Kennedy Taps Brother, Douglas Dillon To Fill Two Cabinet Posts Fires, Terror And Heavy Casualties; Fear Over 100 Deaths In Disaster

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy today named his brother, Robert F. Kennedy, attorney general in his administration, and chose Douglas Dillon to be secretary of the Treasury Department.

Robert F. Kennedy, 35, was the president-elect's campaign manager. He was counsel of the Senate, rackets investigating committee.

This is the first time in U.S. history that a president, or president-elect, has chosen a brother to be in his Cabinet.

White, Denver, Colo., attorney, to be deputy attorney general. White, a former All America football player, will serve under Kennedy's brother in the Justice Department.

Dillon, 51, is now undersecretary of state, and is a Republican. His appointment is one of the financial community will likely view as assurance there will be no radical fiscal experiments in the Kennedy administration.

NEW YORK (AP)—Two big airlines—one of them a jet—collided in a snow-filled sky over New York today, and crashed in widely separated parts of the city, spreading fire, terror, and heavy casualties. It was the first crash in America of a pure jetliner with passengers.

The planes carried a total of 123 persons. Only seven survivors were reported.

There was a plane, completely wrecked, in the street. The flames were so intense I couldn't get any closer than a block."

School Board Asks Study Of Broadening TV Courses

The Greenville City School Board has become the first in North Carolina to favor the idea of the state's exploring the possibility of making educational television available to all schools in the state.

Also brought out was the fact that several students in the western part of the state have been taking television science courses and are passing all their examinations with ease.

The board, at a luncheon meeting yesterday, passed a motion favoring such a program and designated J. H. Rose, superintendent of schools, to draw up the resolution. The program would not be compulsory.

After Freeman had been named he stepped aside and was replaced next to Kennedy by Rep. George McGovern, D-S.D., who ran unsuccessfully for a U. S. Senate seat in November. Kennedy said he had chosen McGovern to serve as director of the new administration's food-for-peace program—a plan for building good will abroad through distribution of American surplus farm commodities.

Black has figured since Kennedy's election as a possibility for the attention on that position shifted a week ago to Douglas Dillon, undersecretary of state in the outgoing Eisenhower administration, after the President-elect had met with Dillon at the latter's Washington home. Dillon has a background in the investment banking business.

Two Meningitis Cases In Farmville School Reported

FARMVILLE — Two cases of what may be virus encephalitis or meningitis among H. B. Sugg High School students here have resulted in one death and an alarmed neighborhood.

Death came to 14-year-old Sylvia Simms early Wednesday in a Wilson hospital where she had been transferred immediately after she was brought unconscious to Dr. John M. Mewborn's office Tuesday.

As for languages, "With the aid of the teachers, we can do more than we could with the old program in the field of foreign languages," Rose said.

Industrial School The board unanimously endorsed the idea of an Industrial Educational Center for Pitt County, and thus added its approval to that of other organizations throughout Pitt County.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A 73-year-old little man with wavy white hair was held in $100,000 bond today on a charge that he intended to turn himself into a human bomb aimed at the life of President-elect John F. Kennedy.

Richard Paul Pavlick, retired postal worker from Belmont, N.H., was given a hearing before U.S. Commissioner George L. Pink Thursday night. Pink said the bond was one of the highest ever set in this city.

Allies Warned To Be Wary Of New Moves By Nikita

PARIS (AP)—U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter warned the Western Allies today to be wary of an expected campaign by Soviet Premier Khrushchev for renewal of East-West negotiations.

Herter read the message from the outgoing American president, who is regarded as one of the founding figures of the NATO alliance. He served as the alliance's first supreme commander and gave the NATO program strong support in eight years as head of the American government.

Party Held At Country Club

The Lakewood Pines Garden Club held their annual Christmas dinner at the Greenville Country Club Tuesday with their husbands as guests.

Five circular tables facing the oblong head table were decorated with tall brass candleholders in groups of three holding red tapers and surrounded by greenery and red berries. The guests found their places at the tables by the matching of famous couples of history and drama.

Prior to the dinner, punch and cheese straws were served from a table featuring a large red candle surrounded by greenery.

The highlight of the evening was the judging of gaily wrapped Christmas packages brought by the members. F. F. Hendrix, assisted by E. G. Culbertson and A. L. Whitehurst, distributed the winning ribbons and the packages.

Mrs. W. V. Crawley won the tri-color award, Mrs. G. E. Treathan Jr. the blue ribbon, Mrs. R. S. Lowe the red ribbon, Mrs. J. T. Barnhill the yellow ribbon, and Mrs. P. A. Jordan Jr. the white ribbon.

Mrs. A. L. Whitehurst was the chairman of the affair, assisted by Mrs. Sam Sewall and Mrs. Richard Heller.

Mrs. Cameron Gives Program

The December meeting of the Elmhurst Garden Club was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Fannie Gilbert.

Christmas decorations were used throughout the home.

Mrs. Phil Goodson Jr., president, presided over a short business meeting. The decorated doors on the homes of the club members will be judged Thursday afternoon, December 22. The club voted to present ribbons to the winners.

Mrs. Norman Cameron gave the program on "Uses and Abuses of Christmas Greens." She stated that the use of greenery has been traced back to ancient times. We should appreciate our Christmas trees as they are exposed to many dangers as fire, weather, and animals. The American Holly has been used so much that it is extinct in many places. For this reason substitutes should be used.

During the social hour the hostess served refreshments appropriate for the season while the members exchanged handmade gifts.

Insomnia In The Dark Ages
Sleep in the dark ages was no bed of luxury. A pallet of straw in the corner, sacking stuffed with wool, a plank wooden box to rest the weary body on... were often the best accommodations available. The luxury of the Greeks and Romans gave way to a period of disorganization which was reflected in every phase of living. Many homes today are in the dark ages as far as their mattresses and springs are concerned. Lumpy, saggy bedding can be just as uncomfortable as a pile of straw. If not more so. Even old mattresses that seem smooth on the outside often have shifting inner materials that cause restlessness through the night. If you've had your mattress and springs more than eight or nine years it's a good idea to check on the buoyancy and support that the bedding provides.

A Fairyland Of Christmas Dolls

Tips For Christmas Tree Shoppers

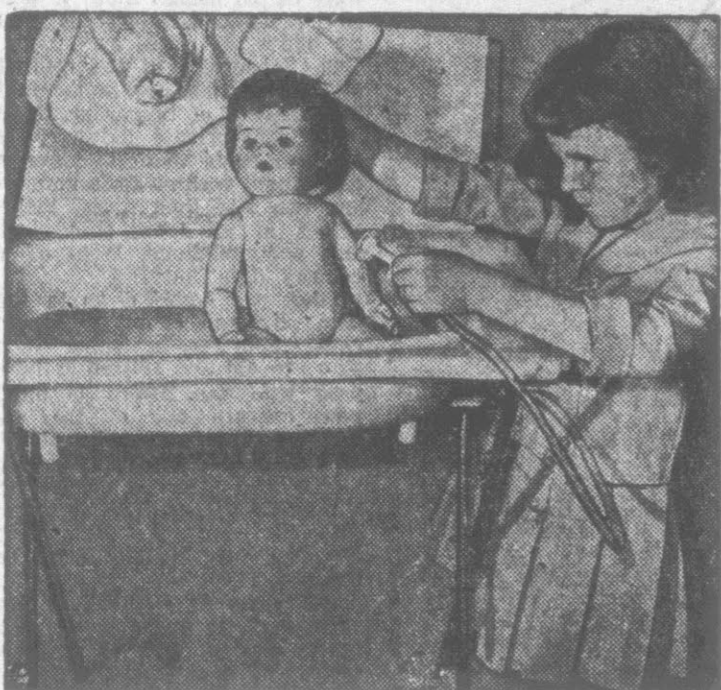

DOLL HOUSE: A real mansion, providing luxury for its doll-size occupants.

STUFFED ANIMALS are Moonniks — inspired by outer space.

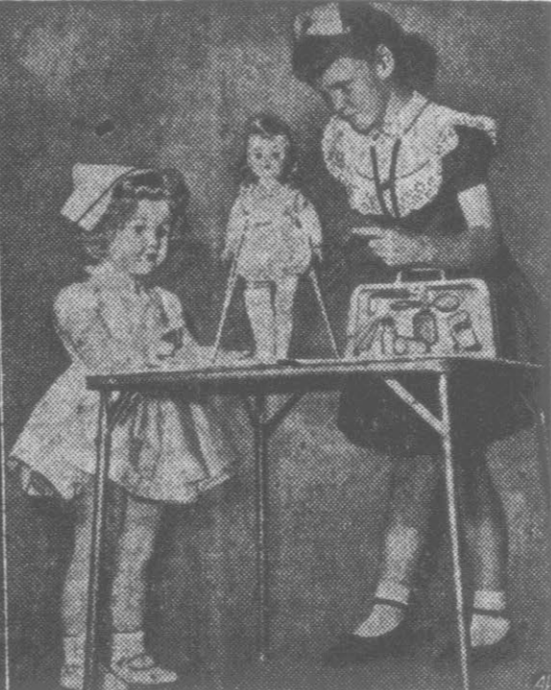

CAREER GIRLS: Doll at left is a business girl, the other wears formal dress for a night out.

SPRAY BATH: New addition to the real as life accessories for the doll nursery.

CUTE KEWPIE: Doll has moveable joints and a permanent smile.

LITTLE MISS NURSE: Has a doll assistant and a doll patient.

Buying a Christmas tree needn't be a grab-and-hope proposition if you go shopping armed with the knowledge of what's a good buy and what isn't.

Martin L. Davey, a tree care expert from Kent, Ohio, stocks your arsenal with these tips:

Select a tree that is not dried out. To make sure appearances don't fool you, make two simple tests. Feel twigs and foliage between thumb and index finger. If the twigs aren't resilient or if the needles are dry and crumbly, look around for a better buy.

Also, thump the butt sharply on the floor. If the needles shower down, look further. Not only will a dry tree look scraggly in a short time, but it's a fire menace.

What variety to choose? For indoor splendor, the balsam and Douglas firs and common spruce are usually available. The first, though usually more expensive, hold their foliage well although branching may be a bit sparse. Spruce trees are likely to be straight, symmetrical and well branched, but are allergic to heated rooms and will shed their needles quite rapidly. Most of the long needled pines hold their foliage well, but tend to be broader in general outline, are likely to have crooked trunks and are less symmetrical. Trees of this type, however, are well adapted for flocking or spraying with white or colored "snow." Junipers, arborvitae and false cypress hold their foliage well but availability is usually limited to local markets. They lack the traditional Christmas tree form.

A practice rapidly gaining favor is that of buying a Christmas tree for after-holiday outdoor planting. In this case, deal with a reputable local nurseryman and buy a balled tree with its root system intact. With proper watering it will survive the ordeal of lights, trimming and over-heated rooms until it is added to the outdoor landscape. The buyer needs to be particularly aware of so-called bargains. Check for all-round form, branching, freshness and

Bride-Elect Is Honored

GRIFTON—Miss Joyce Koon, bride-elect, whose marriage to Calvin Cameron will take place Dec. 23rd, was guest of honor at a party given by Miss Doris Jones and Mrs. Albert Tyson Thursday night in the fellowship hall of the Christian Church.

A color note of green and white was carried out with the use of white gladioli and greenery. Guests were greeted by the hostesses and the guest of honor, Miss Koon's costume was of winter white complemented by a white mink corsage, a gift of the hostesses.

A number of party games were played during the evening directed by Mrs. Tyson.

At the refreshment hour punch, bridal squares and salted nuts were served from a table overlaid with a green linen cloth and centered with a silver bowl of white gladioli and tall white candles.

Mrs. J. C. Koon, mother of the bride-elect, poured punch and bridal cakes were served by Mrs. Ray Cameron, mother of the groom-to-be.

Later in the evening the honoree was presented an array of gifts from the 30 guests.

Fraternity Has Christmas Dinner

Rev. W. J. Hadden Jr., minister of the Eighth Street Christian Church last night addressed the Gamma Theta Upsilon Fraternity at their annual Christmas dinner.

The fraternity, a national professional geography organization, met at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Cramer.

Rev. Hadden showed colored slides and talked on his trip to Europe last summer.

To observe Women's Day Sunday, December 18, will be observed as Women's Day at Triumph Baptist Church, Route 3, Washington, N. C. Women will serve in all capacities with the address being given by Mrs. Willie M. Hawkins of Grimesland. Come and worship with us on this day of fellowship.

Hints For The Post-Christmas Cleanup

The job of "undecking" the halls of their boughs of holly can be almost as much fun as putting them up if the whole family helps.

The tired tree is the main item to be dismantled. By using an assembly line technique, you'll be surprised at the speed with which the tree and its ornaments can be whisked away.

Let the tallest member of the family hand down the ornaments one at a time to one of the older youngsters who wipes each one off with a sudsy sponge before handing it on to the next helper. He dries the ornament, wraps it in tissue, and packs it away in a partitioned box. This box goes at the bottom of the big carton used for storing the tree decorations. The tinsel goes next, then the star or angel for the top of the tree, and the lights last.

Next year, all you'll have to do is open the carton and trim the new tree by starting with the items on the top of the box working down. What's more, everything will be shining clean and ready to use.

Put a sheet on the floor and lay the old tree in it for carrying through the house without leaving a trail of dry needles. And if you find your carpet littered with tiny bits of fluff from the cotton batting at the tree base, vacuum up as much as you can, then take up the last bits with one of the little rough rubber sponges used on suede shoes.

Carry another carton or basket to the living room to gather other bits of greenery from the mantel, doorway, and mirror without scattering needles or dried holly berries on the floor.

Remove the ribbon from artificial wreaths and dip quickly in warm soap or detergent suds, rinse, then dry thoroughly before storing for next Christmas. The ribbon can be pressed face down under a piece of waxed paper to regain its original crispness.

After the decorations have been stored away, check to see if they have left any sticky pitch spots. A sudsy cloth will remove them easily before they collect grime. Wax drippings from candles can be scraped off carefully from wooden surfaces with a wooden mixing spoon or other blunt object with a dry cloth.

If you find blobs of candle wax on your best tablecloth, scrape away as much as possible, then place the spots between white blotters and press with a warm iron, changing the blotters as they become soiled. If there is still a faint stain, sponge with carbon tetrachloride or another grease solvent and launder the cloth in hot suds.

To remove cranberry spots or coffee stains from a white cloth, stretch the spots over a bowl, then pour boiling water on them from a height of two or three feet. To avoid scalding your fingers, use a rubber band or string to secure the cloth around the bowl before you start pouring. Stains caused by dinner wines and cream sauces can be sponged out with warm soap or detergent suds, then rinsed thoroughly. And the sooner you get after the spots, the easier they are to remove. Meat juice stains should be soaked in cold water, then sponged with warm suds. Gravy spots should be sponged with cold or lukewarm water immediately after the table is cleared before they have time to "set." Lipstick marks can be removed from napkins by rubbing them first with glycerine, then washing in warm suds.

Early Bedsprings

Do the beds in your home have the resilience that makes for good sleeping comfort? Bedsprings were not always made with such high quality precision and engineering as they are today. Taking a long look back, the first bedsprings made by the early Greeks were nothing but braided leather thongs stretched between heavy boards at the side of the bed. In America, the early pioneers likewise used leather thongs for springs. Today, bedsprings are a far cry from what they used to be. If you're not sleeping well these nights it might pay you to examine what you're resting on. Your insomnia may be caused by a faulty spring foundation.

We May Still Need More Revenues

Revenue collections of North Carolina during the first five months of this fiscal year show encouraging improvements over last year, but so far the gains are not sufficient to indicate the 1961 legislature will not face difficult financial problems.

During the first five months of the current fiscal year, general fund collections of the state are reported at 8.8 per cent over the same period a year ago, not counting income taxes collected under the withholding system. Withholding tax collections during the year will be off-set to an appreciable extent by a drop in state revenues next April when the income taxes normally would have been due.

The increase in revenues of the state so far this year indicate a rise in business activity in North Carolina over the same period last year. November general fund collections, which were 17.6 per cent above those of a year ago, likewise suggest that the tempo of business activity is increasing as the fiscal year progresses.

When the 1959 legislature adopted the plan to use for operating expense the 27 1/2 million windfall of revenues brought about by withholding personal income taxes, proponents of the measure predicted that improvements in the state economy during the biennium would more than make up for this amount of money.

It is true that the revenues of the state so far in this fiscal year have increased appreciably. There is greater hope now than ever before that the increase in revenues—exclusive of the windfall collections—may make up for the non-recurring withholding revenues that is being spent for recurring expenses. But even with the improvement in the state's financial picture there is still no guarantee that revenues will reach the predicted level.

There is still the real possibility that the 1961 legislature may be required to seek additional sources of revenue even to keep state services at their present level during the legislature and the new administration of Gov.-elect Terry Sanford will not be content to allow state services to continue at their present level. Indeed, Sanford pegged his successful campaign on the contention that services—particularly in the field of public education—must be substantially increased.

The rosy picture of revenue collections by the state therefore cannot be construed as making a rosy situation for the 1961 legislature when it gets down to brass tacks of preparing a balanced budget for the next biennium. It will cost more in the next biennium to provide the same level of services than it is costing in this biennium. More revenues will be required to make up this difference.

On top of that, the legislature must also provide for the expenditures over and above appropriations which are now in effect. And there is every reason to expect that there will be a substantial increase in proposed expenditures during the coming biennium.

Any way you slice it, the 1961 legislature will face serious and difficult financial problems... perhaps the most serious and the most difficult of any legislature in recent years.

The Dictionary Isn't Much Help

By LYNN NISBET

TRANSPORTATION — The highway commission is confronted with a problem, which is shared by residents in coastal and outer banks communities involving the definition of a highway. The dictionary isn't much help, in view of precedents established in the past. Legislative acts and judicial decisions sometimes tend to confuse rather than simplify the problem.

Many years ago the State of North Carolina embarked on a long range program for eliminating tolls on land based highways, for taking tolls off ferries across rivers and sounds, and for replacing ferry boats with bridges.

This program has included the building of bridges across mountains and valleys and tunnels under mountains, as well as innumerable overpasses and underpasses at highway and railroad crossings. In several instances the State has taken over, either by gift or purchase, facilities which had been installed and operated by private profit enterprise. Outstanding examples of that policy are the Yonahlossee Trail, built by the late Hugh MacRae between Blowing Rock and Linville and later taken over as US 221; and the Oregon Inlet ferry service between Bodie and Hatteras Islands.

Private toll ferries have been taken by the State and operated toll free and then been replaced by bridges. Always some problems arose as to compensation, availability of funds, and such matters. Now the highway commission faces a different problem in the proposition of taking over the Cedar Island-Ocracoke ferry service, being abandoned by the Taylor brothers.

BIGGER — The difference is in degree rather than in kind of operation. This is by far the longest ferry run ever proposed for the State and some of the highway commissioners object to going into the maritime business. Undoubtedly the ferry would be of great value to the communities immediately affected, and to the whole state. Local people argue that it is the duty of the state to render this service, in order to equalize opportunities with other communities that have paved roads and bridges. Failure to establish ferry service will be to deny Ocracoke and the upper end of Carteret county any chances for permanent growth. Some of these arguments appear unanswerable, until the total cost of the project is considered against the total service it might render. That is when the highway folks begin to wonder if they can justify the expenditure.

One thing is certain, the matter of a public ferry service between Ocracoke and the mainland will be a live issue for several years to come. Representatives of the area let it be known at a hearing in the highway commission offices that if they do not get a favorable answer now they will be back again and again.

SEAFOOD — A group of State officials and newspaper folks were guests at a seafood luncheon Wednesday given by Elmer Willis and his associates at Balentine's Cameron Village Restaurant. From hot clam chowder through shrimp, crabmeat and oyster cocktails, oysters and shrimp cooked in almost every conceivable way, vegetables—raw and cooked — and a variety of desserts, some of the city-bred guests marveled at the way fishermen eat.

DISTRIBUTION — John R. Mullin, purchasing agent for H. J. Heinz, told the group that all the claims used by his company for worldwide distribution are bought in North Carolina. Many other seafoods also are purchased here.

L. Y. Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture, commenting on the variety and quality of North Carolina seafoods, emphasized that the state also produces wide variety of other foods — meat and vegetable. "It can almost be said," observed Ballentine, "that if it is edible it is being, or can be, grown in North Carolina in quality and quantity."

This luncheon was one in a series encouraged and jointly sponsored by the Board of Conservation and Development, the Department of Agriculture and State College, to promote the processing and marketing of North Carolina food products. Dairy products, poultrymen and fruit growers have staged similar affairs.

SECRETARY — Governor-elect Terry Sanford attended the luncheon, but Governor Hodges was in Washington getting briefed on his new duties as Secretary of Commerce. Speaking for him his private secretary, Harold Makepeace, quipped that Hodges has a boss now, and when the boss calls he has to go—instead of me. "He is finding out what it means to be a secretary."

Young Leaders Are Coming Up

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy's administration will be the first wave of the future.

By electing Kennedy, 43, president, this country — along among the big nations — has made the first clean break with the past.

One by one in the 1960s the giants who dominate the world scene now — all either ancient or aging — will disappear off the stage of history.

By the end of this decade most, probably all, will be out of positions of leadership.

Kennedy alone among the big world leaders is both young and new in the sense that he has no direct link with the past in making, shaking or shaping the world.

The others like retiring President Eisenhower, are holdovers from the past.

Eisenhower, now 70, is typical of those others. In one way or another—in his case in several ways — he was one of the active forces in molding the world of the pre-1960s.

He was allied commander in Europe during the war, commander of NATO in Europe in the early 1950s, and president eight years.

But all of the present world leaders either came to prominence, and remained it, during and after the war or even preceding the war.

Nowhere among the big nations since the war, until now in the case of Kennedy, has a new and young man appeared.

Take some examples: West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, now 84, emerged after the war and has been the German leader since.

French President Charles de Gaulle, now 70, emerged as leader of the Free French during the war, served as president, retired, and now has come back to dominate France again. Soviet Premier Khrushchev, 66, built up stature during the war by his services under Stalin and has been the real Soviet leader since the old dictator died in 1953.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, 66, has a long record of public service but didn't reach the top spot until 1957.

Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito, 68, became his country's leader during the war and still is in charge.

Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek, 72, was a towering figure in China as long ago as the 1920s and, although the Red Chinese threw him off the mainland, he's still boss of Formosa. Of all the present world leaders, Chiang has the longest record of holding the top job.

India's Prime Minister Nehru, 71, was long a prominent figure in his country, although overshadowed by Gandhi. He became a giant after the war.

In Spain there is Generalissimo Francisco Franco, 68, who took charge in the 1930s and is still boss.

And finally there is Red China's Mao Tse-tung, 67. He was leader of the Chinese Communists before the war and now that they dominate mainland China he still is top man.

While it may seem extraordinary that this country should have chosen a man of 43 for its leader, young leaders may be the rule by the end of this decade, not the exception.

With the younger men will come new ideas and new energies which in retrospect may make the turmoil of 1960 look like a collection of stupidities or, by comparison with what lies ahead, a golden age of peace and quiet.

Opinions In Brief

"There are two very difficult things in the world; one is to make a name for one's self and the other is to keep it."—Robert Schumann.

"In today's world there are few things of greater importance than introducing young Americans to the realities of international affairs and preparing them to exert world leadership through their various fields of competence."—President Eisenhower.

"The statistics on total unemployment make no distinctions among many diverse situations. The sole support of a large family unable to find work counts no more heavily in the figures than a teen-ager looking for a baby-sitting job. It is even possible for four persons to be counted as unemployed when the head of the family loses his job and the housewife and two children in college go looking for work. Among the labor force are many on temporary or seasonal work who have been laid off for a time, are changing jobs, or don't really want to work."—Saturday Evening Post.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS From The Human Standpoint A superficial reading of the Bible sometimes leads us to overlook the fact that Jesus always preferred to designate himself as the Son of Man. He seemed to enjoy his human status although, of course, he was deeply aware of the divine nature of his life.

What sort of a man was Jesus? We can be sure he was strong of body. Men who follow his trade almost always are. His sufferings on the cross indicate his physical stamina. Also he was keen of mind. He loved people. He was a sought-after dinner guest, and he appears never to have turned down a dinner invitation. He had a way of picking out the most needy and unfortunate person in a crowd.

Children loved him, for we read that they quite overwhelmed him on one occasion much to the scandal of the disciples. But this man had played with them. They had been on his knee many times before. Jesus loved the homes of his friends. He had a pathetic longing for the love of his fellow man. Jesus had a quality of courage we may accurately term as perfect. He knew whether his words and actions were leading. They were leading to death. Yet he went on speaking the truth, living it, walking into the very arms of death. Entirely apart from his divine nature, this Jesus was a wonderful man. Time is dated from his birth. Others have influenced history; he has transformed it. "His name shall be called Wonderful," was the prophecy concerning him.

Follow The Leader

By ALVIN TAYLOR

So---Let's Have A Navy

Everybody agrees that the state of North Carolina should take over the Taylor Brothers ferry which operated from Ocracoke to Sea Level last summer.

From a tourist standpoint the luxurious boat is recognized as a distinct asset to Coastal North Carolina which is rapidly developing as a nationally known resort area.

Trouble is, nobody knows just who in the state government should operate this vessel which has plied North Carolina's inland waters.

The governor says he is agreeable to allowing highway funds for its purchase, but the State Highway Commission maintains, perhaps properly, that it is not a function of the Highway Commission to operate such a ferry.

Well, I can't blame the Highway Commission. After all, they only recently got rid of the prisons. But it does seem a shame to see such a fine ferry disappear from the North Carolina scene—especially when it can mean so much for this state.

So I propose a solution to this dilemma. What the State of North Carolina needs, with its far flung system of islands and coast lines, is a Department of the Navy.

The Navy commissioner, if such a job were created by the next Legislature, wouldn't have to sit around and twiddle his thumbs awaiting something to do. His work would be cut out, because at the same time the law makers created his job they could appropriate an appropriation to purchase the ferry boat "Sea-Level."

It would be a proud day for the outer bankers, a sea loving people, when the North Carolina Department of Navy's first ship took its first cruise from Ocracoke to Sea Level. Banners would fly and bands would play as North Carolina's first admiral was piped aboard.

The state's one-ship Navy would indeed be a grand sight as it sailed off on a calm sea, sound—bound for the exotic port of Ocracoke.

I tell you, this Department of the Navy has unlimited possibilities. Think how jealous the governor of Nevada would be. Or for that matter the governors of North Dakota, South Dakota, Arizona, Utah, New Mexico, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Kentucky, Tennessee would be green with envy. For, you see, all these states, plus others, are land-locked with no hope of ever maintaining their own navies.

It will be a great day for North Carolina if its Department of Navy is ever created. Here's a call to some Legislator, who wants his name in the history books, to toss such a bill in the hopper the first day the next General Assembly meets.

Other Editors Saying School Bond Issue

(Washington Daily News) Governor-Elect Terry Sanford is going to ask the 1961 North Carolina General Assembly to call for a statewide school bond issue so that more classrooms can be built in North Carolina's schools.

As of now he has not said publicly how large the bond issue might be, but many people over the state have set 200,000,000 as the estimated size of the bond issue to be asked for.

How much opposition over the state will there be to such a proposed school bond issue? We cannot now answer that question with any degree of accuracy, but we are sure there will be some opposition. And it is almost certain that much of the opposition will be of the open type.

When we look over the 100 counties of North Carolina and look at the existing tax structures, we realize that for many of our counties, if such a bond issue is finally approved by the voters, residents of our wealthier counties will be getting much less in return than they will pay out in taxes.

For instance, Mecklenburg county pays out $12 to the state for every dollar it now gets back in return to school funds. Hyde county pays one dollar to the state at present and gets back $16 from the state. In Beaufort county, for every one dollar we pay to the state in taxes, the county gets back in return the sum of $2.80.

Looking at a proposed school bond issue realistically and from the statewide view, is it not reasonable to assume that heavy opposition to such a school bond issue might come from many of the wealthier counties?

But what about counties like Hyde and Beaufort? Will there be open and determined opposition in these two counties? There might be, but we want to say this. If people will only realize that we will be getting much more in return than what we pay out, from the practical standpoint, can we afford to oppose such a bond issue?

In both Beaufort and Hyde county there are many pressing school needs. If the counties of the state are to get funds from a bond issue, if it passes, on a matching basis, then both Beaufort and Hyde counties might feel that the taxpayers cannot afford to tax themselves to improve educational facilities.

On the other hand, we cannot keep going as we are now. Somewhere along the line we must do something to improve our educational facilities and our educational opportunities.

If the larger and wealthier counties of the state do oppose a statewide school bond issue, then it remains for the smaller and poorer counties of the state to bear the burden of passing it.

And if strong opposition does crop up in the smaller and poorer counties, then the death knell could be sounded then and there. It is the smaller counties population-wise which need help the most. Mecklenburg county does not need the school facilities which our Pamlico area needs.

Every citizen has the right to favor or oppose such a statewide bond issue according to the dictates of his own conscience. We freely admit that. But if we who live in poorer counties oppose it, then are we not cutting our own throats in many ways?

Yes, there will be opposition to such a school bond issue. And it will come from many places not now expected to oppose it. It very likely will be a real fight.

Absurd Public View

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

President-elect Kennedy has discovered what other public officials have that it is very difficult to get good men to serve in government unless there is an emergency. There are many reasons for this, not all of them selfish.

In the first place, the absurd attitude of our people toward a conflict of interest keeps many an able man out of government. Naturally, if a man is a top-notch, he has done something with his life before he was offered a temporary position in government. For instance, Robert S. McNamara, president of the Ford Motor Company, in accepting the post of Secretary of Defense, will undoubtedly be expected to divest himself of all his holdings in any company that manufactures anything which the government purchases. Why? Obviously on the assumption that he cannot otherwise be an honest man! If that is our attitude, why offer him the job?

The absurdity of the conflict of interest rule lies in the fact that instead of borrowing these men from private industry, we hope to force them to leave a permanent position for a temporary one and then divest themselves of all their possessions and accumulations. What other country does that?

Thus, we come down to the men who can afford to accept government posts, either men who are old and retired or lawyers who can afford to build new careers out of the advertisement of a public office, or those who possess inherited wealth and prefer a political to a playboy career. The President does not have the best choice; he often has to take what he can get.

The Kennedy Cabinet, as far as it goes, is probably as good as the government's at this moment. The appointment of "Soapy" Williams to a subordinate position in the State Department is a political payoff. It is doubtful if Williams will find this particular position suitable for a man who has been Governor of Michigan. An assistant secretaryship is on the third level on the scale and it does not give a man too much scope.

The appointment of Adlai Stevenson was inevitable as was that of Chester Bowles. Stevenson represents a faction in the Democratic Party that includes such formidable personalities as Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Herbert Lehman, Mrs. Mary Lasker and Mrs. Anna Rosenberg. These can be friendly or very troublesome personalities. Stevenson in the United Nations will have to pursue policies concerning which he can have little to say because the policies originate in the White House or in NATO or in some other remote conference. Henry Cabot Lodge built that position into something quite important because he is a fighter, extraordinarily photogenic and a competent day-by-day debater.

Should Douglas Dillon be appointed Secretary of the Treasury, it will be most fortunate. Douglas Dillon is an economist and a banker. He understands money. He has handled these problems in the State Department. As a matter of fact, in view of our present currency problems, our government ought to mobilize the best talent available on this subject, both orthodox and unorthodox.

Among the most competent money experts in this country are the men who specialize in the mining and buying and selling of metals. As a rule, the orthodox bankers and Treasury officials ignore them although foreign governments do not. After all, what is required today is knowledge, imagination, flexibility, not the stuffiness of an official attitude which having lost our gold cannot think of the simplest devices to keep dollars within this country. The Treasury may turn out, in the Kennedy Administration, to be more important than the State Department.

Somewhere in this Administration there will have to be a man with sufficient courage to try to restore the value of the dollar. This will require tremendous moral courage because it may mean that a ceiling will have to be put on wages, interests, rents, every form of economic activity until the dollar (Continued on page 5)

New Approach To Farm Problem

By ELMER ROESSNER A new approach to the farm problem is offered by two Macalester College economics professors.

Its major point: Provide abundant job opportunities and high wages in town.

The other points: Encourage farmers to do a better job of farming, and to increase the size of their farms. Arthur R. Upgren and Harold I. Lunde based their findings on a study of farms around Austin, Minn. This may cause some bias in the conclusions since the main industry and major source of employment in Austin is the Hormel meat packing plant which the professors said "has long been famous for paying extraordinarily high wages."

The average annual earnings of hourly-paid workers in 1959 was $7,600. "REAL SOLUTIONS" Professors Upgren and Lunde offered these as "real solutions to the farm problem:

"To have abundant job opportunities and high wages in town. A prosperous urban industry will provide expanding markets for farm products and more jobs for small (part-time) farmers and for those who leave the farm. Nothing has done more to raise the income of the small farmer in the Austin area than his taking a job off the farm while still carrying on his farm operations."

"Many farmers, both large and small, are winning substantial incomes by simply doing a better job of farming; by cutting costs, by getting more per acre and per animal, by using less high-priced input for each unit of output, or by improving their management skill."

"Growing bigger. Some farmers are expanding their acreage by renting or buying additional land, thus reducing the per acre or per bushel cost of big machinery."

"HALF HOLD JOBS In a sample of 68 farm families, it was found that at least one member in 25 families has full-time jobs off the farm and 9 have part-time jobs. Among the holders of farms under 80 acres, all 11 families had non-farm workers. On farms from 80 to 160 acres, 18 out of 19 families had nonfarm workers.

Dipping into national figures, the economists showed that between 1945 and 1949, 24 per cent of the farm families had off-farm incomes. In the 1950-54 period, the average was 29 per cent, and in the 1955-59 period, the average had risen to 35 per cent.

The Minnesota professors found that government price supports do not help the farmer who needs them most. Of families studied, four making less than $3,000 a year received nothing from the government, and 16 out of 18 making between $3,000 and $6,000 received nothing.

They made one other significant point:

"By a good many measures farmers are doing better than is often reported.

SEES END OF REAL HOLLY MISTLETOE In another college study, Professor David G. Fables, Jr., of Union Junior College, New Jersey, finds that the red-berryed American holly and the mistletoe have been cut so much for Christmas decoration that they are disappearing. So are club mosses, often used as a substitute. But the commercial growth of Christmas trees will probably keep them abundant.

THAILAND REPLENISHING ITS RUBBER TREES Thailand has imported enough high quality rubber tree seeds for 10,000 acres, to improve and expand its 2,100,000 acres in rubber. Significantly, it shows government determination to continue competition in the world market.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

Every once in a while a voice as though from the grave will speak out and reassure us by showing that a certain bit of the past is not such ancient history after all.

Such was our reaction recently when we discovered that Madame Frances Perkins is not only very much alive, but at 78 is working on a biographical study of Al Smith.

For those under 40, it is in order to explain that Madame Perkins was the first woman to hold cabinet rank in the United States government, and that she dates from the first days of FDR's New Deal. It makes one feel positively young to know that she is still flourishing and, we hope, writing a book which will be as well received as her memoir of Roosevelt.

Another note out of the past is word that Richard Wright, the Negro novelist, is dead in Paris at 52. Wright's popular novel, "Native Son," which was dramatized by Paul Green, was the hit of the 1941 Broadway season. The book is a study of violence caused by fear.

AGGRESSIVE FROGS

Somewhat this reminds us of the interesting paper on aggressive behavior in frogs presented to the College Lecture Club last week by Dr. Bob Haubrich. Dr. Haubrich's conclusion, based upon laboratory experiments, was that the most intelligent frogs are less bad about showing and biting than their less gifted fellows. This, in spite of the fact that we tend to equate intelligence in human beings with ruthless pushiness.

EDUCATIONAL TV

Two notes on TV: The first is that the CBS documentary several weeks ago on migrant farm labor, "The Harvest of Shame," has hit the country hard. Reports are that a number of congressmen and senators who missed the program have had to seek information about it in order to answer letters from constituents who were shocked by what they saw.

The other TV note is that ABC is distributing a list of books on and about Negro history to accompany its serial, "Winston Churchill—The Valiant Years." This list is going to the main public libraries in the country and to anyone who asks for it.

NOTES

Doubleday is coming out with the "Golden Age Cookbook" soon. The author, Phyllis MacDonald, was inspired to write it when she realized how many old people neglect their diet. The recipes in her collection are meant to be cheap, easy to fix, and good for the aging.

Recently the following headline appeared in the magazine "Variety": "Got Lot of Hot Tot Plots." Translated that means that last year the film industry produced more children's classics than every before—an interesting fact in itself.

And here is a good cartoon caption from "Look": Toy salesman to young mother: "This educational puzzle is designed for children in the modern world. No matter how you put it together, it doesn't come out right."

The Toledo Public Library recently entitled a list of recent Civil War works "No Stillness Since Appomattox."

One contribution to this spate of books on the Civil War is the subject of our review this week. Our reviewer is Dr. Robert Williams, who comes from so far South that he considers Senator Claghorn a Yankee.

Hancock the Superb. By Glenn Tucker, Bobbs-Merrill Co., 1960. Winfield Scott Hancock, Federal military commander and Democratic presidential candidate in 1880, has long deserved an adequate biography. He was certainly one of the most admirable of the Civil War generals and one of the best-known figures of his time. Hancock was unequalled as a strategist and tactician. He was bold, imaginative and reliable and was perhaps cheated of the highest commands only because his politics did not square with the Congressmen who so strongly influenced military promotions and honors.

General Hancock stood for integrity in government when the Radical wing of the Republican party was daily subverting the principles of democracy and making a grotesque of Republican government in the Reconstruction of the South. During his short tour of duty as military commander of the Reconstruction district which comprised Texas and Louisiana he endeared himself to many by his belief in the supremacy of the civil government over the military. As a presidential candidate he conducted his campaign, if not with wisdom, with vigor and dignity.

Unfortunately this book neither measures up to the same author's very excellent High Tide at Gettysburg nor does it satisfy the need for a Hancock biography. The text seems too often a collection of disconnected and barely relevant anecdotes interspersed with the fits of battle detail Civil War Chroniclers affect. It is hardly a serious contribution to biography or Civil War history. It certainly sheds no new light on the Reconstruction period or on the politics of the 1870's and 1880's. It will, however, undoubtedly be acceptable to that voracious and easily satisfied legion of Civil War enthusiasts.

Beautifulizing Of Wright Circle Planned By Landscape Artist

The Wright Circle on the East Campus at East Carolina College, now being re-landscaped, is expected to become on completion of new planting and other improvements one of the chief beauty spots on the campus.

Morley J. Williams, landscape architect of New Bern, prepared the plans now being carried out. He has worked with the Tryon Palace grounds, at East Carolina, for the past several years and planned the landscaping of the Palace grounds. At East Carolina the landscaping of the area around Garrett Hall dormitory for women, is the work of Mr. Williams. He has also done extensive planning at North Carolina State College and other institutions in this state.

"Many of the plants and shrubs in Wright Circle which were planted twenty-five years ago," President Leo W. Jenkins said in explanation of the changes currently being carried out, "have grown to such size that they restrict the view of the area and also create a traffic hazard. Some of these shrubs will be removed and new plantings made in accordance with the carefully developed plan of Mr. Williams. It is our wish to make this Circle a beautiful show-place, and at the same time, eliminate all traffic hazards."

New plantings in the circle will add trees, azaleas, and flowers to magnolias, hollies, photinias, dogwoods, and various types of shrubbery already there.

Darlington oaks will line the outside curve. Open spaces will be planted in grass. A triangular bed facing the Wright building will be planted in winter with yellow and purple pansies without "fences" and in summer with calendula and purple verbena. Planting areas for shrubs and flowers will be edged with brick and will have ground covers of ajuga and hypericum.

The fountain now in the center of Wright Circle will be replaced with a new one, which will have phlox subulate colored lights playing on the spray. Bridesmaid azaleas edged with blue will surround the pool around the fountain. A brick seat wall sixteen inches high will be built around the pool. Ivy and bulbs will also be used in this area.

The Wright Circle is named for the late M. L. Wright, who was

Students Offer Annual Program

WINTERVILLE—Students from grades 1 through 12 presented the annual Christmas program recently at Robinson Union Parent-Teacher Association meeting.

Selections rendered by the chorals groups included "Adeste Fideles," "Mary Had a Baby," "Fum, Fum, Fum." The elementary department presented "Away in a Manger," "Jingle Bells," "Bells," "Twelve Days of Christmas" and the "Orchestra."

Prior to the program, a business session was held with David Henderson presiding. Christmas cheer was given to the custodian, maids and bus drivers.

Principal W. Mays expressed appreciation for support given the school and stressed the need for the library service of the new bookmobile project to the community. Special emphasis was placed on the importance of regular attendance for all students. Marvin Carmon was in charge of the Christmas program.

Favor Grouping Culture Bodies

RALEIGH (AP) — The Commission on Reorganization of State Government has released several more recommendations and aimed them at the 1961 General Assembly via the governor's office.

In a report to Gov. Hodges Thursday, the commission made official a proposal for grouping the state's cultural agencies under a single roof in Raleigh.

The commission noted that requests for new buildings for the State Library and Department of Archives and History totaled $4,303,000. However, it did not make any estimate of the cost of the proposed center.

"We believe that the bringing together in such a center of the State Library, the Department of Archives and History, the Museum of Art and the Museum of Natural History can stimulate the interest and pride of the people of North Carolina in their cultural heritage," the report said.

It added the structure could "facilitate and encourage fuller cooperation among those agencies in their common education mission."

The group also suggested the $624,000 provided by the 1959 Assembly for an addition to the present art museum building to be used to finance part of the culture center.

The commission recommended that a nine-member committee be appointed by the 1961 Legislature to develop the proposed building. It also recommended that the Assembly put up the money to acquire land.

On other subjects, the study group suggested that the governor be authorized to name a state capital planning commission to develop a program for meeting the needs of growing government.

It also recommended that improvements be made in staff services and facilities for members of the next General Assembly.

French Search German Vessel

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — French naval vessels, ignoring official Bonn protests, stopped and searched another West German ship in international waters off the North African coast, the Association of German Shipowners said today.

The association said the 4,185-ton freighter Archsum was stopped about 54 miles from Gibraltar by an unidentified French warship and searched for arms. The Archsum was allowed to proceed after showing the ship had no scheduled calls at North African ports.

The French claim that war material for the Algerian rebels is being carried by German ships to North African ports.

Pope Designates 4 New Cardinals

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII today named four new cardinals, including the Most Rev. Joseph E. Ritter, archbishop of St. Louis, Mo.

Two South Americans and an Italian were the others elevated by the pontiff. The Italian prelate is Msgr. Giuseppe Ferretto, a member of the Vatican Curia.

The new Latin-American cardinals are the Most Rev. Luis Concha Cordoba, archbishop of Bogota, and the Most Rev. Jose Umberto Quintero, archbishop of Caracas.

They will be elevated at a secret consistory at the Vatican Jan. 16.

Creation of the four new cardinals will bring the membership of the Sacred College of the Roman Catholic Church to an all-time record of 86.

There was no indication today that the Pope would make public the names of the three cardinals he designated "in pectore" (in his heart) on March 28, 1960. At that time the Pope named seven new cardinals which brought the college to a total of 85, plus the three "in pectore."

The latter, after their names are made known, will be considered to have been members of the college since the March date.

Elevation of Archbishop Ritter brings U.S. representation to six. The others are Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York, Albert Gregory Cardinal Meyer of Chicago, James Francis L. Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles, Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston and Aloysius Cardinal Muench, former bishop of Fargo, N.D., and now a member of the Vatican Curia. John Cardinal O'Hara, archbishop of Philadelphia, died last August.

The consistory will be the fourth called by Pope John to create new cardinals since he became Pope only a little more than two years ago.

In the first three consistories he named a total of 38 cardinals. They included the Roman Catholic Church's first Negro cardinal, first Japanese cardinal and first Filipino cardinal. For the first time in history this gave representation in the college to all the world's major races.

10,000 Letters To Santa Claus

WASHINGTON (AP)—Santa Claus has received more than 10,000 letters from children so far this Christmas season, and a good many of them have been answered. In this case, the recipient is the Santa Claus Post Office in Indiana. The Post Office Department reported Thursday the 10,000 letter count from Postmaster Elbert S. Reinke of the Santa Claus, Post Office. Every child who writes in, providing he includes his return address, gets a letter back from Santa Claus. The American Legion at Santa Claus handles this job.

LADY in the MARKET

BY FRANCES V. RUMMELL

From the novel "Aunt Jane McPhlips and Her Baby Blue Chaps," published by Prentice-Hall, Inc. © 1959 by Frances V. Rummell. Distributed by King Features.

CHAPTER 7

Eleanor brought in salad and popovers to go with Jane's fresh tuna, and the two had early supper while mentally thanking Brawny Tony, a commercial fisherman and former pupil of Jane's. He had never understood Edgar Allen Poe or even those few early American writers who used more reasonable vocabularies; naturally, when Jane forgot to flunk him and let him honorably graduate, he became her slave for life.

Even today, years later, Tony took pleasure in calling her every six months or so from Fisherman's Wharf, where he docked his Isabella. "This your bad boy?" he always bellowed. Jane, wincing, had to hold the receiver away from her ear. "You gotta plenty tuna ain' salmon?"

Jane would make a trip to Fisherman's Wharf and come home in high spirits to share her prize with her neighbors. Eleanor would whip potatoes, Rosemarie toss the salad, Al man the beer, and Jane poach the salmon. These were always gay evenings.

But this was a Thursday night, so Rosemarie and Al had to work. Jane had to leave shortly for class, and despite Tony's gift, she felt sad. "The more I read about the stock market," she confessed to Eleanor, "the less I know. I know I have studied again all day, and all I have learned is some gobbledeyook." She got up to clear the table.

Eleanor merely opined, "Couldn't be any sillier than the educators."

"Well, you've heard nothing yet," Jane raised her voice and pounded out the rhythm of the words on the table. "Wait until you've heard rally, boom, bust, topping out, breakthrough point. Wall Street lingo is as noisy as little boys in a vacant lot." She added, "There's a menagerie, too. Dogs, cats, bulls and bears."

"Maybe," Eleanor ventured, "the market needs a few more women like you, Aunt Jane. You could help tone things down a bit."

Jane agreed that this was a possibility, but her heart wasn't in it. Deep inside, she knew, she was cross with her tutors, the experts. It did seem to her that their fiscal contrariness was more than a dedicated pupil should be asked to bear.

Eleanor suddenly broke into the gloom with a question. It was casual enough. "Who," she asked, "is Wally?"

Guiltily, realizing she had done nothing about introducing Eleanor and Wally, Jane replied, forcing the casualness, "Oh, he's just a nice classmate. Lots of fun."

How could a matchmaker manage with any finesse, she wondered, and without frightening one's prospects half to death? Since Wally seemed so systematically busy about escorting all the other ladies home, she could think of no good reason for inviting him to her apartment. He hadn't bothered to bring her home, she assumed, because they visited together during class.

"He's working so hard," said Jane admiringly, "to build his clientele as a broker."

"I wish you weren't going to school tonight!" Eleanor said plaintively. "I do hate Thursday nights. Everybody's busy but me!"

"Come to class with me!" Jane was ecstatic. "Visitors are welcome. Mr. Petry greets them all as future students, future commissions." Jane clinched her point. "After all, it's your money too."

"What," asked Eleanor, her eyes sparkling, "is Mr. Petry's first name?"

"Rip. It's Philip O. Petry."

At Jane's urging, she rushed to change to her soft pink and grey polka dot dress.

It was a brilliant evening with low stars, and the two walked up the long hill to Van Ness Avenue and finally entered the building just behind Mr. Petry. Jane introduced her guest to the teacher and left the two together while she ran ahead to look for Wally. She had never mentioned Eleanor to Wally; she was awaiting the right moment. Well, this was it. The class was all assembled and expectant, all but Wally. He was nowhere in sight.

With sinking heart, Jane tried to shy away from Mrs. Hope, who rushed up to show her latest transaction. An undaunted believer in learning by doing, Mrs. Hope gaily confessed, "My lists aren't make believe, Aunt Jane. I'm really buying and selling — and having a whee of a time!"

Noting a loss of $553, Jane remonstrated, "But buying a stock is the last thing you do! First, you lean!" She knew Mrs. Hope couldn't possibly understand why she hadn't yet shown her a list of any kind. After all, Mr. Petry expected the teammates to keep in close touch.

Ducking away from her impetuous partner, Jane turned to look for Wally, and at that moment Eleanor and Mr. Petry walked in. As Jane saw him smile at Eleanor she also heard him say, "We have a lot in common! We both teach the ABC's!" Whatever else he said was too low for her to catch above Mrs. Hope's burbling about her new hair tint, but she did hear Eleanor say, "Oh, thank you," and saw her smile dazzlingly.

Bounding toward Jane, Eleanor squeezed her hand and whispered, "You are so right, Aunt Jane. He's wonderful!"

Stunned into silence, Jane finally managed a crooked smile. It was also a deflated one, but she let things go at that. Anyway, Philip Petry was a nice, if colorless, boy, utterly lacking in Wally's fire and imagination. Wally would go much farther in life. Bracing her shoulders against her seat, Jane muttered a muted, refined "Damn," and resolved to go right ahead with her original idea.

During the next two hours of class her resolution wavered, but not too much, in the course of Mr. Petry's surprise lecture. Exposing a wholly new self, Philip O. Petry began to be casual, urbane, even light in his touch.

As if explaining the subject of investments solely to Eleanor, he smiled at her and remarked in a droll voice, "In this business, anybody who is one hundred per cent right thirty per cent of the time is a whiz kid, and takes along-side J.P. Morgan." Still on the negative side, Jane observed, but suddenly ingratiatingly human about it. Once he said, "Sometimes when people start thinking about method they get all loused up."

Mrs. Hope, alert to his shining new appeal, whispered to Jane, "What's happened to my boy? He's acting human as a Texan!"

Jane whispered back, "He's always better when Wally isn't here." And this was true. Mischievous as Wally was, he loved to throw curved questions at the teacher. "I don't think that's it at all," said Mrs. Hope, with a wink. "That explanation doesn't satisfy me!"

Neither, really, was Jane satisfied. She knew only too well what was happening. As a teacher she had seen the attention of a new girl in class make the dullest bumpkin come to life; and a new boy put color in the cheeks of the drabest little sparrow. And she considered it definitely established that a direct connection existed between the confident, even strutting Mr. Petry and Eleanor, who now sat in Wally's seat beside her drinking in every word.

Recount Cut Into Nixon's Margin

HONOLULU (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon's popular vote margin over President-elect John F. Kennedy in Hawaii was reduced to 61 Thursday.

A recount of 34 of Hawaii's 240 precincts shaved the edge from 141, the figure which gave Hawaii to Nixon a month ago when the vote was certified. Hawaii has three electoral college votes.

Democrats here are expected to try for a total recount, although the electoral college meets Monday.

Nixon's total is now 92,403, Kennedy's 92,342.

The Compassion of Christ ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Isaiah 61; Matthew 11:27-30; Luke 7:18-23.

"The spirit of the Lord God is upon me... to preach good tidings unto the meek; He hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison."

"And they shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities, the desolations of many generations..."

"All things are delivered unto Me of My Father," said Jesus, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest..."

Christ healed many of various diseases and when John the Baptist sent two of his disciples to inquire into this, Jesus showed them those He had healed—Luke 7:18-20.

The Golden Text

"Come unto Me all ye that labor, and I will give you rest, and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

HOW CHRIST IN HIS EARTHLY MINISTRY FILLED THE PROPHECIES SETTING FORTH THE MERCY OF THE MESSIAH TO COME

Scripture—Isaiah 61; 11:27-30; Luke 7:18-23.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. "OUR LESSON begins with a chapter which has never been assigned previously in this series; and even these words from Luke's Gospel have not been assigned for many years..."

soever the Son will reveal Him."—Matthew 11:27. "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest..."

"The spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; He hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted..."

Christ also healed many who were sick, John the Baptist called two of his disciples to him and sent them to Jesus to ask, "Art Thou He that should come? or look we for another?"

GOLDEN TEXT

"Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls."—Matthew 11:29.

tidings unto the meek; He hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound."

"Art Thou He that should come? or look we for another?"—Luke 7:18-20. Jesus answered, "Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the Gospel is preached, and blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in Me."

Ayden Baptist Announcements

The Christmas Season is being celebrated in true Spirit by the First Baptist Church of Ayden. The first two sermons in the Christmas Series have been received well. Sunday, Dec. 18, the sermon topic at 11 a.m. is "The Christ of Christianity." Sunday evening at 7:30 Christmas music will be presented by the choir. The church will baptize all awaiting candidates following this musical program. Special note is made of Sunday, December 25, Christmas Day at this church is combined to be short and inspirational. All Sunday school classes and departments will meet at 10:30 a.m. and at 10:55 all classes will assemble in the auditorium for concluding Christmas Meditation. The pastor, Rev. Bennie E. Pledger, will speak the short meditation, "Come Thou, Long-Expected Jesus." There will be no evening B.T.U. or worship. The community is invited to share the Christmas spirit in these services in honor of Christ.

Tortured Yuletide For Families Of Captive Airmen

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
NEW YORK (AP) — Tortured dreams, empty longings, a child's question unanswered, these are the haunting notes of Christmas this year for the families of seven American airmen imprisoned in the Soviet Union, missing or dead.

Their words, their plans, their letters are poignant with a sadness strange for the season but also vibrant with its hope.

"May God bless and keep you."

"We haven't given up."

"How can you tell a child her daddy is missing?"

"It can't be like other Christmas for us."

Yet, they're striving to recapture the spirit of the holiday. They'll gather around trees and dinner tables, with seats vacant and familiar voices gone. They're sending packages, wrapped tenderly, and mailed hopefully, far away.

"We aren't sure he'll get it, but..."

Of the seven men three are known to be in Soviet prisons. One is dead. The remaining three were reported missing and presumed dead, but their wives and parents still cling to the thought that somewhere they live.

"I still dream about Oscar," said Maria Goforth of Topeka, Kan., wife of one of the missing, Lt. Oscar L. Goforth.

"Sometimes I see him in prison, sometimes he is starving, and sometimes I dream that he is being beaten with a stick. I refuse to believe he is not alive. But I am afraid for what he is going through."

She plans to go to Puerto Rico with a daughter, Linda, 7, to spend Christmas with relatives and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Teodoro Sola of Aguada.

Goforth, from Sardis, Okla., was one of a six-man crew whose unarmed RB47 weather reconnaissance plane was shot down by the Russians over the Barents Sea north of Soviet territory last July 1.

They had said good-bye to their families early last June before going overseas.

Two of the others, Capt. Eugene E. Posa of Santa Monica, Calif., and Lt. Dean B. Phillips of Inwood, N. Y., are missing. One, Capt. Willard G. Palm, the chief pilot whose widow lives in Topeka, was found dead.

Two of the six, Capt. John R. McKone of Tonganoxie, Kan., and Capt. Freeman E. Olmstead of Plainfield, N. J., were captured and are in Moscow's Lubyanka Prison awaiting trial on espionage charges.

The seventh airman, Francis Gary Powers of Pound, Va., also is in prison, serving a 10-year term for spying after his American U2 reconnaissance plane went down in the Soviet Union last spring.

"Christmas has always been such a joyful occasion for us, but it will not be this year," said his wife, Barbara Gay Powers, at her home at Milledgeville, Ga.

"It will be very sad both for me and my husband. I really do not know what I shall do. Perhaps my mother and I will visit my sister in Albany, Ga., exchange gifts there and do what we can to dispel the sorrow."

She has sent Powers two gift packages, despite the high Soviet customs duty, which amounts to about $40 for each $10 valuation, she said. The gifts?

"Mostly warm clothing."

On Christmas Day, Olmstead's parents will reread once more a cherished letter they recently received from their imprisoned son, saying: "I almost hesitate to write our traditional greetings, in the light of all that has happened. Dad, you asked if you can do anything for me. Yes, there is — and I ask it from the bottom of my heart: that you and mom will have a truly merry Christmas."

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Blaine Olmstead of Elmira, N. Y., have sent him a package—a box of Christmas candy, a new shirt, a parka and a Bible with his name embossed on the cover in gold.

His wife, Gail, and their daughter, Karen, 19 months, are staying with her parents in Plainfield, N. J. They will attend a Baptist church there on Christmas day and then have a family dinner.

She has sent her husband a dark brown pullover sweater for Christmas, and a new photograph of Karen, but the distance leaves a desolate gap.

"Something more should be done," she said, "to get him home."

In Topeka, Mrs. John McKone plans the usual turkey dinner and gift giving for her three children, Cathy, 5; Lori, 2, and John II, 7 months. Her parents will be there and possibly her husband's parents, too, from Tonganoxie, Kan. McKone wrote recently from prison: "Tell Lori that daddy said since he is gone she must be mom's good helper." And his wife is yearning for another letter—by Christmas.

She has sent him an album of pictures and a seven-minute record of voices of their three children.

On the record, Kathy sings "Jesus Loves Me," occasionally ad libbing, "Jesus loves you." Lori half sings, half says "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star," using her own pronunciation, "Twinka Twinka."

At one point, there is silence as Mrs. McKone tries in vain to get John to say something, then there is a yell, and the mother's voice comes in, "Lori just busted Johnnie on the nose with the mike."

"We are thankful you are alive and well and pray you will be home soon, very soon," Mrs. McKone says on the record. "Christmas won't be merry this year without you here."

Mrs. Willard G. Palm, of Topeka, whose husband was found dead and his body returned to this country, said she and their children, Michelle Marie, 11, and Timothy, 4, will have Christmas dinner at home with her mother, Patricia Phillips, wife of one of the missing, has just moved into a new house of her own in Sacramento, Calif., and will cook Christmas dinner there for daughter Roxanne, 20 months, and other relatives.

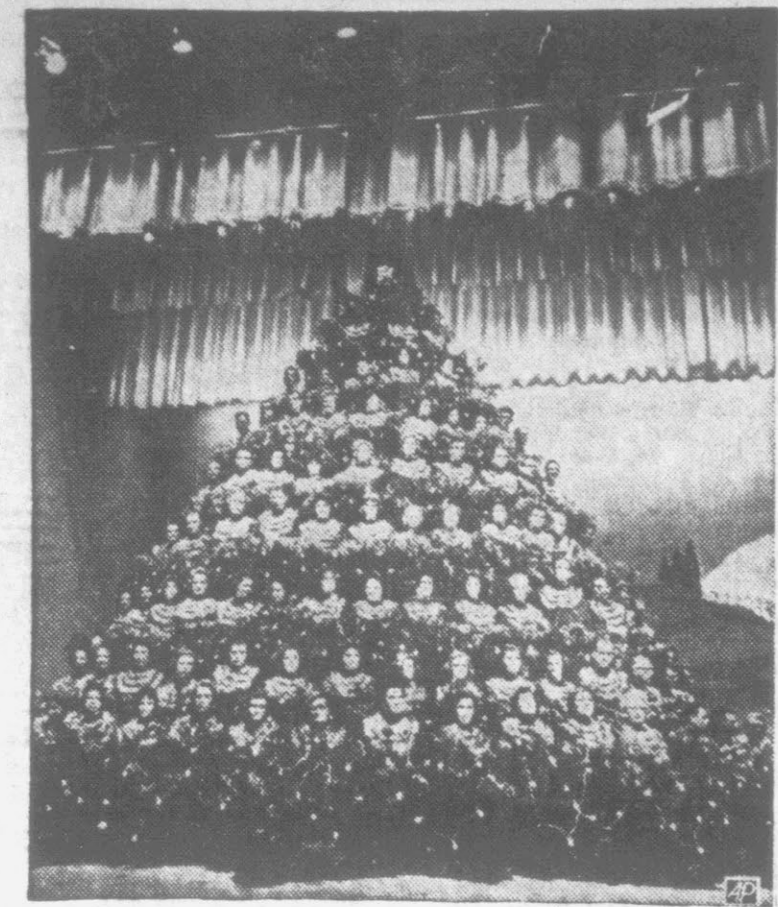

It will be a "partial" family reunion, she said, adding, "We have hopes, very high hopes that he's still all right."

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. L.B. Phillips Jr., of Inwood, have no special plans for the day. "It's been a hard thing for them to live through," said an aunt.

Goforth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy C. Goforth, a farm family in a remote mountain section of southeastern Oklahoma, refuse to talk about the situation to newsmen. A family spokesman says they have no plans for Christmas.

The Santa Monica parents of Posa, another of the missing, still are unaware of their son's fate, late 90s, and it is feared the information might be dangerous for them.

One of the wives, Mrs. Olmstead, is expecting a child in February, the second for her and Olmstead, and they're celebrating that, too, even though half a world apart.

100-Mile Hike By Former Pet 'For Christmas'

MESQUITE, Tex. (AP)—Miles didn't mean a thing to Rudy when the Christmas season rolled around this year.

Rudy, a fine looking German shepherd dog, was turned over to a man at Tyler, in East Texas, two years ago by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Mrs. W. D. Skidmore said the family couldn't afford a strong fence for Rudy and had to give him to the SPCA.

But Tuesday, up early, Mrs. Skidmore saw a dog in her yard.

"The dog looked just like Rudy," she said, "but it couldn't be. He was supposed to be in Tyler."

Tired and happy, it was Rudy all right, after a 100-mile hike from Tyler.

"When I spoke his name, he made one big bounce up on the porch and jumped right up on me and started licking my face

British Stamp 'Most Beautiful'

MONACO (AP) — A British stamp representing Windsor Castle and the queen has been selected out of 5,200 entries as the most beautiful stamp in Europe and the world.

The one-pound — $2.80 — stamp was chosen Thursday by a 15-man jury which included representatives of Britain, France, Sweden and German stamp societies.

There were entries from 110 countries.

Frank Speaks Frank

Friday's Short Stuff . . .

Clemson football coach and athletic director, Frank Howard, made it clear recently while visiting in the Eastern section of North Carolina that he is a strong advocate of free substitution returning to football.

"More boys get to play and it gives the fans a better game," Howard claimed. As a member of the NCAA Rules Committee, he hopes to see some modifications made in several of the rules.

Other rules up for Howard's verbal blast deal with the limitation placed on spring practice and the rule which prohibits the working out of a prospective football player.

As for the limitation on spring practice, Howard said, "Last year it snowed and we had only 10 days of practice. It took us half the season before we had a good ball club."

Speaking to the Kinston Touchdown Club, Howard, the balding legend of "Death Valley," mentioned, as usual, "poor little Clemson" but had a swelled chest when telling how those Tigers chewed up "Tobacco Row."

Howard's after-dinner speeches at Touchdown Club Meetings and banquets usually run from $300-$500 and his Sunday TV appearance next fall will run in the neighborhood of $1000 per spectacle. A nice living, no doubt . . .

Starrett's Comeback Is Thwarted

Jumping Dave Starrett, East Carolina senior, has lost his chance, temporarily, of making the grade as a full-fledged college basketball star.

A rugged 6-6 lad who stood out in prep ball and was a creditable performer for East Carolina over the past three years, Dave got lost in the shuffle in Coach Earl Smith's youth move this season.

Assisting the 1960-61 team as a manager, Dave yearned for actual combat and gave it another fling. His rebounding in practice was a picture to behold for the Buc coaching staff.

Smith admitted Starrett was vastly improved from last season. And it was expected to be only a matter of time before he would be ready to give the club a lift under the boards.

Then it happened. While hauling in rebounds in a practice session, Starrett hit the floor a little too hard one time and came up with a bad ankle.

His expected help was thwarted just days before he was actually to have played in his first game. Smith expects him to be back after Christmas but for Dave, it will be like starting all over again . . .

Currie Hit Nail On The Head

Bill Currie, who assists Ray Reeve on the ACC network, considers Carolina as the number one choice of the Big Four. On his recent visit here, Currie had seen all the teams with the exception of Duke, the defending champ.

Currie is one of the staunch supporters of good athletic programs on both the college and high school level. He made it clear in a speech here that many high school officials are responsible for the proposed de-emphasis.

Several days later, a shakeup of North Carolina's current athletic program was proposed by the superintendents throughout the state.

The proposal would place control of North Carolina's schoolboy athletics under the direction of the superintendents with the ultimate goals set on cutting down or de-emphasizing of athletics.

ACC Drops Third Tournery Contest

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — For the sixth time in seven years, the Quantico Marines have won their own Christmas Invitational basketball tournery.

Led by former college stars Bob Mealy and Art Musselman, the Marines trounced Belmont Abbey's Crusaders Thursday night 84-62, for the championship. Only in 1957 did the Marines fail to win the event they sponsor each year.

American University took third place by drubbing Jacksonville (Fla.) University 82-68, Philadelphia Textile Institute finished fourth with a 67-65 squeeze past Buffalo University and St. Michael's (Vt.) won seventh place by beating Atlantic Christian 79-72.

Mealy, formerly of Manhattan, and Musselman, who played at The Citadel, scored 27 and 21 points, respectively, for Quantico. Joe McDermott led Belmont Abbey with 18 points.

Heavy Holiday Schedule For College Cage Teams

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two major college basketball tournaments will begin tonight as a prelude to the heavy holiday bowl festivities, with the first round of the Steel Bowl at Pittsburgh and the Birmingham (Ala.) Classic.

Colgate brings its 5-0 record against Pittsburgh (1-3), while unbeaten Tennessee (4-0) takes on Duquesne (4-1) in the Steel Bowl. At Birmingham, either Baylor or Alabama will end a losing streak as they meet in one game, while unbeaten Auburn (3-0) and Virginia Tech (2-0) tangle in the other game of the Classic. Baylor and Alabama have lost their first four games this season.

Pitt beat Duquesne in the Steel Bowl finals a year ago.

The firing was rather light last night with a few exceptions such as Wichita's 83-64 victory over

Washington State and Duke's 75-58 triumph over Clemson in an Atlantic Coast Conference contest.

John Gales scored 20 points to lead Wichita, while Washington State's Dwight Damon was high man with 21.

Duke, which won the Birmingham Classic a year ago over Navy, ran up a 20-point lead several times in the second half against Clemson. Duke ranked No. 8 in The Associated Press poll, will do its holiday playing in the Dixie Classic at Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 29-31.

Art Heyman tallied 25 points and Carroll Youngkin 22 for Duke, while Earl Maxwell was high for Clemson with 14.

Niagara University solved John Carroll's zone defense in the first half, then went on to remain undefeated by winning their third straight, 84-54.

Al Butler hit 19 points for Niagara, while John Boyle and John D'Angelo got 12 apiece for John Carroll.

Western Kentucky, beaten only by Louisville in the Blue Grass tournament finals last week, made its record 6-1 by downing Morehead (Ky.) 83-77 to take the Ohio Valley Conference lead.

Charlie Osborne scored 22 points for Western Kentucky, and Ed Noe had 23 for the losers.

Memphis State remained undefeated by breaking a 69-all tie in the last five minutes to defeat Brigham Young 75-72 for its fourth straight win. Wayne Yates scored 22 points and Frank Snyder for Memphis, while BYU's Bruce Barton hit 21.

Boston College's 5-game unscuffed string came to an abrupt end as Brown pulled a 76-70 upset, with Forrest Brown pacing the winners on 24 points.

In the Bluebonnet bowl doubleheader at Houston, Dave Miller's long corner shot in the last two seconds of overtime produced a 60-58 Oklahoma State victory over Texas A&M. It was State's fourth victory against one loss.

Princeton and Rutgers were tied 86-86 after regulation time, but Tom Adams' layup with seven seconds to go in overtime brought the Tigers a 94-92 victory. It was Princeton's 14th straight victory over Rutgers since the 1953-54 season.

The Citadel made its record 4-1 by defeating Loyola of New Orleans, 86-78, and Xavier of Cincinnati beat Loyola of Los Angeles 75-62. Centenary easily defeated the Rice Owls, 78-63.

Bob Mealy, former Manhattan player, scored 27 points as the Quantico Marines won their seventh annual Christmas invitation tournament by whipping Belmont Abbey 84-62.

Kansas State Set For Tar Heels Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina's Tar Heels, defeated by Kentucky after winning their first two games, will try to get back on the victory track tonight in a game with Kansas State at Manhattan, Kan.

That's the opener of a tough, three-game road trip for the fifth-ranked Tar Heels. They meet Kansas Saturday night and Creighton Monday night.

Another Atlantic Coast Conference team, Wake Forest, also hits the road for a pair of conference games. The Deacons face Virginia tonight and unbeaten Maryland Saturday night.

Meanwhile, the eighth ranked Duke Blue Devils, defending ACC champions, roll merrily along. They made Clemson their fifth victim Thursday night with relative ease. The score was 75-58.

Sophomore Art Heyman led Duke with 25 points to bring his scoring average to 22.6 for five games. Carroll Youngkin got 22 for the Blue Devils.

Clemson was paced by Earl Maxwell with 14 points. Ed Krack had 13 and Cobby Patterson 12 for the Tigers.

Duke now has a 5-0 record. The Blue Devils and Maryland, also 5-0 are the only unbeaten teams left in the conference.

Clemson has won only one of six games.

Wake Forest takes a 3-2 record into tonight's game with Virginia, which hasn't won in four starts.

Packers Shoot For Pro Title

Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Green Bay Packers Saturday shoot for the Western Division title and then for the National Football League championship — honors they last captured in the distant year of 1944.

They face the resurgent Los Angeles Rams in Memorial Coliseum in a game that holds the key to a crowded picture in the division.

Halfback Paul Hornung and his Packer mates can haul down the division crown with a victory or even a tie. A loss will throw the loop into playoffs involving the Baltimore Colts, San Francisco 49ers and the Detroit Lions.

The Philadelphia Eagles already have won the Eastern Conference title.

Coach Vince Lombardi's visitors, with a record of 7-4-0, are favored by 10 points.

The game will be televised nationally via CBS, starting at 1:35 p.m. PST.

Last Saturday Hornung personally wrecked the 49ers with a touchdown and two field goals in a 13-0 victory.

Phants Here Tonight

Greenville's basketball team tries to extend its current winning streak to three here tonight as it closes out pre-holiday activity against visiting Fike High of Wilson.

Since losing their opener to Rocky Mount, the Bo Farley-coached Phants have bounced back with two wins at the expense of Rocky Mount and Wilson.

Greenville handled Wilson 73-67 last Friday night in Wilson. The home court advantage tonight could give the Phants the edge again.

Wilson, winless in three starts, got knocked around, 84-65, by a good Kinston five Tuesday night. It was their second loss to the Red Devils this year.

Greenville's probable starting lineup will be Layne Jorgensen, Billy James, Alan McArthur, Kroehle Andresen, and Erskine Duff.

Big Interleague Now Completed

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago White Sox, Milwaukee Braves and Cincinnati Reds have completed the biggest interleague trade of the season in deals involving three front-line pitchers and two infielders.

In midnight telephone negotiations, 24 hours before tonight's interleague trading deadline, the clubs made these switches:

1. The Braves sent hurlers Juan Pizarro and Joey Jay to the Reds for infielder Roy McMillan and a minor league player to be named later.

2. The Reds kept Jay and sent pitcher Cal McLish and Pizarro to the White Sox for third baseman Gene Freese.

Officials of all three clubs agreed that each team had been improved in the deals.

"I have to give up McMillan, a fine ball player and a gentleman, but Freese will give us run production, and Jay will help our pitching staff," said Mgr. Fred Hutchinson of the Reds in Cincinnati.

President Bill Veck of the White Sox blamed pitching mainly for losing the 1960 pennant and said that "the addition of McLish and Pizarro will give the staff a boost."

At Milwaukee, Braves Gen. Mgr. John McHale said his club now will have the best infield in the National League with McMillan at short, Ed Mathews at third, Frank Bolling at second and Joe

Ayden's Tripp, Figures Cagers To Be Stronger

By LEONARD LAO
Reflector Sports Writer

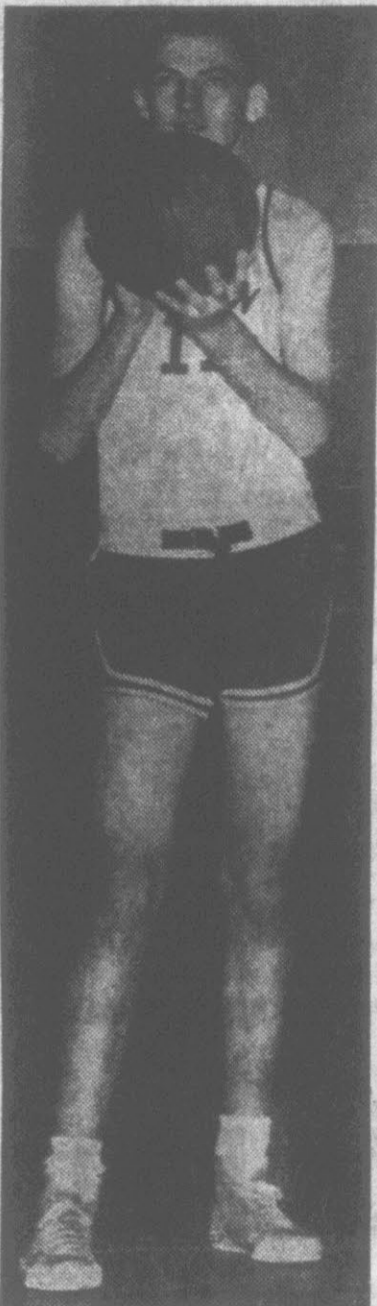

Ayden's basketball coach, Stuart Tripp, faces the same problem that various other coaches in the Pitt County have faced for years. He has the job of rounding his players into the idea of playing basketball instead of football. As is true of several schools in the Pitt County Conference, most of the athletes participate in all three major sports, football, basketball and baseball, and Ayden is no exception. "The other teams in the conference have got the jump on us," says Tripp, "because of football. But we can be as good as any in the county when we get rolling." The Tornadoes, who had only seven days of practice before their first game, have lost only one game this season, a 59-47 score to Bethel, who is currently leading the Pitt County race.

"We looked miserable against Bethel," said Tripp, whose football team won the conference crown. "We missed too many foul shots." According to Coach Tripp, his Tornado cagers amazed him in their first three contests. "They were still in shape from football in season," commented the Ayden mentor. "All of our boys are good shooters," continued Tripp, "and I think we have an exceptionally fine group."

The Tornadoes are paced by Ted Norris, a six-foot-four-inch center who is mighty dangerous from around the foul circle. Other Ayden starters along with Norris are David McGlahorn, William Edwards, Dennis Mills and Tommy Dunn. Mills and Edwards were both All-Conference football choices during the recent gridiron campaign, and both are capable of being honored in the same way on the basketball court.

The Tornadoes finished strong with a 13-7 record last season, and Coach Tripp is confident that his cagers will compile an even better slate this winter. Barbara Yorke, a sharp shooting forward, is currently leading the offensive punch for the Ayden girls.

Return Of Key Men Expected To Improve Winterville Quint

BOB HOBGOOD . . . Winterville guard

By LEONARD LAO
Reflector Sports Writer

The Winterville Wolves, who split their schedule right down the middle last year with an 11-11 record, have a host of veterans returning this season. The Wolves coach, Blaine Moye, still looks for a 50-50 record once again this year. "We have an experienced team," says Moye, "with seven returning lettermen. Most of them are juniors and were in the starting five last season."

James Braxton, a six-foot-five inch junior, is the leading offensive threat for the Wolves. The blonde dunker was an All-County choice last season, and according to Coach Moye, he is a sure bet to repeat the same honor again this season. Winterville has posted a 6-3 overall record thus far this year, while it holds a 2-2 slate in Pitt County play.

Steve Worthington, a six-foot-two inch holdover from last season, is Winterville's second tallest man, and has proven to be a capable rebounder as well as scorer. The Wolves have only two seniors on the club, and will definitely be the team to watch next winter. Of the two last year men, only one is a starter, John Weathington. The other senior is reserve Mike McLawhorn.

The other Wolves starters along with Worthington, Weathington and Braxton are Bob Hobgood and Alfred Gold. Coach Moye lost only two starters from the 1959 team. They were Thomas McLawhorn and Mack Worthington. The Winterville tutor terms his defense as the biggest asset of the club. Moye rates his offense and defense as "fair," as well as his rebounding department.

Newcomers to the Winterville varsity are juniors Mitchell Avery, Jack Jackson, and Billy White, and sophomore Ronnie Worthington. The Wolves have completed their pre-Christmas schedule, but get right back into the thick of the Pitt County race on January 3rd against Chicod.

Bryant: Alabama Underdog In Bowl Game

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Paul (Bear) Bryant says his Alabama Crimson Tide should be a touchdown underdog for Saturday's Bluebonnet Bowl game with the Texas Longhorns.

Bryant and his 47-man squad arrived Thursday to find themselves one-point favorites, the same point spread posted by oddsmakers the day the two teams were selected for the second annual Bluebonnet classic.

The Texas team was to fly to Houston after a final workout in Austin, arriving just in time for tonight's bonfire rally honoring the two teams.

Bryant said, "I think Texas has more speed than we do. I think they are a little better—not a whole lot but about a touchdown." Bryant was reminded he made a similar statement before Alabama ended its regular season with a 3-0 victory over Auburn.

"I sure did, but that was the greatest game I've ever seen as far as team effort is concerned," he replied. Alabama finished with an 8-1 record, losing only to Tennessee after being tied 6-6 by Tulane.

SCORES Small Halfback Is Orgeon's Key Man

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—You've heard about the youngster who does everything for his team but carry the water bucket. The Oregon Webfoots have such a lad on their football team.

2. He was tops in punt returns with an average of 8.7 yards on 11 carries for 95 yards.

3. He was the No. 1 kickoff returner with 12 for 241 yards, an average of 20.1.

The situation is sometimes confused since this Jack-of-all-phases of football offense looks more like the water boy than the water boy himself. Cleveland Jones is his name. He's 143 pounds dripping wet, and stands 5 feet, 3 inches tall. Oregon Coach Len Casanova refers to him as the "biggest little man in football."

4. He led the pass receivers, 25 caught for 402 yards and 4 touchdowns.

5. He was second in rushing, 80 carries for 539 yards, an average of 6.4.

6. He completed 3 of 7 passes for 33 yards and 2 touchdowns. Jones says he isn't bothered by his size, no inferiority complex. He hopes the pros won't be bothered by it either. He'd like an opportunity to play for pay.

Listing just a few of his accomplishments in helping the Webfoots to a 7-2-1 record and a spot in Saturday's Liberty Bowl game against Penn State at Philadelphia Stadium disclose the following:

1. He led the team in scoring with 5 touchdowns, a pair of two point conversions and 12 for 20 placement conversions for a total of 46 points.

Slugging Title Goes To Maris

BOSTON (AP)—New York's Roger Maris beat out teammate Mickey Mantle for the American League's 1960 slugging championship, official league statistics show.

Asst. Coach Jack Roche comments that you have to see Jones to believe it. Roche, without the trace of a smile or hint he is joking, says the pros would do well to look twice at the small halfback.

Then, before Thursday night's meeting with Syracuse, he called another closed door session with the team. "We have been hustling in spurts, but not all the way," snapped Auerbach. "That will be changed from now on."

Result: The hard-running Celtics put together a 37-point burst in the third period that overcame a Syracuse halftime lead and pointed Boston toward a 115-105 victory.

The decision moved the Celtics to within a half game of Eastern Division leader Philadelphia.

Everett Captain

Grover (Bett) Everett, of Greenville, N. C., has been elected Captain of the 1961 North Carolina cross-country team.

The selection was made at the squad's annual banquet held at Coach Dale Ranson's home recently. The 1960 freshman team also elected Dan Vasey, of Highland Park, N. J., as its honorary captain for the past season.

Everett, a junior, was the individual Atlantic Coast Conference champion this fall, leading the Tar Heels to the league title and a 6-1 dual meet record. He and teammate Gerry Stuver tied course records in meets with South Carolina and Duke.

"The risks involved in bleachers are too great," said W. A. (Bill) Smith, president of the Greater Houston Bowl Association.

"Besides, we know we have a sellout, and the concourse gives plenty of room for standing."

Nepal's King Presses Purge In His Taking Over Of Strong-Man Powers

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—King Mahendra today pressed his purge of politicians in taking over strong-man powers with reports of widespread arrests including right-wingers as well as Communists. The monarch, 39, declared his primitive Himalayan Hindu kingdom, sandwiched between India and Communist-occupied Tibet, would maintain a policy of strict neutrality in world affairs.

Gurkha troops guarded the royal palace and government buildings, including the government radio station. A handful of soldiers patrolled the narrow streets which wind between Katmandu's ancient temples and ramshackle houses. The capital was outwardly calm. But all Katmandu daily newspapers, except one, suspended publication today to protest the king's coup in arresting popular Premier B. P. Koirala and 10 of his 11 Cabinet ministers and suspending the constitution.

The young monarch's blow ending this experiment in parliamentary democracy he launched himself 18 months ago came with such suddenness that both the Nepalese and foreign diplomats were stunned. Nepal has a population of about eight million.

He charged the Koirala government with "failure to maintain law and order" and "harboring undesirable activity"—but did not spell out the charges.

There were reports that Communist leader Pushpalal and Bharat Shamsheer of the right-wing Gorakha Parishad party had been rounded up along with other leaders of the ruling Nepal Congress Party. They were reported being held in the Army Officers' Club.

The king, who visited the United States earlier this year, returned only last month from a European tour.

(In Washington, U. S. State Department officials said the king's seizure of power appeared to be due to purely domestic issues. A spokesman said there was no indication that the mountain kingdom's foreign policy was in-terrupted, including its relations with Red China or the Soviet Union.)

In New Delhi, Nepalese Ambassador S. J. B. Daman told reporters the king was forced to act because of popular discontent against the Koirala government.

Daman said there had been popular resentment against taxes and land take-overs imposed by the Koirala government.

Under the constitution which he himself promulgated in February 1958, the king reserved the right to dismiss the government any time he felt it essential to maintain the country's law, order and sovereignty.

But there had been little advance notice that he felt these were in danger under Koirala whose Congress party held more than two-thirds of the seats in the Nepalese Parliament.

In the absence of specific charges the most likely appeared to be the uprising in September by a religious leader who headed a sect which traditionally advises Mahendra, a devout Hindu and the world's only ruling Hindu monarch.

The uprising took place at Gurkha, the ancient birthplace of Nepalese kings in West Nepal.

A holy man named Narharinath raised a local force to protest taxes imposed by the Koirala government. Narharinath's followers, armed only with sticks and stones, were easily put down when Koirala called out the militia.

Narharinath himself was arrested Oct. 29. He claimed at the time he acted with the king's support, but this was denied by the government. After Thursday's proclamation some observers tended to reassess Narharinath's claim.

Koirala was generally considered an energetic, progressive premier who sought to modernize his country's medieval economy with assistance from the United States, India, Communist China, the Soviet Union and anybody else who would contribute. He imposed new taxes and sought reform of land ownership in a country where, traditionally, this was the privilege of an aristocratic few.

But many of his ideas were new. Taxes met popular resistance and land reforms aristocratic resistance. Some observers whispered, too, that the king—whose power in his own hands—was disturbed both by the authority Koirala had acquired and by the manner in which it was exercised.

Payton Lie Test Being Evaluated

RALEIGH (AP)—Imprisoned union leader Boyd Payton's latest attempt to free himself from a six to 10 year sentence is in the hands of the State Board of Pardons.

The board supervised Thursday as Payton took a lie detector test at his own request.

Actually administering the complex test was Cleve Backster, director of the National Training Center of Lie Detection in New York City. Backster processed test charts Thursday night and mailed them to his New York office today.

The Paroles Board expects to receive the results from New York in a few days.

If the test proves favorable to Payton, Carolinas director of the Textile Workers Union of America, it could help him gain his freedom. He was convicted of plotting to dynamite facilities of a struck Henderson cotton mill.

As he left the State Bureau of Investigation office in Raleigh after the test, Payton, handcuffed and escorted by prison officials, said, "It went all right under the circumstances."

Paroles Board Chairman Johnson Matthews and Backster declined to comment on the test except to say it was thorough and handled as efficiently as modern science permits.

Gov. Hodges, asked about the matter at his news conference, also refused to comment.

Payton, a Charlotte resident, entered prison in October with seven other unionists involved in the dynamite conspiracy at Henderson.

He was assigned to the Lincoln County Camp and brought to Raleigh Thursday morning to undergo the test.

Payton's attorneys said he asked to take the test over their strong objections. The Paroles Board ordered it after Payton wrote the agency proclaiming his innocence and requesting it.

Matthews said dozens of prisoners are given the detector tests each year and "they have helped out in some cases." He refused further comment on that subject.

Future Sec. Of Labor Is A Man With Sharp Mind

WASHINGTON (AP)—Even his opponents agree that Arthur J. Goldberg, the new secretary of labor, is a man with a steel-trap mind.

Goldberg, as general counsel of the United Steelworkers Union, argued labor's case last year before the Supreme Court in a dispute over a Taft-Hartley injunction to halt the marathon steel strike.

The court allowed the injunction to stand, and Goldberg lost his case. But after it was over, a steel company lawyer came up to him and said: "Of course you were all wrong, but you argued it so brilliantly."

And some of the Supreme Court justices themselves have been quoted as saying privately that they had never heard a more brilliant presentation in the great marble chamber.

But Goldberg is not a calculating machine. He smiles easily and for 25 years has gotten along well in the top echelons of big labor. He also is special counsel to the AFL-CIO and was one of those who implemented the merger of the two labor organizations.

At 52 Goldberg has graying hair, wears thick-framed black spectacles and dresses impeccably.

He was the youngest of eight children born to near-penniless immigrant parents in Chicago. He remembers what it is to be poor. He can be expected to play a leading role in the Kennedy administration's drive to raise minimum wages.

Goldberg worked his way through Northwestern Law School and made a scholastic record that stood for many years before it was matched. He was admitted to practice at the age of 21. From the beginning he was a labor lawyer.

The late Philip Murray brought him into his Steelworkers Union as counsel and later as general counsel to the CIO when Murray became its president.

During World War II Goldberg played a behind-the-scenes part in the Office of Strategic Services. He organized an espionage network of anti-Nazi labor union officials throughout Europe. By all accounts it was very effective.

Goldberg is credited with persuading Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell to step in actively to end the deadlock of the record 116-day steel strike that started last fall.

Goldberg is married to the former Dorothy Kurgans, a well known abstract painter. They have two children.

Three Billion Greeting Cards

WASHINGTON (AP)—About three billion greeting cards are being mailed this holiday season. That is an average of nearly 17 cards for every American. This was the word Thursday from Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield. Understandly, he appealed to the public to mail their cards promptly. For anyone who planned to mail cards to distant states it already is late. The deadline for that, Summerfield said, was Dec. 10, which is already past. However, he said cards may still generally be delivered between any two points in the United States if dropped quickly into the mail box. Friday, Summerfield said, is the last recommended date for local Christmas mailing.

Steel Output Again Is 'Dead' As An Indicator

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—A death sentence has been pronounced again on the weekly steel output rate as a percentage of capacity.

Just how many lives this widely followed indicator of industrial health may prove to have is yet to be seen. But the steel industry has been anxious to get out of the glare of publicity the index casts in troubled times.

The output rate currently is just under 50 per cent of capacity. That is, the mills are producing around 1.4 million tons a week, compared with capacity of 2.8 million.

And the industry thinks the public draws too many conclusions from this: by overlooking the large amount of output in tonnage and is wondering about the build-up in capacity in recent years and when it might be fully used.

The steel capacity rate shares with the weekly auto output estimates the attention of the general public looking for guides as to whether times are likely to be good or bad. Steel men in particular dislike this concentration of interest, especially when times are slack and the future uncertain.

The American Iron Steel Institute tried to drop the index during the 1958 recession when the operating rate also was 50 per cent or lower. But with capacity known, too many persons figured the rate out pretty closely and published it anyway.

This time the institute indicates it won't make its annual January pronouncement on the new capacity figure. The question is: Will outsiders, knowing that capacity changed little in the 1960 compared with recent years, be able to estimate it fairly closely and once again figure the operating rate for themselves?

1. Capacity has grown so in recent years that a 50 per cent rate really turns out as much tonnage now as full operations did at the end of the war.

2. New techniques in steel production turn out more steel per new type mill than do the older ones, robbing capacity of much of its significance.

3. Many of the older mills are on the capacity rolls but are so obsolete they may not be fired up again except for emergencies, such as war.

4. The estimated 1960 tonnage at an average rate of less than 70 per cent for the year is estimated at nearly 100 million tons—an output that would have required 97 per cent of capacity 10 years ago.

Critics of the dropping of the traditional output rating contend:

1. Comparing today's tonnage with former years doesn't allow for the growth in the general economy and its normal needs.

2. The tonnage index the institute now proposes based on average tonnage output in 1957-59 overlooks that this base contained one year of good production, 1957, but also the recession year of 1958, and the strike disrupted year of 1959.

3. The steel industry is unduly sensitive to its showing in periods of slackness and to lack of understanding of its program of building for the future in adding to capacity during the 1950s.

'Roulette King' Convinced Judge

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A dapper German from Hamburg, who calls himself the roulette king of Europe, won acquittal on an income tax charge by convincing a judge he's a scientist, not a gambler.

There was just one reason his "sure-fire" system for winning at roulette misfired. Benno Eifel changed little in the 1960 compared with recent years, he was able to estimate it fairly closely and once again figure the operating rate for themselves?

So—investors lost $17,000 trying his "theory of confirmed law of computation of mathematical probabilities" in Las Vegas, Nev.

The court ruled it was merely an investment that failed. The Internal Revenue Service contended the money paid the German by investors was money he earned but failed to report on his visa

RALEIGH (AP)—While the battleship North Carolina rides at anchor at Bayonne, N. J., Tar Heel efforts are picking up steam to have her returned to the state as a tourist attraction.

After a special advisory committee recommended that the state acquire the vessel, Gov. Hodges predicted in his weekly news conference Thursday the ship could become one of the state's top tourist attractions.

Committee Chairman Orville B. Campbell of Chapel Hill urged Hodges to ask the Navy Department to delay until July 1 a final decision on scrapping the ship.

Campbell, whose committee has seen the ship at Bayonne and also paid a call on the USS Texas in Houston, said, "The ship can be acquired and operated without expense to the state."

The Navy Department has scheduled dismantling of the big ship for the first of the year. Hodges picked the committee recently to study the situation.

Romney Offers Buyers Rebates

By BEN PHEGAR
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT, Mich. (AP)—The auto industry today studied without official comment George Romney's newest gimmick to sell more American Motors cars by offering buyers rebates of government savings bonds.

Romney announced the plan Thursday with a flourish in a news conference in a plush New York hotel. He called it sharing progress with the neglected consumer and invited the rest of the auto companies to join him.

Apparently there will be no mad rush to do so.

Privately, various auto men expressed the opinion that Romney's plan will create considerable interest and probably help his sales.

Romney is highly regarded by his competitors both personally and as a shrewd business man. He is credited with singlehandedly selling the American public on the idea of a compact car—the size which currently is accounting for at least 30 per cent of all automobile sales.

Basically the program calls for a rebate of one $25 bond to each customer for each 10 per cent increase over last year's sales which American Motors accomplishes in the four months dating back to Dec. 1.

If sales increase 10 per cent, every buyer gets one $25 bond. If the increase is 20 per cent, $50 in bonds; 30 per cent means $75 in bonds; 40 per cent means $100 in bonds and 50 per cent or more means $125 in bonds.

The plan applies equally to buyers whether they purchase the United imported Metropolitan or the much larger Ambassador V8. But there are certain restrictions.

These include: Delivery must be made between Dec. 1 and March 31. The maximum payment is $125 in bonds. The program applies only in the United States. The rebate is not applied to cars bought by the government.

The statue of George Washington on the steps of Federal Hall in New York City marks the spot where Washington stood when he took the oath of office as the first president of the United States on April 30, 1789.

Red Was There—By Electronics

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Even when hospitalized, Red Skelton still gets into the act.

An open house Christmas party was held Thursday at Skelton's studios, the old Charles Chaplin lot on which Red says he has spent $3 million for improvements. The shindig was planned to demonstrate Skelton's new mobile TV color taping equipment for advertising agency men who, he hopes, will be customers.

Skelton couldn't be there. He's recovering from an operation at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

But a closed TV circuit was set up from the studios to Red's hospital room so he could see his guests having fun—in sound and color.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina merchants hope that Christmas bonuses, two extra shopping days, and colder weather will help make Christmas business this year equal to or even better than last year's record volume.

An Associated Press survey in the final 10 days of the shopping season disclosed these developments:

There have been more cash sales this season; credit business is off.

Big ticket items, such as television and hi-fi sets, refrigerators and major appliances are not selling as well. Smaller appliances and transistor radios are moving.

This has been a utilitarian Christmas so far. Clothing has been in demand. You can still buy $50 silk ties and $90,000 diamonds if you have a mind to, but as one Rocky Mount merchant put it: "Yes, we're selling watches, but it's the $9.95 and $10.95 kind, not the expensive ones."

Toys, the perennial children's delight, are being bought in quantity, but many of them are larger and more expensive this season. You get conflicting reports here. Some merchants report the expensive toys are doing exceptionally well, others say no.

Figures from banks, agricultural agencies and other sources show that North Carolinians have money to spend, but they are shopping around for bargains more than they did in other years. And more suburban shopping centers are competing with downtown stores for the holiday dollar.

The Christmas shopping season starts with after-Thanksgiving sales. It got off to a slow start because of mild weather, but lately a cold snap has put people in a Christmas frame of mind.

Then, there are two extra shopping days this year, on Friday and Saturday, both good business days. Christmas was on a Friday last year, a leap year.

Trade promotions have included downtown parades, with floats, beautiful girls and Santa Claus, and giveaways, ranging from compact cars to appliances.

However, one leading lower-price department store operator in Asheville said this is the first time in six years he is not offering a give-away come-on. He feels this promotion has outlived its usefulness for his type of operation, although it might work very well for the merchant who has not tried it before.

Merchants generally report they are spending as much, if not more, on advertising in this Christmas season.

Stores, of course, are open at night during the Yule season.

North Carolina employment is generally high, and wage rates are holding. Some textile mills have cut production somewhat, and workers are putting in fewer hours. Mills in Gaston County, a yarn center, have been running five days a week with few exceptions, and will shut down only one or two days for Christmas. Some of these yarn mills pay year-end bonuses, some don't. Almost all mills in the state give Christmas vacations with pay. There has been unemployment in some industries, but the North Carolina picture is brighter than the national one.

The bitter cold and snow of last February and March was a bad sales period that merchants would like to balance with a good Christmas season.

Charles Dudley, vice president of the Charlotte Merchants Association, says: "We're anticipating a good Christmas breathlessly and hopefully. We are all hopeful it will take care of part of the business lost last March."

Stores consider business on a long-term or year's basis, with the Christmas season bringing in a good percentage of the volume. All in all, merchants seem satisfied that there has been a good start, although there are some dissenters.

But all look for this weekend and next week to tell the cash register story.

Here's comment, in a nutshell, from cities around the state:

Asheville—With few exceptions, merchants are quick to report that buyers are looking for practical gifts this year. And they are looking for bargains for the most part in the selections that they make.

Lenoir—The reason for the let-down here is attributed to the fact that most furniture plants, Lenoir's main industry, distribute their bonus checks the Wednesday before Christmas. This is also the reason many of the merchants expect their sales to pick up just before the holiday arrives.

Hickory—Christmas business is off this year, compared to last year, merchants are reporting. Almost without exception, they say their November sales did not equal last year's, and indications are that December sales will lag behind those of last year.

Shelby—Early indications are this will be a utilitarian Christmas. Spot surveys of Shelby merchants indicate shopping off slightly from 1959's Christmas season—a record year—but with plenty of time to gain.

Greensboro—Christmas shopping was a little slower getting started this year. But it has shown a sudden turn upward in the last several days, and merchants optimistically predict that volume will equal or better last December's shopping season.

Durham—Business is expected to show a marked increase during the remaining days of the holiday shopping season.

Greenville—Four representative merchants seem to think they'll be having the best December ever.

Washington, N.C.—Sales are relatively slow, possibly because of recent warm weather. Best November in a number of years, but so far December is behind last year. The Chamber of Commerce looks for a late December spurge.

Wilson—Merchants report that Christmas sales are up 10 to 15 per cent over last year. But merchants offering household appliances, furnishings, and more expensive items, said shoppers are showing caution, looking for the best buy.

Concord—Merchants agree that December sales are at an all-time high, and if present sales are any indication, they will surely surpass those of any year to date.

Fayetteville—Early reports from five of the city's largest stores ran the spectrum from very good to very bad, but most other stores leaned to the good side.

Rocky Mount—The days between now and Christmas will tell whether this will be a record or a break even Christmas shopping season. All signs indicate that the last three weeks of 1960 could push retail sales over the top of last year's record, but merchants are apprehensive of a number of things.

Gastonia—Merchants are looking for this to be one of the biggest Christmas seasons ever. Three of the largest stores on Main Avenue say they expect to match last year's figures and possibly go ahead. One said business is 7 1/2 per cent ahead of last year.

Charlotte—E. W. Hancock Jr., vice president and general merchandising manager of Ivey's department store, said the early Christmas shopping season was not quite as exciting as he had hoped it would be. An official of Belk Bros. Department Store said business is about the same as last year, although "We'll be very disappointed if we don't have a little increase over 1959."

Winston-Salem—The Retail Merchants Association says "Business is good but the big push is yet to come. It will begin about Dec. 15, when employees receive their Christmas bonuses. Overall retail sales will be up from last year."

'Peace On Earth' Theme More Popular Than Ever

By JULES LOH
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—"Peace on earth, the message of the angels at Bethlehem, is more popular this year than ever before as a theme for Christmas cards. "I think it must have something to do with concern over world tensions," said Stephen Q. Shannon, executive director of the Greeting Card Association which studies such trends.

"And if there's no let up in the cold war," he said, "it wouldn't surprise me if the trend assumed major proportions."

Already assuming major proportions is the popularity of cards with a religious motif. This year more than 750 million cards—about 30 per cent of the total—stress the religious significance of Christmas. The trend has been growing steadily the past decade. Shannon observes there is added emphasis this year on the idea of continuing peace, rather than just a repetition of the familiar "On earth, peace to men of good will."

Many cards, for example, have some variation of, "May the peace of Christmas remain with you forever." One says, "Peace on earth is here to stay if we live Christmas every day."

The latter example is typical of the spirit but not the meter inside this year's religious cards. Unlike most of the nonreligious type, the religious messages generally avoid sing-songy couplets in preference for simple, meaningful phrases.

"May the blessings of Christmas be with you today and always," says one. Other examples: "May the spirit of Christmas bring joy to you and yours." "May the beauty of Christmas be an inspiration to you throughout the year."

Each year the association rates the relative popularity of 19 design classifications within the religious category, and once again madonnas are the most popular. Scenes of the virgin and child account for more than 18 per cent of this year's religious card designs, a shade more than last year. Next in popularity are manger scenes, 10.5 per cent.

All except one of this year's top 10 favorites were in last year's top 10 but not in the same order. The one exception is church windows, which dropped from ninth place last year to 11th this year.

Here are this year's 10 favorite religious designs in order of their popularity, with the way they ranked last year in parentheses: Madonnas, 1; manger scenes 5; cherubs 6; churches 4; holy family 3; wise men 2; shepherds 7; children 15; angels, 10; Christ child 8.

The association put the remaining nine in this order: church windows, miscellaneous, choirs, illuminated script, Bibles and rosaries, church bells, classical art, religious text and star and cross.

While many reproductions of classical art works are of the ever popular madonnas, they generally are higher priced, which may help explain their position close to the bottom of the list.

Greeting card companies have gone to great lengths this year to make their position close to the bottom of the list.

Yule Program

The Junius H. Rose High School Glee Club will present its annual Christmas program at 3:00 this Sunday afternoon, December 18, in the high school gymnasium.

Under the direction of Mrs. Earl F. Beach, the group will give the traditional Christmas story with a musical background. Special features of the program will include solos, trios and quartets.

The public is cordially invited.

Honor Is Won By Serviceman

Airman Second Class Edward Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Lee Greene of Ayden, has been selected Airman of the Month for November, at Craig Air Force Base in Alabama.

Airman Greene is serving with Headquarters Squadron of the 3615th Pilot Training Wing.

A native of Ayden, the serviceman graduated from Ayden High School and attended East Carolina College prior to entering the Air Force. He is a graduate of the Personnel Specialist Course at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, and hopes to obtain an Air Force commission either through the Officer Training School program or through the Officers Candidate School.

His brother, Airman Third Class Kenneth E. Greene, is serving at Westsmith Air Force Base, in Michigan.

Fraternities, Sororities Hold Yule Projects

Several of East Carolina College's social fraternities and sororities have carried out during the past few days projects aimed at making Christmas a happy time for needy children and adults.

Members of the Sigma Nu fraternity, in cooperation with the welfare Department here, collected about 300 cans of food for distribution to needy families. The fraternity also joined the Salvation Army in staging a party for underprivileged children Thursday, Dec. 15. John C. Merritt of Statesville headed the project for the fraternity.

The Chi Omega sorority and the Delta Sigma Pi fraternity also entertained at a children's party Thursday. Jean C. Lasater of Sanford, Betty H. Lane of Cary, and Sue C. Sparkman of St. Pauls were in charge of purchasing presents for guests.

Members of the Delta Zeta sorority carried out for the third consecutive year a project providing food, clothing, and gifts for a needy family in Greenville. Julia A. Moser of Graham, chairman, Sallie A. Morris of Morehead City, and Sylvia Ann Hoyle of Henderson composed the committee on arrangements for the sorority.

Instead of exchanging gifts with each other, Alpha Pi sisters arranged to provide food, clothing, and children's toys for a family of five in Greenville and to entertain the beneficiaries of their Christmas project at a party.

Find Her Teeth In Good Condition

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A dentist says Elizabeth Taylor's teeth are in perfect condition.

Only a month ago one abscessed tooth was pulled in London and headlines proclaimed that more might have to go.

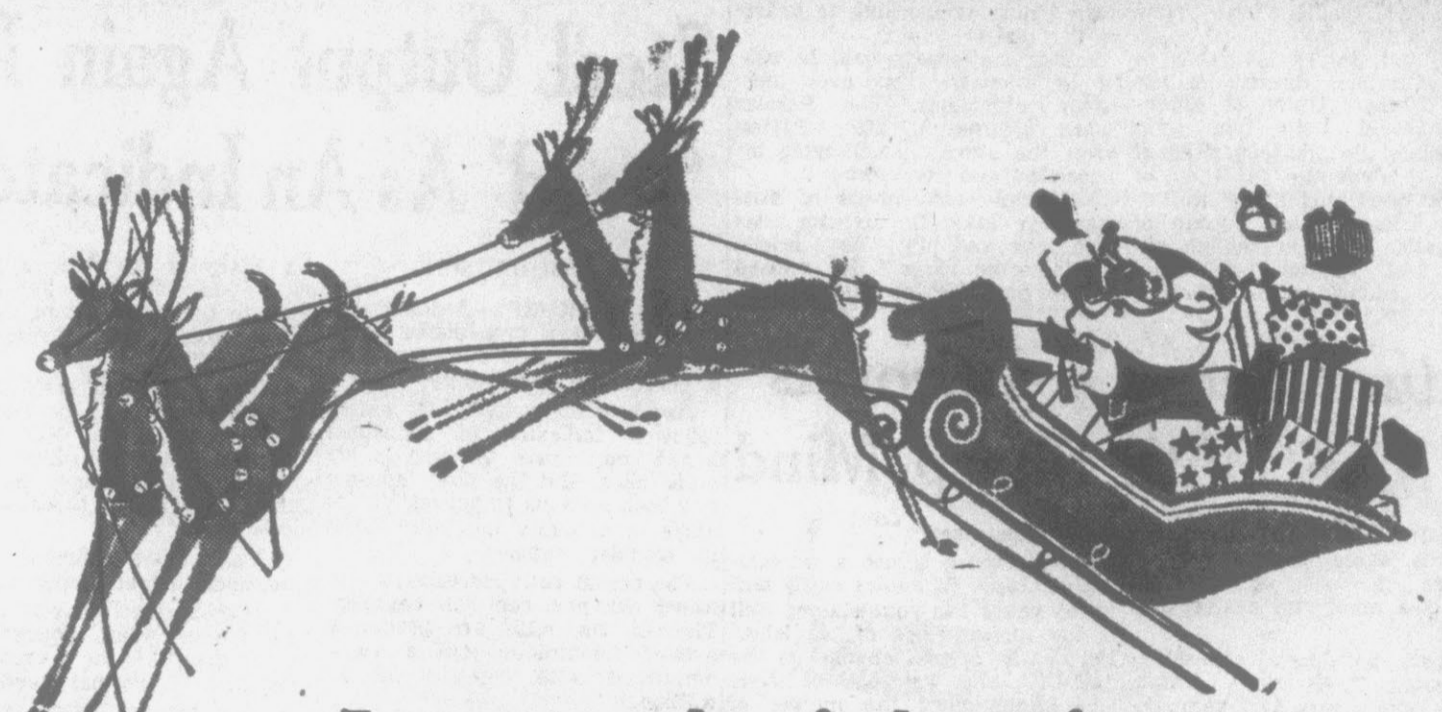

The actress became ill after arriving in London Sept. 3 and production on the movie "Cleopatra" was held up. Her illness finally was diagnosed as an inflammation of the outer lining of the spinal cord and brain. The infected tooth was given as a contributing factor.

Dr. Stanley W. Vogel of Beverly Hills said Thursday he found Miss Taylor "in excellent dental health."

She and her husband, Eddie Fisher, leave next week for London.

HEART VICTIM

NEW YORK (AP)—A man found dead in his apartment among an assortment of snakes, fish and cats died of a heart attack, an autopsy showed Wednesday. Police discovered the body of the man, known as both Fritz Schmalz and Roland Rolando, Tuesday in his apartment.

Children Of 26 Pitt Families Will Be Moose Guests

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE worked long and late last night wrapping gifts for young guests at Sunday's Christmas party.

The children of twenty-six families, chosen from a list prepared by the Pitt County Welfare Department, will be guests of the Greenville Moose Lodge at a Christmas party Sunday.

Moose and the Women of the Moose have spent the past week preparing for the event — purchasing and wrapping toys and articles of clothing which will be presented each child.

Lodge Secretary Edwin Baldrice says over one hundred children are expected to attend Sunday's party. Santa Claus will be there

Additionally, food baskets for the 26 families are being prepared.

The fraternal order's Christmas party for children of the county has become established as one of their larger undertakings each year.

Moose will pick up the children at their homes Sunday afternoon and bring them to the 2:00 affair, and return them at its conclusion.

Santa Claus will make a second visit to the Lodge next Thursday evening to greet children of Moose members.

Flaws In The Hollywood Walk Of Fame Project

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This being the Christmas season, it is time to take a Scrooge-like view of a local civic project—the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

The town's property owners have wisely started a campaign to spruce up Hollywood Boulevard, which has long had the appearance of Coney Island but little of its fun. Part of the plan consisted of ripping up sidewalks and installing $1.25 million worth of terrazzo walkways with the names of 1,500 famous stars imbedded in them.

The Walk of Fame is chiefly noted for its exclusion of Charlie Chaplin. Though he was Hollywood's greatest star, the businessmen who compiled the list of stars disapproved of his politics. Hence he was included out.

We won't argue the Chaplin bit today. Let's look and wonder at some of the other selections.

The merchants named their choices in four categories: motion pictures, recording, radio and television. Note that only entertainers in the mechanical mediums can qualify—none of those old-fashioned people who entertain in the flesh.

Thus a star could be imbedded four times in the Terrazzo and two are: Gene Autry and Tony Martin. The former is a logical choice; Martin may have appeared in all four mediums—most entertainers have—but he now makes his principal living in night clubs.

Twenty-eight stars get triple billing, including Jane Froman, Conrad Nagel, Basil Rathbone, Spike Jones, Jo Stafford and Fred Waring. Marilyn Monroe and Marlon Brando have to be content with one star only. Gale Storm gets three but none for motion pictures, which is where she got her name and fame.

Teachers Ass'n Hears Dr. Green

Each community in Pitt County needs to find new ways to improve the relationship between the community and the teachers, Dr. G. Sylvester Green, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, told the Greenville Classroom Teachers Association Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. Green told the group that each community of the county should continue to support their teachers as a part of the planned progress for their community.

Dr. Green's topic was "What can the Pitt County Development Commission do for the Teachers of Pitt County?"

The classroom teacher also has a definite obligation to the community, Dr. Green declared. He needs to participate actively in the civic projects of his community. Teachers need to constantly be thinking ahead, planning ahead, preparing citizens to take their places in the community in the years to come, he said.

Each teacher needs to examine himself often to see that he is doing all he can to help with the future development of his community.

Three Rose High School students, Bettye Crawford, Ida Lynn Evans and Anna Overton gave the devotional to open the meeting.

Mrs. Fenner Allen, vice president of the Classroom Teachers Association presided.

Firm Holds Its Christmas Party

More than 100 persons attended Belk-Tyler's annual Christmas dinner-party held at the Greenville Moose Lodge last night.

Manager B. D. Johnson welcomed employees and guests to the annual affair before recognizing Gene Skinner, the store's assistant manager, who served as master of ceremonies.

Following the full-course dinner, Richard Clark of New Bern, billed as the "Prince of Pantomime," staged an hour-long show. The audience responded to Clark's entertainment with frequent rounds of applause.

During the program, Belk-Tyler employees went through the annual Christmas gift exchanging.

Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Jim Butler, I. G. Morris, and Mrs. Denes.

Last Rites Saturday For J. Lundy Baker

Mr. J. Lundy Baker, 50, died enroute to Pitt Memorial Hospital from his home Thursday night at six o'clock following a heart attack suffered a few minutes earlier. For the past year he had been in failing health.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Saturday afternoon at 2:30 by the Rev. Robert B. Crawford, pastor of the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Baker, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jesse B. Baker, had spent all his life in Greenville. He was a salesman for L. B. Price Mercantile Company.

Surviving are two sons, the Rev. Graham Baker of Newport, N.C., and Robert Baker of Norfolk, Va.; two grandchildren; and a sister, Mrs. Katie Baker Hardee of Sumter, S.C.

Cynicism Has Not Touched Bob Hope

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Nothing makes some men more cynical than success.

It hasn't worked out that way with Bob Hope. After three decades of stardom, he still has the boyish enthusiasm for performing—and living—you find only in the best of the real pros.

He has found some kind of secret springboard of the spirit that keeps him young.

But if you compliment the ageless comedian on his youthful effervescence, he grins wryly and says:

"I don't know whether I ought to take a bow—or give my taxi-driver credit."

"When I see some of my old movies on television now, I feel like I have a son I've never met."

Doctors told Bob some time ago he should slow down. He says he has—but it is hard to tell where he still carries on a busy TV schedule. He has just finished another film, "The Facts of Life," costarring Lucille Ball. And he still shuttles across the continent to give benefit shows.

Hope also heads a personal business empire which includes investments in a baseball team, a dairy farm, a summer camp, a movie company, two meat packing firms, and oil properties.

"I like to feel good, and I feel better when I'm doing something."

Over the years Bob has starred in every branch of show business—vaudeville, stage, movies, radio and television. But he believes luck plays a big role in every performer's success.

"And finding the right script is the biggest part of that luck," he said. "I could have gone to Hollywood with the wrong script, and still be back in vaudeville."

Asked what had brought him the greatest pleasure in his career, Bob said it had been his missions to combat areas to entertain the troops.

"That was the biggest thrill of my life—to be allowed backstage in the wars," he said soberly.

Melancholy has become a kind of fashionable badge with many comedians. But Bob doesn't like to complain in public about his private woes.

"I very seldom feel blue," he said. "It's not my nature."

Here is Hope's hopeful philosophy: "Every morning when you wake up and nothing hurts — you've won a big bet."

"You don't realize the meaning of life until your bones start creaking a bit."

The cosmopolitan character of Paramaribo, capital of Surinam in South America, is indicated by its six moving picture theaters which show American, European, Indian, Chinese and Indonesian films.

Funeral Sunday For Miss Sallie Chapman

Miss Sallie Frances Chapman, 84, died in Lenoir County Hospital in Kinston Friday morning at three o'clock. She had been in declining health for several years and critically ill for the past several days.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Sunday afternoon at two o'clock by the Rev. William Roberts, pastor of Timothy Christian Church. Burial will be in the Chapman's Family Cemetery near the home.

Miss Chapman, daughter of the late Slade and Louisa Burney Chapman, was born in Pitt County and spent all her life in the Burney's Crossroads community. She was a member of the Grifton Methodist Church.

Surviving are a sister, Miss Lydia Chapman of the home; two nieces and a nephew, Mrs. Horace Ray Jackson of Ayden, Mrs. Harvey Lee Moring of Alexandria, Va., and William Slade Chapman of Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Woodrow L. Bland Funeral On Saturday

Mr. Woodrow Lee (Jack) Bland, 48, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Thursday night following a brief illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Epworth Methodist Church Saturday afternoon at three o'clock by the pastor, the Rev. A. C. Regan, assisted by a former pastor, the Rev. Ellis Bedsforth. Burial will be in the Epworth cemetery.

Mr. Bland was a native of Craven County and spent most of his life in the Epworth community. He was a farmer until ill health caused his retirement several years ago. He was a member of Epworth Methodist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Helen Jones Bland; a son, A3C Jack B. Bland, stationed at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base at Goldsboro; and a sister, Mrs. Laurie Pate of the Epworth community.

NOTICE OF RESALE OF REAL PROPERTY BY TRUSTEE

Whereas, under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in that certain Deed of Trust executed by J. C. Gaskins Jr. and wife, Hester P. Gaskins, to J. H. Harrell, Trustee, dated September 10, 1959, recorded in Book E-31, page 264 of the Pitt County Registry, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness thereby secured and said property having been offered for sale under said Deed of Trust on November 30, 1960; and, whereas, within the time allowed by law an advanced bid was filed with the Clerk of Superior Court and an order issued directing the undersigned trustee to re-sell said land upon an opening bid of $4,250. Now, therefore, under and by virtue of the said order of the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County, and the power of sale contained in said Deed of Trust, the undersigned trustee will offer for sale upon said opening bid at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the courthouse door in Greenville, North Carolina, at 12 o'clock noon on Thursday, December 29, 1960, the following described real property in Falkland Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, about four miles West of Greenville on the South side of Tar River and on the North side of the Greenville-Falkland hard-surfaced road, and bounded on the North by Tar River, on the South by the Greenville-Falkland hard-surfaced road, on the East by the lands of Edward and Gordon Evans, and on the West by the lands of Gus Forbes, containing 66 acres, more or less, and being Lot No. 2 in the division of the Edward and Gordon Evans land, as shown in the division in Special Proceedings No. 2728 in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court.

TRACT NO. 2: A one-half undivided interest in and to that certain tract or parcel of land lying and being situate in Greenville Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, about four miles West of Greenville, North Carolina, adjoining Lot No. 2, in the division of the lands of Edward and Gordon Evans, and bounded on the North by Tar River, on the South by the Greenville-Falkland hard-surfaced road on the East by the lands of Mrs. Nannie Evans, on the West by Lot No. 2, in the division of the lands of Edward and Gordon

Evans, and containing 61 acres, more or less, and being Lot No. 1, in the division of the lands of Edward and Gordon Evans made during the year 1926, as shown by map by W. C. Dresbach, C. E., dated September 17, 1926, and filed in Special Proceedings No. 2728 in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County, to which map and proceedings reference is hereby made.

This sale will be made subject to all prior liens, and the successful bidder at the sale will be required to deposit with the undersigned 10% of his bid to show his good faith in the bidding and to await confirmation of sale.

This the 12th day of December, 1960.
J. H. HARRELL, Trustee
Dec. 16-23

NOTICE OF SALE

Pursuant to an Order of Sale signed by D. T. House Jr., Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County on November 17, 1960, and approved by Hon. Chester Morris, Judge of the Superior Court, on November 21, 1960 in Sp. Proceeding No. 6749, entitled: Wachovia Bk. & Tr. Co., Ext. and Gdn. under the Will of Peggy Moss Evans, vs. Marshall L. Evans Jr., the undersigned will offer for sale and sell to the highest bidder for cash before the Courthouse door in Pitt County, Greenville, N. C. on Wednesday, December 28, 1960 at 12 o'clock noon, all of the following lot or parcel of land and dwelling house located in Greenville, N. C. at 109 N. Harding St. and more particularly described as follows:

"That said lot or parcel of land, lying and being in the City of Greenville, Pitt County, State of North Carolina, on the West side of Harding Street, and Beginning at an iron stake located in the West property line of Harding St. at a point 323.8 feet North 24 deg. East of the northwest corner of the intersection of First and Harding Streets, and running thence with the West property line of Harding Street, North 24 deg. East 70 feet to an iron stake; thence North 66 deg. West 124 feet to an iron stake; thence South 24 deg. 27 min. West 70 feet to an iron stake; thence South 66 deg. East 124.5 feet to an iron stake at the beginning and being a part of Lot No. 3 in Block "C" of the Highland Pines Subdivision, as shown on plat made by Joe M. Dresbach, R. S., dated October, 1950, this having been the residence of the late Mrs. Peggy Moss Evans."

The terms of the public sale are cash. The highest bidder is required to deposit ten per cent of bid. Sale will remain open ten days for raised bid and confirmation.

This 23rd day of November, 1960.

CONTINUING SERVICE

to the people of Greenville and Pitt County

Tadlock Mutual is continuing to contribute to the economy of our community, just as we have in the past 27 years.

This year we have paid to you and your neighbors $124,852.23 for unfortunate happenings to your homes or personal property. 710 of you were victims of disaster, and we were happy to help you recover part of your loss, whether it was a fire, windstorm, lightning, collision or whatever. (Many workmen's compensation & auto liability losses not included.)

During Hurricane Donna, there were 391 claims paid out of our office; for a total of $75,120.38. The average loss for "Donna" was $192.12.

In addition to the losses paid, our policyholders received $17,782.67 in DIVIDENDS. Thus returning a portion of the premium back to the Policyholder.

It is a pleasure to be of service, during your time of need; and if you are not yet one of our policyholders, stop by our office the next time you're passing and discuss your insurance needs with us.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Airlines declined on news of the latest airplane crash and other issues moved trendlessly in a mixed stock market early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .20 at 217.60 with industrials up .50, rails up .40 and utilities down .20.

News of a collision between planes of United Air Lines and Trans World Airlines brought selling to aircraft stocks.

Other stocks groped through a maze of yearend tax transactions and switching. The business news background continued uninspiring.

Chemicals, electrical equipments, drugs and nonferrous metals looked a bit higher on balance. Steels, autos, oils and tobaccos were mixed.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 2.18 at 612.94. Corporate bonds were mixed and U.S. government bonds were steady to lower in light dealings.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog prices mostly steady to 25 lower. Tops of 18.00 to 19.00 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Nahant, Mount Olive, and Newton Grove; 17.75 to 18.75 at Smithfield and Dunn; 17.25 to 18.75 at Wilson; 18.00 to 18.50 at Clinton; Fayetteville and Elizabethtown; 18.25 at Albemarle and Greensboro; 18.00 at Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck and Lillington; 17.75

Urges Matching Communist Zeal

CHARLOTTE (AP)—“There’s no jungle too deep and no obstacle too big for the Communist missionary,” Billy Graham told an audience here Friday night.

He said the Communists may be doing more than the Christians in winning followers.

The evangelist spoke at a banquet at the YMCA here.

Graham quoted Communist leaders as saying in Europe last summer that communism would have the world by 1972.

And he told of hearing 50,000 young people in Moscow’s Red Square stamping their feet and chanting, “We going to change the world.”

“Can you imagine 50,000 Christian young people in Times Square in New York or in front of the Capitol in Washington chanting, ‘We’re going to change the world?’”

Pitt County Shrine Club Installs New Officers

Second To Raise Bookmobile Fund

BELVOIR — The Belvoir community today became the second to fulfill its pledge for a second bookmobile for Pitt County, J. H. Rose, bookmobile chairman, announced this morning.

Principal of Sallie Branch School, Miss Mattie King, turned the amount of $250 over to Rose this morning.

The Stokes community, with a pledge of $300, was the first to bring in its allotment.

Police Chief Is Shot By Suspect

SPRAY, N.C. (AP)—A burglary suspect took Police Chief Vestal of Spray early today, forced him to drive into Virginia and shot the chief five or six times.

Virginia officers arrested the suspect, 22-year-old James Curtis Weatherman of Martinsville, Va. Chief Terry, taken first to the Martinsville General Hospital, later was transferred to Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem where his condition was reported to be serious. He suffered bullet wounds of the chest, arms and back.

Asst. Police Chief Clarence Vestal of Spray said that city officers received a call to assist a Rockingham County officer at a break-in at Snow Supply Co., just outside the Spray city limits, shortly before midnight. The officers apprehended Leonard Elwood Crutchfield of Henry County, Va., who was sitting in a car outside the building supply company.

“The other one ran out of the store into the woods,” Vestal continued. “The chief was sitting in his private car at Craddock’s service station. About three of us saw him there. Nobody was with him at that time.”

While Vestal and eight or nine officers went into the woods, Chief Terry remained behind. Evidently the suspect chose that time to come out and take the chief hostage.

“We searched about an hour in the woods,” Vestal continued. “We had been looking everywhere for him (Chief Terry) and we didn’t know what happened until about 4:30 a.m. when we got word that he had been shot in Virginia.”

P. L. Goodson Jr. was installed as president of the Pitt County Shrine Club in ceremonies last night at a local restaurant.

Also installed were O. M. “Smug” Respass, vice president; William “Bill” Yost, secretary; and Kelly Roe, treasurer.

Outgoing president Ed Ricks and other outgoing officers were commended for their services during the past year.

The meeting included a program of Christmas music and group singing, planned by Goodson, chairman of the entertainment committee, assisted by Tom Carawan.

Miss Olive Herring of Dunn, pianist, and Miss Sybil Queen of Shelby, soloist, presented the Christmas program and later led the group in singing. Both are sophomores at East Carolina College in the department of music.

The 750-mile-long island of Cuba was discovered by Christopher Columbus, just two weeks after he first sighted land in the New World.

College Holiday Starting Today

Holidays for East Carolina College students begin at 5 p.m. today, F. D. Duncan of the college announced. The students will resume classes on Monday, Jan. 2.

City and county school students will have to wait until next Tuesday to begin their holidays, J. H. Rose, city school superintendent, said. City school students will be dismissed following a full day on Tuesday and will return to classes on Tuesday, Jan. 3.

County school students will be dismissed next Tuesday following their examinations and Christmas programs. Their holidays end on Monday, Jan. 2, D. H. Conley, superintendent, said. County school students will lose one day of the previously scheduled vacation in order to make up one day missed due to Hurricane Donna. They originally had the same vacation as the city school students.

French Postmen On Strike Today

PARIS (AP)—Postmen struck throughout France today and few people got their Christmas mail.

The strike, due to end at midnight, caused many post offices to close. Officials at the Finance Ministry also decided to stop work for two hours this afternoon. Both groups are dissatisfied with present wage scales.
