Prayers For Peace Echoed Over World On Christmas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Solemn prayers for peace rose throughout the Christian world on Christmas Day as temporal and spiritual leaders urged an end to the threat of violence hanging over mankind.

just another day. But there were traditional family celebrations in East Germany, Poland and other European members of the Red bloc.

In Chile, a gaily decorated 12-car train carried a half million toys to children of southern sections left homeless by earthquakes and tidal waves last May.

Kennedy Will End Florida Stay On January 4 Or 5

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy plans to end his Florida stay Jan. 4 or 5 and fly to New York.

Douglas Dillon, Republican undersecretary of state whom Kennedy recruited for his secretary of the Treasury, also planned to come here for lunch.

to be given increased importance in the Kennedy administration. Just how the roles in space should be split between the military and civilian agencies has been debated for years.

Six Collisions In City Are Reported

Over $800 damage was reported by Greenville police in six collisions investigated over the past few days.

Heaviest damage resulted in a three-car collision at the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and Washington St. about 12:55 p.m. Saturday.

Damage to the Page auto was set at $60 while damage to the Morion car was estimated to be about $35.

Police Officer Hurt In Scuffle

Greenville police officer Jasper Lee Mills was hospitalized Friday following a scuffle with a man he and officer Fred Pollard went to arrest on a drunkenness charge.

Officers, who said all three cars were headed east on Dickinson Ave. charged Riggs with following too close.

Investigations, who made no charges, said no damage was done to the Gaston auto.

Tent City Of Sharecroppers Is Expected To Grow This Week

SOMERVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A tent city of sharecroppers spent a bleak Christmas, was expected to grow this week. Negro leaders predicted 300 families may soon be homeless.

White landowners who claim the sharecroppers no longer are needed say voting rights are not involved, and that the Negroes were given plenty of time to relocate.

pending in federal court, says the eviction notices for many families arrived shortly after they registered. It seeks a permanent injunction to prevent landowners from evicting any tenants because they registered or voted.

Firemen From Five Towns Helped At Kinston Fire

KINSTON'S ORST FIRE IN 65 YEARS—Damage is estimated at half million dollars in this fire that hit Kinston's business district late yesterday. Firemen from five towns fought the blaze that for a while threatened a major part of the business district.

Kinston, Varina And Trenton Fire Losses Over Holiday Near $1 Million

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Three fires caused damages estimated at $825,000 in commercial establishments in the Eastern North Carolina cities of Kinston, Varina and Trenton over the Christmas weekend.

The Kinston fire broke out about 4 p.m. Christmas Day. It was five hours before the flames had subsided so that the firefighters could enter the building and begin mopping up the fire from inside.

Helping Kinston firemen battle the blaze were units from Goldsboro, Snow Hill, LaGrange and New Bern.

Pitt Patrolman Unhurt In Wreck

A highway patrolman narrowly escaped injury or possible death late Friday night when his patrol car overturned on the Bevoir Road about one mile west of the prison camp.

The cause of the fires is under investigation. Kinston's worst fire in 65 years Sunday destroyed the two-story Sutton Building, with four stores on the first floor and several offices on the second.

Several explosions punctuated the Varina fire. The explosions apparently resulted from fuel oil and chemicals used in gassing tobacco beds.

The arms will be bought out of a $25 million credit extended by Premier Nikita Khrushchev last February.

Vows Spoken On Christmas Eve

In a private ceremony on December 24, 1960, at five o'clock, Miss Janice Manning became the bride of J. W. Moore at the home of the bride in Greenville, Mr. Ray

Nichols of Greenville officiated in the double-ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Manning, Sr., of Greenville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Heber Waters of Falkland and the late Mr. Guy Moore.

Wedding music consisting of the traditional "Bridal Chorus," "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," and "The Wedding March" were presented by Miss Patsy Corey of Greenville.

The couple said their marriage vows before two seven-branched candelabras holding cathedral candles and decorated with Muji chrysanthemums and bridal greenery.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street length dress of winter white nylon chiffon over taffeta. The bodice was enhanced by tiny pleats and a satin sash which ended in the shape of a wedding bell in back. She carried a prayer book with a white orchid.

Miss Alberta Manning was her sister's only attendant. She wore a light blue wool suit accented by a fur collar. Her outfit was completed with black accessories.

James Otis Deans of Falkland, was Mr. Moore's best man.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue crepe dress accented by black accessories. She wore a white Fuji chrysanthemum.

The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of white wool with accessories and a white Fuji chrysanthemum.

The bride is a graduate of Belvoir-Falkland High School and is currently employed with Bennett's Insurance Agency of Greenville.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Belvoir-Falkland High School. At the present time he is a junior at East Carolina College.

Before leaving for a wedding trip to Florida, the bride changed into a yellow and white plaid suit and wore the orchid lifted from her prayer book. Upon returning from Florida, the couple will make their home in Falkland.

Reception Immediately following the wedding ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a wedding reception.

After the bride and groom had cut the first traditional slice, the bride's mother served the wedding cake. Lime punch was served by the groom's mother from a table with a white linen table cloth centered with a yellow flowered centerpiece. Also served were mixed nuts and bridal mints.

Rose High Events

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON Rose High's senior class presented its annual Christmas assembly Tuesday afternoon during the last period.

As the scene opened, a family had gathered around the fireplace and Christmas tree in their living room. Ruth Clark and Dallas Clark portrayed the mother and father while Donna Whitley, Tommy Taft, Ben White, and Judy Thigpen eagerly waited for Old St. Nick.

After the stockings had been hung and the tree all lit, Ruth read the Christmas story, portraying the birth of the little Lord Jesus.

The Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. Earl F. Beach, sang "Silent Night." Dallas led the group in prayer, after which Brenda Thigpen accompanied soloist Craig Worthington in "O Holy Night."

Christmas carolers then sang "Deck the Halls" to the family and to the audience. After due consideration, Father allowed his youngsters to open one gift before going to bed. As they opened their one gift, they each told what they liked best about Christmas.

After the family had settled down for the night, Donna Day Bissette read a version of "Twas the Night Before Christmas." Old St. Nick, represented by James D. Nicholson, came in to give the children their presents and to wish everyone a Merry Christmas. Then he turned to the audience and gave a brief talk on the real meaning of Christmas, urging everyone to remember the Star of Bethlehem at the holiday season.

Bill Wade, senior class president, then took over the program. He announced that during second lunch period the class had given small baskets of food to the cafeteria workers and groundskeeper and also a gift to Mrs. Stone, the cafeteria assistant.

He then presented to Launa Brewington and Curtis Simpson, maid and janitor, respectively, large baskets of food and a gift, also. He explained that although the seniors had been in charge of the project, each homeroom in the school had had the privilege of bringing foods and other items for the baskets.

Next, Bill presented a gift to Mrs. Addie Jenkins for her faithful service as school secretary. Bill explained that the student body had also remembered the teachers at this holiday season. They presented Christmas corsages to them early in the day. He asked Mrs. Mims and Mr. McRorie, senior class advisers, to come forward to receive gifts for the two teachers' lounges from the entire student body.

Under the direction of James E. Rodgers, the band presented "Christmas Fantasia," an arrangement of many familiar songs connected with the holiday season. After wishes for a safe and happy holiday from Junius H. Rose and Orren E. Dowd, the group returned to their homerooms for their Christmas issue of The Green Lights.

Seniors Melinda Coleman and Ruth Clark wrote and planned the Christmas assembly. Louis Jones constructed the fireplace. Each class was represented in the Christmas skit by one of the "children." Three sugar plum fairies, Jo Herring, Julie Dodson and Linda Harris, danced across the stage during the reading of

"Twas the Night Before Christmas."

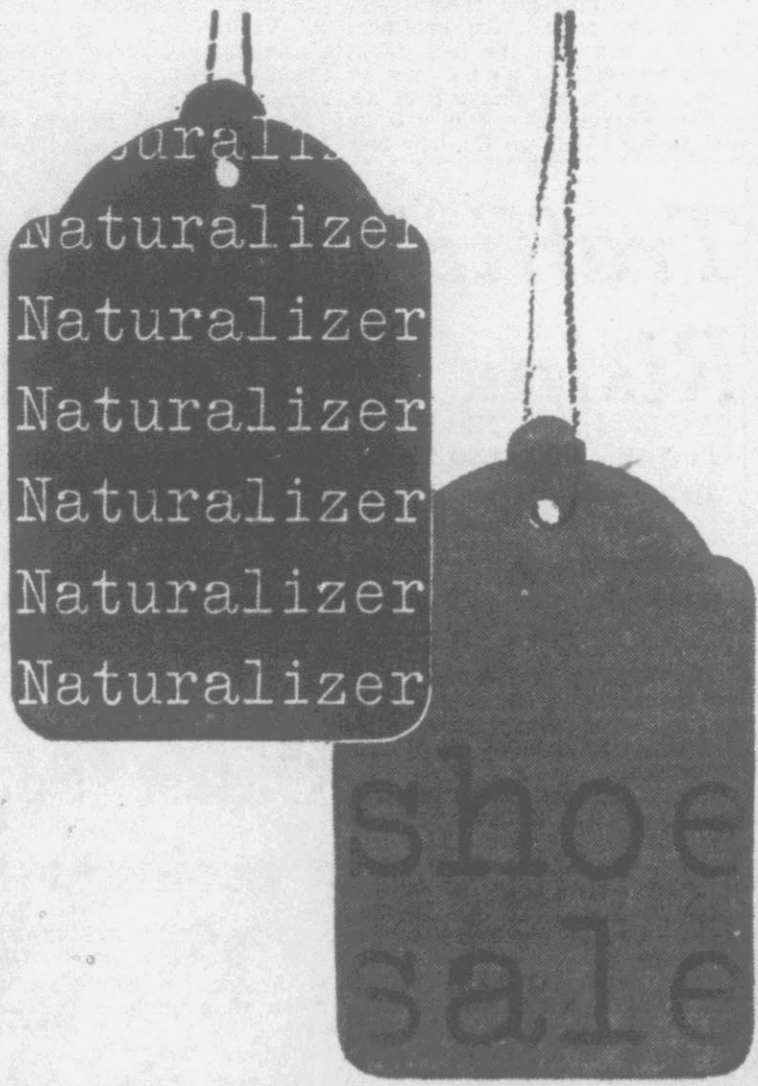

Christmas Party Twenty-two senior girls entertained with a semi-formal dance at the Greenville Elks Lodge Wednesday evening.

Many alumni and high school students enjoyed dancing to the music of a combo and eating various Christmas refreshments.

Hostesses for the affair included Phyllis Moore, Jo Herring, Joanne Smith, Julie Dodson, Alma Taft, Ginger Melton, Melinda Coleman, Myrtle Moon Bilbro, Judy Tucker, Linda Harris, and Jean Trahey. Remaining include Donna Day Bissette, Ruth Clark, Jean Crawford, Alice Cannon, Judy Page, Sara Webb, Dorothy Sullivan, Margaret Beck, Myra Hathaway, Lynda Blackburn, and Janice Bentley.

News And Notes From Grifton

Playlet Presented "GRIFTON—Ten O'Clock In Tcyland," a playlet, was presented Friday night in the fellowship hall of the Methodist Church by the children in the primary department under the direction of Mrs. John Glenn.

This play was a scene in the lives of toys who rehearsed their parts for Christmas, complete with jack-in-the-box, toy soldiers, walking dolls, story books and the Bible.

Cathy Sunjer and Ella Mann acted as heralds, announcing the parts and actors. Paul Wesley Carr, the Toyman, and his helper, Robert Nelson, were assisted by toys, Peter Rabbit, Michael Tyndall, Gingerbread Boy, George Hart, Little Boy Blue, David Cox.

Tin Soldiers were Austin Waters, John McArthur, Tommy Watson and Kenneth Ward. The Baby Dolls were Alma Parker, Cheryl Barnes, Olivia Reeves, Nancy Dedrick, Debbie Branscome and Billie Mann.

Clowns were David Graves, Don Purser, Glenn Tucker, Whit McLawhorn, John Arthur Talton, Bill Jones.

Story Books were portrayed by Linda Moore, Bem McLawhorn, Patsy Oglesby, Barbara Rasberry and Jo Anna Paul.

Teressa McArthur gave the Merry Christmas welcome to all. Santa arrived at the close of the program and presented gifts to all the children of the Sunday school.

Ladies of the church served refreshments in the church parlor. The table was covered with a red cloth and held a fruit, greenery and candle arrangement. Punch, cookies, mints and nuts were enjoyed. Mrs. J. C. Hooten poured punch and was assisted by Mrs. Edward Hart.

Pageant Given

"And It Came To Pass," a pageant in song and tableaux, was presented Sunday night under the direction of Mrs. Harold Barkeley by the members of the MYF.

The senior choir, directed by Mr. Arthur Honeychurch, sang appropriate music during the tableaux and pageant.

The call to worship was given by Tommy Riley who also gave the invocation. Joyce Oakes read the scripture and a Christmas sermonette was said by Jeanie

Carr. Waiter Powell was narrator and the angel taking a speaking part was Shirley Moore Kenneth Tyndall and Ann McClaine had the roles of Joseph and Mary, respectively. The three kings were Steve Cox, Harry Hart and Jimmie Barwick. Bill Lehman, Joey Patrick, Bob Oglesby, Charles Pace and Carrol Oakes were Shepherds.

Angels were Connie Johnson, Patricia Johnson, Sandra Hardee, Claudia Hart, Brenda Stone, Carolyn Triplett, Carol Shuller, Nancy Oglesby and Patricia Bowen.

Ushers for the evening were Iris Talton, Alice Hart, Wendy Harker and Linda Bowen.

The pageant climaxed a fellowship supper in the fellowship hall when the pastor, the Rev. Edgar Shuller and Mrs. Shuller were presented gifts from the congregation.

If you have tiny cutters in different shapes you can make attractive miniature cutouts from slices of preserved ginger. Use the ginger garnishes on a bowl of sliced oranges or canned or frozen peaches.

More Will Have Nuclear Capability

The development of an atomic potential by the small nation of Israel should cause the major nuclear powers of the world to again evaluate carefully the necessity of reaching some agreement on international control of nuclear weapons.

As more and more nations develop a nuclear capability—and certainly there is no reason to think they will not—the danger of a nuclear war being set off increases. When only the United States and the Soviet Union had the capacity for launching a nuclear attack there was a very real danger. But as each additional nation develops a capacity for producing the materials necessary to such weapons, the danger multiplies rapidly.

Atomic energy will play a major role in the future development of the world. It cannot be expected that over the long term other nations will not also have the capacity to produce atomic energy. Although the development of atomic capacity will be primarily for the purpose of peaceful uses, there is nothing now to prevent any nation which has the capacity from producing atomic weapons as well. With such a capacity, even the smallest nation by an unwise act might plunge the whole world into a nuclear holocaust.

No longer is it a question of whether most nations will be able to produce atomic materials with their own facilities. It is now merely a question of how long it will be before they reach such a point. Just as the capacity to produce conventional explosives, electricity and other forms of energy is general throughout the world today, there is no reason to expect that the capacity to produce energy from the atom will not be general throughout the world tomorrow.

If the world is to protect itself from destruction by this vast new source of energy, there must be some understanding among nations as to its use. There must be some practical method of seeing that any such agreements reached on an international basis are implemented by reasonable controls for the protection of the nations who abide by the agreements.

The problem is more pressing now than it was a few years ago. It will be even more pressing five or 10 years from now. It is a problem to which both the powerful and the weak nations must give their immediate and careful attention.

Review Of N.C. Court Activity

By LYNN NISBET

COURTS — There are more than eleven hundred courts operating in North Carolina, with jurisdictions ranging from a maximum of $50 in tort actions to imposition of the death penalty for capital felonies.

That and other interesting information is found in the annual report of Bert Montague, administrative assistant to the chief justice of the Supreme Court.

The courts listed are: The Supreme Court, composed of a chief justice and six associate justices; one hundred county superior courts, with 32 regular and four special judges on full time duty, and five emergency judges subject to assignment when needed and when able to work five general county courts with unlimited civil jurisdiction and criminal jurisdiction in all cases below felony grade; 60 county recorder courts with criminal jurisdiction below felony grade, and civil jurisdiction ranging to about $1,000; 71 municipal and township recorder courts with jurisdiction generally a little below that of the county recorder courts; nine county criminal courts with no civil jurisdiction; 93 juvenile courts, in which usually the clerk of the superior court serves as judge, with jurisdiction principally over children under 16; eight domestic relations courts, having jurisdiction over all cases affecting children, including abandonment, non-support and desertion by parents; 157 mayor's courts with jurisdiction mainly over violation of municipal ordinances, but a few with right to try cases for all and approximately 613 justice of the peace courts.

Montague notes that some judges and calendar committees have set time for "clean up" of old cases. He suggests fuller use of that plan. Among the counties listed with a higher percentage of civil cases pending for more than two years and percentage of court time used last year are: Hall-fax, with 234 cases and only 63.3 per cent of assigned time utilized; Nash with 90 cases and 90 per cent of used time; Wayne with 398 cases and 81.5 per cent used time; Wilson, 195 cases and 90 per cent used time, and Robeson with 74 cases and 98.9 per cent of court time used.

"It would seem from the amount of unused court that some of the counties in this group have sufficient court regularly scheduled to provide the necessary clean-up terms," says Montague. "In others it may be necessary to call special terms."

HEAVY — While the "drag" in court procedure appears to be in the superior court civil docket, the big business of the courts is in criminal cases. The annual caseload for trial courts, including those below the superior court level, has some well above the half million mark, or about 10,000 a week. Further breakdown affords an average of 100 cases per week, or about 17 per day, for every county.

When it is remembered that many counties have only two or three terms of superior court a year and no recorder courts, the load impact on some of the big counties is easily understood.

Montague's report was factual and non-controversial. The facts presented would seem to indicate need for revision in court procedure at lower levels.

with respect to unsettled cases in superior courts is given on statewide basis, breakdown of the figures shows wide diversity among the counties. For example, civil cases more than two years old account for 47.5 per cent of the dockets in the courts of the first division and only 6.5 per cent in the courts of the fourth division. On the criminal side 82 counties have less than 100 cases pending, and 62 counties have less than 50.

COURT TIME — The utilization of time assigned for courts is always an interesting item. For various reasons, some wholly authentic and some apparently capricious, many terms of court scheduled for a week adjourn much earlier. The record in five counties which had more than 500 civil cases pending on June 30, 1960, shows the following percentage of total use of assigned court time: New Hanover, 72.4 per cent; Wake, 84.5 per cent; Gaston, 87.5 per cent; Guilford, 87.7 per cent; Mecklenburg, 89.9 per cent.

CLEAN-UP — Montague notes that some judges and calendar committees have set time for "clean up" of old cases. He suggests fuller use of that plan. Among the counties listed with a higher percentage of civil cases pending for more than two years and percentage of court time used last year are: Hall-fax, with 234 cases and only 63.3 per cent of assigned time utilized; Nash with 90 cases and 90 per cent of used time; Wayne with 398 cases and 81.5 per cent used time; Wilson, 195 cases and 90 per cent used time, and Robeson with 74 cases and 98.9 per cent of court time used.

"It would seem from the amount of unused court that some of the counties in this group have sufficient court regularly scheduled to provide the necessary clean-up terms," says Montague. "In others it may be necessary to call special terms."

Pulpwood Crop Gains Importance In The South

Although pulpwood is not generally looked upon as a "money crop" in the vast agricultural region of the South, it is a commodity which is becoming increasingly important from the standpoint of the money it puts into the pockets of people of this area each year.

Statistics recently compiled on the 1959 pulpwood "crop" show that in 12 Southern states this commodity brought some $455 million when it was sold for use as raw material in the pulp and paper industry. The harvest represented an increase of 12 per cent over the previous year. It is also significant that these Southern states harvested in 1959 more pulpwood than all the rest of the country combined and more than any other single country in the world.

With the passing years the demand for pulpwood in a number of products and commodities has steadily increased. New uses have been found for the material to add to the demand. Traditional products such as paper of all kinds is being consumed in increasing quantities, resulting in still greater requirements of raw materials to manufacture the finished product.

Although Eastern North Carolina has increased its production of pulpwood in recent years, there remains a considerable acreage of land not used for other farming purposes which might be put into this different kind of money crop. The demand for pulpwood appears certain to increase appreciably during the next decade, and most of the increase will have to come from the Southern states. With its land and climate naturally suited for growing pulpwood, there is no reason why Eastern Carolina should not further enhance its agricultural income by using otherwise idle land to produce more pulpwood than it now does.

First Job Is In Facing Congress

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The early moves of President-elect John F. Kennedy's new administration probably will revolve more around his shrewdness in handling Congress than on what he proposes to do about problems at home.

Overseas he'll have his hands full. Judging from the starting program he intends to lay before Congress, where his Democrats far outnumber the Republicans, he will neither suggest nor try anything startling.

The proposals he talks about were all part of the campaign promises he made. They didn't get through Congress last year. For instance, medical care for the aged tied to Social Security. So he'll try again as he is pledged to.

If Southern Democrats and Republicans band together, they can mess him up. Some Republicans talk of such a coalition.

But it seems unlikely the Democratic-run House — there the Democrats outnumber the Republicans 260 to 177 — will start off trying to frustrate Kennedy. It would be a sorry reception for their party's new leader.

In the Senate, where the Democrats are still in charge with a majority of 65 to 35 Republicans, Kennedy will have some real pros working as his chief lieutenants: Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana.

It is important to both Johnson and Mansfield, who succeeds him as Democratic leader, to see the Kennedy administration get off to a good start. A defeat for Kennedy would be a personal defeat for them.

But it's in the foreign field that Kennedy and his administrators and advisors probably will feel they're walking through a dark jungle.

Besides trying to deal with the Russians and Premier Khrushchev, Kennedy must find some way to keep the people of Southeast Asia and Latin America on the U. S. side.

In Africa, both the people and their new nations are literally just coming alive as an active force in a world where for centuries they were kept in second-class citizen status as colonials. That continent will be explosive for years.

The Kennedy administration somehow must find a way to convince the millions of Africans that their future will be better with the West.

Any critical showdown with the Soviet Union during Kennedy's administration may come first in Africa.

And even with American allies in Europe, Kennedy must keep the alliance not only alive but cooperative.

On top of all this, and yet critically related to it, Kennedy must subdue the flow of American gold overseas, keep trade healthy, and at the same time build American defenses to a point discouraging to Soviet ambitions.

Kennedy is a young man. What he faces is enough to make an old man of him.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

ALL THROUGH LIFE

Clean up day!

And what a day it always is. Yesterday began with great joy and expectation and probably ended, in many instances, with tantrums and tears. So it is always to be expected. But what day shines brighter in our childhood memories than Christmas! This was the time when heaven seemed to come down and touch earth, although our parents may remember that by the end of the day something other than heaven usually broke loose.

How wonderful it would be if we could have the spirit of Christmas through the year, and the spirit of Easter also, for they belong together. But we relegate the joy of these festive occasions to one day and then fold up the festival and lay it away on a shelf. Christmas assures us that the redemptive power of God came into the world in the form of a living Person, and the Bible continues to assure us that this Person has never departed from the world. But we forget this all too often, and with our brooms the day after Christmas sweep up not only the litter on the floor but the teaching about the festival as well.

We have come to think of Christmas too much as a day just for children. It is a great occasion for all of us, not because we give or receive gifts but because we remind ourselves of God's immeasurable and eternal Gift to the world.

So let us not adjourn the day. Let us prolong its joy and its significance.

Fat Man, White Beard, Red Suit?

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Career Built By Himself

Copyright, 1960, Kings Features Syndicate, Inc.

When a man builds a career all by himself, is it nepotism if that career receives adequate recognition?

Politics, of course, take advantage of any situation, and the Republicans whisper nepotism because President John Kennedy appointed his brother, Robert, Attorney General of the United States. Robert, however, built his own career without particular aid from brother John. His career is that of a tough, ruthless prosecutor. And that is precisely what is needed in the Attorney General's office which has not been too effective in recent years, even failing on its face in the Alapachin case which the court held was inadequately prepared.

When the opponents to Robert Kennedy's appointment get through with nepotism, they will say that he is too young. How young was Alexander Hamilton when he wrote the Federalist Papers? 32. How old was William Pitt, the Younger, when he was made prime minister of England and became America's greatest friend? 24. How old was Mozart when he died after contributing a wealth of music to the world? 35. John Marshall, perhaps the greatest justice who sat on the Supreme Court of the United States and whose decisions are as fundamental as the Constitution, was only 46 years of age when he reached that highest post, after a long career in government including the office of Secretary of State.

This Kennedy Administration appeals to the imagination because of its youth and its unfamiliarity. Most of the men in it are hardly known to the American people and at least two were not known to the new President. John Kennedy is risking his career on the judgment and ability of these younger men to pull this country out of the doldrums of complacency, appeasement and defeat. What will these younger men do to arouse our spirit?

When Robert Kennedy takes over the Department of Justice, he will find a large number of vacancies to be filled. It is surprising that the Republicans failed to appoint the necessary judges and that many of the appointments to the Federal bench in recent years have won the respect neither of lawyers nor laymen. It used to be that the Federal courts were regarded as the best example of American public life. We may one day become sufficiently mature to develop judicial office as a career; at any rate, it is to be hoped that the requirement of the courts for additional and competent judges will not be ignored by this Attorney General. Delay in the judicial process can, of itself, be injurious.

The anti-trust division of the Attorney General's office requires more than a team of lawyers. It requires economists and sociologists on the top level of decision. During two wars, the Korean police action and a terrifying Cold War we have forced our industry to become big because we require stand-by plants for great emergencies. It is possible to utilize our plant 100 per cent without destroying the economies of some of our allies. At the same time, the Europeans have organized cartels with which our individualistic firms cannot compete. The Soviet countries utilize a totally state-owned industry which ignores cost in determining price, as with them, price is a political not an economic factor.

All this American industry has to consider and understand. The free market, the ideal of American capitalism, has been foreclosed by the international politics in a period of unorthodox war.

The anti-trust division of the Department of Justice has ignored these factors in its analysis of American industry. Today a $30,000,000 to a $100,000,000 corporation is regarded as a medium-size business. The cost of creating means of production, that is jobs, can no longer be measured in thousands of dollars for the new products needed for the defense of this nation require millions. There must be combinations — call them prime and sub-contractors, if you will — because not even the largest units of production can do an entire job.

So, there are consent decrees to end litigation or to avert or evade litigation but economic necessities and the pressures of defense involve so many large enterprises that the entire anti-trust concept will have to be

Survey Is But A Guess

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — During the recent election campaign, the unemployment problem was discussed at length by both political parties. Naturally, the interpretations given to the jobless situation were presented in a light which would best suit the particular audience listening to each speech. Within the past few weeks, some projections of unemployment trends seem to bear out fears expressed during the election campaign. Government officials predict that a sharp increase in jobless workers may lie ahead.

Once a month, the Bureau of Labor Statistics releases its estimate of employment and unemployment. This is based on a mid-month survey by the Census Bureau in which approximately 35,000 households are interviewed in 330 selected regions throughout the country. The groups of households interviewed are rotated so that a given household will be questioned for four successive months during a given year.

The information obtained for the latest month is then compared with the preceding month's estimate of unemployment to derive a measure of the change which has taken place. The next step is to inflate the current data by the estimates of various population groups — viz., by age, sex, and color. After the results of each step are weighted, the two steps are then combined.

LOOKING BEHIND THE FIGURES

Naturally, such a small sample leaves much room for error when the data are inflated to show an estimate of the total labor picture. Remember that only 35,000 households are interviewed out of a total of nearly 50,000,000 families in the country. Furthermore, the personal interview method has certain natural pitfalls. More than not, the household answers the questions. She may not have an exact knowledge of the circumstance of each member of the household. Or, the person questioned may be in a "bad mood" and thus unwittingly give inaccurate or incomplete answers. Local conditions and/or mass psychology could also contribute toward a distortion of answers given.

Aside from these "human" factors, unemployment figures should be adjusted by readers to take into account other distortions. For example, workers who are idled by strikes are included as unemployed. These, of course, do not truly reflect the state of the economy's health. In addition, workers who are temporarily laid off because of seasonal curtailments in activity are counted as unemployed. I also question whether sick workers, and housewives and students seeking "extra spending money," should be included.

WHERE IS THE REAL PROBLEM AND CURE?

At the present time, the Government estimates that over 4,000,000 people are unemployed. Historically speaking, this is still not a very burdensome figure. Considering the growth in population, this represents only a little over 5 per cent of the labor force. Admittedly, there are "pockets of unemployment" in various sections which should receive help. Taking the country as a whole, however, the picture is more encouraging, especially when it is related to periods of normal business rather than war and super-boom times.

Readers of this column, therefore, should pay more attention to certain fundamental conditions which are threatening to make the unemployment problem worse than it now is. I fear that too many workers, whether individually or through unions, are pricing themselves out of the market. This is evident in the trend toward increased automation which, though ultimately beneficial to labor, could in the meantime make for greater unemployment. If wage costs increase more, I fear that America will lose the race for world markets. Both of these conditions could contribute to joblessness.

Areas where unemployment is high should seek to create and attract new opportunities. This can best be accomplished by advertising local advantages, and, above all, by proving labor's willingness to work harder. Unless something is done, students in colleges and high schools may be hard put to find a job later on.

Citrus Crystals In The Future

By ELMER ROESSNER

LONG AN OBJECTIVE

Instant orange juice may be on the market early next year. A crystallizing chamber at Plant City, Fla., is turning out citrus crystals that require no refrigeration and produce juice when stirred into cold water.

The crystals are now being sold to military and civilian establishments and will be put on the consumer market "as soon as a proper package is developed" by Plant Industries, Inc.

This instant orange juice is actually the result of one of two crystal processes under development. The other is by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Florida Citrus Commission. The second process is still under development, and may not be ready until 1962.

Meanwhile, a 96-ton machine with 127 controls is producing crystals at Plant City for institutional users.

Since 1917, efforts have been made to produce a dehydrated orange juice. In that year, a lemon powder was finally produced—but rejected as weak and tasteless. During World War II, a number of citrus powders were produced but were spurned by the public.

After the war, efforts were resumed with the aid of the Quartermaster Corps. Researchers found that heat damaged the residue in distillations, and that freezing out water froze out the flavor.

Then a combination of both cold and heat under vacuum produced flavorful crystals in 90 seconds. The vacuum hot-cold dehydrator was taken to Plant City in 1954, and has been turning out crystals for institutional users — including the round-the-world Triton submarine—since 1955.

A pound of the new crystals mixes with a gallon of water to form more than a gallon of pretty close to fresh orange juice. The product may be highly competitive with frozen concentrates and chilled full-strength orange juice.

CHANGING FOODS

Grant Horsey, president of Salada - Shiffitt - Horsey, the strangely named producer of these crystals, pointed out that food has been undergoing great changes. Freeze-drying, by which foods are quick-frozen and dehydrated under vacuum, can produce chops that can be restored without refrigeration, and which will return to normal after a short soaking in water.

Radiation, or cold sterilization, Mr. Horsey said, may some day produce foods that will stay fresh without cooking or freezing. But this process is still in laboratories.

Now there is a wave of instant mashed potatoes, instant tea and coffee, and instant milk. Mr. Horsey is hoping that instant orange crystals will capture an important share of this market.

Meanwhile, Plant Industries produced banana crystals, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture is working on a superconcentrated apple juice.

BUT NOBODY SUSPECTED

BACK IN 1942

Before Pearl Harbor, Japanese interests bought up all the U.S. scrap they could. New York's Sixth Avenue elevated railroad, when torn down, was sold to the Japanese. A lot of it was fired back at us.

Now, the Iron Age reports, Japanese are again buying great amounts of scrap iron in port cities, although not yet in inland cities. However, no one suspects today that the Japanese are plotting a new sneak attack.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

REVIEWS AND REFLECTIONS

At the top of the bestseller list for non-fiction in 1939 moves to a new position an expensive book ever to attain that rank—William L. Shirer's history of Nazi Germany—"The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," which sells for $10.00.

This fact is surprising, for in Shirer's work we have no fancy picture book or popular sensationalism but a solidly written and carefully documented 1200 page historical study. One can only wonder whether all those who buy will also read, but at the same time hope fervently that they will.

Must Reading

Certainly this is a book which everyone should read, as barely adequate as Shirer's style is, and as harrowing as many of his pages are. It is not pleasant to follow, step by step, the complete surrender of the will of a great nation like Germany to the self-destructive madness which overtook it.

In fact, even after reading Shirer's careful narrative, one remains puzzled how such a debacle could have happened. But he has no doubts that it did happen—that lawyers, doctors, clergymen, professors, army officers, labor leaders, practically everyone in the Third Reich abandoned his personal moral sense and knuckled under to the barbarity of Hitler and his brutal gang.

The result was World War Two, but even more terrible than that were the virtual annihilation of European Jewry, the murder and deliberate starvation of millions of subject people, and the systematic plundering of a continent.

Lesson Of History

As fiction this would pass beyond belief, but here it is solidly authenticated. And we should remember this story in case we as a nation are ever tempted to surrender our ideals for success or our institutions for efficiency. It is a sobering fact that we could be so tempted. And as Shirer says, quoting George Santayana, "Those who do not remember the past are condemned to relive it."

Gallup On Schools

The latest issue of the "Saturday Evening Post" contains an illuminating factual comparison, done by the Gallup Poll people, of education for children from ten to fourteen in England, West Germany, France, Norway, and the U. S.

The results are somewhat surprising in that there is not as much difference, according to Gallup, between the attainments and routines of European and American children as one might suppose. Even European children spend a good deal of time watching TV and going out on week nights.

General Information

Still, it is not comforting to be shown that, except in knowledge of science, our children score lowest in general information of all the groups tested. Incidentally, the English children come out on top in all categories except arithmetic, in spite of the fact that they are assigned the least homework, even less than the American children. This is a real puzzler, as is the fact that rural Norwegian children who go to school only every other day do about as well as those who attend every day.

Words To Ponder

Here are some comments extracted from the article that are worth reflecting on:

An English father: "Education is not like treacle. You can't pick it up with a spoon; you have to work for it."

An American observer of French education: "There are two things I would like to see American educators adopt from the French. The first is to teach philosophy and the history of ideas on the secondary level; the other is to teach English as well as the French teach French."

A German mother: "The German school is designed for instruction; education is supposed to take place in the home."

A German educator: "America is more interested in the good citizen than in the gifted. While America has begun to consider its gifted too late, Europe has taken good citizenship into consideration too late." (An interesting observation in relationship to the Shirer book!)

Use Of Parks At All-Time High

By THOMAS W. MORSE

Superintendent of State Parks
Written For The Associated Press
RALEIGH (AP)—Public use of the state parks reached an all-time high in 1939 with an attendance of over 1,650,000. The previous high was in 1934 when attendance was 1,598,903.

The State parks are a very important factor in the state's efforts to help its citizens achieve fuller, richer and more meaningful standards of living.

One very important phase of the park program to bring each existing state park to the highest possible standard—land acquisition—was given particular attention.

Special emphasis continued to be placed on helping park users gain better knowledge and understanding of the natural features of each park. Nature study and similar interpretive programs are the main means of doing this, and each year work is done to make these programs more interesting and meaningful to the park user.

Maintenance of the state parks is a continuous problem. Day in and day out, maintenance work must be carried on to keep the state parks and the facilities in them in good condition.

Hurricane Donna caused damage to several state parks in September, the most severe damage being at Fort Macon State Park where both natural features and man-made structures were hard hit.

The balsam woolly aphid infestation at Mount Mitchell State Park, which threatens to destroy every balsam tree in the park, is a matter of grave concern. Efforts to control this infestation are being made with the advice and assistance of both federal and state experts in insect control.

Postponed Test For Good Reasons

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Minnette Ernst parked in the wrong place upon arriving at a state drivers' license office for a driving test. She nervously reentered the car to back up a short distance.

With a companion giving advice from the curb, Miss Ernst froze at the wheel and stepped on the accelerator. The car shot backward across a busy street, knocked down a fence and string of electric lights, and crashed through a pony corral. It finally stopped against a church.

Miss Ernst postponed her driving test.

DESECRATION CHARGE

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Theodore McCart, 50, a disabled World War II veteran, was held for $500 bail Wednesday on a flag desecration charge. Police said he had been using an American flag to keep snow off the windshield of his truck. McCart said he didn't know such use was a violation of state and federal laws.

Alienation Of Affection Explains Hamil Fly Story

By EUGENE PRICE

Goldsboro News-Argus
Written For The Associated Press
GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP)—Now I know what happened to the Hamil Fly.

It was a victim of alienation of affection.

The Hamil Fly was an artificial fishing lure made by my fisherman friend Arch Hamil. It was spectacularly successful. No self-respecting tackle box was without one.

Hamil, who should have been spreading his hands expansively trying to make a monster out of a fair size bass, cupped his fingers as he held a delicate, imaginary bloom and talked with other society members.

"It is simply lovely . . ." Arch was saying. And the man before him listened rapturously. Not at all like a man listens, tongue in cheek, disbelief in his eyes, waiting his turn to add inches to his latest catch.

"What's with this camellia

Then one season it was gone. And so was Arch.

The awful truth leaked out at a recent meeting of the North Carolina Camellia Society.

Arch Hamil, fisherman, maker of great lures, teller of good stories, has been captivated by a flower.

He was obviously hurt, but still my friend, and smiled indulgently. "Let me tell you a story," he began. "I was visiting a friend in another state and he asked if I wanted to see his camellias. I wouldn't have known a camellia from a sunflower or a dandelion, but you know how it goes . . . I told him I'd love to see them and out we went."

"It was dead winter, freezing cold. We stepped into his greenhouse and it was like entering a new world. Here were all these beautiful flowering plants. It was breath-taking.

"I was completely captivated. He gave me some cuttings and that's how I got started."

Now Arch has a greenhouse of his own, the cost of which ran into four figures, and it's filled with hundreds of camellias. He and Mrs. Hamil spend most of their time there when Arch isn't running the store downtown. And much time is spent travelling to shows and meetings throughout the country.

Not long ago they had one of their blooms selected for the table of honor at a major show.

That's equivalent to catching a 10-pound bass on a two-pound leader.

"Are all these folks as nuts—that is, as enthusiastic—as you over these camellias, Arch?"

"Oh, I'm just a novice. These folks are the pros. Some of these people have plants from which cuttings would be worth $10 or more."

"You mean one little old sprig?"

"Yeah, that's the only way you can be sure with camellias . . . and his eyes lit up at the mention of them."

He explained that in camellias, you might plant 100 seed and not get a bloom worth the powder and shot.

Camellia lovers are a close-knit breed with a language all their own.

"It's like this," Arch explained patiently, "you have japonicas and you have sasanquas—now that's like having speckled trout and blue fish. They're both fish, but they're different."

Just before it sank in, Arch started rattling off names as hard as Chinese arithmetic—which isn't altogether unreasonable since the camellia originated in the Orient.

Not all the names are difficult, however. One beautiful plant, for instance, has the rather refreshing name of "Rebecca Jones" of them.

Surprisingly, there are more men enthusiasts than women, but there are quite a number of husband-wife teams.

"It is something they can do together and enjoy. Particularly attractive about camellias is the fact that you can always find something to be doing in the greenhouse—something to take one's mind off everything else in the world," explained Arch and he was at it again:

"There's just something about a camellia. You have to step into the greenhouse from the dead of winter and see all that color and freshness and life and . . ."

And the Hamil Fly was just a good bass bait.

Monday's Hangover

Only a few days remain before the Dixie Classic opens its 12th year running and its anybody's guess in picking the winner.

There was plenty of criticism following the announcement of the outside field. This has simmered down in recent weeks and the tournament, already the number one holiday event of its type, may draw a record attendance.

The outsiders—Maryland, Wyoming, Marquette, and Villanova—invade Dixieland with respectable records. And the Big Four has never been so evenly matched.

Deacons Are Defending Champions

Wake Forest (5-2) is the defending champion and has come of age in recent games. Duke (7-0) has the highest rank going into the tournament.

North Carolina State (6-1) is always tough on its home court. The Wolfpack has won the title seven years and reached the finals in eight of the 11 tournaments.

Of the outsiders, Maryland (5-1) and Marquette (5-1) are given the best chance of squeezing into the championship picture—a feat no outside club has ever been able to do.

The Terps have lost only to Wake Forest. Marquette lost a close one to Wisconsin but upset Wichita and Illinois. They played DePaul Friday night.

Wyoming (3-3) is the only team unable to come up with a winning record for the classic. Villanova, (4-2) with All-American Hubie White, has rolled to three straight wins and was nationally ranked last week.

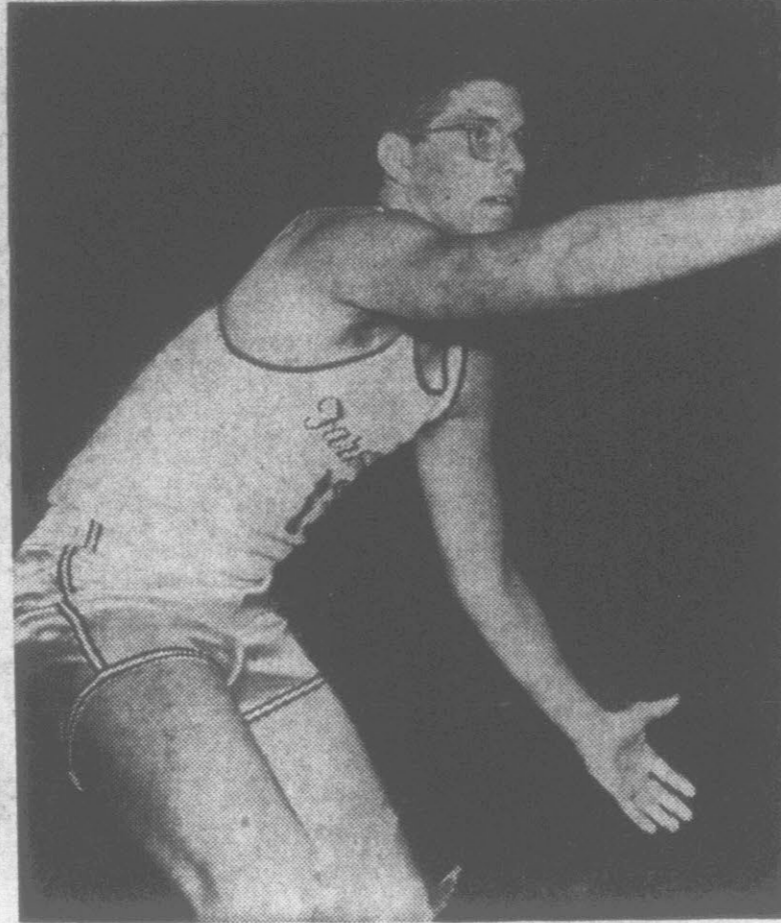

Tournament officials predict some 75,000 basketball enthusiasts will witness the 12 games in the three-day tournament.

Gamecocks Will Be Stronger

The hiring of Marvin Bass, former North Carolina aide, as head football coach at South Carolina, along with Warren Giese heading the athletic department, might be thought of as an awakening for the Gamecocks.

Farmville's Squad Can Be Expected To Gain Stature

J. Y. MONK . . . Returning to action after knee injury.

By JOHNNY HUDSON Reflector Sports Editor

Farmville's High School basketball squad retired for the holidays with no victories and three defeats. But look for the Red Devils to do a lot of Monk-ing around before Pitt County Tournament time.

J. Y. Monk, a young lad who has carried the burden of providing Coach Elbert Moyer with field goals on his broad shoulders for the past two years, will swing into action in January following a knee injury sustained in football this past fall.

With J. Y. and brother, Ben, forming a sound brother combination, Moyer expects a turn for the better. The Red Devils will definitely ascend from the cellar.

The Farmville skipper, Moyer, is accustomed to starting slow and finishing strong. The three defeats haven't pushed any panic buttons.

"We are not a ready-made ball club and need experience," says Moyer. "I think we will start looking like a good ball club by mid-January."

The Red Devils had very little practice prior to the holidays—probably less than any club in the county—and most of the cagers are making the adjustment from football.

Unlike most coaches in the conference, Moyer isn't overly concerned with the size of his

Rose Bowl Foes Say Rest Needed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A battle of nerves opened in earnest today between the Jan. 2 Rose Bowl rivals.

"We're not as far along as we were at this time a year ago," said Washington coach Jim Owens. "We don't have the reaction and we don't have any bounce. Maybe it's the heat."

Commented Minnesota's Murray Warmath: "We needed that day of rest on Christmas. We were getting weary and some of our men were hurting."

"Our conditioning and timing are off," Owens lamented. "And the loss of Joe Jones is going to be a big one."

Jones, No. 2 fullback and a much respected defensive man, underwent an appendectomy Friday.

Washington has no other serious injuries.

Minnesota's end corps was thinned by ankle injuries Saturday to third-stringer Jack Park and fourth-stringer John Campbell. Park should be available for the game, Campbell is doubtful.

Both squads resumed heavy workouts today after a quiet Christmas of worship and traditional festivities.

Four Of North State Teams Get Back Into Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Four North State Conference basketball teams get back into action this week in a couple of holiday tournaments.

The other six league teams will be idle all week.

Catawba and Elon play in the three-day Camp Lejeune Invitational opening Wednesday, and Lenoir Rhyne and Western Carolina take part in the Spindale tournament Friday and Saturday.

Elon's first round opponent Wednesday is Pikeville, Ky., while Catawba takes on the host Marquette.

Western Carolina faces Wofford in the Spindale tournament opener Friday night, and Lenoir Rhyne meets Presbyterian in the second game Friday night.

Tournament Week Begins For College Basketballers

By JOHN CHANDLER Associated Press Sports Writer

This is tournament week for the nation's college basketball teams, and the round ball will be flying high for many of the top teams of the country starting with Ohio State's top-ranked Buckeyes.

Ohio State, the national champions last season and currently ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press poll, is the big favorite to capture the ninth annual Holiday

Nats Racked Up Scoring Record Against Knicks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The Syracuse Nats, poor relations in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association when compared to power-laden Boston and Philadelphia, have handed the downtrodden New York Knicks their latest indignity.

Whipping accurate shots into the basket at a .538 clip, the Nats set an all-time club scoring record by thrashing the Knicks 162-100 Sunday night, and pushed the New Yorkers deeper into the Eastern cellar with a 9-23 record.

The scoring outburst by the Nats eclipsed the team record of 150 against Philadelphia last season while the 62-point spread was the largest margin of victory for Syracuse in its NBA history.

In the only other game played Sunday night, Cincinnati regained second place in the Western sector with a 126-119 victory over Detroit. It was the second defeat in two days for the Pistons, who dropped a 150-106 decision to Boston's Eastern pacesetters Saturday.

The Nats, sinking 65 of 121 shots from the floor, had nine men in double figures with Dave Gambee and Hal Greer leading the attack with 24 points each. The Knicks' top scorers were Willie Hauls and Jim Palmer, each with 21 as the team hit only 34 of 110 field goal attempts.

Oscar Robertson and Arlen Bockhorn pulled the Royals away after Detroit had closed to within 116-114 in the past period for their first victory over the Pistons this season. Robertson wound up with 32 points and led a Cincinnati Gardens record with 16 assists. Bailey Howell's 30-point performance paced the losers.

East-West Grid Teams Prepare

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With a gentle burp, the East and West football teams returned to work today, preparing for their Shrine Game clash at Kezar Stadium Saturday.

Both squads worked out Sunday morning and then sat down together for Christmas dinner.

When they meet again, they'll be bumping heads on the gridiron.

Coach Billy Barnes planned two workouts a day for his West team. Coach Milt Bruhn of the East was stressing running in one-a-day drills.

Festival at New York's Madison Square Garden. The tournament opens Tuesday with afternoon and evening doubleheaders.

But Ohio State will have some tough competition, what with two other top 10 powers to contend with. The country's No. 3 team, St. Bonaventure, and St. John's of Brooklyn, No. 6, also are in the hunt. The Bonnies have a 7-0 record, while St. John's is 6-0. Ohio State has won all six of its games.

Here is where the other top 10 will be dribbling: No. 2—Bradley, against unbeaten Drake Dec. 27.

No. 4—Indiana, vs. Stanford in the Los Angeles Classic starting Dec. 28.

No. 5—Louisville, against Brigham Young Dec. 27.

No. 7—Duke, vs. Wyoming in the Dixie Classic opening Dec. 29 at Raleigh, N.C.

No. 8—Detroit, vs. Yale in the Motor City Classic opening Dec. 27 in Detroit.

No. 9—Auburn, against Florence

State Jan. 2. No. 10—(Tied), North Carolina State, vs. Villanova in the Dixie Classic starting Dec. 29; North Carolina, vs. Maryland in the Dixie Classic.

There are nearly a score of other tournaments which will keep conference schedules open in earnest after the new year. But the tournaments should help separate the men from the boys and give an idea of what is to come.

St. John's, for instance, on Tuesday takes on Providence in the Holiday Festival. St. John's went to the finals of the National Invitation Tournament last spring before bowing to Bradley. Providence has a 7-0 record. Ohio State meets Seton Hall in the opening round. St. Bonaventure plays St. Josephs (Pa.) and Utah meets Pennsylvania.

In the Los Angeles Classic, the pairings call for UCLA vs. Michigan State, Iowa vs. California, as well as the Indiana-Stanford clash. The other opening round pairing in the Dixie Classic is Marquette vs. Wake Forest, the defending champion.

The four teams with the best early season records in the Big Eight Conference are in the Kansas City Tournament opening tonight. Kansas State (6-2) takes on Oklahoma State (5-2). Oklahoma and Colorado (both 7-1) are in the second game. Also paired are Kansas vs. Nebraska and Iowa State vs. Missouri.

Bradley, which will have something to say about the Missouri Valley Conference title monopolized in recent years by Cincinnati, could have some troubles with Drake, winner of six games.

The West Coast Athletic Conference 5-day tournament opens in San Francisco tonight, with Santa Clara vs. College of Pacific, San Francisco vs. Pepperdine, Los Angeles Loyola vs. San Jose, and St. Mary's Calif. vs. Fordham.

Arkansas Coach Predicts Aerial Game With Duke

DALLAS (AP)—Coach Frank Broyles of Arkansas thinks his Cotton Bowl game with Duke will be the passingest of the bowl games—if weather is favorable. But even if it's dry, hot and windless the Razorbacks and Blue Devils will have a tough time equalling some of the past Cotton Bowl games for throwing the ball. Broyles himself holds the major bowl record for individual passing. Playing for Georgia Tech in the 1945 Orange Bowl, he threw for 276 yards against Tulsa.

But in the Cotton Bowl game the most passing yardage by both teams came in 1946 when Texas beat Missouri 40-27 and the two had a combined 370 yards in the air. There were 48 passes.

The Cotton Bowl game Jan. 2 certainly has the men to make it the passingest of all the post-season struggles with Don Altman hurling for Duke and George McKinney for Arkansas.

Duke as a team tried 175 and completed 107 in 10 games. Arkansas attempted 126 and completed 53.

Broyles thinks, however, that each team will throw about 20 times in the Cotton Bowl game. Altman tried 104 and completed 68 for 552 yards. But McKinney outdid him in yards if not in efforts. McKinney tried 90 and completed 39 for 728 yards.

Arkansas won half its games with passes and throwing contributed materially to several others. Much is being made—by Broyles—of the Duke lonesome end. The end who goes out there by himself about 15 yards is Tee Moorman, who Broyles intimates, can catch passes in his hip pocket.

"You have to put two men out there to be anywhere near sure of stopping it," says Broyles, "and when you do Duke will run you into the ground."

But Broyles indicated he was ready to throw with Duke and that's why he figures this may be the passingest of the bowl games.

Aussies Stagger Italian Davis Cup Hope With Relatively Simple Wins

Packers Favored By Slim Margin

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Green Bay Packers are 2½ point favorites over the Philadelphia Eagles today in the richest National Football League championship game in history.

Both the teams and the expected sellout crowd of 67,325 received good news for the 12 noon (EST) kickoff of the nationally televised game on NBC. The U. S. Weather Bureau says it will be a sunny day with the temperature reaching 45 degrees.

Joe Labrum, assistant to Commissioner Pete Rozelle, disclosed that receipts from the crowd, plus $200,000 in TV-radio loot, will gross $700,000, breaking the $666,281 taken in by Baltimore and New York at New York two years ago. Each winner will get in excess of $5,000 and each loser more than $4,000.

Coaches Vince Lombardi of the Packers and Buck Shaw of the Eagles say they haven't put in much new for the payoff meeting. They are going with the maneuvers that carried the Packers (8-4-0) to the Western Division title and the Eagles (10-2-0) to the Eastern crown.

Kickoff time is earlier than usual to allow for a few additional hours of daylight in the event of a regulation game tie necessitating sudden death overtime play. Franklin Field is not equipped with lights. Under sudden death the first team to score wins.

Green Bay is expected to utilize its one-two running punch—fullback Jim Taylor and halfback Paul Hornung—to control the ball. The Packers figure the best way to stop Philadelphia's passing wizard, Norm Van Brocklin, is to keep the ball away from him.

Taylor, with 1,101 yards on 230 carries, was runnerup to Cleveland's Jim Brown for NFL ground gaining honors. Hornung, with 671 ago in Perth when they staged a great rally in the final matches to eliminate the United States from the Challenge Round for the first time in 23 years.

But few in this tennis capital believed them capable of repeating the coup against the best amateur talent in the world.

The Italians are favored in the doubles Tuesday when Sirola and Pietrangeli go against Fraser and Roy Emerson but the odds are heavy against their taking one of the final singles Wednesday in those matches Sirola plays the highly improved Laver in the first match and Fraser takes on Pietrangeli in the final.

The Italians had a big cheering section in White City Stadium and every time one of them made a good shot, a roar of approval went up. There are thousands of Italian immigrants here and they were out in force.

Sirola, 6-7, appeared to have Fraser on the run in the first set. But the crafty Aussie was only feeling out the big Italian, and won the next three sets in 19, 22 and 23 minutes.

Pietrangeli made a fight of it for two sets and made Laver work for every point. But once Laver, who swept through the United States grass court circuit last summer, had a 2-0 margin, Pietrangeli was finished.

Junior Titles 'Up For Grabs'

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Titles are up for grabs today in the Orange Bowl junior tennis championships, with finals in several singles and doubles divisions on the schedule.

First to win a crown was Peaches Bartkowicz of Hamtramck, Mich., who defeated Marnie Fry of Springfield, Ohio, in the girls 13 and under division Saturday.

Miss Bartkowicz then teamed with another Hamtramck girl, Cathy Wroblecki, in the doubles finals but lost to a Mexico City team of Susana Selinger and Elena Subirats. Those were the only Sunday matches.

Today's feature finals match is an all-Florida affair between Judy Alvarez of Tampa and Carole Prosen of Orlando in the girls 18 and under bracket.

Maria Salvidea of Mexico City and Margie Cooper of Miami beach play for the title among girls 11 and under.

Semi-finals for boys 18 and under will send Arthur Ashe of St. Louis, only American Negro in the tournament, against William Lenor of Tucson, Ariz., and Frank Froehling of Coral Gables against John Newcombe of Loungeville, Australia.

Chico Vejar Risking Recent Unbeaten Skein

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chico Vejar, one of the early favorites of television boxing fans, carries an unbeaten streak of four against young Jose Gonzales of Puerto Rico in a 10-rounder at New York's St. Nicholas Arena tonight.

Gonzales, a 20-year-old prospect who has been fighting for less than two years, has a good streak alive himself. He has won six and drawn one in his last seven for a 15-3-1 record.

Vejar, 29-year-old Stamford, Conn., veteran of 115 fights, has won two and tied two of his last four fights. His record is 91-20-4.

heavyweight Herb Siler of Miami.

Middleweight contender Hank Casey of San Francisco and Rory Calhoun, onetime high-ranking 160-pounder from White Plains, N. Y., will clash in a Sunday afternoon fight at New Orleans, Jan. 1.

Promoter Lou Messina picked the time and date so he could draw on fans coming to New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl festivities.

Seven Of ACC Teams Hit Road

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seven of the eight Atlantic Coast Conference teams hit the road this week. Five of them will take part in the Dixie Classic opening Thursday in Raleigh.

Clemson, the only team not playing in a tournament, will take part in a couple of doubleheaders at Houston, Tex.

The big tournament, of course, is the Dixie Classic. The ACC teams involved are host N. C. State, Duke, North Carolina, Wake Forest and Maryland. Rounding out the field are Villanova, Marquette and Wyoming.

Afternoon and night doubleheaders are scheduled Thursday through Saturday.

South Carolina, meanwhile, faces Louisiana Tech in Wednesday's first round of the three-day Gulf State Classic at Shreveport, La. In other first round games, Mississippi meets Georgetown, Centenary plays Texas Western, North Western Louisiana collides with Middle Tennessee.

Virginia will be in the Richmond, Va., Invitational, and faces William & Mary in the first round Thursday. Richmond plays VMI in the other first round game.

Clemson plays Texas Thursday night and Rice Friday night. The other team in the doubleheaders is Mississippi State.

In the first round of the Dixie Classic, North Carolina plays Maryland, N.C. State meets Villanova, Marquette clashes with Wake Forest, and Duke takes on Wyoming.

Youngsters Play At Pinehurst

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—Teen-agers and peewees take over the Pinehurst Country Club Tuesday for the 13th annual Donald J. Ross Junior golf tournament.

The boys will play in three classes over three of the club's four courses. Boys in the 15-17 age bracket will compete in Class A over the No. 2 course. B group boys, 11 to 15, will play over the No. 1 course and the peewees, boys under 11, will play nine holes over the No. 4 course.

Boys who compete will be eligible to participate in Wednesday's third annual Father and Son tournament.

No entry or greens fees are charged for the junior events, aimed at stimulating competition among the youngsters.

Advance entries are preferred but not essential.

Football Scouts Flock To Mobile

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—The professional football scouts flock to Mobile in droves for the annual Senior Bowl game.

It's easy to understand why: 166 competitors in past Senior Bowls were active in the pro leagues this season.

More are certain to be drawn from the ranks of the 50 college seniors who will be competing in the 12th annual bowl game at Ladd Stadium Jan. 7.

The players turn professional in the game. Members of the winning squad receive $600 each and expenses and the losers $500 each.

Owls Like 'Poor Relation' Role

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The Rice Owls have been cast in the role of a poor relation at the Sugar Bowl party next Monday, and that's just the way the boys from the shady Houston campus like it.

While the University of Mississippi revels in its national ranking, its unbeaten record and the 10 points its favored by, the Owls quietly prepare to try to prove themselves again.

Rice went back to work today after a short stop for Christmas. Until mid-season, the Owls were regarded as the surprise team in the Southwest Conference. Then people decided the Owls were pretty good after all, and weren't just playing over their heads.

The only common denominator in the Sugar Bowl game is Arkansas.

Ole Miss beat the Razorbacks that dealt Rice a defeat.

Two Backs Will Share Spotlight

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Two quarterbacks were expected to share the spotlight in today's third annual All American Bowl.

Guiding the small school team was Paul Terhes of Bucknel, rated by many the finest passer in the East last fall.

Stanford's Dick Norman, the nation's leading passer and total offense leader in 1959, led the major school offense.

To make it easier for passers such as Terhes and Norman, both squads use the T-formation.

Both squads were pronounced in top physical condition for the game, expected to attract 15,000 to the University of Arizona Stadium.

Bass is known as a tremendous recruiter and should have little trouble luring top talent to the Columbia campus. Giese, often criticized for his conservative football, will draw no line in exerting efforts to help Bass and South Carolina produce a winning team.

The change of jobs by Giese surprised many. But he was walking a tightrope with Gamecock fans and the AD job offers more security. Many coaches throughout the nation are jumping at the chance to move into the job behind the desk.

Redskins Need More Talent

Mike Nixon is on his way out and Bill McPeak takes over the woeful Washington Redskins. The top positions in football have little security. Unless talent is added to the squad, McPeak may experience the same axe—that of owner Preston Marshall.

The Redskins' material isn't the best but Marshall has a gold mine in his franchise. The attendance is high despite consistent second division teams. Southern fans visit the Capital City often.

Nixon pleaded for more talent throughout the season but Marshall turned a deaf ear. The same will happen to McPeak unless Marshall loosens his purse strings.

Greater Training In Forest Fire Control Adopted

By FRED CLARIDGE State Forester

Written for The Associated Press

RALEIGH (AP)—One of the major accomplishments of the year was the intensification of the training of the forest fire control organization under the state fire plan.

The state fire plan coordinates the activities of the Forestry Division with other state agencies, and industry, and had worked most satisfactorily.

A large training session was held at Camp Lejeune in which about 250 key individuals of a number of agencies participated. This training session was primarily to instruct the ground forces in coordinating their activities with the water dropping planes.

The biggest break through in forest fire control in recent years in North Carolina occurred with the conversion of two Navy surplus planes into water dropping planes which carry 175-200 gallons of chemical fire retardant mixtures.

In addition to the two state water dropping planes, the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co., has purchased a similar plane for use in the vicinity and on their property in Dare County.

Four large fires were fought for several days where a number of acres were saved. The 5-year average of the percentage burn of the protected area is 1 per cent. This percentage was cut in half during the 1960 calendar year on 17 million acres.

The production in the four state nurseries was kept at a high peak with some 85 to 90 million trees now in nurseries. The Soil Bank distribution has dropped off due to the fact that the program terminates this year.

After this year, North Carolina will have distributed since the inception of this program in 1927 over a half billion trees which accounts for the reforestation of approximately 500,000 acres in the state.

The campaign for better forestry practices on the small woodland acreages which was started by the governor's conference November, 1958, has stimulated great interest in the services of the technical foresters of the division. Over 2,000 requests have been on hand during most of the calendar year waiting for services of foresters.

A great deal of continuing progress in watershed forestry has been made in Western North Carolina with the towns such as Murphy, Mars Hill, Andrews, Sylva and Waynesville. The Waynesville watershed is now being operated on a second 10-year program.

STOLEN EVIDENCE CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Burglars who battered open a grocery store safe in nearby Daisy, Tenn., and stole $5,000 tried a fool-proof way to remove their fingerprints from the front of the safe. They stole the cover.

It's unusual for a small donor but CARE officials aren't kicking. So far, the anonymous donor has paid for 624 packages of food—13,728 pounds of it—for distribution to the needy overseas.

City Sewage Plant Construction Ahead Of Schedule

Construction of the city's sewage plant is ahead of schedule at this stage and laying of the collector line along the river bank is on schedule, Utilities Supt. Leonard Bloxam reported.

He said that concrete work for the filter sections had been completed, secondary clarifiers are 60 per cent complete and the chlorine contact basin is 60 per cent complete.

"The major item of excavation at this moment is the excavation required for the pumping station which will be 14 feet below sea level or about 18 feet below the normal river stage," Bloxam stated.

He said excavation at the plant site has been hampered somewhat because "hard digging has been encountered."

"The ground is almost like rock down there," he declared.

Bloxam said a steel tank in which the dewatered sludge will be stored is almost complete and the foundation for the control building is complete up to the finished floor.

Interceptor Line

"Progress on the interceptor line has been more than satisfactory through the higher ground," the superintendent stated. "However the contractor has experienced some difficulties in the marsh lands north of the cemetery near the plant site."

This interceptor line will run from the new plant underground and parallel to the river to its point of termination at Memorial Drive bypass.

"Extending the line that far will eliminate pumping of sewage from the hospital and other facilities in that area," Bloxam stated.

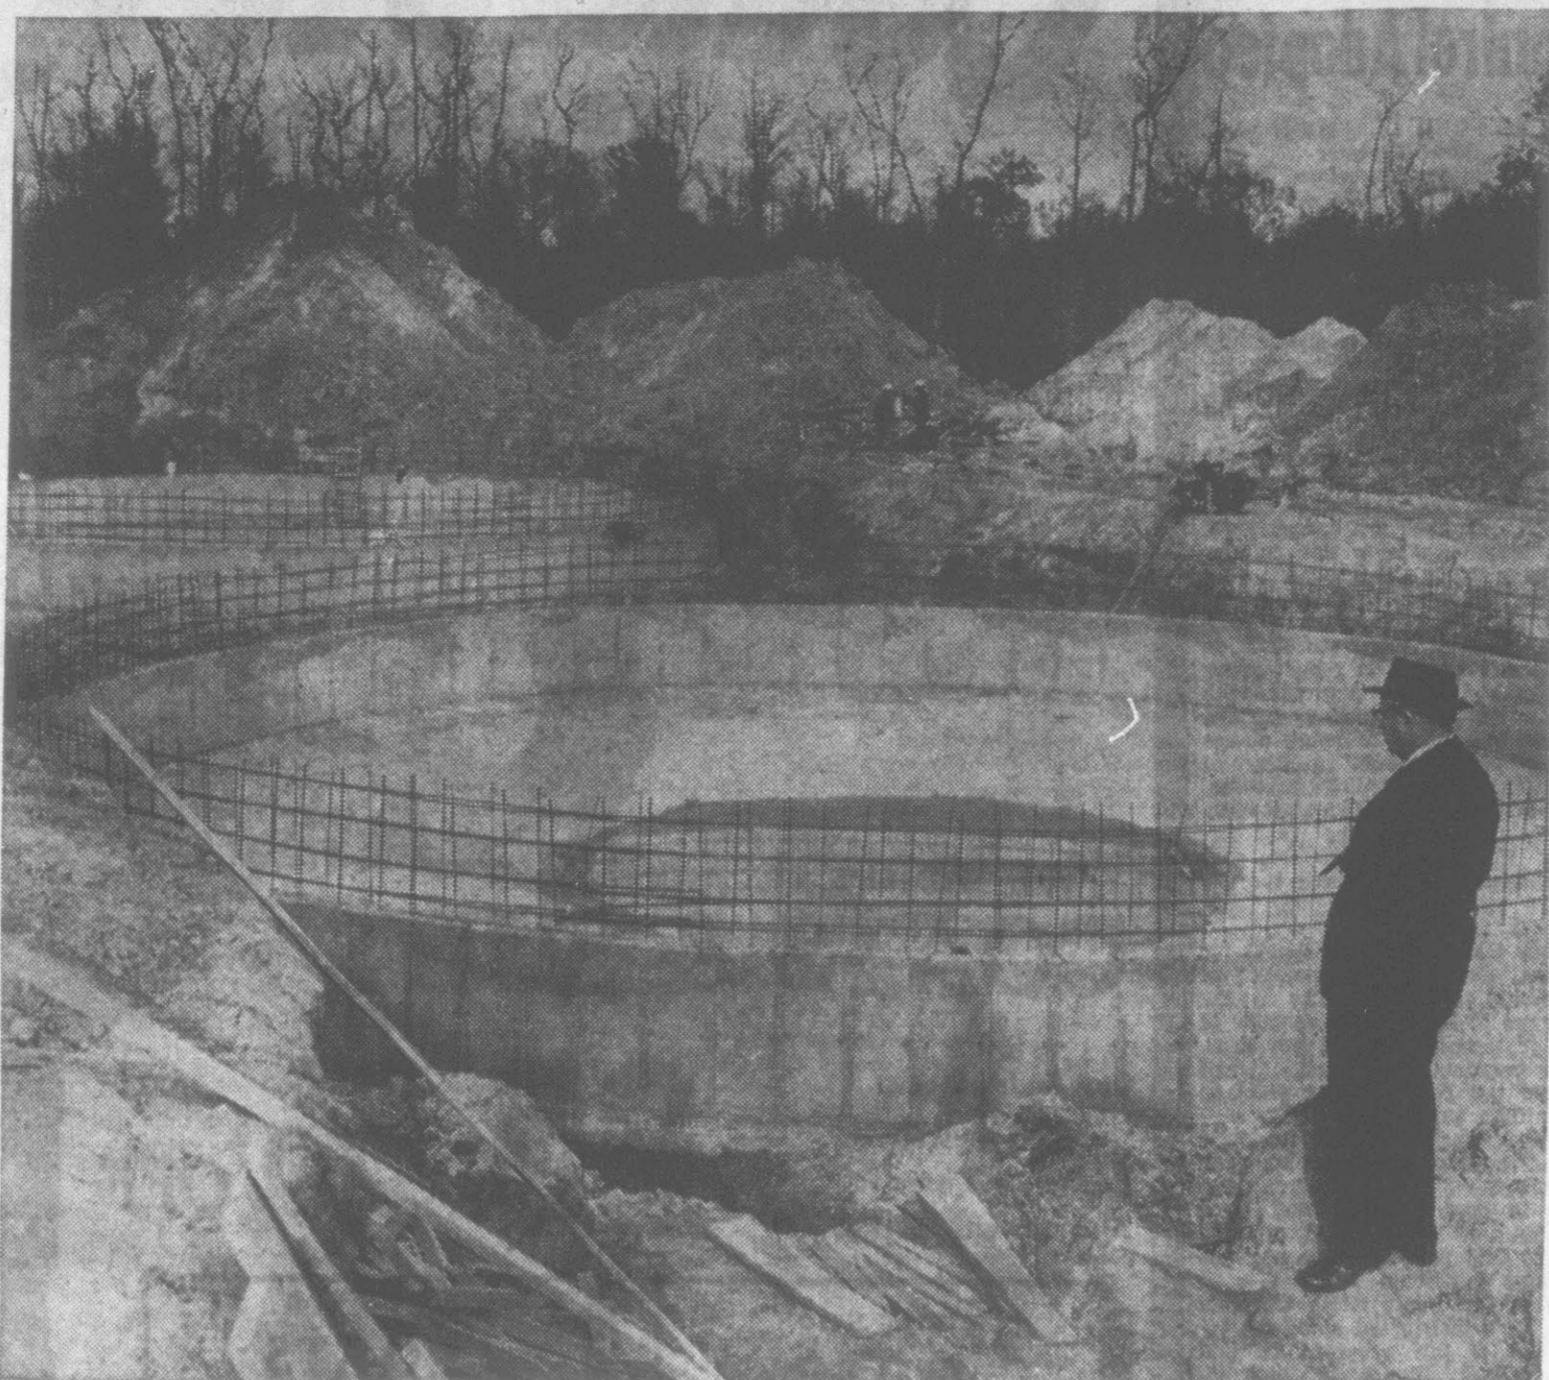

"Most of this line is being constructed with sealed openings so the line will not become flooded when the river gets up," he pointed out.

Practically all the labor being used for the projects is hired locally, he noted. Only a few skilled and supervisory personnel come from other areas. Bloxam estimated that 65 per cent of the payroll is paid to persons living in the Greenville area.

Will Treat Sewage

Once the plant is completed, the Utilities Commission will end the practice of dumping raw sewage in the Tar River. Presently out-fall lines lead to the river bank where the sewage pours directly into the Tar. The lines will be tied into the interceptor line and then the sewage will flow to the new plant which is located on a tract of land behind Greenwood Cemetery.

Work was begun on the plant Aug. 9 and the contract calls for completion February, 1962. The contractor is Anderson Construction Co. of Dunn.

The interceptor line work was begun September 5 and it, too, is to be completed in February, 1962. Contractor for this project is Coley and Pederson of Norfolk, Va.

The entire project is to cost $1,400,000. The federal government is paying $250,000 of this through a grant. The remainder of the cost is being financed through a sinking fund which the Utilities Commission established some years ago in anticipation of the project.

Engineers for the job are William F. Freeman, Inc. of High Point.

Believes Govm't Barrier to Growth

HONOLULU (AP) — A. B. Herkes, retiring manager of the Hawaiian-Philippine Co., believes economic conservatism of the Philippine government has been a barrier to the economic growth of that country.

Herkes has worked in the sugar industry of Hawaii and the Philippines for over 30 years. He said the Philippine government appears reluctant to work with foreign countries out of fear of losing its economic independence. Nevertheless, "Relations between the Philippines and foreign businessmen are extremely healthy," he said.

Stepped Up Program On Water Resources

By TOM WALKER
State Department of Water Resources

Written For The Associated Press
RALEIGH (AP)—The pace and scope of water-resource development in North Carolina stepped up briskly in 1960 under the lead of the fledgling State Department of Water Resources.

The agency, established in late 1959 with Harry E. Brown as director, put the state in a position where it bids fair to become a major center of research to find cheap methods of converting salt water to fresh—a goal of growing importance as the nation's water requirements mount.

The Office of Saline Water, U.S. Department of the Interior, chose a tract on Harbor Island, near Wrightsville Beach, as the site of a pilot plant test station scheduled for construction in 1961.

The 25-acre Harbor Island tract, purchased by the Department of Water Resources to attract the research facilities, also is in the running for two other major installations planned by the Office of Saline Water—a water-conversion demonstration plant and a laboratory.

The Department took the first steps toward the restoration and protection of the Outer Banks between Ocracoke Inlet and Cape Lookout.

Navigation projects completed during 1960 included the deepening of the Morehead City harbor and channel to 35 feet, provision of a 14-foot channel at Oregon Inlet and connecting channels to Manteo, widening of the Beaufort Harbor basin to 600 feet with a depth of 12 feet, and the reopening of Pamlico Sound channels blocked by Hurricane Donna. Improvement of Ocracoke Inlet was authorized by Congress and the work will start in 1961.

Construction of the Wilkesboro Reservoir on the Yadkin River, combining flood-control and water supply features, was begun last September.

A statewide anti-pollution program made significant progress in 1960.

"Best usage" classifications, on which pollution abatement and control plans are based, were assigned to the waters of one additional river basin, the Neuse—the seventh of the state's 16 major river basins to be classified.

The department also initiated a stream monitoring program to check the effectiveness of pollution abatement and control measures undertaken by polluters and to provide technical assistance in establishing efficient operation of waste-treatment plants.

LADY in the MARKET

By FRANCES V. RUMMEL

From the novel "Aunt Jane McPhipps and Her Baby Blue Chips," published by Prentice-Hall, Inc. © 1960 by Frances V. Rummel. Distributed by King Features

CHAPTER 14

"My husband always said," Jane McPhipps said to August Ernst, "to concentrate on specific situations rather than stock movements."

To her delight, Mr. Ernst eyed her appreciatively and fairly shouted, "Bravo. You have no idea how nauseous it gets, day after day, hour after hour"—he pounded on his desk with passion—"to be asked to outguess the market."

Excited to be so encouraged, Jane ran on, "I am so fully invested that I have only change at the moment." At this point, tugging briefly at her hat for reassurance, she handed Mr. Ernst the name of her stock. This was the moment of truth: upon his reaction she would stand or fall.

"Where," he asked, eyeing her keenly, "did you come by this?" "Oh," she smiled, fumbling, "Right now I almost feel I dreamed it."

"In any case," Mr. Ernst said, chuckling, "you are on my wave length. I've dreamed about this one too, all right. I know the president personally, have investigated the company firsthand. I look for a stunning performance. Say a hundred?"

Losing her voice, Jane found herself wagging two fingers. Anything worth buying at all was worth buying well. Her own notebook said so, although of course Mr. Petry's actual words had been, "Be cautious about putting all your eggs in one basket. Diversify carefully."

In contrast, Mr. Ernst was obviously a more knowledgeable, more experienced man. He smiled his satisfaction, observed, "You do, of course, have a cash reserve."

"Oh, yes," Jane bounced right back, and by now her tone placed her cash reserve at close to half-a-million. "Proper balance between stocks and bonds?" Mr. Ernst's soft voice made things sound more like an observation than an inquiry.

Her heart in her throat, she volunteered, "If anything, I am a little heavy on bonds."

"That may be a pity, you know," Mr. Ernst said. "I'm knowing a bond from a hole in the ground. I would tell she had flubbed and said the wrong thing. Thus she hastily borrowed a highly reassuring phrase she had heard Mrs. Hope use. "I am living," she said, "on my interest." Her voice strained and her throat tight, she plunged on, "I am not touching my principal."

"Oh, well," Mr. Ernst beamed his relief. "I had not understood. In that case, certainly two hundred."

Reaching for his telephone, he asked her, "The name of your broker? I'll place the order for you?" Reaching back in her memory, Jane suffered, muttered some thing about having no memory for names. But the very first customer's man she had met came back just in time to avoid disaster. "Oh, yes," she clapped her hands. "Mr. Kilgore. And please also order twenty shares for a young friend of mine." She gave Mr. Ernst Eleanor's name and address.

With dispatch, Mr. Ernst gave Jane's double order to an astonished young man who would not have dreamed of questioning the wisdom of his deal. Her cries over all Jane could think of now was Al, and how thrilled he would be.

"First thing tomorrow morning," Mr. Ernst smiled at her. "Thus it was that Jane purchased Lone Star Electronics at 16-200 shares for herself and 20 for Eleanor's $300. Lone Star Electronics was a diamond field not yet discovered, a blue chip still pink in its infancy, a missile not yet even fueled.

At the showdown, she had succumbed to the mental imagery of Texas—that and the excitement of electronics for tomorrow's world. Besides, among its other activities, this surging, booming infant company made seismological instruments.

To heighten her expectancy, Mr. Ernst had even said, "Won't you let me serve you at any time? Professional courtesy, of course." Meaning, no fee, she supposed, to a colleague's widow. And he had added, "Besides, I'd love to see you," and he had said this in such a sweet way that Jane, looking at a face that seemed oddly familiar, felt a stab of loneliness.

One Thursday evening about a month later, when Wally had skipped class to be with Eleanor, Jane and Mrs. Hope went to a coffee house during class recess and sat side by side on high stools. Mrs. Hope was bubbling over. She had just found the "ideal" investment counselor, a Mr. Van Heusen. In an awed voice, she told Jane, "He refuses to take telephone calls or to be interrupted when you're with him. He's so masterful."

"The first thing he did," she went on, pounding the counter, "was to give me hell. I swear it, he took one look at my record book and fainted dead away. He was simply divine. He even called me a trader." She added knowingly, "In sophisticated circles, 'trader' is really quite a dirty word. Mr. Van Heusen wouldn't even speak to Mr. Evans."

Jane's heart went out to Mr. Van Heusen, in part because Mrs. Hope was Mrs. Hope, in part because she was feeling the least bit sorry for herself anyway, and therefore sad for everybody else. It was not spring, and class was ending with only two more sessions. Things ought to be beginning in the spring, she thought, not ending. But, at least, thanks to a teacher's hard case of mumps, Jane had been teaching for three weeks—which was the only right thing about the spring thus far.

Bringing her sorrow closer to home, she now told Mrs. Hope, "I'll miss class. I have dearly loved it." She would miss her teammate too. Mrs. Hope was perpetually awash with good cheer. "Yes," Mrs. Hope sighed and sipped her cooling coffee. "It's been fun." She added grimly, "Besides, it helps keep me busy."

"We'd better get busy checking each other's list," Jane reminded her teammate. Their final and best lists of stocks were due the very next time class met. Then the teacher would have time to compare and judge them.

Announcing DSA Winner Jan. 3 At Annual Event

Greenville's Distinguished Service Award winner for 1960 will be announced Jan. 3 at the Jaycees annual DSA and Bosses Night banquet to be held in the Greenville Moose Lodge. Roy Hardee, chairman of the event, said today that mailings have been sent to all civic clubs in the city requesting nominations for the annual award. Entries must be in the hands of the DSA chairman not later than December 28 in order that the panel of secret judges can select the winner.

Nominations must be between 21 and 36, but they need not be Jaycees.

Principal speaker for DSA night will be Al Sharpe, president of the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce. He will be introduced by past North Carolina Jaycee president Al Harrison of Rocky Mount.

More than 150 Jaycees, bosses, past DSA winners and invited guests are expected for the event. David J. Whichard will be master of ceremonies.

Hardee asked all Jaycees to return cards being mailed to them indicating whether or not they will attend and the number of guests they will bring in order that arrangements can be completed. The banquet will be held on the regular Jaycee meeting night.

Hardee pointed out that January is Jaycee month and observance of DSA night and Bosses Night is held by clubs all over the State of North Carolina.

How Will URBAN RENEWAL Affect the value of your Property Through Its Public Housing Program?

The following analysis of what Public Housing has done to property values and rentals in Kinston is taken from data supplied by the Whitaker Business Services research organization through the Pitt County Realty Board and is a good indication of what Public Housing will do in Greenville once it gets its foot in the door.

"Unfortunately, as has been demonstrated recently, once a Federal program is set up by local government it proceeds of its own weight. It has been found that local citizens have relatively little to do with its progression no matter what effect it might have on the community.

Briefly, it has been demonstrated that once a commission is named and Federal assistance is requested that the final construction and extent of construction is very nearly a certainty. At a recent meeting in the Lenoir County courthouse it was demonstrated by a show of hands of those present that there were many realtors and rental property owners present, but that none of them had been consulted in a Section 221 phase of the Federal housing program in which an award of 220 units was made.

The Authority has the right of eminent domain and invariably must condemn some dwellings in an area where a project is to be established. This brings a conflict with the private property owners and with realtors. To show this displacement of family and dwelling units in the development of the projects involved here we tabulate them below:

Project	Dwellings Replaced	Family Units Displaced	Federal Units Constructed
Simon Bright, original	35	44	150
Mitchell Wooten	None	None	140
Simon Bright, Addition	11	17	77
Carver Court	62	89	177
Richard Greene	47	60	100
Totals	155	210	644

It will be seen by comparing these figures in the table above that many more units were constructed in every case than the number of families displaced. As a matter of fact, in one instance, that of the Mitchell Wooten Courts, there were no structures and no families displaced for the building of it, since it was placed in an open field. Invariably, many renters leave private housing to go to these projects upon completion.

This is a logical movement because of the attractiveness of the new housing units at non-competitive rents.

There are qualifications which a tenant in the public housing units are supposed to meet in order to be admitted. These qualifications are based primarily on their living in substandard housing, including quarters too small, and upon displacement of several kinds. However, the low rents in these housing projects make it attractive for anyone in the low income group to make the move.

The limits upon income for admission to these projects range from $2,400.00 for two persons to $2,800.00 for five or more persons per unit, plus $100.00 exemption for each minor child. The qualification for continued occupancy, once admitted, is considerably higher. Two persons then may earn a total of $3,000.00 annually, and a family unit of five can have an income of $3,500.00 annually plus $100.00 for each minor child.

The rents in the project range from an absolute minimum of $16.00 per family unit to possible maximum of $54.00 per family unit, including free electricity, water, and all city services, and are based on income and number in the family, as cited previously.

There have been no vacancies in the projects in fourteen years of their operation, although there is some change of tenants, particularly during the warmer months. It has been ascertained that 50% of the tenants in the white projects move out during the period March to October, but only 1% of the Negro tenants are affected. It is known also that 70% of those who move out re-apply for admittance once the weather turns cold. This is a seasonal change for several reasons.

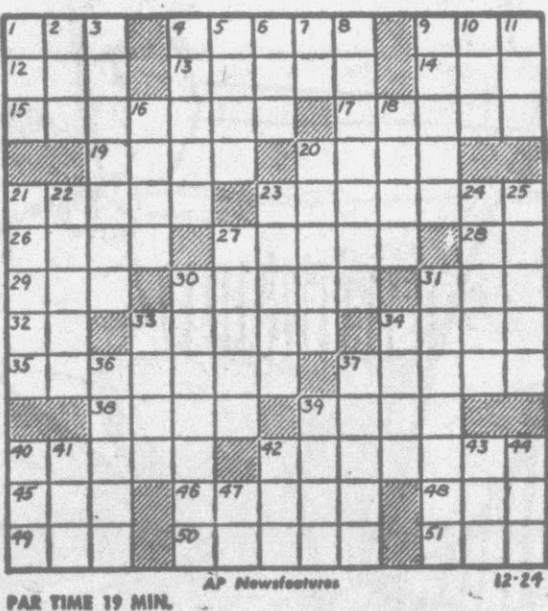

The effect upon owners of private rental property in the southeastern quadrant of the city is a very severe one. A recent survey of only four realtors handling properties for private owners, showed 232 vacancies listed with them at that time. Since then, however, a wider survey of owners handling their own properties has indicated that the figure for rental property vacancies in that section is nearer to 500 units.

The rental demand, disappearing as it has, has affected all types of real estate in the City of Kinston. At the present time there is more moving within the city than at any time that can be remembered. There are many "shoppers" attempting to obtain better housing at no more, or less rent, which has created a highly competitive situation in the rental field and has in many cases substantially reduced the rental revenue to the owners in all sections of Kinston.

Music Teachers Schedule Meet

CHARLOTTE — The 1961 state convention of the North Carolina Music Teachers Association will be held Jan. 7-8 at Nims Auditorium, Queens College. It was announced by Miss Marie Johnson, president of the organization.

Dr. U. Wolfgang Fetsch, of East Carolina College, is vice president.

The North Carolina chapter was formed last January at a convention held at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. The membership now is composed of 128 music teachers from all over the state.

The convention program will include section meetings for piano, organ and church music, voice and strings. General meetings will be held for theory-musicology and composition, and a session will be devoted to a discussion of the certification of piano teachers. For the first time, auditions will be held for students. Several recitals are planned, one of which will include winners of the student auditions.

Quiet Christmas For First Family

WASHINGTON (AP) — Church services and a quiet dinner made up the last Christmas for the Eisenhowers as America's First Family.

President and Mrs. Eisenhower, accompanied by seven others in the family, attended Christmas morning services at the National Presbyterian Church.

With the President and Mrs. Eisenhower were their son, Lt. Col. John Eisenhower, his wife Barbara, their four children, David, 12, Barbara Anne, 11, Susan, 9, and Mary Jean, 5 and Joel Carlson of Boone, Iowa, an uncle of Mamie Eisenhower.

The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, prayed that Eisenhower be strengthened in all his endeavors and his work for peace. Dr. Elson told his congregation "there never will be peace until the peace of the spirit of Christmas is on a universal basis."

After services, the Eisenhowers returned to the White House for their family Christmas dinner.

James M. Ward Jr. has been named assistant manager of Cone Mills Corporation's Tabardrey Plant at Haw River, according to James Webb, vice president.

Ward succeeds Richard M. Mitchell Jr. who has been named the plant manager. Mitchell replaces Arthur Makin who has retired.

Ward received a B.S. degree in textiles from N. C. State College, Raleigh in 1952. A native of Rocky Mount, he moved to Greenville where he graduated from high school. From 1952 to 1954, Ward was in the cost accounting department of Cone Mills in Greensboro. Since 1954 he has been in quality control. From 1946 to 1948, he served as a seaman in the Navy at Great Lakes, Ill. He is a member of the Front Street Methodist Church, Burlington, and of the Lions Club there.

J. M. WARD, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward have three children, a son, James M. Ward, III, two daughters, Barbara Jean and Frances Elizabeth. They live Street Methodist Church, Burlington.

Ward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ward of Greenville.

Old Balladeer Of Sylva Dies

SYLVA, N. C. (AP) — "Aunt Samantha" Bumgarner, last of the old time balladeers, died at her home near here Saturday. She was in her eighties and had been in ill health.

For more than 60 years she had told in ballads of the happenings in the mountains. In her younger days, she traveled around the country and her ballads were known wherever music-making folks gathered.

She had been in declining health for five years, suffering from arthritis.

Let ELECTRICITY do the dirty dishes!

An electric dishwasher does the whole job—washes your dirty dishes in water hotter than your hands can stand...dries them...and saves you the drudgery of dishwashing.

And the electric companion—the waste disposer—whisks away scraps in a miraculous jiffy.

So see your electric dealer about an electric dishwasher—and an electric waste disposer—and do the dirty dishes by flipping a switch, the easy electric way!

Lost Five Of Their Six Children In House Fire

LEASTERVILLE, Pa. (AP) — "It was a quiet day," the police chief said. "There was too much to do making funeral arrangements and the Duponts were under sedation. I don't think they've felt the full impact."

The Duponts — Richard, 36, a salesman, and Margaret, 35 — lost five of their six children while they were attending a midnight Christmas Mass.

They and others at the Assumption Blessed Virgin Mary church in this southeastern Pennsylvania community heard the fire sirens as they listened to the service. But it was not until after the Duponts were quietly called from their seats that they learned their house was burning.

Their six children were asleep when the fire started in the basement of the 1 1/2 story home five blocks from the church.

"The hood over a heater became overheated in some way and ignited a beam," said Police Chief Edward Wunsch of lower Southampton Township.

The flames damaged a basement recreation room and spread up the cellar stairs to the kitchen. Harry Meyers, 20, a Penn State University student home on vacation, was out walking when he heard Laurie Dupont, 11, screaming for help from the back door. He pulled her out.

Other neighbors in the small community converged on the house to help as volunteer firemen arrived.

"The smoke was so thick a flashlight beam couldn't penetrate it," Wunsch said. "The firemen brought the other children out unconscious and they could not be revived. The ruling was asphyxiation."

Laurie is recovering in a hospital. Her mother stayed with her until nearly dawn on Christmas morning. Her father was taken to the church rectory by the priests.

Last night they stayed with friends.

Other children were Robert, 5; Helen, 6; Melanie, 8; Katherine, 10; and Margaret, 12. The funeral will be in Holyoke, Mass., from where the Duponts moved here several years ago.

Infant Pamela Lynn Hardy Died Saturday

Pamela Lynn Hardy, 18-month-old daughter of Mrs. Hugh Sidney Jones of near Grimesland and Mr. Frank Hardy Jr. of Winterville, died suddenly Saturday morning after a few hours of illness.

Funeral services were conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Sunday afternoon at three o'clock by the Rev. Charles Keith, Free Will Baptist minister of Washington. Burial was in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Surviving are her parents; a brother, Joey Ray Hardy of the home; the grandparents, Mrs. John O. Buck of Pactolus and Mrs. Janie Hardy of Winterville.

Funeral Held Today For Albert R. Baker

Mr. Albert R. Baker, 45, died at his home, 2306 East Fifth Street in Greenville, Friday afternoon at 3:30 after suffering an apparent heart attack.

Funeral services were conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Monday afternoon at 3:30 by the Rev. R. B. Crawford, pastor of the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. Burial was in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mr. Baker spent most of his life in Pitt County in the Bell Arthur, Falkland, and Greenville communities. He served in the United States Army during World War II in the European area.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Nancy Parker Baker; a foster son, James Roland Parker of the home; a sister, Mrs. Bryant Gurganus of Bell Arthur; a half brother, Paul Baker of Vanceboro; and a half sister, Mrs. Dollie Hedgepeth of Falkland.

Leroy Adams Rites Set For Tuesday

Mr. Leroy Adams, 43, died at his home near Grifton Saturday night.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock by the Rev. Owen Gainey, Free Will Baptist minister of Plymouth. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mr. Adams spent all his life in Pitt County.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Eleggria Barnett Adams; a son, Roy Lee Adams of Greenville; a daughter, Francine Adams of Greenville; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Adams of Grifton; seven sisters, Mrs. W. B. Highsmith and Mrs. R. L. Daugherty of Ayden, Mrs. Amos Hadcock and Mrs. H. L. Vincent of Greenville, Mrs. M. A. Patterson of Nashville, Tenn., Mrs. R. E. Carter of Grifton, and Mrs. K. E. Stancill of Kingston; two brothers, J. C. Adams of Ayden and W. D. Adams of Norfolk, Va.; and three step-brothers, H. T. Price of South Gate, Calif., R. E. Price of Grifton, and J. T. Price of Norfolk, Va.

The first step—site preparation of some 6,000 acres in Pitt and Beaufort Counties—in materialization of a $26 million Voice of America transmitter project—is in its final stages, according to project manager Fred K. Blackburn.

Blackburn said the exact date when the land-clearing contractor—Nello L. Teer Company of Durham—will turn the three sites over to VOA is not definite.

However, the project manager will venture to say contractors for the actual construction of the free-

Enough Food Still In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Amid all the chaos that tortures the Congo, most of its people still have enough to eat for the moment.

Officials of the Food and Agricultural Organization report that although food shortages threaten in many parts of the Congo, few areas are faced with famine.

The big exception is south Kasai, where the United Nations has reported that starvation is killing about 200 people a day.

Most of the victims are among the 300,000 Baluba refugees who fled from their tribal enemies into a barren and almost waterless area near the borders of Katanga province.

Severe food shortages are believed hitting Oriental province as a result of the blockade imposed by Col. Joseph Mobutu in an attempt to bring the Stanleyville rebels to their knees.

Other danger areas are in south Kwilu and Kwango areas where the soil is arid and the pastures sparse.

Elsewhere agricultural production has continued at a sufficient rate to keep the population above subsistence level.

A principal difficulty now is the breakdown of trade between specialized producing areas which followed the disruption of normal supply routes.

Rice has become short in most parts of the country except Equatorial province, where it is chiefly grown.

Vegetables are scarce because they cannot be transported from the main production area in Kivu province. Rice and meat are now being imported from abroad, but face similar distribution difficulties.

Most parts of the country, however, can raise livestock and produce basic foodstuffs such as cereals, bananas, mangos and other fruit.

Honesty Repaid

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Carolyn Troxell, 21, a San Francisco State College student, found a billfold with $25 last week and sent it back to its owner, Dr. James Dewitt of Oakland.

Christmas Eve she got a card from Dr. Dewitt. It said, "Many thanks for your honesty. And may God bless you."

Enclosed was a money order for $50, double the amount she had returned.

Jarvis Causey Rites Held Here Monday

Mr. Jarvis Causey, 61, died early Saturday morning at a Lumberton hospital after six months of illness.

Funeral services were conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Monday afternoon at two o'clock by the Rev. Howard James, pastor of the Red Oak Christian Church. Burial was in the Riverside Christian Churchyard.

Mr. Causey spent his early life in the Grifton community and was a farmer. He had made his home with the Roy Allen family in the Red Oak community for the past 40 years. He was a member of Riverside Christian Church.

Surviving are two brothers, Otis M. Causey of Washington and Osborne Causey of Greenville; four sisters, Mrs. Malissie Cox, Mrs. Lena Smith, and Mrs. Sadie Allen of Greenville, and Mrs. Hollie Laster of Smithfield; and a number of nieces and nephews.

Negroes Attend Christmas Rites

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP) — Eight young Negroes attended the Christmas Day services at the all-white First Baptist Church here Sunday without incident.

Seven girls and one boy sat as a group in the middle of the church.

After the service, they told a newsman, "We are all spokesmen and we are sent by God."

They declined to give their names.

Dr. Dotson M. Nelson, pastor of the church, declined comment.

Last Rites Held For Ben Frank Gwaltney

Mr. Ben Frank Gwaltney, 68, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital at 12:25 Sunday morning. He was struck by an automobile about two miles from Greenville on Highway 11 South about two hours earlier.

Funeral services were conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel at one o'clock Monday afternoon by the Rev. Robert B. Crawford, pastor of the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church, and burial was in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Gwaltney spent all his life in Pitt County and had lived in Greenville for the past 20 years. He was a carpenter.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Letha McLawhorn Gwaltney; two sons, Howard Lee and Carl Gwaltney of Winston-Salem; two brothers, Lee Gwaltney of Greenville and Peter A. Gwaltney of Norfolk, Va.; and a sister, Mrs. Bessie Crawford of Greenville, with whom he made his home.

Rites Tuesday For Mrs. Theron Stocks

Mrs. Rosa Lee Stocks, 50, widow of Theron N. Stocks, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital Sunday afternoon at 2:45 following several weeks of critical illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 by her pastor, the Rev. Rashie Kennedy. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mrs. Stocks, daughter of the late William Henry and Lyda Eason Paramore, spent all her life in Pitt County. For the past two months, she had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Dalton Heath of 200 Pine Street in Greenville. She was a charter member of Grace Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are her daughter, a son, Karl Pace Stocks of the home; four sisters, Mrs. Elton D. Guest of Jacksonville, Fla., Mrs. Alfred Ross of Winterville, Miss Martha Paramore of near Greenville, and Mrs. Horace Butts of Greenville; four brothers, Henry, Eugene, and Norman Paramore of Greenville, and Albert G. Paramore of near Greenville; two grandchildren; and her step-mother, Mrs. Gertie Paramore of Greenville.

CANDY HOUSE—This candy house 29 inches high was part of the holiday decorations at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Knott Proctor Jr., 105 N. Harding Street. Mrs. Proctor made the candy house for her young sons Jim and Thomas. It measures 16 by 24 inches at its base, has a plywood frame. Mrs. Proctor coated the frame of the house with icing to which she applied the various candy decorations.

world's largest radio transmitting facility should arrive sometime in January, weather permitting.

Contractors
The contractors, the Alpha Corporation of Richardson, Tex., and Continental Electronics Manufacturing Company of Dallas, will install antennas and transmitters that should begin beaming "the story of America" around the world early in 1963.

The Consolidated East Coast Facility, the name to be applied to the complete project, will include fixtures on three sites surrounding Greenville in an approximate 18-mile triangle.

A total of 93 antennas, hoisted aloft by some 400 steel towers varying in height from 50 to 375 feet, ultra-powerful transmitters and elaborate receiving equipment will be divided among three sites. The two larger sites of around 2,700 acres each are located near Leggett's Crossroads in the eastern fringe of Beaufort County and at Shelmerdine in southeastern Pitt County. An additional 650 acres near Bell Arthur is being prepared for the facility's receiving center.

Giant Transmitters
Two giant transmitter buildings, slated for the Leggett's Crossroads and Shelmerdine sites, will contain the outstanding features of the project. Both buildings essentially the same, they will contain the giant transmitter bays. Housed in each of the two buildings will be three 500-kilowatt transmitters, three of 250 kilowatts, three of 50 kilowatts, and two low powered communication transmitters. The transmitter building will also contain offices, storage areas, workshops and garages.

The Bell Arthur receiving center will consist of a collection of complex electronic equipment, short-wave radio receivers, tape recorders, and teletype equipment. It will serve as headquarters for the East Coast Facility and will

Mild Yuletide

Along with his load of toys, Santa left a beautiful Christmas Day for Pitt County as the mercury rose to a warming 53 degrees, breaking the cold wave that had gripped the area for several days.

Last night temperatures tumbled again to the freezing point, but there they stopped as the local Utilities Commission weather station registered a low of 32 degrees. It was the first time in 10 days that low temperatures here had not been below the freezing point. By 8 o'clock this morning the thermometer had risen to 39 degrees and the warming trend was expected to continue through the day.

Christmas Eve night the weather station recorded a low reading of 23 degrees.

Christmas Is For Their Policemen

MANILA (AP) — Filipinos are bewailing Christmas solicitations by policemen.

The police go from door to door, sometimes taking their families along. They even commandeer taxis to take them on their rounds.

"Christmas in most countries is for children," one person said. "Here it is for policemen."

Yule Deluge To Resume Tuesday

HARDY, Va. (AP) — Dorothy Ridgeway and her family—and the postmaster of this small mountain town near Roanoke—had no mail Sunday or today.

The deluge likely will start all over again then for the 9-year-old girl who gained word-wide attention by a mysterious message that somehow got on the Weather Bureau teletype circuits and went around the globe.

Ever since the message first appeared Wednesday saying Dorothy was the victim of an incurable, usually fatal, bone disease, Christmas cards and packages by the thousands have poured into her mountain home.

There have been dolls from such widespread points as Tokyo and London, flowers from celebrities and hospital groups, gifts from service personnel and cards from just about everywhere. There were more than 5,000 pieces of mail the family hadn't touched before the holiday weekend began.

Although the mail had come to a temporary halt, telegrams with Christmas messages still poured into Roanoke Sunday night.

Radio Luxembourg sent a request, too—for a telephone call to Dorothy for an interview. That, too, possible because the Ridgeway family has no telephone. It has no radio or television, either.

Two Congo Gov't Officials Arrested

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Two high-ranking Congo government officials are under arrest, charged with illegal contacts with the Soviet Union and Red China.

They are Domini Que Tchiteya, permanent director of the Foreign Trade Ministry, and Alphonse Makwambala, head of the National Statistics Office.

Gilbert Pongo, security chief of Col. Joseph Mobutu's pro-Western regime, announced that both were arrested before Christmas. He said they would be tried for "crimes against state security."

No courts competent to try such cases have been functioning in the Congo since most of the Belgian judges and court officials fled in the post-independence turmoil.

Pongo said both Tchiteya and Makwambala were found in possession of documents indicating they were in regular contact with Soviet and Red Chinese officials.

"All such contacts are illegal in the Congo—and particularly for a government official—since we broke off all relations with the Communist bloc," Pongo said.

He added that Tchiteya's wife was the head of a leftist Congolese women's movement and some of the seized documents showed a strong Soviet interest in this movement. She was not arrested.

Pongo said nearly all the Congolese judges and court officials were vigorously supported the Communist-line rebel regime of former Deputy Premier Antoine Gizenga in Stanleyville.

Gizenga is trying to take the place of imprisoned ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba. He has declared Stanleyville the national capital and his regime the nation's only legal government. The Soviet bloc nations have expressed support for Gizenga's move but thus far have not given him formal diplomatic recognition.

Reports from the Congo's anarchy-ridden eastern areas said a group of Gizenga's military police swooped down on government offices in Bukavu, capital of Kivu province Sunday and arrested several leading members of the provincial government.

Kivu, next door to rebel Oriental province, has wavered for some time between Gizenga and Mobutu.

More Snow And Cold In Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Snow and cold air spread into the northern Midwest today and wet weather was in prospect for wide areas in other parts of the country.

The snow fell in the cold air from the Dakotas across southern Minnesota and northern Iowa into Wisconsin and northern Michigan. No heavy falls were reported.

The snow belt was expected to extend through the Great Lakes region and into New England. Colder weather was indicated for most of the region.

Moisture from the Gulf resulted in a blanket of low clouds and fog with scattered patches of drizzle and light rain to most of the Gulf states.

Rain or showers were expected to spread northward through Arkansas and Tennessee into the Ohio Valley and possibly reach the lower Great Lakes region. The wet belt also was expected to extend into Georgia and the mountains of western North Carolina.

Freezing weather was reported throughout the Rockies, in most of the northern and central Plateau region, from the Dakotas into the Great Lakes region and from New England southward into the Appalachians.

Miss N.C. Spent Christmas Day In Germany

STUTTGART, Germany (AP)—Miss North Carolina spent Christmas in Germany, but she expects to be back home for the New Year festivities.

Ann Herring of Winston-Salem has been in Germany with a group of students from Georgia Tech and other Atlanta area colleges to provide Christmas season entertainment for G.I.'s under a program sponsored by the U.S. State Department.

A hit of each of the shows staged by the students has been Miss Herring's song and dance number that helped her win third place in the Miss America pageant at Atlantic City, N.J.

After entertaining troops at Nuremberg Saturday and Sunday, the group was to visit other U.S. bases in Germany.

"It's fun, but I want to be home with mother and daddy by New Year's," Miss Herring said.

She and other members of the group planned to spend a few days in Paris before returning to this country.

relay broadcasts to the two transmitting stations.

Though no programs are expected to be produced here, the local installation will be connected with VOA's extensive studio operation in Washington, D. C. The Bell Arthur center will receive programs originating in the Nation's Capital via long distance telephone facilities for relay to the transmitters and round-the-world broadcast.

Construction Soon

A definite materials arrival schedule is not available at this point, according to Blackburn. He adds some of the antenna towers can be expected within several months. Responsibility for on-schedule arrival and construction, he points out, lies with the contractor.

In preparing the acreage for construction, the Durham firm has cleared away hundreds of acres of commercial pine forest and engaged in preliminary road construction and drainage work.

The three sites were largely wooded acres. The Shelmerdine site was 99 per cent timberland; Leggett's Crossroads, 70 per cent; and Bell Arthur, 90 per cent.

Preliminary work on a network of roads to serve the facility is nearly completed by the Teer company. Estimated total mileage of the intra-project service road network exceeds 30. Construction work included installation of a total 232 concrete head walls for drainage culverts.

Employment Estimate

An estimate by the United States Information Agency, under which VOA operates, released in July set the initial construction

Broken Tanker's Stern Under Tow

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The last survivor of the storm-broken tanker Pine Ridge and what's left of the ship headed today for a date with shore—24 hours later than expected.

When 27 other crewmen were removed from the tanker by helicopter last Thursday after the 10,417-ton vessel broke up 100 miles east of Cape Hatteras, N.C., Chief Engineer John Richard, 36, of Wilmington, Del., elected to remain on the stern section and protect the salvage rights of the ship's owners.

The stern, in tow by the tug Curb and accompanied by the tug Lamberts Point and the Coast Guard cutter Cherokee, had been expected to arrive in Newport News Sunday. Extreme yawing cut the speed to only three or four knots and delayed the anticipated arrival until late today.

Richard has been accompanied on his ride aboard the bobbing stern by four crewmen from the Curb who joined him Friday while the other survivors were being sped ashore by a Navy destroyer.

Coroner Rules Shot Gun Death Was A Suicide

AYDEN—Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey has ruled the death of Joseph Sheppard Jr., shot in the chest with a .12 gauge shotgun near here yesterday, suicide.

According to Harvey, Sheppard, 33, of Route 1, Rockingham, was found dead on the floor of a bedroom in a house about one and one-half miles south of Ayden on N. C. 11 about 4:30 yesterday afternoon. Harvey said the house belonged to a woman to whom Sheppard had been married. He added that the two had been separated and were not living together.

Harvey said the man allegedly went into the house while the woman was not at home, and shot himself in the chest with a shotgun.

Children, who had been playing in the yard, heard the shot and found the body after entering the house to investigate.

According to the coroner, Sheppard had threatened suicide "two or three times" before. Harvey noted that Sheppard, on parole from prison, was scheduled to be picked up today and returned to custody for three counts of parole violation.
