

Johnson Hints Public Not Being Told All The Facts

BOARD THE JOHNSON CAMPAIGN TRAIN (AP)—Sen. Lyndon Johnson urged his whistling listeners in Spartanburg today to write the White House and ask, "Why they are keeping this record of the (Nixon-Khrushchev) conversation in Moscow such a secret."

The Democratic vice presidential candidate based his talk in Spartanburg on a prepared text, instead of making only an off-the-cuff, just-folks appeal for party unity.

The Texan did not suggest what the administration had left unreported in silent motion pictures of the "kitchen debate" between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and the Soviet premier.

He broadly accused the Republicans of withholding facts from the people for eight years on such things as how foreign aid money is spent and why the administration has "accepted high bids" on government contracts.

In Gastonia, his last stop in North Carolina, Johnson counseled a crowd of about 3,500 against "going off with groups that preach

Johnson, "but he wants you to know we'll just be doing Khrushchev's job."

In a prepared statement, he called his North Carolina reception friendly and attentive and said he found "a genuine note of enthusiasm in the air."

The crowds that greeted the candidate in North Carolina Monday were receptive, ready to yell, laugh or boo on cue. There were graybeards, a few businessmen, housewives, high school bands and youngsters out of class and waving Kennedy-Johnson banners.

At first the group was rather small—some 500 at the tobacco town of Reidsville; 700 at Greensboro, where Vice President Richard M. Nixon drew thousands a few weeks ago; a few hundred at High Point, added late to his list of stops; 400 or so at Lexington.

As the daytime working hours faded, however, the crowds got bigger and more noisy, and the candidate spoke with greater gusto and even more folksiness.

"I want to be remembered by how I live, not where I live," he told the Salisbury crowd, estimated as high as 2,000. "But the longer I stay in North Carolina, the more I like to be here."

At Gastonia, his last stop in North Carolina, Johnson counseled a crowd of about 3,500 against "going off with groups that preach vote against the Democratic ticket because there's a Southerner on it," he added, referring to a speech by Nixon in New York.

About 4,000 cheering people met the train at the textile city of Kannapolis, and several hundred vociferous greeters were at Republican leaning Charlotte.

Warning to his task, Johnson attacked Nixon's maturity and experience. Another favorite topic was the farm program.

Others were high interest topics and the need for an end to "divided government." John Kennedy was mentioned at every stop, and Johnson expressed pride that the Massachusetts man, descendant of an Irish Catholic immigrant, and his wife, whose ancestors were Confederate, could share the ticket.

On civil rights, Johnson said he believed America wants a nation where all are equal "regardless of race, religion or region." He repeated his attack on Nixon for "discrimination" in saying Kennedy went into the South for his running mate.

In Charlotte Monday night Johnson spoke to the North Carolina League of Municipalities. He accused Republicans of blocking measures for aiding municipal development and channeling away needed funds via high interest payments on federal debts.

Probing Killer's Escape Plot

Wetzel, Accomplices Moved From Central Prison To Security Units

RALEIGH (AP)—Convicted killer Frank Edward Wetzel was safely tucked away in a segregation cell today, his plot to flee Central Prison aborted by alert prison officials.

Wetzel and two other desperate convicts were transferred Monday to tight security prison units after the discovery of their plan to shoot their way out of their cells here.

Prison officials continued to investigate the incident before answering two vital questions: 1. How did the would-be escapees acquire a 38 caliber revolver?

2. Who, besides Wetzel, Thomsen and Cecil Callahan and Robert Furr were involved in the plot?

Prison Director George Randall said the escape was to have occurred about 8 p.m. Monday. Between five and eight inmates were to use the pistol to overpower a guard, Wetzel was to dress in a guard's uniform and take over the front gate and the rest were to cross-wire the ignition of a state car to make the getaway, Randall explained.

"If the escape had come off," he added, "several of the most desperate men in the system would have been at large and it probably would have resulted in the death of several persons."

The director said, "We think we know, but we don't want to talk about that yet," when asked how the gun was smuggled through the prison gates. He said indications were that no guards were involved.

Wetzel, 38, from Seneca Falls, N.Y., was transferred to the tough Ivy Bluff unit for incorrigibles in Caswell County. He was twice sentenced to life for murdering Highway Patrolman J. T. Brown and Wister Lee Reece in Lee and Richmond counties on the night of Nov. 5, 1957.

Callahan, 40, was on a life sentence for murder in Atlanta, Ga., when he committed armed robbery and kidnapping offenses in the Jacksonville area for 35 to 40 years.

Furr, 28-year-old Old Townsville man, entered prison last July after he was sentenced for house-breaking and larceny.

Hungarian, Tibetan Cases To Be Discussed By UN

Met Quota

FARMVILLE — Farmvillites yesterday reached their quota of 120 pints of blood during the six-hour visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile here.

A total of 145 volunteers, 71 of them employees of the local Formica plant, visited the Farmville Methodist Church between noon and 6 p.m. yesterday. Of the total, 25 were rejected, leaving a total of 120 acceptable donors.

Walter B. Jones, chairman of the Farmville visit, today expressed "my sincere appreciation to the volunteer workers and donors who made this visit of the bloodmobile successful." Jones extended "a special 'thank you' to the group from Formica. The plant's employees, he said, visited the bloodmobile during work hours.

Aiding Jones in preparing for the visit here were T. W. Willis and Miss Tabitha De-Visconti. Willis reported a total of 175 volunteer hours contributed by local boosters of the program.

In Greenville, Mrs. Walter F. Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt County Red Cross chapter, was "well-pleased" with the showing in Farmville. She also lauded the "splendid turnout" of Formica employees.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Premier Khrushchev, badly beaten again on two key issues in the United Nations, appeared ready today to abandon the drive to put over his disarmament plan at this session of the General Assembly.

Khrushchev has indicated that he wants to try again, in a special session, after inauguration of a new U.S. president.

Disarmament comes up for discussion in the Assembly this afternoon with the Soviet Union leading off. Khrushchev is slated to speak.

The Assembly Monday night voted by wide margins to include on its agenda for discussion the situation in Hungary since the 1956 rebellion and an airing of charges of Communist Chinese aggression against Tibet.

Communist delegates fought hard to keep both topics off the agenda, passionately arguing that both were "domestic affairs." But the vote went against them, 49-13 with 35 abstentions on Tibet. It was 54-12 with 31 abstentions on the Hungarian question.

The Assembly also agreed to discuss complaints of racial discrimination in the Union of South Africa and the Algerian question —a pair of Assembly perennials—and the Soviet charge that the U2 and other U.S. flights constitute aggression against the Soviet Union.

Delegates from Canada, the United States, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, the Ukraine and Albania are scheduled to follow Khrushchev in the disarmament discussion.

The debate officially will be on a technical point: whether to debate disarmament first in the Assembly Political Committee, the usual procedure, or to bypass the committee and hold the debate in the Assembly itself, as the Soviets have proposed.

Again and again, representatives of both West and East have warned that disarmament is the single, overriding issue to be tackled in this session.

Khrushchev has stressed the point. However, he recently said that conditions now are not ripe for the attempt. In a discussion with U.N. correspondents, he gave two reasons: 1. "This session of the Assembly has coincided with the electoral campaign in the United States. For that reason, the United States cannot actively participate in solving this all-important question." 2. "Some people think that the reason for the impossibility of discussing the question at this session is the fact that there are too many questions on the agenda."

He went on to say that a special session of the Assembly should be called early in 1961 to "discuss just one question—that of elaborating a disarmament agreement and the appropriate measures of control."

Khrushchev also proposed that the special Assembly convene somewhere in Europe. He previously had urged that the entire U.N. be removed from New York.

He said he discussed the whole proposition with Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, and "also in my talks with other leaders."

Presumably, the Soviet leader has said all he has to say on his idea of the procedure for disarmament. He doesn't want inspectors to come into Soviet territory. Repeatedly, he has said, "If there are no weapons, there is nothing to inspect." The West insists on inspection first and then disarming by stages, under observation and control.

UF Township Leaders Named

Several township chairmen for the United Fund's county division were announced today by County Chairman Thomas W. Willis.

The township drives began yesterday with the exception of Bethel which started Oct. 3.

Willis announced the following chairmen: Ayden, Cleveland Paylor; Belvoir, E. N. Warren; Bethel, D. O. Speir; Carolina, Eric Whitchard and Beverly Congleton; Falkland, Woodrow Wooten; Farmville, Walter Jones; Fountain, Mrs. Lillian Mercer; Lenoir, Vernon White.

Willis said Larry Tetterton in Grimesland and J. P. Davenport, Jr. in Pactolus will be responsible for getting chairmen in those two townships.

Chairmen are to be appointed in Arthur, Chicod and Swift Creek and Grifton townships.

"I feel sure that everybody will work hard this year, not only to supply money to the outside United Fund agencies, but especially due to the fact that the more money each community raises, the more it gets back to spend itself."

"Most of the communities are moving out in a grand fashion but one or two are lagging. This is a case of do or die this year."

Willis said he will be calling for a report from each community next week.

Kennedy Seeking Fifth TV Debate

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy today urged that a fifth television-radio debate be staged between himself and Vice President Richard M. Nixon a few days before the Nov. 3 election.

Democratic presidential nominee sent a telegram to the National Broadcasting Co. and the American Broadcasting Co. accepting their proposal for such a meeting.

He said he hoped the other networks would join in.

"In a political campaign of such importance as this one, I do not believe we should permit the last 18 days of the campaign to go by without one further exchange between the two candidates," he explained.

"The first two joint appearances have demonstrated their value. Some 130 million Americans were tuned in to an unparalleled audience for a political program."

Shrimper Burns Off Wrightsville

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP)—The 50-foot shrimper Mary Ann en route to the shrimp grounds before dawn today caught fire and burned about a mile south of Wrightsville Beach.

The two-man crew jumped overboard and were rescued more than an hour later. The temperature was in the upper 50's.

Except for exposure, neither the skipper, 24-year-old Thomas Pepper, nor his crewman, 35-year-old Sarty Pridden, was harmed by the incident.

Capt. Pepper said he was at the helm, steering through the channel to the open sea about 4 a.m. when he smelled smoke. He aroused Pridden and they found the engine room of the Mary Ann in flames.

They tried to extinguish the blaze, but couldn't and were forced to abandon ship. They had life preservers.

Hall Watters, an aerial fish spotter, saw the burning shrimper from his plane about a half-hour later and notified the control tower at Wilmington which relayed the report to the Coast Guard at Wrightsville Beach.

Pepper and Pridden were rescued by three Democratic senators who sponsored legislation making the unprecedented encounters possible. They suggested Nov. 2 as a possible time. NBC and ABC accepted their proposal Monday.

Kennedy planned to put in a quiet day without any public appearances in New York today after going through one of his most rugged campaign stints.

Tobacco Season Average Rising

Tobacco markets in Greenville, Farmville and Robersonville yesterday continued to boost season sales averages from the sale of comparatively high volumes of high and medium quality smoking leaf.

Greenville opened the week with sales of 1,466,332 pounds for a total of $927,154. The local market posted a sales average of $63.23 per 100 pounds. Greenville's season mark stood at $59.98.

Farmville posted a sales average mark of $62.52 to edge its season mark to $60.27. The market there yesterday sold a total of 657,314 pounds for a total $410,928.

Robersonville's market sold a total of 214,078 for $132,464 and a sales average of $62.11. The Robersonville season mark through Monday's sale was $59.67.

The 17-market Eastern Belt, posting a sales average yesterday of $63.90, advanced its season average to $60.86 from the sale of 11,490,938 pounds for $7,342,329, according to the Federal-State Market News Service in Wilson.

Season pounds stood at 382,461-219. Total receipts for the season were $232,769,730.

Sees Success In Johnson's Tour

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Terry Sanford, Democratic nominee for governor of North Carolina, told newsmen aboard Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson's campaign train Monday he thinks the tour was a success.

Sanford said the turnouts were good. But the Johnson visit seemed far from his thoughts when he predicted later the national ticket will carry the state by 50,000 votes.

Invited 6,000; Only 12 Showed

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Twelve persons showed up for a bipartisan panel discussion by four candidates for the New York Legislature at the Chamber of Commerce Monday night.

The chamber had mailed more than 6,000 invitations. The dozen who appeared were the four candidates, two campaign managers, three Chamber of Commerce representatives and three newsmen. The discussion was cancelled.

Meet Postponed By Ayden Board

AYDEN — The Ayden Town Board of Commissioners has postponed its regular monthly meeting until next Monday, Oct. 17.

Usually the board meets the second Monday of each month.

Ban Reporting Polaris Launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—For the first time in nearly three years, newsmen will be barred from reporting a U.S. ballistic missile shot. The Navy offers no explanation why information will be withheld on a series of Polaris submarine launchings.

The atomic submarine Patrick Henry waits at nearby Fort Canaveral to cruise submerged to an undisclosed position far out in the Atlantic. There it will begin a series of shots aimed at increasing the range of the Polaris missile.

The Navy said it will not inform the press in advance of the launchings, nor will it report test results.

When protesting newsmen asked why the only answer was that the firings "will approximate operational conditions by elimination of certain restrictions necessarily imposed to protect populated areas."

The Polaris will have an initial operational range of 1,380 miles. The forthcoming shots are the first designed to boost this to the 1,725-mile range scheduled for an advanced version of the rocket by 1962.

The Navy denies speculation it is clamping secrecy on the submarine shots because it fears adverse publicity in case of failure. Project officials are pushing to have the Polaris system combat-ready in November, but many are concerned because four of the last five submarine-launched Polaris missiles failed.

Supreme Court Adds To Docket

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has added 21 more cases to the 100 on which it already had agreed to hear arguments during its new term.

The 100 cases were docketed before the court quit for the summer last June. Monday the court agreed to hear appeals in 21 more cases. It rejected 377 other requests which had piled up during the summer.

Texans Cheer As Truman Raps Idea Of State Going Republican

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Harry S. Truman, who says Texans "ought to go to hell" and farmers "ought to lose everything they've got" if they vote Republican, says he plans to talk about religion in politics today.

The former president rounds out a tempestuous two-day visit to Texas with a speech at the Heart O' Texas Coliseum in Waco tonight.

His schedule also calls for a visit with former Vice President John Nance Garner in Uvalde and a barbecue and conference with Texas Democratic leaders at Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson's LBJ Ranch. Waco is one of the bastions of the Baptist Church.

Truman is a Baptist. A number of Texas Baptists have opposed the candidacy of John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee, because he is a Roman Catholic.

"I'm going to talk to the Baptists like I talk to the farmers and laboring men," Truman said at a fund-raising dinner Monday attended by more than 800 persons who laughed, cheered and applauded delightedly when the ex-president ripped into Republicans.

Farmers and laboring men, he said in one of the many departures from his prepared text, "went haywire in 1952 and 1956 and I never get through telling 'em what I think of 'em."

"The damn farmers vote Republican," he said. "They ought to have their heads examined. They ought to have more than denial nominees, because he is that—they ought to lose everything they've got if they do it again."

Truman said Vice President Richard M. Nixon "is against labor, against public housing, against public power. He is against adequate public health funds. I don't know what the hell he's for."

"I wish I had time to tell you all the things that you are for—that Democrats are for—that Nixon has voted against," Truman said. "And that bird has the nerve to come to Texas and ask you to vote for him."

"And if you do it, you ought to go to hell," the former president said.

Virtually Orders Firing Squads

SANTA CLARA, Cuba (AP)—A military tribunal with a virtual mandate from Prime Minister Fidel Castro to order firing squads back into action was to begin the trial today of more than 100 insurgents captured in the Escambray Mountains.

It was possible an American would be among the defendants. Informed sources reported a U.S. citizen identified only as a New York policeman or fireman, had been taken into custody near the Escambray Mountains on a charge of being linked with counter-revolutionary leaders.

The government announced Sunday night that an insurgent movement in the Escambray Mountains, where Castro had a second front during his revolution, had been smashed with the capture of 127 persons. Three of the band were reported killed and four wounded.

The government charged that the insurgents' arms could only have been obtained by "direct delivery" from U.S. authorities.

Crewmember Of Nikita's Ship Asks Asylum In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—An Estonian sailor from Soviet Premier Khrushchev's own ship, the Balhika, fled the ship Monday while visiting the city with companions and has requested political asylum.

He was identified as Victor Jaanimets, 29, a first class oiler on the ship which brought Khrushchev here for the United Nations general assembly.

Estonian Vice Consul Ernst Jaakson said Jaanimets had visited an Estonian center last night. An Immigration and Naturalization official confirmed that a crewman has requested asylum.

He was reported in the custody of the immigration service.

In Washington, the Justice Department said no decision has been reached as yet on the matter of granting asylum to Jaanimets. Department officials said, "his present status is that of an alien who illegally jumped his ship."

"I've had my fill of Khrushchev. He is a tyrant—another Hitler," the Journal-American quoted him as saying in a copyright interview.

The Journal-American story—which carried the byline of George Carpozi Jr., with Richard Piper-no, Don Vandegrift and Frank Borsky, also quoted the defector as saying:

"I have been in America only a short time but I have seen enough to know that all the bad things said about your country in the Soviet Union is propaganda.

"The Russian people are told nothing but lies, lies."

Jaanimets said through an interpreter that "there are others on the ship who will try and get away now that I've escaped. Half the crew, maybe more, would walk off right now if they could, and never go back.

"I am lucky to have escaped and I never want to go back. I know what this means. My family, my mother and my three sisters and brother may suffer. They will suffer. The Russians will undoubtedly retaliate against them. I feel badly leaving them behind. But I cannot help it. I am fed up. I must live my own life at liberty. I am lucky to have escaped."

"I am not satisfied with the Soviet system. There is nothing but spying and oppression. In my own country, Estonia, and the other Baltic nations, Latvia and Lithuania, which are under the heel of Soviet domination, Khrushchev is hated... You have seen him here at the United Nations and how he has behaved. Back home he is worse. He has power there. All of us are under his iron fist. There is no freedom anywhere. We listen to him talk and we don't believe him. He is a liar. He promises everything but gives us nothing. We despise him. He is another Hitler."

"We were never allowed to go ashore alone." Jaanimets was quoted as saying. "We always had to go ashore with another seaman, sometimes with several. When I left in a ship yesterday around noon, I was in the company of Harry Simon. My instructions had been to watch Simon. And I'm sure Simon was ordered to keep his eyes on me..."

"We came to a restaurant and went in for something to eat. While we were at the table, I got up to go to the men's room. I was looking to see how I could get away."

MEET TONIGHT Greenville Utilities Commission will meet, tonight at 7:30. The meeting will be held in Supt. Leonard Bloxam's office in City Hall.

Firemen's Ass'n Re-Elects Officers

D. E. Perry of Bethel was re-elected president of the Pitt Firemen's Association at a meeting of the group in Winterville last night.

Also re-elected were the Association's vice-president, Roy Hardee of Greenville, and treasurer Paul Hunsucker of Winterville. Beverly Congleton of Stokes, a member of the newly organized Carolina Township Fire Department, was elected secretary of the group.

During the business meeting, plans for the formation of a rural department are now underway at Greenville and Pactolus.

Hardee pointed out that for the first time this year the Pitt County Fair had "on-the-grounds" fire protection, noting that the Station House Fire Department maintained its truck on the Fair Grounds each night last week.

Hardee also thanked the Station House Department and the members of other Pitt Association fire departments for their co-operations in furnishing men each night to operate the equipment.

Hardee called the group's attention to three resolutions commending the Pitt Association.

One of the resolutions, from the Pitt County Insurance Exchange, praised the Association for its efforts and offered the group its support in its program of better fire protection for the county.

The second resolution, one from the Pitt County Safety Council, endorsed the work and efforts of departments for their co-operations

Mr. And Mrs. Howell Give Club Program

Mr. and Mrs. W.W. Howell, faculty members of East Carolina College, gave the program at the general meeting of the Greenville Woman's Club Friday afternoon.

They selected scenic slides from their son's collection taken during his travels in youth camp work and the study of geology. These slides had background for readings from poems, bits of inspirational prose, and bible verses by Mrs. Howell.

In closing, the audience was asked to sing "America the Beautiful."

A solo, "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains" was sung by Patricia Roberts, with piano accompaniment by Olive Herrin, both students at East Carolina College.

The president of the Greenville Woman's Club, Mrs. Sam Mitchell, had charge of the business meeting following the program. She welcomed the visitors, Miss Nettie Broden, and the vice-president of the Junior Woman's Club, Mrs. Jackie Bond.

The club voted to give its regular contribution to the United Fund. The president read a letter from the Employment Security Commission reminding them of Physical Handicap Week.

Club members voted to go on record as disapproving needless destruction of trees within city limits and urging property owners to replant lost trees. Announcement was made of the District Meeting to be held in Lewiston on Tuesday, which the president and several members plan to attend.

The program chairman, Mrs. Tige Gardner, said the Junior Woman's Club will be responsible for next month's program.

For the American Home Department, Mrs. Ed Ricks announced the next meeting will be at the Woman's Club on Friday, Oct. 15. Dr. Bessie McNeil will speak on the Belgian Congo.

Mrs. P.E. Wells, president of the Greenville Garden Club, said Mrs. Sam Mitchell will speak on the makings of a Standard Flower Show at the meeting on Friday, Oct. 21. Members of other garden clubs are invited.

Mrs. W.E. Roseveare, chairman of Public Affairs, urged all to vote and said that registration will be held Oct. 15 and the two following Saturdays. Each member can "register and vote, remind others to do the same, transport voters, or baby sit so mothers can vote," she said.

Mrs. Dink James, Chairman of International Affairs, told of the "United Nations Dinner" to be held Oct. 26 at the Woman's Club. The Woman's Club sponsors this dinner, but it is hoped that all civic clubs will participate. Mrs. James said the dinner will have an "international flavor" following recipes from other countries. Entertainers from the college will give a program of international dances and songs. Mrs. L. L. Rives is in charge of tickets.

The chairman of "Help A Home" committee, Mrs. Ed Ricks, urged better response to the need for old clothing, furniture, and household equipment.

Mrs. Bond, the Junior Woman's Club vice-president, was asked to tell of some of the work of the Junior Woman's Club. She told of the Red Cross Nursing Course many of them are taking at present.

The president thanked the hostesses for the day for their work, and especially for the decorated table in "Halloween theme."

United Church Women Sponsor Study Course

The United Church Women of Greenville will sponsor a class in Home Missions entitled, "Safe in Bondage", Thursday, Oct. 20, 10 a.m.-2:00 p.m., in the Fellowship Hall at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Mrs. Estelle Striplin will teach the course, and Mrs. Terry Agner will lead the devotions.

This is the first of two mission studies being promoted by the United Church Women of Greenville this year. Mrs. Keith D. Holmes, president, Mrs. H. H. Bryant, vice president and program chairman, will preside.

All those attending are asked to bring sandwiches. Coffee will be served by the hostesses: Mrs. D.S. Spain, Mrs. H. H. Bryant, Mrs. J. B. Jackson, Mrs. Paul Ricks, Mrs. E. M. Petrie, Mrs. F. L. Daughtridge, Mrs. Elmer Fland, Mrs. Howard McLamb, Mrs. B. W. Hadley and Mrs. Wyatt Brown.

All women of the community are invited to attend.

District Dental Auxiliary Meets

The Fifth District Dental Auxiliary met for its annual meeting on Oct. 10 in Rocky Mount with Mrs. Charles Cooke presiding. The business session was preceded by a coffee hour at the Holiday Inn Room.

At the close of business the Auxiliary met Miss Karen Magnuson, the new ballet instructor for the Rocky Mount Art Center, who gave a program on "Lecture and Demonstration of Classical Ballet."

Officers for the coming year (1960-61) are: president, Mrs. W. L. Hand Jr., New Bern; president-elect, Mrs. R. E. Barden, Wilmington; vice president, Mrs. C. G. Gooding, Havelock; secretary, Mrs. Richard F. Hunt, Rocky Mount; treasurer, Mrs. Jim Cox, Goldsboro; historian, Mrs. R. A. Daniel, Roanoke Rapids.

New Officers Approved At Meet

The Junior Woman's Club slate of officers for the 1961 Club Year was approved at the business meeting held on Wednesday evening at the club house.

The new officers include Mrs. James Bond, president; Mrs. Marvin Hill, first vice president; Mrs. C. E. Bailey, second vice president; Mrs. C. T. Fleming Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Paul Stokes, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. T. Diener, historian; Mrs. Hoyt Naron, reporter; Mrs. James Grulke, institute director; and Mrs. Mack Stocks, parliamentary. The new officers will be installed at the program meeting during December.

Mrs. James Grulke and Mrs. Diener.

Shower Honors Betty Sugg

Mrs. Lyman Ormond entertained bride-elect Betty Sugg at a kitchen shower Saturday evening at her home on E. Fifth Street.

Miss Sugg is to be married October 22 to William Walker Chapman of Richmond, Va.

Upon her arrival, the honoree was presented a corsage of white mums by the hostess. Guests were greeted at the front door by Miss Sugg and Mrs. Ormond.

Fall flowers were used throughout the home in decorating.

After the honoree opened her gifts and bridal games were played the guests were invited into the dining room, where they were served from a table covered with an imported white cutwork cloth. A silver candelabra with epergnettes holding bridal flowers and net were on either end of the table. A centerpiece of bridal design was used.

The hostess presented a gift of a white blanket to Miss Sugg.

Mrs. W.E. Roseveare, chairman of Public Affairs, urged all to vote and said that registration will be held Oct. 15 and the two following Saturdays. Each member can "register and vote, remind others to do the same, transport voters, or baby sit so mothers can vote," she said.

Mrs. Dink James, Chairman of International Affairs, told of the "United Nations Dinner" to be held Oct. 26 at the Woman's Club. The Woman's Club sponsors this dinner, but it is hoped that all civic clubs will participate. Mrs. James said the dinner will have an "international flavor" following recipes from other countries. Entertainers from the college will give a program of international dances and songs. Mrs. L. L. Rives is in charge of tickets.

The chairman of "Help A Home" committee, Mrs. Ed Ricks, urged better response to the need for old clothing, furniture, and household equipment.

Mrs. Bond, the Junior Woman's Club vice-president, was asked to tell of some of the work of the Junior Woman's Club. She told of the Red Cross Nursing Course many of them are taking at present.

The president thanked the hostesses for the day for their work, and especially for the decorated table in "Halloween theme."

W.S.C.S. of Jarvis Church Meets

"Into All The World Together" was the theme of the program presented by Mrs. Jake Hadley at the Woman's Society of Christian Service meeting at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Monday.

Mrs. Hadley interpreted the word ecumenical especially in relation to the World Council of Churches and the International Missionary Council. She pointed out that the Methodist Church cooperates with other Protestant organizations to take Christ around the world.

Through color pictures Mrs. Hadley highlighted her program when she revealed the way the churches and Missionary groups work together to send Christians out into the world together to take Christ to all the peoples of the world.

Mrs. Clara Moyer Shackel presided at the meeting. Miss Mamie Chandler gave the opening prayer. Mrs. Georgia Hearne was pianist for the W.S.C.S. meeting.

The Berry D. Nelson family held its annual reunion Oct. 9 at Sweet Gum Grove Community Building. Four of his six living children were present for the reunion. Attending were Mr. Lawrence Nelson and Mr. Ira Nelson of Stokes, and Mrs. Susie Paige and Mrs. Heber Briley of Robersonville.

There were 64 members of the family present from various towns in North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland.

The Rev. D. W. Alexander gave the invocation.

Presbyterians To Attend Meet

Women from the Greenville Presbyterian Church, West Greenville, Meadowbrook, Boyd Memorial, Chicod, Hollywood, Falkland and Ballards Presbyterian Churches will be the attendees at the annual meeting of the Women's Presbyterians in the Goldsboro Presbyterian Church, Oct. 13-14.

Those from Greenville appearing on the program are: Rev. Thomas M. Davis and Mrs. Orval Phillips. Mrs. Bruce Koonce of the Greenville Church, Mrs. Johnnie Edwards of the Hollywood Church and Mrs. John Flanagan of the Ballards Church are members of the board.

Mrs. Charles H. Francis of New Bern, president of the Women of the Church of the Presbytery, has announced that principle speakers will be Dr. Mary Boney, professor of Bible, Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga.; Dr. Ansley Moore, Laurinburg, president of St. Andrews Presbyterian College; and Dr. C.I. Lewis, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Goldsboro. Mrs. Lacy Godwin of Fayetteville, president of the Women of the Church of the Synod of North Carolina, will also speak.

Sessions will begin Thursday at 7:45 p.m., Friday at 10:00 a.m.; an Friday at 2:00 p.m. New officers will be installed during the afternoon session.

Final plans for the party to be given in Cottage 2 at Caswell Training School on Oct. 30 are being completed.

The group will cooperate with United Nations Day to be held Monday, Oct. 24.

Mrs. Lewis Mullen, Miss Janie Bailey, Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. Milam Johnson and Mrs. Cecil Crayton were welcomed as guests by the president, Mrs. James Grulke.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Mack Stocks and Mrs. C. T. Diener.

December Bride-To-Be

MISS ANNETTE HOLMES McLAWHORN is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blany Edward McLawhorn of Wilmington, who announce her engagement to Haywood Murphy Page, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Haywood Page of Burgaw. The wedding is planned for December 31.

Eisenhower Says Nixon And Lodge Best Possible Men To Head Ticket

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower says he rates Richard M. Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge this way: "We could have found no two better men to head the Republican ticket." Hoping praise again on presidential nominee Nixon and running mate Lodge, Eisenhower told a nationwide television audience Monday night: "By experience in both foreign and domestic affairs, I think they are unequalled." The President hit sharply at the contention of Nixon's Democratic rival Sen. John F. Kennedy, that United States prestige has been lowered abroad during the Eisenhower administration. Eisenhower vigorously defended administration foreign policy and in such domestic areas as inflation control, civil rights, budget balancing and school construction in answering the questions of 10 women workers for Nixon and Lodge. It was his first coast-to-coast

TV appearance in the 1960 campaign. The paid political broadcast was sponsored by the Volunteers for Nixon-Lodge organization. The panel of women, from 10 states, went on the air with the president from an NBC studio here. The set was fitted out as a cozy living room. Eisenhower, wearing a dark gray suit, stood before a fireplace during the 30-minute program. His questioners were seated in a semi-circle around a marble top coffee table with cups and saucers and a silver service set. The President seemed to enjoy himself firing back answers during the program — and he had a fine time laughing and joking with the ladies before and after air time. Among other things, he told them then that he would like to tour a modern supermarket—that he has been in a store only a couple of times in the last 20 years, and then was driven out by curious crowds. He confided with a chuckle that he once caught "the devil" from his wife. His voice trailed off and newsmen didn't hear what caused the reprimand. The President also told the panel, in reply to one of the women's pre-program questions, that he doesn't get nervous in advance of question and answer sessions. As for his formal speeches prepared for reading: "I agonize over the darn things for hours, but I'm not nervous when I give them."

Responding to questions during the telecast, Eisenhower said Nixon has handled with distinction all the tasks he has been assigned. "He is a man that, to my mind, has been more deeply and widely trained for the office for which we now want to elect him than any man I can think of," Eisenhower said. Eisenhower replied affirmatively to another questioner who asked whether Nixon "is better trained for walking the tightrope of peace than any other person available." He also said the nation would benefit from experience Nixon has gained in traveling abroad. To understand the problems of another country, Eisenhower said, "you have got to see a country, feel it, what it is doing, what its people want." His sharpest reply was to a question about Democratic statements that U. S. prestige abroad is being lowered. Eisenhower replied that in 15 years the United States never has lost a vote in the United Nations. He said, too, that during the last 7½ years more than 120 chiefs of state or heads of government have wanted to visit him in Washington. "They never would have come if they just thought that America was a second-rate country in any way," Eisenhower said.

Dubious Void In TV Hours Filled By Klondike Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP-TV Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP)—Amid the gumshoe-horshoe feast of this season's television, there has been fame. Since the quiet demise of "The Alaskans" there hasn't been one series about grizzled prospectors, gold-crazed tenderfeet and dancehall girls. NBC filled the void Monday night with "Klondike." There was the usual plot involved, although there wasn't a snowflake in sight and the big fight did not take place in the trapper's cabin. Ralph Taeger is the hero, and he's a rugged Humphrey Bogart type. In addition, there are two fair ladies vying for his affections. Their names are, and note the spelling, please, Jol Lansing and Mari Blanchard. There was also "Bringing Up Buddy" moving into its regular place on the CBS lineup. This situation comedy with an unfortunate title aims to be a sweet, gentle-okay, heartwarming — series mostly concerning a pair of dear, quaint aunts trying to do right by their young nephew, Doro Merande and Enid Markey, playing the old girls in Joseph Hull style, may just pull this one into the spot "December Bride" left open.

Banker To Talk At East Carolina

Dr. C. Eugene Looper of Winston-Salem, vice president and personnel director of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, will demonstrate proper and improper interviews at the fall quarter meeting of the East Carolina College business department Thursday, October 13, in Wright auditorium, at 7 p.m.

Dr. Looper recruits for the entire Wachovia system, which employs 2,200 people. Throughout the year he visits college campuses of the State seeking employees for the bank. William K. Willis of Greenville, senior business major, will be interviewed by Dr. Looper twice. In the first interview, Willis will violate the principles of good manners in order to illustrate the don'ts of interviewing. Dr. Looper will then analyze errors. In a second interview Willis will illustrate the proper manner of interviewing. An appraisal by Dr. Looper will follow. Before joining Wachovia, Dr. Looper was professor and head of the Department of Political Science at Furman University. He also served there as consultant on personnel administration and management development. The program has been arranged by Placement Director Jack Edwards.

Resigns Post To Quiet Murmurs

CHICAGO (AP) — R. Sargent Shriver, 44, brother-in-law of Democratic presidential nominee John F. Kennedy, has resigned as president of the Chicago Board of Education. Shriver, who has been aiding Kennedy in the campaign, said his resignation to Mayor Richard J. Daley will serve to silence "murmurs and questionings" that his part in the campaign introduces politics into the school system. Shriver is assistant general manager of the Merchandise Mart, huge commercial building owned by Kennedy's father, Joseph. He married Eunice Kennedy in 1953. They have three children.

So Close, It Could Hinge On N. C.

It is not an exaggeration to say that North Carolina's 13 electoral votes could be the key to the outcome of the 1960 presidential election in a close contest between Sen. Kennedy and Vice President Nixon.

Neither it is an exaggeration to say that the number of people who go to the polls on Nov. 8 in Eastern North Carolina may well determine the outcome of the election in the state.

It doesn't take a political expert to know that Eastern North Carolina is heavily Democratic by registration, by political alignment and by voting habit. It is also true that the heavy Democratic vote in the eastern counties of the state have been a major factor in keeping North Carolina in the Democratic column in national elections on several occasions.

This year both the Democratic and the Republican organizations apparently feel that North Carolina is a state which could go either way and each is seeking to make sure it gets every possible vote. Big speakers of both political parties are coming to North Carolina in unprecedented numbers in this campaign.

While Republican strength in the Piedmont and Western sections of the state is causing concern to Democratic leaders, the matter of the size of the vote seems to be the major question for this section of the state. The situation is not difficult to understand.

In a county like Pitt, where Democratic nominees on the state and national tickets have consistently received majorities of five-to-one or better it is reasonable to assume that a vast majority of the people will stick by the Democratic party and its nominees. There will be a few who will denounce the Democratic party and become Republicans and others who will ally themselves with labels like "Gavincrats" or "Nixoncrats" without openly embracing the Republican party as such. By and large, however, the vast majority of those who go to the polls in Eastern Counties on November 8 will vote the Democratic ticket. They believe in the party, they believe in its candidates, and they know of the service of the Democratic party to their section.

Inroads made by the Republican party and its election-year offshoots will not be sufficient in the East to overcome the heavy Democratic majority of the section. The Republican strategy, of course, is to cut the

Voter Turn-Out Offered A Bonus

By LYNN NISBET

BONUS — Precincts and counties which turn out heavy votes for Governor on November 8 will get a bonus in additional representation in the party conventions next time they convene. This item has not been widely publicized and is not generally considered as an extra dividend.

The Republican Plan of Organization provides for one delegate from each county to the state convention for every 200 votes—or major fraction thereof—for the Republican candidate for Governor in the last preceding general election. The Democratic Plan of Organization gives each county one delegate to the state convention for every 150 votes or major fraction thereof cast for Governor. Representation in county conventions is also based on the number of votes cast for Governor.

There have been instances where big population counties complained that they did not get appropriate representation in the party conventions. Population has nothing to do with it. Neither does the number of votes cast for Governor.

Party machinery is handled through the conventions — precinct, county, state and national. Party officials and committees are named by the convention, which also adopts the party platform. The way to get full voice in these proceedings is to give a big vote for the party candidate for Governor.

In North Carolina the Republican convention is important only for the selection of delegates to the national nominating convention. Democratic conventions are important for that reason, but also because the Democrats will write the platform which will control the State administration.

WAKING UP—Hotels are putting on selling campaigns for conventions and individual patronage to greater extent than for many years past. There were complaints, justified by evidence, that hotels complacently sat back and let motels take their business away. Within the past month, this office has received publicity material and invitations from six hotels. Emphasis is being placed on small group conventions.

Many travelers like motel accommodations because of easy accessibility for parking. But very few motels or motor courts have any facilities for convention sessions or banquets.

YDC — Monroe Redden, Jr., President of the North Carolina Young Democratic Clubs, says the program for the annual convention at Raleigh on October 20-22 is shaping up well. Senator Henry M. Jackson of Washington, national Democratic chairman, has accepted the invitation to make the main dinner speech on Thursday night. Adlai Stevenson is expected to be on hand for the legislative breakfast Saturday morning. The rest of the program will be devoted to business and preparations for the final two weeks of the campaign.

It appears there will be sufficient contest for president and other officers to assure good attendance. Sam Johnson of Raleigh has been actively campaigning for president for some months. Several others are considering getting into the race, but so far no young woman has shown interest in that job.

SCHOOL LIBRARIES — The School Library services section of the Department of Public Instruction reports substantial growth in number of books available in school libraries. More important is the generally increased recognition of the importance of libraries. The National Defense Education Act has contributed to this increased interest. At the end of the 1959-60 fiscal year, it is reported, North Carolina schools had spent an estimated $800,000 on library books, films, filmstrips and recordings to enrich instruction in mathematics, science, and modern foreign languages through participation in Title III of that act.

Democratic majority in the east in the hope of keeping it from overcoming whatever lead the Republicans can build up in other sections of the state.

Had it not been for the heavy Democratic majority in Eastern counties in 1952 and 1956, North Carolina would have gone to the Republicans on the presidential ticket both years. Without a heavy Democratic vote in the East this year, the state may well fall into the Republican column of electoral votes.

Eastern North Carolina, if it gets its people to the polls on election day, can hold the state for the Democratic party. The balance of power is in the hands of the people of this section.

'Downtown Blight' Need Not Take Place

The biggest single lesson we see in current concern over "downtown blight" is that it needn't happen.

The towns and smaller cities are not severely affected; it's when a population center has "grown up" that stagnation in the business district is apt to set in.

North Carolina has few large cities, but the "blight" threat is holding much attention at the annual meeting of the N. C. League of Municipalities. Much of the discussion at the Charlotte meeting is of a preventative nature.

Even so, such proposals as buying property for downtown parking, street-widening and the malls call for goodly municipal outlays.

The emergence of suburban shopping areas does not, to us, seem to be largely responsible for downtown troubles . . . but more of a product, which in turn furthers the business center's deterioration.

This appears to be so, because suburban centers would not arise if downtown's accessibility and convenience continued unimpaired.

With prospects for a continuing rise in population all over the country, it behooves still-small communities to be prepared for the growth all know is coming. The planning and financial outlays required at such an early stage would be small as compared with remedial requirements after realities of the problem rear their heads.

All of which is small comfort to those cities now confronted by downtown problems.

It goes without saying, they will find no easy way out.

Russian Giving Up Spotlight

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now the presidential candidates can have their campaign back. Soviet Premier Khrushchev is going home.

For three weeks he has taken the play away from them again and again in newspapers and on television. He has a better change in pace than Vice President Richard M. Nixon or Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Ever since the campaign began they have operated on a high and very vague plane, always the generalities.

Not Khrushchev. He has mugged, threatened, demanded, scowled, griped and switched from temper tantrums to fond embraces.

Even his departure — next Thursday night when the candidates are having their third TV debate—may interfere with the attention they get.

He's almost certain to say something to make front pages in the Friday morning papers before he flies home.

Just what he has accomplished on his trip to the United Nations in New York is not clear. But what Nixon and Kennedy have accomplished so far in their campaign isn't clear, either. Even the polls look fuzzy on who's ahead.

It probably is better for everyone — including Khrushchev and the candidates — that he's leaving.

The campaign is moving into its critical period. If there's going to be any fire, it will have to come these next few weeks.

If Khrushchev hung around he'd probably mess things up a bit, including himself, and get the candidates talking about him instead of one another. He hasn't done well so far.

It's hardly likely Nixon and Kennedy can march right up to election day at their present rate.

If they're going to get rough,

I Used To Be Big Stuff—

By PATRICIA MOORE

Overheard And Observed

While the county fair was here, one young lady stepped inside one of the sideshows to see some sort of freak and found only a two-headed baby or some sort of thing.

Disappointed, she asked the barker "If this is all."

"Well, lady, what did you expect for a dime?" he countered.

And we noted a few children belonging to people we know galavanting around, leading parents by cotton candy and sticky hands.

It must have been a child's fair, with all the fun they had.

The fair seems to bring a change into everybody's life, while it's around, even for the dogs. One lady dog owner had to desert her Bonnie for the week, while she managed a food booth.

Bonnie, certainly not accustomed to staying home alone, marched around the tobacco market places here in Greenville for the entire week.

She had a time! We imagine the auctioneers did too.

Fair scenes aren't always the only little insights into life.

The other day we were browsing in a store, like hundreds of other people. A woman beside us said, "Why, look, someone opened this package and just slipped the contents into a pocket and walked out."

Open mouthed, we looked at a little cellophane package, which once contained a pair of shoulder pads. Other packages with contents were stacked neatly nearby. The price was still on the package.

And one other day, not so long ago, we were returning from an errand when two men erupted from a store entrance. "Boy, we really told her off," one said. "She ain't going to push us around." But what they really meant was the curtains one's wife had bought and washed, faded and tore; and they didn't get new curtains, or any money—but they got to talk.

Well, Khrushchev and Castro aren't the only ones with loud voices.

Other Editors Saying... Use These Six Points

(Goldsboro News Argus)

Local use can be made of recommendations adopted at the recent better school conference in Greenville. More than 300 delegates from counties in the eastern half of the state passed the suggestions on for local use to the end that schools and education may be bettered.

You would do well to bring these six points to the attention of your own school. Why not if you are president of your PTA name a special committee to study and report on the findings of the state school curriculum, for instance. Or if you are program chairman you could find some ideas for adaptation in your year's work.

Here are the recommendations:

The following resolution was adopted unanimously by the conferees at the Greenville meeting:

"To the end that North Carolina shall have better public schools, we strongly recommend that every Parent-Teacher Association give thorough study to the State Curriculum Study findings; that all school betterment organizations of parents and - or teachers attempt to measure their own schools by the yardsticks suggested in the recommendations of the Curriculum Study; that extra curricular activities be held to a reasonable limit that will not interfere with full emphasis by students and teachers on the courses of study; that athletic contests be held to one game a week on night not preceeding a school day; that teachers not be required to assume so many extra duties that they do not have sufficient time and energy for their work; that every parent be encouraged to see that his child is in school every day on time and has come to school prepared to learn."

Mostly They Talk

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Everyday I turn on the radio while I am working and listen with one ear by the hour to the speeches that emanate in the United Nations. On and on, the interpreters drone. Usually, it is repetitious. The speakers, each year, say the same thing endlessly. The delegates sit and listen. They plug listening instruments into their ears and hear the talk. It must be very tiresome for them.

For instance, I am at this moment listening to a female voice which is speaking about China. The female voice is, of course, interpreting a speech that is being spoken by a Russian or White Russian or Ukrainian—I can't recall — delegate who is gapping away endlessly to prove that the United States is the lowest cad among nations.

The neutralists are disappointed that they have not succeeded in forcing Eisenhower to meet with Khrushchev, but what is surprising is that some of our dependents as well as allies wanted Eisenhower to meet with Khrushchev. Their theory is that Khrushchev never means the insults and imprecations he shouts at folks. It is just his way. Therefore Eisenhower should not have been so offended by Khrushchev's conduct in Paris or at the United Nations. Many of the nations that depend upon the United States for their existence were quite taken with Nehru's proposal to have Eisenhower meet with Khrushchev. Nehru himself fears Red China so much that any proposal for what is euphemistically called 'a lessening of tension is regarded by him as a protection. But what will he do when Red China makes the next move against India?

So one listens to the great of the world, the men who have been thrown up by revolutions, by civil wars, by so-called liberations. New faces, new personalities, new voices appear and all make speeches. And then they rise to answer attacks and it is always the same things that they say.

What is novel is the long-windedness of the new-style speakers. Their speeches are endless and the translations are endless. Now that the United Nations has nearly doubled its membership, one wonders what will happen if each of the 98 members wants to talk four hours each on each subject.

The great statesmen of the world will be permanently stationed in New York, as members of Congress now become permanent residents of Washington. It is, for instance, astonishing that Khrushchev can afford to spend so much time in New York. Apparently, Moscow can get along without him. If one looks at his travelling itinerary for 1960, Khrushchev has not been in Moscow very liberally. Of course, there are swift means of communications. Nevertheless, one is not a little astonished that he can be away from the seat of his particular activities for weeks on end. He is likely to be in New York for a period of five or six weeks. He must feel very secure about his own political situation. Stalin never dared to travel. He went to Tiflis in Iran and to Potsdam in Germany, but these places were close to his home base. Now Khrushchev goes anywhere. But who minds the store while he is away?

Khrushchev loves to talk and he will talk to almost anybody. I have watched him take a walk in front of the Soviet Embassy on Park Avenue in New York. He walks back and forth and talks. He likes to show his affection by giving a strange bear hug. He shakes hands. He talks. The police will follow him listen to his talk. In New York, there are many who understand Khrushchev's Russian with its heavy Ukrainian accent.

When the delegates are not making speeches, they are talking to each other. There are constant conferences and negotiations. Talk about smoke-filled rooms at national conventions! These fellows can have a conference at the drop of a cigaret and then there is more talk. It never stops.

This is the new diplomacy. It is a design for talking war to death. The theory is that if men talk, whatever they say to each other, they do not fight. So Khrushchev bangs desks, interrupts speakers, uses vulgar language. (Continued on page five)

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WARMTH OF THE HAND

An opal is what is called a sympathetic jewel. Lying in the midst of other jewels, it appears to be without luster and to have no beauty at all, but if placed in the hollow of one's hand and held there for a few minutes, it gleams with a new splendor. It needs to be gripped with a human hand to bring out its wonderful beauty.

When Peter and John healed the lame man at the gate of the temple which was called Beautiful, they declared that while they had neither silver nor gold to give, they would give him such as they had. Their gift was healing, but with the healing they gave the man the right hand of fellowship and lifted him to his feet.

There is a great deal of religion in the hand—the hand that is laid affectionately on the shoulder of someone in sorrow, the hand that binds up a gaping wound, the hand that grasps another hand in fellowship. Our lives are like the opal; they glow with radiance and beauty when held in the warm folds of the hand. There is nothing like fellowship for making the heart of man shine with glory.

And when that fellowship is the fellowship of God, when we rest in His hand and feel His hand lifting the burden from our shoulders, or leading us day by day along life's hard pathway, then indeed do we know ourselves to be sustained.

Public Forum

TO THE EDITOR:—It is unfortunate that the excellent organizational work of the Police Department of our city in connection with the visit of Senator Kennedy here on Saturday, September 17th was marred by a ambiguous policy proclaimed through our Chief of Police.

It has been disclosed that written instructions were issued by the Chief of the Police Department of Greenville in which it was ordered that "All personnel assigned to this detail will at all times keep the entire crowd under close observation for any screw balls or possible hecklers. If such persons are observed they will immediately be removed from the crowd, a patrol car called, and these persons held in custody until Mr. Kennedy has left the city."

It is not against the law either to be a "screwball" or to express disapproval of any candidate for public office high or low, providing there is no breach of the peace or any incitement to riot. These instructions go far beyond the law or found public policy in a free country.

We think it appropriate to call the attention of the people of this area to this matter because it is right in line with the statewide attempt to impose one party government upon our people. This sort of thing is reminiscent of what might be expected in dictatorships. It certainly has no place in Eastern North Carolina or anywhere else in our free country. It is more important that the liberties of our people be preserved than it is for any party to win any election.

Incidentally, this same directive was headed "Work detail for the Greenville visit of our next president, the Honorable John Fitzgerald Kennedy." This is at least in very bad taste since the Police Department of the City of Greenville represents all the political opinions. It is not an arm of the Democratic Party. It has no business in its official capacity to campaign for anyone. Senator Kennedy may or may not be the next President of the United States. No person can say for certain whether he will or will not be elected — not even our Chief of Police.

Food Business Is The Biggest

By ELMER ROESSNER

The biggest show on earth is — in case you need a reminder — eating.

Take a Broadway hit for mild comparison, say "My Fair Lady." Producing it cost around $300,000 up to raising the curtain on opening night, and the box office the first year took in a gross of $3,200,000.

Opening a single supermarket is also quite a show, what with organizing the crew, up to 25 checkout cash registers and placing 5,000 different items where the customers can get at them. A brand new supermarket costs around $400,000 to build and equip, and the first year it grosses only $2,000,000, quite a distance short of "My Fair Lady," but it goes on grossing by decades, not seasons. For every Broadway hit there are at least half a dozen flops, whereas the new supermarket has been computed in advance by established formula to set the gamble nearly at zero.

The show, hit or miss, is Broadway Eating, on the other hand, is Main Street and the crossroads shopping center. It is the $100-per-plate dinner, and cheese and crackers at the forks of the creek.

In round numbers for 1959, America's food cost $78.3 billion. Eating is our biggest show, our biggest business. The Federal government in the year ended June 30, fell short of that figure total budget spending $77 billion.

Opening a supermarket around New York City costs about $350,000. This is without land or inventory. For an average-size 21,000 square-foot store with needed parking space, the land cost represents $100,000 to

These figures are from Food Fair Stores, sixth in total volume among chains. It did $771,000,000 of business last year. Food Fair has been opening some 40 to 50 new supermarkets a year. This means plowing back millions into the economy, adding something like 70 to 100 jobs for each store.

Automobiles are also a great industry but all the licensed centers and automotive stores last year did only about half the retail business of the food stores.

Advertising Age has just come out with a study of the food industry which estimates $82 billion of spending for 1960.

The figure is the estimated retail value of all food purchases from food stores, restaurants and farms, also purchases for institutions and the government. Breaking down these totals, it appears that the retail food stores, meat and fish stores, delicatessens and bakeries, all together sold to a value of $52 billion. The groceries and supermarkets alone had a volume of $29.5 billion, the restaurants about $15 billion.

Food also tops all other commodities in the budget of national advertising. Food advertising in the newspapers in 1959, amounted to $154,000,000, or 25 per cent more than in 1950; in magazines, $91,900,000 or a nine-year gain of 65 per cent. Television advertising of food and food products in 1959 zoomed to $275,000,000.

If food is as important as all this seems to indicate, perhaps that old Texas war cry of "Pass the biscuits, Pappy," wasn't such a bad political slogan after all.

Attendance For Pitt Fair Is Estimated Over 40,000

The 26th Annual Pitt County American Legion Agricultural Fair, which closed Saturday night, "was a great success regardless of the inclement weather Saturday," according to Fair president Ford McGowan.

While the Fair did not reach its goal of 50,000 attendance, McGowan noted that during the week "more than 40,000 people attended, including several thousand white and colored school children on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday. Had we not run into bad weather Saturday, we would have come very close to our 50,000 attendance goal," McGowan pointed out.

The $100 Buried Treasure was found by Joseph Everette Casey of Route 1, Farmville, Saturday night.

Norman Y. Chambliss, who served his 12th consecutive year as manager of the Fair, expresses his "thanks to all the people of Pitt County, including the Press, Radio, Greenville Police Department, the Pitt County Sheriff's Department and the Highway Patrol."

Chambliss noted that $3,800 in prize money was awarded to

We Have the NEW Polaroid Electric Eye Camera

Have you seen the exciting new Polaroid Land Camera? It has a tiny electric eye of radical new design that sets both the lens opening and the shutter speed for you — automatically. The eye — which is no larger than the head of a paper match — is so sensitive that it "sees" in the dim light of your living room, on a bright, sunny beach, anywhere!

Pictures indoors without flashbulbs? Just clip on the wink-light — the eye makes the correct settings automatically.

Outdoors in bright light you don't even have to focus. Just aim and snap. Everything in the picture from 3 feet to miles away will be sharp.

Remember, your picture is ready on the spot, only a moment after you snap it. Isn't this the way you want to take pictures?

This is the tiny micro-eye that sets exposure automatically both indoors and out.

Case Can Count-Yankees Behind 3-2 In Playoffs

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP)—"Desperate situation?" "Well I dunno, you oughta know," said Manager Casey Stengel, "so why should I say it?"
"You know I can count."
The old guy still was getting a laugh, even after his New York Yankees dropped their second in a row to the Pittsburgh Pirates in the fifth game of the World Series Monday in New York. It was a 3-2 setback for the American League champs, and another pitching job by the Pirates.
Others who can count know it put the Bucs one up, 3-2, and one game away from the title as the best-of-seven series shifts back to Forbes Field for the sixth and, if needed, seventh game after a day of today.
"It's either (Bob) Turley or (Whitey) Ford tomorrow," said Case, "and if we'd won yesterday it's Turley for sure. But now it might be both because I might be saying one or the other for nothing."

Turley was the second game winner against the Bucs. The Yankees won that one 16-3, but they haven't done much to keep Stengel happy since.
They beat Bob Friend—the Bucs' choice for Wednesday in that near rout here. But it wasn't until the fast-balling right-hander was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the fourth inning that they really began to roll, scoring a dozen runs off Pirate relievers.
The Yankees did it again in the third game, belting starter Wilmer Mizell and the same second-line relievers while Ford pitched a four-hitter for a 10-0 decision.
It was after that game that Stengel said he was worried a bit. His Yanks had scored in only two innings—a six-run first and a four-run fourth. It sounded like a rag.
But Case was right. The Yanks have had only six scoring innings in each of the last three games, in each of the last three games.

"They've stopped us too many times and too many days," said Stengel. "We've had the chances and we blew 'em. How many we leave on base these last three games? Look it up. Twenty-two. We leave 13 the two we lose."
"I told you when we went back to the Stadium that we didn't have any edge in our park. It was going to be pitching that decided it. And what did it?"
"That first man of theirs yesterday (Harvey Haddix) kept breaking in the ball low. And what did our hitters do? They kept chasin' it. How many he strike out? Six."
"That was the trouble. I start (Art) Ditmar over (Bill) Stafford because Ditmar wins 15 for us and he's a regular starter. Ditmar gets 'em out in the first, but in the second (when Pittsburgh scored three runs) he doesn't."
"I thought Stafford did very good while he was in there (three-hit, shutout relief for five innings). And they didn't look like they knew so much up there at the plate."
"But they had us goin' too."
"When their man starts gettin' a little wild, you figure you can get to him. But they get to him first. They took him out."
"That was our best chance there in the seventh when we had men on first and second and—"
"And they brought in Elroy Face," a guy interrupted.
Stengel grunted. "Yeah."
"Desperate situation? I dunno," Case said again.
"But I do know we gotta beat that club."

Practice Briefs East Carolina

Fit as a fiddle and in high spirits after defeating Elon Saturday, East Carolina's varsity took the field yesterday and started pointing for Western Carolina, its Saturday afternoon opponent.
For the varsity, activity was relatively light with routine drills but the yearlings and the third unit hooked horns in the weekly "Monday Bowl," a snappy scrimmage session.
Glenn Bass and Sonny Baysinger were ailing a little but both were expected to be ready for duty by Saturday. Bass received a leg injury Saturday and saw only limited action. Baysinger received seven stitches over his eye Saturday night.
Tommy Matthews and Mac Thacker moved into the number one slots. Both were outstanding in the Elon victory.
Western Carolina, pre-season favorite in the North State, will be the Pirates' Homecoming opponent.

Rose High

Stewing with disgust following an unexpected 15-7 setback by Tarboro, Rose High started mapping plans for Elizabeth City yesterday.
Hoping to get back in the conference race, the Phants host EC in their homecoming here Friday night.
Following a letdown Friday, the Phants went through spirited drills yesterday, bent on bouncing back Friday. The squad was reported in good physical condition.

Farmville

Farmville, a team that begins to jell a little more each week, opened work for undefeated Beaufort yesterday in high spirits.
Coach Elbert Moyer claimed the 20-13 victory over Robersonville as "the best effort of the season—a team victory." However, the head mentor warned his club of the danger ahead, pointing out that Farmville had never played a good game on coastal soil.
The squad numbered 18 yesterday with only Todd Holmes, a center, missing drills. Holmes received a hand injury Friday. Jerry Bailey, another center, returned to practice after missing the Robersonville game.
Work was centered around fundamentals and conditioning. The Devils practice tonight under the lights.

Robersonville

Tailback extraordinary Tommy Ward was limping in the Robersonville camp today but Coach Bob Lee was hopeful of having his ace ready by Friday.
The Rams venture to Plymouth this week in quest of a non-conference triumph.
Work was light in the Rams' camp with fundamental drills being stressed. With the exception of Ward, the small squad escaped the 20-13 loss to Farmville without any serious injuries.

Southern League Having Trouble With Outsiders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Football teams of the Southern Conference haven't yet mastered the art of taming non-conference opposition with regularity, but so far this season their batting average is much higher than in the past.
All told, the nine conference teams have 39 games this fall with non-conference foes. Sixteen of these games have been played, and the record shows 6 victories, 2 ties, 8 defeats. Batting average: .438.
Not so hot, true enough—but consider last year just three conference teams won more than they lost from teams outside the league and the final record was 14 wins, 24 losses. Batting average: .368.
Leading the way in '60 to date are VMI and William and Mary with 1-0 records against outsiders, and The Citadel and Furman, each of which is 1-0-1. The other records are Virginia Tech, 1-2; Davidson, 1-2; Richmond and George Washington, 0-1; and West Virginia, 0-2.
There are four games this week-end matching conference teams with outsiders, and barring an upset the prospects aren't too good that the conference record will be improved. VMI is favored at Virginia and Furman is favored at Wofford; but George Washington, which plays at Boston University, and West Virginia, which visits Pitt, are rank underdogs.
Saturday's other games are intra-conference affairs—The Citadel at Richmond, Virginia Tech at W&M.
Furman, practicing on a dry field for the first time in a week, worked on defense Monday in a session against the freshmen, who ran Wofford plays. Halfbacks Ted Loth and Tony Carmignani, companions in the first-unit backfield, were nursing leg injuries.
Richmond, warned that The Citadel is "a tough ball club" with a lot of punch wrapped up in quarterback Jerry Nettles, stressed defense. Coach Ed Merrick let the regulars quit early as a reward for fine play in last week's 6-6 tie with West Virginia.

Ayden

Tornado warnings aimed for La Grange were issued from Ayden's football camp yesterday. Coach Stuart Tripp carries his undefeated and untied league leaders to La Grange Friday for an important Coastal Conference match.
Yesterday, the backs and linemen ran through plays in a skeleton scrimmage and focused work on pass defense.
Nolan Norman, an end, and Bud Carman, a tackle, missed practice with injuries. Norman was scheduled to be ready by Friday but Carman was a doubtful starter.
Coach Tripp was reported optimistic over the forthcoming game. Ayden needs only wins in its next two games to wrap up a share of the title, regardless of the outcome with Beaufort in the season finale.

ENFORCED VACATION

SEATTLE (AP)—Ruth Jensen of Seattle said today she is taking an enforced vacation from the professional golf circuit because of an ulcer.
"I don't know whether it was a long bout with the flu or too many missed puts," Miss Jensen said. "But I'm going to quit the tour at least until the first of the year."

Big Four Teams Prep For Big Feuds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Clemson's football team counts victories in its first three games this fall, and Coach Frank Howard says that's about the only thing he's satisfied with.
The eighth ranked Tigers, seeking a third straight Atlantic Coast Conference football title, have beaten Wake Forest, Virginia Tech and Virginia. "I'm happy about the scores," Howard said Monday, "but that's the only thing I'm happy about."
Clemson takes on ACC rival Maryland this Saturday. Maryland—last team to beat Clemson (28-25 in 1959)—is "not a big team, but extremely fast and aggressive," scout Banks McFadden told the Clemson squad.
At Maryland, meanwhile, Coach Tom Nugent held a one-hour work-

New Members In Hall Of Fame

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Mike Brady, one of the most active of professional golf's old timers, and Jimmy Demaret, youngest of the middle-agers, are new members of the PGA Hall of Fame.
Their election, by a vote of PGA members, was announced today by Harold Sargent, president of the Professional Golfers' Association of America. A third Hall of Famer will be chosen this year by a vote of those who already are members. All three will be inducted at the PGA annual meeting in Phoenix, Ariz., next month.
Election to the Hall of Fame is based on lifetime playing ability. Only players 50 years or older and retired from active national competition are eligible.
Brady, 73, is a native of Brighton, Mass. He was one of the first great American born golf pros. From 1906 through 1925, he won 38 important tournaments and twice tied for first place in the National Open, only to lose the playoffs.
Demaret, colorful in garb and in personality, became a professional at the age of 17 and followed the PGA tour for 20 years. He was the first player to win the Masters Tournament three times.

out and let the squad go. The Terps, engrossed in a three-game losing streak, were praised by Nugent for their play in Saturday's 13-10 squeaker loss to North Carolina State.
One lineup change was announced for Maryland, promotion of sophomore Rex Collins to the first-team fullback slot for Clemson's invasion.
Virginia, its losing streak now at 21 games, is looking with new confidence to the rest of its schedule. The Cavaliers felt the 21-7 loss to Clemson showed a definite improvement in the Virginia team. This week's foe is Virginia Military Institute of the Southern Conference and—like Clemson—an undefeated team.
Duke, its unbeaten record shattered by Michigan, tries to keep its perfect ACC mark intact against N.C. State this Saturday. Coach Bill Murray has plenty of respect for Roman Gabriel, quarterback of unbeaten N.C. State. Murray said of Gabriel, "If he isn't a tremendous football player there hasn't been any in our area in a long time."
And in Raleigh, Coach Earle Edwards of N.C. State, whose team seeks No. 5 in a row this week, intoned, "We know we'll have to improve some of offense to be ready for Duke." Edwards sent his squad through a light workout Monday.
A light workout also was held by North Carolina, who faces conference foe Wake Forest this Saturday. The Tar Heels (1-2 on the season) reported reserve quarterback John Flournoy of Columbus, Ga., received a broken nose in the 12-7 win over Notre Dame.
Coach Billy Hildebrand, whose Wake Forest team has lost its three starts this fall, reports his team worked up for North Carolina. He told his weekly news conference Monday that after North Carolina's 33-31 win last fall, the Tar Heels were quoted as saying, "We showed them Deacons." Hildebrand said the Ired Deacons "haven't forgotten it."

South Carolina held an extensive defensive drill Monday in anticipation of this week's foe, Miami in a Friday night encounter in the Florida city's Orange Bowl.

Top Racing Event

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—The battle between France's Jamin and Hairos II of Holland, plus seven other of the world's fastest trotters, will be held tonight at Yonkers Raceway in the $84,300 Gotham Trot at 1 1/2 miles.
This should be one of the year's top harness racing events, for Jamin humbled the world's best trotters a year ago in the International at Roosevelt Raceway, and Hairos came over in August this year to repeat foreign domination in the classic.

Hammer Builds Up Face's Arm

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP)—Elroy Face is an off-season carpenter whose special project this week is fashioning a coffin for the mighty New York Yankees.
"I'm ready to go against them tomorrow and the next day, too, if I'm needed," the Pittsburgh reliever pitching ace said today. "They look like just any other club to me."
Renowned as an iron man who pitched in nine successive games and won 22 in a row over a two-season period in 1958-59, the mid-30s, slightly built upstate New Yorker said he gets his pitching endurance from swinging a hammer.
"I come from a family of carpenters," he added. "My father was a carpenter. I studied carpentry. During the off-season, I refinish basements and do other building."
"Swinging that hammer, I figure, gives me more strength in my right arm."
Apparently it puts some mettle in his heart, too. He has shown an utter lack of fear of the vaunted Yankee power in saving three games for the Pirates and sending his team into the sixth game Wednesday leading 3-2.
Erashness and cold confidence characterizes this 5-8, 160-pounder who seems to take a fiendish delight out of whizzing his fork ball past the bats of Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra and company.
"I respect 'em all, but fear none," he said.
"I figure every man who steps up there against me is capable of hitting the ball out of the park, but at the same time I'm convinced I'm not going to let him do it."
Face is a slender, nut-brown man with close-cropped brown hair and flashing blue eyes. His hobbies are fishing, hunting and guitar-strumming with the Pirates' hillbilly band. "I croon a little, too," he said.
When he was signed for pro baseball career in 1949, a Philadelphia Philly scout, Fred Matthews, told him he would be lucky to make it in Class-D ball because of his age (21) and size.
"I guess I fooled him," said Face. "Here I am in the World Series."
Elroy is not only in the World Series. Up to now, from the rabid Pittsburgh viewpoint, he is the World Series.

Cadillac

The unmistakable stamp of Greatness!

In commerce, as in art, it is rare indeed that a creation emerges so inspired in concept and so flawless in execution that it is destined, from the very beginning, for certain greatness.

And yet, it seems not too soon to say that the Cadillac car of 1961 will take its place among the most memorable of the peak achievements of the automotive craft.

Its clean, classic form introduces a new look for the world's motor cars to emulate. There's a new proportion of glass to steel... a new "oneness" of contour and shape... an entirely new relationship of interior to silhouette.

Inside, the story is equally remarkable. Here is new roominess in every dimension. Head room, seat height, and entrance room, for example, have been notably increased with impressive results in greater comfort and luxury.

And as its beauty is... so its performance does—incredibly nimble and quick... smooth and floating... quiet and obedient in operation.

Cadillac's new engine is the very essence of controlled power... steering is feather light and sure... and its new ride seems to make the roadway vanish beneath the wheels.

This is one car you must see and drive for yourself. The facts are simply too numerous and too exciting to accept second hand.

It's the 1961 Cadillac—and we know you'll agree that greatness is written all over it.

PAUL GALICCO'S NEW BESTSELLER Mrs. 'Arris Goes to New York

CHAPTER 16 The day dawned eventually when Mrs. Harris, notified by the marquis that little Henry was over his bout with chicken pox, boarded the Congressional Limited at Pennsylvania Station and took the train to Washington.

There at the French embassy Mrs. Harris was greeted by the Marquis de Chassagne with great warmth—compounded in part from the genuine affection he felt for her, and in part from relief that what might have turned into a very sticky business was now happily concluded, at least so far as he was concerned.

A quite new Henry Brown came storming forth to throw Mrs. Harris; new in that, as with most children bedded with chicken pox, he had grown an inch during the process, and through proper nourishment and lack of abuse had also filled out.

The eyes and the large head were still wise and knowing, but had lost their sadness. Somehow he had even managed to acquire some manners by imitation, and during the luncheon treat that the marquis provided for Mrs. Harris he succeeded in refraining from bolting his food, eating with his knife, and other social misdemeanors.

Mrs. Harris herself a great stickler for etiquette and the gracefully lifted little finger, was not insensitive to these improvements and remarked, "Lor' love yer, dearie, your father will be proud of you."

"Ah," said the marquis, "I was coming to that. Have you found him yet?" Mrs. Harris had the grace to blush. "Blimey, no," she said, self-boasting to Mrs. Butterfield how I'd find him in half a jiffy if I ever got to America. Me and my big mouth! But I will."

She turned and promised little Henry, "Don't you worry, 'Enry. I will find your dad for you, or me nymme's not Ada 'Arris."

Little Henry accepted this pledge with no particular alteration of expression. At that moment, truth to tell, he was not especially concerned whether she did or not. Things had never been so good with him and he was not inclined to be greedy.

The marquis accompanied them to the front door of the embassy where the blue Rolls-Royce waited, its figurehead and chrome-work gleaming, with the handsome and immaculate Bayswater behind the wheel.

"Good-by, Uncle Hypolite," said the boy, and went up and threw his arms about the neck of the marquis and hugged him. "You've been real swell to me."

The marquis patted his shoulder and said, "Good-by, my little nephew and grandson. Good luck and be a good boy." To Mrs. Harris he said, "Good-by, madame, and good luck to you too—and when you find the father I hope he will be a good man who will love him." He stood on the pavement watching them go until they turned the corner, and then went back into the embassy. He was no longer feeling relieved, but only a little lonely and a little older.

Thus, driving along the turnpike from Washington in the marquis's elegant Rolls-Royce, Bayswater, little Henry, who in a new suit and shoes purchased for him by the marquis looked more than ever like a young lordling out of the pages of the Tatler or the Queen, and Mrs. Harris sat all together up front in the chauffeur's compartment and chatted and compared notes.

The introducing of little Henry Brown into the servants' quarters of the Schreiber penthouse at 650 Park Avenue, presented no problems whatsoever. Mrs. Harris simply escorted him thither through the delivery entrance on Sixty-seventh Street, up the service elevator, and through the back of the huge flat.

Nor would keeping him there have presented any insurmountable difficulties, trained as he was to self-effacement. The Schreiber never entered the servants' quarters, they never used the back way into the apartment. There was an abundance of food at all times in the huge freezing units and iceboxes into which a child would make no appreciable dent, and since he was a silent little chap he might have gone undetected there indefinitely, but for the unfortunate effect that his presence had upon the nerves of Mrs. Butterfield.

Unhappily, it was in her cooking that the effects of strain began to show. Salt and sugar were frequently interchanged; syrup and vinegar got themselves mysteriously mixed; souffles either fell flat or blew up; sauces curdled and roasts burned. Her delicate sense of timing went completely to pot so that she could no longer produce a four-minute egg that was not either raw or stone-hard. Her coffee grew watery, her toast cindery—she could not even make an honest British cup of tea any more.

As for the state banquets she was called upon to prepare for the entertainment of Mr. Schreiber's celebrated employees, they beggared description, and people who once were eager to be asked to one of the Schreiber evenings now invented every kind of excuse to absent themselves from the horrors that appeared from Mrs. Butterfield's kitchen.

Nor was it any satisfaction to Mrs. Schreiber, to Mrs. Harris or to Mrs. Butterfield that the only one who now seemed contented was Kentucky Claiborne, who, when a particularly charred roast accompanied by a quite appallingly oversalted and overkicked gravy appeared on the table, dug into it with elbows flying, and bawled, "Say, Henrietta, this is more like it. Ah reckon you must have fired that old bag you had in the kitchen and got yourself a hundred per cent American cook. Ah'll just have some more of that there spoon gravy."

Naturally, all this did not happen at once. It was a more gradual deterioration than as narrated, but with a sudden acceleration as Mrs. Butterfield, herself aware of her sins of omission and commission, grew only more nervous and upset, and of course from then on things worsened rapidly, until Mr. Schreiber was called upon to ask his wife, "See here, Henrietta, what's got into the pair you dragged over here from London? We ain't had a decent meal in two weeks. How am I going to ask anybody here for dinner any more?"

Mrs. Schreiber said, "But everything was going along so fine at first—and she seemed to be such a wonderful cook." "Well, she ain't now," said Mr. Schreiber. "And if I were you I'd get her out of here before she poisons someone."

Mrs. Schreiber pressed Mrs. Harris on the subject, and for the first time found the little charwoman of whom she was genuinely fond, not entirely cooperative. When she asked, "Tell me, Mrs. Harris, is anything wrong with Mrs. Butterfield?" she got only a curious look and a reply, "'Oo, Violet? Not 'er. Violet's one of the best."

Mrs. Harris herself was in a fearful dilemma, torn between affection for an loyalty to her kind employer, and love and even greater loyalty to her lifelong friend, who she knew was making a walloping mess of her job, and likewise why.

She herself had not been blind to the deterioration in Mrs. Butterfield's art, and the dissatisfaction at the table, and was aware now of a new danger that threatened them, namely that Mr. Schreiber would order them both deported to London. If this happened before the finding of little Henry's father, then they were really for it, for Mrs. Harris had no illusions about being able to smuggle him back as they had brought him over. Such a caper would work once, but never twice.

Little Henry is about to be "found out." A worse "break" awaits Mrs. Harris as the story continues tomorrow.

AP—Vice President Richard M. Nixon is putting new stress on an old issue as he makes his bid for the winning of the West. Everywhere Nixon goes he talks peace, and every time he talks peace, he gets applause.

Nixon, encouraged by the reception and the apparent endorsement of a Mormon Church leader, he got in Utah, moved on today to Albuquerque, N.M., and then to San Diego in an attempt to round up California's bloc of 32 electoral votes.

In Salt Lake City Monday Nixon got what sounded like the blessing of President David O. McKay of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Two weeks ago McKay seemed unusually friendly to Sen. John F. Kennedy when he dropped by to pay his respects. But Nixon got more than a friendly greeting. "I told your competitor," McKay informed Nixon, "that if he is successful in November, we would be behind him. I say to you today that I hope you are."

Elated Utah Republicans who heard it regarded the statement as an endorsement, unprecedented in church history. Republicans, who thought the state was leaning toward Nixon anyway, now figure that with the McKay statement Utah's four electoral votes are in the bag.

Both candidates have worked the peace issue in this campaign—naturally, they're both for it—but Nixon seems to put unusual stress on it. In Salt Lake City in the huge Mormon Tabernacle, he again attempted to make the Republican party the party of peace.

Nixon said of the American people: "They can be forever grateful to Dwight D. Eisenhower that he got us out of one war, that he kept us out of any others, and that there is peace without surrender in the world today."

The capacity crowd of 8,000 cheered. Earlier, in Denver, he put it this way: "President Eisenhower has stood for peace. He's always been willing to go the extra mile, to negotiate, but he has also stood for principle, and that is what we must do—firmness without belligerence."

In a pre-breakfast speech in Billings, Mont., he took only a slightly different tack: "The truth of the matter is that in this administration, under the leadership of President Eisenhower, we got the United States out of one war; we've kept her out of other wars, and we do have peace without surrender today, and we want to keep that kind of leadership in Washington."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A panicky mother, stalled at a railroad crossing, saved one son Monday night but lost another when a passenger train plowed into her car in North Hollywood. The car was carried three-quarters of a mile by the Southern Pacific Coast Daylight, bound for Los Angeles.

Lynn Nine, 22, of North Hollywood, told police she stalled and panicked when the wooden arm of the automatic crossing guard came down as the train approached. She said she ordered her son Jeffrey, 2, to jump and leaped out herself with her son Michael, 4, months. She said she raced back to try to save Jeffrey but the train beat her to the car.

The biggest jack pine tree in the United States is in Wisconsin, according to the American Forestry Assn. It is 79 feet tall and has a circumference of 6.2 feet.

Nixon Is Putting Stress On Peace

EN ROUTE WITH NIXON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon is putting new stress on an old issue as he makes his bid for the winning of the West. Everywhere Nixon goes he talks peace, and every time he talks peace, he gets applause.

BEAUTIFULLY BUILT TO TAKE CARE OF ITSELF

Here's how the '61 Ford takes care of itself... THE FIRST 1961 CAR DEALER-WARRANTED FOR 12,000 MILES OR ONE FULL YEAR. Lubricates itself. You'll normally go 30,000 miles without a chassis lubrication. Cleans its own oil. You'll go 4,000 miles between oil changes with Ford's Full-Flow oil filter. Guards its own muffler. Ford mufflers are double-wrapped and aluminumized—normally will last three times as long as ordinary mufflers. Adjusts its own brakes. New Truck Size brakes adjust themselves automatically. Protects its own body. All vital underbody parts are specially processed to resist rust and corrosion, even to galvanizing body panels beneath the doors. Takes Care of Its Own Finish. New Diamond Lustre Finish never needs wax. Warranty. The '61 Fords are built to meet three principal goals: finest quality, greatest durability, most reliable operation. Expressing their complete confidence that this has been accomplished, Ford Dealers led the industry in extending their warranty on '61 Fords to 12,000 miles or one full year, whichever comes first. See this warranty at your Ford Dealer's now.

Some Cheerful Notes For Economic Picture

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—In a welter of disquieting news a few cheerful business items give out a bright light today.

You may have to look hard to find them among the outpouring of generally depressing or caution-provoking reports and statistics. But the reassuring ones are there.

Even the unemployment picture looks a little better. This is the knottiest problem in the economy, and is still far from untied.

But the September report shows a drop in the total jobless of more than a quarter million—greater than usual in September, although the total is still staying higher than a year ago and involving a disquieting percentage of the labor force.

Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell takes comfort from the report that employment was the highest for any September. Less optimistic observers note that unemployment usually drops in September because the junior citizens who have been classed as jobless during the summer return to school and thus drop out of the labor force, and because industrial vacations end.

Businessmen take comfort from the report that in August new orders received by manufacturers were higher than in July after falling for two months.

Many retailers report sales picked up in September. Among the chain stores on the plus side compared with last year were: J. J. Newberry, Peoples Drug Stores, Mangel Stores, Aldens, G. C. Murphy and Edison Bros.

Fear Ambassador Was Drowned

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—West Germany's ambassador to the Congo, Hans Juergen Soehring, disappeared and apparently drowned while swimming in the Congo River Sunday.

Soehring went for a Sunday outing to an island with his wife and children and some friends. That part of the river is considered safe for bathing, although elsewhere there are crocodiles and a powerful current.

His First Job Since Marriage

LONDON (AP)—Antony Armstrong-Jones is working on his first photographic assignment since he married Princess Margaret and gave up his bachelor profession.

Armstrong-Jones has agreed to supply some of his pictures for a new biography of the fashionable Italian artist Annigoni, painter of Queen Elizabeth II and Princess Margaret.

THAT'S MARILYN?—Yes, it's Marilyn Monroe, portrayer of sexy film roles, and she's in pig-tails. Marilyn often wears them when she's home alone, and when she showed up that way for an earthy scene in "The Misfits," director John Huston was so enthusiastic he had her keep the braids for the filming which is taking place near Reno, Nev. (AP Wirephoto)

Stores.

All the earnings reports aren't sad by any means, either.

American Telephone & Telegraph says earnings of its Bell system in the June-August period topped the previous three months

Statue Now Has A Bronze Apron

DETROIT (AP)—A bronze apron now covers the once nude statue of the Spirit of Transportation in the Civic Center here.

City Councilman Eugene van Antwerp condemned the original as "immoral and indecent."

The statue of an Indian carrying a canoe was created by the late Swedish sculptor Carl Milles. An apron was welded across the Indian's loins after Van Antwerp protested. He also has protested a statue of a nude mermaid astride a dolphin to be set up in the center, but nothing has been done about her yet.

and set a record for the summer months.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific food chain reports its profits in the six months ending August 27 were higher than in the 1959 period.

Even the steel industry has a smidgeon of good news today. The steelmen have furnished more than their quota of disturbing reports of late. Their mills have been turning out little more than half as much tonnage as they could produce. But while most are still in the doldrums, a few here and there report their customers are putting in new orders, some on a hurry-up basis.

AN EASY CHOICE
SALEM, Ore. (AP)—When Wheeler County's district attorney moved out of the state, Gov. Mark Hatfield had an easy time finding a successor. On Monday he appointed George L. Dukek—the only lawyer left among the county's 2,400 residents.

Organizer Calls Meeting Of Senior Citizens Here

A county-wide rally of all senior citizens in Pitt County has been called by the National League of Senior Citizens. It will be held in City Hall council room on Oct. 14 at 3 p.m.

The senior citizens are conducting a nation-wide "Gray-haired Revolt" for the following goals:

- (1) Federal Social Security payments of $173 per month, equal to Federal minimum wage, as a matter of right from age 60.
- (2) Full medical care and hospitalization for everyone receiving Social Security.
- (3) Permissible earnings up to $2,400 per year from age 60, and no limit after 70.
- (4) Free distribution of Federal Surplus Food Stamps to Social Security recipients, through every grocery store and market in the land.
- (5) Low rent housing for the elderly.
- (6) Elimination of local Welfare Offices, "investigators," "visitors" and other assorted snoots.
- (7) Federal laws prohibiting States from imposing "Lien Laws," "Responsible Relative Laws," and "Need Clauses."

Raymond J. Jeffreys, lecturer and author, 681 Smedes Place, Raleigh, has been appointed to organize the southern states. He will be in charge of the meeting here. After a 45 minute business session.

Lake Supporter Backing Ticket

LILLINGTON, N. C. (AP) — One of the most active supporters of J. Beverly Lake in the Democratic gubernatorial primary has urged Tar Heel Democrats to vote a straight ticket Nov. 8.

District Solicitor John Burney of Wilmington, crowd pleasing orator who appeared with Lake at many rallies in the spring, took this stand Monday night in his first political appearance since the primary.

He said, "On Nov. 8 we owe it to our country to go to the polls and vote the straight Democratic ticket both state and national."

Urban Renewal Work Told Club

Greenville Optimists last night heard a summary of preliminary cost estimates for Greenville's Urban Renewal project just getting underway.

William I. (Bill) Cochran Jr., executive director of the Greenville Redevelopment Commission, told Optimists the gross project cost is currently estimated at $1,030,000. He stressed, however, the figure is subject to change.

Cochran told his Optimist audience the cost to Greenville is estimated at around $276,000. An outright federal grant of an estimated $553,334 will be included in the project designed to "revitalize Greenville's business district."

The executive director told Optimists the commission has a maximum of 18 months from last June 1 to complete its plans for urban renewal here. He said, "We feel confident we'll have it before then."

Cochran lives with his wife and child at 2539 Dickinson Ave. Billy Ross was welcomed as a new Optimist last night. Ross makes the second addition to the local Optimist Club in as many weeks. Last week Bill Talton became an Optimist.

Sewing Class To Begin Thursday

An adult sewing class will begin this Thursday at the Elm Street Recreation Center, with Mary Lou Baxter as instructor.

The classes will be held each Thursday until May, beginning at 9:30 a.m. and ending at 12 noon. Gordon Goodman, recreation director of Greenville, said.

Last Rites Held For J. Durant Beach

ROBERSONVILLE — J. Durant Beach, 48, died suddenly at his home about 5:30 Friday afternoon.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday at 3 p.m. from Gold Point Christian Church by Dr. William Tucker of Wilson, pastor, assisted by Rev. P. E. Clayton of Edenton and H. F. Brown of Gold Point. Interment with Masonic rites was in Martin Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Beach was born in Martin County and spent his life here. He was a farmer, member of Stonewall Lodge and an elder of Gold Point Christian Church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Thessie Beach; one daughter, Mrs. C. L. Keel, Jr. of Robersonville; a son, Jerry, of the home; a stepson, E. E. Roebuck of Nicelyville, Fla.; one brother, Church Beach of Hobgood; and four grandchildren.

Pactolus Ruritan Elects Officers, Hear Speaker

PACTOLUS—Billy Wynne was chosen president of the Pactolus Ruritan Club at the local group's annual officers' election session here last night.

Other officers chosen included Burney W. Baker, vice-president; Dan Wynne, secretary; C. J. Satterthwaite, treasurer; and Fred Mizelle, three-year director.

W. K. (Kenny) Whichard of Greenville, as guest speaker, outlined the 1960 amendments to the Social Security Act.

Whichard also described the operation and goal of the Pitt County Social Security Program of which he is consultant. He pointed out the program is connected in no way with the federal agencies. "It is an advisory and educational program," he said.

The Ruritans heard a report from the local committee on planned organization of a rural volunteer fire department for Pactolus.
