

Nation's Deaths Climb As Long Holiday Continues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Deaths on the nation's highways climbed steadily today as the normal influx of weekend travel added to the flow of Thanksgiving holiday traffic.

during a four-day weekend period at this time of year. This year's total was running only slightly behind the total counted during an Associated Press survey period covering the 102 hours from 6 p.m. Wednesday Nov. 9 and midnight Sunday, Nov. 13.

The toll mounted to 236 as the four-day extended holiday period passed the halfway mark. Other violent deaths included 35 in fires and 62 in miscellaneous type mishaps for an over-all total of 285.

The record number of deaths for a four-day holiday period is 884 over Christmas of 1956. 707 of which came in traffic accidents.

Vatican Issues Formal Protest

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican has officially protested to Haiti for the expulsion of Archbishop Poirier, L'Osservatore Romano, on Aug. 22, 1959, recalled the punishment in a broad sense with which canon law (law of the Roman Catholic Church) guards the sacred character and liberty of the bishops.

when there were reports of an order for the arrest of the same Archbishop Poirier, L'Osservatore Romano, on Aug. 22, 1959, recalled the punishment in a broad sense with which canon law (law of the Roman Catholic Church) guards the sacred character and liberty of the bishops.

The law to which L'Osservatore referred was Canon Law 2334. This law automatically exposes to excommunication any person who impedes a prelate of the church. Excommunication brings loss of the sacraments and, in a broad sense, ostracism from the church economy.

Now in Paris, the French-born archbishop said, "The situation in Haiti is too delicate for me to talk."

Strained relations between the Vatican and Haiti were emphasized here today by the absence of Haiti's ambassador, Antonio T. Kebreau, from a memorial service for cardinals who died during the past year. Pope John XXIII presided at the ceremony.

All other members of the diplomatic corps accredited to the Vatican, as well as 23 cardinals and other high church prelates, were present.

The Haitian ambassador said his absence was due to rheumatism.

Vatican sources ascribed his absence to "diplomatic illness" and the situation between the Vatican and Haiti.

The Vatican newspaper sharply criticized the manner in which Archbishop Poirier had been expelled and praised his conduct as dignified.

L'Osservatore recalled that the Archbishop denied charges by Haitian officials that he had given money to Communists and said, "It would be very difficult to think that public opinion will be persuaded that there is any real foundation to that charge."

Referring to the possibility that those responsible for the expulsion had incurred excommunication, L'Osservatore said: "On a recent enough occasion, in fact"

Eisenhower Rejects Protest

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today bluntly rejected a protest by the president of the Republic of Guinea that the United States has supported "the position of the enemies of African emancipation" in the Congo.

Eisenhower told President Sekou Toure of Guinea in a cablegram that the United States has been in the forefront of those nations which have favored emancipation of all peoples, including Africans.

Toure's protest was dated Nov. 20. Toure said he was concerned about the development of a partisan position by the United States in the situation in the Congo.

He asked that the United States "cease supporting the position of the enemies of African emancipation, who are employing every possible means against the legitimate government of the Congo to attack the unity and territorial integrity of the Congolese nation."

Eisenhower's reply, dated Friday and made public today by the White House, said Toure's cable of Nov. 20 "reflects a serious misunderstanding of the United States government in support of African freedom."

The Republic of Guinea has lined up with the Soviet Union in support of former Premier Patrice Lumumba.

The United States has been supporting President Joseph Kasavubu, whose delegation recently was seated by the United Nations. In his protest to Eisenhower, Toure said the Republic of Guinea would refuse to take any part in the activities of the U.N. Conciliation Commission "if the United States maintains its present position."

Kasavubu has agreed to receive the Conciliation Commission in the near future. It will seek to bring together leaders who are in conflict in the Congo.

Eisenhower said this country's record over many years in support of African emancipation is open for all to see.

Retirement Body Trying Recovery

RALEIGH (AP)—A lawsuit seeking $1,457 which the North Carolina Teachers and State Employees Retirement System says it advertently overpaid to a former member was filed Friday in Wake Superior Court.

In its complaint, the retirement system said J. Royal Browning, named defendant in the suit, withdrew from the system in 1958 after 17 years as a member. It said Brown was paid $3,259.39, instead of the $1,801.40 which it claimed was due, through a clerical error. Efforts to collect the difference have failed, the agency said.

Rocky Mount Man Faces Tax Charge

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A Rocky Mount man, M. L. Gavy, pleaded guilty Friday in U. S. District Court to charges of failing to file income tax returns for 1954, 1955, 1956, within the prescribed time limit.

Judge Edwin M. Stanley deferred testimony and sentencing in the case until March 3 to permit Gavy to confer with the Internal Revenue Service about claims against him.

Three Negroes Arrested For Pitt Murder-Robbery

Three Negroes have been arrested on charges of murdering and robbing an 82-year-old Stokes Negro man of $5.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson identified the three as Richard Frank, 18, and Bennie Earl Frank, 16 of Rt. 1, Stokes and Willie Lee Perkins, about 26 of Robertsonville.

They are accused in the death of James Alfred Chancie who was found with a wire coat hanger wrapped around his neck Wednesday morning.

Chancie's body was discovered in his rural home by R.L. Roberson of Stokes who came to the dwelling to "bring him some clothes."

The sheriff said the three accused persons are being held in Pitt County Jail without bond. They will be given a preliminary hearing before a justice of the peace on the charges.

The three told officers the location of a pocketbook, alleged to be Chancie's, upon their arrest, according to the sheriff. It was found in a tobacco barn on the Jerome Perkins farm near Stokes.

The coroner said that Chancie was strangled to death by the coat hanger. In view of the fact that the three arrested persons will receive a preliminary hearing, Harvey said he doubted that an inquest will be held.

Perkins was arrested by a Martin County deputy around 4:30 yesterday afternoon. The Frank brothers were arrested by Pitt Deputies Ralph Tyson and Gerald Davis and Stokes Constable William Crandall about 6 o'clock last night.

Chancie's body was found Wednesday morning around 8:45 and upon investigation Coroner Harvey said the death was "not of natural causes."

In addition to the coat hanger around his neck, investigators found a burlap bag thrown over his face. There was also a partially opened pocket knife at his feet.

Harvey said the man had lived alone in the large dilapidated house near Stokes since the death of his wife eight years ago. Apparently, he occupied only one room in the two-story farm dwelling. Chancie's food supply was found in a trunk located in the room.

Chancie's body was found face up slumped over two chairs. A wood heater in a corner was cold. Funeral home employees removed the body from the house on the dreary, drizzly morning. Officers have been investigating the puzzling death since that time.

Chancie had been receiving welfare checks of $40 monthly. Officers found a notice informing him that the amount was to be increased to $44 monthly with the November check.

Three Kennedys Reported 'Fine' After Son's Birth

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedys—mother, father, newborn son—are "fine."

That was the report from President-elect John F. Kennedy today after a 15-minute mid-morning visit with his wife at Georgetown University Hospital.

He reported initially that his wife and son were "fine." Then, to make it unanimous, he added "that he, too, was 'fine.'"

Dr. John W. Walsh, who delivered the baby early Friday morning, added an official note. Speaking through Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's press secretary, the doctor said the baby was doing very well and Mrs. Kennedy was "recovering rapidly, more rapidly than from her first child."

And, to round out the family picture, that first child, 3-year-old Caroline, who celebrated her birthday in advance Thanksgiving Day, was busily telling everybody about her new baby brother.

The baby, named John Fitzgerald Kennedy Jr., was described by Caroline as a birthday present. Her description stemmed from Kennedy's statement to her that her mother had gone away from home Thanksgiving night to bring her a new baby brother for her birthday which comes officially Sunday.

At the hospital the baby is taking and retaining little sips of sugar water. Decisions on a formula may be made later today.

The baby, which weighed 6 pounds, 3 ounces, at birth Friday morning, is still in an incubator. Mrs. Kennedy has not seen her son yet. But Salinger said she will see the baby possibly this afternoon, if she feels well enough when she gets up in a wheelchair.

Kennedy arrived at the hospital this morning hatless and wearing a topcoat in crisp sunny air. With him was Dr. Janet Travell, a New York City back specialist and Kennedy's doctor.

Salinger said that Kennedy was not having trouble with his back, injured in his youth and again in World War II. He said Dr. Travell is an old friend of the family and merely wanted to see the baby.

Talking to reporters, Kennedy said he still couldn't say who the baby looked like but, "I'll let you know."

Kennedy plans to have a dinner and conference tonight with his brother Robert who was his campaign manager. They will meet at Robert Kennedy's home in McLean, Va., after Robert's return from Florida.

The president-elect also planned another visit to the hospital late in the afternoon.

Flying Service, crashed nose-first into a thickly wooded area about four and one-half miles north of Washington off Market Street Extension, about 5:15 p.m. Friday.

A Marine Corps Air-sea Rescue helicopter located the wrecked aircraft in the inaccessible area and members of the Greenville and Washington Rescue Squads with the aid of an N. C. Forest Service fire plow, which cut a path to the plane, entered the woods and removed the body.

The Piper Vagabond was found by rescuers upside down and Broad's body had to be cut from the wreckage.

Coroner Paul noted that Broad, Minges and a third man, each piloting separate aircraft, took off from the Washington airport about 4:45 p.m. in weather which was "not favorable for flying." Broad's plane crashed about 5:15 p.m.

Pilot Bound Over On Manslaughter Charge

WASHINGTON, N. C.—Richard Minges Jr., of Fayetteville, a crop dusting pilot, was bound over to the Beaufort County Superior Court yesterday on manslaughter charges stemming from the death of a student pilot in the crash of a light plane near here one week ago.

Bond for Minges, who admitted to Beaufort County Sheriff's Deputies last Saturday that his plane struck the tail section of a plane piloted by Malcolm O. Broad, 22, just before it crashed, was set at $750.

Coroner Bonner Paul said the plane piloted by Broad, a student pilot and mechanic for Stancil

U. S. Gold Dips Below $18 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the first time in 20 years, the United States has less than $18 billion worth of gold on hand.

The Federal Reserve Board reported to $17,986,000,000 on Nov. 23.

The decline was caused by foreign purchasers who bought $20 million worth of gold in the preceding week.

Nixon Margin In Alaska Was 1,144

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—The margin of Vice President Richard M. Nixon's victory in Alaska was 1,144 votes.

The official canvass of the ballots which gave him the state's three electoral votes was announced Friday night.

Including all regular and absentee ballots cast, the count was: Nixon, 30,953; President-elect John F. Kennedy, 29,809.

Two Proposals To Be Heard By Gold

RALEIGH (AP)—Two proposals to supplement compulsory auto liability insurance laws will be the subject for a Dec. 14 hearing before Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold.

One would set up a security fund to protect policyholders in the event an insurance company became insolvent. The second would handle all assigned risk policyholders, those who are unable to obtain liability insurance through normal channels, through a single company.

The two proposals were offered by Gold at a conference Sept. 20. He recessed the discussions to permit interested parties to study the suggestions and make recommendations.

Greenville's Humber Will See Fruits Of 17 Years' Labor At Art Presentation

ROBERT LEE HUMBER . . . instrumental in founding of N. C. Museum of Art and securing a gift of art treasures from the Kress Foundation, valued at over $2.5 million. The gift will be presented Wednesday. (Photo by Stuart Savage)

By PATRICIA MOORE, Reflector Staff Writer

Robert Lee Humber of Greenville will realize the culmination of 17 years of effort Wednesday when the Samuel H. Kress Foundation makes its presentation of over $2.5 million in art treasures to the N. C. Museum of Art.

More than any other man, Sen. Humber may be singled out as most responsible for this great cultural institution. For five years he has been president of the State Art Society, which founded the museum and operates it with funds of the state. He has been chairman of the board for nine years and chairman of the State Art Commission during its existence.

The museum is recognized as the most important cultural institution of our state and has already been the instrument of founding museums in different areas of North Carolina. It will be the leading cultural museum of the Southern part of the country.

An initial investment by the State of North Carolina of $1 million, as well as gifts, and now the Kress presentation, valued at over $2.5 million, have provided a museum worth at least $7.5 million in art treasures.

The Kress Foundation, under the leadership of R.H. Kress, president, increased its original promise of $1 million in art works to this state to the present gift.

The presentation includes works by great Italian masters such as Giotto, Botticelli, Veronese and Tintoretto; by famed artists of the Dutch, school, such as Rembrandt and Frans Hals; and of the Flemish school such as Quentin Massys. The historical scope extends from the 13th to the 18th century.

In Sen. Humber's own words, he tells that "Upon my return home from Europe, I observed while traveling over the United States, that every section of our country had museums of distinction, except the Southland. If one had drawn an arc south of the Potomac to the Pacific coast, there was not one art center of national reputation."

"I felt that this deficiency should be corrected in our Southland and that the State of North Carolina should take the initiative in supplying this basic deficiency in our cultural life."

"This thought was the beginning of the North Carolina Museum of Art, in Raleigh."

The first publicized speech on the subject of an art museum for the state was made in Raleigh in 1943. This led to Governor J. Melville, Broughton's calling a small group of citizens into his office to confer about the matter.

Growing out of this meeting "was only an expression of interest and no pledge of financial support," Sen. Humber recalls. Then speculation about the amount of money required to start a gallery of Old Masters began at as low a figure as $50,000.

Asked the minimum figure for beginning such a gallery, Sen. Humber replied, $1 million. Contention ensued, and naturally an immediate cooling of original enthusiasm from those interested.

Outside Help "This reaction in North Carolina caused me to seek assistance outside the state," Sen. Humber said. In June, 1943, he conferred with the Samuel H. Kress Foundation and proposed that they make a contingent offer of $1 million to North Carolina for the establishment of a state museum of art—provided that this sum would be matched.

Then Sen. Humber reached a state under his goal. After numerous conferences, it was agreed that if North Carolina would provide adequate quarters for a museum, accept the responsibility for its operation and maintenance and make available $1 million for the purchase of art, the Samuel H. Kress Foundation would match the sum.

However, plans were held up for three and a half years because the income of the foundation had been pledged for that period. "During the ensuing three years, 1944, 45 and 46, I visited the foundation from time to time, keeping alive their agreement," Sen. Humber said.

By the end of 1946, the three and a half years had expired. The Kress Foundation committed itself to give the state the million dollars, provided it was matched by a similar sum upon condition their name not be divulged.

Sen. Humber explained the reason for this was that the foundation "did not want to be solicited by 13 other Southern states for a similar gift."

Naturally this restriction greatly complicated support of the proposal by the legislature.

Legislative Battle "It placed me," said Sen. Humber, "in the position, as a private citizen, asking the General Assembly of North Carolina to appropriate $1 million of the taxpayers' money to match a gift from an undisclosed source and with only personal assurance that this sum of money would be matched."

One of the greatest debates in recent history of the General Assembly resulted. Honorable John H. Kerr Jr. of Warrenton a former speaker of the House, stated in the 1947 assembly, "Mr. Speaker, man cannot live by bread alone," as he began one of the most brilliant speeches before the House of Representatives in recent times.

The opposition was equally as forceful, Sen. Humber recalls. During discussion of the measure, Sen. Humber vividly remembers one opponent shouting, "The people of North Carolina need many things. Let us give them milk before we give them caviar."

But the then governor of North Carolina, Honorable R. Gregg Cherry, himself had agreed to back the proposed museum, since he particularly appreciated the economic value to North Carolina by the expenditure of tourists who would visit the museum."

After the bill passed the N.C. Senate, the terrific House battle ended in a victory, with the vote 44 to 44 favoring passage of the art bill. This occurred in 1947.

Kress Gift In January of 1951 R.H. Kress of the Kress Foundation gave Sen. Humber a letter setting forth the agreement of the Samuel H. Kress Foundation: to present to North Carolina a collection of paintings by outstanding Renaissance Masters and similar artists with a value of at least $1 million.

This letter meant that the original contract to match the original appropriation in cash would have to be converted into a matching gift in art, which involved an entirely new bill through the legislature to accept this modification." Sen. Humber noted. Once more the General Assembly of North Carolina responded favorably and accepted the Kress offer.

This act by the legislature established a precedent in American history. Sen. Humber said it was the first instance in the history of the country where a state ever appropriated $1 million for the purchase of art. The museum building, formerly occupied by the State Highway Commission, was transformed to accommodate the works of art of the museum, which officially opened April 6, 1956. Since then about 275,000 have visited the institution, of whom 82 percent were North Carolinians, 16 percent were from other states and 2 percent were from abroad, according to Sen. Humber.

Donors Donors have been numerous. Among them are Doris Duke, John Hay Whitney, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Lady Marcia Calliffewen, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lusky of New York. Among North Carolina donors have been J.B. Ivey and Co., Ralph W. Price of Greensboro, and Messrs. Maxwell of Augustus, in honor of their sister Mrs. J. B. Moore of Greenville, an ex-officio member of the board of directors of the State Art Society.

In addition to his efforts to secure the Kress presentation, the founding of the State Art Museum, Sen. Humber himself has been responsible for securing gifts to the museum in excess of $1,500,000. His efforts to secure additional gifts are continuing, needless to say.

Sen. Humber a native of Greenville, was re-elected this fall to a second term as senator from Pitt County. He graduated from the Wake Forest Law School and was a Rhodes Scholar. He has traveled extensively in this country and abroad, having lived in France prior to the outbreak of World War II. He and Mrs. Humber reside at 117 W. Fifth St. They have two sons.

He worked with the World Peace program and now is spearheading efforts to locate an industrial school in Pitt County.

HOME DECORATING TODAY

By MRS. R. W. DAVENPORT HAPPY HUNTING

Being proud of our American heritage, we should be home collectors. Collecting for the home creates a family bond.

Collecting for the home is all but limitless. Antique furniture, paper weights, bells, shells, old cook books, pressed glass, African vases, old quilts, luster ware, musical instruments, old Bibles, foreign books, maps and paintings—we could go on and on.

A collection adds charm, color and beauty to a home. No decorator can do for the home what the collector can do. Your own personality and individual taste is expressed by your collection. Collecting, or happy hunting, draws the family closer together.

The items you collect you will love more everyday you live with them. Using them will make you appreciate the work, skill and care that went into them. You will love your family heirlooms more after you start collecting.

An ideal way to display a collection of small pieces is to arrange them on a wall; there they can be grouped beautifully to add to your decorating scheme. The wall offers unlimited possibilities and they will be where all can enjoy them.

For help in using and enjoying your collection, call the Home Furniture Store. I hope this article will inspire you to begin a collection or use the one you have. Happy hunting to you and yours.—(Adv.)

District's Economic Status Poor

The First Congressional District, while it must be considered primarily a political division rather than a uniform geographic or economic division of the state, makes a rather poor showing in many ways when compared with the other 11 congressional districts of North Carolina.

Statistics compiled by the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill covering a number of items of economic importance reflect the relative position this northeastern section of the state occupies in relation to other congressional districts.

Of a dozen comparisons, the First District, of which Pitt County is a part, ranks at the bottom in six of the categories. It ranks first in only two comparative categories: in total area and in the average size of its farms.

In assessed property value, in the number of employees covered by workmen's compensation insurance, in retail sales, in the number of people employed in manufacturing, in total population and in population density, all of the other districts are ahead of Pitt County. Only in the value of its farm products does it rank near the top, and even in this category it ranks third among the 12 districts. In per capita income it ranks tenth among the 12 districts with a per capita income of $1,164.

While the 14 northeastern counties which make up the district cannot be considered exactly alike from an economic standpoint, it is significant that the area as a whole is in many ways the poorest in North Carolina. From the comparison with other districts, it should be evident that this area of the state needs to exert more energy toward enhancing its own economic position. More effort needs to be put into the program of lifting the area by its own bootstraps from the standpoint of agriculture, industry and commerce. The fact that many of the counties of the district lost rather than gained population during the past decade is at least in part attributable to the poor economic conditions compared with other areas.

Unless appreciable progress is made toward lifting the economy of the area during the current decade, we may expect the 1970 census to indicate a further loss of population.

Where To Use Talents Of 'Brother Bobby'?

Off-and-on speculation on the future of Robert Kennedy, the President-elect's brother., continues to be a matter of interest. Last week, for example, the New York Times dutifully reported he was considered as a prospective cabinet-member.

This should come as no surprise; but at the same time, prospects for an appointive post in the government for any of the Kennedy clan seems most remote.

Public attention is seldom focused on such a family as the Kennedys, in which each member displays outstanding loyalty, capabilities and single-mindedness of purpose.

Take Robert (everybody-calls-him-Bobby) Kennedy:

He managed his brother's primary campaigns and then took over guidance of the presidential campaign. He was here, there, everywhere . . . talking, planning, pushing, selecting aides for specific roles. It was a great show. The Kennedy campaign will long be remembered as one of the smoothest running, best-organized in the business. The proof of the pudding was in the winning thereof.

In other years, he was a member of the Hoover Commission team; and then served as a special counsel in the famous Teamster Union hearings that still have Jimmy Hoffa fuming. Earlier he served as a reporter in the Near East when Israel and the Arab world were fighting it out.

Those who have worked with Bobby say he has a tremendous capacity for any kind of work and planning, a great amount of drive and zeal for perfection, integrity, loyalty and similar qualities any one anywhere would want working for them. And despite his youthful appearance it is said his "no" can be as uncompromising as a Russian's.

There's no denying John Kennedy would probably like to have his able brother working on his team; but our guess is he would hesitate to give anyone an excuse to cry "nepotism."

In Bobby's case, we'd have some doubts as to applicability of the term. But there would be others without such doubts.

Ominous Aspect In Red Quarrel

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Associated Press News Analyst
Here is an ominous aspect of the Soviet-Red Chinese quarrel: It could result in World War III, and Moscow seems to be preparing for the possibility.

Soviet propaganda makes much of the term peace, but at the same time it seems to be actively conditioning the minds of people in Red-ruled lands for the possibility of a preventive war against the United States.

The suspicion is reinforced by the statement of Premier Khrushchev Wednesday to Pravda on the subject of disarmament. Historically, Communist leaders have accused others of planning what, in fact, has been in their own minds.

Khrushchev accused the West of duplicity in disarmament talks, of steadily building up nuclear weapons stockpiles and of constant provocations and spying against the U.S.S.R. All this, said Khrushchev, could enable the United States to "choose the suitable moment for dealing their blow and starting an aggression."

Taken by itself, this might not appear too menacing. But this sort of thing has been publicized time and again by Soviet propaganda, ever since last May, when Khrushchev, using the U2 plane incident as his excuse, was preparing to blow up the Paris summit conference.

Since then Khrushchev has given the impression that the appearance of a single U. S. plane or submarine in Soviet air or waters will be considered a military invasion — in a word, an aggression which could be answered with a big preventive blow.

Some Western experts express belief the Kremlin is engaged in a psychological buildup to justify a preventive attack should that, to the Kremlin's way of thinking, become necessary.

In Munich, Germany experts of the institute for study of the U.S.S.R. say they detect such a trend. Hammering propaganda for six months has been keyed to an antipathy mania, to hatred and distrust of Americans, to picturing the United States and West Germany, in that order, as real and present menaces to the Soviet population.

One method of psychological buildup, says the institute, is an attempt to reproduce in Russia the mood of World War II, though glorification of the armed forces and constant appeals for vigilance and defense readiness.

Red China insists upon the letter of Leninist dogma: That war between the two world camps must come. The Chinese say it must not be feared, that Communists must not hesitate, regardless of risks, to expand at every opportunity.

Manifestly, this worries Khrushchev, who has contended that while communism would win, there would be little left after nuclear war on either side.

Khrushchev could lose the argument and be toppled in favor of a group more receptive to the Chinese idea. Desperation could lead to that, if an entrenched hierarchy should see in the developing argument a real threat to its continued sway over the Soviet Union and the world Communist movement.

Khrushchev has played for time, and won some time in the Communist summit which began Nov. 9 in Moscow. He is still on a spot. The dissidents — Red Chinese and those agreeing with them — will watch carefully as Khrushchev approaches the new U.S. administration.

It is possible Khrushchev will win out, and 1961 will be just another nerve-racking cold war year. It is possible also that he will lose, and 1961 will be the most dangerous year of the cold war era.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SOUND IN MIND AND BODY
At the end of the seventeenth century, the British philosopher Jack Locke wrote, "A sound mind in a sound body is a short but full description of a happy state in this world. He that has these two has little more to wish for; and he that wants either of them will be little better for anything else."

It will come as a shock to some readers that Locke could postulate a "happy state" on the basis of mental and physical soundness alone. To all too many of us in the twentieth century, happiness seems to be synonymous with material possessions. We cannot picture ourselves as even content, let alone really happy, without a modern home, fairly expensive car, and a host of other accessories to living in the modern world.

Locke knew what many people living since then have discovered for themselves—that happiness cannot be achieved. And what he said in 1693 is just as true in 1960.

Within the limits of the minds and bodies which God has given us, we should all do our best to achieve this soundness, which is the only secure basis for continued happiness. "Soundness" has to do with more than mere body. We are spiritual beings also.

Not Here To Save Anyone's Face—

'Rebel' Staff Fortunate

Subject, the "Rebel," the East Carolina College literary magazine.

Not that we are going to present a fine criticism, and have the young poets, short story writers and artists forever after us (because we want friends, you know); or Ovid Pierce, their advisor, after us either.

But we can compare this magazine to a few others in its field, at other colleges in the state. Many colleges now have literary magazines, which afford a certain type of outlet for student expression. It gives what some may consider a cultural outlet.

Compared to some other magazines, the "Rebel" staff is fortunate to be able to participate so widely themselves.

In the fall issue is included an interview with Harry Golden; several pieces of poetry; some short stories; an editorial; and some fine artwork.

Linoleum cuts and woodprints creatively done have found a place here and certainly increased the impact of the magazine, as does the interview with Harry Golden, conducted by some three staff members.

In contrast with students' expression, "The Carolina Quarterly" of the University of North Carolina makes use of outside contributors, and perhaps deprives the students themselves of an experience. It deprives student readers the pleasure of reading work by their contemporaries, and is disappointing in this respect.

Compared to some publications by girls' schools, the "Rebel" el" artwork affords even more student expression. Compared to some publications, the magazine fortunately has avoided over use of poetry.

Lacking from the magazine is an essay. However, an essay is not easy to write and better to have none than a bad one.

We hope the "Rebel" will continue its student participation, and student effort. That is, perhaps, its greatest contribution.

Opinions In Brief

"A shrewd huckster who wrote a morality book on the wastefulness of big cars with tailfins has made enough money to buy a big car with tailfins, while another who wrote a book about how to get rich has gone into bankruptcy." — Charleston (S.C.) News and Courier.

"Some 14 million children will be added to the elementary and high school population by 1980. The final outcome between freedom and totalitarianism will most likely be decided by the quality of education these children receive, not how many rockets and nuclear warheads they inherit." — Leesburg (Fla.) # Other Editors Saying . . . Spanking Re-Discovered

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
As early as 400 years before Christ lived and taught, man was smart enough to figure this out:

"He that spareth his rod hateth his son; but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes."

That, of course, is the 24th verse of the 13 chapter of Proverbs. Compiled in its present form no later than 400 B.C., Proverbs is one of the Old Testament's three wisdom books. Its storehouse of advice is attributed to Solomon, but the book as a whole reflects the best of a long succession of sages and the Hebrew concept of human nature.

Now, praise be, Space Age man—in his infinite thirst for knowledge — has come up with the idea that it's scientifically and sociologically sound to spank our children.

As is often the case, man's thinking has run full cycle. From wise old Solomon, the child-punishment pendulum has swung far to the right, far to the left and back again to center.

Perhaps the re-discovery of spanking by a University of our times. Perhaps we really are our times. Perhaps we really are turning again to the basic problems, and no longer attempting to explain everything away in terms of our background in the natural and physical sciences.

At any rate, this professor Dr. A.H. Chapman at the University of Kansas, gets right to the heart of the matter. Dr. Chapman says: "If your child deserves a spanking, go right ahead and give it to him."

But, the self-appointed expert quickly adds, spank provided you know how and when to administer the punishment—and only when less drastic measures fail.

To be effective, according to Chapman, "a spanking should be administered on the bare bottom with a short hard object, such as a hair brush."

His suggested technique: Turn the child over one knee, using the other leg to clamp down his struggling legs. One hand bends the head down with firm pressure on the neck while the other delivers the blows.

The "spanking guide" is contained in an article by Dr. Chapman in GP Magazine, a publication for family doctors. The magazine called the study part of an inclusive disciplinary program recommended to distraught parents.

We assume the good doctor incorporated his training and experience in his "spanking guide." We venture to add, however, that instead of conducting complicated scientific research, he simply reread the Books of Proverbs — and carefully.

On the other hand, he might have reached his conclusions by recalling some painful experiences in his own childhood, and by analyzing those trips to the woodshed by many of us.

Strangeness Of Our Recession

By ELMER ROESSNER
Our recession and the strangeness of it all persists.

There is a recession, no doubt; industrial expansion, buying for inventory and employment have slowed down.

Nevertheless, retail sales have held up and promise to go higher—even higher than a year ago—in the Christmas spurge. Employment is picking up a bit, although only temporarily, with Christmas jobs. And income keeps rising.

A recession in which wages, business and professional returns and total payments kept on rising could happen only in America.

And it is happening. The total personal income in the United States, adjusted for seasonal differences at annual rates, was $409 billion in October, compared with $408 billion in September and $384.3 billion in October, 1959. Those are Commerce Department figures.

The data show that October wage and salary earnings were at annual rates of $25.2 billion in October, $200,000,000 more than in September and at a rate of more than $17 billion over a year ago. What a recession!

Business and professional income was slightly higher — a mere billion or so above a year ago. Farm income was at a rate of $12.1 billion, compared with $10.1 billion a year ago, which may explain the vote in the farm states.

Despite the long faces corporations have been wearing, dividends rose from rates of $13.8 billion in October, 1959 to $14.8 billion in October, 1960. Rental income remained unchanged. Personal interest income rose from $24.2 billion to $27.6 billion. Transfer payments, consisting of Social Security, unemployment and other benefits and pensions, rose from rates of $27.4 billion to $30 billion in the year.

WHY THE RISES?
There are some explanations to the fact that income appears to be rising during what has been characterized as a recession.

One is the fact that, despite promises and statements on high, inflation has persisted. Once the gains are discounted by the purchasing power of the dollar, they are considerably lessened.

Another is the increase in the work force as the war babies join the working force. We have seen both employment and unemployment rising together. That means total wages are rising as well as total "transfer payments."

A third is that, for political exigencies, the recession had

Elector System History

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A reader from Milwaukee writes: "I would like to know about the 'electoral' system. I do not think it fair, as far as I understand it, and no one seems to know what it is, etc. As I recall it was never explained in School."

More important than that this reader does not know about the electoral system is that she does not recall that it was explained at school. What, of worth, was taught at this school? It used to be that civics was a required subject in the elementary grades. It used to be that every child was taught American history and how the American Government evolved. How can we expect to have an intelligent citizenry if it does not know the structure of its own government?

The electoral system is a method of selecting the President which has continuously been used since 1789.

Those who wrote the Constitution did not believe in democracy. They feared the illiterate; they did not trust the mass. They set up a system of checks and balances not only to safeguard the Republic from the tyranny of one man but from the tyranny of the majority. They therefore arranged it that Senators should be elected by state legislatures rather than by the people. This was changed by the 17th Amendment adopted in 1913. They arranged that the President should be chosen by the states through electors. This system continues to this day. These days the people also vote for the President and Vice President but their votes only count indirectly. According to the Constitution no one has yet been elected President of the United States. That has still to be done. The people have voted for electors who, under the Constitution, may select whomsoever they choose but who, under state laws, are committed in most states, to the candidates nominated by their party. In Mississippi and Alabama, for instance, some of the electors are committed to no one.

Even if Vice President Nixon were to gain a majority of the popular vote but if he did not have a majority of the Electoral College, he would not be elected. The popular vote does not count. My correspondent might say that if he had the majority of the popular vote, how could he fail to win the majority of the electoral vote? The answer is simple arithmetic: In the Electoral College, the winner has all the votes. Say that Kennedy won New York State by one popular vote, he would get the entire 45 electoral votes. So it would be over the whole United States except Mississippi and Alabama.

The Electoral College no longer has any meaning. The electors are usually large contributors to campaign funds and politicians who regard this as an honor and dignity and a proper reward for their services. This is a word that has lost all meaning in this era of linguistic anarchy. Specifically this is a representative republic as the Constitution provides for it to be. The New England Town Meeting was and is a democracy in which all who pay a tax may have a voice. The pure democracy does not exist anywhere.

Americans these days speak of this country as a democracy. This is a word that has lost all meaning in this era of linguistic anarchy. Specifically this is a representative republic as the Constitution provides for it to be. The New England Town Meeting was and is a democracy in which all who pay a tax may have a voice. The pure democracy does not exist anywhere.

Changes have occurred in America since the Constitution was adopted. We have gone through the Industrial Revolution, the Agricultural Revolution, the expansion of territory from coast to coast, the explosion of population and the assimilation of some 90 races of mankind into one people. These changes have altered our people in the sense that their thinking does not have the same content as the Founding Fathers. The changes in our thinking are affected by our general lack of knowledge of British and American history and the forces which created this nation. These changes are a fact.

It is the tendency among this

ECC Nudges Past Pfeiffer, 71-67.

MEISENHEIMER — East Carolina's cage machinery sputtered badly at times last night in experiencing the opening night jitters but was able to cling to a small lead in the second half and turn back stubborn Pfeiffer 71-67. It was the season opener for both teams and the North State debut for Pfeiffer.

East Carolina swings over to Guilford College tonight for its second road battle of the young season. Pfeiffer is also in action again, meeting Catawba, a freshman center Bill Otte, a 6-6 220 pounder, and junior forward Charlie Lewis came through in the clutch last night to prevent what could have been a startling upset in the season opener.

Otte, a big man under both boards, came off the bench early in the first half and performed like a veteran to lead an East Carolina comeback that eventually produced a 71-67 victory.

The Hawthorne, New Jersey, native bucketed 18 points for game honors. Three other Bucs chalked up double figures. Don Smith was second in line with 16 points, Cotton Clayton netted 14 and Charlie Lewis had 13.

Starting off slow, East Carolina found itself trailing an improved Pfeiffer outfit for most of the first half.

Charlie Lewis tossed in a quick field goal and added two free tosses just prior to the halftime buzzer, sending East Carolina ahead at intermission, 35-32.

East Carolina opened the gap early in the second half on the shooting of Don Smith and Cotton Clayton, but could never pull away and put the game out of reach.

Coach Earl Smith's club led as much as ten points in the final half but with two minutes remaining, Pfeiffer had cut the gap to five points, 70-66.

LOOSE BALL—A mad scramble takes place above as an Edenton ball carrier became unglued from the pigskin. The Aces recovered the fumble and went on to smack Wallace-Rose Hill 32-0 last night in College Stadium. They advance to the state finals next Friday.

Edenton Aces Bowl Over Wallace In 2-A Playoffs

COLLEGE STADIUM — Edenton's championship-bound Aces whipped together its bruising attack in the second half here last night to all but run Wallace-Rose Hill out of the stadium, 32-0.

The victory, which wasn't decided until the second half, gave Edenton a perfect 12-0 record and the Eastern championship. The Aces hope to gain the state title next Friday in a battle with western champion, Hanes High of Winston-Salem.

Halfback Jerry Tolley and fullback Bubba Hopkins, as usual, were the backfield standouts for Edenton.

Halfback Tolley broke the scoreless ice with a 41 yard sprint in the first quarter, climaxing a 52 yard drive, and raced 88 yards for a touchdown in the final period.

Hopkins, the 190 pound fullback, cracked for a 11 yard touchdown in the third period and rumbled 37 yards in the final period.

Tolley's first quarter score was the first wound for the inspired single-wing attack of Wallace-Rose Hill.

The Bulldogs had contained Edenton's high-voltage offense most of the first period and made one deep penetration of its own.

Paced by the running of Sonny Shelton and Jimmy King, Wallace moved from its own 37 to the Edenton 21 in the first period. But a pass interception by Tolley on the eight thwarted the drive.

From the eight, Tolley and crew moved on land and through the air, setting the stage for Tolley's 41 yard dash. Hopkins bulled off tackle for the extra point.

Edenton had a chance to add to its margin late in the second period when Tolley picked a King fumble out of the air and raced from the Wallace 36 to the five. A line plunge by Hopkins picked up four more yards. Carroll Forehand scored from the one but a holding penalty set the Aces back to the 16, nullifying the score.

Two passes failed and Wallace's King intercepted the third toss on the one yard line, killing the threat.

A fumble by Wallace's Edgar Warren on the 12 set up Edenton's second score early in the second half. Tolley carried on first down to inches short of the six-pointer and Forehand sneaked it over.

The winners thundered 71 yards in the late minutes of the third period for their third score. Hopkins found daylight from the 11 yard line. Forehand passed to Fred Britton for the extra point.

An intercepted pass by Britton on the Wallace 37 led to another score. This time, Hopkins hit pay dirt on the first play.

Tolley added the final marker, in the fourth period when he raced straight up the middle and danced 88 yards for a touchdown.

The extra point failed but the Aces had maintained their machine-like scoring record, had strengthened their defensive mark, and were on the way for the state playoff finals.

Layne Jorgensen Named To Play In Shrine Bowl

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Gus Purcell, coach at Charlotte's Myers Park High, has been named to replace Rockingham Coach Bill Eustler as head coach of the North Carolina Shrine Bowl squad.

Eustler had to withdraw when his team won the Eastern division Class 3-A title Friday night and moves into the state finals against Brevard next Friday night.

Purcell, a former University of North Carolina player, was the most successful coaches, was the most important of several changes that had to be made because of the various state playoff games.

Because of the playoffs, the Tar Heel squad lost ends A. W. McGee of Rockingham and Joe White of Winston-Salem Reynolds; halfback Sonny Odom of Greensboro Senior, halfback Brandley Owen of Brevard, and quarterback Ron Tutthill of Rockingham.

The Shrine committee, feeling hastily Friday night, named ends Layne Jorgensen of Greenville and Jim Webb of Hendersonville, quarterback Billy Cline of Valdese, and halfbacks Gene Kennerly of Concord and Butch Anderson of Morganton to replace the players who had to withdraw.

Purcell, a former University of North Carolina player, was named head coach at Myers Park when football was installed there in 1951. He had losing seasons his first two years, but since then has been a winner.

His 1960 team won eight, lost one and tied one and was eliminated in the Western 4-A playoffs by arch-rival Charlotte Garinger. His 1957 team, headed by Ray Farris, present North Carolina quarterback, won 10 lost two and tied 11. Purcell's overall record is 55-31-11.

LR Bears Meet N. Michigan

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Coach Clarence Stasavich's Lenoir Rhyne Bears will play hosts here next Saturday to Northern Michigan College in the Eastern NAIA football playoffs.

This was announced Friday night by NAIA officials, who said Humboldt State College of California will entertain Whitworth College of Spokane, Wash., in the Western Division playoffs.

The two winners will play the title game in the Holiday Bowl at St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 10. Lenoir Rhyne played in the Holiday Bowl last year, losing to Texas A & I College, 20-7.

Lenoir Rhyne finished first and Humboldt of Arcata, Calif., second in this year's NAIA race. Whitworth ranked fourth in the NAIA final poll and Northern Michigan, with an 8-1 record, was ranked 11th.

Stasavich's Bears, undefeated this year for the fifth time since 1952, won their sixth North State Conference title Thanksgiving Day by drubbing Catawba 56-6. Humboldt State completed its season by beating Lewis and Clark College of Portland, Ore., 34-0.

This will be Lenoir Rhyne's second straight year as host to the Eastern playoffs. Last year the Bears beat Southern Connecticut here 47-20 to set up their Holiday Bowl trip.

In today's consolation game, Emory and Henry played Camp Lejeune, followed by the Georgetown-Tech championship contest.

Georgetown received a 24-point performance by Dick Vories but Lejeune's John Sullivan was the night's high scorer with 34.

Haas, Pott Lead In Mobile Play

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Freddie Haas and Johnny Pott, Louisiana State University golf stars of 20 years ago, shared a shaky lead today at the start of the third round in the Mobile Open tournament.

Haas, veteran New Orleans pro who will be 45 in January, started the round with a 66-68-134 card 10 under par.

Pott, 25-year-old Shreveport, La., player, also was at 134 with 68-66.

Both were pressed by Arnold Palmer, Ligonier, Pa., and Jon Glavin, Gladwyne, Pa. Glavin, tied with Haas for the lead after the first round, now has a 66-69-135.

Palmer will become pro golf's all-time money winner for one year if he can cop one of the first three prizes in the $15,000 meet. He needs $1,119.65 to pass Ted Kroll's 1956 mark of $72,835 in earnings. The three finishers here get $2,000, $1,500 and $1,200 respectively.

Last Big Weekend For College Football Teams

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The college football season, 1960 version, runs its course—except for a few stragglers next week—today with the nationally televised Army-Navy game in Philadelphia the top attraction.

But there were other important games scheduled around the country, including:

1. Mississippi-Mississippi State, Ole Miss 8-0-1 is shooting for the national championship. Third in the current Associated Press poll behind Minnesota and Iowa, both of which have finished operations. The Rebs are hoping to go to the top with an emphatic triumph over & at.

A victory also would give them the Southeastern Conference title and a trip to the Sugar Bowl.

2. Alabama-Auburn. "Bama 6-1-1 is being watched by the Bluebonnet Bowl as a possible opponent for Texas. A good performance would clinch the bid. Incidentally, the Crimson Tide wins and Mississippi happens to lose, the SEC title goes to Florida. If Ole Miss loses, Auburn could win the title by beating Alabama.

3. Rice-Baylor. A Rice victory would enable the Owls to finish in a tie with Arkansas for the Southwest Conference Championship and almost certainly a bid to a major bowl. Baylor, like Rice 7-2-over-all, already is in the Gator Bowl.

4. New Mexico State-Texas Western. On the surface, this would hardly appear particularly important, but New Mexico State is the only major team with a game remaining on its schedule that is unbeaten and untied. A victory would give State, the Border Conference championship, a 10-0 record for the year and a winning streak of 14 straight.

Yale is the only other major school with an unsullied mark, and the Elis have finished their reason as champions of the Ivy League.

The Army-Navy game will be played before the usual capacity throng of 100,000 in Philadelphia Stadium and will be seen on television, starting at 1:30 EST ABC-TV.

Navy is ranked No. 7 in the AP poll, and shows an 8-2 record. Army is 6-2-1.

Army's big problem is to stop 5-8 Joe Bellino, Navy's All-American candidate. Last year, the Cadets couldn't do a thing with him and he scored three touchdowns in Navy's 43-12 victory.

He has been on a rampage all this year. Statistically, he has scored 104 points, No. 2 in the country, has rushed for 749 yards, passed for two touchdowns and quick-kicked for a 47.1 average.

Army's attack is nothing to be sneezed at. The Cadets rank No. 9 offensively in the country, and have a walk of a passer in Tom Blanda who has gained 1,007 yards passing, including eight touchdowns.

A Navy victory would send the Cotton and Orange Bowl bigwigs rushing in with contracts. The Middles probably would take one. The word from the Army camp is that if the Cadets win, they will reverse their long standing policy and accept a bowl bid.

Eppes' Watson Named All-State

Sturdy Freddy Watson, the 180 quarterback who led Eppees High to a 7-2 record this fall, was named to the All-State roster released yesterday.

Watson, the Bulldog passing whiz and outstanding field general, was the top vote-getter in Eastern North Carolina.

With several college scouts not after his football skills, Watson will leave Greenville Sunday for Durham and North Carolina College where he will train for the Shriners Game which will be played in Greensboro December 3.

According to Eppees coach Percy Daniels, Watson accounted for 482 yards passing with 96 completions in 122 attempts. Only four of his pitches were intercepted.

"He is one of the best ball players I have coached," stated Daniels yesterday. "Besides being an excellent football player, he is an excellent student. He was an easy boy to coach."

Tarheel Death Toll Climbs To Twelve

Additional traffic victims swelled to at least 12 the number of persons who died by violence thus far during the five-day Thanksgiving holiday period.

At least eight of the deaths resulted from street and highway accidents.

A Troy teenager was killed and two companions injured Friday night when the car they were in went out of control and turned over several times on N. C. 101 near Mount Gleason. He was identified as Larry Henderson, 15. Injured were Jimmy Saunders, 17, and Gerald Hilliard, 18, both of Troy.

A freak accident Friday killed a 64-year-old Charlotte woman, Mrs. J. C. Spurlin. Her 12-year-old grandson was playing with the controls of a car when the vehicle leaped forward, knocked Mrs. Spurlin through a garage door and crushed her against a second car.

A youth hospitalized as a result of an accident Thanksgiving night died Friday at a Whiteville hospital. He was Jerry Boswell, 17, of Whiteville, fatally injured in a collision in Columbus County.

Five persons died earlier in the holiday period in separate traffic mishaps. A light airplane crash near Warrenton claimed three lives Wednesday night and a hunting accident claimed another.

W. Berlin Mayor Openly Admits His Unwed Birth

HANOVER, Germany (AP) — West Berlin's Mayor Willy Brandt openly acknowledged Friday that he was born out of wedlock in denouncing what he called a "dirty" whispering campaign against him.

Brandt is the Social Democratic party's candidate for chancellor of West Germany to oppose Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in next year's election.

Brandt mentioned his "illegitimate birth and exile in Norway during the Nazi era as factors in the 'dirty broth which is being brewed.' He brought the issue into the open in a speech before wildly cheering Socialist delegates who chose him to lead the party against Adenauer's Christian Democrats.

Some Germans reproach Brandt for taking Norwegian citizenship during the war and note that he returned to Berlin after the war as a member of a Norwegian military unit.

Brandt commented: "I am proud of my apprenticeship and journeyman years in the Scandinavia North. They brought me experiences which I could hardly foresee when I had to leave my homeland at the age of 19. From these years I brought back not only treasured friendships but also insights into how one can transform a state strictly run on laws into a true home of the people."

Brandt, who was born Herbert Karl Frahm and took the name Willy Brandt in Norway, further said: "It is true that only in the last 28 years have I been named Willy Brandt. I have made no secret of it. As journalist and writer I had made my own name in all these years and did not want to run away from it."

The warrant against Panayotidis was taken out by Lee Self, brother of the girl. Self said he met the youth in school in North Carolina about three years ago.

An Atlanta policewoman and a detective said Panayotidis told them he made the calls.

Judge J. Wilson Parker told the youth: "I'm sorry about you being a foreigner and maybe you don't understand our laws, but you can't go around threatening somebody's life, regardless of your motive."

Court officials said a hold order has been placed on the youth by the U.S. Immigration Service office here. Panayotidis is not attending school now but has been rooming with four boys who are in pharmacy school.

Greenville Growth Points To Possibilities Of Future

What makes a city?

Will Greenville, after many years of progress, change its "face" and turn from the friendly place it is today into a hustling, bustling center of trade and commerce like Philadelphia, Richmond or Toledo?

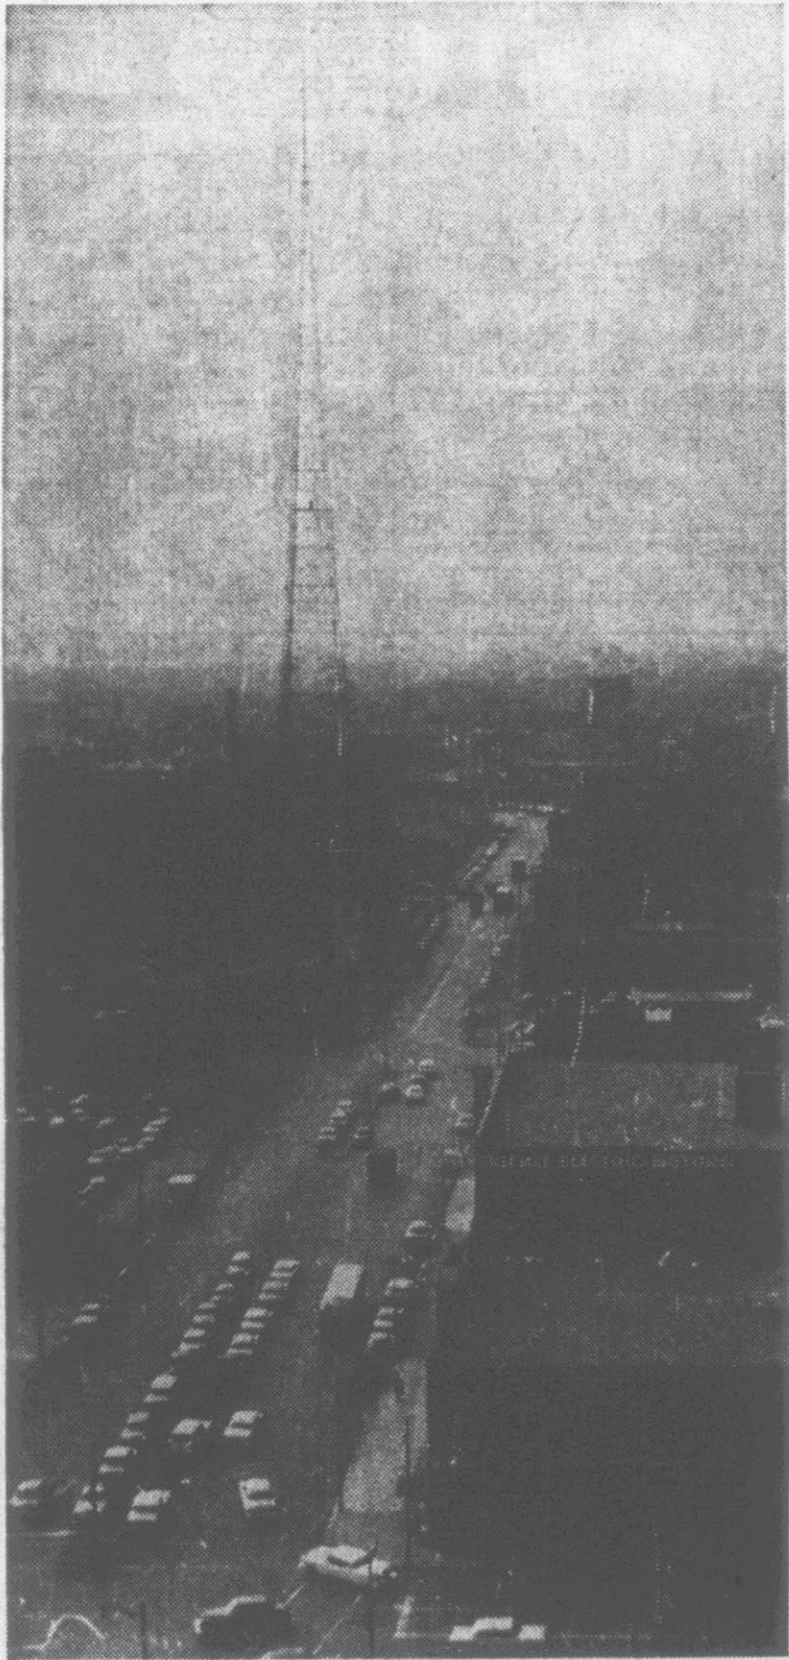

Today there is great contrast . . . between our population of 23,000 and Philadelphia's over-three-million; between Toledo's bright and wide streets; or Richmond's historic past.

We are growing, and will continue to grow . . . but how far?

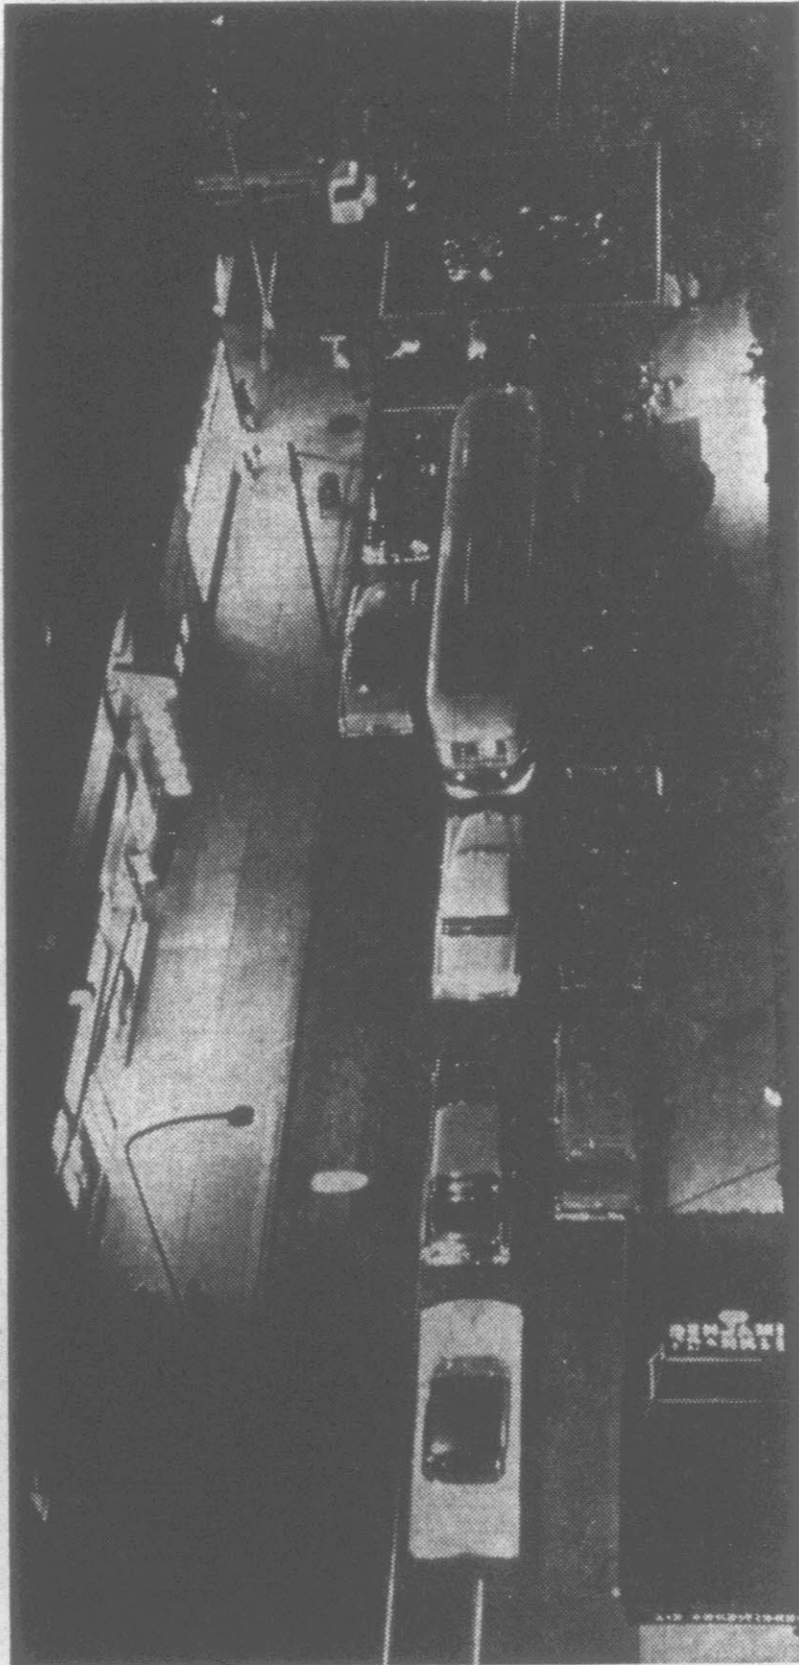

Will our "dirty little town on the Tar" which George Washington spoke of, someday equal the size of Richmond.

It would truly be interesting to return a century from now and see how much progress has been made.

Greenville And Pitt Among Three State Pilot Centers

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

Integrated with the normal educational program of the Greenville and Pitt County schools this year is a program geared to correlate with the study of the public school education of exceptionally talented children.

The program is being worked out in conjunction with the North Carolina Commission to Study the Public School Education of Exceptionally Talented Children.

Throughout this state, there are three "pilot centers" with such programs. Greenville and Pitt County are one. The other two are Winston-Salem, and Hendersonville and Henderson County.

In the program for the exceptionally talented child, many factors are taken into consideration before the student is put in the program, according to Dr. Frank Scott of East Carolina College, eastern coordinator of the commission.

It must be emphasized that all the bright children are NOT included in this program, and it must be further emphasized that, even though the program is supposed to be for the gifted, it does not necessarily mean that all the students in the present program are gifted.

As a matter of fact, the program is being carried out in a few selected spots, not county-wide.

Where Located
In Pitt County, it is being carried out on the basis of the itinerant teacher idea. Thomas Strickland was hired by the Pitt County school system this year to travel from one school to another, and to work in certain areas with the exceptionally talented students. In the county system, Arthur Alford, supervisor, is in charge of the program.

Classes in science and mathematics are taught in the Ayden School, and classes in science are taught in the Farmville School. Classes are limited to the following levels in Ayden: eighth grade science, eighth grade math, sixth and seventh grade science, and fourth and fifth grade science, Dr. Scott explained.

In Farmville, classes are taught in eighth grade science, sixth grade science and fifth grade science. Strickland teaches in Ayden on Tuesdays and Thursdays and in Farmville on Mondays and Wednesdays, Dr. Scott said.

"In Greenville we have a special program. We are trying an ungraded primary at Elmhurst school," Dr. Scott explained. The ungraded primary is operated on eight levels which envelope three years, or what you normally consider the first, second and third grade years. A student goes through the first seven levels as rapidly as he completes this work. If the three years is not up, the student is placed on an enrichment level, and then enters the fourth grade at the usual time with other students, Dr. Scott explained.

Another part of the program in Greenville occurs at the seventh grade level. Here students are grouped according to their achievement, ability, emotional maturity and other factors. The exceptional students are placed in an advanced section of the seventh grade, taught by Mrs. Annette Plyler. Mrs. Ellen Carroll, director, Greenville City Schools, directs the program in Greenville.

Grouping in this program is very flexible, Dr. Scott emphasized. The child can move about freely, according to what seems best for his welfare. For example, if a student is included in the program and is not happy, he is not made to stay.

The welfare of the child comes first, according to Dr. Scott. The exceptionally talented child in the program. It should be noted that the public school enrollment for Greenville is over 5,000 and the enrollment for the county schools is over 13,000, for a total of approximately 18,000 students attending public schools in both city and county.

Greenville and Pitt County are a good location for the program since they are a rural area of North Carolina, it has been pointed out.

Results of the studies conducted in the pilot centers into the education of the exceptionally talented child will be the bases of recommendations to the legislature.

Financing
Funds for the study are provided on a matching basis. The N.C. General Assembly provided that the state gives about $11,000 and the city and county match the amount. The appropriation was made for one year, the year currently in session.

Staff of the Commission to Study the Public School Education of Exceptionally Talented Children include C.D. Killian of Western Carolina College, executive officer; Charles E. Bish, general consultant; H.H. Bixler, research director; and C. Douglas Carter, field director.

Dr. Scott said principally the teachers and others are trying to "play down" the prestige of the program now. It should be noted that the public school enrollment for Greenville is over 5,000 and the enrollment for the county schools is over 13,000, for a total of approximately 18,000 students attending public schools in both city and county.

Holiday Buying Is Colorfully Begun; Merchants Hopeful

This Week in Business and Finance
By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The Christmas buying season got off to a colorful start this week amid high hopes by merchants that the dollars spent will add up to a new record.

The National Retail Merchants Association predicted that dollar volume will run two per cent ahead of the all-time high 1959 total.

Although there are spotty segments in the economy which have brought on high unemployment, the outlook appears better than last year when the steel strike threw hundreds of thousands out of work.

The Christmas season, as always, will tell the story of what kind of a year 1960 is for the retailing industry. The storekeepers expect the period between now and Dec. 25 to account for 17 to 20 per cent of the year's sales.

The week before Thanksgiving Day wasn't a very good one for the stores. Dollar volume was unchanged to four per cent below the corresponding percentage of last year. Merchants blamed unusually warm weather for holding back early Christmas buying.

The consumer suffered a blow where it hurts—in the pocketbook. Living costs rose to a new high in October. The government's price index advanced four-tenths of one per cent to 127.3 per cent of the 1927-49 average.

The increase was the largest since last April. Nearly half of it was due to higher food prices.

And food prices are still going up. Wholesale food costs, as measured by the Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. index, rose to a new 1960 high this week for the third consecutive week.

The Thanksgiving holiday put a crimp in business activity, particularly in the steel and automobile industries, where some plants closed down for the entire weekend.

Steel output declined to 47.5 per cent of capacity from 51.6 per cent the previous week. The trade publication, Iron Age, predicted that steel operations probably will drop next month to the year's lowest level.

The automobile industry made its six-millionth car of the year as it turned out an estimated 116,000 passenger units this week. The previous week's total was 148,866. Production this year is expected to total about 6.5 million.

Pirestone Tire & Rubber Co. had good news for motorists, announcing a cut of $1 to $4 in the prices of passenger car tires.

The Commerce Department reported that the factory output of manufacturing firms has not shown a pickup of seasonal proportions so far this fall. It added that there is no indication of a change in the flow of new orders.

Shipments of major appliances in October dropped to the lowest level of the year. Even with the Christmas season at hand, manufacturers weren't optimistic about the chances of a major pickup.

New orders for machine tools in October declined for the second month in a row. The total of $35.55 million compared with $42.15 million in September and $43.6 million in October 1959.

In its first business forecast for 1961, the government indicated it expected the economy to remain at about the levels of this year—described by many as a high plateau.

Sales on the New York Stock Exchange this week totaled 12,709,925 shares, compared with last week's 13,968,844. Bond sales on the exchange came to $21,545,000, par value, this week against the previous week's $24,710,700.

Briefly around the business scene: The Central Federal Savings and Loan Association of Long Beach, N.Y., is paying kids one cent each for Kennedy and Nixon buttons if they open an account; limit is $2 for 200 buttons... International Harvester Co. is entering the compact car field with an "all-purpose" vehicle called "Scout"... New Jersey is photographing and fingerprinting 15,000 securities salesmen under a new law... Railroads received increases estimated at $34.8 million yearly for carrying mail... The 1,662,945 holders of Christmas Club accounts in savings banks will have $165 million to spend.

The Social Security tax you pay gives you three different kinds of protection: retirement benefits, survivors' benefits and disability benefits.

Dutch To Submit To UN's Scrutiny

THE HAGUE (AP)—The Netherlands and Malaya in a joint communique Friday night announced "the Dutch government is willing to subject its policy in Dutch New Guinea to the scrutiny and judgment of the United Nations."

Indonesia contends the Dutch-ruled part of New Guinea belongs to Indonesia under the Dutch grant of independence to their East Indies colonies a decade ago. The Dutch contend otherwise, and the problem is a perennial at the United Nations.

The 1960 Christmas Seal was designed by Philip Richard Costigan to help in the fight against TB. Born in England, Mr. Costigan now resides in Pennsylvania.

Kennedy Birth Caps Banner Baby Annum

WASHINGTON (AP)—The birth of a son Friday to President-elect and Mrs. John F. Kennedy caps a banner year for the arrivals of news-making male babies in five capitals of the world.

Princes were born in England, Japan, Belgium and Iran in 1960. Kennedy had talked like he was counting on a son. Last September he told campaign crowds, "my wife is at home having a baby, a boy, in November."

But to the Shah of Iran, who was expecting a family addition earlier this year, the question of whether the baby would be a boy or a girl was of vital importance. Iran had been waiting since the shah's first marriage in 1941 for a royal son to carry on the monarchy.

The Shah finally got a male heir on Oct. 31—after three marriages. His second wife, Soraya, was beautiful and devoted. But after eight years of marriage, he reluctantly divorced her because they had no male heir. The same consideration figured in his earlier divorce.

Queen Elizabeth II of England and Princess Michiko of Japan delighted subjects with baby princes. They arrived less than a week apart.

Prince Andrew was the first child born to a ruling British monarch since Queen Victoria's reign. He replaced his 9-year-old sister Anne as second in line to the crown. Their brother, Prince Charles, is heir apparent. But second sons have become king of England twice in this century.

Four days later in Tokyo, rising sun flags waved over crowds shouting "banzai!" (May you live 1,000 years) as jubilant Japanese celebrated the birth of Emperor Hirohito's first titled grandson. Only males may ascend the chrysanthemum throne.

Crown Prince Akihito, observing ancient rites, didn't go to the hospital until after his son was born. He arrived there after pageantry in which the 54-year-old Prince Hiro was given a warrior's sword as a symbol of his duty to defend the state.

Another 1960 prince was born in Brussels April 15 to old Princess Paola, 22, and Prince Albert of Liege. The Belgian princeling, Philippe Leopold Louis Marie, is second in line to succeed King Baudouin.

Pro-Castro Mob Riots In Caracas

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Demonstrators shouting pro-Castro and anti-government slogans rioted in downtown Caracas Friday night and finally were dispersed by tear gas.

No serious injuries were reported but police said considerable damage was done. Tear gas was used when the agitators attempted to set fire to a bus.

A hard core of about 30 leftists finally barricaded themselves in a high school building from which they threw rocks and Molotov cocktails before they were scattered.

The outbreak coincided with a strike which tied up telephone service. The unionists ignored government efforts to arbitrate wage differences. National guardsmen took over telephone installations.

The demonstrators began assembling early in the evening, shouting against President Romulo Betancourt and acclaiming two Cuban students ordered deported for what the government called improper conduct.

Soviet Patriarch Visiting In Egypt

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP)—Patriarch Alexius of the Russian Orthodox Church arrived here Friday by plane for a four-day visit, accompanied by a group of Russian church dignitaries. The 83-year-old churchman will visit Orthodox churches and schools and confer with members of the Orthodox community.

Robbed Old Blind On Thanksgiving

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A Thanksgiving thief stole several hundred dollars worth of jewelry from 35 elderly blind people, leaving a bleak outlook for Christmas. The thief took copper, silver and aluminum items made in the Lighthouse For The Blind's hobby shop, which were to be sold to raise Christmas money.

JAMES KEENE'S New Historical Novel IRON MAN, IRON HORSE

CHAPTER 26 Ben Holliday still had his brother's check, which he cashed, then added two hundred dollars of his own money. When the whole thing was deposited, he composed a message. Adam Holliday Fischer Bldg. Chicago, Illinois Buy five hundred M-P stock in my name. I urge you to beg, borrow, or steal to buy all you can. Lovell discharged this date. Need you here on important legal matters. Can you come? Ben As he walked back to the hotel, he considered this move. Midland-Pacific had not moved on the market for six months, and he was certain that any buying would cause a flurry of interest. And if Adam could come through with some money of his own, it might inspire others to invest. Then the stock would take a jump in price and some bull would hop in and hope to buy cheap and sell high. But Holliday didn't care about that. He just wanted to force the price up to where Singer's present offer would be laughable. He felt good enough to smile, and when he stepped inside his room, Jim Bender looked up from the casino game he had going with Sergeant DuJoise. "For a man who's been in a fight, you seem happy about it," Bender said dryly. "I got licked," Holliday said. He wet a cloth and held it to the bruises on his face. "I was smiling about something else. Jim are you much of a horse trader?" "Solely good. Why?" "Suppose your horse had a horse that was a little wild broke, and you wanted to get top price, or a little better. How would you go about it?" "There's nothin' like biddin' to raise a price," Bender said. "Especially when a man thinks he's getting something for nothing." "The stock market works the same way," Holliday said. "If I can get up a little buying of Midland-Pacific stock, I think I can raise the market price." "What good's that doin' to do you?" "The higher the stock goes, the more expensive it's going to be for Singer to buy me out. He pulled a chair around and said, "Look, I got a cattle train into Dodge, didn't I? The newspapers will pick that up, and my father will blow it around, and when the market opens tomorrow and a thousand shares are picked up, it'll make the investors wonder if something isn't about to be a cash your back." Bender said, "Can't you see that Singer and the others only shipped with you because they want the top price for their beef? Hell, once their range is clean, they'll throw that contract in your face and leave you sitting there, extended to the limit. You need them, Ben. If they don't ship on your line, you go broke." "That's the core of the whole mess, isn't it? Well, Jim, I'm going to make them see that the shoe's on the other foot. They need me!" "Cattle have always been driven to market," Bender said. "Sure it's expensive and it takes time, but that's an out you can't close off." He sighed and gave up the card game. "Who do you know that will take a gamble?" Ben asked. "How much of a gamble?" "Long odds against winning, but if we get lucky, you'd make a small fortune." He painted a clear picture for Jim Bender. "I just wired my brother to buy five hundred dollars' worth of Modland stock. It'll open an eye or two, but not enough. I need a thousand more, or two thousand. With that much I could push the market value up." "A man could lose his shirt puttin' his money in your railroad." "Yes, and he could win the coat and pants and all the rest," Ben said. Then he slapped his side and turned away. "Do I sound like I'm crookin' at straws, Jim? Well I am. I've got a good roadbed and good rolling stock, if I could only get the blasted wheels to turn." "Evidently Singer thinks he can," DuJoise said. Holliday glanced at him, then laughed. "For what he wants to pay for the line, he could pull up the rails and ties, sell them along with the equipment, and make three hundred per cent profit. Then he could sell the right of way and alternate sections for more profit." Someone knocked, and Holliday opened the door. A corporal stood there, then came to attention. "Which of you is Mr. Holliday?" "I am." "The colonel sends his compliments, sir, and asks you to call at Fort Dodge at your convenience." "All right, corporal. Within the hour." He closed the door and turned to Bender. "I want to be out of this town by sundown. Tell the engineer, and go downstairs and tell Anna Neubauer and her father they can go back in the caboose." Bender grinned. "It'll mean a refund on their ticket." "Go to blazes," Holliday said. "Besides, Neubauer has a pass." He went down and through the lobby and hired a rig at the livery for his drive to Fort Dodge. The seamy stopped him and Holliday gave his name, then was passed on to the sergeant of the guard who detailed a trooper to escort him to headquarters. Colonel Ridgeway, like Dawson of Fort Elliot, was a string bean, with a lot of worry lines on his forehead, and prematurely gray hair. He saw that Holliday had a comfortable chair, and a good cigar, then said, "The first train north was quite an event, I've been waiting a long time to see it. Newer thought I would, though." "A train is just a train, Colonel, and they go where the tracks point. However, I've had a lot of trouble about that. Especially with Indians and Texans." "There's going to be some dancing and painting over this one," Ridgeway said. "What does the railroad intend to do about it?" "Dump it in Colonel Dawson's lap," Holliday said. "Every man to his job, sir. Ours is railroadin'." "A dispatch by courier from Dawson informed me that your attitude was very frank on the subject. All right, Mr. Holliday. I can't really quibble the point. But if the army is going to fight Indians for you, we're also going to use your railroad. I have a hundred and thirty cavalry mounts I want taken to Fort Elliot. When can they be loaded?" "They'd better be loaded by sundown," Holliday said. "The train leaves then, dragging a string of empties." "Not all empties," Ridgeway said. "How large a detail do you want to accompany the horses? Fifty men?" "One," Ben said. "He can ride to Elliot when we get to the closest point. The railroad will hold the horses in the cars until a detail from Fort Elliot arrives." "I'll have the quartermaster officer prepare the freight waybills and bring them to the train," Ridgeway said. They shook hands in parting. Holliday drove back to town. Jim Bender has news for Holliday: "The Indians are camped out on the prairie and it don't look good!" Continue the story Monday.

Laos Aid To Arrive Soon

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Soviet Charge d'Affaires Anatoly Ratanov said today the first shipment of Soviet aid to Laos should reach Vientiane by air sometime next week. Ratanov declined to disclose the cargo but Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma said Wednesday the first shipment would be gasoline. Other petroleum products and milk, sugar and flour will follow, he said. A Laotian government source said today Laos had lodged a formal protest with Thailand over that country's blockade of this divided kingdom. The Thai blockade is throttling the economy of Vientiane and other areas under the control of Souvanna's neutralist government. Rice and gasoline are rationed, prices are skyrocketing and shortages of medicines, manufactured products, milk and other foodstuffs has in some cases reached critical proportions. The U.S. assistance program to Laos averages more than $40 million annually but the bulk of it is in military supplies and funds for the Laotian army and government.

He'll Get A New Pair Of Trousers

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Because her car ripped off the seat of a policeman's pants, Gloria Pereira, 33, must serve five days in jail and she must buy him a new pair of pants. Policeman Edward Neville, 35, says he was standing by a car giving a motorist directions last Aug. 30 when Mrs. Pereira's sports car whizzed by and its door caught the seat of his trousers. A jury convicted her Nov. 1 of drunken and hit-and-run driving. Friday a judge decreed her punishment, including a $250 fine.

Book Reviews Can Cut Term

SEATTLE (AP)—A death car driven can cut his 12-month jail sentence in half by reading certain books and turning in acceptable book reports. Superior Court Judge Royal in imposing sentence Friday on Andrew J. Darst, 44, said "what life is all about, and what rights human beings have." Clergymen and the American Legion will help pick the books. Darst pleaded guilty to negligent homicide in a collision last year in which Teresa Tate, 2, daughter of John H. Tate, 25, of Seattle, was killed. Judge Royal granted Darst three years' probation on condition he serve 12 months in jail, less one month off for each two acceptable book reviews up to a total of six months, and that he make restitution payments to the Tate family.
