UN Neutrals Embittered By Losing Clash With U.S.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Embittered by defeat of their attempt to produce a Soviet-United States summit meeting, Asian-African neutrals pushed a campaign today to build a peace bridge between the world's two greatest powers.

Both Eisenhower and Khrushchev had made clear they did not want to meet, but the Communists simply stood by and abstained from voting while the United States led the strategy to defeat the neutrals' bid.

An indication of the Asian-African bloc's new tactics came at the outset of today's Assembly session. Iraq, a member of the bloc, appealed to all nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America to advocate "positive neutrality" and establish an East-West bridge.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Hashim Jawad told the Assembly that in view of the increasing danger of war, all member states should rally to support of the United Nations. He added that "the two blocs have not reached the point of collision, and there still exists space separating them which could be occupied by other powers."

Among friends of the United States, concern was expressed about the impact of the failure of summit meeting. This idea Swedish diplomat said the United States may have won a battle in leading off the neutrals, "but it may have lost the war."

ever, diplomats felt that it would have been difficult for the President to refuse a U.N. request—especially if a large group of nations had voted for it.

Earlier, the Assembly also voted down an Australian amendment calling for a summit conference of the leaders of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France. The roll call was 45 against, 5 for, with 44 abstentions.

him in Moscow. The prince did not immediately accept. Khrushchev also pantomimed an orchestra conductor, leading the band to the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner."

Registration Books Soon Will Open

Registration of Pitt County voters for the Nov. 8 general election is scheduled to begin in each of the county's 25 precincts Oct. 15.

Registrars will be at the regular polling places between 9 a.m. and sunset Oct. 15 and the following two Saturdays, according to D. S. Spain, chairman of the Pitt Board of Elections.

Spain pointed out the polling places in Pitt will remain the same as for the May and June Democratic primaries. Following the three registration Saturdays, Nov. 5 will be Challenge Day, Spain reported.

He emphasized registration requirements. "Any citizen at least 21 years old who has been a resident of North Carolina for at least 12 months prior to Nov. 8, 1960, is eligible to register and vote," Spain said.

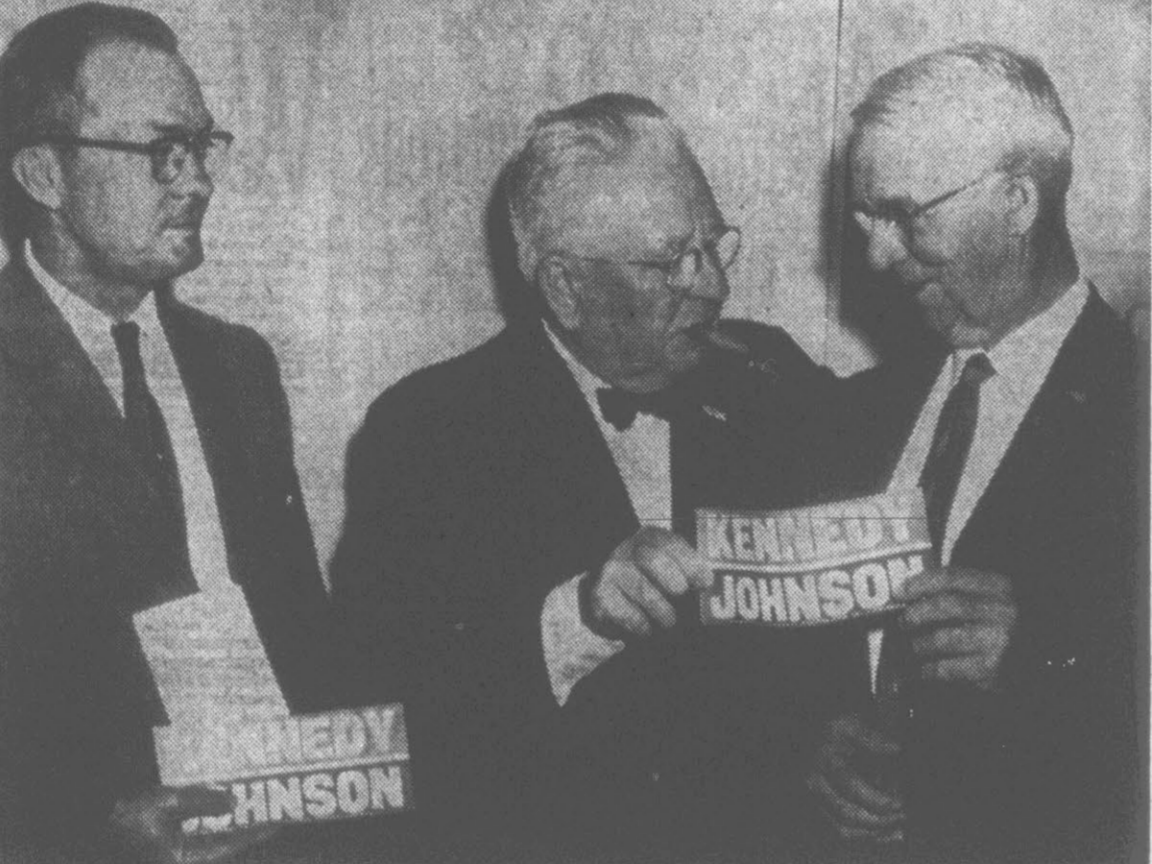

He pointed out the residence requirement before registration in any particular precinct is 30 days prior to the election date. He said voters who registered for the spring primaries and who have not moved their residence from the precinct in which they registered need no further registration.

Spain said registrations since 1954 are still valid if the residence has not been moved to another precinct. In 1954, Pitt County had a complete new registration of eligible voters.

Registration places for the county's 25 precincts are: Arthur Township — Arthur School; Ayden — Ayden City Hall; Belvoir — Belvoir School; Bethel — City Hall; Carolina — Stokes School; Chidco No. 1 — Old Barber Shop at Black Jack; Chidco No. 2 — Filling Station at McGowan's Crossroads; Chidco No. 3 — Yenters' Store; Falkland — City Hall; Fountain — City Hall; Farmville — City Hall.

Greenville No. 1 — Farmers Warehouse; No. 2 — Pitt County Courthouse; No. 3 — Third St. School; No. 4 — West End Fire Station; No. 5 — Keel's Warehouse; No. 6 — Fifth St. Fire Station; No. 7 — Elm St. Park Recreation Building; No. 8 — Rotary Club; Griffon — City Hall; Grimseland No. 1 — Grimseland City Hall; No. 2 — Simpson Community Building; Paeolus — Davenport's Store; Swift Creek — Old Timothy Church Building at Gardner's Crossroads; and Winterville — City Hall.

Precinct Chairmen Urged To Call Local Meetings

Pitt County's 22 Democratic precinct chairmen last night were urged to organize meetings in their precincts.

County Democratic Executive Committee chairman John G. Clark called on the party leaders to "go back home in your rural district or city district or wherever it is and call a meeting of 15 or 20 people."

"This is a little different campaign than we've had in North Carolina," the county chairman declared. "It's going to be a little tougher. Let's put everything we've got into this."

Dozens Of People Offer Adopt Gastonia Man's 4 Young Sons

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—A crippled Gastonia textile worker and his wife today quit answering the telephone after receiving dozens of calls from people who offered to adopt four boys they planned to give up. The wife, who said she had lost three children within 19 months, two in infancy and one stillborn, said she was no longer physically able to care for the boys.

The boys are Donald, 12; David, 10; Dennis, 8; and Tony, 7.

Turner and the second wife had said they wanted the children placed in a home together if possible. If that couldn't be arranged, Turner suggested two each be placed in different homes. "If that can't be done," he added, "we'll let good foster parents adopt them one at a time."

Robert Claude Turner, 29, a textile worker; and his 28-year-old wife told a newspaper reporter Wednesday they planned to offer their four boys into a good home. Turner said he faced an operation to correct a leg condition and his wife is under doctor's care for a nervous condition.

Solicitor (prosecutor) Bob Kirby of the Gaston County Domestic Relations and Juvenile Court said that he and other court officials were inclined to offer the children to their mother, Mrs. Kenneth Graham of nearby Belmont, who has said she wants them. The solicitor said that in any case he plans to halt attempts of the couple to offer the children for adoption.

Turner said he had been partially crippled since he was three. He said the leg had continued to worsen and he faces either surgery or permanent disability. He said the operation would require two weeks in the hospital and months of convalescence.

However, Solicitor Bob Kirby said Mrs. Turner was not the boys' real mother. He said Turner was divorced from their mother and she now lives in Belmont. The father was awarded custody in the divorce.

Kirby also said he had been investigating reports recently that Turner and his second wife were mistreating the boys, and that the children were not getting enough to eat. The solicitor said the parents had asked his help in placing the boys in a foster home, but he was considering returning them to their mother. Kirby said the real mother would like to have the children back.

Platoon-Sized Invasion Force Is Landed On Cuba After Brief Clash

HAVANA (AP)—A platoon-sized invasion force from the United States has landed in east Cuba and headed into the mountains after suffering three casualties in a brush with militiamen, the Armed Forces Ministry announced today.

A ministry communique said the landing was made by 27 men, including three Americans, "at dawn yesterday" on a bay midway between the towns of Baracoa and Moa, the site of a nationalized American mining company.

The area is in Oriente Province, the revolutionary stamping grounds of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The invaders landed at dawn, the communique said. It reported they carried with them a large American flag, three pack mules, one U. S. Army uniform, and various documents, all of which were seized by the militiamen.

Miss Eakes Weds Mr. Andrews

STOKES—The marriage of Miss Janet Marie Eakes and Arthur McGuire Andrews Jr. was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock at the Stokes Baptist Church. Rev. A. Hartwell Campbell officiated in the double ring ceremony, assisted by Rev. Charles Middleton.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie David Eakes of Stokes. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrews Sr. of Greenville.

The church was decorated with greenery, palm fronds, and spiral candelabra, holding cathedral candles. A large standard of white tulle was centered in the background greenery. In the windows were candles and magnolia leaves.

The couple knelt for the benediction on a white wrought iron prie-dieu with greenery entwined and covered in satin.

Mrs. Marvin Barnhill, organist, and David Nobles, soloist, presented the wedding music. Mr. Nobles sang "Whither Thou Goest," "O Perfect Love" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of white peau d'ange lace, fashioned with portrait of the bride, pointed bosque waist, and a satin bow and streamers accenting the back.

Her two-tiered veil of illusion fell from a figure eight of alencon lace, seeded pearls, and iridescents. She carried a white prayer book, topped with a white orchid and stephanotis.

Mrs. Jeff David Etheridge of Raleigh, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Her dress was of blue lace over taffeta, and she wore a matching headpiece. She carried a nosegay of bronze chrysanthemums and tawny gold daisies.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Floyd Dewey Warren of Greenville and Jeff David Etheridge of Raleigh, brothers-in-law of the bride. Ford McGowan of Greenville and Garland Warren of Robersonville, uncles of the bridegroom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Eakes chose a mauve lace dress and matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Andrews, wore a blue lace dress with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of cymbidium orchids. Mrs. A. K. McGowan of Greenville, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore navy blue lace and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Frances W. VanDyke was mistress of ceremonies. The bride attended East Carolina College and is employed by Sentinel Life Insurance Company. The bridegroom attended East Carolina College and is presently employed by Eastern Supply Company.

For a wedding trip to the mountains, the bride selected a blue wool dress with matching accessories, and she wore the orchid lifted from her wedding bouquet.

Cake Cutting—Following the Andrews-Eakes wedding rehearsal on Friday night, members of the wedding party, out-of-town guests, and close friends were entertained at a cake cutting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dewey Warren.

Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Allie David Eakes of Stokes, parents of the bride-elect; Mr. and Mrs. William Earl Eakes of Lumberton, brother of the bride-elect; and Mr. and Mrs. Warren of Greenville, brother-in-law and sister of the bride-elect.

The refreshment table was covered with a white imported cutlery cloth and was centered with a silver Revere bowl, holding bridal flowers, flanked by white burnished tapers in a double silver candelabra.

Punch was poured from a silver punch bowl by Mrs. Andrews, mother of the bridegroom-elect. The bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Eakes, cut the three-tiered wedding cake, after the bride and the bridegroom-elect cut the first slice. Mints and salted nuts were also served to the 40 present.

The bride-elect was presented an orchid corsage to complement her blue organza dress.

Decorations in the living room included an arrangement of eight purple orchids and Baker's fern in a silver bowl, with white tapers in silver candlesticks, on the mantel.

Luncheon—Honoring Miss Janet Eakes, bride-elect, at a luncheon on Friday was Mrs. Jeff Etheridge. The dining table was covered with a white linen cloth and featured candles and was centered with a floral arrangement of white gladioli and chrysanthemums.

The bride-elect was presented an orchid corsage upon arrival.

Places were set for the honoree, her mother, Mrs. Eakes, the bridegroom-elect's mother, Mrs. Andrews, Mesdames A. K. McGowan, Floyd Warren, Ford McGowan, Garland Warren and Miss Sandra Andrews.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN
For many the colorful coin of the daffodil is spent far too soon. Maybe their briefness is their true beauty, for that which is really beautiful never seems to linger long. If it did it would become commonplace.

Daffodils have many uses in our gardens, they are one of the best naturalizing subjects. In the shrub or flower bed they bring out the best features of their somewhat somber cousins.

Daffodils can be massed in a formal bed, or sited into small groups in ground covers like ivy, or planted in ribbons along a garden walk. No matter where and how you used them, you will be pleased, for their colorful warmth seems to take some of the chills out of the early spring air.

Daffodils have quite a few types to choose from. To get the best picture, use those that fit the need.

For early flowering use the daffodil species. They bloom in early to mid-spring. Plant them about four inches deep and three inches apart. These bulbs are at their best in rock gardens and other similar situations. They grow in height range of 10 to 15 inches.

Among the best for this type plantings are N. Triandrus, N. Jonquilla and N. Cyclamineus. These small daffodils (narcissus) with rush-like foliage and small flower will do a good job for you. They, along with the short cup daffodil, are the best for naturalizing.

In your border and beds use the yellow trumpets, King Alfred, Music Hall, Aerolite, Dawson City, White Trumpet, Beersheba, Roxana, Large Cup, E. H. Wisson, Fortune, Scarlet Leader, Harvest Moon, Times Square, Red Cross, Short Cup, Milk and Cream, Emerald Isle.

These daffodils do not lend themselves to naturalizing; put them where they look best.

Daffodils are useful as cut flowers. Try some of the following: White Trumpet, Beersheba, Mrs. E. H. Krelage, Yellow Trumpet, Dawson City, Golden Harvest, Large Cup, Red Cross, Triandrus, Pearly Queen.

Plant the large daffodils six to eight inches deep and six inches apart.

You will find that a word description of any flower is inadequate. So for the best aid in choosing them for your garden, get a color picture as found in many catalogues. Wayside Gardens of Mantor, Ohio, has such a catalogue.

The next best thing is to visit your local seed store or nurseryman and look over his color plates. Either of these should make the selection of your bulbs easier and with results that far outweigh haphazard selecting.

A congealed salad with coffee was served at the conclusion of play.

What The College Means To Us

There are many ways of evaluating what East Carolina College means to Greenville, but none of them would reflect a true picture of what that institution means to this community.

Certainly without the college here many people who have received college educations at ECC would not have been able to go to college. It's location in Greenville has enabled many Greenville and Pitt County boys and girls the opportunity for a college education that otherwise would have been beyond their economic reach.

As a cultural center for a broad section of Eastern North Carolina, East Carolina College has afforded Greenville unique position among the cities and towns in this section of the state. It offers an attraction to people moving into the area that none of the other communities can offer.

Most people of this community are keenly aware of what East Carolina College means to Greenville and Pitt County. Every now and then someone poses the question "what would Greenville be without its college?" The answer varies, but generally it is agreed that Greenville would be a much less progressive, much less attractive and a much poorer community in many ways without East Carolina College.

From an economic standpoint, East Carolina College is by far the largest single "business" in Greenville. It has an important economic impact either directly or indirectly on every business and every citizen who lives in this community.

In recent years, with its tremendous growth, the economic position of East Carolina College in this city has become increasingly impressive. Its enrollment of more than 4,500 students on campus generates considerably purchasing power among young people that otherwise would not be here. With its growth, payrolls, employment, and operating expenses of the college have moved upward sharply. So has the capital outlay program necessary to keep pace with this growth.

It was about a dozen years ago that the enrollment at East Carolina College was near the 1,200 mark. Now, according to statistics released by the college, there are some 1,250 automobiles registered by students on campus.

The annual payroll of the college now is approximately $3 million per year and its employee number 625. Total operating expenses of the college amount to more than $4 million annually.

It is also significant that in the years since 1947 total outlays for capital improvements at East Carolina College have amounted to approximately $11 million. During the next two years a capital improvements program calling for $7 million has been outlined.

These figures reflect only a minute portion of the total picture of what East Carolina College means to Greenville, but its a good idea now and then for local citizens to give serious consideration to what the college means in this community.

Emphasis On Courtesy Is To Be Commended

Maybe you've noticed the little name tags that are being worn these days by most people who work in retail stores and business firms of Greenville. They are just one outward sign of the Courtesy campaign being carried on in cooperation with the Greenville Merchants Association as the first phase of the program "You'll Get More In Greenville."

The Merchants Association and the business firms cooperating in the program are to be commended for deciding that emphasis on courtesy should be the first step in the undertaking. The old slogan "Courtesy is Contagious" applies in the life of a community just as it does in the relationship of one individual with another.

This program being carried on through the business firms of the community will have its impression throughout the community. Because of it, shoppers as well as clerks, people in all walks of life in Greenville will become more impressed by the pleasant atmosphere generated throughout the community through greater courtesy.

The local Merchants Association and the business firms cooperating in the program are to be commended for their efforts in this direction. Greenville has always been a pleasant community but as the effect of this renewed emphasis on courtesy permeates the community, it will become an even more pleasant place in which to live and make a living.

Russian Leaves World Guessing

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—It was just as if the aces were under the West, one the neutrals, and one the Communist bloc. But this was a wrecking expedition since, under Khrushchev's plan, any one of the three secretaries could veto what the other two wanted to do.

When he realized he had received a cool reception on this—even among the neutrals to whom he was bidding hardest—Khrushchev thought he was being rebuffed. He said they could be no disarmament unless the United Nations was revised to suit him.

"This didn't get anywhere either but it was a piece of outright bullying which could not escape even the most retarded among the neutrals."

Khrushchev demanded that Red China be admitted to the United Nations—a move the United States opposed—and prospects are that Red China will not be admitted.

It has become almost common practice in American journalism not to accept as a fact a reported ideological split between Khrushchev and Red China on the grounds that Khrushchev insists that war with the West is not inevitable while the Red Chinese communists insist it is.

It is possible this is part of a plan agreed to between Khrushchev and his Chinese allies for this purpose: to soften the West into thinking Khrushchev is a man with whom peaceful and satisfactory settlements can be worked out. If the West buys this idea, it may then be inclined to slacken its defenses and will to resist Red advances.

That would be a great and cheap victory for communism. But Khrushchev's performance at the United Nations, instead of demonstrating how reasonable he is to do business with, has been all to the contrary.

Opinions In Brief

"The question of how adequately to recognize scholastic excellence has been second only to the question of how to over come campus traffic jams. Rice Institute has resolved the latter by limiting auto parking to the football stadium area, half a mile from the classroom complex. And the former has been solved by giving the top 200 students 'special privilege' to park in classroom areas."—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

"You don't need initiative anymore. Everything is pre-planned, precooked, electronic or automatic. That's why outdoor barbecues are so popular. They give a man a chance to build a fire all by himself. With an electric fire starter, of course."—Sumter Daily Item.

"The old League of Nations finally collapsed under just the sort of attack now being made by the totalitarian bloc. Then the totalitarians were Japan, Germany and Italy. When they walked out of the League of Nations the organization was not strong enough to survive. The United States was not a member and the other Western nations were too weakened to keep it together. But the United Nations is not the League of Nations. It is far stronger."—Greensboro Daily News.

Touching All Four Bases

THIS IS A WORM? . . . Mike Windham, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Windham picked up a worm on the family's farm near Falkland the other day.

Only this little creature didn't turn out to be a worm. It stuck out its tongue at Mike. The youngster dropped the "worm" and . . . well in his words, "He stuck out his tongue and I stomped him."

Turns out the thing was a little copperhead snake.

FIRE PROTECTION. . . First thing the visitor to the Pitt County Agricultural Fair sees as he enters the gates is the Station-House Fire Truck.

The vehicle is not there for show alone, however. It also provides fire protection on the crowded grounds.

The fair grounds are not in the city limits. Thus the association is a member of Station-House fire protection group.

The Pitt Firemen's Association promoted the idea of placing the truck on display at the fair. It is manned each night by two men from the Station-House Fire Department and two men from other rural fire departments on a rotating basis. Other departments participating are: Wytheville, Greenville, Bethel, Ayden, Grimesland, Sikes.

There were two meetings scheduled for the supper hour in two private dining rooms. . . . Pit's Democratic precinct chairmen were meeting in one dining room. Who was in the other? A Gavin-Nixon group.

You have to be truly an old head to remember such things around these parts.

WRONG PRIMARY. . . Your Columnist happened to attend the Democratic meeting where Ivan Bissette, staunch party member in Grifton, had something to say about primaries. He pointed out that many voters had registered Republican in his town and later switched to Democrat so they could participate in the primaries. There were some 100 who did this, according to Bissette.

"That's what worries me," he declared. "There ought to be some law to keep these Republicans out of our Democratic primary."

The laughter could have been heard in the other meeting.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
Torches and Eye Droppers

The frankness and arrogance of the communists in announcing how they intend to despoil us, enslave us, and liquidate us is astounding. We listen to these threats and they appear so grotesque that no one pays much attention to them. The great mass of the population seems to be utterly oblivious of everything but their pleasures and interests. The office-holders seem interested in nothing but holding their jobs and being re-elected.

Communism is a conspiracy. It makes no claim to be anything else. Its adherents are going through the world applying torches to inflammable material wherever they encounter it. The free governments, the churches, the educational systems of the world are making a feeble protest against it all. The communists have torches, and we are trying to put out their fires with eye droppers.

Think of their passion. If five per cent of the avowed Christians of any one country threw themselves into the work of the kingdom with the passion manifested by a card-carrying communist in the spread of his monstrous doctrines, the whole rearmament against communism would take on a new aspect. If they ever overwhelm us, it will not be because they bomb us, but because their zeal has triumphed over our lethargy. If we are really seeking protection let us remember that our defense is in our own hearts or nowhere.

Quot

"So far as specifics go, Mr. Nixon offers little that the Democrats do not top. His proposals are most remarkable in that they amount to bipartisan acceptance of vastly greater Federal responsibility for a host of local problems."—Wall Street Journal.

Behind Nikita's Actions

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

When a man who has attained to Khrushchev's position in life acts the way he did in Paris and the way he is now acting in the United Nations, he is either suffering from some pathological misfortune or he is politically desperate. By the looks of him, he undoubtedly is of the Eastern European type that, when prosperous, develops diabetes and arteriosclerosis. His current wild temper must be new or Stalin would have had him decapitated. Stalin never accepted impudence from equals much less from subordinates. The compulsion to drink water constantly is characteristic of diabetics. Reports have it that Khrushchev is on a low salt diet such as is usually insisted upon by physicians treating patients who have cardiac difficulties.

The loss of temper on Saturday is beyond belief under the circumstances. Responsible men cannot afford to be so irresponsible and to risk their own country and its allies as Khrushchev does constantly. Up to a point, his buffoonery is an act but last Saturday, it was the responses of a man who had lost control—and lost it pathologically.

On the other hand, Khrushchev does have serious political troubles. Here we shall mention only two:

1. Khrushchev's relations with Mao.
2. The neutralist bloc.

1. Khrushchev's difficulties with Mao are essentially ideological, but to a Communist country the basis of thought and action is Marxism. The Chinese are orthodox Marxists. Soviet Russia is opportunistically Marxist. Red China insists that it is possible to establish Communism without going through various stages of socialism; Soviet Russia is now a socialist country in the perspective of a rising industrialization and those in power hope to keep it that way.

What Khrushchev calls co-existence is an effort to compete with the West economically and diplomatically without resort to war; Mao correctly believes that the Soviet world has reached as far as it can go by infiltration and corruption; that now war is required to finish the Revolution and to achieve the Marxist goal of a universal state. Shall the heart of the universal state be Moscow or Peking?

So far as Mao is concerned, it could be Peking; Khrushchev insists on the hegemony of the Kremlin over all socialist countries, even those which have no intention of becoming Communist. Khrushchev is concerned with intentions because he leaves in the inevitability of history a record, one of which is nationalism, internationalism, and capitalism belong to another era. He acts in the United Nations the way he does, because he regards opposition to his "scientific" point of view utter nonsense. Besides who are these small countries to challenge mighty Russia? And who is this Irishman to tell the great Khrushchev when he is to speak and when he is to shut up?

Mao Tze-tung can pour 100,000,000 persons into Siberia and Uzbekistan and what will Khrushchev do with them? Kill them? That could help to solve Mao's population problem. He would merely send another 100,000,000 into Siberia and Uzbekistan.

The neutralist bloc is a particularly difficult problem because it represents a third force which can grow into a real and effective power. It will most likely be led by Tito and have the powerful support of Nehru. The neutral bloc's major problem is to avoid being gobbled up by either Soviet Russia or Red China. If Mao Tze-tung decided on the conquest of any part of India or the whole of India, India would not stand the slightest chance unless India were protected by either Soviet Russia or the United States. Which protection will India ultimately be forced to choose?

Nehru apparently still believes that Khrushchev can influence Mao Tze-tung. This is an error, as every student of the China problem knows. Ultimately Nehru will be forced to seek protection from the United States and that day is not too far off. His neutral bloc allies are useful in the United Nations but should

Children Can Make Desserts To Sail Seas, Grow Flowers

COOKING'S FUN when small fry make gelatin desserts that sail the seas and grow into flowers. And it's even more fun when they finally eat them.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Invite your preschoolers into the kitchen and you can teach them more than cooking.
They'll learn enough about number work to stand them in good stead when they do start school. In the meantime it will help keep them happy while older brothers and sisters are off to classes.
So many interesting things to measure and count in cooking! Start with something simple such as mixing a package of fruit-flavored gelatin. For safety's sake Mother should add and stir in the 3 cups of boiling water necessary for dissolving the gelatin in a large package. Then Susie fills a pint glass measure with cold water, learns to read the two cup measuring mark, adds the water to the gelatin and does her stirring.
When Mother rolls out biscuit dough Susie will enjoy putting the biscuits "two at a time" in even rows in the pan. (The biscuits may get a trifle misshapen as she handles them but it will be in a good cause.) When the pan is filled, Susie can count how many are ready to go into the oven.
Cookies, cupcakes and sweet rolls are other baking-time goodies that preschoolers will have fun counting as the foods go in and come out of pans or are put on the table. There are many times a mother can give a child counting practice.
"Put three apricots and two prunes in each dessert dish!"
"Shell eight peanuts and eat four. Give me the other four!"
"How many peanuts will we need if we put one on each of these six frosted cupcakes?"
This "help" from youngsters won't save mothers any time, but it will give girls and boys comfortable familiarity with the counting process.

The young set will adore making sailboats and flower pots to admire and finally eat, and the peach slices and gum drops used in the making can be counted to young hearts' content. School-agers will probably be able to make these gelatin desserts all by themselves but preschoolers will need help.

SAILBOATS AND FLOWER POTS
Make up a large (6 ounces) package of fruit-flavored gelatin. Our into 4 sherbet glasses and 4 custard cups; chill.

To Make Sailboats: Place a peach slice on gelatin in each sherbet glass; fold a small triangle of aluminum foil in half over a toothpick to make mast and sail; insert in center of peach slice.

To Make Flower Pots: With thumb flatten a small gumdrop into a circle about 1/4 inch thick; with scissors notch edge of gumdrop circle to make flower petals; slide onto end of toothpick. Flatten another gumdrop sideways into a triangle; make two slits from base of triangle toward opposite point; fold out sides to make leaves; slide onto toothpick next to flower. Slightly flatten another gumdrop into a circle and slide onto toothpick for base; insert stemmed flower in gelatin in custard cup.

More Women At Work Now

"Symbol of the Sixties—More Women at Work" is the theme of National Business Women's Week. Each year time is set aside to pay tribute to women in business and professions and to the contribution they are making to the nation.

On posters which are being displayed this week, Nike, the Winged Victory of Samothrace, is used as a symbol of strength, progress, freedom and triumph.

"Business Woman," the national magazine of the organization, says "Women have achieved far more than our most advanced-thinking grandmothers ever dreamed. Millions of women are now at work in offices, schools, factories and on the farm. Millions are now learning new professions, exploring new fields, creating new ideas."

"In truth, women now number more than a third of the work force in our country. Young women choose from some 500 different career fields now instead of the dozen or so job areas of a decade ago. And young women can now expect to work outside the home approximately 25 years of their lives. Married women make up nearly three quarters of this legion. Older women, 40 years and over, whose children are grown, are re-training in either former or new fields and make up a large portion of the total of working women."

The organization and coordination of the year's program is done under the leadership of the following committee chairmen—with Gladys Stokes, program chairman, steering the work: Camille Clarke, Elizabeth Deal, Dr. Bessie McNeil, Mrs. Norton Stewart, and Mrs. Kemp Baldwin.

Attending local meetings, district meetings, mid-year council, and state and national conventions, all provide for the personal advancement of business and professional women.
One of the highlights of each year is the Spotlight on Women's Conference, sponsored jointly by the North Carolina Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club and the University of North Carolina.

Chicora Club Has Meeting

Mrs. Max Joyner and Mrs. J. J. Stauffer presented the program this week at the meeting of the Chicora Club, held at the home of Mrs. Stauffer.

Mrs. Joyner reviewed the scope of programs for the coming year, pointing out that southeast Asia is to be the focal point. Describing some of the background for southeast Asia, Mrs. Stauffer said that most of the people there fear China.

Mrs. Stauffer reviewed "The Ugly American" as groundwork for this year's club study. She pointed out that it is a controversial book because it deals with politics. The book, though fictitious, is an enlightening study of American foreign policy in southeast Asia, Mrs. Stauffer said.

Its stories indicate that America is losing ground, while Russia is gaining.

Mrs. Clarence Tugwell, president, called the business meeting to order following dessert. She complimented Mrs. John Taylor for her work on the program booklets and Mrs. Joyner and Mrs. J. C. Whitehurst, Jr. for their work on the programs.

Mrs. Roger Mann, social chairman, reported that the fashion show had been supported well by Chicora members. Mrs. Whitehurst distributed the new books with a preview of each.

Mrs. William Taft, Jr., new member, and M. S. Randolph Shifflet, guest, were welcomed.

Groom Taking Active Part In The Household

...G HUSBY HOME—This bright and modern bride keeps her marriage companionable by luring her bright, modern husband into the kitchen to help out. The heat and serve dinners on throw-away trays—obviously his idea—are ideal when guests are expected shortly after dinner.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Listen to this voice from the past, speaking to young married women of almost a century ago:
"Your husband will feel it his duty to provide you with all he can, by his industry, to make the house comfortable. In return, you must feel your duty is to do all you can to make yourself an agreeable companion, and by your faithful care of what he provides, and constant attention to his comfort, try your best to make his home so pleasant that he will not care to go elsewhere."

That's what New England's Mrs. Putnam had to say, in 1862, to "New Beginners in Housekeeping" in her "A Primary Cook Book."
A good many brides, in 1958, have gone Mrs. Putnam one better. They've interested their grooms in taking such an active part in the household that there's not much chance of the young men having time to go elsewhere!

It's no longer a matter of just the bride knocking herself out, as Mrs. Putnam says, "to make the house comfortable," and be "an agreeable companion." The young man at his side is also pitching in with a little domestic science while he spellsbinds her.

How did this happen? Sociologists and psychiatrists may attribute the new situation to a dozen causes. But many practical young people say it stems from the fact that today more young women work at outside jobs than ever before. Chances are that the money she earns helps to pay for his easy chair, and that part of her salary stretches the food budget.

In turn, men have discovered the vacuum cleaner and the electric mixer; and that there's nothing demeaning or undignified in running the former over the living-room rug or turning on the latter to mash the potatoes. They use the same electricity when they cut the lawn with a power mower or turn on the drill in a home workshop.

Gone are the days when a young husband merrily invited his boss or a bunch of the fellows home to dinner and did no more than mix the drinks. Now he'll probably shop for the dinner makings and may help out in the kitchen. Here's what happened when a young couple I know gave a Saturday-night party, with a midnight supper, for more than a dozen friends.

The afternoon of the party, the with Dutch-process cocoa and confecturers' sugar.

By five o'clock the apartment looked pretty enough for company, the hosts were dressed in their party best, and I wondered whether

'Becket' Draws 17 Curtain Calls

By WILLIAM GLOVER
Associated Press Drama Critic
NEW YORK (AP) — There's only one thing to do about this play "Becket." See it.
Starting Laurence Olivier and Anthony Quinn, the production which arrived Wednesday night at the St. James Theater contributes impressive grandeur to the Broadway season.

Through an amazing 17 curtain calls, spectators cheered its jolting impact.

From a scarlet page of history, French playwright Jean Anouilh (in translation by Lucienne Hill) takes a narrative of power politics and human conflict.

"Becket," played by Sir Laurence, is the frivolous man who in middle life was thrust into religious authority and has since been remembered as the martyred Saint Thomas of Canterbury.

Duelling with him in dramatic tug-of-war is the English King Henry II of Anthony Quinn.
Through episodic scenes set within a framework of soaring Gothic arches, Anouilh deftly lays bare the conflict between barbaric, unlettered majesty and the enlightened humanity of a free spirit.

Quinn's black-browed, complex portrayal is a superb counterpoint to the silvery smooth Olivier interpretation.
Along with them are a half hundred other performers, almost all of whom are precisely perfect under the direction of Peter Green-ville. Particularly notable are the French King Louis of Robert Eckles, Earl Montgomery's vernal Bishop of London, and Brian Crowe's troubled young monk.
Oliver Smith's sets are rich with a controlled splendor. For David Merrick, producing his fourth venture of the season, "Becket" is a notable accomplishment.

dinner-time was going to be skipped in anticipation of the midnight supper.
Not at all! The groom had brought back some frozen packages, aptly named convenience foods, in his market basket. All the food needed was heating and a supper of meat loaf with tomato sauce, mashed potatoes, and green peas was ready. The only other thing the host was required to do was to dispose of the aluminum plates and he and his bride were ready to welcome their guests!

bride glazed and decorated the fully-cooked ham the groom had bought. (He chose a boneless variety because he's still learning to carve.) Then she prepared, covered and refrigerated salad ingredients while he made a special dressing to be added later. She crushed a healthy-sized garlic clove into a quarter pound of butter and he sliced a loaf of French bread (but not all the way through) so she could slather the cuts. The bread was then covered with foil, ready to be heated, and relishes were refrigerated in their serving dishes.

I had contributed the dessert. This was an orange-custard flavored angelfood cake—made from a mix, I confess—covered with a combination of cream whipped

Nationalization Policy Dropped By Britain's Labor Party Conference

SCARBOROUGH, England (AP)—Britain's Labor party today cast aside its backing for nationalization of industry in favor of broad welfare state concepts.

The decision represented a surprising victory for Hugh Gaitskell, the party leader who suffered a setback Wednesday when the conference voted against the nuclear deterrent and Britain's continued participation in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The 1,261 delegates at the party's annual conference, voting the strength of the organizations they represented, took their decision this way:

1. By a vote of 4,153,000 to 2,310,000 they supported a statement of aims by the Executive Committee. This defined party goals as something broader than the old demand for full public ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange.
2. By 4,304,000 to 2,226,000 delegates approved a motion backing up the executive statement.

After Labor's election defeat by Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's conservatives a year ago, Gaitskell sought to have the party constitution rewritten to lessen the emphasis on nationalization of industry.

This produced an explosive party battle, and in the end Gaitskell was forced to give up his attempt to tinker with the constitution, drafted in 1918. But by today's conference decision he has achieved his point by a round-about route.

Gaitskell's victory represented a defeat for Frank Cousins, head of the big Transport and General Workers Union, who has fought the party leader on every major issue before the conference.

The victory also clearly strengthened his chance to retain his hold on the leadership of the movement.

Left-wing trade union delegates led the revolt Wednesday to override Gaitskell and put the party on record in favor of Britain's complete nuclear disarmament and neutrality in the cold war.

Grades Indicate Girls Smarter

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Girls are smarter than boys—at least at the University of Florida.

Sorority girls averaged 2.47 grade points during the 1959-60 school year. Fraternity men averaged 2.28. Non-sorority girls averaged 2.35; non-fraternity men 2.21.

Honor points are tallied by using "A" as 4, "B" as 3, "C" as 2.

FOUND NO SEEDS

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Crown Prince Akihito of Japan bought three books on fish-raising but looked in vain at two stores for wild flower seeds Wednesday. The prince slipped away from his hotel for the unscheduled morning shopping trip just before he and Princess Michiko began a round of activities here on the final day of their American tour.

Raising Section Of Sunken Plane

BOSTON (AP)—Two Navy floating cranes today begin raising the forward section of the Eastern Airlines Electra that carried 61 persons to their deaths in a take-off plunge into the harbor Tuesday night.

Federal Aviation Administrator E. R. Quesada suggested Wednesday starlings sucked into the air intakes may have disabled one or more of the four turbine-propeller engines. More than a hundred dead birds were found on the runway.

Only 11 of the 72 aboard the plane, bound for Philadelphia, Charlotte, N.C., Greenville, S.C., and Atlanta, survived the shattering crash. All were injured, six on the danger list at hospitals.

The pilot, co-pilot and engineer died but two stewardesses escaped serious injury.

Fifty-seven bodies have been recovered, all identified but one, a young Negro woman. Four persons are missing.

Two divers, James Walton and Jim Cahill, said the main section of fuselage, in 35 feet of water, looked "as though it had been ripped open with a can opener."

The engines could help to determine whether birds caused a stall.

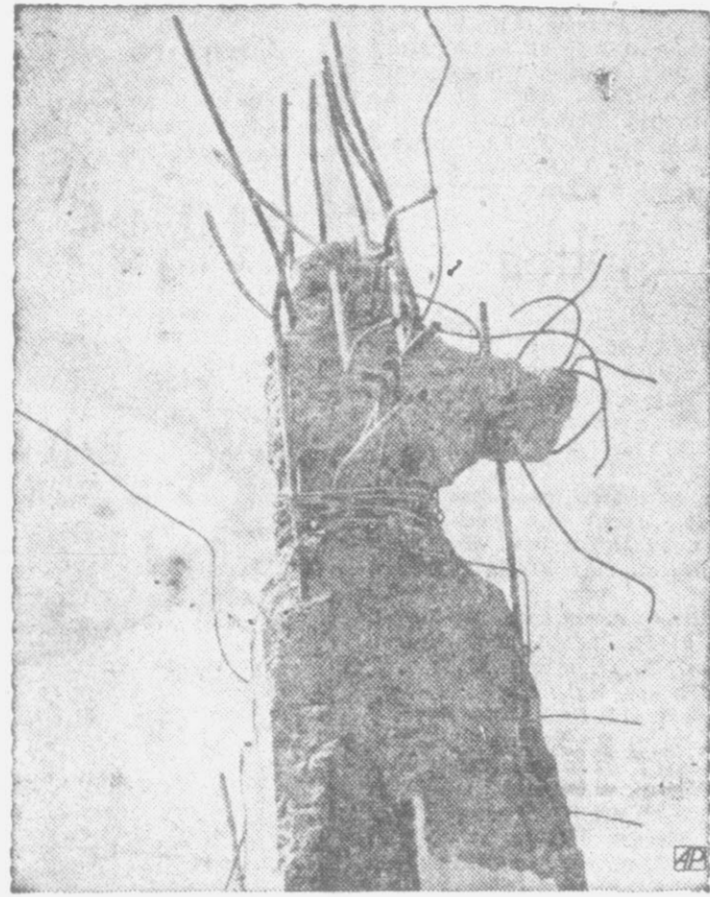

Birds have damaged planes but officials said there is no instance on record of their having caused a fatal accident.

Houses Rescued By Coast Guard

RICHMOND, Calif. (AP)—The U.S. Coast Guard, which has rescued just about everything, has saved three houses from sinking in San Francisco Bay.

The houses had been removed for a freeway and were being taken by barge to the San Joaquin River city of Stockton, Calif. The unmanned barge broke loose from its mooring here Wednesday.

After the drifting barge was spotted, a Coast Guard cutter and helicopter slowly maneuvered it to a dock.

WINTERVILLE — Pitt County Negro teachers were engaged in a 15-hour credit service art workshop recently at Robinson Union School in Winterville.

Commission Decides On Highway 77 Route

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina State Highway Commission decided today that Interstate Highway 77 from Elkin, northward to the Virginia line, should run just west of Mount Airy and through the area known as Fancy Gap.

The action came after the state highway director, W. F. Babcock, told the commission that from the standpoint of service to the public this route has an advantage over proposed alternate route several miles to the west which would have run due north from Elkin through Low Gap.

A consulting engineering firm, Wibur Smith and Associates of Columbia, S.C., had recommended locating the new superhighway on the route chosen by the highway commission. The commission approved a resolution by Commissioner Ralph Howland of Elkin that the Highway Department consider the feasibility of a direct east-west connection from the northwestern part of the state to new Interstate 77.

This would provide service to the area the rejected alternate location would have followed. Interstate 77 will run from the vicinity of Cleveland, Ohio, to Charlotte, providing the South Atlantic area with a new high-speed highway connection with the Midwest. The line the highway will follow north from Charlotte to Elkin already has been settled. It will roughly parallel U. S. 21 via Statesville.

Order Overhaul Of N.C. Freight Truck Rates

RALEIGH (AP) — A two-year investigation has ended with a State Utilities Commission order calling for a complete overhaul of North Carolina truck freight rates.

Nearly 300 lines were directed Wednesday to cancel their present rate schedules and to file new ones by Jan. 1.

The commission said original truck rates were based on rail rates and distances and revealed "numerous preferences, prejudice and discriminations." The new schedules would use highway distances which are, on the average 10 per cent less than rail distances.

In its order, the commission said the investigation "was not intended to increase or reduce truckers' revenues. It expressed the feeling the new structures will affect revenues 'very little, if any at all.'"

Howard Street in San Francisco was named for William D. M. Howard, one of the city's most prosperous businessmen prior to World War II.

Army Redstone Missile Scores Perfect Launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Army has lofted a Redstone missile on a successful 200-mile flight down the Atlantic range.

Project officials reported the 61-foot rocket performed perfectly on the short trip, which is similar to that which one of America's astronauts may take early in 1961.

A modified Redstone stands on a pad only a few hundred feet from the launch area used Wednesday night. Within a few weeks it will attempt to carry an unmanned Project Mercury man-in-space capsule 125 miles high and 200 miles down range.

If this launching is successful, a chimpanzee, then a man will try to make the same journey. Orbit shots, using an Atlas booster, will follow. Earlier Wednesday, a Polaris submarine missile was fired from a land pad on a successful 1,200-mile test flight.

Water Ballet Behind A Bar

By STEVE LEDBETTER
FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — The King sisters don't mind the dunks. It's the bugs and beetles. Connie and Sara King, 20 and 15, take turns performing a water ballet nightly before bar patrons at the Mermaid Room of Fresno's Hacienda Motel.

The swimming pool is outside, but an inside view is provided by a glass wall in the pool. The glass replaces the traditional behind-the-bar mirror.

"We haven't had any trouble with drunks," says petite Connie. "We've heard of some jumping in to grab the mermaid, but none has since we've been working here."

It's the beetles that really bug the girls.

"One night," says Connie, "a man was standing on the other side of the pool throwing bugs at me. They were different colors—red, green, black—and some had polka-dots."

"I was scared to death." Having a large number of topers stare at them while they swim has no effect on the girls.

"We can't see them," explains Connie. "The glass looks like part of the wall covered with moss."

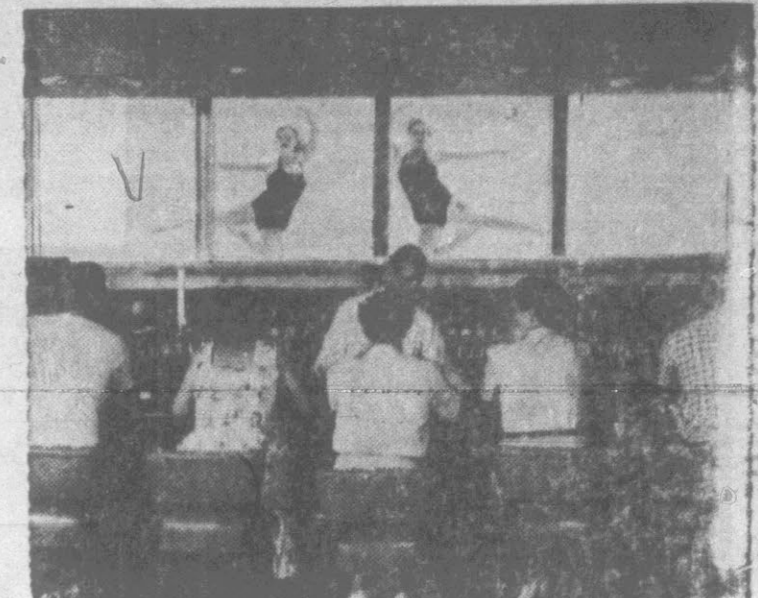

"Do-gooders" ire the young ladies.

"Some people are shocked because we work here," says dark-eyed Connie. "They think it's immoral, or something."

"But just because we work here doesn't mean we have to be in the 'festivities.'"

How do they like swimming every night?

"It doesn't bother us," spokeswoman Connie explains. "We started swimming as soon as we could walk. And we'd probably go swimming every day anyway."

JACKBAR BALLET—Customers watch as two water nymphs perform their ballet in the swimming pool that substitutes for the mirror behind the bar in the Mermaid Room of the Hacienda Motel in Fresno, Calif.

Secret Admirer Is Still A Secret

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A University of Arizona coed told police a secret admirer used a novel way to ask for a date.

She parked her car at a restaurant, went in for a bite to eat, and when she returned found a $130 pair of custom-made roller skates missing.

Under the windshield wiper was this note: "I took your skates. You can pick them up tonight, you know where. All my love. Guess who? Come formal."

But, the coed told officers, she had no idea who the secret admirer may be.

Stockholders OK Bank Merger

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Merger of the First Union National Bank and the National Bank of Commerce in Gastonia has been approved by the respective stockholders. Only approval of the U.S. Comptroller of Currency is needed before the merging is completed.

Shareholders of the two banks met Wednesday in Gastonia and Charlotte to act on the plan which would give First Union 27 banking outlets in 11 North Carolina cities.

Elected to First Union's board were three Bank of Commerce Directors: R. P. Caldwell and Harold Mercer of Gastonia, and Hargrove Bowles Jr. of Greensboro.

NEW DAM--GIANT TASK

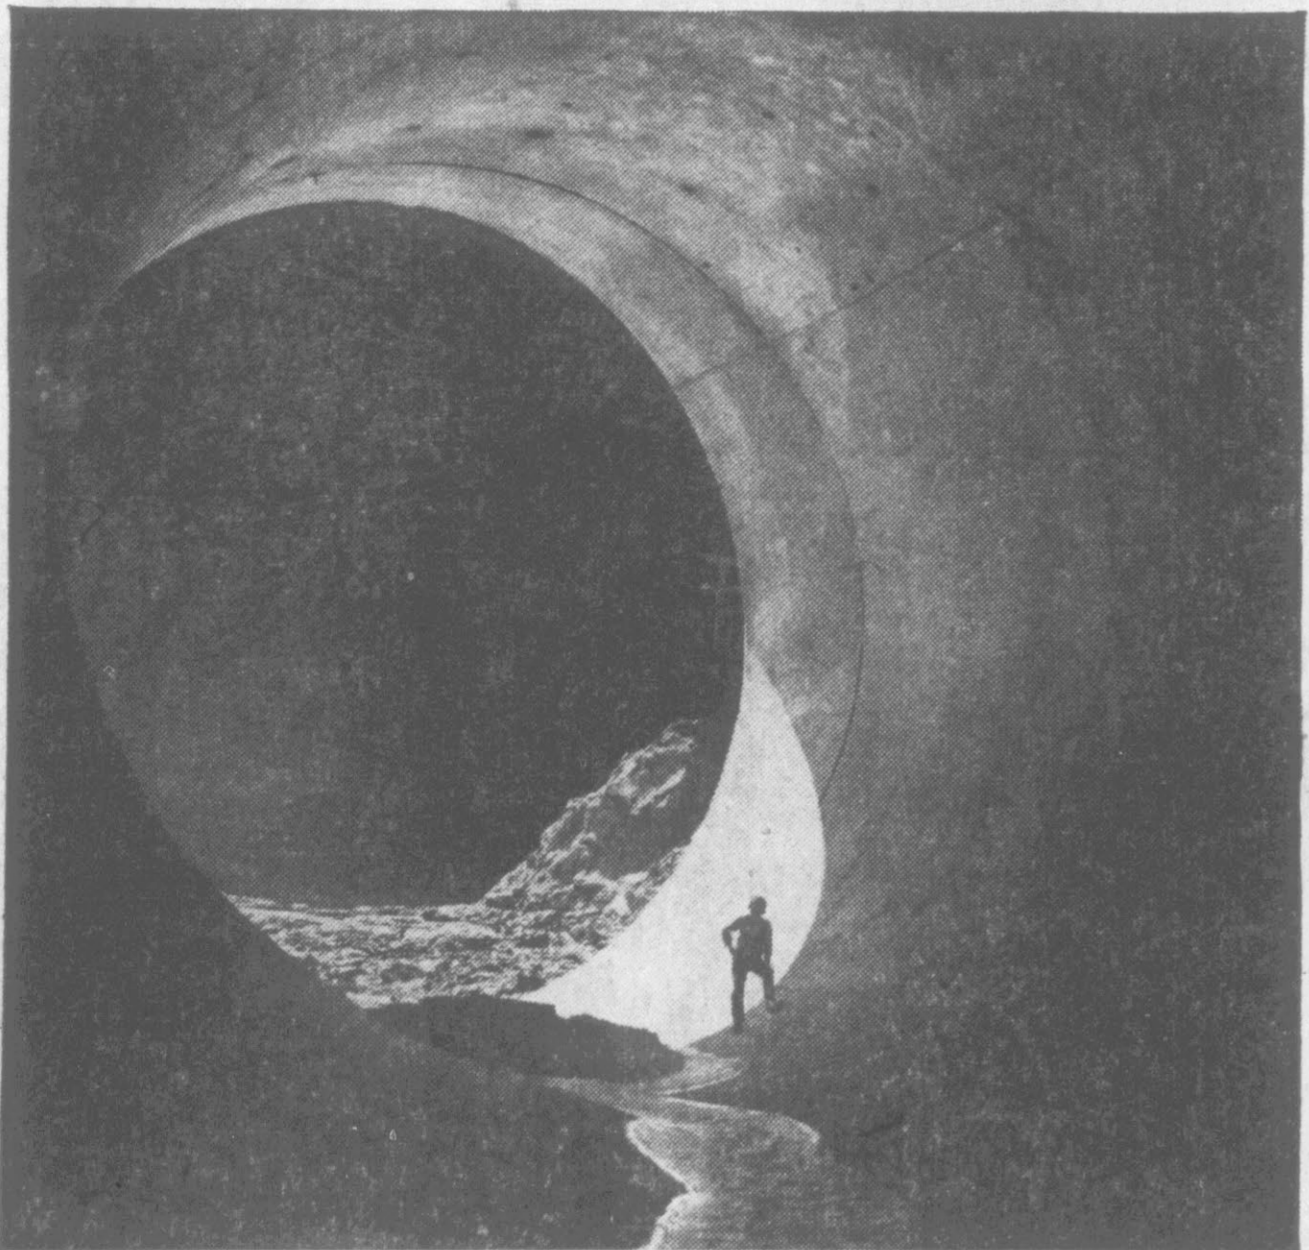

White clouds of dust and smoke rise after a blasting in the east keyway excavation.

Airview of Glen Canyon Dam site. Bridge stands 700 feet above river, making it highest steel arch bridge in the world.

Small stream of water flows into left diversion tunnel after level of cofferdam lake had been lowered by cooler weather. Picture taken looking out of upstream portal.

Two intrepid boatmen approach the raging torrent of water pouring from the right diversion tunnel.

Held fast by ropes, workmen drill on canyon wall just above the rushing water as it pours from right diversion tunnel.

Construction of Glen Canyon Dam, near Page, Ariz., key unit of the Upper Colorado River Storage Project, is near the halfway mark—but you'd never guess it by looking at it.

At this stage, the project resembles little more than a hole in the ground.

But a lot of work has been done since construction began in October 1956. The turbulent Colorado River has been moved from its channel by coffer dams and two diversion tunnels carved through the solid rock canyon walls. Spillway tunnels and excavation of the river bed have been completed and pouring of concrete has begun at the foundation about 200 feet below the normal water level.

In the next 2 1/2 years, more than 5 million cubic yards of concrete will be poured forming a barrier towering from 300 feet at its base to 35 at the crest 700 feet above. The top of the dam will be 573 feet above the river bed.

When completed about 1964, the dam will extend 1,500 feet between the pastel-colored walls of the canyon.

It will create 186-mile-long Lake Powell covering 162,700 acres and contain a power plant with a capacity of 900,000 kilowatts. This is 75 per cent of the total power to be generated by the Upper Colorado project.

The National Park Service already has plans for a national recreation area at the lake, one of the multiple benefits Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming will receive from the dam and the overall development project.

Aside from power production, the major function of the dam is to control the flow of the river, storing water from the Upper Basin to meet needs of the Lower Basin. This will make it possible for upstream states to use water through other units of the program.

U.S. Is Importing Civil War 'Relics'

THE REAL THING—N. E. Warinner examines his collection of knives and swords which he has found on Civil War battlefields.

By CHARLES STAFFORD
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Lend-lease has taken a remarkable turn.

Suddenly, Europe is shipping war material to the United States. Civil War material, that is. "Kentucky flintlocks" manufactured in Italy," says a recent edition of the British weekly, Punch, "are selling briskly in the United States as souvenirs of the American Civil War. Italian gunsmiths can make them more cheaply than anyone else."

But there is more to this than flintlocks. And it's a fine tea pot that's calling the spaghetti kettle black.

A British firm that used to make Confederate uniform buttons a century ago is turning out thousands of them now, using the old dies, says N. E. Warinner of Richmond, Va., a hunter and collector of genuine Civil War battlefields.

This sudden increase in the manufacture of war materials 95 years out of date is an economic reaction to the approaching Civil War Centennial observance. The demand for war relics, already

Guardsmen Plan Hawaii Meeting

Yankeetown And Crackertown To Hold Straw Vote

YANKEETOWN, Fla. (AP) — The adjacent communities of Yankeetown and Crackertown, both with populations of about 700, plan a straw vote Saturday under regular election conditions to settle the presidential race locally a month in advance of the general election.

They're making posters, handing out handmade campaign cards and talking.

A soap box has been set up in front of the Yankeetown postoffice for use by anyone who wants to talk.

Voting will be from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. Mayors of the two towns will lead motorcades to a point on the highway marking the boundary line between the towns to announce the results.

Yankeetown was incorporated largely by retirees drawn from many states. Crackertown is populated largely by native Floridians.

Hurricane Repair Work Near Done

AYDEN—Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said yesterday he expects repair work necessitated by hurricane Donna to be completed here by the end of the week.

Though a clean-up campaign sponsored immediately following the hurricane has been completed, streets and sidewalks, and some residential structures, were still under repair here this week.

Tarboro Prepares For Big Anniversary

TARBORO — This town plans to stretch its traditional hospitality to the limit during celebration of its 200th anniversary the week of Oct. 30-Nov. 5.

Already scheduled for the week-long event are jazz concerts, a beauty pageant, tour of homes and historical spots, fireworks, industry tours, a huge barbecue, a golf tournament, cake cutting, street dances, a coronation ball, and a gigantic parade.

Plans for the parade, to be held the morning of Nov. 5, have advanced to the point where it is now definite that the event will be the biggest in the history of this parade-conscious town. Thirteen high school and military bands have already accepted invitations to attend, and in addition, several military drill teams and marching units will be here. Highlight of the procession will be at least a dozen floats depicting events from the past of this history-rich community.

Pre-celebration activity centers around the kangaroo courts which daily patrol Tarboro streets seeking citizens who are clean shaven, but who haven't purchased shaving permits. Trials are speedy and guilty pleas are usually entered. The penalty is always the same: the defendant is given a thorough ducking in the fountain located in the historic Town Common. Usually the judges have to chase several bird dogs from the fountain before the ducking sentence can be carried out. The dogs have claimed title to the fountain since the days that automobiles processioned horses in Tarboro, and during the late summer and early fall it isn't unusual for a half-dozen to sit in the fountain to escape the heat.

The first victim of the kangaroo court was the Rev. Joseph Larrimore, pastor of the First Baptist Church here. He good-naturedly submitted to a 1 p.m. dunking before a crowd of 200 Tarboroans.

Inquiries about the bicentennial celebration have been received from 26 states, mostly from former residents who ask that celebrations for them. It is that department officials make room reservation which is creating the only headache. Tarboro has only a single motel and no hotel facilities. However, to some extent the problem is being overcome by local citizens who are voluntarily opening their homes to visitors during the week of the celebration. Motel owners in neighboring Rocky Mount have also agreed to make rooms available for the expected overflow crowd.

The upcoming celebration marks the first time in all of the town's 200 years that its birthday has been officially observed. In 1860 war clouds overshadowed any idea of a centennial observance, and the local paper noted, "Not a single demonstration was made, not a sign was manifested to distinguish it from any other day".

An attempt to have a 150th anniversary celebration in 1910 failed because of a lack of funds. Tarboroans are determined that the bicentennial celebration will be one of the brightest spots in the town's history.

Shunning professional help, local citizens canvassed business and professional men and women for contributions. Those turned to a house-to-house solicitation for funds, thus giving everyone in this town of 8,400 an opportunity to provide the money which would assure the success of the 200th birthday party. The results were gratifying. To date more than $7,000 has been raised, and the celebration committee plans to spend every penny of it to make the occasion a memorable one. The Daily Southerner, Tarboro's newspaper since 1826, is planning

Bearded Tarboroans prepare to dunk a beardless Baptist, the Rev. Joseph Larrimore, in Tarboro's old town fountain for the preacher's failure to purchase a shaving permit. Shaving permits are needed if Tarboro's male inhabitants are to remain clean shaven through the town's bicentennial celebration, Oct. 30-Nov. 5.

publication of a special edition which features 200 years of Tarboro and Edgecombe County history. Pre-publication orders for extra copies have already reached 800—an indication of the interest that today's citizens have in the past of their town.

Both the newspaper and the bicentennial directors have adopted the motto, "Be Our Guest" for the birthday celebration, and it is sincerely extended to all North Carolinians.

Fogging Machine For Ayden Is Put In Operation

AYDEN — A fogging machine, which is used to spray insecticide, has been purchased by the town of Ayden. It was put into service in the town this week.

The fogging machine program is a joint venture of the Pitt County Health Department and the city of Ayden. Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said. The health department will furnish insecticide and the city is furnishing the machine as well as oil to mix with the insecticide.

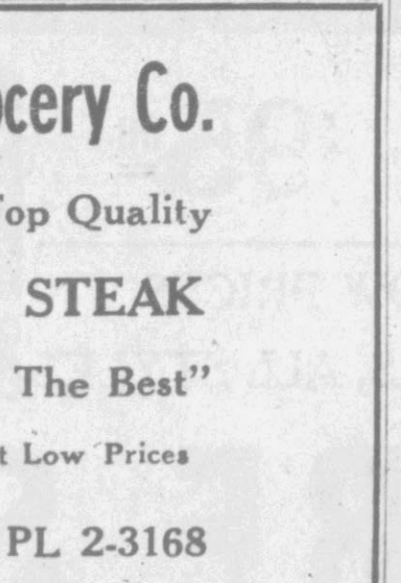

Paylor said he hopes the machine will cover all parts of town at least once a week. He has urged parents to discourage youngsters from following the vehicle for safety reasons.

In the past the city has used hand spraying, but Paylor said the fogging machine will be able to reach places the hand sprays could not.

Phants Collide With Tarboro

Battle Of Prep Unbeatens Tomorrow Night

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Just how far is Greenville's 1960 success going? Tomorrow night Tarboro invades the Phantoms' domain and when this head-on affair is over, the Northeastern 3-A championship picture should be much clearer. The Phantoms, riding the crest of a four-game winning streak, return to home soil after crushing Washington last Friday 34-0. It will be only the second home test for the G-men and a capacity crowd is expected to view the game in East Carolina College Stadium.

last year but that's history and Alan McArthur and crew feel confident of evening the score tomorrow night. The Tigers, who recorded an 8-2 mark last season—its first in the conference, have also been on the high column in their first four outings. The only common opponent of Greenville and Tarboro has been Jacksonville. The Phants sped to a 21-7 win on Jax soil and Tarboro tallied a 14-12 win while hosting the Cardinals. In other games, Greenville has topped Ahsokie 19-0, and trounced Kinston 33-14 and Washington 34-0. Tarboro bossed by Kinston 19-7 in its opener and has other wins over Elizabeth City, 12-6, and Hertford, 7-0. Coach Alexander of Tarboro thinks his club "may be stronger defensively but weaker offensively . . ." than last season. The Tigers lost all but one of their backfield starters but are solid again in the line. Glenn Sasser, hefty 205-lb tackle, heads the stingy front forces. Sasser was an All-Conference selection in 1959 and placed second on the All-Eastern club. Robert Batchelor, the other starting tackle, and center Steve Pitt give the Tigers plenty of beef in the interior line. The ends are light but fast. The backfield is short on experience but have some heavy backs with good running power. Quarterback Bill Bailey is the lonesome returnee and does a good job of carrying the offensive load. A big difference in the two teams could be in the depth value. The Phants have a rather solid second unit but Alexander claims his ranks are sub-par. The Tigers, smallest member in the Northeastern Conference, will bring a roster numbering only 28 to Greenville. "We have a player shortage here and it is about the same each year," Alexander noted. Alexander wasn't sure as to whether his club would be at full strength. "We haven't been at full strength in any game thus far and have had several boys working in light gear this week." Speculating on the game, Alexander quipped, "It should be a fine game for the spectators—probably one of the best this season." Greenville's line, often overlooked in the four previous victories, will get a stern test tomorrow. Paced by center Bill Wade, the front-line laborers have had things much their way in clearing the path for ball carriers and stopping opposing runners. The Tarboro line has yielded four touchdowns but has been stubborn in the clutch. Greenville warriors have seen only three six-pointers cross their stripes. Dallas Clark, Don Joyner, and Larry Roberts have given a giant assist in the up-front combat. Offensively, the G-men will try and set its smooth-clicking attack in motion early. Besides the fleet-footed McArthur, John Adams and Wayne Sumrell are like trained pack horses with the leather under their arms. Erskine Duff and Billy James will be field generals and add to the offense by either running or passing the pigskin. Game time is set for 8:00.

DEFENSIVE HALFBACK—Jeff Jenkins, junior halfback, will be ready to step in for a starter tomorrow night when Rose High meets Tarboro in College Stadium. Jenkins has played on defense mostly this fall.

TEAM UP—Reynolds May and W. M. Scales check name list in preparation to start work on the Pirates Club drive which had its kick-off this morning. The drive, expected to cover the Greenville merchants, is to assist the East Carolina College's athletic program.

Join The Pirates Club

The drive for a larger membership in the Pirates Club at East Carolina College officially opened this morning with a 9:00 kick-off meeting at Carolina Sales. The Athletic Advisory Council of the college, composed of men in Greenville, are directing the drive with the assistance of some current Pirate Club members. The solicitors plan to hit the Greenville area today in mass force but there will probably be some follow-up tomorrow. The Pirate Club membership, which supports the college athletic program, was less than 300 in the Greenville area this morning when the drive started. Ed Rawl, drive chairman, and other members were hoping to appeal to the merchants with facts showing how big an asset the college is to the town. Anyone not contacted in the drive today and desiring to purchase a Pirates Club ticket and taking part in ECC's thrust for membership in the Southern Conference can do so by requesting tickets at the college's athletic department.

Pittsburgh Wins Series Opener

Vern Lays Down The Law

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP)—It must be true what rival National League managers have been saying about Pittsburgh. "They drive you crazy with their constant hitting and running," said Solly Hemus of the St. Louis Cardinals. "They play smart, heads-up baseball," said Fred Hutchinson of Cincinnati. "They know what they're doing all the time. As a team, it's a manager's delight." "They take advantage of every break," said Chuck Dressen of Milwaukee. "And they make very few mistakes themselves." "They can beat you a dozen ways," said Gene Mauch of Philadelphia. "If they don't beat you with the bat, they'll beat you with the glove or with their legs." "They don't scare," said Lou Boudreau, recently released by Chicago. "All those big names on the Yankees don't mean a thing to them." The Pirates made prophets out of their fellow National Leaguers and believers out of the cynics Wednesday beating New York with more ease than the 6-4 score might indicate. Whether they can do it again in game No. 2 today remained to be seen. In any event, the Pirates demonstrated before 36,676 cash customers at Forbes Field that they were no fluke champions, making the odds-makers wonder whether they hadn't underrated them after all. They undoubtedly have gained new respect, especially from the Yankees.

A 13 to 10 underdog before Wednesday's game, the Pirates have become an 11 to 10 favorite to win the Series. Today's battle before another sellout crowd, featuring another right-handed duel, between Bob Friend (18-12) of the Pirates and Bob Turley (9-3) of the Yankees, is rated even money. Except for the pitchers, neither manager planned any lineup or batting order changes. The weatherman predicted another perfect playing day, with sunny skies and temperature in the 60's. Game time is 1 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time. It was all Pittsburgh Wednesday. The Pirates outplayed, outfielded, outran, out-manuevered and outsmarted the Yankees. They were outlit but not outslugged even though the American League champions outthrew them two to one. Certainly they weren't outthusted and if there were any jitters, they emanated from the more experienced Yankees. Pittsburgh walloped three extra base hits to New York's two. The Pirates stole two bases to none for the Yankees. They were guilty of no errors to two for their rivals. And Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh even borrowed a page from Casey Stengel's book by going to his bench in the late innings for defensive purposes and to the mound in tense moments for counsel to his pitchers. "We're a probing club," Murtaugh had warned earlier. "We seek out the opposition's weaknesses and try to exploit them." The Pittsburgh players wasted little time demonstrating what was meant by their manager. In the first inning, Rogerzaris walloped a home run off 20-game winning right-hander Vern Law to give the Yankees a 1-0 lead. But the Pirates went right to work on starter Art Ditmar, driving him from the mound before he could get the second out. Billy Virdon drew a walk. On the first pitch to Dick Groat, Virdon waited until catcher Yogi Berra was about to toss the ball back to the mound and started a delayed steal of second. Berra, after a second's hesitation, threw to second but nobody was there to cover. The unexpected maneuver caught the Yankees completely off guard. Berra's throw went into center field and Virdon raced to third. He scored a few moments later when Dick Groat typically slashed an opposite field double to right. "Virdon ran on his own," said Groat later. "I had no idea he was going. Usually I send him but I didn't this time. I think the Yankees didn't cover because they expected the hit and run. They didn't think it would take." "I didn't give him the sign to steal," Murtaugh said. "We don't give signs." Then he added wryly: "The only sign we have is the 'Don't steal' sign." Bob Skinner singled Groat home to give the Pirates a 2-1 lead. The National League champs had still another trick up their sleeve. With Dick Stuart at bat, Skinner began walking toward second as Ditmar stepped on the rubber and just kept going, easily beating Berra's frantic heave which was high and away. "It was a surprise play," explained Murtaugh. "I don't think they knew we had it. We have three different kinds of steals—the straight steal, the walking steal and the delayed steal." "Our reports showed that the other American League teams, excepting the White Sox, don't run on the Yankees, so we thought we'd do a little probing. If you first succeed, try again." Skinner scored with the third run a moment later on Bob Clemente's single to center. Pittsburgh's other runs came on Bill Mazeroski's two-run homer off Jim Coates in the fourth and Virdon's run-scoring double off Duke Maas in the sixth. Only Ryne Duren stopped the Pirates. The best defensive play came in the fourth and it was made by the Pirates. Trailing 3-1, the Yankees seemed ready to mount a rally when Maris singled and Mickey Mantle walked. Berra drove a 420-footer to deep right center but Virdon made a brilliant glove-hand catch a stride or two from the wall. That was the key play of the game since Bill Skowron followed with a single to score Roger Maris. Law, tagged for 10 hits, lost his stuff in the eighth and Murtaugh summoned relief ace Elroy Face from the bullpen after Hector Lopez and Maris singled with nobody out. The little right-hander struck out Mantle with a sinker pitch, induced Berra to fly out and fanned Skowron with a fast ball. "I wasn't surprised at what Face did," said Murtaugh later. "He's been doing that all year for us. We're a good combination, Elroy and —my guts and his arm." Murtaugh squirmed just a little bit when Elston Howard got a pinch hit two-run homer in the ninth to cut the Pirates' margin to 6-4. He sent a hasty signal to the bullpen for Clem Labine to be on call when Tony Kubek cracked his third hit but Labine stopped throwing when Lopez obligingly grounded into Pittsburgh's third double play to end the game.

Virdon's Catch Is Turning Point

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A great catch by Bill Virdon against the green wall of Forbes Field 420 feet from home plate proved to be the turning point of the first 1960 World Series game. It robbed Yogi Berra of the Yankees of an extra base hit that probably would have scored Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle and knotted up Wednesday's game at 3-3 in the fourth inning. The Pirates, leading, 3-1 at the time, went on to win 6-4 although Maris scored in the fourth on Bill

Skowron's single. "I probably have made better catches but none which gave me a greater thrill," said Virdon. Both Virdon, the center fielder, and Roberto Clemente, the right fielder, raced for the smash off Berra's bat. Virdon came down with it, bumping into Clemente and cutting the back of his right shoe. "I thought I could get it all the time," Virdon said. "I had a good bead on the ball."

Fans Can Expect Many Strangers In SC Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Football fans sitting in on this week's games in the Southern Conference are going to find a sizable group of comparative strangers starting at quarterback for conference teams.

All nine clubs in the league had at least one experienced quarterback of proven ability when the 1960 season began. These veterans were counted on to lead their teams onward and upward this fall.

Now, though — with the season still young — a majority of them have been knocked out of their jobs by surprising newcomers.

The veterans who've survived number only three: Jerry Nettles at the Citadel, Howard Dyer at VMI and Billy Canby at Furman. Sophomore Frank Pazzaglia has taken over for Chuck Packan at George Washington, sophomore Mel Rideout for Dick Curi at Richmond and sophomore Kent Tucker for Tee Redding at Davidson.

Perhaps the greatest surprises, however, have been at Virginia Tech, where non-lettered Warren Price ousted 1959 star Frank Eastman from a starting role, and at West Virginia, where non-lettered Dale Evans has replaced passing whiz Danny Williams.

Price's ascendancy at Tech, so discouraged Eastman that the talented senior quit the team.

At William and Mary, last year's regular, Calvin Cox, now is playing third string behind both Dan Barton and Bob Stoy, but both Barton and Stoy had their moments in 1959 and can't be called genuine, 14-carat surprises. One of the experienced quarterbacks who survived the competition, Dyer, and one of the newcomers, Pazzaglia, will meet in a head-on duel Friday night when VMI plays at George Washington. Two newcomers, Rideout and Evans, will meet Saturday in Richmond's visit to West Virginia.

Stoy and Cox showed accuracy in passing during William and Mary practice. Coach Mill Dwyer introduced some new plays, then sent the Indians through a dummy scrimmage against Furman.

Furman stressed offense with quarterbacks, halfbacks and ends holding a session on pass patterns and linemen working on offensive blocking.

Third-string center Lewis Zayton was lost for the season with an injury and tackle Harry Rakewski was sidelined with a bruise at the Citadel, where pass offense and general defense was emphasized.

Tech tried some new plays with great success against the freshmen, then renewed work on pass defense in preparation for Wake Forest. Booker Clark, a fine defensive end, returned to practice at Davidson after being out with a shoulder separation.

Ayden stayed atop the Coastal Conference standings this week by whipping the Farmville Red Devils to the tune of 21-6 in a conference game, and the Tornados will be in the same top spot after tomorrow's games because they play host to Williamston, a non-conference foe.

Although Ayden will be playing Williamston, it will be looking ahead to its engagement with La Grange on October 14. The La Grange team lost their first game of the season last week to Havelock, but should not be counted out of the race yet.

The way the battle shapes up right now, it looks like Ayden would have to be rated the favorite to take the conference crown.

But there are two other teams that pose as possible threats to the Tornados, and they are both on Ayden's remaining schedule. They are the aforementioned La Grange and a strong Beaufort team. The latter has yet to suffer their first defeat. Beaufort is the last team that Ayden will play, and all eyes are turning to that contest as the one which will probably decide who will be the wearer of the Coastal Conference crown.

La Grange and Beaufort did not schedule each other this season and they each received a tie for not doing so. That accounts for the fact that Beaufort has one tie on its over-all record against two on their conference slate.

LAST FRIDAY'S RESULTS

Havelock 20	La Grange 6
Robersonville 19	Vanceboro 0
Ayden 21	Farmville 6
Beaufort 18	Camp Lejeune 0

Bruins Second In AP Ratings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ohio University, located at Athens, Ohio, is the top team in small college football, an Associated Press poll determined today.

The AP, which has been picking small college All-America teams since 1934, is starting a weekly rating of the eleven in this division this year and to the Buckeye State Bobcats goes the distinction of heading the first list.

Other teams in the top ten are Lenoir Rhyne of Hickory, N.C., Lehigh of Bethlehem, Pa., Massachusetts University, Wiltworth of Spokane, Wash., Texas A & I, San Francisco State, Western Illinois of Macomb, Muskingum of New Concord, Ohio, and Florida A & M of Tallahassee.

The teams were picked by an AP board of experts, made up of one man in each of the eight NCAA districts.

Of the honored ten, all sport unblemished records except Texas A & I which was tied by Trinity of Texas. Trinity, in turn, held Texas A & M to a 14-0 score last week-end.

But beating the big brethren is not unheard of among these small giants. Ohio University already has polished off Dayton and Toledo, which are rated major colleges by the NCAA, and this week takes on Boston University. Massachusetts dumped Harvard, favorite for the Ivy League crown.

Whitworth thrashed through three opponents with a passing attack that would do credit to a team in the Southwest Conference, where the forward pass is a way of football life.

Other teams to draw votes in the first small college listing are Louisiana Tech, Southeast Louisiana, Southern Illinois, Northern Michigan, Northern Illinois, Concordia (Minn.), White Water, Wis. State Langston of Okla., Humboldt (Calif.) State, Idaho State, Iowa Teachers, North Dakota, Tennessee Tech, Chattanooga and Hillsdale.

Free Throwing Affair For State And Maryland Scrap

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It appears that all bombardiers will be on hand Saturday when unbeaten North Carolina State and Maryland come to grips in an Atlantic Coast Conference headliner at Raleigh, N.C.

A free-throwing affair looms with N.C. State's husky Roman Gabriel matching aerials with Maryland's Dick Novak and Dale Betty Novak had been a doubtful starter, but Coach Tom Nugent of Maryland said Wednesday the Uniontown, Pa., junior's bruised hand is in good shape.

N.C. State's three wins this fall already equals its total for 1958 and 1959 seasons combined. And N.C. State's Coach Earle Edwards will be after his second win in six meetings with the Terps since he became coach in 1954.

On the other hand, Maryland's Tom Nugent, a sophomore coach in the ACC, hopes to sap a two-game losing streak and push the Terps 1-2 mark upward. In the ACC Maryland is 0-1.

The wide-open "I" formation used by Maryland has been given a good look-see by N.C. State, who closes its home schedule with Saturday's game.

Maryland, which counted a number of injuries after the 20-7 loss to Duke last week, planned only a sweat-suit drill today in College Park.

Plenty of head-knocking was heard from Virginia's practice field Wednesday as the Cavaliers readied for ACC-rival Clemson, the nation's eighth ranked team. Coach Dick Voris said he hoped to have his entire squad, except for senior end Brerly Jones, in go 1 shape. Cal Kukkin, a sophomore call-carrier and left-handed passer, was back after missing last week's game.

Rain washed out a planned scrimmage at Clemson, and Coach Frank Howard called his defending and unbeaten ACC champs into the gym for a drill. Howard announced the fourth change in his first unit this week, moving Dave Olson to left guard.

Wake Forest, hoping to strike the victory column at Virginia Tech, has lost halfback Bill Skippon for the next two games. Coach Billy Hildebrand said the second stringer would be out that long with a virus.

Duke (2-0), with Clemson and N.C. State in ACC's only unbeaten teams, worked on its punting game Wednesday. The Blue Devils, who play at Michigan this Saturday, also polished the defense against the Wolverines' wing-T offense.

A spirited offensive scrimmage was reported by South Carolina's Coach Warren Goss. The Gamecock mentor said Melvin Harris, a right halfback, had been moved into the No. 1 spot, replacing Ken Kilrea. South Carolina's next game is Oct. 14 at Miami, Fla.

North Carolina, already dealt defeats by N.C. State and Miami, will smooth its overall game today in anticipation of Saturday's non-conference bout with Notre Dame. Each of the three top teams spent 20 minutes defending against the Irish offense in a defensive workout Wednesday.

Yanks No Different From Other Clubs

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, confident but not cocky after winning the opening game of the World Series, found out a couple of things about the New York Yankees that they suspected all along.

"They're like any other club," said Elroy Face. "They can be pitched to."

"And they can scare you," said Dick Groat.

It was Face, the scrawny relief pitcher who helped the Bucs get fat after 33 years between pennants, who saved the victory for starting pitcher Vernon Law. The little right-hander got rid of Yankee power with two on and none out in the eighth inning by striking out Mickey Mantle, retiring Yogi Berra on a fly, and fanning Bill Skowron.

In the ninth, pinch-hitter Elston Howard tagged him for a two-run homer, but Face then ended it by getting Hector Lopez to hit into a doubleplay.

"We knew they had power," said Groat, pivot man at short on the wrapup doubleplay, "but they strike so fast!

"You go into the ninth inning and you figure you've got it made. And then bing, bing, bing! You're in trouble."

Ike Forced To Cancel Plans To Attend Series

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Soviet Union's Premier Khrushchev is not content with busting up summit conferences — now he's sticking his plump finger in our World Series.

Indirectly, at least. President Eisenhower, a keen baseball fan, had fully intended taking in at least a couple of World Series games—one here and one in New York—but had to cancel because of Khrushchev's pyrotechnics in the United Nations.

"The President was all ready to come but decided the situation in the U.N. was so tender he couldn't take the time off," said Commissioner Ford Frick today.

The commissioner said he had received no requests from the barnstorming presidential candidates—Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy—for series seats.

"I know the vice president is an avid fan and Jack Kennedy may be one also," Frick said, "but both probably are staying away for fear of being accused of using the series as a publicity prop."

"I'm just as happy about it. I don't like to see baseball get entangled with politics of any kind."

The baseball boss' seat at Forbes Field on the first row just to the left of the Pittsburgh dugout—is quite different from the one he occupied in the last World Series between the New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates 33 years ago.

In 1927, he was a sports writer for the old New York Journal and it was his job to report the Yankees' four-game sweep.

"I think the Pirates were overawed by the batting power of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and the other Yanks," said Frick. Pie Traynor, a member of the old Pirate team, disagreed. He said the Pirates were burned out by the close pennant race.

Traders Looking For Sox's Jensen

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Boston Red Sox trade talks designed to acquire a shortstop bogged down today on the subject of Jackie Jensen.

Manager Mike Higgins said his talks to date at the World Series gathering of baseball men have included Jensen, the slugging outfielder who recently announced he will end his one-year retirement and return to the Sox.

Higgins has discovered the other teams all want Jensen as part of a trade.

The field pilot earlier had said all his players were available if the right deal was offered and that his primary job was to strengthen the seventh-place Sox at short and second base.

"Everyone has a shortstop to give but they won't guarantee how well their shortstop can play," Higgins explained. "At the same time they want to talk very big about Jensen. But I don't think we can afford to give him up."

Gordon Joins A's

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Joe Gordon, former Detroit Tigers manager, has signed a two-year contract to manage the Kansas City Athletics.

He'll replace Bob Elliott who was fired as Athletics manager Monday, the same day Gordon resigned as manager of the Tigers.

Gordon was signed Wednesday following a meeting with Pat Carroll, general manager of the Athletics. Gordon signed for an estimated $35,000 a year.

Only seven southpaws pitched complete games in 48 efforts against the 1959 pennant winning Chicago White Sox.

Administration's Faith Is Shaken But Unbowed

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The administration's confidence in the business outlook is shaken but unbowed. It is notably stronger than that expressed by many business and banking economists and by the faint-hearted traders in the stock market.

He looks for a fall business pickup perhaps better than usual and also views the first half of 1961 without alarm. This view calls for an increase in the gross national product, the total dollar volume of goods and services produced. This was running at a rate of $505 billion or less this summer. But Stans thinks it will go to $510 billion or more by the end of the year.

COZART'S SUPER MARKET

The Index Finger Becoming More Important

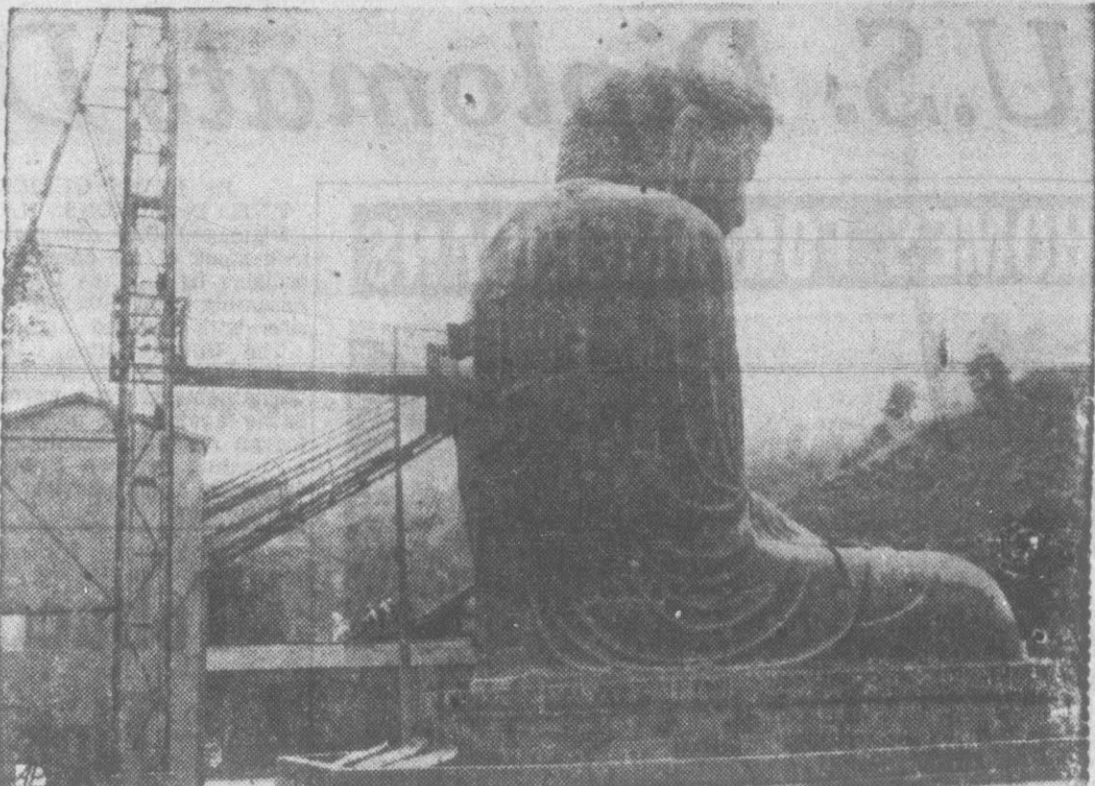

By WYENNE WINECOFF
(Staff Writer, Concord Tribune)
Written for The Associated Press
CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Have you ever gone into some unsuspecting woman's purse and seen all the oddities often contained therein?
Try the same thing with a supermarket and see what you come up with.
A recent tour of several of the larger supermarkets in town disclosed a totally new concept in grocery-buying in this modern age of science.
Take first things first.
Examine the long list of instant foods that are available to the consumer. Time was when a new bride found herself in the kitchen for hours slaving over a hot stove, preparing a succulent meal for her new spouse.

Alas, no more.
What with the new frozen foods, instant foods and packaged mixes, a homemaker can whip up a meal in no time flat with little or no cooking involved.
Gone are the days when the lady of the house spent much time laboring over a pudding that seemed determined to lump no matter what.
Now with two cups of milk and one of the instant packaged mixes, a few whisks of the egg beater or mixer and presto, a perfect pudding every time.

And then there's the time-consuming job of peeling and slicing or cubing potatoes. Even that distasteful chore has been erased by those geniuses called scientists. There, right in a box, is a magic powder that becomes mashed potatoes with the addition of boiling water.
It's almost frightening, isn't it? What will they come up with next that's "instant"?
Where else but in one of the modern food markets can a woman (or man, as the case may be) pick up boxes filled with powdery substances that make milk, beverages—any flavor—bouillon, dessert toppings, soups, meringue and cake frostings. The list seems endless.

Everyone is conscious of time. It's hurry-hurry here and rush-rush there. It seems only natural that someone would come up with the ingenious idea of saving the chief cook and bottle washer of the household lots of time and nervous strain.
And so to the instant squirts—the pressurized cans that dispense everything from liquid car wax to whipped cream for desserts.
The same survey of the grocery stores showed that there is more and more use of these push-button cans that are conforming with everything else in the push-button age.

The list of products in these pressurized cans is almost as long as the one of instant foods.
Everyone is familiar with the hifalutin' brother of the ordinary tin can. It gives forth with stuff that's bound to be useful in some way or another.
The newest member of the spray-on family is a new laundry starch that can be applied to the clothes as the homemaker irons them. Another new-comer to the squirt scene is the liquid that is supposed to prevent food from sticking to the pan when frying.
This substance eliminates the necessity of putting shortening in the frying pan. It's highly recommended for those who are watching their waistlines because it's non-caloric.
Other products that come ready for use in a push-button can include window cleaner and cleaning liquids, wax, shoe polish, air freshener, toothpaste, shaving cream, hand lotion, insecticide, charcoal lighting fluid and even home permanents.
What would the human race do these days without an index finger to push buttons?
It would seem that now the homemaker who bewails the fact that her work never ends hasn't a leg to stand on.
It takes all day just to figure out what in heaven's name the directions say to do in order to get these modern miracles to work.

Guerrilla Training Given Latin Americans By Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former chief of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's parachute troops says Latin Americans have been trained in Cuba in guerrilla warfare.
The testimony was given to the Senate Internal Security subcommittee by Capt. Alfonso Manuel Rojo Roche, also known as Manuel Rojo del Rio. He appeared at a closed-door hearing last January soon after resigning from the Cuban armed forces.
In his testimony, made public today, Roche said guerrilla training courses for the Cuban forces are attended by men from several Central and South American nations.
Specifically, he listed the Dominican Republic, Nicaragua, Paraguay, Guatemala, Salvador, and Costa Rica.

"I don't know for certain, but I am sure that there are representatives of all the countries that have dictators where Fidel would like to move in," Roche testified.
He was asked if these men, after finishing the training courses, returned to their own countries.
"Most of them, yes," he replied.
Roche named Gen. Alberto Bayo as author of a manual on guerrilla tactics used by the Cuban armed forces and as director general and instructor in the school of revolutionary training.
He said that Raul Castro, Fidel's brother and commander in chief of the Cuban revolutionary forces, is the nominal boss of the training school but testified that Ernesto Guevara, president of the National Bank of Cuba, actually controls it.

Raul Castro, Guevara and Bayo were among about a score of Fidel Castro's fellow rebels whom Roche named as Communists.
Roche is a 44-year-old Argentinian who joined up with the Castro forces after flying arms to them from Costa Rica in March 1958. He told of overhearing a conversation in which he quoted Raul Castro as saying: "Now we are going against Santo Domingo. Next against all the dictators in Latin America. And ultimately against the United States."
"Did Raul say, 'We must convince the Latin-American countries that the United States is the chief enemy?'" Roche was asked.
"Yes," the witness replied. He added that Guevara, who was present, agreed.

American Artist Regards Pope As Patient Sitter

By JULES LOH
NEW YORK (AP)—The Pope is a patient sitter.
Artist Richard Brown has had a particularly vexing period getting started on a painting of the Pope, and his frustration showed.
"You expect too much," Pope John XXIII reassured him.
"I took God six days to create the world. Don't try to judge your work on the second day."
Sure enough, after six sittings—plus hours of private work in the Vatican studio provided him—Brown completed the 7 by 6 foot portrait.
Then he returned to the United States with the portrait—the first of the Pope in North America, he says, authentically painted from life.
Brown's enthusiasm does not stem from the portrait, but from the rare experience of painting it.
"There were hundreds of Catholics in Rome—many of them priests—who did not get an audience with the Pope," he said. "And there I was, an insignificant Protestant from Madison, Conn., given the run of the place."
Brown, 41, a Yale graduate and former instructor at Columbia and Syracuse, is not insignificant in American art circles.
His portrait of Mrs. Herbert Hoover hangs in the White House, and elsewhere displayed are portraits of Hoover and a number of high ranking prelates of his own Episcopal Church.
While casting about last spring for a new subject, Brown took a flyer and addressed a letter to Pope John. He enclosed a few photo samples of his work—and promptly gave up any notion he would be accepted.
Later he was advised he could meet with the Pope for three 30-minute sittings.
"I was excited from the beginning, and a good deal apprehensive," Brown said. "But from the first moment the Pope stepped into the room he put me at ease."
Plainly, the Pope was pleased with Brown's work.
The appointed limit of three sittings was stretched to six, more than accorded any other artist. Frequently he walked with the Pope in the Vatican gardens to study him more closely.
"This man of 78 some people call old has the step of an athlete and the most agile mind imaginable," Brown said. "Physically he is tireless, and he has a remarkable wit and sense of humor."
"He talks learnedly—and enthusiastically—on any subject. He invited scholars of many fields to the sittings, and while I worked they discussed history, art, philosophy."

Farmville Street Superintendent Planning Resign

Curiously, Brown said the subject of religion never came up with the Pope or any member of the Vatican staff during his four-month stay.
When the portrait was finished the Pope inspected it, Brown said, and cried "bravo, bravo." The Vatican photographer made a color picture of it for Brown, which the Pope signed and stamped with his official seal. He also gave Brown his personal medal.
Brown has not yet disposed of the picture and its 18th century Venetian frame.
"I want it to hang in some Catholic institution," the artist said. "I think it would be only fitting."

Farmville Street Superintendent Planning Resign

FARMVILLE — Farmville's street superintendent has submitted his resignation effective Oct. 15.
E. G. (Eddie) Carraway, Farmville's street department head since more than one year ago, has decided to step down.
Carraway served as relief man for Supt. Barry Taylor during the latter's illness in mid-1959. Carraway took over in August, 1959, upon Taylor's retirement.
The Town Board of Commissioners is expected to hire a replacement for Carraway at a special session Friday morning.
According to Town Clerk Harold M. Allred, the town has several applications for the post on file and is expecting several more by Friday morning.

Culture Thrives Among The Palms At Fijian Arts Center In The Pacific

SUVA, Fiji, (AP) — The arts are flourishing in an all-races club here in the southwest Pacific. People whose parents were European, American, Indian, Chinese, and native Fijian are united in the Fijian Arts Club. Fiji has no professional theater, but it has a strong and enthusiastic group of amateurs who keep the Arts Club alive and growing. The club has just opened a delightful theater among tropical palms in Suva. Named "The Playhouse," it is a modern building with tiled auditorium, futuristic mural designs, and a stage and two dressing rooms. Extensions are planned as money becomes available to provide a studio for artists and dark room facilities for amateur photographers. The club was formed in 1947 as a dramatic society, performing its plays in the Anglican parish hall.

Then, after a particularly successful play in 1950, it decided to start a fund to build its own theater. Membership expanded, and now 10 years later the new theater is open. Soon after the building fund was started, enthusiasts from other arts besides the theater started to join the club. Suva has a transient population of government officials, embassy staffs and businessmen, and there always seems to be a new arrival with ability to take on a new class for instruction in one of the arts. First there were lessons in drawing and painting in soils and water colors. The Fijian, with his rippling muscles and fuzzy hair makes an ideal model — and he can paint, too. A camera school followed; then a ballet school where English and Indian girls are taught side by side.

A singing school was formed and from it developed an amateur orchestra of 20 which played before 1000 people at its first concert. At the start there was little money for the orchestra, and the conductor had to arrange music for each instrument by writing it out by hand. Today there is an orchestra music library of 100 pieces, and the club has bought a concert piano. The drama section of the club continues to flourish. As the club is open to all races, nobody is startled to see a Fijian Hamlet or Julius Caesar, especially as their English usually is good and their theater sense seems to be inborn. Civil engineers, physicians, bank clerks, agricultural officers and housewives all meet together to build scenery, erect lighting, rehearse and perform. What is it that brings them all together to act, dance, and make music? And what brings an audience of many races to watch and listen? Probably it is the magic of the live performance.

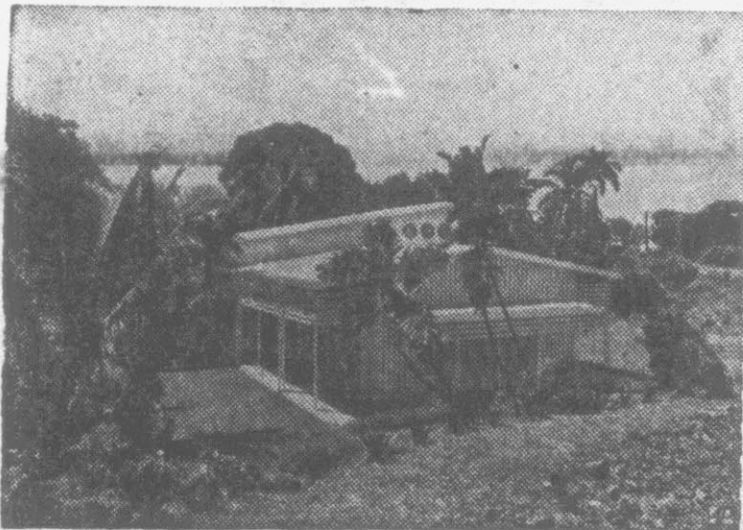

The people of Suva can start their long-playing records; or they can tune in on short wave radio and perhaps hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra or the London Philharmonic. But they will turn off their radios and leave home to hear and see the amateurs of this tropical city. When the last notes of the instrument tuning dies away, the house lights are dimmed, then the conductor's baton is raised, then the ghosts of Mozart, Chopin, and Beethoven walk in the Fijian Club Playhouse, as they do in New York's Carnegie Hall. And what does it matter if not a single violinist holds a Stradivarius?

Eight Persons Die As Taxicab Skids Into Truck

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A taxicab skidded into a truck and careened head-on into a car killing eight persons, including a mother and her baby. The death toll in Wednesday night's accident was believed the largest ever in a single Tennessee traffic accident. Killed were Shirley Dorsey, 30, of Minden, La., and her son, Bradford, 11 months, in one car; and six Chattanooga Negroes riding in the taxi. They were identified as Amos Poole, 44, the driver; Delores Wilson; Nathaniel Bell, 29; Edward Robinson Jr.; Alice Ingram, 31, and Lattie Gamble, 24. Mrs. Dorsey's husband, Carl, 31, was asleep in the back seat of their car at the time of the accident, and survived with undetermined injuries. The driver of the truck, Edward J. Carlson of Bristol, Va., was unhurt.

After the Soviet leader leaves the air, a panel will discuss what Khrushchev has to say.

Mary Pickford Points To Changing Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mary Pickford took time out from her charity work and business investments to peek at her long-loved land of movies. She didn't like what she saw. "The (actors and writers) strikes to the picture industry were almost a death blow," she says. "I grew up with the industry. From the time they were despised flickers until they became the nation's fourth greatest industry. And I have seen it change until now it is only the great pictures which attract the wide, mass audiences of old. "As an industry, I don't look for it to ever come back. Eventually it will melt into TV. But I think television will offer a much greater choice of subject matter in the future than now. "Pay TV will come, too, but there will always be free TV. Pay TV will be great for motion pictures. A producer will be able to make as much in one night as he once did in six months. "A great many of the directors will drop by the wayside in this transition to a different kind of medium for motion pictures. I think the producers will be obliged to go out on a concentrated search for new talent, because so much more of it will be needed." And then Miss Pickford went back to her philanthropies and financeering. "I'm on the phone every day to New York," she says. "I've had three breakfasts get cold on me while I talked. I don't know as much as I'd like about the market. But I'm satisfied with a profit, not in trying for the ultimate maximum." She hesitates to talk about her charity work for fear she might sound publicly conscious. She admits, however, that her interests range from education foundations to a Jewish home for the aged (she's a Gentile) to cancer drives to the Motion Picture Relief Fund. "I had the honor of founding." After a discussion with the Moore-McCormack Line, American agent for the Baltika, the VFW decided to mail a 50-star flag to the ship in care of the line. Lyndon Johnson Going Next Into Richmond, Va.

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson confers today with leaders of the Independent Citizens for Kennedy and Johnson before ending his current campaign tour here on behalf of the Democratic ticket.

Sometime after noon, he will fly to Richmond, Va.

The Democratic vice-presidential candidate went barnstorming in Brooklyn Wednesday, returned to Manhattan to address 400 members of New York's Liberal party then boarded a New Haven Railroad commuter train and conducted a hand-shaking session during the 40-minute run to Greenwich, Conn.

He was cheered by Liberal party leaders and workers after he addressed them at the Hotel Astor. He denounced the GOP as favoring the "privileged few," adding: "Your party believes that all people should be equal before the law, and I do. Your party is for housing, education, Social Security. And I have voted for them every time."

EPISCOPALIANS MOVE

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church has announced plans to build a new $35 million headquarters building two blocks from the United Nations. The present headquarters have been at another New York location since 1894.

"Dealing with young people" is what Joe Smith, principal of Greenville's Junior High School, likes best about his job.

According to Smith, a Greenville native, "you can't beat working with youth and seeing them succeed." Smith said, "Through children it is easier to understand grown-ups." Most children are "pocket editions of their parents," he noted.

Smith, a graduate of Greenville High School, attended East Carolina, then transferred to Wake Forest College where he graduated in 1938.

After teaching in Penick County for a year, he returned to Greenville where he was business manager for his father's medical clinic. He then entered the army and after serving most of a three-year, four-month and 18-day "enlistment" in the Pacific with a finance office of the 37th Infantry, he was discharged a Staff Sergeant in 1945.

After being discharged from the army, Smith returned as general business manager for his father, where he remained until 1956. He returned to East Carolina College for work on his masters degree and was employed by the Greenville City Schools as secretary to the principal at the Junior High School in 1958. When the principal resigned to take a job in Durham in 1959, Smith was made principal of the school, which is composed of seventh and eighth grades and one special education class.

According to the principal, there are 605 students at the school, 305 boys and 300 girls.

Smith's duties include seeing to the upkeep of the building, making reports, conducting teachers meetings, public relations, keeping financial records, and working with the teachers in the planning of programs at the school among other things.

"The thing the school man hates most about his job is the fact that many times there is 'not enough time to complete your work . . . the days scoot by in a hurry.'"

Smith said it makes you "feel real good . . . to see a boy or girl take advice and explanations and then benefit and improve because of it."

He added that he feels "Greenville's Junior High School is a credit to the city—with teachers that are not only capable and efficient but nice people to know."

A member of the Memorial Baptist Church, Smith has been a Deacon in the church, church clerk, and now works in the Junior Department of the Sunday school. He is also a member of the State and National Education Association.

Stamp collecting rates number one in the hobby line while "working in the yard" runs a close second.

In collecting stamps, Smith favors United States issues and likes stamps that have maps on them. Smith married the former Phyllis Shuff of Greenville and they have three boys, ages 12, nine and three.

Tar Heel Demos Seek To Beef Up Voter Strength

WINDSOR, N.C. (AP)—Faced with a serious Republican threat on the West, Tar Heel Democrats are seeking to beef up voter support in the East in an attempt to keep the state Democratic in November.

This was the prevailing mood of the Second Congressional District rally here Wednesday night. Speaker after speaker urged Second District Democrats to work hard and achieve a big vote. Here are some excerpts:

Congressman L. H. Fountain: "We want to get out the Democratic vote this year, a big, tremendous vote. If we in the East do not get out a tremendous vote and give the state and national tickets a tremendous margin, we are in trouble."

Sen. B. Everett Jordan: "I don't mind admitting we've got some trouble in the West and some trouble in the Piedmont. The East has saved us before and we expect it to do it again."

State Treasurer Edwin Gill: "If we do not bring out the vote in the safely Democratic counties and the safely Democratic districts, we will live to regret it."

Another speaker, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., said the crucial issue nationally was what he called the nation's "loss of prestige in the world during the last eight years. It is absolutely imperative to recognize that and change the occupancy of the White House this time," he said.

Fountain and Gill both urged support of the national ticket — John F. Kennedy for president and Lyndon B. Johnson for vice president.

Gubernatorial candidate Terry Sanford spoke briefly, predicting a Democratic sweep. Gill said Sanford was going to make "A great governor."

Seek Dismissal Of Appeal By Strikers' Group

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Counsel for 13 persons convicted in the strife-torn Harriet Henderson textile strike asked Wednesday that an appeal be dismissed. The dismissal was granted in U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeal.

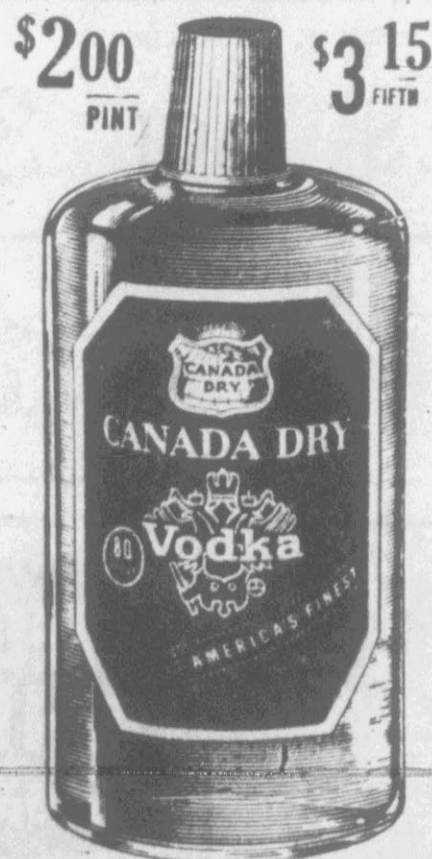

Attorneys said most of the 13 have either been released from prison or were eligible for parole soon, and there would be no benefit in further proceedings. The group, members of the Textile Workers Union of America, contended they were given different treatment as union members on charges of trespass, assault and assault with a deadly weapon. In the appeal, they claimed misdemeanor charges in Vance County, N.C. Recorder's Court were dropped in Court.

The strike, which began in 1958, was marked by periodic outbursts of violence. Andrew Carnegie gave $800 in 1900 to establish the first band at Pennsylvania State University.

EMILY VINSON of Steadman, junior at East Carolina College, will appear as piano soloist during the 1960-61 season with the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra. At East Carolina, Miss Vinson has studied piano for the past two years with Dr. Robert Carter of the music department.

Dust, Trucks On Alaska Highway

By WARD T. SIMS

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—The Alaska Highway actually is like any gravel road in the South 49. It's just bumpier, dustier and infinitely much longer. The dust is the thing that gets you during the summer. Each passing vehicle sets up a dust storm of its own. It blows up in dense clouds. It cuts your vision to a few feet. It seeps into the car, irritating your eyes, nose and mouth, and invading every package or piece of luggage. Then it settles down to the road again, waiting to be stirred up all over again.

Order Re-Write For Regulation

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Maryland's Legislative Council has ordered a rewrite job on a bill aimed at giving the State Health Department power to regulate bathing beaches and swimming pools. Delegate Marvin Mandel of Baltimore questioned a section that said regulations would include any body of water maintained for bathing purposes in conjunction with a private residence and used only by members of the household and occasional guests.

Truck drivers — nice guys or monsters with horns? While traveling, you're positive each truck is driven by a little man with horns and a forked tail whose main object in life is to 1) run you down, 2) force you off the road into a bottomless canyon or 3) blind you with flying rocks from his wheels. Then, at night in a roadside restaurant, you discover the big, friendly guy eating next to you is a truck driver and he's advising you about the swell cafe up the road a hundred miles or so with a Hungarian refugee cook.

The Frazer River Canyon highway in British Columbia, once a terror, now is a cake walk. A friend who drives the canyon highway frequently used to tell how his wife mixed a big batch of martinis for her thermos jug before each passage over the winding, twisting, narrow road, to bolster her nerve. Now, for most of its length, the canyon highway is good for 50 or 60 miles per hour, a real breeze. The Alaska Highway actually starts at Dawson Creek, B. C. The city is "milepost zero." From Dawson Creek north each mile is marked by a small white sign to the right of the road, the highway mileposts. The farther you travel, the more slowly they seem to slip by. At Mile 130, a big cow moose stands motionless on a sideroad, watching you go by with baleful eyes. Infrequently, small red signs atop white, square posts memorialize fatal traffic accidents: "Two Killed Here 1957" No names. No details. They're not available. Everyone has forgotten except those who cared or lived. At Mile 241, two Indian women sit on a log in the brush by the side of the road, their features impassive through the dust. One is old and white-haired, dressed in a drab, long dress. The other is young, dressed in jeans and a light jacket. Her long, black hair frames an intense face. Their gaze follows your car out of sight. There are no houses or other vehicles in sight. You wonder where they came from, what they are doing, where they are going.

At Mile 275 an overturned truck lies grotesquely on its cab and its load of machinery. The driver is gone. What happened? When? Was anyone killed? Did anyone get hurt? There is no one around to answer. At Mile 868, a car and house trailer bearing Colorado license plates passes you, kicking up gravel and dust and bumps give way passing — a round hole in your windshield, with a crack running

John L. Lewis Day For United Mine Workers

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Today is John L. Lewis' day at the United Mine Workers convention. Lewis, now 80, quit his 40-year rule as UMW president earlier this year. He has stayed away from UMW convention sessions to give the spotlight to his successor, Thomas Kennedy.

But Lewis was scheduled to deliver today what could be his swan song to the miners' union. At the same time Kennedy indicated the UMW will remain neutral in the presidential campaign, despite the many Democratic and Republican endorsements the union has made in congressional and state contests. Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee, arrived here Wednesday night for a day of campaigning in the Cincinnati area. But UMW President Kennedy said he had no plans to visit the Democratic contender or to invite him to attend the UMW convention. It was reported that supporters of Sen. Kennedy specifically asked the UMW to give their man a chance to speak to the miners' delegates, but that the request was turned down.

He Remembers Chasing Stalin

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP)—John Samosky, 76-year-old tailor, claims the distinction of once having chased Joseph Stalin. Samosky, who left Russia in 1919, was born in Lithuania in 1894 and was drafted into the Russian army at the age of 21. On the morning of Sept. 5, 1907, as a lieutenant, he commanded an infantry company which he says fired on Stalin's gang, being sought for a $150,000 bank wagon hold-up. Stalin escaped.

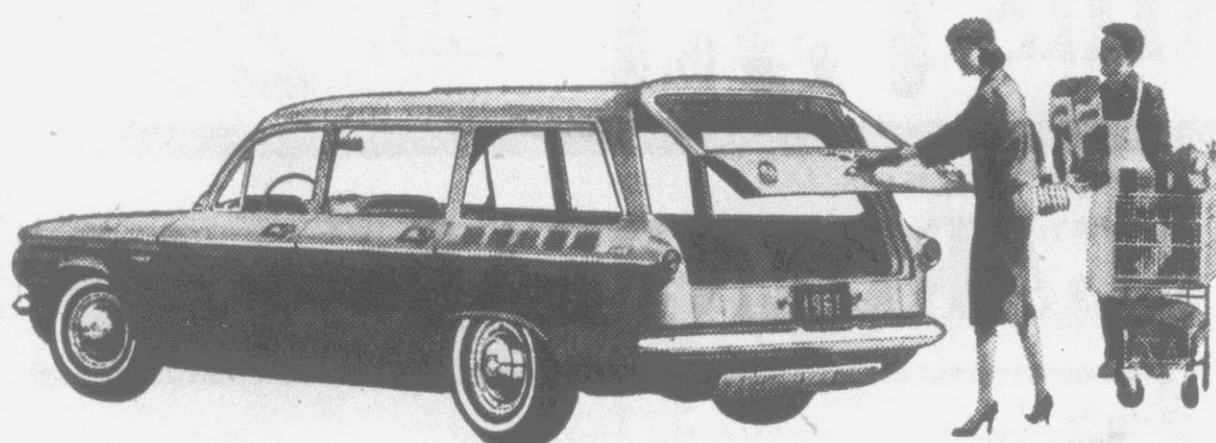

Bad Luck Comes In Triple Doses

GREEN RIVER, Wyo. (AP)—George Vegos is convinced trouble comes in triple doses. He went to the hospital to visit his son, Charles. He became violently ill, was rushed to a hospital in Ogden, Utah, suffering from toxic poisoning from a weed killer spray. Mrs. Vegos, meantime, selling poppies for charity here, fell and struck her head on concrete. A doctor stitched up the rash. There are about 7,000 miles of navigable canals and rivers in France.

Gets Road Term For Shooting

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—Alfred Ray Holder, 31-year-old ex-convict, was sentenced to 12 months on the roads here Wednesday on charges brought by the mother of his 15-year-old girl friend. Holder, of Rt. 3, Kernersville, was sentenced in Municipal Court to six months for attempting to shoot the girl's mother, Mrs. H.B. Morgan, and an additional six months for damaging the Morgan home. Authorities said Holder is under two-year suspended sentence for burglary in Forsyth County.

Sheriff's officers and bloodhounds tracked down Holder and his girl friend, Effie Bernice Morgan, shortly before midnight Tuesday. The couple had fled the Morgan home when Mrs. Morgan found them there. Mrs. Morgan told police Holder fired a .22 rifle at her when she found them in her home Tuesday afternoon. She also said Holder damaged property in the house at Colfax. Officers said after the mother came home the girl left willingly with Holder, and police were called to look for them.

General Believes Army Must Find Its Own Planes

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—The inability of supersonic jets to strafe and bomb pinpoint targets is worrying Army leaders, the Army Aviation Director said Wednesday. Brig. Gen. Clifton F. von Kamm said in the next 10 years the Army must spend hundreds of millions of dollars on airplanes built to perform jobs for which Air Force jets are inadequate. Von Kamm, here for the fourth Army Aviation Conference, said the jets go too fast to be able to spot and destroy small targets. He said the Army will have to replace practically all its 6,400 aircraft during the next 10 years because "our present fleet is getting pretty old and tired."

He said he doesn't foresee any clash with the Air Force over expansion of Army aviation.

Nixon In Tennessee Today After Philadelphia Crowd

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon dips into the South today afloat a cloud of enthusiasm steamed up by the presidential campaign's biggest turnout in Philadelphia Wednesday night.

The Republican presidential nominee displayed new confidence in the outcome of his contest with his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, as he waded into the doubtful border state of Tennessee.

Here he had a date at Memorial Square before taking off for Cleveland, Ohio. There Kennedy's street crowds of 250,000 had been tops until Nixon drew somewhere around a police-estimated 500,000 in Philadelphia, which used to be Republican but has been Democratic in recent years.

A crowd which left about 3,000 empty seats in Philadelphia's 14,000-seat Convention Hall—scene of many national conventions—made up in stamping enthusiasm what it lacked in numbers.

There is no denying, however, that Nixon had scored a 10-strike in Philadelphia, with its 32 electoral votes.

On the more than 12-mile ride from the airport, where he landed in the late afternoon, the Republican presidential nominee was seen by more people than have turned out any time previously in the campaign.

Not all of them were supporters. There were many Kennedy Johnson signs and many shouts from the opposition ticket.

But when his motorcade reached a spot near the University of Pennsylvania, surging students stopped it by main force.

While a cheer leader swung precariously from atop a red-and-green flashing traffic signal, Nixon talked some of the language the students seemed to understand.

Before him were signs demanding to know "Where's Checkers?" This was the dog he mentioned on a broadcast in 1952 when he defended, as the vice presidential nominee, his acceptance as a senator of an $18,000 expense fund.

But the Philadelphia crowds were generally enthusiastic for him.

The Pennsylvania welcome was doubly satisfactory to the vice president after a day in New York that found some of those who listened to his standard campaign speech not so responsive as they have been elsewhere.

Nixon told New York listeners that he talks the same way about civil rights in the North and South. But he said his opponents "talk out of both corners of their mouths" on the issue.

This was true, he said, because Kennedy and his running mate, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, do not see eye-to-eye on civil rights.

Today Klein told newsmen that the vice president had withdrawn the statement attributed to Johnson.

"As far as I am aware," Klein said, "the accuracy of the quotation has never been publicly questioned."

The press secretary went on to quote Pearson as attributing these additional words to Johnson: "However, I am a reasonable man. I hope this convention will write a plank that is acceptable to the North and that the South can live with it."

Nixon said in his Philadelphia speech that the Republicans had "initiated in 1957 the first civil rights law enacted in 80 years."

He did not mention that Northern Democrats had provided the margin of congressional votes for enactment of this statute, Johnson has contended that no law would have been passed but for his efforts as Senate majority leader.

"I am proud to say that I have a running mate who will stand with me instead of against me on this issue," Nixon said.

The vice president, however, eliminated from his Philadelphia speech a quotation attributed to Johnson about civil rights.

The quotation was included in prepared excerpts which Nixon's press aides had released earlier in New York. It quoted Johnson as having said: "I am not now and never have been an advocate of civil rights. I don't think I ever will be."

Nixon's press secretary, Herbert G. Klein, said the source of the quote was a column written by Drew Pearson. He said the column was published in March, 1960, and that it "referred to an incident which Pearson said took place during the 1956 Democratic national convention."

"When I called the source of the quotation to the attention of the vice president before he delivered his speech," Klein said, "he decided to eliminate this quotation from his remarks and instructed me to inform the press that he would not, in these circumstances, include the reference to Sen. Johnson in his delivered remarks."

The excerpts were given newspapermen in New York and many of them wrote their morning paper stories on the basis they would be delivered in Philadelphia. Just after the excerpts were handed out Klein was asked where and when Johnson was alleged to have made the statement. Klein investigated and released the elimination statement in Philadelphia.

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A look at medicine finds good health not so widespread as it might be and ribs used to help repair deformed faces:
Sicker Than We Think
Americans apparently are not so healthy as generally thought. There are more minor illnesses and days of being below par, than has been suspected.

This is indicated, at least, by 10 scientists who kept careful records upon themselves for nine months, beginning in the fall.

On average, they were free of some symptoms of minor illness only 45 per cent of all that time. The 10 suffered 45 bouts of upper respiratory ailments.

But they averaged only 1 1/2 days absence from their jobs. This suggests absenteeism records don't accurately reflect the extent of minor illnesses, at least among persons who like their work, says the report in the American Review of Respiratory Diseases.

Wine As Medicine
Drinking a dry, white wine helped patients overcome one after-effect of surgery in which part of the stomach is removed because of ulcers or cancer. These persons no longer could absorb fats from their food normally, and this caused pain, indigestion, and sometimes far more serious complications. The wine boosted ability to utilize essential food fats reports Dr. Theodore L. Althausen University of California Medical School.

Ribs for Repair
The 4-year-old boy was so ashamed of his deformed face that he hid in a closet rather than face other youngsters in a hospital ward.

He's one of a number of children whose faces since have been rebuilt by using ribs taken from the youngsters' own chest cages. If care is taken not to damage the membrane surrounding the rib, the rib grows back again, and can even be used repeatedly in step-by-step plastic surgery to repair defects. Drs. J. J. Longacre, G. A. deStefano and Kaj Holmstrand of Cincinnati report.

Skin Spoiler
Carbon paper is not uncommon as a cause of allergic skin rashes, particularly among secretaries and stenographers, a medical journal says. Patch-tests easily can show if carbon paper is causing the trouble.

Tooth Grinders
Tooth bruxism one of your bad habits? That means habitual grinding, clenching or clicking of the teeth, even when you're not aware of it, or during sleep. Most people do this to some extent, and it's a cause of abnormal wear and erosion of teeth, and recessing bleeding or inflammation of gums, says Dr. Samuel C. Nadler, Forest Hills, N.Y., dentist in the Journal of the American Dental Assn. He urges dentists to help patients detect and overcome bruxism.

Bandits Posed As Policemen

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—A search for three bandits who posed as police officers and hijacked motorists has switched to Mexico.

Among the victims were Thad L. Stevens and Clarence E. Lemmons, both of Greenville, S.C., who were driving toward California. The bandits fled in Stevens' ivory and red Dodge station wagon, but it was found later.

El Paso County Sheriff Bob Bailey said, "We believe we have the three bottled up in Juarez, just across the border from El Paso."

The bandits stopped four cars on a lonely stretch of U.S. 62-180 early Wednesday and robbed the travelers. One woman was raped by one of the robbers. Other motorists were beaten and left bound on a roadside pasture.

Bailey said the car stolen from Stevens was found Wednesday in El Paso near a bridge to Juarez.

The robberies occurred about 40 miles east of El Paso in open range country. One of the victims freed himself, made his way to the highway and summoned help.

The victims said their attackers approached from the rear in a car equipped with a siren and spotlight. The leader wore a policeman's cap.

Bailey said there is a connection between the high-jackings that occurred near El Paso and similar ones reported in Arizona, California and other Texas points.

CONDEMN NATO
TOKYO (AP)—Communist China and the rebel government of Algeria today said they sternly "condemn the governments of the NATO countries, principally that of the United States," for supporting France in Algeria. The joint communique, signed by visiting rebel Premier Ferhat Abbas and Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, was issued in Peking.

Soviet Premier Seems To Be Losing Bounce

By JOHN SCALI
NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev is finally beginning to slow down after waging a day-and-night propaganda offensive against the West for the past 17 eventful days.

The 68-year-old Soviet premier seems to have lost some of the bounce pep that has made him communism's No. 1 salesman.

He is grimly pressing ahead with his one-man crusade. But the pace is beginning to tell on even his robust physique.

Wednesday night for the first time since arriving here he showed definite signs of being tired. He cracked fewer jokes, shook fewer hands and bragged less about the virtues of communism as he moved—just a bit slower than usual—through three diplomatic receptions.

His normally pink complexion seemed less ruddy. Security and other aides hovered around him solicitously as he limited himself to 20-minute stops at an Indian and Cambodian reception.

He wound up with a 45-minute stay at a Communist Romanian get-together. But instead of circulating through the crowd, he spent most of the time in a side room conferring privately with his European satellite chiefs.

Khrushchev is known to have some health problems. But there seems to be nothing wrong with him now except that he's tucked out from jamming his schedule with some 25 private conferences, trips to about 20 diplomatic cocktail parties and about a dozen free-wheeling sessions with reporters.

In between, he has hustled back and forth to the United Nations to lead the Soviet delegation every day in the international debate. His appearances during the past few days have been brief.

Top American officials have long felt that Khrushchev's love for personal diplomacy in far-off places was beginning to sap his energy. It takes him a little longer to bounce back after each trip, they believe.

Even though he's slowing down, Khrushchev and his aides are guarding his departure date like the secret to the Soviet Union's success in rocketry. There are clues which hint he might leave about the middle of next week.

Some satellite delegations, which have acted as his personal cheering claque, hinted Wednesday night they might leave about that time.

For the third successive weekend, Khrushchev is planning to rest up at the big Soviet mansion in Glen Cove, Long Island. He might leave for this retreat Friday, instead of Saturday as he has in the past, an aide said.

Khrushchev made it clear Wednesday night he is not discouraged at the lack of Soviet diplomatic victories since he has been personally masterminding Soviet strategy in New York.

"Nothing has been decided," he said. "We have a Russian proverb which says the nightingale never sleeps."

Khrushchev didn't say whether he considered himself communism's nightingale. But Wednesday night he went to bed at 10:45 p.m.

Still Infected By Lion's Bite

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Doctors sought today to determine the cause of a lingering infection after Philip Berkes Jr., 38, who was bitten on the finger by a lion while visiting a zoo Sept. 24, had more of his left arm amputated.

Berkes Wednesday had his arm amputated near the shoulder at Montgomery Hospital. The lower part of the arm was amputated last Saturday.

The area of Maryland is 10,577 square miles, of which 690 square miles are inland water surface.

Pushed 'Copter Up To Station

BOUNTIFUL, Utah (AP)—Two men casually pushed a helicopter up to the pumps at Neil Richins gas station here Wednesday and ordered him to "fill 'er up."

It took 31 gallons, but they flew away without offering to pay.

Richins said the men—he didn't get their names—told him they were en route from Idaho to Texas on a crop-dusting job.

Left Standing In His Underwear

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—William Bailey, 38, a former policeman, went to the drugstore to get some cough medicine Wednesday night.

When he left the store a man stuck a gun in his back, took $1,100 from him and made him remove his clothes.

Bailey was left standing in his underwear.

FENCE FIGURES—Werner Kohler, an engineer in Stuttgart, Germany, saw these figures painted on a fence and waited for a pedestrian to pass to make the picture complete. It appears in the 1961 Photography Annual.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Some photographers are just button pushers; others think while taking pictures. There are still others who do a lot of thinking after they're through shooting. Martin P. Ostergaard, a freelance industrial photographer, evidently is in the latter category.

Seven years ago he took some picture at a plant in which watch cleaning was done by an ultrasonic process. He began to think of how the principle could be applied to photography. He reasoned that ultrasonics would provide film agitation without surface oxidation which is present with other methods of agitation.

His experiments proved, at least to his satisfaction, that electronic agitation would provide more precise control and better results in the development of film and X-rays. He worked out a device that provides ultrasonic vibration by electronic generators and ceramic transducers. The process provides film with finer grain and increases its speed up to 10 times its normal rate, according to Ostergaard.

His claims are backed up with the recent issuance of patent number 2,945,760. The process has been given no name as yet. Just keep your electronic eye peeled for it in the near future.

For compression, we have news from the Photokina at Cologne, Germany. The first demonstration took place there of Polaroid's new film which has compressed the time necessary to make finished pictures from 60 to 10 seconds. It's available first in the 3000 speed film, type 47. Ultimately all films for "picture-in-a-minute" cameras will produce pictures in 10 seconds.

There is some latitude about the timing. Pictures left longer will be acceptable but more contrasty. If they are removed one or two seconds too soon, the prints are likely to be faint or uneven.

News on the miniature side comes from home movie reflector lamps. The newest member of that family is a 200 watt G-E R-20 whose ASA code name is DAN. It is half the size of present R-30 reflector flood lamps, gives almost the same amount of light and lasts just as long—four hours.

The next step will be smaller, more convenient and less expensive movie light bars. G-E engineers showed likely types of a two-lamp and a four-lamp bar and it was predicted that home movie fans could easily carry the smaller lights along with the camera on future travel trips.

Two DANs give a guide number of 22 with 16 ASA color film at distances up to nine feet. A four-lamp light on a bar which measured only 12 inches wide, gives a guide number of 32 up to a 12-foot distance.

The compact two-lamp units seemed fairly versatile. They could be used individually, coupled or separately with one pair on the camera and another off to one side as a side light. Extension cords connect extra units and only one wall outlet connection is needed.

The note on automation is echoed with the latest Bell & Howell slide projector. A camera fan becomes a real armchair general with one of these gadgets. With a remote control unit in his hand he can focus his slides by pressing a button. It sends the lens forward or back as needed. He also changes the slides or can reverse the sequence and recall slides. Finally he can activate a beam of light as a pointer-ray to call attention to details or point out individuals in a group.

The item on simplification refers to the view finder in Yashica's new 35mm camera, the Lynx. All the shooting controls are centered there so that a photographer can keep his eye glued to the finder and keep shooting. He composes his pictures in the "parallel-corrected" bright frame. He focuses with the range-finder which is coupled in the viewfinder. And he sets the proper exposure by

Tuneful And Relaxed Evening For Viewer

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Television certainly gave you a tuneful, relaxed evening of viewing Wednesday night with both Perry Como and Bing Crosby brightening up the tube.

Crosby's first ABC special of the season was much like his pleasant, easy shows of last year. He and his guest stars, Rosemary Clooney, Johnny Mercer and his three younger sons did a lot of singing. There was some fine dancing by Carol Lawrence, a minimum of dialogue, and—highlight of the show—a trick sequence with three Bing Crosby's appearing simultaneously on the screen, singing and talking together.

Earlier, "My Sister Eileen" — a situation comedy series in this incarnation — made its bow on CBS.

Bright and brash Elaine Stritch makes an ideal co-heroline Ruth and pretty Shirley Bonne, a newcomer to show business, does nicely as sweet, innocent Eileen. If the writers don't stray too far from Ruth McKenny's original, this ought to do very nicely.

Because of the conflict with "My Sister Eileen," I saw only the second half of the Perry Como Show. It seemed a little brighter and sharper than last year, and even the presence of both Fabian and Frankie Avalon didn't do much damage. Ethel Merman, as usual, was great. Welcome back, Mr. C.

Herbert G. Klein, press secretary to Vice President Richard M. Nixon, said Wednesday that the Republican candidate is quite happy—contrary to report — with the present system of questioning used in the first face-to-face TV appearance of Nixon and John F. Kennedy. That consists of posing a question to one candidate, who answers, followed by the opponent or rebuttal of his opponent.

Klein also said that, although neither candidate is too happy about the prospect of having a nation separate them during their third encounter next week, it currently seems impossible to readjust schedules so they can turn up in the same studio. Nixon will be in Los Angeles on Oct. 13, Kennedy in New York. It is planned to use a split-screen technique, three different studios (the panel of questioners will be seated in a second Los Angeles studio) and the whole thing will involve very tricky electronic coordination.

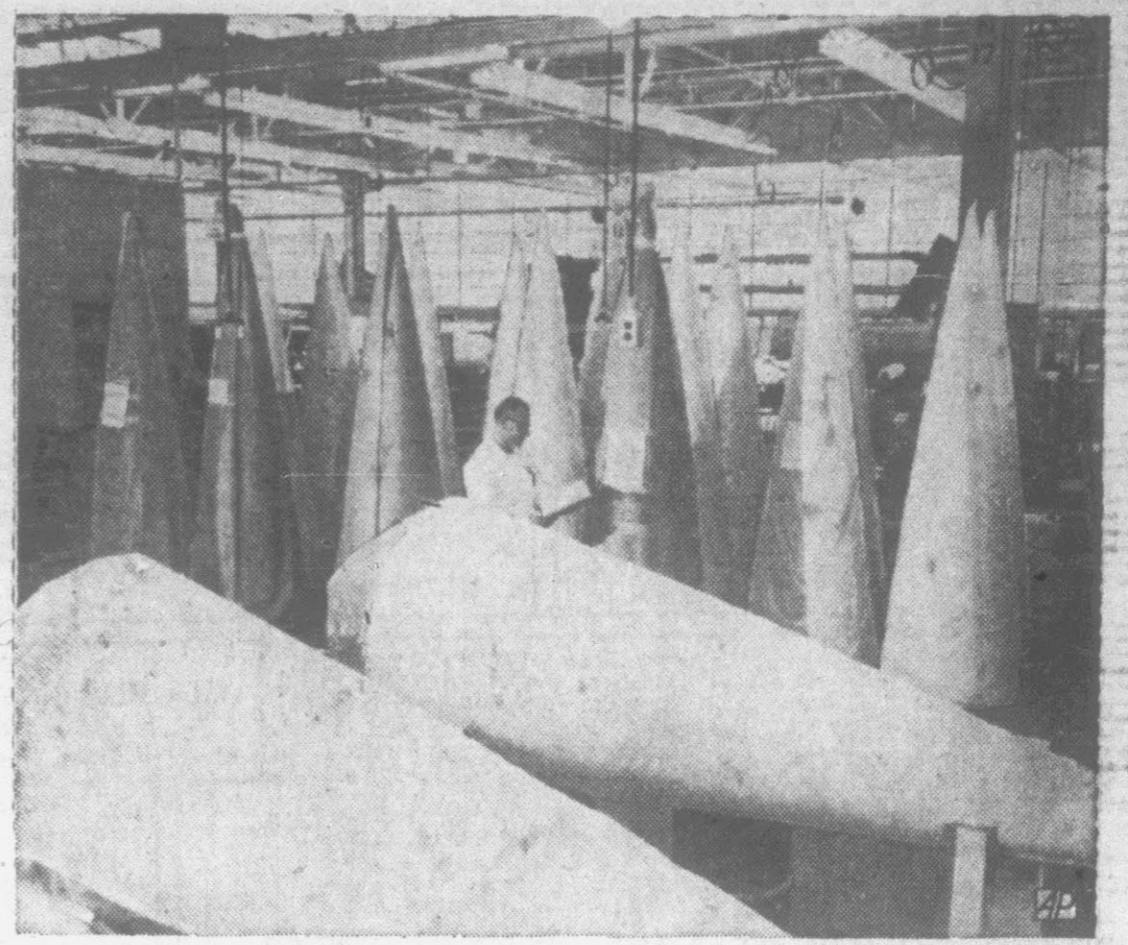

All of a sudden, Miami is very big as the background for who-dunnit—either a TV fact or Hollywood is running out of back-grounds. There's "Surfside 6" and "Michael Shayne," both new private-eye sagas set in Florida's gold coast, and upcoming is another, "Miami Undercover."

Zsa Zsa Gabor will play herself — what else? — on the Oct. 31 Danny Thomas Show.

Hodges Employs 'Soft Sell' In Chicago Address

CHICAGO (AP) — Employing the soft-sell technique, North Carolina Gov. Luther Hodges sought today to convince Chicago industrialists to look to his state when they contemplate moving or expanding their holdings.

After discussing North Carolina's advantages in transportation, climate, tax structure, education, recreation and culture, Hodges said:

"We lay no claim to the exclusive possession of these elements. There are other states that challenge us in some categories. We do feel, however, that the combination of advantages offered in North Carolina is unique, and it is this combination that we submit for your consideration."

Hodges and 85 other North Carolina business leaders are here on another of his good will missions to attract new industry to North Carolina. It was his second visit to the Chicago area.

His remarks were made at a luncheon for local business and industrial leaders. The session was sponsored by the independent telephone companies of North Carolina.

Urging State To Implement Plan

RALEIGH—The State Medical Society through its president, Amos N. Johnson, M.D., Garland, is urging the State of North Carolina to implement the program for medical care of the aging made possible by recent federal legislation passed as part of the Social Security Amendments of 1960.

The Executive Council of the Medical Society of the State of North Carolina, meeting in Southern Pines, this week passed a resolution urging the State to "take such steps as may be necessary to utilize the benefits of such legislation to the extent necessary to meet the needs of the aged citizens of North Carolina. Dr. Johnson as transmitted a copy of the resolution by letter to Governor Luther Hodges.

The 85th Congress of the United States amended the Social Security Act to provide grants-in-aid to the various states for furnishing certain medical assistance to the citizens above 65 years of age. This legislation was early endorsed and supported by the State Medical Society in North Carolina as well as by other State Medical Societies throughout the country. Participation in the program must be initiated by the various states.

In its resolution the State Medical Society's Executive Council stated that it "empowers, authorizes, and requests the Society's Committee on Chronic Illness to offer its services and to consult with and assist the State of North Carolina and its appropriate agencies in the formulation and implementation of such plans and policies as may be necessary to utilize the benefits of such Federal legislation."

Gains of most key stocks went from fractions to a point or more. Some advances of 2 or 3 points were posted.

The upward drive petered out with prices shading their best figures.

Autos, mail order-retails, air-crafts, oils, drugs and tobaccos joined in the advance.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.60 to 207.50 with the industrials up 3.00, the rails up .30 and the utilities up .50.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 6.62 to 585.50. Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds declined.

Bethel Building Vehicle Shelter

BETHEL — Construction of a building to house town vehicles approved this week by the Bethel Board of Aldermen, Walter Gray, Public Works superintendent, was authorized to begin the work.

Mayor Clifton Everett said the board took the action at their monthly meeting. The proposed building will house the rescue truck as well as other town equipment and vehicles. The shelter will be located on town property behind City Hall.

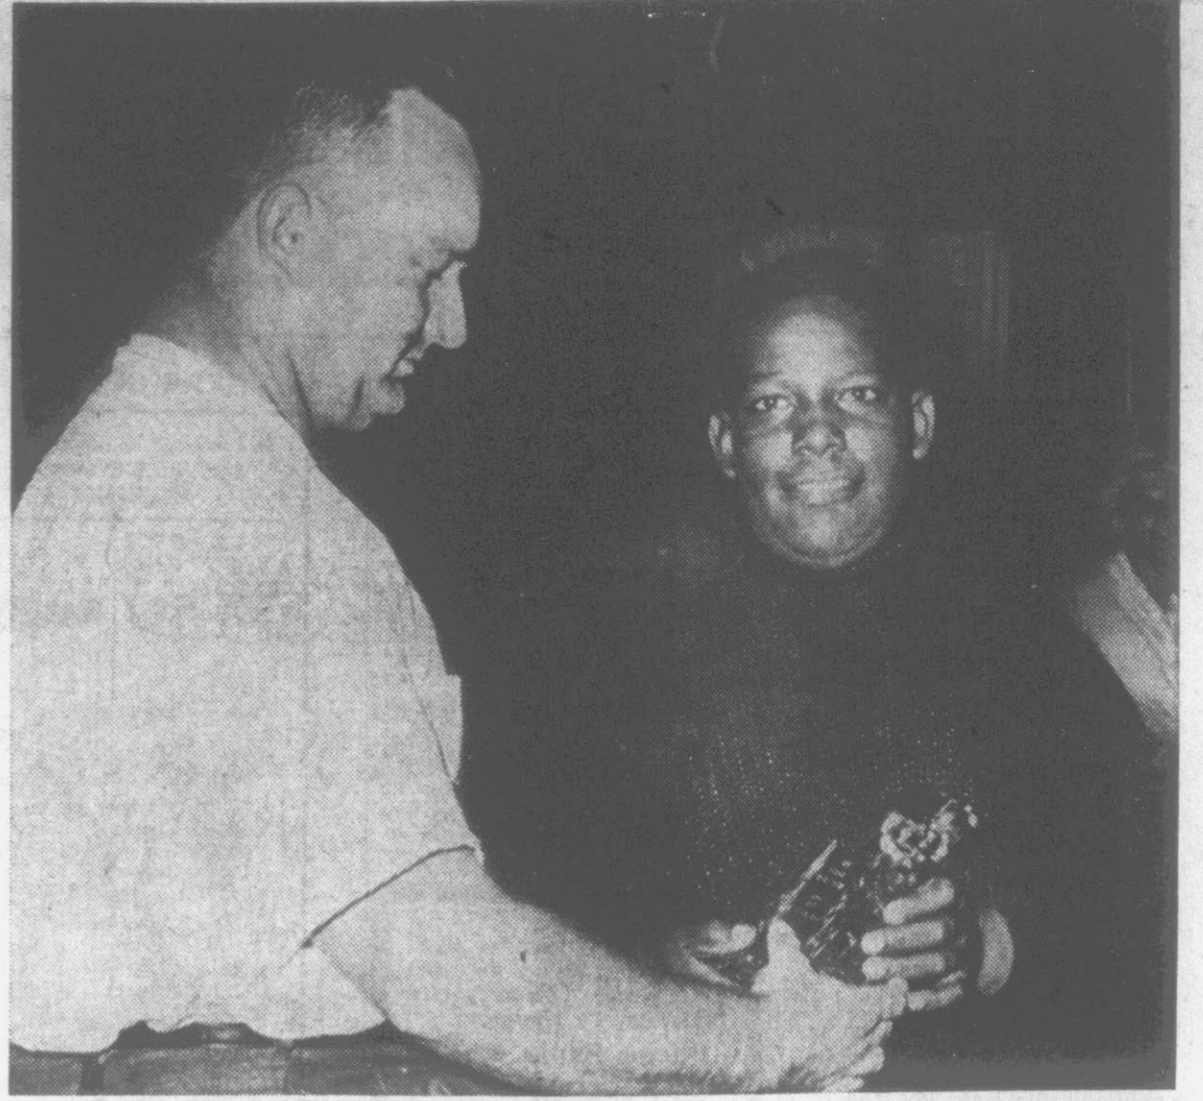

The board appointed Mayor Everett and Alderman Joe Butterworth as delegates to the League of Municipalities Convention which convenes in Charlotte Oct. 9 and continues through Oct. 11.

Members also heard a report from Fire Chief George Abeyoumis on the progress of the rescue squad and the fire department, which are under his supervision. The quarterly report showed the fire department in "excellent condition," Mayor Everett said.

Members of the rescue squad of Bethel will be trained by the Greenville Rescue Unit members, under the direction of Roy Hardee.

About two blocks of resturfacing on Carson Street from Whitehurst Street westward was approved by board members. The work is to be undertaken immediately.

In other business, town bills were paid.

Council Meeting Agenda Readied

Subdivision ordinance changes, a report on Fred Webb, Inc. Grain Elevator and a VEPCO agreement change are among items on tonight's City Council agenda.

The council holds its regular monthly meeting at 8 o'clock in City Hall.

A report on the alleged dust problem created by Fred Webb, Inc. Grain Elevator on N. Greene St. heads the agenda.

The VEPCO interchange agreement amendment concerns facilities for taking increased power from VEPCO lines.

The subdivision ordinance change would require a data sheet with plats as they come to the city for approval.

Councilmen will also hear a report on the bond issue program, a report from the City Attorney on election procedure and they will consider revoking Charles David Gladson's taxi franchise.

Lawyer Welch Suddenly Dies

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP)—Joseph N. Welch, Army counsel in the Army-McCarthy hearings, died unexpectedly today at Cape Cod Hospital of a heart condition.

Welch, known as a lawyer's lawyer, gained national prominence as special counsel for the Army in its 1954 wrangle with the late U.S. Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

Welch, who had been living quietly at his secluded Cape Cod home for the past few years, was hospitalized at Hyannis with a heart condition early in September.

Until the Army-McCarthy hearings put his face—and his wry, sometimes devastating wit—on the nation's television screens, Welch was little known outside legal circles. But among lawyers, he was considered one of the best.

Colleagues said he was a lawyer — one who frequently was called by other attorneys and law firms for consultation on their cases.

In 1959, Welch moved from the courtroom to the movie set, to portray the judge in the film "Anatomy of a Murder." He appeared on television periodically, taking part in discussion programs.
