Now $63,000

Pledges and collections reported at yesterday's United Fund report meeting pushed total collections to $63,000.

The total had stood at $52,700 prior to yesterday. Approximately 56 percent of the $11,000 quota has now been pledged or collected.

"We think the campaign is continuing to move well," General Chairman David J. Whichard said this morning. He pointed out that the United Fund's board of directors had extended the campaign through Nov. 15.

He urged solicitors to conduct their solicitations thoroughly and make reports as rapidly as possible.

He said report meetings have been set for Tuesday and Thursday afternoons of next week at 4:30 in the Wachovia Bank board of directors room.

"Partial reports from all sections of the county indicate the campaign is moving very well," Whichard said.

FBI Arrests Two Men As Spies For Soviet Union

NEW YORK (AP)—FBI Agents struck with lightning swiftness Thursday night to round up a Soviet employed at the United Nations and a German-born medical illustrator. Both men are accused of spying for the Soviet Union.

A third man, a Soviet national now out of the country, was named a co-conspirator but not a defendant.

Seized at their Manhattan homes were Igor Yagovlevich Melekh, 47, head of the Russian language section in the Office of Secret Services of the U.N. Secretariat, and Willie Hirsch, 52, who came to this country as a youth but never became a citizen.

The pair had been indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury in Chicago. One charge accuses the men of trying to obtain aerial photographs of Chicago, including military installations.

The Justice Department in Washington announced their arrests at almost the same time the FBI men closed in.

Melekh was seized at his apartment on West 86th Street while a birthday party was going on for his six-year-old son. Hirsch was alone in his four-room apartment at Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street, a fashionable section of Greenwich Village.

Melekh, who came to the United States in 1955, lived with his wife, Irma, and their two children—the boy, Mikhail, and a daughter, Marina, 2.

A stubby man with gray hair and horn-rimmed glasses, Melekh—handcuffed as he was taken into FBI headquarters—muttered: "We were well prepared. We were well prepared."

At another point he said, "It just shows everybody is ready." In his job at the United Nations, Melekh earned $11,000 a year. The indictment against him said he also was known as Peter Stephens and as "Gypsy."

Hirsch, said also to have used the name John Gilmore, was picked up while his wife and daughter were out walking.

Hirsch and his family had lived in the apartment for 10 years. One tenant, told of his arrest said incredulously: "He was the nicest guy in the building."

Both men also are charged with failure to register with the State Department as agents of a foreign government.

FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover said Melekh made contact with an unidentified Chicago resident through Hirsch in October 1958.

Melekh, Hoover said, subsequently met his intended informant secretly in Chicago, New York and Newark, N. J.

The intelligence data sought, the FBI said, "included a map of Chicago showing military installations and aerial photographs of the city, which Melekh indicated were to be used for Soviet bombing purposes."

Melekh and Hirsch were held in $50,000 bail after arraignment before federal Judge Lloyd McMahon. A hearing was set for Nov. 3.

If convicted, each man could be sentenced to a maximum of 25 years in prison and fined $25,000. Since the alleged crime was not committed during wartime, the death penalty is not involved.

Melekh's seizure was the first actual arrest of a Soviet member of the U. N. staff, although charges frequently have been made that the Soviets were using the United Nations as an espionage base.

The third man in the current case, the FBI said, is Kirill S. Doronkin, formerly a film editor in the Radio and Visual Division of the Office of Public Information at the United Nations.

In January 1959, the FBI said, the United States mission at the United Nations asked Dag Hammarskjold, secretary-general, to assign Doronkin because of his activities "in obtaining aerial photographs of the Chicago area."

Doronkin was not re-employed after his contract terminated on March 3, 1959, and he left the country several days later.

Since World War II, at least a score of Soviet citizens with diplomatic status have been expelled from this country or have left under allegations of espionage.

Car Jumps Sidewalk, Hit Crowd

Five Pedestrians Are Killed, Three Hurt; Driver Says She Blacked Out

CHICAGO (AP)—A car driven by a woman who said she blacked out jumped a sidewalk and ripped through a crowd of pedestrians Thursday night, killing five and hurling their bodies across a busy downtown intersection.

Three persons, including the driver, were injured.

Dead and injured were thrown 25 feet as the car scooped up pedestrians and careened across the intersection at Randolph and Franklin Sts., at the west edge of the Loop.

Hundreds of homeward-bound persons in the evening rush hour watched in horror. All five victims lived in west suburban communities.

One of the fatally injured pedestrians was sprayed with boiling tar when the careening car struck a two-wheeled heating cart towed by a roofing firm truck.

The car, carrying some victims on its hood, then struck another car and both veered side by side out of control.

One body was found jammed beneath the second car which finally smashed to a halt against a row of cars in a parking lot. The woman's car ended its path of carnage by smashing into a curb.

Witnesses said most of the victims were waiting to cross the street and had their backs to the cars.

F. Y. Mellen, said: "This car passed me going like a bat out of hell. There were three or four guys standing on the corner and they went flying end over tea kettle."

The driver of the car that police said triggered the tragedy was Betty Gillespie, 25, a home economist for a utility company, Miss Gillespie, daughter of former Chicago Alderman Joseph Gillespie, told police she started to halt behind a bus when she "blacked out, and woke up in the hospital."

Ronnie Gilkey, 42, driver of the second car, said he was crossing the intersection "when something hit me. It was going so fast it looked like an airplane."

Police said both drivers suffered from shock.

Dead were Carl Matre, 61, of Des Plaines; Leslie M. Miles, 63, of West Chicago; Carl A. Berggren, of Glen Ellyn; Carby Aikward, 44, of La Grange, and Harold Murphy, 49, of Glen Ellyn.

Fur Theft Under Police Inquiry

Greenville Police Detectives reported today an investigation has been underway since October 11 into the loss of six fur capes and stoles from Blount-Harvey Company.

According to investigators, the furs—averaging over $257 each—were discovered missing when an inventory was taken of the stock.

Total value of the furs amounted to $1,543, and included one natural silver mink stole and five natural pastel mink capes.

Police said investigation of the loss of the furs is continuing.

Campaign Push In Western N.C.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A big campaign push in the mountains for the Republicans continues today, with Elmer F. Bennett, undersecretary of the Interior Department, as the visiting speaker.

Bennett will man the oratorical artillery twice — at an afternoon rally in Bryson City, and again in the evening at Asheville.

Democratic big guns will be speaking in the same territory. Terry Sanford, Democratic candidate for governor, will be stumping around Asheville and will speak late this afternoon to the convention of the State Highway and Prison Employees Association.

U. S. Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., described the top campaign issues as solvency and security in a Thursday night speech at a Hickory rally. He was introduced by Rep. Charles R. Jonas of the 10th District, the state's only Republican congressman.

Cotton asserted that putting Democratic platform promises into practice would cost $3.2 to $18 billion dollars the first year. North Carolina's share, he added, would be $193 million.

Tar Heel Democratic leaders assembled in Canton Thursday night for a 12th Congressional District rally that had Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the late Democratic president, as speaker.

The only notable absence from the lineup of state party leaders was Gov. Luther Hodges. He was in Wichita, Tex., stumping for the party ticket.

"In the interest of our national security," Roosevelt declared, "we must immediately take the necessary steps to provide the same kind of clear military superiority over the Russians which we had throughout Mr. Truman's administration."

Robert L. Gavin, Republican candidate for governor, was in Marshall Thursday night, and he told a rally that he was at a loss to explain the endorsement of the Democratic ticket by J. Spencer Love, head of Burlington Industries, world's largest textile firm.

"I don't understand Spencer Love's attitude when his industry is reporting net sales of nearly a billion dollars under the Eisenhower administration," Gavin said.

Meanwhile, Terry Sanford, Democratic gubernatorial contender, reached back into history to recall on a television interview over an Asheville station that the last Republican governor of the state was impeached.

"That's the Republican record in the state," said Sanford, "and why it as a party is not any stronger than it is. And they need not expect me to help them build a second party. I'm for building a stronger Democratic party."

Sanford said he is confident his program can be placed into effect without an increase in taxes. "At the same time," he went on, "I don't know what this little Republican recession will do to the state's economic growth."

Bennett, the Interior Department undersecretary, opened his North Carolina foray in Southern city night.

Bennett told a Republican rally that the voting records of Kennedy and Johnson show they opposed one another 238 times in the past seven years. Any Southerner voting the Democratic ticket because of Johnson should find out first what role he will play, Bennett declared.

Gavin and other top GOP candidates will be on hand for the Asheville rally tonight.

Paper Reports October Survey Showed Decline

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune said today it has been told that a report completed Oct. 10 for the U. S. Information Agency shows a "continuing decline" in American prestige in Western Europe relative to the Soviet Union.

A Washington dispatch to the newspaper reported that a House subcommittee investigator, digging into the entire question of USIA prestige polls, said:

"The Oct. 10 report is a Western Europe report showing the continuing decline of United States prestige, vis-a-vis Russia.

"Most significant is the fact that the breakdown given in the report shows that while lower economic groups in these countries are maintaining about the same attitude toward the United States, the intelligentsia shows a sharp drop in confidence in the United States."

The investigator was quoted as saying that the Oct. 10 prestige report was based on questions put to Western Europeans dealing with the world balance of power as between the United States and the Soviet Union and relative "technical competence" of the two nations in the field of outer space and missile development.

The Herald Tribune said another source, who said he had access to the Oct. 10 report, said that while the reported drop in United States prestige was more marked among European intellectual leaders than among lower economic groups, United States standing had slipped among both groups.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon contends U. S. prestige in the world is at an all-time high. Sen. John F. Kennedy says it is slipping.

The Herald Tribune has endorsed Nixon for president.

Uncertainty On Debate Prospect

NEW YORK (AP) — Prospects remained uncertain today on the matter of a fifth radio-television debate between the presidential candidates.

A report of tentative plans to stage another face-to-face discussion Monday brought a denial from a spokesman for the Democratic nominee, Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Man Struck By Auto, Is Killed

WASHINGTON, N. C. — construction company employee working on N. C. Highway 33 near here was killed Thursday morning when struck by an automobile reportedly driven by a Greenville man.

According to sources at the Washington Daily News, the dead man was identified as Gus Graham Comer, 46, employed by Dickerson Construction Company.

Driver of the automobile was identified as James Leon Outlaw, of Greenville, according to Highway Patrolman Ray Bland, stationed in Washington. The patrolman said the car reportedly driven by Outlaw, also struck a truck driven by Joseph McLean, Negro, of Four Oaks, sources at the News said.

Comer had been directing traffic for the truck to back out onto the highway when the accident occurred, Bland said.

Investigation in the case is continuing.

Industrial Site Is Rented Out

The Wachovia Bank and Trust Company's trust department yesterday rented the E 11 Farm, available industrial site near Greenville, for $10,125 to Simon Corbett of Route 5, Greenville, for 1961.

The amount of rent exceeds by $925 the total rent on the 1958 acres of crop land paid last year by W. R. Harris of Route 1, Winterville.

Along with the nearly 200 acres of crop land, around 35 acres of pasture is available for Corbett's use.

Another three acres of crop land on the farm is used by the government for a crop-testing plot.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C. Temperatures will average 3 to 7 degrees above normal for next five days. Showers about Sunday and Wednesday will average about one-third of an inch.

Nixon Promises Visit Satellites

WITH NIXON IN ILLINOIS (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon promised Thursday that if he is elected president he will visit all of the satellite nations of Eastern Europe.

Nixon, shrugging off heckling as he campaigned through Michigan and a possible attempt to derail his train, said the purpose of the visits would be to "proclaim again America's friendship for these people, to reaffirm our trust in their ultimate deliverance."

He carried his bid for votes in the industrial states into Illinois today.

Although he twice was made a target by egg throwers and was subjected to what his press secretary called "good squad" heckling, Nixon pronounced a whistle-stopping run through Michigan the best day of his Republican presidential campaign.

He pointed his special train toward primarily Republican sections of Illinois before a night speech across the Iowa line in Davenport. He bid for minority bloc support with the pledge to visit European Communist satellites if elected.

Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, announced that a track foreman had discovered near Fort Wayne, Ind., a piece of metal tied to a track over which the Nixon special was to pass during the night.

He said Secret Service operatives had investigated and found that the metal, which appeared to be part of an old transformer, was not a bomb. He said that C.R. Frew, Pennsylvania Railroad trainmaster at Fort Wayne, had reported the metal might have derailed a train if it had not been discovered.

Charles J. Flaherty, a superintendent of transportation for the Pennsylvania Railroad, said Nixon's train has been preceded by patrol cars since it left Washington Monday.

Invasion Rumors, Fear Of War, Felt In Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — Anxiety gripped Cuba today as a result of rumors of invasion and fears of civil war between partisans and enemies of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Castro leaders, almost daily predicting aggression from the United States, are reported to have alerted the entire regular armed force and called up military reserves.

The militia, the organization of armed workers which is seen drilling daily, has been ordered to mobilize early Sunday at designated concentration points.

Maj Raul Castro, the prime minister's brother who is minister of the armed forces, is reported to have taken his family and set up a headquarters in Santiago, capital of Oriente Province. Some reports say he made the shift to direct personally the repulse of expected landings in eastern Cuba, where Castro's first revolutionaries got ashore in 1956.

The invasion jitters has produced such things as a shortage of vinegar, increased gunfire at night in Havana has caused long lines of Cubans seeking visas at the U.S. Embassy in the hope of finding refuge from the anticipated bloodshed.

The run on vinegar developed when a rumor circulated that vinegar-soaked masks counteract the effects of tear gas and possibly other chemicals.

WHOLE BE present on All Hallow's Eve.

Call the roll! Edible jack-o'-lanterns, spooks and black cats are all ready and waiting to be conjured up by young folk.

Let these characters provide part of the entertainment and refreshment at a party. Boys and girls can make them right on the scene.

JACK-O-LANTERNS
Provide each small guest with a red apple, a large darning needle and a teaspoon. With the needle youngsters outline jack-o'-lanterns' features—eyes, nose and mouth—on the apple, breaking through the peel. Next skin and pulp are scooped from the features with the teaspoons. First jack-o'-lantern ready wins a prize!

SPOOKS
For these you'll need to have on hand large plain cake doughnuts, a bowl of thick white frosting, small spatulas or wooden tongue depressors and an assortment of candies. First the children spread one side of the doughnuts with the frosting, covering the holes, then they add spook features.

For Mr. Spook 2 small candy pumpkins are used for eyes, a large corn candy cut in half lengthwise for the nose and a piece of a jelly-orange slice for the mouth bits of chocolate or licorice mark the teeth.

For Miss Spook small pieces of corn candy are used for hair; licorice candies coated with sprinkles make eyes, nose and mouth.

For a lollipop effect, insert a candy stick in each doughnut.

BLACK CATS
These are made with frosted doughnuts the same way as spooks. Slices cut from a large round licorice jelly candy are used for eyes, round white sugar-coated chocolate drops for eyeballs. A licorice gum drop makes the nose, and strips of licorice jelly candy the eyebrows and mouth.

Inter Se Visits Art Museum

The Inter Se Book Club visited the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh this week for their meeting.

Mrs. Lindsay Wilkerson and Mrs. M. P. Hoot were hostesses for the occasion. Fourteen members participated in the day's activities.

Mr. Charles Stanford, Curator of Education, for the Museum, conducted the tour. He pointed out that the North Carolina Museum of Art, one of the South's newest and finest museums, is a source of pride to every North Carolinian as theirs was the first state in the nation to set aside public funds to found an art collection for its people.

In 1947 the North Carolina General Assembly appropriated one million dollars to purchase this collection, upon the condition that the North Carolina State Art Society could secure an equal amount to be added to the original grant.

The S. H. Kress Foundation of New York, as a part of its program for the establishment of galleries throughout the United States, pledged that a Kress Collection of art works consisting of Italian Renaissance art and other similar items of a value of at least one million dollars would be given to North Carolina. Since the original North Carolina art collection has been greatly enriched and enlarged through gifts and bequests from private donors, the Kress Foundation has increased the size and scope of its gift to the point where it is now valued at two and one-half million dollars.

Mr. Stanford called to the attention of the Club members, one painting, "The Portrait of a Gentleman," by Strozzi, which was

'The Philadelphia Story' Was Auspicious Start For Season

By MARY H. GREENE
The first of three performances of Philip Barry's comedy "The Philadelphia Story" by the East Carolina Playhouse provided last night an auspicious beginning for the college dramatic club's 1960-61 season.

An audience which left few seats vacant in the McGinnis auditorium gave an appreciative response to the student actors and actresses, and through laughter, applause, and silence at the right moments gave evidence that the play was well done.

Alice Coriolano of Greenville and E. de Janeiro, Brazil, was a beautiful and glamorous Tracy Lord Barry's heroine who in the course of the action discovers the basic values of love and understanding and who emerges at last as a mature and delightful human being.

A senior appearing in her first role with the Playhouse, Miss Coriolano gave a satisfying interpretation of the role. If any criticism should be made, perhaps a certain harshness and inflexibility in her voice might be mentioned as a small flaw in a sympathetic and capable performance.

Ben Avery of Goldsboro was cast as Tracy's ex-husband C.K. Dexter Haven. In appearance and ease of manner, he was right for the suave representative of Philadelphia's best in background and tradition, and ably conveyed the idea of Dexter's discernment, tolerance, and integrity.

Charlotte Donat of Farmville, playing Liz Imlrie, reporter-photographer, made a considerable contribution to the gaiety of the production.

Sylvia Layne Vick, Sanford

freshman, also showed talent as a comedienne in the role of Dinah, Tracy's young sister.

The performance of Ray Tolley of Edenton, as the class-conscious writer whose response to the essential warmth beneath Tracy's outward coldness furthers her emotional awakening, gave evidence of his successful past experience in outstanding amateur productions.

James E. Smith of Newport News Va., in spite of the fact that he lacked some of the physical characteristics—big and broad-shouldered, for instance—given to him by Barry in the lines of the play, nevertheless made the smug ex-colonel odious enough to merit commendation.

One of the bright spots of the evening was the performance of Howard Mallard of Smithfield as Tracy's Uncle Willie Lord, man of the world, standby in time of family trouble, and "pincher" on the sly.

Karen Best of Mount Olive as Tracy's mother; John R. Spence, Jr. of Greenville, East Carolina alumnus as her father; and Marshall Braddy of New Bern as her brother, Sandy, also turned in acceptable performances during the evening. Appearing in minor roles were Jo Parsons of Morehead City, Hetty Hoke of Hickory, and Robert L. Parsons of Newport News, Va.

Last night the play got off to a rather slow start but soon picked up speed. There were no long waits between scenes. Music by a student ensemble made intermissions pleasant. A few good lines were lost when cast members kept on talking while the audience kept on laughing.

Dr. Ralph Rives, East Carolina alumnus who joined the college faculty this fall, directed "The Philadelphia Story." Dr. Rives deserves praise for bringing together a competent cast, a number of whom lacked experience, and making the first Playhouse production of the current season a success.

Scenery for "The Philadelphia Story" was designed and executed by Edward E. Lancaster of Vanceboro and his students in a class-in-scene design. The beautiful interior used for all scenes in the play is, in the opinion of the reviewer, the most "finished" and artistic setting for a Playhouse production in many years.

An attractive and interesting program, with a prize-winning cover design by Edward E. Lancaster of Vanceboro senior art major, was an asset to last night's performance.

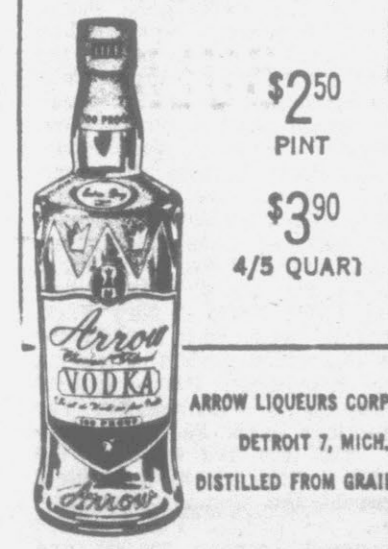

Costuming of "The Philadelphia Story" was excellent. Especially appropriate and intriguing to the eye, Miss Coriolano's outfits were designed by Mrs. Lois Garren of Greenville. Miss Coriolano wore them with the chic and grace of a fashion model.

Working backstage on "The Philadelphia Story" a staff of approximately 25 students should be commended for their contributions to a production that was well planned and that proceeded without an apparent hitch.

Dr. Robert T. Rickert of the faculty assisted by Rose Gornio of Wilmington, was technical director of the play.

The Barry comedy will be given repeat performances tonight (Friday) and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium.

She Chose Jail, Is Quickly Freed

MONTGOMERY Ala (AP) — A Montgomery housewife who chose jail rather than pay even a nominal fine on a traffic charge she denied, was ordered released by Mayor Earl James.

Ann D. Miles, 40, insisted the charge of running a stop sign was wrong. She appeared in court Thursday with an overnight bag and indicated she would serve time rather than pay a fine.

City Court Judge Eugene Loe fined Mrs. Miles $2 and said he would have let her off without a fine if she had not first notified the newspapers of her intentions. He said this appeared to be an attempt to intimidate the court.

After Mrs. Miles entered jail, intending to serve two days at $1 a day, the mayor noted she had previous convictions and ordered her release.

Sued Right Back, And She Won

MEMPHIS, Tenn (AP) — When Uncle Sam slapped a suit against her, an angry Gloria Mosby sued right back and emerged the winner by $2,290.

Miss Mosby visited a friend being treated at a veterans' hospital last February. They got into an argument and he shot her, for which he subsequently was sent to jail for 15 years.

The three bullet wounds put her in the same hospital for 10 days and the government handed her a $210 medical bill.

When Miss Mosby wouldn't pay, the government sued. She sued back—for $10,000, charging the government was negligent in letting her assailant sneak a gun into the hospital.

A federal judge Thursday granted her $2,290 damages, minus the $210 hospital bill.

Lone Protest To German Arrival

NANCY, France (AP) — The peaceful passage of West German troops across eastern France for training near Reims provoked a lone official cry of protest Thursday night.

The mayor of Auboué issued an order barring any German troops from passing through his village.

A village councilman at a special meeting called to approve the ban pointed out that Auboué was well off the Germans' route.

But for the mayor it was the principle of the thing.

"They shall not pass," said the mayor—and the council approved the measure by acclamation.

WASHINGTON (AP) — New studies of possible landing sites on the moon for American space vehicles are being undertaken by the Geological Survey.

The Interior Department announced Thursday that detailed studies of moon geology are to be undertaken as part of a new $205,000 geological survey cooperative program in astrogeology to be financed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Picture Talk

By DENNIS WARREN
ARE GHOSTS OLD FASHIONED? Could be. We happened to see a display of Halloween costumes the other day, and spacemen and cowboys had it all over goblins and ghosts.

And you know, styles in cameras change, too. If you're faithfully holding on to a family heirloom of a camera, you're missing a lot of picture-taking fun.

Sure your old model still takes big, clear pictures. But only in sunlight that's bright enough to blind. And you DO have a little trouble squinting through that dusty viewfinder, don't you? And indoor pictures? You just can't take them because your old-timer isn't geared for flash.

Unless you're sentimental, putting up with all these shortcomings really is unnecessary. Especially when it costs as little as $10.95 to own a spanking new Brownie snapshot camera.

For instance, we can give you a choice of four different Brownie 20 Cameras that open up a whole new world of picture-taking to you. They can be adjusted to take pictures in dim, dull OR bright light. You can shoot flash shots. You can even focus for exciting close-ups, or for groups and scenes.

And that's not all. These new Brownie 20 Cameras take all three kinds of pictures: snapshots in color or black-and-white. Or exciting color slides.

Why not come in this week and take your choice? Then be set to snap space-suited trick-or-treaters in style.

Bloody Rioting In France Over Algerian Issue

PARIS (AP) — Demonstrations demanding an end to the six-year Algerian war swept France Thursday night with bloody rioting in Paris and a half dozen cities.

Thousands more demonstrated peacefully in scores of cities and towns. It was the biggest public expression on Algeria since the spring riots of 1958 that led to Gen. Charles de Gaulle's return to power.

The Elysee Palace announced that President de Gaulle would make a radio and television address to the nation Nov. 4.

About 100 demonstrators were injured in the street clashes that raged through the capital, Caen, Lyon, Toulouse, Nevers, Toulon and Brest.

The fighting was heaviest along Paris' Left Bank, where 60 demonstrators and 15 policemen were hurt and 527 students arrested, most of the students were released later.

Nine newsmen and photographers were injured covering Paris riots. The French National Press Photographers Association accused police of singling out newsmen for rough handling.

The French National Students Union, many of whose members face induction to bear arms in North Africa, had called for a day of national agitation for peace in Algeria. The government banned outdoor public demonstrations but permitted indoor meetings. The Communist party sponsored work stoppages in plants lasting from a few minutes to several hours.

The response to the student call exceeded all expectations. It emphasized the mounting outcry for the government to come to terms with the Algerian nationalist rebels and end the revolt that has taken a costly toll in lives and property. Ironically, most of the demonstrators who fell under the police clubs support De Gaulle's self-determination policy for the ravaged North African area.

In Paris, 3,000 students gathered in a Left Bank meeting hall and cheered speakers who called for a quick negotiated peace in Algeria. Thousands of others gathered behind police barricades around the hall.

The meeting was invaded by a band of right-wing youths, dedicated to keeping Algeria French at all costs, who tossed smoke and tear gas bombs.

The students poured out of the hall and clashed with police trying to enforce the ban on public demonstrations. Rioting spread throughout the student quarter. Fighting raged for three hours. Finally several hundred grenades and steel-helmeted riot police dispersed the demonstrators.

One American, Dan Sullivan, 30, a philosophy student from Dallas, Tex., was caught in the melee and wounded. He required only first aid treatment.

A Realistic Policy On Load Levels

It is well for Pitt County and the whole of Eastern Carolina that the State Highway Department has set aside a proposal that would have arbitrarily set an 8,000-pound-per-axle load limit on some 15 miles of roads to the Voice of America construction sites in this vicinity.

In a much more realistic approach to the situation, the Highway Department this week announced that the load limit on the roads in question would be returned to the statutory limit of 18,000 pounds per axle.

The Highway Department apparently has come to the conclusion that the state will be amply protected from damage to the roads because of anticipated contract provisions with firms working on the major construction projects at the three sites. It is also apparent that the Department has reconsidered the proposed load limits from the standpoint of getting the materials required for the construction program to the designated locations.

Had the extremely low load limits been put into effect it could have adversely affected major construction programs considered in the future in many areas of Eastern Carolina. The low load limits would have set a precedent that might be followed wherever secondary roads are concerned. And with so much of the area in this section of the state served by secondary roads, many prospective industrial plant locations might have been eliminated because of an impractical position with respect to road load limits taken by the Highway Department.

While this particular incident with respect to low load limits on secondary roads concerned only Pitt and Beaufort Counties, it had implications which might have been brought to bear in any county in the area where secondary roads afforded the only practical means of getting a huge volume of material to a major construction site.

In this case the federal government's $26 million Voice of America installation was the industry involved in construction. Subsequently the industrial prospect might be a private firm that would eliminate the entire area from consideration if it felt there would be problems with the Highway Department over transporting materials needed to build a large plant.

By its decision to set aside the impractically low load limits on the secondary roads leading to the VOA sites, the Highway Department alleviated a potentially serious problem with respect to construction of this major facility. It has likewise avoided setting a policy that probably would adversely affect the future industrial and economic development in many places in East Carolina.

Polls And Opinion Are Turning To Kennedy

No one can tell for sure who will win an election until the votes are counted. Polls can show trends, surveys may reveal shifting sentiment and political statisticians may make predictions.

In the final analysis, however, the individual voters make the decision when they enter the privacy of the voting booth . . . and that moment comes only on election day.

Therefore polls and surveys cannot be viewed as sure-fire methods of indicating what the voters will do on election day. The best the polls can do is indicate how people feel at a particular moment, and even then it should be realized that any opinion poll reaches only a small portion of any group of people.

In recent weeks it has become evident that the opinion polls taken around the nation show an apparent shift of sentiment from Vice President Nixon and the Republican party to Sen. John Kennedy and the Democratic party. At the outset of the current campaign Vice President Nixon was considered by most "experts" the odds-on favorite to soundly defeat the Democratic party candidate. These were the predictions even though they were usually modified with the additional comment that it would be a "close" election.

Now the tide appears to be running the other way. Sen. Kennedy has become the favorite in most opinion polls taken across the nation, and even the betting odds at Las Vegas have shifted from Nixon to Kennedy's favor.

As the campaign moves into the final days before the election it is evident that Sen. Kennedy has gained considerably more strength since the convention than Vice President Nixon has. Sen. Kennedy's popularity appears to be growing almost daily while Vice President Nixon's strength, if not weakening, certainly does not seem to be getting greater.

The conditions reflect, we think, a growing desire on the part of the people to be led during the next four years by Sen. Kennedy and the Democratic party rather than risking what may be an uncertain course charted by Vice President Nixon and the GOP.

Adlai Not Quite Forgotten Man

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson, who entranced millions with his eloquence in the presidential campaigns of 1952 and 1956, is not the completely forgotten man of 1960.

But although he is still diligent with his sentences, he is hardly more than a minor voice on the outer fringes of the campaign.

Democrats, after twice making him their presidential choice, this year swept him into the backwater of history along with all the other also-rans when they brushed him aside none too gently for Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Now he is doing what he said he would do although, when he said it, what he thought he might be doing was running for president.

Last June, still thinking he might get a third nomination without asking for it, he said: "I will serve my country and my party whenever called upon."

He has been called upon—to stump for Kennedy. He has been pursuing that task gracefully with many fine and pleasant things to say about the man who beat him and many unpleasant things to say about Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Self-conscious Stevenson used to exasperate newsmen with his fidgety fussing over sentences and phrases and his endless writing and rewriting of his speeches on plane hops between stops.

The result used to be that newsmen often got his speeches late—which meant newspapers and the public got them late—and even then he had to watch every word he spoke to check any last-minute changes.

Kennedy, like Nixon, talks off the cuff. Stevenson was a literary dancing master. Kennedy gives the impression of a young man who hardly has time to say hello.

Kennedy, like Nixon, harps on the same theme day after day with small variations until covering both men sometimes develops a painful monotony.

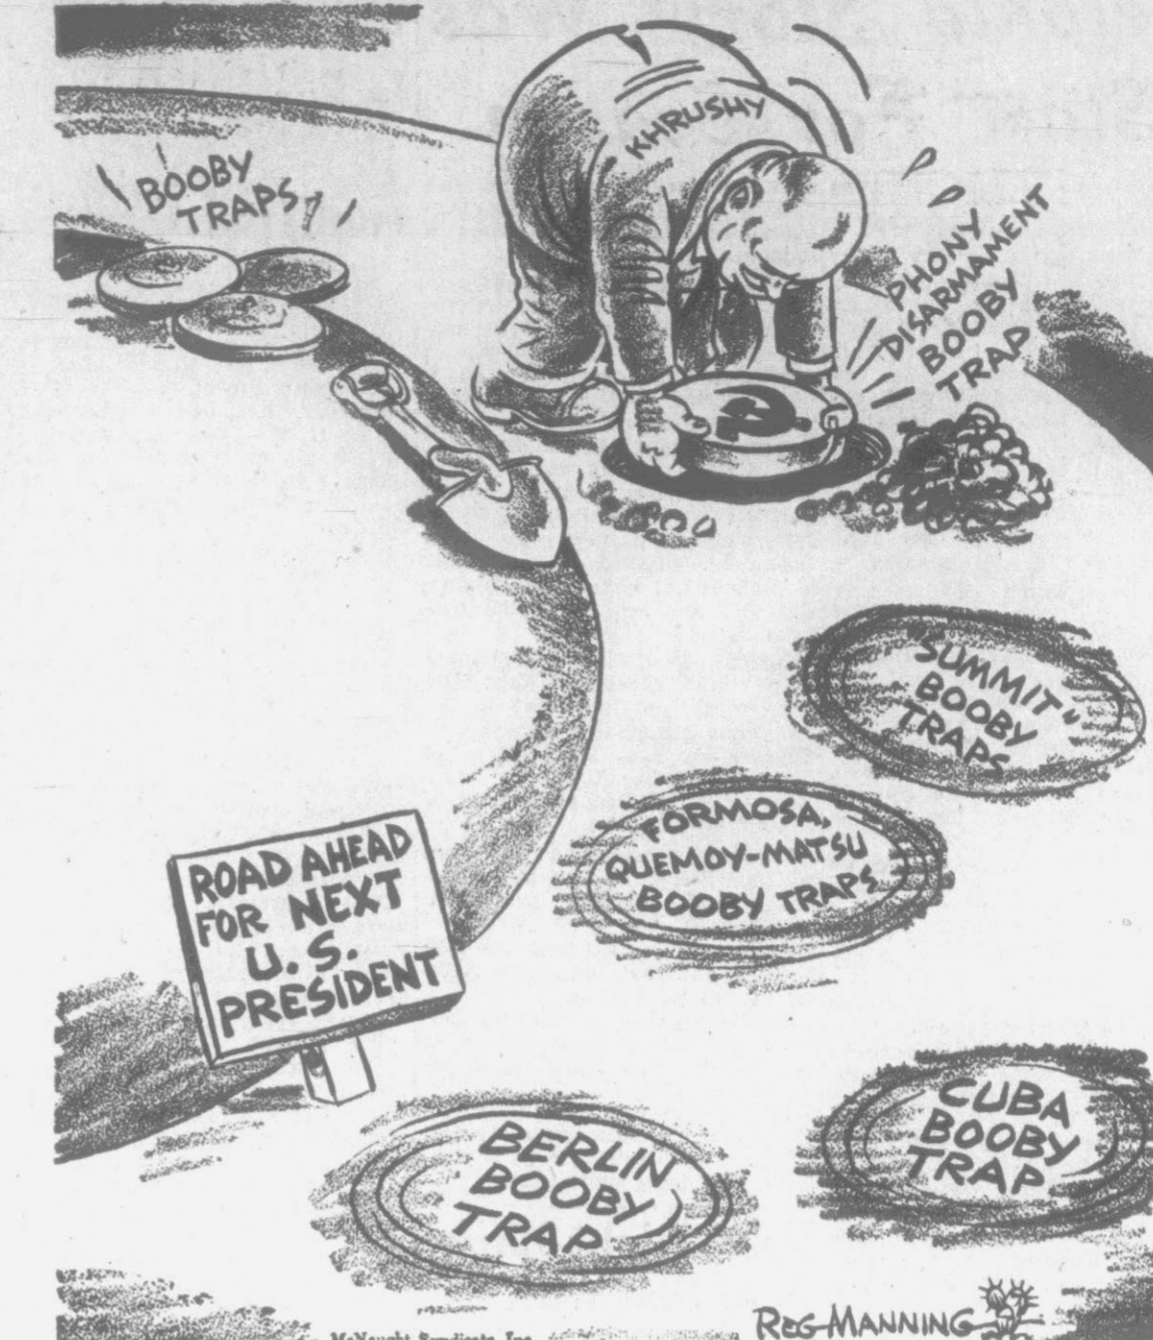

Listening to Stevenson often became painful for people who might admire his sentence structure but wish for more force and less gentility.

Still, Kennedy is a phrase-maker isn't in the same league with Stevenson who even at this late date, and despite his minor role, is fastidious about his adjectives.

But Stevenson, despite the pun impression he made, was rougher on President Eisenhower than Kennedy is on Nixon.

To a man like Stevenson, who hovers over the English language like a nursemaid tucking a baby in bed, it may be some- (Continued on Page 5)

Children Help Children

As a column idea, it's worn plumb to death; but, maybe some of us can bear a little repetition on the subject.

Monday night Greenville's younger set will be on the rampage again. As you are all well aware, Monday just happens to be Oct. 31. And, of course, Oct. 31 is always Halloween Day.

Furthermore, all Halloween Days are marked by the rampaging younger set. After all, it's the one day of the year when pranks, ghosts, and most usually diabolical things are nearly permissible.

One of those things that has become not only acceptable but even an anticipated feature of Halloween Days is a new type of "rampage" by the little people.

In all sincerity the kids set out early on Halloween Night seeking treats from each house in the neighborhood.

In past years they sought candy, cookies, and such for their own enjoyment as a "bribe" to relieve the donors from the threat of "ominous" pranks and tricks.

Since UNICEF, however, the kids have been trick-or-treating with one objective in mind—to collect donations from each house for the United Nations Children's Fund.

UNICEF is described as "How children help children."

A widely-circulated leaflet has this to say about the UNICEF movement:

"Did you know that a UNICEF penny is bigger than an ordinary penny? That is because UNICEF buys very wisely. There are so many children—altogether 600 million—in far-away lands that are hungry and sick and UNICEF wants to help as many as they possibly can. 'With UNICEF pennies, what you spend for:

"A comic book, will give a child 56 glasses of milk in Korea.

"An icecream cone, will protect 10 children from tuberculosis in Chile

"A candy bar, will cure a child of rags in Africa.

"A soft drink, will provide a child with 10 bowls of rice in India.

"That is why we want to help UNICEF so UNICEF can go on helping 'All the World's Children.'"

As we scanned the leaflet, we got the feeling the mission of UNICEF, so wholeheartedly supported by our children, is very well expressed in the simple comparison of pennies.

Also, as we scanned the leaflet, we thought how much more constructive are Halloween Nights of today for our children and children around the world, than annual nights of idle pranking.

On top of that, we thought how little a contribution Monday night to the canvassing kids would affect the average family economy in Greenville.

We decided maybe everybody in town could show their appreciation for the absence of youthful Halloween Night pranks and their interest in the welfare of the world's little people by handing over at least a small collection of pennies.

Quote . . .

"I regard the right to work as I do the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. States have the right, the responsibility and the duty to protect this fundamental freedom. This is my position and I shall fight for it." — Sen. Harry F. Byrd (Va.).

Other Editors Saying . . . On Winning And Losing

(Greensboro Daily News)
Walter Lippmann and others raise a pertinent question about the advisability of a fifth television debate between Kennedy and Nixon.

The four debates, few will deny, have given the American people unparalleled opportunity to see their presidential candidates in action and under stress together.

But the issue of a fifth debate centers on whether it should be limited to a given topic, like Cuba, broadened to include the whole field of differences or turned once more into a question and answer session.

We oppose another question and answer session. The fourth debate, although more lively than the third, merely rehearsed issues already discussed. Some of the questions asked by TV correspondents were sophomoric and highly repetitive.

But a television debate narrowed to the subject of Cuba, we agree with Mr. Lippmann, would be very much out of order. Why should two men running for the most powerful office in the nation focus all their attention on a tiny island 90 miles off the U.S. mainland? That enhances the issue all out of proportion to its importance.

But more than that, it is dangerous to our future foreign policy. It stakes the future President too closely on his course of action. In the heat of trying to win a debating point the future President could shake his hands for the future.

Already both Nixon and Kennedy have said more than they should about off-shore islands, whether they adjoin the United States or Red China. Mr. Nixon took a derring-do stance far out of line with the Eisenhower Administration on Matsu and Quemoy, then amended it. Mr. Kennedy spoke about U.S. support of anti-Castro forces in Cuba in a manner highly subject to misinterpretation. Both candidates delved into more aggressive policies about Eastern Europe. Both were trying to outdo each other in promises about the Iron Curtain countries.

Ambassadors of allied nations in Washington, James Reston reports, are highly concerned about the impact of what Kennedy and Nixon already have said in their TV debates.

Cuba, Reston reports, "is less of a worry in the Allied embassies than Communist China, Quemoy and Matsu and nuclear testing. Our friends do not think Premier Khrushchev is silly enough to choose Cuba, 90 miles off our shore, as the place to back a civil war between the Communist-sponsored Castro forces and the United States-supported anti-Castro forces. They are laughing at Mr. Nixon's suggestion that this would be the result of Senator Kennedy's proposals. What puzzles them is Mr. Nixon's suggestion that we should be cautious about inciting the Communist world to action close to the American shore but incautious about committing ourselves to the defense of Quemoy and Matsu, 7,000 miles from the United States, and three miles off the coast of Communist China."

Both gambits can be explained. They are efforts to win votes at home. But it would be disastrous if winning votes at home lost us battles, or jeopardized our position, abroad.

Excitement In Japanese Shares

By ELMER ROESSNER
American speculators, who haven't been doing very well lately on the stock market, may soon be able to take a fling on Japanese shares.

They can buy ADR's — and you'll be hearing more about ADR's from now on. They will generate more excitement than bingo or one-armed bandits at Las Vegas.

ADR stands for "American Depository receipts," which may be a way for Americans to dabble in the most exciting market in the world.

The basic Japanese interest rate is around 8 per cent, which means that corporations must generate 10 to 12 per cent on investment to excite speculators. And if this seems impossible, the Japanese have done the impossible.

66 PER CENT RISE IN SECURITIES

The Tokyo Stock Exchange reopened in 1949 and eight years later the value of the outstanding shares had increased by 102 per cent. Stock values have continued to rise, but not at such a spectacular rate. The increases have lured housewives and mechanics into the market. Most invest in a Japanese version of mutual funds. These are stock pools in which shares are sold at about the equivalent of $15. The total is invested in stock on a given day, and the stocks are sold at a specified time thereafter, say 30 or 60 days.

Profits have often been fat, rarely lean, and the percentage of Japanese housewives buying pool shares is probably about the same as the percentage of American wives who make bets or the ponies.

The popularity of these pools deends, of course, on the substantial rises in stock values, and many Americans have contemplated investing directly in Japanese stocks. But the Japanese have been unwilling to share this profitable game with others and have laid down rules intended to prevent Americans from dashing into the market gathering a bundle of quick profits, and dashing out.

Mutsuji Nakano, president of Yamaguchi Securities Co. of New York pointed out these rules limiting speculations.

The foreign investor must hold a stock for a minimum of two years before selling it and withdrawing his capital. Even then, only a third can be withdrawn each year, permitting complete recovery of investment and profit only in four years and a day. If a stock is sold within the first two years, the proceeds must be invested in another security and a new two-year period begins.

For some time now the Japanese have been considering the ADR system, which would permit Americans to speculate on Japanese securities.

Under this system, Americans could buy, through their own brokers, receipts for Japanese share. And while Americans would not be owning the shares, they would own receipts for shares deposited in a bank or other secure institution. And the value of the receipts would rise and fall with the shares.

Furthermore, the receipts could be sold at any time. An

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
COPYRIGHT, 1960, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

From the end of the Civil War until 1912, the Republican Party was the majority political party in the United States. True, Grover Cleveland was twice elected as a Democrat during this period, but it was not until Woodrow Wilson became President of the United States that the Democrats assumed a position of national leadership. Wilson gave the United States a new direction by accepting responsibility for the defense of Great Britain and France against Germany, thus bringing this country into a European war. In fact, Wilson assumed leadership in an attempt to organize the world within the League of Nations.

Since Wilson's time, the Republicans have elected Harding, Coolidge, Hoover and Eisenhower. The Democrats have elected Roosevelt and Truman. Roosevelt was, of course, an exception to all rules; ran for four terms and in many ways, altered the characteristics of American politics. Nevertheless, more Republicans than Democrats were elected.

Roosevelt reorganized the Democratic Party in an effort to free himself from the control of the party by the Solid South and the Big City Bosses in the North. He brought into the party social reformers, socialists, non-political intellectuals and worked valiantly and successfully to change the American labor movement from a non-political to a political effort. The A.F. of L. abandoned the trade union theories of Samuel Gompers and moved in the direction of younger Marxists led by Walter Reuther. Roosevelt had sufficient tenure in the White House to weld together this new party. By succeeding to move the Northern Negroes out of the Republican Party, where they were because Lincoln freed the slaves to the Democratic Party which was propagandizing for social equality through the influence of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the Democratic Party became all powerful in those Northern states with large Negro populations.

It was the Roosevelt leadership, Edward Flynn and James Farley, who organized the American Labor Party in New York. This was designed to give Mayor La Guardia a method of leaving the Republican Party without becoming a Tammanyite. The American Labor Party eventually split into two factions, the A.L.P., which became a political arm of the Communist Party, and the Liberal Party which mustered between 20,000 and 40,000 votes consisting principally of workers in the male and female garment trades and a small number of intellectuals. It continues to exist and exerts a greater influence than its numbers indicate.

The Roosevelt spell is still felt in some areas and the Democratic Party is still under the influence of some of those whom he favored. Senator John F. Kennedy is naturally capitalizing on that name, just as Richard Nixon is benefiting by the popularity of President Eisenhower.

Neither party is conservative nor liberal. Both parties are currently opportunistic, responding to immediate questions without philosophical connotations. In fact, the terms, conservative and liberal, cannot be defined in political context, in the year 1960.

For instance, Senator Kennedy regards himself as a liberal but his running mate, Senator Lyndon Johnson, has hitherto been accepted as a conservative. What then is this team? Vice President Richard Nixon has never been a conservative such as Senator Barry Goldwater is. Nixon is assumed to be a conservative because he is anti-Communist, but many liberals are anti-Communist and the socialists are violently so. The Vice Presidential candidate, Henry Cabot Lodge, cannot with any correctness be regarded as a conservative or a liberal; he has rather devoted himself to the defense of his country in the international arena.

In a word, the parties are vehicles for running for office without absolute distinctiveness as to theory or doctrine. Thus, the four debates between Kennedy and Nixon have not brought (Continued on page eight)

Our Response to God

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Psalm 1; Romans 12.

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners..."

"And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water..."

"The ungodly shall not stand in judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous..."

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice..."

Our Response to God

THE CHARACTER AND DESTINY OF THE GODLY AS CONTRASTED WITH UNGODLY MEN

Scripture—Psalm 1; Romans 12.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. In introducing the lesson for today, I quote from Peloubet's Select Notes, written by the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith.

The Golden Text

Paul's Epistle to the Romans.

"Be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God."—Romans 12:2.

same characteristics as godliness and ungodliness in the New Testament. "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. ## ECC Tangles With Tough Appalachian

They say history repeats itself but a determined East Carolina College football assemblage left Greenville today bent on disproving the historian's theory for one time at least.

Coach Jack Boone and crew got an early start this morning for Boone, N. C., site of tomorrow night's big North State Conference clash with big and powerful Appalachian.

Turning back the pages, the 1953 East Carolina football team went on such a winning binge—copping six straight—but ran head-on into a big and tough Tampa football team that failed to listen to EC's past war triumphs.

Tampa defeated that Pirate team but East Carolina rebounded to go on and win the North State Conference, its only such accomplishment.

Appalachian is a replica of that Tampa team. They are big, have two strong teams, and bank on power instead of deception in destroying their foe. And they have the advantage of playing on the home field.

The Mountaineers have been impressive with wins over Emory and Henry, Western Carolina, Elon, Catawba, and Carson-Newman. Their lone defeat was to Lenoir Rhyne.

There is no doubt that the line play will probably be the determining factor of the game. The Apps' line leads this district in rushing defense, allowing opponents an average of 78.1 per game.

They are also tops in total defense with an average of 169.0 yards given up per contest.

East Carolina's stubborn line is third in total defense, second in pass defense, and third in rushing defense. But the Bucs have been tougher when backed up against the wall. Only Elon has been able to score on the ground.

In size, the Appalachian club will have a big advantage. The line is anchored by 235 tackle George Demko, a senior. Bob White, 195 guard, works along with Demko and both are All-Conference candidates. Center Carl Messere, All-Conference last fall, is another big boy in the Apps' front forces.

Co-captain Chuck Gordon will spearhead East Carolina's number one line. Other line starters will be Clayton Piland, Bobby Bumgardner, Jones Lockerman, Vernon Davis, Bob Gregson and Wayne Davis.

Backfield-wise, East Carolina may have the edge in speed, especially if Glenn Bass is ready for combat. The Wilson All-Conference halfback worked in heavy gear yesterday for the first time in several weeks, giving encouragement to the Buc's coaching staff.

Sonny Baysinger is another fast halfback while Tommy Matthews and Mac Thacker aren't the slowest in the conference.

Either Nick Hilgert or Billy Strickland will gain the honors at fullback. Bert Stafford and Dan Rouse are expected to alternate at quarterback.

Quarterback Tommy Wilson is Appalachian's big offensive gun. The senior signal-caller is fourth in the district in total offense.

Appalachian has been getting good offensive mileage from freshman halfbacks Sherrill Norville and Sandy Edwards. And Glenwood Wilson, a 1959 star, has returned to the squad following an early season injury.

Game time for the North State clash is 8:00. Play-by-play action will be carried by WGTC.

Eppes String Of Victories Broken By Dillard, 2-0

GOLDSBORO—A third quarter safety by a fired-up Dillard High squad pinned the first defeat of the season of C. M. Eppes High School's Bulldogs of Greenville here last night, 2-0.

The deciding points came on the heels of a shining defensive effort on the part of the visiting Bulldogs. Eppes had staved off the most serious offensive threat of the evening by the Dillard Tigers and had taken over on downs on its own two-yard stripe.

On the first play from scrimmage, Bulldog quarterback Freddy Watson, in attempting to m... the ball straight up the middle, was trapped behind his goal line for the decisive safety.

Eppes Coach Percy Daniels, in the face of stinging disappointment, called the contest "one of the most bruising battles I've seen in a long time." He credited the Tiger win as coming from "hard-fought football."

The two rivals battled about evenly on the statistical board. The visiting Bulldogs picked up a total of 267 yards during the evening while the twice-beaten Tigers, playing before a large homecoming gathering, rolled up 250. Eppes notched nine first downs, Dillard's eight.

A kicking duel developed during the first two stanzas with both elevens finding difficulty in penetrating the opposition's defense for sustained drives.

Both offensive machines, however, began to roll in the third period. Eppes, during that quarter, drove within the Goldsboro 10-yard stripe on two occasions only to have the Tiger defense stiffen and strangle the scoring threats.

With a powerful offense of their own, the Tigers also penetrated deep into Eppes territory twice during the third quarter offensive show. But each time the Bulldogs tightened their straps to snuff out the Tigers' touchdown hopes.

After Watson was tackled in his own end zone for the Goldsboro safety, the Bulldogs fought for a score. It was late in the fourth period, however, before Eppes could get a serious scoring drive underway.

Time ran out on the Bulldogs after they had driven 66 yards to the Goldsboro 8-yard line.

Outstanding on defense for the visiting Bulldogs were Levon Little, Nathan Cromwell, Alton and Dalton Davis, Alton Harris, Calvin Gatlin, and Jessie Holliday. Carrying the offensive burden, along with Watson, were Larry Hardy, Willie Adams, and Marvin Anderson.

Coach Daniels, though disappointed with the vanishing of hopes for an unbeaten season at Eppes, was looking ahead to Friday's clash with Fayetteville in the Cumberland County Seat. He felt his Bulldogs would be "up" for their next assignment.

Daniels reported a large crowd of Eppes fans made the trip to Goldsboro. "We carried about half of Greenville with us," he said.

THROWING AT APPS—Dan Rouse, soph quarterback, is expected to do some tossing tomorrow night if East Carolina's ground offense fails to click against Appalachian's tough defense.

Duke, Georgia Tech Set Another Grid Thriller

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Saturday is homecoming day at Duke, and what could add more to such an occasion than a football game matching the Blue Devils and Georgia Tech?

Nothing. That's what.

If past performances are any criteria, the old grids are in for a whale of a football game.

The 28th renewal of the memorable series is one of four non-conference clashes for Atlantic Coast Conference football teams this weekend. In the others, Clemson plays at Vanderbilt, North Carolina at Tennessee, and North Carolina State at UCLA Saturday night. In conference games, South Carolina plays at Maryland and Wake Forest at Virginia.

Few, if any football rivalries have been so full of the unexpected as the Duke-Georgia Tech series, dating back to 1933 without a break.

Duke has won 14 games, Tech 12 and there has been one tie. Last year, Duke won, 10-7. The year before, Tech won, 10-8.

In 1950 and 1951, Georgia Tech scored three touchdowns in the first half, only to see the Blue Devils come from behind to win 30-21 and 21-20.

Duke goes into Saturday's game with a 4-1 record and leading the ACC. The only loss was to Michigan, 21-6. Tech has a 4-2 record.

Duke Coach Bill Murray has been preparing his team this week for what he calls a "typical Tech team, a tremendously well organized football outfit."

Tech Coach Bobby Dodd has respect for Duke's ground game. Despite the lonesome end formation and the passing attack of the Blue Devils, Dodd says "it's what they can do to you in the middle of the line that bothers me."

"Duke has several big, fast halfbacks and a solid fullback who can hit you hard and hurt you up the middle," Dodd notes.

Meanwhile, Clemson, loser of its last two games, is given a good chance to get back into the victory column in the Vanderbilt game. Clemson has a 3-2 record, and Vandy is 1-4.

North Carolina, a lackluster performer this year, is expected to take another pasting. Tennessee has won four games and tied one this year. The Tar Heels have lost won only one game and have lost four.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

All out the most recent subscribers to this newspaper will, we hope, recognize this column, in spite of its new name, as a successor to Ed Hirschberg's "Books and Stuff," a constant feature here for a decade.

We think that Ed had a good idea, the Editor agrees, and so here we are filling up our first page in our own fashion, though mindful of the standards which Ed has set. We intend to follow his lead in commenting upon current events in the realms of publishing and reading, on occasion with the help of a guest reviewer. In addition, still following him, we hope to mention some of the important developments in the arts and in culture generally which are taking place right here in our own community. In fact, the casual observer will be surprised at how much activity of this kind there actually is. On our part, we do not intend to let it go unheralded.

Moving to the state level, we have just finished "My Affair with A Weekly," by Editor Weimar Jones of the Franklin "Press," another volume out of the publishing house of John Blair in Winston, who has done such a remarkable job of late in issuing the works of native authors. Jones' book is a collection of editorials written originally for his paper. He writes well and he has insight — a fine combination — though his emphasis is pretty, though not entirely, on the lighter or whimsical side. Mixed in with the local color stuff and the nostalgia, however, are some pretty solid remarks about what this country is all about. Jones strikes us as being a sort of homespun Harry Golden without Golden's big-city brassiness, but with every bit as much intellectual integrity. There is definitely a place in the state for both men and for their writing.

Speaking of Harry Golden, we note that his "Enjoy, Enjoy!" is still on the bestseller list. At the moment, Harry, we hear, is stumping the country in behalf of Jack Kennedy, author of a former bestseller, "Profiles in Courage." Meanwhile, back at headquarters, Kennedy's speeches and various colored papers are being written by currently active authors: John Galbraith ("The Liberal Hour") and Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. ("Kennedy or Nixon: Does It Matter?"). Over on the Republican side we have Barry Goldwater, whose "Conscience of A Conservative" is being widely read all over the country. Does all this mean that the printed page is on the point of supplanting the smoke-filled room in American politics? Somehow we doubt it, though it is still a comfort to know that our politicians are so literate.

Nor are they alone. The literary accomplishments of some of our leading businessmen are also amazing. For example, here is an item which should excite more than casual interest locally: President Crawford W. Greenewald of du Pont is on the point of breaking into print with a volume on of all things, hummingbirds. The price will be $19.50—for the Christmas trade! At that, it is cheap compared to the $42,000 which the Hanes Foundation paid the other day for the millionth volume to be acquired by the library at UNC—John Gower's "Confessio Amantis," printed in 1483 by William Caxton. And with seventeen pages missing, too!

Gower's is hardly the sort of book which Wendell and Elva Smiley will be carrying in their recently-acquired bookshop on Evans Street, but they are seriously interested in supplying the demands of local readers. They have a good many attractive hard-cover titles already, including new fiction.

The College Playhouse is opening its season this week with Phillip Barry's 1940 Theater Guild hit, "Philadelphia Story." This is the play, already filmed at least twice, about the Philadelphia socialite who has the problem of choosing between fiance and ex-husband in twenty-four action-packed hours. Rumors that trickle through are that the current production, directed by Ralph Rivers, will be choice. Besides, it's free: Friday, Saturday, 8:00, McGinnis Auditorium. Reserved seats are obtainable from the office of the Student Union.

Another coming event of more than passing interest will be the appearance of the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra on the ECC Entertainment Series, November 17. There will be a concert for children in the afternoon in addition to the evening performance. Earl Beach and Jim Butler at the college have all the information on this event.

Hats off to the book clubs for raising money for the Art Center. And to Mrs. J.H.B. Moore for the recognition which she has received for her work in promoting the cause of art. She deserves it, if anyone ever did.

Those who haven't already done so should be sure to see Wes Crawley's sculptured "Black Nude" in front of Rawl on the college campus. Unfortunately, it's not supposed to remain there permanently.

Meanwhile, everyone should be sure to register by Saturday so that he can vote in the coming election. Then, if he has any time on his hands, he can get hold of the new Latin version of "Winnie the Pooh" and read it to Junior.

Charge Woman In Escape Plot

ATLANTA (AP) — City police have arrested an Atlanta woman charged with aiding in a threatened break from a Raleigh, N.C., prison.

Lt. R. F. Jordan and Detective Y. H. Allen Thursday arrested Mrs. Margie Warren, 40, in a Southeast Atlanta apartment. Officers said she told them she would waive extradition to face Raleigh charges.

North Carolina authorities have issued warrants charging Mrs. Warren, sister of a convict involved in the thwarted break, with violating a state law against giving or selling a gun to a prison inmate, and with conspiring with her brother, Thomas Cecil Callahan, and with Frank Edward Wetzel and others in the attempted prison break on Oct. 9.

Atlanta police quoted Mrs. Warren as saying she visited her brother at Central Prison on Sept. 18 but adding, "I didn't buy a gun and I didn't take one up there."

Officers said a handwriting expert had identified Mrs. Warren as the person who purchased a .38 caliber revolver Sept. 16 at an Atlanta gun shop.

North Carolina officials said the pistol was to have been used in an attempted break by Callahan and others. They said they received a tip on the gun and found it in a prison search before the plan could take effect.

Callahan, of Atlanta, was given a life sentence in the attempted robbery and slaying of grocer Harold Kimble in 1951. He escaped from the Buford, Ga., prison in 1957, and subsequently was arrested in North Carolina and sentenced to 35 years in the kidnap-robbery of an auto dealer.

Ten Other Nominees For President Are In Running

WASHINGTON (AP) — Voters have a wide choice of political groups to support in next month's elections if they live in states where minor parties have qualified for places on the ballots.

Sharing the presidential ballot with Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy are 10 other nominees for president.

There also are 87 minor party candidates for the House, 15 for the Senate, and 7 for governorships.

Fifteen minor parties have qualified nominees for various elective positions, including president and vice president. Most of them are on the ballots in only a few states but may receive write-in votes in states where they did not qualify for official listing.

Michigan voters probably will have the most leeway. In that state there are 6 nominees for president and vice president, 6 for the senate and 74 for 18 House seats.

Political parties on the Michigan ballot are the Republican, Democratic, Prohibitionist, Socialist-Labor, Socialist-Workers and Tax Cut.

Nixon and Kennedy share Michigan's presidential ballot with Dr. R. L. Decker, 55, a Kansas City minister; Eric Hass, New York, editor of his party's magazine;

This campaign, as no other, establishes the fact that both parties are intellectually moribid. They have nothing to say as political parties. They do not appeal to the voters in political terms. They do not attack each other's political concepts because there are none to attack. They do not defend their political concepts because they have lost political consciousness. The impression given is that we have a "cult of personalities." In this critical period, this country requires political parties with distinctive programs.

JAMES KEENE'S New Historical Novel IRON MAN, IRON HORSE

CHAPTER I
Ben Holliday always started his day with a careful shave because he was a methodical man even in the smallest details of his day-to-day living. When the seven o'clock roundhouse whistle called the men to work, he was either wiping the blade of his razor or putting it in its case. Holliday was an angular man, nearly six feet tall, and a bit on the slender side, but a month of this dry summer air of North Texas had so improved his appetite, that he expected this condition to change.

His face, at thirty-two, was beginning to show more of what he was; his manner of thinking was casting permanent lines on his forehead, pulling his rather thin lips into continually sterner lines until the general impression he gave upon first glance was that here was a man who did not laugh enough.

Holliday was a man seemingly overcome by his desire to do well. Perhaps it was this honesty, this ambition, that made him a little bitter every time he walked the few steps from his quarters to his office and saw the name on the frosted glass of the door. It had a pomposity, a touch of sham, like a man who went around and bragged about his horse which was dying.

Benjamin C. Holliday
Chairman of the Board
Midland Pacific Railroad

He liked the office because it gave him an uninterrupted second-story view of the empty cattle pens, and the idle switchyard.

and the roundhouse, which was rapidly running out of work to do. He could also see the miles of rusty track running south through the dry valley.

Holliday felt that he should look at that every day, to remind him of what he had to do, to remind him that two men before him had failed. One hundred and eighty miles of railroad going broke, and it was his job, his sole function, to get the rust off these rails.

It had been nearly six months since a train had gone south; his only knowledge of the country was what he could see from his window, the miles stretching out flat and lonely and baked under a constant sun. It was Indian country, and cattle country, with the only civilized mark upon it being the railroad tracks.

In the other direction, northward, the roadbed swept past a yellow depot and freight shed, curved to miss the tiny adobe town, and pushed toward some low foothills ten miles away. Miles beyond, the rails joined at Dodge City, and every two days an engine pulled a mail car, and one coach back and forth to fill the requirements of a mail contract.

This was, Holliday thought, a poor excuse for a railroad's being. In the beginning, Holliday's father had built the line on speculation, to have something to trade. From the beginning it fell in a puddle of red ink and stayed there. Morgans had been sent out from Chicago to make it pay, and lasted six months. He was a genius, in his own way, but he couldn't beat the Indians, or the Texans, who figured it was better to have no railroad at all than to fight the Indians again.

The second man Holliday hadn't known at all; he'd lasted four months, and the rails continued to gather rust.

He opened his coat because he knew today would be as hot as yesterday; he hadn't know a genuinely cool day since he'd arrived. The tin roof didn't do anything to lessen the bake-oven heat either. On his desk were some letters that had come in on last night's train. He recognized his father's handwriting on one, and Ben Holliday knew without opening it what the gist of it would be. It would be full of advice, and questions, and more advice, and a reminder that there wouldn't be any salary until the line was paying its own way. His oldest brother, Lon, would probably enclose a note: he was always doing that, never writing a letter, just enclosing notes, as though any opinion he had was a fringe comment on what someone else had already said.

Adam, who was only a year older than Ben, had written, and this letter was quickly opened. A cashier's check for three hundred dollars fluttered to the desk, and Ben Holliday let it lie there. He began to read.

Chicago, May 7, 1882
Dear Brother Ben:
A fantastic bit of luck here. That case I was working on was settled out of court, so I enclose a small check to tide you over until you get control of things. Before you get righteous and indignant, let me say that I now consider having paid you in full for that small book of addresses you left in my care. Your taste in femininity is exemplary; Alice is particularly delightful, and she misses you terribly, although I am doing my best to make her forget.

Brother Lon still puts in his ten hours a day; he's in charge of the Chicago office now and more like Father every day. I hope he succeeds; you know how badly he takes failure, and if he ever does, he's the kind of silly ass who'd think it fitting to fall on his sword. The rooms in our family "museum" are as empty as ever; we need a woman here to live in it up, and I've been talking about it to Alice; I must either marry her or drop her before I go broke.

Conclude your business with the Texans as soon as possible and come home. Ben. Really, Friday night poker is not the same without you; I have yet to find another who so consistently loses to me. And stay away from the Indian squaws; I understand they are treacherous in matters of breach of promise.

Affectionately,
Adam.

Ben Holliday chuckled and put this letter and his father's in his coat pocket, then stepped out of his office. He went down the back stairs, which opened into the equipment yard, with the cookshack on the other side. He made his way through mountains of railroad ties and stacked rails and rolls of telegraph wire.

By rule of thumb, he figured Midland-Pacific had about thirty or forty days of life left before the money ran out. After that, it was either pull up the rails or run a train over them and make it pay.

A triphammer banged away in the roundhouse, and he could hear the steam donkey huffing away, and smell the hot metal from the foundry; the sounds were busy, prosperous sounds, full of industry, and he hated to think of it just stopping.

He went into the cookshack and sat at a table near the door, where he could smell the bacon frying and the pitch odor from the tie piles. He ate his breakfast and looked out the door at the rolling stock idle on the yard sidings. Two good engines there, both coal burners, young and full of power, and nowhere to go.

Emergency Loan Now Available

Small businesses in Pitt and 30 other counties are eligible to receive production emergency loans through the Small Business Administration, it was announced by Robert B. Horning, Charlotte Branch Manager of SBA.

Horning said that, effective Oct. 17, the U. S. Department of Agriculture authorized the emergency loans because of damage and loss incurred to Hurricane Donna in early September. SBA "is authorized to accept and process applications under its Excessive Rainfall Disaster Loan Program," he said.

"Any small business concern," Horning continued, "located in the counties designated as eligible for consideration for an SBA loan, provided it can show substantial economic injury resulting from the excessive rainfall concerned, is eligible for the emergency loans."

He pointed out farmers and stockmen are not eligible for financial assistance from SBA under the program, but instead, should apply to the Farmers Home Administration.

"It has been administratively determined that the authority to accept applications under this program will expire Dec. 31."

Other counties in the Pitt area coming under the designation include Beaufort, Craven, Edgecombe, Greene, Jones, Lenoir, Martin, Pamlico, Onslow, and Wayne Counties.

Horning said applications may be addressed to: Small Business Administration, 1116 Independence Building, 102 W. Trade St., Charlotte 2, N. C.; or, SBA, 900 N. Lombardy St., Richmond, Va.

Kennedy's statement: "The aged of this nation deserve to spend their retirement years with proper recognition and respect for the contributions they have made to the American economy. They should have an income adequate to permit them to continue their contributions to American life and a program of medical insurance through the Social Security system for dignified health care."

Members of the state and local organizations will hold informal meetings with senior citizens in each community to distribute literature and to discuss the program.

Postal Receipts Show Increase

Local postal receipts for the first quarter, which ended Oct. 14, showed an increase of 8.8 percent over last year, it was reported today through J. Knott Proctor, postmaster.

Receipts for this year totaled $89,414.50 compared to receipts for last year of $83,736.54 for the same 16-week period, July through October dates.

This represents nearly $6,000 increase over last year for the same quarter.

Total pieces of mail of all classes during the quarter totaled 4,963,200 for this year, compared to 4,650,700 for last year. Broken down, the volume of mail represents, letter mail, 4,123,300 pieces for this year and 3,916,000 for last year; parcel post, 123,900 for this year and 118,000 for last year; all others (second and third class mail including magazines, flats, circulars, etc.), 716,100 for this year and 616,700 for last year.

A definite increase in every bracket over last year is apparent in these figures.

The next postal month ends Nov. 11 and the next quarter ends about January 27.

Joe Dudley is superintendent of mails at the Greenville Post Office.

Two Men Charged In Wreck Thursday

Two men who officers said "could not say who the driver (of the car) was" were charged by investigators with careless and reckless driving following a collision at the intersection of 10th and Charles St. at 12:40 a.m. today.
Police, who identified the men as Waverly C. Parrott, 29, of Route 3, Greenville and William Benjamin Wilson Jr., 23, of 209 East 12th St., said the car in which they were riding collided with a vehicle operated by Elbert Harold Mills, 26 of Route 3, Greenville, causing an estimated $200 damage to the Mills auto.
Officers quoted Parrott as saying he had borrowed the vehicle from its owner, and was asleep in the rear seat of the car at the time of the collision. Wilson, officers noted, was allegedly in the right-hand front seat of the car at the time.
Damage to the vehicle was set at $800.
Wilson was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad where he was treated for minor cuts and released.
Police who said investigation is continuing in the wreck, noted that the Mills vehicle was headed east on 10th St. while the other auto was traveling west on 10th St.
In an earlier accident, which occurred at the intersection of 10th and Colanthe Sts. at 11:05 p.m. involving three cars, Albert F. Sink, 32, of Route 2, Kernersville, was charged with failure to stop for a red light following investigation of the mishap.
The driver of the second vehicle involved was reported as Frances Wright Clayton of 1204 Chestnut St. while the driver of the third vehicle was identified as Nettie Tolar.
Total damage was set by police at $1750.
Two occupants in one of the three vehicles, Nettie Tolar and Mrs. Noah Barber, both of Route 2, Greenville were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad where they were treated for minor cuts and released.
