

Precautionary Actions In Far East Ordered By U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today approved Defense Department plans to take normal precautionary actions in the Pacific in view of the crisis in Laos.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said also the department's action was taken "with the knowledge of the President and in the light of SEATO-Southeast Asia Treaty Organization-obligations."

Communist forces are battling the pro-Western government. Hagerty told newsmen he could tell them nothing about today's White House conference except that it dealt with the Laotian situation.

Hagerty's statement to newsmen came shortly after the Defense Department issued a statement saying it is taking "normal precautionary actions" in the Pacific.

However, Pentagon spokesmen in answering questions, declined to comment on specific units and equipment involved.

In view of the present situation in Laos, we are taking normal precautionary actions to increase the readiness of our forces in the Pacific, including measures to increase the airlift capability of the Pacific command," the department said.

This was in line with the U.S. cautious attitude toward possible Allied military intervention against Communist forces. U.S. officials hoped the spreading civil war crisis could be checked by diplomatic action.

Although the Pentagon declined to discuss details, it was learned Sunday night that an aircraft carrier is en route to the general area in the South China Sea which borders Viet Nam and the inland country of Laos.

1961 Arrived With A Background Of Gaiety

DANCED THE NEW YEAR IN—An estimated 380 people were on hand Saturday night for the Greenville Moose Lodge New Year's Eve party, and greeted 1961 with the customary "count-down". At 1:00 a.m. the lodge served breakfast for the party-goers.

An Inch Of Rain Here Was Part Of New Year's Salute

New Year's Eve—a round of gaiety, parties, Auld Lang Syne—and rain.

When the new year 1961 came rolling in at one second past midnight, it was raining cats and dogs in Greenville. While people were gathering, the weatherman collected one inch of rain in Greenville over the weekend.

Pitt County's first new year baby, little Elizabeth Ann Kerr, waited two hours and 52 minutes past midnight before coming into the world. She was born to Mr. and Mrs. Keith Kerr of Rt. 1, Greenville, at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The first fire alarm turned in after midnight was a false one. No explanation necessary.

Cuban Invasion Fever Maintained By Castro

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro roused Cubans to a giant rally today celebrating the second anniversary of the triumph of his revolution against the background of charges that an American invasion is imminent.

The biggest armed forces display in the nation's history was planned for the celebration in the civic plaza amid speculation Castro might unveil Communist-made jet fighters, bombers and heavy tanks.

The prime minister is scheduled to make the main address at the rally.

The invasion fever started last week with Cuban reports that the U.S. Marines plan a landing before Jan. 18. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty branded the reports a lie.

CRIME RATE UP

TOKYO (AP)—Japan had a record of more than 200,000 juvenile crimes during 1960, the police agency reports. This compares to 60,000 a year before World War II.

Red Forces In Laos Score Advance, Take Key Plain

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The pro-American government of Premier Bouin Oum said Communist forces made advances over the weekend and seized a strategic plain, creating a threat to the royal seat of Luang Prabang and its administrative capital.

In a three-pronged attack, the Reds captured the plain, its airfield and the northern provincial capital of Phong Saly, the Bouin government announced. Army defenders were driven back to Xiengkhouang, about 100 miles northeast of Vientiane and about the same distance southeast of Luang Prabang.

Information Minister Bouavann Norasim said the rebel attack is being supported by Red China and North Viet Nam. But he was unable to offer proof of this and Western observers maintained reservations about his claims Laos had been invaded by seven well-equipped Red Vietnamese battalions.

Briefly: News On Laos Crisis

WASHINGTON—Preparations appear under way for possible U.S. military action in Laos. An aircraft carrier and two troop transports with Marines aboard reported—ready—near Southeast Asia trouble spot. United States calls for meeting of eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization Council.

Kennedy Priority Is Given Depressed Area Problems

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy has stamped a top priority label on a program recommending an arsenal of weapons for attacking the problem of chronic unemployment in depression areas.

The program, outlined by a study committee headed by Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., calls for crash basis action to provide swift relief for the needy, and for long-term measures aimed at wiping out the problem.

member Douglas committee called for the fastest possible action to provide food, funds, public work and other relief for the stricken areas.

Greenville's Distinguished Service Award winner for 1960 will be announced tomorrow night at the Jaycees' annual DSA and Bosses Night Banquet.

Early Line-Up For Tax-Listing Time

Some of Pitt County's property owners who began the annual task of listing their property for tax purposes. Early listers began filing through the county courthouse when the list takers opened for business this morning. Tax Collector and Supervisor Robert S. Moye (far right) says some 22,000 Pitt Countians will be required to list their property during January.

Belgian Strikers Urged To Mass For Big Display

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—The head of one of Belgium's biggest unions today urged strikers to pour into the streets Tuesday for a massive demonstration of strength against the government.

Arthur Waelkeners, secretary-general of the Union of Public Service Workers, told a meeting of 1,300 at Socialist party headquarters: "We want 10 times as many as are here today. We'll show the country that we are determined to defeat the single law."

The single law has been proposed by Premier Gaslonde Eykens' coalition of Social Christians and Liberals as an austerity tax and social security reform measure to balance the budget, speed up production and offset losses from the independence of the Congo. The Socialists claim the tax burden will fall unfairly on the working man.

Miss Jones Weds Mr. Tyson

The marriage of Miss Helen Iona Jones and Eugene Tyson was solemnized on Sunday afternoon at four o'clock at the Arlington Street Baptist Church. Rev. Daniel E. Huneycutt officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Helen Iona Jones of Greenville. The bridegroom's aunt and uncle are Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Barnes of New Bern.

The altar was centered with an open Bible with a basket of white mums and gladioli in the background. Emerald palms and bridal greenery flanked by artistic groupings of seven branched candelabras holding cathedral candles were used in altar decorations. Lighted tapers and glittered magnolia leaves were used in the church windows.

The couple knelt on a white wrought iron prie-dieu for the wedding prayer. Family pews were marked with satin bows and greenery.

Miss Mary Alice Gibbs, pianist, and Miss Nancy Dennis, soloist, presented the wedding music. Miss Dennis sang "Because," "Entreat Me Not" and "A Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal wedding gown of Chantilly lace. The scalloped neckline was accented by seeded pearls and sequins. Her veil was attached to a scalloped band which was adorned with seeded pearls and sequins. The bride carried a white prayer book topped with a white hybrid orchid and French carnations.

Miss Naomi Gibbs of Raleigh, roommate of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a red velvet sash fashioned with a red velvet rosette attached to the center back. Her headpiece was circular veil attached to a red velvet bandeau.

Bridesmaid was Miss Linda Luther, cousin of the bride, from Raleigh. She wore a dress identical to the maid of honor's. Both attendants carried white muffs topped with sprigs of holly and berries.

Honorary bridesmaids were Misses Joyce Jenkins, JoAnne Parks, Betty Ann Hardy and Margaret Huneycutt. They wore cocktail dresses of pastel shades and carried long stemmed white carnations.

Flower girl was Miss Anna White, who wore a dark green dress and carried a basket of rose petals.

The bridegroom's best man was Rod Paige of Ayden. Ushers were Jay Lloyd of Greenville and Joe Jenkins, cousin of the bride of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Jones chose a French blue wool suit with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Barnes, wore a green tweed wool suit with black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The bride is a graduate of Junius H. Rose High School and is now attending East Carolina College. The bridegroom attended Middlesex High School and is a graduate of East Carolina. He is presently in the Air Force, stationed at Chant Air Force Base, Rantoul, Ill.

For a wedding trip the bride chose a Spruce green wool suit, beige and brown accessories. She wore a white orchid corsage.

The couple greeted guests in the vestibule of the church.

Wedding Breakfast

Miss Jones was honored recently at a wedding breakfast at the Silo Restaurant given by members of her Sunday School Class of Arlington Street Baptist Church.

Attending were the young people and college students of the church. Special guests were Reverend and Mrs. Dan Huneycutt and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dorey.

The honoree was presented a corsage and a gift of lingerie.

Shower

Mrs. Helen White entertained the bride-elect at a lingerie shower at her home on Ninth Street recently.

Using the Christmas theme, the house was decorated in shades of green and gold.

The guests were received at the door by the hostess and directed to the living room where the honoree opened her gifts.

Miss Anna White, daughter of the hostess, led the guests into the dining area where Mrs. White, assisted by Miss Naomi Gibbs, served lime punch, salted nuts and bridal cakes.

Goodbyes were said at the door by the honoree and hostess.

Mrs. Eugene Tyson

Couple Speak Vows In Double-Ring Ceremony

A double-ring ceremony in the Salvation Army on December 23 united in marriage Miss Nina Louise Harper and Mr. John Hardy Stokes Sr. Capt. Earl Reagan, officer in charge, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Harper of Greenville and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Evelyn Elks of Greenville and Mr. John Hardy Stokes of Norfolk.

Two seven-branched candelabras holding tall cathedral candles were placed on each side of the altar where the vows were taken. Rings were marked with white satin bows.

Music was presented by Tommy Manning, organist and soloist, of Ayden; and Mrs. Roland Lois Faulkner, accompanist, of Greenville.

The bride wore a street length dress of satin overlaid with lace and rounded neck. Three rows of satin circled the skirt and bodice with satin bows on each row. The veil made of pique de soie was attached to a sequined cap. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with a pure white orchid tied with bridal satin.

Miss Carol Walston of Farmville was Maid of Honor. She wore a street length dress of light blue organza with matching mitts and veil. The Maid of Honor carried a nosegay of white chrysanthemums tied with white satin.

Mr. Otha Dave Joyner, of Wilson, served as best man. The ushers were Mr. Ernest Floyd Langley and Mr. Jack Langley, both of Winterville.

Mrs. Harper wore for her daughters wedding a light blue lace dress and matching jacket with matching accessories. A corsage of red roses complimented her dress. Mrs. Elks, mother of the groom, wore a navy blue suit with matching accessories. The orchid lifted from her bouquet.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, "The Wedding Prayer" was sung as the benediction.

Reception

Immediately following the wedding, Capt. and Mrs. Earl Reagan entertained at a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Stokes in the back room of the church.

erved four years in the U. S. Navy and is now employed by the E. F. Craven Co.

For traveling the bride wore a royal blue suit with matching accessories; and the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Junius H. Rose High School and is now attending East Carolina College. The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina and is presently in the Air Force, stationed at Chant Air Force Base, Rantoul, Ill.

Bedroom Beauty

Having guests over the weekend? Will you close the door to the bedroom? Actually, in the eyes of many homemakers, this area of the house is just as important, beauty-wise, as the living room or den. The use of soft colors, comfortable furnishings, including radio, television, books, paintings and the like make it a place for relaxation day or night. Good mattresses and springs, even though they are covered, are also particularly essential to complete the picture of modern comfort. The "hidden poverty" of broken down bedding, is out of place in redecorating schemes. If you're planning to re-do your bedroom, check the bedding for signs of wear.

Congressional Skirmishing Starts In Caucus Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—The skirmishing starts today in the Senate and the House on moves to curb the power of conservatives in the 87th Congress that will convene Tuesday.

In the Senate, a caucus of liberal Democrats was called to map strategy for a fight directed primarily at making it easier to shut off filibusters against civil rights and other controversial bills.

In the House, prior to a caucus of all Democratic members, a group of liberals was angling for the support of Speaker Sam Rayburn for action to weaken the Rules Committee's grip on legislation.

Sponsors of the moves in both branches of Congress contended they were necessary to clear the way for the kind of legislative program urged by President-elect John F. Kennedy in his "new frontiers" campaign.

Kennedy recently said he favored congressional procedures that would permit the majority to work its will—a position he supported as a member of the Senate.

However, he also indicated he believed it was a matter to be worked out by Congress without executive interference. In the absence of his direct intervention, any far-reaching changes in Senate or House rules appeared unlikely.

About 40 of the 65 Democratic senators were invited to develop a liberal caucus in notices sent out by Sens. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., and Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.

One of their chief goals is a change in Senate rules so that filibusters can be halted by the votes of 51 senators, or a majority of the 100 members. It now takes the votes of two-thirds of the senators present and voting.

They also would like to bring about changes that would give them a stronger voice in policy-making machinery and whittle away some of the power of legislative committee chairmen, many of whom are conservative Southerners.

The liberal Democratic group in the House has an identical objective in its maneuvering against the powerful Rules Committee, which in the past has bottled up some measures of the kind advocated by Kennedy. It is dominated by Republicans and Southern Democrats.

Democratic leaders have made plain their desire to avoid as far as possible any party-splitting — fights even before Kennedy submits his legislative program after his inauguration Jan. 20.

In the House it appeared possible that a ruckus might be averted, but a scrap over the Senate's filibuster rule at the outset of the new Congress was accepted as inevitable.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, slated to become Democratic leader in the new Senate, is expected to let the battle run its course for a while but, if necessary, to step in with a tabling motion aimed at cutting it off.

While Mansfield has advocated modification of the present rule, he has taken the position that the proper time to do it is later in the session after committee consideration.

Mansfield held out the hope that in any event the actual start of the Senate battle would be deferred until Wednesday under an agreement not to interfere with the customary amenities on the opening day following the swearing in of new senators.

Budget Sum For Huge Jet Plane

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government plans to develop a gigantic jet plane that could carry tons of cargo long distances either for military or civilian use.

As envisioned, the plane would have the capacity to fly 10 tons of cargo across the Pacific or 25 tons across the Atlantic. It could hold civilian goods, military equipment or parachutists.

The Air Force has budgeted $30 million for the project, which comes under the government's general program to modernize the Military Air Transport Service.

Second Son For Dennis Crosbys

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Dennis Crosby and his showgirl wife, Pat Sheehan, are parents of a second son.

James Anthony Crosby became the newest grandson of crooner Bing Crosby Friday night at a hospital here. Dennis and Miss Sheehan have a son, almost 2. He has adopted her son by a previous marriage.

Crosby, 26, was named father of the 3-year-old daughter of Marilyn Miller Scott last week in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Air-Conditioning At Alamo Shrine

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Plans are under way to install 20 tons of air conditioning machinery in the Alamo, Texas' shrine of liberty where 187 men died in a battle with the Mexican army more than 100 years ago.

Harvey Partridge Smith Sr., architect who has directed restoration of Spanish missions in this area, said two air-conditioning manufacturers volunteered to do the job in the Alamo.

The historic atmosphere won't be marred, Smith said the air-conditioning machinery and ducts would be well camouflaged.

Wants President To Counsel GOP

BALTIMORE (AP)—The man who placed Dwight D. Eisenhower's name in nomination in 1952 has urged the President to continue giving the Republican party "good counsel and active guidance" when he leaves office Jan. 20.

Theodore R. McKeldin, former Republican governor of Maryland, expressed his views Sunday in a letter he wrote to President Eisenhower to thank him for a Christmas gift, a copy of an Eisenhower painting.

"You, Mr. President, said McKeldin, "have earned the right to speak out whenever the occasion warrants it—not merely by the long years of your service, but by the grand and magnificent accomplishments of your career. The times cannot afford the neglect of that right."

No Reason For Complacency In N.C.

North Carolinians, long proud of their public schools, received a shock with the announcement that the state ranks eleventh among 13 Southern states in the percentage of its young people enrolled in public schools accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Whereas Georgia led the list with 70.51 per cent of its high school students enrolled in schools accredited by the association, the percentage figure for North Carolina was only 34.41 per cent. North Carolina ranked ahead of Alabama and South Carolina by slightly more than a percentage point.

These figures cannot be taken as conclusive evidence that Tar Heel high schools are inferior to those of other Southern states, or that North Carolina's youngsters do not receive as good public school training as students in other states. A total evaluation of the relative position of the high schools of the state would have to take other factors into consideration.

Even so, the fact that North Carolina's percentage of high school students attending schools accredited by the Association should be a source of concern for the people of this state.

If nothing else, the figures point up the fact that North Carolina has little reason to sit back and declare its public schools do not need sweeping improvements. They suggest that a considerable attention must be given to improving the educational program of the state through better physical facilities, reduced teacher loads, broader curriculums in many of our high schools and in other phases as well.

Governor-elect Terry Sanford obviously plans to propose many of these things as he outlines in detail his program for lifting public education in North Carolina to a higher plateau. It should also be obvious to the people of this state that significant improvements in our public schools will require considerably more money than is now being spent on public education in North Carolina.

While the figures on accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools cannot in all fairness be construed to mean that North Carolina's public high schools rank eleventh among the 13 Southern States so far as total quality of education is concerned, neither can they be entirely ignored as the state contemplates the needs of its public schools.

They Yield To Popular Demand

By LYNN NISBET

ROAD NAMES — The State Highway Commission has yielded to popular demand and modified its previously announced policy with respect to all local name signs on secondary roads and substituting numbers. It was stated when the policy was inaugurated that the practice had been followed for years in other states, and would be of great advantage to highway engineers.

Almost immediately protests were heard against abandoning name signs, although there was no objection to use of numbers for the engineers. The State Board of Agriculture adopted a resolution of protest; numerous newspaper editors, and most local historical groups, and their objections.

In response to inquiries about how the plan would be effectuated highway officials said none of the existing name signs would be removed, but they would not be maintained or replaced at State expense when they rotted or otherwise were taken down. Local groups would be permitted to place the signs at their own expense after the county commissioners had formally designated the road name, and size and style of the sign approved by the highway commission.

The modified plan announced at the recent highway commission meeting is that where secondary roads are the only links to well-known communities, the names will be continued with arrows noting the direction. Different sized metal plates will indicate relative importance of the road. These plates will be rectangular, differentiating between the diamond shape for NC primary roads and the shield for US routes. This will not satisfy all of the protesters, but will go a long way toward easing the resentment.

POLICY — This was not so much reversal of policy as it was adoption of policy. The same was true of the action taken by the commission in authorizing inauguration of toll ferry service between Ocracoke and the mainland across Pamlico Sound.

Before voting on that item, the commission adopted a statewide policy for establishing ferry services. Where ferry service affords the only access to isolated areas, the State will provide "reasonable and free" ferry service within the framework of fund availability and consideration of all other highway needs. Where there is already access by road, bridge or ferry, but additional service is considered in the public interest, the commission may provide such service on a toll basis, the fees to be scheduled to sustain the service but without profit. Prior to adoption of that formula there has been no common denominator for justifying ferry service.

A similar formula for construction of toll bridges might save the highway folks a lot of headaches.

Allocation of $375,000 by Governor Hodges from "surplus" highway funds specifically for the Ocracoke ferry took care of the availability of money for that project. Application of other phases of the policy required that the ferry charge tolls. That development put the Ocracoke project in entirely different light from the propositions turned down by the highway commission at its regular December meeting in Fayetteville. There was general policy and specific fund allocation, both of which were lacking before. Director Babcock and Chief Engineer Lee were instructed to proceed immediately with plans for the ferry service to be submitted to the commission for approval.

WIDE OPEN — The discussion of the Ocracoke ferry project has involved personalities, and suggestion that the State of North Carolina was in some degree obligated to buy the ferry boat "Sea Level", bought last year by the Taylor brothers and operated by them for a time. During its operation it was not very successful, and since hurricane Donna it has not run at all. The boat is too big and more expensively equipped than necessary for its primary purpose.

Instructions given the highway officials were open-ended — to work out the most economical and speedy plan for inaugurating ferry service that might be to transfer other ferry boats owned by the State not needed on present assignments. It might be to build a new boat, adapted to conditions of the sound waters and docking facilities. The main land terminus might be Atlantic Cedar Island or Sea Level. The special allocation by Governor Hodges had no strings attached, other than to establish the ferry service.

There has been nationwide criticism of location of some of the Interstate "Highways," apparently with the idea of "bailing out" investors in privately operated toll turnpikes in Pennsylvania and West Virginia. In some quarters there is belief that the Ocracoke ferry project should "bail out" the Taylor brothers from a bad investment.

Majority opinion of highway commissioners, voiced openly at the meeting and in private conversations, is that this feature should not enter into consideration. The obligation is to get for the taxpayers and tollpayers the best possible service at the lowest possible cost. Almost unanimous hope was expressed that the "Sea Level" can be utilized, on basis of public service, not personal consideration.

Here We Go; A Brand New Year Is Starting

This is the new year, 1961.

With it will come many new things for Greenville, for North Carolina, for the United States and for the world.

It is a year in which new administrations will take over government in Raleigh and in Washington. With these new administrations will come new policies, new emphasis on particular fields of endeavor, new applications of old ideas, and perhaps even a few brand new ideas in the administration of government in a democratic society.

1961 is a year in which man is likely to make his first venture into space. New frontiers in the infant space age will be opened and the already formidable problem of man's adjustment to this new age in which he lives will become more apparent.

It is a year which promises more economic, social and political progress in this immediate area, this country and throughout the world. It is a year which will not be without its hardships at home and abroad; a year in which the world must cope with changing conditions as new nations emerge to take their places with the old.

There is sound reason to hope 1961 will be a year of peace, but only the most optimistic would predict it to be a year without severe crises that may again bring the world to the brink of conflict.

This new year holds for the people of the world great hope and great promise, but it likewise is pocked with pitfalls and hazards which of men and their governments must be careful.

Analyzing The Months Ahead

By RALPH ROBEY

Most persons already have made their forecast for what is ahead for the next twelve months or longer. The number engaging in this annual exercise runs to many, many thousands. Businessmen have to do it as a basis for planning for the future. They may limit their predictions to their own markets and company, or they may cover the entire economic system. In addition there are hundreds and hundreds of others who attempt to look into the future because it is a part of their job.

We make such an annual forecast perhaps primarily because it is a habit—and to some extent as a result of it being expected—and we hope that it is of interest. This year the task is not easy. We have delayed beyond the usual date in order to have the benefit of what others had to say, and to get the latest possible statistics.

Majority opinion, especially among professional analysts, is that we have been in a mild recession for many months. Last April or May are the most commonly cited months for its beginning. It also is generally assumed by this group that the modest downturn will continue until the middle of 1961.

Now there is no question that recently business has not been moving upward and much unfavorable news has been published. But have we been having what properly may be termed a recession? That depends, of course, upon how one defines "recession." Let us look at the major factors which pretty well determined the business curve over the past year.

First was elimination of the fear of inflation. Since 1940 or before we have had an almost continuous increase of prices. Almost everyone got in the habit of assuming that the rise would continue. Then in 1959 prices began to stabilize and by early 1960 it was evident that it no longer made sense to count on higher and higher prices. To some extent this stability was the result of conscious policy on the part of the Federal Administration and the Federal Reserve Board, but it also was helped by the elimination of shortages and unsatisfied demands, by the development of a surplus of almost all basic commodities, and by the public deciding that prices were as high as they should be and, in effect, letting it be known that they were not going to pay any more.

The second great influence on the business trend during 1960 was the change in inventories. In the first quarter of the year business added to its inventories at an annual rate of over $11 billion. That was a rate which could not be continued, but the rapidity of the change and its extent were much more extreme than usual. By the second quarter the rate of accumulation had been cut in half, by the third quarter it had been eliminated entirely, and in the fourth quarter apparently final estimates are not yet published—there was an actual decline.

Elimination of the fear of inflation unquestionably was important in bringing about this change of inventory policy. If goods are not going to cost any more there is no reason for holding unneeded supplies. Unused capacity in our major industries, and the assurance of quick delivery, also made a contribution to the lowering of the volume of goods held.

Such a reduction of inventories has a direct and enormous effect upon the economic trend. It curtails orders, reduces pro-

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS SINCERITY

There are a few things which are as necessary to the living of a wholesome moral life as breath, water, and food are to the living of a normal physical life.

The first of such things is sincerity. Some believe that the word "sincerity" comes from two Latin words which mean "without wax." This was the sign that a Roman merchant displayed on the assortment of jars he had for sale. The assurance of the merchant was that the jar was not an old broken piece patched up with lead, but a newly moulded jar. Although all authorities do not hold to this derivation of the word "sincere," many do and of the whole it seems reasonable.

As we stand at the beginning of a new year, there is only one imperative—sincerity. With sincerity we cannot go wrong, without it we cannot go right. No matter what other virtue we may have, if we do not have sincerity we do not have anything of real and lasting value. Whatever your religious faith is, be sincere in your acceptance and practice of it. Be sincere in your social relationships. Be sincere with the members of your family. Above all, be sincere with yourself. We are never fit to confront life until we have confronted ourselves. We may not like all we see, but peace comes from confronting it and evaluating the truth as it stands.

Beware Of Kidnappers

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Observations On DAC's

Copyright 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A military person, recently returned from Korea, writes to me:

"It seemed to me that the value of these Department of the Army Civilians—DAC's, as they were called—was more apparent than real, and that a very great deal of money was wasted on this civilian employment program that was sorely needed elsewhere in our defense establishment. Only recently in Korea have soldiers and civilians been allowed dependents, and this, so far, only on a very limited basis; thus the argument against overseas dependents does not really obtain here. But the DAC program in Korea I do believe to be, as a whole, an excellent example of "creeping" bureaucracy, and one which merits attention by those interested in reducing needless government expenditures."

This man's long letter is not aimed at civilian experts, technicians and specialists who do work that soldiers are not trained for. His argument is aimed at civilian employees who do exactly the same work as soldiers and who can readily be replaced by soldiers at great savings to the taxpayer and at a reduction of the gold outflow which is such a serious problem to this country.

He particularly calls attention to general clerks, typists and stenographers who do work that soldiers can easily do. Many soldiers are trained to do this work. The civilian female secretary performs a service which a soldier can do. My corresponding bureaus, and one which following:

My rank was Specialist Fourth Class (E-4); my-monthly pay, including longevity and overseas allowances, was $145. I opened the office at 6:30 a.m. and generally closed it between 5 and 5:30 p.m., depending, of course, upon the time (my superior officer) departed for the day. I attended weekly periods of drill and field training. Thus not only did I perform duties identical to those of the soldier, but I was also in a constant state of readiness as a trained combat soldier. Besides my average duty day of approximately ten hours, I worked on Saturday mornings and quite often on Sunday mornings. I was cleared for security purposes, and handled classified documents, as did the secretary.

"Our secretary, a DAC with several years of government service behind her, worked eight hours a day, Monday through Friday. Although equivalent in rank to a sergeant, she (as were all other DAC's) was accorded the status of an officer's billet, officer's mess privileges, membership in the officers' clubs, etc. She enjoyed PX privileges, the use of all military recreational facilities, and was allowed to study under the Army's educational program for military personnel through classwork at the University of Maryland's overseas establishment. In case of a resumption of hostilities, it would have been necessary to evacuate her and the thousands of other civilian workers to Japan. I do not know the exact amount of her pay, but it was surely three times that of mine."

I prefer to give my correspondent's conclusions rather than my own:

"Were the Army to replace this civilian, and the thousands of others serving with military organizations, with qualified military personnel, a great saving could be realized. The soldier replacing the civilian would handle the civilian's duties. In case of war he would not become so much baggage to be evacuated to safety, but a working unit of the over-all fighting establishment. In a Cold War situation such as that prevailing in Korea, he would be on duty not eight but twenty-four hours a day, including weekends, at no extra cost. His quarters would be barracks shared by other soldiers, not a single room."

The Army's reason for keeping the DAC's is continuity of service. As hired help, they remain on duty while the soldier is sent home. My correspondent has a cure for that:

"Surely continuity of service can be achieved by other, less costly, means. The Army (Continued to page 10)

Other Editors Saying A Pro-Colonialist Vote

(Greensboro Daily News)

The Kennedy Administration will not launch a series of congressional investigations to embarrass the Republicans, once they are out of office, Washington insiders inform us.

However, they do note pressure building up for a congressional inquiry into the United States vote in the United Nations on the "anticolonialist manifesto," in which the U. S. abstained instead of voting "yes."

It now appears that our delegation abstained only after a direct plea from British Prime Minister Macmillan to President Eisenhower and the President's order to Ambassador Wadsworth to switch the U.S. vote.

A good diplomat, Mr. Wadsworth carried through on his orders, but several members of the U.S. delegation, to whom the instructions came as a shock, were intensely irritated. Mrs. Zenna Watson, George, a prominent Republican and a friend of President Eisenhower, led the dissenting group in standing up and applauding passage of the anticolonialist resolution.

"I wanted to crawl under the table," she told the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, "but since there wasn't room down there I just stood up and applauded." Although I am a Republican, she added, "I must say that Kennedy couldn't look better today."

Surely we can't have our diplomats disregarding instructions and deciding on their own what policy should be, but the fact is that U.S. abstention on the Asian-African resolution calling for independence of colonies and supporting the right of self-determination was extremely unfortunate—and unwise.

Just previously the Soviet Union had offered a resolution calling for the "immediate" freeing of colonies everywhere—at the same time, contending that there are no Communist colonies, only Western ones.

Why President Eisenhower should have been so solicitous of Mr. Macmillan's opinion is a mystery. In 1956, in the midst of a grave crisis, the Suez invasion, the United States did not hesitate to part company with its long-time ally. In fact Vice President Nixon, making a campaign speech, asked if it wasn't wonderful at last to have a foreign policy completely free of European influence.

The U.N. resolution was after all only a resolution. It was introduced by Afro-Asian delegates after the Russian resolution was defeated. It asked for the end of "colonialism and all practices of segregation and discrimination." But it set no time table, calling only for steps to be taken toward independence of people now ruled by other countries.

That traditionally has been United States policy. But because of British sensibilities we found ourselves on the side with Australia, Belgium, the Dominican Republic, France, Portugal, Spain and the Union of South Africa in opposing independence. For their part, Canada, Italy, Greece, the Netherlands and Norway were not intimidated.

Has something happened to the "revolutionary" Americans of 1775?

Thousands Rely On Tax Experts

By ELMER ROESSNER

William Foster, who started a tax service 25 years ago finds that he has become so involved in answering questions about small business that he is now known as "the Dorothy Dix of the small business world."

He and his associates now receive thousands of letters seeking answers to questions on management, sales promotion, financing and other problems.

At the moment, most questions deal with state and Federal taxes and tax deductions. "We handle more income tax forms than anyone else except the government," he boasted.

Mr. Foster, despite his 70 years, is perhaps the most active man in his own business, answering questions personally.

"Extrovert is a mild word for him," said one of his associates. His headquarters are in New York.

Mr. Foster originally started his "Simplified Tax Records, Inc." to provide small businessmen with expert tax accounting. This grew to the point where he is now offering himself as a tax advisor, dentist, lawyer and other professional men.

And as the business grew, he found small enterprises needed guidance on more than tax matters, and he formed a small business advisory service. "A small businessman can ask someone, such as his brother-in-law, for advice," he said, "but many times he would be better off if he never asked at all."

WHAT PEOPLE ASK Questions asked cover a wide range of problems. Some for instance:

The owner of a shop selling clothes for tall women wanted to know how she could attract potential customers.

A bicycle repairman asked if he was charging enough for his services.

The owner of a tavern inquired how much he should be making on each glass of beer served.

The proprietor of a West Coast coffee shop asked for ways to start a beatnik club.

A TV repairman requested information on sources of small business loans when he wanted to expand his service.

Answers are obtained from the firm's wide experience, field research, government sources and what Mr. Foster describes as the largest library of small business reference material in existence.

And the most bothersome problem of all, he said, is still taxes.

SORGHUM STUBBLE TRAPS SNOW, UNCLE SAM FINDS Snow fences? Well, if a farmer really wants to hold snow on his fields for irrigation in the semi-arid Great Plains area, one of the best ways is to plant strips of sorghum and leave a stubble, the Department of Agriculture has found. It says that the snow provides moisture, later on, but prevents snow from drifting along fences and ditches. For further details, write U.S.D.A., Washington 25, D. C.

PLASTIC LINING KEEPS WATER IN SKATING POND There's skating today in West Orange, N. J. Previously, water drained out of a large pond there after freezing, causing the ice to break. Engineers from the Woodward-Clyde-Sherard firm were called in. Instead of recommending a clay or asphalt lining to the pond, they suggested polyethylene film, in the same thickness used in refrigerator bags. A foot deep of soil was removed, the plastic laid and the soil replaced. There will be ice skating for years to come, when it's cold enough, said engineer, David M. Greer.

Babson Looks At '61

By ROGER BABSON

This year I have divided my forecast into eight sections as indicated by the following-eight headings. Instead of covering general business as a separate topic, I am sure that a reading of the following will give a clear idea of my thoughts on general business. Naturally, my first subject will be the political outlook.

POLITICS AND THE NEW PRESIDENT

I do not expect any big changes under President Kennedy. If he had won by a landslide I would be quite worried, but with a narrow plurality in the electoral college and only a small fraction of 1 per cent over Nixon in the total popular vote, I think that our next President will be very much on his good behavior. Certainly he will not have much influence with either the Republicans or the Conservative Democrats of the South. He may make radical recommendations in his inaugural address to "save face", but most of these will not become legislation.

He will recommend certain new welfare legislation, which will include medical care for the aged, an increase in Social Security, a new minimum wage, increased public housing, help for the distressed areas, and more aid for education.

COMMODITY PRICES, INCLUDING GOLD

Higher prices of commodities at the retail level are more or less certain, but wholesale prices will probably decline in most instances. Prices will not rise because of inflation during 1961. The first of the price advances will be absorbed by the manufacturer. Owing to the increased competition in all lines, wise manufacturers and retailers will keep their selling prices down. This means that their profits will be less if they are unable to reduce their own costs. This means that general business may show less increase in activity and profits in 1961 than in the previous year.

Now, in relation to gold: Three-fifths of the Free World's gold comes from African mines; one-fifth from Canada; and the balance from the U.S. and elsewhere. There are many rumors that the U.S. will "revalue" gold. This will not happen during 1961; and I think that the price of many gold stocks will decline during 1961. The very discussion in Congress of possible devaluation would cause us to lose more gold. Everything will probably be done to avoid such a discussion and I believe President Kennedy will publicly state that he is opposed to it.

Temporarily, dollar devaluation might be a shot in the arm for American business, but it will not cure the cancer or whatever else is causing the pain. Not only would foreign banks withdraw gold before such legislation was passed; but if such legislation should pass in the U.S., it would be followed by similar legislation in England, France, Switzerland, Germany, and other important countries. I advise investors now to forget this question of gold devaluation and not speculate in gold stocks at this time. Leading gold stocks are now selling 25 per cent or more above their price of a year ago. Another thing that investors should remember when buying Canadian gold stocks is that a number of Canadian gold mining companies are now receiving a dividend from the Canadian government to keep them from being shut down by high labor costs. This subsidy would come off as the price of gold rises.

STOCKS AND BONDS

It is unpopular for me to take a bearish position in my Annual Forecast. Most of the newspapers, and my readers like optimistic forecasts. In all the years I have been making these forecasts, last December was the first time that I refused to take a definite position. At that time the Dow-Jones Industrial Average was 670 and today it is fluctuating around 600.

Corporation earnings reports now coming out are not good. In many cases the gross is kept up or perhaps increased, but the net is off. Many companies will show a decline for 1960 compared with 1959. Prosperity has continued so long that most manufacturers, retailers, and consumers are assuming it will last at least another year. I cannot honestly agree with this. Therefore, I feel that 1961 will see lower prices for the Dow-

Ayden Tags Will Go On Sale Tomorrow

Babson Column...

Jones Industrial Averages: I hope that many readers with small businesses are showing a profit. Those who are not should begin to reduce their loans and "trim their sails."

In many cases good bonds now yield more than good stocks. This is unfavorable to the stock market and favorable to the bond market. Therefore, I believe that bonds will continue around their present levels in 1961. Many readers will be wise in shifting now from certain stocks to bonds. There will be reductions in stock dividends; hence it would be much better to hold bonds with fixed-interest payments rather than risk a reduction in the dividend payments of stocks. I especially call readers' attention to "tax-exempt general obligation municipal bonds." These are the fixed-interest municipals of cities with a direct lien on all the taxable property in the city. I would advise against holding bonds of such large cities as might be vulnerable to bombing in case of World War III.

My favorite municipals are those of the capital cities in the interior of the country; in fact any growing interior city should be a high-grade investment. These bonds must pay their interest irrespective of business conditions. The capital cities are especially helped by having the payroll of the state governments.

LIVING COSTS AND INFLATION
 Living costs may rise somewhat during 1961 due to the increase in population and the desire for more comforts and convenience. A person like myself, who has had children and grandchildren, knows how each succeeding generation considers as necessities what the parents considered luxuries. This, together with the higher cost of labor, is the primary reason for today's record-high (127.3) cost of living.

As there is only so much land available, rents will increase slowly. There, however, need not be a higher cost for food. The farmers are constantly raising greater crops which are being processed in more economical ways. The only reason for the cost of food to increase is the dependence of so many households on package "mixes." Ultimately all vegetables will be wholly or partly cooked and purchasable in containers.

Wages will hold up although there will be more unemployment in 1961. This means that take-home pay will be less for more families.

Inflation is not to be feared during 1961. With his small popular vote plurality, Mr. Kennedy will be very slow to do anything to hurt the purchasing power of the dollar. Barring World War III, I believe that the dollar will be just as sound a year from now as it is today. Our U.S. dollar is looked upon by the world as a standard.

FARM INCOME AND PRICES
 Good crops and moderate prices indicate a fair year in 1961 for farmers. I, therefore, look for a reasonably heavy volume of the things farmers buy during 1961, including equipment for getting on with less help. The farmers cannot expect any boom, but profits, on average, should be at satisfactory levels. My forecast—in detail—is:

Larger volume of marketings should more than offset any reduction in farm prices. Therefore, 1961 cash receipts for farmers should be slightly higher than 1960's $11,300,000,000 net. I furthermore learn that the intelligent farmer is reducing his indebtedness, which is always an optimistic sign. As I dictate this forecast, I am told that growing conditions are favorable in most sections, with sufficient moisture in the ground and other seasonal optimistic factors. The prices which farmers will receive in 1961 for crops will, of course, depend upon weather; but, each year, agricultural science is helping the farmers to avoid early frost losses and to secure needed moisture.

EMPLOYMENT, WAGES, AND TAXES
 Strike activity may well be at a postwar minimum during 1961, with any dislocations limited to independent separate companies. First important industrywide negotiations will come in the auto industry, but not until September 1961. Railroad workers cannot strike until November 1, 1961 at the earliest. Most steel contracts hold until June 30, 1962.

The average employment in 1960 was about 67,000,000 workers. I forecast that 1961 will average a million fewer wage-workers. Countrywide, unemployment reached as high as 4½ million in 1960, and for 1961 may hit 5½ million. The basic difficulty is that while industry is cutting back, the labor force is becoming larger. This means that it will be more difficult for those getting through schools and colleges to get positions in 1961 unless they are well trained in business, mechanics, or electronics. Certainly, the demand for executives will be less in 1961 than it has been for some years. Those executives who now have positions should strive to do better work, not ask for increases, and do everything possible to hold onto their jobs.

Labor leaders hope to have a key to the White House with Mr. Kennedy as President. This may apply to the settling of strikes and contract disputes. The AFL-CIO will influence more votes in Congress during 1961-62 than in 1959-60. The conservative Southern Democrats, however, will unite with Republicans to block radical labor legislation. Congress certainly will not outlaw the "right-to-work" legislation which has been passed in certain conservative states, nor will labor get a revision of the Taft-Hartley Act. Congress will not compel industry to collect dues from union members, but may temper the recent Court decisions ruling against excess union spending.

All the above means that labor will be able to hold its own during 1961 and secure some small increases in wages, pensions, and improved working conditions; but this may not be what labor expected to get from the election of President Kennedy.

The Federal Government will not increase income taxes during 1961; but may close some loopholes and increase certain excise taxes.

BUILDING AND REAL ESTATE
 Looking back over the years that have been making these Annual Forecasts, it seems that building and real estate have been the last to profit from a boom, and the last to suffer from the following reaction. Readers all know that from its World War II low point new building, especially of homes, gradually rose to an all-time high in 1959. Part of this growth has been due to increased population and higher incomes.

In addition to the natural growth to which new building was entitled, it was greatly encouraged by loans to veterans without any down payment, the acceptance of twenty-year mortgages by banks in place of a maximum mortgage of five years, and by subsidies of various kinds. Like all stimulants, however, these have gradually become less effective. Hence, a decline in new building and new home-construction is only natural to expect in 1961.

I do, however, forecast that a move for urban renewal will be urged and secured by the new President. This means pulling down the slums of large cities and substituting brick apartment houses with playgrounds. When any new building is built, it increases the value of the adjoining land and increases real estate taxes.

Therefore, 1961 may see real estate prices hold their own and even rise in certain sections. Small farms near cities will continue to increase in price, and this will be true of most well-drained suburban property. Every family is justified in mortgaging to buy a home in 1961, but I doubt if 1961 will be a good year to speculate in real estate. The bloom is surely off in Florida, where the supply of new houses temporarily exceeds the demand.

WORLD OUTLOOK
 I cannot conscientiously close this Forecast for 1961 without calling readers' attention to the unsatisfactory situation that we find the world in today. I do not

AYDEN—Ayden's city license tags will go on sale tomorrow, and the first customer will be Mayor S. Frank Peterson, buying "number 1."

For the first time, the city tag has a slogan, which says, "Ayden—A Progressive Community." The tags have gold lettering on a black background, the opposite of this past year's colors.

Nine hundred and fifty tags have been ordered. Every automobile and truck owner listed on the Ayden tax books is supposed to buy tags, which sell for $1 each. Mayor Peterson has urged people to buy their tags early this year in Ayden. They may be obtained at the town office.

Youth Admits He Killed 2 Cousins

TAOS, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico state police today said a Taos High School junior had plotted to kill his two cousins for two weeks.

Emilio Martinez, 16, signed a statement Sunday admitting the shooting deaths of his cousins, Bonofocio Mondragon, 20, and his brother, Dan, 18, Friday as the three hunted coyotes.

need to comment on Russia or China, as readers are well acquainted with conditions there. I, however, must add that Mr. Kennedy is agreeable to a Summit Conference as he is itching for a talk with Mr. Khrushchev; Kennedy has already stated that he is willing to put Formosa under the United Nations.

Readers should note the headway which the Communists are making in other parts of the world: Southeast Asia, for instance, is a very rich area. It is envied by both China and Russia. We may expect continued revolts in South Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos.

I am especially troubled about the way the Communists are working into Central and South America. I know South America very well. It has virtually no "middle class." There are a few rich, but millions of very poor. The Communists are organizing great strikes in Latin America. As these strikes accomplish something for the wageworkers, they give the Communists good ammunition for further progress. This situation has been intensified by the agents of Castro.

Another very sore spot is Africa, which I visited two years ago. South Africa will blow up of itself, without any help or hindrance from Russia. The Congo, however, which the United Nations is now trying to straighten out, is a serious problem; and the Congolese feel that their condition would be improved by Russia's help. The great African question, however, will be concerned with the new countries which have been given their independence from the colonial system they have been under for 150 years. Here, Russia, Belgium, and France are playing a waiting game to see if the new nations can make good by themselves.

I cannot imagine the Russians now going to war over Berlin. I am more disturbed about the gains in the Communist vote in European countries. For instance, the Communists in Italy received over 19 per cent of the vote in 1946, but 28 per cent in 1960. Even in France, the Communist vote is again increasing. The money interests of France want the Algerian rebels stamped out for good, while the farmers and small businessmen want DeGaulle to give Algeria its freedom. When I was in France a few weeks ago, it was generally conceded that if DeGaulle should suddenly drop dead, chaos might reign. I dislike to end this forecast with these pessimistic comments; but even if our country is going along on an even keel, some occurrence in some other part of the world could upset all our plans. HENCE BE SURE YOU HAVE MADE A WILL!

MONDAY AFTERNOON, JANUARY 2, 1961

TWO FOR THE TAR HEELS . . . Doug Moe (35) and Jim Hudock of Carolina scramble in the air in an attempt to tip-in a mis-fired Carolina shot. And Hudock did just that as the Tar Heels went on to dump Duke, 76-71. Duke players in the picture are Jack Mullen (20) and Art Heyman (25).

Rather Win ACC

McGuire Happy With Dixie But--

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor
RALPHIGH—With or without Carroll Youngkin in Duke's lineup, North Carolina's chief Tar Heel, Frank McGuire, was as sure as day and night that his Carolina club could whip Duke.

share of rebounds. Carolina, is tough off the boards and they deserve a lot of credit."
Art Heyman, the sophomore standout for Duke, was defeated by Doug Moe and scored only 15 points—with most of these coming in the first five minutes of the game.

Dick Kitley, hitting most of his shots on a jumper from the free throw line, also had 16 and York Larese and Larry Brown netted 15 each.

The Tar Heel skipper was especially pleased with Carolina's defense on Duke. "We are a lot better defensively this year. But we have worked a lot on defense the past two or three years.

Asked if this edition of "Tar Heels had the 'killer instinct' of the 1957 national champions, McGuire replied, "No, this is just a nice bunch of kids."

With victory written from one ear to the other in a broad smile, McGuire said, "When Youngkin was kicked out (for elbowing Tar Heel Dick Kitley) it seemed to fire them up. And the crowd seemed to lean toward Duke.

"I didn't see the play in which he was kicked out but I'm sure the ref used good judgment. We don't play a game to try and get a man kicked off. I've had too many boys come off the bench and beat me than to try a stunt like that," he continued.

Vic Bugas and his Dukes experienced their first loss of the season with heads bowed. The youthful Blue Devil coach disagreed with his protegee on the value of Youngkin and reached a boiling point of no return in discussing the unfortunate instance.

RALEIGH—"That was the most exciting game of the Classic, wasn't it?" Those were the greeting words of Coach Everett Case after his Wolfpack drilled Wake Forest 99-91 in an afternoon heart-stopper Saturday for the consolation jewels of the 1960 Dixie Classic.

In winning the high-scoring thriller—which tied a two-team scoring record—the Pack avenged an earlier one-point loss to the Deacons and gave Case some solace for a poor showing against Villanova in the opening round.

"Winning kinda touches your heart," Case said with a chuckle. "I remember a manager I use to have who said it made you feel good in the heart to win and I guess it does."

Does that mean State foes can expect the Pack to be running every game?
"No, we will still hold the ball on some teams (he didn't say who). We have to keep them guessing," Case answered.

As for the rough ACC road ahead, Case figures it will be "like practicing for the next tournament (the ACC)."

Wake Forest's Bones McKinney was defeated but his upstairs machinery was working double time.

McKinney heaped praise on Chappell and his club. "We did a lot of good things today. We hit a couple of first-magnitude stars.

"We ran our plan of attack against the man-for-man defense better than we've done in a long time. Against the zone, we wanted to hit the man in the middle. If we would do that and make him the card dealer, we would be in business."

The Wolfpack held a slight 40-38 margin on the boards. Both teams' shooting mark was above average. Wake was 46.8 and State 52.9.

Leading at halftime wasn't a healthy situation for Classic teams and the cagey Case wasn't fretting over trailing by three points at intermission—remembering the big boo-boo against Villanova.

"A team trailing at halftime sort of has a psychological edge. Once they catch fire it's hard to stop them," lamented Case.

The Pack coach, still giving a well-chewed piece of gum the once over, wouldn't single out any one individual for special attention.

He did venture to say that John Pungier, the standout sophomore, was definitely a starter. Pungier, who started his first game against Maryland, pumped in 18 points and grabbed nine rebounds against Wake Forest.

State exploited its fast break and according to Case, it was like Len Chappell, the gigantic Deacon center, tore up State's zone in the first half but hit a cold streak during the final 20 minutes. He finished with 33 points.

"Chappell hurt us in the zone but we kept him shooting from the outside and he wasn't able to rebound as well. We wanted to keep him on the outside. Boy, they tore up our man-for-man," Case muttered with the shake of his head.

State, pulling into the lead early in the second half with 66.7 shooting percent, moved from man-to-man defense to the zone and Case credits this as a key factor in the win.

"This loss doesn't bother me. I have my own feelings toward the game," Bones asserted. Asked to elaborate on what he meant, Bones said "no comment."

Another game Tuesday sends William and Mary (3-1) to Furman (1-1).

Conference teams climaxed a successful tournament season last week by winning championships in three holiday extravaganzas.

West Virginia won the Sugar Bowl tournament by whipping Tulane, 98-70, and Memphis State, 86-82. Furman used its effective slowdown technique to win its own Poinsetta tournament by defeating Louisiana State in three overtimes, 56-55, and The Citadel in two extra sessions, 62-56.

Richmond proved the big surprise by capturing the Richmond Invitational, speeding past VMI, 100-90, and then upsetting William and Mary, 101-87. Davidson took third place in the Laurel Invitational at Laurel, Miss., with a 72-59 win over North Texas State.

Roundout the top 10 are Rod Thorn of West Virginia, 19.1; Danny Higgins of Richmond, 19.0; Jerry Smith of Furman, 18.8; Lee Patrone of West Virginia and Norm Halberstadt of VMI, each with a 17.8-point average; Jon Feldman of George Washington, 17.3; and Tom Conard of Furman, 16.9.

With the holiday tournaments over, regular-season skirmishing resumes Tuesday night when potent Virginia Tech plays at The Citadel in a showdown game for the league lead. Both are 2-0 in the conference.

Another game Tuesday sends William and Mary (3-1) to Furman (1-1).

Hawks Have Big Cushion In NBA

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
On the surface the St. Louis Hawks have a comfortable 8 1/2-game cushion atop the Western Division of the National Basketball Association today.

Classic sidelines . . . Senator Jack Kennedy carried North Carolina in the recent presidential election but little Dick Nixon, negro guard from Marquette, was a favorite among the Classic fans.

As a matter of fact, the Marquette club—the surprise team in the classic—gained the fancy of many during its visit in the South. Against Duke in the semi-finals, they gained a split of the crowd's applause.

Has Never Missed A Classic

Walter Jones, who is about as popular on the athletic scene as in North Carolina politics, had a front row seat for the Classics. An avid sports fan, Jones hasn't missed a game since Everett Case invented this holiday attraction.

Rohloff Better As Sophomore?

The brilliant victory by North Carolina State over Wake Forest in the consolation round brought comparisons of State's Ken Rohloff with the former All-American Lou Pucillo.

National champion Minnesota takes on Washington, the defender, in the Rose Bowl. Television is scheduled for 5 p.m. (EST) by NBC.

Mississippi, the Southeastern Conference ruler, plays Rice in the Sugar Bowl. This one will be televised starting at 2 p.m. (EST) by NBC.

Missouri, which won the Big Eight title—the first time in a dozen years that Oklahoma hasn't come out on top—has a date with Navy in the Orange Bowl at Miami. It will be televised starting at 1 p.m. (EST) by CBS.

Arkansas, the Southwest Conference titleholder, tangles with Duke in the Cotton Bowl. Television time is 3:30 p.m. (EST), by CBS—or whenever the Orange Bowl game ends.

Minnesota never has played in the Rose Bowl and will be seeking revenge over the Huskies who last New Year's Day clobbered Wisconsin, another Big Ten outfit, 44-8. Washington was the underdog then, too.

The Gophers, who managed to win only two games in 1959, compiled an 8-1 record in rolling to the national title. Washington ran up a 9-1 mark.

Minnesota will depend on a rock-ribbed defense plus quarterback Sandy Stephens, workhorse Roger Hagberg and swifty half-back Bill Murray.

Washington won three games by one point and another by two points. Bob Schloredt, who missed most of the season because of injuries, is available again and will share the quarterbacking with Bob Hivner.

A crowd of 100,000 is expected in clear weather at Pasadena, Calif.

Jake Gibbs is the backbone of the Mississippi offense that was stymied only in a 6-6 tie with LSU. In 10 games, Ole Miss ran up 266 points. Rice, which finished with a 7-3 mark and second place in the Southwest Conference, will depend on a defense that yielded only 5.8 points per game during the season. Signal-caller Billy Cox is the Owls' top offensive threat.

Missouri (10-0), which never has won a bowl game, has been installed a 6½ point choice over Navy (9-1), which never has lost one. Missouri has a crushing ground offensive, to match All America Joe Bellino of Navy. The Tigers also will have to stop passer Hal Spooner.

Arkansas is a one-touchdown favorite over Duke in Dallas. The razorbacks have a balanced attack, having scored 12 touchdowns passing and 11 running during the season. George McKinney does the passing and Lance Alworth handles the running. Duke's attack is keyed to the Don Altman to Tee Moorman passing combination.

The annual end-of-the-year bowl hoopla started last Friday when The Citadel defeated Tennessee Tech, 27-0, in the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla.

In major games Saturday, Florida eked out a 13-12 decision over Baylor in the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla. The East defeated the West, 7-0, in the Shrine game in San Francisco; the North All-Stars trounced the South All-Stars, 35-7, in the Blue-Gray game in Montgomery, Ala.; New Mexico State whipped Utah State, 20-13, in the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex.; Texas A&I toppled Arkansas Tech, 45-14, in the Great Southwestern Bowl Grand Prairie, Tex., and the National All-Stars turned back the South-West 27-8, in the Copper Bowl in Tempe, Ariz.

Appalachian has the best overall mark in the conference, a 6-1 record. High Point is 4-2 in all games and Atlantic Christian 4-3.

After the leaders come Elon (2-0 and 4-3), Elon (2-1 and 6-6), Western Carolina (2-1 and 3-7), East Carolina (4-2 and 3-7), Lenoir Rhyne (3-2 and 7-2), Catawba (2-2 and 6-8), Pfeiffer (1-7 and 1-10) and Guilford (0-8 and 0-9).

The remainder of the week's schedule:

Tuesday—Carson-Newman at Western Carolina; Atlantic Christian at Pfeiffer.

Elon won the consolation crown in the Camp Lejeune tournament last week. After losing 89-66 to Pikeville (Ky.) College, the eventual tournament winner, Elon defeated Georgia Southern 89-62 and Catawba 72-57.

There were no conference games last week, and High Point remains atop the standings with a 4-0 record in league play. Appalachian is second with a 3-0 mark, and Atlantic Christian is next at 2-0.

Among other top 10 teams, No. 1 Bradley pushed its record to 10-0 by beating Drake and Dartmouth during the week, and Louisville (No. 5) made it 11-0 with wins over Brigham Young and St. Louis. Auburn (No. 9 and 5-0) didn't play, but swings back in action with Florence State tonight.

In one hangover from the Christmas week tournament grind, Canisius and Drake meet tonight for the championship of the Queen City invitation at Buffalo, N.Y. Canisius gained the finals by whipping Princeton 79-73, and Drake made the grade by beating Connecticut 90-81.

Kentucky, which defeated Missouri 81-69 Saturday, tackles Miami of Ohio tonight in hopes of improving on a 5-3 record.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—William Lenoir of Tucson, Ariz., and Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., the U.S. doubles champions, have added the Orange Cup junior tennis team championship to their laurels.

Lenoir, who also is national junior champion, clinched the Orange Cup title for the United States Sunday with a 6-3, 10-8 victory over John Newcombe of Longeville, Australia.

Froehling earlier had won over Australia's No. 2 junior, Rodney Brent of Newcastle, 6-3, 6-0, 2-6, 6-2.

BIG DEACON—Len Chappell (51), Wake Forest's junior center, goes up to lay in two points for the Deacs in a 99-91 losing cause. Defending for the Pack is Russ Marvel (30) and Stan Niedwierowski (44).

Houston Blasts Rams For AFL Grid Title

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Oilers are the first champions of the American Football League, thanks to the third-down passes of George Blanda and an out-of-character pass defense.

Blanda threw three touchdown passes and the Oiler pass defense was amazing Sunday as Houston took the championship with a 24-16 victory over the Los Angeles Chargers before a crowd of 32,183.

While Blanda's effectiveness on third down triggered the Oiler offense, the Houston defense was handing Jack Kemp, the league's No. 1 passer, his first touchdown shutout in five games.

All of Blanda's touchdowns came on third down, as did 11 of his 16 completions. The completions were good for 301 yards.

Kemp had thrown six touchdowns in two regular season games against the Oilers, who won the Eastern Division title despite the leakiest pass defense in the league. Kemp's 21 completions Sunday were good for 171 yards but this was well below the 276.7-yard average Houston had allowed in 14 regular season games.

"It was our best defensive game of the season," said Blanda, who spent 10 years with the Chicago Bears before "retiring" two years ago.

Game officials thought play was too rough in spots. Second and fourth quarter fist fights caused three players—Hogan Wharton and Julian Spence of Houston and Maury Schleicher of Los Angeles—to be ordered from the game.

Blanda did not get the Oiler offense under way until the second quarter, by which time Los Angeles had grabbed a 6-0 lead—on field goals of 38 and 22 yards by Ben Agajanian.

Drives of 83 and 50 yards put Houston in front, 10-6, with Blanda passing 17 yards to Dave Smith for a touchdown and then kicking an 18-yard field goal. With nine seconds left in the half, a 19-yard punt by Houston's Charlie Mitchell went out of bounds on the Oiler 31. Agajanian returned for a 27-yard kick that cut the Oiler halftime edge to 10-9.

Cannon, whose three pass yards but this was well below the 276.7-yard average Houston had allowed in 14 regular season games. He received eight votes to seven each for Lowe and Kemp.

and has more weight which is to his advantage. As of yet, he hasn't been the leader Lou was," lamented Case.

North Carolina State's win over Wake Forest made the series even at 1-1 for the year. The Deacs won by one point in a conference meeting earlier.

The two play the rubber game in Winston-Salem on January 14. The game will be televised nationally.

Cowboys Want To Come Back

Wyoming made the longest trip for the tournament and as it turned out was the weakest team. The Cowboys, considered a challenge for the Skyline Conference title, came in a nobody and left the same way, losing all three games.

Coach Bill Strannigan of the Cowboys says he is glad to have played here and feels it will benefit his club for the conference slate ahead.

In his second year at Wyoming, Strannigan said all arrangements to play in the Dixie Classic this year were made before he took over the reins. "I would like to come back here in three or four years when we get a solid ball club. Most of these teams have had no coaching changes in the past four or five years and have stronger teams."

Strannigan tabs Utah and Utah State as the teams to beat in the Skyline Conference this year.

Abe Goldblat of the Virginia Pilot covered the tournament for the 12th straight year. An outstanding promoter, Abe has lined up the ACC clash between State and Virginia to be played in Portsmouth.

Outside teams playing in the 1961 Classic will be Stanford, Illinois; Navy, and Tulane. These were announced the second day of the classic. It makes you wonder what the schedule planners would do about a defending champion if an outsider won.

Moe Should Be All-American

In this observers unbiased opinion, Doug Moe and York Larese of Carolina were the tournament's top two players. Moe held the edge over the sharpshooting guard.

But the "cry baby" award—if such a distinction was made—would be a toss up between the Tar Heels Dick Kepley and Villanova's Thomas Hoover. The listless Kepley might also receive an acting award for his part in getting Carroll Youngkin booted in the final game.

It's funny how a crowd can switch its favorite in the middle of the game. Such was the case in the Duke-Carolina finale.

The fans were split in the first half but with Youngkin's exit, Duke drew the biggest cheers.

Lucas Named As Tourney Star

NEW YORK (AP)—Tall and talented Jerry Lucas, Ohio State's gifted All America basketball player, today had both pro and college coaches in eastern circles extolling his all-around prowess with the roundball.

The consensus was unanimous that Lucas, who led the undefeated Buckeyes to the ECAC Holiday Festival championship Saturday with his fine shooting, key playmaking and aggressive rebounding, is the No. 1 collegiate case in the nation.

Said Carl Braun, coach of the New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association: "Lucas is a thinker. He's got the instincts of a great basketball player, always makes the right play of pass. I hardly saw him make a mistake."

Coach Ed Donovan of St. Bonaventure, whose third-ranked Bonnies were beaten by the top-rated Bucks 84-82 in the final said: "He's a magnificent, intelligent player. He's also the coolest man I have ever seen on the court. Nothing seems to disturb him."

Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor, pleased with the performance of his NCAA champions in the tough festival field, said: "The fans haven't seen the real Jerry Lucas yet. He played the entire tournament suffering from a virus, which left him weak and tired at the end."

Despite that, Lucas was voted most valuable player in the tourney after his 32-point performance immeasurably aided the Buckeyes cause against a St. Bonaventure outfit that fought from behind an 11-point deficit on the hot shooting of Tom Stith, who wound up with 35.

Joining Lucas on the all-tourney first team selected by The Associated Press were Stith, teammate John Havlicek, the Bonnies' Fred Crawford and Billy (the Hill) McGill of Utah.

Joe Lapchick, St. John's coach and formerly head man for the pro Knicks, also praised Lucas' obvious talents, putting the final stamp of approval on the 6-foot-9 junior.

"Lucas is the most complete player in college today," he said. "He can do everything and do it well."

Ohio State Wins To Maintain Top Ranking

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Buckeyes of Ohio State, national collegiate basketball champions last season, may well be on the way to another title this year.

They are 9-0 to date, with 15 more regular season games to go before the NCAA tournament warfare begins. Perhaps Coach Fred Taylor's outfit led by All America Jerry Lucas can repeat. There are 14 Big Ten conference games ahead for the Bucks, plus one date with Evansville Jan. 9.

Indiana and Purdue of the Big Ten are supposed to provide the main opposition to Ohio State in the conference struggle but Purdue and Indiana both are 5-3 for the young season after the holiday skirmishing, and Ohio State rides high after winning the Holiday Festival Tournament in New York. Ohio State was rated No. 1 in the nation a week ago.

Lucas and mates knocked off St. John's (N.Y.) 70-65 in the semifinals and then St. Bonaventure 84-82 in the tourney final. In a first-round game, the Buckeyes clobbered Seton Hall 97-57. The two later victories were over a St. John's outfit ranked No. 7 nationally in the weekly Associated Press poll, and St. Bonaventure with a lofty No. 3 rating.

In the Los Angeles Classic tournament in which Iowa whipped UCLA for the title 71-65, Indiana started off by beating Stanford, but then was drubbed 94-72 by UCLA, and 90-71 by Southern California for third place.

Purdue dropped openers to Pittsburgh and Penn State early in December, won five straight over not too impressive opposition, then was beaten last week by Butler, 65-63.

St. Bonaventure, with Tom Stith piling up 35 points, gave Ohio State all it could handle, but Lucas steered the Bucks to a hard-earned victory. He got 32 points, had seven assists and snared 21 rebounds, and was voted the most valuable player.

Duke finally dropped its first game as North Carolina came from behind to whip the Blue Devils 76-71 in the finals of the Dixie Classic at Raleigh, N.C. Duke had won nine straight and enjoyed a No. 6 national ranking in last week's balloting.

North Carolina State, rated No. 10, won the Dixie consolation honors by defeating Wake Forest 99-91.

Among other top 10 teams, No. 1 Bradley pushed its record to 10-0 by beating Drake and Dartmouth during the week, and Louisville (No. 5) made it 11-0 with wins over Brigham Young and St. Louis. Auburn (No. 9 and 5-0) didn't play, but swings back in action with Florence State tonight.

In one hangover from the Christmas week tournament grind, Canisius and Drake meet tonight for the championship of the Queen City invitation at Buffalo, N.Y. Canisius gained the finals by whipping Princeton 79-73, and Drake made the grade by beating Connecticut 90-81.

Kentucky, which defeated Missouri 81-69 Saturday, tackles Miami of Ohio tonight in hopes of improving on a 5-3 record.

LADY in the MARKET

BY FRANCES V. RUMMEL

From the novel "Aunt Jane McPhipps and Her Baby Blue Chips," published by Prentice-Hall, Inc. © 1960 by Frances V. Rummel. Distributed by King Features.

CHAPTER 20

In fine fettle by the time she reached the office of the investment club's attorney, Jane McPhipps was shown into a carelessly elegant room that was littered with books and papers. Seated at a pale mahogany desk, Miss Gertrude Green looked more honey-colored than ever, and twice as official—especially when she put on her amber spectacles. Jane sank into an oversized davenport and explained her errand, although, in handing Miss Green her notebook, her stout-hearted resolution about Wally Googins went berserk.

"Wally was a friend," she mourned. "I still can't believe it."

Miss Green snorted. "Don't be naive. Our charming friend may be the coolest con man to hit town since the Gold Rush." Having scouted sentiment, she began to take a long, hard look at Wally's papers about the Countess stock—while Jane sat and watched her and began to think unwholesome thoughts about lawyers.

Although Miss Green seemed far away, Jane could tell she was beginning to purr like a winning lawyer, and now she explained, "Jane, you were so clever to capture things in writing! Tell me, how did you ever think to do this?"

Jane fidgeted, but Miss Green was too fascinated with Wally's fulsome details to wait for an answer anyway. She leaned back with satisfaction, removed her glasses and pointed them toward Jane. "The District Attorney will be thrilled with your foresight."

"But what in the world," Jane asked, "does the District Attorney have to do with us?"

Miss Green explained that at one time she had hoped to keep any suit against Wally in the civil courts. "But," she explained, "he violated the Corporate Securities Act, which carries a criminal penalty." Therefore, the matter was out of her hands, and was clearly a case for the criminal court. "And it has to be prosecuted by the District Attorney," Miss Green added that she was helpless to do anything beyond assisting him a little. "He won't need much more than your notebook," she said.

Jane was thunderstruck. "But I thought—all the girls thought—we can't settle our court?"

Miss Green did not hesitate.

"Not a chance. I'm not sure at this point, but the D.A. may also have to prosecute on a second felony—Grand theft. You see, even if Wally's firm made restitution, the money was taken and the crime committed. He must be tried."

The possibility of all these black details had never entered Jane's mind. She had supposed the Golden Girls would merely sue for their money back, and that Wally's firm would handle things simply formally and with dispatch—the way the insurance adjusters managed a few years ago when Horace bashed into somebody's fender. But, now without warning, she saw Wally in stripes with a ball and chain around his ankle. Her friend Wally!

Preoccupied with the genius of the law, Miss Green was oblivious to Jane's alarm. "This looks like a simple one-two-three play," the lawyer explained. "There is little doubt that Wally made a material misrepresentation to you in writing. There was such a company as Canadian Countess before it went broke, but never as represented it. Second, influenced by his misrepresentation—few material gain, you understand—you purchased his stock. And third, in consequence, you were damaged. There you are. It's really a quite lovely case of 'Grand theft.'" Despite her admiration of the case, the lawyer did sound a shade regretful when she added, "It is punishable by imprisonment."

Knowing exactly now what she had to do, Jane negotiated her store of reason and announced with superb calm, "I am not going ahead with this. I will simply destroy my notebook."

Recovering from her amazement, and recognizing an unexpected adversary, Miss Green finally asked, "Aren't you being just a bit neurotic?"

"But," blurted Jane, "I like Wally, and I introduced him to a darling girl who may be in love with him. Thank Heaven she's out of town until school starts! After summer school Eleanor had gone to visit with her family. This news gave Miss Green a moment's pause. "Well, is she or isn't she in love with him?"

"I don't even know!" Jane had the grace to realize she was being difficult.

"H-m-m. Now that is some-

"We'd better hold it here in my safe," she said. "That's the best place for our only evidence."

"But my own notes!" Jane protested.

Shrewdly, and with a great show of humor, Miss Green merely replied, "Oh, but suppose something happened to our evidence now. Would you and I want to be accused of compounding the felony?"

Jane streaked for home and, before recovering her breath, began making telephone calls—exactly fourteen of them. One by one, right through her dinner hour and on to late evening, she talked with every one of the Golden Girls she could reach, except Miss Green.

Actually, Jane would have called a special meeting if it hadn't been for Miss Green. But Jane couldn't think of any gracious way to leave her out and she certainly wouldn't want her there—not at this crucial point.

The law, as their attorney said, was clearly little more than a practical institution for cut-and-dried situations, and Jane thought it a great pity and a shocking danger to citizens everywhere that the law utterly ignored nuances of meanings and human relationships.

As she talked with the girls it became apparent that, like herself earlier in the day, none of them, either, had the foggiest notion about the law and its baleful workings, nor had any of them dreamed that Wally was headed for San Quentin.

Like Jane, the girls knew the D.A. in the movies and television as the unrelenting, eagle-eyed foe of murderers, and bigtime operators who made headlines, but whom one did not know. And that a living, ranting, vengeful D.A. would wedge a classmate of theirs into his unsavory agenda divided them, considering everything, between concern for themselves and concern for Wally.

Wally Googins is going to have the finger of accusation or criticism put on him by Phil Petry, so Jane has some disturbing things to hear. Continue the story tomorrow.

Starlings Shift To The Suburbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Modern architecture is driving starlings to the suburbs. The exodus is easing one of Washington's biggest problems.

The birds, which love to roost in the columns and porticos of the capital's old buildings, are finding no crevices in the unbroken steel and glass of the new office buildings.

But the easing of the problem in the city isn't making the suburbs very happy.

Dillon Gave To GOP Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Douglas Dillon, named secretary of the Treasury by President-elect John F. Kennedy, contributed at least $6,000 to the presidential campaign of Republican Richard M. Nixon.

Dillon, a Republican, made a $6,000 contribution to the District of Columbia Republican party. The contribution was listed with others on records filed by the District party with the clerk of the House.

The highest altitude in the city of New Orleans is 15 feet, and the lowest 4 feet below sea level.

Boyle's Fuzzy Forecast As To What Lies Ahead During 1961

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It is time for our annual fuzzy forecast of what lies ahead, and a peek into the crystal ball shows:

You'll have plenty of fun in 1961—that is, if you like excitement.

It promises to be a stirring year for all, full of adventure for anybody who doesn't take off his hearing aid when opportunity knocks at the door.

Just in jest, here are a few predictions: Ten-thousand Americans will write and ask the new president, John F. Kennedy, if they can have as a souvenir the new silk topper he'll wear at his inauguration on Jan. 20. But Kennedy, with typical New England thrift, will keep it handy on a White House shelf—just in case he needs it for a repeat performance of the ceremony in 1965.

Caroline Kennedy, 3, the President's photogenic daughter, will receive a $100,000 offer to act as moderator on a TV panel show featuring the views of prekindergarten age children on world problems.

Harvard University will move to Washington, D. C., so its students can attend classes in the same city where most of Harvard's faculty is employed.

The accent on youth, so evident in U. S. politics, will have some odd repercussions as everyone tries to keep in step with the trend.

Nikita Khrushchev will buy a toupee, Jack Benny will issue a statement saying that a check of his birth record shows that he is really only 38, not 39—and Lassie, who has been showing a few wrinkles around the eyes lately, will undergo a secret face lifting.

Sophie Tucker will change her act, and come on stage rolling a hoop and wearing Mary Pickford curls. Women's fashions will feature "the high school look," and stenographers will come to work wearing bobby sox.

The ailing economy will be bolstered by a $2 billion boom in the hair dyeing business. Anyone with gray hair will be tabbed an exhibitionist.

Casey Stengel, ex-manager of the New York Yankees, will consider starting his baseball career all over again as a rookie outfielder for the Kansas City Athletics.

A few other developments: On the international scene, the U. S. Air Force will pull the blooper of the year. It will send up a plane to snag the capsule of an American missile and come down instead with a Soviet capsule. This capsule will contain three Soviet dogs, an autographed portrait of Khrushchev addressed "to the president of Mars," and an unsigned note from a Soviet engineer saying, "Help!"

The United Nations will publish a cook book in an attempt to get out of debt.

Throughout most of the world college students will demonstrate against their governments with banners, rocks and home-made grenades. In this country students will demonstrate vacuum cleaners to earn tuition money.

On the home front look for these things: Science will develop a palatable new food that can't be canned or frozen but has to be kept and cooked in the old-fashioned way. Housewives will immediately boycott it.

Some remorseful woman will start a campaign to give equal rights back to men.

Medicine will develop a marvelous new wonder drug to cure all the ailments caused by the marvelous new wonder drugs of 1956, 1957, 1958, 1959 and 1960. Unfortunately, it too will have side effects.

In an attempt to hold the line against rising prices, some bars again will feature the five-cent beer. It will be served, however, in a shot glass.

A producer will startle Hollywood by a radical idea—a picture costing less than $7½ million and running less than five hours.

All in all, we face an interesting and adventurous year.

Television Industry Has Its Own Type Calendar

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—For most people, this is the beginning of a new year. It is a day to throw away old calendars and tack up new. It is a time to practice writing 1961, instead of 1960, on letters and checks. It is a period in which to try to stay with a few resolutions for self-betterment.

It would be nice if the television industry had such a time, a certain day on which it could sweep its decks of an old accumulation and face the future feeling free of ties to a past year. However, the television calendar is a strange one, and this isn't TV's new year.

For instance, television recognizes—indeed is almost a slave to—seconds, minutes and hours. It breaks a day, however, into strange segments: there is day time (for women), local time and prime time, the last a period which usually starts at 7:30 p. m. and continues until 10:30 or 11. It has a special period late Sunday afternoon reserved for what it believes is an "egghed audience."

The TV calendar ignores months but pays close attention to 13-week periods, called "cycles," four of which make up a year.

If there is such a thing as a TV new year, it comes after mid-September and continues into October.

Kennedy Taking 'Show-Me' Attitude On Nikita's Bid

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy appears to be taking a "show-me"—although polite attitude toward Soviet Premier Khrushchev's bid for new and reasonable relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Such an attitude seems evident in Kennedy's New Year's Day reply to the Kremlin leader, as well as in his remarks at a news conference Sunday.

Kennedy expressed hope that relations between the two nations would be marked by good will in the months ahead. But he had no comment on Khrushchev's offer to bury the hatchet over the U2 spy plane episode.

He also refused to say whether the Soviets have been using private channels to put out feelers to him regarding Soviet-American relations.

Today the president-elect is putting all business matters aside temporarily for a plane trip to Miami to see the Navy and Missouri football teams play in the Orange Bowl.

He called the news conference primarily for discussion of a Kennedy-appointed study committee's recommendations for federal aid to areas of chronic unemployment.

As it turned out much of the conference was devoted to questions and answers about the Khrushchev Moscow assertions that he wants the U2 spy plane incident "to become a thing of the past" and related matters.

On New Year's Eve Khrushchev sent Kennedy holiday greetings in a message which also said: "We hope that the relations between the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. will develop in the new year on a new and reasonable basis, the basis of common desire of the peoples of our countries for peace and friendship."

After dispatching the message the Soviet leader went to a party in the Kremlin and in a speech there alluded to the shooting down of the U2 spy plane over the Soviet Union last May.

The upshot of the incident was a bitter turn in U.S.-Soviet relations and the jangling of the American pilot, Francis Gary Powers.

"We would like this unfortunate incident to become a thing of the past with the departure of the old President (Eisenhower)," Khrushchev said in his weekend speech.

Kennedy said he had sent this reply: "Appreciate greatly your new year's greetings and express the hope that in the coming months relations between our two countries will be marked by goodwill and a common desire for peace."

As for the U2 episode, the Soviet news agency Tass said Khrushchev brought up the matter when he recalled a statement made by Mr. Kennedy during the U.S. election campaign that if he were president he would express his regret to the Soviet government over the U2 plane flight.

Responding to a question, Kennedy said his secretary of state-designate, Dean Rusk, is keeping him abreast of the situation in Laos where Red forces are reported to have entered the country from Communist North Viet Nam.

Rusk is maintaining liaison for Kennedy with the State Department and the Central Intelligence Agency.

In other developments over the weekend, Kennedy: 1. Picked a Negro crusader for civil rights to be chief of the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency. The high level job went to Robert C. Weaver, vice chairman of New York City's Housing and Redevelopment Board.

2. Ignored a protest by Massachusetts Gov. Foster Furcolo and chose Harvard Dean McGeorge Bundy to serve as his White House assistant on national security matters.

The governor of Kennedy's home state called Bundy unqualified for the job and said it was incredible that Kennedy even had considered him.

The president-elect replied that Bundy had opposed election of Furcolo in 1958 and that the governor was objecting to selection of Bundy on that grounds.

3. Reported he had offered a position in the new administration to Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the late president, but that Roosevelt told him he "has some obligations" and wanted time to think about the offer.

4. Appointed Boiesfeullet Jones to be a special assistant on health and medical matters in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Jones, vice president and administrator of health services at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., will serve under Abraham Ribicoff, Connecticut governor named by Kennedy to be secretary of welfare.

Terry Suspects Tax Hike Needed

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Gov.-elect Terry Sanford, preparing for his inauguration this week, says he feels tax boosts will be necessary if the state is to meet the costs of its expanding operations.

The incoming chief executive said in an interview at his home here Sunday he would have a statement on the matter within the next few days. He and his staff are giving the Tar Heel fiscal situation a thorough study, he explained.

He said he feels that during his administration "We'll make more progress than we've ever made before. I think we've got the brightest opportunities we've ever had and I think we'll make the most of them."

Sanford, who campaigned chiefly on a plank of expensive school improvement programs, said during his quest for the governorship he would "have the courage" to ask for new taxes if necessary.

Other than money, Sanford said he feels the 1961 General Assembly's toughest problems will be constitutional redistricting and legislative reapportionment.

The 1960 census took a congressional man from the state and necessitated a rearrangement of the present 12 districts to 11 districts. The state constitution calls for legislative reapportionment every 10 years. It was not performed during the 1950s.

The 43-year-old Sanford takes over at noon Thursday frof Gov. Luther H. Hodges, who moves to Washington, to become secretary of commerce in President-elect John Kennedy's cabinet.

Hodges was in Washington today to spend a couple of days breaking in on his new job.

Electronic Brain Played To Draw

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Dallas fire department's champion checker player battled an electronic brain to a draw this weekend but he won't fool the $14,000 electronic date processing system again with the same play.

After losing the first game to the IBM 704, Capt. O. G. Sartain came back with a new approach that stumped the machine. When the machine had a king and four players left while Sartain had a king and five players the printer announced "704 concedes defeat."

"But it will never be beaten again that way," an IBM expert said. "Now the series is recorded on tape and the machine will counteract the play if anyone tries that method again."

Eight Children Perish In Columbus House Fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Flames, like a giant brush fire, were shooting out the front door and window of the Cowan house. Then I heard awful screams from a woman and I saw a man standing near a tree about 20 feet from the house, yelling: "Get my kids out of that house! They're burning up!"

This was the description given by Lawrence Calloway, a neighbor of James Russell Cowan, 38, whose eight children perished Sunday in a pre-dawn fire that swept the Negro family's two-story frame dwelling.

Calloway said he saw Fannie Cowan, 28, running around the back of the house, screaming, "My children are in there! Help! Get them out!"

But, said Calloway, "nobody could get in that house."

The victims were Connell Foster, 14; Reuben Johnson, 8; Frank Lee Steaple, 12; all Cowan's stepsons, and all five of the couple's children—James, 5; Druesella, 4; Robert, 3; Lawrence, 18 months; and Judith, 7 months.

All we found were eight charred bodies," said asst. fire chief Glenn Barr.

Mrs. Cowan received severe burns over half of her body and was reported in fair condition at a hospital. Cowan was treated for minor burns on his head, neck and hands.

"I had laid down on the bed in the front room with my wife and our 18-month-old son, Lawrence Eugene, who was asleep beside her, and it seemed only minutes before I felt my wife shaking me by the shirt.

"Get up, get up, the house is on fire!" she screamed. It was like a dream, a nasty dream. I got up, confused. I saw flames licking at the bed. It looked like somebody was shooting a flame thrower through the house.

"Through smoke I saw my wife across the room. All I could think of was to get her out of there. I was so excited I couldn't think or I would have grabbed my son off the bed.

"I turned to the front door. I had a rug over it to keep out the cold—and a lock. Frantically, I tore the rug down, broke the lock off and pushed the door open.

"Then I ran across the room, lifted my wife up and carried her out of the house. I dumped her in the snow.

"When I went back to the door, flames puffed out and knocked me down.

"When I couldn't get back into the house, the first thing I thought of was to get my wife out of the cold. So I carried her two blocks to my mother's. Then I ran back to the house.

"By the time I got back the firemen were there and they told me to stay away."

Funeral Set Tuesday For James L. Outlaw

New Year 'Shot' In' At Cherryville

CHERRYVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The new year was "shot in" this morning as has been the custom here for more than 150 years. But the celebration was 24 hours late this time because the holidays was on Sunday.

The shooters, with ancient muskets, roamed the streets firing the weapons and chanting an ancient greeting believed to have originated in Germany hundreds of years ago.

For the first time in nearly 60 years, Uncle Sidney Beam and Dock Shull were not among the shooters. Uncle Sid, 91, died in 1960. The shooters each year trek through the town all night and well into New Year's Day.

Colored News

Funerals
Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Ada Clemmons, wife of Rev. O. C. Clemmons of Stokes, who died Sunday night, are incomplete.

Funeral services for Mr. Wilbur Clark, who died Sunday in New York, will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in New York.

Surviving are his father, Mr. Shady Clark.

Builders Needed

TOKYO (AP)—Carpenters and bricklayers are getting so scarce in Japan that construction companies are offering skilled men taxi rides to work. The construction ministry estimates the country needs 30,000 more bricklayers and 100,000 more carpenters.

Mishap That Marred New Year's Eve

NEW YEARS EVE TRAFFIC ACCIDENT... this car ran on sidewalk at Evans and Third St. late Saturday afternoon.

Quickening Pace For Holiday Traffic Toll

Investigation is continuing in a collision which occurred at the intersection of Evans and Third St. at 6:45 p.m. Saturday, Greenville Police reported today.

According to officers, drivers of the cars were Charlie Whichard, 52-year-old Negro of Fleming St. and George Orbert Harfington, 37 of 1506 E. Fourth St.

Damage to the Whichard car was set at $150 while damage to the Harrington vehicle was placed at $300.

Investigation is also continuing, police said, in two hit and run cases which occurred last night in the Dickinson Ave.-Boyd Ave. section.

Investigators said a car owned by Fred Wilson, Jr., 1103 Hardy St., Ayden, first struck a utility pole on Dickinson Ave. between Boyd Ave. and Center St. ten minutes later, collided with a car driven by James E. Stocks, 38 of 903 West Third St., at the intersection of Boyd Ave. and Chestnut St.

Damage to the Stocks auto was set at $60 and total damage to the Wilson car was placed at $25.

The first mishap was reported at 6 p.m. while the second one was reported at 6:15 p.m. police said.

They noted that the Wilson car was found abandoned a few minutes later, and when questioned about the collisions, Wilson reported the vehicle had been stolen.

Cold, Snow In Northern States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It was cold and snowy across the northern two-thirds of the nation today.

Stormy weather which hammered sections of the Northeast on New Year's Day diminished during the night. Up to two feet of snow was reported in the Pulaski-Pineville and Filton areas of New York. Near Lake Ontario, Upstate New York was hardest hit by the storm which sharply curtailed travel on highways and by air.

The snow storm moved out of New England during the night but fairly heavy snow was reported in Maine. Lighter amounts hit northern Vermont but skies appeared clearing in southern New England.

Light snow continued during early morning over the northern Rockies, the northern Plains, parts of the upper and middle Mississippi Valley, the Great Lakes region and the Appalachians.

Severe cold weather stung the eastern Dakotas and Minnesota with below zero temperatures. It was 23 below in International Falls, Minn., on the Canadian border. It was 93 degrees warmer in Miami, a mild 70. Another cold spot was Fraser, Colo., with -20.

School Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week, as announced by the supervisor of city school cafeterias, are as follows:

Tuesday—hot dog with chili and onions, cole slaw, green peas and carrots, pineapple cake.

Wednesday—ham biscuits, macaroni and cheese, steamed cabbage, pickled beets and fruit cup.

Thursday—vegetable soup, pimento cheese and peanut butter and date sandwiches, pineapple salad and cup cake.

Friday—fish sticks, creamed potatoes, string beans, corn muffins, lemon pie.

UN Troops Fire Four Fire Calls On Tribal Rebels So Far In 1961

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Nigerian troops of the United Nations killed 10 rebel Baluba tribesmen who attacked a stranded rail wagon on the line outside Albertville in Katanga Province.

A U.N. spokesman said today the Nigerians were escorting a gang of rail workers.

The Balubas attacked with old shotguns and bows and arrows and the Nigerians shot 10 of them down in machinegun fire. They believed several more were wounded.

The United Nations was expected to give another stiff warning to Belgium against letting Congolese government troops use the Belgian-administered trust territory of Ruanda-Urundi as a base for striking at rebels.

Congolese troops sent by Col. Joseph Mobutu attempted to march into Kivu Province from neighboring Belgian territory Sunday but were beaten off in a four-hour battle with rebels.

Mobutu's troops had been flown to Usumbura in Ruanda-Urundi, and were transported 90 miles to the Kivu border in Belgian army trucks. They retreated into Ruanda-Urundi when defeated by the rebels who pledge loyalty to ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba.

U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold had warned Belgium against permitting the territory to be used as a jump-off point for Congolese army action against rebels in Kivu.

Leopoldville, Congo

Greenville firemen have answered four calls so far this year, officers reported today.

At 12:30 a.m. yesterday, 30 minutes after the new year began, fire units were dispatched to West Fifth and Contentnea Sts. when Box 154 was turned in.

Fire officers said no fire was found and the alarm was listed as false.

At 6:15 a.m. yesterday, fire units were dispatched to 202 1/2 East 10th St. when Box 65, at the intersection of East 10th and Contentnea Sts. was turned in.

Firefighters reported heavy damage resulted to a bedroom in the dwelling from a fire which apparently started from a bed in the room. Cause of the blaze was not determined.

No damage resulted from a grass fire at the intersection of Fourth and Greene Sts. at 7 p.m. yesterday, firemen said.

Fire officers listed no damage in a call received at 8:44 a.m. today.

Officers said they responded to a call from 115 East Ninth St. when a light fixture overloaded and started smoking.

Young Artists' Exhibit Is 'Previewed' At Art Center

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

Some of them may not be professionals—but they probably will be. The "Young Artists of Eastern North Carolina."

Some of them already show signs of making a dent somewhere in the vast realm of art, in the fields of Broadway sets and teaching, and the larger world of art beyond college and beyond apprenticeship.

A chance to "preview" some of this work has availed itself at the Greenville Art Center, where four young eastern North Carolina artists have displayed selections from their work.

Joe Stell, East Carolina College graduate, is now designing sets and lighting for theaters in New York City. Included in his presentation are three pieces of sculpture, some seascapes, water color, and pen and ink and wash pieces.

The seascapes, or sketches of seaside scenes, would delight any person in this section of the state, so familiar with the nearby coast. Besides realistic drawings of people, there are also pictures of stage settings and drawing of a stage set.

Nelson Dudley, senior art major at East Carolina College, has on display a colored block print, "Forms and Water," which was accepted for last year's North Carolina Artists Exhibition.

Another of his etchings, "The Lamp," is included in the exhibition this year.

A third selection is a lithograph, "Southern Gothic," a black and white replica of a woman's head and shoulders.

A third artist, James B. Roper, also an E.C.C. art major, has a representative selection of graphic art and an oil.

"Woman and Child" is made from a plaster plaque; "Edith" is a lithograph; "Night Life" is an etching; and there is a large and colorful abstract in oil.

Ed Lancaster of Vanceboro, another senior art major, has provided a change in subject. Entering the north gallery, the viewer finds three oils—all very abstract.

All untitled, Lancaster has blended pastels into resplendent and pleasing rather than shocking colors and forms. In two of the paintings, the art subject—providing there was one once—is lost. The viewer must appreciate the basic art principles here of form, shape and color.

A third oil painting provides the viewer with some sort of semblance of a subject, comparable to a person sleeping, and wrapped in blankets. The colors, all pastels, blend into a pleasant effect.

Three of the group exhibition—Dudley of Greenville, Lancaster of Roper of Belhaven—plan to teach several new acquisitions are available for scrutiny at the center, including the recently unveiled portrait of Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, the center's director and longtime connoisseur of the arts. The artist, William Fields of Fayetteville and New York, has painted many European, as well as American and North Carolina, notables.

Selections of jugoven pottery and the Louis Orr collection are, as usual, on display. The gallery is open Tuesday through Saturdays, 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Miss Barbara Batchelor is hostess.

OLIVER B. GREENE, director of "The Gospel Hour" daily radio program for 26 years, and editor and author, will be guest speaker at the Grace Free Will Baptist Church Jan. 3-15 at 7:45 services nightly.
