Displaced Families Will Need Additional Standard Housing, In Renewal Plans

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Additional standard housing will be needed for the families who will be displaced by the proposed Urban Renewal project before the work can proceed.

Executive Director William I. Cochran described the need for housing to take care of the people moved out of the area as immediate.

"What we need most and immediately is an indication of willingness on the part of local builders to participate in a program of construction and or rehabilitation to rehouse their families," Chochran said. "The demand for housing is here. There only needs to be the supply."

The area involved to be known as Shore Drive Redevelopment Project, is bounded on the north by the Tar River, the south by Second, Third and Fourth Sts., the west by the ACL railroad and the east by Skinner's Ravine.

Under Urban Renewal plans the housing in this area would be purchased by the Redevelopment Commission, razed and the entire area would be developed according to a master plan. Plans for redevelopment of the section are now being drawn.

The Federal government pays two - thirds of the redevelopment work cost with the city to pay one-third.

However, the Redevelopment Commission must have a relocation plan for the project to proceed, Cochran said. The objective of this plan is to provide that families displaced by the Urban Renewal project will have the opportunity to occupy housing that is "decent, safe and sanitary, tyat is within their financial means and that is in reasonably convenient locations," according to Cochran.

Few Homeowners

The area under consideration is predominately Negro and the majority of the families are in lower income brackets, a survey shows that of the 291 families living in the area, 44 are home owners.

Cochran released the folllowing breakdown of income by families for the proposed redevelopment area. The first figure is Negro families and the second is white: $0-$500, 6, 2: $501-$1,000, 45, 1; $1001-1,500, 73, 3; $1,501-$2,000, 57, 3; 2,001-$2,500, 36, 5; $2,501,$3,000, 23, 2; $3,001-3,500, 11, 1; $3,501-$4,000, 7, 3; $4,001-4,500, 3, 1; $4,500 or more, 7, 2.

Thirty-eight of the 268 Negro families in the area are listed as homeowners. Of the 23 white families, six are homeowners.

"An analysis of the rehousing needs of the proposed displaced families indicates deficits in the supply of existing housing expected to become available during the displacement period," Cochran said. "The supply of adequate standard housing for low-income families is especially acute."

He pointed out that part of the deficit can be met by the construction of "221 housing". This requires no downpayment, 40 year mortgage and closing cost up to $200. The FHA will guarantee a mortgage up to $9,000 on a single unit.

However, this still leaves a considerable number of families of low-income for which there is a demand for rental housing.

To help these families find new quarters, the Redevelopment Commission will establish a Relocation office.

Urban Renewal is guided by principals set forth in the Housing Act of 1949 as amended, Cochgan pointed out. This envisioned ". . .the realization as soon as feasible of the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family."

Congress further decalred ". . .that such (housing) production is necessary to enable the housing industry to make its full contribution toward an economy of maximum employment, production and purchasing power."

Ask Same Tobacco Acreage

Farmers, Warehousemen Eye 1961 Crop; Exporters Favor Moderate Boost

RALEIGH (AP) — Spokesmen for farmers and warehousemen asked for an unchanged flue-cured tobacco acreage for 1961, while exporters requested a moderate increase, at a five-state meeting here Thursday.

Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson will announce the flue-cured quota by Dec. 1. Farm acreage allotments are based on the quota.

J. C. Lanier of Greenville, executive secretary of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association, said larger supplies are needed for the foreign market. He asked that the acreage quota be raised by a moderate amount.

The meeting brought together tobacco leaders from the Carolinas, Virginia, Florida and Georgia — the producing states.

Some form of control on poundage as well as acreage, was suggested by President J. B. Hutson of Tobacco Associates Inc. The proposal is one Hutson has advocated before.

He argued that controls on acreage only encourages production without attention to quality.

Renewed warning against MH-30, a sucker control chemical, was voiced by C. Stuart Carr Jr. of Universal Leaf Tobacco Co. There have been claims that the chemical hurts tobacco quality.

He said buying companies this year had no choice but to purchase treated tobacco. "They needed tobacco and bought the best of what was out there, But I don't think the situation will continue like that," he said.

However, managing director F. S. Royster of the Bright Belt Warehouse Association said any action on MH-30 should wait until scientists of the U.S. Department of Agiculture have determined whether it adversely affects tobacco quality.

Royster said he feels the tobacco program is "in its best position in at least eight or ten years." Good understanding prevails throughout the industry, he said.

New Orleans Schools Get 'Recess' As Fight Goes On

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—A school recess for a week, starting Monday, today promised a breathing spell for New Orleans in the bitter battle over integration.

The recess was announced late Thursday night by Dr. James F. Redmond, public school superintendent. It will permit teachers to attend teacher association meetings in Baton Rouge Monday through Wednesday. Pupils will observe Thanksgiving Holidays Thursday and Friday and classes will not resume until Nov. 28.

The New Orleans School Board Thursday asked suspension of a federal court order directing school integration and a hearing on the motion was set for 10 a.m. today before a three-judge panel.

The suspension plea was filed after four days of tension over admission last Monday of four small Negro girls to two white schools. Unruly demonstrations, sporadic violence and an almost complete boycott by white students of two schools involved.

The three Negro first graders at McDonogh No. 19 arrived a few minutes before the school bell, escorted by three U. S. marshals.

Newsmen and police did not see any white child enter the school.

At William Frantz School, the lone Negro pupil entered at 9:20 a.m. also escorted by marshals. Spectators jeered.

Three white pupils had entered the school earlier.

U.S. Dist. Judge J. Skelly Wright who signed the integration order, has overridden several moves by the Legislature to halt racial mixing.

The three-judge panel which includes Wright, also is expected to hear two other cases involving New Orleans schools.

One is Wright's order restraining the Legislature and top state officials from interfering with the integration move. The other is a contempt citation Wright issued against Shelby M. Jackson, state superintendent of education. The judge said a school holiday ordered last Monday by Jackson, the effective date of the integration order, was contemptuous interference.

The plea for supsension, filed Thursday by Samuel Rosenberg, school board attorney, was for time to let tempers cool and a return to segregated schools pending a decision on issues on which the board said the Supreme Court should rule.

Lloyd J. Rittiner, school board president, said members of the board believed in and fought for segregated schools to no avail, contrary to charges of critics.

His reference to critics was to legislators who tried to oust the board and name a legislative committee to take control of New Orleans schools and later, to cut off all state funds for schools.

The Legislature and Gov. Jimmie H. Davis made five efforts to oust the board or revoke its powers on the ground it was violating state law in carrying out the federal court integration order.

Fast and firm police action discouraged new demonstrations against integration Thursday. But police arrested 32 Negroes for various offenses Thursday night. One was charged with slashing a white man on the shoulder during a fight. Twenty two of those arrested were juveniles and seven of their number were picked up after rocks were thrown at passersby and cars.

Cases against 35 white teenagers picked up by police during Wednesday's unruly demonstrations, were continued in Municipal Court Thursday because arresting officers were on special detail.

Four Negroes were sentenced in connection with Wednesday's disturbances. One who was found with a dagger was given the choice of paying a $75 fine or serving 75 days; another was fined $10 for carrying a machete and $25 and $10 fines were imposed on two for throwing a lead pipe at an automobile.

Over a third of the city's elementary school population of 37,726 remained away from classes Thursday. School officials attributed their absence to fear by parents who did not want to send their children out on the streets.

Kennedy Briefed On Anti-Red Move; Cites 'Good Talks' With Johnson

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy met with the Central Intelligence Agency chief today for a top secret briefing on the U.S. anti-Communist mission in the tense Caribbean area.

With American warships and planes patrolling the area on orders from President Eisenhower, Kennedy requested a full report on the operation and its background from CIA Director Allen W. Dulles.

They got together at 9:25 a.m. EST for a scheduled two-hour conference at the Atlantic shore home of the president-elect's parents. The advance word was that neither Kennedy nor Dulles would have any public statement on the substance of the briefing.

The session was put on the Kennedy schedule three days ago—about 48 hours in advance of Eisenhower's order to U. S. naval units to defend revolt-threatened Guatemala and Nicaragua against any Communist-led attack.

After the Eisenhower order—issued at the request of Guatemala and Nicaragua—the president-elect was reported to be expecting a detailed briefing from Dulles on the background which brought on the President's action. Kennedy declined comment on the action.

Kennedy returned to Palm Beach late Thursday night after a round of conferences—and several hours of successful deer hunting—with Lyndon B. Johnson, the vice president-elect.

Before leaving Johnson's LBJ Ranch near Johnson City, Tex., Kennedy put out a statement saying they had a profitable discussion of plans and programs for the new administration which will take over from the Republicans Jan. 20.

Kennedy said further: "It is my belief that Sen. Johnson's great talent and experience equip him to be the most effective vice president in the history of our country. He and I worked in concert in this campaign and we shall work closely together in meeting our respective responsibilities to our country in the coming months.

"I believe the vice president-elect can be of great assistance in implementing our commitments to the American people. From my long experience with Sen. Johnson, I know he will fulfill that role with ability and distinction."

Johnson and Kennedy plan to meet again for more planning after the vice president-elect returns from a NATO conference in Paris.

Eisenhower's action ordering U.S. warships and planes to defend Guatemala and Nicaragua from any Communist-directed attack amounted to a blunt warning to Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro to keep hands off Latin-American republics.

It also was warning to the Soviet Union against interference in the Western Hemisphere. During the campaign Kennedy accused the Eisenhower administration of having permitted Communist penetration of Latin-American nations. In one speech he contended that his Republican opponent, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, had helped preside over communization of Cuba.

As for his talks with Johnson, Kennedy arrived at the LBJ Ranch Wednesday and he and the vice president-elect conferred then for two hours.

They were up Thursday at 6 a.m., and an hour later drove off 15 miles northeast to an 1,800-range which Johnson leases.

There for 7½ hours on a raw, cold day with occasional rain they hunted white tail deer and, they reported, worked in a good bit of talk in the fields about the momentous problems facing their new administration.

They also reported that each killed two deer—and each praised the other's prowess.

Kennedy, elated but appearing a bit weary, had done some hunting previously for other game but he said it was his first time out for deer.

A reporter asked Kennedy how many times he missed before bringing down a deer. The president-elect grinned and replied: "That comes under the cloak of executive secrecy."

When he left the LBJ Ranch Kennedy gave Johnson and his wife a gift marking the 26th wedding anniversary they celebrated Thursday. It was a handsome silver tray inscribed "To Lyndon and Lady Bird Johnson from Jack and Jacqueline Kennedy."

Denunciations Brushed Aside

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The White House brushed aside today denunciations from the Soviet Union and Cuba against President Eisenhower's action in ordering U.S. warships and planes to shield Guatemala and Nicaragua from any Communist-led attack.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty labeled Moscow's protests the kind of "Communist-type reaction" that could be expected.

"There's a very similar reaction—the words are almost the same—from Cuba," he told a news conference.

Eisenhower decided to end his Augusta vacation Wednesday after two weeks golfing and relaxing in the Georgia sun.

Hagerty said Eisenhower would spend his final Thanksgiving as president in the White House.

Mrs. Eisenhower arranged to leave Augusta today to return to Washington.

Eisenhower's move in rushing warships into the Caribbean served notice the United States will use military force to back up diplomatic protesets, if need be to stop Cuba's Fidel Castro from subverting anti-Communist countries in the Caribbean.

Castro Press And Tass Hit U.S. Patrol In Caribbean

HAVANA (AP) — The government-controlled press here and Soviet news outlets charged in rather similar terms today that U.S Navy patrols in the Caribbean are an intervention in Latin-American affairs, a threat to world peace and a smokescreen for attacking Cuba.

President Eisenhower Thursday ordered U.S. warships and planes to be ready to seek out and prevent Communist-led attacks from abroad on Guatemala and Nicaragua.

Three Cuban newspapers carried a story by the Soviet news agency Tass warning of invasion plots against Cuba being prepared in Nicaragua and Guatemala.

A Moscow radio broadcast recorded in London asserted the U.S Navy alert is "fraught with the danger of a military conflict." The broadcast, noting the White House statement that the move was requested by the Guatemalan and Nicaraguan governments, said: "The rotten antipopular regimes of these two countries can exist only with U.S. support."

El Mundo's banner said "U.S. intervenes in internal struggles in Guatemala and Nicaragua."

The President acted on the written request of the two governments, targets in the past week of unsuccessful uprisings which they charged were assisted by Cubans.

The action came as plots and possible uprisings were reported in two other countries, Bolivia and El Salvador.

The U.S. State Department said warships, including at least four destroyers and the aircraft carrier Shangri-La, were already patrolling the high seas between Cuba and the Central American coast. The department said, however, that any action against invasion forces would be limited to the three-mile territorial waters of Guatemala and Nicaragua.

The reaction of Cuban officials and the government-controlled press and radio was indignant.

The newspaper La Calle said the President's action was an intervention in Guatemala and Nicaragua and a grave threat to world peace.

Avance said the U.S. Navy was out to protect "U.S. colonies."

Pastorita Nunez, a high ranking Cuban official as head of the government savings and housing institute, said in a television program that the uprisings in Central America, were a smokescreen to hide plans for an invasion of Cuba.

For weeks Castro officials have been charging that "mercenaries" were being assembled and drilled in Central American countries for a U.S.-financed invasion of Cuba.

"It's a coincidence," Miss Nunez said, "that these happenings are being produced in those countries where aggressions against Cuba have been denounced, that is in Nicaragua, Guatemala and Costa Rica."

Castro predicted last August that his revolution would light a rebellion against "Yankee imperialism" throughout Latin America.

The United States later charged that thousands of tons of Soviet arms have been shipped to Castro.

Plots and uprisings were reported afoot in El Salvador and Bolivia Friday even as the last embers of revolt appeared snuffed out in Guatemala and Nicaragua.

Troops were reported mobilized in La Paz, capital of Bolivia, as a precaution against a possible uprising.

Communications were cut between La Paz and Cochabamba, the country's second largest city, where peasants opposed to President Victor Paz Estenssoro clashed with police, troops and other peasants last Monday. About 100 persons were reported killed at that time.

Last Sunday U.S. Ambassador Carl Strom was stoned and jeered by a leftist mob at Cochabamba, 150 miles southeast of La Paz.

Demonstrators marched on the police station and burned transportation offices in new disturbances Thursday. Disturbances were reported in Santa Cruz, a rubber center on the Brazilian border 330 miles southeast of La Paz.

The military junta ruling El Salvador, southern neighbor of Guatemala, reported Thursday night it had thwarted a revolutionary plot. It gave no details. Unofficial reports said four army colonels were placed under house arrest after the plot was discovered at Santa Tula, 10 miles from San Salvador, the capital.

President Miguel Ydigoras of Guatemala was given an enthusiastic reception in Puerto Barrios, chief Caribbean port, after the last of 300 rebels were put to flight.

Most of the rebels apparently escaped to the hills of nearby Honduras to the north. Guatemala planned to ask for their extradition. Only one rebel officer, the second in command, was captured.

Ydigoras has charged that "dirty gold" of Castro was used to buy up officers who participated in the revolt.

Terroristic activity continued in the Guatemalan capital. Three bombs exploded Thursday night but caused no casualties. A suspected bomber was caught. Ydigoras has threatened the execution of terrorists.

A member of Guatemala's Congress, Manuel Orellana Portilla, said it found documents linking to declare war on Cuba if proof of Cuban meddling is presented.

Nicaragua's President Luis Somoza has declared the Cuban government responsible for the uprising in which insurgents succeeded in capturing the cities of Jinotepe and Diriamba last Friday. They were driven out by about 1,000 national guardsmen, and took flight toward Costa Rica. The commander of the Costa Rican national guard was killed in a border clash with the rebels.

Income Climbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Personal income of Americans climbed to a record annual rate of $409.6 billion in October.

The total was $800 million higher than the annual rate for September and was $25 billion above the annual rate of October last yeaer.

The Commerce Department, in announcing the figures Thursday, said a dip in the total wages paid factory workers in October was more than offset by small gains in pay for government, construction and retail employes. Farm income dipped slightly during the month. Income of business proprietors and professional men improved slightly.

Chrysler Corp. Drops DeSoto

DETROIT (AP)—Chrysler Corp. today discontinued its DeSoto line of automobiles.

The corporation notified its 1,649 DeSoto dealers to concentrate their efforts on other makes of Chrysler cars.

Production currently is scheduled to end Nov. 30. It may end sooner.

Chrysler said that "despite a general advance in automobile sales this year, shifts in market patterns, under way the past three years, have adversely affected DeSoto sales, particularly since 1961 model introduction."

The decision was not unexpected. Only the timing had remained in doubt.

DeSoto introduced its 1961 models last Oct. 14—a two-door hardtop and a four-door hardtop. It has announced no sales figures since that time. In September, the final cleanup month of the 1960 model year, only 1,243 DeSotos were registered.

Chrysler said buyers of 1961 model DeSotos will be offered a $300 rebate on their purchase of any new 1961 or 1962 Chrysler product bought prior to Jan. 1, 1963, providing they trade in the 1961 DeSoto.

In a corporate realignment the old Plymouth-DeSoto-Valiant division was renamed the Plymouth division.

Navy Ships Now Patrol Caribbean

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy ships in the Caribbean are now in position and prepared to assist Guatemala and Nicaragua in repelling any invaders, the Navy said today.

A spokesman emphasized that at this time the Navy has no plans to do more than patrol the area unless there is a specific request for action from either or both of the countries.

This reflected the position outlined by State Department officials Thursday night. It was reiterated today in response to inquiries about a report published in England that the U.S. naval force is authorized to board suspected vessels in the Caribbean.

The State Department made clear that no action is contemplated beyond the three-mile territorial waters, and even then only upon specific request of the countries.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter refused to comment on how long it may be necessary to maintain the special patrol.

Questioned by newsmen as he returned from Boston, Herter would say only that U.S. action was taken at the request of the governments affected and that no country was mentioned specifically as the source of any Communist-directed threat to Nicaragua and Guatemala.

At Navy headquarters it was said that if one of the ships or planes in the patrolling force should sight a suspected invasion vessel in international waters it would immediately report the fact.

This report would go to Adm. Robert Bell Dennison, commander of the Atlantic Fleet, for relay to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and other officials at Washington and thus to the two menaced countries.

MORE RED TRADE

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Neutral Austria bought more than $4-million worth of goods from Communist China in the first half of this year—more than twice as much as in the same period of 1959. Austrian exports to China in the same period rose 40 per cent to total $7 million.

Mandatory Jail Terms Favored

RALEIGH (AP) — Persons whose driving licenses have been suspended or revoked "must be taken off the highways," says President Thomas B. Watkins of the North Carolina State Motor Club.

Watkins asserted Thursday that "mandatory jail sentences patterned after Virginia's law would go a long way toward doing the job." In calling for such a law, Watkins said the climbing traffic death toll means "the time has come for the General Assembly at its forthcoming session to consider drastic measures . . ."

Pitt Farm Bureau Delegation Prepares For N. C. Convention

New and past presidents will head a 14-member Pitt County Farm Bureau delegation scheduled to carry Pitt proposals to the state convention beginning in Raleigh Sunday.

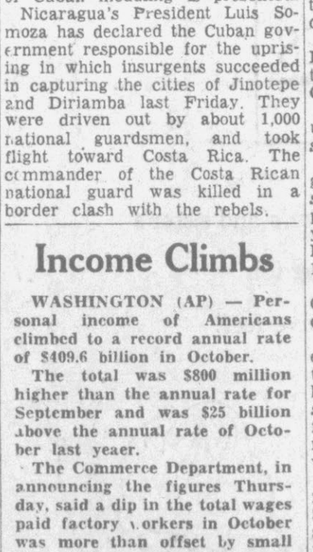

New Pres. B. Alton Gardner and last year's chief Harry J. Jarvis, both of Ayden, will head the list of Pitt Countians scheduled to present three main resolutions, to the annual state-wide meeting.

Other delegates include: Charles B. Quinerly of Farmville, county secretary - treasurer; Milton May of Winterville; Mrs. L. R. Jones of Farmville; Mrs. Clarence Carowan of Grimesland; W.I. Bissette of Grifton; Burney Baker and D. R. House of Pactolus; B.B. Tetterton of Bethel; Ray Garris, Mrs. Ernest Hardee, Mrs. Jerome Hardee, and J.J. Edwards, all of Ayden.

Wind Insurance

Probably the major Pitt resolution to be aired at the convention is a proposal growing out of the recent county convention concerning insurance coverage of windstorm damage.

The Pitt convention approved a resolution favoring a change in the current windstorm policy to allow $50 deductible per policy rather than the $50 deductible per building now in effect.

B. ALTON GARDNER
. . . President

Another resoluton of prime interest at the county convention was a proposal to revise current motor vehicle laws to allow an automobile owner's registration to remain valid for an entire year in spite of transfer of the vehicle's title.

Under the present system the registration number (license plate) remains valid for the auto regardless of how many times the title is transferred during a particular year. The new proposal would require the new owner of a vehicle to apply for and acquire a new registration number for the vehicle with the former owner retaining the original number to be transferred to his newly-acquired vehicle.

A third category of resolutions to be placed before the state session deal with virtually all farm commodities produced in Pitt County.

Headquarters for the convention will be the Hotel Sir Walter in the State's Capital. Registration begins Sunday and the convention adjourns Wednesday.

Crime Wave Put Nerves On Edge

CHICAGO (AP)—Recent child abductions and the slaying of a 9-year-old girl have Chicagoans on edge.

So when Richard Last, an off-duty police sergeant wearing a service revolver under his street clothes, picked up his son, Gregory, 4, at a friend's house Thursday night and drove off jittery neighbors called the police.

Last hadn't driven but a few blocks when two prowl cars curbed his car. Police converged on the scene and Last was ordered from his car by officers carrying shotguns, rifles and revolvers.

"I haven't seen so many guns since D-Day," said Last, a Navy veteran.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Ursula Is Unusual

NEW YORK (AP)—Ursula Thiess is a rare young woman. She doesn't think the world ends when you pass 30.

"It's quite nice," she says, "to have gained some wisdom along with the wrinkles."

Ursula is not what you would call wrinkled. She is a shapely 5 foot 7, with hazel eyes, dark hair, a gracious manner and one of the lovelier faces extant.

But Ursula, a mother of four who has been Mrs. Robert Taylor for the past six years, laughs and says:

"I am often advised not to tell people I have a 17-year-old married daughter. But since I also have a one-year-old daughter, and also may be a grandmother one of these days, I'm wondering if I should leave the nursery around."

Ursula has been an actress since she started on the stage at 16 in Hamburg, Germany. But acting took second place to husband and family when she married Taylor. This season she is back before cameras, but only to appear with her husband on his television series "The Detectives."

"It was the producer's idea," she explains, "and Bob was against it.

"He's a perfectionist, always on time, never blows a line. In short, hard to live up to. TV is faster paced than movies, and I had to be twice as fast to keep up.

"He likes to work with men better than women, you know. He thinks men pay more attention to direction. Women's minds tend to wander to what the children might be doing, if the potatoes are burning.

"He was a nervous wreck about me the first day of filming, but now I think he rather likes the idea."

Ursula says her main hobby is her children, the two younger by Taylor and the two older by a previous marriage.

"I like taking care of them, being with them. But I think I'll close the book at four."

She also likes horseback riding, and reading "anything that seems to be right for the mood I'm in."

Ursula, who had been married in Germany at 18 and divorced four years later, took her time about remarrying. "It was too rough an experience the first time," she recalls.

She had been working in Hollywood for a couple of years, and supporting her parents and children in Germany, when she met Taylor.

It was a blind date for him. Her agent had arranged it, explaining to the much-sought-after leading man that she was safe because she had "two kids and you don't want to get tangled up with her."

She says candidly she thought he would be a pleasant person to meet, but she wasn't prepared for someone who had something to talk about, or for a mind. He told her later that she was very aloof and quiet.

"We've been very happy together ever since," she says.

S-t-r-e-t-c-h-i-n-g Dollars

RALEIGH—Order your Thanksgiving turkey now. There are plenty of turkeys available, but you may come nearer getting exactly what you want and need by ordering early. Decide on the number of people you will be serving and buy accordingly.

There are some real bargains in turkeys this year, says Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service.

If you want the best buy, and can use it, Mrs. Uzzle suggests a heavier bird for two reasons: lower price per pound and a larger proportion of meat.

Fryers remain about steady in price. Large eggs are up in price, making medium eggs your best buy.

Beff supplies have been big, and prices most attractive. Roasts, stew beef, ground beef and some steaks are the better beef buys. Pork has reached its fall peak in supply, so fresh cuts should stay low-priced throughout the holiday season.

Canned hams and cold cuts will be favorites for the long holiday weekend. Sausage and bacon are among the low priced items this week.

Sweet potatoes and fall greens are two traditional holiday vegetables with turkey and ham. Both are worth considering for food and money value. Cabbage, broccoli, onions, Brussels sprouts, squash and white potatoes are other low-priced vegetable choices. Check the frozen vegetable counters for many good values as well as convenience and time-saving.

Apples remain the best fruit buy. Smaller sizes in bags are your best value. Compare big weights and prices before buying, however. Remember, you will pay premium prices for large fancy apples.

Cranberries are plentiful and attractively priced. Grapefruit and oranges are increasing each week. Prices are reasonable for early citrus. Include raisins and dates for holiday fruit choices.

Party Honors Bride-Elect

GRIFTON—Friday evening Mrs. L.L. Mewborn, Miss Sallie Mewborn and Mrs. Clay Burney entertained for Miss Patsy Burney, bride-elect, and her attendants at the Mewborn home on McRae Street.

In the living room a color note of pink was carried out in the decorations of roses. Mrs. Clay Burney greeted the callers and presented them to the guest of honor and her mother, Mrs. Claude Burney and the mother of the groom, Mrs. Larry B. Tripp of Ayden.

Mrs. Charlie Stone directed guests to the dining room where an all white color scheme was used. The table over laid with a lace cloth, and a center piece of large white chrysanthemums and small pom poms in a low silver bowl, flanked by tall white candles in silver holders.

Mrs. Clarence Hart presided at the silver service and poured hot spiced tea, guests served themselves to crescents, brownies, salted nuts and mints. Miss Burney was presented by her hostesses, a white mum corsage and a gift of silver and china in her chosen patterns.

Chicora Club Hears Mr. Debnam

Tuesday afternoon the Chicora Book Club met in the home of Mrs. Roger Mann.

After refreshments were served, Mr. W. E. Debnam spoke on "Castro and Cuba." He said that two years ago there was friendship between the United States and Cuba, and Cuba's history books pictured our country as their liberator. Now this is changed; we are pictured as "the enslaver of Cuba" and Russia is their great friend. In giving a sketch of Castro, Mr. Debnam explained that Castro was born the son of a wealthy plantation owner. He was a brilliant student and graduated from law school with a doctor's degree in law. While a student he dominated his classmates on any subject in which he was interested.

A fanatic opposition to any form of tyranny grew into opposition against any form of tyranny except that imposed by himself. He married a girl of a conservative family, they had one son and then were divorced. After he spent two years of a 15-year sentence in prison for an attempt to overthrow the Batista government, he came to the United States to raise money for his revolution. While in this country he became great friends with Gueverra, a Communist who molded him into what he is today. Until a New York Times correspondent wrote a series of articles on Castro, he was just another bandit who terrorized the peasants. When these articles came out, however, Castro became Cuba's Lincoln in the world's eye.

In December, 1958, U. S. Ambassador Smith told Batista, on behalf of our government, that he was no longer capable of heading the Cuban government. Batista left his position and by January Castro was master of Cuba. Mr. Debnam closed with the question that if we go to war with Cuba over Guantanamo Bay, what will be the outcome in its chain reaction in the world situation?

In the business meeting that followed, Mrs. Walter Perkins, Mrs. W. H. Collier and Mrs. John Drake were welcomed as guests. The club decided to bring gifts to their annual Mother-Daughter Luncheon and these gifts are to be sent to the Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore was endorsed as a nomination for the Exchange Club's "Golden Deeds Award."

Book Club Meets With Mrs. Harris

BETHEL — Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. J. P. Harris entertained the Home Demonstration Book Club at her home on Main Street.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Z. T. Harris, Mrs. W. R. Bullock presided over the meeting.

Mrs. C. E. Brown called on the group to pray the Lord's Prayer. She followed this with the devotionals and program, using as her theme Thanksgiving. The 100th Psalm was read. She told how we should observe and celebrate this holiday, that is in giving God thanks for His every blessing.

The club voted not to meet in December since the Christmas meeting of the Home Demonstration Club will take place of the regular monthly meeting. This meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. F. C. James in the form of a tea.

Mrs. Bullock reported that the $2.50 prize given for the most books read during the year was turned over to Mrs. A. J. Crane by Mrs. Dennis Hardy to be used for the purchase of a book to be used in the H. D. Book Club in the year 1961.

A Bible Quiz was given by the recreation leader, Mrs. R. R. James.

Gable Was 'Recovering' From First Heart Attack

GABLE OVER THE YEARS——Clark, "The King" of Hollywood actors, who died in Hollywood of a heart ailment at the age of 59, is shown at left as a young actor, as an Army Air Corps captain in 1943, center, and as he appeared at a Hollywood premiere last year. (AP Wirephoto)

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clark Gable's doctors say the actor was recovering from one heart attack when a second blood clot took his life in a matter of seconds.

Details of the famed actor's death were made public Thursday as plans were made to entomb him beside the body of Carole Lombard, the third of his five wives.

Private services will be conducted Saturday at 9 a.m. in the Church of The Recessional at Forest Lawn Memorial Park at nearby Glendale. Only members of the family and close personal friends will attend.

Miss Lombard was killed in a 1942 plane crash. Friends said Gable never quite got over his grief when she died.

The decision to entomb him in Miss Lombard's Forest Lawn crypt was made by his widow, Kay, who is five months pregnant with Gable's first child. The mortuary's only announcement was: "Mr. Gable will be placed beside Miss Lombard."

His physicians, meanwhile, gave details of the fatal illness which ended the actor's three-decade legend as king of Hollywood leading men.

"I thought he was getting along so well," said Dr. George C. Griffith, "that I talked to him Wednesday morning about how he should care for himself during the coming months—and told him there was no need for me to see him again, unless needed."

Dr. Griffith was called in as a consultant by Gable's heart specialist, Dr. Fred V. Cerini. The two physicians said Gable's death Wednesday night resulted from a second blood clot in an artery supplying the back of the heart.

The doctors said that heart tissue damaged in the first attack was healing well, and that Gable, who was 59, had reacted favorably to drugs which reduce the coagulation factor in the blood stream, thus lessening the likelihood of clots.

Dr. Griffith said that heart massage—sometimes used to save stricken patients—would probably have ruptured Gable's heart. A machine to stimulate the heart electrically might have helped. But none was available in Gable's room, they said.

Cerini said he had entered the actor's room only seconds before Gable died.

"He just flipped his head to one side on the pillow and was gone," Cerini said. "He didn't say anything."

Mrs. Gable was in an adjoining room and reached the bedside seconds later.

She is now under doctor's care at her home. She has had a heart condition herself for some time.

Safe After Near Crash In Mid-Air

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The spinning propeller of a light plane grazed the wing of a big United Air Lines DC6 1,500 feet over Stapleton Airfield here late Thursday.

Both planes landed safely. There were no injuries.

The 14 passengers aboard the airliner were unaware of the collision until after Capt. W. A. Tallman of Seattle landed the four-engine craft. It received several slashes in its left wingtip.

Allen Alterman, 35, a Denver business executive, landed his single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza despite a crumpled wing and a bent propeller. His plane skidded across a runway at Stapleton and came to rest in a wheat field.

Asks Court Drop Contempt Charge

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Counsel for Dr. R. Bernard Finch wants the District Court of Appeal to quash contempt of court charges against him.

Grant B. Cooper, president of the Los Angeles Bar Association, was cited twice as the second trial of Dr. Finch and Carole Tregoff neared its anticlimactic end.

The second trial of the couple on murder charges ended in a jury deadlock and a mistrial, like the first. They are accused of slaying the doctor's wife. The doctor claimed she was accidentally shot.

Cooper was cited after he said Judge Leroy Dawson was invading the jury's territory by advising the jury he thought Mrs. Finch was murdered. Judge Dawson sentenced Cooper to fines totalling $500 or 10 days in jail. Cooper's petition for relief, filed Thursday, referred the higher court to the full trial transcript.

Youth Confesses Murdering His Foster-Mother

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Police arrested Grant Bradley Connor, 21, early today and detectives said the youth tearfully admitted killing his foster mother last weekend in Detroit, Mich.

Detective Eloy Ysasi said he arrested Connor while on routine patrol duty after spotting a Michigan license plate number sent here from that state.

Accompanying Connor, the officer said, were a woman acquaintance and a hitchhiker. Both were held as material witnesses.

Ysasi said the murder victim was Harriett Connor, 48.

When questioned about her death, Connor first denied any knowledge of it and then broke down, Ysasi said.

The detective said Connor, an ex-convict who had been deported from Michigan to Windsow, Ont., gave this account:

Last Saturday he climbed through a window of Mrs. Connor's apartment, waited until she got home, shot her in the head and fled after taking $400 and a set of car keys from her purse.

"I shot her once. She didn't even know I was in the house," Connor was quoted in a two-page statement.

Ysasi said Connor evidently went on a brief spree with the stolen money, then drove to Jackson, Mich., and picked up Theresa Pratt, 20.

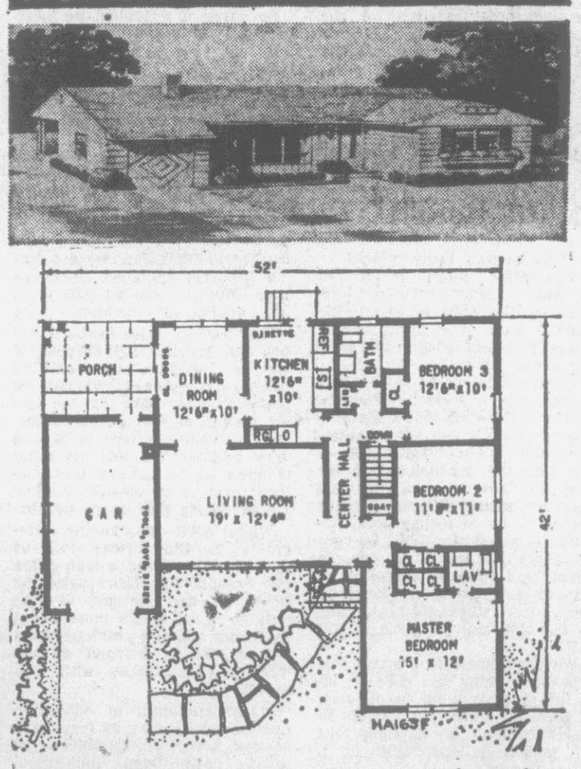

According to Connor's statement, the couple then headed to the Southwest. In Illinois they picked up a hitchhiker, identified as Stanley E. Albert, 20, who was headed to Phoenix to work.

Ysasi said Mrs. Pratt related that she and Connor planned to drive on through to Reno., Nev., so that she could get a divorce and marry Connor.

ECC Concert Band Chosen For Session

The East Carolina College Concert Band has been selected to present a program at a meeting in Asheville April 20-22 of the Southern Division of the Music Educators National Conference. Representatives of twelve Southern States will be present for the meeting. The 80-member ensemble from East Carolina, playing under the direction of Herbert L. Carter of the college music faculty, is scheduled for a performance before the group Thursday, April 20.

Music organizations selected to appear on the conference program were chosen on the basis of taped auditions submitted to a group of judges representing the regional MENC.

Under Mr. Carter's direction, the East Carolina Concert Band carries on during the school year a full program of activities. Since the beginning of the fall quarter last September the group has been rehearsing for a series of concerts at the college and a spring tour through towns and cities of Virginia.

The annual winter concert by the band is set for Feb. 3 during a meeting on the campus of the Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic.

On Thursday, May 11, the Concert Band will appear on the East Carolina Entertainment Series for 1960-1961. J. Clifton Williams of the University of Texas Music Department, noted American composer for wind instruments, will be guest conductor.

Officers of the Concert Band for 1960-1961 are Edgar Williams of Wilmington, president; Jerry Liles of Belmont, vice president; Ronda Dandliker of Greensboro, secretary; Sue Gallagher of Culpeper, Va., treasurer; and Marcelle Vogel of New Bern and Sam Branson of Thomasville, publicity chairmen.

Longer Polaris Range Is Sought

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The Navy will concentrate on developing a longer range Polaris submarine missile now that the last test rocket in the 1,300-mile series has been fired.

The final A1 Polaris vehicle fizzled in flight Thursday when the second stage cut off too soon and the missile plunged into the Atlantic several miles off the Cape.

The malfunction, which the Navy is attempting to pinpoint, marred an effort to close out the A1 program on a successful note. A total of 52 missiles were fired in the 14-month test program for this series. The scoreboard read: 37 successes, 10 partial successes and 5 failures.

Eight of the successful Polarises were fired from the nuclear submarines George Washington and Patrick Henry while they were submerged.

The A1 became operational last Tuesday when the George Washington went to sea with 16 of the nuclear-armed missiles, ready to fire on a minute's notice. The Patrick Henry will go on patrol next month.

Find Cab Driver Fatally Stabbed

CHARLOTTE (AP) — James Tyree Hamilton, 47-year-old cab driver, was found stabbed to death in his taxi Thursday.

Police said his trousers belt had been slashed and a leather money pouch he usually wore on the belt had been torn away. His wallet also was missing.

Yellow Cab Co. officials said they last had radio contact with Hamilton at 12:51 a.m. Police were notified Thursday morning.

His cab had been driven down a little-used dirt road into high weeds. His body was found by a woman who lives in the vicinity of the place where the taxi was abandoned.

Warn Strikers Of Court Action

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Striking transit workers have been told to go back to work here by midnight Sunday — or face contempt proceedings.

Nine hundred mechanics struck the Metropolitan Transit Authority just after midnight Wednesday in defiance of a court order forbidding them to strike.

The walkout paralyzed the MTA bus and streetcar service in Los Angeles and interurban service to three neighboring counties.

Hundreds of thousands of riders were forced to drive their cars, hitch rides, walk—or stay home.

The biggest problem was parking. Jammed parking lots turned away countless customers, who further snarled the flow of traffic by circling blocks in a search of a resting place.

The Amalgamated Transportation Union, warned by Superior Court Judge Lloyd S. Nix to call off its strike, declared: "As of now, we have no plans to stop the strike."

The union asks a 65-cent hourly wage increase and other benefits. MTA claims the demand would cost $1.11 per man-hour and has offered a 41-cent hourly package. The mechanics were drawing $2.61 an hour under the previous contract.

Rare Opportunity Seized By U. S.

The combination of circumstances are so fortuitous as to be almost unbelievable.

There we were with hundreds of thousands of servicemen's dependents in Western Europe. Some of them in West Berlin, more in West Germany, France and Great Britain. But it was the multitude living right on the front lines of the Cold War that posed a major handicap for American military planning and diplomatic strategists.

Those families were worse than "sitting ducks" in the event of hostilities, they were a psychological "block" to effective action by our soldiers and airmen over there; they were a millstone around the neck of planners in the field of military logistics; they were a nightmare of potential eventualities to tactical and strategic planners; their presence was "proof positive" to Communists that the United States posture of determination was fifty per cent bluff; they could not be pulled out in the ordinary course of Cold War activity without causing a major war scare in the West and a bad case of itchy trigger fingers among the Reds.

In short, they had no business living on the front lines of international tension. The element of "morale" is important; but it does not seem from here to outweigh common sense.

Now the majority of them are being summoned home—on economy grounds. Nobody can argue that such economy, at a time when the government is preoccupied by attaining a strong dollar, is not desireable and even necessary. So the world is spared another case of "war nerves".

Of course plans have been long prepared for evacuation of dependents, to get them out of the way of a shooting war. But it is obvious this great parade of wives and children and nursemaids to the seaports would be possible only if there were days of advance notice. Do you think they would have that much time?

A tactical warning of a few hours, or a surprise attack, leaves much to the imagination; and all of it bad.

And just how dependable would you say the soldier or airman hurrying to his emergency assignment and wondering and worrying about his wife and children . . . knowing the civilian columns would be subject to strafing and all kinds of murderous harrassment?

Up to now there has been no move to get the women and children out of Europe before the storm breaks—if it breaks.

The Defense Department says there are over 195,000 of these in Germany; another 42,000 in France. Those who have given thought to the American servicemen's wives and children in those countries will breathe easier when they are all home again.

As we see it, only President Eisenhower could have given such an order. The Kennedy Administration would have been accused of some subtle sabre-rattling and planned maneuvering for that stronger military and diplomatic stance he proposes for the future. President Eisenhower, with his term running out, could logically point to the fact he could have no such intentions in mind and only economic necessity dictated the move.

It appears this was the most opportune time conceivable to order home the overseas dependents.

In view of the anticipated more trying years of international tension ahead, we can think of few more timely moves than this undertaken by President Eisenhower in his final weeks in office.

That, and his belated attention to bettering the American position in international finance are two most valuable contributions he is making to the incoming Administration.

Fair Deal For Western Half

By LYNN NISBET

TWO-WAY — A favorite pastime of Democrats in Eastern North Carolina since the recent election has been recounting how that area "saved" the state for the Democratic candidates for President and Governor. The indisputable fact is they are right.

The easterners are using this to support their objection to reapportionment and redistricting for legislative members in the General Assembly and in the Congress. There is serious question whether that is sound reasoning. Several similes might be used. One is the old gag about which came first, the chicken or the egg. Another, and perhaps more pertinent, is comparison with two-way traffic on the voting road.

The overwhelming majority of Democratic voters and legislators in the eastern part of the state, aided by kindred spirits in the small far western mountain counties, has successfully blocked reapportionment of membership in the House of Representatives for 20 years.

Last time congressional and State senatorial districts were realigned was in 1941. In that arrangement the western part of the state got an additional congressman, and a little more representation in the State Senate. But on proportionate population basis, the East still held substantial advantage. The eastern legislators have successfully blocked change based on the 1950 census, and have given warning they will seek to prevent it on basis of 1960 figures.

Chief reason is that the "West" is becoming more and more Republican, and that increased legislative membership will mean dominance of that party. That may be, but there is some reason to believe that the populous west is moving into the Republican column because it has been denied equitable treatment by the controlling east.

NATURAL — Human nature manifests itself in similar ways in business, political and social relations. When customers begin to feel that a store is not treating them right, they move their trade to another store. When business men in any community feel that they are not being accorded reasonable banking service, they petition for a new bank—and usually get it. Most new country clubs stem from resentment on part of prospective members that the existing club is discriminating against them. It is surprising how many new churches are formed because oligarchic minorities in the established congregations refuse to recognize new comers.

The same rule applies in politics. It could be that after successive rebuffs in their appeals for equitable treatment at hands of the Democratic party, the voters in the populous west-central part of the state decided their only hope of relief lay with another party. And that their political defection was reluctant and born of necessity for survival rather than desire to break with tradition.

The stubborn easterners might profit by remembering that often the new ban, or club, or church, becomes more influential than the mother organization; and that in seeking to retain power and prestige to which conditions no longer entitle them they may be jeopardizing the influence which does rightly belong to them by reason of loyalty to the principles upon which State government was built.

Comparable warning is given the nouveau rich westerners, that full exercise of temporary power, attained by chance, can play havoc with sound government—even to the extent that there won't be much left for them to control.

WASTE—If that should happen, patriotic men and women of all sections would join hands to rebuild a sound government, as North Carolinians have done several times in the past.

A pertinently reasonable question would seem to be: Why can't patriotic men and women of good will get together now and work out a solution without all that waste?

PROBLEM—The problem is not simply one of population or of geographic area. Both must be considered. Maybe it doesn't make sense to have 300,000 people in the 8-county first district have two senators. Or for Mecklenburg's 300,000 to have just four representatives, while the 115,000 in the far northeastern counties have eight.

But the total area of Mecklenburg is 542 square miles, every nook and corner of the county easily accessible by telephone and highway. The first district covers 2,589 square miles, much of it cut off from communication by rivers, sounds and swamps. There cannot be anything approaching adequate representation without communication between the representative and his constituency.

There may be no equality in one senator representing 300,000 people in Mecklenburg and one senator representing 58,000 people in the farthest western senatorial district. There isn't much equality, either, in the Mecklenburg senator having 542 square miles to cover and the western senator having more than 2,000 square miles with much less adequate roads, sprawled over five counties.

There are problems involved. But none that common sense, good will and patriotism cannot resolve with fairness to all concerned.

Leave Us Jonas For A Worthy Opponent

It's safe to say that no matter what the General Assembly does about cutting back the number of North Carolina congressional districts there will be complaints.

The redistricting, to become effective in the 1962 general election, is attributable to the 1960 census which saw North Carolina fail to match over-all population growth of the United States.

Eastern North Carolina (that's us) was especially prominent as the section which trailed others in the state. For that reason it is fair to anticipate next year's legislature is going to give our counties an especially close scrutiny in their redistricting study.

The First District, comprised of fourteen counties, has a population of 250,000 souls . . . a mighty small constituency when one estimates that if each district were equally divided population-wise there would be about 414,000 apiece.

So we should anticipate some changes being made down our way.

But regardless of how it is finally worked out, The Reflector would go on record as being flatly opposed to any gerrymandering that slices off the lone GOP Congressman in the N. C. delegation, Rep. Charles Raper Jonas.

Being a legislative matter, in a predominately Democratic legislature, the political opportunities of eliminating the 10th District's Republican spokesman have attracted some attention.

Jonas was overwhelmingly re-elected by the voters of his district last week. To us, that means he has been doing a good job.

Efforts to remove him via the excuse of "redistricting" would reek of foul play and most certainly raise protests from many Democratic voices.

Governor Terry Sanford, referring to such a move, said "We hope to remove Republicans at the polls, and not legislate them out"; which pretty well reflects our feelings too.

Red China Firm About Formosa

By JAMES D. WHITE
Former Associated Press Correspondent in China

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—It is now possible to reach a tentative conclusion about the real nature of the much talked of split between Peiping and Moscow over the question of peaceful coexistence.

In a word, coexistence is not the central issue. The real argument—never admitted—seems to be over Red China's determination to take Formosa.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev has been proclaiming that the great imperialist war with the West predicted by Lenin is not inevitable. The Communist world is now strong enough to deter Western imperialists from waging such a war, and has more to gain through peaceful coexistence — permitting economic and political penetration — than it would through a nuclear war where it too would be left in ruins, the Soviet boss argued.

Chairman Mao Tse-tung of Red China has replied that Lenin was right and that anyone who says differently is guilty of being soft on Western imperialism. Behind Mao's obvious defiance of Moscow lay a whole series of statements by Red Chinese leaders to this general effect:

With 650 million people Red China is best suited of all the powers to survive a global nuclear holocaust. She could lose almost half her people and still be the most populous nation on earth — and the strongest on earth where all modern industrial nations lay in radiation-poisoned ruins.

But neither Moscow nor Peiping acknowledges that these deeply antagonistic attitudes amount to a disagreement.

Since 1957, when the first signs of a split appeared, the world has wondered what it really meant.

The answer seems to be that co-existence certainly is involved, but that the big, underlying issue is Formosa.

Peiping claims Formosa as a province of China and Moscow fully supports this claim.

But the tipoff comes from Felix Greene, a British businessman who lives in Palto Alto, Calif., and who recently returned from 4½ months in Red China.

Green reports he found the Red Chinese—including Premier Chou En-lai — absolutely inflexible on the question of Formosa. Greene recorded for television a 30-minute interview with Chou.

Big Brother Watching?

Big Brother may be watching you.

You've heard that before. But we've got a new angle.

There were some little brothers at the E.C.C. football game Saturday evening who want some day to be big brothers in the (you know) fraternities. One little brother had five cups and was busily and noisily discussing his bottles and ice in somebody's car trunk when another little brother, presumably of the identical order arrived on the scene.

The little brother with all the cups and bottles told the other little brother that he wouldn't make the order because of something or other and the other little brother told the one with all the cups that the big brothers . . . every one of them . . . liked him and he would too get in.

We decided that if we were the big brothers we would find substitutes for both.

Then we saw some big brothers peering all around the stands. Big brothers watching?

Speaking of watching, we have been watching (observing, peering, etc.) art exhibits at the Greenville Art Center for some months. Also taken numerous pictures of numerous exhibits which involve all sorts of subjects. Much modern art.

No one can accuse us of abusing modern art in any way.

But, some of our contemporaries! We have to mark our picture for top, bottom and sides. We have to explain, defend and madify.

Finally we turned tables and took a picture of a still life by Hans Moller, German born artist of some note. We thought we had done the trick, with something realistic.

But, our contemporaries persist. They said, they said they could see an alka seltzer bottle, an aspirin bottle and a vinegar jug in their own homes. Ah, but this is art!

Still, looking back through files of past pictures of the modern art, it is convenient to have the bottom and top sides marked . . . convenient we say.

Huntsmen's Holiday is really Thanksgiving. Times don't really change. The huntsmen say Thanksgiving is a time when men are supposed to go into the woods to kill game to be eaten on that day, following the example set for them by the first "givers of thanks." The women, according to the hunters, are supposed to remain at home and cook.

And about cooking, something new in cookbooks has been added to the shelves by the State of North Carolina. It's a North Carolina seafood cookbook, 50 pages, available from the Public Information Office, Department of Conservation and Development, Raleigh.

Budget Protests

(Washington Daily News)

The State Board of Higher Education has recommended slashing the sum of about $9,700,000 from the improvement program being sought by state supported colleges.

Somehow in recent years there seems to be a prevailing thought in North Carolina that state supported officials ask for considerable sums in their requests knowing that the amount asked for and the amount received will be very much different. There seems to be a feeling that the amount asked for will be cut considerably, and many people openly say "pay no attention to the amount asked for because they know when they ask for it that they are not going to get it."

We don't know how much this type of thinking has entered into the requests made by officials of the state-supported schools in North Carolina. We do know that 9.7 million dollars represent a lot of money.

Men and materials play a big part today in our educational progress. And it takes money to provide men and materials. To judge adequately any budgetary request, we ought to look at the picture and base our thinking on what is happening in educational circles. When we hear educators say so strongly that we are losing many professors to other universities because we are not meeting the salary schedules of schools elsewhere, that very predicament ought to cause all of us to stop and meditate carefully.

We realize that the taxpayers are the ones who provide the money. We realize that there is a point beyond which any state should not go in this matter of taxing people. But if we lose quality in education, we are losing the very lifeblood of education. We just cannot afford to lose quality in education.

The best facilities in the world are not serving the purpose if we do not have the qualified manpower to teach. We can go along with the idea that we can go slower on certain facilities. But we cannot afford to take a slow approach to this mounting problem of losing our best college teachers to schools in other states which pay more money.

When such outstanding educators as Bill Friday tell us that we are paying a high price for economy in this particular field, we are inclined to feel that he knows much more about the needs and the problems than we do. And as a result we are inclined to go along with him in his protests.

Many problems of education are the same today as they have always been. The problems of today have been multiplied, however, because of the demands made on all colleges through the increased number of of boys and girls seeking educations.

If we increase student bodies, we must also increase materials and men to meet the extra demands. If we increase student bodies and lose many of the best teachers, we are really gaining less than we suppose.

Public officials who will not fight for the best interests of their departments hardly would hold their jobs very long in North Carolina today. They have more information at hand than we do. But whether they are right or wrong in their protests, we don't blame them one moment for fighting for the best program they can devise.

Sound Dollar Needed

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The first order of business after the election is the dollar. The Eisenhower Administration has not understood the nature of money and got caught in a very tight squeeze when the London gold market ran gold up to $41 an ounce. The legal rate for the United States is $35 an ounce and therefore the rise on the London market meant that there was a sudden purchase of gold as against American dollars. This rise could have readily, had it continued, reduced the value of the dollar tragically.

The question still to be answered is, who was buying this gold? The first assumption was that Soviet Russia was manipulating the gold market to force a devaluation of the dollar—an act which can destroy the economy of the United States. But there is the kind of hearsay which a knowledgeable person would believe as true, to accept it that American firms and American banks were buying gold by international telephone to London, Zurich and Amsterdam as a runaway from the dollar.

It is true that an individual is justified in protecting himself from economic collapse but it is fairly close to a betrayal of the country to take any step at the present time to damage the dollar which is suffering from bad management.

The campaign is over and there is no value in covering up the danger that now exists to our currency. Earmarked gold reserves are not to be counted as belonging to the United States unless the Treasury plans to put an embargo on gold; otherwise, the only gold reserves are what remains to this country after the earmarked gold is deducted. Therefore, the peril is that if measured realistically and conservatively, it is possible that we actually have no gold reserves left. The British have a reserve of more than $3,000,000,000; the West Germans about $6,000,000,000; the Russians $9,800,000,000. If the United States cannot maintain a gold reserve sufficient to uphold the dollar as a hard currency, all Western currencies can collapse. This was one of the reasons why the British the signs of the times. It is intober 20-27. They could not let the American dollar go to pot.

This is the Number One question that faces our government now. It is not sound to wait until January 20 to do something about gold. Something needs to be done now; otherwise, it will not be possible to avoid devaluing the dollar because the dollar will be without even the 25 per cent gold protection guaranteed by law.

Politicians, as a matter of practice, wait until a crisis faces them and then they act. If they succeed in pulling their country out of a bad situation, they are heroes; if they fail, they are cursed. There is not too much time left to play with the dollar. The October 20th rise in gold was a signal. It was like a small coronary thrombosis which often precedes a big blow. If one takes immediate steps, he might avoid disaster. If not, the doctors and specialists have to be called in and they are tough guys.

Those who have lived through inflations, as I have, can read the signs of the times. It is interesting, for instance, to note that the people who live on margins, money speculators, stockbrokers, arbitragers and such,

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
ALL THINGS WELL

We often think that we should like to be able to look into the future and see what it has in store for us.

But think about this for a moment. Would you really like to have this gift? Suppose you discerned far in the distance calamity for you or your loved ones. Every day from the point of that discovery until the calamity came upon you, or upon them, would be an agonizing period of torture. The horror of lega. execution is not just that a man must suffer death, but that he remains for months, sometimes for years, looking to that day when the inevitable will happen. That, not the actual execution, is the greatest punishment and torture.

No, let's not think that we could arrange things better than Lord has in this life, if we had the chance. As the heavens are high above the earth is God's wisdom and love high above our ignorance and selfishness.

Sometimes we all wish that we could look a little into the future and see whether or not something we are planning to do would turn out well. But this is only a passing and fanciful thought. If we ponder life to any degree we soon come to the realization that God has done all things well. We make a ridiculous mistake if we think we can improve on God and his methods.

Point Of Diminishing Return

By ELMER ROESSNER

Federal income and corporate tax rates have passed the point of diminishing return and should be reduced, declared Thomas B. Curtis, ranking Republican member of the Senate-House Joint Economic Committee.

Congressman Curtis, of the Second Missouri District, told me that broadening the tax base would solve the problem of increasing Federal revenues. One way, he said, would be to get the government out of business. Another would be to close loopholes, eliminating favoritism.

"We have reached the point where Federal, state and local government expend approximately one third of our net national product," he said. "Today government takes so much of the average man's earnings that it has encouraged him to look for tax loopholes and dodges.

CURTIS'S FORMULA

In each session of Congress there is renewed talk of further increases in the corporate and individual income tax rates to supply necessary funds for expanding federal programs. Certain changes in our revenue laws should take place before any attempt is made to further increase the existing tax laws. One of the most basic criticisms I make, both of the Treasury Department and of the Ways and Means Committee's approach to taxation, is the use of the short-sighted assumption that the tax rate is the only factor in computing tax take. Actually, tax take is based upon a more complicated formula.

This formula, which may some day be known as Curtis's Formula or Curtis's Law, can be expressed this way:

Tax Base times Tax Rate over Non-Collectibility equals Tax Revenue

Most legislators assume that if the tax base is $1,000, for example, and the tax rate is 33 per cent, the revenue will be $330. But Mr. Curtis pointed out that collectibility is an essential factor and that if the given tax is only half collectable, the revenue would be only $165. And, he added, the higher the rate, the lower the collectibility because people increase their use of loopholes and dodges as the rates rise.

PERSONAL PROPERTY EXAMPLE

As an example he cited personal property taxes. "They have such a low rate of collectibility that the tax take from a rather broad base is practically nil."

In urging the Federal government to get out of the production of goods and services which could be provided by private industry, he said:

"When the Federal government goes into business, it withdraws an operation from the tax base. In 1929, to illustrate, there was $9 in private investment for each $1 of Federal investment. That ratio has now declined to a little less than $5.50 to $1.

"Another way of broadening the tax base is by blocking loopholes. Some methods of doing business seem to be escaping the full tax burden. One of these is the cooperative method. I am talking about the big co-ops that have gone way beyond the concept of little farm co-ops. Big co-ops should not receive the tax preferences they do over corporate organizations."

WANTS COLLECTIONS TIGHTENED

"Aggressive and equitable enforcement of our taxing laws" is also needed, the Missourian declared. "Billions of dollars each year remain uncollected because the Treasury has insufficient and personnel to do the job.

"Inadequate tax enforcement means not only loss of revenue but increased resentment on the part of those taxpayers who pay their fair share. More Federal funds should be channeled into this area. Experience has shown us that for every $1 spent, $10 is collected in additional revenue, plus the fact that in insisting on adequate enforcement, we preserve the basis of the system which is so largely voluntary."

Tomorrow Congressman Curtis will answer questions about bills he will fight for in the next Congress, to which he was re-elected by a comfortable margin.

are selling dollars and buying gold if they can get any. If they cannot buy gold, they buy Swiss francs or even pounds sterling to protect themselves. That is a bad sign for us and while the so-called experts give alibis for their failure of foresight, those of us who need to record events, must note what is happening. And what is happening is that the dollar's reputation as a hard, strong currency is disappearing.

When Senator Kennedy spoke, during the campaign, about prestige, he failed to deal with the prestige of the dollar. There he had a real argument and one which could be substantiated. Now, he will have to deal with the problem of currency with the full responsibility of the Presidency. Unfortunately, few Americans are currency experts. It is a science which we seem to have missed. The British, Dutch and Swiss are very good at it. Somebody in the Iron Curtain countries seems to be good at it. The Chinese have been exchange experts for centuries. We have long trusted the British to do our thinking on this subject.

The Englishman, a journalist as well as a businessman, said this was a part of a much more hard-boiled attitude in Peiping than he had found on his first visit three years ago.

He told a radio panel that the Chinese Reds will insist upon settling the Formosa question on their terms before even considering taking the Chinese seat in the United Nations. They are aware that a U.N. trusteeship for Formosa has been discussed, and they want no part of it.

Green asserts the Red Chinese won't talk on anything else with the United States until American forces withdraw from Formosa —leaving it open to conquest

Here is where coexistence enters the picture. Moscow is obligated by the Sino-Soviet Treaty of 1950 to come to Red China's aid in the event of "hostilities from the direction of Japan" meaning America. The United States is committed to the defense of Formosa through its treaty with Nationalist China.

Coexistence with the West would go out the window if Peiping attacked Formosa. In all probability World War III would be on.

If Greene is right, there is little chance for an American "Two China Policy" as suggested by Chester A. Bowles, a foreign policy adviser to President-elect John F. Kennedy.

BISSETTE'S DRUG STORE
PICTURE TALK
By DENNIS WARREN
SOMETHING OLD, SOMETHING NEW
A father of a bride-to-be came striding through the front door the other day with a fistful of color slides and a great idea.
Seems his daughter is getting married next month and he's come up with a surprise gift for her and the groom. He wanted us to make color prints of the pick of all the hundreds of slides he'd taken of his daughter from her diaper to debutante days.
Assembled in an album, the color prints would make a dazzling gift for the new couple. And dad will still have all the slides of his favorite girl.
Having color prints made of your best slides lets you share your best efforts with friends and relatives—without putting a dent in your slide collection. Really big enlargements can add a splash of color to your walls, can keep your best work on display at all times.
And of course, if you need them we can also make duplicate slides —of your original. Turning slides into prints and duplicates is easy and inexpensive. Just spend a pleasant evening viewing your slide collection. Pick out the real showstoppers. Bring 'em in and we'll carry the ball from there on.
We'll have your prints or duplicates ready for you in no time. But the first move is up to you. See you soon?

CHAPTER 19

"We both know that more people have been stabbed to death with a bookkeeper's pencil than the sword," Holly Bristow told Harry Lovell. "Now I want you to go over to the hotel, get a room, shave, clean up, have a good meal, and talk to anyone who wants to listen. Talk about railroading, Harry, and lay it on the line that Holliday is broke. You know what I mean. Loosen up with the inside information, like a man will when he can't see the sense of keeping quiet when the outfit is staggering its last steps. I'll take it from there, and when you ask for poles and wire, you can bet you won't get them."

"All right," Lovell said. Then he sighed. "God, I wish it would end, Holly. But I've said that before, haven't I? What takes a piddlin' little railroad so long to die?"

"The man at the throttle," Bristow said. "Holliday's got his hand on it and he doesn't want to turn loose of it." He straightened in his chair. "Be patient, Harry. Remember, we can afford to be."

"Of course," Lovell said.

Bristow got up when someone knocked at the door, and Harry Lovell straightened apprehensively, but Bristow motioned for him to sit back and relax. He opened the door and said, "Yes?" He glanced at the girl, and at the heavy man with the walrus mustache, "Could I help you?"

"I'm Anna Neubauer. This is my father. May we come in?"

Bristow stepped aside. "Of course. I was just finishing with a client." He turned to Harry Lovell. "I'm sure we'll find your wife, sir. You'll hear from me shortly." Then he shook hands with Lovell, who went right out. "Now, Miss Neubauer. Sit down, please. Right over there, sir, in the leather chair." Again he moved behind his desk and sat down. "Well, what can I do for you?"

My father's English is not too good," Anna said. "But we want to know if it's true that in America, if you make a new thing, you can take out a paper to keep others from making it too."

"A patent," Bristow said, smuling. "Mr. Neubauer, have you an invention?"

Fritz Neubauer looked confused. "Was sagt er?"

Anna explained it in German, and he nodded. "Ja, I make this for the train." He got up. "I leave it in the hall." Then he hurried out and came back with a long, shallow box. He put this on Bristow's desk and took off the lid. A model of a railroad-car coupling handcrafted, with two complete sets of trucks, with air brakes, all operated by mechanical linkage made a polished steel and brass display on piano-finished mahogany. "My daughter, she vill tell you about it. My English—" He shrugged and smiled as though embarrassed.

"The lever here represents the engineer's brake control," Anna said, demonstrating it. "The train is stopped when this valve is mov- But there have been instances where the engineer and fireman were dead, or too badly hurt to operate the control, and the train ran on until an accident happened."

"Yes, I'm well aware of that," Bristow admitted.

"This is where the engineer stands." Anna continued. And this is a spring-loaded switch. The engineer puts his foot on it all the time he is running the train. If he so much as takes his foot off, the valve will automatically operate the brakes and stop the train."

After they registered at the hotel, Anna Neubauer understood how great was her father's thirst for a glass of beer, and urged him to go get one, but not to be late for supper; this was a strange town and she didn't want to eat alone.

She went upstairs and along the hall to her room, and as she unlocked the door, Harry Lovell stepped out of a room a few doors down. He glanced at her in passing and smiled fleetingly.

Anna said, "I hope you find your wife, sir."

Lovell stopped and frowned. "What was that?"

His recognition of her was complete then, and he nodded curtly and went on down the stairs.

Later Anna ate in the dining room with her father, who seemed troubled. Finally he came out with it, speaking softly in German. "I've seen that man before, Anna."

"What man?"

"The one in the lawyer's office. I think he works for the railroad."

She shrugged. "So? We work for the railroad and we went there."

"I'm sure he works for the railroad. Not with the hands. For Mr. Holliday, in the office building." He shook his head and went on eating. "Maybe he invents something, yes?"

"He is trying to find his wife, Papa."

"How could a man lose his wife?" He seemed to think this was the most ridiculous thing he ever heard.

Through the heat of the day, Ben Holliday and John-Jack DuJoise followed the trail across the prairie, feeling it grow hotter with each mile. Finally DuJoise said, "No more than an hour, m'sieu. Perhaps even less. But no more." He pulled his hat low over his eyes and squinted at the shimmering reaches of land. "He still walks his horse, and at a slow pace. See how close are the marks of his feet."

He paused to think a moment, then added, "I don't think he limps, m'sieu. Still it is not the stride of a well man. The feet are held too far apart." He turned to his horse. "Come. We move faster now."

Now and then they trotted their horses, and in the distance Ben Holliday could make out the buildings of the Singer place, and as far as he was concerned, this pretty well settled the issue, for if it wasn't a Singer man who killed Skinner, then it was someone who felt pretty safe on Singer property.

As they drew close to the yard, they split, John-Jack going on toward the corral and bunkhouse, and Ben Holliday riding toward the front porch. Carl and Murray Singer came out to stand.

Holliday did not bother to dismount. He said, "Mr. Singer, Ollie Skinner is dead. The man that killed him is here, on your place. I want him."

For a moment, Murray Singer said nothing, then he smiled. "Son, I can't say that I know a Texas Ranger who'd have enough nerve to do what you just did. In Texas, we're a little more careful about what we say."

Mrs. Kennedy's Secretary Will Be An Old Friend

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy's social secretary at the White House will be a friend of her school days who has had considerable experience in diplomatic circles.

Letitia (Tish) Baldrige of Washington said she was thrilled and excited about her appointment. She will take care of the White House social office, which handles everything from formal state dinners to answering mail for the First Lady.

Miss Baldrige, a tall blonde now in her early 30s, was in Vassar with Mrs. Kennedy. They continued their friendship at the Sorbonne in Paris.

Miss Baldrige, daughter of former Rep. H. Malcolm Baldrige, served as secretary to former Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce in Rome and to the wife of former Ambassador David Bruce in Paris.

GOP Call For Vote Recounts Facing Poor Prospect

By JOE F. KANE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders in most of the 11 states where a vote recount was suggested do not plan to challenge the Nov. 8 election results.

When GOP National Chairman Thruston B. Morton proposed the recounts a week ago, he told Republican officials in 11 states to look into "purported vote frauds." He urged investigation and whatever follow-up action was indicated.

A check today with GOP leaders in the states listed by Morton showed:

No recounts are planned in Michigan, South Carolina, Illinois, New Mexico, New Jersey, Pennsylvania or Delaware. Party officials in Nevada and Missouri were awaiting official state canvasses before making a decision. That was also the situation in Minnesota, but any recount move there appeared doubtful. Texas GOP leaders have said they were considering a recount bid, but have taken no action.

Reported voting irregularities were being checked in some of the states.

The reaction of the state leaders came as John F. Kennedy's victory margin was cut further by late counts—making it almost certain that he would end up with less than a majority of all the votes cast.

With 1,549 precincts still out and many absentee ballots still to be counted, Kennedy had 33,869,208 votes to 33,684,561 for Republican Vice President Richard M. Nixon. This gave Kennedy a lead of only 184,647 out of more than 67½ million votes.

Absentee ballots continued to build up Nixon's winning margin in his home state of California.

Hundreds of thousands of votes for unpledged presidential electors and minor party candidates will cut further Kennedy's percentage of the national popular vote. Most states will not report votes for splinter parties until the official canvass. The last of these returns will not be in until next month.

Even if Kennedy winds up with less than a majority, he will of course still ge the winner—barring an unexpected upset in the electoral vote lineup. His 300 electoral votes are 31 more than the 269 needed for election.

Thirteen winning presidential candidates have failed to collect a majority of all votes. It happened as recently as 1948, when Harry S. Truman won a surprise victory.

When Morton proposed the recounts in 11 states, Nixon's top aides made it clear that they did not expect any upset in the Nov. 8 results. And they said Nixon was not consulted about Morton's request.

But some Republican leaders were pictured as hoping recounts and final tabulations of absentee ballots would give Nixon a popular vote lead over Kennedy.

Dedicated Watcher Of Television Can 'Dream'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Day-dreams of a dedicated television watcher:

The time when the sponsor's scouring powder doesn't do a thing for half the stain in the dirty sink and Brand X cleans its half-sparkling white.

The time when the housewife in the automatic laundry picks the pile of clothes washed by detergent X cleaner-looking than the sponsor's pile.

The time when the spokesman chokes over his mild, mild, mild cigarette.

The time when the ball-player draws blood with the sponsor's super-slick blade.

The time when the 1961 automobile has a blowout and skids into a ravine while rounding that mountain curve.

The time when the hungry collie races up to a dish of the sponsor's dog-food, then backs away in distaste.

The time when the model's hair comes out of the home permanent curlers all frizzy and dry.

The time when the beer pours flat and headless into the glass.

The time when the smiling housewife slips and falls on her freshly waxed kitchen floor.

Just daydreams, of course, impossible to become reality in this day of the taped or filmed commercials with their guaranteed happy endings for the sponsor.

Speaking of commercials, the Federal Trade Commission recently issued a complaint charging that a maker of a shaving cream mixed toothpaste with his product for a commercial showing a skin diver shaving under water. The manufacturer says, however, he has films showing the accuracy of the commercial. And speaking of shaving, a commercial photographer tells me it is common practice to use shaving cream to demonstrate the "rich suds" of shampoos because the real suds don't stand up on hair long enough to shoot the scene.

Variety, the show business trade paper, says that sponsors are withdrawing from a number of new shows to which they were committed only for 13 weeks. Among them are CBS' "Witness" series and "Person to Person." "Person to Person" was on shaky ground last season, and there has been constant tinkering with "Witness" all season to get it into smooth running order.

In spite of special shows turning up on an average of one each night, TV hasn't been very stimulating lately.

"The Story of a Family" on Monday was a far from memorable effort and ABC's so-called John Wayne special proved just one long plug for a movie as expected. Tuesday night's "The Great Impersonation" didn't come close to achieving the charm or suspense of the elderly book from which it was adapted. "Heaven Can Wait" on Wednesday merely proved again how easy it is to shatter fantasy by touching it with a heavy hand.

Maybe things will pick up over the week-end. There's NBC's "Dave's Place," with Dave Garroway tonight, and on Sunday there is the two-hour version of MacBeth on NBC and Harry Belafonte's "New York 19" on CBS.

Civil War Said Due 'Unused Machinery'

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—Historian Bruce Catton said today the American Civil War "came because the machinery of democracy simply was not used. I suggest that through all future time we remember what a terrible price the failure to use that machinery can exact."

America's democratic machinery "gives us the chance to handle problems which, left to the emotions, become unmanageable," Catton told The Associated Press Managing Editors' Association.

"The nation's enduring tragedy is that in 1860 and 1861 that machinery was not used.

"Make no mistake about it: The American Civil War was not the "irrepressible conflict,'" said the editor of American Heritage. "It need not have taken place. It settled nothing that reasonable men of good will could not have settled if they had been willing to make the effort."

Catton said that in 1860 "nobody tried to find a compromise—nobody seemed willing even to talk about the possibility of a compromise—and there was no compromise." And 600,000 men lost their lives.

The full machinery of democracy, Catton said, "lies in our hands, and this machinery is extraordinarily flexible and effective. But we do have to have the will to use it.

"It won't work by itself, and it won't work any better than the people who are using it want it to work. If we let ourselves reach the point where we don't want to understand the other fellow's point of view, where we reject even the thought of compromise, where angry denunciation is substituted for reasonable debate—if, in other words, we let unrestrained emotion take the place of thinking, and use our freedom to speak and to write merely to make emotion run more strongly—then we are very likely to make a most expensive mistake."

Major Part Of Dollar Outflow Isn't Touched

NEW YORK (AP)—Every little bit helps. That's the first reaction in financial and business circles to President Eisenhower's moves to stop some of the outward flow of dollars and gold into foreign hands.

But internatinal bankers note that the major part of the outflow is still untouched.

President Eisenhower has told federal agencies to cut their spending abroad for foreign goods and foreign services. He hopes thereby to save as much as a billion dollars a year. This would leave the loss of dollars and gold still running at more than $3 billion a year.

This loss—known technically as the deficit in the balance of payments—has been building up for several years. It has mushroomed in the last three years.

But it wasn't until the sudden rush of Europeans to buy gold on the London free market a month ago because they thought the U.S. dollar wobbly that the American public paid any attention to the drain on the U.S. Treasury.

Its gold hoard now is down to $18 billion from a high of more than $24 billion. The short term dollar holdings of foreigners come to more than $18 billion. Theoretically if they all sought at once to turn their dollar holdings into gold, the Treasury would be stripped bare.

Actually there is no such concerted run on the Treasury either in action or expected. And if one developed, the Treasury would doubtless stop selling gold long before any such assault on the integrity of the dollar could get far.

But the loss of gold can't go on indefinitely—$1.3 billion has left the Treasury's hands since the first of this year. Nor can the United States go on sending $4 billion a year more overseas than it gets back.

That's why the President has taken steps to dramatize the situation by ordering a cutback in government agency spending.

The step marks a sharp turnaround in US.. policy followed since World War II. For years, the U.S. government has poured billions into foreign aid to rehabilitate war torn allies and to build up underdeveloped nations. Such spending presumably is to continue at about $4 billion a year.

Our exports currently are running about $5 billion a year above our imports—a big spurt in exports coming this year while imports slackened.

But this $5 billion surplus of exports over imports has been overwhelmed by our other forfs of spending—foreign aid, investment abroad, travel overseas or in the Americas, costly bases on foreign soil.

It's that deficit that the President's rulings are aimed at—and that in large part still must be

Considers Richmond As Tough Foe

The football season of 1960 has been a personal disappointment of East Carolina's All-Conference halfback Glenn Bass. Yet, the famed speedster from Wilson, who has suffered with a leg injury most of the season, feels it has been successful team-wise.

"I have never seen a team with as much desire to win and as eager to learn as this one," said Bass earlier this week as the Bucs prepared to close out the season against Richmond tomorrow night.

Speaking of Richmond, Bass disclosed, "On paper, they have a read good team . . . probably stronger than any club we've played. But if we play the ball we are capable of playing, I think we can give them a real good game."

For Glenn, it will be the close of his college career and he hopes to bow out in flying colors. "I really felt good running this week . . . the best since I was injured in the Elon game."

Concerning his leg injury, Glenn considers it just one of the breaks in football. "Naturally, I feel bad about it but I'm just thankful I've been able to play as much as I have. Others have had it worse." With a flicker in his eye, he asserts, "I do wish I had one more year to play".

Glenn, who might pass as a movie-actor with his masculine features, had dreams of Little All-American prior to his injury and although the possibility of such an honor hasn't been totally destroyed, the injury has cut down on his chances considerably.

Became A Star Almost Overnight

Last eason, Glenn jumped into the spotlight almost overnight. He led East Carolina in scoring and was the top ground gainer in the North State Conference, gaining almost 900 yards. He was also the club's top pass receiver and was a ball-hawk on defense.

This campaign, he has still gained over 500 yards rushing, ranking second in the league, and is expected to add to that total tomorrow night. "I like to think that I might be leading the conference if I could have escaped this injury" says Glenn in answer to a question.

While his running feats have been phenominal, he is quick to throw the credit to his teammates. "If it wasn't for the blockers up front and the other backs, I couldn't have done anything." He throws special praise to his running mate, Sonny Baysinger. The defense can't concentrate on stopping just one of our halfbacks, according to Bass.

Tomorrow night, the former Wilson prep star, who never got to play offensive ball and was overlooked by all the other colleges in the state, will close out his college days on the football field.

Like some 12 other seniors on the squad, he is hopeful of leaving a pleasant memory behind.

Hickey Receives Added Contract

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Only action by the trustees remains to assure Jim Hickey of four more years as North Carolina head football coach.

President William C. Friday of the consolidated University of North Carolina announced Thursday he has endorsed the recommendation of Chancellor William B. Aycock that Hickey's contract be extended for three years.

The 40-year-old coach, successor to the late Jim Tatum, has until Dec. 31, 1961, under his present contract.

The expression of administration confidence in Hickey, whose current team has lost seven and won one, came as the team prepared for the big game with Duke. The contes t,an important one with alumni and fans of both schools, will be played here Saturday.

Hickey was on the coaching staff under Tatum, who died in July, 1959. Last season, Hickey's first team had a 5-5 record. It included a 50-0 win over Duke.

Pittman Leads Tourney Field

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Young Jerry Pittman, Tulsa, Okla., was in front of the field today as play continued in the second round of the $15,000 Cajun Classic Golf Tournament.

The 23-year-old Pittman had a two-stroke edge on the pack by virtue of a 6-under-par 34-31—65 round over the flat, 6,531-yard Oakburne Country Club course Thursday.

The National Trotting Assn., forerunner of the present United States Trotting Assn., was founded in 1870.

ECC Looking For Victory Spark In Final Game

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina College's football squad, a pack of die-hard losers, isn't happy with the way things have gone for the past three weeks but have been reminding themselves that the pain can be soothed tomorrow night with an upset over highly-touted Richmond University of the Southern Conference.

Whether East Carolina can turn the tables on the visiting Richmond club—a feat two other East Carolina squads have attempted but missed by a mile—remains to be seen Head Coach Jack Boone feels that if an upset is in the books, this club has the potential and desire to apply the fatal blow.

Coach Ed Merrick brings a beefy bus load of gridders into Greenville but he contends it isn't one of his best teams. According to Merrick, injuries have cropped up in the Spider camp forcing the coaching staff to "find replacements for the replacements."

Although Richmond's record is only 2-5-1, they haven't been man handled by any club, including conference powers V.M.I. and Virginia Tech. The Spiders will be favored to improve on their season mark and most pronosticators consider it will be by a comfortable margin.

Being cast in the role of underdog is nothing new for Boone's men in pads. Yet, they have managed to capture six victories in nine starts and need only an upset over Richmond to chalk up the best mark since the championship year of 1953. A loss will leave the '60 club on even ground with the 1958 eleven.

While a couple of backfield injuries may hamper Richmond's ground offense, nothing appears to be wrong with the throwing arm of quarterback Mel Rideout and his favorite target, end Bob Coolbaugh. ECC's secondary has been proven vulnerable in past games and flying footballs tomorrow night may be about as common as umbrellas on a rainy afternoon.

Coolbaugh, the husky 195 Spider end, is a candidate for All-Southern post-season honors. He is the top pass receiver in the Southern Conference with 29 catches for 303 yards and is ranked fourth among receivers in the nation.

Rideout, a shrewd quarterback, is the conference's number two passer, completing 69 of 142 tosses for 736 yards.

On the ground attack, 210 pound fullback Jim McGinnis, winner of the Jacobs blocking trophy in the Southern Conference last year, may be the workhorse. Halfback Earl Stomdt has a slight edge over McGinnis in rushing but has been on the injury list and may be limited to only spot duty Saturday night.

Richmond's line is controlled by veteran hard-nosed football players, Center Don Christman, an All-Conference possibility, and tackle Bob Buffman are the leading front-workers.

East Carolina will carry its hopes for an upset on the outside running of halfbacks Glenn Bass and Sonny Baysinger, a couple of the top runners in the North State Conference.

Bass, a Wilson senior, recently returned to full-time duty and amassed 143 yards on the ground last week against Presbyterian, leaping into second place in the conference rushing statistics with 511 yards.

Baysinger, the dynamite 165 pounder, has shared the stardom with Bass in carrying East Carolina to a successful campaign. Besides being an outstanding runner, Baysinger has been an exceptional blocker and defensive man.

East Carolina's front forces took a beating last week in combat with Presbyterian but hope to reverse the situation against their victors Saturday.

Steady Chuck Gordon, an All-Conference candidate, will direct the defensive play. Assisting in clearing paths for the runners and attempting to stop Richmond's attack will be Henry Kwiatkowski, Wayne Davis, Henry Vansant, Vernon Davis, Cary Cannady, Jones Lockerman, Clayton Piland, Gary Pierce, and Bobby Bumgardner.

Although the different competition all but eliminate the statistics, a glance would show East Carolina holding an offensive edge, 277.5 per game to 228.8. Richmond holds the edge in passing while ECC's ground attack has been more productive. The Spiders hold a slight lead in defensive statistics.

East Carolina, holding aspirations of future entrance into the Southern Conference, has had very little success in the past, losing four one-sided games, with clubs of the higher league.

In 1956, VPI triumped 37-2 and Richmond won going away, 45-7. The following season saw Richmond take a 40-7 victory and Davidson capture a 19-6 decision.

The game will close the books on another East Carolina grid season and a capacity crowd is expected to fill College Stadium to watch the Pirates match muscles with the Spiders.

Tickets for the game have been on sale throughout Greenville all week and will be available at the gate Saturday night. Kick-off time is set for 8:00.

Approve Plan To Trim Matches

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—The Professional Golfers Association Thursday night approved a plan to trim Ryder Cup matches from 36 to 18 holes.

A PGA spokesman said the change, made at the request of the British PGA, would work this way:

In the past there were 36-hole single matches in the morning and 36-hole scotch foursome play in the afternoon.

The new system calls for 18-hole single matches during the morning rounds, a change of opponents, and another round of singles in the afternoon.

The following day the scotch foursomes will take over under the same formula and on the 18-hole basis.

The new rules go into effect in the 1961 matches.

In another action, Lou Strong, 47, of Oak Hill Country Club, Rochester, N.Y., was elected PGA president.

Garner, Edenton Meet Here Tonite

Edenton, considered the "cream of the crop' among 1960 North Carolina football, will flex its muscles in Greenville tonight, meeting Garner in the playoffs of Class 2-A.

The game, which will be played in East Carolina's College Stadium, will start at 8:00.

The Aces, coached by Bill Billings, have scored over 30 points in each of 10 games this season, including a 40-0 victory over Ahoskie—a Greenville victim. Defensively, Edenton has allowed only four touchdowns with no club scoring over once. Six of the victories have been by shutouts.

Garner was tied by Dunn 12-12 in a non-conference game but rolled past nine South Central Conference rivals with ease. Unlike Edenton, the Wake County club had some close calls, especially in games with Smithfield, Cary and Wake Forest.

Championship play is nothing new for Edenton and Billings. The Aces won the State Class A title in 1954, 1956, and 1957. They lost in the playoffs in 1958. Last season was their first in Class 2-A action.

Billy Joyce, a speedy tailback, will carry Garner's hopes for an upset. A 180 pound triple-threat back, Joyce scored 18 touchdowns during the season in leading his club to the title.

Edenton will have a host of stars, including 10 seniors. Top names in their backfield are Jerry Tolley and Bubba Hopkins. End Fred Britton has been another standout performer, scoring 10 touchdowns.

Tar Heels Still Figure In Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At this stage of the football season, Clemson and North Carolina were supposed to be fighting for the Atlantic Coast Conference crown, with Wake Forest a dark horse contender.

That was the consensus of the experts two months ago.

So the three teams have a combined total of 8 victories and 16 losses, and Duke is primed to grab the conference title Saturday.

In a way, North Carolina, with a 0-5 ACC record and a 1-7 mark in all games, figures in the title picture. Duke, 5-0 in the conference, must beat the Tar Heels to win the championship.

A couple of other teams given little consideration in pre-season speculation North Carolina State and Maryland — are set to wrap up reasonably successful football campaigns. They rank second and third, respectively, in the conference race.

N.C. State, 4-1 in the ACC and 6-3 in all games, can sew up its most successful campaign since 1957 when the Wolfpack won the conference title. The Wolfpack takes on South Carolina Saturday at Columbia, S.C. The Gamecocks, on the other hand, are in the midst of one of their worst seasons in recent years. They take a 1-6 over-all record into the game.

Maryland, 4-2 in the ACC and 5-4 in all games, faces Virginia Saturday and a victory would give the Terps their best record since 1955 when they won the conference crown. The Cavaliers have lost their last 25 games, including seven this season.

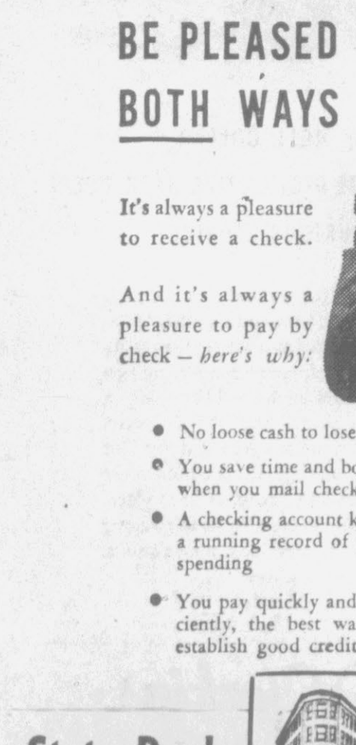

N.C. State and Maryland complete their schedules Satuday, but all the other ACC teams have at least one more game to play.

In other games Saturday, Clemson plays at Boston College, and Wake Forest plays a night game at Louisiana State.

South Carolina's Gamecocks were cheered Thursday when quarterback Dave Sowell returned to the lineup. He was injured in the Oct. 29 game with Maryland and sat our the last two games. Despite that, he leads the Gamecocks in rushing with 219 yards in 44 carries, an average of five yards a try.

Wake Forest takes a 2-6 over-all record into the LSU game.

Clemson, fourth in the ACC with a 4-2 mark, and 5-3 over-all, is favored to beat BC. Guard Morgan Fowler, out with a dislocated elbow, and end Ed Bost, who has an injured knee, won't see action.

Dole Hopeful Of Cats Beating Furman Eleven

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Davidson hasn't beaten Furman in Southern Conference football competition since 1948, but Wildcat Coach Bill Dole hopes he may have come up with the boy who'll turn the tide when the two teams tangle Saturday afternoon.

Alex Gibbs, a 161-pound sophomore from Thomasville, N.C., is the youngster who's been given credit for a lot of Davidson's success in its last two starts — a 9-7 triumph over Virginia Tech and a 21-18 victory over Lehigh.

In the Wildcats' first five games four of which they lost, Gibbs managed only 83 yards rushing. In the last two starts, however, he picked up 83 and 72 yards as he boosted his season's total to 238 and a 4.5-yard average.

"We had high hopes for Alex at the start of the season," says Dole. "He found himself against an outstanding team — VPI —and repeated his performance last week at Lehigh."

The Wildcats also have gotten a good job from halfback Jerry Sheffield, named Southern Conference Player of the Week after the Tech upset.

Dole says the Wildcats have improved recently in two respects.

"One is offensive blocking," he notes. "Our blockers are staying with their men a little longer now, so that backs like Gibbs and Sheffield can get through."

The other area of improvement is the Davidson sophomores' newfound confidence. Dole says "we have been playing 12 of them regularly, and it helps when they play a good ball game."

Davidson, the host team for Saturday afternoon's scrap, carries a 1-2 conference record into action and a 3-4 over-all mark. Furman, surprised by Richmond last week, also is 1-2 in the conference and 4-3 overall.

Saturday afternoon's other league tussle has the circuit's surprise team, George Washington, at West Virginia with the Mountaineers — long a power in the conference — seeking to avoid an ignominous basement finish.

GW has won its last three starts and carries a 3-2 league record and a 4-3-1 overall record into the game. West Virginia is 0-1-1 in the conference and 0-7-2 against all comers.

Two conference teams have outside engagements Saturday night—Richmond at East Carolina and The Citadel at Arkansas State.

Rival Coaches Aren't Talking

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Both coaches—Jordan Olivar of unbeaten, untied Yale and John Yovicsin of Harvard—are talking a good game for the Big One Saturday.

Stripped of the qualifying clauses, their statements go like this:

Yale's Olivar: "This could be the best Yale team I've had in nine years."

Harvard's Yovicsin: "I feel we're up for this game and can beat Yale."

Yale rates a 10-point favorite in this 77th renewal of an ancient series that goes back to 1876. A victory would give the Elis their first unbeaten, untied season since 1923 and, of course, clear title to the Ivy League crown.

Syracuse's Bowl Decision Will Depend On Outcome With Miami

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Syracuse's disposition toward playing in a post-season football bowl game, presumably the Liberty or Gotham, will be spelled out tonight by the results of its game against the Miami Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl.

The defending national champions, 6-2 this year, have invitations from both bowl committees and have promised a decision after it finishes its season against the Hurricanes.

And not to be outdone are the Hurricanes, who have won 5 of 7, with Florida and the Air Froce still to go. Miami has not been in a post-season game since 1952. A victory over the powerful Orange could go a long way in determining any bowl appearance.

Memphis State (7-2) plays Mississippi Southern (5-3) in another Friday night game.

There is talk of bowls, conference titles and maybe a national college champion in Saturday's action, the last full Saturday of the 1960 season.

Missouri, ranked first in the current Associated Press poll with a 9-0 record, closes its season against Kansas (6-2-1) as the two battle for the Big Eight title.

The Tigers already have nailed down an Orange Bowl berth since the Jayhawks are banned by the NCAA from post-season play.

What is also in the minds of the Missourians (so much so that coach Dan Devine says his troops "are becoming nervous) is the fact that a victory almost assures them of staying atop the AP poll, and permanent residency there for the remainder of the season means the national title.

Iowa, ranked second, goes against Notre Dame (1-7). Iowa (7-1) has lost only to Minnesota, and has clinched at least a tie for the Big Ten title.

A Minnesota (7-1) loss to Wisconsin (4-4) would give the Hawkeyes the conference crown and a possible trip to meet Washington's Huskies in the Rose Bowl.

The Huskies (No. 5) have already clinched the Big Five title and will probably make a formal acceptance next week to defend their Bowl title. Saturday they meet Washington State (4-4-1).

Djke (7-1), sixth-ranked, can nail down the Atlantic Coast Conference crown if it beats North Carolina (1-7).

Seventh-ranked Arkansas (7-2) needs only beat Texas Tech to get the host spot in the Cotton Bowl, and at least a share of the Southwest Conference title.

In other games involving the top ranked teams, Auburn (7-1), ranked ninth, meets Florida State while 10th ranked Ohio State (6-2) faces Michigan (5-3). Mississippi, ranked third, and Navy (No. 8) are idle. The Middies are prepping for their big game against Army next week.

Yale (8-0) goes after its first perfect season since 1923 in its finale against Harvard (5-3). This game is televised (1:30 Eastern Standard Time, ABC-TV).

Cronin Announces That New Club Will Definitely Be In Los Angeles

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The beleaguered American League, determined to go through with its plans to expand to 10 teams next year, today made available 56 players to be sold to the two new clubs—Washington and Los Angeles—for an aggregate $4,200,000.

League President Joe Cronin, after awarding the Washington franchise to a 10-man syndicate headed by E.R. Quesada, administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency, said Thursday night a new club would definitely be placed in Los Angeles.

Hank Greenberg, who had been expected to head an operating syndicate in Los Angeles, bowed out, presumably because of Commissioner Ford Frick's insistence that "equitable" indemnity be paid to Walter O'Malley, owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers, for damages accrued in his pioneering effort in the West Coast.

Cronin was certain the league would have no difficulty in selecting a suitable group for Los Angeles to round out the 10-team league. The league, after an all-day meeting Thursday, was scheduled to reconvene today. "I know several people who are interested in obtaining a franchise and I expect some of them to be present at the meeting," said Cronin. "We will entertain bids then."

So certain were the American League club owners of playing in Washington and Los Angeles in 1961 that they spelled out a plan to stock each new club with 28 men from the current 40-man rosters of old clubs.

Each of the eight incumbents was obliged to designate a list of 15 players, seven of whom must have been on the club's active roster last Aug. 31.

Each club is required to sell seven players, at $75,000 per player. No more than four can be taken from one club by any one of the two new teams. All purchases must be made before midnight, Nov. 20. At the end of the player sale, each of the two new clubs will have purchased 28 players at a cost of $2,100,000.

In addition to the stockpile from its own league, each new club will be permitted to select two minor leaguers at $25,000 each after the completion of the annual minor league draft Nov. 28 at Louisville. Added to this total of 30, eight more may be purchased for $25,000 by each of the newcomers from each of the American league club's farm system. That will give each of the new entries 38 players.

Although speaking in guarded tones, Cronin made it plain his league was angered by what he termed a "sudden change of heart" by Commissioner Frick.

"On October 26," Cronin said, "being aware of the commissioner's position declaring Los Angeles and New York open cities, the American League voted to expand to 10 teams in 1961. Now we come here and find that he apparently has changed his position."

Cronin said he planned to talk with Frick as well as with O'Malley at the earliest possible moment.

Others were not as conciliatory as the league president.

"So far, we haven't learned what O'Malley wants, if anything," said Del Webb, co-owner of the New York Yankees.

"O'Malley isn't interested in money. He just wants to keep everybody out of Los Angeles."

Bill Veeck, president of the Chicago White Sox, was even more outspoken against Frick.

"A year ago, six months ago, three months ago, the commissioner declared Los Angeles was an open city," said Veeck. "Suddenly it becomes closed. It's the quickest trap-door I ever saw."

Jofre Favored In Bout Tonite

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Slender Eder Jofre is favored tonight to whip Mexico's Eloy Sanchez and take a portion of the world bantamweight title back to his native Brazil.

The winner of the 15-round battle will be recognized by the National Boxing Association as the world champion 118-pounder.

And the winner will fight Alphonse Halimi, the little Algerian from France who is recognized in Europe as the titleholder.

A controversy arose when Jose Becerra of Mexico retired from ring activity and left the title vacant last summer.

The betting people believe that Jofre will defeat Sanchez, who rose to international prominence when he knocked out Becerra in a non-title match last Aug. 30 in Juarez, Mex.

Jofre, a personable young man of 24 seeking to become Brazil's first world champion, is undefeated in 37 fights, although held to a draw in three. He subsequently knocked out two of the latter opponents, and has a total of 26 knockouts to his credit.

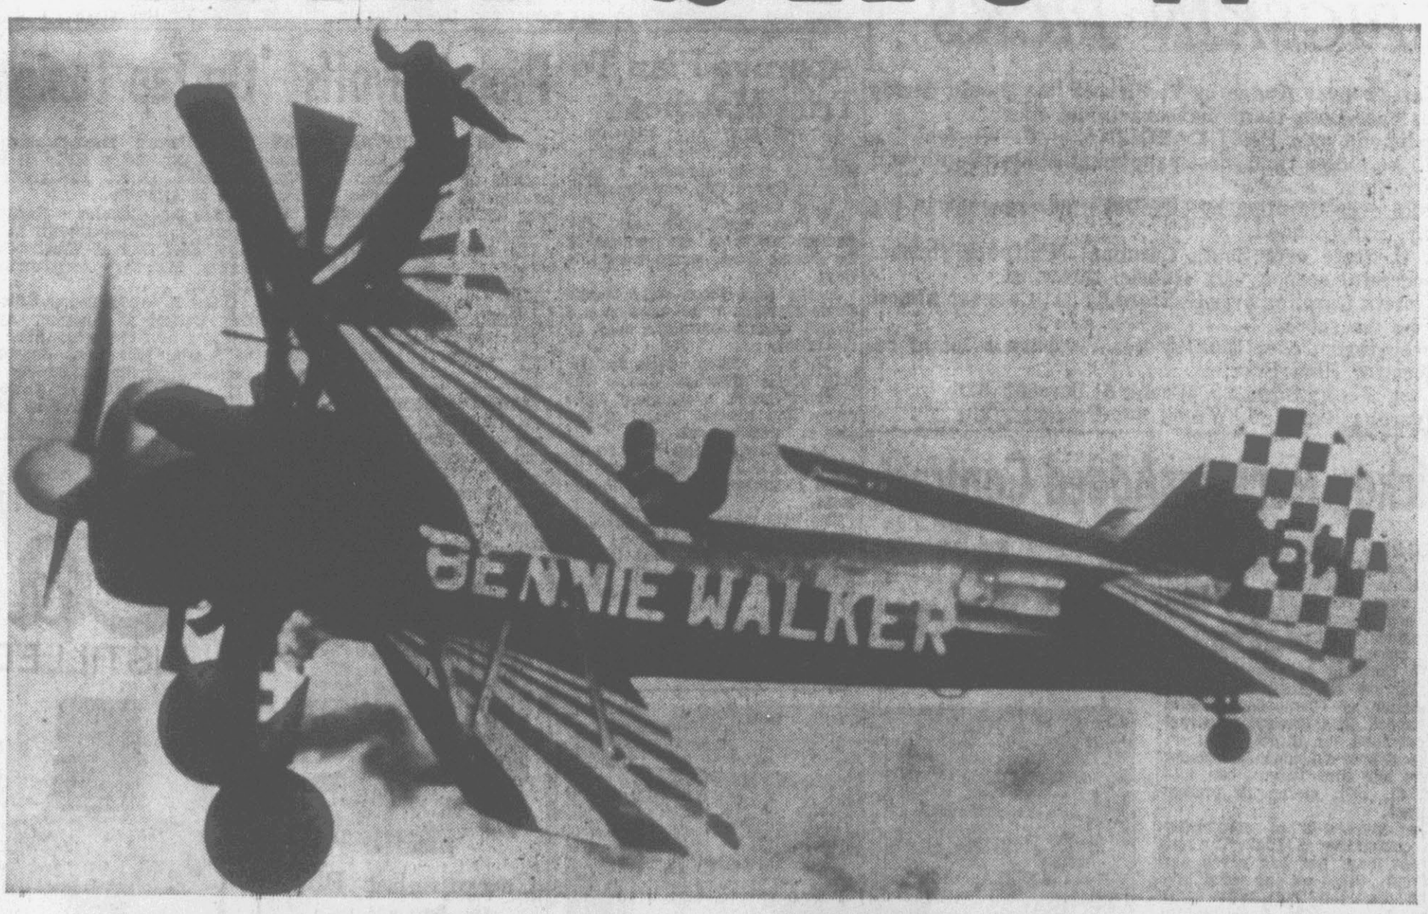

Sanchez, also 24, was just another boxer until he wrecked Becerra. He has fought 35 times, lost 11, three by technical knockouts from cuts. Of his 24 victories, six were by knockouts.

The Los Angeles promoters have agreements from Halimi and the antagonists here that the title-clearing match will be held either in Los Angeles, Sao Paolo, Brazil or Mexico City—the latter depending upon whether the Brazilian or the Mexican wins.

'Jersey Monster' Born And Sustained By Myth

By JOHN KOLESAR

The screams that residents of Dorothy, N.J. have heard in the night and those big tracks in the earth they have seen are probably caused just the way the state troopers have said—by Halloween pranksters.

For the Jersey Devil is a monster born and sustained by myth, press-agentry and reporters, yen for a good ghost story.

The myth has it that the Jersey Devil was born in 1887 in Estellville, a little community about 15 miles west of Atlantic City and 5 miles east of the hamlet of Dorothy.

Supposedly a Mrs. Leeds was expecting her seventh child, didn't like the prospect, and wished that it would be a devil. When the time came, it was born a devil, and immediately flew up the chimney and out into legend.

Since then, it supposedly has been seen a number of times.

What did the devil look like? It was cloven-hoofed, long-tailed, with the head of a collie dog, the face of a horse, the body of a kangaroo, the wings of a bat, half-human, half-animal. Sometimes it had 11 feet and exhaled fire and smoke.

That may be a little difficult to visualize, but you know how eyewitnesses are about these things.

So much for the myth.

How about the truth? Prof. Curtis D. MacDougall, of the journalism school at Northwestern University, seems to have the most logical explanation.

He says the Jersey Devil is the concoction of Norman Jefferies, a press agent for C. A. Brandenburg's Museum in Philadelphia in 1906.

MacDougall, in his book on hoaxes, says Jefferies ran across the story of Mrs. Leeds in an old book and decided to use it in a publicity stunt.

Since Jefferies' past stunts put him in low repute with Philadelphia newsmen, he got a story printed in a little South Jersey paper.

The story said a farmer spotted the devil near his barn.

Next thing, reporters descended, plaster casts were made of footprints, prominent South Jersey citizens began stumbling home after encounters with the beast, and women were found in hysterics on lonely roads.

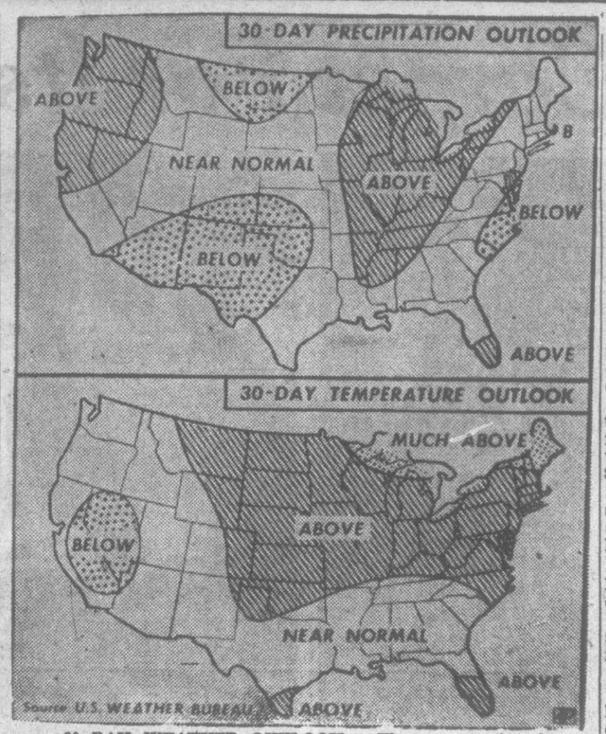

Then Jefferies topped the whole thing by arranging capture of the beast in Hunting Park, Philadelphia, and putting it on exhibition at, by coincidence, the museum.

The museum's customers got only a fleeting glimpse of the beast. They saw a green and white, kangaroo-like animal, with wings. The curtain opened, the beast leaped at them and the place cleared out for the next batch of customers.

The beast was a kangaroo — purchased in Buffalo N.Y.—painted green and white and harnessed with bronze wings. The leap was prompted by a small boy with a stick.

Jefferies himself confessed his part in the whole thing in 1929. But the devil, it seems, is immortal.

Residents recently reported hearing screams and seeing footprints around Dorothy. Police say it was only Halloween pranksters. But local folk know better—it was the Jersey Devil, they say.

Added To FBI's 'Top Ten' List

WASHINGTON (AP) — A suspect in a June 23 robbery of the Yorke Savings and Loan Assn. office in Newark, N.J. today, was put on the FBI's list of "10 most wanted men."

The fugitive is Ray Delano Tate, 27, described by the FBI as a dangerous operator, a repeated parole violator, and currently an escapee from a Hudson (Caldwell County) N.C., prison camp.

He has been charged with participating in the Newark robbery in which three men, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, got $2,704 from a teller's drawer.

Two of the men were quickly apprehended but Tate, identified as the robber who gathered up the loot, made a getaway.

The FBI said Tate, a native of Mount Airy, N.C., has a criminal career dating back to age 16, and has served time in North Carolina and New Jersey prisons for offenses ranging from larceny to armed robbery.

He is described as of medium height and build, with a ruddy complexion, and a rose tattoo on his right arm.

Bangle Factory Fire Kills Eight

BOMBAY, India (AP) — A fire in a bangle factory today killed eight persons and injured 40 others, 15 critically. The flames spread through overhead tenements in the building.

Celluloid, used for the bangles, exploded in a ground floor storeroom. The blast ripped out the staircase, trapping more than 400 residents on the floors above.

Swami Preaches Unity Of All Religions Each Sunday

By DALE NELSON

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — At first glance, the tree-shaded brick building looks much like any of the other houses on the street of comfortable, upper middle-class homes.

But a brass plate on the front door reads "Ramakrishna Vedanta Center," and in the entrance hall hangs a framed poster portraying a large-eyed turbaned man. The caption says "Swami Vivekananda, the Hindu monk of India."

Every Sunday morning a man wearing a yellow robe over a business suit preaches a sermon in a small front parlor just off the hall.

He is Swami Vividishananda who preaches, among other things, the unity of all religions. On the wall are pictures of Buddha, of Christ in a yoga posture, and of the beared mystic Ramakrishna.

Earlier, downstairs, there was Sunday school.

This is one of 12 such centers in the United States.

Ramakrishna was born in 1836 in Bengal. He became a priest in a Hindu temple and claimed to have had visions of Mohammed and Christ.

Many thought him insane; others venerated him. One of his followers was Narendranath Dutt.

Dutt was with Ramakrishna when the mystic died, in 1886, of cancer of the throat. For the next few years Dutt was one of India's countless wandering monks. He attracted a large following.

In 1893 some of his followers, including three maharajahs, sent him to Chicago to attend a Parliament of Religions at the World's Fair. His speech was a sensation.

Dutt, who had taken the name Vivekananda, now became a wandering monk of a different kind. He went on the lecture circuit. He gave lessons in meditation in New York, where one of his students was actress Sarah Bernhardt.

Then he went back to India and helped lay the groundwork for the Ramakrishna mission, which now operates scores of monasteries, missions, schools, libraries and hospitals there. He died in 1902.

In the United States, the mission concentrates on teaching the Vedas, or Hindu scriptures. It has temples in Hollywood and San Francisco, but most of the centers are in houses like the one here. There are two in New York and others in Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Mo., Providence, R.I., Portland, Ore., and Berkeley and Sacramento, Calif.

Congregations range from about 30 here to 400 in Hollywood. Most of the members come from Christian backgrounds. Some still attend Christian churches.

"We respect all other religions," says Swami Vividishananda. "We are not here with the idea of making converts.

"We try to make Christians better Christians."

Grandpa's Schooling Isn't Good Enough

By G. K HO.DENFIELD
AP Education Writer

SANTA FE, N. M. (AP)—Education that was good enough for grandpa isn't good enough for today's children—and it wasn't good enough for grandpa either.

State superintendents and commissioners of education from across the country have been wrestling with that problem at a three-day meeting that ends here today.

It's easy to talk about the "dream schools" of tomorrow, they said, the new and beefed-up courses of study and the wonderful electronic devices that will make learning easier and better.

It's something else to translate dreams into classroom action.

"The idea of changing the high school curriculum is not new," J. Lloyd Trump of the National Association of Secondary - School Principals told the Council of Chief State School Officers Thursday.

"It has been talked about for years. But of all the major proposals that have been made since World War I, only two have been generally adopted—vocational education and extra-curricular activities.

"Remember radio? Once radio was going to be a great boon to education, it was going to bring great ideas to all the people. But sofe people saw it as a threat to the teacher. And others said it was dangerous that some mysterious 'someone' would use it to dictate what people would learn.

"And the same arguments we once heard against radio we are hearing again today against educational television, teaching machines and other new techniques."

Trump referred to proposals for stiff new courses in seven fields of study, presented by a group of experts here, and asked: "Have we learned our lessons? Are we going to doom these great ideas to failure because we are too busy, because we don't have the teachers, the buildings, or the money?"

His Nose Bruised During Deer Hunt

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy got two deer when he went hunting Thursday, but his friend, Rep. Torbert H. Macdonald, D-Mass., came back with a bruised nose and no deer.

Macdonald, who was Kennedy's Harvard roommate, went hunting with Kennedy and Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson on Johnson's ranch. Johnson also got two deer.

Macdonald came back from the hunt with a bandage on his nose. It was later learned that as he fired his rifle the first time the telescopic sight struck him on the nose when the rifle recoiled. He was not injured seriously.

Kenneth O'Donnell, a special assistant to Kennedy, got one deer.

Their Radar Set Was 'Snatched'

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Local police today were trying to catch someone with radar. It was the someone who had the radar, though, and not the police.

The officers' radar set reportedly was snatched from the roadside by alert thieves while the police were chasing a speeder.

May Leave When Bible Being Read

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—The city's school board ruled Thursday that students who have parents' permission may be excused when the Bible is read in class.

Spokesmen of the American Civil Liberties Union say they are not satisfied with the ruling, however, and intend to press for a court injunction against Bible readings at city schools.

The ACLU has challenged the constitutionality of a 55-year-old school board rule providing for daily scriptural readings. Civil Liberties attorneys say they represent 14 or 15 parents, including a professed atheist who withdrew her son from a local school last month in protesting Bible readings.

Words Too Often Taken Literally

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—State Safety Commissioner Glenn Lovern has promised the Kentucky County Judges Association he will order troopers to stop advising ticketed motorists to "tell it to the judge."

Some judges have complained that the drivers take the advice literally and bother them at all hours, trying to get tickets fixed.

Convinced Cure For Cancer Near

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Dr. John R. Heller, head of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York, says he is convinced a cancer cure soon will be developed.

"I think we are poised on the edge of such a breakthrough," he told a cancer group here Thursday. "I trink it will be in the antimetabolite class of drugs."

Heller said one of the drugs has brought marked improvement in 122 of 337 controlled cases of leukemia—cancer of the blood.

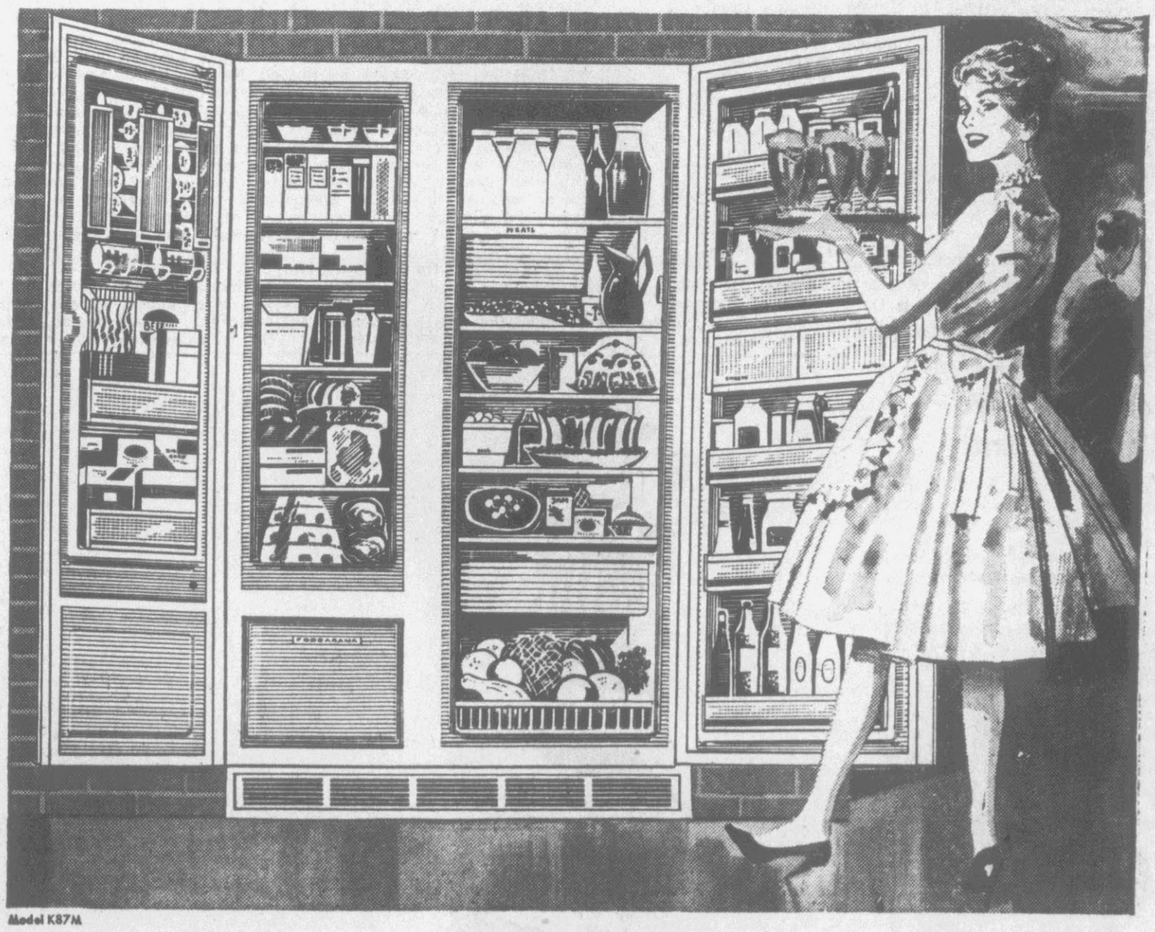

In another controlled five-year experiment a similar drug brought significant improvement in cancers of the lung, breast, prostate and ovary, he said.

Greenville rolled out the red carpet for some 150 new residents at the ninth annual Newcomers Party in the local Moose Lodge last night.

The annual affair, staged by the cooperatipe efforts of Greenville organizations and merchants under the leadership of the Chamber of Commerce, attracted around 80 new Greenville families.

In addition to the Newcomers, more than 100 Greenville "Old Timers" showed up to extend a friendly hand to the guests. Representatives of all local civic organizations were included in the official receiving line.

Local merchants provided some 75 gifts and gift certificates for presentation to the attending Newcomer families. In addition, each new family received a shopping bag full of assorted gifts at the close of the two-hour program.

The program was complete with music by the J. H. Rose High School Combo, directed by James E. Rodgers; an official welcome from Greenpille Mayor S. Eugene West; an invocation by Lutheran minister Rev. Terry W. Agner; a welcome from Chairman Herbert Wilkerson of the Chamber's Public Relations Committee; and a program of games emceed by Eli Bloom and assisted by Gordon Goodman and Les Turnage.

An interruption in the program of games came at 9 p.m. to allow the serving of refreshments, furnished and served by the Women of the Moose, the Business and Professional Women's Club, and the Credit Women's Breakfast Club.

Before the program got underway, all Newcomers, previously introduced to the "Old Timers," formed lines and met each other, following the commands of Emcee Bloom.

The party is an annual project of the Chamber's Public Relations Committee. Last night's affair was planned and carried out by a steering committee composed of a pair of representatives from each organization and department participating last night.

According to Chamber spokesmen, the party is planned to welcome new Greenville families and "make them feel at home."

Sharing in staging last night's party were the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, the Business and Professional Women's Club, the Credit Women's Breakfast Club; the Civitan Club, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis Club, the Lions Club, the Merchants Association, the Optimist Club, the Rotary Club, the Recreation Commission, and the Moose Lodge and Women of the Moose.

Castro Is Put On Notice Subversion Is Dangerous

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The United States has served notice it will use military force instead of diplomatic protests to stop Cuba's Fidel Castro from subverting anti-Communist countries in the Caribbean.

President Eisenhower signalled the start of this tougher, more active policy Thursday by rushing U.S. warships into position to defend Guatemala and Nicaragua from any invasion by pro-Castro rebels.

Eisenhower's emergency action foreshadowed similar American military help for any other Caribbean nation which might request it.

Top officials said movement of four U.S. destroyers and an aircraft carrier into the area was a blunt warning to Castro that he will not be permitted to export his leftwing revolution to other Latin-American nations.

They acknowledge that the President's action carried a step further the existing policy of opposing by words what are regarded as Castro's pro-Communist maneuvers.

They compared it to warships of the 7th Fleet patrolling the waters around Formosa to discourage any Chinese Communist attack.

Instructions to fleet units dispatched into the Caribbean trouble zone, they noted, are not only to prevent but to "seek out" any Communist directed landing of men and supplies on Guatemala and Nicaraguan territory.

These orders presumably could be interpreted to allow U.S. warships and planes to smash any invasion ships or supply vessels headed toward either of the two Central American republics.

Two factors were reported to have guided the President and his top advisors in deciding on the move:

1. There seemed to be genuine reasons for fearing that pro-Castro fanatics might follow up this week's unsuccessful revolts in Guatemala and Nicaragua with new, stronger armed attacks.

2. Castro secretly has been smuggling and diverting some of his vast quantities of Communist-made weapons to leftwing groups who are plotting pro-Castro revolts throughout the Caribbean area.

Faced with this information, Eisenhower and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter jointly decided the time had come to act militarily to block Castro.

Farm Income Decrease Noted In Grange Report

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) —The agriculture committee of the National Grange, asserting that nonfarm income has increased about one-third in the past 10 years while farm income has decreased about the same amount, has called for "equality of economic opportunity for farmers."

This was contained in a policy report released Thursday by the eleven member committee.

"Those who seek to impose economic inequality on American farmers are inviting economic disaster," said the report.

The report did not list any solutions to economic problems of farmers, but did say that farmers must make certain adjustment themselves, such as bringing production in line with demand, improving marketing systems, and developing self-help programs for each commodity.

Delegates to the Grange convention were told by Federal Trade Commission Chairman Earl W. Kintner that antitrust laws "have proven to be effective restraints against practices that harass farmers, consumers and small businessmen."

The FTC chief, in his speech, also said that distribution of governing power and regulation of trade have built this nation's strength and remain its best answer to communism.

Kintner continued, "The Nationally Grange itself early recognized that statism was not the antidote to monopoly, as advocated by some who urged state ownership of railroads and public utilities."

He said Grange leaders instead advocated "public regulation of enterprises affected with a public interest, and use of antitrust laws to preserve the free market."

Kintner said it was this thinking tha led to the formation of the Federal Trade Commission in 1914, modeled after the Interstate Trade Commission of 1887.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

By JIM POINDEXTER

Maybe we are entering the state of second childhood slightly ahead of schedule, since this week we have read two children's books with a certain degree of enjoyment.

One, "Betsy Dowdy's Ride," exerts some natural appeal locally. Not only is the author, Nell Wise Wechter, widely known in Pitt, but also the setting of her book is Eastern North Carolina—the North Bank of Currituck, to be exact.

Mrs. Wechter attempts, with a good deal of success, to develop an old legend of the sixteen-year old heroine who, by a daring ride, manages to alert patriotic North Carolinians in time to prevent Royalist invasion from Virginia by winning the Battle of Great Bridge in 1775.

She pieces out her scanty material with various episodes which paint a rather vivid picture of early life on the Carolina Banks—wreck salvaging, cattle tending, domestic chores, like candlemaking, etc.

Hoigh Toide?

Mrs. Wechter even tries briefly to record what sounds like the local dialect, though, curiously enough, only in the mouth of a sailor (maybe an Irishman?) off a British warship. Sample: "She's caulked tonight as a tick, if I do say so myself." Those well versed in such lingo will have to decide how successful this transcription is.

At any rate, all this, plus a much misunderstood Indian named Tatertrap, a nice pony, a pretty romance, and plenty of skulduggery, should insure acceptance of "Betsy Dowdy's Ride" by girls from ten to fourteen or so.

The other juvenile is Johathan Daniel'S "Robert E. Lee." Though this work is hardly the major publishing event that has been claimed, still Mrs. Daniels has done his homework, and has worked out a balanced sketch of Lee's career as soldier and patron saint of the South.

It is hard to imagine a red-blooded Southern boy not liking this book, even though Mr. Daniels is reconstructed enough to avoid picturing the Yankees as complete knaves and villains.

Both books, incidentally, are purchasable locally.

"Macbeth"

The big entertainment event of the weekend will be the Hallmark color production of "Macbeth" on NBC-TV Sunday night. Stars will be Maurice Evans and Judith Anderson, both first-rate players.

One interesting feature of the two-hour show is that it is a film, which will be released to British movie houses after its TV premiere. This marks the first time in television history that such a procedure has been followed, initiating a whole new era in the relationship between two important media.

Another interesting point to ponder is that the people who will probably see this production would have filled Shakespeare's Globe Theater twenty thousand times.

"Metropolitan Midnight"

Also on Sunday, the "Let's Go to College" broadcast over Channel 9 at 1:30 will feature an original composition by Jake Gaskins, fifteen-year old Greenville composer. Jake says that the style of his work is "Semi-classical" and that its title, "Metropolitan Midnight," was suggested by a friend.

Poetry Corner

Here is a poem by Sanford Peele, graduate student at ECC:

The Fish

Light on water over leaves
And rippling through the whole
It moves, silver projection
From the idle bridge.
Space between is filled with summer lightning
a spring is drawn
flashing from the whole
by agile baited eyes
The catch goes home,
a scaled silver spring
with mist of blood about the gill
where hard and cruel
the breath comes still.

Funny As?

Dr. Mildred Southwick, Reference Librarian at the College, gets the last word on "Funny as a crutch," which we were wondering about last week. She says it's by Anon. and that it is about as funny as George Ade's "Funny as a wooden leg."

To Avoid Undue Family Strains

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon has made it clear that a new order involving dependents will not force extensive separations of military families now overseas.

Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. said late Thursday a presidential order to reduce the number of overseas military dependents by about 184,000 will be carried out mainly by:

1. Having military men now overseas return to the United States with their families at the end of their normal tours of duty.

2. Returning some military men with their families before completion of their regular assignments.

3. Reducing the number of military dependents sent abroad in the future.

Gates specifically excluded from the reduction program military units in Alaska, Hawaii, the Panama Canal Zone, the Marianas, Marshall, Midway, Smoa and Virgin islands and Puerto Rico. He said the plan should be carried out without regard to rank or station.

The reductions will start in January at the rate of at least 15,000 monthly.

Gates detailed the program after Secretary of the Army Wilber Brucker implied that the dependent reduction might affect combat effectiveness. He expressed sympathy for those affected by it.

President Eisenhower ordered the reductions Wednesday as part of an extensive program aimed at reducing the spending of U.S. dollars overseas.

Louisiana Segregation Leader Holds Control Of Legislature

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—State Rep. John Garrett, chairman of the joint legislative committee on segregation, is a freckled, friendly drawling man who can roar like a ruptured steam boiler when things get rough.

His political quick draw may have been handed down from a great uncle, Sheriff Pat Garrett, who gunned down Billy the Kid.

Garrett, 39, serving his fourth 4-year term as a state legislator, was one of the strategy makers for the segregationist forces that has seized control of the Legislature.

Some say he has assumed the mantle of leader of Louisiana segregationist forces.

So far, the segregation high command has been thwarted every time vy U.S. Dist. Judge J. Skelly Wright of New Orleans. The Legislature has reacted by kicking up a storm of wrathful name-calling directed at Wright.

Garrett is a small town clothing merchant and cattleman born and raised in Haynesville, four miles south of the Arkansas border. He travels as a political independent.

At the start of Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' first Legislature last summer, the governor's administration whips tried to delay revival of the segregation committee. They were supremely powerful then—but Garrett fired fast and furiously and won.

Garrett was the top lieutenant of former State Sen. William Rainach, a southwide segregation leader who finished third in the race for governor a few months ago.

In former years, the pair led one of the most tumultous legislative wars in Louisiana history when they helped enact a 1954 right to work law banning compulsory unionism. The late Gov. Earl K. Long wrecked that law two years later.

With violence scarring the old streets of New Orleans, Garrett denies segregation leaders or Citizen Council rallies are responsible.

He and Rainach addressed a rally with 6,000 persons the night before police had to fight demonstrators with fire hose.

Rainach called for civil disobedience, or no cooperation with the government when segregationists feel it is wrong. Garrett called for arrest of Judge Wright and federal marshals involved in the integration of two white schools.

At that rally, however, Garrett also urged "cool heads and minds."

Garrett and his segregation colleagues feel certain they are backed by public sentiment.

In 1964, there'll be another race for governor. And Garrett's auburn hair is growing gray, bringing a distinguished appearance for one so young and politically prominent.

No Longer Has To Worry About His Hospital Bill

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — No longer will Edward Kelleher, 9, have to worry about what happens to little boys who don't pay a $60.33 hospital bill.

He won't have to appear Monday before a magistrate, for the magistrate canceled the hearing Thursday when he learned Edward's age.

And Constable Harvey Robin said his office won't send Edward summonses and dunning letters any more, now that Robin knows Edward is a boy, not a man.

Edward's mother said her son had been frightened by letters threatening to attach his "salary" and sell his personal belongings. Robin said he never authorizes threatening letters, even to adults, and fired the clerk who sent them.

The Kellehers thought an insurance policy would cover a minor operation Edward had three years ago at Metropolitan Hospital. Now that they know it won't, Edward's father has paid $10 on the bill.

Asks Inquiry Of CAB Member

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., has demanded an investigation of a Civil Aeronautics Board member.

Curtis said Chan Gurney, vice chairman of the CAB, wrote to Keith Kahle, president of Central Airlines, thanking him for the "super deluxe reception you gave me a few weeks ago."

Since then, Central has been chosen by the CAB to provide exclusive service between St. Louis, Joplin and Springfield, Mo., a route pioneered by Ozark Air Lines.

In Washington, the CAB said rumors that Gurney's vote had been influenced during his inspection of Central's facilities were baseless. The board rejected Gurney's offer to withdraw from the case.

Curtis said the letter "shows impropriety of the worst sort." He said he has given a copy of it to David Kent, counsel for President Eisenhower.

Robt. E. Lee Discussed In Scholarly Quarterly

Dr. Francis R. Adams, Jr., faculty member of the department of English at East Carolina, College, discusses "Robert E. Lee and the Concept of Democracy" in the Fall, 1960, edition of "American Quarterly," published by the University of Pennsylvania in cooperation with the American Studies Association. Lee's greatest contribution to democracy, Dr. Adams concludes, was that of his example.

Describing the Southern leader as a man "indifferent to political theory and even to practical politics" and pointing out that Lee's "was simply not a conceptualizing mind," Dr. Adams bases his discussion of Lee's attitudes and feelings toward democracy on his life and letters.

Four letters about Mexicans and Indians quoted in the article indicate that Lee's opinion of men at their lowest level was not high.

Lee's aristocratic family background; wealth accumulated during his life time; his long service in military life "with its rigidity, its caste system and its fundamental authoritarianism;" and his interest in technical pursuits, evidenced by his occupation, civil engineering, were not conducive to liberal democratic opinions and attitudes, Dr. Adams says; nor were his religious views, his passion for order, and his experiences just before and during the War.

Discussing Lee's career at Washington College after the War, Dr. Adams says that ". . .curiously, circumstances had, at long last, put Lee in a position to make a significant contribution to democracy, a contribution which this man, always unpolitical and even unspeculative, and now, in addition broken in health was still magnificently able to make, a contribution made uncalculatingly and unhesitatingly: the contribution of his example.

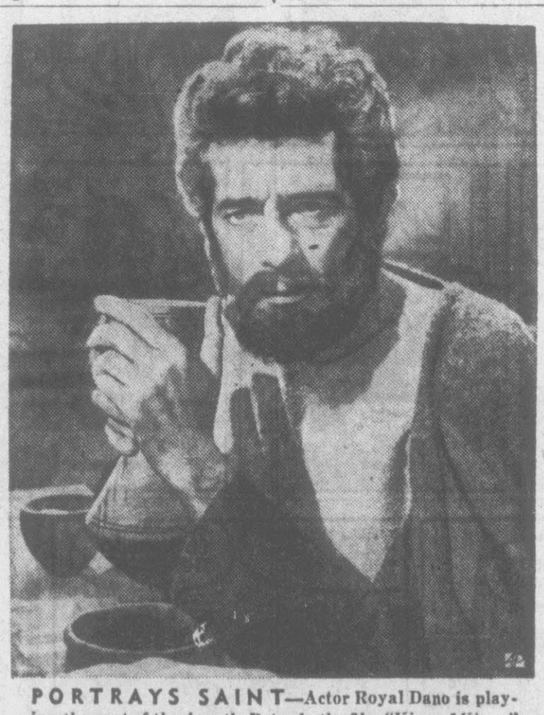

Because by Lee's calm acceptance of defeat, by his optimistic acquiescence to a change he had fought so hard to prevent, by his poised but complete rejection of the lost cause once it was lost, by these attitudes, attached as they were to the simple splendor of his being, he conferred forever on that element essential to any democracy, its minority, a dignity, an integrity and even a unique kind of grace."

Sees A Contest In 'Marketing'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A professor says the recent general election was a "marketing contest between two men" with mass communications media pushing the candidates in much the same manner as cigarettes, pills or patent medicines.

Dr. Dallas W. Smythe, of the University of Illinois told an adult education council Thursday night that American politics is undergoing a transformation "from local and personal influence the selection of candidates and the formation of platforms to organization men and their manipulation of images via Madison Avenue."

Smythe said the television debates between Democrat John F. Kennedy and Republican Richard M. Nixon resembled the quiz shows and "All that was missing was the isolation booth and the bank officer with the questions."

Pro-Red Party To Join Laos' Coalition Rule

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Premier Souvanna Phouma's neutralist government announced today it has agreed to formation of a coalition regime that will include members of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

A communique said that Laos, now largely supported by American dollars, will also accept aid from Red China and Communist North Viet Nam.

The United States has pumped about $300 million into Laos since 1954 to keep the strategic Buddhist kingdom in the anti-Communist camp. About 85 per cent of the aid has gone into the country's military and civil budget.

The communique announcing acceptance of Communist help was the first from peace talks that Souvanna opened with Pathe; Lao negotiators here a month ago.

Today's communique did not go into details nor indicate to what extent Souvanna Phouma's government had bowed to Pathet Lao pressure.

The exact composition of the coalition government "will be considered and agreed upon later," it said.

The coalition would be formed "as soon as possible," the communique said, and "must include representatives of people of all classes and patriotic qualified representatives of every political party including the Neo Lao Hak (the political arm of the Pathet Lao)."

The announcement said the Laotian government had given assurances it would "begin to accept aid from the Peoples Republic of China and the (Communist) Democratic Republic of North Viet Nam and will send goodwill missions to visit both countries to discuss and exchange views of economics and culture."

It also reported Laos would establish "good neighborly relations" with Red China and postal communications with North Viet Nam, as announced Thursday.

A coalition government and establishment of diplomatic relations with Red China and North Viet Nam have been the main demands of Pathet Lao negotiators.

The agreements were the first concessions by Souvanna Phouma's government to these demands.

The Pathet Lao is led by Souvanna's half-brother, Prince Souvanna Vong. The Red Prince escaped from prison where he was held on charges of treason last May.

When Souvanna Phouma took over after a paratroop coup ousted the pro-Western Laotian government in August, he immediately made overtures to his Communist brother for a truce to end guerrilla attacks.

Souvanna Phouma's deal with the Communists came as his neutralist government was rocked by defections to rightist rebel Gen. Phoumi Nosavana, whose force control the royal seat of Luang Prabang.

Phoumi, a staunch anti-Communist who was defense minister in the old pro-Western regime, had been offered the posts of deputy premier and interior minister by Souvanna Phouma, but he refused to join the neutralist government.

Instead Phoumi mounted a revolt from Savannakhet, about 175 miles southeast of Vientiane, that has been reported steadily gaining recruits.

Christmas Toy Collection Will Open With Movie

A Technicolor comedy movie "Rock-A-Bye Baby", starring Jerry Lewis, will be shown at the State Theater tomorrow at 10 a.m. to kick off the collection of toys by the Salvation Army and the Greenville Fire Department to be distributed to children at Christmas.

Admission to the special show will be a toy, which is usuable or repairable, or 25 cents.

According to Cpt. Earl Reagan of the Salvation Army, the toys will be distributed to children at Christmas while the money will be used to buy parts for toys needing to be repaired by local firemen. He added that any money not used to repair the toys would go to buy food baskets for families at Christmas.

The Salvation Army officer pointed out that the Greenville Fire Department has for many years collected and repaired toys for the Salvation Army to distribute at Christmas time.

It was noted that if all the children cannot be seated during the first showing of the movie, there will be a second showing of the film.

'Safeguards' By Stock Exchange

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange has moved to strengthen the investing public's protection against any loss through dishonesty of brokerage house partners or employes.

Keith Funston, exchange president, said today the plan approved by the Board of Governors will require 574 member organizations to carry insurance protection against possible loss due to fraud or dishonest acts on the part of their personnel.

Maximum coverage will be $5 million for the largest firms.

For the first time, the exchange will demand fidelity insurance coverage on general partners of member firms.

The plan also will revise minimums for coverage now required for employes of member organizations and officers of member corporations.

Funston said the new insurance plan is an outgrowth of the recent case involving DuPont, Homsey & Co., a Boston brokerage firm. Anton E. Homsey, a general partner, was expelled from the exchange Sept. 28 for allegedly pledging securities of three customers as collateral for loans without their knowledge.

A receiver has been appointed for the firm. Homsey faces criminal charges.

Tanker Plane's Crash Fatal For One Crewman

LIMESTONE, Maine (AP) —A big Air Force tanker plane crashed and burned on landing at Loring Air Force Base early today, killing one crewman and injuring the other 16 aboard.

The Air Force said one of the four crewmen was missing and presumed dead in the burned wreckage.

His identity was not immediately disclosed.

The other 16, including the other three crewmen and 13 passengers—all Air Force personnel—scrambled out of emergency exits after the plane careened some 3,000 feet on the ground.

None of the 16 was considered in serious condition.

The plane was returning to Loring after a 6½ hour refueling mission.

The Air Force said the KC135 of the 42nd Bombardment Wing, veered off the left of the runway on touching down and burst into flames as it ploughed along the ground.

Movie Producer Halts Film Work

LONDON (AP)—Producer Walter Wanger announced today a decision to halt production on ailing actress Elizabeth Taylor's film

Wanger gave the news to the crew and cast on the set.

Reading from a prepared statement, he said:

"Due to illness and other problems it has been necessary for us to issue one and two-week notices according to union requirements today.

"We must temporarily postpone operations on the production until we are assured we can continue."

He said it was the desire of 20th Century-Fox to continue making the movie.

The picture's director, Rouben Mamoulian told the crew Spyros Skouras, president of 20th Century-Fox, is arriving in London from New York on Sunday night. "We hope his visit will bring us better news," he said.

Back in her hotel penthouse apartment—after her second trip to the hospital in two months—Miss Taylor was reported to be feeling much better and ready to go to work shortly.

Miss Taylor arrived in London on Sept. 8 with her husband, Eddie Fisher, and her three children by previous marriages. Illness has prevented her from making any scenes for the movie.

Pitt TB Tests Subject Of Talk

The tuberculosis testing program being given all first graders in Pitt County was the subject of a talk given to the Third Street School Parent-Teacher Association by Mrs. Milton Clarke Thursday night.

Mrs. Clarke is executive director of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association. She presided over the meeting, held in the school auditorium, as president of the P.T.A.

She explained what the tuberculosis test is to those in attendance and discussed what the results of the test can mean. Mrs. Clarke told of a case finding follow up on a positive test.

Discussing the history of tuberculosis, she told how a person contracts it, stating that tuberculosis is not heredity but is caused by the tuberculosis germ. The fact that symptoms usually appear in the later stages of the disease makes it important that persons have a yearly X-ray.

She reported that Pitt County ranks fourth from the top in North Carolina counties in the number of active tuberculosis cases in the state in 1959.

During the business session of the P.T.A., it was reported that the Halloween Carnival was a success. Mrs. Peggy Denton gave the devotion.

NAMED — Clark Clifford, who is a Washington lawyer, is President-elect Kennedy's liaison with the Eisenhower administration to effect the government transition.

Continuing Increase Of Postal Receipts

Receipts at the Greenville Post Office showed a 14.9 percent increase for the end of the fifth accounting period this year, compared to the same period last year, it was announced today through J. Knott Proctor, postmaster.

The increase for the four-week period, ending Nov. 11, was termed "very good" by postal officials.

Cash receipts for the four-week period this year were $22,633.85, compared to $19,698.30 for the corresponding period last year.

The following volume of outgoing mail was reported during the fifth accounting period this year: letters, 458,200; flats and magazines, 14,100; parcel post, 13,100; and newspapers and smaller parcels, 4,100; for a total volume of outgoing mail during the period of 489,500.

The following volume of outgoing mail for the fiscal year 1959 during the corresponding period is as follows, for comparison: letters, 444,900; flats and magazines, 14,100 (same as this year); parcel post, 11,000; newspapers and smaller parcels, 4,100 (same as this year); for a total of 474,300.

Total incoming mail at the end of the fifth period this year is as follows: letters, 645,300; magazines and flats, 113,700; parcel post, 22,700; newspapers and small parcels, 67,300; for a total of 849,000.

In comparison, volume of incoming mail for the same period last year was: letters, 611,300; magazines and flats, 95,800; parcel post, 21,800; newspapers and small parcels, 56,800; for a total of 785,700.

Percentage-wise, outgoing mail during the period was 36.6 percent of total mail and incoming mail was 63.4 percent of all mail. An interesting fact to note was that 82.4 percent of the mail, both incoming and outgoing, was letter mail.

The Post Office Department operates on a 13-period-year calendar dating June 25, 1960 through June 23, 1961. The year is made up of four postal quarters. The period just ended Nov. 11 is the end of the first accounting period of the second quarter.

Superintendent of mails at the Greenville Post Office is Joe Dudley.

Nab Publisher In Bank Robberies

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A country newspaper publisher and former banker arrested here Thursday on charges of robbing two Texas banks remained in jail today in lieu of $50,000 bond.

"I have no way of making that bond," Lawrence C. Pope, 42, said when arraigned on charges of robbing the First State Bank of Thornton of $1,744 on Nov. 5 and the Farmers State Bank of Shulenburg of $4,800 in cash and $11,000 in government bonds last Saturday.

Pope surrendered when FBI agents, acting on a tip from an unidentified woman, raided his motel room here.

Pope, who had been a banker in several Texas cities and a federal bank examiner before buying weekly newspapers at the small towns of Giddings and Lexington last month, told officers he threw away the pistol used in the robberies.

He said he also threw away the photographic films exposed during the holdups. Employes of the banks said the robber forced them to disrobe partly, then took pictures with a small camera before fleeing.

Never Happier Than In Hospital

LONDON (AP)—Nothing makes Maurice Hatt happier than lying swathed in bandages on a hospital operating table.

In the last 10 years, the court at Aylesbury was told Thursday, the mortuary keeper bluffed his way into 500 hospitals. Though perfectly fit, he was cut open by surgeons dozens of times.

Hatt, 25, it was explained, has an obsession known as Munchausen Syndrome—named after an 18th Century German baron who invented fantastic stories about himself.

He was arrested because he drove a truck dangerously in an effort to get back into a hospital.

The judge ordered him restricted—of all places—to a hospital under the Mental Health Act. This visit is likely to last 10 years, a doctor said.

SEATO Military Planners Review 'Implications'

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — SEATO's top military planners ended their 13th conference today after a searching study of what a final communique called "the situation in Laos and the Communist threat to South Viet Nam."

The communique said the military chiefs from the alliance's eight member nations "discussed implications of this situation to the treaty area and to Thailand in particular." It stressed the "need for constant vigilance."

Conference sources earlier said that delegates had fallen in line with Thailand's urging—reportedly supported by the Philippines and the United States—that the South East Asia Treaty Organization's defense plans be updated to meet the danger of increased Communist subversion in case the Reds get the upper hand in neighboring Laos.

Fear with regard to South Viet Nam is that Communist terrorists might take advantage of the unrest created by the recent abortive revolt against President Ngo Dinh Diem and step up their campaign of hit-and-run attacks.
