Future Is Bright To Governor

Reports State Has Built Up A Momentum That Will Carry It Forward

RALEIGH (AP) — Luther H. Hodges looking back on six years as governor of North Carolina, says the state has built up a momentum that will carry it forward in the future.

Hodges, who will step down next week, made a final report to the people Thursday night in a state-wide television address. Earlier, he held the final regular news conference of his administration.

"Economically, we have set the pace for the South, and in some fields, for the nation," Hodges said in his address.

He said more than $233 million was poured into new or expanded industry in North Carolina during 1960. This meant over 500 new or expanded industrial plants, he went on, adding 31,500 jobs and about $100 million in annual payroll.

Hodges said there are "several other industries in the offing, one or two of large size, which should announce early in 1961."

Praise for North Carolina and its people was voiced by Hodges at the news conference. "We've got a momentum here, both in spirit and activity, that will stand us in good stead in years to come," he commented.

Hodges said he wants his administration to be remembered, if it deserves to be, by the record of accomplishments.

He wanted it clear, he added, that he does not want a memorial in the form of his name given to a building at a state institution, a bridge or a ferry boat.

Hodges said the budget to be presented to the next Legislature, which he worked on with the Advisory Budget Commission, will be a good one.

"In the nature of things with the state moving as fast as this one," he said, "You're going to have large percentages of increase."

He gave a salute to Gov.-elect Terry Sanford, who will be inaugurated as his successor next week. He predicted that Sanford "will contribute significantly to the state's progress — particularly in the all-important field of public education."

"If it wasn't the telephone it was the doorbell," said Mrs. Ransford. "Photographers, reporters, newsmen, television, magazines, invitations to go places. Why they (Butch's friends) didn't even have a chance to talk to each other."

Seven Marines showed up but only three stayed one night. Then said Mrs. Ransford, with the dim of telephone bells in their ears, they just walked out.

Butch, however, said the exodus was not a rout, just a tactical retreat.

"We're going to get together next week," he said. "But where and when is secret."

Belgium's Bitter Strike Brings First Death Today

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Belgium's bitter 11-day-old general strike, increasing in violence, brought its first death today. A striker was killed and a dozen persons were wounded in a melee of policemen and demonstrators in downtown Brussels.

Premier Gustav Eyskens charged Communist agitators are behind the nationwide strike. There were two versions of the killing. The Socialists said a sapper blow killed the striker when mounted police, answering a barrage of rocks, charged demonstrators in the heart of the city.

The dead man was Francois Van Der Strappen, 30, a Frenchman living in Brussels.

Police said the striker was killed by an onlooker who fired into the demonstrators. They put the man under arrest. A government communique gave a similar version.

This was the most violent day of the strike against the Premier's economy program.

The Brussels clash occurred when strikers stoned headquarters of the Sabena Airlines. Most workers at Sabena had refused to join the Socialist-led strike.

Premier Eyskens emerged from a conference with his cabinet, told reporters: "It is evident that the movement started from a group of Communist agitators and that it has now gotten beyond the Socialist leaders."

"I cannot believe that a great national party (the Socialists) is responsible for starting the action that has created such a crisis. It is high time that the Socialist leaders assume control."

Socialist leaders have denied that the Communists are running the movement. But at the same time their requests that demonstrators avoid violence have been ignored, indicating they have lost at least some control.

Eyskens said "it is clear that the demonstrations have been organized with the aim of taking over power" but declared his conservative government will not resign.

Violence erupted at the big northern port of Antwerp and at several cities in the industrial south, where the strike against Premier Gustav Eyskens' economy program has been most effective.

In Antwerp, strikers wrecked a post office truck and beat up two postal workers who refused to join the strike.

About 4,000 strikers clashed with police in the southwest industrial city of Mons and there were other outbreaks of violence in and around Charleroi.

King Baudouin, who cut short his honeymoon to deal with the crisis, met with the presidents of the Senate and House of Representatives. He had conferred with Eyskens Thursday night.

The king also asked the leaders of Belgium's three largest political parties to come to see him. They are: Theo Lefevre, Socialist Christian president; Roger Motz, Liberal Conservative chief; and Leo Collard, Socialist president.

Collard was reported to be in Charleroi to address a mass meeting of strikers.

Eyskens held his regular Cabinet meeting while the disorders were taking place.

Two Days' Program Prepared

Festivities Marking Sanford Inauguration Announced For Next Week

RALEIGH (AP) — Festivities and ceremonies spread over two days will mark the inauguration next week of Terry Sanford as governor of North Carolina.

The completed program was announced Thursday by State Sen. John R. Jordan of Wake, chairman of the Inaugural Committee. He said all Tar Heels are invited to attend the public events, next Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 4-5.

Since the Legislature will not be in session as in the past, Gov. Hodges will issue an official proclamation to designate the inaugural period.

Beginning at noon Wednesday Jan. 4, with the opening of a special exhibition by the State Department of Archives and History, the inaugural week will continue through a reception Thursday evening at the Executive Mansion.

"Gov. Sanford wishes us to emphasize that this reception is open to the public. No special invitations are issued. Every citizen of North Carolina is cordially invited," Jordan said.

Robert Kennedy, brother of the President-elect and named attorney general for the incoming national administration, will attend the ceremonies.

Another distinguished guest will be Gov. Ernest (Fritz) Hollings of neighboring South Carolina.

Here is a brief program of events: Wednesday, Jan. 4 — 2 p.m., opening of historical exhibit of inaugurations of the past; 4:5 p.m., reception honoring 1961 General Assembly members, State Museum of Arts; 6 p.m., informal dinner hosted by Wake County Young Democratic Club in honor of General Assembly members.

Although not on the program, an important event Wednesday will be a 5 p.m. caucus of Democratic House members to nominate a speaker and other officers.

The inaugural ball, a charity event sponsored by private organizations, will be held Wednesday evening.

Thursday, Jan. 5 — 10:32 a.m. Gov. and Mrs. Hodges leave Executive Mansion, with military escort. Joined by Gov.-elect and Mrs. Sanford, the inaugural party will proceed to Memorial Auditorium where Sanford will take his oath and deliver his inaugural address. The party will review the parade from a stand on Fayetteville Street.

Hodges will host a buffet luncheon at the mansion for out-of-state distinguished guests, and others. It will be a by-invitation event. The inaugural will conclude with the public reception in the evening.

Court Acts Halt Eviction For Registering To Vote

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals today granted a temporary injunction which will prevent eviction of 300 Negro sharecroppers in Haywood County, Tennessee, because they registered to vote in the 1960 election.

The three-judge court, however, directed that its order not be construed as any determination that Negroes ever had voted in Haywood County since the 1957 Civil Rights Act constitutionally may be used to require private persons to enter into contractual relations in respect to their own property.

"That question will remain for decision," the court order said.

The government contended no wood County prior to this year and only a few ever had cast votes in Fayette County, also included in the case. Negroes outnumber whites in both counties.

Landowners in both Haywood and Fayette counties have contended they were terminating the contracts by which sharecroppers farm their land because of mechanization of farms and reduction in cotton crop acreage.

The appeals court also said the order was not to be construed as preventing any "legitimate action" by landowners where their intentions were not intended to deprive Negroes of their voting rights.

In a separate decision, the court dismissed a mandamus action which would have required U.S. Dist. Judge Marion S. Boyd of Memphis, Tenn., to take a similar action involving 400 sharecroppers in Fayette County, Tenn.

It was understood, however, that government attorneys would use the Haywood County decision as a precedent for asking Judge Boyd to issue a temporary injunction for Fayette County.

Judge Boyd had denied the petition for the temporary injunction in Haywood County and had declined to hear the Fayette County case.

On the basis of today's decision, the appeals court now will conduct a hearing, probably in February, on an appeal from Judge Boyd's decision.

The granting of the injunction preserves the "status quo" of sharecroppers whose contracts for farming of land expire automatically after Saturday.

It means, attorney said that the contracts between the sharecroppers and the landowners may not be terminated as of Saturday on the basis of any civil rights law violation.

In Brownsville, Haywood County seat, spokesman for the sharecroppers were unavailable immediately for comment.

Sheriff S. T. Hunter, one of the defendants in the government's civil rights suit, said charges that evictions were reprisal-inspired are "untrue and unfounded."

"I can't say that goes 100 percent," but in the vast majority of cases evictions have nothing to do with voter registration," he said.

"The government has taught a sit-down attitude, especially among colored people around here, and many of them have become worthless as farm laborers."

Hunter called the sharecropper contracts one-sided, binding on the landowners but not the laborers. Judges Lester Cecil, Paul Weick and Clifford O'Sullivan, who heard oral arguments in the case, agreed unanimously.

The decision pointed out that Continued on page ten

Most Marines Failed To Land At Hectic Home

CHICAGO (AP) — Quiet returned to the John G. Ransford home in suburban Park Forest today. Most of the Marines failed to land. For those who did the situation got out of hand.

For another, the Ransfords have plenty of memories to remember the feared invasion of their son's fellow Marines that turned out to be only a small patrol—quickly repelled.

For one thing, Mrs. Ransford has to answer all those invitations that came after word got around that a couple of squads of eligible Leathernecks would be at her home.

For another, the Ransfords senior and their five children have to eat their way through mountains of bacon, eggs, coffee cake and cookies—and that turkey.

The Ransfords' woes began when their son Donald (Butch) 22, a Marine corporal, arrived in California from a 16-month tour on Okinawa earlier this month and blithely told his mother he had invited 30 or so of his buddies for a visit after Christmas. Fifteen accepted the bid.

Out went the Ransfords' youngsters to stay with neighbors. In came pots and makeshift beds and food enough to feed a battalion. In also came the uninvited.

"If it wasn't the telephone it was the doorbell," said Mrs. Ransford. "Photographers, reporters, newsmen, television, magazines, invitations to go places. Why they (Butch's friends) didn't even have a chance to talk to each other."

Seven Marines showed up but only three stayed one night. Then said Mrs. Ransford, with the dim of telephone bells in their ears, they just walked out.

Butch, however, said the exodus was not a rout, just a tactical retreat.

"We're going to get together next week," he said. "But where and when is secret."

Manned Rocket Ride Seen Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first American manned rocket ride is set for early spring if a large ape survives the jolt of a blast-off from Cape Canaveral early in 1961.

The House Committee on Science and Astronautics made this prediction in a man-in-space report today.

Despite setbacks in recent tests, Chairman Overton Brooks, D-La., pictured the United States standing "on the threshold of a major flight test program of short and long range ballistic flights, leading first to unmanned, and later on to manned orbital flight late in 1961, if all goes well."

The report, based on information supplied by the Defense Department and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, (NASA) set next March or April as the date for the first manned rocket ride. One of the Mercury Astronauts will be strapped in a capsule and shot well over 100 miles up by an Army Redstone missile.

This first space ride will last a matter of minutes. Ships will be ready to fish the capsule from the Atlantic Ocean.

An earlier trial, using the same kind of rocket and capsule, will have a chimpanzee as passenger. If all goes well with the first manned space probes, the payoff will come next fall, when the first attempt will be made to put a man into a satellite in space, and keep him there long enough to complete several orbits of the earth.

Bomb-Making Plants In Cuba Said Smashed

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban government announced today it has smashed three small bomb-making centers and arrested 17 persons as anti-Castro terrorists.

A series of night raids by intelligence agents brought the arrest of 15 men and two women, plus a big quantity of gelatinous dynamite and weapons. The government said the dynamite was of U.S. manufacture. The raids were chiefly in suburban Marianao.

The semi-official paper Revolucion declared the accused group took orders from the U.S. Embassy here. The paper charged that seized arms, explosives and documents show counterrevolutionaries have "relations with Yankee imperialism, from whose agents they receive direct aid to carry out terrorist acts."

Pension Of Coal Miners Is Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pensions of retired bituminous coal miners were cut today from $100 to $75 a month, starting with the February payments.

The action was taken by the trustees of the United Mine Workers Welfare and Retirement Fund because of reduced income from the 40-cent royalty on each ton of coal produced.

More than 65,000 retired miners are affected. The pensions of anthracite miners previously had been cut from $100 to $50 monthly because of even more depressed conditions in the anthracite industry.

Bituminous coal miners got their notice in today's issue of the UMW Journal in a front-page letter signed by Josephine Roche, director of the fund.

The reduction will continue "until further notice," the announcement said. Miss Roche said that "at such time in the future that the trust fund income reaches a continuing higher level, consideration will be given to restoring the monthly pension to its former amount."

All studies of future coal demand indicate a slow, steady increase, the letter said, but the constantly growing number of pensioners makes it probable the reduced benefits "will be in effect for some time."

Recommend Driver Be Held For Grand Jury In Traffic Fatality

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

A coroner's jury last night recommended that John Boyd, 35-year-old Negro of Chicoh, charged with manslaughter in the December 10 traffic death of 67-year-old Ernest Gatlin of Simpson, be held for grand jury action in the death.

The six-man jury deliberated only eight minutes before returning their recommendation at the request. Boyd, who declined to take the stand, was released under a $1,000 bond pending the next session of the grand jury.

Gatlin, a passenger in the Boyd car, was killed following a collision between the Boyd auto and a vehicle operated by Roy Clemons Jr., 30-year-old Negro of Route 3, Greenville, about three miles east of Greenville on U.S. 264.

Clemons testified the collision occurred about 10:15 p.m. as he and his wife and baby were headed west toward Greenville and home.

He continued by saying a "car came up behind me . . . and wanted to pass. It cut out and started by, then cut back on me . . . his car struck my car. The bumpers hooked together," Clemons said, "and started pulling us."

Clemons continued by saying his car started going around and around, and he was thrown through the right-hand rear window of his car. He noted he was "not trying to race with him (Boyd)," and said he "never raced with anybody."

His speedometer was not working, he stated, but estimated his speed at the time the cars collided at 45-50 miles per hour.

Boyd testified the left front corner of the Clemons auto was damaged and had traces of green paint on the fender and bumper, similar to that "on the Boyd vehicle, while the right rear bumper of the Boyd car was "torn completely loose." There was "white or cream paint" which matched the paint of the Clemons car "found on the fender and bumper" of the Boyd car.

The officer stated he talked with Boyd the next day and quoted him as saying he was driving with his wife and Gatlin in the car.

Surles continued by saying Boyd told him he pulled up behind the car (Clemons) and started to pass. The car speeded up until they were running side-by-side, then his wife said "go back or go by . . . because the car didn't want to be passed."

Boyd was quoted as noting he thought he was "by him" and pulled in, then the cars collided.

Coroner Harvey said the cause of death was a broken neck, and pointed out Gatlin was dead on arrival at the hospital.

District Solicitor Robert D. Rouse of Farmville questioned the witness for the state at the inquest.

It was pointed out that Boyd was charged with manslaughter following the wreck.

Their 8th Son, Still Want Girl

DETROIT (AP) — Margaret Reese, 25, gave birth this week to her eighth son.

The oldest is 8. She told newsmen she had a boy's name all picked out—Christopher. She and her husband, Daniel, 27, a cab driver, still have a girl's name—Margaret Pauline — picked out from when they were expecting their first child.

"One more and we'll have enough for a baseball team," Mrs. Reese remarked.

Tanker Survivor Calls It Rust Pot

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A survivor of the storm-broken tanker Pine Ridge told a Coast Guard board that after looking the ship over he would have gone back to the Union Hall had he not liked the company.

Albert G. Buffington Jr. of New York said Thursday the ship looked "like what you would call a rust pot."

He said "a lot of fellows would have gone back to the Union Hall, but I liked the company. I knew it was a good company and thought it would be a good ship."

A suit for $250,000 was filed in Federal Court in Newport News on behalf of one of the seven men who died. It was filed by the estate of Joseph D. Coursen of Nashville, Ga., who was quartermaster on the bridge when the tanker broke.

One of the ship's quartermasters testified that holes in her cargo tank bulkheads forced a delay in ballasting the tanker for heavy weather when it ran into the storm off Cape Hatteras, N.C., on Dec. 21.

Dominic Dowicki of New York said the first officer called the captain to the bridge when the ship started to sound around 4:30 a.m. Capt. Clark Snyder, clad in his bathrobe, came to the bridge and told the mate they could not take on more ballast until seawater already in some of the ship's tanks flowed into the other tanks and found a level.

Later, more ballast was added, but minutes later the tanker broke in two. The bow section sank, taking the lives of the master, the three mates and three other men. The quartermaster also testified he saw oil leaking through a crack in the hull while the ship was discharging cargo in New York. The crack later was repaired with cement, he said.

Raced To Stop A Train In Time

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP) — An elderly railroad brakeman Thursday made a 200-yard sprint and managed to halt a passenger train foot short of a rock slide blocking the tracks.

The brakeman, Ralph Curio, 62, was waiting for a passenger train to pull into the station when a 50-foot-high retaining wall collapsed. Mud and boulders spilled across three of the four main line tracks of the Jersey Central Railroad.

The wall, constructed of old railroad ties, was apparently weakened by rain. Curio grabbed several flares and started running. He hopped past the blocked track, just north of the Nostrand Avenue Station, and flagged down the commuter-laden train.

Double-Ring Rites Unite Couple

A four o'clock double-ring ceremony in the First Presbyterian Church on December 29 united in marriage Miss Mary Dunn Beatty and Mr. Harry Cameron Mauney with the Rev. Richard Rea Gam-

Mrs. Harry Cameron Mauney

mon officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Beatty of Greenville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Mauney of Richmond, Va.

The church was decorated with a background of seven-branched candelabra holding tall cathedral candles, bridal greenery consisting of emerald huckleberry, areca palms and plumosus. At the altar was a decorated prie-dieu with white silken cushions. On either side were single candleholders with tall cathedral candles and huckleberry greenery. The pews were designated with white satin bows.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Guy Smith, organist, and Miss Winifred Perkins of Kents Store, Va., soloist. Miss Perkins sang "Through the Years" and the "Wedding Prayer" as a benediction. The traditional "Wedding March" by Mendelssohn and the "Bridal Chorus" by Wagner were used.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of lustrous satin and alencon lace featuring a batteau neckline of re-embroidered lace and fitted bodice. The gown was fashioned along princess lines with long sleeves tapering into points over the hands and bouffant skirt of satin with lace appliques and bustle back caught with a satin bow and cascading into a full cathedral train. Her finger-tip veil of imported illusion was attached to a coronet of iridescent sequins and pearls. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids centered with a pure white orchid tied with white embossed satin.

Mrs. W. C. Whitehurst Jr. of Bethel attended her sister as matron of honor. Mrs. Annora Ray Evans of Chapel Hill, sister of the bride, Miss Linda Beam Mauney of Richmond, Va., sister of the groom, and Miss Mary Charles Whitehurst of Bethel, niece of the bride, were bridesmaids.

The attendants wore identical dresses of white pol de soie. They carried bouquets of green cypripedium orchids and green tulips tied with embossed green satin.

Mr. D. R. Mauney, brother of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Taylor McMullin, Robert Boss, Lawrence Hutchinson, and Richard Woodfin.

Mrs. Beatty wore for her daughter's wedding a green satin brocade dress with matching hat and accessories. Her corsage was of cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. Mauney, mother of the groom, wore a silk sheath of romance blue with matching accessories. Her corsage was of mauve cymbidium orchids.

The bride attended Greenville High School and was graduated from East Carolina College. She is now teaching in Henrico County, Va.

The bridegroom attended the University of Richmond and is now employed by Meinecke and Co. Hospital Supplies of New York City.

Reception

Immediately following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Beatty entertained at a reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Mauney and the wedding party in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

For traveling the bride wore a Dan Millstein suit of ice blue. She wore Shapereilly flowered hat and brown skin accessories. After the wedding trip the couple will reside in Richmond, Va.

Social Honors Bride-Elect

Wednesday evening Mrs. Lester Simmons and Miss Rosalie Tripp entertained at a social hour at the home of Mrs. Simmons on the Pictolus Highway honoring Miss Margaret Ann Whitehurst of Stokes, who will be married in February. Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Simmons and Miss Whitehurst.

Holiday arrangements were used throughout the home. In the living room was a lighted Christmas tree.

After conversation, the guests were shown to the appointed table, which was covered with a white network cloth over green. White candles and an arrangement of white poinsettias centered the table. Mrs. Clarence Whitehurst, mother of the honoree, poured coffee and guests served themselves to ham biscuits, party sandwiches, cookies, potato chips, toasted pecans and mints.

The hostesses presented Miss Whitehurst with a corsage of white carnations to complement her light blue wool sheath dress. They also remembered her with gifts. Miss Tripp presented Miss Whitehurst with crystal in her chosen pattern, and Mrs. Simmons remembered her with a gold initialed bracelet.

Miss Gagnon Weds Mr. Prather

AYDEN—In an evening ceremony Thursday, December 29, in the Ayden Methodist Church Miss Barbara Louise Gagnon became the bride of Thomas Marshall Prather of Meadville, Pa. The Rev. Louis Aitken, pastor, officiated.

The groom is a graduate of Duke University where he was a member of the Delta Sigma Phi, social fraternity. He is now attending the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Thomas Marshall Prather

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Gagnon of Ayden and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Prather of Meadville, Pa.

Music was presented by Mrs. Mark Dixon, organist, and Mrs. E. Joe Whitaker, soloist, both of Ayden.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of bridal taffeta designed with a scalloped sarrina neckline of alencon lace. The skirt featured panels of re-embroidered lace which circled the bottom of the scalloped skirt, terminating in a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a Mary Queen of Scots cap of lace trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white pom poms, carnations and lily-of-the-valley, centered with an orchid.

Miss Rebecca Stikeleather of Asheville was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Francine Cannon and Miss Judith Mohle, cousin of the bride, both of Ayden. The attendants wore champagne gold dresses of silk organza and satin brocade with matching bandeaux featuring short circular veils of illusion. They carried nosegay bouquets of yellow roses.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. The ushers were Mark Prather and William Prather, brothers of the groom. Robert Gagnon and David Gagnon, brothers of the bride.

After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Mack Albright of Charlotte were guests of Mrs. Albright's mother, Mrs. Maggie Hart for Christmas.

Miss Bert Johnson spent Christmas day in Trenton as a guest of Mrs. Mildred Hargett.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Daniel and daughters of Stem, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Sherron and daughters of Greenville, S. C., Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Scarborough of Greensboro were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Scarborough for the Christmas holidays.

Bissette's Hosts

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Bissette entertained at a pre-Christmas party for their bridge club members and other guests on Friday night at their home on Highland Drive.

In the entrance hall, white poinsettia and silver arrangements were used. Red carnations and other Christmas decorations were placed in the living room and the Christmas tree was in the hall. The dining room table was covered with a Christmas cloth, centered with a silver epergne filled with her berries, tall candles and tied with a red satin bow. A spaghetti dinner was served. Mrs. Mark Phillips assisted.

Bridge was played at four tables with Mrs. Thurman Williams and Mr. M. B. Hodges high scorers for club members. Mrs. J. I. Quinerly was guest high. Others playing were Mrs. Hodges, Mr. Quinerly, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Oglesby, Mr. and Mrs. Overton Sulter. After the bridge games gifts were exchanged among the guests.

Open House Held

Miss Mary Dawson McCotter held informal "Open House" on Monday afternoon at her home. Guests were received in the living room where the traditional tree was placed. The mantel was lanked with holly and held pine cones and berries with candles. Cheese dips, party sandwiches, sweets, nuts and iced drinks were served during the party hour. Approximately 20 friends called.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Powell entertained Monday afternoon at their new home on St. David Street at an informal buffet supper for family members.

Christmas decorations were noted in the home. The table was covered with a white linen cloth and held a tray of Christmas cookies as a centerpiece in an atmosphere of candlelight. After supper families exchanged gifts.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stinquist, Misses Ruth, Dolores, Shirley and Ronnie Stinquist of Goldsboro, Mrs. Frank McDaniel of Kinston, Miss Rosa Struth, Mr. and Mrs. David Parker and daughter, Alma.

Presented At Ball

The North Carolina Regents of The Kenmore Association presented the Debutante Cotillion and Christmas Ball Dec. 21 in the Old Army Ballroom, Durham. Miss Louise Glass Ficklen was a Presentation leader at the Ball. She was presented by her father, Louis Stuart Ficklen. Miss Ficklen's marshals were Louis Stuart Ficklen Jr. of Greenville and Troy Jerome Furr of Mobile, Ala. Miss Ficklen is a freshman at Hollins College, Roanoke, Va. She is the daughter of Mrs. Louise Dibrell Ficklen and Louis Stuart Ficklen.

By DENNIS WARREN THE LAST XMAS PRESENT.

It can be the one you buy for yourself with that wonderful and welcome Christmas gift money you received.

Select it from our shelves, and you'll have a gift that will be part of your fun for years to come. Imagine yourself with one of those new Kodak electric eye cameras. Say the Brownie Starmeter or the Brownie Staromatic. You'll find yourself taking great pictures shot after shot because the camera lens is always set just right for the light.

Or maybe your Christmas money can give you a chance to get started on a movie-making career. The new Brownie 8 Movie Camera is a whole of a buy at just $24.50. Makes movies snapshot-easy to take—just as easy to afford.

If you already own a camera, what about some auxiliary equipment? Say the spanking new Kodak 500 Projector, Model B that can show your color slides big-as-life.

If you're a movie fan, how about treating yourself like a guest at your shows? With a new automatic Brownie 8 Movie Projector (Model A15) you just feed in the film. The projector handles the job of threading the film and starting the show—automatically.

But do your post-Christmas shopping early—before that Christmas money just plain disappears. —(Adv.)

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

Hollywood has so outdone itself in making and marketing super-colossal films in recent years that we tend to discount or to ignore them in favor of quieter fare.

Yet we should not get trapped in our own prejudice, since there is no reason why a film produced on an epic scale necessarily has to be inferior. Proof of this is to be available right now in Greenville, where MGM's "Ben Hur" is showing at the State and will be showing there through Jan. 7.

Graciel Mammoth

Here is a movie which is undoubtedly a super-colossal mammoth with enough superlatives to gladden the heart of Sam Goldwyn and all his publicity men, for "Ben Hur" is not only the most expensive movie ever made, but the third longest (3 hours, 37 minutes showing time), the one with the greatest number of speaking parts, etc., etc.

Yet, according to the reviewers, its tremendous bulk has been managed with great skill and excellent taste, and Director William Wyler has scored a success "by which coming generations of screen spectacles can expect to be measured."

The film has followed the plot of General Lew Wallace's 1870 novel with a considerable degree of fidelity. That fact suggests the wide appeal which it will probably exert in terms of violent action, suspense, romance, and religious pathos, all of which Wallace got into his book. And that probably explains why this book has sold more than two million copies, placing it at the top of the all-time American bestseller list after the Bible.

New Writer

A young North Carolina writer to watch is Reynolds Price of the Duke English department, whose story, "One Sunday in Late July," has won the O. Henry Prize as one of the best stories of 1960.

Price, a former Rhodes scholar and Duke graduate, says that the prize-winning story will form part of his short novel, "A Long and Happy Life," which will be published by Random House in the spring. The locale of this book is Eastern North Carolina — Warren County, in fact—and it will deal with Negro life.

Russian Science

A curious recent book is "Russian Science in the Twenty-First Century," by Serge Gousscher and Mikhael Vassiliev (McGraw-Hill). This work is an effort to project a vision of what Soviet science will be doing on the hundredth anniversary of the Russian Revolution (October, 2021).

Sleepless Society

One of the book's most intriguing forecasts is that not only will the next century be classless but also sleepless. The bourgeois habit of wasting time in bed will be done away with, as one's flagging energy will be scientifically restored by "electric vibrators." Let mattress makers, bed manufacturers, and sleeping pill compounders take warning!

Another Soviet innovation, according to this book, will be the construction of a solitary lamp to light Moscow at night. This lamp will be an artificial sun, twelve miles up, emitting "high frequency electromagnetic rays, consisting of incandescent molecules of nitrogen and hydrogen."

Hollywood

And here is a footnote on life in Hollywood. It seems that a certain studio wanted to register the title "Dear Murderer." It was turned down, however, on the grounds that the title was almost identical with another one already registered. Title already registered: "Dear Slayer." Our guest reviewer this week is Miss Elfrith Alexander, one of our students at ECC.

WITH BANNERS FLYING

Albert Orban
John Day Co.

"With Banners Flying" parades through some of the most historical battles ever fought from before Christ to Washington's crossing the Delaware. They are told in short, narrative form, with vivid descriptive details and a sound reconstruction of the opposing forces. Hannibal, Napoleon, William the Conqueror and other famous warriors are so skillfully characterized that one feels their determination, desires, the force of the personalities that led thousands in battle to change the fate of humanity.

It is easy to picture "men with great beards and braided hair" or Napoleon "a dark figure thrown in bold relief against an inky black sky" during the Battle of Waterloo. Beginning with Hannibal, and ending with Napoleon, the book marches through eight of the world's most famous battles in such "eye-witness" detail that the basic facts are absorbed as easily as a picture of Henry V's chilling English Bowmen, clad in Lincoln green or russet brown. Written by Albert Orban, a World War II hero, and filled with his colorful illustrations and easily interpreted battle maps, this book is exciting for young readers (or adults with a yen for history), combining drama and thrills with scholarship.

Franco Warns Of Russian Efforts

MADRID (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco of Spain said Thursday night Communist penetration in Africa is a main goal of the Soviet Union.

In his year-end annual broadcast to the head of the Spanish state said, "The arrival of Russian war material in North Africa and the assistance being given by Soviet Russia will end by upsetting the peace and independence of those countries."

Franco said communism has declared a "revolutionary war." "For communism," he said, "this which we call peace is but war with different means and procedures."

Most of the 6,000-word speech was devoted to discussion of the transformation of Spain since the end of the Spanish civil war in 1939.

He said the Spanish economy currently is the strongest it has been in many years.

Will Look For Tippy Pedestrian

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Drunken drivers aren't the only persons who might run afoul of the law in Pittsburgh New Year's week-end. Tippy pedestrians may also end up behind bars—jail bars, that is.

Safety Director Louis Rosenberg Thursday issued the usual order for police to crack down on drunk drivers during New Year's weekend. But he added a new wrinkle: Visibly intoxicated pedestrians also are to be arrested "in anticipation of the possibility that such a person could become a drunken driver."

Theft Of Secrets Charged To Former Defense Dept. Worker

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—A former defense department employe has been charged with stealing secret documents. Arthur Rogers Roddey, 38, of Falls Church, Va., told newsmen he took the papers "to take them to the National Security Council." He said after his arrest Thursday, "I felt I was right and I still feel that way."

The council is the top echelon of the department of defense. Roddey was senior operations research adviser for the weapons system evaluation group of the Institute of Defense Analysis.

A newsman asked Roddey at his arraignment if he felt the documents contained information he thought the council should have but that it had not been given.

"I don't know what they knew, but I knew what I knew and wanted them to know it," he replied. He conceded he did not take the documents to the council.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said the case does not involve espionage.

In Richmond, Va., however, U. S. Dist. Atty. Joseph S. Barnabus, who authorized filing of the charges, commented, "I plan to reconvene the federal grand jury in Alexandria (Va.) within the next 10 days and I will ask the grand jury to indict Roddey on espionage charges."

He said some of the documents are "so highly classified that their mere existence, let alone their

The FBI announcement of Roddey's arrest said he made false statements about possession of documents when he left the job in August.

The FBI charged that Roddey took a top secret tape recorder and approximately 200 documents.

Roddey said he had known since September that he was under investigation. He expressed relief that the charges were no more severe and "actually are as indicated to me previously."

He was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Henry W. Kirkland. There were two counts of theft of government property and three counts of fraud.

He was held in lieu of $15,000 bond, pending removal to Virginia.

Roddey chatted with newsmen while waiting for papers to be drawn up by Kirkland.

"The only reason I'm doing this well, these charges are serious charges," he said, "and I feel I was doing right while I violated the law in doing what I did."

He continued, "this is something bigger than what I'm being charged with."

Roddey worked in the Pentagon from 1958 until the staff was cut last August. He came here a week ago to spend Christmas at the home of his mother-in-law.

STILL MORE SNOW

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP) — It snowed in Houghton Thursday. It snowed Wednesday, and the day before and the day before that. In fact it has snowed in Houghton for 24 consecutive days—a total of 71 inches. Today's weather forecast: more snow.

IT'S FOR THE BIRDS—Using a special crane boom, workmen begin bird-proofing trees along the inaugural parade route in Washington. Opposing Sides Marshal For Fight On Filibusters

WASHINGTON (AP)—Opposing sides were marshaling today for the impending battle over Senate rules to make it easier to shut off filibusters.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of Southern forces, said the Dixie senators probably would get together before the start of the fight before the start of an exchange of views.

He told newsmen he wouldn't announce the time and place of any such huddle because he had no desire to turn the spotlight of publicity on it.

Three Democratic senators in the liberal camp already have sent out invitations to about 40 of their colleagues for a meeting Monday to map plans for the rules fight and other changes they want to make in Senate procedures.

This meeting originally had been called for today but was postponed to give more senators time to arrive in Washington. Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., the assistant GOP leader, urged meanwhile that the Senate take up and settle immediately after Congress convenes the dispute over the anti-filibuster rule.

Under this rule, it takes the votes of two-thirds of the senators present and voting to clamp a time limit on debate. Opponents contend the requirement for a two-thirds majority virtually kills any chance of passing effective civil rights measures over Southern opposition and hobbles action on other controversial legislation.

Kuchel called filibusters "evil and undemocratic" and urged the Senate's rules be revised to permit a simple majority of the members—51 senators—to cut off debate after what he called a reasonable time.

"Why should the Senate be compelled to hold 24-hour-a-day sessions to try to exhaust a handful of filibustering colleagues so that a final vote may be reached on whatever issue may be pending?" he asked in a statement.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, slated to become the Democratic leader in the new Senate, has said he favors modifying the rule. But he has urged that the fight over it be put off until after action on key items in the legislative program of President-elect John F. Kennedy.

Kuchel contended that between the convening of Congress on Jan.

and the inauguration of Kennedy on Jan. 20 there is ample time to resolve the controversy over the rules.

Senators of both parties who are demanding action at the start of the session maintain that Senate rules do not automatically carry over from one Congress to another.

But Russell said it would create utter chaos if the principle were established that the Senate has no rules at the beginning of a new Congress. He predicted a majority of the Senate would reject this idea, as it has in the past.

Two years ago, at the start of the 86th Congress, the Senate tabled and thus killed by a 60-36 vote a motion based on the theory that the rules did not carry over.

Caroline Disrupted Daddy's Conference

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Caroline Kennedy—cute, blonde and three years old—is likely to go down in history as the only daughter who ever completely and hilariously disrupted a high-level news conference.

Caroline's daddy is John F. Kennedy, the President-elect. And if the nation is wondering how he will react in an international crisis after he takes office, it can be reported he faced one on the domestic front Thursday night and dealt with it admirably—if with some embarrassment.

Kennedy and Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., were holding a joint news conference to report on their discussion of a multitude of grave problems. About 40 newsmen were grouped around the moonlit patio at the Kennedy ocean-front home.

At that moment Caroline slipped through the ranks of furiously scribbling reporters and into the glare of television newsreel floodlights, wearing pink pajamas and a pale blue bathrobe. She was barefooted and was clutching a pair of her mother's high heel shoes.

"Hi, daddy," she piped. The conference was convulsed in laughter.

There was no slightest sign of fluster as the President-elect watched Caroline slip into the high heel shoes and teeter precariously on them.

SALT-FREE BREAD Diener's Bakery 515 Dickinson Ave. PL 2-5251

At that point Kennedy took the youngster by the hand and asked whether she thought it would be a good idea to go on back into the house.

Caroline nodded smiling agreement and shuffled off stage amid uproarious laughter, the cameramen scrambling for pictures.

The President-elect, got back to the business of the roving ambassador just as though nothing had happened.

One thing appears certain. Life isn't going to be dull in the White House with Miss Caroline around.

Ground Is Broken For A New Era

Official groundbreaking ceremonies for the new legislative building in Raleigh mark the ending of an era and the beginning of a new era for the General Assembly of North Carolina.

For years the legislative body of the state has met biennially in the 120-year-old capitol in quarters that were grossly inadequate. It will be the same situation again in February when the legislature gathers in its old quarters for the 1961 session.

With ground broken for the new building, however, it is not improbable that the new quarters for the General Assembly will be ready for use by the time the 1963 session convenes.

The decision to build a new legislative building for the state met with long and sometimes bitter discussion before final approval was given. In spite of the fact that the issue was resolved months ago, there are still a considerable number of people who are opposed to the state's spending some $4.5 million on the structure for such a purpose.

It may be true that the new legislative building will not result in better legislation for North Carolina after the General Assembly moves into the new structure. It is likewise true that the legislators who go to Raleigh every two years to represent the people of the state will not work any harder in the new, adequate quarters than they have in the inadequate quarters which have been afforded them.

Even so, most citizens of North Carolina, we believe, recognized the need for new legislative quarters. The decision to construct a new legislative building and at the same time retain the capitol that has stood for more than 100 years likewise reflected the will of the majority of the citizens of North Carolina.

Now that ground has been broken for the structure, state officials should see that construction work is carried out as rapidly as reasonably possible in order that the new building will be ready for use by 1963. It will fill a long standing need for North Carolina. And it is a need which should be filled without any further unnecessary delay.

Reversal Of Decision Is To Be Commended

North Carolina's Highway Commission made a wise decision in reversing its previous stand in order to give approval to state ownership and operation of the ferry between Atlantic and Ocracoke.

The ferry will provide an important link between the northern portion of the state's famous outer banks and the mainland to the south. As shown this summer during the brief period in which the ferry was operated under private ownership, the link opens the area to a greatly increased volume to tourist traffic. In doing so, it provides a new source of income and a new economic potential for a portion of North Carolina that for years has been largely isolated and without adequate economic opportunities.

In its action, the Highway Commission likewise gave the green light to a change in policy which would permit the state to charge tolls on ferries connecting remote spots which also have highway links with the mainland. This, we believe, is a reasonable move at least for the present. In the future if the Atlantic-Ocracoke ferry operations justify it, original toll charges may be reduced or eventually eliminated entirely.

The Commission's decision to purchase the ferry and operate it will prove a boon to the coastal area of the state. In terms of economic development, the state will be repaid many times over the years for the cost of acquiring and operating the ferry that will give the northern section of the outer banks a new link with the mainland.

In spite of the fact that the Highway Commission rejected earlier this month a proposal that it purchase and operate the ferry, it is to be commended for its reconsideration of the matter and for reversing its earlier decision.

Very Aware Of Public Relations

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy shows all the signs of being highly conscious of public relations and, perhaps, public reaction.

Whether this will affect his presidency by deterring him from some step which may create adverse public reaction remains to be seen.

One example of his awareness of public relations, particularly in timing and maximum publicity, is the way he announced his top appointments.

Another is his willingness to have his news conferences broadcast by television and radio while he's holding them.

Here's another: A woman reporter asked him a question and identified herself and her organization.

Instantly he told her a story carried by her publication was inaccurate and he would have to look into it before dealing with her further.

Here's another: At the time his new son was born he was walking through the corridor of the hospital when he spotted a reporter from a national magazine. He offered congratulations on a story it had carried.

So he's either personally keeping abreast of what's being written or he's made it his business to be kept well-informed and up to date by his aides.

This is in contrast to President Eisenhower who once publicly said he did not do a lot of newspaper reading.

There is also a contrast between the two men in the way they publicly handled their cabinet appointments.

Eisenhower, after winning the 1952 election, announced the selection of his nine-man cabinet two and three members at a time.

This meant that in a relatively few days the complete cabinet selection had been reported in the press. And Eisenhower acted fast.

He made his first announcement by Nov. 20, 1952 and was finished by Dec. 1.

Kennedy took his time. His associates let it be known he could find the best advice he could find before reaching decisions.

He didn't announce his first cabinet appointment — Connecicut's Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff as secretary of health, education and welfare — until Dec. 1.

Then day after day—although there were some lapses between days—he ticked off his cabinet.

He'd come out of his Georgetown home here, stand in the freezing cold with his latest appointee, name him, make a statement praising him and explaining his selection. And the new man would make a statement. He announced some of his appointments while he was at Palm Beach, Fla.

News photographers and television cameras duly recorded all this, day after day. And Kennedy, now at Palm Beach, is still making appointments on the sub-cabinet and lower levels.

But because of the way he handled all this, each appointment — by being the only one on a given day — got the maximum publicity in the press and on TV and radio.

It would seem reasonable to think Kennedy deliberately chose to do it this way because it is unlikely he was actually reaching decisions on a day by day basis.

For example: The Kennedy inner circle told reporters that less than 10 days before Arthur J. Goldberg was announced as new secretary of labor that the decision on Goldberg had already been settled.

It is noteworthy that Kennedy hasn't stirred up any very strong reactions, from liberals or conservatives, by his cabinet choices who can probably best be described as a group of liberal-conservatives.

Kennedy's cabinet may be a complete reflection of his own views and have no connection with any concern of his about public opinion or reaction.

But it is at least the kind of cabinet which gives him—as he soon starts on his presidency—a minimum of handicaps in the form of strong opposition.

Kennedy's vice president Lyndon B. Johnson, who was leader of the Democrats in the Senate, made a career of following a middle ground and was extremely sensitive to what was said and written about him.

If Kennedy follows the same road this may turn out to be a middle ground administration.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
RESOLUTIONS, NOT RESOLUTIONS

There is always much joking about New Year's resolutions and the rapidly with which they are broken.

Two things need to be said about this matter. The first is that we never need to wait for any special day when good resolutions are being considered. The time to make them is right at the moment that their need becomes apparent.

The length of their duration should not even be considered at all. The second thing to be said is that as a matter of fact, the best resolutions are never consciously made, not even whispered to our deepest understanding. For improvement of one's conduct and the deepening of one's faith is something that goes on continuously if it goes on at all. And it is a quite unconscious process. Somehow or other many of the things we aim for are never reached and some of the things most influential in our lives grow up unnoticed. We do not need so much to make good resolutions as to be genuinely resolute and steadfast in the way we live our lives all the time.

We do not stop, ponder, and become better. The natural process is improvement as we go along.

Not resolutions but resolute-ness — and this without any let up.

Your columnist has a fine haul of gifts this week after Christmas.

There are a couple of shirts, socks, pajamas, bedroom slippers, a robe and an indoor-outdoor thermometer among other things.

They're all excellent gifts of which I'm very proud. But somehow I find myself sneaking off to visit my nephews. They're very young, you see, and Santa brought them lots of toys.

There's still some child left in the tired old heart of your columnist and I can't resist these intricate battery-powered play things of the modern day kids' world.

Ronald and Donald, the twins, for instance, are the proud possessors of a couple of toy racers. These things don't wind up as such toys did in my day. They run on tracks and are powered by two six-volt dry cell batteries. Each car is controlled by a separate switch which sends them whizzing around the figure 8 track.

Occasionally the kids insist on playing with the racers themselves, so their old uncle moves over to the pin ball machine. This, too, is an improvement over the models I remember. As the ball hits the bumpers a bell rings, a light flashes and a scoring device registers — and it's all powered by flashlight batteries.

Then there's the model parking building which is just like the ones found in cities. This one has three decks with an elevator to lift the cars. There is no tiresome hand cranking, however. The elevator is powered by battery.

It's been said that if the toy designers had been turned loose on the nation's rocket program, we would have had a man in space long ago.

I believe that. In fact if this had been done, Martian kids would have their own pin ball machines by now and moon dwellers would know what an earthly parking garage looks like.

So it's the end of the year again and that means it is time to buy license plates for 1961. The tags go on sale next week at Home and Auto Supply. They must be displayed by Feb. 15. Thousands of motorists will fork over $10 to $15 during the next month and a half for the privilege of operating their vehicles on the state highways.

Don't forget to purchase the city tags at the same time. In Greenville these cost $1. Other incorporated towns in the county also require their citizens to purchase such tags.

Other Editors Saying Opinions In Brief

(The Rocky Mount Telegram)

Indications are that federal regulatory agencies are due for a brisk shakeup when President-elect John Kennedy assumes office next month. A report turned over to him by James M. Landis, former Harvard law school dean and former member or chairman of several of the agencies involved, has strongly recommended a massive overhaul and reorganization.

Specifically the report cites outside pressure, political appointees and a lack of concern by former President Harry Truman and President Eisenhower. Kennedy's reaction to the report was favorable, and therefore some action can be expected along the lines set forth by the report.

At least one Republican agrees with Landis on the need for an overhaul job on the regulatory agencies. The difference, however, was in placing the responsibility for such a shakeup. The Republican, Rep. John Bennett of Michigan, felt the job belongs to Congress, and not the President as Landis suggested, and perhaps as Kennedy feels.

The report points, as an example, to the awarding of overseas airline routes. Lobbying in its worst sense has been prevalent since 1948 around mystery-shrouded approaches to the White House. It further says that in this field there has been in the last two administrations a notable lack of presidential restraint in avoiding outside influences.

Landis pictured the agencies as ridden by outside pressures, as too cozy with those whom they are supposed to regulate.

as snarled in delays and slipping in caliber of personnel. He called for a series of reorganizations to be made by the new president under reorganization authority similar to that which he said Congress had granted to Eisenhower and Truman.

Bennett, however, said whatever reforms are needed ought to be legislated by Congress. One of the most important things is keeping these agencies independent. But it is obvious, if Landis' report is to be believed, that little independence has been enjoyed by these agencies during the past 15 years.

Bennett believes the delays in agency decisions could be removed by having individual commissioners write decisions, with proper staff help, and this in turn would do away with what he called much of the bureaucracy efforts to influence decisions.

In the White House itself, Landis would do away with presidential assistants dealing with matters of concern to the regulatory agencies. Instead he would have an office directly under the President to supervise the agencies.

Landis is trying to concentrate more power in the hands of the President he may find bitter opposition when Congress reconvenes. No group is more jealous of its prerogatives or power than the American legislative body. Whatever has to be done to clean up the red tape and influence now rampant in these agencies should be done. In the final analysis it is probably a task to be shouldered by Congress and the executive branch working together.

"A clerk in an Iowa state liquor store was fired for watering the vodka, surely a modest effort to discredit the Communist system."—Decatur (Ill.) Herald.

"Flabbiness doesn't afflict the younger generation only. Nor is it just a matter of muscle. If his elders are really bent on toughening up junior, they might begin by emptying his head of the notion that he doesn't have to worry, someone will look out for him."—Wall Street Journal.

"Unskilled workers are suffering most from the employment sag. Nearly eleven out of 100 unskilled workers are presently out of work. Next in line in joblessness are semi-skilled workers. Skilled people, professional personnel and those with craft skills, aren't having much trouble gaining and keeping jobs."—The Tulsa World.

"A shakeup of the Defense Department that would save eight billion dollars a year has been recommended. A plan like that doesn't have much chance in Washington."—Fort Myers (Fla.) News-Press.

Enact An Old Farce

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

So on December 19, the Electoral College met in each state and elected John F. Kennedy, President of the United States. Before that the aforesaid John Kennedy had appointed his Cabinet although he was not yet President. However, he waited a day or two, perhaps out of courtesy, to resign as United States Senator from Massachusetts. Well, now he is actually President even if you did not know about it before.

The farce was carried through with customary ceremony although it hardly mattered and nobody cared. The Electoral College is an obsolete institution.

I wondered what might have happened in this light election if some electors chose to switch their votes. It is doubtful whether they could do that in many states. For instance, where I live their names did not even appear on the ballot. I might have been cantankerous and demanded my right to vote for electors in accordance with the Constitution but I feared that someone would send for a psychiatrist and have a particular dislike for that breed of cats. I thought that I had better keep quiet and not ask for electors. Besides what difference do they make?

The Electoral College is an obsolete institution which has no reason for existence but which can only be abolished by a Constitutional Amendment. Its purpose was to establish a state-controlled screening body which would safeguard the Presidency from the rabble. Some, these days, say that it also had the purpose of giving minority parties a voice, but this is clearly incorrect because when the Constitution was written there were no political parties and there were really none during the first Administration. John Adams who subsequently was described as a Federalist was Washington's Vice President, and Thomas Jefferson who later was called a Democratic Republican was his Secretary of State. No political party was mentioned in the Constitution and no provision for political parties was ever made in it. The Federal Government does not control elections and such bodies as the Republican and Democratic National Committees are not recognized by any Acts of Congress as functioning bodies.

The corrupt practices Acts have nothing to do with political parties but with elected public officials who do what everybody does and get caught.

All this being so, the Electoral College has nothing to do with minority parties nor have we gone in for proportional representation, a system that came close to ruining France. As a matter of fact, the minority parties appear on ballots under various state laws, just as the majority parties do. It could be legally possible for one state to permit a minority party, let us say, the Prohibitionists or the Vegetarians, to appear on the ballot and for another state to reject such parties. This is a state matter.

Television is making many changes in our lives, some beneficial, some very harmful. The National Convention, as a televised institution, will cease to take so much time and the speakers already are no longer wasting hours on rubbish because close to a billion eyes are riveted on it. But the essential fact of the televised convention and the televised campaign is that it makes the election national in character. A candidate can no longer say one thing in Wisconsin and another in Texas because both publics hear what he says in each place. Also, candidates have to gear themselves to television voice, a television stance, a television personality.

It must be remembered that Richard Nixon started as two to one over Kennedy but after the first debate, the campaign was practically over. When I am told that I have yet to hear what tricks the Kennedy people played on Nixon, it leaves me cold because Nixon should have had a Hollywood director who guarded against tricks. Television is of the theater; it is produced by theatrical personnel. Nixon could not speak to a national audience as well as John Kennedy could.

The national election for the President, by a popular vote, is inescapable and will become sharper as this generation discovers what the Electoral College is — a party-appointed group of contributors and local politicians.

Odd Items In World Of Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Business is funny. Well, no, it isn't. But there are many strange and odd things in business. For instance:

One premium company is offering a Piper plane for trading stamps, in very large numbers, match . . . For 15 cents sent to the G.P.O., Washington 25, D.C., you can get a booklet on "Your Community Can Profit from Tourist Business". . . If you live in Umat, Alaska, don't bother.

Cambodians must be worried. Cigarette production is running twice as much as last year.

Fringe benefits per worker are now $1,100 a year, compared with $424 in 1950, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce calculates. . . Weekly costs of sending out all laundry averaged $12.44 in an Ohio State University test. . . Replacing all electric lamps at calculated intervals is cheaper than replacing lamps only when they conk, Monsanto has discovered.

MORE ZIP ADDED TO FOODS

American appetites must be jaded; the Spice Trade Association reports consumption at a rate of 173,000,000 pounds a year, the highest in history. . . New antibiotics may enable plants to resist fungus diseases. . . A survey indicates that 32 per cent of all adults go dancing regularly.

For the first time in history, Northern Ireland is shipping hams to the U.S.

Space problems have resulted in designs for more than 15,000 filters, reports Norman Burnell, New York engineer. . . The odds against someone else having the exact prescription for glasses is more than 3,000,000 to 1, reports Liberty Optical Co. . . Parade magazine finds that 62.8

per cent of all American housewives want to be called housewives. Most of the others wanted to be called "home makers" or "home managers." None, "the old lady."

HE MAY BE SOMEBODY'S NEPHEW

A new government leaflet on "Keep Overhead Costs in Line," says nothing about firing a relative. . . "Managerial Performance Standards" is a significant new book published by the American Management Association, 1515 Broadway, New York 36, at $5.25. . . One of the greatest problems for retailers is that many people buy gifts from junky stores and put them in boxes from swanky establishments.

The recipients then bring them back to the swanky places to demand exchanges, credit or even cash.

Demand for humorous calendars for 1961 is high, reports a maker.

Acid-modified wheat flour imparts strength to paper, the U.S. Department of Agriculture found. . . Magnetic devices no bigger than pinheads help automatic control of steel rolling mills, reports "Steelways". . . A new company plans to export horse-meat from Ireland, after a new law goes into effect prohibiting the export of horses more than seven years old.

COWS JUMP OVER THE OCEAN AT YOUR EXPENSE

You have no idea what your tax payments are used for. For instance, at your expense the U.S. Air Force recently flew 20 Jersey cows from Boise, Idaho, to Japan. They were the gift of U.S. Jersey breeders to the Japanese people, and will be used to form a demonstration herd at the Kori Experiment Station in Yamanaishi Prefecture.

The Gospel of the Son of God ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—John 1:20; 30, 31.

"There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all through him might believe."—John 1:6-7.

Seeing Jesus walking, John, standing with two of his disciples, said: "Behold the Lamb of God," and the disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus.—John 1:35-37.

Jesus turned and saw them following Him and asked, "What seek ye?" They answered, "Master, where dwellest Thou?" He answered: "Come and see."—John 1:38-39.

One of the two who followed John was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. He said: "We have found the Messiah." —John 1:40-42.

GOLDEN TEXT—John 20:31.

The Gospel of the Son of God

THE EARLIEST WITNESSES TO JESUS CHRIST AS THE SON OF GOD AND THE PROMISED MESSIAH

Scripture—John 1:20; 30, 31.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. "IN THE beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. All things were made by Him; and without Him was not anything made that was made. In Him was life; and the life was the light of men."—John 1:1-4.

"There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe. He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light."—John 1:6-8.

GOLDEN TEXT. "But these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through His name."—John 20:31.

but was sent to bear witness of that Light."—John 1:6-8.

The true Light of the world was Jesus Christ, "and the world knew Him not. . . . But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God."—John 1:10-12.

"And the Word was made flesh, not of the will of man, but of God."—John 1:13.

"And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld His glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father), full of grace and truth."—John 1:14.

"John bare witness of Him, and cried, saying, This was He of whom I spake. He that cometh after me is preferred before me: for He was before me. And of His fulness have all we received, and grace for grace."—John 1:15-16.

The next day as John stood with two of his disciples, he looked upon Jesus as He walked and John said, "Behold the Lamb of God."—John 1:35-36. "And the two disciples heard all Him speak, and they followed Jesus."—John 1:37.

"Then Jesus turned, and saw them following, and saith unto them, What seek ye? They said unto Him, Rabbi, (which is to say, Master) where dwellest Thou?"

"Come and see," He said. "They came and saw where He dwelt, and abode with Him that day."—John 1:38-39.

"One of the two which heard John speak . . . was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. He found his own brother and said to him, 'We have found the Messiah,' and he brought him to Jesus."—John 1:40-42.

Turmoil, Tranquility In Year Of Religion

By JULES LOH Associated Press Writer

In the realm of religion, marked down the year 1960 as a paradox of turmoil and tranquility. This was the year of "the religious issue," and beneath the serious debate were manifestations of intolerance and bigotry. It also was the year Christianity visited Rome, and overshadowing the official courtesies was an unprecedented air of dialogue and unity.

It was the year that gave birth to a new phrase: "kneel-in demonstration"; and the years that produced the first Negro cardinal. It was the year that saw anti-Jewish slogans defaced synagogues and public buildings; and the year rabbis preached sermons in 400 Methodist churches by invitation.

It also was a year of personal accomplishment. John F. Kennedy buried the notion a Roman Catholic could not be elected president of the United States. There also were other names that made news; some of them familiar, others in the headlines for the first time: Eugene Carson Blake, stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Church of the U.S.A., who proposed a merger of Methodists, Episcopalians, Presbyterians and members of the United Church of Christ.

Billy Graham, who added a sixth continent to his worldwide evangelizing crusade with a 10-nation "Safari for Souls" in Africa. Archbishop Gunnar Hultgren, primate of Sweden's Lutheran Church who abandoned tradition and ordained three women ministers.

Aloysius Cardinal Stepinac of Yugoslavia, whose death cried out against Communist injustices as eloquently as the prelate had in life. Lonnie King, 23-year-old Morehouse College student who led the first kneel-in demonstrations in six Atlanta churches.

W. F. Albright, senior editor of a group of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish scholars who began working together to translate from original manuscripts a Bible acceptable to all. Bishop Maurice Scheenayder of Lafayette, La., who announced he would deny Catholic burial rites to any of his flock guilty of criminal negligence in automobile accidents.

James W. Wine, Presbyterian lawyer employed by John F. Kennedy to answer questions of religion in the presidential campaign. But no names produced more startling religious news in 1960 than those of Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli, Pope John XXIII; and Geoffrey Francis Fisher, archbishop of Canterbury. Their Dec. 2 meeting in the Vatican was the first time the heads of the two ancient churches had set down together in 500 years, and marked the high point of a year sprinkled with other expressions of growing cordiality in the Christian community.

Earlier in the year the Pope appointed 11 cardinals to head advisory work commissions for his forthcoming ecumenical council. One of the posts went to Augustin Cardinal Bea, a German-born Jesuit whose job it will be to keep non-Catholic Christian groups informed of the council's work. The cardinal described himself as "general liaison officer."

Also in 1960 leaders of 171 Protestant, Eastern Orthodox and Anglican churches gathered in St. Andrews, Scotland, for the 11th annual meeting of the World Council of Churches. Their chief topic was church unity, and among other moves they drew up a code of behavior which would prohibit proselytizing one another's members. The code awaits final approval at the 1961 meeting in New Delhi.

What threatened to be the most divisive episode of 1960—the religious issue in the presidential campaign—may result in more understanding between Catholics and Protestants. A post-election survey of church leaders showed most felt the campaign inspired discussions provided a foothold for further conservation which inevitably will lead to better understanding between the two groups.

Recruiter Sets New Schedule

Due to the increasing demand for information regarding the U.S. Marine Corps, its specialized training, formal education, and the varied enlistment plans, a new schedule of visits here has been established by the local Marine recruiter, Sgt. Leo I. Smith.

Smith, with his central office in Wilson, normally visits Greenville only when a prospective Marine seeks his assistance. "For the past six months interest of the Marine Corps has mounted in this area due to the current 120-day Delay Enlistment Plan," he says. One of the highest praised Marine recruiters in the Carolinas, Smith has continually been rewarded for his excellence in keeping the families and friends of a new Marine well informed of the individual's benefits as a Marine.

"I believe a parent or guardian must be just as informed on the Marine Corps, its functions, missions, pay and allowances, as the young man applying for enlistment," Sgt. Smith added that the 120-day Plan enables a man to join now, but leave anytime within four months. In the future, all interested young men, or their parents, may contact the sergeant at the County Court House every Monday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Blue Devils Crack Whip On Cowboys, 86-59

By JOHNNY HUDSON Reflector Sports Editor RALEIGH—Duke cracked the victory whip from the start, mauled underdog Wyoming 86-59 but Head Coach Vic Bubas still wasn't pleased with the results of the final game in the Dixie Classic's opening round.

"We don't think we met real strong opposition and know we'll have to improve to win against Marquette," stated Bubas after a lengthy talk with his squad. "Our boys have talked it over and we will play a better game tomorrow (Friday). After watching the second game today (State vs Villanova) I was real afraid of what might happen in the second half of our game. It's hard to get a team right for a game like this."

"Sometimes a close game spurs a team on but on the other hand when you break a game open like we did tonight, the regulars get more rest. It's hard to say."

The Duke mentor didn't dwell long on the Wyoming game but was looking ahead toward Marquette. "They are a fine club and the best drilled I saw tonight. They knew what they were doing, were swift and had some excellent shooters."

--State Loses To Villanova, 63-72

RALEIGH—Nobody was as unhappy over North Carolina State's 63-72 defeat by Villanova as the veteran Wolfpack coach and inventor of all this running around, Everett Case.

change of defenses by Villanova in the second half (from zone to a man-for-man) as being one of the key factors in the change of events. "We fumbled, stumbled, and just fell apart in that last half. We missed too many easy shots. We don't have anyone to blame but ourselves."

Coach Al Severance of Villanova also thought the change in defense tactics proved of some value in the outcome. "By switching, we got White under the boards and he can rebound as good as any 6-7 man."

Case, a mass of disappointment, failed to make any prediction on the final outcome of the tournament. As for Villanova, Case commented, "They may be self-satisfied with this win but they might want the game with Carolina . . . you can't ever tell."

UNC DEFEATS MARYLAND IN DIXIE CLASSIC . . . Tar Teels scored 81-57 victory in second afternoon game yesterday.

--Marquette Upsets Deacons, 91-83

RALEIGH—Ron Glaser, a 6-3 sophomore guard who had averaged only 13 points per game this season, didn't scare over talk of the Dixie Classic but instead ripped Wake Forest's loosely played defense for 29 points, leading a Marquette upset and the second of the Dixie Classic.

good because we recently gave up football and there was some concern we might be giving up athletics. Maybe this will revive some interest."

Commenting on the Warriors' fast style of attack, Hickey said, "We use the fast break a lot but slowed it down because we knew Wake had a big boy (Len Chappell) and we didn't want to lose the rebounds to him. We have real good shooters. Against Illinois, we hit 72 per cent in one half."

"We could have scored if we had moved it in the middle but we didn't until late in the game. Hickey is a fine coach and has a good ball. It looks like when somebody plays Wake Forest their shooting average always rises," summed up the Deac coach.

Coach Eddie Hickey, a former service buddy of N.C. State's Everett Case, carried a smile as his warriors launched a barrage of field goals in the second half, pulling away from the favored Deacs. And he wore the same smile into the dressing room after his quint smothered a late Deac rally and won 91-83.

"We were delighted to win here because Case (Everett) has expressed a lot of confidence in us by his invitation. This is a terrific tournament and is number one in the country," stated Hickey, an advocate of the run and shoot style of ball.

Turning to the game, McKinney blamed . . . standing around in the first half. "We shot the boards but not slightly. 42-40, Marquette was hot as a firecracker from the outside and padded their hot shooting per cent with some easy buckets late in the game. They finished with 45.9 mark compared to Wake Forest's 39.7."

McGuire was also high on the little New Yorker. "We knew he was a good quarterback but told him we needed his scoring. He looked at the basket today. Earl-er, he has been looking in for Moe or Larese. He was a good scorer in high school, averaging over 30 points."

--And UNC Tops Maryland, 81-57

RALEIGH—"My philosophy of basketball is to do something to gamble," Carolina coach Frank McGuire told a press gathering here Thursday afternoon after his hot and cold Tar Heels warmed up in the second half to romp to an 81-57 victory over Maryland in first game of the 1960 Dixie Classic.

Heel spokesman, was about as surprised as the fans when his club broke a close game wide open early in the game and did the same thing in the second half after Maryland had made it close.

McGuire was also high on the little New Yorker. "We knew he was a good quarterback but told him we needed his scoring. He looked at the basket today. Earl-er, he has been looking in for Moe or Larese. He was a good scorer in high school, averaging over 30 points."

The Carolina coach didn't have any preference as to whom his club faced in the second round. "We will just take them one at a time." He was pleased with playing in the afternoon bracket, noting it would give his club a chance to get plenty of rest.

"We wanted to confuse them and actually, we used four different defenses. We opened with a man-for-man, shifted to a zone, and went back to the man-for-man when they adjusted their offense." Foul trouble sent the Tar Heels back into a zone late in the game, according to McGuire.

Milikan figured this to be the turning point of the game. "Carolina was big and good. They beat us on the boards."

According to McGuire, the relatively easy win shouldn't hurt his club today. Instead, should give the Tar Heels more confidence.

McGuire was also high on the little New Yorker. "We knew he was a good quarterback but told him we needed his scoring. He looked at the basket today. Earl-er, he has been looking in for Moe or Larese. He was a good scorer in high school, averaging over 30 points."

Deep Probe Into The Earth Slated To Begin In March

By ALTON BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Writer NEW YORK (AP)—Tests will begin in March of the audacious plan to drill a hole deep into the earth from a ship at sea. This plan is the Mohole—the first hole ever to penetrate all through the earth's crust to learn what mysteries lie in and below it. It is "one of the most important scientific undertakings of modern times," Dr. Detlev Broni, president of the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council, declared today.

Mohole gets its name from the Mohorovicic discontinuity — Moho for short. The Moho is a boundary between the earth's thin crust and the underlying rock, the mantle, of unknown composition which extends 3,000 miles deep to the earth's core. The core is presumably composed of nickel and iron. The Mohole-Moho hole—can be feasibly drilled only at sea. For the earth's crust under the oceans is as little as 2 1/2 to 3 miles thick, as against 15 to 20 miles on land masses. And the deepest oil well ever dug on land is only 4.7 miles. The Mohole will try to bring up samples of the mantle, and to study the curious Moho boundary layer. The drilling also could produce a rich history of life, evolution and climate changes on earth. This can be done by bringing up and analyzing the sediments building up to 500 to 1,000 feet thickness over millions of years.

Many difficulties are anticipated, but if the plan succeeds, "we shall acquire fundamental information regarding the structure, composition and history of the earth on which we live," Dr. Bronk said. Project Mohole is guided by the AMSOC committee of the American Miscellaneous Society — an idea formed by a group of scientists to propose and carry out projects not fitting in with usual specialties or disciplines of science. One idea was the Mohole—but on analysis it appeared so worthwhile it has been seriously encouraged and now is getting government support. The Mohole itself will cost millions of dollars. One objective in March is to test a system for controlling the location of the un-anchored drilling ship. It will use four diesel steering motors mounted at corners of the ship to keep it at a precise location guided by special buoys. Other problems and objectives of the Mohole project were described today at sessions of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The AMSOC committee thinks most of the problems in the tests can be conquered, said Gordon G. Lill of the Office of Naval Research, Washington. He is chairman of AMSOC, and Willard Bascom of the National Research Council is directing the project. Scientists are not worried, incidentally, that there's a huge hole somewhere in the earth—so that suddenly all the ocean waters would go "slurp" down the hole.

Suspect Identity Of Old Wreck

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—An ancient wreck found off Australia may be that of the British ship Pandora which sank in 1791 with some of the Bounty mutineers. Author-historian Colin Roderick said today he is inclined to the Pandora theory by the vessel's size and an inscription on the ship's bell. The inscription reads "The gift of Lady Herbert, daughter of Sir John Knatchbull of Mearchim, Hatch, in Kent, in the Kingdom of England, November 30, 1711." The wreck was found 200 miles north of Cairns last month. The Pandora wrecked Aug. 28, 1791, had been sent out to capture mutineers who defied Capt. Bligh of the Bounty in 1789. The Pandora was returning to England with 14 Bounty mutineers when it sank 12 hours after being holed on a reef. Records indicate that the Pandora's master, Capt. Edward Edwards, turned the Pandora into a hell ship for the prisoners. Thirty-four persons, including four mutineers, died in the wreck. Ship's boats took 99 survivors to Timor.

Economic Front Action Pledged

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—One of President-elect John F. Kennedy's economic advisers says the new administration will "take vigorous action" to improve the nation's economy. Dr. J. Kenneth Galbraith, professor of economics at Harvard University, spoke at a meeting of the American Farm Economic Association Thursday night. He recommended this program for improving the economy: Reduce the mortgage rate on housing; ease interest rates; strengthen unemployment compensation and pass area redevelopment legislation; expand the road-building program, and pass a school construction bill.

Gene Autry Adds A New 'Shortstop' To His Office

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Some- thing new has been added to Gene Autry's spacious office in Toluca Lake. On all four sides are paintings and statues of horses, including Gene's longtime steed, Champion. The newcomer is a dummy of an aged Indian wearing base ball cap and fielding glove and the sign "Joe All-Star, pride of the Golden West Angels." Explained Gene: "That's our new shortstop."

Gene wears his millions well. He may ride a bit heavier in the saddle, but his Stetson still fits and he still talks earnestly in his flat Oklahoma tones. He conceded that the Angels will occupy a great deal of his time. Two Suffocate In Falling Sand ORANGE CITY, Fla. (AP)—A young brother and sister suffocated under the crumbling bank of a sandy pit in which they were playing. Police and volunteers dug with their hands to reach Joseph Jernery, 11, and his sister, Wendy Lou, 6, after another child ran 200 feet to the victims' home for help Thursday. Among those who tried to dig the two children out in time was their mother, Mrs. Charles Jernery, who has six other children. YOUNG EYE IS DISCERNING DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A five-year-old Des Moines girl commented the other night at the normal dinner hour at her home: "If it weren't for the fireplace and the martinis and the cigarettes and the books, we'd eat a lot sooner around here."

Mailed Cards, Forgot To Look

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burroughs of Sarasota ordered Christmas cards with their names—and mailed them out without unfolding them for a look. When only a few cards remained to be sent, Mr. Burroughs opened one. It was signed "Browning Repair and Welding, Wheatland, Wyoming."

Move To Evict Jail Inhabitant

WOODLAND, Calif. (AP)—A hearing will be held Jan. 3 on a motion to evict Fred Block from the Yolo County jail, where he has languished the past nine years rather than pay child support to his ex-wife. Block, 67, has been in custody on an indefinite sentence for contempt of court since July 28, 1952. He has declared he never will pay, and moreover he has refused to leave the jail. The child in the case, Yvonne, since has married. County officials figure it has cost $11,340 to maintain Block in jail the past nine years. Deputy Dist. Atty. Thomas A. Purcell told the court Thursday that Block is "a burden on the taxpayers of the county of Yolo" and that no practical purpose is served by keeping him in jail.

Holiday Air For Train Tank Car

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A tank car parked in the Florida East Coast Railroad yards had a certain air of holiday cheer about it which prevailed through the week. A constant stream of visitors to the car finally brought railroad detectives to the scene. They found a leak had drained off a considerable quantity of 2,579 gallons of wine in a compartment of the tank car.

THERE'S NO AGE LIMIT DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—An 84-year-old Des Moines man who married his 83-year-old wife 63 years ago confided to a friend: "I still like to make her a little jealous once in a while."

RC 6-BOTTLE CARTON the fresher refresher

Meet Mercury Meteor... the new and better low-price car. 1961 MERCURY METEOR 800 HIGHLIGHTS NEW NAME! 2 ALL-NEW SERIES! NEW SUPER-ECONOMY "6" AND "8" ENGINE! FAR LOWER PRICES! • This year, with the Meteor 600 and 800 series, Mercury has 2 full series of low-price cars. • Prices start hundreds of dollars below last year. • Optional equipment and transportation cost far less too. FULL SIZE! • There's more interior comfort than in last year's Mercury. Outside dimensions are trimmer for easier parking and garaging. FAR MORE VALUE THAN OTHER LOW-PRICE CARS. • Mercurys are heavier (starting at 3708 lbs., curb weight) have a longer wheelbase (120 inches) • First with Cushion-Link suspension (absorbs longer bumps you still feel in other cars). • More self-servicing features than any other low-price car... everything from a self-lubricating chassis to self-cleaning spark plugs. Why not get more, save more? Just see your Mercury dealer. LINCOLN-MERCURY DIVISION Ford Motor Company. *Cushion-Link suspension is exclusive on all Meteor 800's, Monterey, and Mercury station wagons.

1961 MERCURY PRICE COMPARISON CHART
1. MERCURY METEOR 600 Priced right in the heart of the low-price field.	2. MERCURY METEOR 800 Priced to compete with the top series low-price cars.	3. MERCURY MONTEREY Finest, most luxurious of all 1961 Mercurys.

Relic Of The Past, Large Old 'Rosin Ball' Found Buried Here

A "relic" of past years was discovered about five feet underground yesterday by a workman helping to lay a sewage line to the new sewage disposal plant being constructed here. The "thing" is a rosin ball. David House, 57-year-old Negro of 710 Fleming St., who found the ball of rosin said it is the largest he has seen since he was a little boy. The ball, which weighed about eight pounds, was found buried at the end of Evans St., near the site of the old and almost forgotten boat dock which stood there long years ago.

DAVID HOUSE . . . and his "rosin ball".

House said his parents used to make many uses of the rosin, a product which was sold and exported from this area years ago. House remembers the substance, a product of the pine tree, was used in making soap, as a home remedy, and "at hog killing time" among others.

He explained that his parents made soap by "adding the ingredients—lye, water, grease—and rosin to harden the soap. As a medicine for bad colds the rosin was added to "life everlasting tea"—what we now call rabbit tobacco. "It is a real good home remedy," House said again, and is used for a "whole lot of things."

House said he remembered when "rosin balls" were transported on the steamer "Old Myres," a rear wheeler which used to navigate the Tar River years ago. He said his father used to work in the manufacturing of the rosin.

He explained that rosin was "manufactured" by chipping a long-leaf pine tree and catching the sap in a bucket. . . then boxing it up and shipping it.

He said he was going to take the rosin ball home to his wife, "so she can make some soap" and use it in tea. "You just can't beat those old home remedies," he said.

Jaycees Endorse Board Urban Renewal Stand

Jaycees last night overwhelmingly endorsed its board of directors action in backing the city's proposed Urban Renewal project. The club's board had taken action earlier committing the Jaycees to support the Urban Renewal project and anything necessary to implement it.

Club President George Coffman explained at last night's meeting that it was called to bring club members up to date on the board's action concerning Urban Renewal.

Coffman said the project falls under community development which is the number one project for Jaycees nationally this year.

In addition he said, "The only reason for ever having a (Jaycee) meeting is community development. It is the only reason for being here."

For this reason, he said, "The board felt this was a project well worth our backing."

Urban Renewal Director William Cochran exhibited a plan for development of the Shore Drive area. It is located along the river from the ACL railroad to the ravine east of Deck St.

Plans are to remove the housing in the area and redevelop it along commercial lines.

Cochran explained that a result of surveys of private building interests, "We feel there is a need for low rent public housing for the people in this area."

Julian Vainwright, chairman of the Jaycees Urban Renewal Committee, told the club that the City Council is holding a Public Hearing on the establishment of a local Public Housing Authority Thursday night in the City Hall courtroom at 8 o'clock.

Sad And Angry Over Fire's Toll

NOYAN, Que. (AP)—This tiny Quebec village was both sad and angry today about the fire that killed Mrs. Abel Vosburgh and 11 of her 15 children.

A brother of the dead woman said the family lived in the wood shack built by the father "because no one would rent him a house with all those children."

"Everyone has lost someone," said the Rev. William Sellwood as he went around this village of 500 near the Vermont border spreading the news of Thursday's early morning tragedy.

"In a closely knit community like this, there are very few folk who are not related," he explained.

Pushing out of the ashes of the one-story shack were the frames of the four beds in which the victims were trapped. Six bodies were found in one bed.

Vosburgh was the only survivor of the fire that killed his 43-year-old wife and 11 children 6 months to 19 years old. Two of their other children are married and the other two were away.

C&D Board Called To Honor Chief On His Departure

RALEIGH (AP)—Conservation and Development Board members have been asked to dinner at the Executive Mansion on Jan. 8 to honor William P. Saunders on his departure as C&D Department director.

Gov. elect Terry Sanford issued the invitation Thursday, after Saunders announced he is resigning, effective Jan. 9.

"Bill Saunders has done a tremendous job and is entitled to grateful thanks of every North Carolinian," said Sanford. "Although he has served more than five years, he has graciously consented to remain to enable us to effect a proper transition."

Saunders, 63, said he agreed to Saunders' request to remain on the job through the Jan. 9 winter meeting of the C&D Board.

Saunders was in retirement after a career in the textile industry when Gov. Hodges picked him for C&D director in December, 1955. The job pays $14,500 a year.

In the post, Saunders has worked closely with Hodges in furthering industrial development of the state.

Saunders said he plans to return to his home at Southern Pines.

Spokesmen Deny Red Taint

CHICAGO (AP)—A youth conference in Chicago this weekend, labeled Communist by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, is not Communist-led or inspired, say spokesmen for the meeting.

Three of the young persons who are organizing the meeting said Thursday it will establish a "left-progressive and socialist" youth organization.

Hoover, in Washington earlier this month said "the Communists are completing final arrangements for a conference to be held in Chicago," to formulate plans for a new national youth organization.

Miss Alva Buxenbaum, 23, of Philadelphia, a member of the conference initiating committee, said: "J. Edgar Hoover is a paranoid. He sees enemies where there are no enemies."

A statement by Miss Buxenbaum and two members of her committee, Daniel Rubin, 29, and Milton Anthropoulos, 23, both of New York, said: "We refuse to allow Mr. Hoover and people with such paranoia to inject communism as an issue into our conference."

Miss Buxenbaum, who described herself as non-Communist, said she expected about 100 persons at the convention, which will be closed to the press. Rubin and Anthropoulos declined to say if they are Communists.
