Chief Forester Addresses Local Safety Council

AT SAFETY COUNCIL MEET . . . Moore, Claridge, Greenville Fire Chief George Gardner and Brooks talk fire prevention.

Eastern N. C. Said One Of 'Weathervane' Hazardous Fire Sections Vote On China Is Drawing Near

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer Eastern North Carolina has the "most hazardous condition" of any place in the United States except for Southern California for forest fires.

in inaccessible areas where men and equipment cannot be moved rapidly.

The majority of the trouble is caused by man, Claridge said. He stated that of the 3,000 fires in a normal year in the state, 39 per cent are started from debris burning by land owners.

Claridge, who told the group of the state's forest fire program, commented that an official of the U. S. Forest Service, who inspected North Carolina facilities recently, said that the conditions in the eastern section of the state were the most hazardous conditions found in the nation with the exception of Southern California.

Claridge explained the statement by saying that in the eastern counties, and especially in Hyde, Tyrrell and surrounding counties, peat in the soil causes fires to burn underground, as well as burning the timber above ground.

The first step in the state's fire protection system is detection, Claridge noted. There are 144 look-out towers located over the state, he commented, and range in height from 40 feet in the mountains to 120 feet in the east.

Three light planes are also used in detecting fires, "particularly after thunderstorms, to detect lightning fires," Claridge pointed out.

The Forester emphasized that lightning accounts for only one per cent of all fires in North Carolina but they are the most difficult to fight because they are usually in inaccessible areas where men and equipment cannot be moved rapidly.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly pushed toward a critical East-West showdown vote on Red China today amid rising Western concern over the position of new African nations who may hold the key to the outcome.

Heralding a bitter struggle to be waged on the floor tonight, Nationalist China denounced the Red Peiping regime as the world's "greatest menace to international peace and security" and predicted its downfall in violent revolution.

Nationalist Chinese Ambassador T. F. Tsiang leveled this charge in the general policy debate. Discussion of whether Red China's claim to membership should be taken up in full-dress debate resumes at an evening session and question of placing the matter on the assembly's agenda is approaching a weathervane vote.

Worries of the Western Allies are centered about neutralist and African-Asian disappointment at the United States over U.S. maneuvers heading off a resolution seeking a U.S.-Soviet summit. Soviet Premier Khrushchev and his Communist bloc, quick to take advantage of this turn, are courting the Africans with attacks on the United States keyed to charges of discrimination against Negroes.

Bloxam To End Dual Role, Leaving City Managership

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Reflector City Editor Leonard P. Bloxam will return to a full-time Utilities superintendent position and the municipal government will find a new city manager.

The change is the result of City Council action last night at the request of Utilities Commission chairman Charles O'H. Horne.

In approving a motion granting the Utilities chairman's request, Mayor S. Eugene West asked that the council include the stipulation that "there be no rush."

Horne had said that this would be agreeable with the commission. Thus Bloxam will continue in the dual capacities until a new city manager is hired. This could take several months, since the city has to call for applications and then review them.

The request and decision to split up Bloxam's job came as a surprise. There has been no mention of it at the Utilities Commission's regular monthly meetings held the second Tuesday night in each month.

Unanimous Decision However, Chairman Horne told the Daily Reflector this morning the decision was a "unanimous thing" with the commission. "I was sent up there as a representative of the Utilities Commission," he said.

Horne said the commission has not taken any official action at a regular meeting as yet. "I don't know that any official action is actually necessary," he stated. Bloxam, who was originally hired as Utilities superintendent, was loaned to the city, Horne stated.

The chairman said the commission members had talked informally about the matter. "There is no definite time that we could pick out and say we decided on it. We became aware of this thing over a long period of time."

"I want to say that this is one of those things that we hate to put the city to, but we feel very strongly that we need a full-time superintendent. I want the city and the people to understand that it is nothing that Mr. Bloxam has failed to do. We are just growing bigger."

"We are anxious to continue the cooperation we have had over the past four years. There is no doubt in my mind that complete cooperation between the two units is the best way."

Mayor West told the council following Horne's request. "I realized for the past year or so that in view of the fact that Greenville was growing this was eventually going to have to happen. I didn't expect it to happen quite this quickly."

"For my part, I assure you that I hate to lose you from the operation as you've carried it," the mayor told Bloxam. Other councilmen expressed their regrets about the change.

Councilman W.S. Stafford made the motion to grant Chairman Horne's request.

Councilman Wesley Harvey said, "I reluctantly second it." (Continued on page sixteen)

Lake Urges N. C. Demos To Repudiate Some Of Planks

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP)—Ralph attorney I. Beverly Lake has called for repudiation of certain portions of the national Democratic platform to keep Republican-leaning Far Heel Democrats in the fold this November.

Lake, defeated last spring in a bitter gubernatorial runoff primary won by Terry Sanford, requested the state's Democrats to oppose enactment of legislation which violates what he called principals of the North Carolina party's platform.

Speaking at a First Congressional District rally here Thursday night, Lake said thousands of citizens were speaking of voting against Democratic candidates. It was no answer to tell these people, "The Republican party platform is just as bad," cautioned Lake.

He said, "We can and we must make a far better answer than that to the North Carolina Democrat, who, in despair, is looking towards the Republican party. Our answer should be this:

"The Democrats of North Carolina met in Raleigh in May and there adopted the platform upon which we stand. Insofar as it differs from the national platform, we repudiate the national platform."

"We have nominated in this district and throughout the state for our senators, congressmen and legislators men who have already demonstrated their faith in the principles of Thomas Jefferson and North Carolina, and who will stand in opposition to legislation which violates these principles."

Lake and Sanford shared top billing with other party leaders who appeared on the platform before about 1,000 cheering Democrats.

Sanford, noting that Lake joined the party's fall campaign efforts, called him "a good man and a good Democrat."

Lake cautioned, "It is not the church affiliation of the Democratic candidate for the presidency that is the principle source of the serious difficulty which confronts our party in North Carolina today. . . ."

"The threat stems from the fear of our people that the national leadership of our party has fallen into the hands of men and women who are not committed to the principles of government, society and economics in which North Carolina has progressed under Democratic leadership."

Hodges Suggests Comparing Points

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Gov. Luther Hodges acknowledged at his news conference today that "quite a few people in North Carolina aren't too happy about the Democratic platform." But he suggested they compare it with the Republican platform, particularly regarding civil rights.

Hodges was asked for comment on remarks made Thursday night by Dr. I. Beverly Lake at Williamston, who suggested North Carolina Democrats repudiate parts of the national platform as a means of keeping party members from voting Republican.

He predicted the state will go Democratic, although "we will not have the majority we normally had before Eisenhower was running." He said the Democrats have "complications" in the race with Nixon, but declined to elaborate.

He was short when asked to comment on recommendations for a state civil service system by Robert L. Gavin, GOP candidate for governor. Hodges called it "the efforts of a desperate candidate to find an issue on which he can agree with himself."

On the national ticket, for which Hodges heads a businessmen's drive backing Kennedy, the governor said he only hopes the Massachusetts senator doesn't build to his peak of strength too fast before the election.

Hodges will address a businessmen's group here tonight.

The governor said he had not read Lake's remarks since he just returned from an industry-hunting trip to Chicago. But he noted that while the Democratic platform sets 1963 as a target date for school desegregation plans, "the Republicans don't want to wait that long."

He also counseled textile businessmen to support Democrats as their best hope of getting the cheap import situation relieved.

"We know what the Republicans won't do on this issue," he said. "The Democrats can't do worse."

Hodges added, however, "Most of my friends in the textile business probably will still be doped and vote for Mr. Nixon in hopes of getting something done."

Gasoline Men Plan A Petition

Gasoline dealers in Pitt County are soliciting customer signatures on petitions asking Congress to allow a one-fourth cent federal gasoline tax to expire June 30, 1961, as scheduled.

According to W. O. Moore, chairman of the Greenville Oil Distributors Association, service station operators will be requesting customer signatures for the petitions through next Wednesday.

Moore said, "Under the temporary tax boost which went into effect last fall, the federal gasoline tax is currently four cents per gallon." He pointed out, "This additional cent is costing Carolina motorists $14.6 million a year and nationwide, adds some $38 million annually to taxes on highway users."

The association chairman asserted Pitt County motorists would "save approximately $178,000 annually if Congress permits the temporary tax to expire next June."

He said each Pitt and N.C. motorist could "drive an additional 375 miles this year with the money he will have to pay on the extra cent temporarily added to the federal gasoline tax."

Changes In City Polling Places Due

Changes in the city's polling places set up will be considered by a special committee appointed last night.

Mayor S. Eugene West brought up the matter of additional polling places for municipal elections, pointed out that long lines formed at times during the recent bond election as poll holders searched for names of voters.

On a motion by Councilman W. S. Stafford, West, City Manager Leonard Bloxam and J.H. Harrell, former board of elections chairman, were appointed to a committee to consider the polling places problem.

Presently the city has only two polling places one at the court house and the second at Central Fire Station.

This differs from the county, state and federal elections and primaries where eight Greenville polling places are used. West suggested that perhaps it would be best for the city to use the same polling places for municipal elections.

A new registration of municipal voters would be required if such a system were installed.

The committee will make recommendations to the full council. The council received a petition from property owners on Contentment St. from Cherry to Fleming St., asking for paving of the street. Mayor West told the group it will be considered along with other petitions in the city's paving program.

Carver Memorial Library board members appeared before the council to present several proposed locations for the new library building.

Mrs. Amelia Capehart listed the following locations as being under consideration: Nash and Ward Sts., Fifth and Davis Sts., Tyson near Fleming St. and Fifth and Hudson.

City officials agreed to look over these and other locations and report back at the next council meeting.

City Manager Bloxam reported that Charles David Gladson had turned in his taxi franchise. The council had been considering revocation of the franchise.

A new agreement with Virginia Power and Electric Co. was approved by the council concerning the power company's facility charge. The Utilities Commission will pay VEPCO $1,967.59 monthly for transformer facilities at the power plant. This is an increase over the old facility charge and came about because additional capacity has been installed.

A Planning-Zoning Commission recommendation for subdivision ordinance changes was approved by the council. They concern data sheets with subdivision plans and maintenance of markers in subdivisions.

Councilmen heard a report from City Manager Bloxam on the recently approved bond issue projects.

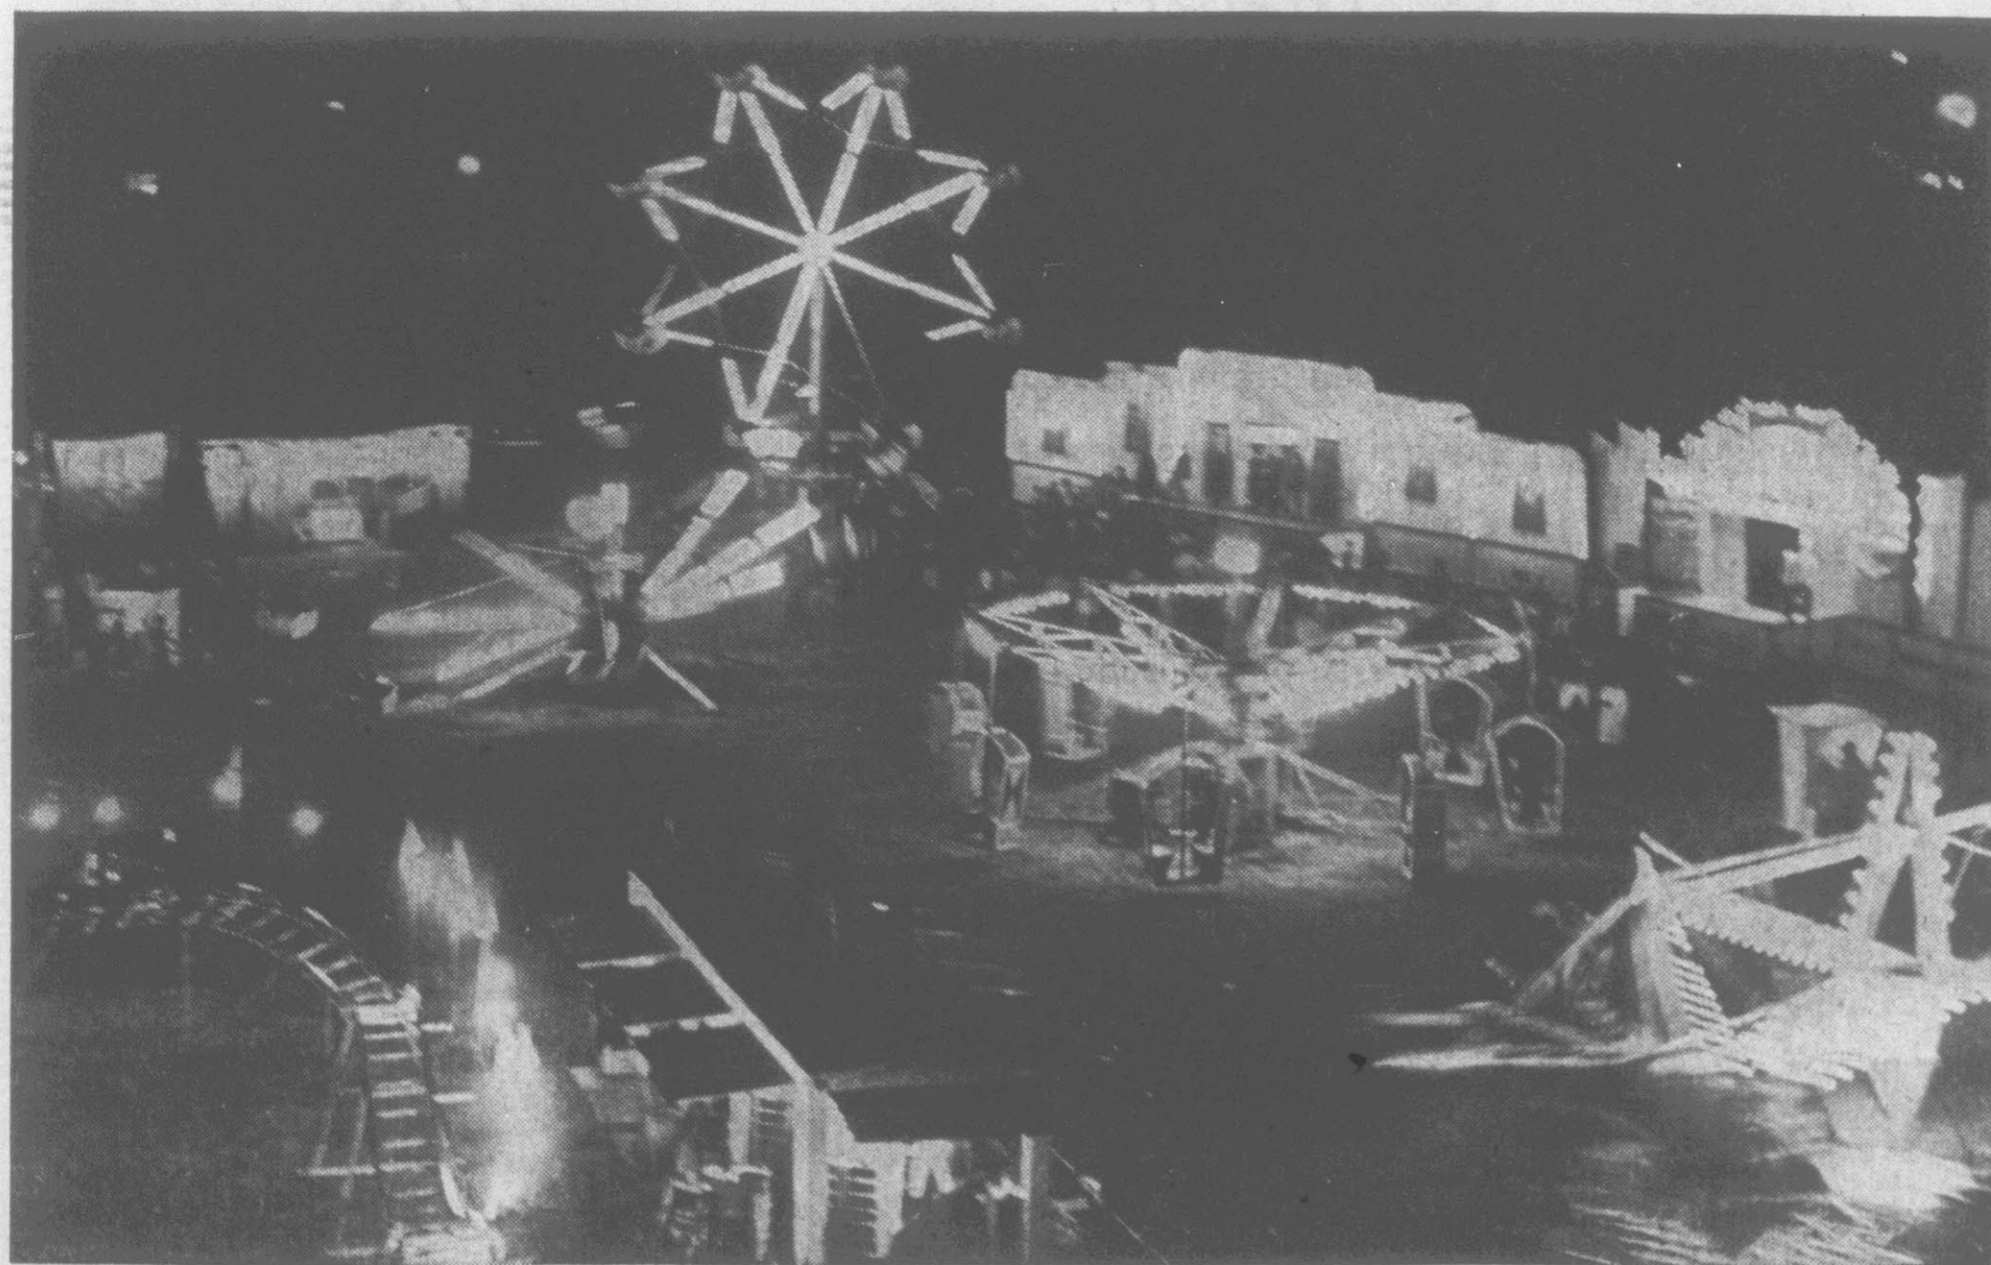

They were also informed by Bloxam that the city's thoroughfare plan has been approved by the State Highway Commission.

Courier Satellite Value 'Proven'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army says its Courier satellite has proved itself practical for "peaceful purposes for all mankind as well as military means." The Army statement noted that through its first 24 orbits completed Thursday the satellite had handled more than two million words in communications. The test material was provided by news services, newspapers, television and radio stations.

The news and special stories were broadcast to the satellite which recorded them and retransmitted them to earth.

Pitt County Fair Attendance Through Thursday Totaled At Least 25,000 Guests

THE FAIR MIDWAY . . . is all "lit up" at night as the thousands of people from all over Pitt County come to have a night of enjoyment playing the games of chance, riding the thrill rides and looking at the agricultural and livestock exhibits on display.

Attendance at the Pitt County American Legion Fair through yesterday totaled at least 25,000, according to Norman Y. Chambless, manager of the annual event. Included in the 25,000, Chambless said today, is a total paid attendance figure of 11,113. The remainder of the total attendance figure came from 11,000 school children Tuesday and Wednesday and more than 2,000 complimentary passes used already. Chambless said the total estimate is "very conservative" and "quite a bit above 1959 figures."

He said attendance at this week's event will "set a new record . . . at least for the 12 years I have been here." A break-down showed paid attendance figures on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of 2,008; 2,530; 2,534; and

2,041, respectively. On school days for white and colored (Tuesday and Wednesday) attendance was 3,000 and 8,000 respectively. Chambless said he is "greatly pleased with the large attendance so far, especially since our biggest days will be today and tomorrow."

In addition to the estimated attendance, the fair's host to members of Pitt County American Legion post members and also a group of newspaper carrier boys from the Daily Reflector yesterday.

By DENNIS WARREN METER MAGIC

Take a look at the color-splashed countryside in bright sun. Then glance quickly into the shade. Your eye adjusted instantly to let in the right amount of light to see each scene clearly.

That, in a proverbial nutshell, is what an electric eye does for a camera. It measures light automatically. Cuts out that guesswork about whether you've got enough light or too much light for a good picture.

Naturally you'd expect to find a complicated gadget like an electric eye only in expensive cameras. Think again. We can arm you with an electric eye camera for just $19.95.

That low, low price buys you a spanking new Brownie Starmeter Camera with a built-in electric eye. You aim the camera. A needle in the top of the camera points to a number. You dial the number on the lens. Presto—you and the camera are set for picture-perfect results.

When light is too dim for good results, the electric eye helpfully tells you to switch to flash. You save film and disappointments.

You can load the new Brownie Starmeter Camera to take snapshots in color or black-and-white. Even take color slides. How's about putting the meter-magic of this new Brownie Camera to work for you soon?

Dr. John Scott of Raleigh, director of the N. C. Advisory Study Committee for Teacher Evaluation, Rating, and Certification, made the address.

Approximately 50 members of DKG from Greenville and other localities in this section of the state attended the initiation ceremony and dinner in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Mrs. Ellen Carroll, president of the chapter, presided at the ceremony of initiation.

Others taking part were: Mrs. Helen Wolff, Mrs. James L. Fleming, Dr. Ruth Modlin, Miss Agnes Fullilove, Miss Estelle Greene, and Miss Annie Mae Murray.

Speaking informally on "Teacher Evaluation in North Carolina," Dr. Scott discussed with those present the aims and progress of his committee. In efforts to work out a technique and an instrument for evaluating teachers, Dr. Scott said, "We have not scratched the surface yet." He assured members of DKG, however, that progress is being made and that it is hoped that an adequate and satisfactory method of evaluation will eventually be found.

The committee which he heads, he explained, was authorized by the 1959 N.C. General Assembly, and is composed mainly of teachers and school officials. "We are," he said, "a group of professional people who are not interested in making recommendations that are not advantageous to teachers."

Interest and cooperation of the state's teachers in research leading toward a valid plan of evaluation, he said, is shown by the fact that 6,000 took the National Teachers Examination in April and 3,270 will take it on October 8. A large number of these, he said, were volunteers in taking the tests.

He told his audience some of the difficulties experienced by the committee in their work, and displayed and explained some of the extensive research in the nation aimed at working out a satisfactory scheme of evaluation.

Dr. Scott called on teachers in his audience to cooperate with the committee by trying out some of the ideas which will be suggested

Sweaters...High Scoring In Fashions

Sweaters were never more popular — and girls who like a custom look in their cardigan or pullover are taking up the fine art of knitting themselves.

New looks in stadium sweaters, for football or any outdoor activity, include handsome sweater coats of all lengths to top off skirts or trousers. Bulky demi-coats knit straight down to the thigh in an easy-to-do pattern stitch or a simplest ockinette stitch are often topped with their own hoods. Some jackets have shawl-collared necklines that can be overcollared with racoon.

The ever-popular pullover now is designed for outdoor wear as well as by-the-fire lounging. The classic pullover goes offbeat in broad horizontal bandings of varied colors.

Girls who keep their eyes on the ball—the yarn ball, of course—can count on leading the fashion parade to the stadium this fall.

SCORING TEAM . . . Two knit-it-yourself winners for chilly weather sports. Left is bateau-necked pullover in broad bands of three colors. It's knit in germtown knitting worsted, with simple stockinette stitch. Right is a hooded, thigh-length, demi-coat in bulky yarn knit with an accordion stitch. (Instructions for either sweater are available in sizes 10-12, 14-16, 18-20 by writing National Hand Knitting Yarn Assn., 15 East 26th St., Room 1806, New York City, enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope.)

Book Club Meets

The Artes Book Club held its first meeting of the year on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins.

The president, Mrs. Jack Derrick, presided over the business session. Plans for the coming year were discussed and yearbooks were distributed.

Mrs. E. O. Parkinson, chairman of the book committee, was in charge of the program; she presented the selection of books for the year.

Following the program, last year's books were auctioned off to members of the club.

During a social period, party refreshments were served from an appointed banquet table, after which books were distributed.

Members in order to see whether they will work. "If we have your help," he said, "we may get somewhere."

The study of Teacher evaluation by the Delta Chapter will be continued December 1 when a series of group discussions will be held under leadership of Mrs. Wolff.

Fall Is Season For Hot Breads

RAEIGH—Food tastes turn with the seasons and as fall comes blustering around the bend into winter, we begin to change our menus. As an example, we particularly enjoy serving breads piping hot.

Raisin break toast is now gaining in popularity. With a fruit topping, it can be perfect for many occasions. Fruit-topped toasts go along delightfully with hot chocolate or coffee for the late evening refreshment.

For special occasions, try one of the following toppings.

Coconut Toast
¼ cup confectioners' sugar icing, 1 cup shredded coconut, 8 slices raisin bread toast.

Spread one tablespoon icing on each slice of toast. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons coconut over each slice. Place on a cookie sheet and broil under low broiler heat for five minutes.

Butterscotch-Pecan Toast
Combine butter and sugar. Spread each slice of toast with 1 tablespoon sugar mixture and sprinkle with 1 tablespoon pecans. Place toast, spread side up, on an ungreased cookie sheet. Toast under low broiler heat for five minutes. Serve immediately.

Apple Butter French Toast
2 eggs, beaten, 1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar, 2 tablespoons apple butter, 6 slices raisin bread.

Combine apple butter with beaten eggs in a shallow dish. Dip bread into egg mixture, one slice at a time, turning them to coat both sides. Bake in a hot, well-greased waffle baker until nicely browned. Serve immediately, topped with confectioners' sugar.

Dr. Dorothy Robins To Speak At AAUW Regional Workshop

Dr. Dorothy B. Robins, International Relations Associate on the Headquarters Staff of the American Association of University Women in Washington, D. C., will be principal speaker at a regional workshop to be held by the AAUW at East Carolina College tomorrow.

She will address representatives of 12 chapters of the organization at a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. in the North Dining Hall at East Carolina College.

Extensive travel and an outstanding career covering varied phases of international relations combine to make Dr. Robins a leader in her field.

Before coming to her present position with the AAUW, she served for five years as consultant on Special Programs on the staff of the Foreign Policy Association in New York City.

She has served two terms as an officer of the Conference Group of the United States National Organizations for the United Nations and was elected vice chairman of the group this year. In addition, she has held other important posts in the field of international relations.

When the AAUW International Relations Committee recommended that for the coming year the AAUW focus its program in international relations on "The Emerging Nations of Asia and Africa," she prepared a study syllabus that included workshop suggestions to assist branches of the organization.

She is author of "UN In World Affairs," "UN Plus Youth," "The UN Story," and "You and Our Foreign Policy". She is now authoring the AAUW "Journal" feature "D.C. Observer".

In addition to the luncheon, other programs of the AAUW Workshop Saturday, announced by Dr. Kathleen Stokes of East Carolina College, president of the Greenville Branch, will include a general session at 10 a.m., subject matter group meetings at 2 p.m., summary reports of the day's discussions at 2:30, and a social hour at 3 p.m. These meetings will be in the Flanagan building.

Henry Oglesby Addresses Club

GRIFTON—The Griffon Book Club met this week at the home of Mrs. G. L. Tucker on Highland Drive.

In the living room where the guests were entertained arrangements of lily-of-the-valley, pyracantha and greenery were noted.

A brief business session was conducted by Mrs. Tucker, president. The club voted to list meeting date on the Lions calendar. A letter of appreciation from Franklin Hill, winner of the Book Club scholarship was read.

Mrs. Tucker presented Henry Oglesby, secretary to Congressman H. C. Bonner of the First District, who gave a talk on the Democratic nominee for President, Senator John F. Kennedy.

The hostess served homemade cake and hot tea at the conclusion of the program.

Guests for the evening were Mesdames L. L. Mewborn, Charlie Stone and Ben G. Tucker.

Mrs. Rose Has Book Club Meet

The first meeting of the Athenaeum Book Club met Tuesday at one o'clock. Mrs. J. H. Rose was hostess at her home on E. Tenth Street.

Guests were welcomed by the hostess and Mrs. Ed. Tuggle, who assisted Mrs. Rose in serving a two course luncheon.

The home was decorated throughout with arrangements of fall flowers and fruits.

The meeting was called to order by the vice president, Mrs. H. L. Ormond, in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. B. Cummings.

After a short business meeting, Mrs. Rose introduced Mrs. Flanagan and Mrs. Hannah who had charge of the program.

Bridge Parties

GRIFTON—Mr. and Mrs. George Dedrick were hosts recently at a bridge supper for members of their bridge club at their home in Pine Villa.

On arrival guests were served a buffet supper from an appointed table centered with an arrangement of yellow fall flowers and candles.

Mrs. Richard Cavanaugh and Mr. Floyd Spellman were high scorers and were given gifts. Other guests were Mr. Cavanaugh, Mrs. Spellman, Mr. and Mrs. Gay Gnagey, Dr. and Mrs. Jack Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Branscome. Supper guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Reeves.

GRIFTON—Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Bissette entertained members of their bridge club and other guests on Thursday night at a supper party at their home on Highland Drive.

Late summer flowers decorated the home for the evening. In the dining room where supper was served buffet style the table was covered with a lace cloth and held a bowl of garden flowers flanked by green candles in crystal holders. A ham supper was served with homemade devil's food cake as dessert.

Three tables were placed for bridge in the den and living room. During the games Mrs. Cecil Cobb and Clifton Jackson were high scorers for club members and Ben G. Tucker high among the visitors. Players were Mr. Cobb, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Robert Mewborn, Mrs. Thurman Williams, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hodges.

Women Control Most Of Wealth, More Of Them Work In Banks

By JOY MILLER

AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Since it's generously conceded women control about 70 per cent of the nation's wealth, it seems only fair that a majority of bank employees should be women too.

They would take a personal interest, so to speak.

Not too long ago banks wouldn't hire women. As recently as 1940, men outnumbered their comely colleagues in the banking business 3 to 1. But word finally got around that women and wampum have a natural affinity, and now it's ladies 2 to 1.

The girls are in good standing in the higher circles, too. There are 160 lady bank presidents across the country, and 1 in 10 bank executives is a woman.

There's no doubt banking is now a woman's field. And it has no greater champion than Mona Reid Brice, who touted the trade when she was here recently for an American Banking Association meeting.

As assistant personnel officer of a large Norfolk, Va., bank (National Bank of Commerce) the vivacious and articulate Mrs. Brice is well into her third career. She was a teacher in her home state of Michigan for 13 years, and for the next 15 years a WAVE officer in the 5th Naval District. She thinks women are admirably suited for banking today because they are easier socially and have more equanimity in surprise situations (there are other surprises in a bank than holdups).

"Independent surveys have shown," Mrs. Brice points out with pride, "that women have more patience, and a penchant for detail, deductive reasoning and analysis. That's why banks are making more use of women. A sympathetic, attractive girl can explain to a man, for example, just why his bank book doesn't balance and at the same time keep him from feeling stupid."

Here, We Need Loud, Clear Voice

Yesterday's Reflector reminded our readers of the coming dates for voter registration, and the places to register.

On the surface, it would appear unnecessary to urge citizens to register; but there are a considerable number of people in the country who can't or won't vote.

Here, in Pitt County we should have a good crop of potential registrants this year among the young men and women who have reached the required age of twenty-one since the last registration.

Too, there should be a goodly number of area citizens who have moved from one precinct to another, and whose change of registration must go on the books.

Eastern North Carolina voters hold a great influence on how the state goes in presidential election years. Politically, and selfishly, it is worth remembering that with the emphasis on voter registration in other parts of the state and nation it is important that we muster every available voter possible. The dead wood at election time is an expensive luxury.

We would remind too that urgency of activating the area's voting citizens is underscored by census disclosures the East is proportionately losing population while other sections have forged ahead.

The task of seeking out and marshaling the County's unregistered—but otherwise qualified—voters is a great one. Perhaps the simplest and most effective method would be for each individual to assure his or her friends and neighbors are able to vote in November.

A favorite story at election times concerns those instances when decisions hinged on a single vote.

Circumstances today are such that while a single vote might not sway the state or nation, still it is conceivable that a relatively small number of those single votes would weigh heavily in the outcome.

Pollsters' figures show the presidential candidates are running "even" in the South; and indications are the race is close across the country.

Aside from the responsibility of every citizen to share in the role of self-government by being qualified to vote, and voting, there is this to reflect upon:

The success or failure of democracy is demonstrated by the extent people participate in its functions.

Democracy needs a loud, clear voice in November.

Oppsities On World's Stage

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — This would be a dull world if it looked alike faced each other. They haven't for some time, at home or abroad.

Instead, it's a matter of opposites. Take President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev, for instance, or the presidential candidates: Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Tubby Khrushchev is an actor, a highly charged, outgoing experimenter, unpredictable, ready to pop off in an assembly hall, on a sidewalk or on a balcony.

And he's no respecter of rules, as he demonstrated at the United Nations. Eisenhower can throw up his arms to greet a crowd like a Tammany politician, grin in public as easily as Bob Hope, and pump a hand as hard as Khrushchev.

But he never seems at ease in a mob. He makes speeches from prepared texts, is as predictable as a clock, preserves his dignity, and follows the diplomatic rules.

And he's a conservative, not an experimenter. Witness his concern for balancing the budget. Closer at home the presidential candidates are opposites, too. Here Nixon is the actor, Kennedy the reserved one.

Like Jack Benny, Nixon always has his ear cocked for a sound from the audience, and can acknowledge it with a smile just as fast. Trained in debating, he never forgets how he looks—and sounds—in public. He wraps himself in the flag a lot as does Kennedy and once he finds something he thinks the crowd likes he plays it over and over.

For example: He hadn't been mentioning his running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, then did, got a big audience response, and then repeated it every place he went, with trimmings. Kennedy also knows some things which have crowd appeal — like repeatedly mentioning his war record. But he's no actor. He doesn't even know how to use his hands well.

For example: He gestures endlessly with his right hand, up and down, to emphasize a point like a man chopping meat. His speaking voice, after one listens for a while when he's making a speech, get irritating. Yet, although he was bent on the presidency a long time, he only recently began to take advice on using his voice.

He's not only not a baby-kisser, he's not a very willing lady-kisser, as a recent photo showed when a woman admirer burst through a crowd to embrace him and he jerked back like a man about to be stabbed.

There always seem to be opposites. Just go back a bit—to President Truman when he ran against Thomas E. Dewey.

The overheated Truman, quick with a crack, was full of fire and damnation for Republicans. Dewey, stiff as a starched shirt, never learned to unbend, even when playing to a crowd.

Organization Is Campaign's Key

By LYNN NISBET

CROWDS — Prejudiced partisans as well as supposed-to-be unbiased political writers are having a good time comparing the number of people who attend the current series of campaign rallies. A favorite comparison is between the crowds attracted by Kennedy and Nixon at their appearances in North Carolina. Nixon appeared some weeks ago at Greensboro and this week in Charlotte. Because of the time of the meetings, Nixon had more people at these two meetings than Kennedy had at approximately the same points on his recent visit. But the Nixon total in North Carolina is estimated at some 25,000 for two appearances, while the Kennedy audiences at four points are estimated at more than 60,000.

It was predicted by local Democratic publicists that some 2,000 people would attend the third district rally at Jacksonville last week. The advance notices said enough mulllets had been cooked to serve that many. Most optimistic estimates after the event are that some 700 people showed up to eat the fish and listen to the speeches. Two nights later a rally was staged at North Buncombe school near Weaverville for just a part of Buncombe county. Sponsors expected from 500 to 700 guests. Post-meeting reports are that more than 1,000 showed up. In other words, a part-count rally in Buncombe attracted fifty per cent more people than a nine-county district rally down east.

Why? Does it mean that the mountaineers are more interested in politics and government than are the mid-easterners? Hardly. The answer lies in organizational activity.

ORGANIZATION — The reason that Kennedy had a lot more people for his appearances at Greenville and Charlotte than he had at Raleigh was because local organizations at Greenville and Charlotte "put out" a lot of effort to get the crowds. Major effort of the Raleigh local group was announcement that seats might be scarce and "if you don't come early you may have to stand up."

Similar comparison can be made between the third congressional district and the North Buncombe rallies. A general invitation was extended to everybody to come to Jacksonville, and then the sponsors started to cooking fish. In Buncombe the sponsors used telephones and automobiles and personal visits to get out a crowd.

Leaders of both political parties, newspaper writers and radio-teevee broadcasters, and others have been urging people to register so they can vote. Response to these appeals has been somewhat indifferent. But when the Jaycees and the League of Women Voters organized a concerted drive in Wake County in one week, this was a completely non-partisan effort. The purpose was to get potential voters registered with regard to party affiliation. Information is that more than 80 per cent of the new registrants were recorded in the Democratic column. If they vote like they registered the Democrats have nothing to worry about. Historic records indicate many of them will not vote that way—if they vote at all.

So the matter gets back to necessity for organizational activity to get these more or less indifferent voters to the polling places on November 8.

EXPENSIVE — This organizational effort is one of the most costly phases of political campaigning. Very little of the actual total cost every shows up in expense reports. That is because interested citizens give many hours of time, use of their private cars, personal telephone charges, et cetera, for which no bills for reimbursement are made. There still must be a number of paid workers in offices and out in the field to get the job done.

There is evidence to indicate that in some places money has been spent for outright "purchase" of votes. Heinz Rollman, the 12th district former Democrat now turned Republican candidate for Congress, has said that he knows of instances where as much as 100 has been paid for one vote. These instances are rare. Responsible party leadership does not condone buying votes like merchandise on the open market. The party leaders do recognize the necessity for prodding reluctant citizens to vote — even to the point of providing transportation to the polling places.

Just as the turnout for the campaign speakings has been light in some places, heavy in others, due almost entirely to the degree of organizational effort in the localities, the turnout of voters on November 8 at the several precincts will be due to the same kind of effort. North Carolina citizens, like most others in the United States, are generally apathetic about exercising the duty and privilege of voting — unless somebody prods them or hauls them to the voting booths.

That is one reason why advance "polls" of sentiment do not give any clear indication of what the vote will be. The ballots counted will be determined by the effectiveness of organizational efforts to get out the vote.

Strength For Today

A FAITHFUL SERVANT

One of the greatest men who ever lived was Louis Pasteur. The opposition and persecution to which he was subjected almost surpasses belief. One would think, as he listens to the accusations made against this man by many of his contemporaries, that Pasteur was a cheap and stupid charlatan.

The story of how he treated his first patient after his discovery of the hydrophobia reveals the man's deep concern for human welfare. He had experimented for a number of years until he was able at last to procure a virus which would make dogs immune to hydrophobia. Then he began to ask why, if he could make a dog immune, could he not make humans immune also.

"I think my hand will tremble when I go on to treat mankind," he wrote. But one day a distracted mother brought into Pasteur's laboratory her little boy suffering from fourteen bites inflicted by a mad dog two days earlier. Pasteur knew that the attempted cure might cost — death for the boy, disgrace and probably prison for himself, and certainly the end of his work as a scientist. But he took the chance. After many anxious days the certainty of cure was established. The name of Pasteur rang around the world, as one of the greatest of human benefactors.

He died September 28, 1895, one hand clasping a crucifix and the other resting in that of his loving wife. The crucifix represented the thing he counted on highest value in life—sacrificial love. His life was based on that faith, and in the power of that faith he passed to his reward.

Opinions In Brief

"One of several proposed rule changes for the Senate is to ban time-wasting, irrelevant speeches. Well, things just aren't going to be the same if a man has to say something every time he opens his mouth." —Waltham (Mass.) News-Tribune.

"In his dignified refusal to be brow-beaten by Mr. Khrushchev, Mr. Hammarskjold is playing the part expected of him by the smaller powers. Mr. Hammarskjold has staked a great deal in trying to demonstrate that the United Nations does not operate by the consent of the big powers but, if necessary, in spite of them." —The Manchester Guardian (England)

"Grinning men with stout hearts and flashing white teeth are accamp once more in the mountains. Their intention, various versions agree, is to destroy the Red tinged dictator before he destroys Cuba altogether." —Richmond News Leader.

Cain't Hardly Lose!

By DON SCHLIENZ

Her Opus In Eat Sharp

After all, it did look good; and the mild fragrance wafted across the kitchen made the old taste buds quiver, so one shouldn't complain.

But it somehow made me think of Dagwood putting together one of his late-evening sandwiches. Only this girl is no Dagwood. . . just a normal, healthy, everyday-sort of girl who wanted something to eat while watching her home screen.

It was obvious she had something in mind when hefting the last golden banana in the fruit bowl. "You don't want this, do you?" she asked in a confident tone. I said no, and disinterestedly watched as she peeled it, then laid the fruit aside.

From the freezer she brought a carton of ice cream and from it scooped a large bowl of contents. Over that she spread slices of banana, then another layer of ice cream larger than anything you get at a soda fountain. The bowl was more than filled. The ice cream was piled high above its rim.

Humming to herself, she returned the ice cream carton to the freezer. . . disposed of the banana peeling and looked thoughtfully at her gastronomic composition (in "eat sharp"). Obviously something was missing; but what was it?

My casual attitude toward the proceedings was whetted by suspense.

She snapped her fingers as inspiration filled through, and turned to a nearby cabinet. "I'm looking for the strawberry preserves," was her explanation. And she looked and looked.

Being helpful, my suggestion was that there were some at about the level of her head and in plain sight. But no, she didn't want those. "I want some I preserved last spring," she said, and rummaged around behind canned goods and jars.

Moments later the desired strawberries were uncovered and brought to the counter where a lid was removed and the paraffin top.

After appreciatively sniffing the contents, a big spoon was procured and strawberry preserves were ladled out and spread on the mountain of ice cream and banana. . . again and again.

As I said, the fragrance was beguiling; the spectacle was, well, interesting; my interest was growing. From the appearance of things one might presume the girl had company in the living room and they would share this hunger-panny-slayer.

But no, she strode away with the laden bowl and only one spoon.

Within minutes her dish was returned.

"That was sure good," she volunteered; and seeing the expression on my face, "would you like me to fix you some?"

Again said no, and thanks, but I had had breakfast, lunch and supper; and that usually sufficed.

As an afterthought, "You'll be a big girl when you grow up."

"Hah! That was nothing," she responded; and went back to the TV set.

And so I too retreated, to buckle down to work on a column for the morrow. It had been an evening of new wonders to speculate upon.

"By refusing to hire men past 40 and urging the early retirement of workers, American business was scrapping the most valuable members of the labor force. Testing has shown on a national scale that 40 per cent of the workers past 45 and up to 65 can outproduce younger workers." —Houston Chronicle.

Other Editors Saying The Changing Scene

(Washington Daily News) Not only have educational values and educational conceptions changed over the past 40 years, but educational facilities have undergone drastic change.

In a recent report issued by the North Carolina Advisory committee on the Civil Rights issue cites many changes. Some of the changes have nothing whatsoever to do with racial discriminations and with civil rights.

Consolidations, as the report points out, has reduced the number of school buildings from 5,552 White schools and 2,442 Negro schools in 1919 to 2,122 White schools and 1,010 Negro in 1958.

To look at these figures might cause many people to wonder what has been happening to our North Carolina public schools over the past 40 years. But the answers are very simple.

In 1919 we had few, if any, school buses operating in our state. Small school houses dotted every county. As better roads came into being, many of the small schools were eliminated, and larger consolidate schools came into their own.

It is not a case of having fewer pupils. On the contrary, more and more boys and girls are entering public schools each year.

The same picture applies to both White and Negro schools. In both instances we have today less than half as many public schools in our state as we had in 1919. At the same time we have more pupils.

We suspect the experience in North Carolina in this regard can be applied to every state in the union.

If the fact that we have fewer schools is to be used as any basis for a civil rights discussion, then we fail to see the connection.

While it is true that in 1919 the White schools had greater actual value per building than did the Negro schools, we must realize that the same values still apply even though the gap has been closed somewhat. A school building, if it is to be sold, will usually get of more value in a White district than in a colored district, not because the building itself might be of poorer construction, but because of property values in the district.

Every thinking person in North Carolina should realize that changes must be gradual. Whatever inequities exist now cannot be changed overnight. Thousands of children are being transported today by bus to schools—both White and Negro. That does not mean that less education is being given. It actually means that better educations are being given.

We say this. Whatever fight in the direction of civil rights there is to be made should keep social and economic facts separate. School consolidations, better roads, values on school property, and other such items have nothing to do with civil rights. They never have, and in all probability they never will.

Cyrus Eaton's Dinner

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Cyrus Eaton, the Cleveland speculator who is often called a capitalist, gave a luncheon at the Hotel Biltmore in New York on September 25. Eaton conducts his own private diplomacy in utter disregard of the requirements of his country. I have the list of those whom Eaton invited, although I do not know whether all those invited attended. As it is, in the circumstances, libelous to say that an American attended such a luncheon if he did not, setting him down as having a treacherous and disrespectful heart if not a traitor. I must refrain from publishing the list until I can check whether those asked, accepted.

Thirty-four Russians were invited in addition to Khrushchev. The list of Americans asked does not contain too many distinguished names, although two or three persons force one to raise an eyebrow. It will be difficult to check the more obscure persons. My list shows that in addition to the Russians, Cyrus Eaton invited 163 persons.

He delivered an address. The report states that as he spoke, he improvised and added to the address. Copies of the address were given to those who attended. He opened on this note: "I should hope that this luncheon would not only lead to strengthened friendships, but also serve as a forum for discussion of ways and means to increase business between the Soviet Union and North America, and to secure cooperation to the mutual advantage of all three nations in the markets of the world."

He then hoped to take Khrushchev to the Hall of Fame of which he, Eaton, is an Elector, and then he would like the Russian to attend one game of the World Series. He then turned to economics and said: "I, as a capitalist, believe there is abundant room for both of our systems, and others, to flourish side by side on the same planet."

Having said that, he buttered up Soviet Russia in this manner: "We of the West have not failed to note superb Soviet accomplishments in other than economic areas. For some years, I have had the privilege of knowing many of your scientists, whose eminence is evidenced in numerous ways, but particularly by your brilliant advances in space ballistics."

I have seen your great schools, colleges, and libraries, which testify to the soundness of your educational methods. Most recently there has been the admirable performance of your athlete at the Olympic Games in Rome."

Cyrus Eaton then discussed disarmament. He does not propose inspection and control. Regarding disarmament, Eaton said: "Since lofty ethical considerations and terrifying prospects of destruction have failed to move mankind, I suggest that we now earnestly put forward the unquestioned economic advantages to both our countries of terminating the arms race. We can discuss these matters with complete frankness, because I am sure you know the facts. The world is now spending more than $100 billion a year on armaments. Close to half of this amount, I must add regretfully, is being spent by my country and, to an even greater regret, some well-meaning men in the United States are actually urging an increase of 20 per cent in annual American outlays for armaments."

"What dividends can the arms race yield but death and destruction? Conversely, think of all mankind of the equivalent in trade and commerce of the $100 billion now being wasted each year on armaments."

Thereupon Cyrus Eaton told Nikita Khrushchev: "Then there is the present weakness of the American dollar, which, for instance, is currently worth only 97 per cent of the Canadian dollar. Our American gold holdings have fallen below $19 billion dollars for the first time in 20 years. Inflation and taxes, mounting as they inevitably must with increasing armament expenditures, impose

THE SALVATION ARMY

By ELMER ROESSNER
 "Planned spending" instead of old-fashioned budgeting is urged on families by Sidney Margolius, noted authority on family economics, in a new Public Affairs pamphlet, "How to Stretch Your Money."

Many young families avoid budgets, Mr. Margolius writes, because it seems to put them into a financial strait jacket. As a consequence, they handle their money in a "purposeless but anxious way." He added: "There are powerful pressures on you today to let others 'manage your money' through revolving credit, check credit, open budget and similar plans. You don't even have to stop to arrange credit; it is prearranged. But while it's simpler to get into debt nowadays, no one has invented a simple way to get out."

For "planned spending," Mr. Margolius suggests plugging leaks in five areas of spending: food, insurance, commercial entertainment, transportation costs and household upkeep.

'Planned Spending' For Family

Points he makes in these areas:

1. Most families overspend for meats and prepared foods. Example: 2 cents worth of fresh potatoes are equivalent to 4 cents worth of canned potatoes, 6 cents worth of frozen French fries and 19 cents worth of frozen stuffed baked potatoes topped with cheese. However, he notes that many prepared foods may be worth the extra cost in time saved. Cake mixes cost only a fifth more than homemade mixes and frozen orange concentrate is cheaper than fresh oranges.
2. Insurance, concentrate on life coverage for the family breadwinner, avoid weekly payment policies, compare costs.
3. In household operations, oppose to is high prices for credit.

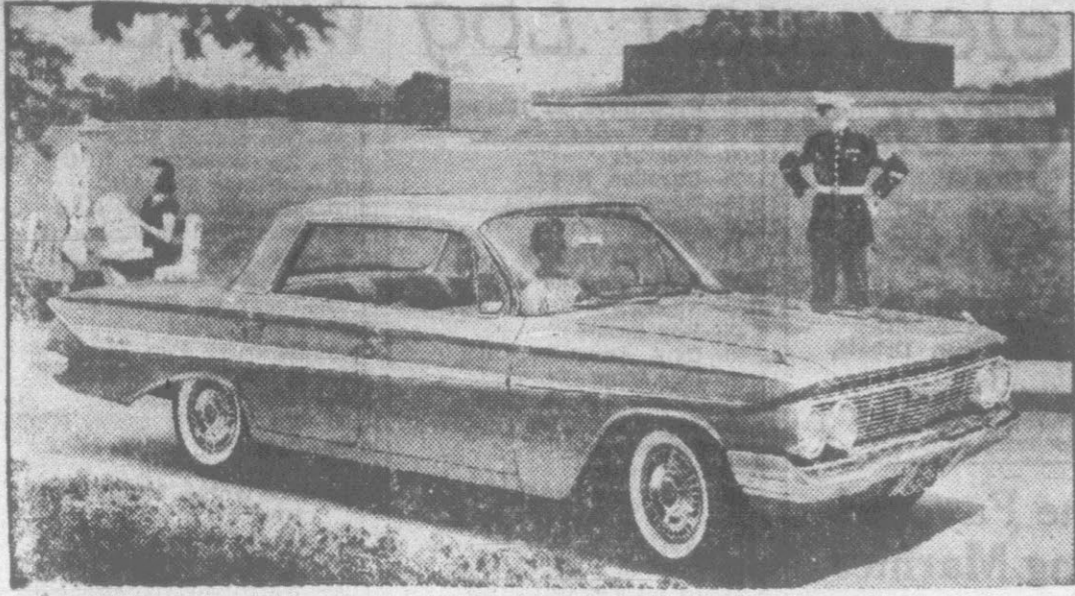

The effect of the "planned spending" program on business will depend much on its adoption. If it is promoted by unions—and Mr. Margolius is popular in the labor press—it might reduce purchases of certain things—such as baked stuffed potatoes with cheese topping. However, if it should lead to any revision of consumer spending, it would mean that the consumers would be far better credit risks, and a better source of savings for capital investment.

TROUBLE THE WORSE GETS WITH TO-THE-REAR BIG CARS

The latest of many signs seen decorating the rear of imported German cars reads, "No honk. The hurrier I go the behinder I get."

TRADING STAMP COMPANY WOOING TINY TOTS

Get tiny young seems to be the new program of a trading stamp company (King Korn). It has introduced a Kiddie Klub trading stamp plan, offering youngsters special books and premiums for the stamps they collect. Now being tested in Dayton, Ohio, it may induce youngsters to badger parents into seeking out that brand of trading stamps.

CHEVROLET IMPALA 1961—Designers have added graceful lines to the new Impala. Bel Air and Biscayne passenger car lines. Wings on the rear deck have been smoothed into the body. Roof lines as noted in the Impala Sport Sedan (above), are freshly contoured and are separately styled for each model. Overall body design features gently sloping lines. Rear trunk deck lid now opens flush with top of bumper, affording easier loading and unloading. Fuel tank has been repositioned for greater safety. The Impala Sport Sedan is one of 20 body styles in the standard Chevrolet line.

Buccaneer Society Dinner Set For ECC Homecoming

More Criticism Than Cheers For Khrushchev

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS LONDON (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev's table-banging oratory at the United Nations has brought him criticism in most parts of the non-Communist world, and there is little sign he has dazzled neutralist opinion.

Many West European commentators take the view Khrushchev's stature has shrunk in the eyes of the world. In neutralist India, a cartoon showed Khrushchev as a Samson trying to pull down the U.N. The Indian Express compared Khrushchev's appeal for liberation of colonial peoples with Russia's own record in Hungary. The Times of India said the U.N. climate had been "deliberately corrupted by the incredibly boorish and petty posturings" of Communist delegates.

The Cairo Press generally refrained from taking sides with the big powers. But the weekly Al-Mussawwar criticized Khrushchev's attack on Dag Hammarskjold, U.N. secretary general. Other newspapers in Arab countries tended to take an impartial line but Lebanon's Al-Siassa labeled Khrushchev "part-mobster, part-clown." The neutralist countries of Europe came out far harder against the Russian tactics. The general tenor of Swiss comment was that Khrushchev had alienated neutralists instead of winning them.

Castro Gov't Secretive Over Invading Groups

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro's government today clamped secrecy on operations against a band of invaders who escaped to the mountains after landing on the northeast tip of Cuba this week. A reliable source reported that four separate invading groups totaling 200 men landed during the week. There was no confirmation of the report.

The government admitted only one landing—an estimated 27 men—and said the leader was killed and two of the band captured. The others got away. A spokesman for Castro said the prime minister regarded the landing as "of very little importance" and was remaining in Havana to deliver a major address to the nation on Monday.

But it was rumored in Santiago that the prime minister's younger brother, Maj. Raul Castro, the armed forces minister, was personally commanding the hunt.

A communique said three Americans were among the 24 survivors of the landing who made for the mountains after hitting the shore. The hunt centered in the rugged hill country on the north shore of Oriente Province. It was in Oriente that Castro launched his revolution to topple Fulgencio Batista.

Government-controlled Havana newspapers and radio stations played up the landing and stressed the communique's allegation that the invasion band had official U.S. support. The stage apparently was being set for Castro to deliver another attack on the United States and President Eisenhower's administration when he speaks on Monday. There was also the possibility of reverberations in the United Nations.

Little Reporters Tell The Story Of An Accident

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—The Chattanooga Times ran an eye-witness account of a minor accident as submitted by 36 little reporters, all third-grade pupils at Sunnyside School.

Submitted to the Times Thursday in childish handwriting, the story said in part: "A man needed help because he was in trouble. His car slid off in a ditch. The man in the wrecker was the first one there to help. He got the pretty blue car out of the ditch. Then the wrecker, without the driver, rolled back and knocked over the fireplug. They had to call another wrecker to pull the first one out. Meanwhile water was rushing and washing down Germantown Road (near the school). Two policemen came to help. A water man cut off the water. We hope that Sunnyside School will not have to pay the water bill." Said the Times: "It may not be the most important one in today's times, but it tells the story and that's the object of all newspaper writing."

Indications Are That Second Debate By Nixon, Kennedy Will Be Livelier

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republican and Democratic Presidential rivals meet tonight in the second round of their televised debate, with indications it will be livelier than the first one. Both Democrat John F. Kennedy and Republican Richard M. Nixon were relaxing here today before the hour-long session scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time.

Films Available From Library

The following films will be available at Sheppard Memorial Library until Oct. 21: Indian Artists of the Southwest—Coast Vis Ed 1956 19 min. sd. color. Produced by Cine 937 Productions. Traces history of American Indian painting from primitive stone paintings to Joe Herrera, modern Indian painter. Work of 14 contemporary artists shown.

Churchill—Man of the Century. BIS 1955 21 min. sd. b & w. Presents highlights in Churchill's life—his Boer War service; his entry into Parliament and offices held; becoming prime minister; conferences with Roosevelt and Truman on the Atlantic, at Casablanca, Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam. Includes his postwar years in and out of office and ends at his eightieth birthday celebration. For young adults and adults.

Herman Melville's Moby Dick—Contemporary 1957, 30 min. sd. color. The familiar story of Moby Dick becomes a new experience as it is re-created for us through the medium of the drawings of Gilbert Wilson. These sensitive but dramatic drawings in warm browns, cold blues and dismal grays create the mood for this ill-fated voyage in search of a white whale.

Land of Bubbling Waters—Can Travel, 1955, 12 min. sd. color. Mineral hot springs in the Canadian Rockies are visited by a vacationing family who motor from Radium Hot Springs in British Columbia to the Miette Pool in Jasper National Park, then through Banff to enjoy the Cave, Basin and Upper Hot Springs.

Sokolsky Col.

(Continued from Page 4) a heavy burden on Americans in all walks of life. "I am concerned not merely with the soundness and integrity of the American dollar, but particularly with its popularity at home and abroad. I want to see American bankers loaning money in every possible part of the world, and I want to see American investors risking their cash around the globe, wherever the capitalistic system is welcome. This obviously requires that we Americans make friends, and avoid inspiring envy and resentment." What else he said extemporaneously I do not know. Cyrus Eaton seems to love the enemies of the United States.

International and Hal Levy, Washington correspondent for the Long Island Newsday.

Some of the tougher tactics are expected to show up as the two square off in a television studio setting designed "to suggest a feeling of warmth and comfort." The candidates will be questioned by a panel of four newsmen on both foreign and domestic issues. There will be no formal opening statements, as there were in the first debate. Replies to questions will be limited to 2 1/2 minutes.

The debate will originate in the big NBC studio here and will be carried by the three TV networks and four major radio networks. Kennedy will be on the left of the screen, Nixon on the right—as they were in the first debate in Chicago. Between them will be Frank McGee, an NBC newsmen who will be moderator. They will be seated at a large desk which curves outward like a widespread horseshoe arrangement.

Nixon and Kennedy will step to nearby lecterns to answer questions. The lecterns will be covered by grass cloth, like that covering the curved wall in the background.

Sentenced For Selling Secrets

KARLSRUHE, Germany (AP)—The Federal Supreme Court today sentenced a former West German army trooper to four years in prison on charges of selling NATO military secrets to Communist East Germany. Peter Kuhn, 23, told the court Red Germany's intelligence service paid him 4,000 marks ($932) for copies of classified messages sent by West German and British military authorities to the Bonn defense ministry's code center. He was arrested last January.

In addition to the candidates and the panelists, only a few members of the Kennedy staffs, NBC production people, three pool reporters and six pool photographers will be in the studio during the program.

Space normally used for storing television scenery has been converted to a press room to handle the crowd of newsmen expected to cover the debate outside the studio.

Nixon's TV adviser, Edward A. Rogers, said the type of lighting used in the Chicago debate probably will be used on the vice president tonight, but that the final decision will be up to Nixon. Rogers also said that Stan Lawrence, a New York makeup man used previously at various times by Nixon, will apply makeup to Nixon's face to hide the beard shadow.

There was no word on whether Kennedy will use makeup. His aides said he used no makeup in the first debate, relying on a heavy tan.

Must Be Record In Tax-Collecting

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The city of Dallas has collected more than 99 per cent of the taxes owed it for the past fiscal year. Officials think this may be the highest percentage in the nation. When the year's books were closed Sept. 30 the city had collected 99.0738 per cent of the $5,998,304 owed to it. Dallas has collected more than 99 per cent of its taxes four times in the last decade. By comparison, Houston collects about 86 per cent of its taxes and Fort Worth, 96 per cent, Dallas officials said.

TRIPLET BOYS

OTTAWA, Ill. (AP)—Mrs. Joseph J. Marzano, 17, gave birth Thursday to triplet boys, all weighing less than 2 pounds each. The babies, all doing well, were placed in incubators. Her husband is a laborer. They have a daughter, 11 months old.

Some Who Care About The Wings

BOSTON (AP)—Most people don't even bother with the wings of game birds, but the birds can take heart. There are some who care. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is asking that hunters send its regional offices one wing from each duck they kill. The idea is to have biologists look them over. Biologists can tell from looking at wings the percentage of birds killed during the season and the indicated change in productivity for the coming year.

Dog Safe; Owner Had Heart Attack

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP)—A 62-year-old retired businessman drove away from his home unaware that his wife had tied their pet Chihuahua dog to the bumper of the car. Hogan Clark dragged the dog several blocks Thursday before hearing its yelps. Clark rushed the dog to a veterinarian. While the pet was being examined, Clark suffered a fatal heart attack. The dog was not injured seriously.

The Adoration of God

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Boeschler

Scripture—Psalm 24; Ephesians 3:14-21.

"The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. For He hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods."—Psalm 24:1-2.

"Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? Or who shall stand in His Holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted his soul unto vanity."—Psalm 24:3-4.

"Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of Glory shall come in. This is the generation of them that seek Him, that seek Thy face, O Jacob."—Psalm 24:6-7.

"Who is this King of Glory? The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle. . . . The Lord of hosts. He is the King of glory."—Psalm 24:8-10.

The Adoration of God

THE PRIVILEGE OF APPROACHING GOD, THE ETERNAL CREATOR, WITH PRAISE AND PRAYER.

Scripture—Psalm 24; Ephesians 3:14-21.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

"THE EARTH IS THE LORD'S, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. For He hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods."—Psalm 24:1-2.

Do we sometimes forget that this beautiful earth on which we live is God's, to thank Him as we should for His bounties?

"Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? Or who shall stand in His Holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor munition with God is a purifying thing. Oh to hunger and thirst more and more after a clear vision of the face of God; this will lead us to purge ourselves from all filthiness, and to walk with heavenly circumspection," writes the late English preacher, C. H. Spurgeon.

Now our lesson turns from the Old to the New Testament, to St. Paul's prayers. "In general St. Paul asks for two great spiritual blessings."—Peloubet's Select Notes by the Rev. Wilbur M. Smith.

Both Spiritual And A Temporal Leader

By DWIGHT L. JONES

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Age has put a quaver in his voice and cataract operations have darkened his eyes, but David O. McKay never has held more veneration among his flock. Today he calls to order the 103th semi-annual conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Among the 8,000 gathering at the big Mormon Tabernacle for the start of a three-day spiritual renewal are many who consider President McKay one of the greatest of the nine men who have headed their church.

Certainly he is leading it in a period of its most vigorous growth. His service at or near his helm covers 34 years—from the horse and buggy to the jet age.

At 87 he is a remarkably handsome six-footer with a shock of wavy white hair. The Mormons call their founder Joseph Smith, a prophet, and upon the broad shoulders of McKay has fallen the same title, "Prophet, Seer and Revelator."

As the prophets of old, he is the leader in both spiritual and temporal affairs of 1,650,000 mormons. In the first nine months of this year the Mormon people completed 166 church buildings which cost $23,109,000 and are working on 728 more.

At President McKay's direction (President in the Mormon Church is an ecclesiastical title) the Mormons are doubling their missionary force this year, from 6,000 to 12,000.

When President McKay turned 87 on Sept. 8 he was making plans to: Dedicate a $2-million church in Oakland, Calif.; preside at this general conference, Oct. 7; make a radio and television speech kicking off a new series of talks directed to young people; go to London in February to dedicate a church building in Hyde Park.

President McKay has positive views on everything from communism to horseback riding. Anyone doubting that President McKay is in fact the leader of his church should try to follow his pace. He's usually up at 4 a.m. and always arrives at his office before 7, sometimes as early as 6 a.m.

Every day except Monday he meets at 8:30 a.m. with his two counselors in the church's First Presidency—its executive triumvirate—89-year-old J. Reuben Clark Jr. and energetic 71-year-old Henry D. Moyle. Every Tuesday there is a meeting of all church officials concerned with finances. Thursday mornings are spent in spiritual activity in the Salt Lake Temple with members of the Council of Twelve Apostles and others.

In addition there are frequent meetings of the boards of directors of the many church-owned business enterprises. President McKay is a director of all of them and chairman of the board of several.

But he always arranges his schedule to accommodate callers ranging from humble church members to visiting heads of state and touring politicians.

Most of them inquire about the health of Emma McKay, the woman to whom he has written birthday and wedding anniversary poetry ever since their marriage 59 years ago. Mrs. McKay is recovering from a recent stroke.

Because of her health, they recently moved from their home into a suite in the church-owned Hotel Utah, which is just across the street from the Salt Lake Temple.

David Oman McKay was born in humble circumstances on a ranch at Huntsville, Utah, a mountain valley about 60 miles from Salt Lake City. He still owns the family home and most of the ranch, and he frequently goes there for a rest.

After a hard early life McKay started out as a teacher and became one of the Mormon Church's Council of Twelve Apostles in 1906. The church has been his life and work since.

Since 1934—he has been one of the First Presidency. He became the ninth president in 1951.

At 87 he is a remarkably handsome six-footer with a shock of wavy white hair.

Hoffa Union To Ignore Pickets PHILADELPHIA (AP)—James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, said Thursday night his union would cross picket lines at strikebound General Electric plants because the Landrum-Griffin labor law leaves them no other choice.

Hoffa spoke at a $100-a-plate dinner to raise money for a defense fund for Ray Cohen, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 107, and other Local 107 officials. Cohen and others have been indicted for alleged conspiracy to loot the local's treasury.

Hoffa said that Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential candidate, and the AFL-CIO did nothing to prevent passage of the Landrum-Griffin Act.

U. S. Is Hurting, But Red Jubilation Is Premature

OLDSMOBILE 1961 has an all-new and distinctive styling motif as exemplified by this Super 88 Holiday Sedan, a four-door hardtop. The new body lines give the car a long, sleek look, but overall length of the 88's has been reduced three inches. The Super 88 is powered by the high performing 325-horsepower Skyrocket engine. Standard engine for Dynamic models is the 250-horsepower Rocket engine, designed to operate on lower cost regular-grade gasoline. Interiors are the most attractive in Oldsmobile's history, with bright new fabrics, color-harmonized with the exterior finish.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The United States is hurting a bit from its brush with the neutralists, but the Communists are premature in jubilantly claiming a victory.

This jubilation could boomerang, and help turn an apparent American setback into another Communist defeat.

The Communists are in a poor position during this session of the U.N. General Assembly to point with pride. They grabbed eagerly at the neutralists' disappointments with the United States and made it plain to all in the Assembly that they feel triumphant about it.

This looks like a major Communist mistake.

The Soviet bloc may impress the original five neutralist nations, who sponsored the proposal for a meeting of President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev, with claims of an American defeat. But they are doing something else.

The Asian and African nations who voted along with the neutralists are passionately jealous of their position of independence between the two great power blocs, Communist and Western.

By jumping for joy and crying victory, the Communists turned a spotlight on themselves and probably aroused misgivings among the Africans.

These African nations are in no mood to be claimed by the Communists as allies in a victory against the United States. They saw what went on in the former Belgian Congo from the moment of its independence. They took note of Soviet interference there. They proved their attentiveness by overwhelming support of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld's activities there to restore order in the face of violent Soviet-Communist attacks.

The five so-called neutral nations who sponsored the U.S.-Soviet summit resolution have acted somewhat less than neutrally on many an issue. President Tito of Yugoslavia, maverick Communist though he may be, has gone down the line all the way for Soviet proposals at this session. Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana has indicated more than a little sympathy for the Communist argument in the Congo. Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic is deeply involved with the U.S.S.R. and often has exhibited hostility to the West. President Sukarno of Indonesia is being advised by the chief of the Indonesian Communist party who traveled to the United States with him. Prime Minister Nehru of India supports the Communists on the issue of Red China's membership and some others, although the West considers him basically a friend.

These were the sponsors. The outcome of the struggle over the neutralist resolution likely will have little bearing one way or the other on their attitude regarding future issues before this Assembly.

But the United States still has an opportunity to convince the other Asians and Africans that its reasons for opposing the resolution were valid.

The President can hardly place himself in the position of permitting the United States to be directed, by the wishes of five government chiefs claiming to be neutrals, to do something he considers to be against the best interests of the United States.

When the United States voted against what Africans and Asians considered their interests on questions concerning North Africa and on the question of the French atomic explosion in the Sahara, just to select a few examples, there was much calamity howling. Americans were told they had done themselves irreparable damage that they could no longer hope for friendship from the Asians and Africans.

But it did not work out that way. U.S. prestige held firm. One reason for this was the activity of the Communists themselves.

Every time the United States gets into a jam, the Communists do something to ease the pain. Their threats and bullying and their aggressive thrusts have cancelled out events which might have reacted permanently to U.S. harm.

And the Communists, being what they are, can be expected to do it again.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A woman has sought court help to get her former husband thrown out of the house where she lives with her present spouse. James W. Somers, 48, has been living and eating in the same house with the Hunts for the past six years. Mrs. Charles Hunt, 40, said Thursday. She added there has been much dissension in the household recently and she wants him to get out.

The problem isn't that simple, however—her present husband wants Somers to stay. The judge asked why.

"That's what I want to know," she told the judge, who has an appointment with Somers today.

Stock Market Has Lost Some Glamor

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Effects of the changes in stock market atmosphere and of the drop in interest rates under impact of the easy money policy are showing up today in the habits of American investors and savers.

Even the much praised and self-redescribed sophisticated investor is rediscovering charms in some of last year's wallflowers.

A lot of glamor dust has been shaken out of the stock market this year. Investors are finding it less appealing as a road to quick riches. And there is less talk now about stocks as a hedge against inflation.

The big drop in interest rates in the short-term and medium-term securities and investments have returned status to some of the slow but sure ways of saving, where the interest rate is less fluctuating.

The change in saving habits shows up in many ways today—in saving bond sales, in mutual fund sales, in regular monthly purchases of common stocks, in repayment of instalment loans.

It isn't a big change. But it is the reversal of previous trends that interests lenders and borrowers alike. And the change also sheds light on economic trends and business prospects.

For five months in a row sales of U. S. savings bonds have been higher and redemptions lower than in the like months of 1959.

The U. S. Treasury reports cash-ins of savings bonds in September were 16 per cent less than a year ago. The September sale of E and H Bonds topped the year-ago figure by 13 per cent. The Treasury savings bond chief is especially interested in the recent gains in sales of the higher denominations of the bonds. He thinks this means the sophisticated investor is being attracted now.

The reason: The 3 1/2 per cent rate of return on these bonds now equals or tops the yield available on comparable medium-term Treasury issues traded in the open market. A year ago the market yield on these marketable issues ran as high as 4 1/2 per cent.

Until recently the sophisticated investor turned up his nose at savings bonds—their yield was comparatively low, and inflation pared even that return over the years they were held.

But whether they like to admit it or not, most Americans with a few dollars to save now and then don't consider themselves sophisticated investors and have not the time it takes to remain one. Most of them have gone along with their payroll deduction plans for savings bonds.

Weakness in the stock market has worried the mutual funds. But their net assets increased this August, compared with either July or August, 1959, the National Association of Investment Companies reports.

Malden Lane, a busy street in downtown Manhattan, was once a lover's lane, complete with winding stream and shady nooks. The stream still flows beneath the pavement.

Revival Services At Grifton Church

GRIFTON—Rev. William Hadden, minister of Eighth St. Christian Church, Greenville, will preach a revival at First Christian Church beginning at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 9 and closing Homecoming Sunday, Oct. 16, at 11 a.m. A basket dinner will be served at noon on Homecoming Sunday.

Rev. Hadden, leading minister of the Disciple Brotherhood, earned degrees at Lynchburg College, Lynchburg, Va., Vanderbilt School of Religion, Nashville, Tenn., and studied at Edinburgh University, Edinburgh, Scotland. He is past president of Tennessee Christian Churches, past chairman of Tennessee State Board and a member of the executive board of Disciples of Christ Historical Society.

Music will be presented each evening by the church choir and visitors. Red Oak Christian Church (Greenville) Men's Quartet will sing one evening, and the church choir from Eighth St. Christian Church will present music another. Joe Ray of Ayden will be soloist.

The public is cordially invited to each service. William M. Edge is pastor. Miss Bette McCotter is organist and director of the local choir.

HE'S CONSISTENT

CANNELTON, Ind. (AP)—Bill Peel, assistant county agent, was abashed when he overslept the day he was to take some 4-H Club members on a trip. He made up for it a week later by showing up to take another group on a 30-mile journey—only to find he was a day early.

Striking Pilots Said Replaced

ATLANTA (AP)—Southern Airways says that all striking pilots have been replaced and that the line has resumed normal (pre-strike) operations.

A spokesman said Thursday night Southern currently is flying planes to all the 41 Southeastern cities served before the strike began June 5.

In addition, the spokesman said, the airline plans to inaugurate flights Nov. 1 between Memphis, Jackson and Nashville, Tenn.

A full complement of pilots has been hired to replace the 148 members of the Air Line Pilots Association who walked out, the spokesman declared.

An ALPA proposal to boycott 21 airports in the South in support of the strike against Southern was postponed for several months Sept. 19 when the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago refused to interfere with a lower court's order banning the boycott.

The Southern pilots walked out over wages and working conditions. Many of the issues between the ALPA and Southern were settled in later negotiations. However, a deadlock developed over Southern's refusal to rehire union members who were replaced during the strike by non-striking pilots.

Handcuffs 'Fit'; But Keys Lost

MUSKOGON, Mich. (AP)—Dale Young and Tom Skoels, both 15, walked into a Muskogon surplus store and tried on a pair of handcuffs for size.

When they were firmly cuffed together the boys discovered the key to the set was missing.

The store proprietor took them to the Fire Department which cut the chain connecting them. Then the boys went home and their fathers spent several hours filing the cuffs off their wrists.

No Explanation For The $1,800

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—Christmas in October? Not for most folks, but how else can you explain what happened at the Oklahoma Welfare Department Thursday.

The department received a plain brown envelope containing $1,800 in cash—but no explanation or identification of the donor. The return address was false.

Welfare Director Lloyd Rader reasoned the secret Santa Claus may have been a client with an uneasy conscience—a person receiving welfare payments who wasn't eligible.

Extra Care For Sen. Goldwater

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—Sheriff's officers, police and FBI men will guard Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona when he speaks Saturday at a GOP rally, authorities said.

Extra protection was ordered after Donald L. McLaughlin, chairman of the Santa Barbara County Republican Central Committee, told of receiving a call from an unidentified man who said: "Listen and listen very carefully: When Barry Goldwater comes to town he will never leave alive."

McLaughlin reported the call to officials Thursday.

Jack's Cookie Corporation Expands In Eastern N. C.

Mr. Harold Daniel and Mr. S. Eugene West

In a statement made here yesterday, it was announced that Jack's Cookie Corporation will expand a policy established several years ago whereunder it places particular emphasis on sales in Eastern North Carolina through a branch headquarters located here in Greenville. This prominent Southern producer of cookies, whose general headquarters recently was moved to Charlotte, North Carolina, from Mississippi, has just leased a new warehouse and office building here in Greenville located on the airport road. The long term lease was handled between Jack's Cookie Corp. and Greenville Mayor S. Eugene West.

Approximately ten thousand square feet of floor space in this building will be utilized to make almost immediate store deliveries of cookies to outlets throughout Eastern Carolina. The announcement was made by Harold Daniel, resident of Greenville, who heads the Greenville branch operation. Mr. Daniel pointed out that more than twenty people are presently employed in this operation, and the Greenville payroll is a six figure annual amount.

"The growing response of our friends in this market to Jack's cookies and the powerful advertising program supporting our line," said Mr. Daniel, "has prompted us to expand our total operation here. One part of the expansion will be the establishment of an area truck maintenance program here in Greenville. This will add to the already appreciable sum of money expended by our company in Eastern North Carolina. Additionally, we have plans to add new items and to promote these even more dynam-cally than ever before. We believe that Eastern North Carolina is one of the most fruitful potentials, and we are endeavoring to serve our customers here in the most modern and the most effective manner possible."

The new warehouse and office building presently in process of being renovated and occupied will afford covered loading dock space wherein ten trucks can be loaded simultaneously. At the same time, a tractor-trailer unit can be unloaded with merchandise frequently less than twelve hours old, shipped from the modern, new plant in Charlotte, North Carolina. Other Jack's plants are located in Mobile, New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Greenville, Miss.

The Greenville branch in the future will comprise at least three sales territories, each under the supervision of a territory manager. The three territory managers reside in Greenville and are Messrs. Joe B. Bass, 2010 S. Evans Street; Don W. Francis, 1408 North Washington Street; and C. Frank Bright, 204 S. Sylvan Dr.

Recently, the company has received considerable attention growing out of using the world's famous voice of Mel Blanc (voice of Bugs Bunny, Porky Pig and other such animated characters) as the voice of Happy Jack, its renowned trademark personality. Within the Jack's cookie line are products ranging in price from 2 for 1c up to 49c packages. A prominent part of the line is the nationally trade-marked "Famous Fifty" group of products, where 50 cookies are sold in a Saran-coated film bag for 39c.—(Adv.)

Old Aphorism: 'Don't Bet Against The N.Y. Yankees'

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees were back in their familiar role today—a 17 to 10 favorite to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates in the World Series—after the mass murder scene in Forbes Field.

National League all-stars Thursday and it wouldn't have done him any good. The Yankee slugger hit everyone and everything in sight. The only thing they missed was the record of 18 runs made by another Yankee team of 24 years ago and 20 hits by the Giants of 1921 and the Cardinals of 1946.

That means Dick Stuart will be back at first base, Gino Cimoli will be in left field and Hal Smith will be behind the plate. Rocky Nelson was at first base and Smoky Burgess was the catcher Thursday. Cimoli played only because Bob Skinner was out of uniform with a jammed left thumb.

The fleet-footed Pirates didn't have a chance to run Thursday. They fell behind early and kept dropping deeper with each inning. Bot Friend managed to contain the Yankees for two innings but the first of three singles by Tony Kubek and McDougald's double featured a two-run attack in the third and even before the Yankees went on their seven-run rampage, they had silenced the partisan crowd of 37,308 by forging into a 5-1 lead.

No Money Woes For Williams

NEW YORK (AP)—Ted Williams said today he may have to return to baseball to find the peace and quiet he hoped would result from retirement. "When I announced I was quitting, it must have sounded like a signal I wanted to go to work," the Boston slugger said. "I never have been in such a sweat in my life."

"The telephone is ringing all the time. I'm getting offers from so many directions I don't know where to turn. It's become a real rat race." Williams, who closed out his brilliant career with a home run in Boston's Fenway Park a week ago, apparently won't have to scratch around for grocery money. He is covering the World Series between the Yankees and Pirates for a national magazine at a five-figure salary.

He is covering the World Series between the Yankees and Pirates for a national magazine at a five-figure salary. Here are a few other "crumbs" he might pick up as a retired ball player: Two national magazines and a number of book publishers are bidding for his life story. Hollywood wants him to come out for a series of screen tests. He may play himself in the movie of his life. If not, he'll be featured in baseball and fishing technical shots.

Eppes High Set To Face Kinston In Grid Scrap

The Eppes High School football team put the final touches on their week long drills yesterday in preparation for their encounter with a visiting Atkins team of Kinston. The Bulldogs finished yesterday's workout with a full hour scrimmage, but Coach Percy Daniels was not pleased with the performance of his defensive line play, and he has a few changes in that department that should close up the gaps in the Bulldog forward wall.

Several baseball clubs, major and minor, are seeking his services in an executive capacity. From Tokyo has come an attractive offer that he teach baseball to the Yomiuri Giants. A land development firm wants him to take over a resort hotel in Key West, Fla. An inveterate fisherman, he is widely sought for fly-casting exhibitions at sportsmen's shows throughout the country. He and ex-heavyweight champion Jack Sharkey have fall shows set in Seattle and Portland, Ore. "Like many other well-known athletes, Ted may make more money out of competition than in it," said Fred Corcoran, Williams' personal business manager.

Shadows Hang Over Pirate Quarters

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Yankees shared the sunshine and shadows during the second World Series game at Forbes Field Thursday, but the sunshine faded only the Yankees to the dressing rooms. The shadows hung over the Pirates' quarters, and they were cast by the horrendous 16-3 drubbing inflicted by the New Yorkers to square the Series at one-all. The elation in the Yankee dressing room was not as high-pitched as might be imagined, and by the same token the gloom in the Pirates' quarters was not unfaithful.

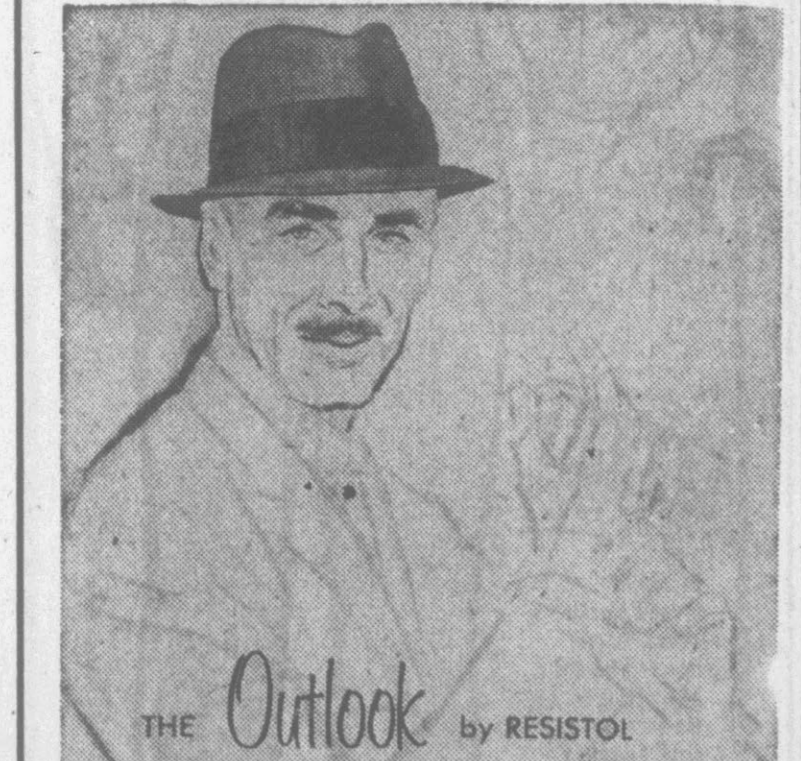

Bob Friend, starting and losing pitcher, took the defeat hardest. He pitched good ball the four innings he worked before being taken out for a pinch hitter. He fanned six, walked two, allowed six hits and two earned runs. The Yankees, to whom World Series victories are old hat, took the game pretty much in stride. Mickey Mantle virtually apologized for hitting two rousing home runs. "I wish I could have saved them for a time when they meant something," the Mick said. Casey Stengel, Yankee manager, explained why he put Yogi Berra in left field and Elston Howard behind the plate. "I'm not afraid to start Berra anywhere," the gnarled skipper said. "He's awkward but he covers a lot of ground. We need his hitting."

Starter Bob Turley said he thought he had set a personal major league record. "I don't think I ever pitched almost nine innings before and never ever struck out one man," he grinned. There was no real moaning and no gloating in either dressing room. The players realized two games don't make a Series.

Tornadoes Cautious Of Williamston Gridders

By LEONARD LAO Reflector Sports Writer The Ayden High School Tornadoes host nonconference Williamston tonight in a game that Ayden coach Stuart Tripp knows nothing about. "They have scouted us, but we haven't had a chance to scout them," said Tripp. "But I do know that they have one of the biggest teams we'll play."

Even though his team sports a 5-0 non-loss record, Coach Tripp is still cautious about the Williamston encounter. The visitors handed the Tornadoes a 330 shellacking last season and Tripp isn't particularly interested in a repeat performance again this year. Leading the Ayden hopefuls is fullback Dinky Mills. The 170 pound senior pilled up 166 yards rushing last week in a 21-6 win over Farmville. Mills, along with tackle Donald Carmen are the Tornadoes' two outstanding performers according to Coach Tripp. "We would like to regain the sharpness that we had against Robersonville two weeks ago," said Tripp when asked how he would like for his team to play. Ayden beat Robersonville to the tune of 25-6 in that contest. "All though they scored against us," explained Tripp, "our defense was terrific. They only had the ball seven times in the second half."

Putting Foot Back In Football Game

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—A lity check and gave order to issue soccer player wearing shorts will kick off for Michigan State in Saturday's football game with Iowa. "We're going to put the foot back in football," grinned State Coach Duffy Daugherty. Daugherty actually has a better reason. He tossed nights over the 99-yard kickoff ruckback for a touchdown scored by Michigan last Saturday. A couple of soccer players were invited to the football field to show some kicking. They boomed them into or beyond the end zone on every try. This would kill any ruckbacks by speedy Iowa. Daugherty made a quick eligi-

ACC Teams Having Rough Time Outside Of League

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At this stage of the football season, Atlantic Coast Conference teams haven't compiled much of a record against outside opponents. And the way things have been going for some of the ACC teams, the record may not show much improvement as the season progresses.

ACC teams have lost to five non-conference opponents, and have won only three games outside the loop. All three victories have been at the expense of Southern Conference teams. Virginia Tech. has lost to two ACC clubs, Clemson and North Carolina State, and faces a third, Wake Forest, Saturday. The other Southern Conference loser was West Virginia to Maryland.

The ACC losers have been Maryland (to Texas), North Carolina (to Miami), South Carolina (to Georgia), Virginia (to William & Mary), and Wake Forest (to Florida State).

Last season, the ACC lost 19 games to outside foes, and won 10, including Clemson's 23-7 Bluebonnet Bowl victory over TCU.

Most of the ACC teams face some tough non-conference opposition in weeks to come.

Virginia, loser of 20 straight games, still must face such outside opponents as Virginia Military, Virginia Tech, and Navy Wake Forest and South Carolina, both of whom lost their first two starts, have dates next month with rugged Louisiana State.

North Carolina, loser of both games so far this season, faces Notre Dame this Saturday, and Tennessee Oct. 29.

Besides the Wake Forest - VPI encounter at Blacksburg, Va., and the Notre Dame - North Carolina engagement at Chapel Hill, N.C., Saturday, Duke faces Michigan in a non-conference game. Virginia plays at Clemson and Maryland at N.C. State in ACC clashes. South Carolina is idle this week.

Wake Forest Coach Billy Hildebrand, who says there's nothing wrong that a victory wouldn't cure, got more bad news Thursday. The Deacons will be without the services of top halfbacks Bill Skippon and Johnny Morris for the VPI game. Skippon is in the hospital with a virus and Morris is hobbled by a leg injury.

South Carolina fans got a jolt with the announcement that sophomore halfback Ken Kilrea, who started the first two games this season, has been dropped from the squad by Coach Warren Giese for disciplinary reasons. Giese said Kilrea violated training rules.

North Carolina worked on all phases of its game Thursday, and had a limbering up drill scheduled today.

The Duke club worked on offensive and defensive patterns Thursday. The team leaves today for Ann Arbor.

Georgia Meets S. Cal. Tonight

By JACK CLARY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Georgia Bulldogs may not find any hospitality, Southern or otherwise, tonight when they meet the University of Southern California in Los Angeles' Coliseum.

Georgia, making its first trip to the West Coast, will come up against a team that has lost five in a row, going back to 1959, including the first three this year. The Trojans intend to do something about it.

Georgia is no slouch, having won two of its first three, beating Vanderbilt and South Carolina after an opening loss to Alabama.

Saturday, the accent shifts to the Midwest where Illinois, ranked fourth nationally in the current Associated Press poll, meets fifth-ranked Ohio State. Kansas, ranked 10th after last week's 14-7 loss to top-rated Syracuse, meets Iowa State.

Syracuse meets Holy Cross. Second-ranked Mississippi takes on Vanderbilt Saturday night.

Elsewhere among the nation's top ranked teams, Iowa (No. 3) tried its speed and versatility against Michigan State.

The season's first bowl game between major schools takes place in Norfolk, Va., where sixth-ranked Navy plays winless (0-2) Southern Methodist, in the Oyster Bowl. Purdue (No. 7) meets Wisconsin. Clemson (No. 8) plays Virginia.

Television viewers can watch Stanford and Washington, beginning at 3:45 p.m. EST over ABC-TV.

Ninth-ranked Arkansas and Baylor meet in the Southwest's top game.

In the East unbeaten Army takes on Penn State.

Louisiana State meets Georgia Tech while Notre Dame plays winless North Carolina.

Oklahoma and Texas renew their ancient rivalry at Dallas' Cotton Bowl. Missouri and the Air Force, a pair of unbeatens, clash in the Rockies' top attraction.

France To Check Charlotte Track

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Bill

France, president of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, was to inspect the Charlotte Motor Speedway track today to determine whether it's safe enough to run the National 400-mile race Oct. 16.

Tom Pistone of Chicago demolished his car during a test run over the multi-million-dollar asphalt track Wednesday. Rex White of Spartanburg, S.C. refused to continue his own test runs and commented about the track's condition: "It stinks."

White, current NASCAR national point leader, said the track "was doing more damage to my car than I could have made during the tests."

Several gaping holes developed in the paving during test runs and the running of the inaugural World 600-mile race last June. Resurfacing work has been done since then.

The Pirates may have lost the second game 16-3, but the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and Sun-Telegraph is far from giving up hope.

The following two-line banner headline appeared on the front page this morning:

"Pirate's second victory slightly delayed; beat 'em, Bucs, next time!"

Pirates Hoping To 'Boone' Tucker

Last spring Coach George Tucker gave up his assistant coaching position at East Carolina College and accepted the head post at Elon College. With this appointment, Tucker and Elon College immediately started pointing for the Pirates in 1960.

Tomorrow night, Tucker's troops get the initial shot at East Carolina. And Elon's chances of victory tomorrow are better than any other time in the past five years.

The Christians are young but deep in experience. Encouraged with the Tucker-drive, the freshmen of last season are back, ready to dish out some lumps of their own this fall.

Foremost among the meeting is the mental aspects involved.

Tucker, an ECC grad, admits he would like nothing better than to slap his former pupils and alma mater with a defeat, and since they are undefeated, it would make it even more of a treat.

Returning Pirate members from 1959 have been eagerly awaiting a shot at their former coach. Boone, an Elon graduate, has come over with some surprise performances on Elon soil in the past and sixty minutes of ball similar to the final half against Catawba last Saturday would be accepted graciously.

Adding a few decorations to the Saturday bout is the fact that Johnny Wike and Gary Matsocks, Elon assistants, are East Carolina graduates, both playing ball here.

On the basis of past performances, Elon would get the nod as the favorite. Both teams have played and defeated Newport News and Guilford.

The Christians thumped Guilford 19-7 while ECC was forced to struggle for a 7-0 victory. ECC, using Glenn Bass for only limited duty, knocked off Newport News 21-6 and Elon came along the following week with a 30-0 triumph.

Elon tasted its first defeat last week at the hands of Appalachian's powerhouse, 33-13. At the same time, East Carolina was exploding in the second half to turn back Catawba, 28-0.

Leading the Christian charges is quarterback George Wooten, who played his prep ball at Hamlet—the same place as ECC's signal caller Bert Stafford. A sophomore, Wooten was a regular most of last season and is billed as one of the top backs in the conference this season.

Stafford played ahead of Wooten in high school and went on to play junior college ball at Wingate under Tucker before entering East Carolina last season.

The Pirate backfield has the edge on Elon with All-Conference Glenn Bass and running mate Sonny Baysinger in a class of their own. Nick Hilgert and Billy Strickland have provided unexpected power up the middle to give ECC another running punch.

The line is a horse of a different color. ECC's starting forward wall has been short of sensational in the first three games but Elon's depth could be a big factor here.

Chuck Gordon and Clayton Piland, a couple of All-Conference candidates, spearhead the ECC forward wall. Wayne Davis, Bob Gregson, Vernon Davis, Henry Kwiatkowski, Jones Lockerman, and Bobby Bumgardner have assisted in the outstanding defensive play thus far.

Coach George Tucker told The Reflector this morning that he expected it to be "a good game." The usually talkative mentor was mum on any pre-game predictions.

"We looked pretty lousy last week at Appalachian but we're ready for East Carolina mentally. We feel that if we can make a minimum of mistakes, it will be a good game," Tucker remarked.

"The kids want this one pretty bad but we will have to contain their (ECC's) halfbacks to win. Our defense has been set up to do this," Tucker continued.

The game, scheduled for Burlington, will start at 8:00. WGTC of Greenville will carry the play-by-play account of the action.

Red Devils Meet Toughie Tonite

We all should agree that there are times when things look pretty grim. Such is the feeling of Farmville's running and passing coach Elbert Moye. But it appears that Moye has good reasons to feel that way.

First of all Coach has a definite problem with only 17 men on his squad. He should be commended for the job he has done so far.

But a small squad is not the only problem the Red Devil mentor has had to face this season. Three of his outstanding players are out with injuries, which leaves a total of only three players to be used for substitution.

But even with these two strikes against him, Coach Moye has managed to compile two victories; a 38-0 season opener with Snow Hill and a 21-7 decision over Lillington.

Although the squad is small, Moye feels that they have a lot of determination to win. "Why one of our boys (Bob Avery) played last week's game against Ayden with a broken nose."

Standouts for the Red Devils

SERIES MEMORIES

On this day in:

1957 — Lew Burdette of the Braves beat the Yankees for the second time in the Series, 1-0.

1946 — Harry Echeen pitched a three-hitter and drove in a run as the Cards whipped the Red Sox 3-0.

1939 — Charley Keller hit two homers and Joe DiMaggio and Bill Dickey one each to lead the Yanks to a 7-3 triumph over the Reds.

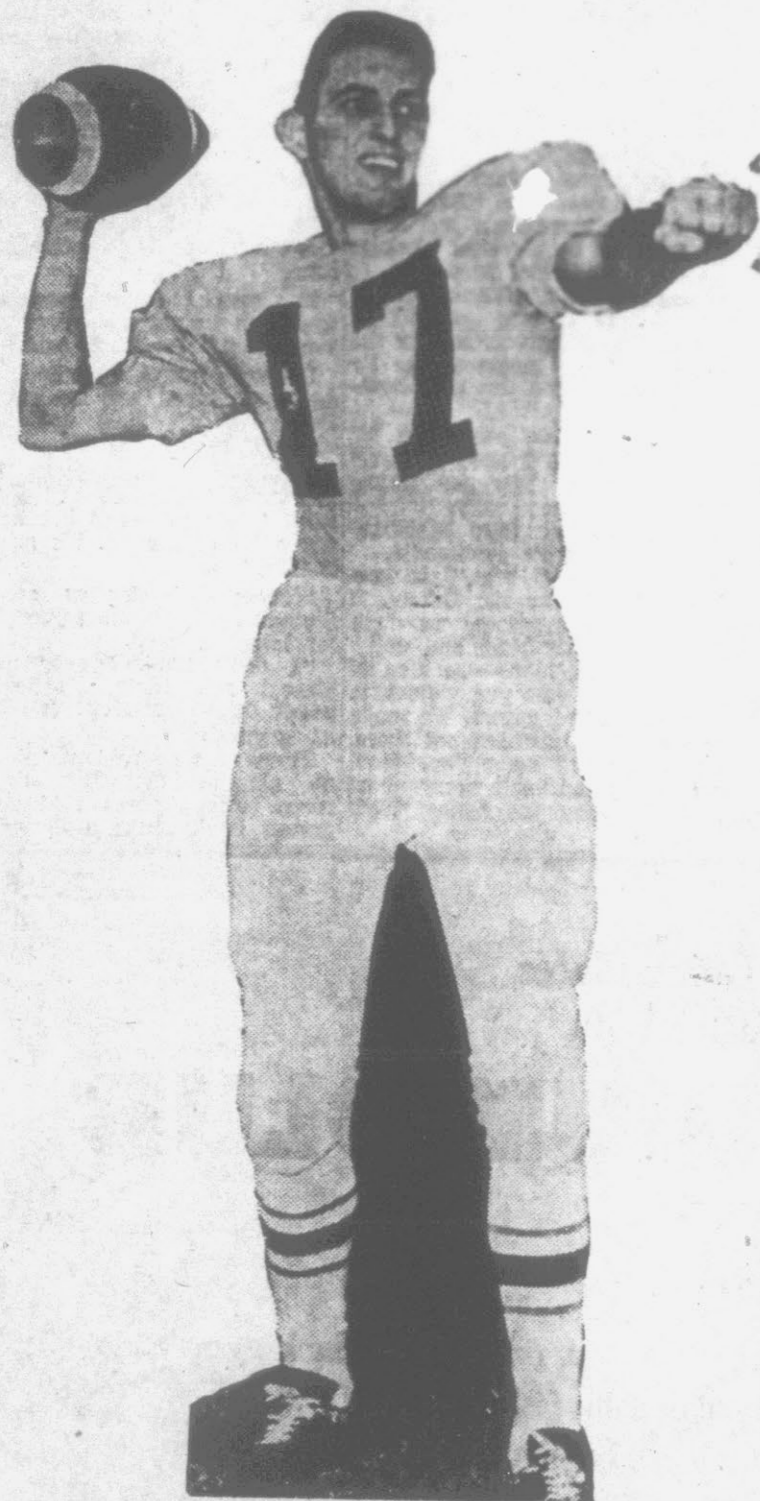

1931 — Pepper Martin's homer and two singles drove in four runs as the Cards defeated the A's 5-1.

this season have been Danny Dilda and Dean Oglesby. Dilda, a halfback, does about one-half of Farmville's running and passing according to Moye. Directing the Red Devils' backfield has been junior Oglesby. Although the little field general has little experience, he has done a good job for Farmville.

In the Robersonville camp, Coach Bob Lee explains that his team is in "pretty good shape." It will be Robersonville's homecoming game and they will be anxious to produce a win for the returning alumnus.

Halfbacks Billy Cratt and Jim Brown may be the difference in a win or a loss for the host team. Both have been out with injuries, and were scheduled to see their physicians today for the OK to play tonight. As Coach Lee puts it, "If these two boys don't play it will be a big question mark."

Lee further stated that due to the fact that both schools had small teams it may be a toss-up.

Pro-Am Event At Sedgefield Site

GREENSBORO (AP) — A 3400 pro-amateur event was scheduled at Sedgefield Country Club today as a preliminary to the Carolina Cup golf matches beginning Saturday.

Among professionals expected to take part today were Chuck Alexander of Rocky Mount, Hampton Auld of Wilmington, Aubrey Apple of Greensboro, Thorne Wood of Asheboro, Joe Bullin of Winston-Salem and Mack Briggs of York, S.C.

Amateurs entered included Billy Joe Patton and Dale Morey of Morganton, former members of the U.S. Walker Cup team; and Charles Smith of Gastonia, North-South and Southern Amateur champion.

The team competition, with 20 Carolina pros against 20 amateurs, begins with double matches Saturday. It will end with singles Sunday. The pros won the 1958 matches at Myrtle Beach, S.C. and here last year.

Bud Daley, 27-year-old Kansas City pitcher, was the only southpaw to complete more than two starts against the Chicago White Sox last year. He completed four games and won three.

Unusual comfort awaits you in this handsome hand-crafted slip-on. Come in and try on a pair soon.

One Violates Parking Law In Japan At Their Own Risk

By JAMES CARY

TOKYO (AP)—I'll never do that again—park in a no parking zone in Japan. The price you pay is too high. I know now, 3 days, 5 hours and 25 minutes of frustration later. It seemed so ordinary that day it all began. Into the Marunouchi Police Station I marched smiling and genial—waving the ticket I had found under the windshield wiper of my ancient vehicle. "Now if you'll just tell me where I can pay my fine," I suggested. "Name please," said a stern-looking desk sergeant. "Age. Where do you live? Drivers license. Married? Children? How long have you been in Japan? Foreign registration card." I gave them all. "Now about that fine," I started hopefully again. The sergeant studied the documents in front of him. He was pretty quiet. I was confident the wheels of justice were turning. "You were illegally parked!" he announced triumphantly. I had that same general impression, too. My smile was a little weaker now. The enormity of my crime was sinking in. "If you'll tell me where to pay the fine," I began again. "You must go to Summary Court," came the shattering announcement. "In America," I started to say. "This is Japan," he smiled. CHAPTER II—The Trial. Time—three days later. Setting—2 hours and 20 traffic-congested miles from the scene of the crime. A tiny, placid-looking building designed to accommodate about 25 persons. Additional details—about 5,000 equally criminal types jammed inside, waiting to pay their debt to society. I trampled over a few hundred bodies getting to a seat. I was mentioned to in front of another policeman. He was menacingly armed with forms, charts, paper, pencil, pen and law books. "You can speak Japanese?" he asked. "A little," I said. We stumbled through the life history of my crime again. "You shouldn't have parked there," he finally said reproachfully. I couldn't have agreed more. "Now about the fine," I said. "Sign your name in Japanese characters here," he said, thrust-hardened foreign criminal. Hurred conferences with his superiors followed. "We'll try you here," the policeman stated. I was left in a jammed, squirming mass of humanity waiting outside the courtroom—a 6-foot-2 Geijin, or foreigner, towering over a sea of men about 5 feet tall. "He's guilty," I knew they were thinking. "It must have been a terrible crime." After a long wait someone tapped me on the shoulder. The officer who had questioned me said: "We've decided that you won't have to be tried after all." "That's fine, I beamed. "Now if you'll tell me where to pay—" "That won't be necessary," he said sternly. "You can go now." I was a free but wiser man, de-termined never to sin again.

Sen. Goldwater Sets Hot Pace For A Non-Candidate

By CARL BELL

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—For a man who isn't running for office, Barry Goldwater is setting a torrid pace on the campaign trail. Arizona's Republican senator has stumped 18 states in behalf of presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon and his running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge. Goldwater says he wouldn't be surprised if he has traveled more in the past month than the candidates themselves. So far he has wooed votes and campaign funds in 63 speeches, 50 of them outside Arizona, and he considers visits to three states a day par for the course. "My heaviest day," he recalled in an interview, "was October 1. That day I spoke at Columbia, Dillon and Orangeburg in South Carolina; three times in Augusta, Ga., and then made a TV appearance in Augusta." Goldwater, leader of the Republican party's ultra-conservative element, has concentrated on the South, where he feels his philosophy of less federal government can do the most good for Vice President Nixon. He extolls the virtues of a two-party system. He hammers at the theme that Arizona, like the South, is predominantly Democratic but has elected a Republican governor, a Republican to one of the state's two U.S. House seats and has twice elected him to the Senate. He has barnstormed through Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, Florida, Texas and Virginia. Outside the South, Goldwater has spoken in Arizona, California, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Oklahoma, Oregon, Indiana, New York, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Missouri. Although he is chairman of the GOP Senatorial Campaign Committee, Goldwater has confined most of his politicking to the presidential campaign. Goldwater said some harsh things about Nixon before the vice president's nomination in July. He called the platform agreement between Nixon and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller a "Munich" for the party and accused Nixon of a "sell-out" to the liberal New Yorker. Does he now find it awkward to thump the tub for Nixon? "Not at all," Goldwater replied. "There's always going to be differences within parties and this is wise as long as there is not a great cleavage." He added: "After all Nixon and I agree far more than we disagree."

Kitten Gift Is Sent By Nixon

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—A cute little kitten arrived here by airplane from Washington, D.C., Thursday night. It was a gift from Vice President Richard M. Nixon to Linda McGrain, 13, of Flint. The black and gray-striped kitten was shipped in a cardboard box in the cargo department of a Capital Airlines plane. Linda had written the vice president asking for one of a litter born to the Nixon family cat.

Ministers Offers Trading Stamps LAKE WALES, Fla. (AP)—The minister of the First Methodist Church of Lake Wales is offering trading stamps for attendance at Sunday night services. The Rev. Robert C. Boggs said Thursday that each person attending church Sunday night would receive five stamps. "It's my impression that some feel more at home where trading stamps are offered than they do in the normal church service," he said. "We want everyone to feel at home."

Hawaii ILWU Supports Nixon

HONOLULU (AP)—The big Hawaiian local of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union Thursday night voted to endorse Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican candidate for the presidency. But the endorsement was less than wholehearted, calling Nixon "the lesser evil." The ILWU's international executive board on the mainland recently rejected both Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, but freed the 2,500-member Hawaiian local from the international's blanket rejection.

Drops Petition For Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actress Arlene Dahl Thursday withdrew her petition for divorce from actor Fernando Lamas, which she filed Aug. 10. Her attorney said there had been no reconciliation but said he had been told by his client not to comment further. And neither Miss Dahl nor Lamas would comment, either.

Plaque Of Appreciation For Sergeant

"OUR SINCERE THANKS" . . . is inscribed on the plaque here presented by rifle team Pres. Joe Gaston (left) to Sgt. Schnaufer as Vice-Pres. Phil Savage looks on.

Sgt. John H. Schnaufer of the local Army Reserve unit was presented last night with an appreciation plaque by the Greenville Optimist Junior Rifle Team. Schnaufer, who has shared directorship of the youth program with Gene Ward of the local Optimist Club, attended his last meeting of the local National Rifle Association chapter last night. The reserve sergeant has been reassigned for one year to Korea and is scheduled to leave Greenville Oct. 13. He plans to move his family to his native Chatta-rooga, Tenn. His wife, Nina, and daughter, Carol Ann, 13, will remain in Chattanooga during his one-year Korean tour. Sgt. Schnaufer is due for retirement in 1962. He was assigned to the local Reserve unit in February, 1959, and has made his home on Route 2, Greenville, since that time. Sgt. Schnaufer and Ward led the movement, along with the local Optimist Club, to organize the rifle team in June, 1959. Both have worked with the growing organization since that time. Sgt. Schnaufer told the rifle team members, "It has been a real pleasure working with you boys. Let me wish you every success in continuing your club and team here." Sgt. Robert C. Mullins of the Reserve unit has agreed to replace Schnaufer until December when he retires. Following Mullins' retirement, it is expected another replacement will come from the unit.

Hammar skjold Outwardly Serene In Midst Of Gravest Crisis In Career

By MILTON BESSER UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Dag Hammarskjold, confronted with the gravest crisis of his career, appears outwardly as serene and imperturbable as ever. He moves with the quiet assurance of a man who has made up his mind on what course to follow, and will stay with it because he is convinced that is what he must do. There is no doubt he was angered by Soviet Premier Khrushchev's attacks upon him—perhaps not so much by the language as the derisive, table-thumping gestures which accompanied it. But outwardly the U.N. secretary-general appears calm and unperturbed, rarely displaying the effect of the intense strain to which he is subjected daily. Each morning, sharply at 9 a. m., his big blue Lincoln limousine drives up to the entrance of the 38-story U.N. secretariat building. At the wheel is William M. Ranallo, an American who is his personal aide. Hammarskjold rides up front with him. He is whisked up to his offices on the 38th floor for a work day that stretches more often than not into the early hours of the next day. He is driven back to his 18-room Park avenue bachelor apartment by Ranallo to catch a few hours sleep—but he is always back by 9 a. m. He could sleep in the apartment that is part of his U.N. office, but he prefers to get outside the big glass house on the East River for the solitude of his Park avenue lodgings. His closest associates at the U.N. are Andrew W. Cordier, the big, affable Indiana man who is his executive assistant; Ralph J. Bunche, the distinguished American Nobel Prize winner who is undersecretary for special political affairs; H.A. Wieschoff, a special consultant in African affairs, and Wilhelm Wachtmeister, personal assistant to the secretary-general. He listens to as much of the General Assembly debate as possible, occupying one side of the high podium behind the speaker's rostrum while Cordier is on the other. Between them is Assembly President Frederick H. Boland of Ireland. Hammarskjold sat on the podium while Khrushchev delivered the attack in which he called on him to resign. Khrushchev launched the attack at the end of a morning Assembly session. Hammarskjold was ready at the afternoon session with his reply—a decision to fight what he regarded as an attempt to weaken the job he swore to uphold. All of this has been a strain. But despite this he remains amiable and approachable as ever to his staff, a trait that engenders a kind of fierce loyalty and devotion from those closest to him. He has not been making the Assembly's round of diplomatic receptions. But this is not unusual since he rarely takes them in. An exception was the party Khrushchev gave Tuesday night.

The Soviet premier gave Hammarskjold a bear hug and the unsolicited advice to bet on Communism instead of the West. Hammarskjold smiled somewhat uncomfortably and left the reception as soon as possible. Erect and wiry, he looks much younger than his 55 years. But since the start of the Congo crisis in July he has not been able to pursue many of the pleasures he enjoys including hiking about the grounds of his 100-acre estate near Frewster, N. Y., where he usually spends weekends. He likes French literature, modern theater, modern poetry, modern art and long-hair music. But the pace he keeps up these days give him little chance to indulge his tastes.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Eighty-year-old John L. Lewis, making his farewells to the Mine Workers Union he led for over 40 years, counsels them to "protect your union, cling together." Lewis, now UMW president emeritus after retiring as union president in January, bid a sad goodbye to his coal miners at a testimonial banquet Thursday night amid convention sessions here. The man who fought miners' battles through the years, sometimes against the forces of the government, and who also founded the big labor unions in the steel, auto and other American industries, reported on his stewardship. "I have grown old in your service," Lewis said. "It has become necessary for me to step aside. I can only say I have served as sincerely and as faithfully as my capacities would permit. I have never been beguiled by the flatteries or inducements of the men with motives opposed to the welfare of the mine workers. "I have accepted no favors and there does not exist in America or any where else any one I can't look square in the eye and say either 'yes' or 'no' according to which is in the best interests of the mine workers of America." Lewis referred to his frequent fights through the years with industrialists and politicians standing in the way while accomplishing his aims for the labor cause. "I have never wanted their sympathy," he said. "I enjoy more their opposition, if opposition there is to be, because it's easier to express what's really in your mind when you know your opponent is an enemy to your existence." Lewis said he noticed more people are fairly well off today—more "plutocrats," he said, than in his own early days. The miners' economic fights helped accomplish this, he added. But Lewis said the UMW had not always been affluent or powerful. It was here he appealed to miners to keep their union strong. Benjamin Franklin, Lewis recalled, came out of the first constitutional convention in Philadelphia to announce to bystanders, "You have a republic—if you can keep it." "And that's the eternal task in America," said Lewis. "You have a labor union, too, if you can keep it." Some people today, he said, are "astounded at the effrontery" of a labor organization accumulating over $100 million assets such as has the UMW. He defended the union's investments, outlined earlier to the UMW convention. This revealed an extensive blue chip union portfolio in coal mines, railroads, power firms, shipping concerns and banks. The UMW said its investment of about $21 million in the National Bank of Washington now is worth $50 million and, after a few decades, will be valued at some $100 million.

Civitan District Governor Speaks

North Carolina District Governor Francis Essic last night addressed the Greenville Civitan Club at its regular meeting here. Essic discussed the Civitan Creed and explained how it should be applied to daily life. The club's membership welcomed Joe Dudley's return as active Civitan and inducted Van Jones as a new member. Among the guests were Jim Pleasant, T.L. Byrd, Roy Matthews, Allen Thacker, and Bernard Jackson.

FLOODS SPREAD

MARSEILLE, France (AP)—The flood menace that struck west-central France earlier this week spread today to the lower Rhone Valley of southern France. Outside Avignon the Rhone spilled over its banks and cut the national highway. Outside Marseille, at Aubagne, flood waters swept into the lower parts of town.

Well, Kennedy said, it should encourage "those liberty-loving Cubans who are leading the resistance to Castro."

"And we must make it clear to Mr. Castro once and for all that we will defend our naval base at Guantanamo under all circumstances—and continue to seek reparation for his seizures of American property."

Actually Kennedy omitted this reference to Guantanamo—included in the prepared text—when he delivered the speech. His aides, however, have said he would stand on everything in the prepared text.

Kennedy Denies Silence On Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy said today that, no matter what Richard M. Nixon says in his Southern speeches he has spoken out repeatedly for civil rights. And while he was at it, the Democratic presidential nominee challenged Nixon to say where he stands on Negro sit-ins and on the fair employment practices commission. "Nowhere in the South has he squarely faced up to this (civil rights) issue since his nomination." In a bristling reply statement, Kennedy said: "Although Mr. Nixon has recklessly charged me with failing to discuss civil rights in the South, I have affirmed my support of the Democratic platform and my concern that every American, regardless of race, be assured his full constitutional rights, in every Southern and every border state I have visited: North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Texas." Members of his staff produced stenographic copies to show what Kennedy had said, in a move to back up that statement. Kennedy issued his statement shortly after returning here early today to rest and prepare for the second of a series of radio-television debates with Nixon. Kennedy's main speech Thursday, a television talk in Cincinnati, dealt with Fidel Castro and Cuba. Here he amplified an argument he has been making repeatedly: That the Eisenhower administration has bungled this problem, especially when it supported the dictator, Fulgencio Batista, "at a time when Batista was murdering thousands." And what should this nation do now?

Arrest Ex-Convict For Highway Robbery Role

LANCASTER, Calif. (AP)—Highway patrolmen early today arrested an Arkansas ex-convict and said he had admitted participating with two other men in a four-state foray of perhaps 100 highway robberies. Authorities said Elton Harold Hale, 43, and two others, still at large, are believed responsible for robberies of motorists and assaults on women in California, Texas, Arizona and Arkansas.

Booked on suspicion of kidnapping, robbery, rape and sex perversion, Hale denied committing any sex offenses. Sheriff's Sgt. D. E. Ellsworth said Hale had admitted being a member of the highway gang and quoted him as saying: "I've robbed and stolen, but I've never killed anyone." Arrested with him 35 miles northeast of Los Angeles was his son, Robert, 17, who said Hale had picked him up Thursday night in Yuma, Ariz. The boy said he had been living there with an uncle since last month. Robert, one of six Hale children, was held for juvenile authorities.

The father told officers he had served 10 years for rustling and two years for burglary in the Arkansas State Penitentiary. He has been charged in Texas with highway robbery and rape. Sgt. Ellsworth said Hale had refused to name his companions in the crimes, saying: "I'll probably have to do time for this, and I don't want to put the finger on anyone . . . If you pick them up and they tell you, fine." Ellsworth said, "We're confident there'll be other arrests soon." Investigators said three men in a car stopped four cars near El Paso, Tex., last Wednesday morning, assaulted one woman and escaped with about $10,000 after tying up their victims with a metal chain and securing it with a padlock.

The victims said the bandit car had a red light and siren, but Hale told officers he and his partners did not use such equipment.

Tumultuous Reception For Nixon By Cleveland Crowd

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon returned early today from a tumultuous reception in Cleveland to rest up before tonight's debate with his Democratic opponent, John F. Kennedy.

Tonight's meeting at 7:30 Eastern Daylight Time will be the second of four scheduled face-to-face encounters between the presidential contenders.

Nixon's big reception in Cleveland came after a rousing sendoff earlier in the day at Nashville, Tenn. Both are normally Democratic areas in which the Republicans hope to make heavy inroads.

From the standpoint of crowds, Nixon was given an edge over Kennedy's earlier appearance in Nashville and at least a standoff in Cleveland.

It took 30 minutes for Nixon's own convertible to travel five city blocks through flag-waving, cheering Cleveland crowds.

James P. Holloran, commissioner of traffic, estimated at first that a quarter of a million persons saw Nixon's motorcade inch its way along Euclid avenue in downtown Cleveland after his arrival by air from Nashville. Later he scaled this down to 150,000.

At Cleveland's Public Hall, Nixon, looking fresh after a strenuous day, spoke to 12,000 seated in front of him and about 4,000 in a tiered music hall section rising from the back of the stage.

The vice president drew thundering approval from the auditorium crowd when he predicted "we're going to win Ohio." He said many Democrats are going to switch over to the Republican column in November to give the GOP victories in Ohio and other states.

The vice president charged Kennedy with making a "misstatement of fact" in telling Clevelanders a couple of weeks ago that the Republican administration had not effectively combated inflation, Nixon said this just wasn't so.

He said the Eisenhower administration record was much better than that of the previous Democratic administration headed by Harry S. Truman. The mention of Truman's name was booed.

Lyndon Johnson Tours Maryland

CUMBERLAND, Md. (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson's campaign in the South was scheduled to stretch across Maryland today, with stops at Cumberland, Hagerstown and Salisbury.

The Democratic vice-presidential nominee was to land here shortly before noon, to lead a motorcade through the area and speak from the City Hall steps.

In Hagerstown, he was to attend a reception with former Gov. William Preston Lane Jr. A highlight of the day was to be a television appearance in Salisbury with Gov. J. Millard Tawes, followed by a dinner rally in that city.

Johnson's Maryland tour follows a blistering speech at a rally in Richmond Thursday night, in which the candidate said Vice President Richard M. Nixon had injected McCarthyism into the campaign.

Johnson charged that Nixon had "hit below the belt" in a prepared speech that quoted the senator as opposing civil rights. Johnson called the quotation entirely untrue, adding that "Mr. Nixon knew it, and that's why he withdrew it."

New Fiction On Library Shelves

Novels by Fannie Hurst and Manly Wade Wellman are among new books recently added to the shelves at Sheppard Memorial Library, Librarian Elizabeth Copeland announced this week.

Miss Hurst is the author of "Family," Wellman selected "Candle of the Wicked" as an enticing title for readers.

Other fiction books include "The Dean's Watch" by Elizabeth Goudge; "Back to Berlin" by V.B. Carleton; "Look to the Roses" by Shirley Seifert; "The Child Buyer" by John Hersey; "Necessary Evil" by Anita Rowe Block; "The Others" by Ann Aikman; "The Call to Murralla" by George H. McMurray; "Yesterday" by Maria Dermout; "Strangers and Brothers" by C. P. Snow; "We the Living" by Ayn Rand; "Morning at Jalna" by Maxo De La Roche; "Girl on a Wing" by Bernard Glensier; "Mrs. Sherman's Summer" by Marjorie Fischer; "The Last Temptation of Christ" by Nikos Kazantzakis; and "Walk Egypt" by Vinnie Williams.

Gavin Attacks One-Party Rule

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Republican Robert Gavin has attacked another chapter to his strategy of going soft on North Carolina Democrats but hard on their candidate for governor, Terry Sanford.

Attacking one-party government in a speech Thursday night, Gavin, GOP gubernatorial hopeful, said no dictatorship has appeared in the state because it has had "for the most part, high-minded candidates for office under the one-party system."

He added, "I wonder if we have a high-minded candidate for that part this year."

Gavin said the state's one-party system has readied North Carolina for what he called "a fearful dictatorship."

Gavin, speaking to a business executives club here, said, "Union money has been spent in this state on his (Sanford's) behalf, and is being spent in the state today on his behalf." About 170 persons were present. About the same number heard Sanford at a previous meeting.

He asked for consideration of what would happen if the power of the governor's office falls into the hands of "a man who is committed to the Northern radical liberal policies so expounded by the Democratic national platform."

Reservations Were In Wreck

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A crumpled, water-stained envelope postmarked Boston, Oct. 4, arrived at a hotel here Thursday. Stamped on the envelope was the following explanation for its condition: "Damaged in airplane accident over Boston Harbor. No fault of Post Office Department." The envelope contained reservations for two Boston residents for Oct. 14. It had been aboard the Eastern Airlines Electra which crashed Tuesday in Boston Harbor, killing 61 persons.

More Funds For Public Schools

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's public school units, ever on the lookout for new money, have received two items of good news from the State Board of Education.

The board: 1. Approved a basis for distributing to public schools $2,257,470 in federal defense education funds.

2. Announced a 10 per cent reduction in premiums for schools covered by the public school insurance fund.

The board's finance chairman, J. A. Pritchett of Windsor, said Thursday more than $1.8 million is available to buy equipment and perform minor remodeling work for science and modern language classrooms under the National Defense Education Act.

Another $401,160 goes for guidance counseling and testing and $50,000 will be used for educational television in 26 school units.

The science and language money will be distributed on the basis of $1.68 per student in average daily membership. Eligible high schools will receive $1.82 per student under the guidance counseling and testing program.

The television allocations vary between Mecklenburg County's $12,790 to the smallest dole of $581.40 for units with only one class.

The fire premium reductions resulted because fire losses paid out of the insurance fund last year amounted to only $118,275.

France To Have Postal Rocket

PARIS (AP)—France will have a postal rocket next year, Postal Minister Maurice Bokanowski said Thursday night. The "teledisc" rocket he said, will carry 880 pounds of mail 300 miles. He did not disclose its speed.

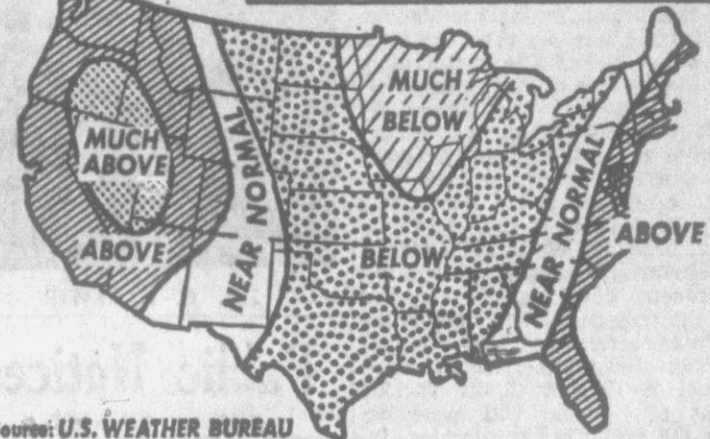

Bokanowski said the Postal Ministry expects to recover the rocket in perfect condition. It will be slowed up for landing by a parachute.

Farm House Is Damaged By Fire In Afternoon

BETHEL—An estimated 1400 to a farm house ear here resulted yesterday afternoon when fire broke out in the residence of Louis Taft, Route 1, Bethel, Negro.

Ed Hemingway, chief of the Station-House Volunteer Fire Department, reported the blaze on the Frank T. Whitehurst farm in the Johns Town Community.

No injuries were reported by firemen who confined the fire to the kitchen. Hemingway said the blaze broke out around a chimney while the family was preparing dinner on a wood-burning cookstove.

The chief said the fire loss was covered by insurance.

He said the blaze was reported to the rural fire department at 2:30 p.m. yesterday. Taft's family includes his wife and eight children, Hemingway said.

The Station-House department was organized about three months ago and equipped itself with a truck recently.

Women Of Presbytery To Hold Goldsboro Meeting

The Women of the Church of Albemarle Presbytery will meet in the First Presbyterian Church of Goldsboro on Thursday, October 13, and Friday, October 14. The theme for the meeting will be "OUR HERITAGE AND MISSION." Mrs. Charles H. Francis of New Bern, president, will preside.

The opening session will feature an address on "The Presbyterian Mission to the Nation" by Dr. C. I. Lewis, pastor of the host church. The main speaker for the 2 day session will be Dr. Mary Boney, professor of Bible at Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Georgia, who will address the group on Thursday night and Friday morning on the Bible study for the year from the book of Philipians. Dr. Boney is a native of North Carolina. She is the author of the study book which will be used by the Women of the Church for the coming year. Friday morning's session, in addition to Dr. Boney, will have Dr. Ansley Moore of Laurinburg, president of the St. Andrews Presbyterian College, who will tell of recent developments concerning the college. A high light of the morning session will be a choral number by the Goldsboro High School A Capella Choir. Various items of business will come before the group in the morning, including the election of officers.

The Friday afternoon session will be centered around personal commitment in response to the theme "OUR HERITAGE AND MISSION." A call to Personal Commitment will be given by Miss Catherine Latta of New Bern. Mrs. Lucy Godwin of Fayetteville, President of the Women of the Church of the Synod of North Carolina, will then speak to the group on "Personal Commitment Through the Women of the Church." A part of the service of commitment will be the installation of officers which will be conducted by Mrs. Ford Worthy of Washington.

Revival Preacher Active In Field Of Evangelism

The Rev. John R. Howard, guest preacher for the Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church revival beginning Sunday, has served churches in Lexington, Miss.; La Grange, and Tifton, Georgia; and in the mountains of Kentucky at Whitesburg.

In addition to his pastoral work, the speaker has for many years been active in the field of evangelism throughout the bounds of the Southern Presbyterian Church.

He is a graduate of Davidson College and of Columbia Theological Seminary at Decatur, Georgia.

The public is invited to attend the revival services each evening at 7:45 o'clock, beginning with Sunday's morning service at 11:00 o'clock. A Daily Bible Hour, at 10:00 o'clock each morning, is planned for those who cannot attend the evening services. There will be nursery accommodations for children.

Reports Action Taken To Reduce 'Dust Problems'

Fred Webb, Inc. Grain Elevator has made changes in its equipment to reduce the alleged dust and chaff problem and further changes are to be made.

Fred Webb told the City Council this at last night's meeting. He said he had built certain vent enclosures designed to catch chaff and dust at the recommendation of a consulting firm. Repairs to fans in the exhaust system have also been made, he reported.

"I believe we have it under control," he told the councilmen. He said the next step is to add a dust collecting system to the elevator's cleaner and "we will have even that under control."

He reported the elevator is not now using the cleaner under conditions "which would give anybody any trouble."

Councilman Wesley Harvey said he had received a complaint within the last week concerning the dust and chaff problem. He reported that he investigated and found such conditions.

Mayor West said he had had several calls. However, he said, "Frankly, it's not nearly as bad as it was, from my viewpoint. We still have some and whether it can be worked out or not, I don't know."

Webb had appeared at the August council meeting after considerable complaints about chaff and dust from the grain elevator had been received by the city.

He told the councilmen the consulting firm would be called in and changes made at their recommendation.

Councilman W. S. Stafford and City Manager Leonard Bloxam had been appointed by Mayor West to work with Webb on the matter.

Large Turn-Out For PTA Meeting Here

Approximately 300 parents and teachers met at Junius H. Rose High School Thursday night for the first meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association this school year.

For the third consecutive year, the "Back to School" theme has been used at the initial meeting in the fall.

All parents observed the theme by following their children's class schedules for the current school year. They passed from classroom to classroom, following the daily routine of the sons and daughters. Teachers spoke briefly on topics including homework, methods of grading and scholarship. Each class period lasted about 10 minutes.

During a business session which preceded the program, Dr. Grover Everett, president of the association, welcomed those present and introduced O. C. Dowd, school principal, who in turn presented new faculty members.

Those who have joined the staff this year are Mrs. Earl Beach, music; Mrs. Tenella Gross, English; Robert Muldin, English, Neil Howell, distributive education; James Pritchell, social science; and Mrs. Frances Dudley, mathematics.

Mrs. Patricia Stauffer teaches health and physical education for girls while Jerry Warren, coach, teaches biology. Mrs. Addie Jenkins is secretary to the principal.

Following the presentation of faculty members, Svend Erik Plum, scholarship student from Denmark, was introduced by Mrs. H. H. Bryant, president of the Greenville Chapter of American Field Service Scholarships.

Dr. Everett named the following to serve as committee chairmen

It was then that West asked it be included in the motion that there be "no rush" in releasing Bloxam.

Unique Experiment

Thus ends a unique experiment in combining of the two municipal operations. Bloxam originally came to Greenville in 1954 as Utilities superintendent replacing Martin Swartz, who retired.

When City Manager James H. Hughes resigned in December, 1955, Bloxam was approached about taking the city manager's post in addition to his duties as superintendent. Bloxam, the Utilities commission and city councilmen were agreeable to the plan and Bloxam assumed the additional duties Feb. 11, 1956.

At that time the superintendent was receiving a salary of $9,000 from the Utilities Commission and the city agreed to pay him an additional salary of $5,000 making a total of $14,000.

His present Utilities salary is $9,500 and his city salary has since been raised to $6,500 for a total of $16,000.

Horne stated this morning that there would be some adjustment in Bloxam's Utilities salary to take into account the raises he would have normally received during the past four years.

"Certainly it will be more than $9,500 and I would think less than the $16,000," Horne stated.

The Utilities Commission localities is set up as a separate city owned corporation. The five members of the commission are appointed by the City Council for four year terms. However, their actions in operating the commission are not subject to approval by the City Council.

This system in itself differs from many municipalities which own their utilities. In these cities the utilities are operated as a department of the municipal government.

Bloxam told the Council following last night's action he had "enjoyed working with the mayor, council, department heads and the people of Greenville."

He paid tribute to the municipal department heads for the success of government operation during the past four years.

However, he said professionally, he is a Utilities man. "My heart is closer to that field. That would be my chosen profession."

He assured the council of his continued cooperation until a new city manager is found.

Tobacco Marts' Average Stays Well Over $60

Tobacco markets in Greenville, Farmville and Robersonville yesterday continued to boost season sales averages with all three still above $60 per 100 pounds.

Greenville edged its season average closer to $60 by selling a total of 1,425,766 pounds for an average of $64.17—highest of the trio yesterday. Growers' receipts were $914,876. Greenville's season mark now stands at $59.80.

Farmville posted a mark of $63.28 yesterday from the sale of 649,704 pounds for a total $41,147. Farmville's season mark through yesterday was $60.10.

Robersonville sold a total 159,604 pounds for $100,306 and an average of $62.85 per 100 pounds, running its season mark to $59.58.

The entire Eastern Belt chalked up an average of $63.71 yesterday, according to the Federal-Statist Market News in Wilson. Total pounds amounted to 9,166,460. Growers' receipts totaled $5,840,017, the Wilson office said.

PIANIST RETIRING

LONDON (AP)—Concert pianist Harriet Cohen said Thursday night she is retiring because of failing sight. Miss Cohen, 59, injured a hand in an automobile accident some years ago but carried on her career when composers wrote concerti for one hand specially for her. Later she regained the use of the injured hand.

gina southward, and can call on any of the states for aid in combating fires in the state. He added that there is also a "State Fire Plan" in which all the departments in the state work with the Forest Service in combating large blazes.

He added that "A" Grade prisoners have proven very good firefighters and are used by the Service on big fires. Claridge pointed out, also, that Camp Lejeune maintains a 300-man unit which will respond to a call for assistance in battling forest fires within 75 miles of the military installation.

He concluded by noting the Forest Service has "a big job to do ... but the public has a job to do also." He said that the only way fires could be controlled and eventually stopped is through the education of the public ... showing the people how much damage fires cause and how a little effort could prevent them.

Sam Brooks, chairman of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce's Committee on Fire Prevention, who introduced Claridge, said the "program of prevention of fire is everybody's job." Brooks noted that "fires are not accidents ... they are caused by certain habits ... and the job of prevention is one of education."

Brooks reminded the Council that next week is Fire Prevention Week, noting that the Pitt County Insurance Exchange, in co-operation with the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and the Greenville Fire Department, which sponsors Fire Prevention Week, has purchased fire prevention literature for all the Pitt County schools this year. Literature for the city schools has been purchased by the Chamber of Commerce, he added.

The Safety Council passed a resolution endorsing and commending the Pitt Firemen's Association for their work in promoting better fire protection in Pitt County.

Council Chairman Luther D. Moore, who presided at the meeting, urged everyone in Pitt County interested in safety to attend the Council meetings, emphasizing that the Council is a county-wide organization dedicated to promoting safety.

Old Cherry Lane School Lot And Building Is Sold

An offer of $2,500 for the old Cherry Lane School lot and vacant building has been accepted by the Pitt County School Board, Superintendent D. H. Conley said yesterday.

The offer was made by William White and Robert Hemby, both residents of the Cherry Lane neighborhood.

The school was vacated at the beginning of the 1959-60 year, when a consolidation with Stokes Elementary School took place. The property had been advertised a year ago, Conley said, but no bidders appeared.

The board then placed a figure of $2,500 on the property. When the offer was made by White and Hemby, the board ordered it sold at that price.

Mrs. George Smith Died In Hospital

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, 84, died in Petersburg General Hospital, Petersburg, Virginia, Friday morning at 7:30.

The body will remain at the Wilkerson Funeral Home in Greenville until funeral arrangements are completed.

Mrs. Smith was born in Pitt County and lived in Fountain for a number of years. After the death of her husband, George Madison Smith, in 1928, she had made her home in Greenville with her daughter, Mrs. H. P. Johnson. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Greenville.

Surviving are a son, George B. Smith of Greenville, S. C.; two daughters, Mrs. H. P. Johnson of Greenville and Mrs. Florence Steele of Petersburg, Va.; five grandchildren; and a sister, Mrs. Ida Watson of Falkland.

Examined 14 At Cancer Clinic

ROCKY MOUNT—Persons from Greenville were among the 14 examined in the Cancer Detection and Diagnostic Clinics here Wednesday.

It was the 408th time the clinics were conducted by physicians of Edgecombe and Nash Counties. Those examined included 12 women and two men. They represented Rocky Mount and outlying areas of Cherry Mount, Halifax and Greenville.

The clinics are held each Wednesday at the Rocky Mount City Health Department and are open only to persons 35 years of age and older, regardless of race or ability to pay. Those under 35 may be admitted with referral from their physician.
