protestants opposed to the Roman Catholicism of Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Since monotony can be deadly as a shotgun, it is unlikely that the candidates can continue their warmed-over arguments indefinitely. They may get rougher, and they probably will.

Or change may be forced on them these next two weeks because of what the Eisenhower administration and Premier Nikita Khrushchev do or fail to do at the United Nations in New York.

The essential reason for the unfeeling campaign is that Nixon and Kennedy are arguing not so much about doing things differently as about doing them better.

Their two main themes—leadership and the contest with Russia—were predictable as campaign issues long before the campaign began. Democrats and Republicans had been arguing them for years.

Nixon and Kennedy simply took them over and made them personal. For years Democrats had accused President Eisenhower and his administration of lack of leadership. It was a ready-made argument for any Democratic candidate.

Kennedy adopted it and did the obvious by offering himself as the answer. This gave Nixon a double trouble. As part of the administration, he had to defend it. He also had to get across the idea that if elected he would be more than just a carbon copy of Eisenhower.

So he, too, did the obvious. While defending Eisenhower but trying to appear as his own man, Nixon promised to build on the Eisenhower foundation and then some.

Kennedy has to walk gingerly when he talks of the contest with Russia. He must avoid sounding defeatist while trying to say this country lags "behind the Soviet effort."

Here his tactic is to promise he will throw more of the national resources into the contest.

He calls Kennedy a prophet of gloom and doom while appealing to national pride and optimism by assuring voters this country is doing just fine.

More of our citizens are receiving more education, staying in school longer, housed in better buildings and under guidance of better trained teachers, than those of any nation in the world. We do not mean to imply that America has reached the ultimate in education, or that our program cannot be improved from its present state. However, it must be remembered that this has been accomplished through local, state and private initiative, and almost entirely without recourse to the federal government.

—Carlsbad (N. M.) Current-Argus.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

ARE YOU ORIENTED? A professor was speaking. "I'll have to take the early afternoon train. We begin our orientation course this evening." And then he added, "for our freshmen, of course, not for us."

But I wondered. Does any group need orientation more than those of us who are middle-aged and beyond? "To orient" means to set right with reference to facts or principles. In other words, to make sure that in the realm of principles and procedures, people know the compass points. It means learning what ought to be done, and being instructed in how to do it.

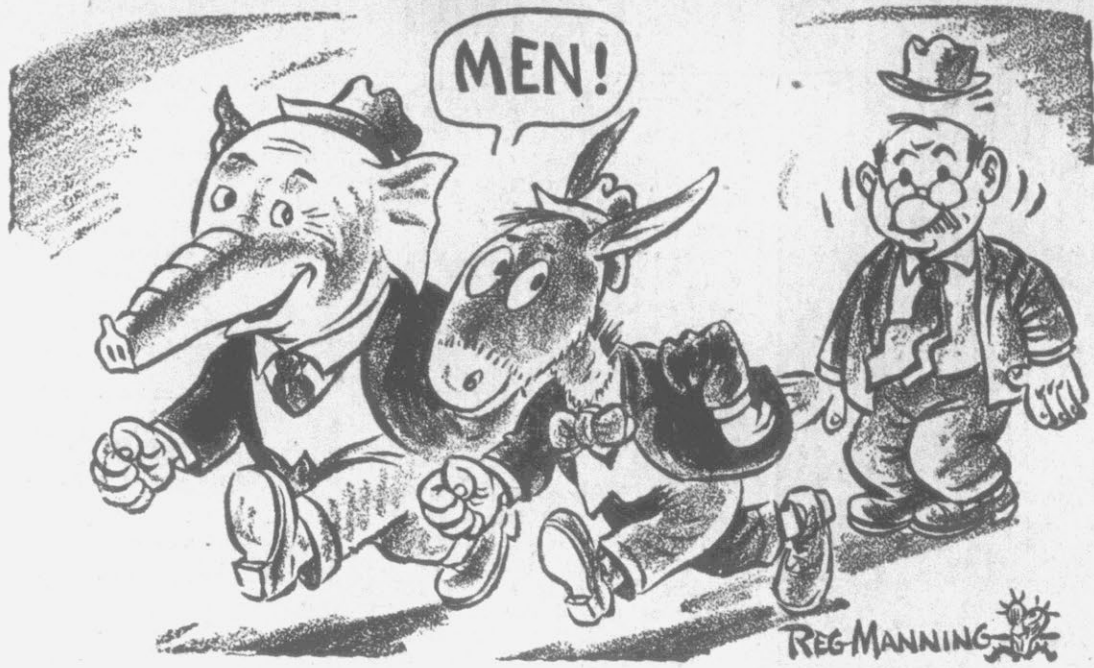

In fifty years the world has changed more than in any other period of human history. Young people cannot understand this change. They assume that life as they observe it has been this way always. We know that in a few brief years the world has become a different place.

We cannot let youth take the beating which any generation must take which has to start at scratch because so many social values have been heaved overboard in an era of emancipation. We must get oriented—fixed with reference to the moral compass points—ourselves so that we can help solve some of the overpowering problems of this modern age. The order we set, the more imperative it is that we learn.

If you haven't had an orientation course, start one now. No classroom or correspondence course is required. Just some quiet facing of self, some reflection, some looking up to God.

Regardless Of Race, Creed, Color—

It Hit Close To Home

Folks around a newspaper office become close as they go about the task of putting out the daily edition.

Maybe it's something about the profession in general. Maybe it's because we often have to work as a close knit team when big stories break late and fast. Or maybe it's because we're just a bunch of sentimentalists.

Whatever it is we all come to share each other's hopes and joys and sorrows. Just like one big family, as they say.

Thus it was that all of us were delighted nine months ago when Woman's Editor Mrs. Peggy Smith presented her husband, Jimmy, with a baby girl.

It was the first child for the young couple and, needless to say, they were deliriously happy. They came up with the lovely name of Cynthia Lynn for their beautiful young daughter. And they were to be very happy with their child for the next several months.

As I said, we all shared their joy, here at the Reflector.

So, too, we were saddened when we learned on-by-one that little Cynthia was killed in an automobile crash Sunday evening. Her mother, who was driving, was broken up in the crash. We were horrified as we found out that Jimmy Smith, Captain of the Greenville Rescue Squad, had answered the call to the wreck. He didn't know until he arrived that his family was involved.

I won't say all the things that have been said thousands of times in hundreds of newspapers about drunken and careless drivers.

I'll only report that the driver of the other car, which crashed head-on into Peggy's, was charged with manslaughter, operating under the influence of alcohol and operating on the wrong side of the road.

All that is an oft-repeated story in such accidents, as every newspaperman knows.

But the courts and God must decide this particular case.

Gloom hung over the Reflector's newsroom Monday morning. The hustle and bustle of Saturday, when the staff strained to cover Sen. Kennedy's visit was gone. Staff members went about their duties woefully.

Stories which affect members of the Reflector's working staff come in occasionally. They must be handled by somebody—clearly, objectively—as we could any other story.

Stuart Savage drew the difficult task of writing this particular one. A close friend of the Smiths, he was to serve as a pall bearer at Cynthia's funeral this morning.

Stuart has banged out hundreds of wreck stories on other days. But yesterday he stared at his typewriter. Finally he got up walked away and asked: "What can I say?" No one could tell him.

Other Editors Saying Opinions Dropouts Find Few Jobs In Brief

(The Houston Post)

Schools reopen in Houston and many other sections of the state and nation this week, and it is a safe guess that a large number of young people above the compulsory attendance age, and even some below it, are toying with the idea of not re-registering. For one reason or another, they would prefer to get a job and give up wrestling with mathematics, science, literature and history.

This has never been a wise decision, but with the changes which are taking place in business and industry today, it is especially ill-advised, even foolhardy. Employment opportunities for persons without special skills are now sharply limited and are becoming progressively fewer. The outlook for the future is bleak. Not only will there be fewer jobs for the unskilled but the competition will be infinitely greater. The most serious not only with others of his age who made the same decision but also with large numbers of others who never had the opportunity and many more, especially older workers, who have been displaced by automation and the technological revolution.

There is a labor shortage today in many areas, but the shortage is one of skilled technicians and professional people of a high degree of ability and training. Official figures show that long-term unemployment is, at the same time, increasing. Most of those who can not find jobs are the unskilled, and a larger percentage of them are older workers who lack the ability to learn a skill or to develop a new one.

Any young person who drops out before completion of high school is condemning himself to a life of little more than subsistence income and very possibly chronic unemployment.

ery is expensive, and employers are not inclined to entrust its operation to immature persons of limited intellectual capacity. A high school diploma at least indicates a minimum level of mental competence, especially in combination with evidence of other aptitudes. And even in competition for jobs requiring no special skills, the applicant with the diploma has the advantage, all other things being equal.

The unskilled youth can expect to be in competition not only with others of his age who made the same decision but also with large numbers of others who never had the opportunity and many more, especially older workers, who have been displaced by automation and the technological revolution.

Where Policy Fails Us

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Ambassador Earl E.T. Smith testifying under oath before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee on the subject of his relations with the State Department concerning Castro:

"We refused to sell arms to a friendly government, and we persuaded other friendly governments not to sell arms to Cuba. Yet on the other hand revolutionary sympathizers were delivering arms, bodies and ammunition daily from the United States. We were lax in enforcing our neutrality laws.

"Senator Eastland. To Castro. Mr. Smith. Yes, sir, to revolutionaries under Castro.

"Senator Eastland. You had been warning the State Department that Castro was a Marxist."

"Mr. Smith. Yes, sir."

The story of the 15 planes recalls the State Department interference with arms shipments to Chiang Kai-shek while it was made easy for the Chinese Communists to arm themselves with the arms of the defeated Japanese. Smith's testimony is: "I received instructions to tell Batista that we could make delivery of those 15 planes. I recall this very clearly because I remember that it was received with great pleasure by the Government of Cuba."

"Shortly thereafter, before the planes could be delivered, the kidnaping of the Americans took place. I received instructions to notify the Batista government that the 15 training planes could not be delivered because the United States feared that bodily harm might come to the Americans who were kidnaped.

"I conveyed this information to the President of Cuba. I informed him that this was only a temporary suspension for the reasons outlined above. When the kidnaped Americans were returned, I sent numerous telegrams urging delivery of the training planes.

"The subject was carried on for approximately two or three months, trying to obtain these training planes for the Batista government; not that the training planes themselves were so important to the Batista government, but because of the psychological effect it would have upon those associated with the Government of Cuba.

"However, the State Department refused to grant permission to have these planes released from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where they were based."

Smith's testimony established the point beyond question that it was the United States through the State Department that brought Castro to power. Time after time, he was questioned with regard to that and always it was clear that Assistant Secretary of State Roy Rubottom and William A. Welland, the deskman in charge of Cuba, preferred Castro.

Regarding Castro, Ambassador Smith testified:

"Castro was a revolutionary and a terrorist.

"From the time that he was a university student, he was a guttural. I was informed by a diplomat that he had killed one nun and two priests in Bogota during the uprising in 1948.

"I check very carefully into Mr. Castro's background shortly after I was there and talked to people in Cuba who were anti-Batista but who knew Castro well.

"There is no question that Castro was a revolutionary and a terrorist, but whether he started out as a Communist or not, I doubt. But his brother Raul was different; 'Che' Guevara was different. Guevara was and is a Marxist. I do not think there is any question or doubt about their Marxist theories.

"But Fidel Castro did make a number of statements at Costa Rica and out of Mexico which clearly showed his Marxist line of thinking. He was also an active member, as a student, of the FEU (a radical group).

"Mr. Sourwine. Is there any doubt in your mind that the Cuban Government, under Castro, is a Communist government?"

"Mr. Smith. Now?"

"Mr. Sourwine. Yes?"

"Mr. Smith. I would go further. I believe it is becoming a satellite.

"Senator Dodd. You mean a Communist satellite?"

Only three games were scheduled Monday, all in the NL, where the Cardinals eliminated the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers, 1-0, on Joe Cunningham's home run, and San Francisco swept a doubleheader at Chicago, beating the Cubs 11-4 and 4-1.

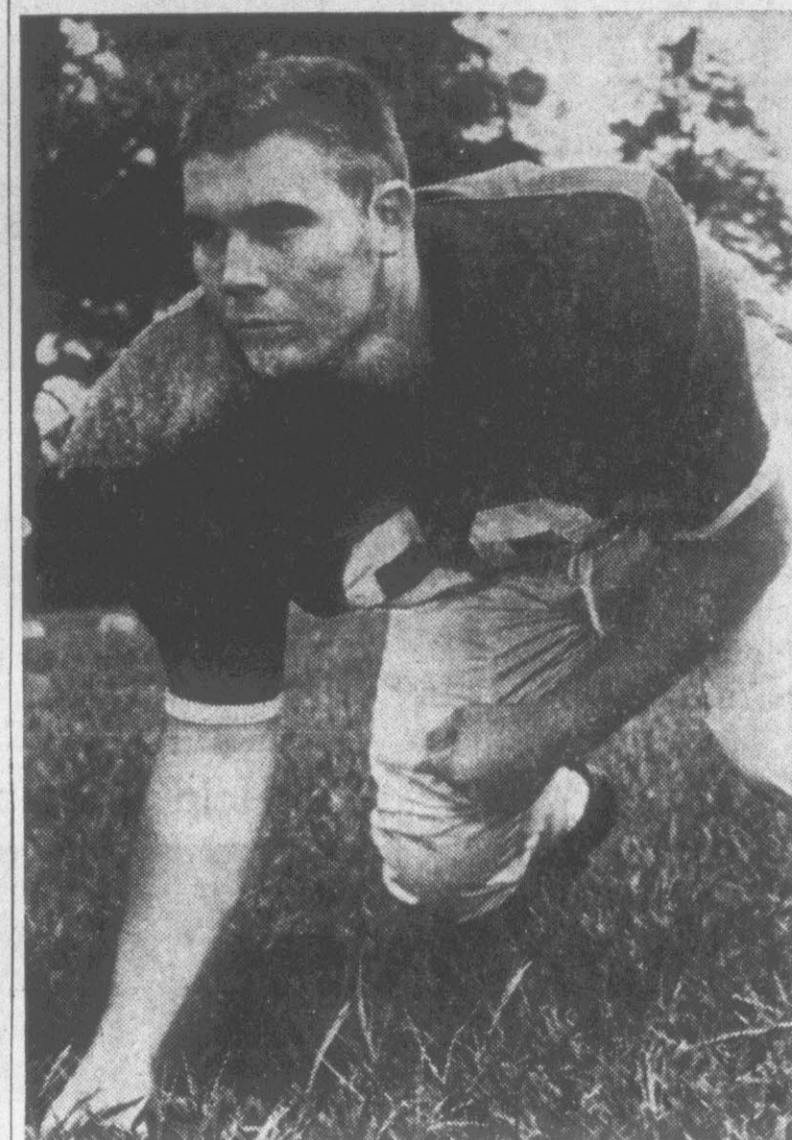

That left both the Pirates and Yankees with magic numbers of seven. Any combination of Buc victories and St. Louis defeats totaling seven clinches the flag for Pittsburgh. The same formula applies for the Yankees over the Orioles and defending champion White Sox.

Ole Miss Rules AP Poll In Initial Week Of Activity

By ORLO ROBERTSON Mississippi, long tagged as a potential 1960 powerhouse, used a 42-0 opening game victory as a springboard to reach the top of the nation's college football teams in the first weekly Associated Press poll of the season by the narrowest of margins over Syracuse's defending champions.

The shutout of Houston last Saturday while Syracuse waited a week before opening its season, was enough to give Ole Miss a margin of 33 points in the opinion of the Associated Press panel of 48 experts. In the pre-season poll, Syracuse topped the Southeastern Conference school by 20 points.

The tribunal was so evenly divided in the vote announced today that Syracuse and Mississippi each received 22 first place votes and also the same number, 16, for second. The difference came in third place.

Washington, which opened the season with a 55-6 victory over College of Pacific, ran a strong third. The Big Five eleven was named first on three ballots and compiled 378 points.

Opening game defeats by Southern California, Pittsburgh, and Texas cost them first 10 ranking. Oklahoma, which opens its campaign Saturday against Northwestern, also dropped out of the select.

Gamecocks Expected To Test Duke Strength

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Coach Bill Murray of Duke can't say exactly how ready his squad is for South Carolina, but its enthusiastic attitude has shown no sign of letting up.

The veteran coach added Monday, "I am just real anxious to see what kind of a team we are going to have and there are no doubts that South Carolina will show us what kind of a team we have."

South Carolina and Duke play Saturday night in Columbia, S.C., in one of three Atlantic Coast Conference games. The other two teams also will see action, playing non-conference foes.

Clemson will play Wake Forest in a headliner at Winston-Salem, while North Carolina State is at North Carolina in conference play. Virginia plays William & Mary at Norfolk and Maryland entertains Texas in other games.

Coach Frank Howard put Clemson through a long, 2 1/2 hour drill. The defending ACC champs worked on offensive and defensive formations that will be thrown at them by Wake Forest, expected to be an ACC power this fall.

Wake Forest, armed with 25 lettermen and hoping for its best season in the ACC, worked Monday at reviewing several new offensive maneuvers installed last week. Coach Billy Hildebrand also announced the drills for the Demon Deacons would be private for the rest of the week.

It was announced that end Bobby Allen, the ACC's leading pass receiver a year ago, probably will see very little action for Wake Forest. He has been working out in sweat clothes trying to shake off an injury.

Timing of plays and defensive maneuvers were the order of the day at South Carolina. Meanwhile, Coach Warren Giese also welcomed back in pack halfback Reggie Logan and tackle Sam Fewell. Logan and Fewell, expected to be starters, missed a game-type scrimmage Saturday night because of bruises. Fewell also had a mild cold.

A standout performance in last Saturday's scrimmage earned quarterback Ward Marslander a chance to work Monday with North Carolina's No. 1 unit. The sophomore from Washington, N.C., alternated at the signal-calling spot with Ray Farris, the Tar Heels' only letterman at the position.

Meanwhile, Coach Jim Hickey had end Mike Greendy in light togs. The North Carolina mentor said Greendy's chances of playing in Saturday's opener at Chapel Hill at 50-50.

N.C. State, fresh from a 29-14 conquest of non-conference Virginia Tech, was running extra hard Monday. Coach Earle Edwards said he expected North Carolina to be bigger, stronger and more experienced than Virginia Tech. He also said his team came through its opener in good physical shape.

Virginia's backs put pressure on both the defensive line and pass defenders in a half-speed scrimmage. Coach Dick Voris said he was surprised at the strength displayed by William & Mary—this week's opponent—in its 33-21 loss to Virginia Military. Voris called Carolina a better team than last year, when they beat Virginia 37-0.

Maryland's right guard, Pete Boinis, will miss the Texas battle. He sustained torn ligaments in Saturday's 31-8 victory over West Virginia. Coach Tom Nugent had his sophomore-studded squad in full equipment Monday.

No Expansion For W. Coast League

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — No expansion of the new Big Five Conference appears imminent and members have expressed satisfaction with their present setup.

Prof. J. Gordon Gose of Washington, the conference president, said he can see no necessity for enlarging the group that included Southern California, Washington, UCLA, California and Stanford.

"From the outset we've been interested in the possibility of enlargement," he said after a Big Five meeting Monday. "But we're not making overtures to anyone."

Machinery for choosing annual Rose Bowl opponents was announced. The Big Five champion will be the host with no restriction on a team competing on consecutive years.

Since the Big Ten didn't renew its Rose Bowl pact, the AAUW will choose the visiting team from the nation at large.

The Athletic Association of Western Universities, popularly known now as the Big Five, came into being on July 1, 1959, with the demise of the nine-member Pacific Coast Conference.

Movie Role For Rafer Johnson

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rafer Johnson, Olympic star, may become Rafer Johnson, movie star. Twentieth Century-Fox has announced that the two-time Olympic decathlon champion has been given a featured role in "Journey To Danger," a picture that will co-star Raymond Massey, Juliet Prowse and Signe Hasso.

Johnson said Monday night he had not signed a contract yet, but a studio spokesman said he had agreed orally and "his word is good enough for us."

GW Missing Top Back This Week

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS George Washington will be without its No. 1 quarterback, Frank Pazzaglia, when it plays The Citadel this week in the Southern Conference debut for both teams.

The Colonials were notified Monday that Pazzaglia will miss several weeks with a knee injury. Coach Bill Elias has indicated that Chuck Packan, the No. 2 signal caller, will start against The Citadel and Bill Hardy will move into the reserve spot.

If wishing could make it so, West Virginia's embarrassing six-game losing streak in football would come to an end when the Mountaineers meet Virginia Tech in Richmond Saturday afternoon.

Coach Gene Corum admits that the spirit is willing in the Mountaineer camp, but he fears the flesh may be weak.

Corum, whose debut as head coach was spoiled by Maryland, 31-8, last Saturday says his scout, tell him Tech loomed "big, deep, and strong" in its 29-14 loss at N.C. State.

The WVU-Tech game, feature of Richmond's Tobacco Festival, will be the first Southern Conference test for each club and is expected to draw more than 25,000 fans.

Davidson set up defenses for Wolford after looking at movies of last week's win over Catawba.

Furman worked lightly in a dummy scrimmage and got the bad news that starting end Bill Newman will miss the Tampa game this week because of a knee injury.

Tackle Wayne Barber was declared out for two weeks at William & Mary with a sprained ankle. Kicking was emphasized at VMI.

Moreland Learns Pro Ropes Quick

MARYSVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Jackie Moreland, a top collegian at Louisiana Tech, learned quickly about pro basketball.

He's trying out for the Detroit Pistons as the National Basketball Association's No. 1 draft choice.

Shelle McMillon, a two-year NBA veteran, is another candidate.

In the Pistons' first workout, McMillon's elbow caught Moreland's right eye. The rookie needed four stitches.

Next day, McMillon plunged into the floor. In his best draw, Moreland said: "I do declare, Shelle, I think you're in the wrong game."

Charlotte Race Is Called Off

CHARLOTTE (AP)—An official of the United States Auto Club (USAC) says there might not be time to conduct car and equipment tests and hold a 100-mile race Oct. 15 at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Henry Banks, USAC director of competition, said here Monday, "We also have to consider whether the drivers have made previous commitments that would interfere with their being here."

The Charlotte Motor Speedway said it would like to hold the 100-mile event for Indianapolis-type racing cars the day prior to its "National 400," a 400-mile late model stock car race sanctioned by the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR).

Banks and Rodger Ward, driver representative of the USAC board of directors, inspected the new Charlotte track Monday. They told officials they were impressed with the track. Ward won the 1959 Indianapolis 500 race.

The speedway, meanwhile, says its proposed 100-mile modified race for NASCAR drivers scheduled Oct. 15 has been called off.

Jorach Named SC Back Of Week

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Halfback Jim Porach of William & Mary, who scored two touchdowns in a losing cause, today was named Southern Conference football player of the week for his performance in the Indians' 33-21 defeat at the hands of VMI.

Porach, a 195-pound senior from Philadelphia, accounted for the game's outstanding play when he stole the ball from VMI quarterback Bobby Mitchell in the second period and sprinted 85 yards for a touchdown.

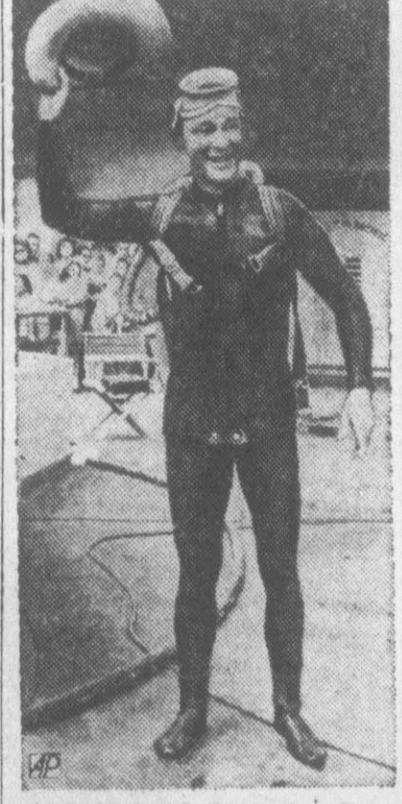

Later, Porach snaggged a 13-yard pass from Bob Stoy for another six-pointer that pulled the Indians into a 21-21 halftime tie. "Every time there was a key play in the first half, Porach seemed to be making it," said W&M Coach Mill Drever.

Porach edged VMI guard Lou Shuba and Virginia Tech tackle Don Oakes in the player-of-the-week balloting among members of the Southern Conference Sports Writers Association. Others nominated were Richmond fullback Jim McGinnis and Furman halfback Tony Carmignani.

Practice Briefs

East Carolina

East Carolina started "operation Guilford" yesterday with full emphasis on stopping the Quakers this weekend when the Pirates open their 1960 season in College Stadium.

Only minor injuries, including a bruised arm to Glenn Bass, were reported from the Newport News scrimmage but Robert Moore, sophomore end, received an arm fracture in practice yesterday and was considered lost for the season.

The Pirates' number two and three units went through a lengthy scrimmage session.

More rough work was on tap for this afternoon and tomorrow before the Bucs start taping off Thursday.

Rose High

Rose High gridders began a week of heavy workouts yesterday in preparation for the Kinston Red Devils this Friday night.

The Phantoms reviewed the Jacksonville game with Coach Bud Phillips pointing out mistakes. Contact work was stressed in working on the defenses to be used for Kinston. Also the boys not seeing much action Friday night were put through a lengthy scrimmage session.

"I was especially pleased with our defense. I thought our pass defense was good, tackling was very sharp and our downfield blocking was impressive," stated Phillips in reviewing the Jacksonville game.

This Friday night has been named "Fill the Stadium Night" by Phillips and his staff. Every one is urged to attend Friday's game, filling the East Carolina College Stadium.

Eppes High

Eppes High wasted no time in getting ready for unbeaten H. B. Sugg yesterday, whisking through its practice session when stress was being put on stopping halfback Bobby Wilks, the talented Farmville speedster.

Coach Percy Daniels regards Wilks and 235-lb. tackle Ray Gay as a couple of the best prep gridders in this section of the state.

The Bulldogs' own stock took a rise yesterday with the return of James Tyson to practice. He has been sidelined much of the season with an injury.

Daniels, expecting one of his best seasons, noted yesterday that no cards would be withheld in preparing for the H. B. Sugg club.

A special halftime show is also being planned for the clash of the two Pitt County rivals.

Ayden

Ayden lost little time in getting ready for Robersonville's power-laden single-wing attack yesterday as Coach Stuart Tripp sent his club through a scrimmage session with reserves carrying out the single-wing formation.

Linemen Clem McGlohorn and Donald Carmon were standouts in the defensive workout which saw the Tornado regulars control the offense for the most part.

Halfback Rudolph Cannon, was in heavy gear yesterday after missing the last two weeks with a broken finger. Jimmy Pratt and Tommy Tittman, both out last week, were also back in full gear.

Tripp planned another scrimmage for his club today with most of the work once again devoted to stopping the single-wing attack of Robersonville.

Farmville

Only seventeen boys participated in the Farmville workout yesterday, giving Coach Elbert Moye more depth worries.

Moye, who felt his club looked good in toppling Lillington, warned yesterday it would take a better effort to stop Friday night's strong foe, Mt. Olive.

Backs Bob Avery, Dean Oglesby and Danny Dilda scored a touchdown each in pacing the Lillington victory. These three along with Billy Pollard and Alex Corbett will give the Red Devils an adequate offensive attack.

Slated to leave the warfare up front will be J. Y. Monk, Moses Moye, and Mitchell Cannon.

A scrimmage is on tap for the Red Devil club tonight.

Designer Costly To French Army

PARIS (AP) — Drafee Yves-Mathieu Saint-Laurent, wisp designer at the world-renowned Christian Dior fashion house, is thus far a 100 per cent setback for French military authorities.

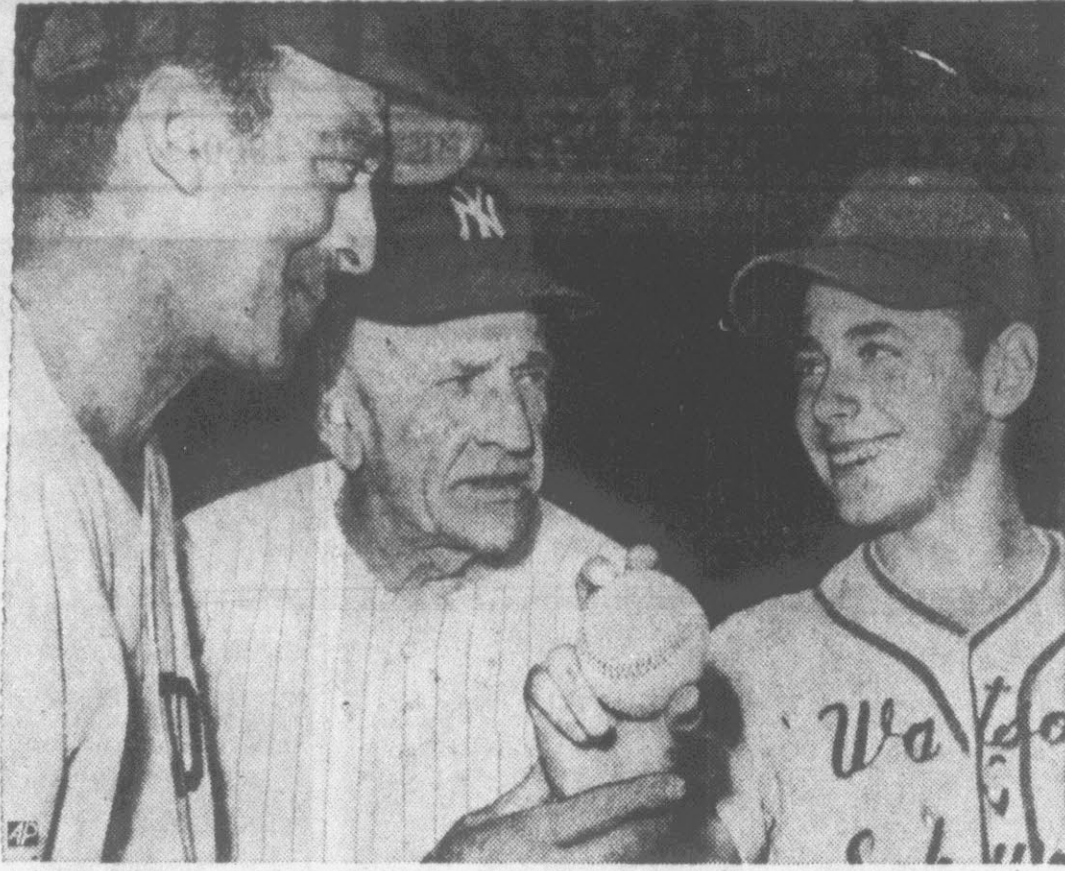

The army has had to post two sentries at Saint-Laurent's hospital room to protect him from sneak photographers.

Net loss to the French army: somewhere between one and three soldiers, depending on how you figure it.

In uniform hardly more than a week, Saint-Laurent has been hospitalized almost from the moment of induction.

Officially, Saint-Laurent is suffering from a "mysterious illness." Rumors have described it as a nervous breakdown.

Boat drownings ranked 9th during 1958 among the principal causes of accidental deaths.

FUTURE PROSPECT—Red Sox coach Sal Maglie and Yankee manager Casey Stengel look over the pitching grip of Joe Marmello at Yankee Stadium. The youngster hurled a no-hitter to lead his Levittown, Pa., team to victory in the Little League World Series.

Helped Beat Birds Twice

Ralph Terry, left, gets towel from fellow pitcher Jim Coates in dressing room in New York after the Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles in both games of a twin bill. Terry went all the way for a 2-0 shutout in the nightcap while Coates relieved Art Ditmar, winning pitcher, as Yankees took the first game 7-3. The twin victory gave the Yankees a four game lead in the American League pennant race over the White Sox and Orioles who are tied for second. (AP Wirephoto)

Gov't Wants Share Winnings

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government intends to be sure of getting its tax share of any big winnings on daily double and other race pool betting.

It is directing the nation's race tracks to file special reports with the name and address of anyone who wins $600 or more in a pool wager. The report to the Internal Revenue Service also must give the amount of the winnings.

So far, the order is being limited to pool winnings, with no report required of major winnings in individual races. That is because of the administrative problems involved, the service said.

Still under consideration is the possibility of requiring similar reports from gambling establishments that operate poker, roulette and dice games.

The law requires that all amounts won from gambling be reported as ordinary income for tax purposes. Gambling losses may be deducted against winnings but the loss deductions may not exceed the gains.

The new reporting order stems from a recent development in American race betting—the pool, in which the bettor picks the winner of four, five or six races. Payoffs sometimes reach thousands of dollars in such cases.

The revenue service's interest was captured last winter by news reports that one winner at Lincoln Downs, R.I., collected $9,382.20 for a $2 bet in a pool event called papacita.

But the revenue agent who checked into it couldn't get the name of the winner. Since then, Lincoln Downs has been taking the names of the big winners and has promised to submit them to the government.

Rutgers, Princeton Still Seek Victory

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The scouting report on Princeton-Rutgers probably read something like this:

"Watch out for their left forward, he can sock that ball a mile with his fist, particularly if he gets a shot at it with his right hand. And their center, he's deadly in close to the net with that left foot. The ball goes as straight as an arrow."

That could have been the report on what passed for a football team 91 years ago when the two schools began the fall madcap business of intercollegiate football.

They celebrate their now-prosperous child's 91st birthday at Princeton this Saturday in an atmosphere far different than in 1869.

Gone are the handlebar mustaches, leather pants and high necked sweaters, primitive rules and low pressure tactics to win. Now the scouting reports talk of slants, sweeps, decoys and are illustrated in movie film and pages of notes and diagrams.

Even with two schools, teeped in tradition and Ivy, but living only 15 miles apart, the desire for victory still is as great as it was when two teams of 25 players each, using a soccer ball and modified soccer rules, faced each other for the first time in 1869.

Princeton has been the most successful in the series, winning 41 of 48 games. But Rutgers has won the last two years, and rates a slight favorite for Saturday's game.

Back in 1869, the two teams played under rules that forbade running with the ball and prohibited the use of the free kick when the ball was caught. However, the attack of these two ancients was "jazzed up" to the extent that interference could be run for the player in possession of the ball, and allowed catching the ball and hitting it with the fist and hand.

Rutgers won the first game 6-4 and Princeton the second 8-0 a week later.

WAGNER-WALDROP MOTORS, Inc.

A Stirring Western Suspense Novel The Lean Rider by CLIFF FARRELL

CHAPTER 34

Abel Barbee spoke to the crew: "Everybody will start watch to night. But no circle riding. Spot yourselves at a distance from the bedground an' set tight. Shoot at anybody who comes near the herd an' can't identify themselves. If the cattle are stampeded, let 'em run. No matter how much they scatter, we'll find 'em sooner or later. It's you I don't want bunched up."

Micah Jones accompanied him on the wagon and they drove away toward Walkerville.

Paul Drexel was stationing men around the herd. Lisa Randolph and Hester Barbee joined him, Hester riding a gentle horse sidesaddle. Paul placed the near a group of pines at a spot he believed was safest. They dismounted and tied up their horses. Paul left them, taking up vigil at another point. They wrapped themselves in blankets. Even so, under a sky ablaze with pinpoint stars, Lisa felt the blue cold of the mountains penetrating with knife-like keenness.

Something aroused her during the night. She started to her feet, the blanket dropping from her shoulders. Hester was already standing tensely.

Riders were approaching cautiously somewhere in the darkness. Hester held a pistol. Lisa also was armed. She drew the weapon. She was shaking at the keenness.

A woodblock friction match spluttered into life. Again it was to be an explosion!

Hester gritted, "Blast you!" She fired. She fired a second time. This flashback upset the horses of the intruders. Lisa could hear them crashing through the sagebrush. Hester fired two more shots, the powder flame darting into the night. In that flicker of light, Lisa glimpsed a rider half out of the saddle on a plunging horse that seemed to be tangled in the limbs of a fallen dead pine.

There were at least two more invaders, for two pistols were replying to the flashes from Hester's weapon. Lisa heard bullets strike brush and boulders nearby. She and Hester crouched down, hunting shelter.

"Ride!" a man yelled frantically. "Get out of here! Fast! I dropped the damned stuff, and it's lighted!"

That was Kemp Travis's voice. Horses were galloping away. However, from the sounds, the one closest at hand was still trapped in the deadfall.

Its rider screamed, "Wait! I'm snagged in—!"

That was cut off by the heavy flash of an explosion. The force of it drove Lisa stumbling back and she sprawled. She twisted around and covered her head with her arms as debris hampered down around her. A sizeable length of tree limb struck with a yard of her. Pebbles and fragments stung her body, but she escaped material injury.

Someone was moaning in agony. The dead pine tree, ignited by the explosion, burst into flame, the dry needles burning fiercely. The glare lighted the scene.

Lisa screamed, "Hester!"

Hester answered. She was unhurt. They joined each other and stood listening, terrified.

The cattle had once again stampeded, but the run was northward and away from them.

As the rumble of hooves receded they again could hear the terrifying moaning nearby. They moved toward that sound. It began to fade, and when they were a dozen yards or so away it ended entirely.

Lisa forced herself to walk nearer. She halted, chained by horror. The ignited tree had expended its greatest burst of fire, and the red glow it cast now was smoky and dim.

The body of a man was draped over the torn sagebrush hurried there by the explosion. The mangled form of a horse lay nearby.

She heard the sound of wheels, moving fast. Abel's voice was shouting. He and Micah had returned from Walkerville. Paul was calling out also, and riding toward the scene. She had to try three times before she could lift a sound to guide them to where she and Hester waited.

Abel and Micah came running up on foot and Paul arrived and dismounted. Lisa pointed. She chattered an explanation and they walked ahead. Presently they returned. Abel said, "It was a man who rode for Travis called Red Leffler. He generally hung around with Coe Slade."

He stood lighted by the murky crimson glow. All sounds of the stampede had faded in the distance. "Well, we've got a spoiled herd on our hands for sure this time," he said.

Abel and Paul Drexel caught up their horses. Abel held a stirrup and offered his hand to Lisa. She accepted it. Suddenly she moved against him. His arms went around her, drawing her close. He kissed her, questioningly at first, then with realization and a full and growing hunger as he felt her response.

He held her for a time. Slowly he released her. "We've been a long, slow, stubborn time comin' to understand this," he said.

He lifted her onto the horse and stood peering at her in the faint light, his finger gripping hard on her knee. "Don't you get hurt any worse than you have been in this damned business over these cows. I can't lose you, too."

She bent and kissed him again. "What are you going to do, Abel? I can't lose you either, you know."

"Stampede 'em in the gap," he said. "Travis will likely try to rush his drives through as fast as he can get 'em movin' at daylight. He knows we're scattered an' will be held up a couple o' days or more. He knows too thet we've got a panicky herd which he can stampede whenever he feels like it. He figures to pull ahead of us an' hopes that Diehl & Diehl will cancel our part of the contract if we don't meet delivery date." He added, "We've got some blastin' powder of our own now."

Lisa heard the wagon begin moving southward. Abel joined Paul for this venture, leaving Micah with the crew.

Hester joined them and they headed southward toward the gap.

When they reached the slope that ascended to the gorge, Abel said, "This is close enough."

Lisa and Hester remained there as the wagon rolled onward. They dismounted and found what shelter they could alongside the trail.

Chill hours passed before the sound of the wagon, re turning, enveloped them. It was driven by Paul, and he was alone. The vehicle's contents had been removed. He left the wagon with them, took Lisa's horse and rode back toward the gap, a rifle slung in his arm.

The night was long. Occasionally Hester slept exhaustedly, her head on Lisa's shoulders, but Lisa could not sleep.

Dawn was in the sky when they arose and stood in the icy cold, listening to a distant and intangible murmur. Cattle were in the gorge. The sound grew in volume.

A red glow sprang into being. It rushed into fiery length—like the flash of meteors.

This ribbon of flame was in the mouth of the gorge, and though it was tiny at this distance Lisa knew that it was kerosene, spill-

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market struggled to find support early this afternoon, backing off irregularly while some big losers regained ground. Trading was active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 70 to 209.70 with the industrials off .90, the rails off .50 and the utilities off .40.

Amid a wide scattering of gains, key stocks showed a plurality of losses running from fractions to about a point. Some of the higher-priced stocks which fell sharply in Monday's selloff recouped a number of points.

The smashing of the 1960 support zone — represented by the lows of March, May and July — meant that the market must form a new base at a lower level, analysts said. The list was groping for this today.

Brokers said quite a number of key stocks apparently looked cheap enough to attract buyers while other issues continued to slide. Some of the leading steels, autos, electrical equipments, utilities and building material issues posted small plus gains. Others in the same groups retreated.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 1.19 at 585.57. Corporate bonds were somewhat lower on balance. Trading was light.

A three-day rally by U.S. government bonds halted. Prices were unchanged to a bit lower in slow transactions.

Optimists Hear Rev. Ottaway

Rev. Richard Ottaway, curate at St. Paul's Episcopal Church here and Episcopal College Chaplain of East Carolina College, discussed national trends towards church membership at the weekly dinner meeting of the Greenville Optimist Club last night.

Rev. Ottaway rited several well-known authorities as references to point out various schools of thought concerning the behavior of Americans in church membership.

He said over 90 per cent of American citizens claim church membership while church rolls include only 57 per cent of the nation's population.

The reasons, he said, include the trend of the "third generation" to "seek something in which they may place their faith."

In discussing the "third generation," Rev. Ottaway told Optimists, "The grandson wishes to remember what the son wished to forget."

He urged Optimists to "take advantage of a unique type of theology today." He said, "Today we read theologians who are writing about the problems of their contemporaries. In the field of theology, we have never had this before."

Rev. Ottaway's discussion was presented by Optimist Jack Thomas. The program was another in a series to be presented during 1960-61 by the Optimist membership.

Congo Invasion Called Off

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
 LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Soldiers of the Congolese army have started moving out of the Katanga invasion zone in an airlift organized by the United Nations.

More than 2,200 Congolese soldiers originally dispatched by deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba to reconquer secessionist Katanga Province are to be returned to their bases at Stanleyville, Leopoldville and Thysville.

Virtually every plane at the disposal of the United Nations in the Congo was dispatched to the invasion area on both sides of the Katanga border.

A military cease-fire had been in operation in the area for 10 days. A group of U. N. truce observers headed by Swedish Col. S. M. Mollersward patrols the no man's land between the two sides.

However, as long as the national army units remained in the area the danger of a new flareup persisted. The airlift put a definite end to the civil war between the national army and the Katanga forces.

The soldiers were being flown out of Kindu in Kivu Province; Bakwanga in Kasai Province and Kongo and Kasongo in Katanga.

Although originally dispatched by Lumumba, the soldiers grew restive when they ran out of food and agreed to a cease-fire when the United Nations set up a food distribution point behind the front.

The airlift back to their bases was obviously arranged through Col. Joseph Mobutu, who led military coup in Leopoldville Sept. 14.

The Katanga invasion had been organized in four columns of attack through Kivu and Kasai. Some 1,500 of the men came from the Stanleyville garrison in the heart of Lumumba's own tribal area.

Bicycle Road-e-o Personnel To Be Briefed Tonight

A briefing on functions of personnel who will assist in the coming Bicycle Road-e-o has been called for tonight at 8:00 p.m. at the Greenville Moose Temple.

Moose Lodge civic affairs chairman Merrill Bynum said it was especially important for all who would be helping in the event to attend.

Bynum reported last night that preliminary indications were over 600 school-age children would be participating in the program Saturday afternoon.

The Bicycle Road-e-o, primarily a safety training program, is the first to be held in Greenville and children from all over the county were invited to enter. Bicycles will be given winners in three age groups.

No more entries will be permitted, inasmuch as all preliminary questionnaires were to have been submitted by October 15.

Torrid Reel Of Movie Is Stolen

ALBEMARLE, N.C. (AP)—Sheriff Sam M. Dry reported Monday that a reel from the movie "For Members Only" was stolen from the projection room of an Albemarle drive-in theater.

"For Members Only" is the story of a nudist colony. The sheriff said the third reel, which he called the "warmest portion" of the picture, was taken some time after the theater closed Sunday.

'Orientation' At New College

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)—The first students of North Carolina Wesleyan College today continued an orientation program looking to the start of classes Friday.

The new Methodist college opened its doors Monday, and some 83 students signed up. President Thomas A. Collins said he looks for between 85 and 90 students.

Only freshmen will be accepted this year, with a new class added each year until the college reaches full operation in 1964.

Seek Extension Of Cooperation

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Leaders of India and Pakistan sat down today to see whether the spirit of cooperation that settled the Indus River dispute could be extended to other quarrels between their countries.

Indian Prime Minister Nehru and President Mohammad Ayub Khan of Pakistan began talks that will continue until Friday. The dispute over the Himalayan state of Kashmir—the most bitter quarrel between the neighbors—will be the main item of discussion.

Nehru and Ayub Monday signed the Indus waters treaty which assigns each country a share of water in the world's largest irrigation system. The World Bank, which negotiated the settlement, will administer a billion dollar fund to build irrigation works to separate the water. The United States is contributing $515 million to this work.

Raul Re-Raises Threat To Base

HAVANA (AP)—Acting Prime Minister Raul Castro today cast a revolutionary shadow across the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay in eastern Cuba.

The fiery younger brother of Prime Minister Fidel Castro also attacked the U.S. Embassy as a "cave of spies."

Raul told a cheering throng of 50,000, hastily called to a post-midnight demonstration in the presidential palace square, "It is within our possibilities in a determined moment to reclaim that piece of our national territory (Guantanamo)."

When the crowd cried for the United States to get out of the base, however, he said, "It is not in the order of the day."

Castro and President Osvaldo Dorticos addressed the mass meeting summoned to protest what they charged was the Washington-inspired mistreatment of Fidel Castro in New York.

Both sought to make propaganda capital out of Fidel's move to a Harlem hotel, and both boasted that a warm reception by a few thousand in Harlem for the bearded prime minister indicated the Cuban revolution had reached inside the United States doorstep.

Both speakers tore into the United States as aggressive, uncivilized and undemocratic.

The acting prime minister just about sounded the death knell for American business here, declaring, "We will nationalize here as many things as we have to nationalize."

He indicated severe penalties would be exacted against three Americans being held here on spy charges.

"Now you are going to see how spies are nationalized," he said. He cried out a new revolutionary slogan, "Hit the Yankees hard."

Lutheran Series Continues Here

Continuing with his series of sermons during the Lutheran Evangelism Mission, Pastor Jack E. Smith, of Asheville, spoke last night on the topic "The Landmark." The cross upon which Jesus was crucified was described by Pastor Smith as the "landmark" which offers hope to a lost world.

In keeping with the theme of the Area Lutheran Evangelism, "His Cross—Your Hope", in which nine congregations in the Goldsboro area are participating, Pastor Smith will continue tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Clark's Funeral Chapel by speaking on the theme "Finding Yourself" (The Power to Become). The public is cordially invited to these services.

Raul Re-Raises Threat To Base

HAVANA (AP)—Acting Prime Minister Raul Castro today cast a revolutionary shadow across the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay in eastern Cuba.

The fiery younger brother of Prime Minister Fidel Castro also attacked the U.S. Embassy as a "cave of spies."

Raul told a cheering throng of 50,000, hastily called to a post-midnight demonstration in the presidential palace square, "It is within our possibilities in a determined moment to reclaim that piece of our national territory (Guantanamo)."

When the crowd cried for the United States to get out of the base, however, he said, "It is not in the order of the day."

Castro and President Osvaldo Dorticos addressed the mass meeting summoned to protest what they charged was the Washington-inspired mistreatment of Fidel Castro in New York.

Both sought to make propaganda capital out of Fidel's move to a Harlem hotel, and both boasted that a warm reception by a few thousand in Harlem for the bearded prime minister indicated the Cuban revolution had reached inside the United States doorstep.

Both speakers tore into the United States as aggressive, uncivilized and undemocratic.

The acting prime minister just about sounded the death knell for American business here, declaring, "We will nationalize here as many things as we have to nationalize."

He indicated severe penalties would be exacted against three Americans being held here on spy charges.

"Now you are going to see how spies are nationalized," he said. He cried out a new revolutionary slogan, "Hit the Yankees hard."

Lutheran Series Continues Here

Continuing with his series of sermons during the Lutheran Evangelism Mission, Pastor Jack E. Smith, of Asheville, spoke last night on the topic "The Landmark." The cross upon which Jesus was crucified was described by Pastor Smith as the "landmark" which offers hope to a lost world.

In keeping with the theme of the Area Lutheran Evangelism, "His Cross—Your Hope", in which nine congregations in the Goldsboro area are participating, Pastor Smith will continue tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Clark's Funeral Chapel by speaking on the theme "Finding Yourself" (The Power to Become). The public is cordially invited to these services.
