

Urban Renewal, Federal Housing Referendum Slated

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor. Urban Renewal and federal housing will be submitted to the voters of Greenville in a referendum as the result of last night's public hearing.

City councilmen unanimously approved a motion to this effect after a public hearing on the question of establishing a Public Housing Authority.

What some say was the largest group ever to turn out for a public hearing thronged first the City Court room to overflowing and then the County Court room.

West explained its purpose as being to determine whether or not to create a Housing Authority "to investigate and check into the needs of our city for Public Housing."

the people." Jaycee president George Coffman discussed the Jaycees' position on the question.

housing, thus avoiding federal housing. The group heard William I. Cochran, executive director of the Urban Renewal Commission, described the proposed Urban Renewal project.

In the United States had accomplished such an Urban Renewal project without public housing.

In any case, a city can be eligible for public housing only after: 1. A local Housing Authority is established under the laws of North Carolina and 2. The City Council has taken official action to authorize a request for units and set the number of units for which they apply.

not been proved. U. A. R. Delegate Omar Loufi, the council president for 36 years, ended the debate with a brief statement expressing the hope "that nothing will be done which in any way aggravate the tension between the United States and Cuba."

Currie's Final Report Sees N. C. Fiscal Status 'Good'

RALEIGH (AP)—Revenue Commissioner James S. Currie closed the tax books Friday for the first six months of the fiscal year and called the picture good, "especially in view of the soft spots in the national economy."

Currie said December was "month of stability with little change for both the general and highway funds."

General fund collections totaled $21.7 million against the $15.9 million for December, 1959. Withholding income tax receipts, not in effect in 1959, equaled the amount of the boost, Currie said.

Temporary Tax Cut Is Advanced As 'Solution'

NEW YORK (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy has under study a call for temporary income tax cuts in the spring if the business slump takes a serious turn for the worse.

The call was sounded Thursday night by a committee appointed by Kennedy to evaluate the state of the nation's economy. It recommended that the new administration act swiftly to put into effect a sheaf of emergency measures designed to achieve recovery without resort to tax reductions in these times of international crisis.

Kennedy intends to return to New York Sunday morning for more pre-inaugural meetings. In advance of Thursday's conference on the economy, he met two hours with leaders of several farm organizations to discuss what he has called the farm crisis. He asked the group to come up with farm program recommendations at another session scheduled for Jan. 26 in Washington.

Glamorizing A Cake Mix

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Cooks vie to see who can give the most interesting home touch to a cake mix. What a suggestion? Take your cue from the famous Nesselrode Pudding and blend some of the flavors that distinguish the original dessert.

1/2 cup instant sweet chocolate flavored beverage mix
1/4 cup chopped cooked chestnuts
2 tablespoons chopped raisins
2 tablespoons chopped glace cherries
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
Make up cake according to package directions for two 8-inch layers. Whip together the cream and beverage mix until very stiff; fill and frost cake sides and top with mixture. Mix together the remaining ingredients; pat gently around sides of cake. Refrigerate until served.

ANOTHER WAY

Here's a different variation of the Nesselrode cake. Cut each of three cake layers in half horizontally to make six layers. Fill with rich chocolate butter cream; spread some around the sides. Now pat a mixture of cooked chopped chestnuts, raisins, glace cherries and grated orange rind over the side frosting. As a final touch, add a little cooked chestnut puree to a confectioner's sugar frosting flavored with marshmallow and use for the top of the cake.

Make Room Look Larger: Buy Proper Furniture

to decorating. Don't buy or use something because you "always had it at home."
Limit furnishings to necessary objects. Choose light scaled convertible couch and chairs. Newer narrow drawer cabinet units offer space economy, and can hold clothes, silver, china. It's surface is useful for television, objects of art, a lamp, magazines.
Consider painting your floors the same color as the walls to make your room look twice as large. One experiment worked out by a do-it-yourselfer in a one-room apartment involved bone white walls and matching floors. The paint was mixed with water—4 parts water to one part paint. (Use plastic, rubber or water base paint. The formula will not work with oil paint.) The paint should be thin enough so that when it dries the natural grain of the wood will be evident. White gives an antique finish that grows with wear. After the floor is dry, coat with a clear transparent varnish, then wax it, and you can mop it clean after that.
If the paint is too thick and you can't see the grain when you experiment on the first board, add more water.
A table may be more practical than a desk in a tiny room. It can be used for eating, writing, reading, and it's the ideal place to put the bright light. There are small, chic tables available suitable for the purpose. Some offer washability and are impervious to stains. White formula can go with everything. Choose comfortable dining chairs that may double for company seating.
There should be a convenient place to store blankets, pillows, linens for the convertible bed so that closet space is not used up with all the bulky bedding. Newer cedar chests are ideal for the purpose. There are chests to match any decor. Early American, French Provincial, and some with an Oriental flair. One modern captain's chest, available in red or black, may be used with a matching two-drawer item, if more storage is required. It can serve singly as a window seat or used chest on chest. Many chests can be used as coffee and end tables.
Use upper wall space for shelves to hold books, clock, candlesticks, other items. A shelf around the room can hold a collection of glass, pewter, rocks, shells.
BLEACHING HINT
Excessive quantities of bleach do not do a better job of whitening. In fact, it may weaken the cloth.
"A beautifully scrubbed soap-and-water look" . . . exemplified by Princess Grace of Monaco—is the hallmark of lovely American women at home or abroad.

New Year's News On Complexion Care

Now is the time for all good women to come to the aid of their complexions! Icy winds and near-zero temperatures take their toll if not combated by a sensible program of skin care.
This includes thorough drying after the daily bath or shower, particularly if you are going outdoors soon after. Hands should be protected from snapping by wearing gloves even when just going from one doorway to another. Each time you wash hands and face, finish by applying a bit of lotion, cream, or oil.

Original Ideas In Home Enchant All

Rugged individualism is a quality that should be capitalized on, especially when decorating or redecorating your home. Original ideas are the ones that make the living room or the bedroom into areas that enchant and delight guests as well as members of the family who use them all year-round. If you use the services of a professional decorator, let him know what your tastes are in color, color, and style. If, for instance, you enjoy traveling to exotic far-away places, the room theme should be built around this pleasure. Once you have planned and selected a basic motif for your room, ways in which it can be carried out are endless. If it's the bedroom that's being re-done, it is well-worth while to check the old mattress and springs. You may need new bedding equipment. Complete relaxing comfort is important for obtaining the greatest enjoyment from your new setting.

Wash Soft Beauty Into Angora Sweater

If you were among the lucky girls whose Christmas gifts included a beautiful and soft angora sweater, here's a tip on how to keep it fluffy.
After laundering in cool soap or detergent suds, rinse well, blot in a towel, and spread it flat to dry away from direct heat. Then, shake the sweater carefully three or four times during the drying process. This brings up the nap and prevents matting.

Matching 'Em Up

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—If you're a working girl who isn't completely sold on living alone, you may be tempted to exchange your privacy for a roommate who will help you face the landlord on the first of every month.
Yet if you're not the roommate type, you may live miserably ever after. And so might your roommate.
Just as some personalities are happier never getting married, certain singletons are better off not sharing their domiciles.
This comes from an enterprising young real estate agent, Lloyd Baum, who operates a roommate placement service.
His own frustrating search for a compatible man to share the high cost of his big city apartment led the handsome 32-year-old bachelor into business last spring.
Since then he has found a suitable tenant for himself, and he has also evaluated apartments, interviewed, investigated and eventually matched up hundreds of applicants. Baum says he has had almost 100 per cent satisfied clients.
During an applicant's interview he gathers personal and financial information and makes notes about appearance and personality traits. He follows up by questioning past landlords, acquaintances and creditors.
If the professional roommate-finder does not like what he discovers, or if a woman hedges about her age or balks at certain questions, Baum becomes wary. One applicant is extremely emotional, strongly opinionated, or unduly withdrawn, he politely suggests she would be happier living alone.
However, for those who are the types who can sacrifice privacy without suffering, there are other advantages besides shared expenses. Two can divide cooking and housekeeping chores and two can multiply friendships.
Baum offers these rules as a guide to being a better roommate:

1. Make up your mind that nobody is going to see eye-to-eye all the time.
2. Be considerate of the other person's habits.
3. Keep reasonably neat about belongings, but don't be so fastidious that you are nerve-wracking to live with.
4. Reach a common agreement about house rules. Avoid being bossy.
5. Hire someone to clean the apartment at least once a week, if possible. The expenditure will prevent battles on the homefront.
6. Work out an equitable agreement for sharing food bills according to the average number of meals eaten at home.
7. Don't borrow your roommate's clothing or toilet articles.
8. Be quiet but don't be too quiet. Nobody likes to live with a "veget."
9. Entertain and expect your roommate to entertain. But keep each other advised as to expected guests so that each may or may not join the party as he likes.
10. Respect each other's desire for occasional privacy.

Ideal Wall Covering

An ideal wall covering for funerals at the scribbling stage is a washable, plastic-coated fabric. Just give your young mural artist crayons made with a soluble soap base which they can "erase" with a sudsy cloth.

Steady Stream Of Citizens Spoke At Public Hearing

WALTER HASTY

RICHARD W. HARDY

JOHN GRIER

HERBERT LEE

CHARLES COBB

REV. J. A. NIMMO

REYNOLDS MAY

BROOKS BEDDINGFIELD

There was much comment, most of it in opposition, at the Public Hearing on creation of a Public Housing Authority last night.

A steady stream of citizens came before the councilmen to express their views on the question. From the 8:30 starting time, until the final motion picture was passed after 12:30, there was scarcely a dull moment in the hearing.

Yet it was orderly and tempers seldom flared.

Councilmen first heard John Grier urge them to consider a neighborhood conservation plan as a prerequisite to any Urban Renewal project.

He contended there were housing units over Greenville which were far below adequate standards and submitted photos to show this. He recommended a block-by-block program to clean up and improve this property.

Richard W. Hardy, Negro, told the council they were "looking at a man who knows nothing but poverty." He asked the council to "reject this program."

He said Urban Renewal Executive Director William L. Cochran "painted a beautiful picture" of the project at a meeting he attended.

"It is just like I would be dressed up in a beautiful suit but hungry and broke," he declared.

Rev. O. J. Rooks said he agreed the city needed better housing. He said he was "also in favor of a housing project if it is put someplace where it won't disturb other people's property."

However, he said, "I'm not in favor of confiscating other people's property."

Herbert W. Lee of Home Savings and Loan said he would oppose "any project which endangers or even tends to endanger the rights of private property."

He said he and Clarence Tugwell of First Federal Savings and Loan had talked to savings and loan officials all over the state.

"They have all given us the same answer. Fight this public housing with everything you have. It will be the ruination of your city."

Reynolds May told the council that if he sincerely believed public housing would benefit Greenville he would work for it. "I don't think it will benefit Greenville," he declared.

Dr. John Wooten said "I must take a stand against this because I'm against the federal government taking over any business."

Charles Cobb, president of the Greenville Property Owners Association, introduced Mattie Bradley, Negro, who said she was 70 years old and had purchased houses for income in her retirement years.

She brought a roar from the crowd when she asked: "Where's the council? I may be looking at the mayor. I want to see you."

She said it was her ambition to "say a few words to Mayor West and the council."

"Before you condemn us, put yourselves in our positions," she told them.

J. T. Williams told the council, "I think we ought to take a vote and if nobody is for it, go home."

D. D. Garrett, Negro, said he was not taking sides. However, he stated, "It's kind of rough to get $8 a week rent out of a $15 a week salary."

Rev. J. A. Nimmo said he represented 300 to 400 citizens from the Sycamore Hill Baptist Church. He reported his group opposed the Urban Renewal project.

"In the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost please do not interfere with the House of God," he declared.

The church is located in the proposed Shore Drive Redevelopment area.

George Garrett, Negro, said, "We only hear one side. It seems like everybody is against this. People don't usually come into your home until they are invited. Now somebody invited this. Where are they?"

Attorney Lubie Stocks told the council he liked Greenville. "It is a fine city and one reason I think it is because we don't have public housing."

Rev. W. J. Hadden said, "I don't believe in socialism but I believe less in the kind of housing some folks are forced to live in by the very economy of the town."

City Attorney R. B. Lee said to the group, "Why are we here tonight? A petition has been filed with the City Council. When this is done the law provides they shall call a public hearing."

"They're here and you're here simply because the law gives you the opportunity to be here."

AT PUBLIC HEARING . . . Mayor West makes statement. On left are Councilmen Harvey and Stafford. On right Councilmen Aldridge and King.

Policemen Save Three From Fire

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Three policemen crawled into a blazing rooming house early today and rescued three occupants, but one roomer perished in the fire.

Three times the policemen formed a human chain lying on the floor and wormed their way into the building and each time they led someone to safety.

The officers and firemen were not able to reach 56-year-old William Gilchrist Smith until the fire was extinguished. Smith, who was spending his first night in the rooming house, died.

Patrolman R. E. Vreen spotted the flames from about a block away while driving a patrol car. He reported it by radio and said he would attempt to enter the frame house to see if anyone was inside. Patrolmen J. H. Corbett and W. E. Aman heard Vreen's report and came to help him.

With his nightstick, Vreen smashed open the front door and the three patrolmen, holding to each other's feet, crawled in. They reached 88-year-old Mrs. Geneva Tompkins, jerked her from a bed and led her out.

The policemen re-entered the building and rescued Mrs. Edell Fulcher, 56-year-old operator of the rooming house. On their third entry, the officers reached 45-year-old Herman Stocks and brought him out.

The landlord put Smith to bed after 6 p.m. and removed a burning cigarette from the bed a few minutes later.

Police Detective Sgt. J. M. Bryan said the fire appeared to have been of accidental origin, although an investigation was continuing. Fire Chief Earl Milliner said experts from his department would attempt to pin down the cause later in the day.

Coroner Gordon Doran ordered an autopsy on Smith's body.

San Francisco Hotel Fire Kills At Least 14 People

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — At least 14 persons were killed today as fire swept through the Thomas Hotel in downtown San Francisco.

It was the worst fire here in more than a decade and came on one of the coldest mornings in the city's history.

The four-story structure at 971 Mission St. had 160 cheap-priced rooms and all but 14 were occupied when the fire broke out about 5 a.m.

Fire Chief William Murray said it started in a mattress in a first-floor room and spread to the rear of the building and up the elevator shaft.

The dead included at least one woman.

"I'm afraid there'll be more," said Chief Murray. "We've just barely got the fire controlled and we're still finding bodies."

Some of the victims were trapped in their rooms by the flames; others were asphyxiated. Ironically, the chief said, the fire was seen earlier and thought to be extinguished.

"The guy in 42 smelled smoke in 41," Murray said. "He found a mattress smoldering and poured water on it. Then he went back to bed."

The man in room 41 was identified as Ray Gorman. The man in room 42 was Ed Saylor. Both were taken to emergency hospitals, critically burned.

Earl Blake, chief of the city's emergency hospitals, directed a steady flow of ambulances carrying dozens from the hotel.

"There were two or three dozen seriously hurt," he said.

The hotel housed many pensioners and others unable to work.

Many of the older residents were drunk, police said. They had just cashed pension checks and the halls of the burned-out building smelled from ashes, smoke and alcohol.

Some people jumped to safety. Others, including at least two in wheel chairs, were carried out by firemen.

One man, Herbert Isett, tried to descend from the top floor by using a rope made of knotted sheets. The knots parted and Isett fell four stories to the pavement, breaking his back and legs.

Most of the survivors escaped wearing only underwear and they shuffled as they waited in their bare feet for ambulances.

The temperature was 36 degrees, extremely low for San Francisco, and only 7 degrees higher than the lowest ever recorded here, 29 in 1888.

San Francisco Hotel Fire Ensemble Plays For Reception

A piano and string ensemble representing Greenville and East Carolina College presented a program of light classical music last night for those attending a reception for newly inaugurated Governor Terry Sanford at the Governor's Mansion in Raleigh.

The ensemble included Donald Hayes, director of the East Carolina College orchestra and an instructor in the music department; F. Richard Atkinson; Miss Eleanor Timmons of Atlanta, Ga.; Lyle Wilcox, Miss Kay Richardson, Miss Olive Herring and Mrs. Grace Wilson.

Music was played from 7:30 until 11 o'clock. Thousands of persons attended the reception, and their requests were accepted and played by the ensemble.

Governor Sanford had requested that representatives from Greenville and East Carolina College render chamber music at the reception.

The new governor expressed appreciation that the group had come to Raleigh and "liked the fact that Greenville people supported him," it was reported.

Marriage Licenses

The following marriage licenses have been issued to white persons from the office of Mrs. Blair Cox Wheeler, Pitt County register of deeds, since Dec. 30:

Jennings Tucker Allen of Ayden and Laurie Baldree of Rt. 2, Farmville; Joseph Edwin Massey and Bobbie Kay Thompson, both of Tarboro; Wilbur Lee Lupton of Rt. 2, Aurora and Patricia Ann Daniels of Washington, N. C.; John D. Heitman and Beatrice I. Jordan, both of Monmouth, N. J.; Willie Humphrey Joyner and Dorothy Duke Earley, both of Harrellsville.

The following marriage licenses were issued to Negro couples during the same time period:

Andrew Moore of Norfolk, Va. and Catherine E. Foreman of Greenville; Julius Jasper Clark of Rt. 2, Bethel and Shirley Chancey of Rt. 1, Stokes; Fred Lee Mose of Rt. 1, Ayden, and Mattie Ross of Farmville; Tom Ormond and Esther Ree Ellis, both of Farmville; Fred D. Gorham of Farmville and Joyce Ann Mercer of Rt. 2, Farmville.

Good Samaritan Wound Up Hurt

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP)—Larry Wood of Hutchinson tried to be a good samaritan and wound up in a hospital.

Wood, 21, told officers he saw a car weaving on U.S. 50 about 12 miles west of Hutchinson Thursday night. He overtook the car, waved the driver to a stop, and walked back to ask what was wrong.

"I'm not doing too good," Wood quoted the driver as saying. Wood told the man to sit still and he'd get help.

While Wood was making a U-turn in his car, the other car suddenly shot forward and crashed into it, officers said.

Wood suffered lacerations of the face. The other driver, Finus Woolery, Hutchinson barber, suffered cuts and broken ribs. Both were hospitalized.

Woolery was charged with driving while drunk.

Anna Marie Now Asks Citizenship

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Anna Maria Alberghetti, 24, actress and singer from Italy, applied for United States citizenship Thursday.

She has been in the country on a permanent visa since 1955. An immigration official said she will be eligible to take the oath of allegiance in about three months if she passes her examinations.

Miss Alberghetti said her mother and a brother and sister, Paul and Carla, will apply for citizenship today.

Two Showed How A Civil War Could Be Avoided

Editor's Note — The greatest tragedy of the Civil War, argues historian Bruce Cantor, is that it was not in a series of articles, he reports a conversation which indicates how easily men of reason and good will could have reached a compromise.

By BRUCE CANTON
Written For THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of the most tragic things about the coming of the Civil War is the fact that just before the curtain went up two men—possibly without quite realizing it—showed how the business might have been settled.

Late in February, 1861, 10 days or so before the Lincoln administration took office, William H. Seward of New York, who was about to become Lincoln's secretary of state, met at a Washington dinner party with Justice John A. Campbell of the Supreme Court.

Campbell was a good Alabamian, and when Ft. Sumter came under fire he would side with his state. But this night he and Seward, in friendship, discussed the great problem and agreed that the Union ought not to be allowed to break up over the slavery issue.

In their talk they said the things that someone ought to have been saying earlier, out in public—in the national political conventions, in the presidential campaign, in Congress, or somewhere.

Slavery, said Campbell, was a transitory institution; it would inevitably be greatly modified or abandoned altogether in the course of time. Modification in fact was already taking place; for years slavery had been receding in the Upper South, and it was really flourishing now only in the rich plantation area of the Deep South. There slavery was thriving, and it perhaps would be 25 years before that area's expanding needs for slave labor were fully met.

Seward interrupted him here to remark: "Say 50 years." Very well; 50 years, in all, before the institution would have reached the limit of its development. Meanwhile, said Campbell, the most the slavery group could ask was the continued protection of slavery in the states where it already existed. In the territories the battle was lost—New Mexico, for instance, had been open to slave immigration for a full decade and only 29 slaves had been taken there.

Again Seward interrupted: "On July 24—sir." Twenty-four, in 10 years, under full protection of the laws. Was there any sense, asked Justice Campbell, in letting the Union be destroyed over the question of slavery in the territories when slavery obviously was not going to establish itself in the territories in any case? Seward agreed that there was not.

Two Showed How A Civil War Could Be Avoided

Now this talk ended in nothing better than friendly agreement between the Northerner and the Southerner over an after-dinner brandy. But can anyone doubt that if talk of that kind had been carried on openly, in convention and on the police stump and in newspaper columns, over the years, the tragic break-up of the Union might have been averted?

Two men, one from Alabama and one from New York, talking unemotionally in a drawing room could so easily agree that the issue could and should be handled; could agree that the very cause of the dispute was itself dying and would, if men approached it reasonably, presently reduce itself to manageable size. Was it not incumbent, somewhere along the line, on responsible leaders, politicians, editors and plain citizens—to have said the same thing in public?

That is what our democratic machinery is for. It gives us the chance to handle problems which, left to the emotions, become unmanageable. The nation's enduring tragedy is that in 1860 and 1861 that machinery was not used. We have only this haunting record of a conversation between Seward and Campbell to remind us of what might have been done.

Make no mistake about that: The American Civil War was not the "irrepressible conflict." It need not have taken place. It settled nothing that reasonable men of good will could not have settled if they had been willing to make the effort. The record of the war has a variety of meanings. Its most tragic meaning of all is that 600,000 young men lost their lives because their elders had been unwilling to meet a divisive issue with reason and forbearance.

Sanford Setting Ambitious Goals

The inaugural address of Gov. Terry Sanford outlined for North Carolina one of the most ambitious programs of a governor in modern history. It is one which is certain to challenge the resourcefulness and the energies of all the people of the state.

While the program itself calls for progress in almost every field of endeavor for the people of North Carolina, the matter of implementing such a program will determine how successful it is.

As in his campaign for the office of chief executive of the state, Gov. Sanford put at the top of his list public education, which he said should bring about the full development of the talents of North Carolina's young people. He was quick to add, however, that development of education depends on the development of economic conditions which can support better education.

Add to Gov. Sanford's education program his promise of carrying on industrial development with the fervor of Gov. Luther Hodges, and pushing agriculture with the zeal of the late Gov. W. Kerr Scott, and obviously there results a program which holds great promise for the state and its people.

The energies of the new governor will be taxed to the limit during the next four years as he goes about accomplishing these goals he has set for his administration. The energies of the state in terms of manpower, economic resources, must be utilized to the fullest extent if the accomplishments are to be realized.

If the new governor's program is realized during the next four years—even a major part of it—it will in a very real sense bring about in North Carolina a "New Day" of which he so often spoke during the recent campaigns.

It is not a program that will be given unqualified support by all of the people of North Carolina. Neither is it a program which will fill all the needs of the state. As the governor's plans for implementing the program unfolds, however, the people of North Carolina should give careful consideration to them.

The program outlined by Gov. Sanford has great merit and holds great promise of progress in many fields for the betterment of North Carolina in the next four years.

Only A Prelude To The Trying Period Ahead

The long and trying period that has resulted in the break of diplomatic relations between the United States and Cuba is only a prelude to the trying period which lies ahead before more cordial relations will be restored between the two nations.

Though it came as a dramatic surprise, the break of relations by the United States was not unexpected. For two years now the United States has taken increasingly harsh insults and verbal attacks from Cuba's Castro and members of his government. Looking back over the period it appears almost as if Castro was deliberately prodding the United States to break off relations, or even to take more drastic measures against his government.

If that were the purpose, Castro has finally succeeded at least in the immediate goal.

If, on the other hand, Castro was merely trying to find out how far he could push the United States and still retain diplomatic relations, there is some hope for better relations between this country and the Castro regime in the future. The most recent statement on the break in relations by the Castro government is seen by some experts as a thinly veiled overture to President-elect John F. Kennedy to restore diplomatic relations with Cuba when his administration begins.

Should the desire of the Castro government for renewed diplomatic relations with this country be genuine, we may expect an easing of tension, rather than a build-up of tension in the weeks and months ahead. Should the break be only one step in some plan Castro may have, we may expect tension to mount between the two countries.

As for the action of the incoming president in connection with U. S.-Cuban relations diplomatic relations should not be restored until the Castro regime indicates in good faith a genuine desire for better relations between the two nations.

Confidence And Optimism Seen

By LYNN NISBET
Perhaps the most marked characteristic of the attitudes exhibited by attendees at the inauguration of Governor Terry Sanford was a spirit of optimism and confidence. In some respects this indicated a passing of the buck attitude.

Folks from all over the state reported that 1960 had not been too bad, but neither had it been very good as compared with long range averages. But there was universal hope that 1961 will be better, largely because the new young leaders who have proclaimed New Day and New Frontier programs are going to make it better. There was disappointing lack of acceptance of responsibility on part of the individual citizens to share their part of the load.

This attitude of confidence (?) in capacity of the other fellow to do the job was expressed in answers to the roll call of the members of the Democratic executive committee at its meeting Wednesday afternoon. There were 75 members present, just about one-third of the total, and 63 proxies. That made a little more than the required majority to constitute a quorum for doing business. But—at least half a dozen of those who answered by proxy were in Raleigh that day, but just did not bother to attend the meeting. Belief was that the matters to be voted upon had already been decided by the Party leaders, so why should the rank and file bother.

The meeting was very perfunctory and although the newly nominated national committeeman, Henry Hall Wilson, made a speech calling for enthusiastic support of the Democratic party in off-years as well as during election campaigns; and the new full-time executive secretary of the State committee, Wallace Hyde, eloquently pleaded for enthusiastic cooperation, the audience remained passive.

DISTINCTIVE—There is something about a political gathering different from any other sort of meeting. The distinction is hard to explain. The same people will attend a business or professional convention and take developments in stride. At these political sessions there is always suspicion that somebody is holding back, or double-talking, or carefully watching for little mistakes upon which they can capitalize.

There were almost as many "exes" in the throngs crowding the Sir Walter lobby Wednesday and Thursday as there were members of the upcoming Legislature. They quite obviously disliked the "ex" role. And there were also a lot of hopefuls looking to future official connections. The scene was brightened—and confused—by the presence of almost as many women as men. That is due to the fact that the Sir Walter Cabinet is a continuing organization, once a member always a member. The Cabinet is about 30 years old, composed of wives of Legislators and State officials. It is officially "unofficial" but the potency of its political influence has been felt in many sessions of the Legislature during the past three decades.

READY—The Secretary of State's office is ready with the 1961 session. The bright new volume, without a name or a mark on its pages, was prominently displayed on the main desk in the office Wednesday. "I just thought," said Secretary Thad Eure, "that somebody might want to sign up while attending the inauguration—although signing is not required until the Legislature convenes next month."

At last report he had no signatures.

Events Abroad Shaping Future

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—This is that shadowy time when the outgoing president's statements look more like historic documents than words which have to be acted on and the incoming president is speechless until he takes office.

Yet, no matter what either man thinks or says—President Eisenhower or President-elect Kennedy—the future is going to be shaped by events abroad perhaps more surely than anything they could do at home. Before Kennedy assumes office Jan. 20 Eisenhower must send Congress his State of the Union message, his budget message and finally his economic report.

But Congress is run by Democrats, Kennedy has ideas of his own. Eisenhower's State of the Union message will be dutifully read but not acted on. Because this is so, Eisenhower may avoid suggestions and just review his eight years. Within a few weeks after Eisenhower departs Kennedy will probably send Congress his own State of the Union message, just as Eisenhower did after taking over from President Truman in 1953.

Eisenhower didn't follow up Truman's budget message with one of his own—it's too complicated to be put together in days or weeks—but quickly ordered his government agency heads to keep spending below Truman's figures. Kennedy, who has shown less rigidity than Eisenhower in money matters, isn't expected to be as tight as his predecessor. But the Eisenhower budget figures won't be forgotten as soon as the State of the Union message.

They'll serve as a yardstick for Kennedy's critics to measure him any time his programs get more expensive than what Eisenhower had in mind. This may make Kennedy a little self-conscious. It will not necessarily deter him.

As for Eisenhower's economic report—Kennedy has argued the case of economic growth under Eisenhower has been too little. He doesn't have to send this kind of report to Congress in his first year. His ideas will unfold as he goes along, so, in the sense that Eisenhower's two messages and his report will be read but not acted on, his remaining White House days are a shadowy time. But there's another area of shadow, too.

Eisenhower, like any president with a concern for the country and a sense of fairness, must be reluctant to launch the United States in a course of action on foreign affairs which will bind Kennedy to follow it because of its deep commitment.

It can be assumed, therefore, that Eisenhower thought it absolutely necessary to break off diplomatic relations with Cuba before Kennedy came in. Kennedy isn't apt to complain. But if Eisenhower got the United States involved in shooting in Laos, Kennedy could hardly then pull American forces out. Eisenhower has been hesitant about taking drastic steps in Laos.

Still, in the remaining 15 days before Kennedy is sworn in, Laos may become so explosive that Eisenhower will feel compelled to act in a way which Kennedy later could not repudiate or abandon. But Kennedy is coming into office at a time of revolution and increasing turmoil around the earth. His ideas and Eisenhower's will what this country should be doing may be rendered obsolete before the year is out.

Then any present differences between Kennedy and Eisenhower—on defense, spending, foreign aid and entanglements—will seem tiny by comparison with the efforts this country will be forced to make to combat communism and trouble.

Opinions In Brief

"It is not consonant with the spirit of institutions of the American people that a demand should be made upon the public treasury for the solution of every difficulty." — Herbert Hoover.

"The general election of 1960, in which the stakes were never higher, should make every non-voter who could have gone to the polls thoroughly ashamed of himself." — Industrial News Review.

"In the traditional American way, it is more important today than in the past that the good life lies ahead for those who prepare for it. For the haggards, there are still the ditches that will need digging and even here the machines are doing a better job." — The Tulsa World.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
DON'T LOSE FAITH

Are we going to be bombed out of existence?

Probably not. There does seem to be a little more danger now than there has been in recent years. Also it has been the experience of the race that when nations prepare huge military armaments, they eventually use it. On the other hand, we are all thoroughly frightened at what would happen to victor and vanquished alike if a bombing war should come. Both Hitler and the allies in the last war had plenty of poison gas on hand, but the fear of retaliation threw a scare even into Hitler. Will the lords of Moscow keep their heads, or will they try to stake everything on a Pearl Harbor? If you ask me, I would say that the chances are against an atomic war.

Can little people like you and me do anything constructive in this matter? Yes, we can support our government in a policy of firmness and not be misled by any moonshine theories which put too much reliance in the innate goodness of man. We can keep prepared. We can resume testing. We can view all screams for disarmament with a glassy stare. We can decide that we would rather die than be slaves.

But that is not all. As religious people, we must believe that God is still in charge of His creation. Our prayers count with Him—the prayers of the littlest person about the world's largest issues. Don't lose faith in the power of prayer in these days when prayer is needed so desperately.

Trouble Brewing Specialist

Everything Went Right

Yes, I know this isn't National Newspaper Week, or Blow-Your-Own-Horn Week... but after meeting Thursday's deadline and sitting down to scan the finished product I felt a pleasant glow.

Everybody gets that way after a good day's work: the housewife, the carpenter, the bricklayer, the clerk, the student... everybody.

But pawing through the Reflector pages there were any number of features that seemed remarkably good.

For instance there was that big picture of the inaugural ball on the front page and photos of local people who attended on pages 3 and 5 (not many papers this far from Raleigh matched that); and there was that on-the-scene write-up by Anne Keziah, which is another rare item.

Then the editorial page, which included one of Elmer Roesser's more pointed columns; and a 3-paragraph summation of "that ball" by Taylor.

Page seven included some good items in the Business Notes section; and a farseeing education article by Patsy Moore, based on an interview with Superintendent J. H. Rose.

Our sports editor fared well yesterday too. He had a good pre-game story on the Phantoms; and unveiled some stars I didn't even know were in our firmament.

The Associated Press has a Science At Work feature which comes out every other week, alternating with a Focus On Health series. Thursday saw the Science report on page eleven; and I know for a fact it has an interested following.

And have you been following that series of articles by historian Bruce Catton on events leading to the Civil War? It's good reading.

Page thirteen indicated the president-elect is leaving farm crisis solutions to farm leaders, and his future Secretary of Defense is surprising all by really moving in on his job.

Then there was Blondie and Beadie Bailey and Pogo and the classified ads, backed up by stories on the UN and the N.C. House Democrats and Castro's future problems.

I counted six photographs taken by Reflector cameras, all but one involving Pitt County people. And not to be taken lightly, we got a "break" in the timing of the inauguration and inaugural speech, which is a fine thing from the standpoint of afternoon papers.

As previously indicated, the finished product inspired a sense of well-being; augmented, too, by knowledge another Reflector cameraman and reporter (Henry Howard) was in Raleigh covering the inauguration for us... some of his pictures are in today's paper, barring gremlins.

Not every day can be like yesterday's; but it is nice to know the capabilities at hand. Everything about Thursday's edition just seemed to "click". This afternoon's sitting down and savoring the product may leave a grimace instead of a smile; still, there are a number of good days to remember.

Quote...

"Senator Kennedy must now consider what he will ask his appointees to do and what he himself will do to bring about changes in policy which he promised during the campaign. To increase the strength of our defenses, to promote disarmament, to try for a settlement in the Middle East, to deal with the huge problems of newly liberated African peoples, to face up to the windy young dictator in Cuba without alienating the Cuban people, to handle various home-grown economic problems and purposes, including the ambitious task of 'wiping out poverty here in the United States'—such is the appalling load that the incoming President has cheerfully accepted." — New York Times.

About 'Presentation Parasites'

By ELMER ROESSNER
Frederic C. Decker, publisher of Printers' Ink, got himself into an editorial tizzy over "presentation parasites."

A presentation is an affair held by a magazine, television station or other medium to offer advertising men what it offers advertisers. A parasite thereon is an advertising man who attends, sips cocktails, eats and sneaks away.

Mr. Decker wrote about a presentation put on by a mid-western newspaper. Cocktails were plentiful and, after superb food, the pitch took the form of a brief and well-produced color movie.

"But I was shocked and embarrassed for the advertising people in the room," Mr. Decker editorialized. "During the movie there was a steady buzz of conversation and muted laughter. Worse yet, those of us who wanted to watch the movie were constantly disturbed by the constant exodus of stooped-over frames tiptoeing to the doorways.

"When the lights went up the room was half empty. The freeloaders had had their Scotch and roast beef, and fled."

THE OTHER SIDE
As a business commentator, I have attended many presentations arranged for advertising men and many presentations made for the press by advertising men and their publicity men. In fact, I consider myself a minor authority on press presentations.

The food is usually good. I don't drink Scotch. There are usually a few freeloaders. They are usually in my experience, the chief reason people walk out is that presentations are so often dull. I have stooped over and left many. But sometimes I have squared my shoulders, held my head high and marched out.

1. A show consisting of fuzzy colored movies showing the plant, the personal, the production line and the product. This must have delighted Gus, a foreman, who kept popping into scenes with homey comments, such as, "We yar mahny prout of whid we mek har."

2. A presentation on flip cards, in which a speaker, turning one card at a time, each with a "message," acted as if the assemblage consisted of idiots who have to see each sentence spelled out and explained. Sometimes movie slides are used instead of flip cards, but this is often amusing because the slides invariably are shown in the wrong order.

3. The hoop-la presentation of a new product by a mistress of ceremonies and six dancing girls in assorted shapes. After fanfares and ballets, the mistress of ceremonies waves a wand at a paper cake and out pops a product that is expected to revo-

Fearful Now For Survival

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Every day, public relations literature crosses my desk, as it does the desks of others, dealing with some industry that regards itself as being slaughtered. Occasionally such material also comes from a labor union. But when the men's clothing industry gets excited, the subject takes on special interest. The men's clothing and labor union sides, has always been what might be called liberal and internationalistic. It is an industry dominated by Jacob Potofsky, president of its union.

It is this industry which now concerns itself with the word, survival, as the watch industry, the knitwear industry, the button industry, the ceramic industry and many others have complained. Granted that we can compete with other countries in a free market, no free market exists anywhere. This is a major economic evil of 1961.

The industry's circular states: "But Survival for America concerns more than defense against guided missiles.

"To many hard-pressed high-wage American industries, survival depends upon defenses against 'guided merchandise'—imports from low-wage countries aimed at American domestic and export markets."

"It is the men's clothing industry we cannot complain that we have not been warned; the alert has been sounded often; loud and clear."

Then it goes on to say: "Six months ago, the General President of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Jacob S. Potofsky, portrayed the peril of the wage-war in an effort to wake us up."

"For most apparel manufacturers, the rising tide of imports from low-wage countries threatens disaster. They cannot, in the second half of the 20th century, compete successfully against 19th century wage and working conditions. No American apparel manufacturer, no matter how efficient, no matter how forward-looking, can long survive against wage levels of 10 and 12-cents an hour.

"If apparel imports from low-wage countries continue to increase, clothing factories will be forced to close. The closing of these factories will mean the loss of close to a million-and-a-quarter jobs in the needle trades."

Of course, these industries were warned. The clothing industry devoted itself for many years to supporting every form of political and economic internationalism. But throughout the world there are tailors and a suit can be made by a tailor in Hongkong or Tokyo or Ghana or anywhere as well as in the United States. In fact, Italian tailors are supposed to be the best of all.

Price then becomes the determining factor in the American market. Nobody looks for a label "Made in America." That is an unpopular, isolationist slogan. Thus, the store sells a suit with two pairs of trousers, made in Puerto Rico or Hongkong, out of cloth, made anywhere, perhaps in Poland. The American worker can go hang.

It is curious how the wheel turns. It used to be the big industries that wanted a protective tariff. The big industries are protecting themselves by exporting jobs, that is by establishing factories abroad; big industry also has increased automation which means fewer jobs. The theory in favor of automation is that there will be job transference, that more workers will move from the mill and factory to the service, to playing the saxophone and guitar, to a combo or being a manicurist or a secretary.

The tailors are not easily shifted. In the higher echelons, such as designers, they are professionals with specialized skills; in the lowest echelons, they are unskilled workers, often unsuited for other types of work. Competition within this industry remains keen and the margins of profit are not very large.

Such an industry can readily be wiped out by cheap competition from abroad, particularly if the competition is subsidized by governments. From a labor union standpoint, this can also mean an enormous loss of membership. The worker has seniority rights only if he remains in.

The First of His Signs

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—John 2.

"There was a marriage in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there, and both Jesus was called, and His disciples, to the marriage."—John 2:1-2.

"When they wanted wine, Jesus' mother saith unto Him, They have no wine." Jesus told them to fill the containers with water, and when they tasted it, it was wine.—John 2:3-9.

"When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was" he called the bridegroom and praised the wine.—John 2:9.

"This beginning of miracles did Jesus... and manifested forth His glory; and His disciples believed on Him."—John 2:11.

CHRIST'S DESIRE AND ABILITY TO SET RIGHT THOSE THINGS THAT ARE WRONG

Scripture—John 2.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL "AND ON the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there: and both Jesus was called, and His disciples, to the marriage."—John 2:1-2.

These words may sound harsh, spoken by our gentle Christ, but they were not meant to be. "His time" was the suffering He knew was coming to Him because of His enemies.

In "Peloubet's Select Notes" the Rev. Wilbur M. Smith explains, "On the first day (John 1:24-28) John witnesses to Christ; on the next day (29-34),

"His mother saith unto the servants, Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it."—John 2:5. "And there were set there six waterpots of stone, after the manner of the purifying of the Jews, containing two or three firkins apiece. Jesus saith unto them, Fill the waterpots with water. And they filled them to the brim."—John 2:6-7.

Now an embarrassing thing happens. "When they wanted wine, the mother of Jesus saith unto Him, They have no wine. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, what have I to do with thee? Mine hour is not yet come."—John 2:3-4.

"And He saith unto them, Draw out now and bear unto the governor of the feast. And they bare it."—John 2:7-8. Christ had turned the water into wine, and the governor was mystified.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

It is pleasant to note that the joint deans of American letters are still frisky and kicking at the opening of another year. We refer to Sandburg and Frost.

Carl in Hollywood The current activities of the former, considering what manner of man he is, strike one as positively bizarre. Of all places, he is in Hollywood, helping to adapt "Ourlier's" "The Greatest Story Ever Told" for the screen.

Official Distortion The latest "Christian Century" contains a disturbing article on the movie "Operation Abolition," which is being shown around the country by patriotic organizations.

Yet, stranger things can and do happen to Sandburg, as, for example, "Playboy" magazine's recent printing of some of his early poems. Sandburg's comment: "They introduced me to probably a million gustatorial readers who didn't know whether I write geography or arithmetic."

Bob in Washington The item on Frost is that he is as close to being post-laureate of the U.S., by official decree, as any man could be. That is, Mr. Kennedy has invited him to deliver a poem (any poem that he chooses) as part of the inauguration ceremony.

But I have promises to keep. And miles to go before I sleep. And miles to go before I sleep.

Incidentally, Roscoe's Drummond reports that Mr. Kennedy is a close student of Richard Neustadt's book "Presidential Power." We imagine that the Library of Congress will experience quite a run in this title during the next month or so.

More Drama? Turning to TV, our friend Louise Adams is rightly disappointed that the fine Play of the Week series from NBC is not seen locally. Produced on video with newly consolidated schools by allotting each school the same number of teachers for the first two years after consolidation as would have been assigned to the separate schools.

Approved—the consolidation of four Greene County schools—Snow Hill, Weldonburg, Maury and Hookerton—into the Greene County Central High School.

Extended the boundaries of the Asheville city administrative unit to take in certain property in Ward 9 of Asheville Township which now is part of the Buncombe County administrative unit.

Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic (AP)—Foreign Minister Porfirio Herrera Baez said Thursday night the voting of new sanctions by the Organization of American States against the Dominican Republic was done under pressure from the outgoing Eisenhower administration in complicity with the Betancourt government in Venezuela.

He said the new Kennedy administration will have an opportunity to correct "this grave error."

He charged the step "shatters American unity" and "violates pledges of non-intervention."

WANT NO MORE WAR LUDINGTON, Mich. (AP)—The Ludington City Commission has turned down a request from the Civil War Centennial Observance Committee to appoint a group for city participation. The commission said the Civil War "ought not to be fought over again."

Queen Preparing Tour Of Asia LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II will start her Asian tour this month with only one halt stop between London and New Delhi, British Overseas Airlines said Thursday night.

The schedule calls for the Queen and her husband, Prince Philip, to leave London Jan. 20 and sit down only in Cyprus en route to the Indian capital. They are to see Cyprus' president, Archbishop Makarios, during the refueling stop.

Waday tour of U.S. Pakistan, Nepal and Iran probably will be the Queen's major goodwill mission abroad this year.

Paternity Trial Perjury Suspect

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The district attorney's office, suspecting one or more persons may have committed perjury at the Dennis Crosby paternity trial, plans to question everyone connected with the case.

Dist. Atty. William B. McKesson said Thursday he wants to find out if there is enough evidence to warrant a perjury complaint or a grand jury investigation.

If a man shifts from being a pants presser to selling peanuts at a ball game, he loses his life-work in seniority rights, in fringe benefits and insurances that can be devastating to a family. From the standpoint of economics, these transferences of jobs may be sound; from a sociological standpoint, they can be destructive.

This question becomes more pressing as employment increases, particularly in large cities where life can be difficult in depressed times. Delay in dealing with it can only increase the danger.

East Carolina Opens Post-Holiday Play At Elon

Smith May Shuffle Lineup Against Improved Elon

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." That's the story facing East Carolina's basketball club as it returns to North State Conference combat against Elon in Burlington tomorrow night.

East Carolina, on the threshold of meeting success several times but still unable to come up with the big win, has been idle since a December 14th defeat by Appalachian.

Coach Earl Smith is one of the first to admit that the holiday lull may handicap his club and in accord notes that an improved Elon team won't be easy prey for his club to sharpen their claws on.

Usually a tournament participant during the two-week holiday period, East Carolina was idle this year. Smith did have his club back in camp on December 26 and has been to work in earnest since that time.

HOLDERS of a 4-2 conference log, Smith and his assistant, Wendell Carr, may come forth tomorrow night with a lineup different from past ones.

Floyd Wicker, 6-1 freshman from Snow Camp, has been inserted into a high spot on the Pirate club and may see starting action as a guard.

Smith plans to do some complicated rotating against the Christians. The shifts may revolve around one guard and one forward slot.

If Wicker starts, Cotton Clayton will move to a forward spot, joining Don Smith. In the event Lacy West opens, Clayton will be at guard and West at forward.

Kinston senior Charlie Lewis will be a definite starter at guard and Benny Bowes and Bill Otte will probably divide duty at the pivot slot.

Smith says, "We will use our personnel so as to utilize it best against the opponent."

Elon will floor a solid club—much better than many predicted at the opening of the season. The Christians clobbered a pesky Catawba club last week and edged Pembroke last night.

Coach Bill Miller, in his second year as head coach, has a duo of snappy forwards in Ken Smith and S. L. Irvin. Smith, who stands at 6-4, was the club's top scorer last season as a sophomore, averaging 16.9 points per game.

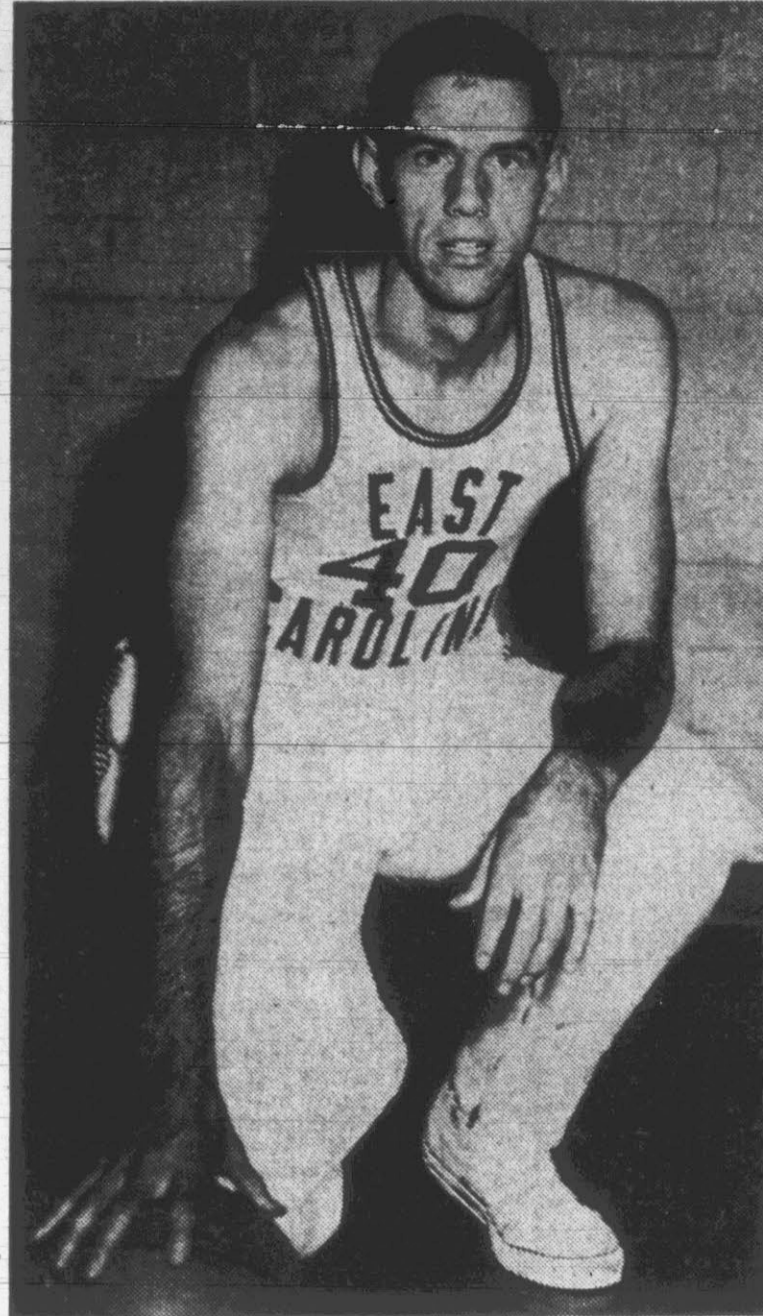

Both move real well and are strong rebounders, pulling in almost 300 between them last year.

The key to slapping Elon with a defeat, will depend on how well East Carolina can stop the two forwards, according to Smith.

The East Carolina coaches sent their club through a swift workout yesterday, concentrating on defense.

The game against Elon will be the first in a series of conference games that await the Bucs. The remainder of their schedule consists of conference contests.

Monday night East Carolina will be back in Memorial Gymnasium for a conference clash with Guilford.

Bradley Looks Ready To Gain MV Conference Title

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that Mack (The Knife) Herndon has slashed his way back toward expected shape, Bradley's Braves look ready to parlay a backyard title with those national tournament crowns they've been resorting to as consolation the last couple years.

The second-ranked Braves, ruminating in the second half behind Mack the knife, stretched their nation's longest major winning streak to 17 and their season log to 11-0 Thursday night with a comeback 64-61 decision over Wichita.

It was the third straight Missouri Valley Conference triumph for the youngsters of Ozzie Orborn, who still is looking for his first MVC title despite a brilliant overall record of 115-20 in four-plus years as head coach.

All four times when the Braves settled for second place in the conference, they took their disappointment to the National Invitation Tournament in New York.

Twice, including last year, they nailed the NIT crown, creating the ironical situation of a team unable to gather a league trophy but able to win a national title.

Thursday night Herndon, making only his second start of the season, led the scoring with 21 points — including a basket that broke a 56-all tie and shoved the Braves ahead to stay.

St. Louis (9-2) won its second MVC game, 54-47 over Drake (9-1) squared its MVC record at 1-1 with a 108-73 romp over North Texas State, and St. Bonaventure's Tom Stith and Gonzaga's Frank Burgess resumed their sizzling national scoring battle in other major games.

Stith had 35 points, upping his season average to 31.36, as third-ranked St. Bonaventure (10-1) shook off Belmont Abbey 75-63 for its 96th straight home court victory.

Burgess maintained his slight lead over Stith, collecting 32 points despite Gonzaga's 81-60 setback at the hands of Washington State. His average is 31.38.

Sophomore Rod Thorn scored 24 points and Lee Patrone 16 as West Virginia (7-2) beat VMI 87-72 for a 3-1 Southern Conference record, and Clemson overcame an 11-point deficit and whipped Furman 57-53.

Penn State scored a 78-68 decision over Colgate, and Fordham, back to its home court after four

West Virginia Begins SC Rush

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You didn't even have to cup your ears today to hear an ominously familiar rumble from the hills that annually means just one thing in Southern Conference basketball: Here comes West Virginia.

To be sure, the rumble is a trifle eyerude. The Mountaineers, who have held the league in thrall since 1955, lost a conference game last month and were undeniably unsteady at the start.

Now, though, they've reeled off five consecutive victories against all comers and clearly it's time once again for the rest of the league to get the storm cellars ready for fortocopying.

"Sure, we're improving — I knew we would," says Coach George King. "When you have a new combination, it always takes a while to jell. I think we may be on our way."

By way of getting the new year off to a smashing start, the Mountaineers whipped conference rival VMI, 87-72, Thursday night at Morgantown and thereby chinned themselves to second place in the conference standings with a 2-1 record and a 7-2 overall mark.

But the hardest conference work still lies ahead for King's men. Seven of their 12 league games comes up this month, and one of the six remaining January skirmishes with family rivals is tremendously important Jan. 21 meeting with conference-leading Virginia Tech (3-0).

Before that collision at Morgantown, West Virginia has a home date with threatening Furman (2-1) this Saturday night and a Jan. 12 visit to ever-dangerous George Washington (2-1).

Furman's three-game winning streak perished at the hands of Clemson, 57-53, in a non-conference skirmish Thursday night. Furman, now 2-3 for the campaign, led by 11 points early in the second half but blew the advantage.

Indians Receive Signed Contracts

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians announced today they have received signed contracts from pitcher Johnny Antonelli and outfielder Willie Kirkland.

The Indians received the two players from the San Francisco Giants last month in exchange for outfielder Harvey Kuenn.

The signings brought to four the number of Indians in the fold for 1961. The first signed contracts were received from two infield regulars—first baseman Vic Power and second baseman Johnny Temple.

Office Trouble For Pro Lions

By DAVE DILES
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP)—D. Lyle Fife, a former president and still a major stockholder in the Detroit Football Co., said today rebel shareholders may have enough strength to overthrow the current administration of the Lions.

For the second time in a year, squabbling in the front office has stolen the headlines from the club's performances on the field.

The volcanic situation centers around Edwin J. Anderson, president and general manager of the club. Anderson was the center of the controversy a year ago when some of the directors tried to throw him out of office. The move died, Fife said, because "not all members of the dissatisfied group were willing to stand up and be counted."

This time a proxy fight is on. There are 15 directors on the board, and 13 of them have lined up with Anderson to oppose the rebel group.

Fife quit the board after his first attempt to oust Anderson failed. He holds 640 shares of the some 12,600 shares of stock in the company, one of the most successful franchises in the National Football League.

"I am speaking strictly as a stockholder," said Fife. "I do not want to be president of the Lions. I merely want to see the Detroit Football Co. operate in a sound, ethical manner. It's not being operated that way under the present administration."

Fate Of Oklahoma Big Question On NCAA Log

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The annual get-together of college coaches and athletic directors starts today with one big unanswered question and a couple of lesser ones that aren't on the official agenda.

The big one: What are they going to do about Oklahoma?

Some other questions: Who gets what football coaching job? What happens to the bowl games that weren't played?

The Oklahoma question is a holdover from last year's meeting. The Sooners were placed on indefinite probation a year ago because an investigation failed to turn up the financial details of a recruiting fund that operated from 1952 to 1954.

The university couldn't supply the answer; the man who administered the fund wouldn't open his books and the NCAA ruled Oklahoma would have to take the consequences until the NCAA council could see the figures and decide just how badly the rules had been fractured.

A year later the situation apparently is unchanged but there's a feeling in some quarters that Oklahoma's punishment has lasted long enough.

"The annual football coaching go-round appears to be of minor importance this year. Only a few major jobs are vacant and anything that happens here likely will be in the nature of preliminary conversation."

The bowl question is a new one. A proposed change in the NCAA by-laws specifies that if a post-season game is certified but not played, its certification shall lapse. This mainly affects New York's Gotham bowl game — approved for December 1960 but unplayed because top teams couldn't be obtained. The promoters may not even want to try again.

Otherwise the week-long series of meetings may not be eventful. The 562 colleges, conferences and allied groups composing the NCAA will act on several bits of legislation designed to strengthen NCAA control over practices in recruiting.

Only a few preliminary committee meetings are slated today. The NCAA television committee begins a two-day meeting Saturday with some thought of requests to change the program for regional football telecasts.

The rules committee of the American Football Coaches Association also meets Saturday. Some coaching groups have asked for a more liberal substitution rule, but the coaches can only make recommendations which aren't always accepted by the NCAA rules committee.

Clemson Rallies For 57-53 Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clemson's Tom Mahaffey could not find his scoring touch in the first half of Thursday night's game with Furman, but found it in the second half to help lift the Tigers to a 57-53 victory.

Mahaffey scored 13 points, all in the second half when Clemson had to overcome an 11-point lead enjoyed by Furman.

That game was the only one Thursday night involving an Atlantic Coast Conference team. All ACC teams are idle tonight.

However, the action gets hot and heavy Saturday night with N. C. State at Duke, South Carolina at Maryland, Virginia at Wake Forest in conference games, and Clemson entertaining Davidson and North Carolina meeting Notre Dame at Charlotte, N.C.

Furman led Clemson 28-21 after the first half of Thursday night's game, and the Paladins shot into an 11-point lead at the start of the second half. It was then that Mahaffey, Choppy Patterson and Earle Maxwell began chipping away at the lead.

Maxwell put the Tigers ahead to stay with a little more than six minutes to play. He finished with 21 points. Patterson had 13.

The Furman coach, Lyles Alley, also provided some fireworks. Near the end of the game, two technical fouls were called on him for arguing over an official's decision.

Broglie Signs

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ernie Broglie, a surprising 21-game winner with the St. Louis Cardinals last season, has signed his 1961 contract for a big salary increase.

Figures weren't disclosed but General Manager Bing Devine said Thursday the 25-year-old pitcher got a boost of almost 100 per cent. This would make his salary about $18,000. He is the first Cardinal to sign this year.

Catawba Dumps High Point From Unbeaten Rank

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Appalachian is the only basketball team still unbeaten in North State Conference play as a result of Catawba's victory over High Point Thursday night.

Catawba scored 13 points in overtime to defeat High Point 81-72. It was High Point's first North State Conference loss after four victories.

Appalachian now is alone at the top of the standings with a 4-0 record in league play, and is 7-1 overall.

In other games Thursday night involving North State Conference teams, Lenoir Rhyne, led by Jim Wiles with 27 points, trounced Western Carolina 88-64; S. J. Irvin scored 32 points in leading Elon to an 88-94 victory over Pembroke State; and Atlantic Christian pulled ahead late in the game to score a 75-62 victory over William & Mary's Norfolk Division. Dick Knox scored 24 points for ACC.

All North State Conference teams are idle tonight.

Meanwhile, another of North Carolina's small college teams, Belmont Abbey, threw a scare in to St. Bonaventure, before falling 75-63.

St. Bonaventure, ranked third in the nation, trailed by two points early in the second half. But the Bonnies jumped ahead by five with 12 minutes to play, and widened the margin from there out.

Danny Doyle led Belmont Abbey with 19 points. The nation's top scorer, netted 35 points, 24 of them in the second half.

G-Men At Jax Tonight

Greenville attempts to crack the conference win column tonight against Jacksonville on the latter's home court.

The Phants, losers to Tarboro in their conference opener Tuesday, own a 2-3 overall record compared to Jacksonville's 3-3 mark.

Coach Tom Pritchard's five opened its league play Tuesday by trimming New Bern.

Billy James, Kroghie Andersen, Erskine Duff, Layne Jorgensen and Alan McArthur are the expected starters for Greenville.

Arnold Palmer Favored In Los Angeles Tourney

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Minnesotan leading professionals kick off the 1961 tournament campaign today. A field of 154 is entered in the first round of the 35th annual Los Angeles Open for a $45,000 purse.

The 72-hole event winds up Monday with the winner collecting $7,500.

On deck at the Rancho Municipal Course in West Los Angeles are 47 of the game's top money winners of 1960. The course measures 7,131 yards and par is 36-35-71.

Sunny skies and temperature in the low 70s were promised by the weatherman.

The logical favorite is power-hitting Arnold Palmer, whose magic with the clubs earned more than $90,000 last year and netted him two of the biggest championships in the game, the United States Open and the Masters. He also won six other tournaments.

Oddly enough, Arnold's best finish in the Los Angeles Open was a tie for 10th in 1959. Last year he tied for 26th.

The 1960 winner, Dow Finsterwald, will defend his laurels. The consistent young man from Tequesta, Fla., was good enough to earn $38,000 or more for the year.

Other stars on hand include Art Wall Jr., Ken Venturi, Jay Herbert, the National PGA champion in 1960, and his brother Lionel, who won the same title in 1957.

Rancho's par proved no terror in Thursday's pro-amateur competition. Twenty-two bettered 71 and 27 equaled it.

Minnesota Prof Blasts Football

By JIM KLOBUCHAR
MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—A Minnesota faculty man of national reputation renewed his opposition to the school's involvement with the Rose Bowl today and verbally spanked some of the school's regents.

Dean Athelstan Spilhaus of the Institute of Technology said there is something wrong with education when seven members of the board of regents "spend five days to see the Rose Bowl but can't spend five minutes looking at one of our laboratories."

Spilhaus is a member of the University Senate that historically has opposed the Big Ten's tieup with the Rose Bowl. He said he voted to send Minnesota to the bowl this season, but only because he did not want to see the new president, O. Meredith Wilson, put under public pressure by a turn-down.

"The Rose Bowl isn't the only inequity in college football by any means," Spilhaus told an interviewer. "I like football. I used to play it."

But the university's primary concern ought to be with good students, he said, and if they also play football, fine. But subsidization of athletes, he said, has brought into the colleges some students who shouldn't be there.

Spilhaus has campaigned for years for a toughening up of the American education system. He was widely quoted three years ago when he rapped a trend toward "typing, tap dancing and tomfoolery" in the nation's classrooms.

Minnesota, Spilhaus said, had no business going to the Rose Bowl if it were simply a matter of appeasing the legislature or the public. This, he said, makes football too big in the university scheme and tends to undermine its educational function.

Minnesota's Gophers returned from their 17-7 defeat by Washington Thursday to the cheers of some 2,000 admirers at Wold Chamberlain Air Field.

They and Coach Murray Warmath smiled and waved, accepted carnations—no roses here—and expressed their gratitude for the welcome. But they were solemn much of the time.

Warmath tried to be witty—"I wouldn't change anything, except the score"—but it was an effort, and he gave it up with relief.

Pro Cage Coaches Exchange Words

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A fist fight which resulted in a broken jaw for New York's Ken Sears has stirred up a heated exchange of words between Knicks' Coach Carl Braun and Jocko Collins, supervisor of referees in the National Basketball Association.

The fight Thursday night broke out between Sears, the Knicks' third-best scorer, and George Lee of the Detroit Pistons just before New York took a lead late in the third period and went on to win 104-102. It resulted after some pushing and shoving in the pivot.

In the second game of the Convention Hall doubleheader, Wilt Chamberlain continued his sensational scoring pace, getting 56 points for the second time this week and taking over the scoring lead from Elgin Baylor of Los Angeles in leading Philadelphia to a 139-127 victory over Syracuse.

In other games Boston retained its one-game lead in the Eastern Division by beating Cincinnati 125-107 and Los Angeles upset St. Louis 119-96.

Braun went to the referees' dressing room immediately after the game and demanded that Sid Borgia recommend a fine for Lee in his report of the game.

It better cost him something, Jocko, Braun said. "If they (the league officials) let this sort of thing go on we'll be right back to the old days."

Collins fired back: "He's (Braun) the biggest con man in the game. He tried to referee while he was playing for 12 years and he's still trying..."

WHAT A NIGHT! SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Diana Phippin, 182 average bowler, rolled the first WIBC sanctioned 300 game of the season in the Metropolitan Masters League in Downtown Bowl. Her games were 201, 199 and 300 for a 700 series.

There Will Be No Pearl Harbor At Guantanamo Bay

B. EVERETT S. ALLEN
New Bedford Standard-Times Staff Writer

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (A)—There will be no "Pearl Harbor" at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. Fidel Castro cannot take it with the military power at his disposal. And those who are inclined to aid him, Communist China and the Soviet Union, are not willing to take the risk that such an attack would involve.

These facts do not stop the American personnel there from accepting the possibility of serious trouble.

As one combat-experienced officer put it, "How do we know how many launching pads they've got behind the ridge back of the one we can see? How do we even know he's going to be logical enough to know he can't win?"

Actually, if Fidel Castro has launching pads aimed at Guantanamo and the United States does not know it, it would be surprising indeed. Castro has accused Americans of flying U-2 planes over Cuba to spot military activity; frankly, nothing as superlative as the U-2 is required and the air thereabouts is bustling with faster-than-sound American aircraft. At Guantanamo's leeward point, on the southwest corner of the base, are the lean young men in orange coveralls and flight jackets who take aloft the amazing American jets. These aircraft are both carrier and land-based; they are capable of nuclear assault and are designed variously to support surface craft and to attack ground targets.

At leeward point at any given moment, there are more planes than there are in the whole Cuban air force.

The Cubans have 8 to 10 Soviet MIG 15 fighters that they don't know how to fly yet. But they probably are getting Soviet instruction on this. They also have a handful of B-26's, U.S. medium bombers given to Cuba in pre-Castro days.

For a navy, Castro has a half dozen frigates and patrol craft, a single ancient cruiser and a dozen wooden launches. Trusting neither the army nor navy, however, he has jalled many officers from each to thwart possible insurrection so he might not even be able to get his fleet to sea.

This is not to suggest the Castro military strength is of the musical comedy variety. His 26th of July revolutionary movement numbered 8,000 men; they captured arms and equipment sufficient for a force of 25,000. His militia, a tough organization of men and women who train evenings with Czech rifles, now totals 200,000. At least 12 Soviet ships have delivered arms and ammunition to Cuba since last July. Most recently the freighter Psow unloaded 6,000 tons at the port of Preston.

Castro now has 93,000 late model automatic rifles, 11,000 sub-machineguns, 55 tanks 40 of which are from the Soviet bloc; 60 armored personnel carriers, 25 field guns, 80 anti-aircraft guns, 15 Soviet model mobile radar units and 100 3.5 inch rocket launchers with 8,000 rockets to match.

Mindful of all this, the U.S. Marines—there are 400 here, although Castro has charged 10,000—guard the 24-mile fence around the base 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Cactus and brush have been bulldozed from the faces of hillsides next to the fence to cut down concealing cover for anyone trying to sneak in.

A Naval emergency ground defense force, composed of base operating personnel is charged with the internal security job in a two-phased program. The Marines, supported by tanks the number of which is secret, dig in and hold until the ground defense force rounds up the infiltrators. Air support, both offensive and defensive, immediately is available.

This doesn't begin to count the help that will come from outside: "Gimmo" has no heavy artillery but the "fleet is just over the horizon" and that's where the big guns will come from.

The important thing is that Guantanamo doesn't have to contact anybody higher up for the "big decision" policy. Now it is shaped so that when "conditions A, B and C" are met, as one officer put it, "the button is pushed." Guantanamo then launches its defense program and the support from outside

Accused Slayers Get Service At Their Third Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dr. R. Bernard Finch and Carole Tregoff will get room service at their third murder trial.

The court Wednesday granted them permission to use room in the Hall of Justice for private conferences with their attorneys and to have food sent in from the outside.

Dr. Finch, 42, and his former mistress, 24, are accused of murdering the doctor's wife Barbara outside the Finch home in suburban West Covina in July, 1959. The doctor maintains his wife was shot by accident.

The defendants will have access to their conference room from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily, including Saturday and Sunday, until the trial is over.

The juries at their first two trials became deadlocked and were dismissed. Selection of a jury for the third trial is expected to take at least two weeks.

CHAPTER 24

The next regular meeting of the Golden Girls was bound to produce trouble for somebody. The members were in a state of nerves and just a little testy — not with each other but with life's mischances, which did impose a strain. Mrs. Stephens was feeling put-upon before she arrived. Picking Jane McPhipp up in her car, she carried on a monologue all the way about how tiresome her broker was.

"I tried to buy Electric Eel at 35," she stormed. "He insisted I buy Van Dyke Razorbills instead. I did, at 80. It is now 62. But Electric Eel has gone up six Oh, I'm furious."

Jane sympathized. The brokerage business did seem to be a pretty exact profession.

"That everybody's spirits needed lifting became clear the minute the girls assembled, at 7:29 they were meeting in Mrs. Hope's very chic apartment, but not even the magnificent view nor the fire in her marble fireplace rated any attention, for the girls were worried, rebellious, and obviously aching to do something. But, of course what form their action would take had yet to be determined. As their president, Jane was all but intimidated by her responsibility.

Normally enough, she opened the meeting by calling upon Miss Green to tell the girls what she had already told them about Wally and the criminal court.

"We owe everything to our president," Miss Green began sweetly, and with professional pride went on to explain how, as the club's attorney, she was standing a warrant for Wally's arrest.

"Misrepresentation for material gain" was the terrifying phrase that wilted Jane as she thought again of her own deception of Mr. Ernst.

That harrowing report finished, the meeting steamed ahead as the Sergeant-at-Arms noisily interrupted proceedings by wheeling around a serving cart loaded with liquor bottles. The president had never seen so many bottles outside a bar. Mrs. Hope could offer anything imaginable.

Having served everybody, Mrs. Hope went right to the heart of her sisters' mood and into the spirit of things.

"Girls!" she cried with enthusiasm. "Let's give somebody hell right away. Just anybody."

"Maybe we ought to send Wally to San Quentin. But I for one just can't," it was Mrs. Hayden-Critchfield speaking.

To the president's joy, if not exactly to her surprise, Mrs. Hayden-Critchfield had released the spring of tension. The group's esprit de corps shot high and they all began cheering for Wally. Mrs. Stephens grumped. "He's no worse than my broker any day." Mrs. Hope threw in "He just got too enthusiastic. Who among us hasn't at times?"

The law was being scuttled even faster than Jane had hoped, and Miss Green was regarding her sisters with frank annoyance. Losing an argument already won, she spluttered ineffectually — but she looked too sincere to make any headway.

Mrs. Stephens began to ogle. "And so, I say, let us recover pride and let us tell the District Attorney we won't stand for any nonsense about sending Wally to prison." At this everybody applauded.

Miss Green snapped. "The District Attorney is not accustomed to being told what he can and cannot do."

"Now, Gertrude," Helen Spalding began pleading. "DON'T be like that. We all feel terribly guilty not to crack down, but you know we'd feel guiltier if Wally went to prison."

The moment was troublesome, the atmosphere heavy, but the logic in this was indisputable. And then Helen Spalding made a brilliant proposal that took everybody's conscience off the hook.

"If we are shirking our duty," she continued, "we can make up for it in the broader sense. Let's profit from our experience by working for better corporate management everywhere, better stockholder relations across the board."

This proposal was so thrilling and opened such vistas for do-gooding that a thoughtful hush descended upon the room.

Jane knew that Helen Spalding had lit the torch that might show the way out, and the president took over the meeting with a lightness of heart she had not felt in days. "We have heard our challenge," she said, her voice vibrant, and she smiled upon the girls like a teacher bestowing a prize. "Let us then go forward. Let us begin our march toward better corporate management for all stockholders!"

It was a mighty challenge, but nobody knew how mighty. Wally's offer, with the group's help, to draw up a Declaration of Conscience — a title she's purloined from somewhere — which would serve as the Golden Girls' credo about "corporate morality," a heavy phrase that gave Mrs. Hope a pain in the neck. Mrs. Spalding added somewhat coyly, "I'll clear all suggestions with Phil Petry. To be worked into the Declaration of Conscience, the girls adopted, as fast as they could, certain weighty principles:

First, corporations were to be examined for their true spirit of democracy. The shareholders' voices should be heard. "It must never be forgotten that corporate officers are in the stockholders' employ." This was Miss Green speaking, feeling better, she was daring to be legal again, and her point made a terrific impression. Few of the girls had thought of it quite that way. Mrs. Hope asked, "You mean we can fire top officials?"

"The stockholder is king," Miss Green replied.

The possibilities pleased Mrs. Hope so much she beamed. "I'm going to start a list."

Next, stock ownership in their own company was an absolute "must" for a company's directors. Mrs. Stephens brought up this point.

"Touche!" somebody yelled. "Every director's got to have a real life interest in his company's profits!"

Next, the entire group felt that some limit should be put on executive salaries, bonuses and benefits, and on this point Jane's study and reading showed through. She chilled the group by citing, by name, a certain company whose six retired ex-presidents — a hardy crew who struck the girls as peculiarly long-lived — continued to receive annual pensions amounting to a million dollars.

"This sum seems a trifle exorbitant," she suggested, "inasmuch as this company's regular employees have no pension plan at all."

Shocked, the girls clucked their agreement that this was exactly the sort of corporate abuse they must look into.

Their Declaration of Conscience roughed in, it occurred to several members simultaneously that their next immediate need was for a corporate culprit — somebody to take action against. This was Mrs. Hayden-Critchfield seized by the impulse to telephone her husband; maybe he could make suggestions.

Finally, she put the phone in its cradle.

"Well," she announced, "just guess! This is absolutely marvelous. The Castlerock Corporation is raising its executives' salaries at the same time it's skipping its quarterly dividend!"

"No!" several gasped.

"Henry says there's a stockholders' meeting next week! And it's only a few miles down the peninsula!"

Never had the Golden Girls had a finer moment, for now they had a Cause.

The Golden Girls are going to make a stockholders' meeting explosive. The story continues here tomorrow.

Nixon's Ironic Job To Proclaim Election Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon has the ironic duty of officially proclaiming today that he lost the Nov. 8 presidential election to John F. Kennedy.

And he will name Lyndon B. Johnson, official winner of the vice-presidential contest.

Nixon will tell a joint session of the Senate and the House that Kennedy received 303 electoral votes and Nixon 219, with the remaining 15 going to Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va. Needed to win: 269.

Under the law, the announcement is "a sufficient declaration of the persons elected president and vice-president of the United States, each for the term beginning on the 20th day of January, 1961."

That announcement confirms for the history books what the electors of the 50 states made official when they met in their respective state capitols Dec. 19 and cast their votes.

The formality includes no reference to the popular vote: 34,221,031 for Kennedy, 34,108,474 for Nixon. That gave Kennedy a margin of 113,057.

Post office officials here were alerted to give speedy handling to an official registered letter from Hawaii. The letter contains certification that Kennedy is entitled to the state's three electoral votes. The final decision — giving Kennedy the state by 115 votes — had been delayed by a recount.

The constitution requires Congress to meet in joint session to formally tally the ballots of the state electors. In effect, it makes Congress a board of canvassers.

The electoral vote count session is one of the few joint meetings over which the vice president presides. Normally, the Speaker of the House presides at joint sessions.

Nixon doesn't do the actual counting. Official tellers, two senators and two representatives representing the two major political parties, inspect the electoral certificates from each state and add up the figures. The certificates have been kept under lock and key in the Senate since they were sent to Washington by state officials.

They show that Johnson received 303 votes for vice-president, Henry Cabot Lodge 219, Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., 14 and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., 1. Thurmond's came from Alabama and Mississippi. Goldwater's came from Oklahoma.

The results also show that Kennedy carried 23 states and Nixon 26, with Mississippi's eight electors being unpledged. The Mississippians gave their votes to Byrd, who also got six from Alabama and one from Oklahoma.

Engineering Society Hear Dr. Jenkins

President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College, addressing members of the Tau Beta Pi Association, national engineering honor society, at N. C. State College, Raleigh, Friday night, Jan. 6, challenged his audience of engineers and student engineers not only to use their talents and training in the technical aspects of modern life but also to concern themselves more actively than at present with such problems of society as education, health, and politics.

The East Carolina president addressed the Tau Beta Pi Association at a banquet at the State College Union.

"You have contributed," Dr. Jenkins told the engineers, "to freeing a considerable proportion of man's available energies previously concentrated on providing the barest necessities of existence; but you have done mighty little in assisting him in his attempt to live in this new environment."

"You must help us from unconsciously becoming the servant of your technical progress. You realize, of course, that technical progress may not be identical with the progress of man. We may well witness through your efforts progress in the machines you make, but little progress in man himself."

Dr. Jenkins urged Tau Beta Pi members to exert efforts to end the present looseness with which the term "engineers" is used to designate people in many trades and callings. A loss of status results, he said, from misuse of the word.

Discussing the engineer's "apparent inferiority complex in the area of culture," Dr. Jenkins stated that the image of the engineer as a "rough and tough," uncultured character has become traditional and that the engineer's preoccupation with technical to the exclusion of other activities probably is a result of pioneer-frontier distrust of the specialist. Engineers are unfair to themselves, he said, in allowing these impressions to persist.

Since engineers "have been responsible for changing our world," Dr. Jenkins said, it seems only right that they should "assume an equal responsibility in helping us run this new world."

He urged a more active interest and participation by engineers in political affairs, in education, in health and sanitation problems, in cultural activities, and in other areas affecting man's welfare and progress.

Fraternity Has Acquired House

Members of the Sigma Epsilon Colony of Sigma Phi Epsilon, latest social fraternity at East Carolina College to acquire a house, are sub-leasing the former Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house at 526 Cotanche Street, Greenville.

George J. Coltrane, Jr., of Kernersville, vice president and house manager of Sigma Phi Epsilon has announced that repairs and redecoration of the house are in progress and that fifteen of the members are now living there. Members are planning an open house for their parents and friends when work on the house is completed.

The college chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha recently purchased a handsome brick home on East Fifth Street opposite the West Campus at East Carolina.

The Sigma Epsilon Colony of Sigma Phi Epsilon was founded at East Carolina in February, 1959, and is an associate member of the Inter-fraternity Council. The colony is expected to become a chapter of the national Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity in April of this year.

Richer, Thanks To Hooking Fish

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A cafeteria worker from Winter Haven is $10,000 richer today because of an 18-inch fish.

Louise Sheridan, 40, caught the fish New Year's Day and found a tag attached, indicating the bass had been released in the $500,000 fishing contest sponsored by a brewing firm (Schlitz).

Mrs. Sheridan, accompanied by her husband, Lee, 41, a legless veteran of World War II, came to Tampa Wednesday to pick up her prize.

More than 2,000 fish were released last month in salt and fresh waters, all tagged for $25 or more. Mrs. Sheridan caught one of four tagged for $10,000.

Communists Not To Be Barred

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State University President John A. Hannah said Thursday Communist speakers would not be barred from the MSU campus while in the United States lecturing on academic subjects.

Objections would be raised, he said, "only if student audiences are turned into forums for Communist propaganda."

Hannah was asked about MSU policy in the wake of criticism aimed at Wayne State University in Detroit for allowing a Soviet chemist to speak on its campus last fall.

Million-Dollar Glow Now Gone

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Florence Chadwick lost her million-dollar glow Wednesday. She returned a $1,000,000.27 check to the Howard Savings Institution given her by mistake Tuesday when she asked for a $70.27 check to pay an installment due on her car.

Bank officials said that a mechanical defect in the check writing machine caused the error.

This morning, Mrs. Chadwick returned the million-dollar check and got a correct one in its place.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 30 to 23.90 with industrials off 1.00, rails up .10 and utilities off .10. Key stocks took losses running from fractions to about a point. School-Aid Plan Given Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP) — A special task force recommended to President-elect Kennedy today a high-priority program to pump $3 1/2 billion in loans and grants into the American educational system. The objective would be to lift the schools to a new level of excellence. The plan would provide extra federal cash for all public schools, for construction, and for teachers' salaries or other purposes related to improving education. It would provide a special program along similar lines for states in economic distress. And it would set up a special aid plan for city schools. In addition, increased grants and loans to improve academic facilities and housing at colleges and universities was blueprinted for the president-elect. The task force which drew up the recommendations was headed by Dr. Frederick Hovde, president of Purdue University. Hovde handed the report to Kennedy in the presence of Gov. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, who will be secretary of health, education and welfare in the new administration.

Newspapers See Circulation Rise

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Daily newspaper circulation in the United States has increased 52 percent in the last 25 years while the nation's population has grown only 40 percent.

The figures were given today by Stanford Smith, general manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Today's total daily circulation, he said, is 58 million. In 25 years it will be 81 million, he forecast. Smith told a 25th anniversary meeting of Allied Papers of Washington in a prepat that in 1935 the population of the United States was 127 million, the total circulation was 38 million and the total advertising volume was $762 million.

"The latest annual figures cover the year 1959 when total newspaper advertising volume was $3.54 billion. This is a gain of more than $2.75 billion," he said. "Newspaper circulation grows because the service rendered to readers is not available from any other source and not likely ever to become available from any other source," Smith said.
