Pitt Counts Near 16,000 Votes For Demo Triumph

By HENRY HOWARD
 Reflector Staff Writer

Flocking to the polls in record numbers, Pitt County voters yesterday gave 3 1/2-1 majorities to Democrats John F. Kennedy and Terry Sanford.

Eclipsing the old record for a presidential election year (14,400 in 1956), Pitt's balloting total stood at nearly 16,000 this morning. An actual vote count of unofficial returns by the Daily Reflector showed a total of 15,990 acceptable votes cast in the presidential.

Spilled ballots around the county were unreported but it was certain the uncounted votes would push the total number of Pitt voters well above 16,000 for the day.

According to unofficial returns circulated by the Associated Press, Pitt gave both Kennedy and Sanford their largest numerical margins on a county basis in North Carolina.

Tabulations at the Reflector from returns reported by the county's 25 precincts showed Kennedy received a total of 12,523 votes to 3,457 for Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

In the gubernatorial race, Pitt threw its support behind Sanford with 12,551 markers. Defeated Republican candidate Robert L. Griffin, who formally conceded early today, netted 3,162 Pitt votes.

In Pitt, the margins of Democratic victory were even greater in the other state offices filled by Tar Heel voters yesterday.

Returns were received by the Reflector from the various precincts until 11:45 p.m. when the last and largest vote district reported its returns.

Returns were tabulated in the newspaper office by a computing machine furnished by the Burroughs Corp. and area representative Carlton Taylor. The machine provided the Reflector with incomplete county-wide totals throughout the evening.

Leading the voting was Greenville precinct No. 7 with a total of around 1,300 votes cast. That precinct gave Kennedy 1,184 to Nixon's 613—his largest total in any Pitt precinct. Sanford received 1,226 votes in the precinct compared with 553 for Gavin—his largest Pitt total.

Close behind was Farmville with a total vote count of 1,566 in the presidential race. That precinct gave Kennedy 1,392 to Nixon's 274 and Sanford 1,426 to Gavin's 226. Farmville provided both Democrats with their largest numerical majorities on the precinct level in Pitt.

Greenville's eight precincts cast a total of 6,670 votes for the two presidential candidates.

Considering the heavy vote turnout, returns were received at an earlier hour than expected. By 10 p.m. most of the 25 Pitt precincts had reported complete returns. The county's presidential voting was completely reported by the same hour.

In addition to Kennedy and Sanford, other Democrats seeking state office received overwhelming majorities of the county's voters.

They included (Republicans also listed):

Congress, First District—Herbert C. Bonner (13,267), Zeno Ratcliff (1,766); lieutenant governor—H. Cloyd Philpott (12,987), S. Clyde Eggers (2,177); U. S. Senator—B. Everett Jordan (13,287), Kyle Hayes (1,787); secretary of state—Thad Eure (13,284), David Morton (1,832); State Auditor—Henry L. Bridges (13,284), Dallas M. Reese (1,833); state treasurer—Edwin Gill (13,230), Fred Keith (1,845); superintendent of public instruction—Charles F. Carroll (13,204), Mary Jo Zachary (1,811); attorney general—Thomas Wade Bruton (13,102), Donald L. Paschal (1,861); commissioner of insurance—Charles F. Gold (13,258), J. E. Cameron (1,825); commissioner of agriculture—L. Y. Ballentine (13,229), A. H. Farmer (1,830); commissioner of labor—Frank Crane (12,579), T. Paul Messick (1,776); and associate justice of Supreme Court—R. Hunt Parker (13,186), Paul C. West (1,848).

Elected to state office unopposed were Clifton L. Moore, associate justice of the Supreme Court and Rudolph I. Mintz and Albert W. Cowper, judges from the fifth and eighth judicial districts.

County Democrats elected without opposition were Sen. Robert L. Humber, Reps. Frank M. Wooten and Clifton W. Everett, county commissioners R.L. Martin and Bruce Strickland, Recorder's Court Judge Dink James, county solicitor John Hill Paylor, register of deeds Mrs. Blair C. Wheelless, school board chairman J.H. Moye, and constables and justices-of-the-peace in the county's townships.

Sanford Turned Back Challenger

RALEIGH (AP)—Terry Sanford has won his place in the line of Democratic governors of North Carolina.

The Fayetteville lawyer turned back the stiffest Republican challenge of recent years, defeating Robert L. Griffin in Tuesday's general election.

Unofficial returns from 1,838 of the state's 2,089 precincts gave 643,292 votes for Sanford, and 529,846 for Gavin. I. Beverly Lake, Raleigh lawyer who lost to Sanford in a spring runoff primary for the Democratic nomination, received 149 write-in votes.

A slate of incumbent state officers, all Democrats, easily out-routed Republican opposition in the voting which appeared headed for a new record.

The results assured continuation of Democratic control in North Carolina state government, which stretches back to the turn of the century.

In waging the most vigorous campaign a Republican candidate has put on in recent history, Gavin urged support for a real two-party system in the state.

Gavin, Sanford lawyer, followed election returns from campaign headquarters in High Point Tuesday night. He declined to concede the race.

Sanford, who has had his sights on the governor's office for years, will be inaugurated early in 1961 to succeed Luther H. Hodges.

In a statement from his Raleigh campaign headquarters Tuesday night, Sanford thanked voters of the state. More important than the confidence shown in his candidacy, he added, "is the confidence they (the voters) have placed in a positive program of progress—for better schools for our children, for raising our farm income, for continuing and accelerating our drive for new industry and for improving our rural roads."

H. Cloyd Philpott, a Lexington furniture manufacturer who was close to the Hodges administration as a state legislator, defeated Republican S. Clyde Eggers of Boone for lieutenant governor.

Incumbent Democrats who won statewide offices, and their Republican opponents, included:

Secretary of State Thad Eure over David L. Morton of Charlotte; Auditor Henry L. Bridges, over Dallas M. Reese of Murphy;

Pitt Reinforces Its Claim As Big Demo Stronghold

By DAVID J. WHICHARD
 Reflector Editor

Pitt County drove another big stake in its claim as the Democratic stronghold of North Carolina as it gave President-elect John F. Kennedy and Governor-elect Terry Sanford their largest numerical majorities of any of the state's 100 counties.

Turning out in record numbers yesterday, Pitt voters gave Democratic presidential nominee Kennedy a clear majority of 9,066 votes. Kennedy chalked up 12,523 votes in Pitt to Vice President Richard M. Nixon's 3,457.

In the gubernatorial race, Sanford received 12,551 to Robert Gavin's 3,162, a majority of 9,389 votes for the Democratic nominee.

The closest challenge to Pitt's claim as the foremost Democratic county in North Carolina came from Robeson County where Kennedy's majority was 1,000 less than in Pitt and where Sanford's majority was 21 less.

Yesterday's record vote, and the campaign which preceded it in Pitt brought back shades of 1928, the most recent election year in which there was a pitched battle between Democrats and Republicans for Pitt County's votes. Then too a Catholic, Al Smith of New York, was seeking the presidency on the Democratic ticket. While North Carolina was going Republican for the only time in the 20th century, Pitt County stuck to the Democratic party, giving Smith one of his largest majorities of any county in North Carolina. That year Smith received 4,642 votes in Pitt to Hoover's 1,381.

For Pitt County, 1928 and 1960 both saw new voting records set.

Sanford Is Looking To A Vacation

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov.-elect Terry Sanford said today he plans to go to his home in Fayetteville for two days and then take a week's vacation.

Sanford, happy over his victory in Tuesday's election, said he may go to a beach "and knock around in a boat" during his vacation.

Present plans, he told newsmen, call for him to be inaugurated the first week in January. He said he needs to talk to Gov. Hodges concerning these plans.

Sanford declared that unless legislative leaders think a special session of the General Assembly would serve a useful purpose, one will not be called for the inauguration.

However, he said, legislators "will occupy the honored position that they have in the past" in the inauguration ceremony. It will be as if the Legislature is on hand but not in session, Sanford explained.

Sanford said he will take about "500 pounds of various reports from agencies and commissions to while away the time" while on vacation.

The Fayetteville attorney took a poke at groups who booted the Democratic party to vote for Republican nominee for governor Robert L. Griffin and other Republicans. He said "I do not think splinter organizations serve any useful purpose."

Asked if he thought Sen. John F. Kennedy's apparent victory would benefit North Carolina, Sanford said, "We're not looking for special privileges. I have no special messages for Jack Kennedy or special requests. In many ways it will not hurt us to have such a friend" in the White House.

Nixon Concedes To Demo Rival

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon today formally conceded the election of Sen. John F. Kennedy.

The dramatic concession announcement came at 9:47 a.m. PST, a few minutes after Kennedy had clinched election by winning Minnesota's 11 electoral votes.

Nixon sent this telegram to his Democratic rival:

"I want to repeat through this wire congratulations and best wishes I extended to you on television last night. I know you will have the united support of all Americans as you lead the nation in the cause of peace and freedom in the next four years."

Nixon, the Republican nominee, had virtually conceded shortly after midnight (PST). He said then that if "the present trend continues, Sen. Kennedy will be the next president of the United States."

The concession telegram, sent to Kennedy at his home in Hyannis Port, Mass., was read to a nationwide television audience by Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary.

Asked whether Nixon, who was up at 6:30 a.m. after only about five hours' sleep, had an opportunity to analyze the election outcome, Klein replied:

"I think the time to analyze on a more scientific basis is when you have complete results from all the states."

Klein said the margin of popular votes was, at the time he spoke, less than 1 per cent.

Klein's conference was held shortly after Minnesota, after seeing all through the night and morning, gave Kennedy its electoral vote. That was enough to put him over the top. His total at that point was 272, with 269 needed.

As for Nixon's plans for the future—whether he will retire from public life, Klein said:

"This is an easy one for me to answer because I wouldn't care to guess."

This was Nixon's first election defeat during his 14 years in political life—as a member of the House, senator and vice president since 1953.

Pitt Democrat Leaders Proud Of Record Vote

By PATRICIA MOORE
 Reflector Staff Writer

Democratic leaders in Pitt County expressed pride today in Pitt's large support of the party and in the record vote of 16,000 cast yesterday.

"We have been called the outstanding democratic county in the state and I believe we retained our standing as a result of Pitt's vote yesterday," John Clark, chairman of Pitt County's Democratic Executive Committee, said today.

Clark said he was pleased and proud of the state vote in favor of the Democratic party. In the county, he credited team work with the "large victory." Tabulations in Pitt gave John F. Kennedy 12,523 votes and Nixon 3,457. Terry Sanford rounded up 12,551 votes to Robert Gavin's 3,162.

"I wish I could personally thank everyone who worked so hard for the party in Pitt. I am especially grateful to the Young Democrats of East Carolina College for their work," Clark said.

Another Democratic leader, Charles Horne, vice chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Party, said he believes the final tabulation will show that Pitt County will cast more "plus" votes for the Democrats than any county in the state. "This year, in spite of the strong religious question, Pitt County stood behind the Democratic party and its candidates," he noted.

Republican Vote

Chairman of Citizens for Gavin, Dr. Wellington Gray of Greenville, said that in spite of the fact that gubernatorial candidate Gavin conceded to Sanford his morning, the race statewide was closer than Terry Sanford had expected it to be.

Pitt County had the strongest Republican vote in many, many years, he noted. He said some precincts in Greenville gave almost 35 percent of their votes to the Republican candidates.

"At least people know now that there is a Republican party here," Dr. Gray said. The result of this voting shows that "there is some opposition to the Democratic vote," he said. The program for the Republican party in the county and state now is to reorganize, group and start "for the next time," he said.

Two-Party System

Jack Wallace of Greenville, in charge of publicity for Citizens for Gavin, said that though the vote in Pitt defeated Republican candidates on a local level, "all is not lost." The primary purpose was to establish a second party in North Carolina, he said. Wallace expressed appreciation to the citizens of eastern North Carolina for the support given to Gavin.

President Sends Congratulations

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today sent his congratulations to Democratic President-elect John F. Kennedy "for the victory you have just won at the polls."

The President said he will send the new president-elect a more comprehensive message later "suggesting certain measures that may commend themselves to you as you prepare to take over next January the responsibilities of the presidency."

The message to Kennedy was released by the White House together with three other telegrams. They went to the losers, Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, and to the vice president-elect, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson.

In his message to Nixon, Eisenhower said: "Your hard-fought, courageous campaign to carry forward the principle of sound government will have my lasting respect."

"It has been a matter of deep personal satisfaction to have served closely with you these past eight years and I shall always cherish your friendship."

Eisenhower's message to Kennedy, sent to the Hyannis Port, Mass., home of the president-elect, was far more terse and formal.

"My congratulations to you for the victory you have just won at the polls. I will be sending you promptly a more comprehensive telegram suggesting certain measures that may commend themselves to you as you prepare to take over next January the responsibilities of the presidency."

Minnesota Gave Decisive Margin

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrat John F. Kennedy today won the presidency—the youngest man and the first Roman Catholic ever elected to the nation's highest office.

See-sawing Minnesota finally came to rest in the 43-year-old Massachusetts senator's camp at 12:30 p.m. EST and put him over the 269 electoral votes he needed to wrap up mathematically a victory that for many hours had been prospectively his. Kennedy's electoral vote count at that point was 272.

Republican Richard M. Nixon's electoral total at that time was 177.

The popular vote at that time stood: Kennedy 31,498,552 for 50.4 per cent of the counted ballots; Nixon 31,010,340 for 49.6 per cent.

With two big states—California and Illinois—still undecided, it was possible for Kennedy to wind up with a wide electoral vote margin.

But the popular vote showed a nationwide division of sentiment that swung by a fraction of one per cent.

Kennedy won by scoring where he counted most—in the bigger states.

Kennedy's victory caps a string of political successes for the Boston Irishman, son of a multi-millionaire. He fought the Japanese during World War II as commander of a torpedo boat, returned home and was elected to Congress, then ousted Henry Cabot Lodge, this year's Republican vice presidential nominee, to gain a Senate seat.

In waging the presidency, Kennedy rockets to a position of awesome responsibility—to leadership

Final Reports

United Fund's recognition meeting and final report session will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in City Hall courtroom.

General chairman of this year's drive David J. Whichard urged all people who have worked in the campaign throughout Pitt County to attend this last meeting.

Firms and institutions which have qualified for the B-U awards during the campaign will receive their plaques. Key man awards will also be presented at this meeting.

United Fund collections and pledges now stand at approximately $80,000. This is $31,000 short of the $110,000 goal.

Whichard urged all solicitors to make reports to the United Fund office prior to tomorrow night's recognition meeting so that all awards can be made.

Beautiful Jack's Views First Lady Duties

By FRANCES LEWINE
WASHINGTON (AP) — America's new first lady—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy—believes her main duty is "to take care of the President so he can best serve the people."

Next, she hopes she won't fall her family—and can bring up her children in a fishbowl atmosphere without spoiling them.

In the long months of the presidential campaign, Mrs. Kennedy—young, beautiful and used to a leisurely life—slowly grew to the realization that she might actually spend the next four years in the White House.

At first, she didn't seem to take the idea seriously. But, by Election Day, Mrs. Kennedy knew what she was facing.

She predicts the pressures of the next decade will be so great that the president "will have to work harder than ever before." As for the first lady, because of official and social responsibilities, she cannot expect to be a "completely private person."

Mrs. Kennedy, 31, and the third youngest of the nation's first ladies, refused to make any pre-election comments on what she might do as a president's wife. But she indicated she would make the role what her husband wanted her to. If he says so, that might even include writing a column about her own activities and holding periodic news conferences as did Eleanor Roosevelt.

Mrs. Kennedy, in campaign comments, has indicated her interest in her husband's programs such as education, exchange students and medical care for the aged.

However, the first thing facing Mrs. Kennedy—even before the inauguration ceremonies on Jan. 20—is the birth of her second child. It is due about Dec. 15 and is expected to be born in a New York hospital.

The Kennedys already have a daughter, Caroline, who will be 3 Nov. 29.

If the new baby is a boy, Mrs. Kennedy says he will be named after his father, John F. Kennedy.

Mrs. Kennedy wanted little Caroline to believe her father was "no different from any other father on the block." She'll find that pretty hard to do from now on.

There's a possibility that sometime in the next four years, a Kennedy may be born in the White House. Mrs. Kennedy says she'd like to have a number of children.

So far, the only president's child actually born in the White House was Esther Cleveland, daughter of President Cleveland and his young wife, Frances Folsom Cleveland.

Mrs. Kennedy comes to the White House with a background of society, wealth and little experience in the workaday world. She paid little attention to politics before her marriage to young Sen. Kennedy in 1953.

In fact, Mrs. Kennedy said she didn't even vote in the presidential election of 1952, although she was well within the voting age at 23. "I wasn't married then," she explained.

Dark-haired, with the slender 5-foot-7 figure of a fashion model. Mrs. Kennedy was declared the most beautiful debutante of the year in Newport, R.I., and New York in 1948.

One of Mrs. Kennedy's main duties now will be as official hostess at the traditional White House formal social season and state dinners for visiting foreign dignitaries.

Her unusual language ability—fluency in French, Italian and Spanish—should make visitors from abroad particularly happy with America's new White House hostess.

Her interest in art, antiques and literature will doubtless be translated into the redecorating of the White House, for which Congress has allowed the new tenants $75,000. But a nursery probably will be the most unusual change.

A socialite heiress, Mrs. Kennedy was born on July 28, 1929, in swank Southampton, Long Island. She is the daughter of the late John V. Bouvier III, a New York stockbroker. Her mother, the former Janet Lee of New York, later divorced Bouvier and married wealthy Republican Hugh D. Auchincloss, whose "Merrywood" estate is not far from the White House on the edge of the Potomac at McLean, Va.

She is a Catholic, like her husband.

Peauteous Jacqueline, whose nickname is "Jackie," made her debut in August 1947 at an exclusive party at the 75-acre summer estate of her mother and stepfather at Newport, R.I. Early in 1948 she made her bow at the Junior Assembly in New York City and the Autumn Ball at Tuxedo, N.Y. Jackie went on to spend two years at Vassar, making a scholastic record at all a-minus grades. She joined a Smith College group to spend her junior year at the Sorbonne in Paris, studying art and developing an interest in 18th and 19th century Europe that continues today. She was graduated from George Washington University here. After her marriage, she took a course there in American history to bone up on one of her husband's favorite subjects.

After leaving college, Jacqueline decided to try for her first and only job. Though she lacked experience, she was given a crack at the job of inquiring camera girl on the Washington Times-Herald. Starting out early in 1952, she learned how to use a camera and to develop her own film. Among the Washington notables she interviewed on various topics were then Vice President Richard M. Nixon and her husband-to-be, then the youngest senator

The Kennedy wedding on Sept. 12, 1953, was one of the most lavish that Newport had seen in some time. It drew 4,000 spectators to St. Mary's Catholic church, which seated 600.

Mrs. Kennedy's life since then has been that of a senator's wife and young mother. She joined her husband for his Senate campaign swings and attended her first convention in 1956—the year Kennedy was nosed out for the Democratic vice-presidential nomination.

After watching the latest presidential campaign from the sidelines and in the midst of the fabulous New York ticker tape reception, Mrs. Kennedy wrote in one of her "campaign wife" columns:

"I am not sure I share the supposed dream of American women to see their sons be president—being president is one thing; you could not help but be proud of that—but running for the office is another; an ordeal you would wish to spare sons and husbands."

Femininity Essential For Working Girl

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Writer The working girl should maintain femininity above all else, says one of France's most elegant working women, Mrs. Marcel Rochas. Men do not like brusk business women, believes this Parisian beauty who spends three days weekly running a perfume business inherited when her husband died five years ago. The working girl should develop her personality, attitudes and clothing along feminine lines to dispel the notion that she is a manly part of a man's world. Keeping feminine-looking after work is especially important to the married working girl, she says. "French women do try to emphasize their feminine charm even though they must earn a living. They have no desire to impress a man with their business sense. That is why Mrs. Rochas advises American girls not to discuss their business affairs with their husbands. "Men like to speak about themselves so he will expect you to listen to his problems." The lady perfume executive's schooling came from another Parisian career woman, France's first woman dentist, her mother.

Helle Krag Combines Careers

By JOY MILLER AP Women's Editor NEW YORK (AP)—It's a rare movie star who will let a reporter see her with hair flattened in pin-curls, wearing no makeup. It's probably an even rarer foreign minister's wife who will receive in a pink quilt robe. Helle Krag, who is both, had no compunction the other morning. It was 9:30 a.m. and she had been up late at social functions for the king and queen of Denmark, who were winding up their U.S. visit. It seemed logical enough for the pretty blonde to curl up in an easy chair, bare feet tucked under her, to discuss her acting career; her husband, Otto Jens Krag, Denmark's foreign minister; and what they had been doing during his three-week stint as head of the Danish delegation to the United Nations General Assembly. Mrs. Krag, as Helle Virkner, is a famous stage and screen star in Denmark. She has been an actress for 16 years, but is still in her twenties. None of her 26 movies has been brought to this country. "They're just shown in Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Germany," she said in excellent English. Her husband approves of her career, she said, and she likes to keep working "a little." "You never know what will happen in your life," and it's good to have some sort of work. She met Krag—who is 11 years her senior—at a party for Indonesia's Sukarno. "It was May 16, 1959," she recalled. "He introduced himself and we talked two minutes. We met again July 3, and were married July 31. I had seen him fewer than 10 times, but I knew he was the right man. "We have a baby boy named Jens Christian. He is 3 months and 14 days old, and I miss him terribly."

Use Washable Toys

Few shoppers in a nursery department can resist taking home a toy for baby. But no matter how enchanting the toy is, muster up your sales resistance if it isn't washable. Only toys which can be laundered or suds-sponged are safe for the "apple of your eye."

Ladies Like Logic

NEW YORK (AP)—Advertising researchers have peered into the minds of the female mind and come up with some intriguing news: The housewife collects food recipes in an almost compulsive manner. Know what she does with them? Files them neatly away, forever. Most of them she'll never read again, much less try. You know when a girl finally realizes why she's taught fractions in grade school? Not until she's married and starts wrestling with cookbook recipes, trying to reduce meals for a family of four to her new twosome. Once a woman develops a certain way of doing things, that's it. She is sublimely indifferent to any time-motion study aimed at helping her be more efficient, especially in the kitchen or nursery. These findings are reported by Henry O. Whiteside, research director of a large national advertising agency. He tells advertisers to aim their messages, not to women as a whole, but to a select segment. At a recent advertising conference, Whiteside advised: "You can address your more novel ideas and products to the young wife. She is trying anything and everything in her brave new world." He notes that in any one year, there are possibly 1,150,000 first marriages in a population of 50 million families — a relatively small target. But, Whiteside notes, if the advertiser scores well with this group "he may collect a customer who will repeat for 30, 40, 50 years." The mature housewife, Whiteside says, knows she can please her family by limiting experimentation at mealtime, especially if all her children are boys. He explains: "Men and boys are ultra conservative when it comes to food. They like their meat and potatoes this way this year, they liked them that way last year and that's the way they want them next year." And Whiteside has this report on the homemaking education of American girls: "When the girl is in the sixth, seventh or eighth grades she will follow mother around, watching, smelling, touching, tasting, asking a thousand questions — most of which are shoved aside. "Mother doesn't want her underfoot, or sometimes indulges her in the creative experience of scraping carrots, peeling potatoes, scrubbing the pots and pans, emptying the garbage or doing any other unpleasant work guaranteed to be uninteresting." Whiteside said courses in home economics are offered in most high schools "but by now the girl's curiosity has been shifted elsewhere. Boys are being discovered." Only when the girl has become engaged does she come up against the mighty task of feeding a man whose eating habits have been developed by his mother over a period of some 20 years. Small wonder then, says Whiteside, that the young bride "has some feeling of helplessness and inadequacy."

Soap Essential Tool

Unexpected as it may sound, soap is an essential tool in a cabinetmaker's kit. Three of its many uses are to coat nails, making them penetrate wood more easily; to rub on drawer surfaces, making them slide more smoothly; and to lubricate and soften the knots in wood, making it easier to saw through them.

Milk Bottle Invented By Druggist

Did you know that the milk bottle was invented because a dirty doll inspired a druggist's interest in cleanliness? Deliverymen used to dip milk for customers from a 40-quart can. One day in 1884, Dr. Hervey D. Thatcher of Potsdam, New York, saw a little girl's rag doll fall accidentally into the container. The milkman merely pulled it out and continued dipping milk from the can. From this incident of contamination, Dr. Thatcher was moved to develop individual milk bottles. The first ones were made of hand-blown glass and subject to breakage. But Dr. Thatcher's idea was refined, and today more than 10 billion quarts of milk are annually delivered to Americans in glass bottles. LEFT OVER CHICKEN Chicken left over? Dice it and add it to a mixture of green peas and carrots. Dress with mayonnaise. Diced celery makes a crisp addition to this good combination.

A Massive Voice Shaping Destiny

This we had to get off our chest. The lines of voters at the polling places yesterday put a new bounce in our step. It was as inspiring as a rainbow after a summer shower; as heart-filling as Old Glory floating in the sunshine. This was what makes our wheels go 'round.

Speechmakers, writers, officials and voters . . . all have urged voters to vote. Sometimes they caused a ripple, but yesterday they found themselves caught up in a tidal wave of balloting all over the country. It was magnificent.

Perhaps you too felt that warmth of companionship as you stood in line and looked at harried pollholders, the patient people before and behind you. And you were all a part of a massive voice, heard all over the nation, bent on naming a new President . . . shaping destiny.

In the end, you had to make up your mind; didn't you? Some people tried to tell you how you had to vote; but that was not right and you knew it. How you voted was up to your own conscience; and once you knew how it had to be, that was how you voted.

And yesterday evening, press associations began compiling and tabulating the returns as they were reported. It was a complicated and confusing process. Bit by bit the world (and you) learned how successfully two great men had carried their cases before the people.

For hour after hour, the scattered voting results were compiled and fitted into the pattern of victory. It hung in doubt for a long time. Everybody waited for the "key" states to give their final accounting.

Maybe some people think they voted for the "loser" but they really didn't. The American people were the real winners in any such monumental showing of interest in their country and a future which not only involves their own welfare, but the very security of millions outside our own borders. It was the spirit of Democracy giving voice over the land.

But that voice would be meaningless if our people did not unite in pride and thanksgiving behind their new President and pray that God's blessings be upon him, his work and all America.

It may be years before we can judge the wisdom

Campaign That Was Different

By LYNN NISBET REFLECTIONS — This is being written before the ballots cast in the election have been counted. The observations are not colored by election results, which are in doubt. It is quite likely that delayed counting in some quarters and demand for recount in others may leave the final result in doubt for some time. While the end result has not been determined, the campaigning is all over and can be reviewed objectively.

It has been an unusual campaign, both at national and state levels. Discussion of the national activities was left to others. Consideration here is given to doings within North Carolina, with which your reporter had some personal contact. Almost everything about the campaign has been different from traditional political practices.

Go back to the beginning of the primary nominating process. Four candidates filed for the Democratic nomination for Governor, and only one — and he somewhat reluctantly — filed for the Republican nomination. Up to that point it was the usual procedure. Then the differences began to appear.

Among the Democratic candidates Terry Sanford was accepted as the representative of the liberal wing, the ideology of which had been championed in the past by Dick Fountain, Ralph McDonald, Kerr Scott, Frank Graham, John Larkin and Malcolm Seawell represented the more conservative element, personified in the leadership of Max Gardner, Blucher Ehringhaus, Clyde Hoey and William Umstead. The fourth entrant, Beverly Lake, didn't belong to either group.

ANOMALOUS — In some respects he was ultra-conservative, insisting upon going back to policies of decades past; in others he was ultra-liberal, calling for open rebellion against platform declarations of the Democratic party. Both the regulars (?) Larkin and Seawell were badly defeated in the first primary. The run-off between Sanford and Lake, featured by some of the bitterest campaigning in years, resulted in Sanford's nomination. Then Sanford "jumped the gun" on most recognized state leaders and endorsed Kennedy for the presidential nomination at Los Angeles. Many of his original supporters resented that, and these developed some strength for a write-in campaign for Lake. Lake disavowed and discouraged the movement, and it never got off the ground. Neither was it ever completely abandoned.

The religious issue which was significant in the presidential race lapped over to some degree in the state contests. The disaffection in Democratic ranks encouraged Robert Gavin, the Republican nominee for Governor, to make a real campaign. There sprang up over the state numerous hybrid groups of "Citizens for Gavin," "Democrats for Gavin" and similar names. These groups carried larger part of the load of the Gavin campaign than did the regular Republican organization. All of this brought about for the first time in 32 years a real threat to the Democratic state ticket.

Further to confuse the situation, the new Democratic party organization put very few of the old tried and true warhorses to work. The campaign was handled by young and generally inexperienced workers — who carried over the primary tactics and methods.

PERSONALITIES — Gavin waged his campaign throughout on the personal basis, de-emphasizing the Republican party. To greater degree than usual in Democratic campaigning the name of Terry Sanford was emphasized above the Democratic party. Radio and teevee spots and newspaper advertisements invited voters for Terry Sanford for Governor. Bumper stickers and other paraphernalia stressed Kennedy — Johnson, Nixon-Lodge, Sanford or Gavin much more than party affiliation. Subtle effect of this was to aid the Republicans hybrid groups, which waged their efforts on the slogan of vote for the man instead of the party.

of our votes in this election. It may take years to see the full effects. But, more than any time in the memory of most of us, we have that feeling that what we marked on yesterday's ballot was really important.

Sometimes Progress Calls For Sacrifice

The beauty of a city is a matter of concern to conscientious officials, for they realize that an attractive appearance enhances the prestige of a community just as adequate streets, sidewalks and other vital facilities.

Most citizens of a community share this feeling, for it is natural for people to want to live in surroundings that offer the necessities of modern-day city life and at the same time afford a pleasant picture to the eye.

It is only to be expected, therefore, that there arises time and again the conflict between preserving native beauty—particularly trees that have been growing for years—and affording adequate streets, sidewalks and other facilities that a growing community must have.

Normally when a choice has to be made between widening a street to handle increased automotive traffic and preserving beautiful old trees, officials charged with the responsibility for city government choose to sacrifice the trees in order to provide adequate streets. A similar situation occurs when the choice must be made between saving the trees and providing sidewalks so kids will not have to walk in the streets on their way to schools. Concern for the safety of the children usually overrides consideration of the beauty that may be sacrificed by removing trees.

Certainly this is as it should be, for there are no people who would conscientiously propose jeopardizing the safety of adults or children of the community merely for the sake of retaining trees here and there. On the other hand, we do not feel our city officials order trees removed along thoroughfares unless it becomes necessary to the safety of the citizenry of the community.

So long as Greenville continues to grow, it will require better streets, sidewalks and other facilities to provide for the needs of its people. In some instances, it will be necessary to sacrifice trees in order to provide these facilities. Where it is possible to plant new trees where old ones have to be removed for the sake of progress, consideration should be given to such an approach in the interest of preserving the natural beauty of the community insofar as possible.

Key Issue Was On Leadership

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP)—The voters' problem in this presidential election was much the same as in the elections since 1940: Choosing between men rather than ideas, picking a leader rather than a way of life.

Except for 1948, the major dilemma facing the country in all the elections of the past 20 years, including this one, was in foreign affairs.

There are some domestic differences between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy.

For instance: Kennedy favors federal help for teachers' pay, and Nixon doesn't; Kennedy favors a medical-care-for-the-aged program linked to Social Security, and Nixon has a different plan.

Besides such obvious, much-discussed differences, probably few voters today could recall many others, if any.

But all understand the greatest menace to the country is not internal but external — the threat of world communism — and the greatest problem over the next four years will be coping with it.

Since Nixon and Kennedy are in full agreement on the need for bucking communism, although perhaps differing on some details, they reduced the choice between them in voters' minds to this one question: Which could handle it better?

The whole campaign—despite everything else mixed up in it—revolved around that question. The candidates themselves made it their primary issue.

In the 1936 presidential race, when Franklin D. Roosevelt ran against Alfred M. Landon, the United States was still in isolation. World War II was still out of sight, and foreign problems were not the major issue.

That year it was a choice between going on with Roosevelt's New Deal, which had been an American social revolution, or turning the clock back with the Republicans headed by Landon.

It was different by 1940 when Republican Wendell L. Willkie ran against a third term for Roosevelt. The New Deal, for all practical purposes, had run its course two years before.

The passage of the wage-hour law with its 40-hour week in 1938 was the last big piece of New Deal legislation. By 1940 foreign affairs completely overshadowed anything else.

By the time of the presidential election that year the Nazis had started World War II and overrun Western Europe; this country had begun its defense program; had started its first peacetime draft; had come out of its ancient isolation by backing Britain and giving her 50 antique destroyers; and had become jittery about Japan.

Wilkie joined Roosevelt in backing the draft and aid for Britain. The only real question left for the voters was: Which could be trusted to lead better in the onrushing, dangerous years?

By 1944, with the country at war, no domestic problem could remotely match the question of the conduct of the war. All Gov. Thomas E. Dewey could offer was the idea he could do better.

The voters didn't think so. When Dewey ran again, this time against Harry Truman in 1948, a communist had emerged as a new danger—but this country still had the monopoly on the atomic bomb. There was not yet profound worry about Russia.

The uproar in the 1948 election was mostly domestic: inflation, the performance of what Truman called the Republican 80th "do-nothing" Congress, and his own achievements, or lack of them, in running the government at home.

But Dewey was no would-be wrecker of the New Deal. There was no profound difference between Truman and Dewey on the course of American life. So again it was a question of which man the voters had more confidence in.

There never seemed much doubt in 1952—with the country at war in Korea—that Dwight D. Eisenhower, the war hero, would win over Adlai E. Stevenson when the Korean War was the biggest issue.

When the two men met again (Continued on page five)

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS THE FUTURE FOR THE RACE She was sitting at the bar sipping an "old fashioned" as we went into the restaurant. When we emerged she was still at the bar, now laughing raucously and wise-cracking with the bartender.

She is a figure becoming all too familiar in these recent days. She is a barfly. It was dreadful in the old days—and still is—to see a man who has become so completely enslaved by his appetites that he must have a continual allowance of liquor to keep life in what he considers a satisfactory state. But the female barfly is an even more pathetic and revolting creature.

The so-called emancipation of womanhood led many women to try to imitate men in their vices as well as in their achievements. Fifty years ago the woman who drank hard liquor was almost nonexistent. Alcoholism is still more prevalent among men than among women, but the increase of this evil among drinking women is a terrifying reminder of what the future may hold for the nation. A drunken father can ruin a home, but a drunken mother can keep a home from coming into existence.

This is a much more serious problem than most people believe. If we think that it will all work out with the passing of time we are right—but it will not work out the way we want it. We cannot make evil customs bring forth wholesome life. Good does not grow out of evil nor evil out of good. Modern society may be facing unhappy days.

It Dragged For A While

And it was election time again. And, at the Reflector, it was election party time again. During the final hours before the polls closed and the vote count would begin coming in, the newspaper's staff scurried around setting things straight for the big night.

Shortly before 6:30 p.m., closing time for the polls, the Reflector office stood ready for what was sure to be a rapid barrage of phone calls reporting results in Pitt County's 25 precincts.

Before 7:30 there were two phone calls with precinct totals on the presidential voting. These were recorded, posted on the outdoor election scoreboard, and fed into the "mechanical marvel" for tabulation.

(It may be timely added here that the aforementioned "mechanical marvel" is a computing device, furnished by Carlton Taylor and the Burroughs Corp., that adorns the Reflector office on election nights. In addition to decoration, the mechanical marvel goggles up all the figures that come into the office and computes them into proper totals.)

But as 7:30 rolled around, activity began to drag. The near frenzy, built up during the long campaign and the short day, acquired by most participants and onlookers was apparently in for a let-down.

Everybody sat around waiting for the phone to ring again.

Then, suddenly, it broke wide open. The returns from Pitt were rolling in; state-wide returns from Pitt were rolling in; state-wide returns were steadily pouring in over the AP teletype; and a portable television set was reporting the nationwide votes running into the millions.

Maybe things weren't exactly normal, but everything was falling into the expected pattern and everybody was happy.

One of the characteristic features of election parties at the Reflector is the voice of J.H. Rose booming over the public address system.

Though there was no record throng in the cold street below, the announcer was undaunted. He announced Pitt County returns as they came in as well as state and national returns and apparent trends.

The major television networks had called on the services of electronic brain computers to discern the trends in voting to predict the presidential winner. And from time to time, predictions of that nature was being announced on TV.

Rose came up with a local prediction over the PA system. He reported the Burroughs machine had predicted Pitt County would fall into the Democratic column in both the gubernatorial and presidential races.

This, in itself, was quite a chore. But consider the circumstances. At the time of this prediction, returns had been reported from only 22 of the county's 25 precincts!

Some prediction.

Fantastic Sort Of 'Recession'

By ELMER RLESSNER The net income of 764 leading corporations in the third quarter of this year was $2,014,000,000, the First National City Bank of New York reports in its November newsletter.

That was 12 per cent less than the income for the second quarter: $2,298,000,000.

That would seem to lend color to the talk about the 1960 slump, wouldn't it?

It surely does—until you look at the net income for the third quarter of 1959. It was $1,861,000,000. A little calculation will show that the net income for the third quarter of this year was actually 8 per cent above a year ago.

Again: This is one of the most fantastic recessions we have ever had, one of those that is possible only in America.

will show some declines. However, it will probably show some rises. And the average level will probably be found higher than the level a year ago.

That leaves to questions: 1. How much of the recession talk echoed political thunderation?

2. Now that the campaign is over, will the Alice-in-Wonderland fade away like the Cheshire cat?

For answers, watch the routine statistics from Washington and the stock market quotations from New York for the next few weeks.

The First National City Bank figures, however, do show an unevenness in the economy. They show that the net income of the 764 firms in the first nine months of 1960 was $9,079,800,000, which was 2 per cent less than the $9,250,600,000 in the first nine months of 1959.

figures show that net income was declining during the "boom" in the first half of the year, and that it improved during the so-called recession in the third quarter.

The bank figures show that, in the first nine months of this year, the biggest gains over the same period in 1959, were made by a group of 23 mining and quarrying companies, up 13 per cent. Lesser gains were reported by 33 food and beverage corporations, 10 tobacco products companies, 33 drug, soap and cosmetics companies, 29 petroleum companies, 30 cement, glass, and stone companies, 36 trade corporations, 22 service and amusement companies, 60 electric power and gas companies and 3 telephone and telegraph companies.

The largest losses were suffered by 18 transportation equipment corporations not connected with the auto industry, down 76 per cent. These losses resulted from deficits in the second quarter; the 18 firms snapped back in the third quarter, ex-

Eaton Knows It All?

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1960 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Cyrus Eaton, who has designated himself as the greatest authority on all subjects, recently commented on the American press. He spoke in Ottawa, Canada, in connection with the Bonwaters Awards for Journalism. Cyrus Eaton prefers the Canadian press to the American, because he likes its objectivity. Nevertheless the entire Canadian press does not have the reportorial coverage in the world of one New York newspaper. "The New York Times," nor are its reporters equally trained. That is a matter of circulation and money, as well as of ability and experience. Objectivity if difficult to achieve for any human being because it requires not only knowledge but maturity and wisdom.

Eaton, who seems to dislike the United States where he earned his money and to adore Soviet Russia which gave him a troika of horses, has this to say:

"Journalism in the United States, I fear, has fallen to a comparatively low estate in its foreign coverage. Blind and unreasoning fear and hatred of Communism, on the part of press, public, and politician alike, have led to inadequate reporting of conditions and events in the socialistic countries, and to slanted editorial comment, as well."

This is literally untrue. The United States has, since 1917, the news and conditions of Soviet Russia, more fully and more objectively than any newspaper in Soviet Russia has covered the United States or, for that matter, Soviet Russia. Censorship controls every word in the Russian press. Our correspondents have come out of that country with a wealth of material which they managed to give their readers without the benefit of censorship. They had to leave Russia to do it.

Cyrus Eaton can neither read nor speak Russian or Polish. His ability to observe is therefore narrow. He can only know what his limited vision shows him or what an interpreter tells him. Yet he has the impudence to say:

"The socialistic nations simply does not match most of what I have been reading about them in the American press."

Were Cyrus Eaton a scholar or a worker, no one would pay the slightest attention to his irresponsible statements. He happens to be a rich man who speculated in iron, steel and railroads and won. Therefore undue attention is paid to his unsubstantiated remarks.

Suddenly this man who knows nothing about China beyond perhaps the flavor of chop suey denounces the free American press as a tool of the State Department because it does not permit American correspondents to visit Red China. He says nothing about an effort to arrange for American correspondents to visit Red China which Red China rejected. He says nothing about the brutality of Red China in the Korean War. He does Soviet Russia's and Red China's propaganda in this country and being a rich man, he is unpaid and therefore does not have to register as a foreign agent.

He said: "The American press has, with a few rare exceptions, displayed itself as (at its inflammatory and sensational worst) in its coverage of the Fifteenth General Assembly of the United Nations. Distortion and misrepresentation have reached new peaks in the reporting, cartoons and editorials accorded the presence in New York of the Communist leaders who have been a small part of the largest gathering of heads of government in history!"

Eaton is referring to the vicious attempt of Khrushchev to hold a Summit Conference of his own devising in New York. This was when Khrushchev pounded tables, took off his shoe in public, generally acted as a hooligan to the embarrassment of the entire world. Cyrus Eaton liked that. It amused him. He enjoyed the insults hurled at the country of his citizenship. He was running a foreign policy all on his own. Not the President, not the Secretary of State, not the

Puerto Rico Voters Ignore Churchmen's Instructions

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Puerto Rico's predominately Roman Catholic voters rejected the instructions of their bishops and re-elected Gov. Luis Munoz Marin by a landslide in final unofficial returns today.

Munoz Marin, himself a Catholic, captured 456,317 votes to 325,737 for his three opponents. He won his fourth term as head of this U.S. commonwealth island.

The results of the record poll were a sharp rebuff to the island's three Roman Catholic bishops, who in pastoral letters had warned that a vote for Munoz Marin's Popular Democrats would be a sin because the party did not oppose birth control.

By re-electing Munoz Marin, the voters also approved Puerto Rico's continuance as a commonwealth under the American flag.

Luis Ferré, the Republican candidate, who campaigned for Puerto Rican statehood, was outdistanced almost 2-1. Ferré received 250,638 votes.

Salvador Perea, the Christian Action party candidate backed by the Catholic hierarchy, and Julio Garcia Diaz of the Independence party ran far behind.

Perea received 51,072 votes. Diaz, who campaigned for independence from the United States, got 24,047.

By failing to get 10 per cent of the vote, both the Christian Action and Independence parties lost their registration as political organizations and the right to proportional representation in the legislature. The Catholic party was making its first race.

The legislature will continue to be dominated by the Popular Democrats, who have no official link with the mainland Democratic party. The Republicans are affiliated with the Republican party in the United States.

Puerto Rico, as a commonwealth, does not vote in the U.S. presidential elections. It also pays no U.S. taxes.

Better than 83 per cent of the 937,531 registered voters turned out to choose the governor and legislature. The island is 90 per cent Catholic.

In a victory statement, the 64-year-old Munoz Marin, who has been governor since 1948, thanked the voters for their "generous expression of confidence in the face of such aggression."

Kennedy Assured Of 5 Alabama Electoral Votes

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—The Democrats won control of Alabama's 11 electoral votes in Tuesday's presidential election, but only 5 of them are assured for Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Returns from 1,725 boxes out of 3,293 gave the top Democratic candidate 173,000 votes and the front-running Republican 117,765.

The tabulation included virtually complete votes from Montgomery, which went Republican, and Mobile, where the Democrats were leading.

GOP candidates also held the lead on partial returns from Jefferson county.

All three of the state's largest counties voted Republican in 1956. Alabama voters also reelected Democrat John Sparkman to the U.S. Senate over Republican Julian Elgin.

In the elector race, the best showing by a Republican candidate was far below the smallest vote cast for a Democrat.

In a pastoral letter on Oct. 30 Archbishop James P. Davis of San Juan, Bishop James E. McManus of Ponce and the titular Bishop of Lares, Luis Aponte Martinez, attacked the Popular Democrats for laws permitting sterilization of mental defectives and teaching of birth control in this densely populated island, for tolerating common law marriages and for refusing to sponsor legislation to give school children time off for religious instructions.

The prelates said the party policies clashed with the Ten Commandments and substituted the morality of a popular majority for the morality of God.

Munoz Marin declared the letter was an intervention in politics that represented "the gravest danger to liberty on this island since Christopher Columbus discovered Puerto Rico."

In 1956 there was no great domestic issue. There was just one that towered above all others: the encroachments of communism. Since Eisenhower and Stevenson, like Nixon and Kennedy, agreed it had to be stopped, their only difference was on details.

This again brought the contest between them down to a question of leadership.

The time has come to look into this man, to see what forces have twisted him into a Soviet propagandist. If he does not like this kind of journalism, I do not like his lying, his insulting my country, his abuse of the freedom of American citizenship. I do not like the Eaton fellow at all, and the time has come to say so out loud.

Election Impact Isn't Felt Yet By Business

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Businessmen are sizing up the election results today. But except for some impressionable stock traders, most observers think whatever real effect there will be on the business climate is months away. The winner's policies, as distinct from campaign promises, are yet to take concrete form. And even after the new occupant of the White House has made these clear, most of them will still be up for the Congress to decide whether they will or won't become realities.

The stock market's reaction for a few days will tell a lot about what some traders think is in store.

But the history of the market's initial reflexes to election returns hasn't been impressive. In almost all instances it has been short-lived—reflecting the enthusiasm of partisans of the winning side and the gloom and doom feelings of partisans of the losing side. Usually the market has resumed quickly the course it already was taking.

Actual business conditions and prospects will count more the rest of this year than will guesses as to what the new administration may do—either to spur industry or to enact policies it considers restrictive.

Even guesses as to whether a sound dollar or more inflation is in store will remain just that for some time—mere guesses.

Remember it is President Eisenhower who will deliver the State of the Union message next January. He will present the next budget to the new Congress. And while he is expected to consult his successor on the new budget, it's unlikely that President Eisenhower will propose any expenditures of which he strongly disapproves.

They would have to wait until late in January at the earliest. The incoming president has made it plain he expects to spend more money than the present one. Businessmen have already discounted this in advance, noting that in their campaign speeches both candidates had taken this stand.

The Federal Reserve Board has been moving since March — and especially in recent weeks — to make credit plentiful and interest rates lower. The U.S. Treasury, as a sort of counterbalance, has taken steps of late to keep short-term interest rates stable — and thus to retard the flow of U. S. dollars and gold abroad to more lucrative investment markets.

Moves to protect the dollar's stability already are under way. It will be some time before new administration policies could change this trend.

And international bankers note that both candidates during the closing weeks of the campaign promised, at least, to work for a sound dollar.

So the incoming president is pledged to be as much against inflation as he is against sin. The measures that will make or break his pledge are yet to be spelled out concretely.

Argentine Girl Is 'Miss World'

LONDON (AP) — A 21-year-old brunette beauty from Buenos Aires won the Miss World title Tuesday night. She said that being a woman, she'd probably spend the prize money for clothes. Norma Gladys Cappagli, measuring 36-23-36, was chosen over girls representing 38 other countries. "I'm just too astonished, and so, so happy," she gasped, blinking into the flash bulbs of photographers.

As first prize Miss Cappagli, a model, received 500 pounds ($1,400) and a sports car, but that was only the beginning. "Winning this contest can earn a girl 10,000 pounds ($20,000) in all the advertising and extras," a contest official explained.

Miss United States, Judith Ann Achter of St. Louis, was fifth.

Skinner grinned and slapped his leg. "By golly, you ain't as blind as I thought. Yet, you saw blood all right. Some brave put a 44 into her, or an arser, then broke it off feelin' fer the life."

Skinner wrestled the handcar of the rails, they walked down a ways to where Emil Kildeen had set up headquarters. "When he saw them he made a surprised face, then took Holliday inside his tent and waved him in to a folding chair. Already a line of poles was stretching southwest and the wagons were coming and going regularly; Kildeen was working three shifts around the clock."

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)

The U.N. Credentials Committee was expected to recommend today that Congo President Joseph Kasavubu be seated in the General Assembly as his chaotic young nation's representative. Kasavubu still faced a battle in the General Assembly, which must approve the committee's action. The nine-nation Soviet bloc and at least eight Asian and African nations were spearheading a move to give U.N. recognition to Kasavubu's chief rival, deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Congo, said only the Congo's chief of state has the right to nominate the nation's representatives to the assembly.

To loud applause from most members except the Soviet bloc and the Asian-African group supporting Lumumba, Kasavubu said his delegation would include representatives of all Congolese factions, including the rebellious provinces of Katanga and Kasai. (later a group calling itself the Katanga Information Service said Katanga Foreign Minister Everist Kimba had turned down the president's invitation to join the delegation.)

Kasavubu here from Leopoldville. He was also foreign minister under Lumumba although the two never got along.

Kasavubu was quickly denounced by Ismael Toure of Guinea as a tool of Western colonialist and imperialist powers.

"His speech was drafted in Paris and Brussels," Toure declared. "We know who was behind this and that the aim was not honorable. This hoodwinks no one."

Guinea is one of the eight Asian and African nations sponsoring a resolution to have the assembly recognize the rival delegation representing Lumumba.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin also threw his support behind the resolution to seat Lumumba. He asserted that Kasavubu did not come to the United Nations with the mandate of the gation. Bomboko accompanied Congo people.

The Credentials Committee is made up of Costa Rica, Haiti, Morocco, New Zealand, the Philippines, Spain, Soviet Union, the United Arab Republic and the United States. Only three of the nine nations—Russia, the U.A.R. and Morocco—are known supporters of Lumumba.

English Exorcist Is Discussed At College

John Darrell, English minister and exorcist in the late Sixteenth Century, and some of his famous cases involving witchcraft and possession were discussed by Dr. Corinne Rickert before the College Lecture Club at East Carolina Monday, Nov. 7. Dr. Rickert, director of closed-circuit television at the college, was the second speaker on a series of lectures by faculty members scheduled for the 1960-1961 term.

In recounting Darrell's experiences with "possessed" people, Dr. Rickert pointed out the general acceptance in his day, by both the educated and the uneducated, of witchcraft and the commonly held belief in possession.

Her paper traced Darrell's services as an exorcist in the cases of Thomas Darling, youth who accused two women of bewitching him; of the Lancashire Seven, members of the household of Nicholas Starkey, who were possessed; and of William Sommers and his sister Mary Cooper of Nottingham.

As a result of the last case, Darrell, Dr. Rickert said, was tried for fraud before an ecclesiastical court; imprisoned for a number of years and stripped of his ministry; and then presumably released. Shakespeare in "King Lear" gives evidence in the list of devils recited by Edgar of having read a work by Samuel Harsnet published in 1603 and dealing with the Darrell case, the speaker pointed out.

Dr. Rickert's study of exorcism gave various sidelights on the period, including antagonism toward the Puritans, with whom Darrell may have been connected, and Elizabethan court procedures. Dr. Rickert, who holds the Ph.D. degree from the Shakespeare Institute, University of Birmingham, England, became interested in Darrell while studying abroad. Her talk was based on investigations of the county records of Lancashire and research in the British Museum, Lambeth Palace, the Bodleian Library at Oxford, and elsewhere.

Commission Will Enforce Law

The 1960-61 North Carolina goose hunting season opened this morning and the Hyde County controversial, concerning its 4 p.m. shooting curfew, remains as the number one topic among hunters.

And the Wildlife Resources Commission says it will have no choice but to enforce the law.

A Hyde County delegation appeared before the commission last week, requesting Wildlife Protectors be directed not to enforce the curfew which applies to the mainland section of the county around famed Lake Mattamuskeet. The commission replied it must enforce the law as long as it is on the books. And it will be on the books this season.

It is possible that it will be repealed by the 1961 General Assembly. It came up as an issue in the legislative primary campaign last spring. Both the county's representative and senator are on record of favoring its repeal.

The legislative session comes too late, however, for the repeal to affect this season.

New Decoy For The Ducks

Duck hunters play a game called outsmarting the smart duck. Ducks have become so clever they avoid a dumb duck decoy.

Some 30 years ago a duck hunter could use live duck decoys. But game laws outlawed such practices. The hunters turned to wood-carved decoy.

Now comes a decoy that automatically flaps its wings.

Such a device was devised by Frank Benedetto of Chicago. Ben L. Boalt of Cedarburg, Wis. produced it.

A wire frame is placed in the ground, water or ice. A line attached to the mechanism is pulled by a hunter in a blind. This flaps the wings.

On water, the decoy is anchored. Motion of the water causes the wings to move.

Boalt says the decoy is effective on ice when ordinary laundry bluing is spilled on the ice and scuffed with a foot to spread it into a circular pattern about 10 feet in diameter. This gives the appearance of an open water hole. The decoy is set in the center with a few conventional decoys spread around it.

Good Reading For Outdoorsmen

A couple of new books have been published by the Sportsmen's Service Bureau, a non-profit trade association. They are "How You and Your Friends Can Start A Gun Club" and "Shooting Preserve Management."

The first is a 24-page booklet and is well illustrated and covers such subjects as cost of starting a gun club, type of land needed, obtaining membership, shooting games, layouts for trap and skeet, special events and operating tips.

The latter is a 96-page book written mainly for people interested in opening a preserve, either private or for the public. It has chapters on pheasant, quail, mallards, hunter management, feed and cover, preserve dogs and many other subjects.

Both books are available by writing the bureau at 250 S. 43rd St., New York 17, N.Y. and enclosing fifty cents.

Offense Leader Down From Past

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the 1960 major college football season heading into the homestretch, only two teams are even close to the total offense figure that has been standard for champions for nearly 20 years.

Latest figures from the NCAA Service Bureau show that for seven games New Mexico State has averaged 394.6 yards by running and passing, Memphis State 384.5

for eight games. For the past 19 years, every total offense champion has averaged at least 400 yards a game. In the same way, only New Mexico State, with 38.9 points a game, and Memphis State, with 31.1, are scoring above the 30-point average attained by every major college scoring champion since 1939.

BOAT SAFETY VIOLATORS

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — Game wardens who patrol the Catawba River, boundary of North Carolina and South Carolina, enforcing boating safety and registration laws, are tired of being outrun by larger, faster boats. The wardens, who use outboards, say some violators speed to sanctuary across the South Carolina line. "At night, they just crank up and take off when they see our red lights," one warden complained.

Blue Devils Drill For Passing Attack Of Snead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Virginia's trio of quarterbacks, Gary Cuozzo, Arnold Dempsey and Stan Fischer, sharpened their passing eyes Tuesday as the Cavaliers readied an aerial game for powerful Navy.

It will be the 19th meeting between the two schools and Virginia, winless (0-6) Atlantic Coast Conference team, hasn't won from the Middles in the past half century. The last of Virginia's two wins in the series came in 1909, 6-0.

Coach Dick Voris, realizing that any chance the Virginians have of keeping in the game hinges on holding Navy's vaunted halfback, Joe Bellino, at least partially in check. To this end, the Cavaliers worked Tuesday at getting the line organized to stop Bellino.

Duke's Blue Devils, ranked No. 7 in the nation by the Associated Press, concentrated on pass defense. A win Saturday over Wake Forest would give the Blue Devils (4-0 and 6-1) at least a tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference championship. However, Coach Bill Murray isn't taking Wake's 1-5 record for granted, pointing to the Deacons' great passer, Norman Snead.

Wake Forest, meanwhile, worked at setting its defenses and improving its offenses.

The Maryland team, which was given a break from the grind Monday, returned to the practice field Tuesday. The Tar Heels, 1-6 on the season, had Jim Shumate operating at right tackle in place of the injured Ben Gallapier.

North Carolina State, No. 2 in the ACC with a 4-1 record and 6-2 overall, polished its ever potent passing attack behind the firing of quarterback Roman Gabriel.

And down in South Carolina, two of the ACC's most fierce rivals, the Gamecocks of South Carolina and Clemson, worked hard at getting set for their Saturday game.

Coach Warren Giese began contact work for the South Carolina team. And over at Clemson, Frank Howard had a few choice words about the game. Said Howard:

"I look for those Gamecocks to come in here rarin' and ready and we gotta be the same way... except a little more so."

Eagles Capture Victories In Opening Games

BELVOIR—Willie Wallace and Harold Harris collaborated with some hot shooting last night to bounce Belvoir-Falkland past Walsenburg, 67-41.

In the girl's game, which was the opener for both teams, the Eagles rallied in the final half, outscoring Walsenburg 11-5 in the final quarter, to come away with a 31-30 victory.

Coach Dan Wooten, mixing reserves with his starters throughout the game, saw his cagers break loose for a close first quarter to completely outclass their visitors in the final three periods.

Wallace topped the scoring for the winners with 15 points and Harris was a close second, tallying 12.

Newborn was high for Walsenburg with 12 points.

Phyllis Nichols bucketed 16 points in the girl's contest, leading the B-F second half surge, for high honors. Carol Harris had 10. Adcock of Walsenburg matched Nichols in game honors with 16 points.

Belvoir-Falkland will open action within the county Friday night in a home game against Bethel. It will be "homecoming" for Eagle alumni.

No Interceptions Against Plum

NEW YORK (AP) — Milt Plum of the Cleveland Browns threw his 99th pass of the season without an interception last Sunday and held his place as No. 1 passer in the National Football League. But teammate Jimmy Brown bounced back off the New York Giants defensive platoon too often and dropped from first to third in rushing.

Plum, the Browns quarterback held the top spot for the third straight week. He has completed 68 out of 99 attempts, and has gained a total of 1,075 yards and passed for eight touchdowns.

When Cleveland was limited to six yards net on the ground by the Giants, Brown was passed by Jim Taylor of Green Bay and John Crow of St. Louis. Taylor has gained 540 yards on 128 attempts. Crow 524 yards and Brown 521. Brown has the best average of the three, 5.5 yards a carry.

Howie Nunn, bespectacled 24-year-old who pitched three shutouts for Jersey City last season, will get a thorough trial with Cincinnati next spring. He had a 12-6 record and a 2.11 earned run mark.

Pirate Of The Week

SONNY BAYSINGER ... sparkles in defeat

Standing out like a "sore thumb" in East Carolina's 17-0 defeat by Lenoir Rhyne Saturday was senior halfback Sonny Baysinger.

Thus, the Concord native won "Pirate of the Week" honors for the second time this season. He was named for the same honor after triggering a 28-0 victory over Catawba in the third game of the campaign.

Saturday, Sonny was the top ground gainer in EC's infantry attack which drained the Lenoir Rhyne defense for 224 yards. He carried 10 times and gained 66 yards.

On the first play following the kickoff, Sonny raced 28 yards to set EC on a drive that bogged down within the Lenoir Rhyne 15.

The fleet little halfback, who has captured the admiration of football fans this fall, also drew laurels for his defensive play.

Coach Frank Madigan, EC assistant, cited this morning that the films of the game indicated Baysinger played one of his best games this season.

Regarded as a starting halfback since the graduation of James Speight, the 165 pounder has projected himself into the role of an All-Conference candidate.

Excelling in every phase of the game, Sonny appears to be one of the strongest backfield candidates in the conference for post-season honors.

Saturday, he will be at a starting halfback slot when the Buccaneers attempt to snap a two-game losing skid and gain their seventh triumph, hosting Presbyterian.

NEW SWIMMING COACH LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP)—Ray G. Chinn, former physical education instructor at Northwestern State College, Alva, Okla., has been appointed swimming coach at the University of Wyoming. Chinn, 35, succeeds Dave Glander, who resigned after five years to accept a similar position at Los Angeles State College.

When Yogi Berra singled with the bases loaded in the second World Series game in Pittsburgh it marked his seventh hit in 12 trips to the plate against Clem Labine in World Series competition.

UCLA's Kilmer Is Back Of The Week

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS For the second time this season, Bill Kilmer, who plays tailback in UCLA's single-wing formation, has been named the Associated Press back of the week for doing everything a tailback is supposed to do.

Kilmer, who runs, passes, kicks and confuses the opposition by faking one of these maneuvers and performing another, was first named for his feats against Purdue in the second game of the season. He was named again today for an even more impressive performance in last Saturday's 28-0 victory over California.

Bill, a 186-pound senior from Azusa, Calif., figures it was his best day.

Kilmer barely beat out Ed Dvas, Auburn's record-smashing place kicker, on the basis of recommendations of sports writers and broadcasters.

Here's what Kilmer did, playing only three quarters of the game: Set up all four UCLA touchdowns, scoring two himself on short line smashes.

Passed and ran for 225 yards for a six-game average of 191 yards a game. Gained 109 yards on 16 running attempts and completed 8 of 11 passes for 116 yards.

Got off a quick kick of 73 yards from scrimmage and completed a couple of long passes on fake kick maneuvers.

Dvas broke one NCAA record and tied another when he kicked two field goals against Mississippi State and barely missed another when his 49-yard effort bounced off the crossbar. His nine field goals for the season established a record, and his career total of 13 tied the NCAA mark.

The Auburn fullback also scored two touchdowns on runs of 22 and 52 yards, set up another with a 25-yard run, caught a pass for 16 yards and kicked three extra points. That was a 21-point performance in a 27-12 victory.

Others nominated for back of the week included Roman Gabriel, North Carolina State; George Fleming, Washington; Dave Grosz, Oregon; Jerry Gross, Detroit; Tommy Mason, Tulane; Norman Snead, Wake Forest; Ernie Davis, Syracuse; Kenny Wolfe, Yale; Al Rushatzky, Army; Tom Wilson, Michigan State; Dave Hoppmann, Iowa State; Mickey Cassell, Arkansas; Glen

Lenoir Rhyne Back In First

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Lenoir Rhyne College of Hickory, N.C., bounded back into the top spot in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics football rankings this week. The Bears (8-0) replaced Southern Illinois, which had taken over two weeks ago from Lenoir Rhyne.

Southern Illinois dropped its first game of the season to rugged Bowling Green (Ohio) State last weekend.

Florida A&M University (6-0), which had scored 404 points in six games and is only 53 away from an all-time NAIA scoring record, zoomed into second.

Humboldt (Calif.) State's 8-0 record is good for third, with Southern Illinois holding down fourth with a 7-1 record.

Clemson Pick To Edge Gamecocks; UNC, Lose

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Who says political forecasters are the only ones who have trouble with close November contests? In 56 college football decisions last week this corner sank to a 17-year low and was right only 32 times. That's an average of 57. The seasonal record now is 282-105-730.

Ohio State over Iowa: Hawkeyes have the support of their own fans plus the incentive of trying to give coach Evashevski a victory in his first home game. But Ohio State has Tom Matte and Bob Ferguson. They are more important. This one is on TV.

Minnesota over Purdue: The fictional Tom Brown went to Rugby and Oxford, but Purdue will become the eighth team this season to learn there is nothing fictional about the Tom Brown who anchors the Minnesota line.

Tennessee over Mississippi: The blue-plate special upset of the week. Tennessee's homecoming game.

Washington over California: The Huskies are headed for the Rose Bowl designation.

Duke over Wake Forest: If Duke wins, the Blue Devils are the Atlantic Coast Conference champs.

Navy over Virginia: The Cavaliers are the losing team in college football. Joe Bellino adds another setback to their string.

Pittsburgh over Army: The Panthers probably are the best team in the East—and quite likely have been all season despite their 4-2-2 record.

Baylor over Southern California: They have a different type of sunshine in Texas.

Yale over Princeton: The championship of the venerable Big Three goes to the winner; probably the Ivy League title as well.

Picking the others:
FRIDAY NIGHT
San Jose over Fresno State, Virginia Tech over George Washington, Wichita over Drake.

SATURDAY
East: Boston College over Boston Univ., Dartmouth over Cornell, Rutgers over Delaware, Harvard over Brown, Lehigh over Davidson, Penn State over Holy Cross, Pennsylvania over Columbia. Syracuse over Colgate, Detroit over Villanova.

South: The Citadel over VMI, Clemson over South Carolina, Houston over Florida State, Florida over Tulane, Georgia Tech over Alabama, Kentucky over Xa-

Midwest: Illinois over Wisconsin, Iowa State over Kansas State, Kansas over Colorado, Cincinnati over Marquette, Nebraska over Oklahoma State, Tulsa over North Texas State.

Southeast: Rice over Texas A&M, Texas Christian over Texas. Far West: North Carolina State over Arizona State, Denver over Brigham Young, Oregon over West Virginia, Oregon State over Stanford, Utah over Montana, Utah State over College of Pacific.

When Mickey Mantle homered in the second game of the 1960 World Series it marked the seventh straight World Series in which he has hit at least one homer.

Coach Unhappy With Record Of William & Mary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Personable Mill Drewer of William & Mary won't qualify as the most successful coach in Southern Conference football this season, but he thinks he's probably the most mystified.

The mystery for Drewer is why his Indians, now 2-6 for the autumn, haven't done better. He'd thought he had a winner until W and M fell into the throes of a losing streak that presently stands a five games.

The Indians looked fearsome on offense while scoring 104 points in their first four games. Since then they've scored a grand total of just eight in their last four starts.

"Mistakes have killed us—the inexcusable kind we thought we had too much experience to commit," he said.

Drewer devoutly hopes the offense will catch fire this week, for he sees it as the Indians' only hope in a game at Vanderbilt.

At Lexington, VMI drilled on a review of fundamentals. As the freshmen and the varsity second unit executed the Citadel formations, backs and linemen went through offense and defensive maneuvers. The Keydet traveling squad leaves Friday for Charleston, S.C., accompanied by the VMI regimental band.

Gloom spread across the University of Richmond campus with the news that starting halfback Art D'Arrigo will drop out of school. According to Coach Ed Merrick, D'Arrigo is leaving "for personal reasons."

Still buoyant after Saturday's upset win over VPI, Davidson's Wildcats Tuesday worked on defenses for their coming game with Lehigh. Jennings Snider, senior defensive end, suffered a badly gashed hand in the practice drill.

Evashevski: Don't Believe Grid Critics

By FOREST EVASHEVSKI

Iowa Football Coach

(Written for the Associated Press)

Don't believe some of the critics who are long on lungs and short on knowledge: College football in 1960 does not need to apologize for any aspect of it.

It is well-regulated and administered, a healthy rallying point for students, a tie between the alumni and their alma mater and a Saturday afternoon outlet for the public.

Because a young man is a good football player he can earn a scholarship which might not otherwise be available to him. Football, therefore, provides his means of securing a college education.

Eligibility regulations are a motivating factor in causing the player to improve his grade-point average. If he wants to play, of course, he must achieve the necessary standards and so he must exert himself mentally more than the average student.

The approach to the game is more thorough and scientific than ever before. Our coaching staffs are meticulous in preparation of the players. The game has become so complex that a player must keep mentally alert if he is to master the various situations.

Because of the impact of television and radio, more people than ever before are college football-conscious. Seeing it or listening to it, they become attracted and the next move is to be present at the game itself.

Equipment companies are constantly making improvement in their products. This serves to reduce injuries.

Sometimes it seems strange that it has become fashionable to criticize football. Unfortunately, most of these critics do not bother to recognize the true facts. There are many cases where the critic actually has an ax to grind, makes no pretense of being fair and is

Joe Adcock, veteran first baseman, led the Milwaukee Braves in batting with a .298 mark during the past season.

Simas Counts On Roofing Section

ARCATA, Calif. (AP)—Manuel

(Big Daddy) Simas, standout 264-pound tackle for the undefeated and untied Humboldt State College Lumberjacks, counts on a personal roofing section — his wife and seven children.

A pizza cook, mill worker, bartender and one-time band leader, Big Daddy attends college at the age of 29 because he wants to become a teacher.

"A good education is the only security," declares Manuel, who daily must study, work and find time for football since Humboldt has no athletic scholarships. Currently he puts in 48-hour working week as a bartender.

It isn't easy to keep playing football. A few weeks ago the Lumberjacks were scheduled to play a Friday night game against the Cal Aggies at Davis.

Simas worked the night shift Thursday, slept three hours and drove his own car to catch up with the team at its luncheon stop. He played the game, and then drove back home to be ready for work at 10 a.m. after a round trip of about 600 miles.

He and his 105-pound wife, Jean provide a comfortable home for their brood. There are David Manuel, 11; Diana Marie, 10; Dennis Michael, 9; Donald Mark, 7; Douglas Matthew, 6; Daniel Marvin, 5; and Debra Marie, 3.

Simas has proved himself versatile. At school he majors in speech and foreign languages and for a living the 5-foot-11 grinner has been most everything from a cook to a bandleader, playing the saxophone and clarinet.

PLAN NEW SUN BOWL

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Plans are in the works for a new 30,000 seat Sun Bowl stadium but Texas' oldest post-season football classic will be at the same old stand on Dec. 31. The Sun Bowl is the third oldest football bowl game in the nation.

Scouts, Recruits Will Be Guests

Boy and Explorer Scouts in the Pitt Division who have recruited new members since September 1, and the new recruits, will be the guests of A. and T. College at Greensboro Saturday for the football game between A. and T. College and Virginia State.

Local Scout officials requested that leaders notify the East Carolina Council office in Wilson of the number of boys and leaders who will attend the game.

One adult leader will be admitted free for each five boys, it was noted.

Ex-Governor Jarvis Set A Standard For City Schools

Next To Kennedy, Warmest Salutes Usually Accorded Lyndon Johnson

By JULES LOH
AP Staff Writer

A surprisingly boisterous chorus of "A-plate cheers erupted one night last spring when a special guest was introduced to a ballroom crowd of Connecticut Democrats.

Not completely startled by the enthusiasm, the master of ceremonies leaned toward Lyndon B. Johnson and whispered: "Next to Jack Kennedy, you've got the warmest response."

Today—next to Jack Kennedy—Lyndon Baines Johnson of Texas has the highest honor his countrymen can bestow, election to the vice presidency.

He steps into a post raised to political eminence, ironically, by the man he will succeed, Richard M. Nixon.

If there was any doubt of the newfound political significance of the vice president's chair it was buried quietly last summer in a Los Angeles hotel room when Johnson left at the gate in his bid for the presidency, agreed to run for the second spot.

As Senate majority leader he wielded great power on Capitol Hill, and Lyndon Johnson is not one to settle for a lesser role.

Johnson's legislative wizardry is well established. His lapel-to-lapel courtroom tactics ranged from classroom logic, "he once was a school teacher," to unmasked "torroiling" the was chair-hunt up between a rock and a hard place, there's always an earthy epigram handy that likely is not his granddaddy imparted to him when Lyndon was just a boy, down yonder in the Pedernales River.

The 6-foot-3 Texan comes by the knack naturally. He was born in Texas hill country Aug. 27, 1908, into a family of modest means but rich political heritage.

Both his father and granddaddy served in the Texas Legislature, but it was not until Lyndon had satisfied a teen-age fling for adventure with a hitchhiking jaunt to California that he settled on a political course for himself.

After a heart-to-heart talk with his father, Lyndon borrowed $75 and set out for Southwest Texas State Teachers College at San Marcos. He graduated in 1930 and returned later as a teacher.

In 1937 Johnson ran for Congress and won over nine opponents by singing loudly a New Deal theme that won the attention of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. "He was like a daddy to me," said Johnson.

Roosevelt encouraged the ambitious Texan to try for the Senate in a special 1941 election to fill an unexpired term. Johnson lost by a slim margin, but won the seat in 1948 by an even slimmer one—87 votes.

Already politically acute, Johnson opened a speech shortly after the 1948 victory with a grin and announcement: "Well, here I am — landslide Lyndon."

Johnson's most serious political setback actually was a physical one—from which his doctors say he has recovered completely—his severe heart attack of July 2, 1955.

Lady Bird and Lady Bird she became, even to her listing in the Congressional Directory. Johnson has pledged he will be "a working vice president." Intimates find it hard to visualize him as anything else.

He once said he seldom thought of politics "more than 18 hours a day before, a blue one and a brown one. "Tell the tailor to go ahead with the blue one," he said or his wife. "We can use it no matter what happens." Much has been made over Johnson's affection for his initials, a quirk his critics call vanity.

LBJ stands for every member of the Johnson family including Little Beagle Johnson, the dog, and the initials are carved, embroidered, embossed or branded on everything in sight both in his Senate office and on his LBJ Ranch at Johnson City, Tex.

Johnson shrugs off the criticism. "This way," he says, "we all can use the same luggage." Actually his wife of 26 years was christened Claudia Alta Taylor. A Negro nurse nicknamed her day, and many still recall his terse explanation of why he agreed to run for the vice presidency: "I want to serve and to serve well," he said. "I will leave it to my fellow Democrats, my fellow Americans, to determine what will be the title on my door."

getting information, but a study finds white collar workers, including executives, are only 25 per cent efficient in listening.

When company directors send down messages, vice-presidents were found to understand 67 per cent of what was said, general supervisors understood 56 per cent, foremen 30 per cent, and workers less than 20 per cent of what was really said.

Turkey Comeback? Wild Turkeys once roamed America from New England to Florida, west to the Mississippi and even beyond. Hunted, driven out as trees were felled, they now are confined to strongholds in dense brakes and swamps of Southern states. But reforestation of farmed-out lands in the north may offer a new haven and comeback for this native bird.

Dean Amadon writes in Natural History magazine. Guiding Lamp On the dark ocean bottom rests a fish with a lamp inside its mouth and its mouth wide open. Other fishes or organisms attracted by the light fall prey to its large, sharp teeth.

Snail's Pace Clocking snails, a scientist found the slowest one moved only 1/2 inch per minute. It would thus take the critter 88 days and nights to cover one mile.

Slug, or shell-less snail, was the real speedster among 16 North American snails and slugs clocked by John Oughton at the Royal Ontario Museum of Zoology, Canada. It covered 20 inches a minute. The average speed for all 16 was 6 1/2 inches per minute.

Darkest Star What may be the darkest star ever observed—two millionths as bright as the sun—is reported by Dr. W. J. Luyten of the University of Minnesota.

He discovered it while examining a pair of photographic plates made at Mount Palomar. One plate, sensitive to red light, shows a star of about 20 1/2 visual magnitude, below the brightness visible to the unaided eye. The plate sensitive to blue light shows no star at all in that same region.

AS LEGEND HAS IT BUCYRUS, Ohio (AP) — Eight miles north of here is a village of 115 persons with the Western-sounding name of Broken Sword. According to legend, the village got its name after a soldier stuck his sword in the ground and broke the blade to keep it from the hands of Indians about to capture him.

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

"Intelligence and virtue mark the standing of any people in the State and Nation, and I would therefore urge the people to press the education of their children far beyond anything heretofore attempted."

JUNIUS H. ROSE
Superintendent of Greenville City Schools

The above statement is from the will of ex-Governor Thomas J. Jarvis, who was the first chairman of the Greenville City Schools. Superintendent of City Schools J. H. Rose says that success and achievement in the school system now is partially a result of the beliefs and foundation of Jarvis, who was a great believer in public education.

"The attitude of the city as a whole and the Board of Education reflects not only the belief of the early people in the matters of education, but also reflects the belief of present people and people throughout the years, namely, the schools should be operated for the best interest of the children," Rose has said.

Rose himself has been superintendent of the present school system for 40 years. Prior to that he was principal of Greenville High School, which since has been named for him, the Junius H. Rose High School.

It is generally known and felt that Greenville has one of the best school systems in the state, though it is a small town in comparison to Charlotte, Raleigh, Winston-Salem and Greensboro.

This fact is backed up and based on fact. The fact is that Greenville is one of the highest percentages of 1959 Rose High School graduates in colleges, junior and senior—75 percent, to be exact. In addition, many more have entered trade and business schools and military service, with a grand total of 92.59 percent of 1959 Rose High graduates in some institution of higher learning, trade or professional school and in military service.

These figures are based on a state-wide "Follow-Up Survey of 1959 High School Graduates." An evaluation of the testing program in elementary and junior high grades, conducted each year by Mrs. Ellen Carroll, director of instruction, further attests to the high level of attainment students in the city school system are reaching.

Test results showed more than a year's growth in each grade. Median scores were above national norms in every instance. Scores were further above the national norms as the students progressed upward as follows: grade 3 was three months above; grade 4 was four months above; grade 5 was five months above; grade 6 was eight months above; grade 7 was 14 months above. The State Department of Public Instruction indicates that the results are unusual, Rose says.

Superintendent Rose himself attributes good schools here "mainly because of the kind of teachers we have, the types of students we have, and the homes from which they come."

"We believe in hard work and organization. We believe that hard work brings satisfaction to the pupil, the parent and the teacher," he says. And "We believe if we are going to spend the taxpayers' money we ought to see to it that the taxpayer gets value received."

As for training of the teachers in the city school system, there are 114 white teachers and 66 colored teachers, all of whom have an "A" certificate or better. Sixty of the white teachers have master's degrees and the other 54 have "A" certificates. Nine of the colored teachers have master's degrees and 54 have "A" certificates.

Rose gives much credit to the teachers for the success of the local school system. In addition to their training, "They are also conscientious teachers who never know when to stop work. When students are given three mental maturity tests in elementary grades 2, 4 and 7. Achievement tests are administered in grades 3-8 each spring. Following are results of testing in the spring of 1960, administered to approximately 3,800 students in the subject areas of reading, spelling, language, arithmetic, social studies, science and study skills.

In a campaign strongly influenced by the religious issue, Protestant Tennesseans refused for the second time in 32 years to give their support to a Catholic presidential candidate. Al Smith lost it in 1928 to Republican Herbert Hoover.

Democrat Sen. Estes Kefauver easily won re-election to a third term and Republican Rep. B. Carroll Reece was returned to Congress against token opposition. The state's other seven Democrats and one Republican congressman were unopposed.

Rightists Insist 'Retain Algeria' PARIS (AP)—Flying squads of motorcycle police Tuesday night scattered some 3,000 rightists angrily demanding that France retain Algeria.

Massive police reinforcements went into action when the demonstrators poured out of a Left Bank meeting hall and tried to march toward the student quarter. The demonstrators fled in all directions.

Other elements have contributed to the quality of education here. The presence of East Carolina College is a factor in building schools. "The very presence of the college puts emphasis on education," Rose says. College personalities have themselves participated in In-Service Teaching Training Programs and other problems.

Though the schools here are considered good, Rose says, "It is my feeling that schools can do more and must do more than they have been doing." He adds, "We try to look at what we are doing all the time to see what we can do better."

Books In Braille Made Lighter By New Process LONDON (AP)—A new process that halves the bulk and weight of Braille books and magazines has been announced by Britain's Royal National Institute for the Blind.

The patterns of dots for letters—which the blind read by touch—remain those invented in 1828 by Louis Braille. The secret of reducing size, weight and general bulk lies largely in the paper and the method of making the dots.

Until now the Braille alphabet has been embossed on special manila paper by distorting the fibres of the material to form raised, hollow dots. The new way is to bake solid dots of plastic ink on thin, strong paper.

The institute said the new process was solved after several years work. The breakthrough came when laboratory experts produced a paste-like plastic ink that could be impressed at tremendous heat and a paper that would not catch fire.

Magnate Died Of Barbiturates

CHELSEHAM, England, (AP)—Coroner K. O. Brooks told an inquest Tuesday that tractor magnate Harry Ferguson died from a massive overdose of barbiturate tablets while suffering from depression.

Brooks said, however, that there was no evidence to show whether the tablets were taken accidentally or suicidally. The jurors returned an open verdict.

Ferguson, 75, was found dead in his bath two weeks ago. His doctor, Michael King, said the industrialist had suffered in the past few years from a manic depressive condition which had become more severe lately.

John F. Kennedy Rode Some Rough Seas On His Way To White House

By JAMES DEVLIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

John F. Kennedy is a former naval officer who campaigned for the presidency on a theme of "anchors aweigh."

He likened the United States to a great ship lying at anchor and held that she should be sailing on to new frontiers—with Kennedy at the helm.

Kennedy rode some rough seas of his own in his drive for the White House, chiefly a bitter controversy as to whether the nation was ready for a Catholic president for the first time.

He also faced some objections to his youth—43 years—but this issue appeared to fade as the campaign wore on.

The trim, slim millionaire entered the campaign with a background as a war hero, a Pulitzer born in Brookline, Mass., a Boston suburb, on May 29, 1917.

His maternal grandfather, for whom he is named, John F. Fitzgerald, was mayor of Boston and a congressman.

His father, Joseph P. Kennedy, was ambassador to London, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and chairman of the Maritime Commission.

The elder Kennedy earlier had built up a fortune, through finance and business, that has been estimated unofficially at from 200 to 400 million dollars.

The boy was only nine years old when his father set up a million-dollar trust fund for him—as he did for each of the other eight Kennedy children.

Once, when questioned concerning his father's wealth, the younger Kennedy conceded drily: "He has some resources."

Kennedy was graduated cum laude from Harvard in 1940 and later attended the London School of Economics.

Also in 1940, he wrote "Why England Slept," an analysis of British thinking prior to World War II. He won the Pulitzer Prize for biography in 1957 for another book, "Profiles in Courage."

Kennedy got into the war as a junior grade naval lieutenant commanding a patrol boat in the South Pacific. A Japanese destroyer sliced through the small craft on Aug. 2, 1943. Two crewmen were lost.

Though he suffered a spinal injury, Kennedy led in rescue efforts among the survivors, towing one wounded man on a five-hour, three-mile swim to an island. The group was rescued five days later.

Kennedy won the Navy and Marine Corps medals and the Purple Heart.

His spinal injury eventually required two operations, one in 1945 and another in 1954, the latter requiring eight months convalescence.

The war and early postwar years were tragic ones for the Kennedy family.

The senator's brother, Joseph P. Jr., a military pilot, was killed in action on a volunteer mission over the English channel.

Their brother-in-law, the Marquess of Hartington, was killed in action in France only three months after marrying their sister, Kathleen.

A young widow herself was killed in a passenger airplane crash near Marseilles, France, in 1948.

At the end of the war, Kennedy decided to devote his time to public life.

He was elected to the House of Representatives in 1946 at the age of 29 and served three terms.

The Democrat attracted wide political attention in 1952 when he was elected senator. He beat Henry Cabot Lodge by 70,000 votes while Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower was taking Massachusetts by 210,000 votes.

Kennedy became better known nationally when he almost beat out the veteran campaigner, Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, for the vice presidential nomination in the 1956 Democratic National Convention.

The setback was fortunate for Kennedy, for if he had won the nomination on what proved to be a losing ticket his chances for the presidential nomination this year might have been lessened.

Kennedy bounced back from his 1956 experience by winning reelection as a senator in 1958 by almost 900,000 votes, the largest plurality ever in a Massachusetts senate race.

Then he sailed through seven successive state primaries on his way to the presidential nomination.

Kennedy and Jacqueline Bouvier, a member of a socially prominent Newport, R.I., family, were married in 1953. They have a daughter, Caroline, 3, and are expecting another child.

Alley Is Again Open To Traffic

AYDEN—The alley, which runs from West Avenue to Lee Street behind Third Street here, is now open to traffic. Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said yesterday.

Previously the alley had been closed to traffic for improvements. Dirt has been used to fill in at the present time. Later rock will be added and next spring paving will follow, Paylor said.

New York City's First Strike By Teachers Ended Day After Began

NEW YORK (AP)—The city's first teachers' strike ended Tuesday night, the day after it began.

Delegates of the striking United Federation of Teachers (UFT) voted at a closed meeting to accept an offer from the Board of Education to return to work.

The board, with the backing of Mayor Robert F. Wagner, had guaranteed that no reprisals would be taken against striking teachers—if they returned to work today.

The union also agreed to meet with three top labor leaders acting as intermediaries in the dispute.

The walkout started Monday when the UFT struck over demands for improved working conditions and other issues. About 250 of the city's 837 schools had been picketed. Some of the city's one million students refused to cross picket lines and there were reports of minor vandalism.

The UFT, which claims a membership of 10,000 among the city's 40,000 teachers, had asserted the strike was picking up momentum.

But the Board of Education, while admitting disruptions in operations, said all the schools had remained open and would continue to do so. Supervisory personnel had been pressed into service and classes doubled up.

About 600 delegates attended Tuesday night's meeting. UFT President Charles Cogen said the back-to-work vote had been overwhelming.

Wagner, on advice from the City Central Labor Council and George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, recommended these labor leaders as intermediaries in the dispute: David Dubinsky and Jacob Potofsky, vice presidents of the AFL-CIO, and Harry van Arsdale Jr., president of the City Central Labor Council.

Cogen, speaking for the UFT membership, said they are confident the three man committee would "make recommendations to the mayor and to the board which will recognize the justice of our demands and which will be beneficial to the entire teaching staff."

Earlier, Dr. John J. Theobald, superintendent of schools, in making his "no-reprisal" statement, reversed his suspension of all teachers participating in the walkout. Theobald had dismissed 4,600 teachers.

He also had threatened to invoke the state Condon-Wadlin Act, which prohibits strike by public employes on pain of automatic dismissal. The law has never been tested in New York City.

The Board of Education already has agreed in principle to lunch periods, more sick pay and higher salaries than the current off system and steps toward collective bargaining.

New Jersey Goes Into Demo Ranks

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy Tuesday became the third Democrat since 1900 to sweep New Jersey out of the Republican columns in presidential election voting.

Kennedy's expected margin of about 61,000 votes was exceeded, however, by Republican Sen. Clifford P. Case's smashing defeat of Democrat Thurn Lord to win reelection by some 125,000 votes.

Case moved far ahead of Vice President Richard M. Nixon in the Garden State and Lord trailed in the distance behind Kennedy.

Kennedy won despite a relatively poor showing in heavily Democratic and Catholic Hudson county where political boss Frank ("I am the law") Hague built an almost unbreakable machine.

Kennedy carried the county by 57,000 votes of 283,000 cast, far below the 2-1 majority predicted. But he more than made up for it with a surprising 50,000-plus edge in Essex county, where the suburban vote was not sufficient to offset returns from Newark.

Nixon came nowhere near amassing the landslide totals of President Eisenhower, who swept New Jersey in 1952 and 1956.

The GOP's banner county, Bergen, gave Nixon a fairly limp 64,000 majority. Eisenhower's 1956 winning margin in Bergen was 172,000—the largest of any county in the United States.

By JOHN CHADWICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — Solid Democratic majorities will control the Senate and the House when the 87th Congress convenes Jan. 3.

The Democrats quickly nailed down control of the Senate in Tuesday's election. And by 3 o'clock this morning, they had captured more than half the 437 House seats.

Nonetheless, with returns still incomplete, it appeared the Republicans had denied the top-heavy margins the Democrats held in the outgoing 86th Congress. In the Senate the old lineup was 66-34 and in the House 283-154.

With all of the Senate races settled except for a tight battle in Montana, the Republicans had picked up one seat in Delaware and another in Wyoming.

Sen. Karl Mundt, veteran South Dakota Republican, squeaked to victory over Rep. George McGovern, a Democrat who decided to give up his House seat to make the race for the Senate.

In Montana, Democratic Rep. Lee Metcalf and Republican former Rep. Owen B. Fiere were in a mid-and-tuck contest for the Senate seat being vacated by Sen. James E. Murray, D-Mont.

In the House, Republicans had gobbled up 18 seats held by Democrats but had lost 5 for a net gain of 13. In races still undecided, Democrats were ahead in 30 and Republicans in 27.

Over-all, however, the outlook was for a Congress similar in make-up and key figures to the one President Eisenhower had to deal with in the last two years of his administration.

Southern Democrats, most of whom supported Sen. John F. Kennedy even though strongly opposed to parts of the party platform, will continue to hold many of the committee chairmanships and be in position to team up with Republicans against legislation they dislike.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas won reelection to the Senate, but was prepared to resign to assume the vice presidency.

The Big Three in the House, Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., the majority leader, Rep. John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and the Republican leader, Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, all won reelection.

Another long familiar figure in the House, former Republican Speaker Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, won reelection after a tussle with his Democratic foe, Edward P. Doolan, Martin trailed in the early returns.

Most of the overtures in the House were at the expense of freshman Democrats swept into office in the 1958 Democratic landslide from normally Republican areas.

Republican gains were chalked up in Connecticut, Vermont, Indiana, Maryland, Colorado, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maine. The GOP lost seats in New York, New Jersey and Idaho.

In New York, the Democrats picked up three House seats and for the first time in 10 years won control of the state's 43-member delegation.

With 34 of the 100 Senate seats at stake in the election, Democrats had won 20 and Republicans 12 by the early morning hours. Only one incumbent, Sen. J. Allen Fear Jr., D-Dele., had been topped.

Fear's bid for a third term was turned back by Republican Gov. J. Caleb Boggs even as Kennedy captured Delaware's three electoral votes and the Democrats won the governorship.

The Republicans picked up a second Senate seat with the election of Rep. Keith Thomson to replace veteran Democratic Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, retiring at the age of 76. Thomson's Democratic opponent was Raymond B. Whitaker.

The election of Maurice B. Neuberger, an Oregon Democrat, will give the Senate two women members. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, a Republican, won overwhelming reelection in Maine.

Victor over former Republican Gov. Elmo Smith, Mrs. Neuberger will occupy a seat filled by her late husband. Mrs. Smith triumphed over Lucia M. Cormier in the only all-female race for the Senate.

The only Republican senator who did not seek reelection was Thomas Martin. But the Republicans held on to his seat by electing State Sen. Jack Miller over Democratic Gov. Herschel Loveless.

In Rhode Island, Claiborne Pell, 41-year-old Democrat and Newport socialite, was elected to succeed Sen. Theodore Francis Green, retiring at the age of 83. Green is the oldest man ever to serve in the Senate.

Two Republican senators who won outstanding reelection victories were Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts and Clifford P. Case of New Jersey. Both overcame Democratic lides that gave their states' electoral votes to Kennedy.

Among the Democratic senators who won reelection were Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, John Sparkman of Alabama, Richard B. Russell of Georgia, John L. McClellan of Arkansas, Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, James O. Eastland of Mississippi, Patrick V. McNamara of Michigan, Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico, Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

N.C. Republicans Won 10 Seats In Assembly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Republicans have won at least nine seats in the 1961 North Carolina House of Representatives. They also retained their one seat in the State Senate.

A woman Republican defeated her male Democrat rival in Alexander County, where Mrs. Tressie Fleicher Pierce beat Plez Lackey 3,540 to 3,493. Another woman, Mrs. W. N. Cook, won in Macon County.

In Watauga County, a Republican overthrew an incumbent Democrat, Murray Coffey of Blowing Rock, defeating J. E. Edmiston of Boone, 4,471-4,358.

Other Republicans who apparently won House seats include Mack Isaac of Newland in Avery County; Herman H. West of Marble in Cherokee County; Wayne G. West of Warne in Clay County; Mrs. W. N. Cook of Franklin in Macon County; F. D. B. Harding of Yadkinville in Yadkin County; William L. Osteen of Greensboro in Guilford County; and Dan R. Simpson of Morganton in Burke County.

The Republicans held four seats in the House and one in the State Senate going into Tuesday's voting.

Half Of S. C. Kept State In Democrat Ranks

COLUMBIA (AP) — Half of South Carolina voted for John F. Kennedy Tuesday—the populous upper half that produced a 10,000 vote margin for the Democratic presidential candidate in the record balloting.

Kennedy carried 25 of the state's 46 counties in piling up 193,295 votes to 183,321 for Republican Richard M. Nixon. The unofficial Associated Press tabulation included returns from 1,578 of the state's 1,602 precincts.

The closest two-party presidential race of modern times in South Carolina produced the biggest voter turnout in the state's history. The total just shaded the 377,000 ballots cast in the 1958 Democratic primary.

Nothing but the presidential election was on the ballot to draw voters. The state's six congressmen and U.S. Sen. Strom Thurmond had won re-election in the Democratic primary and were unopposed for reelection. Nine constitutional amendments did little to generate interest.

Eleven Irish In Congo Are Killed

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Eleven Irish soldiers of the U.N. Congo force were killed or captured in an ambush Tuesday in northern Katanga province.

U.N. headquarters in Elisabethville reported today that only four bodies had been recovered. The other seven men and the patrol's two vehicles are missing.

They apparently were victims of rebel Baluba tribesmen.

A U.N. spokesman said the patrol was ambushed south of Niembba, which is about 60 miles from Albertville on Lake Tanganyika. It is the heart of an area torn by tribal warfare.
