Supporters Of Lumumba Hold Off On Threatened Beheadings

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Aides of Patrice Lumumba today held off carrying out their threat to round up all whites in Stanleyville and behead some of them. The ex-premier was still in jail after the deadline they set for freeing him.

One Western official here said, "The pressure seems to be off for the moment." The rebels had threatened to arrest all Europeans "and out of some of the heads" of Belgian hostages if Lumumba was not set free by 3 p. m. Friday.

United Nations reports from the area said no whites had been arrested so far in Stanleyville itself. But an undetermined number of arrests was reported at Aru, a town on the borders of Oriental Province and Uganda.

Congolese army commander, Col. Joseph Mobutu. Mobutu has issued no comment on the ultimatum, but it was believed mostly unlikely he would be persuaded to set Lumumba free.

U. N. forces in Stanleyville were ordered to resist with bullets if necessary to protect the white population. Consular officials from five Western embassies — the United States, British, French, Greek and Portuguese — flew to Stanleyville under U. N. protection. They will make arrangements for protection of their citizens and a possible mass airlift out of the province.

Stanleyville, 775 airline miles northeast of Leopoldville and capital of Oriental Province, is ruled by three men—Lumumba's former secretary, Bernard Salumu, Lumumba's brother, Louis, and Communist-leaning Antoine Gizenga, former Congo deputy premier.

Junior Cotillion Holly Ball Held

Junior Cotillion members attended their annual Holly Ball at the Moose Lodge last night from 8:30-10:00 p.m.

The group, which danced to the music of Buddy Murray's Quintet, was received by the parents of the Cotillion members and the directors, Mrs. N. O. VanNortwick Jr and Mrs. Wiley Forbes.

The ballroom was decorated in a holiday theme with interest centered at the banquet tables and on the stage. Brass candelabra, evergreens with red tapers and flowing Christmas ball grapes and holly were placed on the banquet tables which were covered with white damask.

At the stage holly bouquets on brass standards were tied in red satin bows against a gold velvet backdrop. A Christmas tree and festive window lights completed the season's decorations.

Happenings Around Rose High

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON
Mrs. Rachel Weiborn, home economics instructor, gave a gift-wrapping demonstration to the junior Future Homemakers of America at their meeting yesterday in the foods lab.

With Christmas so near, Mrs. Weiborn explained to the group the best and quickest ways to make attractive packages inexpensively.

She began by stressing the importance of having all of the materials together near a large table or counter. The first reminder: remove the price tags.

Mrs. Weiborn explained that there are two main methods of wrapping gifts: 1) Attach the paper to the box itself, wrapping the lid and bottom separately, and 2) Wrap the box completely, as is usually done. She demonstrated two methods of handling one of the trickiest problems—wrapping the ends of boxes.

Grifton Bridge Parties

GRIFTON—Mrs. John Coward was hostess when she was at home to members of her bridge club on Friday night.

Arrangements of pink chrysanthemums decorated the living room where three tables were placed for the games.

At the dessert hour the hostess served a caramel and nut cake with whipped cream and coffee.

Mrs. John Glenn received the high score prize and Mrs. Wilbur Murphy the second high and Mrs. Jack Surnell the visitor's prize.

Mrs. Coward's other guests were Mesdames Joe Speight, Roger Johnson, Paul Bradley, David Parker, Bryan Davis, Johnnie Smith, Frank Davis, Walter Murphy, and Miss Ruth E. Smith.

Entertains at Supper, Bridge Thursday night Mrs. J. L. Quinler entertained at supper and bridge for members of her bridge club.

Prior to the games, supper was served buffet style from an appointed table, overlaid with a white linen cloth, holding a silver bowl of pastel flowers.

In the living room and den a scheme of the approaching Christmas season was noted in decorations.

Mrs. Dewey Wall and Miss Bert Johnson were high scorers for the evening. Other players were Miss Marie Chapman, Miss Louise Mewborn, Miss Hazel Patrick, Mesdames Eleanor Gower, Louise J. McCotter, J. W. Short, H. P. Quinler, Alton Chapman, Thurman Williams, Richard Nelson, E. Chapman, L. L. Mewborn, W. I. Bisette, Robert Mewborn, Mrs. J. L. Tucker joined the group for supper.

The Holcombs Are Hosts Mr. and Mrs. Howard Holcomb were hosts Wednesday night at bridge at their home on St. David Street.

A silver bowl with fruit and flanked by tall white candles made a decorative note in the living room.

At the dessert hour ambrosia, fruit and coffee were served. Mr. and Mrs. John Glenn were

Athletic Programs Under Scrutiny

If it is significant that a resolution to revamp high school athletic programs in the state was presented to Tar Heel school superintendents this week, it is even more significant that the superintendents turned thumbs down on a motion that in effect would have rejected the resolution.

Athletic programs have become an important part of the activities in most high schools of the state. The athletic programs are important not only to the students, but to adults of the community as well. It's no secret that there has been a growing feeling among a considerable group of educators of the state that high school athletic programs are receiving too much emphasis and requiring too much student time that might be used in other ways.

Neither is it a secret that in many communities the athletic program serves as one of the rallying points which brings open expression of community support for the schools. In many communities the concern over the won-loss record of football or basketball teams of the local high school appears to be of greater public concern than the quality of instruction students are receiving in math, English, physics or some other courses.

Although the action taken by the school superintendents of the state this week with respect to the resolution on athletics was inconclusive, it is evident that an overwhelming majority of the superintendents feel the matter deserves careful consideration. In brief terms, the resolution regarding high school athletic programs would bring to an end such things as state-wide championship competition, post-season games and eliminate the present system of high school athletic conferences. A motion to table—or in effect kill—the far-reaching resolution was defeated by a vote of 150 to 10 among the superintendents. Instead, the superintendents will hear recommendations on the matter next August from a special committee appointed to study the matter.

Coming on the heels of the recent resolution of the State Board of Education calling for greater emphasis on studies and less on extra-curricular activities at the high school level, this latest action of high school superintendents suggests that these school administrators might feel that the athletic programs are getting out of hand. Obviously they feel the resolution regarding athletic programs deserves careful consideration.

In a broader sense, the superintendents' action indicates their support of the position taken by the state board of education in calling for less emphasis on extra-curricular activities.

Whether the people of the communities throughout the state are in accord with this thinking as it applies to athletic programs of high schools remains to be seen. Certainly there are few if any communities which do not take understandable pride in the fact that their high school team was good enough to contend for regional or state-wide honors in post-season games. Without question there are few communities in which there would not be strong dissenting voices to any move that would de-emphasize high school athletics or limit the scope of competition—and recognition—an outstanding athletic team might otherwise expect.

As the movement for greater emphasis on basic course study in North Carolina's public schools gains momentum, however, it is only reasonable to expect that somewhere along the line there will be conflicts between this philosophy and the athletic programs that are now generally being carried on in high schools throughout the state. Ultimately, the course that is followed in resolving any such conflicts will be that which has the greater public support.

Comments On Cabinet Choice

By LYNN NISBET

HODGES TO CABINET

Nearly every newspaper in the state has had editorial comment about the appointment of Governor Luther Hodges to be Secretary of Commerce in the Kennedy cabinet. Here are a few excerpts:

"Burlington Times - News: 'With his background as a salesman which he had kept exercised a decade since his active retirement from industry, putting it to work in his executive office as Governor of North Carolina, Governor Hodges should transfer to Washington with ease, experience and effectiveness. He understands that he will be an assistant to a man whose policies he will be expected to support and respect, and also promote. He will not be the free agent he was, generally speaking, as Governor. John Kennedy is as yet unpredictable. His party platform is far gone socialist. How much of this will Luther Hodges 'stummick'? This will be an early development after he takes over.'"

"Greenville Reflector: 'The appointment of Governor Hodges as Secretary of Commerce in the Kennedy cabinet reflects again the excellent choice of the president-elect in securing the best available talent for specialized top jobs in his administration. Governor Hodges' brilliant record in the fields of industry and government bespeak his outstanding qualifications for the post to which Kennedy has appointed him. The appointment is a recognition of his abilities and achievement which reflects credit not only upon the man himself, but upon North Carolina as well.'"

"Kinston Free Press: 'The Free Press presumes that Governor Hodges and other southerners who so enthusiastically championed Senator Kennedy's election to the presidency felt as many do that the platform was more or less a piece of paper standing for little which would actually become a reality through legislation later.'"

"Greensboro Record: 'So Governor Hodges goes to Washington, well fitted by his business and political background for a difficult job—encouraging the trade which can protect the American dollar by righting the nation's dollar balance—in awarding an important cabinet post to Luther Hodges, President-elect Kennedy has done more than select an able official; he has also shown his approval of the Hodges' approach, the moderately liberal Tar Heel approach, to regional and national problems. . . . It is fitting recognition of the state's ability to lead not only in its section, but in the country as a whole.'"

"Henderson Dispatch: 'Appointment of Governor Hodges as secretary of commerce and as a member of the Kennedy team might be interpreted in several directions. It could be regarded as an evidence that the new President will pursue a policy of reasonable moderation, at least so far as domestic affairs are concerned. Or it could mean that Hodges has skipped a bit farther to the left of center in conformity with promises so often heard during the campaign. . . . From another standpoint, the North Carolina Governor's appointment is a recognition of the status and importance of the South in the national government. . . . North Carolinians who know the Governor and are familiar with his calm but energetic method of grappling with governmental affairs are confident that he will quickly become one of the outstanding figures in the new administration.'"

Charlotte News: 'North Carolina is happy. So is Luther Hodges. And Mr. Kennedy is as yet unpredictable. His party platform is far gone socialist. How much of this will Luther Hodges 'stummick'? This will be an early development after he takes over.'"

"Rocky Mount Telegram: 'The job that Hodges will assume is not an easy one. At a time when the strength and growth of our U. S. economy is vital to our own prosperity and to our ability to fulfill our commitments to the cause of world freedom, the Department of Commerce has become one of the most important agencies in the world. It employs more than 36,000 people and will spend over $500 million this year to carry out its many functions.'"

Gov. Hodges has proved a dynamic force in North Carolina's advance in the field of industry in the South, in his handling of the difficult integration problem and in the matter of labor. His abilities certainly are expected to be carried over to a national level. Hodges will bring to his new position experience in both business and government. President-elect Kennedy's cabinet is far from completed, but we do not think he will fill any other position with a man any better qualified for the job than Luther Hodges is in connection with his future duties as Secretary of Commerce.

African Crisis Threatens UN

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Soviet Activities in Africa, Coupled With Moscow's Pressures and Blandishments Among African Leaders, Threaten the Very Existence of the United Nations in its Present Form.

It is all too easy to imagine some possible results over not too long a period. The U.N., still in its teens, could become a doddering old wreck, unable of effective action. Worse than that, there is even a possibility of a sort of African Korea.

Some of the nations which supplied troops for an effort to restore peace and order in the Congo now are withdrawing them. What would happen if most withdrew the troops they had assigned to the U.N. mission? In all probability there would be attempts to fill the resulting void, and in such attempts could be the beginning of catastrophic events in the heart of the continent.

The Kremlin seems to be playing a cynical game with the African continent. And there are few signs that certain African leaders suspect they are being used for the aims of Soviet world policy.

Puzzled Westerners frequently express wonder why leaders of former colonial countries often seem willing to accept Soviet propaganda and seem deliberately to close their eyes to ultimate Communist designs. The answer probably is that the Kremlin promises something for each of them. In return, the Kremlin makes sure there is something to be gained from each of them.

Luckily for the Russians, and unfortunately for the West, some African political leaders seem more preoccupied with their own ambitions than with attempting to dissipate the shadow of calamity over the continent.

How do the Russians line up African leaders' support? Take Gamal Abdel Nasser, for example. His Pan-Arab and Pan-Islamic ambitions involve a huge area of the continent. Nasser is anxious also to exert a commanding interest in embattled Algeria.

The Russians and Red Chinese loudly support the Algerian Nationalist revolution against France. This places the Communists and the most powerful of Arab leaders on the same side in that argument. By implication, it places the Western powers in an opposed camp. The arrangement is convenient both for the Russians and the Arab leaders.

Take the leaders of Ghana and Guinea in West Africa. They apparently are ambitious to be spokesmen for all emerging black Africa. The Russians have encouraged these ambitions and in return have won Guinean and Ghanaian support for Red maneuvers in the heart of the continent.

The Russians have done well in wooing these leaders, but they still are not satisfied. They are demanding more and more of what they call unity against "criminal plans of the imperialists in the Congo." Should they succeed, the Russians will have reached the point where they can reduce the U. N. to a skeleton of what it is supposed to be, a tattered copy of its defunct predecessor, the League of Nations.

Strange Things Come Out

CB Operators Organize

Last column I discussed an emergency call heard by a local Citizens Band operator. The call came all the way from Colorado, well over a thousand miles from here.

The distance involved in receiving such a call is even more surprising when you consider that Citizens Band is a very short range medium for two-way communications.

The various channels have been opened by the Federal Communications Commission for assignment to businesses and other organizations needing short range communication. Thus a firm with several service or delivery vehicles operating in and around a city would find this system helpful. A business with vehicles operating over a larger area would turn to conventional short wave for such communication.

Those who know, tell me the CB outfits have an output limited to five watts and they are effective for five to ten miles. Still the waves shoot off into space, hit the ionosphere and drop back into the range of a receiver at some far distant point. That was how the local CB operator was able to hear the Colorado call for help.

These skips, as they are called, can usually be heard in December, June and July because of atmospheric conditions during those months.

Until recently, a BC operator could answer any call, but last March, I'm told, the FCC stopped the practice of answering calls from far off areas. This ruling can be ignored in the case of emergency calls.

There are probably 15 to 20 licensed CB operators with one or more sets in Greenville presently, a CB owner tells me. These sets are used for the most part in business operations during the day.

At night, however, CB becomes a hobby for many operators and they converse back and forth from car-to-car or from house-to-house.

The local operators are now trying to organize a club. They have had several meetings already. One of their projects would be to make their sets available for Civil Defense in case of a communications breakdown.

CB works like a party line in many respects. Operators must call from station-to-station rather than CQ as the Hams do. Every ten minutes the operator must give a three minute break to allow others to use the channel. To make sure that the rules are adhered to, the FCC monitors the CB frequencies. Units cost from $80 to $150 plus antennas and installation. The same units may be used for auto or for the office or home.

Other Editors Saying Mob In Action

(Hertford County Herald)

There are some things calculated to turn the stomachs of all honest Americans.

In the past few days, across the South and the nation—across the front pages of the world—we have had to stomach the spectacle of a horde of creatures—can we call them women?—who, seemingly, have set themselves above the laws of Louisiana, the nation and even the most elementary of those relating to common decency.

We refer, of course, to the conglomeration of riff-raff, who have speared forth from the by-ways of New Orleans to "boycott" a couple of integrated elementary schools.

This group reminds us of nothing quite so much as the descriptions of harridens and fishwives, who roamed the streets of Paris in 1789; a particularly savage breed of she-wolves, who followed the tumblers carrying aristocrats to the guillotine, screaming every conceivable imprecation with unhygienic glee every time the knife fell on another victim.

There seems to be a parallel—at least the same mob temper—the maddog viciousness is there.

Forgetting the question of segregation or integration, these New Orleans "mothers" have incited to riot, rioted, committed assault, destroyed property, broken the peace, blocked street, threatened innocent little children—both white and colored—and amused themselves by shouting the lowest obscenities at bystanders—yes, even at priests and ministers.

Now we believe any group has the right to peaceably assemble and petition for redress of grievances—but what on earth is peaceful about the so-called "mother's" boycott in New Orleans?

And what's worse, the police apparently are willing to stand by with a "neutralist" attitude which permits these continued violations of the law and allows this rabble to continue to congregate around the schools instead of hauling these "ladies" away to convenient cells.

The "women," of course, accomplish nothing. Segregation vs integration will be decided in courts of law with opportunity for both sides to present their respective cases. But, does this mean because certain individuals disagree with the law—however strongly—they have the right to riot and break every law on the ordinance books. Are we to have government by law or government by mob?

Perhaps the police of New Orleans ought to reactivate old Ben Butler's decree and apply it to the local situation:

"Any woman of New Orleans, who by word or gesture, shows contempt for an officer, shall be considered a woman of the town, plying her avocation and be treated as such."

The sickening part of the New Orleans boycott is the impression it creates in the North and the remainder of the world. The average Northerner does not stop to realize these "women" make-up but one-tenth of one percent of the New Orleans population and an extremely tiny fraction of the South leaving a vast number of Southerners who deeply deplore the mob action.

Thus, what happens in New Orleans is a reflection—unjustified perhaps but still there—on us all.

Latest reports indicate the mob is easing off. We hope it ends—NOW!

Surplus Food Hoard

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Prior to the present harvest, the Government of the United States owned about 1,300,000,000 bushels of wheat. The 1960 crop increased this hoard. Altogether the surplus crops cost the taxpayer about $4,000,000,000 a year.

If there is to be a rationalization of government costs, something has to be done about farm surpluses. Whenever city persons write about agricultural problems, the farm experts contend that we do not know what we are talking about, which is an easy but meaningless answer. We do know that taxes are unconscionably high and that food prices are ridiculously high and that the purchasing value of the dollar is low.

This city dweller does know and he is not pleased about it. In fact, one of the first problems that the Kennedy Administration will have to tackle is the deterioration of urban life, the increase of slum areas, the rise of urban juvenile crime, the high cost of urban living and the blighting of suburban areas. When the cost of food exceeds the ability of a family to live on its income, whether from earnings or charity (now euphemistically called relief), social and moral conditions in cities deteriorate.

The maintenance of farm prices contributes to the high cost of food. At the same time, the stockpiling of food serves no useful purpose except to place an increasing burden of taxes upon the necks of a people whose currency is decreasing in value.

This, then, is what the country faces. The Eisenhower Administration has made no effort to deal with this problem, much less solve it. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson made some startling moves, but he was unsupported by his colleagues who could not stand up against the waves of strongly expressed unpopularity. In fact, although what is known as the farm vote is no longer decisive as the 1960 election established, the historic memory on the subject differs from reality. Actually, the problem cannot be contained in the Department of Agriculture. Any solution must include the State Department which must concern itself with protests from such countries as Canada (wheat and cheese) and Denmark (butter) that are worried over our dumping large quantities of surplus foods upon world markets or so-called surplus areas in Asia and Africa who cannot afford to pay our prices. It must include the Department of Commerce for identical reasons. It is no longer possible to deal with these broad problems as though they were the private domain of some official. Food is a national problem and the Treasury must be a member of both House Commissions which made a very serious attempt to find out what was wrong with a paralyzed executive branch of government that could not deal with problems that faced it and that required immediate action. Brother Robert was a member of the staff of one of the Hoover Commissions. It is to be hoped that some of the findings and some of the conclusions are retained in the memories of these men and of Jack who, as Senator, handled some of the bills proposed for enactment. At any rate, a vast amount of material is available in these commissions which can be useful in handling these peculiar problems to the benefit of both the urban and the rural populations.

Poverty, in a rich country such as ours still is, can only be the product of faulty organization and bad distribution. These can be corrected by keen minds and strong wills. President Kennedy cannot fall back either on the needs of the Roosevelt Administration or the inability of the Eisenhower Administration to act. He will have to make a new agricultural program of his own, consistent with his general economic program, progressive and daring and related to the welfare of both the urban and rural populations. If he cannot do this, (Continued on page six)

THE MOTE AND THE BEAM

The following notice is printed above the desk of a secretary whom I know: Accuracy is Our Motto—We Never Make Mistakes. She is joking, of course, and the misspelling "mistakes" is deliberate.

But there are quite a few people whose attitude reminds me of that sign—and they are not just joking. Their most recognizable symptom is their absolute confidence that they know best about everything, as they generally choose to demonstrate by being illogical, prejudiced, and confused as possible.

You can probably recognize a few typical examples. One is the mother who scolds her sixth-grade son's teachers because he gets low grades. She is so sure that he is a brilliant child that it never occurs to her to make him turn off the television set and study.

Another is the politician who proclaims widely that he can solve the nation's economic problems. It does not seem to bother him that the state he has been running is going bankrupt.

Still another is a neighbor who lays down the law to me about the care of my lawn and shrubs. His own yard, of course, is badly neglected.

This whole situation is perfectly summed up in the Bible: "Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?"

By ELMER ROESSNER

"Why don't you write something about the customer being always wrong?" demanded H. Allen Smith, the low humorist on the totem pole. "I have been watching them this Christmas season and once or twice out of a hundred times, the customer is right, but almost always the customer is wrong."

"Well—" I started.

"Take clothes," the book-writer continued. "I have seen women order a dozen dresses and send eleven of them back the next day. The twelfth goes back a week later. 'They don't do anything for me,' the customer will tell the store manager. Can he beat her head against the cash register?" Of course not. He has to smile and take back a thousand dollars worth of garments that can now be only shoddy half-offs."

"I think—" I said.

"A worst phase of this are the party purchases. The reason I don't belong to any country club is that I want to keep my good wife Nelle safe from temptation. Before every country club party, there's a great rush to fancy stuff, especially furs. Women buy out shops of furs they never could pay for, even if their husbands were promoted to executive vice president. On Monday morning, the furrier is back in business again. His customers have brought back his stock. 'It didn't do anything for me,' each one says."

"I know, but—" I began.

"The customer is more wrong than even in this country club bit, simply because the retailer has to double his asking price in order to make up for his losses on these returns."

"And the customers are wrong in another way. They think of themselves as gilded Brahmins, and they treat salesgirls as if they were untouchables. I've seen women refuse to buy a bit of underwear because a salesgirl touched it."

THE WORST OF ALL
"Now I've seen—" I broke in.

"But the worst of all is the parental attitude toward juvenile delinquents. My tax bill says I live in an upper-class community. Most of the youngsters have bigger allowances than my wife. But when they get loose in a store, they feel compelled to steal something. And when retailers complain to their parents, the parents abuse the retailers."

"I know of one case where the storekeeper was robbed so much he kept a close watch on all his rich young juvenile customers. After most of his fountain pens had disappeared, he saw a teenager grab one. He followed him outside, to make sure it was an actual theft, then seized the youngster."

"His mother declared this was an outrage, that the storekeeper was trying to ruin the brilliant career of a clean, upstanding American, and that the merchant was a menace to the community. She organized a boycott among the country-club set and a few months later the retailer was forced to sell out at a sacrifice price."

"I say the customer is always wrong and you ought to write something about it."

Some day I must.

WHY SAVE ONLY THE FOREST RANGERS
Seat belts in Forest Service vehicles have saved at least 100 persons from serious injury or death, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture. On this basis it would seem that laws should require every bus and taxicab be equipped with seat belts.

Bethel 61 Farmville 42

BETHEL—Farmville's Red Devil roundballers found it a rough row to hoe last night in Bethel, losing both ends of a doubleheader to the Indians.

John Smith dropped in 20 points to lead the Bethel cagers to a 61-42 victory over the Red Devil boys, while the magnificent shooting of James Cobb, who scored 26 points, led the lassies to a 54-39 win over the Farmville girls.

Smith, hitting on long set shots throughout the contest, was followed in the scoring department by teammates Herman Daniels with 17 points and Tex Everett with 10.

High scorer for the Red Devils was Ben Monk with 14 points.

The Indians led all the way behind the shooting of Smith and the rebounding of Everett. Coach Walter Latham began to empty his bench early in the fourth stanza.

Along with Cobb, two other Bethel starters hit in the double figure scoring column. They were Carolyn Manning with 17 points and Perry Williams with 11.

Setting the pace for the Red Devil lassies was Kay Allen with 15 points.

Bethel's cagers travel to Ayden on Tuesday night to battle the Tornados of Coach Stuart Tripp in another Pitt County Conference tilt.

Beargrass 51 Robersonville 46

BEARGRASS—Robersonville's basketbailers lost their first conference game of the young season a 51-46 thriller at Beargrass last night. The loss gives the Rams a 1-1 Martin County Conference slate against a 1-2 overall mark.

Coach Bob Lee's club just had a bad case of not being able to get its offense moving until the final period. The Rams were down by 20 points going into the final stanza, but they bucketed 22 points in the final eight minutes while holding the winners to only seven points.

Van Parker led the winners' scoring with 21 points. He was followed by Tommy Sawyer with 13.

Dallas Taylor and Donald Mills led the scorers for Robersonville. Both finished with 11 points each.

The Beargrass lassies made it a clean sweep for the night, downing the Robersonville girls to the tune of 31-17.

Mary Beachem led the Beargrass girls with 15 points. Madge Rogerson was the top scorer for the Ram lassies with 11 points.

The Rams lock horns with Oak City, the defending conference champions, on Tuesday night.

Grifton 63 Stokes-Pactolus 31

GRIFTON—Grifton swept a doubleheader from hapless Stokes-Pactolus last night, beating the visitors in both the girls' and the boys' contests.

Tommy Riley and Randy Jackson teamed up for 18 points each for the Grifton boys in a 63-31 lacing of the Stokes-Pactolus squad. Sammy Whitehurst, a reserve forward, pitched in eight points for the losers to grab high scoring honors for Stokes-Pactolus.

John Smith led the Grifton lassies to a 41-21 win over Stokes-Pactolus, dumping in 22 points for her evening's effort. She was followed in the scoring department by teammate Jane Mewborn with 14 points.

Jeanne Forbes led the losers with 11 points.

Grifton plays Winterville next Tuesday night on the Grifton court.

Ayden 50 Bath 38

AYDEN—Tommy Dunn and William Edwards both scored 14 points each to lead Ayden's Tornados to a 50-38 victory over Bath last night on the Ayden hardwood.

After an 11-11 tie at the end of the first quarter, Ayden outscored the visitors 14-8 in the second period and kept the lead for the remainder of the contest.

Wayne Cox of Bath, who finished with 16 points for the losers, garnered all of his points in the first half, while he was followed in the visitors' scoring by Leo Sullivan with 15 points.

The Tornados led at the halfway mark by only six points, but got red hot in the last 16 minutes to win going away by 12 points. Ted Norris, who dumped in 13 points for the winners, and Clem McLawhorn dominated the backboards for the Tornados, which proved to be the deciding factor in the contest.

Sandra Cox kept the Ayden girls from making a clean sweep of the evening, dumping 28 points through the nets for Bath's lassies, to lead the visitors to a 64-38 win.

High scorer for the Tornado girls was Andrea Harris with 18 points.

The victory for Ayden's boys gives the Tornados a 3-0 record overall, and a 1-0 conference mark. They must Bethel on Tuesday night in another Pitt County Conference tussle.

The Ayden junior varsity also won their preliminary over Bath, 50-24.

Chicod 62 Grimesland 51

GRIMESLAND—An old county feud, pitting the Forneses against the Hardees, developed here last night and the former clan won the first meeting and at the same time gave Chicod a 62-51 win over Grimesland.

Raymond Fornes and Roy Fornes clipped the threads for 19 and 12 points, respectively, and Chicod turned back a late rally by the Hardees—Lindsey, Lewis and Carlton—for a Pitt County Conference victory.

The visiting Hornets jumped into an early 11-8 lead and then hung on for the victory pudding.

Lindsey Hardee was top point-maker for Grimesland with 16 points. Lewis and Carlton had 10 each.

Mary Louise Hudson and Pansy Jones scored 14 and 13 points to offset a one-girl scoring show by Grimesland Sara Morgan, giving the visitors a 37-33 win and a clean sweep of the twinbill.

Grimesland will be favored to return to the win column here Tuesday night in games with Stokes-Pactolus.

lina passed a few under-the-table licks, swung elbows with the freedom of birds flying south, and the refs tooted their whistles often last night in Memorial Gymnasium.

The result of all the above was a 90-67 East Carolina victory in what was supposed to have been basketball but, instead, took the form of indoor football.

Senior Don Smith, who ripped the nets with more ease during the game than in the pre-game warm-ups, was the only cager on the floor that lived up to the true role of a basketball player.

The Portsmouth senior opened an assault on the Lenoir Rhyne basket in the early minutes of the game and didn't let up until Coach Earl Smith spelled him with a reserve in the late minutes of the game.

Coach Billy Wells' club took their first defeat of the season on the chin. The Bruins, winners of four previous games, never made a serious challenge and trailed the roughneck Pirates from the opening jump ball.

Wells, who looked "bushed" following the rough night of contact, termed his team's performance as "sophomoric." "It was our worse game of the season. We just couldn't seem to do anything right," he pointed out.

Cotton Clayton and Don Smith hit a couple of jump shots in the opening minutes and East Carolina was off and running.

The erratic Bruins fumbled a couple of rebounds and East Carolina elevated the lead to 17-5. By midway the first half, Smith and gang led by 23-8.

The outside shooting of Tommy Burton set fire under Lenoir Rhyne's sluggish attack and the visitors outscored East Carolina over the final 10 minutes, cutting the halftime gap to 33-27.

With 16:55 to go, reserve Jack Connerly made good on a push shot and East Carolina's lead was sliced to four points, 38-34, but it was the last moment of contention for the Bruins.

Clayton got loose on a couple of snowbirds and hit another on a jump shot to shoot East Carolina in front, 44-34.

Smith warmed up to the task again and East Carolina filled the basket with regularity while the Bears went scoreless for almost four minutes.

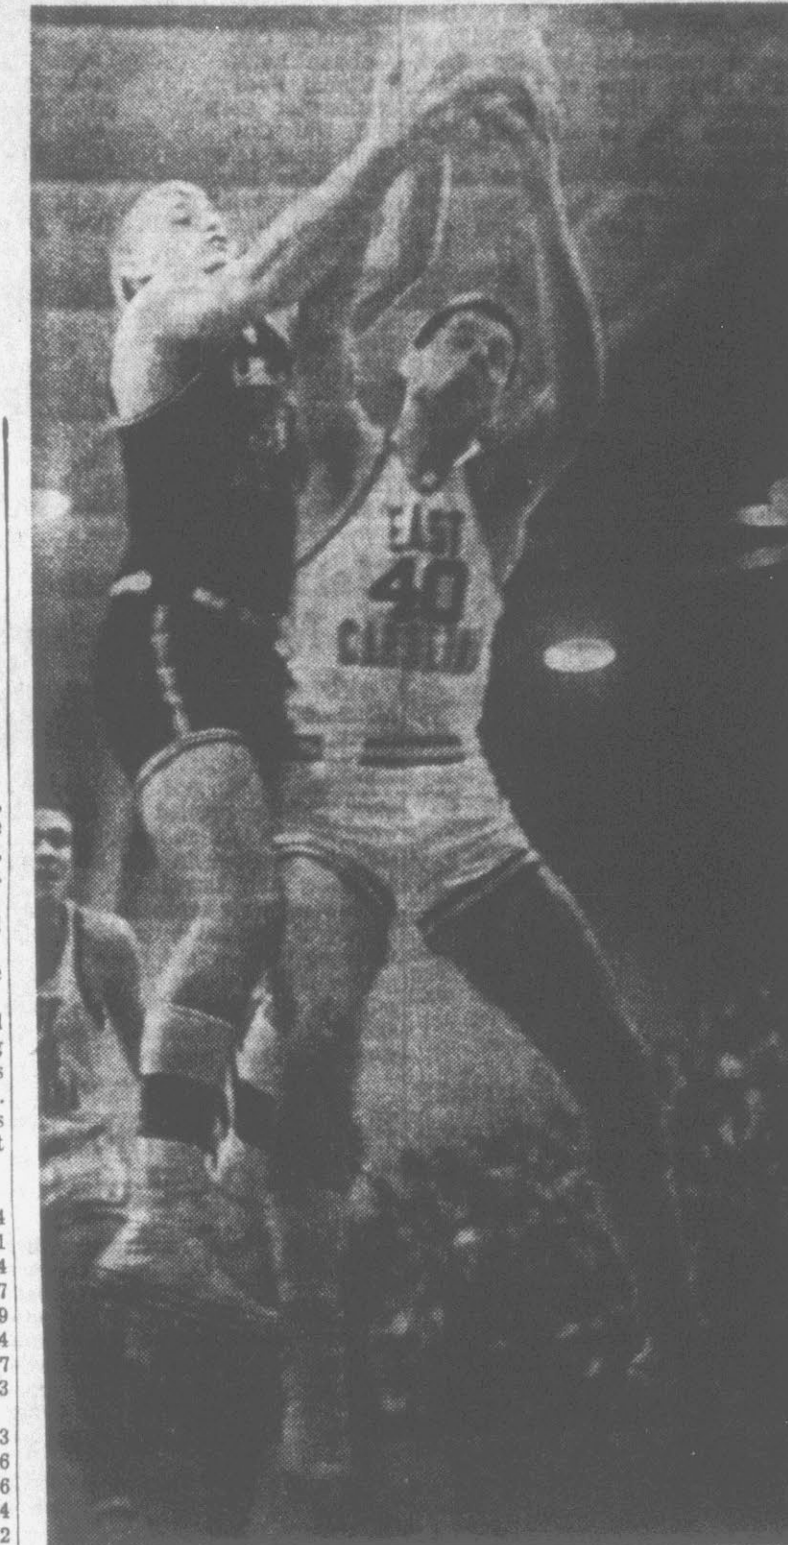

By the time Tommy Burton hit a field goal again, the west-erners were on the short count of a 54-36 scoreboard reading. There was time left for a comeback, a little over 14 minutes, but the Bears were never up to it and East Carolina matched buckets for the larger part of the final 10 minutes, adding a few extra points for good measure.

While Smith crammed the nets with 13 field goals and seven free tosses, three other EC starters finished the night in double figures.

Lacy West and Bill Otte had 11 each and Clayton wound up with 14 points.

Burton, a dead-eye from the corner and outside, registered 16 points for Lenoir Rhyne and center Emil Dixon chipped in with 11.

Lenoir Rhyne, now 2-1 in the conference, plays at undefeated Atlantic Christian tonight. East Carolina, with a 4-1 conference mark, is idle until Wednesday when it meets Appalachian in Boone.

Farley G-Men Make Right Moves, Edge Wilson 73-69

WILSON—Greenville played 'cat and mouse' with Wilson here for three quarters last night but turned on the hot water faucet in the final eight minutes for a 76-67 non-conference victory.

Coach Bo Farley juggled his lineup like the Casey Stengel of baseball last night after two regulars got in foul trouble in the first quarter and the moves paid off with Greenville extending its winning streak to two after three games on the hardwood.

The Phantoms are idle Tuesday but meet Wilson again in a home game Friday night.

A well-balanced scoring attack and the superb rebounding of Layne Jorgensen and John Bynum put Greenville in the win column for the second time this year.

Three field goals by Alan McArthur triggered a 17-point scoring effort by the G-men in the first period, giving them a four point spread.

The rugged Jorgensen and forward Billy James were in foul trouble early and Farley elected to go with John Bynum and Pete Hunt in the waning minutes of the second period.

The change failed to slow the Phantoms and by halftime it was 40-31.

Farley opened the second half with the same lineup but had to call on Jorgensen and James again when Wilson moved to within three points, 43-40.

The hot-running Cyes took the lead for the first time in the third period but swapped it back and forth and the period buzzer found Greenville on top, 54-53.

Erskine Duff, senior guard, pulled the contest out of the fire in the final eight minutes, hitting on eight for eight from the charity line and pumping in a couple of two-pointers from the outside.

Billy James, with three field goals, also figured in the last quarter surge.

With his last quarter spurt, Duff was the top Phantom score with 19 points. Kroghle Andresen, his running mate at guard, was a close second with 17.

McArthur had 14 points and James 11 for Greenville.

George Wainwright topped the Wilson scoring with 16 points.

Coach Bo Farley was satisfied with the shooting and rebounding of his club, labeling the game as Greenville's "best of the season".

The veteran mentor figured his club shot close to 50 per cent from the floor.

Second Half Of Dove Season

Pitt County Wildlife Protector J. O. Teel reminds hunters that the second half of the Mourning Dove season will begin December 12 and continue through January 14.

Shooting hours for these birds will be from 12 o'clock noon to sunset each day. Bag limit for the birds is 12 while possession limit is 24.

"Migratory game birds may be taken on or over standing crops, flooded standing crops, flooded harvested crop land, grain crops properly stacked on the field where grown, or grains found scattered solely as a result of normal agricultural planting or harvesting," Teel reported.

He asserted that squirrel season, which began October 15, will close January 2. Bag limit for squirrels is eight while possession limit is 16. The season limit is 75 and includes two fox squirrels per day, four in possession and 10 for the season.

The season for quail and rabbits, which opened November 24, will close February 15.

The wildlife officer urges hunters to "be careful" while hunting and "... observe all the safety rules ..."

Pitt Ponds Stocked With Bream

Fifty-two ponds in Pitt County have been stocked with bream, ranging in size from one-fourth of an acre to as much as two acres. Approximately 20,000 fish have been added to the ponds as a service furnished by Federal Wildlife Service through the Soil Conservation Program.

The G. & W boys, specialists in boat building, also have a knack when it comes to catching fish. Robert Lee Edwards Jr. and Ronald S. Peterson caught 35 rockfish Sunday afternoon in less than three hours. The fish weighed from two to four pounds ...

New Fishing Plug Invented

Michigan pheasant hunters killed slightly more than one million birds during the past season, State Conservation Department game experts estimate. Last year the kill dropped below the one million mark for the first time in five years.

What's next? A fishing plug animated by a one-fourth ounce motor and a tiny battery has been invented by James R. Boyett, an electrical contractor. The bait performs gyrations designed to attract fish.

A 39 1/2-pound channel bass, caught by C. H. Harwood of Albemarle, N. C. was the largest surf and small boat entry in the November competition of the $6,000 Grand Strand Fishing Rodeo.

Sports In Brief

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP)—The Southern Conference membership will remain at nine schools, at least for the immediate future.

The league, at its annual winter meeting here Friday, adopted a set of standards for the admission of new members that temporarily at least, sidetracked the ambitions of East Carolina and Mississippi Southern colleges.

Faculty chairmen unanimously approved the plan drawn up by a committee that had been studying the situation since last spring. No direct action was taken on the applications of the two schools.

One of the requirements is two years of membership in the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA). East Carolina does not belong to the NCAA. The school, with 4,500 students, is a member of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA).

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Lenoir Rhyne and Humboldt State College square off tonight in a Holiday Bowl football game.

Humboldt, slightly favored, has run up a string of 20 consecutive victories. The Californians would become the 1960 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics champion by winning this one.

Lenoir Rhyne of Hickory, N.C., goes into the title game with 10 victories and one tie for the season.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate boxing investigators today refused to name a former world champion who has been subpoenaed to testify. They said they feared advance exposure might place him in danger.

The unidentified ex-champ has been ordered to appear on Monday before the Senate subcommittee that hopes to rid the sport of racketeers. Also on the Monday witness list is heavyweight contender Charles (Sonny) Liston.

Sings Sunday In Auditions Show

CHICAGO, Ill.—Stephen Parish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert L. Davidson of 619 Park Ave., Ayden, N. C., will be paired with soprano Elizabeth Swanson of Chicago in the Illinois Opera Guild "auditions of the rite" Sunday.

Parish, baritone and candidate for the doctor of musical arts degree at the University of Illinois, has been active in the Opera Group under Prof. Ludwig Zerner and was one of the soloists selected to appear with the University of Illinois Symphony orchestra in April 1960 in its annual concerto concert. He also has been soloist with the Concert Choir and Varsity Men's Glee Club.

He and Miss Swanson are fourth in a series of contestants competing for awards totaling $1,500 offered by the Illinois Opera Guild. The audition will be broadcast here at 4:30 p.m. Sunday on WGN-Radio.

Mrs. Parish is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Montgomery of 209 Lewis St., Greenville, N. C.

Funeral Sunday For Mrs. F. F. Sutton

Mrs. Maggie Adams Sutton, 72, wife of B. Frank Sutton of near Grimesland, died in a Raleigh hospital early Saturday morning following several years of declining health.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Sunday afternoon at 3:30 by her pastor, the Rev. Floyd Cherry. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mrs. Sutton, a native of Beaufort County, came to Pitt County as a young lady and had lived near Grimesland since that time. She was a member of the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are her husband; a daughter, Mrs. William L. Rouse of Washington; two grandchildren; two great grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Rachel Adams Boyd of near Chocowinity; and a half brother, Lonnie Adams of near Chocowinity.

Band Director At Clinton Clinic

Herbert L. Carter, director of bands in the department of music at East Carolina College, acted as director of a Band Clinic this weekend at Clinton, N. C. Selected student instrumentalists from six public schools in the area participated Dec. 9-10 in a two-day program of rehearsals by a clinic band and by special groups and in a public concert presented Saturday at the Clinton High School.

Edward Taylor, band director at the Clinton High School, acted as chairman in charge of arrangements for the clinic. Student musicians from Clinton, Fayetteville, Lumberton, Laurel Hill, Eladenboro, and Jacksonville made up the clinic band.

Methodist Men To Meet Tuesday

AYDEN—The Ayden Methodist Men's Club will meet Tuesday evening in the educational building at 6:30.

Elaine King, one of Ayden's most distinguished Christian workers, will talk on the Christmas story as written in the books of Matthew and Luke.

Club officials reported that the supply of fruit cakes has been sold. However, a new shipment is expected within a day or two. Captains of the cake sale teams were asked to contact Bob Benton to replenish their supply.

Fire Out When Truck Arrived

Firemen were called to Hardee's Hamburger drive-in yesterday at 5:19 p.m. when grease in the exhaust system of the building, at the intersection of 14th and Charles Sts., caught fire.

Officers who answered the call said the blaze went out when fire units arrived. No damage was reported.

Funeral Set Sunday For Henry S. Lloyd

Mr. Henry S. Lloyd, 78, of 1111 E. West Fourth Street, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital Friday night at eight o'clock. He had been in failing health for the past six years and critically ill for two weeks.

Funeral services will be held at the Wilkerson Chapel Sunday afternoon at two o'clock by his pastor, the Rev. Rashie Kennedy. Burial will be in Forrest Hill Cemetery in Farmville.

Mr. Lloyd, a native of Vance County near Henderson, came to Greene County in 1902 and for the past six years had made his home in Greenville. He was a member of the Grace Free Will Baptist Church and was a farmer.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mary Britt of Greene County, to whom he was married in 1904; four sons, Preston L. Lloyd of near Farmville, Thurston H. Lloyd of Greenville, Jasper Earl Lloyd of near Ayden, and Alex Lloyd of Greenville; three daughters, Mrs. Preston Langley, Mrs. Edward Moxing, and Mrs. Willie Hathaway, all of Greenville; 35 grandchildren; and 21 great grandchildren.

She was "the person who organized the impetus to establish the Greenville Fine Arts Festival more than a score of years ago, which led to the establishment of the East Carolina Art Society and ultimately to the Greenville Art Center," Dr. Humber said. "She recognized art as one of the great spiritual forces creating our civilization and identified herself with art appreciation throughout the state," he added.

For approximately 15 years, she has served as a member of the Board of Directors of the State Art Society, accepting responsibility such as chairmanship of the Membership Committee, membership of the Building Committee and the recent Nominating Committee to recommend a new director for the State Museum of Art in Raleigh, Dr. Humber noted.

Mrs. Moore represents the State Federation of Women's Clubs in her capacity as chairman of the Art Committee. She recently was made an honorary member of Associated Artists of North Carolina.

She was actively interested in the World Peace Program, arousing statewide interest and support of measures leading to solutions for world war as chairman of the International Relations Committee of the State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Artist Fields

Dr. Humber was introduced to a large gathering of local and out-of-town guests by Dr. K. B. Pace, first vice president of the East Carolina Art Society.

Dr. Humber, after making remarks, introduced Fields, who presented the portrait. Fields, as an artist, paid tribute to Mrs. Moore for her efforts on behalf of living contemporary North Carolina painters and her part in the establishment of the Greenville Art Center.

Fields described his painting as a "realistic" portrait, in which Mrs. Moore is wearing a dark blue dress with a painted miniature pin. She is bareheaded.

Dominant colors in the portrait "are very simple," Fields said, blending with a large Persian rug in the room where it will appear. Dominant colors in the rug are blues and gold tones. Mrs. Moore sat for the portrait in her own home, and it was completed just this week.

Acceptance of Portrait

The painting was accepted on behalf of the East Carolina Art Society by T. I. Wagner, second vice president, who expressed thanks to Fields "for his kindness in painting the portrait and presenting it to the art society."

"We are delighted that we could have a portrait of Mrs. Moore put in the center," Wagner said, paying tribute to her long association with art and her active interest on the local level.

M. K. Blount, president of the East Carolina Art Society, gave the welcome. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. E. Graham Flanagan.

Immediately following the ceremonies, a luncheon was held for members of the East Carolina Art Society and out-of-town guests.

Winterville FFA Captures First Place In Contest

The Winterville Future Farmers of America took first place in the Pitt County FFA Ritual and Parliamentary Procedure contest held Thursday at the Belvoir-Falkland School.

Members of the team included: Wesley Layton, president; Thurman Joyner, vice-president; Jimmy Wynne, secretary; Charles Jackson, treasurer; E. G. Eakes, advisor; Jerry Sutton, reporter and Randy Pollard, sentinel.

Other schools participating in the contest were: Grimesland, Chicod, Farmville, Ayden, and Belvoir-Falkland. The Ayden team took second place in the contest while third place winner was Chicod.

The purposes of the contest are to train boys to express themselves and to speak before groups; to teach students parliamentary procedure; and to train boys in the proper method of conducting meetings.

Judges for the contest were Arthur S. Alford, supervisor of the Pitt County Schools and D. M. Nobles of Stokes.

The Winterville team will represent Pitt County in the District contest to be held next spring.

Icy Storm Again Hits Southwest Big Blow

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—A mighty snowstorm, already blamed for more than a dozen deaths, swung fresh punches today at a sector stretching from the central Rockies over much of the Southwest.

The icy storm isolated towns in several states, shattered communication lines, halted travel and knocked out power lines.

El Paso, at the New Mexico border, was buried in 6 to 8 inches of snow.

Marfa, Tex., 200 miles east of El Paso, has been isolated for two days. Ham radio operators made contact Friday night and learned conditions in the area were critical.

"We're in rough shape," Jim O'Brien, publisher of the Big Bend Sentinel told the El Paso Times. "Our phones are out and it's hard to say when the utility company is going to get our power fully restored."

Traffic snarled in an around the El Paso area and across the line into New Mexico.

The storm slackened its fury in New Mexico and Arizona while dumping more than six inches at Canon City in south central Colorado since noon Friday. There was 11-15 inches reported at Wolf Creek Pass and two inches dropped in the Denver area during the night.

Light snow in the Arizona mountains was expected. Northern roads, although still icy, were open. The storm actively dropped off in New Mexico and improved weather conditions were forecast for the weekend.

At least five deaths in New Mexico and eight in Texas had been attributed directly or indirectly to the weather.

Temperatures dipped into the lower 20s as the storm smashed eastward from El Paso into the heart of southwest Texas.

Other parts of the country also came in for a taste of winter with snow, freezing rains and frigid temperatures.

A freak storm swept off Lake Michigan dumping 10 inches of snow at Valparaiso, Indiana and plunging temperatures to 10 degrees below zero.

On wind-whipped Lake Superior the freighter Starbelle called for help after heavy seas opened her hull and deck. The 259-foot grain freighter finally limped to safety under escort by a pair of Coast Guard cutters.

Warmer weather was also on tap for most of the Pacific Coast where the mercury plunged to the mid 20s Friday, threatening disaster to crops.

Gear Purchased For Volunteer Fire Department

STOKES—Helms and raincoats have been purchased by the Carolina Township Volunteer Fire Department and placed on the department's truck, Chief W. F. Doebuck told members of the department at a meeting Thursday night.

The group met in the Stokes-Pactolus School auditorium.

Curtis Flanagan, Farmville fire chief and secretary of the North Carolina Volunteer Firemen's Association, discussed the set up and working system of the association. He also told the group that safety discipline and publicity are important to a young fire department.

Flanagan, who was introduced by Carolina assistant fire chief S. S. Congleton, answered questions following his talk.

Wynne Doray, also of Farmville, discussed the history of firefighting from the dark age to the present. Doray emphasized that all firemen should live up to a tradition.

A total of 32 firemen attended the meeting.

Minor Damage In Two Collisions

No arrests were made and only minor damage was reported by officers who investigated two collisions in Greenville yesterday.

Investigators said an estimated $5 damage resulted to a car being driven by Claire Mills Mobley of Route 2, Greenville when it was involved in a collision with a vehicle operated by J. J. Bryant, 45 of 2207 Edwards St., near the intersection of Third and Evans Sts. at 8:30 p.m.

Damage to the Bryant car was set at $5 also.

No damage was reported to a car driven by Willie B. Cannon, 62 of Route 2, Greenville involved in a collision yesterday about 3:40 p.m.

Driver of the second vehicle was identified as Willie H. Tripp, Jr., 19 of 1016 Colonial Ave. Damage to the Tripp car was set at $5.

$1 Million-Plus Left By Actor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Clark Gable left a fortune estimated at more than a million dollars to his widow Kay, now awaiting the birth of their first child.

The actor's will was admitted to probate Friday. It left a home in North Hollywood to his first wife, Josephine Dillon, 75, whose coaching in dramatics started him on his career.

Gable, 59, died Nov. 16 of a heart attack. He married ex-actress Kay Williams July 11, 1955. The will was signed Sept. 19, 1955.

Hunting Is One Of State's Most Popular 'Participant' Sports

By ROSALIE MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

According to the last national survey of fishing and hunting made by U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, one of every three households in America had one or more fishermen or hunters. Hunting in eastern North Carolina is one of the most popular participant sports.

Throughout the state, there are nine districts in the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission. Pitt County is in district two. There are a total of 29 supervisors and assistants for the commission over the state. Each county has from one to two wildlife protectors. Joe Teel is the protector for Pitt County.

Under current rules of the federal and state Wildlife Commission, the hunting season is relatively short, and many over-anxious hunters break these rules.

Steps have been taken during the past year to help enforce the laws. Planes are now being used throughout the state to help the Wildlife Protectors. Violators of the rules will be punished under the law.

"For the past few weeks, hunters have been shooting game too late — after sunset," stated Teel. The hours for statewide killing of game is from sunrise to sunset. Shooting game before or after is a violation.

Other problems in the job of protecting that have confronted Teel this season are: hunting without or improper license; hunters not plugging automatic guns when hunting game birds or animals — automatic guns must be plugged so they will not hold over three shells. When hunting deer or bears, the guns do not have to be plugged.

"We have had reports that hunters are shooting over their limit of quail," commented Teel. Quail season opened November 24 and will close February 5, 1961. Bag limit is eight birds.

The seasons for other types of game and the limits are: rabbits, November 24-February 15, limit five; squirrels, October 15-January 2, limit five; turkeys, November 24-February 15, limit one bird, (toms only). The dove season is split, and the next season will come in December 12 through January 14. The hours are from 12 a.m. until sunset.

North Carolina, given its choice of 50 days and a three-duck bag limit or 40 hunting days and four ducks daily, chose the longer season, lower bag.

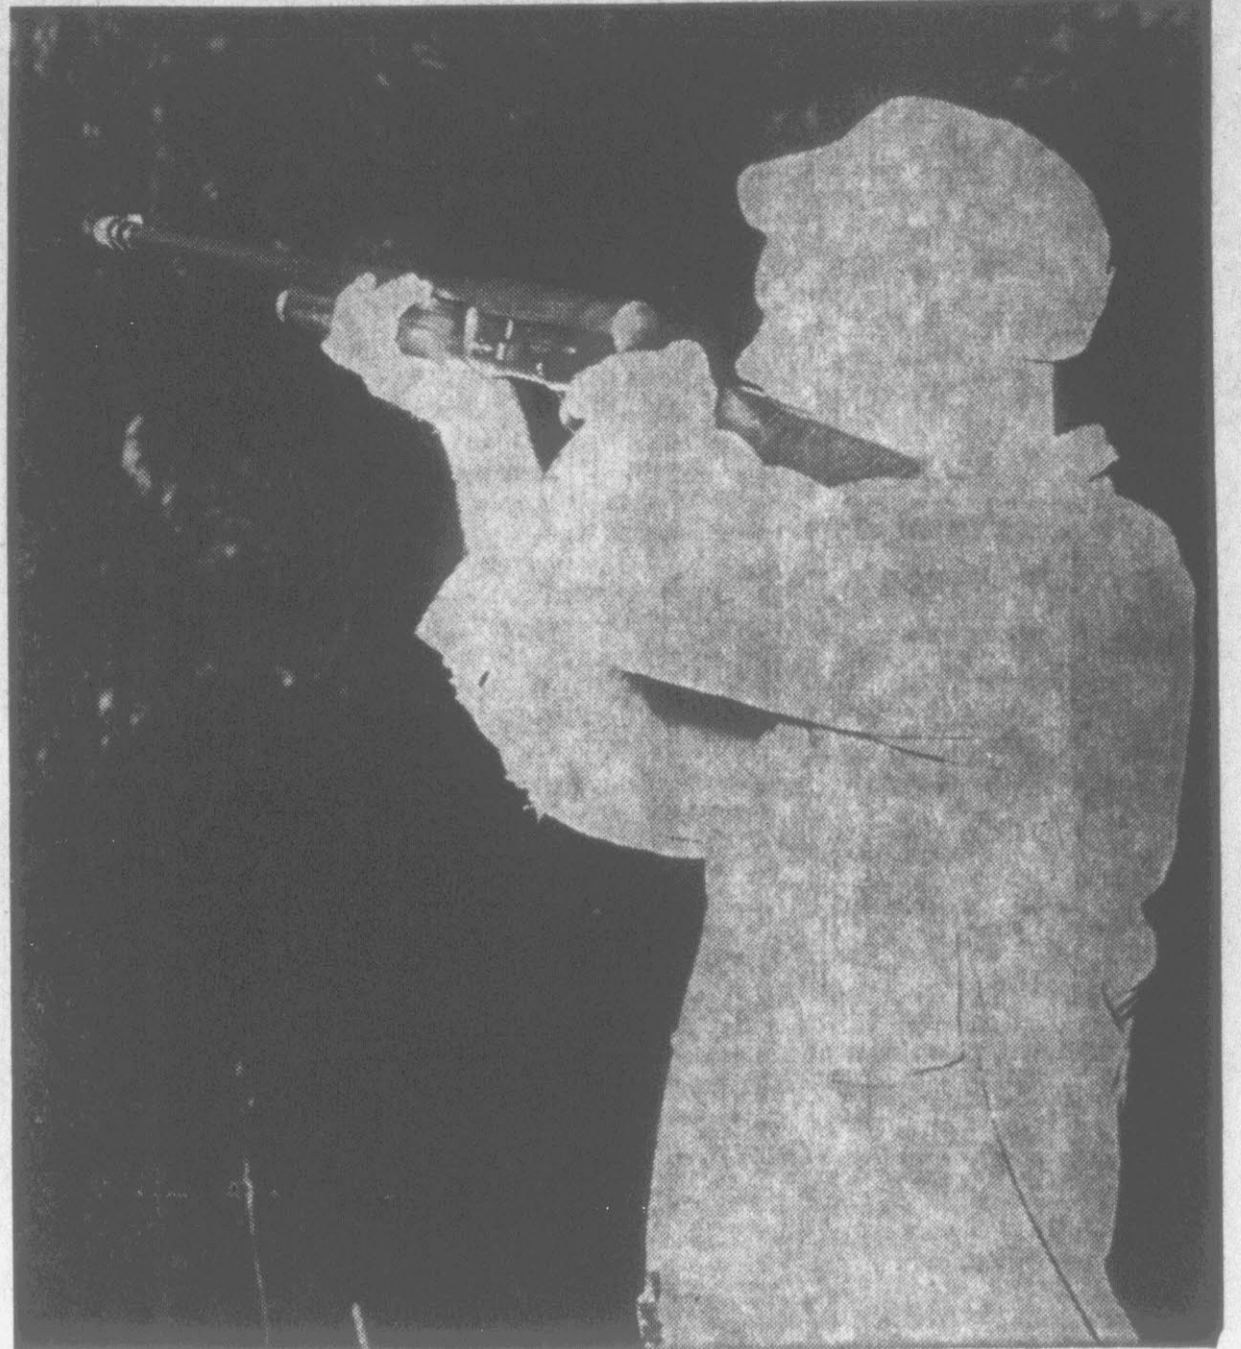

Some of the state's best duck areas are the northeast section encompassing Lake Mattamuskeet, Currituck, Pamlico Sound and Bodie Island.

Violations of migratory bird laws is a federal offense and offenders will be tried in a federal court.

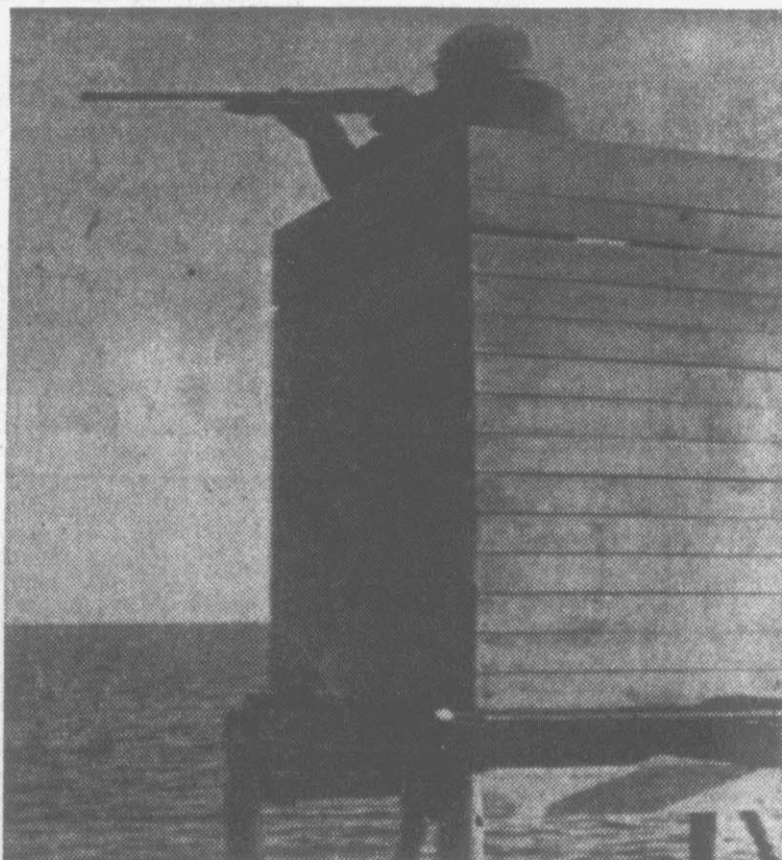

Some tips for safe hunting pointed out by Teel are: do not point at anything you don't want to shoot; observe the limit and hours on all hunting; wear yellow or another color that can't be mistaken for game or targets; and unload guns before jumping ditches, climbing fences or putting guns into cars.

MARK OF . . . a good bird dog is her ability to retrieve dead birds. John Farley is shown taking a quail from his pointer Lou.

MARSH BLINDS . . . are frequently used for hunting waterfowl along river banks and swamp land.

STAKE BLINDS . . . provide concealment for duck shooting over open waters in Pamlico Sound area in Eastern North Carolina.

CAREFUL WATCHING . . . and patience is practiced by Billy Ray Taylor as he squirrel hunts.

ON POINT . . . Lou and Pete hold steady on a covey of quail and wait for their hunters to flush and shoot their prey.

Polling Places And Poll-Holders Set For Cotton Vote

Polling places and poll holders for Pitt County's share of the cotton marketing quota referendum Tuesday were announced today by local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office Manager Wayne L. Wang.

Forty-four poll holders, two at each poll, will keep the county's 22 ASC community polling places open Tuesday from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. for voting cotton producers of the county.

County cotton growers will be helping decide whether marketing quotas will be in effect during 1960 for the year's upland cotton crop.

According to Wang, the issue will be decided on the basis of thirds. If at least two-thirds of the voting growers favor quotas for 1961, marketing quotas and acreage allotments will be in effect with price support from 70 to 90 per cent parity.

If more than one-third of the voting growers oppose quotas for the 1961 crop, no marketing quota penalties will apply to the year's upland cotton crop. Price support will be available, but will drop to 50 per cent of parity.

Wang pointed out, "Anyone interested in the production of upland cotton in 1960 is eligible to vote. This includes producers who released all cotton in 1960 but who would otherwise have shared in the cotton production; it also includes producers who planted as much as 75 per cent of the cotton allotment in 1958 or 1959 even though no cotton was planted in 1960 and tenants who would have shared in the cotton in 1960 if cotton had been planted."

New Orleans Parents Feel Segregationist Pressures

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The future of public school integration here remained uncertain today as segregationist pressure threatened to force removal of all white students at the integrated William Frantz School.

Segregationists could look back on a week—the third of integrated classes here—that saw white attendance at Frantz drop from a high of 23, reached Tuesday, to eight Friday. One Negro girl attends the school.

No whites are attending the other integrated school, McDonogh No. 19, where three Negro girls are in the first grade.

Mrs. N. H. Sand, president of Save Our Schools, whose organization has been driving white children to Frantz, said harassment—mainly in the form of telephone calls—had spread to members of her group. She said the calls included threats on life and property and obscene remarks.

Charles L. Barnett of Shreveport, president of the Louisiana Association of Citizens Councils, asked the legislature's Un-American Activities Committee to investigate 12 persons whose automobiles have been used to drive Frantz students to school.

The white students that did show up Friday were escorted by federal deputy marshals.

Marion McKinley, a Baptist seminary student, withdrew his children after a second rock-throwing attack on his home. He said he feared for his son's and his daughter's safety.

Marvin Chandler, another Baptist seminary student, said he kept his children home because of harassment.

Mrs. Delma Windham and Everett L. Polins were given 24-hour police protection because of threats against their families' lives.

"I never thought I would wake up in a free country and find I couldn't send my children to school," Mrs. Windham said.

Police Supt. Joseph I. Giarrusso said that none of the persons who say they have been threatened have given evidence that would justify arrests.

Margaret Conner, mother of four Frantz students, said a man who identified himself as a Citizens Council representative and another man who said he was "with the state" came to her home and offered "protection."

She said the men offered to help her place her children in segregated schools in neighboring St. Bernard Parish.

While attendance at Frantz dropped, the newly opened segregated Arabi elementary annex, set up for children pulled out of the two integrated schools, had 212 pupils, compared with 197 Thursday.

Some 500 other students from the schools are attending regular public schools in St. Bernard Parish.

This leaves about 300 students estimated not going to school, of whom 150 are in kindergarten.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis Friday night made a statewide televised speech, in which he called on citizens to "stand fast."

Davis said that the issue in the struggle was "whether or not Louisiana, and the other states of our nation will continue to be sovereign, and free of federal influence in the conduct of their internal affairs."

Contradictions In Traffic Toll

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's accident death rate may hit a record low this year, the National Safety Council says. But fatal mishaps are on the increase.

The council attributes the contradiction to a steady rise in the nation's population which is outdistancing the death rate from accidents of all kinds.

The council said statistics for the first nine months this year indicate a death rate for the year of 51.1 for every 100,000 persons. The low record of 52.4 deaths was set in 1959.

Fatal accidents for the first nine months totaled 68,500, an increase of one per cent over the same period last year. But the population has increased two per cent.

DEFECTOR
CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Gustav Hart, brother of Cuba Education Minister Armando Hart, has defected from Cuba to seek "peace, tranquility and work" in Venezuela. Hart told reporters "the situation in Cuba is intolerable."

More Telephones For Rural Area

Telephone Company construction forces have begun work on a project which provides placing additional facilities along U.S. Highway 264 East of Greenville to Grimesland and vicinity to serve some 53 applicants and the location of one paystation.

This was disclosed today by Frank Harrington, local manager for Carolina Telephone at Greenville, who stated the project involves placing approximately 11 miles of buried cable and three miles of aerial wire at an estimated expenditure of $45,095.

This is one of many such rural projects being undertaken by the Telephone Company to provide service to its 41-county operating territory.

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A curious headache chemical, safety-first medicine cabinet, and familiar hydrogen peroxide figure in this week's Focus on Health:

Headache Agent

A medical team tells of finding a strange chemical involved in migraine-type headaches. This chemical, named neurokinin, apparently increases susceptibility to pain.

Neurokinin apparently is released when nerve cells are excited, and it has powerful ability to dilate blood vessels, say Dr. Harold G. Wolff and associates of New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center in the Archives of Neurology. Neurokinin apparently is formed in human tissues by a special enzyme, the researchers find.

Flu Vaccine
With winter and flu threats approaching, experts are urging flu shots especially for anyone with heart or blood vessel diseases.

Medical evidence over the last three years has confirmed that risks from influenza are greater for patients with heart or lung ailments than for other persons, say Dr. A. Carlton Ernestine, president of the American Heart Assn., and Dr. James Watt, director of the National Heart Institute.

Safe Medicine Cabinet
A medicine cabinet which will open only when two particular buttons are pushed simultaneously ly has been developed by Dr. A. L. Chapman of the U.S. Public Health Service.

The idea is to make it impossible for children to open the cabinet and accidentally swallow dangerous drugs. The cabinet, now being considered for manufacture, has five buttons, but opens only when the second and fourth buttons are spaced too far apart for a child's hand to span. Drug poisoning killed more than 400 children in 1958, comments Scope Weekly.

New Job
Hydrogen peroxide, an old medical standby, seems destined for revival as a germ killer in ointment form, says Drs. Herbert M. Cobe and Emanuel Plouis of Temple University.

The ointment cleanses wounds, and also appears effective against some of the most resistant strains of staphylococci, which are responsible for many serious infections.

Taking Those Shots
Let a child see himself being injected with a medical needle, if he wants to look, advises Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, New York State Commissioner of Health. If a child is told not to look, you implant the idea that a needle is something to fear, and an injection is too terrifying to be seen. Don't tell a child not to cry; tears are often his best friend at such moments. Above all, tell the truth. You'll lose face if you tell a child a needle will not hurt when obviously it will.

Fishing Interests To Clash At Hearing

By CHARLES L. WEST
MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—Commercial and sports fishing interests clash here today at a hearing over an issue of fishing rights.

An advisory committee of the State Board of Conservation and Development has recommended, under the urging of sports fishing groups across the state, that certain coastal waters be declared off-limits to fishing trawlers. The C&D board's fisheries committee ordered today's hearing to air the question.

Behind the issue is a basic economic question: Which is worth more, the income from this commercial fishing or the income from tourists attracted by sports fishing? Both now, and in the long run?

The North Carolina Fisheries Association contended that the recommendation is a threat to the very livelihood of commercial fishermen and rallied supporters to the hearing with a leaflet declaring:

"Unless you are there to make your voice heard and show the strength of the commercial fishing industry, administrative action by the C & D committee may wipe you out without another chance for you to defend yourself."

A. W. Daniels of Cedar Island and Charlotte was chairman of the C&D advisory committee which studied the question and recommended the ban against trawler fishing within the three-mile territorial limit from Cape Fear to Cape Fear and within certain areas of Pamlico Sound.

Daniels explained that the proposal, prepared after petitions from many of the state's sports fishing organizations, was designed to prevent slaughter of small fish in coastal spawning and growing grounds.

But the commercial fishermen's viewpoint, as expressed in the leaflet, was:
"For many years the commercial fishing industry has been sniped at and whittled down by pressure groups, coming principally when (various groups) feel that they have the necessary strength to make the final blow and drive you from the state."

LADY in the MARKET

BY FRANCES V. RUMMELL

From the novel "Aunt Jane McPhipps and Her Baby Blue Chips," published by Prentice-Hall, Inc. © 1960 by Frances V. Rummell. Distributed by King Features

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Jane McPhipps is faced with the same problem that confronts many another widow in her late forties whose husband spent practically all the money he earned: how to make a living. She was a teacher before her marriage, but now, "I'm too old to get a regular job teaching," is the news she has for her sympathetic neighbors, Eleanor Forbes and Rosemarie and Al Bonelli.

"Playing the stock market" seemed a promising way to increase her few thousand dollars when induced by her late husband's employer, Mr. Gresham, to invest $3,000 in a stock.

For the next few months, thanks to San Francisco's mild winters, practically the whole city remained pink with health, and Jane received fewer calls than usual for substitute teaching.

Consequently, during the rare times she did fill in, she began telling fellow teachers about her new magazine subscription service. She didn't have any such service yet, to be sure; but what was there to it besides getting some orders? Jane got out Horace's ancient typewriter, typed out two hundred announcements of her new subscription service, and began distributing them in earnest.

Her handiwork looked so business like and thoughtful it made her heart soar, and she was especially pleased with her inspirational touch: "Subscribers calling from outside the Bay Area, please call collect." And Jane began rushing home from her rounds to take all the telephone calls. None came.

In late winter, through Rosemarie's influence, she took a part-time job at a department store, polishing silver. Jane might have rubbed the silver harder had she known what Mr. Gresham was up to with her dollars. But, wholly ignorant of the stock market, she did not even know how or what to wonder about it, and consequently she dismissed the whole prospect to a sort of wordless cold storage. Once in a while, when ever she felt hope rising, Al would quash it by worrying.

"I just hope," he once said outright, "you can get your three thousand back."

Starting wouldn't hurt me any," Jane replied loftily.

It was six months and three weeks from the day of Horace's funeral when Mr. Gresham called Jane again. She was sitting reading at the time, with Kim, her Siamese cat, in her lap. Mr. Gresham didn't waste any words at all, but got straight to the point.

of what he had said. Yes, he had said 'nine thousand dollars'. He had even said 'nine thousand one hundred dollars and a few cents'. She had blindly written the figures on the telephone pad before her.

Stiffing with excitement she figured her profits, less commissions. She had cleared $6,109.33!

She looked at the clock. It would be two hours before Al and Rosemarie and Eleanor would be home to hear the news. She hastily changed her dress to a suit, left the apartment, and hailed a cab.

"To the Mart," she said as if cabs were her way of life—and sat back to revel in the vistas of San Francisco.

When the taxi turned abruptly from Bush Street into Grant Avenue, Jane recalled her destination barely in time to check the meter and fish deep in her worn bag for change.

She knew exactly what she wanted at the Mart. For years she had bought her shoes at a self-help outlet store. Now, her eyes sparkling, she entered the Italian Shoe Salon, where an accented gentleman with the manner of a Swiss banker moved her to a tapestried chair.

Jane paid too much for high-heeled pumps from Florence and then floated up Geary Street and paid too much for a hat with blue roses. Topping off everything, she indulged in a mocha and raspberry Dreamboat. The pumps adorned her shapely ankles, the hat matched her blue eyes, and if the Dream added a few ounces to her contours, this was no day to think about consequences.

That evening when Al and Rosemarie got home, Eleanor was always being detained by faculty meetings—Jane had chilled martinis waiting, and her sense of theater was heightening by the moment. Inviting them in, she waved them grandly to their chairs and offered the martinis, which in themselves signalled a thrilling departure.

"Who," grinned Al, "gave you a bottle of gin?"

"You'd never guess!" Jane replied. Then she showed them her hat, and held up a handsome foot for their appraisal.

"Those pumps," Rosemarie said accusingly, "did not come from any discount house."

"Quit when you're ahead. Never touch the market again," Jane looked thunderstruck.

"You mean rein in your horse at the goal post? Not me!"

A second look at Jane's radiant face finally broke Al's resistance. "Jane cued him in. 'To think this kind of thing has been going on—and nobody told me!'"

"Such beginner's luck shouldn't happen to a dog," Al went on sadly. "Gives you phony ideas." "All!" chided Rosemarie. "Quit moping Get happy. Jane's done it!"

From this point on, considering everything, it took only a brief time for Jane to be convinced that what had happened once was bound to happen again. Finally, with martinis improving his outlook, even Al began to join in.

"Gresham just acted out of a guilty conscience," he argued. "He's not so bright. Anybody could do the same thing."

"Jane could!" said Rosemarie. "She's always been smart."

"I'll build a whole library on the stock market," Jane replied.

But what really turned the trick, and what really made Jane's protests about her brilliance become a whisper, was Eleanor listened wistfully to the startling news. Sipping her drink she became wide-eyed as Al assured her she was in the presence of a financial genius. And it was Eleanor—she finally turned him down, he returned to Brussels.

From that time, almost to the moment she met Armstrong-Jones the princess noticeably saddened, and even at times became bored with life.

When she and Armstrong-Jones returned to London after their honeymoon last spring, they set about making their new life. Margaret in public and private, became a very gay girl, laughing uproariously at jokes and making plenty of her own. She now appears in public more than any time in her life. She also goes to lots of private parties.

Princess Now A Different Person

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—When Princess Margaret goes to Brussels next week for King Baudouin's wedding, Europeans will see a greatly changed young woman.

Sad and reflective after her broken romance with Peter Townsend, she's now being called "Merry Margaret."

Seven months of marriage to Anthony Armstrong-Jones have brought her the change.

"She's blissfully happy," says one of her oldest friends. "They're terribly in love and you could hardly imagine a marriage working out better."

A gay, informal, and often breezy young man, Tony has unquestionably filled a great void in the life of the once-pensive princess.

With him she will visit Brussels—a city that is not without romantic memories for Margaret.

When the princess and Townsend fell in love in London—he was then an aide at Buckingham Palace—certain authorities not very subtly transferred Townsend to the Belgian capital.

Love letters flew back and forth across the English channel. The telephone between Brussels and London got plenty of business. Townsend returned to London to ask her to marry him.

And when—after much heart-searching—she finally turned him down, he returned to Brussels.

Community Club Of Swift Creek Hears Discussion
AYDEN—A discussion on "Living With Other People" was presented to members of Swift Creek Community Club by Mrs. Amelia S. Capshaw, county Negro home economics agent, recently.
In addition to the discussion subject matter, the agent answered questions relating to the Social Security program and its benefits. The meeting was held at the recently renovated home of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Allen who moved from Rt. 2, Ayden, to S Lee St. in Ayden. Recordings of Christmas music were heard.
Henry Suges, vice chairman, conducted the devotion.
A short business session followed, during which time plans were made for the first meeting in January, to be held at the home of the president, William Pittman. A meeting for home demonstration club members was scheduled to take place at the home of Mrs. Martha Jones, Rt. 1, Grifton.
A social hour climaxed the meeting. Christmas party games were played and refreshments were served.
Miss Gracie Cheek, assistant home economics agent, attended the meeting.
