Weather-Watching Satellite Put Into Orbit By U.S.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States hurled a robot weatherman into space orbit today and quickly started getting back cloud pictures which scientists hoped to use in actual weather forecasts.

The camera-carrying satellite—Tiros II—was rocketed upward at 6:13 a.m. from the missile test center at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Some two hours later the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced it achieved successful orbit very close to the planned height of 400 miles.

Then in another two hours, NASA reported that pictures had been received at the Ft. Monmouth, N.J., station of the Army Signal Corps from the smaller of the two television cameras aboard.

Dr. Morris Tepper, chief of the space agency's meteorological satellites, told a news conference in Washington that pictures had not yet been received from the second camera but it was expected they would be received during a subsequent pass around the earth.

Tepper said the pictures already received had come in just shortly before the news conference began at 10:30 a.m.

The scientist said they were being developed at Ft. Monmouth and would be sent immediately to Washington.

Tepper declared that today marked a "very happy occasion" for NASA. He said the first look at the orbit and other characteristics of the new "weather eye" was "very good."

Farm Bureau Delegates Vote End Compulsory Auto Insurance Law

RALEIGH (AP)—Delegates to the North Carolina Farm Bureau convention today voted in favor of eliminating North Carolina's compulsory auto insurance law.

The convention called instead for enactment of a requirement that an uninsured motorist policy be made available in North Carolina on an optional basis.

The resolution said the uninsured motorist policy "would provide for protection for responsible motorists from the carelessness and negligence of all irresponsible motorists."

The action followed lengthy discussion. The vote to eliminate the compulsory insurance law was 116 to 87.

Congo's UN Seat Won By Pres. Kasavubu In Fight

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States and its Western allies scored a hard-won victory Tuesday night when the General Assembly voted by a wide margin to give the empty U.N. Congo seat to President Joseph Kasavubu.

The 53-24 vote with 19 abstentions marked a bitter defeat for the Soviet bloc and many Asian-African nations who fought Kasavubu's bid for a seat every step of the way.

Opponents of Kasavubu tried repeatedly to stall a decision by demanding to adjourn the debate or defer any action on the credentials committee's recommendation.

The discussions between West German leaders and U. S. Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson and U. S. Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon deadlocked Tuesday night when the Bonn government said it could not put up $600 million in 1961 as an immediate relief for U. S. balance of payment difficulties.

Teachers Pay Is Up To Legislators

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—The Louisiana Legislature goes back to work at noon today after Gov. Jimmie H. Davis tossed into the lawmakers' lap the problem of paying New Orleans public school teachers.

The school board is awaiting a decision from a special panel of three federal judges on a request to delay desegregation until differences over sovereignty can be ironed out between the state and federal government.

Dr. Redmond said he was "exceedingly pleased" that the governor found a way to make money available to the board.

Eichmann Relates Role In Exterminating Jews

NEW YORK (AP)—Adolf Otto Eichmann, the accused slayer of six million Jews during the blood baths of Hitler's Third Reich, freely admits participation in the monstrous crime in his horrifying personal memoirs.

"Where I was implicated in the physical annihilation of Jews," the captured Nazi war criminal says, "I admit my participation freely and without pressure."

The first installment of his memoirs appears in the current issue of Life magazine.

At one point, Eichmann declared: "At heart I am a very sensitive man."

At another point, in relating how he watched one mass execution, he made this statement: "I was reflecting about the meaning of life in general."

Soviet Defies Critics Within Red Camp

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union hurled defiance at its critics in the Communist camp today and declared the principles of peaceful coexistence were still valid and controlling.

Moscow also declared the principle of banishing nuclear weapons was still valid.

These statements were made in an editorial in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper which speaks for the Soviet delegation taking part in a Communist summit meeting that has been going on here for two weeks.

But in keeping with past practice there was no mention of the fact such a conference is in progress.

The Soviet Union has been under fire from the Chinese Communists and certain other Communist organizations for seeking workable living arrangements with the Western powers.

Two days ago the official people's Daily in Peking, in a seeming attack on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's theories of peaceful coexistence and the possibility that World War III is not inevitable, declared it was an illusion to think Communist countries could get along with imperialists.

In stating the Soviet party's position, Pravda said:

"Events of the last three years have broken out the correctness of analysis of the international situation made in the declaration and peace manifesto (by a conference of Communist-bloc leaders in 1957) and the correctness of their Marxist-Leninist conclusions."

Party leaders, in the Pravda declaration, said in effect:

"The Communist party of the Soviet Union has held and still holds to the Leninist principle of peaceful coexistence of states with different social systems and the general line of the Soviet Union's foreign policy.

"The principle does not deny class struggles. It does not mean reconciliation between socialism and capitalism. It presupposes intensification of the struggle for the triumph of Socialist ideas, for the complete victory of socialism (communism)."

The conference here apparently has engaged in sharp debate over whether to accept the Soviet party point of view or adopt the harder line demanded by the Red Chinese.

From all indications available to correspondents and diplomats on the outside—and these indications are limited—it appeared likely that some kind of compromise eventually will be worked out.

Nevertheless Pravda's statement, coming on the heels of the article in the Peiping People's Daily, indicated that the debate was still continuing and on a very tough basis.

"One of the questions agitating the whole of mankind today," said Pravda, "is the question of preserving and consolidating peace, the question of preventing a new war."

"The entire course of developments in recent years has confirmed the proposition of the declaration (of 1957) and the peace manifesto that the forces of peace have grown so much in our time that it is quite possible to prevent war."

In what happened to be an answer to critics, Pravda said that as general principle "so long as imperialism exists, the grounds will exist for wars of aggression and conquest and a threat will remain to peace."

Extra Christmas Cheer For Stockholders At Hand

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The days of extra Christmas cheer for stockholders are at hand. And some year-end dividends will be neither as plentiful nor as big this year as last.

But they are starting to trickle out from the board of directors' rooms, along with a heartening quota of increased dividends in spite of the supposed business gloom.

In recent days Du Pont has announced it will cut a year-end dividend into its stockholders' stockings. It won't be as hefty as last year but payments for the year as a whole will come to $6.75 against 1960's total of $7 a share.

Christiana Securities, a holding company investing largely in Du Pont stock, will pay its share owners a total of $500 this year, against $525 a share a year ago.

Stockholders with less costly issues, and smaller returns, aren't being entirely forgotten. Year-end dividends in the last few days, have been voted by Central Steel & Wire, Youngstown Steel Door and Time, Inc.

Increased dividends are helping the morale of many stockholders. Within the last week or so, directors of 17 companies have increased the regular dividend payments, compared to four who have cut them.

One of the latest to raise the ante is the Martin Co., which upped the common stock dividend to 50 from 40 cents a share. The directors of the missiles, electronics and nuclear enterprise also approved a two-for-one stock split.

Extra or special dividends are also flowing out in good numbers. These aren't year-end payments. But many stockholders who may have been missing a regular quarterly check should find in the extras still another reason for being thankful Thursday.

In the last eight days 51 companies have announced extra or special payments.

A sobering note in all this flow of good cheer—the number of increased dividends has been declining in each quarter of this year, and the number of decreased or omitted dividends has been rising.

In spite of this result of the squeeze on corporate profits, the Department of Commerce notes that in the first nine months of 1960 all cash dividends ran 5 per cent ahead of the previous year in the first quarter of 1960.

By midyear the increase was down to 7.9 per cent, and by Sept. 30 it had skidded further to 7 per cent. But for the year as a whole it seems sure of setting a record.

Decorating

AYDEN — Preparations for Christmas are already underway here, with the Ayden water tank completely decorated and work started on downtown Christmas decorations, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said yesterday.

The 300,000 gallon capacity water tank will be prettier this year than last, Paylor said, since workmen have perfected some of the flaws in decorating.

Workers now are correcting messenger wiring before putting up the frills on the downtown decorations. By next Monday, weather permitting, decorating will be completed as far as the town is concerned, Paylor said.

Has Plans For Inaugural Gown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy has a New York specialty shop working on designs for her inaugural ball gown from her own specifications.

The wife of the president-elect suggested the style, color and fabric she wants and even sent along "rough sketches" for the dress she will wear to the ball the night her husband is inaugurated Jan. 20.

The order is in the hands of Bergdorf Goodman of New York City.

Last year, during the three-day Christmas holiday, 42 persons died as a result of fire.

The United States' most recently acquired possession is Swain's Island in the Samoan group in the Pacific, annexed in 1925.

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—An investiture ceremony is planned here tonight to induct 12-year-old Robert R. Springer into the Boy Scouts as a tenderfoot.

He will be enrolled in Portsmouth Troop 202 in the ward of the Portsmouth Naval Hospital where he is confined as a paralytic patient.

Among those looking on will be Robert's stepfather, Sp. Charles P. Vogel of the 82nd Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, N.C. The Army arranged two weeks temporary duty at the hospital for the stepfather.

However, the youngster's mother, Mrs. Robertha Vogel, can't attend. She's staying with Robert's two brothers and three sisters at their home at 117 N. Plymouth St., Fayetteville, N.C.

The induction of Robert into the scouts started when a fellow patient, Boatswain Mate 2.C. J. H. Buccini heard the youngster say he'd sure like to be a Boy Scout. From that point on, a rapid series of events set up tonight's investiture.

After the ceremony is concluded, the troop's Mothers Club plans a party for Robert and his ward mates at the Naval Hospital.

Parade Dec. 9

GRIFTON—The Grifton Merchants' Association will sponsor a Christmas parade here on Wednesday, Dec. 9, at 3 p.m., according to Jimmy Herring, chairman of the parade arrangements.

Though all details have not been announced yet, Herring said three bands, including the Lenoir County Marching Band, Grifton High School Band and South Ayden School Band, are scheduled to participate. Other details will be released later.

Serving on the committee with Herring are Judge Archie Rogers and Walter Murphy.

Eight Wounded In Caracas Riots

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Eight persons were wounded Monday night in anti-government riots in the western part of Caracas.

The riot appeared to be similar to more serious disturbances in the center of Caracas last month. The government blamed the October riots on the extremist Revolutionary Left Movement and the Communists.

Rioters attacked police, who used tear gas to break up the demonstrations Monday.

The anti-Communist National Action Movement had said in newspaper advertisements that Communists and followers of Cuba's Fidel Castro were planning new riots.

Ban Red Food Coloring Pending Further Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — A red food coloring used for maraschino cherries and the casings of some frankfurters has been banned pending further tests of its safety.

The Food and Drug Administration announced the ban Tuesday night, saying more than a year of experiments with dogs and rats have shown the color "produces liver damage in test animals and no safe use level has been established."

No effort will be made, however, to remove from the market food-stuffs already colored with the coal tar dye, designated Red No. 1.

John L. Harvey, deputy FDA commissioner, said "the additive is not an acute toxic substance" and "is only used in small amounts in foods, drugs and cosmetics."

Red No. 1 is not used in lipsticks, he said. The action to ban the color, however, recalled FDA action against other coal tar colors used in lipsticks. The FDA once ordered them banned but later permitted limited use of them after presumably safe levels had been established.

The FDA said the lowest amounts of the color which have been shown to produce liver damage in test animals "were many times greater than the amounts of this color that would be consumed in the human diet."

Tests to date, Harvey said, "did not provide a basis for concluding that the color could cause cancer."

Dr. Arnold J. Lehman, head of the FDA's pharmacology division, said some of the test animals developed malignant (cancerous) tumors. He emphasized, however, that scientists could not say definitely that the color is a cancer-inducing agent.

Attend Sessions At Chapel Hill

Four members of the Greenville Board of Education and the superintendent of Greenville City Schools, J.H. Rose, attended sessions of the Southern Conference on Education, held in Chapel Hill this week.

Members of the board were Hartwell Campbell, Mrs. Helen Hadley, Joseph M. Tab, and J.B. Kittrell.

Rose reported that meeting on the junior and senior high schools were some of the best he had ever attended. He said the meetings provided an opportunity to "work and learn."

Corrective Work For Sewer Lines

AYDEN—Work began Friday on correction of the town's sewer lines. Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said, and may be completed within 30 days.

A Dunn construction company has begun digging on the main line, south of Highway 11 in the western part of town. Workmen hope to get the project in first class condition for acceptance by the town officials.

An Enigma To Much Of The World

The American political system which is difficult even for many Americans to understand at times, must appear an enigma to many people in other parts of the globe who have followed the recent presidential election in the United States.

During the campaign these overseas viewers read of heated blasts by President-elect Kennedy at President Eisenhower and the program of his administration on both the domestic and international fronts. They read of Vice President Nixon's blistering attacks on Kennedy for his immaturity, snap decisions, lack of experience in government affairs.

From afar it probably appeared that the Democrats and Republicans were in a pitched battle for control of the United States, and indeed they were. But it was a battle unlike those in many nations of the world, for here it was a battle of words, not guns, a battle for men's votes, not for their enlistment in a cause that would subject others to their domination.

The winners would control the government, to be sure, but only for a specified length of time. The losers would lose their jobs, perhaps, but not their heads.

To compound the confused overseas impression

A Roll Call Of N. C. Industry

By LYNN NISBET

ROLL CALL—The November issue of the magazine "We, the People," official publication of the North Carolina Citizens Association, presents a roll call of North Carolina industry.

The color cover pages carry the trademark insignia of 140 industrial companies having manufacturing plants in North Carolina, which the magazine calls "Symbols of Progress." Many of these plants are owned by out-of-state interests, but some are local and all have taken a place in the business family of North Carolina.

There are special stories about 30 industries which manufacture the unusual, or have distinctive Tarheel flavor. It is noted that this state, long recognized for leadership in furniture, textile and tobacco manufacturing, is now moving into prominence in the area of electronics, metal working, paper and paper products, fiber glass, and other items unheard of in this section a few years ago.

There are 5,440 manufacturing plants in North Carolina, of which 1,125 employ more than 100 people—some of them several thousand. The graphs and maps emphasize that majority of these plants are in the central Piedmont area and points up the need for more industry in the east and the far west.

While emphasis is on manufacturing (which some people accept as synonymous with industry), the stories and advertisements recognize the contribution made by banking, insurance, transportation and other "service industries" to the development of North Carolina.

The November issue of "We, the People" is a valuable addition to business libraries throughout the country.

LOCAL AD—Governor Hodges and his corps of industry hunters have emphasized that the most significant factor in locating new industry is initiative and cooperative on part of the home communities. That is just as true with respect to promoting interest in travel as in locating manufacturing plants.

A North Carolina newspaper man wrote the other day asking for information on the part a local historic site was playing in the state travel business. The only authoritative source of such information is the site itself—a record of how many visitors, where they came from, etc.

Representatives of national magazines assigned to do feature stories about North Carolina—and there have been dozens of them in recent years—have complained about lack of cooperation on part of local people in giving facts and figures and human interest material about their communities.

When the article is written or the plant located, the communities which failed to cooperate often are the first to complain that they were discriminated against. There is an authentic story about one local booster group being so busy in a membership campaign the employees did not have time to answer a questionnaire from a national magazine—when it seemed apparent that the publicity obtained might have been worth half the annual budget of the boosters.

The American Newspaper Publishers Association used to have a slogan to the effect that "All Business is Local." Some years ago the editor of a small newspaper insisted that world war news was local, because men from that community were on battle lines in every part of the world.

JOB CHANGES—The coming of new administrations into power in Raleigh and Washington is occasioning many changes in jobs. A number of government employees, realizing they soon will be out of their present jobs, are seeking places in industry. And an almost equal number of current industrial employees are anticipating a place on government payrolls.

A few former State workers in relatively big positions have already moved into industrial berths. The effect of that transition is illustrated by a bit of overheard conversation between a high level industrialist and a man who knows a right smart about the interlocking relations between government and business. The subject of the conversation was a mutual friend, who lately had moved from public to private payroll.

"How is my friend, Ab, getting along with your company?" asked the citizen. "He's doing very well," replied the industrialist. "We are happy to have him with us. Of course," he added, "it takes a little time to train a man who comes out of the Raleigh atmosphere from a government job to really work in our organization."

The industrialist explained that he meant no reflection upon government workers. He was just saying that the "method of approach" to getting the job done is different in private enterprise. Those who transfer from private to public employment face similar necessity for adjustment.

of what goes on in the United States during a national election year, Vice President-elect Johnson has now reassured members of NATO that President Eisenhower is still held in high esteem by his countrymen. They heard the man who will be vice president—a man who fought (politically) against Eisenhower during the election—say that although the candidates supported by Eisenhower were defeated, the election was in no way "a repudiation of President Eisenhower's support for the instruments of mutual strength in Western Europe."

His speech presented a vigorous bipartisan approach to international problems . . . and it came just a few days after the heat of the campaign in which Democrats were condemning almost every part of the Republican program and vice versa.

Little wonder then, that people overseas do not understand the unique system of politics in the United States. In a world in which most political figures who do not come out on top are sent to prisons or flee to exile, it is difficult for people around the globe to accept the fact that such is not the case in the United States. Particularly is it so in the case of an election such as the heated one this year.

Most people innately fear what they cannot understand, and to some degree the political structure of the United States may be a source of awe for people in other parts of the world. Even so as they see it in operation, and realize that it is genuine democracy at work, it is bound to bring admiration, respect and friendship for this nation so dedicated to freedom for its own people and those of other countries.

Fifty Minutes That Can Spell Life, Death

Those fifty minutes that have been shaved off the time it takes to send out a nationwide alert in case of attack upon the United States could mean the difference between life and death for millions of Americans if such an attack should ever occur.

Through use of a new system utilizing facilities of two major news services, the Associated Press and United Press International, the time it will take to inform radio stations across the nation of an alert has been reduced from one hour to less than 10 minutes.

It is important as the world moves deeper into the missile age that warning systems for the civilian population be improved. Regardless of how quickly the defense system of the country may know of an attack it will mean little unless the information can quickly be transmitted to the civilian population as well as to defense centers.

Communications have become increasingly important as the tempo of modern life has increased. With each new scientific breakthrough that increases the tempo of modern life there must likewise be an improvement of communications upon which people depend to keep up with what is going on in the contracting world in which they live.

Disruptive Plan For Alliance

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst
A development in Paris Monday provides a clue to Soviet intentions toward the incoming U.S. administration. It indicates a long-range, back-door attack to divide the United States from its North Atlantic allies.

The Paris move carried a step further the Soviet attack on the structure of the United Nations. The Soviet delegation demanded that the U. N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization abolish the post of its director-general and substitute a three-member executive board, representing the Communist bloc, the neutrals and the West.

This proposal was similar to the one applied to the U. N. secretary-general's office by Premier Khrushchev during his spectacular show in the U. N. Assembly last month.

The proposal to abolish the secretary-general's office got little support, even from neutralist nations. But the Russians have been bringing up the general idea of three-man directorates time after time in various committees and agencies of the world peace organization.

To broach the idea for UNESCO, however, would seem to make little sense, even for the Kremlin. UNESCO is supposed to deal with matters largely outside the frigid atmosphere of the cold war.

It is difficult to see what the Russians expect to get out of their Paris proposal. What the Russians seem to be doing is serving notice that nothing can be done toward easing world tensions by the United Nations as it exists today.

By persisting in their demands, and applying them in such unlikely fields as cultural

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE VISION OF GOD
According to the classical mythology, Zeus, the king of the gods, admired a mortal woman named Semele. He visited her often, but always in some disguise, and she insisted that he appear in his own majestic form. Zeus was most reluctant to do so, but Semele nagged him until he consented. The result, as Zeus had foreseen, was that his dazzling brightness was too great for a mortal to endure, and Semele was burned to a crisp.

The mark made on modern Christians by the vision of God is not so terrible, but it is just as clear. Here and there among us are people who have truly

All I Said Was—

Word From Grenoble

(Editor's note: This is the concluding portion of a report by Nancy Harris of Greenville on the first three months of her stay in France as a Rotary Fellowship student in Grenoble.)

My six weeks spent in Paris was a period of extremes. There I lived the role of American tourist, foreign student, and Parisienne. I am glad that I was there at the end of summer before the tourists left, for it was fun to meet them in shops and at the American Express and the American Church. It was interesting to try to guess their state by their accent. I was also glad to be able to remain in Paris after they left, for the city appeared entirely different then. It was then when I began to feel like a Parisienne. Even though my primary purpose for being in Paris was for studying French at the Alliance Francaise, I also found time for sightseeing and visiting the many quarters of the city. My favorite times were those spent with new friends on such excursions. I especially enjoyed Notre Dame Cathedral and the Palace of Versailles. Often in the evenings we would visit different little restaurants to try new dishes in the sections of Montparnasse or the Latin Quarter, where most of the student life is centered. One night I dined aboard the Bateau-Mouche, a restaurant aboard a sightseeing boat which floats up and down the Seine, showing its passengers how beautiful Paris can be by night, and why it is justly called "the city of lights." Another evening I visited the Lido and was a spectator of its world renown floor-show. I particularly enjoyed the opportunity to visit in French homes and attend their parties. It was quite amusing to discover how popular American music is with the French young people. Most of them have a large collection of our records, even if they can not understand the words. Often they would ask me the meaning. The cha-cha is even more popular in France than at home.

While in Paris I lived in the American House at the Cite Universitaire. The Cite is a large residential section for students at the University of Paris, composed of dormitories from practically every country. Every time I entered the cafeteria there, I realized its vastness and witnessed the international climate that prevailed. Nearly every nationality was represented. It made me strengthen my belief that only through an exchange of educational policies and viewpoints will come a world government someday. At each meal I had an opportunity to talk with students from different countries. All had impressions to share with me concerning the United States and questions to ask, especially since I was a Southerner. As large as the Cite is, among my friends there was a North Carolina girl, Susan Hatcher, from Hamlet. Sue Tucker married her brother. There were also four other Rotary International Fellows residing at the American House. One other friend who I must mention was Nicolas Kopp. Nicky was a French medical student in Paris who had lived in Goldsboro, North Carolina, for a year with a Rotarian family, the John Henderson's. He spent his senior year in high school there on the American Field Service project. Nicky loved eastern North Carolina almost as much as I do! He knew several friends of mine at East Carolina now.

From Paris to Grenoble was a big change, but I will save Grenoble for another time! Since I have been away, from the clippings I have received, it seems that Greenville has been a busy and exciting city this fall, with the visits of Hurricane Donna and President-elect Kennedy! Nearly all of the French people were for Kennedy. I was happy to see that my Kentucky sisters made such a big hit with him! The Pirates have been showing Greenville some real football this year, and I know that Coach Boone is proud of them. I really missed East Carolina. (Continued on page five)

Other Editors Saying . . . The Budgetary Troubles

(Greensboro Daily News)
It is increasingly apparent that budget requests of state-supported colleges, with particular reference to the Consolidated University of North Carolina, will become the center of a legislative battle. Where is the money coming from? How is it to be allocated? How will the indicated surplus be wrought into the next biennium's spending program?

These are questions which have hung over previous sessions of the General Assembly. And there is reason to believe that they will hang even more heavily over the 1961 Legislature.

The Daily News does not profess to have the answer. President William Friday, the University's Board of Trustees, heads of the other state-supported colleges and members of the State Board of Higher Education are all keenly aware of their responsibilities and, although they may have different approaches, are alike dedicated to the furtherance of education.

Any agency grappling with the educational program—and we are thinking of the college level here—must recognize the demands of mounting enrollment, the need for more space, the obligation to keep education within the financial reach of our boys and girls and the necessity for readjustment to the changing pattern of which we are an inseparable part. Somehow the differences of our educational leaders must—and we are sure will—be composed so as to come up with the best answer within the framework of fiscal realities.

The Daily News has its own convictions. With mounting enrollment, our institutions of higher education should make the very most of the space and the facilities they already have. That may well mean rearrangements of schedules and courses so that what is being done in four years now can be done in three. Drastic changes may cause inconvenience, but inconvenience is vastly preferred to ignorance or to denying a college education to a single boy or girl who desires it.

We are all in favor of quality education. While physical facilities are necessary, the faculty, inspired teachers and dedicated personnel make a university great. Certainly if it reaches the point where a choice must be made between more intense use of space, elimination of plush in college and university structures on the one hand and recruitment and retention of faculty members on the other, that choice should be easy; teachers and sufficient salary to retain them win hands down.

It is well enough, however, for all the facts, all the angles, to come out now so that educators, budget-makers and legislators alike may mull over them and come up with answers, doubtless involving the usual compromises, which will best serve the over-all interest of North Carolina and what is not only its most valuable but its most abundant resource.

In dollars and cents North Carolina is not a rich state. But it faces the grave responsibility of getting the most that it can out of the tax money it levies and spends.

Subtle Hiss Story

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It would seem that at this moment there is a renewed campaign in favor of Alger Hiss. The effort is to show that Hiss has suffered martyrdom and is now living in poverty. The inherent appeal in such an article as appears on this subject in "Esquire" magazine, is for compassion and we are a compassionate people.

"Esquire," by caption and the photographic setting as well as the nature of two articles in juxtaposition, shows how Roy Cohn, who had been one of Hiss's adversaries, has prospered. The titles are interesting: "The Problems of Alger Hiss" as contrasted with "The Pleasures of Roy Cohn." Hiss is a man of a miser; Cohn the man of pleasure. Why this contrast is made, it is difficult to understand, as Cohn did not benefit from Hiss's miseries nor did Hiss suffer from Cohn's affluence.

Of Hiss it is said: "At present, Alger Hiss is selling stationery."

"He lives at a water-front address in New York City in a third-floor walk-up, a sad building with a tattered green awning over a vacant store front piled high with empty cardboard cartons, and next door, 'Harry Feldman, Slop Chest, Supplies—Everything for the Sailor.' It looks like the kind of hide-out . . . that Whitaker Chambers would have picked in his darker days. Last Spring the apartment was robbed, the total loot was a $25 ring and a $5 pair of cuff links.

"Since last year, he has been separated from his wife, Priscilla." Of Roy Cohn, it says: "Roy Cohn is thirty-three now . . . Cohn today is a partner in the New York law firm of Saxe, Bacon, and O'Shea, from which he earns $250,000 a year. He is a major stockholder of The Lionel Corporation, maker of toy trains, fuses, and electronic equipment; a subsidiary manufactures sporting goods and another is a leading producer of missile components. He is a one-third owner of Feature Sports, Inc., which promoted, among other fights this past year, the John Johnson heavy-weight championship bouts. He is a successful investor in the stock market, owns two middle-sized restaurants of no particular distinction in Manhattan, and holds oil leases in Texas, New Mexico, and Kentucky. . . etc., etc."

What does this contrast mean? It means that Alger Hiss has taken his dove and bitterness and resentment; it means that Roy Cohn, who was smeared because of his association with Senator Joe McCarthy and who accumulated a host of enemies, went to work to achieve a personal success. One man who felt he was unjustly treated, lives in the past, resents the present and has no future; the other man has gone ahead.

In these articles, Hiss is painted as a Werther and Cohn as a Till Eulenspiegel. It is an interesting contrast but wholly untrue as to Cohn and I presume, not knowing Hiss, that he will on day be released from his miseries by finding a place for himself in which his talents can still be used in his country's interest.

The tales of two men who took divergent paths may be interesting and therefore they justify some magazine notice. But it is not a true contrast because Roy Cohn's success in business has nothing to do with Alger Hiss's failure as a public servant. Roy Cohn's capabilities are in the fields of law and finance. His father was a distinguished jurist in New York; his grandfather was a banker. He comes by his abilities naturally. Alger Hiss also is a lawyer and as such has had a brilliant start, but he got caught in the Marxism of the 1930's and went to prison therefor. Cohn avoided such entanglements which apparently shocks "Esquire" which quotes Richard Rovere as follows:

"In all probability, Cohn's anti-Communism was somewhat less of a caprice and an improvisation than McCarthy's, for Cohn was Jewish and from New York, and at about the time he came to man's estate and participated in the Rosenberg prosecution. (Continued on page five)

New Models Will Stay With Us

Instead of replacing them, it is often cheaper to make tools and dies for a new model, especially if it will generate excitement and interest.

6. The law itself may require model changes. Many features on today's cars are there because the legislators of only a few states require them.

7. Changing cost ratios also dictate model changes. As one material becomes more costly, a manufacturer has a choice of raising his price, or producing a new model using an alternate material.

Turkey-Carvers Are The Unsung Heroes

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—Cooking the Thanksgiving turkey is easy. Carving it—as everyone knows—is the real art. When the family has a turkey dinner in a restaurant, everything goes according to Hoyle. Every-one takes the portion dished out to him without complaint, and no one questions the chef's impartiality, judgment or skill. But when the family has a turkey dinner at home, chaos and rebellion—murmured or shouted—arise from the moment the bird arrives on the table. The one who reluctantly agrees to do the carving becomes the noblest human being in the world. He is one who stands in crisis, raved by critics. He knows he is in a situation which he can't win. He is bound to give somebody too much light meat or too little dark meat. He endows with a section of drumstick one who passionately yearned for a wing.

Herman The Cat Is Beaten Again

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP)—For the ninth time, his owner says, Herman, the cat with a court-room appointment, has been beaten up. Herman is too battered to keep the court appearance scheduled for today. Herman's owner, Mrs. Russell H. Bowler, said she found Herman in a neighbor's garage Tuesday, suffering from multiple cuts on his ears, throat and head, not to mention bruises on head and body. "Somebody tried to kill him with a baseball bat," Mrs. Bowler declared in anger. "Others took the view Herman had been talking to another cat when he should have been listening. Herman is due to appear in Superior Court, when he's feeling better, in connection with a request for an injunction sought by the neighboring owners of Siamese cats, Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Cook. They are asking the court for a $3,500 damage award and an injunction to make Herman quit bothering the female cats and Mrs. Cook.

US Gold Stockpile Could Have Run Dry

Editor's Note—Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson is in Europe this week, seeking foreign help in stemming the heavy drain on the U. S. gold stockpile. This is one of a series of steps taken in an effort to solve a worrisome international problem. Other steps, present and potential, are discussed in this last of three articles by Frank Cormier from his experience as AP Treasury Department reporter and financial writer.

By FRANK CORMIER WASHINGTON (AP)—For more than a year, the Eisenhower administration has been fussing around the edges of the gold problem. Now it is getting down to brass tacks. Why the sudden emphasis on emergency action when Uncle Sam still owns $18 billion of gold—about half of the free world's total supply? It's largely a matter of arithmetic. First of all, $11.5 of Uncle Sam's gold is tied up by law. It can't leave the country because it backs up part of the U. S. money supply. That leaves $6.5 billion of gold to meet foreign demand—the demand which the United States can't satisfy at all times if the dollar is to remain "as good as gold." Since Oct. 1, foreign nations have been buying gold at an annual rate of more than $5 billion. Obviously, Uncle Sam's gold stockpile would run dry in a little more than a year if buying on that scale continued. To guard against such a development, the Eisenhower administration has invoked controversial new policies which have two primary objectives: 1. To dispel any foreign uncertainty about the dollar by demonstrating that this country will do whatever is necessary to make sure the gold stockpile doesn't run out. 2. To reduce the deficit in the U. S. balance of payments. It is this deficit—$3.8 billion last year—which gives foreigners the money with which to buy American gold. If there were no deficit, there would be no gold problem. Critics say something must be done to reduce, and eventually eliminate, the payments deficit. It's a question of how to approach the task.

The deficit can be pared either by spending fewer dollars abroad or by collecting more dollars from foreigners. The best way to collect more dollars is to sell more goods and services in foreign trade. Exports in 1959 brought in $22.5 billion. And the administration's first thought, a year ago, was to boost exports in 1960. Exports have advanced sharply since then but they still fall far short of eliminating the deficit. Many people doubt that a similar export increase can be achieved next year, particularly if Europe's boom levels off. Another item on the plus side in 1959 was the repayment of $1 billion in government loans by other nations. These repayments are made according to regular schedules and not much can be done to increase them. In 1959, foreign visitors spent $900 million in the United States. The government is trying to promote the "visit U.S.A." idea. Finally, foreigners in 1959 invested $500 million in the United States on a long-term basis. It's questionable whether the U. S. economy is growing fast enough at present to warrant much of an increase. There you have the major items which work to reduce the payments deficit. There's room for improvement all along the line—but you can't throw a switch and expect dramatic results. On the deficit side, the biggest item in 1959 was the $18.8 billion which Americans spent to import civilian goods and services. One way to reduce the deficit would be to restrict imports through quotas or higher tariffs. However, that would inspire retaliation against U. S. exports. The government has done nothing in this area. The next largest item last year was $3.3 billion in government loans and nonmilitary foreign aid. Here there are at least three possible courses of action: 1. Eliminate or reduce the aid and loan programs. 2. Insist that those who receive aid or loan dollars spend them in the United States whenever possible. 3. Urge other nations to bear part of the aid burden. President Eisenhower has decided that the second and third alternatives are necessary. The next category is overseas spending under military programs—a $3.1 billion item last year. In this area, the administration has ordered the gradual return of more than half the 484,000 wives and children who accompany U. S. servicemen to overseas posts. Because these people spend millions overseas, the action is being taken despite its effect on morale. Also, the government will try to shift more military spending to the United States and persuade the Europeans to pay a larger share of European defense costs. Two other deficit-reducing possibilities have so far been bypassed. Nothing has been done to reduce American private investment abroad or outlays by American tourists. These, then, are the areas in which the government can act to reduce the deficit and stem the loss of gold. Some say the administration has already done more than is necessary. Others believe more will have to be done in the future. It's a debate which will continue in the months ahead; a debate on which the future of the dollar and the free world economy may depend.

Retired Couples' Budget Needs Surveyed By Govm't

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government estimated today it takes $220 to $280 monthly to support a retired couple aged 65 or over on a modest but adequate urban living level. The survey, based on data collected a year ago, is just being made public. The cost of food-beverages and rent-heat utilities each runs close to 30 per cent of total budget costs—with "other goods and services" accounting for the remainder. Included in the latter category are transportation, clothing, housefurnishings, medical care, personal care, household operation, reading, recreation, tobacco, gifts, contributions and miscellaneous expenses. A small allowance, about $20 a year is approximately 9 per cent of the total budget.

Quiet Dinner Alone In The White House

WASHINGTON (AP)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower will observe the last Thanksgiving of their administration with a quiet turkey dinner alone in the White House. They haven't often stayed at the White House for the traditional American holiday—and the period has its reminders of Eisenhower's illnesses in office. The Eisenhower grandchildren and the president's son, John, and daughter-in-law, Barbara, who usually join in the family party, will have their own turkey dinner at their Gettysburg home this time. Mrs. Eisenhower's secretary, Mary Jane McCaffree, said no guests are expected to join the President and his wife for the traditional feast. Mrs. Eisenhower has big social preparations under way for the day after Thanksgiving. She has invited 500 guests to the double debut of her young nieces, Marnie and Ellen Moore. The President, who has been going to Augusta, Ga., and shooting quail near Albany, Ga., returns to the White House today. Since the Eisenhowers moved into the White House in 1953, they have stayed there only twice before for Thanksgiving. The President seemed to like to take advantage of this holiday time to go in August, and he ate his turkey dinner with his family there in 1953, 1954 and 1958. In 1955, he had only recently returned from Denver, where he suffered his heart attack, and was recuperating at Gettysburg during the Thanksgiving period. The most dramatic Thanksgiving of all for the Eisenhowers probably came in 1957. Three days before, the President had been stricken with a slight stroke which raised new fears for his health. On Thanksgiving Day, the Pres-

Psychological Anti-Litter Test

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Would you rather drop your litter in a blue trash can, a green one, a yellow one or a pink one? The streets department has begun a psychological experiment to find out by placing baskets painted in seven pastel colors—yellow, green, purple, tangerine, blue, lavender and pink. Robert K. Farrand, chairman of the Philadelphia More Beautiful Committee's anti-litter section, said the baskets will be watched to see which attracts the most litter.

Wardrobe Hazards Face Those TV Action Stars

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP TV-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP)—The custom-tailored heroes of the TV action shows have wardrobe problems. The red-blooded, two-fisted, convertible-driving private investigator has a minimum of two knock-down, over-the-desk battles in store for him in the course of a half-hour show and combat raises sartorial havoc. Craig Stevens, pioneer and pacesetter among the sharply accounted gunshoes, once told me that his "Peter Gunn" wardrobe consisted of about 40 suits—and that each suit had a duplicate ready for use in the event a pocket was ripped or a lapel torn in the heat of battle. Roy Rogers, a fancy dresser of another style, used to conduct his battles in a sort of uniform—plaid shirt, neckerchief, boots and breeches. To make certain that expensive retakes would never be necessary because he ran out of the distinctive shirts, he bought enough bolts of the material to keep him supplied for 20 years. They are probably times when Walter Brennan, who plays Grampa in "The Real McCoys," wishes he had been equally foresighted four years ago when he started working on the comedy series. "That was 120 shows ago," Brennan recalled. "I just went over to the wardrobe department and got myself a pair of old bib overalls, an old blue chambray shirt and an old hat. The hat was too small, so I pulled the brim down all around. "Then for my dress-up suit, I picked one of a dark hard worsted

'Diamond Lil' Not Exclusively Mae's Property

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Mae West does not have exclusive right to the name Diamond Lil, says the California District Court of Appeal. The court held Tuesday that it was not unfair competition when Marie Lind was billed as the one and only Diamond Lil at a San Francisco night spot. Miss West had sued for $50,000 damages and asked an injunction to break up the act. Presiding Justice Herbert C. Kaufman wrote in the court decision that never has Miss West been publicized solely as Diamond Lil and that she has also been known as the baby vamp, siren of the screen, the screen's bad girl and the original Brinkley girl. The judge said also there was no evidence that Miss Lind imitated Miss West. That settles it, unless Mae wants to come up and see the California Supreme Court sometime.

Offering Advice On Vote Recount

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Three defeated Democratic candidates offered Tuesday to serve as recount consultants for election losers who think they were "robbed by the voters." The tongue-in-cheek U. S. Recount Corporation of America was set up by James P. Seidensticker Jr. and Andrew Jacobs Jr., defeated Indianapolis candidates for the legislature, and William P. Jones of Franklin, defeated for circuit judge. They said their organization will try to popularize the slogan, "The reason we sobbed was we wuz robbed." Early Morning Guest Unwelcome

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A noise in the living room awakened the W. C. Roy family at 3 a.m. on a recent morning. "When we went to see what the trouble was we met a skunk," Roy said. Roy quietly opened all windows and doors and went back to sleep. The skunk departed peacefully and Roy wasted no time in patching the hole in his porch left when he moved a washing machine.

Phants Honored At Grid Banquet

By LEONARD LAO
Reflector Sports Writer
The J. H. Rose High School football team was honored at a football banquet last night. Also honored were the members of Greenville's midjet, junior high and junior varsity teams. The Dutch supper was held in the school cafeteria.

Head Phantom grid coach, Bud Phillips, spoke highly of his 1960 turf team, and pointed out significantly that this edition of the Phantoms were outstanding off the field as well as on. Phillips was proud of the fact that his squad carried an overall "B" average in their school work, as well as compiling a 9-1 won-lost record for the season.

Two seniors and one junior received special awards in the form of trophies, which were presented by Coach Phillips. Senior tackle Larry Roberts received the Best Blocker Award, while another senior, Skip Wright received the Best Defensive Player trophy. The giant end was a thorn in the sides of opponents all season. Alan McArthur, a junior half-back who is a sure bet for All-Conference honors, was presented with the Most Valuable Player trophy.

James spoke very highly of the 1960 Phantoms, praising them for their successful season and especially their tremendous victory over Eastern 4A Conference Champion, Wilson. The popular Duke official, who has toured the eastern part of the state on numerous occasions, spoke highly of the calibre of football player produced in this section. James cited Mike McGee as an example. Last year as a senior guard for the Blue Devils, McGee was an All-American selection. The topnotch lineman is a native of Elizabeth City, a member of the same Northeastern Conference as the Phantoms. Today, McGee is an outstanding

Minnesota, Washington Picked For Rose Bowl

By JACK STEVENSON
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rags-to-riches Minnesota aims to avenge Big Ten honor when the Gophers battle Washington's Huskies in the 47th Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena on Jan. 2. Cellar dwellers in the conference last year, with Coach Murray Warmath hung in effigy, the Maroon and Gold came back as co-champions winning Tuesday night's bid to oppose the Huskies who whipped Wisconsin 44-8 last New Year's Day.

Minnesota's faculty - controlled senate approved the bowl opportunity this time but said it was instructing its athletic committee to oppose future Big Ten participation. Tom Hamilton, executive officer of the Big Five, said the latter clause surprised him. He added, "we haven't committed anything to the Big Ten in the future. We have an open policy. We said we were going to bring an outstanding football team into the bowl and that's what we've done. We haven't changed our policy. It's going to be a good football game, that's what we were seeking and that's what I'm sure we've got."

Washington, Big Five champion, finished its season with a 9-1 record while Minnesota, last in the Big Ten in 1959, was 8-1 and co-champion of the conference with Iowa. Minnesota's acceptance of a Rose Bowl bid dropped Iowa out of the bowl picture since conference rules prohibit postseason competition in any bowl but the Rose.

Co-champions of the Big Ten the Gophers were voted the No. 1 team in the nation by the Associated Press poll, after closing out their season with an 8-1 record. They brought memories of the pre-World War II powerhouses. Washington, voted No. 4, was 9-1. Minnesota never has played in the Rose Bowl and prior to this season had won only 5 of their last 24 games. Although they beat Iowa 27-10, the Gophers lost to Purdue the following week and wound up tied with Iowa for the conference crown.

Hamilton said President O. Meredith Wilson of Minnesota indicated the school's willingness to come "with no reservations." He added, "I've had a lot of wonderful relations with the athletic group at Minnesota."

Panthers Lose In Doublebill

GRIMESLAND—Aurora slipped the rug out from under Grimesland basketball cagers twice here last night. And the non-county team had a relatively easy time in taking both ends of a doublebill.

The night cap saw Aurora fight off a feeble last quarter surge by Grimesland for a 48-41 victory. The visiting lassies coasted to a 43-27 win in the opener.

Despite the 22 point scoring spurt by Linsay Hardee, Grimesland forward, the Panthers trailed all the way.

Clifton Bennett bagged 19 points and Frank Edwards had 10 for the winners.

In the girls' game, Aurora spurred to a 28-9 halftime lead and coasted home with an easy victory.

Bonnie Spence netted 18 points for the winners and Betty Lou Morgan was high for Grimesland with 15 points.

Line coach Bill McDonald of East Carolina remarked that Clayton Piland, the fourth selection, was the best tackle in the conference before the season got into full swing. His horn tooting proved to be true and Piland reaped an All-Conference tackle post in his first year as an EC starter.

A 195 pound junior, Piland put his name in the headlines early in the season and remained there with his brutal defensive play. One of the fastest linemen, he also gained the tab as a rugged downfield blocker. Center Chuck Gordon and guard Bob Gregson gained honorable mention honors.

Tallback Lee Farmer of Lenoir Rhyne and tackle Denny Williams of Western Carolina, a couple of seniors, were named as honorary co-captains.

New Expansion Plan Presented

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A brand new plan—two nine-team majors with inter-league play—appeared a strong possibility in 1961 today with a new Washington team the ninth member in the American and Houston added to the National.

The revolutionary proposal was unanimously voted upon by the American League at its day-long meeting Tuesday and needs only the approval of the National to become a reality. Should the National reject the plan, the American League definitely intends to pursue its original plan of 10 teams, including Los Angeles next year. The National voted against it a year ago.

If the plan goes through, it will be for one year only. In 1962, each league would go to 10 teams, with Los Angeles joining the American and New York the National.

The senior circuit, already committed to 10 teams in 1962 with franchises in Houston and New York, will answer the American during its annual winter meeting in St. Louis, Dec. 5. Should the reply be in the affirmative, each league would then adopt a 166-game schedule, an increase of 12 games.

This would encompass 112 intra-league games—14 against each team in its own league—and 54 inter-league games—against each team in the rival league.

Commissioner Ford Frick, who has insisted on a "fair and equitable" settlement, has expressed favor with the plan.

"It isn't the best idea in the world," he said, "but it is a solution to their problem. If the two leagues can get together on it, I will approve it."

Walter O'Malley, head of the Los Angeles Dodgers and the American League's biggest stumbling block, is enthusiastic over the idea. It was O'Malley's steadfast refusal to permit a rival in his territory that forced the American League to forego its decision to expand to 10 teams in 1961. At a meeting earlier this month, the American permitted Cal Griffith to move his Washington club to Minneapolis-St. Paul and voted to grant franchises to a new Washington club and Los Angeles for 1961.

"This appears to me to be a most sensible idea," he said. "I have been endorsing this idea for a long time. I proposed such a plan five years ago but couldn't get the necessary vote. Had we adopted it then, we'd never be in this mess."

"I don't know whether our league will accept it even now, but I think it would be tremendously popular with the press and the public."

Del Webb, co-owner of the New York Yankees and a prime factor in the Americans' drive for a Los Angeles franchise, acknowledged the plans' sensibility.

"We recognized we would have a problem moving this fast into Los Angeles," he said, "regarding ticket selling, playing facilities, proper promotion and getting suitable playing dates. We feel we need more time to move in an orderly way."

American League President Joe Cronin said the sudden change—observers called it a compromise—was made out in deference to Frick.

"I wouldn't call this a compromise," he said, "but rather a willingness to cooperate with the commissioner's suggestion to work out a more amicable way. We did it for the good of baseball."

Newsman construed the latest thinking as a victory for O'Malley and a salvo for Webb, the strong men of their respective leagues. O'Malley not only won his big point—no American League team in Los Angeles—but gained an ally in his long-time dream of inter-league play. Webb, unable to exact a promise from Frick to consent to the American League's entry into Los Angeles, at least knew the same rule applies to the National League trying to return to New York.

For a second team to enter New York or Los Angeles, both already occupied major league cities, the present major league territorial rule would have to be changed. Both leagues would have to agree or the commissioner would cast the decisive vote on the amendment. It is assumed he won't vote in favor of one and against the other.

O'Malley said he did not know which city—New York or Houston—would be added in 1961, but he indicated the Texas city might be the choice.

"The Houston people have shown a great deal of aggressiveness," he said. "Of course, it depends on a great deal on whether they could get the Houston franchise in the American Association and a place in which to play."

Because of the latest developments, Cronin postponed the stocking of the new club—or clubs—from this Friday to Dec. 13. He also altered the procedure. If the league goes to nine teams, the Washington club will be required to purchase at least three players—no more than four—from each established club. The price is $2,000 per player. The same list of 15 players from each club still prevails. If the league goes to 10 clubs, the old system of seven players from each team prevails.

Clemson Works On Defense For Furman Contest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Not since 1954 has a Clemson football team lost as many as five games in a single season, and that record will remain intact if the Tigers can get by Furman Saturday.

Clemson takes a 5-4 record into battle with its South Carolina neighbor from the Southern Conference. The Tigers, who won the Atlantic Coast grid title in 1958 and 1959, are fourth this year.

And Frank Howard, the veteran Clemson coach, knows full well his Tigers won't find Furman the patsy of recent years. "Now I don't know what to expect of Furman," said Howard after his team was upset 25-24 by Boston College last week. Then, in afterthought, he added, "We'll have to play, I know that."

Furman has a 5-3-1 record, the best at the Greenville school since 1953. And a Clemson team hasn't lost to Furman since 1935. As a matter of record, none of the games have been close since 1949's 28-22 Tiger triumph.

Howard, contemplating Furman's offense, worked at defense Tuesday. Howard, who winds up his 21st year as head coach, said he was fearful of the passing of Furman's Billy Canty and the running of backs Ted Loth, Bradley Fowler and Tom Campbell.

Three quarterbacks alternated at South Carolina as the Gamecocks ran through plays they use when Wake Forest invades Saturday. Coach Warren Giese had Dave Sowell, Buddy Bennett and Tommy Flicher working at the signal-calling post. Flicher, who weighs but 140 pounds, was complimented on defensive ability he displayed during the afternoon.

South Carolina will be trying for its second win of the year against six losses and a tie when Wake Forest invades. The Demon Deacons, meanwhile, will bring only a slightly better over-all record, 2-7. In the ACC, South Carolina is 1-3-1 and the Deacons 2-4.

Gib Carson moved into the starting left halfback at North Carolina. The Tar Heels reported that Moyer Smith, the regular halfback, suffered a knee bruise and charley horse against Duke last Saturday and may miss the upcoming contest at Virginia.

After the stunning 7-6 upset of Duke, Coach Jim Hickey said he was fearful of a letdown. "We have to be up for Virginia," he said. "We have the utmost respect for Virginia" despite its 26 straight losses.

Cadets Given Nod Over Big Sailors

DON WEISS

NEW YORK (AP)—Where's the guy who said this picking business was so tough?

Thanks to another gent, the one who invented the two-point conversion and the four-leaf clover, last week's nonsense turned up a 37-8-3 record for an .822 pace that boosted Coach Classen's season mathematics to 355-126, a hefty .738 per cent.

The law of averages is just itching to catch up after all those blind stabs, so let's start from the top:

Army over Navy—Cadets' Blanda and Eckert can pass; favored Middies' Bellino can run. That makes it 2 to 1. Victory in air power in this nationally televised Saturday sizzler from Philadelphia. Texas over Texas A & M—The week's other TV offering, Thanksgiving in Texas. The Longhorns are no turkeys.

Alabama over Auburn—The Bear (Bryant) is primed for Tiger Saturday. No Ed Dyes, no Auburn offense.

Florida over Miami—This one usually winds up 10-7. Florida the state champ after Saturday night.

Notre Dame over Southern California—Even Irishmen have tempers, especially after eight straight losses. They'll show Saturday.

Mississippi over Mississippi State—Last-ditch Rebel bid for No. 1 ranking.

Thursday Denver over Colorado State U., Penn over Cornell, VMI over VPI, Mississippi Southern over Chattanooga, Wichita over West Texas State, William and Mary over Richmond.

Saturday Colorado over Air Force, Arizona State over Arizona, Clemson over Furman, College of the Pacific over Fresno State, Georgia Tech over Georgia, Holy Cross over Boston College, Louisiana State over Tulane, New Mexico State over Texas Western, Baylor over Rice, South Carolina over Wake Forest, Texas Christian over Southern Methodist, UCLA over Utah, Tennessee over Vanderbilt, North Carolina over Virginia, Oklahoma over Oklahoma State, Houston over Tulsa.

Friday, Dec. 2 Miami (Fla) over Air Force, San Jose State over Hawaii.

Saturday, Dec. 3 UCLA over Duke, South Carolina over Virginia.

Accountant's Certificate

The Greenville Utilities Commission
Greenville, North Carolina

We have examined the balance sheet and supporting records of the Greenville Utilities Commission as of June 30, 1960, and the related statement of income and expenses and surplus for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, the accompanying Statement of Financial Condition and Statement of Income and Expenses and surplus present fairly the financial position of the Greenville Utilities Commission at June 30, 1960 and the results of its operations for the year then ended, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

FLASH GORDON

THE PHANTOM

JAMES KEENE'S New Historical Novel IRON MAN, IRON HORSE

CHAPTER 23
The last thing Ben Holliday expected when he arrived at Dodge was a celebration: the town seemed to go mad, and a brass band came marching onto the track, blocking the train effectively. The crowd was immense, shouting, waving their hats, firing pistols into the air, and through it all came a delegation in bugles, the mayor and all the city officials, and a swarm of cattle buyers, all eager to sign checks and pay top prices. Holliday, with Jim Bender and DuJoise in tow, was whisked away by buggy and taken to a suite of rooms at the hotel. A bartender served and two waiters passed the drinks around to the jam of frock-coated men. Harry Lovell was there, but had no chance to talk to Holliday; the best Lovell could manage was a smile and a wave of the hand from across the room. "A sterling achievement," the mayor said, raising his glass. The bankers with him nodded, and everyone took his whiskey neat. "Perhaps, Mr. Holliday you would consent to answer a few questions for us." "Why not?" "The mayor clapped his hands for silence. "Gentlemen, Mr. Holliday has consented to answer our questions. Would you step right over there, sir, where everyone can see you. Thank you. As you are well aware, gentlemen, the success of Midland-Pacific has a direct bearing on our city. So does its failure, but today we are talking of success. Mr. Holliday, are you ready for the questions?" "Yes," Ben said, and accepted a cigar and a light; he hoped it would cover his nervousness and make him appear as though he had done this many times. One of the bankers had a question. "Mr. Holliday, you have done what two other men failed to do, bring a train from end of line to Dodge. Can we conclude from this that Midland-Pacific has resolved her difficulties?" "No, you may not," Ben said. "However, we're working on them." Another man asked, "Is there any truth to the rumor that you've accepted additional capital?" "No additional capital has been offered. So we could hardly accept it." Another man was bidding for attention. "Yes?" "Do you plan to run a freight on schedule?" Holliday smiled. "I'd like to run one twice a day, but I hardly think business warrants it. In a few days, another train will come north with Box X steers, and return. I hope, with freight. Military supplies for Fort Elliot, and freight of any nature to rangers along the line will be accepted." "Do you have a solution for the Indian trouble this is bound to create, sir?" "Yes," Ben said. "Fight." There was some laughter, then Holly Bristow said, "Mr. Holliday, I don't believe I've ever met you, but since you've exhibited such frankness with us here, perhaps you'll answer my question: did you receive a legitimate offer for the line?" "Yes," Bristow smiled. "Are you going to accept it, sir?" "I am not," Ben Holliday said. A murmur of surprise rippled among them, then died. Then Holliday asked, "Did you make the offer, sir?" "A cattle buyer laughed and said, "He's got you there, Bristow." Bristow colored and hesitated. "I made the offer, yes, but as a representative for a group of men." "Would you care to name them?" Ben asked. "No, sir, I would not." "And why not?" He smiled. "If the offer is as legitimate as you say, sir, then public knowledge of their names could harm no one." "I'm not at liberty to do so," Bristow said. "You've answered my question; thank you." "But you haven't answered mine," Holliday said flatly. "No, and I'm not going to," Bristow said, sitting down. "Perhaps I can answer it for you," Ben said. "Murray Singer, Bert Hutchins, and I think Jerry Vale." Singer he was sure of, and Hutchins was a good bet, but Vale had been a guess based on the three in Singer's study. And Bristow's dropped jaw told Holliday that he had scored in the X ring. "You had no right to do that," Bristow said coolly. "No right at all." "It's my railroad," Holliday said. "But it may not be for long," Bristow said, and stalked out of the room. There were a few more questions, and Holliday answered them honestly, then the gathering broke up, except for a portly, mustachioed man. He waited until the others had gone, then said, "I'm Swinner. Western Union, I think you the poles and wire, Mr. Holliday." Ben didn't want to argue about it. "You acted wisely for your company, Mr. Swinner. I was going to gamble with your equipment." Swinner glanced at DuJoise and Jim Bender. "I'd like to talk to you alone, if I may." "Consider us alone," Holliday said. "They're close associates." Swinner shrugged and sat down, crossing his legs. "Have it your way, Mr. Holliday. I don't suppose, since I turned you down on the poles and wire, that you'd care to tell me what you were going to do?" "Why not? I was going to make a connection with Fort Elliot." "Hardly profitable," Swinner said. "We've been asked to put in a line also. Too closely running poles parallel to your right of way. Of course, if you'd give us an easement—" Ben Holliday shook his head. "We use the telegraph for business and write off the expense of it. You're in business to make a profit out of what is a loss to us. Sorry, no easement." "Let me point out to you," Swinner said, "that if you do foot the bill for a line to Elliot, all you'll get out of it is some help with the Indians. That won't last forever. Then where's your investment?" "Well at least I got something for it," Holliday said. "If Western Union wants to buy our existing poles and equipment—" Swinner waved his hand and smiled. "No, I don't think so. However, we'd take this millstone from around your neck, and in return build the line to Fort Elliot for you. Naturally you'd use the line at the established railroad rate." Ben Holliday laughed softly. "That's certainly decent of the company, Mr. Swinner, but it hardly meets the demands of Midland-Pacific." "Oh? What do you suggest?" "Midland-Pacific will pursue plans for expansion until the doors are locked by the receivers. Any agreement entered into would have to include areas of expansion." Harry Lovell's deception is uncovered by Ben as "Iron Man, Iron Horse" continues here tomorrow.

Wants To Lose His Bureau Post

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The head of the immigration bureau wants to lose his job. Emilio Galap, immigration commissioner, recommends stopping all immigration to this country as a solution to the problem of temporary visitors who become more or less permanent residents. Most of them are Chinese.

Estimate Costs Of Battleship

RALEIGH (AP)—It would cost some $150,000 to get the battleship USS North Carolina to a mooring in this state, and another $50,000 to $75,000 would be required each year for maintenance. These figures were read off here Monday to a committee named by Gov. Hodges to explore the possibility of converting the battleship into a war memorial. Orville Campbell of Chapel Hill, chairman, presided. The Navy plans to scrap the ship, now anchored at Bayonne, N.J., unless the state makes arrangements to obtain her.

METER MEWS

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP)—The Ralph Gifford family thought a kitten was meowing in the furnace. Firemen were called. They heard the noise too, but couldn't find any trapped cat. They suggested tearing out part of the brick chimney for a better look. The family started to call a wrecking crew. Then someone noticed the natural gas meter near the furnace. The meter was squeaking—just like a kitten.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market milled irregularly in fairly active trading early this afternoon. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .10 at 214.50 with the industrials down .70, rails up .20 and utilities up .10.

Changes of most key stocks were narrow. A few exceptions stood out.

The brisk trading rate in the morning reflected the desire of traders to clear the decks prior to what will be a long Thanksgiving Day weekend for many Wall Streeters. The market will be closed Thursday.

Autos, aircraft-missiles, drugs, building materials and tobaccos were a bit higher. A lower tone prevailed among most oils, steels and chemicals. Electronics were mixed.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .12 at 601.22. Corporate bonds were narrowly irregular. U.S. government bonds showed slight change.

Bar Tower Atop Mt. Jefferson

RALEIGH (AP)—Central Telephone Co. turned down its bid to build a microwave tower atop Mount Jefferson in Ashe County as another mountain site.

The Conservation and Development Board's Executive Committee, in denying the request Tuesday, suggested that the firm construct its 60-foot tower either on the eastern end of the mountain or on nearby Mount Phoenix.

The committee said the tower would mar Mount Jefferson's scenic beauty. It also said such permission could create "a bad precedent."

Central appeared at the meeting with a group of area citizens supporting the microwave tower as a boon to industrial development in the mountains.

The company said it would cost more to build the tower at a site other than Mount Jefferson and customers would have to foot the additional bill. It said it would cost $70,000 to $85,000, a prohibitive amount, for an access road if the tower were built at Mount Phoenix.

The committee suggested that the Conservation and Development Department's Parks Division negotiate with the telephone firm over a possible site.

Rites Thursday For Herman Lee Norris

Mr. Norris, son of Isaac Walter Norris of Greenville, and the late Bettie Mazingo Norris, was born and reared in Mt. Olive. He moved to Greenville about 25 years ago and was the owner and operator of Norris Seafood Market. He was a member of the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church and the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Minor Damage In Farmville Blaze

FARMVILLE—A fast-acting Farmville Fire Department today snuffed out a potentially devastating paint fire at the Mayo-Florence Nuway Co. here.

Receiving the call at 10:10 this morning, three vehicles and 24 firemen raced to the local tobacco curer manufacturing firm's paint plant and extinguished the blaze by 10:30.

Fire Chief Curtis H. Flanagan told the Daily Reflector the fire's toll was confined to minor smoke damage and loss of a small amount of paint.

Flanagan said the fire broke out in the paint shop, a separate building from the firm's main plant, when an electric heat bulb used in the paint-drying process exploded and ignited paint mist in the air.

Fireman applied carbon dioxide foam and dry chemicals to the blaze, using water only as a cooling spray.

Flanagan said the department was fortunate "to get on the fire as soon as we did because those paint fires, if they get a little head start, can be awfully dangerous."

The chief pointed out the burning paint threw out a heavy blanket of black smoke that would have hampered firefighting efforts had the firemen arrived slightly later.

He said he plans to investigate the type of bulb being used in the paint shop for drying to determine whether a safer bulb could be used for the process. He added, however, today's fire marked the first incident of a heat bulb explosion at the local manufacturing company.

Grifton To Have New Decorations

GRIFTON—Some new Christmas decorations have been ordered for Grifton's main street this year, Town Clerk Joyce McCoy said yesterday.

Officers reported Mary Louise Moore, 28, of 1504 B. Fleming St. and Michael Wilson, 39, of 1700 West Third St. were arrested at the Moore woman's home.

Officers said five gallons of Fountain will present a musical program at St. Matthew F.W.B. Church tomorrow afternoon at 3 p.m. and at the night service at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

A Thanksgiving service will be held at Cedar Grove Baptist Church at 11:30 a.m. The public is invited.

The Senior Choir of Selvia Chapel F.W.B. Church will have choir rehearsal Friday at 8 p.m. All members are asked to be present.

Sunday will be observed as regular pastoral day at Phillip Christian Church. Baptismal services will be held at 8:30 a.m. and Sunday School at 9:30 a.m. Bishop J. F. McLaurin, pastor, will deliver the sermon and the music will be rendered by the Gospel Chorus at the morning worship.

Mr. Hart was a lifelong resident of the Ayden community and was engaged in farming until his health required him to retire. He was a member of the Ayden Christian Church and a member of the Christian Men's Class. He was a veteran of World War I.

Surviving are his wife, the former Lillian Smith; one daughter, Mary Alice Hart of Charlotte; one son, John Hart of the home; three brothers, Alphonza Hart of Miami, Fla., Carlyle Hart of Raleigh, and Johnnie Hart of Ayden; four sisters, Mrs. Eva Cannon of Ft. Barnwell, Mrs. B. W. Moore and Mrs. Luna Crisp of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Vonnie Ruth Hart of Oxford.

GREENVILLE—Three arrests were recorded by the Grifton Police Department over the weekend, according to Chief Luther Lewis.

Arrests included one for public drunkenness and two for failure to stop for a stop sign.

The cases will be tried on Thursday, Dec. 1, in Grifton Recorder's Court. There will be no court this Thursday, since the town is observing the Thanksgiving holiday.

GREENVILLE—Employees of the town of Ayden will have a holiday on Thanksgiving Day, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor announced yesterday.

However, the police department will function, as will an emergency utility crew. Offices will reopen as usual on Friday.

GREENVILLE—A false alarm recorded by the town of Greenville was reported from Box 126, at the intersection of Dickinson and Manhattan Aves., at 7:40 p.m. yesterday.

Officers said no one was at the box when fire units arrived and no fire was seen. The alarm was listed as "false."

"TRUE OR FALSE?"... might be the question many Pitt County motorists will be asking tomorrow as they travel Pitt's highways and see numerous "little black lines" stretched across the roads—one like this officer, Ptl. H. R. Winslow of Greenville, is putting down. Both real and "dummy" speed clock tubes will be in use, along with unmarked cars and radar speed checking units, in an effort to prevent highway accidents in Pitt, according to patrol officials.

Arrest Pair On Liquor Charges

Two Negroes were arrested on charges of possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale last night on Fleming St. by Pitt County ABC officers, when a quantity of illegal booze was found in their possession.

Officers reported Mary Louise Moore, 28, of 1504 B. Fleming St. and Michael Wilson, 39, of 1700 West Third St. were arrested at the Moore woman's home.

Officers said five gallons of Fountain will present a musical program at St. Matthew F.W.B. Church tomorrow afternoon at 3 p.m. and at the night service at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Estimated $1,900 Loss As Truck Struck Truck

An estimated $1,900 damage resulted in one of four collisions investigated by local officers yesterday.

Investigators said a truck driven by Robert Louis James, 20, of Rt. 2, Grifton, collided with a truck parked on North Greene Street, causing an estimated $900 damage to his vehicle and an estimated $1,000 damage to the parked truck, owned by R. F. McLawhorn and Sons of North Greene St.

James, who was treated for bruises to his right hand and leg, was charged with careless and reckless driving.

The collision took place about 12:28 p.m.

Cars driven by Andrey L. Felton, 41, of 1506 Dickinson Ave., and William Gurganus Jr., Route 3, Snow Hill, collided on East Sixth St., causing an estimated $150 damage to the Felton vehicle and about $250 damage to the Gurganus auto.

No charges were placed by officers who added Gurganus was taking a driver's license test at the time.

An estimated $90 damage resulted to a car driven by Mrs. Genet Everette Lilly of 1005 West Third St. when it collided with an auto operated by Elizabeth Bates Woolard of 118 North Jarvis St.

Officers said no damage resulted to the Woolard car and no arrests were made.

The collision occurred at the intersection of Fifth and Pitt Sts. An estimated $80 damage resulted to a car operated by Luther E. Carroway, 17, of Route 6, Greenville, police reported, when it ran into a ditch in an effort to avoid a collision with an oncoming car as Carroway attempted to pass another car on Evans St. Extension yesterday.

No charges were made and no injuries were reported by investigators.

"We feel it will be an important thing for Greenville," Coffman stated. "It will be a help in satisfying the labor requirements for any new industry that might be interested in Greenville."

"It will also enable Pitt County people to upgrade their present skills. The school will provide an alternative for the high school graduate who cannot afford, or doesn't want, to go to college, with additional training. This will make him a more worthwhile citizen in the community and give him a chance for a better job."

Coffman said the Jaycees primary interest is its goal of a more diversified economy for Greenville. "We think this will be a big boost in attracting industry."

AYDEN—Wilbur Ormond, Ayden Rotarian, told of Ayden as he remembered its many years ago, at the recent meeting of the Ayden Rotary Club.

In his talk, Ormond mentioned the time when there were gates around the town of Ayden and people patrolled it to keep their stock under control. He also described the lighting system many years ago, when the town generator started about 7 p.m. and ran until about 11:30 p.m.—that was the only time the town had lights, Ormond said.

Visitors at the meeting included Dr. James Butler of Greenville, past district governor of Rotary International, and Morris Brody of the Greenville Rotary Club.

Mr. Hart was a lifelong resident of the Ayden community and was engaged in farming until his health required him to retire. He was a member of the Ayden Christian Church and a member of the Christian Men's Class. He was a veteran of World War I.

Surviving are his wife, the former Lillian Smith; one daughter, Mary Alice Hart of Charlotte; one son, John Hart of the home; three brothers, Alphonza Hart of Miami, Fla., Carlyle Hart of Raleigh, and Johnnie Hart of Ayden; four sisters, Mrs. Eva Cannon of Ft. Barnwell, Mrs. B. W. Moore and Mrs. Luna Crisp of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Vonnie Ruth Hart of Oxford.
