All In Readiness For A Big Day On Campus

Homecoming Day At ECC Saturday

East Carolina College's 1960 Homecoming Day for Alumni tomorrow will have as events of chief public interest a spectacular parade through the Greenville business district and a football game at 2:30 p.m. between the Pirates and Western Carolina.

The day's scheduled program will begin at 9:30 a.m. when the Board of Trustees of the college will meet in the Spilman Administration building. At the same time alumni returning to the college and other guests will be entertained in the Mamie E. Jenkins Alumni-Faculty House at a coffee hour given by the Pitt-Greenville Chapter of the college Alumni Association.

The parade, which promises to be the most colorful yet to be staged for the annual Homecoming celebration, will move at 11:45 a.m. from the East Campus, down Fifth Street, through the heart of the business district of the city, and back to the college.

Twenty-three floats entered by campus organizations will take their themes from TV. Forty-nine sponsors of student clubs, fraternities, sororities, and other groups, and also representatives of the college Administrative staff, the East Carolina Alumni Association, and the Student Government Association will ride in decorated cars.

East Carolina's Marching Band, the Rose High School Band of Greenville, and the Color Guard and the Drill Team of the college Air Force ROTC will appear in the line of march. The Pirate mascot, Buck the great Dane, will also be a feature of the parade line-up.

Pre-game festivities will begin in College Stadium at 2 p.m. Sponsors of campus organizations will be presented to spectators. The Homecoming Queen, chosen last week in a campus election, will be announced, and the coronation ceremony will take place at this time.

Chief post-game events will be the fall dinner meeting of the Society of Buccaneers, alumni organization at 6:30 in the North Cafeteria and a concert at 7:45 followed by the Homecoming Dance, both with music by Les Egart's Band, in the Wright auditorium.

Other events of the day include a luncheon at 12:30 in the North Cafeteria on the campus; open house in the College Union and after the game; social affairs during the afternoon and evening staged by sororities, fraternities, and other campus groups.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Temperatures will average two to six degrees above normal during next five days. Scattered showers, mostly Sunday and Monday, will average one-third inch or more.

Damage to the car, which had only 329 miles on the speedometer, was set at its price, $2,498. It was a total loss, he added. No charges were placed.

GRIMESLAND — A 16-year-old Greenville girl was trapped in a car for a short time about one mile east of here after the car she was driving left the highway and overturned, breaking a Utility pole.

Investigating Patrolman W. K. Chapman of Ayden said the girl, Leafie Ann Caraway of 2704 East Third St., had to be cut from the wreckage of the car by members of the Greenville Rescue Squad, who took her and her sister, a passenger in the car, to Pitt Memorial Hospital where they were admitted.

The sister was identified as 14-year-old Peggy Caraway. Chapman noted that the driver of the car suffered a wrist injury while both of the girls received lacerations and abrasions.

UN Headquarters Relaxes After Badly Beaten Nikita Goes Home

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—United Nations headquarters relaxed security precautions and breathed a collective sigh of relief today as Nikita S. Khrushchev returned to Moscow after a 25-day visit that shook the world.

A massive contingent of New York police, drawn up to control pickets and prevent unauthorized access to the headquarters buildings, was withdrawn from First Avenue, abutting the U.N. area, Special U.N. passes required of U.N. personnel, reporters and even waitresses in the dining rooms were no longer needed to get into the tall secretariat building on the East River.

These measures and many more had been put into effect to protect chiefs of state who came for the opening of the 15th General Assembly — but mainly because of Khrushchev's presence.

The Soviet premier left behind the memory of a bully, a vulgar, an pile-driving debater, an expert propagandist and a Jekylland-Hyde who talked peace out one side of his mouth and nuclear war out of the other.

He also was a badly beaten man, whipped on all but one of the great controversial issues that came to a vote in the General Assembly.

Clutching at straws before his departure Thursday night, Khrushchev claimed a "victory" on the single point in which the assembly went along with him—the unanimous agreement for a hearing, in plenary session, on his proposal to demand immediate independence for all colonies.

He boarded his giant Soviet turbo-prop plane at Idlewild Airport just before midnight. In his customary departure statement he said: "We are leaving in a good mood."

Khrushchev said there were signs "which allow us to hope for solutions of the major international problems through the United Nations organization, and through this session of the General Assembly."

Much of what followed echoed the positions he took on various issues while he was here. There are three groups in the U.N. now, he said, "imperialists, Socialists and neutralists." Therefore, he continued, the structure of the U.N. should be altered to accommodate all three at the top.

"The Soviet Union is ready to do its utmost to achieve disarmament," Khrushchev went on, adding that he had made "concrete proposals" and hoped there would be business-like discussions on the problem.

Events in the Congo showed the "inconsistency" of official U.N. actions, he repeated. But the vote Thursday on issue of colonialism was a triumph for the Communists, he asserted.

"We are particularly satisfied over the decision taken on the problem of abolishing the colonial regime," he said. "We have two reasons. "Firstly, this decision was unanimously adopted by all delegations, and it is understood that the General Assembly as a whole deems it necessary to abolish the colonial regime.

"Secondly, we are glad because it was the Soviet Union, backed by all Socialist countries, that has brought this decision up for discussion. We were supported by all peace-loving countries. Under the pressure of public opinion, the colonizers were compelled to retreat."

Finally, he said he would like to thank the people of New York for the kindness they had shown him. He didn't elaborate.

As for those who picked him, Khrushchev called them "hired hands" and the "dregs of society."

As for the Security Council, he said it was "worse than a spittoon—a cuspidor."

ident of the United States on a matter involving national security he should be quoted accurately," Kennedy said.

The American Broadcasting Co., which originated the debate for all networks, declined to take sides.

In New York City, John Daly, ABC vice president, said the networks had understood both candidates would speak "ad lib without prepared text or notes."

Daly added, however, that there had been no statement about "out-lawing of verbatim text of public documents affecting areas about which candidates might be questioned."

Nixon's post-debate statement on labor disputes followed up Kennedy's TV assertion that "I never suggested that compulsory arbitration was the solution for national emergency disputes."

Nixon contended that at Fayette City, Pa., on Oct. 9, 1959, Kennedy had urged that the President be given a variety of powers for settling labor disputes and had added: "These measures should include mediation, fact-finding, seizure, compulsory arbitration, injunctions with or without retroactive clauses and the right not to interfere at all."

Kennedy's press aide, Pierre Salinger, said that a speech draft including the words compulsory arbitration was given out by mistake, that Kennedy "spotted this, and we pulled back all the copies we could get our hands on." He said Kennedy did not use the reference in his speech.

WITH TRUMAN IN NORTH CAROLINA (AP)—Harry S. Truman said today "it smacks just as much of disloyalty" to overturn the religious freedom provision of the Constitution as it does to overturn the rest of it.

The former president hit hard at the religious issue as he campaigned in Eastern North Carolina for the Democratic ticket headed by John F. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic.

Truman's speaking itinerary today carried him to Zebulon, Wilsn, Nashville and Rocky Mount, in that order.

"The question of the candidates' religion has no place in this campaign at all," Truman said in a speech prepared for delivery at Nashville.

Noting that the Constitution forbids any religious test for public office, he added: "I regret to say that there appears to be a lot of people trying to violate and overturn that provision of the Constitution. To me, that is a terrible thing."

Truman said "I think that Jack Kennedy has responded very well to the attacks on his religion. He has answered all reasonable questions with patience, with dignity and with candor."

At Zebulon, Truman said of Vice President Richard M. Nixon: "He said I'd insulted him. But it's the truth that hurts."

Truman told the Zebulon crowd of between 300 and 400 persons, "I discuss issues. I don't attack people personally. But if I don't agree with a political party, I have a right to take 'em to town from one end to the other and that's exactly what IUPPI?!"

Truman concentrated much of his fire on Republican farm policies in a speech prepared for a Democratic rally in Wilson.

He said "One of the things the Republicans have bungled worse, of course, is the agricultural program, and that is one of the most important of the essential elements of American strength."

"I am certain you people here are familiar with the gentleman named (Secretary of Agriculture) Ezra Taft Benson. I understand that the Republicans are now shipping him off to South America until after the election is over, and I don't blame them for that. They will have to send him a lot farther away than South America before he is forgotten."

Truman told his North Carolina audience "You are fortunate enough to have so few Republicans down here that perhaps you never find out altogether just how bad they are."

Pres. Eisenhower Observes Record-Breaking Birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower turned a record-breaking 70 today. He smilingly reported he's feeling fine, is somewhat terrified about retiring to private life, but expects to keep very busy.

Eisenhower is the first American president to reach the age of three score and ten while in office. He took no specific note of achievement in an early round of birthday activities, but impressed all who saw him as being full of vigor and zest for life.

The birthday surprises started just after 8 a.m. when the Army Band, chorus and trumpeters serenaded him on the White House lawn.

The musicians first played and sang "Happy Birthday to You." Then they delighted old soldier Eisenhower by breaking into a sentimental number called "The Dog Face Soldier."

That's a tune of the Army's 3rd Division, Eisenhower's outfit. "Brother, did they sing that well," the President said later.

A bit later, Eisenhower invited newsmen who cover the White House into his office and he got another round of happy birthday wishes.

Chatting with newsmen, Eisenhower chuckled when he was asked how he plans to spend his next 70 years.

Alluding to his retirement to private life when his second term ends Jan. 20, he said "sometimes it's terrifying" to think about becoming a private citizen after nearly a half-century in the nation's service.

He said that recently he has received more requests to make speeches and to serve as trustee of various organizations after he leaves office than he has during the 74 years since he became president.

With a laugh, Eisenhower said people apparently think he won't have anything to do after Jan. 20. Without disclosing his plans, Eisenhower left no doubt that he expects to be busy as an ex-president.

"I'll be back through here (Washington), but certainly not to stay," he said.

When newsmen gathered around him for a group photograph, the President remarked with a grin: "I don't see why, when there's only one gal here, I can't sit next to her."

He was referring to attractive Gwen Gibson of the New York Daily News, who promptly moved into a chair beside Eisenhower.

Wide-Ranging Political Argument Finds Candidates Rarely Agreeing

By JACK BELL, AP Political Writer

A wide-ranging third television argument found the two major presidential candidates agreed today on only two subjects: defending Berlin and condemning religious bigotry.

Separated by the width of the continent but brought to a single screen, Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy flailed at each other Thursday night on the issues of war and peace, how to stop national emergency strikes, the state of American prestige and the cost of farm programs.

Both sides thought they had won. Nixon called the encounter "good, fast-moving, a good clash."

Kennedy told reporters: "I thought we touched on important matters that are at issue in the campaign."

One of their sharpest disagreements was over defense of Quemoy and Matsu, two small islands garrisoned by Nationalist China but located within a few miles of the Red Chinese mainland. The issue has mushroomed since their second debate a week ago.

Both agreed the islands should not be yielded under threat of Communist guns. But Kennedy, who has urged efforts to get a Chinese Nationalist withdrawal from the islands, said Nixon was going further than the Eisenhower administration in advocating defense of them.

Nixon contended that withdrawal would damage this country in the eyes of Asia, and said Kennedy's position would encourage the Reds to push to the point "where war is inevitable."

That brought a Kennedy charge that Nixon was distorting the record.

The din was hardly over before Nixon launched a couple of new barbed shafts at his Democratic opponent.

"The president said he was 'shocked' that Kennedy had referred to written material in the third of their TV debates. Nixon said there was an agreement neither would resort to memoranda.

The Republican nominee also challenged in a statement Kennedy's denial that he had advocated compulsory arbitration as one of the methods of settling a strike, such as the paralyzing steel walkout that ended last January.

Kennedy fired back that he hadn't used any notes. He said he read from a photo copy of a letter from President Eisenhower which he contended undermined Nixon's position that the islands must be defended from Communist attack as a matter of principle.

"If I'm going to quote the President, I'll quote him accurately," Kennedy said.

The American Broadcasting Co., which originated the debate for all networks, declined to take sides.

In New York City, John Daly, ABC vice president, said the networks had understood both candidates would speak "ad lib without prepared text or notes."

Daly added, however, that there had been no statement about "out-lawing of verbatim text of public documents affecting areas about which candidates might be questioned."

New Kitchens Combine The Old-Modern Look

THE TRADITIONAL LOOK . . . Cabinets of stained and rubbed oak, yellow appliances, yellow tile, gas range has a rotary broiler.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
The old fashioned look in kitchens is making a comeback. Kitchen appliances are up-to-date to be sure and new colors are as vivid, but the traditional look is the aim of many homemakers who are redecorating or moving into new homes.

Dull-finished wooden cabinets have been popular for a few years and now there is a growing trend to the hand-rubbed, hand-crafted look in cabinets. Colorful effects are achieved with tiles culinary ware old wall art such as reproductions of antique cookie cutters. The style looking kitchen is definitely passe.

Exotic colors in ceramic tile are making decoration news. Violet, regal blue, tangerine are some of the new hues that are providing inspiration in color schemes. There are new additions in the pink and red group—cherry and vermilion.

Decorated tiles include star designs with insets suggesting jewels, popular where an Oriental feeling is desired. There is also a tufted tile with a concave center that creates a quilted effect on the wall. Sheets of these tiles may be installed with adhesive or mortar. Tiles are being combined with glass for interesting effects with light.

Many of the hand-rubbed cabinets are made of oak or are veneered woods. The handcrafted look is accomplished with a desired stain, sanding and rubbing. Its patina grows with time as it is polished.

The trend to the old-fashioned look in cabinets has brought the hand-rubbed sawbuck table back to many kitchens. These tables are ideal for many occasions, luncheon and dinner with the children, the late supper for the man of the house. When the family cannot eat together the dining room doesn't need to be disturbed.

A homey look is what everyone desires in the kitchen. It gives the cook a desire to spend more time there. The combinations of the modern effects in colorful accessories and vivid wall tiles doesn't detract from the look, but rather enhances it. The old-fashioned kitchen was a work of art but frequently it was drab. Modern techniques blending the old and new can produce some terrific effects.

Lighter woods are combined with bayberry green, mist and willow green, sandalwood and spice tiles.

Darker woods are enriched by some of the brilliant tiles such as tangerine.

Homemakers who have an odd piece of equipment, such as a white washing machine, with new colored appliances have in many instances found appliance people in the community who make a specialty of spraying the old equipment to match the new color scheme. These are hard-to-tell from the rest of the equipment, if the job is done properly.

New Govm'ts Should Know By Now

Premier Khrushchev has provided headlines, excitement and unprecedented outbursts during his participation in the United Nations General Assembly; but it is doubtful that he has done much to bolster the prestige of his nation in international affairs by his activities at the U.N.

Certainly the Soviet leader has taken advantage of the propaganda forum offered him by the U.N. session in New York. In his speeches he has lambasted the West collectively and as individual nations. He has taken to task President Eisenhower and other heads of Western governments and he has even lashed out at such respected U.N. leaders as Dag Hammarskjold and U.N. President Frederick H. Boland of Ireland.

It is not unlikely that Khrushchev may have strengthened his relationship with some of the members of the uncommitted bloc of the world's nations. Neither is it unlikely, however, that Khrushchev's activities at the U.N. have caused many of the uncommitted nations to take a more careful look at the communist bloc and the man who is its chief spokesman.

Through the entire turbulent course of Khrushchev's participating in the current U.N. session it has been obvious that the Soviet leader is interested only in having things in his way. Through the thin veil of appearing to want to ease world tension, the Soviet leader undoubtedly convinced many nations of the neutral bloc that the communists are only interested in moves which will further the achievement of their goal of world domination.

Khrushchev's first move in the General Assembly brought forth observations that he might have overplayed his hand by the bitter attack upon Hammarskjold. As the Soviet leaders stay at the U.N. continued, it became clear that many of the neutral nations took exception to what he said and what he did. Certainly no participant could escape the obvious attempt by the Soviet Union and its satellites to either render the U.N. ineffective in international affairs or to bring it under communist domination.

The course followed by Khrushchev during this historic U.N. session will not be quickly forgotten by the emerging nations who are taking their place for the first time in consideration of world problems. They have seen first hand Soviet tactics and they have been able to evaluate the obvious motives behind those tactics.

They probably will be much more cautious about embracing Soviet causes and getting caught under the Soviet boot than they otherwise would have.

You Can't Vote Unless You Are Registered

The most intensive national political campaign in years is being waged now and it is certain to bring to the polls on November 8 a record number of voters. Certainly among those who already are greatly interested in the campaign and the forthcoming election are individuals who will not be eligible to vote unless they take time to get their names on the registration books.

For the next three Saturdays the voter registration books of Pitt County will be open at each of the 25 polling places of the county for the purpose of registering voters. Only those who are properly registered by the time the registration period ends October 29 will be eligible to cast their ballots in November.

In Pitt, as in other counties, there are many people who are not properly registered and therefore are not eligible to vote in the national election. These people who know they are not registered should make an effort to get to their precinct polling place on one of the next three Saturdays and register in order that they will be eligible to vote on November 8.

There are also in Pitt County some people who probably are not sure whether they are properly registered. Unless they personally check on their registration on one of the next three Saturdays, they might go to the polls on election day only to find they are not eligible to cast a ballot.

In this national election year it is important that as many people as possible vote for the candidates of their choice. The decisions made by the voters at the polls on November 8 will determine the course of this nation and this state for at least the next four years and perhaps longer. Every individual citizen not only has the privilege of registering in order to be eligible to vote; he likewise has the responsibility to do so.

Pitt County should record its largest vote in history on November 8. If that is to be done, however, it is important that each citizen makes sure he is registered and eligible to cast a ballot on election day.

Backgrounds Of Quemoy, Matsu

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential candidates are blowing up a storm over what each would do about two small islands — Quemoy and Matsu — off the Red China coast.

Should they or shouldn't they be left out of the area which this country would defend against the Red Chinese? Sen. John F. Kennedy says yes—in order to avoid being dragged into a war over them. Vice President Richard M. Nixon says no—but he didn't say he'd go to war to defend them.

The islands became a campaign issue last week in the Nixon-Kennedy TV debate. Those islands, close to the China mainland, are claimed by Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government on Formosa which is 110 miles from the mainland.

But the Red Chinese on the mainland claim them, too. Chiang keeps a lot of his troops on them. The Reds have been bombing them for years. Sooner or later, as Red China gets stronger, it will probably try to take them by invasion.

This country, by treaty with Chiang, is bound to defend Formosa from Red Attack. It is not bound to defend Quemoy and Matsu. And President Eisenhower has always avoided saying this country would go to war to defend them.

But, on the other hand, he has never said this country wouldn't go to war to defend them. This apparently has been intended to keep the Red Chinese guessing whether they could expect if they did attack.

Whether or not the islands would be defended has always been tied to this question which has never been publicly or fully answered: Are they really necessary to the defense of Formosa itself?

Kennedy said that as president he would try to persuade Chiang to pull his forces back from the offshore islands. Why? Because, he said, he sees no sense in this country's being dragged into a war over two islands which are "not strategically defensible."

But he said: He would not let the Red Chinese force the evacuation of the islands under the threat of force.

Nixon conceded the two islands are unimportant — he even said the few people who live on them "are not too important" — but he said he wouldn't let the Red Chinese have them. Why? He said it is a matter of "principle."

Kennedy was actually echoing the views of some other Democrats in past years. Nixon was echoing Eisenhower, even to the extent of using some of the same words the President has used in the past.

Wednesday night Kennedy accused Nixon of being "trigger-happy" in insisting upon holding on to those "unimportant," "indefensible" islands.

He's Playing My Tune

By DON SCHLIENZ

Tradition And Contract

Initiates to the game of chess are bedazzled by their introduction to the ancient game when they learn there are entire books devoted to recording games of past and present masters, play by play.

They are humbled by acquaintance with combinations of moves that are a part of chess tradition and bear the names of their originators.

The true chess addict rarely regards the game as a "game," but a science. Over the centuries chess has acquired a tremendous lore. A newer, much more recent game, contract bridge—apparently is developing along those lines too.

Several years ago my parents, both contract bridge enthusiasts, encountered a hand which might be considered a part of the card game's growing traditionalism. My father was so intrigued he copied the hand on a bit of paper and carried it with him in his wallet.

A couple of weeks ago a bridge-player displayed a hand that represented a test of playing skill. Mother thought it familiar, and on returning to her apartment, found it the same as the one shown her and Dad when they were living in Virginia.

Those are the circumstances which prompted the premise that Contract is acquiring some of the traditionalism of chess.

Anyhow, Mother couldn't remember exactly how the puzzle was solved; but she did eventually work it out.

Is there a bridge-player in the house?

This is the problem: The bid is seven hearts. How do you make it?

This is the hand: North (the dummy) holds no spades; the ten, nine, eight, seven and six of hearts; the ace and king of diamonds; the ace, ten, nine, eight, seven and six of clubs.

South holds the ace, queen and three of spades; the ace, king, queen and jack of hearts; the queen, jack, ten, nine, eight and seven of diamonds; no clubs; West holds the king, jack, ten, nine, eight and seven of spades; the five, four three and two of hearts; no diamonds; the king, queen and jack of clubs;

East has the remaining thirteen cards.

The opening lead (by West) is the king of clubs.

To non-players the preceding means little or nothing. To players, the opportunity of bidding and playing a grand slam (taking all the tricks) does not come often. The foregoing hand can be played out so as to make the bid of seven hearts, but I'm told that some have tried it and were baffled.

Let no one assume the writer could work it out. Opportunities for jousting at the card table have been too rare these past few years, and to be a real sharpie you've got to stay with it. Last week I was asked to fill in for a delayed member of a bridge club. Those thirty minutes were rough going.

Ah well. C'est la guerre.

HOPE FOR THE HUMAN RACE

We attended a 50th wedding anniversary recently. Two old friends of ours stood in the church before their two minister sons and renewed their vows. Caroline was wearing the wedding dress she had worn fifty years before. Andrew appeared fifty years before as he repeated the words of the service and kissed the bride.

The newspaper often seems to indicate that marriage has failed pretty completely in modern life. This, of course, is not true. The divorces—and especially the ones seasoned with spicy details—make the headlines. Terrible as it is to realize that one quarter as many people make their way every year to the divorce court as to the altar, nevertheless marriage is far from registering a failure. We see this in the hundreds of happy-faced men and women who go by us day by day. We see it especially in persons like Caroline and Andrew whose fifty years of Christian usefulness, whose love for each other, and whose four fine sons bear witness to the divine character of marriage.

Because of world affairs I had experienced unusual depression the day of Caroline and Andrew's anniversary, and I remarked to my wife as I entered the church, "There is no hope for the human race." But after I had seen and heard Caroline and Andrew, I said, "I want to amend my former statement. There is hope for the human race."

Really Not A Debate

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Those who like to keep score will attempt to decide who won the second debate between Richard Nixon and John Kennedy. This is difficult to do because it was not a debate. Nearly every subject discussed was left hanging in the air. Not one subject was completed. It could not be otherwise in view of the format employed. Here is the pattern:

1. A newspaperman asked a question;

2. A candidate replied;

3. His opponent answered the candidate, during which he made certain allegations;

4. Another newspaperman asked a totally different question, cutting short the discussion in hand as though a sentence ended with a semi-colon instead of a period. For instance, when Kennedy in polite language, said that Nixon was not telling the truth or vice versa, there should have been a full statement by both men as to the facts and circumstances. Instead both were cut short. I shall give an example. Senator Kennedy in the course of his direct statement said:

"I don't believe that the government contracts division has operated with vigor. Everyone who does business with the government should have the opportunity to make sure that they do not practice discrimination in their hiring and that is in all sections of the United States."

This was spoken incidentally to a rather confused question. Mr. Nixon took umbrage. He answered:

"Now, the Senator referred to the Committee on Government Contracts and yet that very committee, of which I am chairman, has been handicapped by the fact that they had not the adequate funds, we have not had adequate powers, we have not had adequate staff."

"Now in the special session of Congress and also in the session that preceded it, the Democratic Congress, in which there is a two-to-one Democratic majority, was asked by the President to give us the funds and give us the power to do a job and they did nothing at all."

In effect, Nixon's reply says that Kennedy is not telling the truth, yet by the rules of this debate, Kennedy was precluded from answering Nixon or correcting his statement. This happened to Nixon, too. At one point, Senator Kennedy said:

"Well, Mr. Nixon has stated the record inaccurately in regard to the depressed area bill. I am very familiar with it. It came out of the committee of which I was the chairman, the Labor subcommittee in 1955; I was the floor manager."

Senator Kennedy's entire statement on this matter was designed to establish that Vice President Nixon was not telling the truth and that he knew that he was not telling the truth. But Nixon had no opportunity to reply, yet by the rules of this debate, Nixon was precluded from answering Kennedy or correcting his statement. This happened to Nixon, too. At one point, Senator Kennedy said:

"This is not debating. It is a format that cannot be described. Time after time, as I listened to this discussion, I wished that one or the other of the debaters would deal with some one subject fully. The genius of the Lincoln-Douglas debates was that they had no newspapermen to ask questions. It must be said, however, the second lot of Nixon - Kennedy questions were more sensible than the first lot which seemed to me to be extraordinarily stupid. Senator Kennedy, for instance, makes a fuss over the fact that we are using our steel capacity only 35 per cent. What does he expect? During World War II, we expanded our steel capacity to meet the requirements of all the allied countries, including Soviet Russia. During the post-war years, we used our steel capacity for domestic purposes and to rehabilitate not only our allies but the defeated nations. Having provided them with enormous sums for rehabilitation, they no longer need our steel but are exporting their steel in competition with ours, at lower prices. They are exporting even to this country. Would either candidate be willing to say:

What You Can Tell From The Books In His Library

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It is said you can tell a man by his library.

But this assumes he has read the books in his library. Often he hasn't.

A truer appraisal in most cases, probably, is that you can tell by a man's library what he aspires to be—if he only had time.

Most men's libraries aren't made up of the books they have read and treasured. They are made up of the books they intend to read someday—some day when there isn't something more pressing to do.

To liberate a man doesn't have to liberate a large number of books. He needs only to know a few choice books well, and to increase his understanding by rereading them.

Even three books can produce a well-stocked mind. These books are the dictionary, the Bible, and a collection of Shakespeare's works. No one who knows those three books well is less learned than he who has skimmed 10,000 other books.

A man's reading taste is usually a prisoner of his age. In youth he prefers romantic fiction, but as he grows older he likes to read more factual material because life has taught him there is nothing more romantic than the truth, or more in your library?

The trouble with a library is that if you have a really good book it somehow gets away from you. You either lend it deliberately or someone borrows it by his own choice, but in either case it rarely comes back home. It travels from hand to hand and mind to mind until it is worn out.

Every man's library is an index of his postponed reading pleasures. Those rows after row of dust-catching books aren't there just to awe the neighbors. He really means to get around to reading them some time when he has more leisure than he has now.

Everyone has his own favorite unread book. I have two in my library.

One is called "How to Raise a Dog in the Suburbs." Since I live in a city apartment where only cats and mute parakeets are allowed as pets, I haven't got around to reading this important work. But I still keep it handy for an emergency.

My other favorite unread book is entitled "How to Retire Before 40." It is already 10 years too late for me to fin anything except an antiquarian interest in this voluminous material because life has taught him there is nothing more romantic than the truth, or more in your library?

Critical Era For U. S. Industry

By ELMER ROESSNER

Regardless of who is elected President, the next four years—perhaps the next ten—will be critical for American industry.

Foreign competition, already great, is priced low, will pour into this country in greater volume until steps are taken to check them. Foreign-made goods will compete with American products in every market in the world.

These are the factors: 1. Iron-Curtain production is increasing and the quality of the goods is improving. The Communist nations are hungry for gold and foreign currency. However, they are even more hungry for prestige and influence. We are likely to see many instances in which the Red Bloc offers products below our—or its—cost of production, to embarrass us, to gain markets and to win a little hard money even though they lose some of their soft currency.

FRIENDLY COMPETITORS

2. Our own allies, bless them, are even worse competitors. Their capitalism is incentive; their labor is free. We have helped them get on their feet and now they are running—in efforts to outdistance us, German-made cars at the moment seem to be gaining on U.S. autos in Latin America—and now German cars are being made in Brazil. Our market there—may we say?—is compacted.

That's only one incident. Around the globe our friends—Western European and Eastern Oriental nations—are turning out products that compete with the products of all 50 states.

We are struck with that situation. Any time we attempt to upset, for example, an effort by Japan to sell washing machines to Chile, we antagonize both Japan and Chile.

3. Foreign rivalry is intensifying competition among American manufacturers, especially between those who have established plants abroad and those who haven't.

For example, several American typewriter manufacturers have established plants abroad. With these plants, they can sell typewriters in foreign markets at prices far below those for typewriters made in the United States.

TAXES AND LABOR

These three factors are magnified by United States taxes and United States labor costs. The tax burden on American industry is the highest in the free world, certainly after winked-at evasions are taken into account.

The corporate profit tax is around 50 per cent, much higher than in most Western nations. And where it is officially higher, full taxes are rarely collected.

Taxes abroad are often lower because the United States (you, buddy) pays the cost of defense. Germany is an outstanding example. Forbidden to build up a military force, West Germany levies low taxes.

One quarter of American corporation profits go into defense. West Germany industry, under no such burden, can invest much more income into expansion.

Labor differentials may be even worse. As David D. Dawson, Du Pont vice president, pointed out in a recent address: "The American manufacturing worker is paid an average of $2.30 an hour, with an additional 40 cents in benefits. The Italian skilled worker draws 90 cents an hour, the West German 80 cents an hour for a 45-hour week, the Japanese 56 cents, the French, about 90 cents.

What can be done about this situation will be discussed here tomorrow.

Trust in God

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Psalms 91, 121; Matthew 4:1-11.

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth. He will not suffer thy foot to be moved; He will not slumber."—Psalm 121:3.

"The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night. The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil. . . The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth."—Psalm 121:6-8.

The tempter said, "If Thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread." Jesus answered, "Man shall not live by bread alone," but by God's words.—Matthew 4:3-4.

Taken to the top of a high mountain by Satan, Jesus was offered the kingdoms of the world if He would worship him. When Christ refused, Satan left Him.—Matthew 4:5-11. GOLDEN TEXT—Psalm 121:2.

Trust in God

OUR GOD, WHO HAS MADE THE UNIVERSE, CAN KEEP HIS PEOPLE FROM EVERY EVIL THING

Scripture—Psalms 91; 121; Matthew 4:1-11.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

"I WILL lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth. He will not suffer thy foot to be moved; He will not slumber. He that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep. The Lord is thy keeper; the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day nor the moon by night."—Psalm 121:1-6.

"The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil: He shall preserve thy soul. The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore."—Psalm 121:7-8.

What comfort there is as we read these words of the psalmist in our disturbed and uncertain world. If we have sorrow, we can be helped to bear it. If joy is our portion, we can thank God, Who bestows our blessings on us.

In his lesson book, Peloubet's Select Notes, the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith tells of a young student in college. "Timid and sensitive," he was tormented by older students. Quietly at home he "was turning over the leaves of his Bible, and suddenly discovered Psalm 121."

"How voraciously I devoured it! How I read it again and again, and I repeat it around me!"

How I took it as my shield! And the next day I walked into the great green expanse in front of the college so serene and strong. It was my first act of appropriating the promises of God. The trials seem pinpricks now, as I review them, but they left me forevermore richer." — F. E. Meyer.

Now we must turn from the psalms to St. Matthew, who tells us of the tempting of Jesus by the evil one.

"Then the devil taketh Him up into the Holy City, and setteth Him on a pinnacle of the temple. And saith unto Him, If Thou be the Son of God, cast Thyself down; for it is written,

Art Center Will Display Novel Exhibition Next Week

On Tuesday the Greenville Art Center opens its doors to a new and somewhat novel exhibition. Featured artists will be Marilyn Gordley — with abstract expressionism — and Hild Lanier Ogburn, with "scrapsketches."

Mrs. Gordley, who has 15 years of formal training in the field of art, has sold her paintings in St. Louis and Oklahoma City primarily. She has conducted a series of lectures on abstract art for the Greenville Art Center and now teaches a class there. Miss Ogburn, a resident of Greensboro, engages in the art of "scrapsketching" for fun, she says. In this novel field she uses bits of scrap materials and black construction paper. She paints in the mediums of water colors and oils, also.

The exhibition should be one of the most interesting sponsored recently at the Greenville Art Center. It will continue until Nov. 12, with gallery hours from 10 until 5 p.m., daily except Sundays and Mondays.

Abstract Art

Mrs. Gordley, who paints daily, will exhibit about eight of her paintings and some drawings.

In her painting now she is trying "to combine the abstract principals, or mechanics, of art in a visually meaningful manner." The principals, or mechanics, of art include the plastic elements of lines, shapes and colors.

It is the use of the plastic elements which determine the great painter regardless of the mode of expression, Mrs. Gordley believes.

As an active artist, Mrs. Gordley has in the past painted "traditional art." Most of her work now is abstract, and her studio and home are filled with paintings by herself and her husband, Tran Gordley, who is in charge of the painting division of the East Carolina College Art Department.

Mentioning the attitude of the public towards abstract painting, Mrs. Gordley said that "Any change and any progress bring a sort of chaos before it finds its mainstream and flows into coherency."

She pointed out that what the practically trained eye sees in everyday life is "a small part of the meaning of things." Consequently, the practical eye has difficulty identifying meaning in an abstract work of art. A viewer can appreciate the color, shapes and forms whether he understands the art subject or not, she explained.

In Mrs. Gordley's paintings, the viewer will be able to find more meaning than in some abstract art previously exhibited here. Some of her work is a type of "satire on life," as will be seen in "The Survey" and a depiction of a vanity table. The artist spends time in research and study, as well as several hours painting every day.

She received her Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from Washington University and her Master of Fine Arts from the University of Oklahoma. Advance work was done at Ohio State. Before coming to Greenville, Mrs. Gordley and her husband taught elementary art in grade school in St. Louis County, Missouri.

Scrapsketches
Miss Ogburn will be remembered in Greenville as the first director of the Greenville Federal Art Gallery here during the W.P.A. days. She was technical advisor, N.C. Federal Art Project.

During that time she taught classes at the gallery in drawing, painting and puppetry. She now does free lance work in Greensboro, where she is a charter member of the Greensboro Artists' League and has been assistant director of the Greensboro Art Center.

The scrapsketches are considered craftwork by the artist, who says they are a departure from her regular work in oil and watercolors.

Scrapsketching is tedious work, taking hours for one small sketch. Miss Ogburn uses manicure scissors, glue, black construction paper, white carbon paper, a pencil and numerous scraps of cloth. She applies the scraps as a painter does pigment.

For each of the scrapsketches, Miss Ogburn has written a rhyme. For instance, with the sketch "Hanging Out Clothes," she writes, "Today the sun's shining, today the wind blows; seems like a good day for hanging out clothes."

Her work depicts everyday scenes from life. They originated from sketches she had made, but couldn't decide how best to express them in an artistic manner. She felt oils and watercolors weren't the answer. A framed sketch of Mexican life done with cut-outs gave her her idea for "scrapsketching," she says.

Miss Ogburn's sketches have found their way into North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, as is some of Mrs. Gordley's Florida, New York, Connecticut work.

Abandon Search For Downed Pilot

HONOLULU (AP)—The Wake Island air-sea search for a missing flier Lt. Duane Stirling, 28, of Fargo, N.D., was called off Thursday night, the Navy announced.

The North Dakota Air National Guard pilot was attempting to fly nonstop from Oakland, Calif., to Manila—7,698 miles—when his single-engine plane plunged into the Pacific near Wake Island Wednesday night, Wake time.

Stirling's Mooney Mark 20 aircraft hit the ocean near a reef three miles north of Wake. Stirling had flown 14 miles beyond Wake and was returning to Wake when he crashed. His last message was that he could gain no altitude.

Stirling's companion on the long flight, Capt. Charles Finnegan, also of Fargo, landed his Mooney Mark 20 aircraft on Wake without incident.

Trio Attending Press Session

East Carolina College's student yearbook "The Buccaneer" is represented by three top staff members at the Columbia Scholastic Association in session at Columbia University, New York City Wednesday through Saturday of this week, Oct. 12-15.

Editor Kenneth K. Kilpatrick of Hendersonville, Assistant Editor Walter Faulkner of Henderson, and Assistant Sports Editor Roland Smith of Greenville are attending classes and discussion groups on yearbook layout and production while in New York. A banquet Saturday at the Waldorf-Astoria for editors and staff members of yearbooks in colleges throughout the nation will conclude the four-day meeting.

Cattle Rustlers In Southern Ohio

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—There are cattle rustlers in the hills of southern Ohio, but they apparently have come up with a system that their flatland cousins in the West never thought of—float their loot away on barges.

That's how Sheriff C.R. Burns believes 52 head of cattle were taken from the Richard A. Selby farm.

The farm stretches along the Ohio River. When deputies could find no tracks made by trucks, Burns surmised that the cattle were herded to the river bank, loaded on a barge, and floated downstream.

Roger Shepherd, manager of the farm, estimated the loss at $9,050.

Elks Vote Sum For Grid Gear

The local Elks Lodge last night voted to donate $100 to the Junior High School for the purchase of football equipment.

Charles White, who made the motion, pointed out that several boys had received minor injuries because of inadequate equipment. He said that other organizations are making donations.

The lodge also agreed to renew its sponsorship of its Little League team for the next three years. Sponsoring of a team by civic organizations costs $300 over the three-year period.

A $50 donation was recently made by the Elks to Oxford Orphanage.

Memorial ceremonies were held for J. R. (Chick) Newell who recently passed away.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

Sunday will be "Homecoming Day" beginning with Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. Thurston Wynne is superintendent with Brenda Thigpen serving as pianist.

Dr. Ware, who was North Carolina Executive Secretary of Christian Churches (1915-1952), will use as his topic "The Temptations of Jesus." On June 6, 1954, he received the Doctor of Literature from Atlantic Christian College.

Betty Lane Evans will provide special music for the Homecoming worship service. The Sanctuary Choir will sing "Above The Hills of Time" as a Communion Meditation. Rev. Howard James will sing "Comfort Ye My People" as the offertory solo.

The Annual Homecoming Dinner will be served at 12:30 p.m. Mrs. B. Leon Tyson will direct a Fellowship Hour, following the dinner, featuring special music from the following churches: Christian Chapel, Williamston; Greenville FWB; King's Crossroads FWB; and Reedy Branch FWB. ## American Movie Opens In Moscow MOSCOW (AP)—The American film "All About Eve," dubbed in Russian, is drawing big crowds at one of Moscow's biggest movie houses.

Producer Joseph Mankiewicz and actress Julie Newmar were on hand for the opening before an audience of more than 1,500. Sergei Gerasimov, a leading Soviet producer, called the American film "a real piece of art."

Bucs Win With Dramatic Homer

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer PITTSBURGH (AP) — Years from now when they look back at the 1960 World Series, they won't believe it.

They'll look at the statistics and all the records that were smashed and they won't be able to understand how the Pittsburgh Pirates ever managed to defeat the New York Yankees, four games to three.

They'll admire the courageous comeback of the underdog "Beat 'em Bucs," but they'll also wonder how a team that was humiliated by such lopsided scores as 16-3 and 12-0 could take the proud and mighty Yankees into the seventh game and then beat them with their own weapon—the home run.

They'll look with awe at the all-time record totals of 55 runs and 91 hits by the Yankees, and then note that the Pirates scored less than half as many runs and collected less than two thirds as many hits, and were outscored 10 to 4, yet were able to end 35 years of frustration with a world championship.

"It's not the number of runs you make," said winning manager Danny Murtaugh during a lull in the wild clubhouse celebration, complete with champagne, "it's the number of games you win. And we won more than they did."

Mazeroski: Going For The Long Ball

By JOE BRADIS PITTSBURGH (AP) — One day last fall General Manager Joe L. Brown of the Pittsburgh Pirates called Billy Mazeroski into his office and chided the young second sacker.

with champagne and beer. Manager Danny Murtaugh called it a tremendous finish. "Golly, what can I say," he said. "This just is the biggest three any manager can have."

"You're over weight. Trim down," Brown said without cracking a smile. Mazeroski promised he would. During the winter the 24-year-old infielder cut 10 pounds to 183.

Mazeroski, the hero of the climactic seventh game of the World Series, credits the loss of weight and a changed batting philosophy for his contribution to the series victory.

"I batted all right in 1957 and 1958, but I had a bad year last year. I hit only .241 and batted in only 59 runs. Maybe these two series home runs will sort of balance things out."

The jubilant Pirates swarmed over the second sacker both on the field and in the dressing room where they toasted themselves.

College Teams Take Spotlight On Grid Scene

By JACK CLARY Associated Press Sports Writer Now that the World Series is decided, college football gets full attention.

Tonight South Carolina (0-2) meets Miami (Fla.), which has split its two games, as a prelude to a Saturday card that promises to continue the almost zany happenings that have so far thrown form to the winds.

South Carolina, which has scored just one touchdown in losing to Duke and Georgia, must face a team anxious to get back from last Saturday's final period, 17-6 defeat at the hands of Pitt. The hurricanes are 14-point favorites.

Diamond Dust

run assault, featured by Yogi Berra's three-run homer off relief ace EIRoy Face.

It looked as if it was all over but the weeping and wailing in Pittsburgh when the Yankees clubbed Face for two more runs in the eighth to open up a 7-4 lead.

But the Pirates, having gone this far on pitching, defense, timely hits and breaks, refused to be pronounced dead. Handcuffed by Bobby Shantz through five innings, during which they managed but one hit, the Bucs strung together three successive hits to get one run back and drive the little left-hander from the mound in their half of the eighth.

With Jim Coates on the mound, Roberto Clemente drove in another run with a two out infield single and reserve catcher Hal Smith drove a three-run homer over the left field wall to regain the lead for Pittsburgh 9-7.

The Yankees, showing comeback qualities of their own, rallied for two runs off Bob Friend, making his second appearance in two days, and Harvey Haddix, winner of the fifth game last Monday. With the score tied at 9-9 Mazeroski teed off on Ralph Terry's second pitch in the bottom of the ninth and crashed it high and far over the left field wall to send the crowd of 36,683 into a delirious state.

It was Mazeroski who hit the Bucs' first series homer, a two-run blast that provided the winning runs in the 6-4 first game victory, and it was Mazeroski who doubled home two runs in the 5-2 fifth game triumph.

It took a break to keep the Bucs alive in the eighth and pave the way for Shantz' departure. After pinch hitter Gino Cimoli singled, Bill Virdon, the defensive hero of the series, rapped a hard grounder to short. It looked like a sure double play and the partisan crowd groaned. The ball took a bad hop, however, struck Tony Kubek in the throat, and went for a single. The shortstop was taken to a hospital for treatment and the Buc rally was in full bloom.

It was a bitter defeat for Casey Stengel and in some ways a sad one, since it might be his last series. The 70-year-old professor, who needed this victory to break his tie with Joe McCarthy as the winningest World Series manager with eight, is reportedly ready to announce his retirement. He promised to announce his decision at a press conference in New York within a few days.

It was the Yankees' seventh defeat in 25 world series and their third in 10 under Stengel. It was also the National League's fifth inter-league triumph in the last seven years. The American League holds an overall 35-22 record. It was also the fifth time in the last six years that seven games were needed to decide a series.

Gamecocks Meet Miami; Big Four In Family Fued

Virginia entertains Virginia Military. The Cavaliers will be trying to win their first game after 21 straight losses, but they too, go into the game the underdog.

Clemson Oct. 22. N.C. State doesn't play Clemson this year, and appears to have the easiest row to hoe, should the Wolfpack act by Duke.

The feature conference game will be at Raleigh, a showdown between unbeaten North Carolina State and once-beaten Duke. Both, however, are without a loss in conference play. Duke has rolled over two conference foes, and State has beaten three other ACC teams.

In other games, Clemson, also unbeaten, collides with Maryland, and North Carolina entertains Wake Forest.

The ACC title could be determined in Duke's games this week and next. The Blue Devils face

South Carolina, a two-time loser, faces Miami (Fla.) at Miami tonight, opening a big weekend of football warfare for Atlantic Coast Conference teams.

South Carolina goes into the game the underdog, but will be hoping to rebound after two humiliating defeats, 31-0 to Duke and 38-6 to Georgia.

Miami has fared somewhat better. The Hurricanes beat North Carolina 29-12 in their opener, but lost 17-6 to Pitt last Saturday. South Carolina, idle last week, has been pointing for the game for two weeks.

In the only other non-conference class for ACC teams this week,

Now, 12 years after nursing and cajoling that 1949 club to the first of a fantastic run of 10 American League pennants, Casey is on the way out, from all indications.

The master manager, now 70, is back in New York today for a good-bye meeting with Yankee brass. It comes on the heels of Casey's near-miss for a record eighth world championship in Thursday's disappointing 10-9 defeat at Pittsburgh.

Bucs Ready To Tame Catamounts

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina, walking on rich territory and loving every second of it, attempts to give alumni a successful Homecoming here tomorrow afternoon and at the same time settle a little dispute with the Catamounts of Western Carolina.

Kickoff for the North State Conference clash is at 2:00 in College Stadium. Although a record crowd is expected to call this weekend, some tickets re-ing to the homecoming throng to see the Bucs lose their first game of the season. And Coach Jack Boone has lost only on such game in eight years here.

Second, Western Carolina issued a serious blow to the Pirates last fall. Riding a four game winning streak, ECC was defeated 34-14 in the mountains and went into a mid-season tailspin. They never recovered from the licking, with few exceptions.

Third, a good shot at the North State title appears to be within reach with only three conference games remaining. Leading the loop now, the Bucs feel if they get by Western they will be rolling when time comes to butt heads with Appalachian and Lenoir Rhyne.

Coach Jack Boone has pronounced his club "ready to go". Several injuries slowed down practice this week but no tricks will be withheld tomorrow. Boone deems Western Carolina as a "tough opponent" and looks for plenty of fireworks.

East Carolina expects its defensive line to see a lot of the Catamounts running game. Tom Broadwater, an All-Conference halfback, and Boogy Bass are a couple of the fastest backs in the conference. Jamie Wikes, the fullback, is big and hits the line in a big package.

Forming the nucleus to a fast and bruising line is Jack Spady, two-time All-Conference end, and tackle Denny Williams, a 225 pound All-North Stater.

The Cats, who have lost conference matches to Appalachian (22-8) and Catawba (12-7), boast three victories for the season. They opened the season with wins over Catawba (35-0) and Carson-Newman (7-0) and became the "toast of Cullowhee" when they knocked off a strong Tampa, 28-8.

Coach Dan Robinson of Western was quite distressed with the performance of the Cats against Catawba. "We certainly did not play up to our ability. We will have to improve and be at our best to do it ECC on its thing he has been missing for years—strength at fullback. Both have clocked off long yardage.

"Big Strick" tallied twice in the Elion win Saturday. East Carolina is the leading offensive team in the league and most of it has come by the ground forces. Young quarterbacks have launched air bombs on few occasions. Bert Stafford and Dan Rouse are capable of carrying on an air attack but neither has exploited the airways too often thus far.

The ECC line is on solid ground with Chuck Gordon, Wayne Davis, Jones Lockerman, Bobby Bumgardner, Bob Gregson, Vernon Davis and Clayton Poland slated to start.

Henry Kwiatkowski, Gary Cassidy, Dempsey Williams, Gary Pierce and Earl Sweet offer some strong replacements.

Murtaugh Labels All His Pirates As Heroes

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Danny Murtaugh, the smiling Irishman who led the Pittsburgh Pirates to their first world baseball championship in 35 years, says "every Pirate is a hero."

The usually tight-lipped Pittsburgh manager had no difficulty lavishing praise on all his players Thursday after Bill Mazeroski's sensational leadoff home run in the bottom of the ninth gave the New York Yankees in the deciding game of the World Series.

"What a terrific way to win the series," chuckled Murtaugh. "It was just typical of my ball club—a fighting ball club all the way. There are no particular heroes to me—every Pirate is a hero."

"When Bill Mazeroski hit that ball in the ninth I doubted just for a moment that it would go over the wall. When Yogi Berra (Yankee left fielder) stopped I knew we had the World Series and my one thought was—I'd like to kiss my wife."

Writing wet and hemmed in by newsmen in the turbulent Pirate club house, Murtaugh told of his thoughts in the seconds it took for Mazeroski's homer to clear the wall.

"I thought Berra had a chance to get the ball," he said. "But that thought was in mind just a fraction of a second. Everyone stood up on the bench, and I don't even remember who was beside me. I couldn't get to Mazeroski at all."

BOOGY BASS . . . halfback

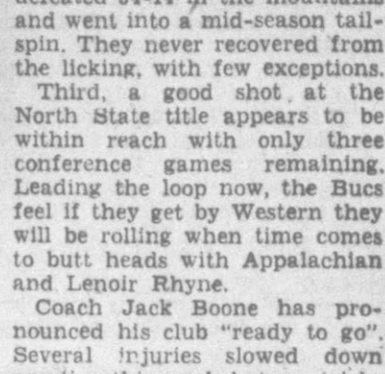

A number of good reasons will head East Carolina's check list on beating Western Carolina. First, it would be disappointing to the homecoming throng to see the Bucs lose their first game of the season.

ECC Cagers To Open Saturday

Candidates for berths on the East Carolina College basketball team for the 1960-61 season report on Saturday morning to Coach Earl Smith for workouts in Memorial Gymnasium.

Coach Smith and his assistant, Wendell Carr, announced this week that as they begin their drills, the doors will be open to college students, alumni and townfolk to see the basketball Buccaneers in the workouts beginning at 10 a.m.

Captain Don Smith is the only senior on the squad. Lawrence "Cotton" Clayton, sophomore, is expected back for the season which opens in November, and will be reporting Saturday morning for practice.

Homecoming For Locals

Two homecoming tilts and an undefeated, untied and unscored upon team spearhead the pigskin action for Greenville and Pitt County residents this weekend.

Greenville Phantoms entertain Elizabeth City in the locals' homecoming game which is to be played at East Carolina's College Stadium tonight. Game time is scheduled for 8:00 p.m. WGTC of Greenville will broadcast a play-by-play account of the game.

Eppes High School's Bulldogs, enjoying a perfect season so far with five wins and no losses and an uncrossed goal line, travel to Elizabeth City to battle P. W. Moore. The Bulldogs should keep the pace that they have set so far, for the Elizabeth City team has won only one ball game.

The other homecoming encounter on the agenda will show East Carolina welcoming its alumnus to see the Pirates lock horns with Western Carolina at 2:00 p.m. on Saturday afternoon. EC has won four out of four homecoming tilts with the Catamounts since Jack Boone took over the Pirate helm in 1952, and the locals will be out to run the string to five. The Bucs are also after their fifth consecutive win of the 1960 season.

Other games in the area will show unbeaten Coastal Conference leader Ayden traveling to La-Grange, who has lost only one conference game this season. Farmville hits the road to tangle with second place Beaufort, another untied, unbeaten and unscored on team. Robersonville takes a break from the Coastal Conference battle when they travel to non-conference foe Plymouth.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Heck, Danny Murtaugh Jr., knew all along his pop's team would win the World Series.

The 13-year-old son of the Pittsburgh Pirates' manager knew the Bucs couldn't miss, not after he lighted all those candles in church with the prayerful intention of victory.

And besides he had 52 freshmen classmates at St. James High School in nearby Chester praying right along with him.

PAUL GALICCO'S NEW BESTSELLER Mrs. 'Arris Goes to New York

In a short time Mrs. Harris both saw and learned more about New York and New Yorkers than the environs of his five boroughs than most New Yorkers who had spent a lifetime in that city.

There was a George Brown who lived near Fort George in Upper Manhattan not far from the Hudson, and for the first time Mrs. Harris came upon the magnificent view of that stately river, with the sheer walls of the Jersey Palisades rising opposite, and through another of those New York Spüthen Duvyl she learned something of this astonishing, meandering creek which joined the Hudson and East rivers and actually and physically made an island of Manhattan.

A visit to another Brown at the exactly opposite end of Manhattan Bowling Green, introduced her to the Battery, that incredible plaza overwhelmed by the skyscrapers of the financial district, at the end of which two mighty arms of water—East and North rivers, as the Hudson is there called—merged into the expanse of the Upper Bay with such seagoing traffic of ocean liners, freighters, tugs, ferryboats, yachts, and whatnot afloat as Mrs. Harris could not have imagined occupied one body of water. No even through Limehouse Reach and the Wapping Docks back home was water traffic so thick.

For the first time in her life Mrs. Harris felt dwarfed and overpowered. London was a great, gray, sprawling city, larger even than this one, but it did not make one feel so small, so insignificant, and so lost. One could get one's head up, somehow. Far up in the sky, so high that only an airplane could look down upon them, the matchless skyscrapers, each with a flag or a plume of steam or smoke at its peak, filled the eye and the mind to the point of utter bewilderment.

What kind of a world was this? Who were these people who had reared these towers? Through the canyon rushed and rumbled the traffic of heavy drays, trucks, and gigantic double lorries with trailers, taxicabs beeped their horns, policemen's whistles shrilled, the shipping moaned and hooted—and in the midst of this stood little Ada Harris of Battersea, alone, not quite undaunted.

In the district surrounding 135th Street and Lenox Avenue, known as Harlem, all the Browns were colored. Several of them had been to England with the Army or Air Force and welcomed Mrs. Harris. One of them, out of sheer nostalgia, insisted upon her having a pink gin with him. None of them had ever heard of Pansy Cott.

Via several George Browns who lived in the Brighton district Mrs. Harris became acquainted with the eastern boundary of the United States, or rather, at that point, New York—the shore with its long curving, green combers rolling in to crash upon the beaches of that vast and raucous amusement park—Coney Island.

There the Brown she was tailing that day turned out to be a barker at a girls' sideshow. A tall fellow in a loud silk shirt, straw boater, with piercing eyes that held one transfixed, he stood on a platform outside a booth on which there were rather repulsive ladies with very little clothing on, and shouted down a precis of the attractions within to the passing throngs.

Mrs. Harris's heart sank at the thought that such a person might be the father of little Henry. Yet in the vulgarity of the amusement park she felt not wholly out of place, for with the cries of the barkers, the snapping of rifles in the shooting gallery, the rush roar of the thrill rides, and the tiny cacophony of the carousel music it reminded her of White City, or any British fun fair, doubled.

Between spells this George Brown, the barker, listened to her story with attention and evident sympathy, for when she had finished he said, "I ain't me, but I'd like to find the bum and punch him one on the nose. If you ask me, he married the girl and took a powder. I know a lot of guys like that."

Mrs. Harris defended Henry's father vigorously, but the barker remained skeptical. He said, "Take my advice, ma'am, and don't trust none of them GIs. I know them."

Mr. Brown had never been in England, but his grandmother had been English and this formed a bond between Mrs. Harris and himself. He said, "Would you like to come back and meet the girls? They're as nice a bunch of kids as you could want. I'll pass you into the show first."

Mrs. Harris spent a pleasant half hour watching Mr. Brown's assortment of "kids" doing various dances, after which she was introduced to them and found, as Brown had said, that they were as described, good-natured, modest about their art, and far cleaner in speech than many of the celebrities who came to the Schreiber parties. She went home after an interesting evening, but no nearer finding the man she sought, though the barker promised to keep an eye out for him.

She learned to like many parts of Brooklyn, where her search took her, for the older and quieter portions of this borough on the other side of the East River, where the brownstone houses struck against the side of one another, as like as peas in a pod for block upon block, sometimes shaded by trees, reminded her somewhat of London far away across the sea.

Since she took the Browns as they came in alphabetical order, one George she found was a ships' chandler who lived over his shop on the waterfront of the Lower East Side.

Here again she was an infinitesimal speck in the grand canyons of the downtown skyscrapers, but, standing on the cobbled pave by the docks that smelled of tar and spices, she looked up to the great arches and wondrous spiderweb tracery of the Manhattan and Williamsburg bridges, across which rumbled electric trains and heavy traffic with such a shattering roar that it seemed to be the voices of those vast spans themselves shouting down to her. On a visit to the Staten Island George Browns via the Staten Island Ferry, Mrs. Harris found one of them to be a tugboat captain working for the Joseph P. O'Ryan Towing Company, in command of the twin diesel-engined tug Slobohan O'Ryan, who was just leaving to go on duty as Mrs. Harris arrived.

Captain Brown was a pleasant, brawny man of some forty-odd years, with a pleasant wife half his size, who lived in a cheerful flat in St. George no far from the ferry landing. They had once had something in common, for the Slobohan O'Ryan had been one of the tugs which had nursed the SS Ville de Paris into her berth the day of Mrs. Harris's arrival, and the sharp-eyed little char had noted the unusual name painted on the pilothouse of the tug, and had remembered it.

Just Sunbathing, No Suicide Idea

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Walter Saxon stretched out for a bit of sunbathing Thursday and police and firemen rushed to the scene. Saxon, 58, a brickworker, chose a five-foot ledge on the edge of a 13-story center-city building for his sunbathing. Several passersby saw him. Firemen sent their rescue unit and police rushed to the roof, thinking they might prevent the man from jumping. Saxon was amazed by the commotion. He returned to work.

Student Artist Exhibiting Work At The College

Patricia Anne Haywood of Rt. 3, Mt. Gilead, senior at East Carolina, is now exhibiting her work as a student artist in the Kate Lewis Gallery, Rawl building, at the college. The art show will be open to the public through October 15.

Included in the exhibition are both oil paintings and wash drawings. Vivid color themes characterize Miss Haywood's paintings. She uses muted colors, exceptionally deep in values, to give her work emotional quality and to enhance its decorative aspect.

Her wash drawings are consistent with her paintings in that hints of her motif are visible over an imaginative treatment of line, light and form and dark contrast.

Miss Haywood's exhibition is sponsored by the East Carolina art department and was prepared and hung under the direction of Metz T. Gordley of the college faculty.

Manuscript Will Be Given College

Mrs. Nell Wise Wechter of Greensboro, author of books for young people, will present to the Joyner Library at East Carolina College the manuscript of her recently published novel "Betsy Dowdy's Ride" and the research materials used in its preparation.

In 1958 she gave the college the manuscript of her first novel "Taffy of Torpedo Junction."

Both Mrs. Wechter and her husband Robert W. Wechter, Greensboro teachers, are graduates of East Carolina and hold the bachelor's and the master's degree from the college. Their daughter Marcia plans to enroll as a freshman in the fall of 1961.

"Betsy Dowdy's Ride," a fall publication of the John F. Blair Publishing Co., Winston-Salem, is a story of a North Carolina heroine during the Revolutionary War.

Mrs. Wechter plans to be in Elizabeth City October 15, for an autographing party launching her new book.

DETROIT (AP)—A 557-foot tower atop the 47-story Penobscot Building in downtown Detroit has become a dining room for hawks. Paul Kraska, a maintenance man, says the hawks perch on a tiny platform near the top of the tower to devour ducks.

Kraska said he found a half-eaten duck on the platform Thursday, and piles of bones on the platform in the past.

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel, chemicals and other industrials paced a pretty good stock market rise in moderate trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .80 at 210.20 with the industrials up 1.60, the rails up .10 and the utilities up .20.

The market was advancing for the second straight session and the nature of the leadership was regarded as "constructive" by some market analysts.

The rise of the steels was accompanied by predictions of some leaders of the industry that the current quarter would witness an increase in production. Statistics on auto assemblies and rail freight were on the upbeat.

The market was higher from the start in a burst of active trading then prices continued at a higher level as dealings slackened. As the session wore on some of the better gains were trimmed. Most autos, airlines, tobaccos and rubbers were content with fractional gains although Goodrich added more than a point.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 3.70 at 595.19. Corporate bonds were mixed in slow trading.

U.S. government bonds declined in quiet transactions over the counter.

FTC Is Accusing Tobacco Board

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Wallace, N.C., Tobacco Board of Trade Inc., and its warehouse members have been charged by the Federal Trade Commission with restricting competition.

The FTC announced Thursday the board is charged with acting to prevent expansion of existing warehouse facilities or the building of new facilities to handle sale of tobacco in the Wallace area. The complaint also charged the board with irregularities in allocation of selling time to warehouses in the area.

Besides the Board of Trade, Hussey's Warehouse, Sheffield's Warehouse and Blanchard & Parrier Warehouse Inc., and its officers were named in the complaint.

The FTC complaint charged the Wallace Board of Trade with granting various members more selling time than that to which they are entitled by allowing them to include unusable or unavailable warehouse space in their floor plans. The FTC said the board's rules are generally acknowledged to make it virtually impossible for non-members to do business in the area.

The FTC said that because of the board's actions, potential competitors have been prevented from entering the Wallace market. The respondents were given 30 days to answer the complaint.

Traditional Truman Stroll Began His Day In Raleigh

RALEIGH (AP)—Harry S. Truman began the second day of his campaign trip to North Carolina today in time honored Truman fashion—He went for a brisk walk, trailed by reporters.

As Truman, still a jaunty figure at 76, set a rapid pace up historic Fayetteville Street to the Capitol, he answered the newsmen's questions—still in typical free-wheeling Truman style.

Here and there, he doffed his hat to surprised women and had a cheery wave for a bus driver.

Truman chuckled in commenting on a remark by Sen. John Kennedy in Thursday night's television debate with Vice President Richard Nixon. Kennedy had said he doubted if anyone could get Truman to change his style of campaigning except perhaps Mrs. Truman.

"She never did in eight years," said Truman, but "she has always been a help."

In answer to a question, Truman said he believes the Democratic party will continue to be the majority party, largely because the South is "coming around" on civil rights. He said he feels that as the South's attitude becomes more like the rest of the country, party wounds will heal.

He told of his friendship and his break with his Secretary of State Jimmy Byrnes. The chill came, Truman said when "I sent Jimmy to Russia and didn't hear a word from him for three weeks."

He said Byrnes returned from Russia and made arrangements to line up a network so he could report to the people. Truman said he told Byrnes he'd better come to the White House "and report to the boss first."

Truman recalled he supported Byrnes as a candidate for vice president in 1944—when Truman got the nomination instead.

"I didn't want to be vice president," he said.

He said he has nothing against Byrnes but has not seen him since he resigned from Truman's cabinet.

Truman's walk to the Capitol took him to the statue of three North Carolinians who became president—James K. Polk, Andrew Jackson and Andrew Johnson. Truman came to Raleigh in 1948 to dedicate the statue.

He commented that Polk was one of the greatest presidents because he added more territory to the United States than any president since Jefferson's Louisiana Purchase.

At the present time there are special groups for the trainable children, the slow learning children, and children with remedial reading difficulties.

Children are in special grouped programs for reading instruction in grades 4, 5, and 6 at all the elementary schools. The academically talented children are receiving special attention at the Junior High School. Primary children needs are being met through an ungraded grouping program at Elmhurst School, and in special groups at Third Street School.

Mrs. Wolf pointed out that this study is in its formative stages and although a great deal of progress has been made, there remains much to be done.

The business session of the meeting was presided over by Dr. M. W. Aldridge, president of Elmhurst School P.T.A.

'Total School Program' Is Clarified For PTA

A program on special education groups in the Greenville schools was presented to the Elmhurst School P.T.A. meeting Thursday by Mrs. Helen Wolff, principal of Elmhurst School.

Greenville has been selected as one of the few cities to participate in the State Curriculum Study which is being directed by Dr. I. E. Ready.

With the aid of colored slides made by Dr. Sam T. White II, Mrs. Wolff gave parents a clearer understanding of the total school program which is designed to meet the individual needs of the children. During the 1959-60 school year, the teachers of Greenville city schools, working in committees of 14 under the direction of Mrs. Ellen Carroll, supervisor of instruction, began a study of the school curriculum in the fields of language arts, arithmetic, social studies, science, physical education, testing and grouping practices.
