The total for yesterday was the largest for any single meeting so far. General Chairman David J. Whichard said the total for the day was $17,334. Goal for the drive is $111,000.

"We are very pleased with the contributions turned in yesterday," Whichard stated. "It was the largest report meeting so far during the campaign."

Telephone Rate Changes Sought

RALEIGH (AP)—The vice president of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. told the State Utilities Commission today his company would have a net revenue loss of about $2.715 annually under its proposed rate structure changes.

J. F. Havens of Tarboro said a proposal to extend the base rate areas of 16 of the company's 111 exchange would result in a loss of $225,040.

CT&T's proposal to regroup 17 of its exchanges to higher rate groups would produce additional revenue of $222,325.

The company also asked permission for automatic regrouping as the exchanges grow. Asst. Atty. Gen. F. Kent Burns objected to this. He said he felt this would incur an increase in the company's rate of return.

John H. Zollicoffer, Henderson attorney, said the City of Henderson was protesting the proposed higher rates because it felt the increase was not justified.

Exchanges which would be affected by the rate adjustment are Columbia, Grifton, Pinetops, St. Pauls, Swansboro, Snow Hill, Tarboro, Benson, Raeford, Ahoskie, Oxford, Dunn, Smithfield, Henderson, Jacksonville, Rocky Mount and Fayetteville.

The 16 exchanges where the company has proposed base rate area extensions are Beaufort, Clinton, Fayetteville, Greenville, Henderson, Jacksonville, Kingston, Morehead City, New Bern, Orono, Rocky Mount, Smithfield, Tarboro, Washington, Williamston and Wilson.

Catawba Woman Is Avid Orchid Fan

By MAIDRED MORRIS
 "Orchid plants do not need tender, loving care," says Mrs. Herman of Conover. "I kept one in the yard all summer." She and her husband raise orchids as a hobby.
 Due to an interest in raising various types of flowers and plants, they built a small greenhouse about 10 years ago. A small heating plant was built near by and hot water pipes were installed in the greenhouse. Mrs. Herman put Venetian blinds overhead to regulate the amount of sun needed.

"I have been growing orchids about five years," says Mrs. Herman. "I got the first large plant from an orchid jungle in Florida. Each year, we try to get a different variety." Mrs. Herman reports the "Cattalaya" orchid is the real corsage orchid. "Every time the plant puts out a new leaf, there is a possibility it will bloom," she says.
 She ordered one cymbidium and now has several plants from bulbs which form on the plant. "Healthy plants grow on fern boards," says Mrs. Herman. "I wire the orchid plant to the board and remove it after the roots become entwined."
 Mrs. Herman kept her largest plant in the yard all summer. However, she kept it in the shade since the foliage turns brown when hit by sun rays.
 Some blooms stay on for three weeks. Mrs. Herman reports that good drainage is necessary in raising orchids. She knocks a hole in the container bottom and drops large pieces of broken pot water from the air, small plants develop between the leaf lobes and can then be planted. "The 'ear drop' plant multiples fast. Little plants drop off and start new ones wherever they fall."
 Mrs. Herman has shallow trays with only small amounts of soil where she experiments with flower seed.
 "I have a dwarf lemon, orange, and grapefruit tree," says Mrs. Herman. "We have had several large lemons on the tree." She had tomatoes for Christmas from running vines in the greenhouse.
 Mrs. Herman has several hundred African violets in the house. She uses fluorescence lighting which comes on automatically when there is not sufficient sunlight.
 Miss Hilda Clontz, home economics agent in Catawba County, says, "Mrs. Herman does not sell her plants but has given away many beautiful plants and flowers."

Plans for a new church building, drawn by Mr. John L. Thompson, architect, of Rocky Mount, were shown.
 Dinner was served by the ladies of the church.
 Following lunch an informal hour of congregational and group singing took place.

Pitt County Alumnae Of WC Hold Luncheon

The Pitt County Alumnae of the University of North Carolina held their meeting on Oct. 22 at a local restaurant in Greenville.

Mrs. Odell Welborn, president of the Pitt County Chapter, welcomed alumnae and visiting Beaufort County Alumnae. The invocation was given by Mrs. Thomas Davis of Greenville.

Mrs. Luther Herring presented corsages, given by Mrs. Howard Mims, to the officers, Miss Barbara Parrish, alumnae secretary, Dean Katherine Taylor of Woman's College and Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, member of the Board of Trustees of the Greater University.

It was unanimously accepted to send the table centerpiece to Mrs. J. C. Wooten, a graduate of the class of 1898.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Van Fleming Jr. introduced Dean Katherine Taylor, who gave a program based on a clipping from a church paper Miss Taylor found among her grandmother's collection. This led her to investigate female education in North Carolina from 1835 to 1860. Many accounts of early boarding school days were noted in "The Happy Death of Lizzie Taylor."

Miss Taylor found that 1835-60 was a period of intellectual awakening in North Carolina and that three products of its awakening were establishment of the University of North Carolina, establishment of denominational colleges and establishment by churches of institutions of learning for females. Salem Academy, which opened in 1802, was first of these institutions for females.
 She said education meant for women to have skill and grace in the home and a knowledge of household duties. How best could a woman achieve this end? By studies in novel reading, needlework, dancing, music, drawing and painting, supplemented the "elementary branches of knowledge."
 Miss Barbara Parrish told the group that this year there are almost 1000 freshmen. An upper-classman residence hall has been built, sidewalks constructed beside Kirklind Dorm, and a committee is at work on the selection of a new chancellor.
 Mrs. J. B. Kittrell expressed her appreciation to the group for their support during her trusteeship. The meeting was adjourned with the singing of the Woman's College Song.

Unable To Push Research Needs

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Cancer Society reported today it is unable to provide the amount of research money it needs, for the first time in its 16-year history.

Its scientific advisors have called for support of high-merit scientific projects that will cost more than the $9 million available for research during the current year, 1960-61.

The society's 1960 crusade brought in $28,400,000, said Dr. Harry M. Weaver, vice president for research. It was substantially less than the crusade's 1959 total of $30,373,000. Research support will be reduced even more markedly next year if more funds are not given, Weaver said.

In another report at the society's annual meeting, Dr. Warren Cole of the University of Illinois said an experimental method of treating breast cancer has reduced the death rate in patients 60 per cent so far.

Cole, who retires as society president at this meeting, said the method consists of medication with a potent anti-cancer drug—nitrogen mustard—before and during the removal of the diseased breast by surgery.

The Guild's Herald Tribune unit Tuesday night voted 476-4, with 1 abstention, in favor of a strike. Similar action had been taken at the Times, the Post, the Daily News, the Daily Mirror, the Journal-American and the World-Telegram & Sun.

The Guild is seeking a 10 per cent wage increase, a union shop, increased job security, a 2 per cent increase in employer pension contributions, a ninth paid holiday and other benefits.

Minimum wages now range from $58 a week for office boys to $160.55 for reporters and photographers under a two-year contract which expires at all seven papers at midnight, Oct. 31.

Airliner Skids To Safe Landing

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—An American Airlines 707 jet, bound from Los Angeles to Dallas, skidded to a safe nose landing Tuesday with 118 passengers and a crew of eight aboard.

The big jet circled the Dallas-Fort Worth area for more than an hour to exhaust fuel after it developed landing gear trouble, then came down on a foam-covered runway with little damage and no injuries.

Two elderly women were taken to a Fort Worth hospital for examination, but apparently were in excellent condition.

When Capt. Howard Morton of Los Angeles put the big plane down at Carswell Air Force base here, it skidded on its nose about 800 feet and came to a stop.

A small fire that broke out in the nose section was quickly extinguished. Stewardesses said after an initial flurry of excitement that all the passengers were calm.

Tar Heel 'Contented' With Life In Chile

By THOMAS J. STONE

CONCEPCION, Chile (AP)—Elmer Moore is a 58-year-old North Carolina Negro who has lived in Concepcion since 1930. He has never been back home. "You might say I'm contented here," he says.

Elmer's house was wrecked by the earthquakes that devastated much of this south Pacific seaport last May, and his hole-in-the-wall-restaurant, Elmer's, was badly damaged.

"But I'm getting back on my feet," he said, smiling. "Slow but sure-like."

Elmer was perched on one of five counter stools in his place near the University of Concepcion. Three tables are in the back.

"How come I settled down here, in the 'Black Star Revue'?" We were 13 colored people. I played the piano and did a little dancing.

"We were up in Valparaiso, Vina del Mar and Santiago. Then we came here. But we had a crooked impresario. Man, was he crooked!"

Elmer, wearing a black beret over his short gray hair, took a gulp of beer.

"This impresario held out on us, didn't pay us half of what we was supposed to get, and the first thing you know he upped and stole the money and went."

"I just decided to stay right here, and I went around and asked if it was all right, and it was, so I stayed."

Elmer did odd jobs here and there, then in 1943 opened his restaurant.

The earthquakes almost knocked him out of business. But the American society in Santiago lent him $240 to get started up again. "I'm paying them back at $20 a month."

Elmer is married to a Chilean and has two children and six grandchildren. One of the children, a teen-age girl, works behind the counter.

Elmer, his wife and children live in three rooms at a refugee center, one of several that sprang up after the catastrophe.

"We don't have electricity or gas but we get along all right. Anyways, I ain't going nowhere. I'm saying right here. Washington, North Carolina, is a far piece off."

Others on the Principal's List, grade 11, were John Triplett and Jane Mewborn.

Grade 10: Warner Burch, Mary Helen Bradley, Mary Ann Butcher and Mary Jo Quinerly.

Power Is Briefly Off For Ayden

AYDEN — Residents of Ayden experienced a short time of "lights out" Tuesday morning about 9 a.m. Town Manager Cleland Paylor said.

Evidently there was a disruption of service between Greenville and Ayden, Paylor said, for by the time local men had checked service in Ayden the power was back on again.

Power was off less than 15 minutes and caused little inconvenience, though some curiosity.

Net No Clues In Break-In Probe

GRIFTON—Investigation so far in the Grifton School break-in last week has netted no clues. Police Chief Luther Lewis said Tuesday.

He reported no word yet on fingerprints taken.

Chief Lewis said, however, that investigation had shown that the would-be thief or thieves entered the school building through a window that was left unlocked.

Apparently the object of the break-in was money being collected for a Halloween contest. The desk of the teacher keeping the money was ransacked, though nothing was reported missing. The faculty member had removed the money elsewhere, Lewis said.

Begin Work On Alley Next Week

AYDEN—Construction on an alley located behind Third Street here will begin next week, Town Manager Cleland Paylor said, to open the alley to traffic.

Pipe was being unloaded yesterday, though more was expected. Work will begin Monday, Paylor said.

The alley runs from West Avenue to Lee Street behind Third Street.

Foreign Policies Will Be Changed

As words wax hotter and charges more hard-hitting in these final weeks of the national political campaign, there are many disputed issues and at least some unanswerable questions. While the big question of who will win the presidential office is yet to be answered, it has become quite clear now that American foreign policies will undergo definite changes during the next administration.

Perhaps no other peace-time election campaign has focused more attention on the nation's foreign policy and its international position than the one now in progress. While domestic issues have been hotly debated, the matter of foreign policy has gained the primary position.

Both the Democrats and the Republicans apparently recognized this development as far back as convention time for the international situation and the role of this nation received considerable attention during the conventions. Both candidates have repeatedly pledged themselves to changes in the nation's foreign policy and to strengthening the U.S. position in international affairs in the coming years.

Particularly has the relationship of the United States in other sections of the globe be strengthened, paramount in this campaign. Whichever candidate wins the election, it is reasonable to expect that greater attention than ever before will be given by the next administration to mending our fences in our own hemisphere. It is of utmost importance to the future of this nation, and to the future of the free world that this long neglected segment of our overall foreign policy be given careful and positive attention.

It is also important that the position of the United States in other sections of the globe be strengthened. Although there is bitter disagreement between the presidential candidates as to the relative prestige of the United States in the world today, they at least agree that something must be done to increase the international prestige of the nation. Each candidate has pledged his efforts to do so.

More than any other one peace-time event in recent years, this presidential campaign has called to the attention of the American people that the United States must provide genuine leadership to the world, or else be left in the eddies of time as the world accepts other leadership.

The man who takes the oath of office as the nation's chief executive in January will have a mandate from the American people to see that the United States attains the foremost position of leadership in international affairs; for thereby hangs the fate of this nation and the fate of the world.

The Urbanite Has His Signs Of New Season

The calendar says it's almost two months until the official beginning of winter, but the nippy mornings recently have dispelled any hope that the long Indian Summer would linger into November.

Even the die-hards who hated to give up the balmy days of a pleasant fall have traded their summer suits for winter woollens and have dug out the long sleeve shirts that hadn't been worn since late March.

The lady of the house has carefully locked the windows for the winter months and has begun to pack away summer clothes in the attic. The old soup pot has come out of hiding and has taken its accustomed cold-weather place on the stove.

Oil trucks that traded tirelessly from one tobacco barn to another in recent months have suddenly reappeared in the residential neighborhoods of town. Pre-school kids in little knots here and there carefully supervise each drop the driver puts into the family tank.

The calendar may say winter is still weeks away, but to today's urbanite, these signs point to the approach of cold weather just as surely as the nocturnal flight of geese tells the woodsman winter is at hand.

Candidates And 2 Main Themes

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential candidates have followed two main themes from the beginning of the campaign. This is Nixon's; Kennedy is a young novice on a man's errand. This is Kennedy's: Look out for Nixon.

Their problem has been how to say the same thing differently. Now that the campaign is entering its final two weeks Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy are finding no trouble at all in expressing themselves.

Kennedy started on his beware-of-Nixon program last July 15 in his acceptance speech by saying the vice president's political career has often "seemed to show charity toward none and malice for all."

Nixon laid the groundwork for picturing Kennedy as an immature and not too clear-headed youngster in his own acceptance speech on July 28. He accused his opponent then of being "rash and impulsive" for suggesting President Eisenhower might send the U-2 spy plane episode. The political conventions were hardly history before Kennedy—on Aug. 1—was accusing Nixon of a "lack of basic beliefs."

This may have nettled Nixon who said Kennedy was "following the low road." He said he would never "indulge in personalities" although some of the things he has been saying about Kennedy since look mighty personal.

Their first TV debate on Sept. 27 was almost a study in the brotherhood of man, with Nixon politely agreeing with Kennedy for which Republicans criticized him and Kennedy treating Nixon like a highly respected old comrade from the Senate.

They got moving by the time of the second debate on Oct. 7.

Khrushy Will Buy All Our Sugar—

The Early Risers' Story

Ah, those early morning hours! The air is fresh as at no other time of the day—cool, clear, invigorating. No smoke. No dust. Merely a trace of dewy moisture that lends zest and zing.

The mad rush of getting the kiddies off to school is still a matter of remote anticipation; neither has the flow of traffic begun toward the traditional "salt mine." All is yet calm; all is yet serene. The peace that hangs over the world is one of its forgotten wonders.

This is Nature's unveiling of the city and countryside as it was meant to be. It is the prime example of benefits accompanying the early-to-bed-and-early-to-rise school of thought.

The air is pristine. Eyes open wide at a newfound clarity of vision; ears, numbed by a bedlam of noises heard and unheard, become attuned to unfamiliar sounds as the piping of a distant bird and whisper of invisible air currents.

Lungs expand in wonderment at experiencing air (with 100-proof oxygen) unadorned.

Beholders turn to the bright and swiftly rising sun in instinctive admiration . . . as if reaching out to gather in the promised warmth and life of a new day.

Well, that's the way they tell me it is.

Finest part of the day . . . they say.

Someday . . . maybe next summer. I'm going to find out for myself. Would do tomorrow, only there's a chill in the air even at my accustomed hour of being cajoled, pushed and bedeviled into getting up to turn off that infernal alarm clock. Don't trust all those old sayings.

The word of caution is based on experience; and the writer is thinking now of the saying "familiarity breeds contempt."

All of us are familiar with a variety of drives, campaigns and projects recurring year after year. Well, the more you see of them the more you have to credit their participants with admirable qualities, their goals with sympathetic attention.

It may be a house-to-house or person-to-person selling job, a solicitation program, a fund-raising tea or dinner, any one of a number of means may be utilized; but there's a selflessness involved—I like.

Such campaigns are initiated with but one purpose in mind: to help make the community involved a better place to live.

In recent years I've had occasion to more closely see the planning and work behind the scenes as well as the culminating effort by the many hands that are needed. It is inspiring.

"I have been asked if there were any 'brain-washing' in the case. I answer that indeed there was, but not in the accepted sense. Powers and I discussed the applause of the audience. He was sure that the first outburst had been because Rudenko (the prosecutor) had not asked for the death penalty. He shook his head ruefully. 'I've sure changed my mind about a lot of things since I've been here.'"

It is rather unbelievable that any American would hold Hallinan's views. Yet this is what he puts in his report:

"We compare the minds which are directing this renaissance of human thought and achievement with those which managed the Powers-Hallinan case. We wonder. 'If we really love this country into war, how long will it take it to wipe our own country from the face of the earth?'"

"Right now, our security from that possibility depends on the good sense, patience and forbearance of the Soviet leaders and upon their ability to maintain a military strength beyond what might tempt our bully boys to attack it."

"One thing which the American public must realize is that the presence of our bomber-bases along the frontiers of the U.S.S.R., the probing of its defenses and the insulting truculence of our political and military cavemen can erupt in a cataclysm which will destroy the human species."

This was, of course, written before Khrushchev exhibited his refinement and culture in the United Nations. It was written before Khrushchev took his shoe off his foot to use it to pound a desk. It was written before his display of the manners of an

Whose Side Is He On?

Vincent Hallinan is an American lawyer who was invited by Soviet Russia to attend the trial of Francis Gary Powers in Moscow. Powers, you may recall, is an American airman flying a U-2 who came down in Soviet Russia at an opportune time for Khrushchev to have an excuse to destroy the Paris Summit Conference. Hallinan was not an observer for the Government of the United States; he was an observer for the government of Soviet Russia. Hallinan wrote a report of the Powers trial which had to do with espionage in Soviet Russia. Among the significant items in Hallinan's report is:

"High Air Force officers had assured Powers that the Soviet radar was ineffective at the place where he crossed the frontier. It picked him up at the moment he did so. They told him that he could not be hit from the ground and that no Soviet fighter could attain the altitude of the U-2. He was knocked down by the first rocket. He was given watches, rings and rubies to bribe the people of the U.S.S.R. to betray their country—the most fiercely patriotic people on earth."

This cannot be quite correct because it is now known that the United States had been engaged in reconnaissance and photographing flights over Soviet Russia for four years and therefore the question must be asked, why the pretense of sudden surprise over the Powers U-2 flight? Also, how could a rocket bring the plane down without destroying Powers, who arrived on earth whole, with his equipment intact and available for Soviet inspection?

According to Hallinan, Powers said:

"I don't know how I was supposed to bribe them—I can't speak a word of their language."

Surely the lack of knowledge of a language has never made bribery impossible or even difficult. There is such a thing as sign language. If one wants to use it, Hallinan would say probably, that the Russians are "the most fiercely patriotic people on earth" and therefore would not accept bribes. That has not been universal experience with Russians any more than it has been with Germans, even Nazi Germans who made a fetish of patriotism. Also, why not Hallinan so fiercely patriotic about the United States?

It is curious that Hallinan make much of Powers' acceptance of his plight in Soviet Russia. How could a man who is sentenced to imprisonment take it so lightly? In fact, Hallinan's report is so favorable to Powers that it casts suspicion upon the flyer:

"I have been asked if there were any 'brain-washing' in the case. I answer that indeed there was, but not in the accepted sense. Powers and I discussed the applause of the audience. He was sure that the first outburst had been because Rudenko (the prosecutor) had not asked for the death penalty. He shook his head ruefully. 'I've sure changed my mind about a lot of things since I've been here.'"

It is rather unbelievable that any American would hold Hallinan's views. Yet this is what he puts in his report:

Closer Liaison With Jackson

By LYNN NISBET

WELCOMED — North Carolina and other Southern states have welcomed Sen. Henry M. Jackson, Democratic national chairman, and recognized him as official spokesman for the party. Chairman Jackson, in turn, has made it very clear he regards the South as a vital part of the nation economically, politically, historically and otherwise. Especially he regards it an important segment in the Democratic party.

The contrast between this attitude and that which maintained for nearly all the incumbency of Paul Butler as national chairman is striking and pleasing to Carolina Democrats. There were times when Southerners felt that Butler was deliberately trying to drive them out of the party.

There is closer liaison, too, between national and state Republican organizations than has maintained for some years. For the first time since 1928 the national Republican committee is giving serious attention to North Carolina. Previous efforts had consisted of real help in the 10th and one or two other congressional districts, only token assistance for the national ticket, and hardly any consideration for state and local races. Republicans were smart enough to put their effort and money where there seemed some chance to win. This year they see that chance all over. Consequently the national folks are intensively campaigning in every county. The fact that North Carolina is regarded as close and a real battleground is lending encouragement to Republicans in other states.

Result is that both Democratic and Republican organizations in this state are more closely affiliated with the national groups than ever before.

PROTESTANT — Touching lightly on the religious issue during his interview with newsmen here, Sen. Henry Jackson noted that he is the first Protestant national chairman of the Democratic party since 1924. If your reporter's memory serves him well, Jackson also is the only national chairman to come from west of the Mississippi valley. Robert Hanagan lived in St. Louis, on the west bank of the river, but in the heart of the valley, Jackson hails from the state of Washington.

Notice has been taken before of the paradox that apparently the candidate for President ought not to be a Catholic, but the national chairman almost had to be a Catholic from the northeastern corner of the United States.

(Some of the young ladies attending the YDC convention are resentful that advance publicity about Senator Jackson did not go far enough. The Congressional Directory lists him as 48 years old and unmarried.)

DISTINCT — The independently separate and still closely coordinated functions of the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government in North Carolina was illustrated by Governor Hodges' response to a question at his latest news conference. A reporter noted that a petition for executive clemency had been filed in behalf of the labor union men convicted of violence in connection with the Henderson textile strike. After the U.S. Supreme Court had dismissed their appeal, the reporter asked if the Governor would try to reach decision on that matter before the November 8 election, and if he thought it might influence votes. Governor Hodges bristled and replied that there is no relationship between normal routine government procedure and effort to influence votes.

PROCEDURE — The Governor's office transmitted the petitions for clemency for the labor people to the Board of Pardons for study of facts. When report of that study comes to the Governor he will act on his own constitutional authority. He is not bound by recommendation of any agency or person, but will use all information available as basis for his decision.

The same course will be followed in the cases of the Negro golfers convicted of trespass at Greensboro, and in every other instance where petition for executive clemency follows judicial conviction. All such petitions are referred to the parole board for study of facts involved in the record.

There are three ways in which executive and judicial branches work together with respect to prison sentences, under general constitutional and legislative authority. Probation is a wholly judicial function. That permits a judge to put a convicted defendant under supervision of the probation commission before he goes to jail. Parole is purely an administrative function of the prison system, permitting release of a prisoner before expiration of his sentence. A probationer is under jurisdiction of the courts, and a parolee remains under jurisdiction of the prison authorities.

Executive clemency is a constitutional prerogative of the Governor. It embraces everything from reducing the sentence imposed by the courts to full pardon and release of the convicted person. The Governor has the power to commute any sentence or pardon any prisoner without requirement of explanation to anybody his reasons. Established practice is that the Governor uses such power with discretion, based on reports and recommendations of the parole board.

Other Editors Saying . . . Against Mechanization

(Hertford County Herald)
In a world obsessed by scientific marvels, the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Miller, dean of Harvard Divinity School, has taken a stand which he describes as a revolt against the mechanization that has been made in the campaign.

Nixon has accused Kennedy of "woolly thinking" on the islands of Quemoy and Matsu. He must have liked the word "woolly" to describe Kennedy. He has repeated it.

By the fourth debate on Oct. 21 Nixon went a step beyond his earlier remarks. He said Kennedy's ideas on handling Fidel Castro's Cuba were "probably the most dangerously irresponsible recommendations that have been made in the campaign."

He sees the precision-tolled, modern mode of life as a main challenge that Christianity must meet and master. Principalities are bent on dehumanizing us," he declares.

Mass organizational techniques he said, draw people together but reduce deep, personal relationships; the reliance or statistical evaluations enshrines quantity above quality; increasing speeds of doing things blurs all fine distinctions.

The rat-race, the squirrel race, the mad rush, are all consequences of man exchanging his human tempo for the machine tempo," he said.

We must practice a new asceticism to keep the world in its place, to serve the spirit, not exhaust it—to regain our humanity."

Some more of his thoughts are: For many today, the scientific method is the only approach to truth, a kind of Messiah in itself." Its advances, he said, have upset traditional religious concepts. Interstellar space probes have robbed the imagination of a place for God, while psychiatry has barred the unreasoning, disturbing inner reaches of human mind.

We must confront the whole realm of science, and affirm its meaning in terms of God's purposes.

"The ministry must face the true limits of resources," he added, "refuse to presume answers where there are none as

Opinions In Brief

"Going into western North Carolina, Mr. Gavin, the Republican nominee for governor, said, "It does me good to be here in Republican country."

The GOP candidate must have been lonely down east among all the Democrats. Possibly, he was just lost and disoriented when down this way, for, apparently he was happy to get with old cronies in the mountain country."

"One might have guessed it. But it took a fearless committee of the United Nations World Health Organization to report it: 'People with psychopathic make-up often make leaders'."

"Not much future in being a mouse these days. If one group of scientists isn't trying to give you lung cancer another wants to blast you off into space."

There are: 1. Americans can buy the products cheaper than before, in many cases. 2. American purchases include duties, thereby easing the tax burden on others. 3. Plants abroad shore up foreign economies, thereby reducing American obligations to aid allies. 4. In building up foreign economies the U.S. gains allies, strengthens them, and reduces military aid. When A U.S. Firm Goes Abroad

By ELMER ROESSNER
What happens when an American company moves its plant abroad?

Plenty. It's a timely question, because many American corporations are moving production lines to foreign countries. You'll find them in England, France, West Germany, Israel and other spots around the globe.

First, why do they move? There are many reasons, principal among them being: 1. High American wages, in comparison to foreign sales. A company paying $3 an hour for American labor will be deeply interested to know that skilled labor can be hired for $2 a day in many foreign countries. The "rock" workers may not be as well trained or as skilled as the American craftsmen, but they will, have to ruin a lot of finished products to destroy that differential. ACCESS TO FOREIGN MARKETS 2. Duty barriers are high against American products. A product made in France, of American design, pays no duty in the French market and has special advantages in the European customs union. And the customs barrier against importing the product into the U.S. may be very low.

Back to the first question: What happens when a company transfers its plant from Middletown, America, to Domage, France?

1. Workers in Middletown are thrown out of work. Companies usually promise to expand other activities to absorb the unemployed, but a case in which this has been done satisfactorily has yet to come to this writer's attention. GOLD DRAIN, TOO 2. Gold is drained from the U.S. Money to erect and equip the plant at Domage must be taken largely from the company's savings and credit. But, once spent abroad, the foreign nation can demand the face value of the expenditure is American gold. Thus, the transfer of a manufacturing facility from the U.S. to a foreign country constitutes the export of jobs and the export of gold. 3. The drain does not end there. If the company imports its products to the U.S., it again drains American gold reserves. Money paid for foreign-made products largely becomes convertible into gold for foreign claimants. There are, of course, advantages.

Nixon Drives Hard In Ohio, Fears Loss Of New York

Books For Students Of The Campaign

MADE UP YOUR MIND ABOUT THE ELECTION?—The staff of Sheppard Memorial Library says every man and woman can be informed about politics this year, or find answers to questions in their display on "Kennedy or Nixon" which includes books covering all topics of the election campaign.

Books exploring every facet of the current political campaign are available and on display at Sheppard Memorial Library.

Mrs. Jane Smith, assistant librarian, said subjects discussed include the candidates themselves, the two parties, the office of the President, and there is a book on the Catholic religion and one on the Quaker religion.

One of the books is "Kennedy or Nixon — Does It Make Any Difference?" Mrs. Smith says this is a short, authoritative study of contrasting ideas about the two candidates and the role of American leadership.

Books available at the library are written in an unbiased manner, which enhance their readability value, Mrs. Smith said.

Political books and their subjects are as follows: "Politics In Your Business" by William H. Baumer, a guide to practical politics for businessmen.

"This Is Nixon" by James Keough, presents Nixon's views on all important issues of the day.

"Politics, U.S.A.," a comprehensive and practical handbook which presents a wealth of facts about the exciting world of politics today.

"John Kennedy, A Political Profile" by J.M. Burns. A complete, unbiased book about Kennedy's past record in the political field.

"The Facts About Nixon" by William Costello. A portrait of this candidate from a new point of view.

Other books in this field include several selections covering the role of an American president and his duties in office, such as "Hats in the Ring" by Malcolm Moos; "The American Presidency" by Clinton Rossiter; "The President — Office and Powers" by Corwin.

Books not mentioned by title explain functions and stands of both the Republican and the Democratic Parties, and there are books on the religion of the two candidates.

REPUBLICANS AHEAD

In the slightly more than a century during which the Republicans and Democrats have been the major political parties, the GOP has topped its rival in electoral votes, 6,013 to 5,389. Third parties and splinter candidates have received 282 electoral votes over the same period.

Candidates Invade The Suburbs; Find Hazards

By EDMOND LEBRETON

EN ROUTE WITH KENNEDY (AP)—This is the year when tens of thousands of suburban housewives found presidential candidates at their neighborhood shopping centers.

Like that other and more spectacular innovation of the 1960 campaign, the face-to-face television debate, shopping center storming has the professionals intrigued but at times dubious.

The typical sortie is planned for Saturday or the late-closing night. Beside the faithful and the curious attracted by the advance publicity, the candidate can count on ready-made crowds along the streets, well worth waves and handshakes.

The motorcade rolls up into the big hollow square of brick-and-glass front stores. The roars, squeals and shouts go up. So do the handmade signs, an answer apparently to those who say campaigning is getting too slick and contrived. There are almost always opposition signs sprinkled in.

The candidate finally makes it to the platform where a perspiring chairman has been trying to hold the crowd with lesser figures.

Some of the pros' arguments for shopping center rallies:

1. You can't miss by going where the people are, especially where they can come in shorts, sport shirts or the equivalent.
 2. Wholly or partly cleared of automobiles, those acres of asphalt for parking can hold a prodigious number of voters.
 3. This is campaigning in the reversed tradition of the village square, the Roman Forum, the Athenian Agora—if you're historically minded.
- The pros who argue against shopping rallies say:
1. There are individual exceptions, but shopping center rallies usually do not draw as heavily for a candidate as the big in-town meetings. And they are as much trouble to arrange.
 2. Crowds, by and large, seem to be harder to handle at the shopping centers. Suburban police often don't have the know-how.
 3. The triple fears of managers at the center rallies are that someone, worst of all a child, will get hurt; that the candidate will be roughed up by enthusiasts; that the police will have to be so tough voters will bear a grudge.
- Whatever conclusions the pros reach on balance, from the sidelines it looks as though the neighborhood campaigning, like the television debates, is an easier habit to start than to break off.

WITH NIXON IN OHIO (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon campaigned furiously across Ohio today to pick up electoral votes against the possible loss of New York in the Nov. 8 presidential poll.

With the aid of President Eisenhower, Nixon will shoot the political works in New York next Tuesday.

Then he will be joined by Eisenhower, vice-presidential nominee Henry Cabot Lodge and GOP Sens. Jacob M. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating in what the Republicans hope will be New York City's biggest ticker-tape reception.

If all this fails to turn the tide that Nixon strategists admit privately is "against them in the Empire State, they will try to duplicate Harry Truman's 1948 stunt of winning without New York's 45 electoral votes.

Nixon's associates believe they must take Ohio and its 25 electoral votes, California and Pennsylvania with their 32 each, Illinois with 27, Indiana with 13 and possibly Minnesota with 11.

If the second line of effort to gain the winning margin of 269 electoral votes, Nixon's forces look on Ohio as one of the key areas they must carry.

They got both good and bad news on this endeavor as Nixon set out for a day of whistle-stopping from Democratic Dayton to a politically doubtful Columbus and a night appearance in Democratic Toledo.

Nixon got one of the biggest ovations of the campaign by a cheer-led partisan audience packed to the rafters in Cincinnati's 17,000-seat Garden Auditorium Tuesday night. More thousands outside the hall practically mobbed him and Mrs. Nixon on their arrival.

Lodge introduced Nixon to the audience as "the best-equipped man in the nation to guide us as we build our strength to assure peace."

Afterward the two nominees met briefly and agreed that—as Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary put it—"The tide has turned their way."

The Cincinnati Post and Times-Star, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, published coincident with Nixon's arrival a straw poll listing Kennedy with 50.5 per cent of the vote in the swing precincts of usually Republican Hamilton County (Cincinnati). Nixon's percentage was put at 42.5, with 7 per cent undecided.

Eisenhower carried the county by 106,000 votes in 1956. Nixon advisers said they must have a 50,000 majority at least to offset Cleveland's expected Democratic vote in order to win the state.

They said Catholics who ordinarily vote Republican account for the indicated GOP slump in Cincinnati, home of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft.

Nixon and Lodge both took shots at their Democratic opponents in Tuesday night's nationally televised appearance. Lodge said Nixon "has never drawn a line and told the Communists to come and get it on the other side of that line." This was a reference to what the Republicans say is Kennedy's stand on Quemoy and Matsu.

Nixon said that "one of the many differences between our ticket and that of our opponents is that I'm always proud to be introduced by my running mate any place in the United States." This was an allusion to what Republicans said was Kennedy's failure to mention his running mate, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, in campaigning outside the South.

The vice president, playing up Lodge's experience as ambassador to the United Nations, said he and Lodge know what to do to handle Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

But he said Kennedy has been wrong on vital issues in his stands on Quemoy and Matsu, whether Eisenhower should have expressed regrets to Khrushchev for the U2 plane flight and in advocating government support for elements opposing Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba.

"Three times he's been up to bat and three times he struck out—and I think that's enough," Nixon said.

And the senator, complaining that Nixon wants to limit a fifth TV debate to a discussion of Cuba instead of a broad discussion on domestic and foreign affairs, said: "This is another indication of the fact that he would rather debate with mimeograph machines and telegrams than face to face."

John Brown's Raid Had Qualities Of Good TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—During the past two years, television has made many announcements of projected programs and series based on episodes of the War Between the States. But after the announcements all seemed to get nixed or abandoned, possibly because the civil war is a controversial subject. Thus, Tuesday evening's NBC special, "John Brown's Raid," was of particular interest.
The drama, an original teleplay by Robert Crean, was an important program, an ambitious dramatic reconstruction of the assault on Harper's Ferry, W. Va., in October 1859, by the fanatic John Brown and his tattered band of followers.
A handful of men—black and white—seized the town and the arsenal before the Marines (literally) arrived to capture, kill and disperse the raiders and restore order. What made it an event of historical importance and of fascination to historians was its timing: It was one of the events which lit the fuse that exploded into war.
Producer Robert Alan Aurthur and Director Sidney Lumet lavished love and attention on the hour's show. They took their big cast and cameras to Harper's Ferry and shot it at the original scene of the raid. James Mason played the Bible-quoting abolitionist to the hilt, portraying him as a man with an all-consuming, half-mad determination to free the slaves, regardless of consequences to himself, his sons or to the young nation.
This was all to the good. Where the program fell down as drama was probably in its editing. The short sequences, jumping back and forth between the townspeople to Brown and his raiders, were extremely confusing. And the entire hour emphasized violence—there were clousings of men being clubbed, bayoneted, shot and there were long, long scenes of street fighting which added nothing.
In spite of the frequent fuzziness, the occasions when Mason was difficult to understand, and overlong battle scenes, it was a gripping and impressive program with flashes of fine writing and acting. And it succeeded in sidestepping the stodginess which seems to be the chronic affliction of the American Heritage series. Most remarkably, it also avoided reopening any old North-South wounds by its sympathetic portrayal of the slave-owning Southerners and by handling Brown and his men as if they were a group apart from the North.
The best way to find out the week's subject on "The Witness" is to tune in the show. Scarcely a day passes but what switches and changes are announced. Thursday's show is now reported to be a simulated hearing on the career of West Coast hoodlum Benjamin ("Bugsy") Siegal. Three shows which have been announced and postponed several times—shows based on Huey Long, Arnold Rothstein and the Black Sox scandal—keep getting pushed farther back in the schedule.

Two Comment On Knee Question

RENO, Nev. (AP)—A ruling discouraging girls at Reno High School from wearing above the knee skirts brought two comments Tuesday.
David Rush, bachelor principal of the high school and author of the rule, said: "there was no effect to the students, only a statement to faculty members to watch for girls wearing short skirts. We felt that short skirts could lead to serious difficulties."
The other comment came from Robert Clogher of San Jose, Calif., a spokesman for the National Nudist Council.
"What is surprising to me is that a state which permits bare bosoms in Las Vegas should become perturbed about bare knees in Reno," he said.

New Non-Fiction Books At Library Embrace Wide Variety Of Topics

New non-fiction books at Sheppard Memorial Library embrace a wide variety of topics ranging from the United Nations and political issues to psychology, hand-reading and underwater diving, as announced by Miss Elizabeth Copland, librarian.
In line with the current observance of United Nations Week, "A Chronology of the United Nations 1941-1958" by Waldo Chamberlin and others should be of interest to readers.
Books on foreign policy and events include "Can We End the Cold War?" by Leo Peria, a study in American foreign policy, and "Philosophical Anthropology and Practical Politics" by F. S. C. Northrop, a discussion of political philosophy to a detailed examination of American foreign policy.
"The People's Choice" by William Burlie Brown is a book on the Presidential image in the campaign biography. Another book of America and its politics is "An Introduction to Democratic Theory" by H. B. Mayo, a study of the nature and theory of democracy. Also, "Politics U.S.A." edited by James M. Cannon, a practical guide to the winning of public office.
A timely book recently added to Sheppard Memorial Library's shelves is "Your Income Tax Guide for 1961" by J. K. Lasser. Elizabeth Daniels Squire has written "Fortune in Your Hand," a step-by-step explanation of basic hand-reading, which is one of the more novel of the newer books.
Slanting towards one particular profession, or vocation, is "Better Than Working" by Patrick Skene Catling, a story about journalism that successfully captures the flavor of exciting experiences hidden behind the factual accounts one reads in the daily papers.

There are other books which cater to the hobby, such as "A Guide to the Winter Birds of the North Carolina Sandhills" by Milton P. Skinner; "How to Design and Build Flying Models" by Keith Lwmer; "Ceramics: An Illustrated Primer" by F. H. Norton, an invaluable aid for everyone interested in the exciting art of pottery making.
Also, "Contemporary Perennials" by Roderick W. Cumming and Robert E. Lee, a guide for the beginning gardeners and an inspiration for the oldtimers to bring their gardens up to date; "The Fascinating World of Astronomy" by Robert S. Richardson, a question-and-answer book that gives a graphic, overall picture of astronomy—its history, its methods, its progress and the riddles still before us.
"Ronald Encyclopedia of Football" by Harold Claassen is an authoritative compilation of football records and statistics, for those who love football. Still other books are geared to outside interests. "The Skin Diver" by Ellen Ciampi is a complete guide to the underwater world. "Treasury of Outdoor Cooking" by James Beard is another "hobby" book.
Other interests
Still other nonfiction books illustrate the wide variety of subjects of the new books. "How to Have Model Beauty, Poise and Personality" by John Robert Powers tells the secret formula that has brought total beauty to thousands of Powers girls, changing their lives by showing them how to achieve true poise, charm and self confidence.
Margaret E. Malac provides a valuable source of ideas for holidays and special occasions in "Party Fun."
"America's National Monuments and Historic Sites" by E. John Leng is a guide in pictures and text to our magnificent natural and historic treasures. William Francis Guess traces the history of his native state, its people, tradition and culture in "South Carolina: Annals of Pride and Protest."

There are several new books which pertain to literature and the arts, and again several which pertain to religion.
Those on literature, English and the arts are:
"Jane Addams: A Centennial Reader" by Jane Addams, which brings together a broad cross section of Jane Addams' fine writings, insuring her reputation as one of America's most articulate and challenging women; "Steps to Good Spelling" by W. A. Stigler; "American English" by Albert H. Marchwardt, the story of our language from colonial times to the present; "Heinrich Heine" by Max Brod, the artist in revolt; "Mid-Century American Poets," edited by John Ciardi, an anthology of poetry.
"The 7 Lively Arts" by Gilbert Selges, a book of the theatre; "College Entrance Examinations" by Louis K. Wechsler and others; "Felix Frankfurter Reminiscences" recorded in talks with Dr. Harlan B. Phillips; "La China Poblana" by Louise A. Stinerof, the story of a woman who has become a beloved legendary character in Mexico; "The Macmillan Handbook of English" by John M. Kierzek and Walker Gibson; "A Treasury of American Ballads" edited by Charles O'Brien Kennedy; "Phonetics: Theory and Application to Speech Improvement" by James Carroll, William R. Riffany, both Ph.D.
Historical books include: "The War" by Louis L. Snyder, a concise history 1938-1945; "The Hell of It" by Stephen Cole, a devil's guide to tempting Americans; "The Sword Over the Mantel" by J. Bryan III, a man who was rocked in the Cradle of the Confederacy retells the martial yarns of his boyhood in Richmond; "Black Saturday" by Alexander McKee, a gripping story of naval warfare; "Truth and Opinion" by C. V. Wedgwood, a book of historical essays; "Mill on the Dan" by Robert Sidney Smith, a history of Dan River Mills, 1882-1950.
Religious books include: "The Church and Secular Education" by Lewis Bliss Whittemore, an attempt to study the effect of the separation of Church and State upon education; "God Our Contemporary" by J. B. Phillips, an examination of the spiritual poverty of the 20th century with some practical suggestions for restoring God to His proper place in modern life; "Barbell's Teachers' Guide to the International Bible Lessons for Christian Teaching of the Uniform Course for 1961" edited by Frank S. DIGGERS GO HUNTING

PRINEVILLE, Ore. (AP)—The first day of deer hunting season forced postponement of two funerals in this town of about 2,800. Nearly all the able-bodied men went hunting, which left nobody to dig graves.

Assumes Police Duties On Sunday

GRIFFON — Edward Earl Hudson of Ayden will assume duties with the Griffon Police Force on Sunday it was announced yesterday.
Hudson 25, has no past experience in the law enforcement field, though his father is a member of the Ayden Police Department. Hudson is married.
Mayor Wiley Gaskins said previously the town hoped to hire a new policeman following the resignation of Chief Roy Jackson and the consequent elevation of Officer Luther Lewis to chief.
The addition of Hudson brings the number of the Griffon force to three men including Chief Lewis and Willie Gray Naron, who has served the town as night policeman.

Pirate Of The Week

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor
 Tommy Matthews, a soft-spoken junior from Hertford, had a field day Saturday night as East Carolina ran its win streak to six, trimming Newberry 21-0.

TOMMY MATTHEWS . . . sparks victory

The modest junior, who was a standout prep star, threw all the credit to the team. "I couldn't have done any of the things I did if it hadn't been for the blocking and tackling of other members of the team," he told Touchdown Club members last night where he was an honored guest.

Labeled "the scooter" by teammates, Tommy started his college career as a freshman for the Bucs, playing in several games.

Last season, injuries set in and limited his football action. All were minor blows but just enough to keep him on the sidelines for more than half the season.

Flu caught up with him earlier this fall but failed to keep him out of action. Saturday, he reached his peak with the starring role in ECC's 21-0 victory over Newberry.

Tommy gave EC its first break of the game when he headed a Newberry threat with a fumble recovery on the Pirate 36. Two plays later Dan Rouse flipped a pass to Matthews on what Coach Jack Boone described as "the perfect play" and he went 62 yards for a touchdown.

Late in the first half, he killed a Newberry threat with a pass interception on the East Carolina 20, returning it to the 32.

His running helped carry the Bucs to their second touchdown and also figured in the third. Over-all, he carried the pigskin six times for 54 yards.

The Hertford junior doesn't have the speed of Sonny Baysinger and Glenn Bass but is shifty and has good body-balance. He is also a better than average defensive performer.

Bellino Named Back Of Week

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
 Joe Bellino, Navy's dazzling halfback who set a modern scoring record for a Middle football player when he tallied two touchdowns against Pennsylvania, edged out New Mexico State halfback Bob Gaiters today as the Associated Press back of the week.

Gaiters and Bellino are the two leading major college scorers, the New Mexico star leading with 92 points on 15 touchdowns and two conversions.

Bellino led unbeaten Navy to its sixth straight victory, a 27-0 decision over Penn.

In scoring twice, one a 26-yard romp, the 187-pound Bellino from Winchester, Mass., boosted his season TD total to 11. This, with a 2-point conversion, gives him 68 points, eight better than the 1934 Navy record of Buzz Borries.

In 16 rushes Bellino gained 85 yards net, caught three passes for 22 yards, booted a 53-yard quick kick and brought back two punts for 35 yards.

Gaiters, also the national leader in rushing, scored three touchdowns as New Mexico State defeated Wichita—co-leader of the Missouri Valley Conference—40-8.

The New Mexico back gained 107 yards rushing, boosting his total to 836 yards, placing him No. 1 in total offense.

Other sparkling backfield performances across the nation included those by North Carolina State quarterback Roman Gabriel, Terry Baker, Oregon State tailback; Ohio State's Tom Matte; Larry Libertore, Florida quarterback; Bucknell quarterback Paul Terhes; Coolidge Hunt, Texas Tech fullback; and Minnesota's Jim Rogers.

220 Women Vie In North-South Golf

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—Both former winners and two greats of another era were in the field of 220 today as the third annual North and South Women's Senior Golf Tournament began.

Mrs. Charles Bartholomew of Brookline, Mass. is defending her title in the two-day, 36-hole stroke play event.

Mrs. Harrison Flippin of Ardmore, Pa., who won the inaugural two years ago; Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N.C.; and Maureen Orcutt of Englewood N.J., are among the chief challengers.

Mrs. Page, virtually retired from competition, was second here last fall. She was national champion in 1937 and won the North and South Amateur here seven times. Miss Orcutt won three North and South Amateur titles.

THREE-SPORT COACH
LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP)—John Melton coaches three sports at the University of Wyoming. He's a freshman football coach, also coaches track and cross country. Melton played fullback on Wyoming's undefeated 1950 Gator Bowl team.

EC Jumps To 15th

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Southern Illinois University (6-0) edged ahead of Lenoir Rhyne, 266 points to 265, this week for first place in the NAIA football poll. Lenoir Rhyne (6-0) had been first all season.

Humboldt State of California (6-0) barely held onto third place, 187 to 186, over fast-climbing Southeastern Louisiana (6-0).

Florida A. & M. (4-0) climbed from seventh to fifth.

East Carolina (6-0) jumped to 15th from 20th.

Cuzzo Only Bright Spot For Weak Virginia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 About the brightest thing in winless Virginia's otherwise dismal football campaign thus far has been the fine play of sophomore quarterback Gary Cuzzo.

But now Coach Dick Voris may have to face Wake Forest in an Atlantic Coast Conference game this Saturday without his 6-foot-1, 195-pound signal caller from Glen Ridge, N.J. Cuzzo, classed as a doubtful performer this weekend, suffered a knee injury in the Virginia Tech loss last Saturday.

Cuzzo is fifth in passing in the ACC, having rolled up 291 yards as Virginia lost its first five games. He's thrown for three touchdowns. Boris says senior Carl Dempsey or sophomore Carl Kuhn will start if Cuzzo can't play in the homecoming game at Charlottesville.

Wake Forest, meanwhile, worked Tuesday at moving the ball better. Coach Billy Hildebrand said that although his team had performed well at times offensively, "we haven't been able to punch it across when we had the chance."

Maryland, riding a two-game ACC winning streak, put some beef in its line. Coach Tom Nugent said sophomores Walt Rock (230 pounds), Gordon Bennett (230) and Roger Shoals (225) would probably take the field against South Carolina. Nugent said he wanted to get some additional weight into the line to meet the Gamecocks at their strong point head-on.

Coach Warren Giese of South Carolina had his team working on passing. The Gamecocks, 1-3 on the season, also worked on stopping Maryland's strong aerial game.

North Carolina (1-4) tried some new offensive formations. Coach Jim Hickey had the Tar Heels review the single wing attack of this week's foe, outsider Tennessee. The Vols have only a tie with Mississippi State marring their record, having won the other four games.

The running game was sharpened at North Carolina State. The once-beaten Wolfpack flies to the West Coast, playing U.C.L.A. Saturday night in Los Angeles.

Conference leader Duke also faces an outsider, entertaining Georgia Tech in its homecoming. Offensive mistakes of last Saturday were ironed out along with a complete review of the team's passing and running attacks.

Clemson, like three other conference clubs, plays an outsider, Vanderbilt in Nashville, Tenn. Frank Howard said he was pleased with the team's showing in Tuesday's drill, a hard scrimmage session.

Practice Briefs

Farmville
 "La Grange will be a real challenge for us," Coach Elbert Moyer told the victorious Farmville club yesterday afternoon prior to a spirited workout.

In comparative scores, La Grange may hold the edge. It tied Mt. Olive while Farmville bowed in the final quarter to the higher class club.

Farmville added several new plays and new formations to their attack yesterday, stressing their passing game. The Red Devils completed 14 against Vanceboro Friday.

The squad was reported in relatively good shape with only Jimmy Pollard and Rex Hodges suffering minor injuries.

Ayden
 A second consecutive rough scrimmage session resulted in a couple of injuries in the Ayden football camp yesterday afternoon.

Clem McGlahorn, defensive end, and Jessie McGlahorn, second team fullback, received injuries but were not reported major.

Undefeated Ayden closes out its football season Friday night at Beaufort. The Sea Dogs are also undefeated but have two ties on their record.

A large crowd is expected to follow the Ayden team to Beaufort in

East Carolina
 East Carolina received a scouting report on Appalachian yesterday and reviewed its offense and defense to be used against the once-beaten Apps in Boone Saturday night.

The Bucs put emphasis on their passing game with Bert Stafford and Dan Rouse doing the heaving. Ends Bobby Bumgardner, Jones Lockerman and Richard Honeycutte and halfbacks Tommy Matthews and Sonny Baysinger were on the receiving end.

Coach Jack Boone indicated that Appalachian would be "much bigger than both Western Carolina and Newberry . . ." The Pirate mentor expressed hope that East Carolina would have the edge in speed.

East Carolina will leave by bus for Boone early Friday morning.

HORSES ROW TO BASEBALL
CHESTER, W. Va. (AP)—In the four World Series games played in Pittsburgh, hoses took a back seat. Racing at Waterford Park, an hour's drive from Pittsburgh, was called off.

Holy Cross coach Dr. Eddie Anderson says that trying to stop Syracuse junior halfback Ernie Davis is much like trying to halt a runaway express train.

Greenville's Phantoms enter football action against non-conference Hertford this week in the position of a prisoner awaiting a verdict.

And the two-hour trial to determine Greenville's fate in the 1960 Northeastern football chase won't come up until Nov. 4 when undefeated Tarboro meets once-beaten New Bern.

As things stack up today this week's action will have little bearing on the race with Tarboro and Greenville meeting outside competition and New Bern a heavy favorite over toothless Elizabeth City.

The possibility of a three-way tie emerged last Friday when Greenville spilled New Bern from the unbeaten ranks, 13-7.

Alan McArthur was once again the shining star for Greenville taking part in both touchdowns. Ronald Wallace, New Bern's terrific fullback was injured early in the second half, eliminating the power from the Bruin's singling attack.

At the same time, Tarboro became the lone undefeated Northeastern outfit by the Tigers over New Bern would assure a title for Tarboro while a reversal could likely knot the race in a three-way tie.

Greenville's only other conference game comes up Nov. 11 with Roanoke Rapids. New Bern will have a tilt left with winless Kinston following its date with Tarboro.

In other activity last week Washington pulled the tie-in of the year with a 14-0 setback of Clinton. Elizabeth City cracked the win column for the second time this season, turning back Kinston by an extra point, 7-6.

Other than the Elizabeth City-New Bern meeting the only other conference contest this week will feature Roanoke Rapids playing at Jacksonville.

Aside from the Greenville-Hertford meeting, Kinston is at Goldsboro, Washington at Williamston, and Tarboro at Rocky Mount.

Pro Golfers Are Scheduled For Tarboro Tourney

TARBORO—Golf enthusiasts in eastern North Carolina will have an opportunity to witness an outstanding golf match in Tarboro on November 4.

Professionals Mike Souchak, Julius Boros, along with amateur Harvey Ward Jr. and David Smith will play eighteen holes at Hill Country Club here.

The exhibition will begin at twelve o'clock, noon.

Both Souchak and Boros are nationally recognized as top professionals, and both have won leading tournaments in 1960 and in previous years.

Souchak won the San Diego and Buick Opens in 1960 and led the National Open through 63 holes of play. He set a new record in the Open for 36 holes of play and finished among the leaders. According to "Golf World," Mike is the fourth leading money winner for 1960.

Boros, who is the pro at Mid Pines Club, Southern Pines, won the Colonial at Fort Worth this year. He is a former National Open champion and Tam-O-Shanter winner. Both he and Souchak have played in the Masters at Augusta and have finished among the leaders.

Dave Smith of Gastonia is a leading North Carolina amateur. Always a long-hitting and colorful competitor, he has won or been among the leaders in a number of amateur tournaments. In addition, he has participated in the National Amateur Tourney for several years.

Harvey Ward Jr., a Tarboro native, has twice won the National Amateur crown and has also won the British Amateur and the Canadian Amateur. He will round out the foursome for this unique exhibition.

American League Expected To Stake Its Claim In LA

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The American Baseball League today was expected to stake its claim in Los Angeles at a meeting designed to expand the circuit to 10 clubs in time for the 1962 season.

Los Angeles, together with Dallas-Fort Worth and Minneapolis-St. Paul, are regarded as the only cities among a dozen applicants being considered seriously for the ninth and tenth franchises.

The National League nine days ago beat its junior rival to the city by swiftly grabbing Houston and New York in the first expansion move in the majors in 62 years. The American League voted last month to expand to 10 teams, too.

While the National League had a comparatively easy time coming to unanimous agreement, the American was expected to be engaged in a long, drawn-out debate regarding Los Angeles. It was highly possible no decision would be reached at this meeting, which may be held over for a second day.

"We're hopeful of coming out of the meeting with two new cities," said league president Joe Cronin, "but I don't want to make a prediction as to what will happen. I know there will be lots of discussion. In any event, it will be one of the most important meetings in American League history."

The AL clubowners first must solve internal problems concerning possible realignment before they can tackle the expansion in agreement regarding Los Angeles. They feel an AL franchise in the rich Los Angeles territory would somewhat offset the advantage gained by the NL in grabbing off such plums as Houston and New York.

The rub, however, is in the manner of acquisition. One group, headed by Bill Veck of the Chicago White Sox, wants the league to grant an open franchise to LA, along with Dallas-Fort Worth.

Another faction, headed by Dan Topping of the New York Yankees, would like to see the Kansas City franchise moved to Los Angeles, thus opening the way for the league to approve franchises to Minneapolis-St. Paul and Dallas-Fort Worth.

Hank Greenberg, vice-president of the White Sox, reportedly has been supporting a move on the part of owner Calvin Griffith to shift his Washington Senators to Minneapolis-St. Paul. Greenberg is anxious to take over the Washington franchise.

It takes a three-fourths vote to approve a franchise shift or the granting of a new franchise.

Apparently the bids of Toronto and Buffalo, along with those of Denver, Oakland, San Diego and Seattle, among others, are doomed, at least for the time being.

Mason Rudolph has been voted golf's rookie of the year. Through September he had earned $31,339, plus $12,500 from a 1959-60 televised golf series.

Bulla Enters Southpaw Event

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Johnny Bulla, a former touring regular, became the first man professional to enter the first annual Invitational National Left-handers Open golf tournament.

Bulla, who now makes his home in Phoenix, Ariz., has notified the National Association of Left-handed Golfers of his intention of competing in the inaugural event.

The lefthanded open will be held Dec. 5-10 at the DeSota Lakes Golf and Country Club in Sarasota, Fla. The event will be co-sponsored by the National Association of Left-handed Golfers and the DeSota Lakes Country Club.

The Phoenix pro, originally from North Carolina, won only one major tournament but came close in a number of others. He won the 1941 Los Angeles Open.

Ayden rolled up its eighth straight victory without a defeat last Friday by downing Contentnea 20-0 to remain on top of the Coastal Conference standings. The Tornadoes are the only team in the loop to remain untied as well as unbeaten.

Second place Beaufort, the only unscathed club in the league, kept up its winning ways in defeating Robersonville to the tune of 18-0. It was the fifth win in a row for the Sea Dogs, who also have two ties on their record. Havelock held the beach boys to a scoreless tie and Beaufort was penalized with a second tie for failing to include LaGrange on their schedule.

In the other conference game last week, Farmville unveiled a potent offensive attack in drubbing last place Vanceboro by a 60-7 score. The point total was the second highest of the season, with Beaufort trimming Vanceboro 79-0.

In other gridiron action featuring Coastal Conference entries, Havelock dropped Swansboro 27-6 in a non-conference game, while LaGrange thumped Beaulville, another outsider by a 19-13 score.

Leading Coach Stuart Tripp's Ayden club was William Edwards, a quarterback who is usually overshadowed by teammate Dennis Mills, an All-Conference fullback. Edwards scored two touchdowns for the Tornadoes and led in the ground gaining department for the league leaders.

Once again it was the fine offensive showing of David Jones and Ernest House which provided Beaufort with its fifth consecutive win. Jones, an All-Conference performer at end for the Sea Dogs last year, and House combined to hand the Rams of Robersonville their third conference loss against two wins.

Farmville, riding on the terrific running of backs Jimmy Pollard and Danny Dilda, and the passing combination of quarterback Dean Oglesby and end J. Y. Monk, recorded their second conference win over the hapless cellar dweller, Vanceboro.

A football flying Friday is scheduled for this week, with several evenly matched teams locking horns. In the loop's top tilt, Ayden travels to Beaufort in hopes of keeping a clean slate for the season as well as claiming the conference championship. The Tornadoes will also be out to be the first club to cross Beaufort's goal line.

Other conference action shows fifth place Farmville hosting fourth place LaGrange, seventh place Contentnea entertaining last place Vanceboro, and sixth place Robersonville traveling to Havelock, the number three team.

Pitt Coach Can't Explain Failure Of Football Club

By MURRAY CHASS
PITTSBURGH (AP)—Coach Johnny Michelosen is stumped. He says he is puzzled with his University of Pittsburgh football team, but he doesn't know exactly what is wrong.

"I really can't explain it too well," he told a football writers luncheon Tuesday. "I don't actually think the boys are loafing. It's a hard thing to put your finger on. Sometimes the opponent is a little harder than the boys expect and they fall down."

In pre-season selections, the Panthers were named one of the top teams in the country, regardless of their schedule, which is one of the toughest in the nation. After six games the Pitt chart reads 2-2-2, with the two losses coming by a point each.

Michelosen reluctantly discussed his team's performances. One weakness, he said, is blocking.

"We've missed some blocks," he said. "We haven't been too clean at all. Last year we made some of those blocks and went all the way. But we're missing them now and it hurts."

Someone suggested lack of practice can cause this weakness.

"That's true," Michelosen said. "We have some key men on the first and second units missing from practice because of classes. It hurts their effectiveness, especially on such things as blocking."

Michelosen dwelled a little on last week's 7-7 stalemate with Texas Christian.

"Those TCU boys wanted to win that ball game very badly," he said. "I don't know if our kids knew if they wanted to win that game or not. They took turns falling down on the job. We just never got ourselves going offensively. If we play that way this Saturday, there is no telling how high that score will be."

Michelosen said the Panthers will be in good shape physically for Saturday, with junior end Heywood Hasser the only question mark. Hasser bruised a knee against TCU.

Michelosen was asked if the team appears to be in the proper frame of mind for the game and drew a chuckle from reporters with his answer.

"They should be pretty loose for this game," he replied. "We're playing one of the top teams."

Special Racer Is Being Built

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Bob Osiecki of Charlotte, N.C., is building a special racer which he hopes will reach 180 miles per hour this winter at the Daytona International Speedway.

Bill France, president of the track, said Tuesday that Osiecki's car will be driven by Curtis Turner of Charlotte with Tom Pistone of Chicago as relief driver.

The track is offering $10,000 to the first driver who can turn the high-banked, 2 1/2-mile track at 180 m.p.h. or better.

Halimi Seeking World Champion

LONDON (AP)—Alphonse Halimi, the newly crowned bantamweight champion of half the world, said today he's out to make himself the undisputed champion of the whole world—by taking on the winner of a Nov. 17 fight in Los Angeles.

Halimi won the European version of the world title by grabbing a controversial 15-round decision over British and European champion Freddie Gilroy Tuesday night.

The American National Boxing Commission did not recognize the fight as a world championship and said the one between Eder Jofre of Brazil and Eloy Sanchez, Mexican in Los Angeles Nov. 17 would be for the world title.

The confusion over the world title arose by the retirement of Mexican Jose Becerra.

Belgian referee Philippe de Backer gave Halimi, the 28-year-old French-Algerian, the verdict over Gilroy, despite the views of most ringside observers that the 24-year-old Irishman had done enough to win.

The Associated Press card gave seven rounds to Gilroy, five to Halimi, with the remainder even.

Halimi, world bantamweight champion between April 1957, and July 1959, scored the only real knockout of the fight. In the 13th round he landed a short right hook that floored Gilroy. The count reached four, then the bell saved the Irishman.

Halimi weighed 117 1/2, Gilroy 116.

mattered was that Stengel and the Yankees had parted company, and that was most depressing. The decision had been made and there would be no appeal. The announcement had not come as a surprise for it had been rumored for some time. Only the business of playing the Pittsburgh Pirates in the World Series had delayed the final word.

The 70-year-old Stengel made no effort to conceal his feelings as he faced the huge throng assembled for the press conference. He was bitter, angry and keenly disappointed as he revealed that his services were no longer desired by the Yankees.

"Del Webb and Dan Topping, the Yankee owners, are in agreement that there should be an age limit," said Stengel. Stengel had been well aware of that fact for some time. And yet Casey struggled his heart out to win another world championship in hopes that the Yankee owners might have a change of heart and keep him on for another season. Just one more season. For 50 years, baseball has been Stengel's life. Even the crowning achievement of 10 American League pennants and seven world championships did little to ease the disappointment that was Stengel's.

By way of explaining the Yankee's decision, Topping pointed out that "Stengel reluctantly signed a two-year contract with the understanding that he could retire after the first year, if he so desired. Keeping his possible retirement in mind, the Yankees set out to develop a program for his retirement." Thus, Stengel's contract was not renewed.

Prediction Is Looking True To Form For Coach

By IM IRWIN
ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS WRITER

LAS CRUCES, N. M. (AP)—When Warren Woodson came to New Mexico State in 1958 he tread where angels and most football coaches feared to tread. He also predicted a winner within three years.

That was saying a lot for a school which hadn't had a winning football season since 1938 and had won only 29 games in the previous 13 seasons.

His three years later and Woodson's Aggies are unbeaten in six games this season and are working on a 10-game winning streak.

"We have one of the outstanding football teams in the nation," Woodson says.

One reason is the recruiting Woodson did during his first year. He recruited smart football players—a change for a school which had tried to build football teams from collegiate castoffs.

His stars include halfbacks Bob Galters and Pervis Atkins and quarterback Charley Johnson.

Galters, the tailback in Woodson's wing-T formation, leads the nation in rushing and scoring with 256 yards and 92 points.

Atkins, drafted last year by the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League, was 1959's national leader in scoring and rushing while playing wingback. This year he's fourth in scoring.

Johnson is the nation's No. 3 passer with 67 completions for 668 yards and ranks fifth in total offense with 920 yards.

Winning isn't new to Woodson. At Texarkana (Tex.) junior college he twice won the Texas JC championship.

His teams at Arkansas State Teachers' College won four Arkansas Inter-Collegiate Conference championships during his six-year stay and later at Hardin-Simmons he won the Border Conference title three times. Only at Arizona did Woodson fail to win a championship.

NEW YORK (AP)—Massachusetts has ruled pic-six illegal in horse race betting. Any college football coach will tell you he must have the horses to win. So, just horsing around, we're trying to avoid picking six losers. (Last week: 47 right, 9 wrong for $39. Season's figures: 211 right, 65 wrong for .765).

Iowa over Kansas: The Big Ten team that wasn't supposed to go anywhere meets the Big Eight club that was to have taken everything. Despite John Hadl, the Hawkeyes will win in a thriller.

Mississippi over Louisiana State: There was a time when LSU had the Chinese Bandits, but this year the Rebels have Jake Gibbs. He will decide.

Syracuse over Pittsburgh: Twice-beaten, twice-tied Pittsburgh could take this, but Ernie Davis and his mates will pull it out despite the vulnerable spots in the Syracuse line.

Navy over Notre Dame: oe Bellino gets better and better as the season progresses.

Missouri over Nebraska: The Tigers are one of the most underrated teams in the Midlands.

Minnesota over Kansas State: A breeze for the Paul Bunyans of the football north.

Baylor over Texas Christian: Ronnie Bull will batter his way into the headlines for the South-west Conference leaders.

Michigan State over Ohio State: The Buckeyes are No. 8 on the national list, the Spartans No. 10, but the pick is Michigan State.

Portsmouth Gets Baseball Team

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—The city of Portsmouth, which hasn't had a team in organized baseball since 1955, apparently will replace Savannah Ga., in the Class A South Atlantic League next summer.

City Council in effect hung out the "welcome" sign for a Sally franchise Tuesday night when it gave the city manager permission to negotiate a lease for the team's use of Portsmouth Municipal Stadium.

Council's action seemed to give the final axe to the chances that the Norfolk-Portsmouth port area, one of Virginia's most heavily populated areas, would have an entry in the Class AAA International League in 1961. There had been talk that the Miami franchise might be moved here.

The stadium lease would be negotiated with William B. MacDonaid Jr., millionaire sportsman who has operated the Savannah club as well as the Miami franchise and the Tampa entry in the Class C Florida State League.

Augusta, Ga., Macon, Ga., and Spartanburg, S.C., were understood also to have been bidding for the Sally League franchise.

Other teams in the league include Columbia, Charleston and Greenville, in South Carolina; Charlotte and Asheville in North Carolina; Jacksonville, Fla.; and Knoxville, Tenn.

Some Phases Of Highway Program Can Stand Airing

Gold Gamblers Given A Free Hand In London

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Gold gamblers have been allowed to have their own way on the London free market.

The U.S. Treasury has kept hands off while speculators bid the price as high as $41 an ounce—$8 above the official U.S. price to which the dollar is pegged. The Bank of England has stood on the sidelines, too. So have other foreign central banks.

Any of these could have burst the gambling bubble by releasing a large supply of gold to London's free market, where the small amount available has let speculators force the price up by aggressive bidding.

The hands off policy is deliberate. The Treasury is said to feel that it is in the best long-run interest of the United States.

The treasury doesn't like to see any assault on the confidence in the value of the U. S. dollar, but doesn't recognize any real peril at this time or any long term threat to confidence in the dollar.

Why doesn't the U. S. Treasury or the Bank of England or banks of other allies move to drop the fever chart quickly?

They could do so easily—and profitably.

Other nations have been piling up gold in the vaults of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. This could be transferred to London at a cost ranging from 10 to 20 cents an ounce, depending on the size of shipment.

With the free market price of gold ranging from $37 to $41 for several days, it would have been profitable for foreign banks to fly this gold to London—gold they bought for $35 from the U. S. Treasury, plus an 8 1/2 cent an ounce handling charge.

Such a flooding of London's free market would have broken the price.

Critics of the U. S. Treasury think this should have been done. The London Economist contends that foreign banks were discouraged from doing this by the U. S. Treasury. The weekly thinks the Treasury should reverse its stand and positively encourage other central banks to undertake this way of bringing the London market back into line.

The Economist argues that the American authorities cannot ignore the psychological effect of the dollar premium on gold in London.

Supporters of the hands-off policy argue intervention would harm rather than cure. They hold that a direct move to burst the gold price bubble would show to the world how worried the U. S. Treasury is about the value of the dollar, and thus merely encourage those who are gambling that sooner or later the United States must devalue the dollar by raising the gold price.

Editor's Note—In a program involving acquisition of vast areas of land and the award of thousands of contracts, sour apples are likely to crop up. This second of four articles based on a five-month investigation of the federal highway program turns the spotlight on some of its darker corners.

By BEM PRICE
AP Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sooner or later Congress will lift the lid on the nation's greatest highway program in history, probably after the November election.

And there's no doubt that some phases of the $41-billion program could stand a thorough airing.

Generally, progress is being made on a broad front, and good roads are being built at reasonable cost. But there have been retreats and defeats in some sectors—occasionally spectacular ones.

Where difficulties exist, an on-the-spot investigation of several months indicates, they often revolve around land acquisition and sometimes around contract awards and contract performance. There have been instances of complete road failures and, to use a highway engineer's term, "distressed" roads that need repair shortly after completion.

For weeks House investigators have had reports from West Virginia, Florida, and Massachusetts which point toward land speculation and fraud.

In West Virginia, certain contractors reportedly charged the state for road building materials that did not actually go into the roads.

The Florida report deals with conflict of interest cases and around Miami there are reports of speculation in land for rights-of-way.

But this is not all. A special Florida legislative committee heard accusations at a public hearing that at least eight state highway department employees had been taking under-the-table payments from a Tampa road building firm, Cone Brothers.

Upon learning of the Florida hearing, the federal Bureau of Public Roads announced Oct. 21 it had suspended federal highway aid payments on all projects in which the Cone Brothers are involved. The bureau said it did not yet know how much money was involved but had launched a full-scale investigation of the entire Cone Brothers operation.

The Department of Justice now has the 200-page report of a consulting firm hired by the U. S.

Bureau of Public Roads to investigate Massachusetts.

A covering letter on the still-secret report indicates strong pressures were exerted to have land appraisers place unjustified values on selected properties.

These properties were on rights-of-way acquired by Massachusetts for the nation's super-highway program.

Standard procedure in right-of-way acquisition for the states to pay for the land, then submit a claim for reimbursement to the federal government for 90 per cent of the cost.

No Massachusetts claim for right-of-way reimbursement has been honored by the federal government since last January.

In Indiana, site of the now well-known 1957 scandal, rumors still circulate of secret "deals" among politicians, businessmen and contractors.

Any effort to check these hidden relationships leads ultimately to the Indiana Department of Securities, which keeps a record of major stockholders in Indiana firms. There the check ends. The department's records are secret.

A staff member of the House subcommittee on the federal aid program was asked why the Indiana rumors hadn't been investigated. "There have been so many and they are so complicated," he replied, "that we just haven't had the manpower to do it."

The original Indiana scandals resulted in the indictment of two top aides to former Gov. George Craig on charges of conspiring to bribe Virgil W. Smith, highway commission chairman, in connection with the purchase of highway equipment.

Smith began serving a prison sentence of 2 to 14 years last month after conviction on a charge of soliciting and accepting bribes. Three others connected with this case and another involved charges of conspiracy to embezzle $28,000 in state funds to speculate in rights-of-way have been convicted but are free on appeal bonds.

There were also indictments against three Carpenters' Union officials and Harry Doggett, former state right-of-way official, for conspiring to sell land to the state at a $81,000 profit. Their trial now is under way after almost three years delay. One of the officials is Maurice Hutcheson, Carpenters' Union president.

A state investigation of land purchases uncovered five property owners along Indianapolis' Madison Avenue Expressway who were paid $117,350 for land not needed for the road.

Land is still a problem in Indiana.

State Atty. Gen. Edwin K. Steers has over 500 land condemnation cases pending in court. Steers estimated in an interview that it costs Indiana $2,500 to try a land case, mostly because the state pays independent fee appraisers $50 to $150 a day each at a court appearance. The cases rarely last less than two days, and three appraisers usually have to testify.

Juries in Indiana have had an almost unbroken record of granting large awards since 1957.

Here are three cases picked at random from court files:

Case 21135, Boone County, Lincoln Memorial Gardens, plaintiff. The state offered $370 for a piece of property. Court appraisers fixed the value at $13,620. The jury awarded $23,600.

Case 9036, Jackson County, Euno Briner, plaintiff. The state offered Briner $12,714. Court appraisers set the property's value at $21,673. The jury awarded $26,475.

Case 31963, Clark County, James E. Hawes, plaintiff. The state offered $2,887. Court appraisers fixed the value at $5,539. The jury awarded $10,750.

Why? Steers asked Judge John M. Lewis of the Jackson Circuit Court for his opinion.

"It is not mentioned in any case," Lewis wrote, "but due to the great publicity given the Madison Avenue affair, 75 per cent of the people in this country feel that since some people are going to make a fortune out of land acquisition, then the local people, whose land has been appropriated, should receive a higher fee than they are entitled to receive."

One of the major planks in the platform of Gov. Harold W. Hanley, Craig's successor, was creation of a sound highway program.

The GOP platform for the November gubernatorial contest between Republican Crawford F. Parker and Democrat Matthew E. Welsh doesn't mention highways.

Gov. Handley observed, "All that could have been said was that the program would be continued and expanded. Why emphasize the obvious?"

In the election campaign, one of Welsh's main talking points has been the need to move faster and more efficiently on highway construction.

Early in the campaign the Republicans dumped the present highway commission chairman, John Peters.

Peters sought nomination as state treasurer. Literally at the last minute Gov. Handley's aide, Robert E. Hughes, filed against Peters at Parker's behest and was nominated.

The latest Bureau of Public Roads report, listing figures as of June 30, 1963, credits Indiana with 12 miles of superhighways "completed to full or acceptable standards" and 1,439 miles of secondary, primary and urban roads built or improved.

The same report credits neighboring Illinois with 97 miles of superhighways and 3,307 miles of improvement or new construction in primary, secondary and urban roads.

Indiana's neighbor on the other side, Ohio, shows up in the report with 284 miles of superhighways and 1,341 miles of primary, secondary and urban road improvements or new construction.

Customarily there is a paperwork lag between the time a road is finished and appearance in the Bureau of Roads "completed" column. Parker has said during his campaign that Indiana will have finished 124 miles of superhighways by the end of this year.

The federal figures, however, are the most authoritative available comparison of the three states as of four months ago.

SPY SENTENCES

HAIFA, Israel (AP)—Seven Israeli Arabs were sentenced Tuesday to prison terms of 2 to 14 years in a spy trial that lagged along for almost two years. Most of the seven were charged with spying for the United Arab Republic, passing information, conspiring to help the enemy and illegal arms possession.

Eighty-five per cent of the eligible voters cast ballots in the recent elections in Sweden, a new record.

PAUL GALLICO'S NEW BESTSELLER Mrs. 'Arris Goes to New York

CHAPTER 29

The true identity of little Henry's father had been kept a secret, but Mrs. Harris had appraised all the George Browns from New York of the happy ending to the affair, and many had come to celebrate this conclusion and see her off.

If the centers of attraction, Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Butterfield, had worn all of the sprays of purple orchids sent them by their guests, they would have staggered under the load. As it was, Mrs. Harris's sense of protocol decreed that they should wear the offering of the Marquis de Chassagne, whose orchids were white and bound with ribbons which mingled the colors of France, Great Britain, and the United States. Waiters kept the champagne flowing and the canapes moving.

Drink, and in particular the bubbly wine, usually is considered a necessity at these affairs, for the conversation just before departure tends to stultify, when people rather incline to repeat the same things over and over again.

Mr. Schreiber repeated to the marquis "The kid's going to be a great ball player. I'm telling you. He's got an eye like Babe Ruth had. I threw him my sinker the other day, figuring he'd be lucky to get a piece of it. You know what he did?"

No," said the marquis. He takes a cut like DeMag used to and hoists the apple into the next lot. What do you think of that?"

"Astounding," said the marquis, who had not understood a word that Mrs. Schreiber had said beyond meaning that Henry had performed another prodigy of some kind.

Give my regards to Leicester Square," said Mr. George Brown of Harlem. Someday I'm going back there. It was good to see you boys in the war."

If I ever run across the George Brown that took a powder on the kid, I'll poke him one just for luck," promised the Coney Island Brown.

"You sointly deserve a lotta credit," repeated the Brooklyn Browns.

Someday we're gonna come over there and look you up," prophesied a Brown from the Bronx.

I suppose White's and Buck's are just the same," sighed the Gracie Square Browns. They'll never change."

"Dear," said Mrs. Schreiber for the fourth time, when you go past our flat on Eaton Square, throw in a kiss for me. I wonder who's living there now."

And then wistfully, as she thought of the good days that had been when life was not so complicated. Maybe you'll even go there and work for them. I'll never forget you or what you did for us. Don't forget to write and tell me how everything is." Bayswater hovered on the outskirts rather silently and seemingly lost, for what with little Henry, who somehow no longer looked so little, his body having begun to grow to his head size, and all the sadness having been wiped forever out of his eyes, he others the two women, and the others all make a fuss over them, it seemed impossible to get close to give Mrs. Harris what he had for her.

Yet somehow he contrived to catch her eye and hold it for a moment while he raised his own eyebrows and moved one shoulder imperceptibly in the direction of the door, but sufficient for Mrs. Harris to get the message and escape momentarily from the cordon.

"Old the fort a minute," she said to Mrs. Butterfield, while I look what's become of me trunk."

"You won't be gettin' off the boat will yer?" said Mrs. Butterfield in alarm - but Mrs. Harris was already out the door.

Down the passageway a bit, Mrs. Harris said, Whew. I didn't know how I was going to get away to ask you - was it a fairpin?"

In reply Mr. Bayswater reached into the pocket of his uniform where a bugle somewhat interfered with its elegant line, and handed Mrs. Harris a small package. It contained a bottle of Eau de Cologne, and represented a major effort on the part of the chauffeur, for it was the first such gift he had ever made to a woman in his life before. Affixed to the outside of it with a rubber band was a large and formidable-looking black wire hairpin.

Mrs. Harris studied the specimen. Lumme," she said, ain't it a whopper?"

Mr. Bayswater nodded. There she is. Something like that gets into a Rolls and it can sound like your rear end's dropping out. I'd never have looked for it if it hadn't been for you. The scent's for you."

Mrs. Harris said, Thank you John. I'll keep the 'airpin as a souvenir. I suppose we'd better go back."

But Mr. Bayswater was not yet finished, and now he fussed and stirred uneasily with a hand in his pocket, and finally said, Ah - Ada, there was something else I wanted to give you, if you wouldn't mind." He then withdrew his hand from his pocket and disclosed therein something that Mrs. Harris had no difficulty in recognizing with even an odd little thrill of forewarning as to what it might be about.

"They're the keys of my flat," said Mr. Bayswater. I was wondering if sometime you might have a moment to look in for me, just to make sure everything's all right - 64 Willmott Terrace, Bayswater Road, Bayswater."

Eight East Carolina students have been initiated as members of the college chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order. NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market made a partial recovery from seven straight sessions of decline in moderate trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 7.70 to 203.30 with the industrials up 1.30, the rails up .30 and the utilities up .30.

After being battered down to a two-year low in Tuesday's setback, the list had ground for a technical recovery, brokers said. At the same time, all the news was not bad. The government's cost-of-living index rose to a record high in September. Some third quarter earnings reports resisted the downtrend in profits. On the other hand, unemployment in October was estimated as exceeding the September rate.

Gold shares backed away as the price of gold bullion in London declined. Gains of selected issues among steels, autos, chemicals, aircrafts, oils and tobaccos helped bolster the list.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 4.77 at 570.82. Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were about unchanged.

More Data On Nursing School Now Requested

RALEIGH (AP) — Representatives of East Carolina College have been asked to furnish more information before the State Board of Nurse Registration and Nursing Education acts on the college's application to establish a four-year school of nursing.

The request came at a meeting here Tuesday of East Carolina College representatives with the board's committee on nursing education. Miss Vivian Culver, executive secretary of the nursing board, said the E.C.C. representatives agreed to provide the information.

She said another meeting of the committee and the college representatives will be held before any decision is reached. No date for the session has been set.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of E.C.C., led the delegation of six persons representing the college. East Carolina College has applied for permission to establish a four-year nursing school which would award the bachelor of science degree in nursing.

Mrs. Eloise Lewis of Chapel Hill is chairman of the committee on nursing education. The session was called by Mrs. Priscilla Ballance of Rocky Mount, chairman of the nursing board.

Mrs. Eva Warren is dean of the nursing program at East Carolina College. Forty students were enrolled at the beginning of the fall quarter in the nursing program, including 31 from the eastern part of the state.

Red Cross ...

To the executive committee were Mrs. W. W. Wicks of Roanoke Rapids, Alvin Bowen of Goldsboro and Claude Wilson of Robersonville.

Representatives of the American Red Cross, including Miss Edna Mattox, director of field services of American Red Cross, Southeastern Area Headquarters, Atlanta, Ga. Mrs. Walter Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt County Chapter and George Wilkerson, representing the Pitt chapter, were also present.

Atkinson said the American Red Cross is very much interested in watching this program, which is the only type of its kind in the United States.

Questionnaires sent to the 13 chapters revealed that members are interested in working through the council to strengthen the public information program and the Junior Red Cross program, Atkinson said.

He said the coordinating council will now proceed to work on these programs.

The following chapters are participating in the coordinating council: Martin County chapter, Washington County, Onslow County, Craven County, Lenoir County, Pitt County, Beaufort County, Scotland Neck County, Wilson County, Rocky Mount-Nash Chapter, Edgecombe County, Roanoke Rapids-Little Chapter and Wayne County Chapter.

Mobutu Told To Pull Out Troops

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The United Nations curiously ordered Col. Joseph Mobutu today to withdraw his unruly soldiers from this terrorized Congolese capital.

U.N. mission chief Rajeshwar Dayal of India and his staff of senior officers cracked down on Mobutu's soldiers after a four-day rampage in which soldiers—out of control and frequently drunk—beat, robbed and terrorized civilian inhabitants.

A U.N. announcement said Mobutu agreed to withdraw his soldiers to their barracks by Thursday.

The United Nations was facing a formidable military challenge, though Mobutu's 3,000-man Leopoldville garrison may be retired to barracks later.

Jury In 7th Day Of Deliberating

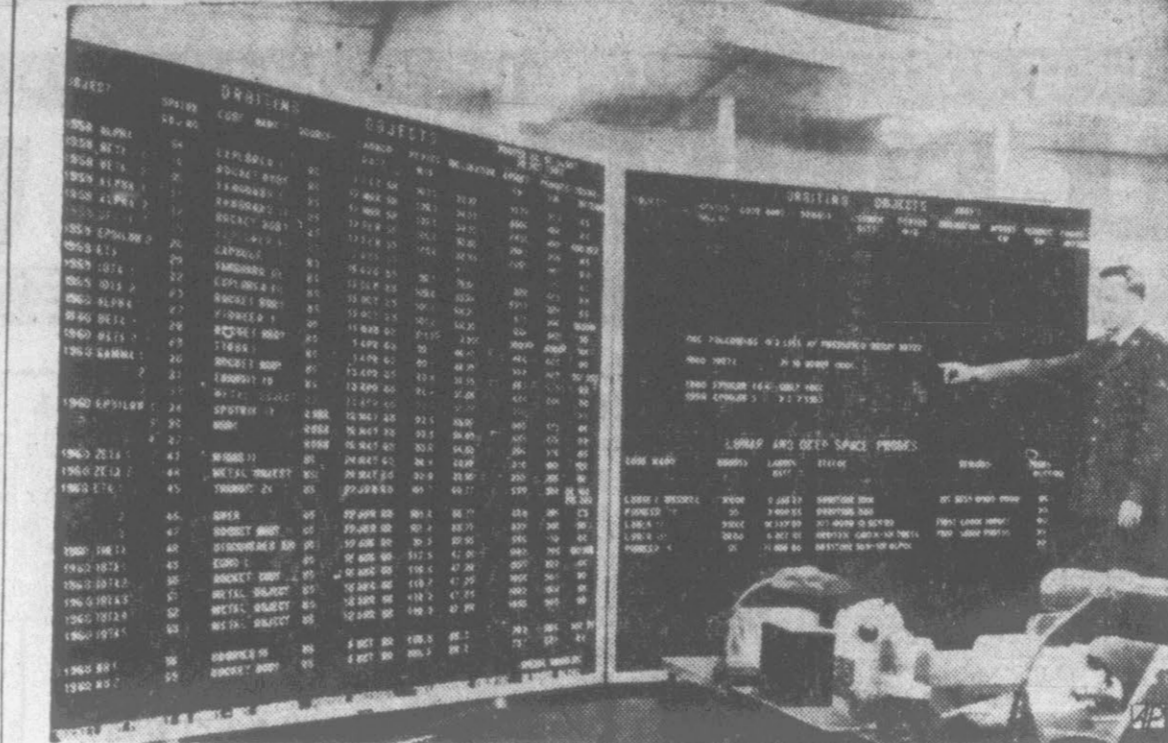

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jury in the second Finch-Tregoff murder trial enters its seventh day of deliberations today.

"Unless something unforeseen arises" said Superior Court Judge LeRoy Dawson, "I'm going to let them alone."

Judge Dawson told newsmen he had no immediate plans to poll the jurors.

The first trial of Dr. R. Bernard Finch and Carole Tregoff ended last March 12 when the jury deadlocked after 37 1/2 hours of deliberations.

The doctor and Miss Tregoff, his ex-mistress, are accused of the murder of his estranged wife, Barbara Jean, 36, on July 18, 1959. Finch contends the fatal shooting was accidental.

Highway Dept. Drops Load Limitation Talk

An earlier proposal to post 8,000-pound-per-axle load limits on some 15 miles of Pitt County secondary roads to be used in hauling heavy equipment to Voice of America construction sites was set aside today.

Second Division Engineer C. W. Snell Jr. told the Daily Reflector a telephone conversation with State Highway Director W. F. Babcock produced the decision to allow the statutory limit—18,000 pounds per axle.

Snell explained that the federal government will probably stipulate certain requirements in its contract with construction firms that would serve to maintain the county's secondary roads in their present condition.

He added, however, should the federal contract neglect to call for the contractor's maintenance, the State Highway Commission would require a bond from the firm to insure proper maintenance.

The secondary roads to be used in hauling the heavy equipment to construction sites also involve about 10 miles in Beaufort County. The Beaufort roads, Snell said, will come under the same provisions.

Snell said the decision was made because the contractor, either through provisions of the federal contract or through the bond that would be required, would be responsible for any repairs necessary during the construction period. He added the contractor will also be responsible for any private property damage incurred by the construction operation.

Nobel Prize Goes To French Poet

STOCKHOLM (AP)— Saint-John Perse, a French poet who once ranked high in his country's diplomatic corps, was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature today.

Now 73, he fled France in 1940 after quarrelling with pro-Fascist elements in France. He settled in the United States and became a consultant to the Library of Congress in Washington, where he now lives.

Like much modern poetry, his work is enigmatic and contains many levels of meaning difficult to plumb. Outside of France, his best known work is Anabase, a long poem translated into English by T. S. Eliot, another Nobel laureate.

The title is taken from the ancient Greek historian Xenophon's Anabasis, the story of an epic march. One French critic described Perse's poem as "a series of images of migration, of conquest of vast spaces in Asiatic wastes, of destruction and foundation of cities and civilizations. . ."

The imagery of the poem, published in 1924, came from a trip Perse took through the Gobi Desert in the South Seas, and his poetry is colored by memories of this and the tropical lushness of his early life on the French island of Guadeloupe in the West Indies.

During the 1930s, Perse worked on his poetry at night and in secret. Few of his associates at the French Foreign Office knew of it.

In 1942, he broke an 18-year publishing silence when the Chicago magazine Poetry published his Exile, a tribute to the fighters of the French World War II resistance.

Perse had been mentioned for the Nobel award as long ago as 1956.

Choosing him for the $43,627 prize, the 18-member Swedish Academy of Letters cited "the soaring flight and provocative imagery of his poetry, which in a visionary fashion reflects the conditions of our time."

Actor Innocent Of Dog-Beating

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Actor Tab Hunter has been found innocent of charges that he beat his dog.

A jury of 11 women and one man deliberated three hours on cruelty-to-animals charges against the blond leading man. He shook hands with the jurors as they left Municipal Court here Tuesday.

"I'm delighted beyond words," he said.

He had been accused of beating his two-year-old Weimaraner, Fritz. He said he had merely been disciplining the dog as directed by trainers. Veterinarians testified the animal showed no injuries.

Hodges Refuses Intervene For The 'Henderson Eight'

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Hodges declined today to intervene in behalf of eight union men who face prison terms for conspiring to destroy facilities at a Henderson cotton mill during last year's long bitter strike.

The governor sent a telegram to lawyers representing the eight men stating, "I regret that I must inform you that I cannot act favorably on the petition for executive clemency."

With the governor's decision, the last hope of the eight men to avoid serving prison terms appeared to have vanished. The eight include Boyd E. Payton, Carolinas director of the Textile Workers Union of America.

Indications are the eight men will have to begin serving their sentences in about a week. They have been free on bond since their convictions more than a year ago in Vance Superior Court on charges of conspiring to destroy facilities of the Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills.

The U.S. Supreme Court recently declined to review their case, and the machinery of relaying word back to Vance County is underway. The State Supreme Court today followed up the U.S. Supreme Court ruling by reaffirming its own decision upholding the conviction of the eight men.

Adrian Newton, clerk of the State Supreme Court, said he will get out a letter during the day to the clerk of Vance Superior Court informing him of the court's action.

Last week five lawyers for the eight men presented a petition to the governor urging that he extend executive clemency.

It turning down the plea, the governor said:

"The petition for executive clemency does not present any new evidence or information which was not available at the time of the trial. Rather, the petition for executive clemency seems to me to be based on the premise that I should substitute my judgment for that of a 12-man jury and that I should reach the conclusion that the court processes in this case failed to do justice."

"If information had been placed before me showing that the defendants had not received a fair and impartial trial, or showing that the defendants had been wrongfully convicted, I would have had some basis for exercise of executive clemency."

The governor pointed out the State Board of Pardons had investigated the case for him. He said the pardons board reported:

"There seems to be no doubt of guilt and had arrests not been made by the State Bureau of Investigation there is every reason to believe that the dynamiting which was planned would have taken place."

"After a close study of these cases, the recommendation of the board of pardons to the governor is that no executive clemency be granted. We are further of the opinion that parole should be considered, as in other cases, when a sufficient amount of time has been served to make the defendants eligible for parole consideration."

In addition to Payton, the eight include two other union officials, Lawrence Gore and Charles Auslander. All three drew 6 to 10-year terms. The other four, all TWU members, were Warren Walker, Johnnie Martin, Edward Abbott, and Calvin Pegram, who were sentenced to 5 to 7 years each; and Malcolm Jarrell who got 2 to 3 years.
