

Nikita's Life Said Endangered; Crowds Demonstrate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A Soviet agency reported today an attempt would be made on Nikita S. Khrushchev's life. But smiling and apparently unconcerned, the energetic Soviet Premier showed up at the U.N. General Assembly well ahead of delegates from other nations.

Other groups paraded carrying pacifist signs, and still others carried placards bearing the slogan, "Khrushchev is a traitor."

The Soviet Union in turn has proposed that the Assembly deliberate the problems of the Congo, the seating of Communist China in the U.N., and the "menace to world peace created by the aggressive actions of the United States of America."

The list brings U. N. membership to 96, nearly twice the original 51 members of 1945. It is believed that one of Khrushchev's purposes in coming to this session of the U.N. is to try his salesmanship on the new members, especially the representatives of the African governments.

Bond Issue To Help Speed Street Work

(First of a Series) By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor

A broad new program to speed up the paving of Greenville's dirt streets is included in the bond election to be held Tuesday.

By using the bond issue funds, the city could allow property owners to build sidewalks in the vicinity of schools. In addition there is money for construction of a four lane divided drive from Tenth St. to Greenville Blvd.

Bloxam said the proposed street paving fund would be used in conjunction with Powell Bill money which the city receives from the state for street paving and maintenance purposes.

Dr. Matz Speaks About Spain

At a meeting of the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women, held in Erwin Hall on Monday evening, Dr. Sue Matz of the Foreign Language Department delivered a lecture on Spain. She spoke about the problems of Spain and then showed slides depicting places which she saw during her tour of Spain last summer. Mrs. Marguerite Perry of the Foreign Language Department introduced the speaker. Dr. Matz said that Spain is different from the rest of Europe for three reasons. One is that it is cut off by the Pyrenees; another, that it was occupied by the Moslems for eight centuries; and third, that the various provinces were once separate kingdoms, which still claim the first loyalty of their inhabitants. In regard to France, Dr. Matz spoke of the advantages and disadvantages of his regime. Among the advantages are internal peace and such economic achievements as an extensive building program, land reclamation and industrialization. To offset these advantages there is suppression of freedom of speech, press, and association, Dr. Matz said. There is, of course, some opposition to this regime, but it is not open or united. Some critics say that the five United States air bases in Spain are helping to prolong it. It is possible that the monarchy will be restored when Franco retires, Dr. Matz said. Before the lecture, Dr. Kathleen Stokes, president of the branch welcomed guests and prospective members. She gave a brief account of the work of the organization and spoke of the regional workshop which will be held at the college on October 8. After the lecture there was a social hour, during which refreshments were served by the hostesses: Miss Mabel E. Dougherty, Dr. Ruby Bliss, Dr. Patti Dowell, Mrs. N. G. Debler, Dr. Ruth Keesey, Miss Velma Lowe and Dr. Katherine White.

Hat Workshop Is Held

BETHEL — Approximately 20 women attended a fall hat workshop conducted in the Bethel School Home Economics department for Bethel Home Demonstration Club women recently. The workshop, under the supervision of Mrs. Mavis G. Johnson, assistant home economics agent of Pitt County, featured fall fabrics. Plans were made for another workshop to be held Wednesday, Sept. 28, in the same location. Orders have been taken for hat frames and other needed materials. Following the hat workshop, all hat makers who were members of the home demonstration club assembled in the high school library for the monthly meeting. Mrs. Johnson, in charge of the meeting, made a short talk and gave a demonstration on the topic "Your Personal Appearance." She said, "One of the most important assets that any woman can develop is an erect and queenly carriage." She also gave tips on applying makeup correctly. Mrs. Lewis Ayers, acting as hostess, served refreshments.

Behan On Broadway Is Wild Irish Brew

By WILLIAM GLOVER
Associated Press Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP)—A wild Irish brew is "The Hostage," Brendan Behan's first Broadway play. Undisciplined and ribald, the production opened Tuesday night at the Cort Theater. There are words and gestures to scandalize the prim, but seekers of off-beat drama need look no further.

Lurking behind the weird vaudeville that is staged with incisive brilliance by Director Joan Littlewood is a blend of Celtic sentimentality and sardonic bitterness that gives point to the expressionism of Dublin's best-publicized playwright.

Behan, dressed in a rumpled blue suit, sat quietly watching the premiere from a mezzanine box. He declared satisfaction with both players and audience.

At final curtain, the spectators began calling "author, author," but Behan sat for moments as though unsure he was the fellow involved. Then he stood up, mumbled some words of thanks and went into the night with friends. During an intermission, he observed:

"If it's a flop, New York has lost a playwright and gained a tourist. If it's a success, I imagine we'll join the queue looking for an apartment."

"I'll stay here for a few months to count the people coming in. I'm a very suspicious man."

The narrative of "The Hostage" centers about a young English soldier, kidnapped to a dreary Dublin hovel by ardent nationalists in reprisal for the arrest of an underground revolutionary who has slain a policeman.

The revolutionary is to be hanged in the morning, and through the long night the soldier's captors debate his fate and many other things.

During the coarse broadside of blarney, tunes and comments that splinter off the rakish scenic display, Behan voices a wide range of human feelings. "The Hostage" is bawdy, irreverent, rough.

Open Skies Plan, Help For Africa Said Topic

NEW YORK (AP) — President Eisenhower will offer a vast new plan for African aid and suggest a U.N. aerial peace patrol when he addresses the United Nations Thursday, the New York Herald Tribune reported today.

The newspaper's lead story said specific proposals in the speech draft cast the world organization in a starring role in contrast with recent Soviet efforts to circumvent the United Nations. The President, it said, will urge that the United Nations be given greater responsibility than ever in a wide range of affairs, in what amounts to a vote of confidence in the U.N.

The newspaper article describes the program as something in "preventive diplomacy" — designed to have help ready to keep any situation from getting out of hand, instead of rushing in aid after a situation already has become critical.

The New York Times also reported on President Eisenhower's speech, saying that he would renew his "open skies" proposal first suggested at the Geneva summit conference in 1955. The Soviets rejected it then.

The New York Daily News carried a similar story. The Herald Tribune said it has learned the United States has two ideas on the U.N. role in an "open skies" plan for guarding the world against surprise attack by sending up high-altitude reconnaissance planes. The airplanes could be flown by pilots recruited by the U.N. and answerable to it. Or the planes could be flown by non-U.N. pilots but under some form of U.N. supervision.

In either case, the United States is prepared to donate the aircraft to be used. Though no price tag has been placed on a plan for economic aid to Africa, officials see it as a big plan—perhaps as large as the recent $500 million proposed by the United States for raising living standards in Latin America.

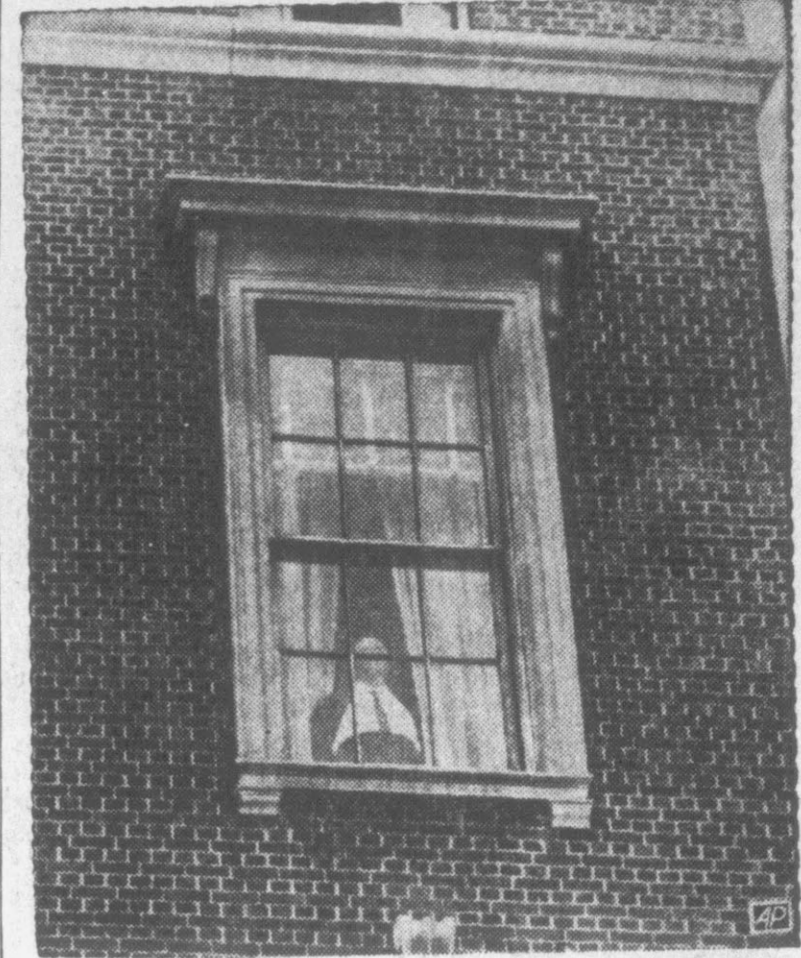

Other proposals concerning Africa would: let new nations train their own troops through U.N. arrangements; administer the United States' "food for peace" plan through the U.N. instead of through bilateral agreements between Washington and other countries; turn over some uranium-235 to undeveloped nations in Africa and elsewhere to help build useful energy for industrial purposes.

A Political System In The UN?

The United Nations came into being as a result of the Dumbarton Oaks Conference. Its original membership as a result of the San Francisco organizational meeting was fifty nations. Poland acquired status as a charter member by signing up later that year (1945), giving the body a composition of fifty-one members.

Non-Communist governments held a safe majority in the UN's early years. So-called "neutrals" comprised a sizeable number, but their neutrality was heavily influenced by the Western leadership.

With that membership of fifty-one, the West could usually count on voting results not unfavorable to their desires.

It isn't like that today. With a record of growing membership, the United Nations now consists of more governments unattached to the two major power blocs, than the blocs themselves can muster.

Additionally, fourteen more new African governments are in the wings, ready to take their seats at an early date in the world organization.

The West's political leadership in the UN is no longer a "sure thing"; neither are prospects of the Communist bloc. A magnetic personality arising out of the multitude of small uncommitted nations conceivably could become the rally point for a voting bloc more powerful than anything yet seen. Of course, the power of the veto remains; but its frequent use against the expressed will of the majority would tend to be damaging.

Observers are inclined to think one of Premier Khrushchev's purposes at the United Nations is to undercut the United States' position with the small, emerging nations and drive a wedge between this country and the new members of the UN... whose vote in that body is worth every bit as much as the oldest member, the richest member, the largest member.

The jockeying for votes and "favorable positions" among UN members suggests a similarity with our own Congress, where political parties and philosophies help draw the line.

Perhaps in time the highly informal (and often denied) partisanship within the United Nations will develop into something resembling a two-party or three-party system.

We're not convinced this would be a good thing for the world organization; in fact, it poses more of a portent for harm than good.

About the only benefit that might accrue is that interested observers could more readily identify contending forces, their strength and their philosophy.

N.C. Democrats More Cheerful

By LYNN NISBET

KENNEDY — North Carolina Democratic leaders feel much better about the situation than they did last week. The visit of Sen. John F. Kennedy into the state Saturday was highly successful in its main purpose. Whether or not any direct converts were made by the speeches delivered to large crowds at Greenville, Greensboro, Asheville, Charlotte and Raleigh, there can be no doubt that the appearance of the man, his candor and courage, and the inescapable charm of his personality consolidated support all over.

Governor Hodges summed it up pretty well in a cryptic statement to newsmen at Charlotte. "A lot of psychology was riding on this trip," he said. "The fact that it was so highly successful will have impact on the thinking and actions of many people who could not see and hear the candidate."

Guy Munger, in a round-up story for the Greensboro Daily News, noted that the danger zone for Republicans was 15 feet—meaning that no person could get within 15 feet of Kennedy and not be captivated by his personal charm. His serious dedication to a mammoth task, and his absolute sincerity of purpose to uphold the constitution and the traditions of the Democratic party as affording best leadership in government for all the people and his superb confidence that the party will take over full leadership after the November election.

Numerous references have been made to both Democrats and Republicans "running scared" in North Carolina. Jack Kennedy is running hard, but not scared. He has the appearance of a man who doesn't scare easily, whether in a navy battle or a political campaign. His emphasis is on the responsibility of leadership, rather than the honor of it.

DECISIVE — Veteran politicians responded to his appeal, but it is evident that decisive factors in the coming election will be women and young folks. That is true also of the State ticket. It was Kennedy's day, but Terry Sanford got as much applause and it was spontaneous from the younger people and the women. On several occasions Kennedy referred to the similarity of the "New Day" program in North Carolina and the "New Frontiers" of national challenge.

Of course, the crowds that came out for the Kennedy appearances were preponderantly Democrats. It is further true that the larger than expected turnout at Charlotte and the smaller than anticipated at Raleigh did not provide an accurate picture of sentiment in these immediate areas.

DIFFERENCES—There have been attempted comparisons of conditions now and in 1928, the only other time a Catholic ran on the Democratic ticket and a Quaker on the Republican. There are more differences than similarity.

Al Smith was a Tammany type politician, the first of that stripe to visit North Carolina as a candidate for President. Thousands of people came to see him out of curiosity. His opponent was a popular international figure who had been a right hand aide to Woodrow Wilson in the Belgian food service after World War I, and had been in the cabinet as secretary of commerce during the most prosperous era in America to that date. Young people were not active in 1928, and women did not like Al Smith, not only because of his religion but because of what many regarded as his uncouthness.

More than half the current voters were not old enough to understand things in 1928, millions of them were not even born. Your reporter is among the old folks and remembers that campaign well. Among other things, the boos along the route from Raleigh to Method which Smith paraded.

There were a few Nixon signs displayed on the streets at Charlotte Saturday, but not a single boo was heard through open windows of the press bus. The efforts to get close to Kennedy apparently stemmed from affection rather than curiosity.

There was serious division among State Democratic leaders in 1928, and many of those who supported Smith did so reluctantly out of a sense of party loyalty. There was no affection for the man. There isn't a single defection in State party leadership now, and thousands of women—from school girls to grandmothers—obviously would go for Kennedy without regard to party label. That alone could make the difference between defeat and victory in November.

LOCALIZED — Kennedy did not say anything new of national significance in any of his speeches here. It was not a national forum. He was talking to North Carolinians on their home ground. His appeal was to North Carolina to reassert its ancestral leadership in national affairs, forget petty sectionalism and prejudice. And although he had the Harvard inflection on his Yankee brogue, the simplicity of phrases got across to his hearers to much greater degree than some of the eloquently turned oratory of other speakers.

The late Forrest Shuford, commissioner of labor, once said that the greatest compliment he ever had came from Henry Belk of Goldsboro, who said "Shuford is no great shakes as an orator, but he talks like a man who knows what he's talking about and believes what he says." That same comment applies to Senator Kennedy. And the folks like it.

Police Shouldn't Take Unnecessary Risks

The pursuit of a speeding car is very colorful on the movie screen or on the television screen, but in real life it isn't something to be casually accepted. It makes for good theatrics; it also makes for a poor way to die.

Take those two policemen in Goldsboro for example. One was the father of six children, the other was father of three. The policemen died in pursuit of a car late Monday when their own car plunged through a bridge railing.

As this is written there seems to be no knowledge as to why the pursuit was being made. However, we seriously doubt the reason was worth the risk involved... and certainly not worth the price two law enforcers paid.

The suspicion prevails in our own mind that the death of these two men was unnecessary, inasmuch as radio communications have done much to simplify apprehension of a fleeing motorist.

The scream of the siren, the squealing of tires on a turn, the churning roar of powerful motors, the thrill of the chase... it's all very heady stuff.

But our policemen don't have to show they're brave; they don't have to prove they are good drivers; they don't have to please an audience to keep up a rating. We all know full well they are a unique breed because of the work to which they devote their days.

Their everyday lives involve enough risks. So it does not behoove them to go out of their way taking unnecessary chances.

One live policeman is worth more to a community than a thousand dead ones.

Two Weeks Of Red Propaganda

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Just give your name, rank and serial number to soldiers if captured by an enemy, to avoid disclosure of vital information, was followed pretty much Monday by Premier Nikita Khrushchev who wasn't captured but landed in unfriendly country."

The round Russian, as soon as he reached New York for today's session of the United Nations Assembly, whipped out a 1,500-word prepared statement and began reading on the dock beside the ship which brought him.

When he was through he hadn't really disclosed much. He gave his name and rank. He said the rest of what he said was simply a restatement of what was already known: he wanted to talk disarmament.

What else he'll try to do he kept to himself. The fact that he is accompanied by the Communist chiefs of all the Russian satellites indicates the pitch he makes in the United Nations will be out of the ordinary.

Khrushchev, who insulted President Eisenhower last May in the breakup of the summit conference, took another swipe at him but still left the door open for them to get together in New York.

He said that if Eisenhower—scheduled to address the U.N. Thursday—doesn't make a "fantasy speech" but wants to talk serious about disarmament and peace, that's all to the good.

He seemed to be cold-shouldering the President when he then went on to say "I would like to voice the profound respect I feel toward the entire American people."

He could have paid this tribute to Eisenhower and the American people. But he didn't mention the President in this expression of feeling of "profound respect."

Earlier this year Khrushchev was on a campaign of belittling President Eisenhower who now shows no intention of having direct dealings with the Russian again.

Last June 3 he said that when Eisenhower leaves the White House "we could make him an orphanage director: 'I am sure he will not hurt the children.' The same day he referred to the President as "weak-kneed."

Since more than 20 heads of foreign governments will be at the United Nations' this week-giving Khrushchev the greatest world forum he has ever enjoyed — he can be counted on to make the most of it.

Although he repudiated in his dock-side speech the idea he was coming here to make Soviet propaganda, his every move and word will be just that, no matter how good his intentions.

It will probably take two weeks to find out why Khrushchev really came here. The two week, may become a propaganda circus.

Quote

"But when one thinks of the future of one's country, one cannot help but do some worrying. The commitments for social security, as of today, run into hundreds of billions. The modest one per cent contribution of 1937 has grown to three per cent. We think eventually it will have to go to five per cent from both the employee and employer. Especially, if Congress decides to tack on the health features." —Marion (Iowa) Sentinel.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

FOUNDATION OF FREEDOM

The first representative assembly held in America was called to order in Jamestown, Virginia, on July 30, 1619. A portion of the minutes of that meeting (now inscribed on the walls of the parish church at Williamsburg) reads as follows:

"While Sir George Yardly, the Governor, being sette downe in his accustomed place in the chaire, those of the counsel of estate sate nexte him on both handes; but forasmuch as mens affairs doe little prosper where Gods service is neglected, all the Burgeses tooke their places in the chaire till a prayer was saide by Mr. Bucke, the minister, that it would please God to guide and sanctifie all our proceedings to his own glory and the good of this plantation." The age in which we live is in many ways a glorious one. Scientific resourcefulness has assumed genius proportions. Yet there is often a complacent secularism in our public affairs today which makes no provision for God as Ruler of the Nations. We have good reason to fear the atomic bomb since this is our mood, and in fact it is the mood not the bomb which is dangerous. The mood will never tear us to pieces but it will rot us to pieces unless we mend our ways. For individuals and nations, it is the same—no God, no life.

Some Of This And That

The story of Charlotte Berkley has been told and retold, so I won't go into it again. But there's one side that hasn't been told, and that was the keen interest displayed by the AP bureau for the Carolinas at Charlotte.

Our office teletype carried three messages to GN (that's us) asking if the ECC coed ever got to shake Sen. Kennedy's hand; and there was another three or four long distance phone calls between GN and CH, all dealing exclusively with Miss Berkley.

She was the young lady you'll remember as being up and out early to insure a seat at the stadium Saturday, and hoping so hard to shake Kennedy's hand.

It seemed as though the news world was holding its collective breath over the prospects of the 18-year-old meeting the Senator.

Some late-hour desultory conversation may have shed a bit of light on why some TV viewers enjoy the late show movies out of all proportion to the rest of a day's programming.

Those old movies, especially the better ones, are filled with familiar faces and familiar voices. They bring back some old friends you just don't see anyplace else.

Not necessarily the stars... but the character actors, who appeared in dozens of pictures and were as well known as the players who had top billing.

I can remember many faces, many voices, many roles of supporting players enjoyed in bygone days. Their names have been long forgotten; but on seeing these old friends I get a warm feeling... no other way to describe it.

We also decided that, though we see few such, one must have a built-in capacity to enjoy British comedies. An essayist might find a pleasant way to spend an evening exploring our thesis the world is divided into two types of people—those who enjoy British comedy and those who cannot enjoy it.

Fifteen years ago this month I was confident an occasion was of so great import the date would be forever engraved on my memory.

It turned out to be otherwise; in fact, it has been forgotten so thoroughly and so regularly that it would be overlooked again on this anniversary had not accident brought the whole thing up.

I vaguely recall telling anyone who'd listen that "this is like Pearl Harbor... a day that will go down in history." Which goes to show one's sense of values can change.

My birthday I remember (regrettably), my wedding date (happily), Christmas, New Year's Day, the Fourth of July... those dates don't get by me very easily. The others require painful prodding and reminders. Dates are poor markers in the book of personal history insofar as I'm concerned.

Oh yes, September 1945 saw my separation from the Army. Fort Bragg was the setting, and during my brief stay there I saw next to nothing of the huge post... kept close to the bulletin board, as I remember.

As well, another memory that was never treasured as it might have been.

How To Back An Ideal

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

There are two ways of fighting for an ideal: one is to be inside a group; the other way is to be outside looking in. The conservatives in the Republican Party were the prevailing element in the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover Administrations. During the Roosevelt Administration, the Republican Party became the possession of the managerial elements in Business—big liberals but who conservatives but liberals but who want to win an election on the incorrect assumption that those who help to elect a President can control him after he is elected. They nominated Alf Landon, Wendell Willkie, Thomas E. Dewey and Dwight D. Eisenhower. They rejected Robert A. Taft.

The rank and file of the Republican Party is essentially conservative but not sufficiently so to leave the party for membership in some other party. Although in the Willkie and Dewey elections too many Republicans failed to vote, the conservatives nevertheless did not organize a party of their own. Such a group did come out of the Southern Democrats but it did not go far. The subject has often been discussed but nothing substantial has ever come of it because it is difficult for Republican conservatives to agree on a program. There are too many sects, cults, and groups among them. The conservative economists, for instance, will not associate with conservative crackpots.

The first political magnitude to appear since the death of Robert A. Taft is Senator Barry Goldwater, a man of most unusual experience for a politician and whose mind has a philosophic cast. Even though Senator Goldwater's ideas often run against the current tide, he is a practical man in the sense that he recognizes that to accomplish anything politically, it is essential to be in the place at the time when accomplishment is possible. Yelling on the outside may be lots of fun but it does not affect anything politically. In a two party system country, the practical politician makes his way within a party. In the Republican Party, Senator Goldwater is a very influential man with a following large enough at the Convention to have been important.

Many conservatives have been critical of Senator Goldwater for supporting Vice President Richard Nixon at the Republican Convention. Their argument is a non-political one, namely that Goldwater might have been nominated for the Presidency. Dan Smoot, a radio broadcaster who also issues a newsletter and who has a considerable following among conservatives, particularly is annoyed with Senator Goldwater. Smoot says:

"If... Goldwater had fought the Republican blueprint for socialism by demanding roll-call votes on the floor, he would have gained such strength by the time his name was placed in nomination that he very probably would have won. At the very least he would have made a most impressive showing for the conservative cause. As he handled it (far from winning great respect for the conservative cause, as it widely claimed) Goldwater convinced the nation that conservatives have little strength, and no courage or leadership to use what they have."

The latter judgment would undoubtedly be correct. In the rank and file of the Republican Party and probably of this nation is conservative, there is no national conservative organization equivalent to the A.C.A., there is no conservative program which a sufficient number of persons would accept; there are too many conservatives devoted to side issues which frighten away genuine philosophical conservatives, and there are too many who while they say they are conservatives, cannot define the term. The only conservative magazine of any stature in the country, "National Review," has a small circulation. A conservative newsletter comes out of Washington entitled "Human Events."

Labor Unions' Image Trashed

By ELMER ROESSNER

Labor's public image has changed greatly since the '30's, James Menzies Black writes in the current Management Review, published by the American Management Association. Mr. Black is a former official of the A.M.A. and is now railroad industrial relations director.

In the 30's he points out, politicians and intellectuals took up arms for the downtrodden workers. "Anybody who opposed their holy crusade was not only bad but probably... should be hustled off to the tumbrels," he observes.

"Walter Reuther was a vigorous young man with a mission and Jim Carey was a molten-tongued social reformer. Presidents 'cleared it with Sidney (Hillman)' before they okayed a running mate, and it was freely forecast that a CIO brand of socialism would overtake faltering free enterprise in the not-too-distant future."

THE BOY GROWS OLDER
 Today, the real goals of the labor movement have been achieved, Mr. Black writes. "Walter Reuther still retains tremendous power, political and economic, but the biting edge of his offensive against what he thinks of as the vested interests has been blunted by prosperity. Jim Carey, with his antique, class-conscious oratory, is a mildly absurd figure on the modern scene; John L. Lewis, undoubtedly the greatest single influence in labor since Samuel Gompers, has retired; and George Meany has his hands full holding together the feuding factions of the 'united' labor movement."

One factor is the change in the working force caused by technology. White collar workers outnumber shop workers, and there is an increasing number of technicians and highly-skilled employees.

"These people earn middle-class incomes and... they are not anxious to endanger their mortgaged suburban split-levels by rushing to the barracks time an international union leader gives the nod," Mr. Black says.

"Perhaps the cruelest thorn in the side of contemporary labor is the fact that it is no longer as fashionable intellectually to be pronounced as it once was. Dr. George Odiorne of the University of Michigan recently commented that intellectuals were deserting labor. The reason, he says, is that the intellectual has lost his sympathy for unions, because in-day's rich and powerful labor organizations have lost sympathy for the underdog."

He concludes: "Labor leaders, by their own admission, are stuck hip deep in the mud. Their influence is declining and they don't know what to do about it... Business learned a lesson from the depression; it has developed sound, practical, and enlightened methods for dealing with employees. If labor fails to learn a similar lesson from prosperity, it may discover, as business did some 30 years ago, that those who don't change with the times must suffer the consequences."

FOREIGN WIVES RISK CREDIT STANDING
 American enlisted men who marry foreign wives may have increasing difficulty in obtaining credit for household furnishings. The reason is that an Army survey shows that 70 per cent of such marriages end in divorces—and there's nothing like a divorce to sour a householding furnishings installment account.

Must Be First And Fast To Bolster Peace: Kennedy

Krishna Menon Professes Unconcern Over Criticism

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW
NEW DELHI, India (AP)—"I'm allergic to myself," he said, raising his massive eyebrows in a way that imparted a malevolent air to his glance.

But his tone was friendly as K. Krishna Menon added to a visitor that he prefers not to talk about himself. "I don't keep notes of what I have done."

Many people in India do keep notes on him because Krishna Menon is one of the nation's most powerful figures in his job as defense minister and delegate to the United Nations.

Some say that without the support of his friend and patron, Prime Minister Nehru, Krishna Menon would disappear immediately from the Indian scene because he has no political strength of his own. Others contend Krishna Menon is using the Defense Ministry to build a personal machine.

"They accuse me of having grand designs, but I don't," he says. "I just do things as they come up and need doing."

The things Krishna Menon does, and the way he does them, make devoted friends and equally devoted enemies both in India and at the United Nations. His aloof, often haughty manner in public irritates those who never see the cordiality he can use effectively in private.

Waves of newspaper attacks have beaten against Krishna Menon. One wave was generated last year when he did not condemn Chinese suppression of Tibet and then lagged on criticism of Chinese actions on the Indian border.

Whenever these attacks build up into parliamentary demands that Krishna Menon be removed from the Defense Ministry, Nehru gets angry.

A recurring question in New Delhi conversations is, "What does Nehru see in the man?"

One answer is that Krishna Menon is a hard worker. Never married and without any home life, he wears out assistants by long hours of work seven days a week.

More important is the personal relationship between Nehru and Krishna Menon. Nehru is basically a lonely intellectual. His English education and tastes tend to isolate him from other Cabinet ministers. Only Krishna Menon shares his background, his intellectual grasp of the world, even his essentially Marxist approach to many subjects.

Venkat Krishna Menon was born May 3, 1897, in a middle-class family in Kerala. At 27 he went to Britain, and stayed more than two decades, acquiring a brilliant record as a scholar and book editor and qualifying as a lawyer. He also got an embittering taste of poverty and of racial discrimination. He became active in the British Labor party.

In London Krishna Menon became the spokesman for Indian independence at the heart of the empire. In this important role he became a close collaborator of the home-front leader, Nehru.

After Indian independence in 1947, Krishna Menon stayed on in London as his country's ambassador.

The U.N. made his famous. His interminable speeches on the Kashmir dispute between India and Pakistan brought worldwide notice. More important, they made him a hero at home as the diplomatic soldier fighting for India against hostile world opinion.

Menon professes not to be concerned about criticism.

"They just don't know," he said, dismissing the subject. But he didn't bother to explain what people don't know about him.

VOA To Play Up President's Talk

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Voice of America is geared to give a smash play to President Eisenhower's United Nations speech but only routine treatment to that of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Officials of the U.S. government radio service said they plan to beam around the world the entire text of Eisenhower's Thursday speech to the U.N. General Assembly.

The Eisenhower address is to be carried live except where the listening audience is not at a peak time. For those areas, the speech is to be taped and broadcast at leisure when the audience is expected to be at a maximum.

Khrushchev, who addresses the United Nations Friday, will be given mention in the regular Voice of America newscasts according to the news merits of his speech, authorities said.

This news-as-merited policy, but no extra play, for Khrushchev has been followed by the Voice since his arrival Monday. His appearance on many of the U.S. propaganda radio newscasts. But it was only one of a number of items, and it noted the chilly reception for the Soviet premier as well as his pleas for peace and disarmament.

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy says the next president must act first and fast to strengthen the cause of peace—and cannot merely wait for Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's next move.

Pledging he would follow such a course if elected, the democratic nominee Tuesday night told a coast-to-coast television audience of the steps he would take "first and fast" to meet the Communist challenge.

In doing so, Kennedy rejected the call of his Republican rival, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, for a moratorium on talk of American weakness and for solid backing of President Eisenhower while Khrushchev is in the country for the United Nations General Assembly.

Speaking at a $100-a-plate Democratic rally where 1,300 diners cheered him again and again, Kennedy coupled criticism of the Eisenhower administration with his attack on the Soviets.

"Some people say it's wrong to say we could be stronger—that it's dangerous to say we could be more secure. But in times like these, I say it is wrong—and dangerous—for any American to keep silent about our future if he is not satisfied with what is being done to preserve that future," Kennedy said.

Starting today with a series of speeches in Tennessee, Kennedy will be on the road 19 days on a tour that will take him into 13 other states—from the East Coast to the Rocky Mountains.

In his nationwide TV address Kennedy said there is very little time for America, as he put it, to get "on the move" in dealing with the Communist threat.

"The enemy is lean and hungry—and the United States is the only sentinel at the gate," the Massachusetts senator said.

He got perhaps his biggest round of applause when he said "This is no time to say we can out-talk or out-shout Khrushchev. I want to outdo him—to outproduce him—to prove to a watching world that we are the wave of the future—and that the Communist system is as old as the pharaohs."

The Democratic candidate, in saying the next president must act first and fast in dealing with the Soviets, set forth this as the program he has in mind:

On the military front: He would speedily send Congress a special message requesting the funds and authority necessary to give us a nuclear retaliatory power second to none, make it invulnerable to surprise attack, and add conventional forces so strong and so mobile and so modern that they can stamp out any brushfire war before it spreads."

Nonmilitary front: He would request America's more prosperous North Atlantic Treaty allies and possibly Japan and certain other countries to join with the United States in a program of aid to underdeveloped nations, with the purpose of averting Communist exploitation.

Domestic front: He would launch an "all-out attack on poverty in this prosperous country." Poverty in the midst of plenty, Kennedy suggested, lowers America's prestige in the free world.

Senator Barry Goldwater's leadership could build a segment of practical conservatives who are politically oriented and who do not devote themselves to crackpot diversions. By any definition of terms, the Nixon-Lodge ticket represents a more conservative outlook on the American trend than the Kennedy-Johnson ticket does, although by 1962, if the movement of gold from the United States continues, whoever is President will meet the same challenge and may be forced to make the same decisions. It used to be that the universities taught a subject called Political Economy which was an excellent term for our major problem. It is impossible to separate politics from economics. There are many who call themselves conservatives and shriek against socialism but who favor many inflationary measures which must lead to socialism.

New York City Seethes As Brawls Mark UN Opening

By HAL McCLURE
NEW YORK (AP)—Club swinging police and riotous demonstrators battled into the night following Tuesday's opening session of the United Nations General Assembly.

The brawls swirled around midtown streets as task forces of police and mounted patrolmen moved swiftly to curb the disorders.

Eggs and lighted firecrackers were hurled at police—who pushed and shoved and fought back with clubs.

At least three demonstrators were injured and four arrested.

The heavy police security was praised by most New Yorkers—but damned by some Communist bloc chiefs.

Stealing the spotlight Tuesday was the meeting in Harlem between Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro. The controversial leaders talked for 22 minutes in Castro's hotel, then emerged with their arms around each other's shoulders.

The large assembly of Communist bloc leaders—and the Castro entourage—gave police their biggest security headache. About 8,000 police have been assigned to protect them.

Helping make matters more trying for hard working police was the large melange of foreign-born residents in this city of eight million. Many came from East European countries and lands now under Communist rule.

The worst of the street brawls erupted near the U.N. headquarters and the Soviet headquarters for its U.N. mission.

In one three-hour melee near the U.N., mounted policemen charged about 50 Ukrainian and Hungarian pickets. Many were thrown to the ground.

Fists and nightsticks flew later when police and mounted patrolmen tangled with demonstrators near the Soviet building.

Three fights at the United Nations involved the Ukrainians and the police; a fourth involved the anti-Greek Albanians and anti-Albanian Greeks. A fifth was between anti-Castro and pro-Castro Cubans.

SALEM, Ohio (AP)—J. Douglas Stevens, 22, married Mabel M. Curry, 72, a widow, Tuesday.

"I'm sure we'll be quite happy," said Stevens, who works part time at a pastry shop and hopes to become a piano instructor.

Stevens moved in next door to Mrs. Curry last October and said he "got to know Mabel quite well during the winter months."

Child-Stealing Charged Actress

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A judge issued an arrest order Tuesday for actress Gay Poling, accused of child-stealing in a custody row with her ex-husband.

An attorney for film director Bruce Humberstone, 55, said Miss Poling, 33, took her daughter Robin, 8, to Greenwich, Conn., in violation of a custody order. She was charged with contempt.

Pro-Communists In Demonstration

TOKYO (AP)—Thousands of pro-Communist Korean residents in Japan staged rallies and demonstrations in various cities today to back North Korean demands for a one-year extension of the repatriation agreement with Japan. No disturbances were reported.

Under the agreement, which expires Nov. 12, nearly 40,000 Koreans have been repatriated to Communist North Korea.

The American flag should be hoisted briskly and lowered ceremoniously.

Police Walkout Lasted One Day

MILFORD, Del. (AP)—The Milford police force was back on the job today following a walkout that lasted less than 24 hours.

Police Chief Robert A. Downs and his 11-man force returned to work after agreeing to submit their dispute over working hours to arbitration.

State police were called in for emergency duty during the walkout.

Chief Downs and his men want their 48-hour work week cut to 40 hours. A City Council spokesman said the reduction would cost this city of 6,000 about $10,000 a year.

Downs denied he and his men resigned their jobs. He said they simply took off time due them.

GOLDEN HARVEST

Silhouetted against the early light of day, Dave Bayne steps into his combine to lead the way for the other machines.

As early dawn flushes the sky, the huge combines start warming up for their move into the wheatland.

From the Texas Panhandle to the Canadian border, and beyond, huge armies of men and combines are slashing through broad fields of ripe wheat, harvesting the golden grain.

A banner crop is expected. The yield will be a whopping 1,347,468,000 bushels, according to latest government estimates. Of this, some 625 million will be used for domestic consumption, another 500 million will be exported, and the surplus, some 222 million, will be added to the 1,283,000,000 bushels now cramming bins, warehouses, elevators, and even old Liberty ships.

Pictured here is a big wheat harvesting operation, on the 20,000 acres worked by Glen Bayne and C. G. Vollmer in Washington state's Horse Heaven, a vast golden plateau that stretches from the Yakima Valley to the Columbia River.

Washington is one of the nation's five top wheat producing states, and the Bayne-Vollmer operation is one of the biggest. It produces about 30 bushels per acre.

Some 90 per cent of Washington's wheat—a white variety as opposed to the Midwest's red—is exported to foreign markets. It is trucked to huge grain ships operating from navigable Columbia River and Puget Sound ports and carried to Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America.

The 20-year-old college student is son of Glen Bayne, who with C. G. Vollmer works the vast Horse Heaven acreage devoted to the growing of wheat and rye.

Over radiophone, Dave informs home ranch that crews are heading out to wheat fields.

He takes the wheel of the lead combine.

Resting for a moment, Edgar Whitehead, a combine operator, tells Dave an amusing story.

The huge combines appear like tanks moving into combat as they rumble across the wheat fields.

Two Attitudes On The Sharp Wall Street Sag

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst NEW YORK (AP)—The sharp drop in stock prices Monday is less interesting for what caused it than for what the break itself could do.

And many who don't own stocks still put high value on which way stock prices are tending as a sign of whether times will get better or worse.

This often affects their spending decisions, and thus the sales of merchants and the purveyors of services. It also affects the spending decisions and other planning decisions, and thus the sales of new orders, the hiring or laying off of workers, the expansion of plants and other business activities.

No Conservation Reserve Signup

There will be no signup this fall of additional land or contracts under the Soil Bank Conservation Reserve, J. Lynnman Edwards, Chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Pitt County Committee, said today in response to inquiries from farmers regarding the status of the program.

Edwards also said that program contracts which expire in 1960 or later are no longer eligible to be extended for an additional period of years.

"Under the Soil Bank Act enacted in May of 1956," Edwards explained, "the Secretary of Agriculture was authorized to enter into Conservation Reserve contracts with producers during the five-year period, 1956-60."

"The signup under the 1960 program was held last fall, so that farmers would know in advance of the cropping season whether their land would be accepted into the Conservation Reserve. Since the authorization to enter into new contracts has not been extended beyond 1960, there will be no signup period this fall," Edwards said.

"Farmers should understand, however, that the existing contracts for 1960 and previous years will remain in effect and payments will continue to be made under them for the period of the contracts and in accordance with contract terms. The annual Department of Agriculture appropriation bills provide money with which to meet obligations already on the books."

Pitt County has a total of seven Conservation Reserve contracts covering 198.5 acres with a total annual rental payment of $2,961.91.

Fire losses in the United States last year totaled 1.27 billion dollars, according to the International Assn. of Fire Chiefs.

British Customs Annoy Visitors

LONDON (AP)—A lot of visitors are annoyed by the way British customs men operate. This finding emerged from a questionnaire submitted by the British Travel and Holidays Association to 650,000 overseas visitors this year.

Plenty of tourists were tolerant about British cooking—even about British weather—but no one had a good word for customs men who made them wait in long, uncomfortable queues.

In general there seemed to be more likes than dislikes. There was praise for British hospitality and tributes for the British policeman.

American visitors complained most often about poor plumbing, lack of ice water, rarity of shower baths, bad restaurant service and the bewildering currency system.

Few people seemed to criticize the country's roads—to the surprise of British motorists who are forever bewailing them as antiquated traffic traps.

Sons' Names Tell How They Vote

When the Oswalds had a son four years ago they named him Dwight David after President Eisenhower.

They now have another son. His name is Richard Nixon Oswald.

Vintage Mystery Is Damaged By Cuteness

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP TV-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP)—The idea behind "The Datchet Diamonds," Tuesday night's NBC Hour of Great Mysteries, obviously was to take a vintage mystery novel, turn it into a television farce and let two skilled performers—Rex Harrison and Tammy Grimes—give it a whirl.

But somewhere between adapter Walter Kerr and director Gower Champion the plot became fatally afflicted with cuteness. Even the best efforts of the stars couldn't lighten what was basically a heavy-handed treatment.

The only thing that was feather-light was the plot: Ne'er-do-well Cyril Paxton acquires, in the usual luggage mixup, a satchel of stolen diamonds. As a consequence he became equally beset by the real thieves and Scotland Yard. But all this was incidental to burlesquing Victorian mores and manners while lacing the action with such low comedy touches as the sounds of plumbing and bashing the hero over the head with a bottle.

Television so far has not been kind to Rex Harrison, a superb light comedian. And I believe Tammy Grimes is a much more talented comedienne than viewers have had any reason to suspect to date.

It's too bad that serious music lovers of the nation aren't as lucky as the armchair adventurers. Every year these travel talk buffs have a weekly half-hour show handtailed to their television taste—on ABC and invariably sponsored by the same cereal manufacturer. Last year it was John Gunther's show. This year it's called "Expedition," and the narrator is Col. John Craig. But the title and the narrator are the only differences. Tuesday night's opening show was a documentary film about an American expedition to the antarctic with a measure of careful commentary by its leader, Navy Capt. Finn Ronne. It's a fine show for adults who enjoy this sort of thing—and particularly for school children at whom it is especially directed in its early evening time slot.

Filipino Favors Moving Of UN

HONG KONG (AP)—Leon Guerrero, Philippines ambassador to Britain, suggested today the United Nations should move its headquarters from the United States to a neutral Asian country.

Now All 4 Crosby Boys Found Las Vegas Girls

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Now that the Crosby brothers have made it a clean sweep—four marriages to four Las Vegas showgirls—it's time for some research on this phenomenon.

I managed to corral three of the wives for a panel discussion. It wasn't easy. They were busy with their own growing families, plus their husbands' opening at Ciro's Thursday night, plus a party to welcome the latest member of the sorority. She is statuesque Barbara Stuart, Flamingo, class of '60, who wed Gary this month.

Reading from from left to right, our panel consisted of: Mrs. Philip Crosby, the former Sandra Drummond, 22, Tropicana '58, a slender brunette.

Mrs. Dennis Crosby, the former Pat Sheehan, 28, Tropicana '57, a vivacious blonde.

Mrs. Lindsay Crosby, the former Barbara Fredrickson, 23, Desert Inn, '59, a quiet honey-blond.

First question: Why do Crosby boys go for Las Vegas girls? "Coincidence," replied Pat. "Things just happen. I met Dennis, and I introduced his twin Paul to Sandra, who was working in the same show."

"Actually," Sandra added, "it was accidental. I was only in Las Vegas for a year. None of us stayed there very long."

"Furthermore," Barbara remarked, "I met Lindsay in Los Angeles, where I was appearing with Tony Martin's act."

But the legend dies hard and will be sustained by jokes from Bob Hope. The girls laughed over the circumstances of Gary's succumbing. When he played Las Vegas recently, the chorines did a number called "We're Gunning for Gary," since he was the sole remaining bachelor. Among the girls aiming a pistol was his present bride.

The younger brothers now form a trio. What's to stop it from becoming a sextette? "Us," said Pat. "No interest."

Doctor Finds It All Unhealthy

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Remember when the drill sergeant yelled: "Get those shoulders back! Suck the stomach in?"

A professor of orthopedic surgery says that's unhealthy.

Dr. Paul Williams of Southwestern Medical College, Dallas, says shoulders forced back "put even more pressure on the lower spine, which is already curved inward. Constant pressure in that area will make the discs pinch the nerves."

He spoke at a meeting of the Kentucky State Medical Association at which no drill sergeants were present.

More Than 1,500 Are Accredited

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—More than 1,500 press, radio and TV representatives were accredited to the U.N. General Assembly by midday Tuesday.

Hernane Tavaris de Sa, U.N. undersecretary for public information called the massing of reporters here, expected total near 2,000, the biggest journalistic operation in U.N. history.

UN Building Is Closely Guarded

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The luxurious second floor of the U.N. building, gathering place for U.N. diplomats, was as tightly fenced Tuesday as a hogpen on a model Iowa farm.

Without a special pass no one could get into the corridors that lead to the General Assembly, to conference rooms, and to the delegates' lounge and bar. Squads of U.N. guards manned every approach.

Opposes Large ROK Army Cut

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Gen. Wilton B. Palmer, director of military assistance at the Pentagon, Tuesday expressed opposition to any sizable reduction in South Korea's 600,000-man army after a three-day inspection trip.

The new Korean government of Premier John M. Chang had planned to cut 100,000 men from the armed forces in 1961 as an economy measure.

Want Cotton

WASHINGTON (AP)—India wants 1,200,000 bales of surplus American cotton—worth $150 million—to help keep Indian textile mills spinning over the next four years.

The purchase, largest of its kind in history, would be paid for with Indian rupees.

India's Deputy Minister of Food A. M. Thomas arranged to present the long-term request today to Under Secretary of Agriculture True D. Morse and Assistant Secretary of State Edwin Martin.

Indian authorities say that as the result of a very bad cotton crop, India's normal harvest of five million bales for the 1959-60 season shrank to only 3.8 million bales.

Red Regime Will Rebuild Palaces

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—The Communist regime's next five-year plan calls for rebuilding many palaces of the former aristocracy.

The palaces, among 113 historic buildings to be rebuilt or reconstructed during the next five years, "are going to be adapted, if possible, to useful purposes," the Polish press agency reported today.

"A number of the buildings can be adapted as apartments, hospitals, social institutions, rest homes, hotels, schools, offices and even as warehouses of factories," the agency explained.

Connecticut takes its name from an Indian word meaning "beside the long tidal river."

ECC Ready For Opener; Phants Expecting Full House

Bucs Ready To Taper Off For Guilford Tilt

East Carolina footballers look forward to Saturday and their season-opener with Guilford with heads held high. They are confident of bringing home the "bacon" in the first game.

Not since 1939 has a Guilford football team posted a victory over East Carolina and the Quakers have been unable to score on a Boone-coached team, dating back to 1952.

All this tradition will be placed in the hands of a "green" contingent of Pirates Saturday in the 1960 opener for East Carolina College.

Coach Odell Welborn examined the Quakes in a losing effort against Elon last week and came back regarding several players in the Guilford lineup as dangerous.

When the wraps are lifted Saturday night, it will be one of the most "questionable" teams fielded by Boone in some time. Only time will tell the fate of the 1960 club but a packed house is scheduled to help usher in the season.

Last week, ECC spilled Newport News 21-6 in a practice contest. But little could be determined in measuring the strength of the East Carolina team. The first unit played very little. It was a game devised to give experience to the younger players.

East Carolina turned Glenn Hass loose last fall in scoring a 27-0 win at Guilford. Bass and back and is the backbone of the Pirate club. The Quakers have worked this week in hopes of finding a system to contain the Wilson speed-merchant.

Rough work was expected for today's practice but tomorrow the Bucs start tapering off with lighter drills.

Dykes Named To Direct Indians Again In 1961

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jimmy Dykes will manage the Cleveland Indians in 1961, and, he says, if General Manager Frank Lane gets him a long-ball hitter, "The outlook for next season is bright."

"I'm not one to go overboard," said the 63-year-old Dykes Tuesday night in praising the fourth-place Indians after signing a one-year contract to continue the managing job he took over on Aug. 3.

"I think if we lack anything at all, it's a long ball hitter," Dykes said. "Knowing Frank Lane, as I do, I think we'll have one at Tucson next spring."

Both Dykes and Lane made it clear that when Jimmy came here from Detroit and Joe Gordon left to take Dykes' job managing the Tigers, no commitment was made beyond the present season.

Whether Dykes got a raise in pay was not disclosed.

Although the Indians have lost 27 and won only 22 since Dykes took over, Lane said he feels Jimmy has done a most creditable job."

Casey Uncertain About '61 Season who says that Casey Stengel will retire from baseball at the end of the 1960 season knows more about it than Stengel himself.

So said the 70-year-old skipper of the Yankees today in the wake of New York's 2-1, 11-inning victory over the Washington Senators Tuesday night. The triumph moved them a step closer to the American League pennant.

Pirates Move Nearer World Series

By ED WILKS The World Series opens in Pittsburgh's Forbes Field two weeks from today—unless the Pirates plunge into the most complete stretch collapse in the National League since the tumble by Brooklyn's dying Dodgers of 1951.

After breaking a tie on Hal Smith's eighth-inning home run in the second game for a 7-1 and 3-2 doubleheader sweep at Philadelphia Tuesday night, the Bucs are within five victories of their first flag in 33 years.

With a 90-55 record and nine games to play, the Pirates can clinch it with five victories no matter what the hot-running St. Louis Cardinals do. The second-place Cards, who trail by six with 11 left, put away their 12th victory in 15 games with a 3-2, ninth-inning decision over Los Angeles.

Third-place Milwaukee tumbled eight games back as Cincinnati whipped the Braves 9-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Jay Hook. Any combination of Pirate victories and Milwaukee defeats totaling two eliminates the Braves, who play six of their remaining nine against the Bucs.

Sports Scope by Johnny Hudson Sports Editor

Sports in two parts. (1) Scanning the North State . . . Appalachian, playing under new coach Jim Duncan, opened the season last week with a starting line averaging 206 pounds. The Mountaineers triumphed over Emory and Henry 7-0 . . .

"When our offense catches up with our defense, we will have a good strong team," said head Western Carolina coach, Dan Robinson as he opened drills this week, looking ahead to the first conference game with Appalachian. Western Carolina ran roughshod over Catawba 35-0 and edged Carson-Newman 7-0.

"Our offense has been a bit sluggish and has not shown the polish and finesse we expected. Defense has been directly responsible for our victories," notes Robinson . . .

The schedule in the conference this week is a full one. Lenoir Rhyne remains outside the league, meeting Presbyterian on the road. Appalachian and Western Carolina have their regular early-season squabble, Catawba is at Newberry, Elon hosts Newport News, and East Carolina plays here against Guilford . . .

Two Freshmen Open For Indians

Two freshmen have been in the starting Catawba lineup this season. Although losing their first two games, the Indians have shown up stronger than expected thus far with their single-wing attack.

Veterans Jean Worthington, Ronnie Ball and Sam Morrow constitute the Indian backfield along with a new-comer, Fred Kyzer, a 200 pounder . . .

Albert C. Brown, Jr., Catawba graduate of '57, has been named to the post of Sports Publicity Director at Catawba, succeeding Peter Cooper, who has returned to teaching at the college . . .

Tar Heels Look For Opening Win

(2) Clearing the files . . . James Edward Cunningham has joined the athletic staff of Duke University as an assistant trainer. Cunningham was a five sport letterman in Churchland High School in Portsmouth . . .

The 29 points scored by N. C. State were the most scored since the final game of the 1957 season when Dick Christy's field goal, after time had run out, gave the Pack a 29-26 win over South Carolina . . .

If North Carolina defeats N. C. State in the Tar Heels' opening football game here Saturday, it will be the first certain raiser win for the Tar Heels in five years.

Moreover, three of those opening day triumphs were registered by the Wolfpack—in 1958 by 21-14, in 1957 by 7-0, and in 1956 by 26-6. Last season it was left to Clemson to spoil Carolina's opening day, 20-18. In 1955 Oklahoma did it, 13-6 . . .

Wake Forest will be trying to break a long losing spell Saturday when they meet Clemson. The Deacs haven't tasted victory over Frank Howard's Tigers since 1949. Last year, it was close with Clemson pulling it out, 33-31. The largest crowd ever to see a football game in Winston-Salem is already assured for Saturday's opener . . .

Top high school game to date: Last Friday night Enfield defeated Littleton 3-2. The scoring, a field goal and safety, sounds more like a baseball game.

Many Awaiting First Look At 1960 Phantoms

By JOHNNY HUDSON Reflector Sports Editor Number one objective of Rose High Coach Bud Phillips is to defeat Kinston here Friday night; but the mentor also hopes to lure a full stadium to see his undefeated Phantom play their first game at home.

An expected 19-0 victory over Ahoskie plus a hair-raising 21-7 shocker over Jacksonville last week has been the main subject of barber-shop talk this week, bringing about an intensified interest in the Phantoms 1960 troops.

Phillips has never seen College Stadium filled for a high school game but Friday could be the night and Rose High rooters have tabbed it as "fill College Stadium night."

With Greenville rolling along at full speed and Kinston off to one of its slowest starts, the odds lean all the way toward the Phants. But past performances can usually be disregarded when these two arch-rivals meet.

No doubt, Coach Bud Phillips will be guarding his pre-game speculation this week, remembering what happened in the 1959 finale.

"Our boys have come a long way this year and have progressed faster than we expected. We have a much stronger team than had been anticipated." Those were the words of Phillips on the eve of last year's final game with the Red Devils.

Kinston took a peek at the Phantom clippings but failed to be impressed, pulling off a 13-7 upset and giving a dismal ending to what had otherwise been a successful year for Greenville grid-ders.

The victory meant success for Kinston, giving them a 5-4-1 mark for the season. The G-Men closed the campaign with a 6-4 accomplishment.

Kinston will be seeking some salvation again. This time, they hope to end a two-game losing streak at the expense of the Phants and at the same time put a halt to all championship talk here.

A little color will be thrown into this meeting as Ed Emory, a frequent filler of space in this paper, will be prancing the sidelines from the Kinston side of the field. Emory has joined the Red Devil coaching ranks.

Early reports this week indicate that neither team will be in top shape for the scrap. But the injuries in each camp are few and will take little away from the game Friday night.

An anticipated large number of followers are expected from Kinston and Phillips may see the stadium filled to the brim. But this is only wish number two. His first one "Beat Kinston."

Phantoms Expecting Full House

Number one objective of Rose High Coach Bud Phillips is to defeat Kinston here Friday night; but the mentor also hopes to lure a full stadium to see his undefeated Phantom play their first game at home.

LAYNE JORGENSEN . . . Phant flanker

Phillips has never seen College Stadium filled for a high school game but Friday could be the night and Rose High rooters have tabbed it as "fill College Stadium night."

With Greenville rolling along at full speed and Kinston off to one of its slowest starts, the odds lean all the way toward the Phants. But past performances can usually be disregarded when these two arch-rivals meet.

No doubt, Coach Bud Phillips will be guarding his pre-game speculation this week, remembering what happened in the 1959 finale.

"Our boys have come a long way this year and have progressed faster than we expected. We have a much stronger team than had been anticipated." Those were the words of Phillips on the eve of last year's final game with the Red Devils.

Kinston took a peek at the Phantom clippings but failed to be impressed, pulling off a 13-7 upset and giving a dismal ending to what had otherwise been a successful year for Greenville grid-ders.

The victory meant success for Kinston, giving them a 5-4-1 mark for the season. The G-Men closed the campaign with a 6-4 accomplishment.

Kinston will be seeking some salvation again. This time, they hope to end a two-game losing streak at the expense of the Phants and at the same time put a halt to all championship talk here.

A little color will be thrown into this meeting as Ed Emory, a frequent filler of space in this paper, will be prancing the sidelines from the Kinston side of the field. Emory has joined the Red Devil coaching ranks.

Early reports this week indicate that neither team will be in top shape for the scrap. But the injuries in each camp are few and will take little away from the game Friday night.

An anticipated large number of followers are expected from Kinston and Phillips may see the stadium filled to the brim. But this is only wish number two. His first one "Beat Kinston."

Murtaugh: Man Who Knows Ball

By GIB STALEY
 PITTSBURGH (AP)—Just what kind of a fellow is Danny Murtaugh, the manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates who are closing in on their first National League pennant since 1927?

"He's a man who knows baseball—a man who knows how to handle men."—General Manager Joe Brown of the Pirates.

"He lets the ball players think for themselves — he never puts pressure on us." Third baseman Don Hoak of the Pirates.

"The instills confidence in the players. He's a sound baseball man."—Coach Bill Burwell of the Pirates.

That sums up opinion fellow baseball men have of Murtaugh, who will observe his 43rd birthday Oct. 8, the day the third game of the World Series is scheduled.

Ask Murtaugh his success formula and he replies:

"I'm sorry, I don't want to talk about myself."

When he took over as an "interim manager" in August 1957, Danny told one reporter: "Look, I'm not good copy. I know it. I just don't like to talk. All I want to do is to win some ball games."

Since then Murtaugh has loosened up a bit—and the Pirates have won a good many ball games. But Murtaugh still is reluctant to talk about himself.

Relaxing one day not long ago—after a Pirate victory—Murtaugh said: "I try to be patient and I don't worry about the future."

The Pirates were staggering in August '57 when Manager Bobby Bragan was fired and Murtaugh was moved up from his third base coaching job.

"I know Joe Brown figured on me for just the rest of the season," Murtaugh said. "I tried to do the best I could and it paid off."

Under Murtaugh the Bucs finished the '57 season in 7th but he got the team playing a shade better than .500 ball.

In 1958 the Bucs finished a surprising second and Murtaugh was named "Manager of the Year."

In 1959, handicapped by injuries, the Pirates finished fourth.

Murtaugh, married and father of two sons and a daughter, lives on the outskirts of Chester, Pa., near Philadelphia.

After graduating from high school there he got a job as a shipyard worker. An athlete as a youth, he decided to take a crack at baseball and got his chance as an infielder with Cambridge, Md., in the Eastern Shore League, in 1937.

He saw service with Rochester, N. Y., Columbus, Ohio, and Houston, Texas, before making the majors with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1941 where he led the National League in stolen bases with 18 although playing only 85 games.

Murtaugh stayed with the Phillies until 1943 when he entered the armed forces. When he got out of the Army in 1946 he played with Rochester, hit .322 and was purchased by the Boston Braves for their Milwaukee club in the American Association. In 1947 his sensational play at second base helped the Brewers to the pennant.

The Pirates picked him up in a trade and he was an important cog in the 1948 Buc team which finished fourth. He hit at a .290 pace and led the National League second basemen in putouts, assists and double plays.

Murtaugh played with the Pirates through the 1951 season and began his managerial career in 1952 at New Orleans. He brought the team home fifth in 1952 and 1953 and second in 1954.

In 1955 he managed Charleston, W. Va., but by mid-season the club was in last place and Murtaugh was out of a job.

Murtaugh was named a Pirate coach in 1956 by Bragan who played on the Phils at the same time as Danny.

STARTING FULLBACK for Farmville Friday night against Mt. Olive will be Bobby Avery. The line-buster scored once in the win over Lillington Friday night.

Practice Briefs

Rose High

Rose High continued to work at a quick pace yesterday, devoting much of the practice session to contact work.

After working on pass defense and pass protection, the club whipped through defensive and offensive maneuvers. The practice was capped with a lengthy scrimmage.

Tex Hooks, regular tackle, and Skip Wright, veteran end, have missed practice this week but Phillips reported that both were expected to be ready to go by Friday.

Halfback John Adams, who followed his mates from the sidelines last week, worked in light togs yesterday. Bothered by a knee injury, he is scheduled to see duty also Friday.

Ayden

Ayden regulars continued to look at the single-wing formation yesterday in preparing for undefeated Robersonville Friday night.

The second team formed the single-wing attack and took cracks at the starting defensive unit, meeting success at times. Tommy Dunn and William Harrington were standouts on offense.

The Tornadoes, reported to be in top physical condition, also worked on their punting game. William Edwards, starting quarterback, handled the kicking chores.

Farmville

Everybody was back in heavy gear in the Farmville camp last night as the Red Devils filled their night workout with plenty of head-knocking.

Coach Elbert Moyse stressed defense in the practice session with the main emphasis being directing toward stopping Mount Olive's "bread and butter" play, the option.

Fullback Bobby Avery and guard Bobby Eason were the defensive standouts in the scrimmage session. Jack Rollins joined Danny Dilda and Billy Pollard in clipping off a couple of long runs on offense.

The club also worked on their kicking game and punt returns. Alex Corbett and Ben Monk handled the kicking.

Hopes To Better World Speed Mark

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (AP)—A smiling, 31-year-old Californian who is trying his best to beat the British in a sport they have long dominated gives it another go today.

Mickey Thompson, an El Monte, Calif., drag strip operator, is on the western Utah salt flats with one aim—to better the world's auto speed mark of 394.1 miles per hour. It was set here in 1947 by the late John Cobb of England. Sir Malcolm Campbell held it before that.

Last week a British team headed by Sir Malcolm's son, Donald Campbell, came here to smash Cobb's record, but the car was wrecked in a 385 m.p.h. crash and Campbell was hospitalized with a skull fracture, concussion and other injuries.

To my many fine friends and lifelong acquaintances Also to my lovely cousins and other kinship in and around Pitt County that I saw and wrote letters to before the May Primary on behalf of my good friend John D. Larkins, Jr. for Governor. I wish to express to each of you, from my heart, my deep and humble appreciation, not because you voted for Ole John, but for the few minutes I was honored and privileged to be with you again for the first time in many years in most cases. But if you did vote for John—Thank You again. John lost. Well that's politics for you. The best man doesn't always win! For me—well I won. For I saw some mighty fine folks I have wanted to see for a long, long time. Due to my resources and time being limited I had to miss many more I would have loved to have seen. I hope to see all of you next time or sooner. Thanks again from an old Pitt County boy who is always proud to say so at anytime, anywhere.

Spiders Want Open Date Prior To VMI Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Richmond's depth - shy Spiders have an open date this weekend, and that fact is perfectly agreeable to Coach Ed Merrick.

Not only does Merrick figure his hard-pressed first-liners can use a week of rest before their Oct. 1 date with defending Southern Conference football champion Virginia Military Institute, but the Spider coach also hopes he'll have time to correct some deficiencies he's noted. He says this week he'll concentrate on individual blocking, tackling and downfield blocking and will let the Spiders taper off next week.

After hearing scouts warn of Buffalo's passing display last Saturday against Army, VMI's Keydets went through a tough session on pass defense in getting ready for their invasion of Buffalo Saturday night. The Keydets also worked on their own passing, stressing giving the quarterbacks better protection.

Two conference games are on this weekend's schedule. Virginia Tech meeting West Virginia in Richmond's Tobacco Festival game Saturday afternoon and George Washington going to The Citadel Saturday night.

GW's Colonials went through a one-hour scrimmage Tuesday against the freshmen. Coach Bill Elias said "I'm expecting most of my first-stringers to play 50 or 60 minutes of football Saturday night, and I'm going to have them in condition to do it."

Seven regulars were restricted to light work because of injuries as The Citadel went through a rough two-hour scrimmage. Coach Eddie Teague said he hoped "a few of them will be ready to go by Saturday, but I'd sure feel a lot better about the same if we had a few more players."

Davidson went through a two-hour offensive drill getting ready for Saturday night's clash with Wofford.

Furman went through a long workout, with the emphasis on defense. The Hurricane would do things up with a 45-minute scrimmage to get ready for Saturday's clash with Tampa.

Tar Heels Picked To Edge State; Deacs Over Clemson

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
 Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Traditionally this is the first day of fall. But the fall you get on the calendar is nothing like the fall you can get trying to pick football winners.

(Last week's figures: 28 winners, 7 losers, .800.)

Mississippi over Kentucky: The Kentuckians have nothing to compare with the Jake Gibbs to Johnny Brewer battery.

Syracuse over Boston University: Last year, en route to their national championship Syracuse won this game 46-0. It could be as much this time.

Washington over Idaho: Little more than a workout for the Washington Rose Bowl kings.

Alabama over Tulane: Tulane last week defeated California. Now that Alabama has defeated Georgia, it must be considered a Southeast Conference title threat.

Michigan State over Pittsburgh: This one is on TV and it should be worth seeing. The Spartans' crop of sophomores reputed to be the best in the Big Ten.

Elsewhere: Kansas over Kansas State; Purdue over UCLA; Wake Forest over Clemson; Iowa over Oregon State; Nebraska over Minnesota; Oklahoma over North-western; Texas over Maryland; Georgia Tech over Rice; Columbia over Brown.

Friday night

Washington State over Denver, Iowa State over Detroit, Mississippi Southern over Hardin-Simmons, San Jose over Brigham Young.

Saturday

East: Army over Boston College, Cornell over Colgate, Dartmouth over New Hampshire, Harvard over Holy Cross, Lehigh over Delaware, Navy over Villanova, Pennsylvania over Lafayette, Rutgers over Princeton, Yale over Connecticut, VMI over Wake Forest.

South: Auburn over Tennessee, Florida over Florida State, the Citadel over George Washington, North Carolina over North Carolina State, South Carolina over Duke, Georgia over Vanderbilt, Virginia Tech over West Virginia, Mississippi State over Houston, William & Mary over Virginia, Wofford over Davidson.

MIDWEST: Cincinnati over Dayton, Michigan over Oregon, Missouri over Oklahoma State, Notre Dame over California, Wichita over Xavier.

SOUTHWEST: Arkansas over Tulsa, Baylor over Colorado, North Texas State over Texas Western, Texas A & M over Texas Tech, Arizona State over West Texas.

FAR WEST: Air Force over Colorado State University, Arizona over Utah, College of Pacific over Marquette, Southern California over TCU, Wisconsin over Stanford, Wyoming over New Mexico.

Gabriel, Tar Heels Clash On Saturday

Not since 1954 has North Carolina won its opening football game, and North Carolina State hopes to continue that record in an Atlantic Coast Conference curtain raiser Saturday.

The two teams meet in Chapel Hill, and N.C. State will bring a 1-0 record into battle. N.C. State has been a special problem for Tar Heel openers, beating their state rival in 1956, '57 and '58 inaugurations.

Only Tuesday, Jim Hickey, starting his second year as North Carolina's coach, said he had no ideas for stopping Roman Gabriel, a 218-pounder, is N.C. State's quarterback passing whiz. "The thing that worries me about Gabriel," Hickey told his weekly news luncheon, "is that he throws the ball so hard. It's hard to cover him."

And in Raleigh, Coach Earle Edwards sent the N.C. State squad through a lively workout. Just to add to Hickey's fears, the team brushed up on its pass patterns among other things. Gabriel's passes hit 13 of 20 times for 122 yards in last Saturday's win over Virginia Tech.

Maryland, the only other ACC team to see action last week, romping West Virginia, entertains non-conference Texas Saturday. Coach Tom Nugent, beginning his second season with the Terps, says if his sophomore loaded squad beats Texas "We're ahead of schedule."

Virginia, which opens its season with William and Mary of the Southern Conference this Saturday, divided its time between offense and defense. A pair of sophomores, Dennis Andrews and Andy Moran, were installed in the main defensive front wall.

Coach Frank Howard, whose Clemson football team is ranked ninth nationally, isn't too happy. He warned his squad, "Too many of you still don't know your signals and we have to drive you through every practice." Howard added, if things don't improve, it could be a pretty long afternoon at Wake Forest in Saturday's opener.

Meanwhile, at Wake Forest, the Demon Deacons concentrated on the running game. Wake, looking to its biggest year in the ACC, on his own team, however, Giese was not quite so communicative. "Let's just say we'll be ready . . . we hope," he explained.

And at Duke, Coach Bill Murray, sent his squad through a brief but varied workout. He said the team concentrated on all phases of the game.

Brewers use charcoal to control the flavor of their beer.

Got Your Ticket Yet?

Some good tickets for Saturday's college opener between East Carolina and Guilford are still available, Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, ECC Athletic Director, announced this morning.

The ticket office at the college gymnasium will remain open for the remainder of this week, including Saturday.

Game time for the lid-lifter Saturday night is 8:00.

Attorney Joseph Welch In Hospital

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP)—Joseph N. Welch, counsel for the Army in the 1954 Army-McCarthy hearings, is in a hospital with a heart condition but a family spokesman says he is "getting along nicely."
 A spokesman for his law firm, Hale & Dorr of Boston, said Welch suffered a serious heart attack last Friday. He will be 70 Oct. 22.
 Welch was admitted to Cape Cod Hospital at Hyannis about 10 days ago suffering from what was described as "coronary insufficiency."
 Since the 1954 hearings, Welch has played a role in a movie—that of the judge in "Anatomy of a Murder"—and has made a number of television appearances, introducing mystery shows and lecturing on the United States Constitution.

A Stirring Western Suspense Novel
The Lean Rider by CLIFF FARRELL

CHAPTER 35
Lisa Randolph understood what was happening in the gap. The first of Kemp Travis' herds had found themselves confronted by a barrier of fire. The explosions had added to the terror. The cattle had turned tail and the stampede had swept back through the gap upon the second herd. Some six thousand animals were jammed in the pass, struggling to escape by the way they had entered.

Lisa and Hester Barbee heard the faint, jashing sound of gunfire. This went on for a time. Silence came, except for the continuing low mutter of turmoil in the gap. First light of the rising sun touched the peaks.

Presently Hester spoke in a thin voice. "Here they come! At least they're both still alive!"

A horse bearing two riders came out of the gray dawn. Abel Barbee and Paul Drexel were unhurt.

"They sighted us on the cliff and smoked us up," Paul explained. "But they only wasted powder."

Lisa and Abel stood looking at each other. Abel said to her, "It's right nice to be back. Mighty nice."

He gazed toward the gorge. "Travis is losin' a lot in the pile-up," he said. "It's mighty bad. He'll never get the rest of the cattle into that gap again. He'll have to take 'em east through the mountains into the sagebrush country. That's days longer, an' hard goin'. I doubt if he'll stampede us any more. I figure he's got his work cut out, gettin' even three thousand head to Reno before delivery date."

They returned to where their own herd had been bedded. Residents of Walkerville were on the scene, examining the site of the explosion and standing around the blanket-covered body of Red Leffer. Two men from the town agreed to take charge of the body.

"Kemp Travis will see that he's buried decently, or should," Abel told them. "He worked for Travis. You'll find Travis' herds in the basin there beyond the gorge, and he'll likely be with them."

They began rounding up their own cattle, which were scattered over a hundred square miles of territory. That task required three days of hard riding, for the run had been long-sustained, and many of the Longhorns had fled into the breaks along the base of the mountains.

They tallied the cattle on the morning of the fourth day. Abel sat shifting pebbles from one hand to another to mark each hundred head of animals as they were driven in a straggling column past him.

Lisa sat on her horse near him. She had a needle and thread, and placed a temporary white stitch in the cuff of her blouse for each hundred.

Abel counted his pebbles as the last of the drag plodded past. "I make it twenty-nine hundred an' forty," he said.

"Forty-one," Lisa said, totaling her stitches. "But you do real well at counting. Where did you learn?"

"Not with a needle an' thread at least," he said. "It's forty even, an' if I'm wrong, you've got the fanciest new dress you can buy in Reno as a present."

Perry Diehl stared incredulously from one face to another. His eyes rested blankly on Lisa. He did not recognize her.

Abel spoke. "She's a redhead. Ed Plute who's been taggin' along with us."

"Is it really you, Miss Randolph?"

"I think so," Lisa said. "I am not really sure."

The next morning she sat watching while the herd was tallied and delivered to Diehl and his riders. After the count was ended and the cattle were turned out to fatten for a time on grass, Abel rode up and dismounted.

"Go pick out that dress," he said. "Diehl & Diehl are payin' off on twenty-nine hundred an' forty-one delivered."

He added, "Make it a wedding dress."

She sat looking at him, smiling, and within her was a soaring happiness. "If that's a proposal, she said, "it will have to be stated more plainly."

"Will you marry me?" he began. "Yes!" she exclaimed, and kissed him. "But the wedding will come later. When we're in our green valley. This will be a party dress. Something gay. Something in which to celebrate, now that it's all over."

She studied him and felt that his lightness was a mask. There was something that he and the other men were keeping from her.

"It is all over, isn't it?" she demanded.

He did not seem to hear that question.

Perry Diehl joined them. "I've engaged rooms for all of you at the Comstock House. And tonight you're to be my guests at supper. There'll be champagne. And more champagne."

At the Comstock House, Lisa and Hester arrayed themselves in the best of what finery they possessed and set out to amplify their wardrobes.

The herd had been delivered eight days ahead of contract date, earning a bonus of two dollars a head. Diehl & Diehl had paid in gold, the bulk of which was in a bank strong box for safekeeping. Sixty-four thousand, seven hundred dollars. Lisa's share, after the crew and other expenses had been paid, would take care of all of Frank O'Hara's debts. There would be little or nothing left, but she believed she was entitled to buy a little finery, at least.

Reno was a boom town and had stores with displays for feminine taste that were proclaimed as the latest styles from the east. Lisa and Hester plunged into the joy of a shopping spree.

There were trying on bonnets in a milliner's shop when Lisa suddenly became motionless. Through the window she watched three men pass by on the sidewalk.

One was Kemp Travis. All three carried pistols in holsters beneath the skirts of their coats. Travis' companions each had two weapons.

One of the pair with Travis was thin and dark, with a hard face and very black eyes set deep beneath bony brows. He had a drooping black mustache. He was a stranger to Lisa.

The other was a powerfully-framed man with high, square shoulders. His features were heavy, almost bunched, and his skin was burned darker than the others. Small knots of muscles played on his jaws.

There was something about him that was important, and she kept gazing at him. Somewhere she had seen him in the past and that was where the importance came in. But she could not place her finger on the time or the place.

Hester was also gazing at the trio, and Lisa saw in her face the same gray and chilling apprehension that she knew must be mirrored in her own expression.

Plan Offering Of Financial Backing

WASHINGTON (AP)—A plan to offer broader international financing to private firms in underdeveloped countries will be considered here next week at a meeting of free world finance ministers.

The fiscal leaders, it was learned today, will discuss a proposal to permit the International Finance Corp. to invest in common stock and other capital securities of private businesses in Africa, Asia, Australia, Latin America, the Middle East and a few areas in Europe.

The IFC, which is affiliated with the World Bank, currently is prohibited from making such investments.

With an investment fund of about 100 million dollars, IFC is supported by more than 50 nations but deals only with private enterprise. The aim of the new proposal is to give IFC greater flexibility in its financing ventures.

Final action on the proposal is expected to be deferred until the fall of 1961. That would give member countries a year in which to study the question. The plan would involve IFC's charter and, in the United States, would be subject to Senate approval.

This probably will be the only major proposal to be aired at the annual meetings of the IFC, International Monetary Fund and will attract financial leaders from more than 50 countries.

United States officials favor the IFC plan. A Treasury aide said: "A small firm can only handle so much debt. There often comes a time when it must obtain equity financing through sales of capital stock if it is going to expand. As things stand, it can't make much sales to IFC."

IFC usually invests its money for 10 or 12 years at 6 or 7 per cent interest. It often is given the right to share in a company's profits and is given options to buy common stock. Since it cannot own common shares, IFC is able to profit from options only by selling them to private investors.

Most investments are made in association with private investors. For each $1 that IFC invests, more than $3 of private funds usually are invested.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Wednesday extended greetings to members of the Jewish faith on the opening of the period of High Holy Days including Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur.

The President's message: "During the season of the Jewish High Holy Days it is always a pleasure to extend greetings to my fellow citizens of the Jewish faith."

"I know this is a time of deep meaning for them. In the honored tradition of their ancient faith they are led to special acts of contrition, thanksgiving and praise. Sustained by the creative and moral power of their fathers' God they enter their new year with confidence."

"This is my last opportunity to extend greetings on this occasion but as a private citizen I shall continue to remember these Holy Days each year with warmth and respect."

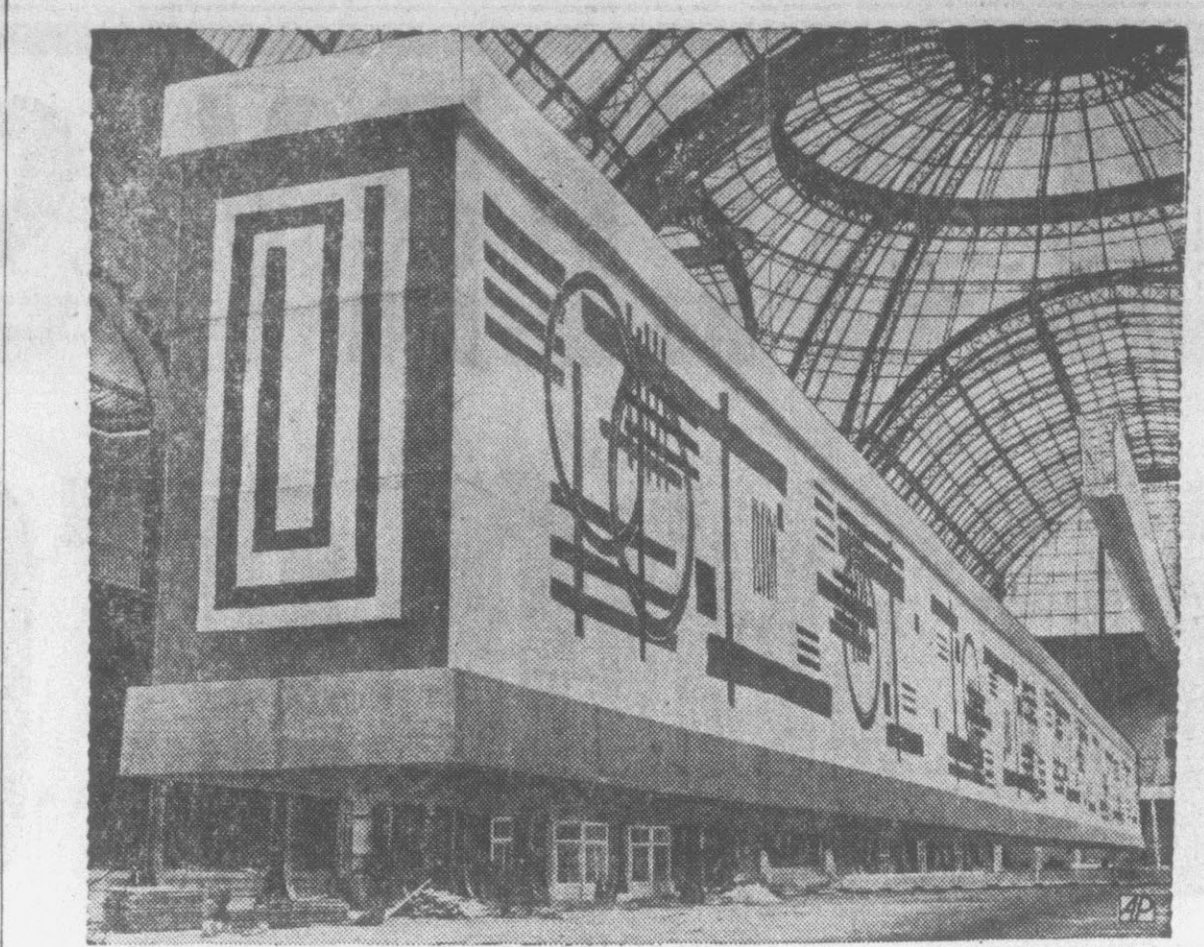

The High Holy Days start tonight with Rosh Hashana and end Oct. 1 with Yom Kippur.

CIRCULATION GAIN
NEW YORK (AP)—Roman Catholic newspaper and magazine circulation in the United States reached a new high in 1959 of 25,932,641—a gain of more than 1 1/2 million over the previous year's total.

The clock hands reach 3 p.m., while the fair damsel of the household is juggling pans like mad on the hot cookstove. The telephone rings.

"Oh, hello there," says a bright feminine voice. "I know this is just going to be awful for you. I'm so terribly sorry to be so late letting you know, but the doctor has just left and little Lespedeza has the mumps and I just don't see how we can come. I hope you haven't gone to a lot of trouble."

At 4:30 there is another jangle. "You'll never guess what has just happened," the next lady begins. "Honestly, we never had the slightest notion of this—but Aunt Martense has just arrived from Kalamazoo to spend a night with us before flying to Europe. She's my husband's favorite aunt, you know, and I guess we'll just have to stay home with her. I'm so

Obscene Mail Materials Discussed By Postmaster

BETHEL—F. Leland Andrews Jr., member of the Bethel Rotary Club and local postmaster, presented a program on the problem of obscene and pornographic materials which are distributed through the U.S. mail, at Bethel Rotary Club meeting this week.

Andrews presented a paper which was prepared by Honorable Arthur E. Summerfield, postmaster general of the United States. The paper informed members of the racket that involves use of U.S. mails for the wholesale promotion and conduct of mail order business in obscene and pornographic materials.

It was pointed out that this menace is being aimed at America's children. Estimate is that sale of these materials through the mails is running at more than 500 million dollars a year. The paper said that racketeers buy prepared mailing lists of children's names, sometimes going to the extent of gathering up high school year books, from which they take names and match them up with addresses in city telephone books.

Last year, 14,000 complaints were investigated, Andrews said, and nearly two-thirds of the complaints were from parents who objected to the receipt of lewd material by their adolescent children. Arrests for last year were 45 percent above the previous year, the paper said. Those receiving such mail are urged to take it to their postmaster so that action may be taken to stop this menace to children, Andrews said.

President Xury Manning presided at the meeting. C.W. Everett ave the invocation. House manager D.O. Speir was instructed to repair the Rotary Building which was damaged when a tree fell during hurricane Donna. Guests during the meeting were Randolph Eagles of the Tarboro Club and Cotton Kimberley of Gloucester, Va.

With All The Plans, We Have Leftovers

By FRANCIS STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—For weeks you've been planning the party. The three couples you enjoy the most said they'd be delighted to come for dinner and a spate of gabbing afterward.

The day before the long-awaited gathering, your good wife trudges in $28.60 worth of vittles and whatnot.

She's pretty nervous about it all, because she wants to serve what she deems her best dishes. But she has to reckon with the fact that one of the tre guests can't eat certain things, and a second has additional taboos.

It all gets a little more complicated because each of the guests prefer a different type of cocktail before dinner.

This requires another outlay of considerable proportions—with the expectation that a lot of leftover stuff will sit on the shelf for many a moon afterward.

Finally, the good hostess gets all the details worked out. Then she sets to work. She scrubs and cleans the house like it was spring. She polishes the silver. She borrows glassware from the neighbor. She sets her hair. She cooks.

The guests are due at 5 p.m., though, of course, nobody is expected to show up until 6 or 6:30. Why this should be apparently defies explanation.

The clock hands reach 3 p.m., while the fair damsel of the household is juggling pans like mad on the hot cookstove. The telephone rings.

"Oh, hello there," says a bright feminine voice. "I know this is just going to be awful for you. I'm so terribly sorry to be so late letting you know, but the doctor has just left and little Lespedeza has the mumps and I just don't see how we can come. I hope you haven't gone to a lot of trouble."

At 4:30 there is another jangle. "You'll never guess what has just happened," the next lady begins. "Honestly, we never had the slightest notion of this—but Aunt Martense has just arrived from Kalamazoo to spend a night with us before flying to Europe. She's my husband's favorite aunt, you know, and I guess we'll just have to stay home with her. I'm so sorry about your party because we were so anxious to come. I hope you haven't gone to a lot of trouble."

Next call, 5 p.m. "I know you're just going to kill me for this but John called me from the office and said an important business matter has just come up and he's going to have to stay in town until all hours and he said for me to tell you how much he regretted this because he had been looking forward to the dinner but he just absolutely had to stay because his boss said he was the only man who could handle the deal. Honey, I wish I could come by myself but you know I can't drive and anyway John says he wishes I'd stay up and wait for him because he might want to fix him a little snack when he gets home."

What do you do when you get home to find pans and plates of food all over the place, the party off, and the wife in tears? Well, there isn't much known to man at this point of civilization. You soothe the wife as best you can with such lame remarks as "Just one of those things that happen. Couldn't be helped. You did your best. We'll try again another time."

After you've eaten that same leftover food for about nine days in a row, though, you won't be so sure you'll want to try it again.

President Sends Special Greeting

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Wednesday extended greetings to members of the Jewish faith on the opening of the period of High Holy Days including Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur.

The President's message: "During the season of the Jewish High Holy Days it is always a pleasure to extend greetings to my fellow citizens of the Jewish faith."

"I know this is a time of deep meaning for them. In the honored tradition of their ancient faith they are led to special acts of contrition, thanksgiving and praise. Sustained by the creative and moral power of their fathers' God they enter their new year with confidence."

"This is my last opportunity to extend greetings on this occasion but as a private citizen I shall continue to remember these Holy Days each year with warmth and respect."

The High Holy Days start tonight with Rosh Hashana and end Oct. 1 with Yom Kippur.

CIRCULATION GAIN
NEW YORK (AP)—Roman Catholic newspaper and magazine circulation in the United States reached a new high in 1959 of 25,932,641—a gain of more than 1 1/2 million over the previous year's total.

Villagers Plan Build Monument

ISHIKAWA, Japan (AP)—Japanese villagers are planning a permanent monument for 11 American airmen who perished in the nearby crash of an Air Force plane two weeks ago.

Citizens living in the foothills of 3,000-foot Mt. Sengoku, scene of the crash in which there were no survivors, hope to collect some $500 for the project, said Mitsuo Kamata, mayor of the town of Furudono.

"I tell you, Orville, it will never fly!"

But Orville was right—it flew—and today man is conquering space.

You, too, are conquering space . . . in a different way . . . when you use the advertising columns of this newspaper. For many years, a newspaper's circulation was what a publisher said it was. Advertisers like you had no way of knowing where or to whom their messages were going.

With the help of ABC's facts . . . and your merchandising experience . . . it is a relatively easy job to place your advertising program into an effective sales orbit.

ABC helps to safeguard your advertising dollars by auditing—actually verifying—our circulation. In auditing and through a published report, ABC provides a great many facts on our circulation . . . facts to help you know and understand our circulation audience . . . facts to help you use our advertising space more effectively.

Not all printed publications that solicit advertising are able to supply ABC facts. Some can't meet the exacting membership standards. Others feel advertisers should be satisfied with unverified claims.

We are members of ABC and would be pleased to show you a copy of our latest circulation report. It will quickly demonstrate how you, too, can conquer space.

The DAILY REFLECTOR

* This newspaper is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, an association of nearly 4,000 publishers, advertisers, and advertising agencies. Our circulation is audited regularly by experienced ABC circulation auditors. Our ABC report shows how much circulation we have, where it goes, how obtained, and other facts that tell you what you get for your advertising money when you use this newspaper.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rallied sharply in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.00 with the industrials up 1.60, the rails up 60 and the utilities up 30.

Key stocks throughout the list advanced from fractions to more than a point.

Stocks were gaining despite a continuation of crab business news and published forecasts that third quarter earnings would be around the level of the 1959 period which was depressed by the steel strike.

Analysts said that ability of the market to hold its ground Tuesday despite the sharp Monday break was encouraging. Short covering was also partly responsible, they said.

Steeles, autos, aircrafts, electronics, coppers, chemicals, rails, electrical equipments, airlines, tobacco, oils and drugs joined in the broad recovery move.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 6.40 to 594.60. Corporate bonds declined in dull trading.

U. S. government bonds were mixed in moderate dealings.

Greenville Mart Has $62.78 Day

Volumes and sales averages declined slightly yesterday on tobacco markets in Greenville, Farmville and Robersonville.

The lower averages were attributed at each market to slightly higher volumes of nondescript varieties. Grade-for-grade prices were reported steady.

Still the dominant grades on the floors were reported as high-quality smoking leaf grades. Practical tops ranged from $73 to $75 per 100 pounds.

Greenville's market sold a total of 1,183,390 pounds for a total receipts figure of $742,910 and a sales average of $62.78 per 100 pounds.

Farmville
Farmville's volume dropped from Monday to 516,008 pounds for an average sales price of $62.20 per 100 pounds. Grower receipts totaled $320,935.

Sales Supervisor Louis Williams reported steady prices with a "slightly heavier" volume of nondescript tobacco.

Robersonville
Growers in Robersonville received a total of $155,392 from the sale of 244,300 for a sales average of $63.61—the highest of the three are markets.

The Federal-State Market News Service in Wilson reported the following totals for yesterday's activity on the 17-market Eastern Belt:

Pounds — 10,718,744; receipts — $6,745,550; and sales average — $62.93.

Youths Charged In Ayden Theft

AYDEN—Two teen-agers have been charged with breaking and entering and larceny in connection with the theft of $270 from the Ayden Billiard Parlor Sunday evening.

The two were identified as Charles Jackson, 17, of 411 S. Blount St. Ayden and Jimmy Ray Braxton, 17, of Cotton Mill Hill, Greenville.

They were arrested shortly before noon yesterday by Ayden Police Sgt. J.L. Ross and Deputy Ralph Tyson. Officers said $1220.40 was recovered.

The two youths were in Ayden jail yesterday afternoon. They will receive a preliminary hearing in Ayden court Monday.

Ayden police received a report that the money was taken from the billiard parlor between 6 and 11 o'clock Sunday night.

Kenneth Mills, a partner in the business, told officers he placed the money in a cabinet around 6 o'clock. It was to be deposited in the bank the next day.

He returned around 11 to find it missing.

Officers said they found the bank book and other papers, taken with the money, partially burned.

Following the theft Sgt. Ross said the intruders apparently crawled through the blades of a three and a half foot exhaust fan to gain entrance to the building.

Church Women End Meetings Today

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH WOMEN . . . registering at the First Presbyterian Church yesterday for their 3-day meeting here.

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

Dr. Henry Edward Russell of Memphis, Tenn., last night told Women of the Church, Presbyterian Church, U.S., that the doctrine of the sovereignty of God sets the Presbyterian Church apart from other Protestant churches.

Dr. Russell said the Presbyterians hold many things in common with other Protestant churches, but the theory that God is sovereign is peculiar to the Presbyterian Church.

He identified the doctrine of predestination with the "Good God has a plan." Referring to the present nuclear situation the world, Dr. Russell said "God planned it all . . . and He is still the Master of Ceremonies."

The speaker concluded by mentioning the need for more Presbyterian ministers and churches in areas where there are none.

He addressed approximately 92 women who gathered from throughout the state to attend the opening session of the 48th annual meeting of the Women of the Church, Synod of North Carolina, Presbyterian Church in Memphis, Ed States. The sessions are being held in the First Presbyterian Church here.

Dr. Russell is a former moderator of the Synod of Alabama, and has traveled widely throughout the world. He is pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Memphis.

He was introduced by Joseph B. Brewer of Rocky Mount, moderator of the Synod of North Carolina.

Welcome was extended by Mrs. W. E. Roseveare of the host church, Rev. Richard R. Gammon, host pastor, gave the invocation.

Edith Murphy of Wilmington Presbytery, was named recipient of the Alice Johnson scholarship, which now represents a total investment of over $9,000. The goal for the fund is $10,000, according to Mrs. Adolf Otersen of Wilmington.

Harry Bridges Supports Neither

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Neither Vice President Richard M. Nixon nor Sen. John F. Kennedy will receive the support of Harry Bridges' powerful International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union.

"A vote for either is a vote against a positive program for peace and progress," the union's executive board said Tuesday.

The ILWU recommended, instead, that its members support "desirable congressional candidates."

Bond Issue . . .

ers some leeway in paying their assessed share of the street paving cost.

Blotax said payment of property owners share could be spread out over a period of one to two years. Then as the money is paid by the property owners it would be returned to the revolving fund for future paving.

However, the city manager pointed out that property owners will still be responsible for their share of the paving and curb and gutter cost when streets are improved in front of their property.

Assessments which are not paid in the prescribed time will become a lien against the property like taxes and interest will accumulate at 6 percent annually.

The revolving fund should make payment of the assessment easier for the property owner since the full amount won't have to be paid at once.

Mayor S. Eugene West has said he believes every street in Greenville can eventually be paved if the revolving fund is established.

A separate item on the ballot Tuesday will be $22,000 for new bridge facilities across Greene Mill Run on Elm St. This project is in conjunction with the four laning of Elm St. included in the street improvement item. However, under the law, bridge construction has to be voted on separately from street improvements.

However, these two items would almost have to stand or fall together, since the present wooden bridge on Elm St. would be completely inadequate for the planned street construction.

Kept From School By Dark Complexion

DUNN, N.C. (AP)—Parents of a 7-year-old girl held the child out of school today for a second day as the result of objections raised by a group of parents who claim the dark complexioned child is part Negro.

A group of some 15 or 20 persons milled about the Mary Stewart Elementary School Tuesday. However, Dunn District School Principal A. B. Johnson had advised parents of Edna Sue Hump to keep the little girl at home. Records showed that the attractive little girl attended a white school in Trenton last year. Her family recently moved here. The records, including her birth certificate, show the little girl is white.

Harnett County School Supt. G. T. Proffit, meanwhile, said, "The matter is being worked on — I think the problem will be settled in a few days."

Meanwhile, at least one school official expressed the opinion the incident resulted from feelings aroused over recently widely-publicized efforts of a group of Indian children to gain admission to the all-white Dunn High School.

In the Indian case, Nelson A. Taylor, Fayetteville lawyer, filed notice of appeal to the State Supreme Court for two Indian parents who were ordered to pay fines Monday when they were held in contempt of court. They were accused of permitting their children to stage sit-in demonstrations at the high school.

He also noted that premium books have been mailed and distributed to all of the previous exhibitors at the fair. Others can be secured from the office of the Pitt County Farm Agent, S. C. Winchester in the county office building on Johnston St.

The fair this year is offering $3,800 in cash premiums for exhibits and livestock, which is the third highest offered by any Fair in North Carolina, he noted.

All exhibits are limited to Pitt County.

The educational exhibits will be composed of Home Demonstration exhibits, 4-H Club exhibits, Vocational Agriculture exhibits and Home Economics club exhibits.
