When Car Struck Bridge Railing

TWISTED WRECKAGE . . . is all that remains of a car in which a 22-year-old Route 3, Washington man lost his life near Grimesland early yesterday.

Young Driver Dies When Car Rams Bridge Railing

GRIMESLAND—A 22-year-old man died in a twisted mass of wreckage near here early yesterday morning to be counted as Pitt County's first traffic fatality this year. Only seconds before, the broken and bent metal and shattered glass had been a 1959 model car. Linwood Ray Hardy of Route 3, Washington, was the sole occupant of the car which crashed head-on into the cement railing of the Crindle Creek Bridge about two miles north of Grimesland on the Grimesland-Pacholus cut-off road, Patrolman H. R. Winslow said. According to the officer, the Hardy vehicle was headed North toward N. C. 30 at the time. Winslow said he would estimate the speed of the vehicle at about 70 miles per hour. He explained his estimate by saying there were no skid marks or brake marks at the scene, and no evidence of the vehicle going out of control on the curve at the southern approach to the bridge. The force of the impact demolished the car. The motor and fire wall of the auto were shoved back into the front seat area, and the floor-board on the driver's side of the auto was ripped out. The speedometer was knocked out of the instrument panel and was found on the front seat of the auto. . . the needle pointed to 45 miles per hour. Winslow said Hardy had been living with his parents at Route 1, Stokes but the family moved to the new address only one week ago. The officer said a Farmville man was apparently the first motorist to come upon the scene. The unidentified man was quoted as saying the car "was still smoking" when he drove up. Winslow continued quoting the man by saying he turned around as soon as he saw the wrecked car and went to report the crash. He set the time at about 12:45 a.m. Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey who ruled "accidental death," said Hardy had fallen through the floorboard between the seat and the outside body of the vehicle. His feet were pinned in the area of the seat and had to be pried loose before he could be removed from the wreck. He said death was probably due to a broken neck and other injuries. Pit. Winslow said the car was torn up "worse than any other wreck I have ever seen." He added that Hardy left his home about 9 p.m. and was apparently returning home at the time of the collision. Twelve persons lost their lives on the streets and highways in Pitt County last year, Winslow concluded.

Most Effective

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's industrial development program has been picked as the most effective of any state in the United States, or any Canadian province. The Commerce and Industry Division of the State Department of Conservation and Development reported today the award will be given by the Society of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The award, first given by the society, will be presented in Philadelphia on Jan. 20. "Among the features of the North Carolina program especially noted by the judges were the missions of some 70 citizens for the purpose of interesting businessmen in other parts of the nation and the world in locating branches in the state," the division report commented.

Seek Another Congo Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union pressed the Security Council today to hold a new U.N. debate on the Congo. The 11 council members consulted on a meeting date to discuss a new Soviet complaint that Belgium helped organize an attack New Year's Day by an anti-Congolese faction on another through the neighboring U.N. trust territory of Ruanda-Urundi. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin filed the complaint against Belgium Saturday night and asked Omar Loufi of the United Arab Republic, president of the council for January, to convene the council as quickly as possible. Zorin charged "fresh acts of Belgian aggression against the Congo" and "flagrant violation of the international status" of the Belgian-administered Ruanda-Urundi. Troops of Col. Joseph Mobutu, the Congo army chief, entered the Congo's Kivu Province via Ruanda-Urundi New Year's Day in an effort to win it from troops loyal to deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba, who is Mobutu's prisoner. The invaders were captured or repelled.

Hearings Set Wednesday On Appointees To Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate hearings on President-elect John F. Kennedy's Cabinet appointments will start Wednesday. First to come under the Senate's "advise and consent" procedure will be Douglas Dillon, Kennedy's choice for secretary of the Treasury. It was learned Sunday night that the Senate Finance Committee, headed by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., has set Wednesday morning for a hearing on Dillon, one of two Republicans selected by Kennedy for the Cabinet. The appointments cannot be sent officially to the Senate until after Jan. 20 when Kennedy takes office. But to speed things up, there's no rule against holding the necessary hearings earlier. Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the new majority leader, over the weekend predicted speedy Senate confirmation of Kennedy's Cabinet choices. But he said he expects some of them to be quizzed at length. Indications are that the President-elect's brother, Robert F. Kennedy, will get the closest look as attorney general-designate. It is the first time a president has named his brother to a Cabinet position. Robert Kennedy, age 35, also has brought some multitudes from senators about his experience for the job as head of the Justice Department. Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., Senate GOP leader, has promised detailed questioning of Robert Kennedy. The Senate very rarely rejects a president's choice for a Cabinet post, but it has been done. Two leaders of a move to make it easier to halt a Senate filibuster hope to get action by the middle of the week. They are Sens. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., and Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn. Kuchel and Humphrey want the rule to be changed so that a filibuster can be stopped by the vote of 51 senators, a bare majority. At present it takes two-thirds of senators present and voting, and Southern senators are against any change. Kuchel and Humphrey want a test vote by midweek on the right of a member to "move the previous question"—a parliamentary procedure that would cut off debate and force a vote. The House has used this rule for a long time, but the Senate has not for many years. Vice President Richard M. Nixon has held that it is proper in some circumstances. But Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., last week contended that it would require a two-thirds majority of those voting to "move the previous question." If that contention is upheld, Kuchel and Humphrey would get nowhere on the issue. The House still has not reached a showdown on curbing the power of a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition on the Rules Committee which in the past has throttled liberal legislation. Speaker Sam Rayburn has said the coalition's power will be broken even if one of the Southern Democrats, Rep. William Colmer, D-Miss., has to be replaced on the Rules Committee. But indications are that some kind of compromise will be reached. Senate Majority Leader Mansfield today proposed that the government pay $1 million for television and radio time for each major political party in presidential campaigns. He made that suggestion in offering a series of measures to streamline election procedures. Among his proposals were abolishing the Electoral College, moving presidential inaugurations up to Dec. 1, cutting the length of campaigns, and federal aid to encourage presidential primaries. As to his radio-TV idea, Mansfield said campaign costs have reached "enormous levels." He added, "I do not think it serves the national interests when the expenses for those who campaign to serve all the people must be financed by a relative handful of people and organizations which make large contributions directly or indirectly." The chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., proposed Sunday the creation of 63 new federal judgeships. Celler said "all the evidence clearly demonstrates the need for these additional judges." The proposal would add some covered political plums to Kennedy's patronage bundle. Federal judgeships pay a minimum of $22,500 a year and have full-pay retirement benefits. Appearing on a Sunday television program NBC-Meet the Press, Dirksen and Rep. Charles A. Halleck, the House Republican leader, said they would not oppose the Kennedy administration's legislative program on any blanket basis, but would decide major issues on their merits as they see them.

Castro Continues Defense Build-Up

HAVANA (AP)—Regular army units moved into Havana's waterfront today and set up military tents near the memorial to the battleship Maine in feverish preparations to repulse what Prime Minister Fidel Castro calls "an attack from the north." The semi-official newspaper Revolution in banner headlines said a "Yankee aircraft carrier" had arrived at Guantanamo Bay, the big U.S. naval base in eastern Cuba. The newspaper apparently referred to the 45,000-ton supercarrier Franklin D. Roosevelt leading a flotilla of 150 Atlantic Fleet warships on annual maneuvers in the Caribbean opening today. A Navy spokesman in Puerto Rico said the warships will go in and out of the U.S. base at Guantanamo Bay, the last U.S. foothold in Cuba, "in the normal run of things." The U.S. Atlantic Fleet's Caribbean maneuvers, which will continue until the end of March, added to the invasion jitters. About 140,000 officers and men will take part. In the fleet, in addition to the $90-million carrier, are three guided-missile cruisers and two nuclear submarines. The Navy stressed that the maneuvers were planned long ago and have no connection with the U.S. break in diplomatic relations with Cuba. But the flotilla is bringing twice as many men and ships to the Caribbean as there were in last year's maneuvers. And it carried enough fire power, missiles and war planes to give strong support to the Guantanamo base. The Navy spokesman attributed the increased number of ships and men to the fact that guided missile vessels are taking part for the first time. The U.S. warships, from every major base on the Atlantic Coast, will be joined by Canadian, British and Dutch units. U.S. Marines will practice amphibious landings on Vieques Island, 20 miles east of Puerto Rico. The U.S. fleet movements, labeled "provocative" by the Havana newspaper El Mundo, appeared to offer an excuse for the Castro regime to whip up the invasion hysteria now lagging after 10 days of warnings. The Navy show of strength was the only "enemy invasion" that Castro could point to despite his complaint to the U.N. Security Council that American forces were going to attack him. Invasion preparations have gone to the extreme of mining the network of major highways leading out of the capital. But the invasion fever had so died down by Sunday that the radio alert network, embracing 23 standard broadcast frequencies and at least four on the FM band, all carried Cuban League baseball games. Castro's agents arrested 10 more accused terrorists and rounded up suspects throughout Pinar del Rio Province. Military intelligence headquarters announced the smashing of a bomb-making ring in Cotozaco, five miles below Havana. It said the ring was linked to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. The government said the 10 men arrested were led by former Public Works Minister Manuel Ray. Under a new law they are all subject to execution.

DeGaulle Wins In Algerian Voting

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle's Algerian program won the approval of 56.61 per cent of France's voters Sunday, short of the 65 per cent the president reportedly hoped for. Although abstentions cut the "yes" vote below the endorsement De Gaulle sought, there was every indication the president would consider the outcome in the three-day referendum as a mandate to push ahead with his program. De Gaulle has promised more self-government at once for the North African territory and its Moslem majority and a self-determination referendum when the 6-year-old nationalist rebellion is ended. When counting in Algeria was halted for the night, 67.6 per cent of the votes cast were in favor of De Gaulle's program, but abstentions — the result of a boycott urged by both diehard French colonialists and the nationalist rebels — were running as high as 40 per cent in some of the territory's 13 departments. The vote went against De Gaulle in only one department—Oran, a hotbed of colonialism and rebel nationalism as well. De Gaulle had said he would consider an abstention as a vote against him and hinted he would resign if he did not get a solid endorsement. But Premier Michel Debre in a midnight TV appearance claimed a great victory for the government and said exultantly, "What a feeling of rallying, unity and strength the nation has shown, rising above those who work to divide." The Constitutional Council reported this vote in France: registered voters 26,847,953; ballots cast 20,809,029; yes 15,198,714, no 4,996,507; void ballots 613,808. The yes vote in France thus was 75.25 per cent of the ballots cast, while the abstentions were 22.5 per cent. The polling was generally quiet in France. But in Algeria rebel attacks or clashes between troops and demonstrators resulted in 14 deaths, bringing the toll for the three days of voting there to 29 dead and scores of wounded. The worst violence was at Tiarret, south of Orleansville, where several hundred Moslems advanced on the European quarter with nationalist flags. A police patrol, cornered, shot its way to freedom, and the mob rioted for several hours. Before order was restored, 5 persons were dead and 30 wounded. The first two days of voting in Algeria had been in the countryside and in the villages, and the turnout, aided by prodding from the French army, was generally large. But in the Algerian cities Sunday more sophisticated, educated Moslems stayed home in droves. In Oran, the vote was 73,350 to 11,777 against De Gaulle. There were 85,083 abstentions, mainly among the Moslems, who had been warned by the rebels not to vote.

Claim Americans Among Casualties

MOSCOW (AP)—Pro-Communist forces in Laos claimed today a number of Americans were among 20 foreign officers and men killed or wounded in recent fighting, the Soviet news agency Tass reported. The agency quoted a communist Pathet Lao as saying a vast region had been brought under its control in the past four weeks. The only American personnel known to have taken part in any operations in Laos are the U.S. military attaché and his staff. They have been flying reconnaissance missions over the battle areas at the Laotian government's request. Their plane was hit once and was fired on a second time, but no one was reported injured.

Judge Holds Off Georgia U. Order

ATLANTA (AP)—A federal judge who ordered two Negroes admitted to the all-white University of Georgia granted a stay today to permit an appeal to a higher court. The action by Judge W. A. Bootle came as Miss Charlayne A. Hunter, 19, and Hamilton E. Holmes, 19, were at the university in Athens making final arrangements to enter the 175-year-old institution. The stay order will delay their enrollment with 7,400 white students until the opening of the spring quarter late in March. It gives the segregation-minded Georgia Legislature, which opened a 40-day session today, a chance to strike out provisions of laws banning the use of state funds in operation of an integrated college. The more than 250 legislators whooped and hollered for several minutes when word of Bootle's stay action reached the legislative halls. "Judge Bootle's stay takes off the immediate pressure," said Frank S. Twitty, House floor leader. "It gives the legislature time to study and think, and act judiciously." At Athens, 60 miles east of Atlanta, Miss Hunter and Holmes were in the process of being enrolled when Bootle's delay order came. The quick action by Bootle brought a prompt announcement from Mrs. Constance Baker Motley of New York, counsel for the National Advancement of Colored People, that his action will be appealed to the 5th U.S. Court of Appeals at New Orleans. The state's appeal to this same appellate court will contest Bootle's desegregation decree. Bootle warned Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook that there should be no delay in the appeal and ordered the university to post a $5,000 good-faith bond. Bootle's decision today came less than two hours before Gov. Ernest Vandiver prepared to address the legislature and try to point a way out of the crisis and conflict in state and federal laws.

Sanford Children Are Enrolled In Integrated School

RALEIGH (AP)—The two children of Gov. Terry Sanford were enrolled in Raleigh's Murphy School today and became the first children of a Southern governor to attend an integrated school. Betsy, 11, and Terry Jr., 8, arrived at the school a short distance from the Governor's Mansion at about 8:35 a.m. They were accompanied by their mother and Hugh Cannon, assistant to the governor. There were forms to fill out and other routine in the principal's office before Betsy was assigned to Mrs. Barbara Sidler's sixth grade class and Terry Jr. was assigned to Mrs. Carl McDuffie's third grade. The Murphy school, one of the oldest schools in the Raleigh system, is the only integrated unit in Raleigh. It has one Negro pupil, 7-year-old William Campbell, who is a second grader.

Recover Nuclear Reactor Victim

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP)—Special crews recovered the last body today from the building housing a nuclear reactor that exploded last week. The blast on the Atomic Energy Commission's eastern Idaho testing station Tuesday night, killed three young servicemen. The AEC said the recovery effort was complicated by the fact that the body was "lodged in the upper structure of the reactor building"—directly above the top of the damaged reactor. The explosion — not an atomic blast — came as the three men were preparing the reactor to start up after a 10-day shutdown. The reactor itself is the prototype of one intended for use as a mobile power and heat source by armed forces in remote areas. Killed were Army Spec. 5.C. John A. Byrnes, 27, and Spec. 4.C. Richard L. McKinley, 22, and Navy Electrician 1.C. Richard C. Legg, 26. The three bodies, themselves highly radioactive, have been lodged in a specially shielded facility pending funeral arrangements.

Kennedy Said To Be Planning For Another Talk With President

PROBABLE CONFERENCE MAY BE HELD DAY BEFORE INAUGURATION EVENT. CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy was reported today to be planning another conference with President Eisenhower. It probably will be held in Washington Jan. 19, the day before Kennedy takes office. Word of this plan circulated as the president-elect arrived at Harvard University for a meeting of the institution's board of overseers — a supervisory group of alumni, Kennedy, a graduate of Harvard, is one of the overseers. Before driving to the university from nearby Boston Kennedy was urged to assert strong leadership and seek more money to promote world peace through American aid to foreign scholars. The president-elect also announced appointment of Newton N. Minow of Chicago, a law partner of Adlai E. Stevenson, to the chairmanship of the Federal Communications Commission. Kennedy already has had one conference, last Dec. 6, with Eisenhower. The president-elect said at the time that the session had been most helpful and that he might accept Eisenhower's invitation to come to the White House again before his inauguration. Kennedy reportedly wants to discuss specific matters with the outgoing president. But he also is said to feel that a second conference on the eve of the new administration's taking over would be a demonstration to the world of American unity. Expansion and more vigorous direction of the existing program of aid for foreign scholars—a program of educational and cultural assistance to such students—was the second step recommended to Kennedy within 24 hours for improvement of international relations.

Prison Break Is Quickly Subdued

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—State police with shotguns, advancing behind a barrage of tear gas, quickly quelled an attempted escape at the Eastern State Penitentiary Sunday night. Two guards were stabbed with makeshift knives, neither seriously. A convict received a skull fracture. Fourteen convicts engineered the attempted break, state troopers said. The 14 opened the cell doors of hundreds of other prisoners in the maximum security block, apparently in a move to create confusion, but only 16 others left their cells. The 14 surrendered meekly in a prison garage, giving up nine hostages. One of the hostages had been wounded. Four of the convicts were in guard uniforms. The disturbance started shortly before 8 p.m. Warden W. Bannister said guard Donald Carr, 40, allowed one prisoner to enter another's cell to return a guitar. Both jumped Carr, who was stabbed in the left shoulder. He dropped his keys and ran. The two convicts then ran to the cell block door, unlocked it, overpowered guard Lt. William Righter, 59, and began unlocking all doors in the maximum security cellblocks. Righter suffered a superficial knife cut in the abdomen. The convicts were taken as hostages. The first two convicts, picking up a dozen accomplices and other hostages along the way, then approached one of the main gate guards. "They told me they were going to shoot the guards unless I opened the door," said guard Tom McDonald. "I pointed a shotgun at them through the bars and they ran away."

Gov. Sanford Plans Active Role In C&D Work

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Terry Sanford told the State Board of Conservation and Development today he intends to have an active role in the CD work. "I intend to be a working chairman," declared Sanford as he presided over his first session as head of the board. "I intend to be present for all board meetings and to be available for all your endeavors." He said he felt that the work of the Department of Conservation and Development "is one of the most interesting things the state is doing." Sanford noted there have been reports in the press about the possibility of dividing the CD Board of the CD Department. The new governor said he had not made up his mind on any such proposals. If and when a decision is made, he said, it will come after careful consideration and consultation with the board members. During his campaign, Sanford posed the possibility of divorcing the commerce and industry division from the department in an effort to accelerate and improve its operations. Commercial fishing interests also have campaigned to have the commercial fisheries division of the CD operated as a separate agency. However, the Commission on Reorganization of State Government has recommended against separation. Miles Smith of Salisbury, vice chairman of the board, pledged to Sanford the board's full cooperation during his administration. Sanford lauded William P. Saunders, who relinquished the reins of director of the CD Department. He said, "North Carolina owes a debt of gratitude to Saunders for his efforts. He has done an outstanding job." The board approved the appointment of Rev. W. L. Under, a top Sanford campaign aide, as assistant CD director. Sanford announced he had asked Walker Martin, Raleigh businessman, to serve as chairman of the Commerce and Industry Committee succeeding the late H. Carl Buchanan of North Wilkesboro. Saunders predicted great accomplishments for the incoming leadership. Saunders, retired textile industry executive who spent more than five years as C&D director, made his first report at a C&D Board session over which Gov. Terry Sanford presided. Saunders was honor guest Sunday night at a dinner for C&D Board members, hosted by Gov. Sanford at the Executive Mansion. Hargrove Bowles Jr., Greensboro businessman and Sanford's choice to head the C&D agency, was to take his oath of office during the day-long board meeting. In his prepared report, Saunders expressed confidence that under Gov. Sanford and Director Bowles the department will continue to move forward under the guiding hand of this board and make outstanding contributions to the welfare of the people of North Carolina. Saunders' review of the department's activities for the past six months included these highlights: During the 1960 calendar year $235,797,000 was invested in 523 new and expanded manufacturing establishments in the state. These investments created a potential of 31,657 new jobs, and will add $100,589,000 annually to industrial payrolls. Use of state parks reached an all-time high during 1960, with more than 1,650,000 visitors. The mineral industry chalked up a good year, with indications pointing to a record high value for mineral production in the state for 1960. The Division of Community Planning has in progress work for 27 municipalities and 2 counties, under three federally aided planning projects costing a total of $196,000. One-half this amount will be paid by federal grants. The state came through the fall forest fire season in good shape. While there were about the same number of fires as the previous year, the average size of fires was reduced from 40 to 7 acres, reported.

SAUNDERS' REVIEW OF THE DEPARTMENT'S ACTIVITIES FOR THE PAST SIX MONTHS INCLUDED THESE HIGHLIGHTS: DURING THE 1960 CALENDAR YEAR $235,797,000 WAS INVESTED IN 523 NEW AND EXPANDED MANUFACTURING ESTABLISHMENTS IN THE STATE. THESE INVESTMENTS CREATED A POTENTIAL OF 31,657 NEW JOBS, AND WILL ADD $100,589,000 ANNUALLY TO INDUSTRIAL PAYROLLS. USE OF STATE PARKS REACHED AN ALL-TIME HIGH DURING 1960, WITH MORE THAN 1,650,000 VISITORS. THE MINERAL INDUSTRY CHALKED UP A GOOD YEAR, WITH INDICATIONS POINTING TO A RECORD HIGH VALUE FOR MINERAL PRODUCTION IN THE STATE FOR 1960. THE DIVISION OF COMMUNITY PLANNING HAS IN PROGRESS WORK FOR 27 MUNICIPALITIES AND 2 COUNTIES, UNDER THREE FEDERALLY AIDED PLANNING PROJECTS COSTING A TOTAL OF $196,000. ONE-HALF THIS AMOUNT WILL BE PAID BY FEDERAL GRANTS. THE STATE CAME THROUGH THE FALL FOREST FIRE SEASON IN GOOD SHAPE. WHILE THERE WERE ABOUT THE SAME NUMBER OF FIRES AS THE PREVIOUS YEAR, THE AVERAGE SIZE OF FIRES WAS REDUCED FROM 40 TO 7 ACRES, REPORTED.

Clothing Afire, Dies Of Burns

HICKORY, N.C. (AP)—An 83-year-old man, Robert Artis Whitener, burned to death today when his clothing caught on fire at his home on Rt. 1, Hickory. A daughter, who lived with him, smelled smoke and found Whitener in the kitchen and it on fire about 6 a.m. Authorities said the kitchen caught fire from Whitener's clothing. The clothing ignited, authorities theorized, from either Whitener's attempts to start a fire or from a frayed electric drop cord.

The marriage of Miss JoAnn Hathaway and Gordon Lee O'Briant, Jr. was solemnized on Sunday afternoon at four o'clock at the Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Greenville. The Rev. M. F. Scott, Jr., uncle of the bridegroom, officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Hathaway of Route 1, Winterville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. O'Briant, Sr., of Sanford.

Ralph Mills, pianist, of near-Winterville, and Joyce Jackson, soloist, of Winterville, presented the wedding music. Miss Jackson sang "Whither Thou Goest," "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with seven branched candelabras with cathedral candles, banked with palms of emerald green and baskets of gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of bouquet taffeta fashioned with a portrait neckline trimmed with re-embroidered alencon lace and seed pearls.

She wore a finger-tip veil of French illusion extending from an organza rosebud crown. She carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid and frenched carnations.

Miss Patsy Eskridge of Burlington was maid of honor. She wore a street length dress fashioned with a rounded neckline, short kimono sleeves and a gathered skirt.

Bridesmaids were Misses Judy Hathaway, sister of the bride of Winterville, Judy O'Briant, sister of the bridegroom of Sanford. They wore dresses similar to the honor attendant's, and carried nosegays of yellow mums and pom poms.

Miss Karen Sue Tyson of Greenville, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a floor length light blue satin dress fashioned with gathered skirt and sash crossing in front, with a bow in the back.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Warren Elkins, fraternity brother of the bridegroom of Fayetteville, James N. Zachery, fraternity brother of Sylvia, Willis Whitehead of Yanceyville, and Nixon Porter Jr. of Wilson.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hathaway wore beige sheath of cotton embroidered lace over green taffeta, with a bateau neckline, with green satin trim. She wore a beige hat and a corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother wore an ice blue brocade sheath with ice blue satin accessories. She wore a corsage of pink roses.

The bride is a Winterville High School graduate and attended one year of nursing school in Durham. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy and is a member of Kappa Psi Fraternity and Rho Chi Honorary Society.

At present he is a pharmacist at the Lakewood division of Kerr Rexall Drugs in Durham.

For traveling, the bride wore a brown wool sheath with brown accessories and the groom lifted from her bridal bouquet. The newlyweds will reside at 1927 Morehead Ave., Durham.

After-Rehearsal Party

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Speight entertained the O'Briant-Hathaway wedding party, out-of-town guests and friends Saturday at 9 o'clock at the home of the Speights.

Cake Cutting

Members of the wedding party out-of-town guests, and friends were entertained at a cake cutting given by Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Hathaway, parents of the bride.

Assisting in the home were Mesdames Durwood Hines, W. D. Tyson, sisters of the bride, William Nobles and Jasper Nobles, aunts of the bride.

Mrs. Gordon Lee O'Briant Jr.

Stretching Dollars

RALEIGH — Vegetables rate high on the market list after an abundance of holiday meats, cakes and other special foods. Fresh vegetables are tasty, nutritious and economical.

Mrs. Ruby P. Uzzle, consumer marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says that some canned and frozen vegetables are lower in price at this time of season than fresh forms. So check the prices before buying. Budget priced winter vegetables include potatoes, carrots, onions, turnips, rutabagas and cabbage. Florida vegetable supplies of sweet corn, snap beans and squash are increasing each week in quality and quantity.

Mrs. Uzzle says citrus continues in the spotlight of best fruit buys. Grapefruits are available at varying prices due to size and quality of fruit. Check citrus fruits for damage caused by holiday storage, cold weather, and transportation, when buying in large quantities. Oranges, tangerines and tangelos are increasing in supply and flavor.

Apples out of storage are selling at high prices but many cooking apples of small sizes are budget buys. California pears are a tasty fruit for salad making. Beef supplies remain plentiful with roasts, ground beef and round steak selling at lower-than-average prices. Pork is more abundant than last month causing prices to decline. Hams, picnic shoulders, loins and Boston butts are carrying reasonable price tags.

Mrs. Uzzle reports that fryers are budget buys when "specialized." Whole birds cost less than cut-up birds — at least four cents a pound. Egg prices are about steady but should begin to decline with anticipated increase in egg production in coming months.

Nurses Meeting

The North Carolina State Nurses Association District 20 will meet in Rocky Mount at Bullock's Barbecue Restaurant Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. All nurses are urged to be present, especially the general duty nurses of Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Invitation To New Residents

The Newcomers Club, designed for the newer residents of Greenville, will hold their first meeting of the year Thursday morning at a local restaurant for cards and coffee, followed by a dutch luncheon.

Mrs. W. S. Stafford, chairman of the committee on new resident contacts, invites all interested new residents to join this group. In making this announcement she stressed the point that participation does not necessarily obligate her for regular attendance, rather that all new residents, or other townswomen interested in such a group, should feel free and privileged to join the group at her convenience.

She also pointed out that the purpose of the group was to give the new resident a social outlet while acclimating herself to the new community, affording her an opportunity to meet other newcomers and also older residents of Greenville. Both bridge and canasta are enjoyed and one may attend both or either the cards or luncheon.

The group will meet Thursday, January 12, at 9:30 a.m. Luncheon will follow at 12:30 p.m. Reservations and information may be had by calling Mrs. Stafford, PL 8-2428, or either of the reservation chairmen, Mrs. N. F. Merritt, PL 2-2317, or Mrs. Douglas Bunting, PL 2-7701.

Lector Club Has Luncheon

The Lector Book Club met Tuesday noon at the home of Mrs. Wiley Forbes on Hillside Drive.

After being greeted at the door by the hostess, members were served a three course luncheon. After lunch, a short business meeting was held, the books were exchanged, and the meeting adjourned.

News And Notes From Bethel

Mrs. Speir had charge of the program. She used the second lesson in this year's study book, "Safe in Bondage". The topic was "The Threatened Rural Community". The story told of the indifference of the people in a rural community and how this indifference retarded progress in the church. This plus other difficulties made the load too heavy or difficult for the minister.

At the social hour the hostesses served ice cream pie, assorted nuts and coffee.

Circle Number One

Circle Number One met in the home of Mrs. Charlie G. Whitehurst at three Monday afternoon with Mrs. J. Van Taylor, Sr. as co-hostess.

Mrs. W. T. Carson, leader of the circle presided at the business meeting and Mrs. W. T. Thigpen gave the devotions and the program.

For refreshments jello with whipped cream, nuts and coffee was served.

Yes, Virginia, The Office Is Busy

It's difficult to pin down, but one can sense an attitude or atmosphere suggesting that in these last weeks of President Eisenhower's term of office that the country is near-leaderless . . . coasting . . . to the time of inaugurating a new president.

That attitude is in error; as witness the need for "not coasting" during the days of trouble in Laos, the Cuban problem and the continuing round of diplomatic and governmental problems at home and abroad. Somebody must make decisions in each of the multitude of everyday functions of government.

Many are decisions that only the president can make; mere momentum will not suffice.

Generally speaking, Mr. Eisenhower has chosen to remain well in the background these days. He is quoted by the press (when quoted) as speaking through his press secretary. His public appearances now are relatively rare; speeches, even more rare.

The President will not be giving his State of the Union Message in person . . . that's a measure of self-effacement he has chosen.

It's as though he is anxious to give his successor the widest possible latitude in establishing himself as president in terms of public acceptance at the moment of inauguration.

This is speculation of course, but we feel there is a closeness . . . an affinity . . . between departing presidents and their successors the rest of us seldom encounter in our lifetimes. For the one there is a welcome relief of shedding burdens we can only guess at; and sympathy for the new chief-of-state, born of the responsibilities and experiences we are unlikely to ever know.

Mr. Eisenhower is quoted as having said "I have been misinformed about that young man", following a post-election meeting with John F. Kennedy. We are left to presume that comment implies a sort of personal benediction on Eisenhower's successor; but regardless, the president's behavior in recent weeks has all the aspects of a parting gesture toward the future Chief of State.

For this, and any considerations shown the incoming president, all Americans can be properly grateful. For Mr. Kennedy will be President of all Americans, not "some".

But so far as America being leaderless in this pre-inaugural period . . . it's an illusion. We have a President these days, in every sense of the word.

Citizens Should Now Study Issues At Hand

The decision of Greenville's City Council to put to a vote of the people the matters of urban renewal and public housing is a decision which few should find fault.

Not only are these matters of importance to Greenville, but they are likewise matters in which there is a considerable interest on the part of local citizens. While the decision reached by the voters in the referendum will not be legally binding upon the city's governing board, it will reflect the wishes of the majority of the voters of the city and undoubtedly will be followed by the Council as it reaches its final decisions on the matters.

Because of the necessary steps required for a referendum of this sort, it will be several weeks before the vote on these issues will be held. During this period citizens of Greenville should attempt to seek out all the facts, both pro and con, concerning urban renewal and public housing and likewise the needs of the city related to these matters. In this manner the citizens will be able to arrive at the decision which will be in the best interest of the city and its citizens as a whole.

Matters which are of sufficient importance to refer to a vote of the people deserve the most careful consideration the people can give them. We urge the people of Greenville to give their most careful consideration to these issues between now and the day the referendum is held.

Recession Signs All Around Us

By RALPH ROBEY

Those who believe we are in a recession have many strong arguments on their side. Some of the factual points they cite are:

Gross national product is as broad an economic measure as any nation can have. It is the total of all goods and services produced. Since it is expressed in monetary terms, a change of price affects the total. We have an official price "deflator", but it has shown little variation over the past couple of years. The all-time high of our gross national product was in the second quarter of 1960. The figure was $65 billion. Since then there has been an insignificant decline, but the total should have continued to advance and be around $75 billion by the end of the year.

Production is measured by the Index of the Federal Reserve Board. This has extremely broad coverage and the figures are subjected to every corrective method known to statisticians. The average of 1957 is used as the base which means it is equal to 100. The all-time high of this index was 111 in January 1960. It dropped a couple of points in the Spring, but in July was still 110. In November the index was 105. Again this does not amount to much percentage-wise, but it is disturbing that we have not been able to get above the peak of January 1960.

Until a few months ago our statistics on housing starts were collected and published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. It was rather generally believed that the figures reflected much to be desired and the task of compiling the information was shifted to the Census Bureau. The immediate change was dramatic and has continued so month after month. Now no one knows exactly what to make of the figures because they behave like a jumping-jack, and the housing industry does not operate in that manner. In any event it is clear that the total of housing starts is well below 1959. Total construction appears to be at just about the 1959 level.

Employment has done well during the past year—done well in the sense that month after month a new seasonal high has been made. But the labor force has been growing at an unusual rapid rate and this has resulted in unemployment remaining distressingly high. This is serious, not only for those out of work, but because we are now in the period of the year when unemployment always increases for purely seasonal reasons and, with the total rising to above 5 million in January and February, we are almost certain to get some unfortunate legislation which will do nothing basically to help those out of work jobs.

Corporate profits continue to decline. In the second quarter of 1959 corporate profits before taxes reached a peak of just short of $2 billion. The original budget estimates for this fiscal year were based upon the assumption that pre-tax profits would be $1 billion. But such was not to be. In the first quarter they were $48.8 billion and they have been going down ever since. This is true both in the aggregate and in the profit per dollar of sales.

At the start of 1960 there was a quite appreciable lessening of worry over our international deficit—the difference between all that we receive from abroad and what we send abroad. The 1959 deficit was close to $4 billion, and the better feeling arose from the conviction that for 1960 this figure would be reduced to at least $3 billion and perhaps lower. Some months ago this conviction was shattered by the start of a large gold outflow. The primary cause of the outflow was the substantial difference in interest rates between

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
KEEP TO THE CHANNEL

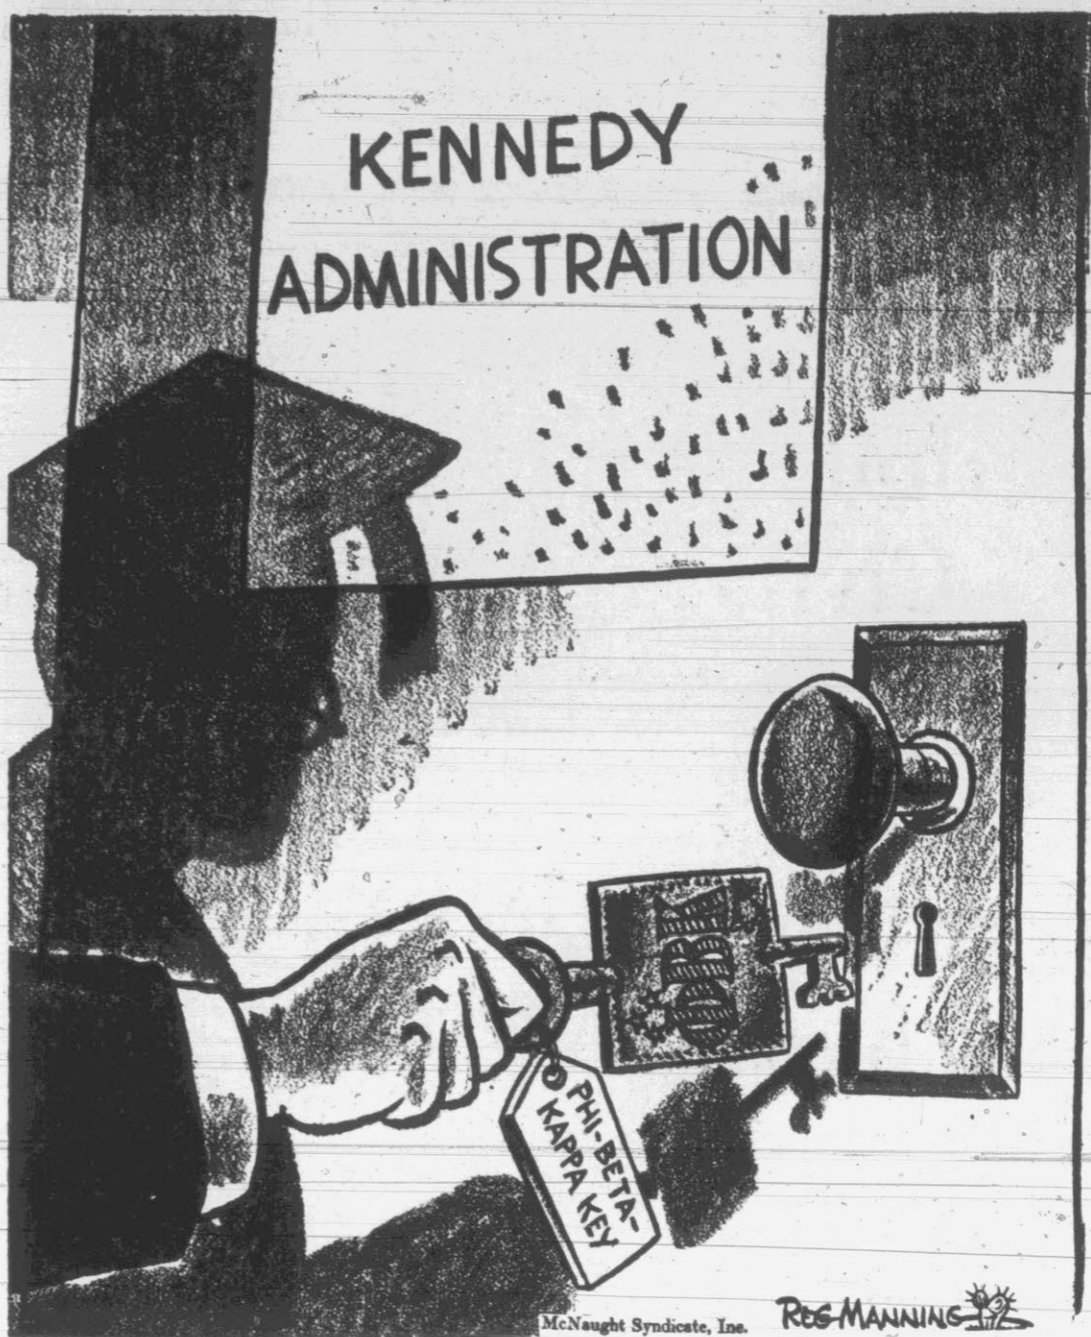

We are enjoined today on all sides to emphasize the positive. There is a large amount of truth in this counsel. Too much we think of snags, hidden rocks, a hundred or more things which could destroy our happiness and wreck our health or our future. Too little do we think of the broad channels which God provides for man to sail in. In this channel we have depth. If we keep to the channel we have a Pilot who is none other than God who made the channel.

"I suppose," said the captain, "that you know where all the snags in the river are?" "Not at all," replied the applicant; whereupon the captain said: "How do you expect me to employ you?"

The reply of the applicant was: "If you are looking for a man who knows where the snags are, I'm not your fellow. But I know where the channel is and where the snags are not, and that is where I calculate to do my sailing."

We were not made for defeat.

Standards In Education

Copyright, 1960, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The principal value of the Kennedy Administration can be that it need not base itself on the Roosevelt or Truman Administration. It can start fresh. It can to the Eisenhower Administration. It can start fresh. It can correct two decades of accumulated errors, without the need for criticizing anyone. It can be wholly objective if it chooses to be. For instance, the new Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare need not enter into the controversy as to Federal control of education. Much has developed in that area which avoids the term, "control." But what is most serious is that many persons hold degrees who are uneducated; many have won honors in a college that is as elementary as a high school. In a word, standards are not uniform and some are too low. What does the B.A. represent? Suppose a girl comes along for a teaching job, does her B.A. represent anything in particular? Or if she also has an M.A., does that by itself represent anything? It becomes necessary to ask where she got these degrees and in what subjects she majored and what those departments actually amount to. It is not a question of uniformity but of quality.

Those who need graduates who have specialized in mathematics, physics and chemistry also require that these men be cultured persons, with some broad knowledge of history and literature, because there is no person more dangerous than an ill-balanced learned man who knows everything about one subject and nothing about anything else. After all, Albert Einstein, the outstanding physicist of our era, was a brilliant violinist but a stupid politician. The human mind is very complex and no one is gifted in every application.

There ought to be some universal standard in the United States for the various degrees that are issued by colleges and universities. A graduate, let us say, of the Harvard Law School, who made the Law Review, is trained differently and more intensely than a fellow who goes to a night school course somewhere. It is possible that as the years pass, the less well-trained man will do better financially or politically than the better-trained man. That does not matter. The standards should be set as high as can be.

What does a "C" mean? A "C" in Radcliffe or Barnard is a higher mark than a "B" or even an "A" in some very inadequate college which exists on students' fees. These marks have come to mean very little comparatively because each college or university decides whether it is to be tough or easy. The so-called "country club" colleges ignore learning in favor of forming "the whole man or woman" which is, of course, nonsense. Precisely what development of mind, of character, of intellectual or moral discipline is produced by being a hopping cheerleader and doing a sort of juggling to establish the evidence of enthusiasm?

I am not a square. I do not want to spoil any kid's fun. But this country needs cultivated brains. We are in trouble for lack of trained intellects. We have many specialists and experts, but too many of them are technicians without the imagination, the intellectual breadth which comes from a profound cultural association with the whole of human experience. It is more important to raise

Other Editors Saying Throwing Brake Away

(Richmond News Leader)

In the Senate's renewed fight over a filibuster rule, we are witnessing one more engagement in a struggle that must impress many a casual observer as merely another combat between the South on one hand and the rest of the country on the other. The same unfortunate impression has been created by the South's continuing protest against the Supreme Court's opinion in the school cases.

Some of the Senate's more ritualistic liberals, beating their tom-toms in the name of "civil rights," are creating such a hubbub that a voice of common sense is likely to go unheard. But if one argument could be urged above all in behalf of retaining the present rule, it would be this: The fight is not the South's fight alone. It is a struggle in support of the viewpoint of a minority of the States, on any issue, at any time. Behind the liberals' smokescreen of racial politics, a fundamental principle of American government lies obscured.

We have made this argument before, and doubtless will make it many times again: The government of the United States does not operate on a basis of pure majority rule. If there is one principle of government shiningly clear in our history, it is that free men ought never to be subject, in their most important affairs, to the blind tyranny of the 51 per cent. The Constitution itself is rooted firmly in the right and power of minorities to protect themselves from oppression.

When the South takes a position today in support of the existing filibuster rule, a cry goes up that the Southerners are seeking to block civil rights bills. No one would deny that aim. But there is a great deal more to it than that. The rule that permits Southern Senators to contend effectively against social legislation affecting their own region is the same rule that would benefit every other minority of the States on some other question, some other day.

The Senate of the United States occupies a peculiar place in our form of government. It is often misunderstood. But where the House represents the people broadly, as people, the Senate represents the people narrowly and precisely, as States. In the upper chamber, the sovereign States assemble, and the Senators in a sense are ambassadors. By ancient tradition they are entitled to use every permissible parliamentary weapon in behalf of their respective interests.

The rule that permits long-extended debate is not an all-powerful weapon. Filibusters can be broken. Two-thirds of the Senators, fully agreed on the merits of a proposal, can impose their will on a dissenting one-third whenever they please. But the rule does operate, in practical effect, as a restraint on ill-considered legislation having little to commend it but popular appeal. The Civil Rights Act of last year cannot be described, for a variety of reasons, as good legislation; but because of the filibuster against it, the final act emerged as a vast improvement over the bill rushed so precipitously to the floor. Here was a restraint, a cooling-off, a pause to take a long view.

Do the tom-tom beaters not suppose that one day the drums may sound for them? Is the vision of a Humphrey or a Douglas so blurred by the hypnotic grip of "civil rights" that they can see nothing else, now or ever? Cannot they imagine a situation in which Minnesota or Illinois might be desperately concerned on a regional matter imperfectly understood?

Slowly, Senators, slowly! Rule 22 is the brake on the legislative juggernaut. Fling that away, and reckless impulse may be released, sure enough, against the South. But where would it be turned next? And how would it be halted then?

Most Expensive Places To Live

By ELMER ROESSNER

When the United States bought the Virgin Islands from Denmark 43 years ago, they were called "the American Poorhouse" because living standards were so low. Today, according to the Internal Revenue Service, they are the most expensive places to live in the world.

The IRS has revised its schedule of living allowances for government employees outside continental United States. This schedule is important because the IRS in income tax matters will accept similar living allowances by private employers to employees abroad. It will accept higher allowances, but they may have to be justified by receipts, bills and other evidence. The largest allowance granted is $30 a day in the Virgin Islands in the tourist season, from Dec. 1 through April, after which it drops to $20 a day. That does not mean that everybody is in the lout in the Virgin Islands. In fact, the typical native is still poverty stricken. But government employees must compete with rich tourists for swank accommodations, hence the $30-a-day rate. The next most expensive places for government workers and outsiders are Caracas and Maracaibo, Venezuela, where the IRS calculates it costs $28 a day to keep face.

These are followed by Riyadh, Saudi Arabia; Quito and Monrovia, Liberia, at $25 a day; and San Juan, Puerto Rico, and the Bahamas in winter, at $24 a day.

Lowest per diems are $6 for Afghanistan outside of Kabul, Burma outside of Rangoon and Mandalay, Indonesia and Poland, Soviet Russia is $16, Czechoslovakia, $12, Hungary, $7, and other Communist provinces in between.

Income tax experts, auditors and prospective foreign travelers can get the full schedule by sending 20 cents to the Superintendent of Documents and asking for Internal Revenue Bulletin No. 1960-52, which contains other useful information, including the intellectual breadth which comes from a profound cultural association with the whole of human experience.

Increase In Costs Blamed

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, MASS. — I notice that Dr. Walter W. Heller (new Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors for President-elect Kennedy) is telling the American people that 1960—especially the last half—was a period of recession. However, while the net earnings of many corporations were off, the gross earnings of most of these companies held up very well.

REASONS FOR POOR NET EARNINGS AND UNEMPLOYMENT

Most of these corporations showed poor net earnings because they were obliged to pay higher wages or give fringes, etc., to their wage-workers when there was no increase in their efficiency or output. At the same time, the door to higher prices was closed by stiff competition from domestic manufacturers as well as by the rising flood of low-cost goods from abroad.

I really feel that Dr. Heller will have much trouble to prove that our difficulties are caused by a lack of employment opportunities. Let us face the facts . . . the union leaders in this country must shoulder the lion's share of the blame. They have priced many goods out of our own and foreign markets by pushing up production costs. I wish Dr. Heller would translate unemployment into dollars. This would be the fair thing for him to do. He also should give proper allowance to appropriations for relief, veterans' benefits, unemployment insurance, and old age and survivors' insurance.

PRESIDENTS DO NOT MAKE CONDITIONS

It is true that 1960 did not "roar like a lion." Those who had forecast the "Roaring Sixties" have thus far been disappointed. It, however, is very unfair for Dr. Heller to blame this on the Eisenhower Administration. Conditions make or "unmake" Presidents; but Presidents can do little to change the business cycle.

On the other hand, if this business adjustment should continue through 1961, and perhaps become worse, it would be very unfair for Republicans to blame it on the Kennedy Administration. Every thoughtful businessman and labor leader knows that "the trees cannot grow to the sky" and that after the abnormal prosperity years since World War II a readjustment is inevitable; the longer it is postponed, the worse it will be. By the way Dr. Heller, who is now 45, was only a kid in 1930.—only 15 years old. Yes, and Mr. Kennedy himself was then only 13 years of age.

CERTAIN AREAS DESERVE HELP

Among the 400 cities where the leading newspapers publish this week, some are suffering from real unemployment, such as in areas hurt by the national switch from coal to oil. Yet other sections, such as the Cape Canaveral coast of Florida, are enjoying increased employment due to development of missiles. President Kennedy will make a wise effort to relieve by temporary aid any areas "submerged" as a result of natural causes. A permanent cure will be difficult and will take time. He has, fortunately, not only the unemployment and other legislation passed by Congress in 1930-1940 but also the new small business investment companies instituted by the late Congress.

Hence I urge Republicans to be patient and not blame the new administration for whatever happens in 1961. Many of our industries are dependent on conditions abroad—in Russia, in China, and in Europe (from which I recently returned). Our export and import figures will be factors in determining business conditions in the United States.

When Mr. Eisenhower lighted the nation's Christmas tree on Friday night, December 23, he appealed for aid for certain backward nations and races—irrespective of "color or creed." He rightfully stated that, if we take our Christianity seriously, we must be fair and generous with all nations and religions.

My appeal at this beginning of 1961 is that both Republicans and Democrats take their Christianity seriously. That we be fair to the President-Elect, who should not be blamed for what happens in 1961 in Cuba, Russia or China. The biggest thing for him to fear is the time when China discovers how to make an inexpensive atomic bomb.

to retiring Secretary Ezra Taft Benson's office. However, government rules still prohibit pumping water into smoked tongues and cooked ready-to-eat meats. There is no change in rules covering canned hams and other products, which can have 8 per cent added dew.

TAPESTRIES BETTER THAN GOLD FOR HOARDING
Those who hedged against inflation of the dollar and other currencies did best when they put their savings into Spanish, French and Flemish tapestries of the 15th and 16th centuries, according to Pick's World Currency Report.

These hedges doubled in value in 1960, it found. French rugs of the 17th and 18th centuries, manuscripts of the 12th to the 14th centuries, and 18th century Sevres porcelains increased 5 per cent in prices. Diamond, platinum and gold rose slightly.

Eisenhower's Boast May Be He Kept U.S. From War

Songwriter Says Work Will Be Recorded Soon

WILLIE FOGGS

An 18-year-old Robinson Union High School student says a song he wrote will be released as a commercial recording Jan. 20.

Willie Foggs of Route 2, Greenville told the Daily Reflector Friday his first successful composition, "I Held Back My Tears," will probably be recorded by Canadian-born artist Paul Anka.

Young Foggs, who lives with his step-father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. David Ebron, is a sophomore at Robinson Union High School in Winterville where he has received musical instruction for the past four years.

Foggs said he has been writing songs for about a year and a half but this marks his first success. A previous attempt to have one of his compositions published failed.

His music instructor at the Winterville school is Mrs. F. A. Williams of Washington, N.C.

The 18-year-old said he plans to move to New York to continue his education and career after the recording is released later this month.

"I Held Back My Tears," he said, was first published by Pioneer Music Publishers of San Antonio, Tex., in December. The transaction was handled by his agent, Don Curtis of New York.

Foggs composed both the musical score and the lyrics of the song. He plans to attend college "somewhere in Texas" following his training in New York.

Pitt December Births Dipped From November

December births in Pitt County dipped slightly from November, while deaths remained constant with the previous month, according to county health department statistics released this week.

Live births were recorded as 140, 59 white and 81 Negro, during the last month of 1960. The November total was 143, 68 white and 75 Negro.

Deaths remained at 57 during December, the same figure recorded for November. A breakdown showed the total included 33 white and 24 Negro.

Illegitimate births climbed slightly from November's 17. The department recorded 22 births out of wedlock, all Negro, during December.

Other statistics showed a drop in stillbirths from five in November to two last month; a drop in deaths under one month from four to two; a rise in deaths under one year from one to two; and an increase in cancer deaths from six to nine.

Finalized totals for 1960 were not available immediately.

By LEWIS GULICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower's proudest boast after he leaves the presidency may be that he kept America free from war.

The rest of his foreign affairs record is a mixture of gains and losses whose extent will be up for historical judgment in years to come.

Eisenhower, a military hero from the great crusade of World War II, came to the White House in 1953 with a legacy from President Harry S. Truman of the Korean War and a bundle of cold war problems.

He brought with him his "Crusade for Peace" hopes of a roll-back of communism and of flourishing of the free world which would lead to international tranquility.

He leaves for incoming President John F. Kennedy troubles in Southeast Asia, the Congo and Cuba and continuing difficulties with the Kremlin.

Major issues on the East-West scene when Eisenhower took the U.S. helm eight years ago—disarmament, Berlin, Red China—are still around with no signs of disappearing soon.

The Eisenhower administration extended America's formal alliance system around the world to include the Middle East and Southeast Asian areas. The focus of economic aid switched from industrial Europe to the newly developing countries. The backbone of U.S. military power shifted from bombers to missiles.

Several events placed Eisenhower in a new foreign policy framework early in his tenure.

One was the virtual end of the Marshall Plan, the massive economic aid program which helped West Europe's war-ravaged economy revive with astonishing vitality.

Another was the end of the Korean War and its entanglement of American men and money. The truce led to an uneasy peace, but it stopped the shooting. Accomplished basically along terms that had been set during the Truman administration, it was Eisenhower's first great dramatic maneuver after taking office.

Still another was the fading away of the era of sharp domestic attack concerning foreign affairs which was led by the late President Truman. The Democrats' regaining control of Congress in 1954 eased Eisenhower's embarrassment by putting in influential congressional positions men more sympathetic to Eisenhower's internationalist views and less disposed to pressure the State Department.

At the Kremlin, the death of the iron-handed dictator Joseph Stalin on March 5, 1953 paved the way for a new and more flexible—if no less dangerous—Soviet foreign policy carried on eventually by Premier Khrushchev.

From the beginning Eisenhower placed full trust in his secretary of state, John Foster Dulles. Dulles became one of the most influential secretaries of state in American history. After Dulles died in 1959 Eisenhower continued to have a cordial relationship with Dulles' successor, Christian A. Herter. But the relationship was not so intimate, and Eisenhower tended to conduct more of his own foreign policy during the last two years.

In 1954 the flames of the Indo-China war ended with a truce with the Communists and emergence of the supposedly neutral states of Laos, Cambodia and a divided Viet Nam. Dulles developed the South East Asia Treaty Organization, an alliance of eight countries with interests in that area including the United States, as a bulwark against Red expansion there.

In the Middle East, a U.S.-backed Baghdad Pact was set up against Soviet incursions in that area. In 1959 the alliance was renamed CENTO — the Central Treaty Organization—after Iraq, for whose capital the pact was originally named, pulled out to follow its own neutralist course.

In 1955 Eisenhower won congressional passage of a resolution approving U.S. defense of Formosa, Nationalist China's stronghold, should Communist China attempt to invade it.

In 1957 he obtained Congressional passage of a Middle East resolution declaring that the United States, upon request of any country in that area, would help against any communist aggression. The following year he sent Marines to Lebanon under this policy. He withdrew them after about three months, accomplishing what is widely regarded as a successful peace-keeping action.

In 1956 the brave uprising by Hungarians brought to the fore the Republicans' 1952 campaign talk about liberating the Communist-enclaved peoples of Eastern Europe. The United States gave no help, for fear of provoking World War III, beyond political support to the revolutionaries at the United Nations and admission of refugees.

The North Atlantic Treaty alliance split over the British-French-Israeli invasion of Suez. Eisenhower and Dulles condemned the action of their Allies and forced them to withdraw. The breach, especially painful to Eisenhower as a former NATO leader, was healed by December 1957 when Eisenhower attended a NATO summit meeting in Paris which agreed on supplying the alliance with the most modern weapons.

On the major East-West issues Eisenhower made repeated efforts and met, as many disappointments. One exception, the boom in East-West cultural exchanges after Khrushchev softened the Iron Curtain.

In 1954 and again in 1959 he sent his secretary of state to future Big Four talks on the future of Germany.

In 1955 he himself went to an East-West summit meeting at Geneva. He scored a propaganda coup by proposing that the Soviet Union and the United States open their skies to each other's airplanes. But the Soviets rejected the idea and gave Eisenhower no clue about the new Soviet leaders' willingness to come to terms with the West.

Long disarmament talks were distinguished for their propaganda rather than their progress. The only disarmament negotiation which has not blown up yet—the two-year-old Geneva parley on banning atomic tests—is marking time pending one more big try promised by Kennedy before the United States resumes testing.

More than 100 meetings with the Red Chinese at the ambassadorial level have produced little compromise. Instead, Peiping is leading the Communist camp in vilification of the free world.

After Dulles died, Eisenhower embarked on a final venture in personal diplomacy which he regarded as his last "great crusade" for peace.

In 1959-60 he visited Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America on trips that brought his total presidential travels to 118,000 miles.

He invited Khrushchev to America and agreed to visit the Soviet Union. He flew to Paris for a final summit conference on great East-West issues.

But Eisenhower's final crusade came to a jarring halt with the May 1, 1960, crash of an American U2 spy plane deep inside the Soviet Union. The administration denied, then admitted the flight. Eisenhower assumed the responsibility. Khrushchev torpedoed the summit conference and scornfully shunned further dealings with Eisenhower until the end of his term.

Nation Begins Observance Of Civil War Anniversary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A nation once torn asunder by a Civil War officially opened the 100th anniversary observance of that tragic era Sunday with solemn pageantry and prayer.

One theme was dominant in the ceremonies: the nation had been able to reunite itself after the war.

Both North and South paid tribute to the commanding generals of the rival armies that battled for four long years in the country's costliest conflict until World War II.

Troops in full dress uniform stood under chilly, leaden skies in New York City while wreaths were laid in honor of the Northern commander, Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, at his tomb on the bank of the Hudson River.

The crusty old general's grandson, Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant III, chairman of the National Civil War Centennial Commission, placed the first four wreaths in front of the tomb.

"The most wonderful part of Civil War," he said, "was that the members of the two armies were afterward able to work together to make this great nation what it is today."

Above him inscribed in granite were his grandfather's words: "Let us have peace."

The U.S. Military Academy Band played "America the Beautiful" while other wreaths were placed at the tomb in behalf of the nation, the state of New York, the city and the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, an organization of descendants of Union army officers.

Gen. Robert E. Lee's efforts to heal the wounds of war were praised at ceremonies at the Confederate leader's tomb in Lexington, Va.

Francis P. Gaines, former Washington and Lee University president, said that "the dignity of Gen. Lee, his tireless energy in behalf of tomorrow, and his faith in the future of this reunited country were the greatest stabilizing elements in the pathetic post-war years."

Grant's grandson hailed Lee as "a great and knightly American soldier and citizen" in a telegram from New York, and Gaines called the 18th president "a magnanimous leader."

The Civil War actually started April 12, 1861, when Confederate troops shelled Fort Sumter in the harbor of Charleston, S.C.

But President Eisenhower chose the so-called "Star of the West" incident to kick off the celebration. The "Star of the West" was a Union supply ship en route to Fort Sumter when rebel forces in the harbor fired on it, on Jan. 8, 1861, forcing it to turn around and head home.

Cadets of the Citadel re-enacted the firing in Charleston today, using five 24-pound cannons similar to those used a century ago. The USS Orleans Parish, a Navy minicraft support ship, has been fitted with mast, sails and paddlewheels for the re-enactment.

Members of the First Maryland Artillery, wearing Confederate uniforms, staged the same incident Sunday when they fired 17 rounds from a reproduction Civil War cannon at Annapolis, Md., docks. Earlier, a memorial service was held in the U.S. Naval Academy chapel.

Science Journal Is Distributed

First issue of "The East Carolina College Science Journal" for the current school year has just appeared. The publication, sponsored by the student Science Club and the college chapter of Chi Beta Phi, national honorary science fraternity, is now being distributed to students, faculty members, and alumni of the East Carolina science department, and to other interested people.

Barbara Manning of Greenville acted as chairman of the committee in charge of preparing the journal for publication.

Nine other students who worked with Miss Manning and Dr. Robert Haubrich, faculty representative, on the committee are Dirk S. Nixon of Greenville, president of Chi Beta Phi; Grover Smithwick of Morehead City, president of the Science Club; Rebecca Hill of Kinston; Phyllis Dudley of Rt. 1, Grafton; Jo Ann Parks of Greenville; Carolyn Pierce of Maysville; Marilyn Buck of Vanceboro; Donald Wilson of Bunnlevel; and Fred Johns of Fayetteville.

The current issue of the journal is a 19-page mimeographed publication. Contents include materials by both students and faculty members arranged under the headings Scientific Thought, The Science Department, Research, and Book Reviews. News of activities of the Science Club and Chi Beta Phi and of alumni members of the science department is also among contents of the publication.

Marble Changed Baby's Coloring

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Mrs. William Schribs noticed the complexion of her 3-week-old baby, Kenneth, turned from natural pink to blue and back again several times.

The alarmed parents hurried to the General Hospital, where the baby went through the color-change cycle again.

An intern removed a marble from the child's throat.

"It was popping up and down, acting as a valve which would let the child breathe when it was up and cut off his air supply when it was down," the intern said.

Art-House Business Showing An Increase

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There's no business like the art-house business.

For proof, you only have to look at the theater pages of a Los Angeles newspaper. You'll see ads for films made all over the world. Some days, the foreign films occupy as much space as the domestic ones.

This reflects the growing market for small theaters that show foreign films and the artier U.S. variety. The Hollywood Reporter recently counted their number at 600 in this country, a 100 per cent increase in five years. They have risen from 10 to 25 in Los Angeles in that time.

The reason? It's tied up with the cultural explosion this country is undergoing. You see it in the coffee houses, in the sales of records of offbeat comics, in mass magazines that print avant-garde writers once relegated to literary quarterlies.

I checked up on the art-house trend during my year-end reporter (where else does a movie reporter go on vacation but to the movies?). The local theater was playing "Hiroshima Mon Amour" and an Ingmar Bergman film, so I went.

My first impression was shock. Admission was always 60 cents when the house played American films. Now it was $1.49. I gulped, paid and went in. A score of patrons ("adults only") waited patiently for the first show. Soon there were 300, which any neighborhood house would welcome on a week night.

"Hiroshima" proved to be weird, surrealistic and sometimes profoundly moving, a mixture of entwined naked torsos and stark footage of atomic horror. During intermission I sought out the manager to ask "How's business?"

"Business is very good," he said, "much better than when I tried to play to the kid trade, and none of the headaches. No, I don't sell as much popcorn, but I don't have the overhead, either. I used to need three people to handle the candy counter. Now I use one. People are tired of those over-stuffed, unrealistic Hollywood pictures. They want to see life as it is. That's what the foreign film makers give them."

"Dirty pictures? Listen, there is sex all around us. That's life; you can't get away from it. We don't get many squawks on the admission charge. People will pay for what they want to see. If they don't want to see it, they won't pay a dime."

SHOT IN TURN—Actor Lee J. Cobb, garbed for role as a Civil War officer, focuses on photographer taking picture of him on the TV set of "School of the Soldier."

Three Pigs Are Exonerated

WILMINGTON (AP) — Three pigs, awaiting use in a pathology laboratory, were natural to take the blame for an offensive odor which spread through a nearby ward at James Walker Memorial Hospital here.

But hospital authorities found the three pigs blameless when they discovered a sewer line broken in the basement of the building.

standards than to erect more buildings.

If the new Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Abraham Ribicoff, wants to do a real job for the United States, he will devote himself to raising standards right up the line from the elementary school to the university. It is ridiculous that any college should waste the time of teacher or pupil with what is usually called English I. This is high-school stuff and if the student comes to college inadequately prepared, he should be flunked. A few years of that and the high schools would hear from the parents who would demand to know what is being done with the money they pay for school taxes. A few lazy and pedantic heads would roll.

The Kennedy Administration is principally made up of men with little Federal governmental past. They can display initiative and ingenuity without fear that they will be exposed for inconsistency or for some earlier stupidity. The few who have pasts to live down will have to take their chances with historic memory.

Those are merely some of the broad developments that are cited by those who believe we are in a recession. In the next column we shall list some of the favorable factors.

Industry Also Is Putting Emphasis On Young Men

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Life begins at 40 in Washington these days—and also in many business fields. In government, men in their forties are taking over in the White House, and in many cabinet and other top posts.

But industry also can muster a sizable list of companies headed by men in their forties, and by some even younger. They have come up fast in their fields, just as did President-elect Kennedy, 43, in his—and as did the photo-finish loser, Nixon, 47, in the same field of politics.

Spanning the industrial and political endeavors will be Robert S. McNamara, who at 44 is quitting as president of Ford Motors to become defense secretary.

In industry there are 1,600 heads of successful enterprises who are members of the Young Presidents' Organization, in which membership lapses at the age of 40.

The great majority of corporate chiefs are well above that age, of course. For most it has been a long climb up the executive ladder. For many the tenure of the top office will be short because it has been won only when close to the retirement age, or upon the death of an incumbent, also at a mellow age.

But throughout the nation's business history there have always been exceptions, young men who have risen fast. Some have headed young companies. Others have taken over established big concerns.

Some of today's young executives run enterprises owned by their families.

Many others have made their way up in concerns in which they own little stock. An example is McNamara, who climbed to the Ford presidency a month before being tapped for the defense job.

Some have become the youthful president of a company that absorbed a smaller one he was running. An example: Norman E. Alexander, 43, who became president of Sun Chemical three years ago when it took over Ansbacher-Siegle, a pigment manufacturing firm that he had headed since he was 36.

In his three years at Sun Chemical sales have risen from $42 million a year to $60 million. He advocates decentralization and delegation of authority and use of management training programs. Today Alexander also is president of TV and radio stations KMLY in Spokane, Wash., and KCLP in El Paso, Texas, and of Federal Color Inc. of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Hundreds of other men in their forties now run up and coming enterprises in widely varied fields scattered across the nation. Here is the merest handful of examples:

Miles B. Lane, now 48, became president of the Citizens' and Southern National Bank in Atlanta, Ga., when 34. The bank's net worth has gone from $50 million to $650 million during his regime. He preaches the humanizing of banks and also seeking out opportunities to lend rather than waiting for borrowers to drop in.

Richard Lechorn, 41, is president of Itek Corp., a space age technological firm at Waltham, Mass., which he helped start three years ago.

Henry Albrecht, 48, started the Waco-Porter Corp. of Minneapolis from scratch in 1945. It makes portable metal scaffolding with sales now more than $4 million a year.

Beverly Howard, 46, president of Hawthorne Aviation, an aircraft sales and flight training concern, became its head when he was 21. He started his business career as a grease monkey.

Many other presidents have yet to see 40. Ed White, 32, became head of Bowmar Instrument, Fort Wayne, Ind., nine years ago with $2,000 in capital and an idea. That a small specialty firm could compete with electronic giants in making miniaturized aircraft and missile control components. Gross sales last year were $5.5 million.

Arnold Weber, 34, president of the Registered Shirt Laundry Association, induces some 1,000 laundries to buy his shirts wholesale and sell them to customers who pledge to have them washed only where purchased.

Kennedy Intends Lead From Strength In His Future Diplomatic Maneuvers

Editor's Note—Central to John F. Kennedy's election campaign was a promise to provide dynamic leadership for the United States in a complex world. How is this promise likely to be applied to U.S. foreign policy. In the first of a five-part series on the plans and problems of the new administration, a seasoned diplomatic reporter outlines the direction Kennedy is likely to take on major foreign issues facing the country as he prepares to take office.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press
Diplomatic Affairs Reporter
WASHINGTON (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy intends to build up United States military power and devise new strategy to wrest the cold war initiative from the Soviet Union, in his first months in office.

Until he has these projects well advanced, Kennedy and the secretary of state-designate, Dean Rusk, hope to postpone pressures for a summit conference with Soviet Premier Khrushchev. Early summit meetings with allied leaders appear inescapable; both Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer anxiously desire to talk with the new chief executive.

Even a meeting with Khrushchev in the first six months may not be avoidable because the Soviet leader can set off a new Berlin crisis any time he wishes.

New action promised by Kennedy in the global struggle with communism ranges from increasing aid for Latin America, Africa and Asia to rebuilding the North Atlantic alliance, opening new channels of contact with Red China, and developing a "new approach" to the Soviet Union.

In connection with the Soviets, Kennedy said during the campaign that one thing Red leaders understand is power, and that his first concern as president would be to enhance America's armed strength in both nuclear and conventional weapons.

Kennedy's broad commitment on taking office Jan. 20 is to "get America moving again" and to restore its "prestige." He says determinations on how best to work toward these goals is the overriding task of the new administration.

That will require long-range planning, too. One of Kennedy's first decisions must be on the division of his time between the grand design of his foreign policy and the challenges and crises he must handle from day to day.

Already, in fact, critical problems are piling up for speedy action.

Foremost among these are:

1. Negotiations with the Soviet Union on a treaty banning nuclear weapons tests. Kennedy is on record as favoring "one more" big attempt to reach agreement. But as president he will be subjected to very heavy pressures from the Atomic Energy Commission and defense department to end the 26-month-old moratorium on U.S. weapons testing and resume underground explosions quickly.
2. The dollar crisis. Kennedy is reported convinced that he must take steps promptly to strengthen the American dollar as an international currency, which means cutting this country's loss of gold and dollars. Measures taken by the Eisenhower administration should become effective this year, but other action will be required to control the $4-billion annual balance of payments deficit.
3. The crisis in Laos. State department experts consider the conflict between pro-Western and pro-Communist forces in the little Southeast Asian kingdom capable of expansion into a larger war involving Western forces and the Chinese Communists.
4. The Cuban crisis. Behind the scenes there is more official alarm than has appeared publicly about the danger and damage to the U.S. world position from the buildup of Communist influence in Cuba. President Eisenhower applied economic sanctions and severed diplomatic relations. Kennedy will be urged to use a variety of political and economic measures against the Castro regime.

5. The Berlin dispute. This was the immediate cause of the abortive 1960 summit at Paris, and could develop into a new crisis at any time U.S. officials believe, however, that Khrushchev will stay his hand until Kennedy has an opportunity to take over the reins in Washington. Khrushchev evidently does want to meet the youthful new American leader, and undoubtedly knows that he would frustrate his own purpose if he mistimed his Berlin moves. However, it is also true that an extremely serious Berlin situation might force Kennedy to move toward a summit conference just as Eisenhower felt forced to do.

Kennedy's chief concern about rushing into meetings with Western leaders is that he needs time to get his cabinet and other top advisers organized, and to make an initial policy review. Apart from the Adenauer and Macmillan desires to meet him, it has been suggested that a NATO meeting at Oslo, Norway, in May should be converted into a Western summit session. Otherwise, it will be a foreign ministers meeting. Rusk also must get ready for U.S. representation in scheduled CENTO (Middle East-SEATO (Southeast Asia) and inter-American alliance meetings within the first six months of this year.

The NATO meeting will be of great importance. U.S. allies expect to find out there whether Kennedy will go forward with a plan advanced by the Eisenhower administration for giving NATO its own, seaborne nuclear rocket force. While neither Kennedy nor any spokesman is known to have made any actual commitment, he is expected to support the preliminary position taken by the outgoing administration.

How Kennedy handles each of these meetings and deals initially with each of the critical problems will have a decisive influence on the world's reaction to his leadership ability. One of the most striking facts about world reaction to Kennedy's election has been the evidence in editorial comment in foreign capitals that his promise to provide dynamic leadership for the United States and the Free World has been widely accepted. Now, the leaders and the peoples in scores of countries are waiting for him to show what he can do.

Introductions Began New Nanette Fabray Series

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The first episode of the new NBC comedy series starring Nanette Fabray on Friday was dedicated to setting the scene for adventures to come.

We picked up the McGoverns, played by Nanette and co-star Wendell Corey, immediately after their marriage and en route to Los Angeles and his two children. Well, now we've met the family and maybe things will start to pick up. However, the first show was a disappointment. It was played far too broadly by all concerned, and was full of pretty tired situations and dialogue. Nanette Fabray is a great comedienne and seems wasted in this trifle.

There was another premiere over the weekend—the season's first young people's concert on CBS Sunday afternoon. The music by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra was delightful. Conductor Leonard Bernstein, enunciating carefully and speaking with such stark simplicity it was almost patronizing, explained about overtures. I suppose the music lectures are what give this series an excuse for the music. But I did find teacher a bit long-winded and wished for more Philharmonic and less Bernstein.

Notice how many adventure shows this season have Florida locales? Three—"Michael Shayne," "Surfside Six," "Taliahassee 7000," a syndicated, not network series. And all of them made in Hollywood California.

With Cuba flaring up in the headlines, the American Heritage producers probably wish they'd picked the San Juan Hill period of Theodore Roosevelt's life to explore in next Friday's NBC special, "The Invisible Teddy," instead of his entrance into politics. John Daly will be a member of Jack Benny's cast Jan. 15 when the program honors the 26th anniversary of announcer Don Wilson's association with the Benny program. The current issue of "The National Parent-Teacher," the P-T-A magazine, beams approvingly upon the Dinah Shore Show, "National Velvet," and "Wagon Train," but looks daggery at "True Story," a daytime soap.

Accuse Parents Of Child-Torture

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—An 8-year-old Negro girl is hospitalized with multiple injuries from torture, police said.

John and Mattie Pickens, her parents, were arrested Sunday for investigation of how Patricia Ann Pickens got her critical injuries.

Deputy sheriff Robert Stringer said the child's toenails had been pulled out, she has a broken right arm, malnutrition and pneumonia and her body bears burns and whip marks.

The Pickens have seven other children.

NCAA Admits Investigation Of U. North Carolina Basketball

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Frank McGuire was close to the hot seat. Bud Wilkinson hoped to relinquish it. Tulsa and Southern California stood by ready to resume their places as members in good standing with the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

This was the situation today as the powerful 18-man NCAA council met to consider reported violations of its athletic code.

McGuire, North Carolina's successful 135-win-47-loss basketball coach said Sunday, "I'm innocent. The school is innocent." He replied to questions concerning the NCAA's investigation of the Tar Heels' basketball recruiting program.

Wilkinson, famed football coach and athletic director of the Oklahoma Sooners, said, "I am hopeful you know it was a long time ago. But you never know."

He spoke of a football recruiting fund in existence at Oklahoma between 1952 and 1954. Its disclosure brought indefinite probation for the Sooners last year and barred Oklahoma from postseason bowls and NCAA-controlled television.

Wilkinson's "you never know" recalled the case of Southern California, scheduled to be removed from probation two years ago but handed an additional two-year penalty. This time the Trojans expect to be restored to good graces, as does Tulsa, which was hit with a one-year probation the same time Oklahoma was censured.

In the case of North Carolina, the NCAA had no comment. Executive Director Walt Byers finally admitted the investigation was in progress. It has been going on for a year and a half after the Associated Press reported the appearance of McGuire and three other North Carolina representatives at Sunday's council meeting.

Byers did say, however, that he expected to make an announcement in the cases of Oklahoma, Tulsa and Southern Cal.

Precedent was broken when the NCAA said North Carolina was being investigated. It was expected to be shattered again if North Carolina is exonerated. Usually the NCAA makes no announcement when schools under investigation are found innocent, but the North Carolina case received far more than the usual publicity.

Chancellor William Aycock made North Carolina's presentation. He was accompanied by McGuire, Athletic Director Chuck Erickson and Dean Smith, assistant basketball coach.

It was the third time the university had gone before the council, and thus the third time the NCAA's committee on infractions, which does the preliminary work, had referred the case to the council for disposition.

North Carolina's appearance was voluntary. As McGuire put it: "We're innocent. That's why we came here—to prove it."

McGuire's team, stocked with Northern players, is ranked sixth nationally, has an 8-2 record and is hopeful of winning its first national championship since 1957.

Road Trips Endanger The Nation's Unbeaten Teams

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Road games, the great equalizer in college basketball, could contribute to chop the surviving handful of major unbeaten to a single digit this week.

Only top-ranked Ohio State, the defending NCAA champion, seems safe from a testing week's program that should indicate the strength of a perfect record list that includes Bradley, Louisville, DePaul and Vanderbilt.

The Buckeyes, who rolled to their 19th straight victory this season and 13th in a row, 91-65 over Illinois in their Big Ten opener Saturday, play small college power Evansville at 6-lumbus tonight before traveling to sub-par Northwestern Saturday.

Something has to give Saturday when Louisville (13-0) and DePaul (9-0) meet at Chicago. First, DePaul has a game at Ohio U. at Athens on Tuesday.

Bradley's test comes Thursday at Houston—the last team to beat the Braves (12-0) in their two-season run to an 18-game winning streak. Vanderbilt (10-0) this season puts its 12-game winning streak on the line against always-tough Kentucky at home tonight before meeting Mississippi State on the road Saturday.

Mississippi State chopped the unbeaten list down to the Fidelity Five last Saturday with a 56-48 upset of 10th-ranked Auburn, which had won 15 in a row and had captured 36 straight home games.

Last week's play, swinging the college season into the heat of the conference races that determine the bulk of the national tournament lineups in March, produced few surprises in addition to Auburn's loss.

Unranked DePaul, well-balanced with an attack led by 5-foot-9 Howie Carl, got past a tough road game with Dayton, 75-64, as all five starters hit double figures and Carl cashed 24. Fourth-ranked Louisville, with husky John Turner scoring 31 points, blitzed Marquette at Milwaukee, 94-63, and Vanderbilt handed Tennessee its first home court defeat of the season, 68-66.

All America Jerry Lucas had 35 points in Ohio State's romp over Illinois, and second-ranked Bradley kept rolling at the top of the Missouri Valley Conference, defeating Tulsa 76-66 as 6-foot-6 Chet Walker scored 46 points.

Third-ranked St. Bonaventure (11-1) got 32 points from soph star Fred Crawford and 23 from Tom Smith in a 89-78 victory over Duquesne's sixth-ranked North Carolina (8-2) went on a 9-1 burst in the last three minutes and beat Notre Dame 73-71 on Jim Hudock's basket at the buzzer; seventh-ranked Iowa (9-1) toyed with Minnesota 71-46; Duke, No. 8, was triggered by sophomore Art Heyman's 27 points and 16 rebounds in an 81-67 rout of North Carolina State for its 11th in 12 games; and ninth-ranked UCLA avenged Friday's loss to Washington with a 62-56 decision over the Huskies.

Kansas State (10-2), Southern California (11-3) made impressive bids for places among the top ten. K-State, with Ced Price scoring 20 points, opened its Big Eight season with a 69-58 whipping of Oklahoma State. Southern California, currently topping the Big Five race, completed a two-night, two-game sweep of California, 65-57, Saturday, and Wichita, handed strong St. Louis its first Missouri Valley Conference loss, 70-61.

Irish Coach Is Sore Over Loss To UNC

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A technical foul against Notre Dame that enabled North Carolina to pull even with the Irish and then ram in the winning goal in the last seconds of play Saturday night sparked some verbal fireworks.

"We were robbed," cried Notre Dame Coach John Jordan when his team dropped the 73-71 heart-breaker after apparently having victory in the bag.

Here was the situation: With 1:21 left to play, Notre Dame was leading 71-68. North Carolina's York Larese drove for a basket and a foul was called by referee Joe Mills.

Notre Dame Capt. Bill Crosby protested to Mills. Crosby said later he told Mills, "You really protect these guys down here, don't you?" With that, Mills called the technical foul.

Larese sank three free throws to tie up the game. Then North Carolina got the ball out of bounds and elected to hold it for one final shot. Jim Hudock tapped it in for North Carolina's winning margin.

Said Jordan, "The call of the foul when Larese drove was okay. But I don't think the technical should be called unless somebody has been hit or the referee has been cursed."

Jordan said he told Tar Heel Coach Frank McGuire, "Frank, you wouldn't want to win many that way, would you?"

Mills said Atlantic Coast Conference rules prohibit officials from commenting on a game.

Jordan pulled no punches when talking with a newsman after the game, but after cooling off, he was able to laugh and chat with McGuire.

"I'll tell you, Frank," said Jordan, "if there had been 500 people watching the game, I'd have told you to forget us. But there were 11,000 so we'll be back."

A capacity crowd of 11,498 people saw the game.

Wyoming's 1960 freshman football team won all four games and shot Jim Hudock more than one touchdown.

Belvoir-Falkland 62 Stokes-Pactolus 48

STOKES—Belvoir-Falkland mounted a five point lead in the first quarter and added to it in every period except the third to bump Stokes-Pactolus 62-48 in a Pitt County basketball game.

The visiting girls outpointed the Blue Jays 26-12 in the second half of the first game to overcome a three point halftime deficit and score a 45-34 victory.

For Coach Dale Wooten of Belvoir-Falkland, it was only his second conference win of the campaign but enabled the Eagles to climb into a tie for sixth place with Grimesland.

Joe Jenkins kept the nets hot with 22 points for the winners and Willie Waitale had 16.

Billy Roebuck had 13 points for S/P and Carroll Fleming 10.

Phyllis Nichols popped in 19 points to pace Coach Ed Warren's second half surge to victory. Dale Coward had 10 for the losers.

Thomas Hopeful For Match With Soviets

BOSTON (AP) — John Thomas, clicking off those seven-foot high jumps again, eagerly awaits another crack at the Soviets and may get it sooner than he hoped.

In fact the Soviets are looking for the Boston University junior — via trans-atlantic telephone from Moscow.

The story of this hunt from 4,600 miles away came out today following Thomas' 50th and 51st leaps of seven feet or more in less than two years.

Thomas cleared 7-1½ on the second try, 7-1½ on the first, then missed three efforts to tie his indoor mark of 7-2½ in a dual meet at Dartmouth Saturday. Prior to that he won a heat and the finals in the 45-yard high hurdles.

Thomas disclosed that Moscow has been placing calls twice daily to him for a week but so far the Soviets haven't made connections. The calls (it is seven hours later in Moscow) come before John arrives at school or while he is in class.

The AAU is trying to get Soviet high jumpers to the United States for some of the winter meets. Is the call a challenge from the Reds? An invitation for Thomas to compete in the Soviet Union? Or just another Soviet publication delving into the secrets of Thomas' consistency? "I don't know, but when I finally get to talk to them I'm going to do my best to see if they won't send over some jumpers for the indoor meets," Thomas says.

John's only defeat since he entered college cost him the Olympic gold medal. After clearing 7-4, Thomas missed 7-1 which was made by the Soviet pair of Robert Shavladiakaze and Valeriy Brumel.

Thomas, at 19, is a leading exponent of diplomacy by amateur athletes.

"America's athletes could be her best representative if we were given a chance," John says. "When we met and visited Soviet athletes during the Olympics nobody ever mentioned national issues or politics. We talked about sports, girls and food."

Thomas has set as his goal qualifying for the summer meet in Moscow between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Virginia Tech Back To League Feuding

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Enigmatic Virginia Tech, which might scale the basketball heights but for the sin of inconsistency, goes back on the offensive this week in the league where thus far it has been invincible.

An appalling loss at Alabama last Wednesday shook the props from under the Techmen's bid for national ranking, but in the Southern Conference they still rank No. 1 with a 3-0 record.

Three opportunities to improve this mark present themselves this week, the first tonight when sharp-shooting Furman (2-2) visits the Blacksburg court where Tech (5-2) has won 20 consecutive games.

Pestiferous VMI (1-4) comes to Blacksburg Thursday, and Tech hits the road Saturday for a game at William and Mary (4-3).

Lyles Alley, the Furman coach, says his Paladins "expect to see one of the best teams in the country" at Blacksburg tonight.

Alley figures the Paladins already have seen another of the "best teams" — West Virginia. The Mountaineers, defending conference kings, outraced Furman 105-90 last Saturday night at Morgantown despite a 33-point spree by the Paladins' Jerry Smith.

The Citadel (3-1) also stayed within striking distance of the top run by nudging VMI, 70-69, at Lexington, though the Keydets' Norm Halberstadt put on a 34-point show. In a n o t h e r conference game, William and Mary got 30 points from Jeff Cohen and squeaked past Richmond (1-5) by 63-60.

Non-conference action Saturday saw George Washington come from behind to whip Georgetown, 83-75, and Davidson bow to Clemson, 74-63.

West Virginia, 8-2 over-all and riding a six-game victory streak, is at home to Syracuse and Davidson (3-8) goes to Erskine in non-league contests tonight.

St. Louis Hawks Crush Celtics

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Hawks won the ball game, the Celtics drew the blood, the fans sat on their hands and Auerbach kept face with all.

That's the story of Sunday's nationally televised National Basketball Association game between the St. Louis Hawks, Western Division leaders, and the Boston Celtics, Eastern Division rulers.

The Hawks came out on top by a whopping 133-104 margin. The defeat was one of the worst ever suffered by the Celtics.

With 2:37 left in the first half someone—still unidentified—walked Hawk ace Bob Pettit. He suffered a 1½-inch gash alongside his left eye and had to retire for repairs.

Boston Coach Red Auerbach had only one technical foul call against him.

In the other two league games Sunday, the Syracuse Nationals turned back the Detroit Pistons, 138-115, and the New York Knicks erobckers nipped the Philadelphia Warriors, 121-119.

LADY in the MARKET

BY FRANCES V. RUMMELL

From the novel "Aunt Jane McPhipps and Her Baby Blue Chips," published by Prentice-Hall, Inc. © 1960 by Frances V. Rummell. Distributed by King Features.

CHAPTER 26

Mrs. Stephens said to the president of the Castlerock Corporation, "We strongly feel that the board members should own stock in any companies they pretend to represent. Only then are they truly, personally identified with profits."

Recognizing a militant adversary, Mr. Feeble decided it was wise to shift gears. He replied, "Four of the eight directors have owned some 56,000 shares of common. They have disposed of 30,000 shares, however, during the past two years."

"Would you explain why?" Mrs. Stephens calmly asked. "Personal reasons," barked Mr. Feeble. "Purely personal, private reasons."

Mrs. Stephens, standing, leaned over to consult with the club's attorney, Miss Green. Then she straightened and replied, "We do not consider your reply adequate."

Mr. Feeble's calm blew to smithereens. "Is a company on the skirts to Hell," he yelled, "just because a director sells his stock?"

"You did not say whether the other four directors have owned stock in Castlerock."

"Four directors own no stock!" he shouted. "Never have! Not a damn share!"

His big mistake was in shouting at the lady, and in cursing, for Mrs. Stephens had kept both her dignity and her calm. Consequently, when she sat down, her mission accomplished, the little crowd of stockholders let off spontaneous steam. There were whistles, hoots, a few shouts of "Give 'em hell!"

Then, very formally, a stockholder in the sixth row stood up. A handsome, lanky Texan — his accent was unmistakable, as was his 10-gallon hat in his hand — he spoke reproachfully. "Well, now, suh, I see little cause for swearing at a nice lady. Besides, I long been in accord with the good lady's principle, so stated. No director in any company has any business servin' less he knows, from the inside his skin on out, what the company means to the stockholders dollahs."

Mrs. Hope was beside herself. "A man from God's own country!" she hollered. Standing up, she waved to the Texan, which encouraged him to keep up the good work. In all modesty and just for the record, he added, "I'm speakin' for 10,000 shares of common and 2,000 preferred, accumulated over a period of 30 years."

"Isn't he wonderful," gasped Mrs. Hope. Even the board members were impressed; they pulled Mr. Feeble back for a brief word.

Like a robot, Mr. Feeble then recited, "We are most impressed with the proposal of stock ownership as requirement for a company directorship. Your company will take appropriate action."

Having given in with what he believed to be infinite grace, Mr. Feeble moved on to a warming finale. "Our officers will mail you a report of today's proceedings."

He looked around at his lieutenants, snapped his fingers, and they arose as one for adjournment.

This was a sad tactical error, a woeful underestimation of the power of a woman. At a signal from Jane McPhipps, the club president, Mrs. Hayden — Critchfield rose to her full willowy height and made the theater vibrate with her indignation.

"We are by no means ready to adjourn the meeting! It should be adjourned only at the pleasure of the stockholders here assembled."

From her seventy-five fellow stockholders came applause. The officers on the stage sat down again.

It was Jane's turn; like a jack-in-the-box she popped up as Mrs. Hayden-Critchfield sat down.

"As the president of the Golden Girls of the West, San Francisco investment club," Jane began, "it is my duty to report that we appear here today in quest of our lost dividend."

Now the crowd, swept along by the spirit of the thing, began to clap and stomp and roar its approval. The Texan cut loose at the top of his lungs with the rebel yell, "Ya-hoo!"

A hearty, happy female voice from the front row echoed the rebel yell. It was a Texan moment.

The Golden Girls' president held up her hand for silence.

"The lost dividend has not been explained," she reminded Mr. Feeble.

A chorus behind Jane pressed the question.

Snapped Mr. Feeble. "The cost of research, routine business, soft market."

Jane waited for him to say more, but he had spoken his all on the subject. "We understand that executive compensations have been substantially increased within the past few months," she said.

Mr. Feeble stood before the podium glaring, his arms folded. He said nothing. Becoming unnerved, Jane gamely plunged on, hoping that the waver in her voice did not show.

"Has the president," she asked, "taken a cut in his $200,000 salary, plus bonuses, until such time as dividends can be reinstated? Moreover, do the company's six ex-presidents and two ex-chairmen of the Board still receive a million dollars in annual compensation? Or have they agreed to an adjustment until such time as the stockholders' needs are met?"

Mr. Feeble banged his fist on the podium. "The lady's questions are without relevance." Then, cornered, he again made the mistake of shouting and swearing. "She wants answers to matters that are none of her damn business! This company is run by its officers — experienced, well-qualified!"

On her feet like a shot, Miss Green asked for the floor.

Mr. Feeble's voice was an icicle. "I have had enough of this preposterous spectacle." He whirled to walk off the stage.

"You can't do that!" It was Mrs. Hope shrieking.

Miss Green began reciting corporate law, chapter and verse. Some men on the stage heard her formidable words only too well, and a vice-president hastily plucked at Mr. Feeble's sleeve to bid him listen. But the president brushed him off, closed his ears to the lawyer.

The little theater was in pandemonium. The Texan was yelling, the girls were bobbing up to say something, and then sitting down again; the spectators were shuffling in their seats with pent-up anger.

Then suddenly from the back of the theater boomed a rich, scholarly, familiar voice. Recognizing Mr. Ernst, Jane let out a little yell herself. He addressed Mr. Feeble crisply. "Sir, it is clear that you are not familiar with corporate law, or else are choosing to ignore it. Either would be a serious mistake. May I remind you that you are in the employ of your stockholders, including the ladies whose questions you decline to answer."

He paused, then continued. "The ladies' investment club has among its members a distinguished corporation lawyer. It is possible you may want to consult her about this point." Then he added a shipper designed to fell an ox. "Provided, of course, she would be generous enough to overlook your unacceptable conduct."

Mr. Feeble looked like a man who ached to drop dead. It helped not at all that he was afraid he recognized the dean of San Francisco's financial community, and when a board member quickly passed him a note, he knew for sure he was in trouble.

This was not good for Mr. Feeble and Castlerock, not good at all. But things were looking up for Castlerock's stockholders. Perhaps even, as the girls believed, for stockholders everywhere.

Leaving the theater, Mr. Ernst waited out front for Jane and the girls. And it just happened — one of those things. Mrs. Hayden Critchfield threw her arms around him and kissed him first. "Our hero!" she cried. And, since Jane knew her friend had never even met August Ernst before, she concluded it would look unfeeling and standoffish if she didn't do the same.

The missing Wally Coogins is going to reappear — in the county jail. Continue the story to a climax tomorrow.

Lawmen Caught In Their Own Cell

McKEE, Ky. (AP) — When Alcoholic Beverage Control Agent Claude Williams Jr. and Jackson County Sheriff George Felty returned from hunting for moonshiners, they decided to rest for a few hours and then go out again. They climbed into two bunks in an empty cell at the county jail. When they awoke, they couldn't get out. The cell had pulled to and locked behind them. A deputy sheriff let them out after he drove by the jail and noticed his boots shouting from the window.

Anti-Scrawling Move Is Invoked

NEW YORK (AP) — Fans who scrawl endearments to their favorites at stage entrances with crayon and lipstick are going to have a tough time from now on. A Long Island manufacturer (Porco-Cole Corp.) is distributing a plastic coating that adheres permanently to brick or concrete. Ferret scrawlings just wash off.

Fuel Tanks Fall In Dallas Suburb

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Freightened residents of a Dallas suburb fled their homes Sunday when two large fuel tanks dropped by a Navy jet blasted five-foot craters near two residences.

There were no injuries. A Navy spokesman said the pilot, flying at 30,000 feet, did not release the almost empty fuel tanks. An investigation has been ordered to determine what caused the malfunctioning of the release mechanism.

"They sounded like artillery shells coming in," said Gil Bryan who lives near where the tanks fell. Several homes were damaged by flying debris.

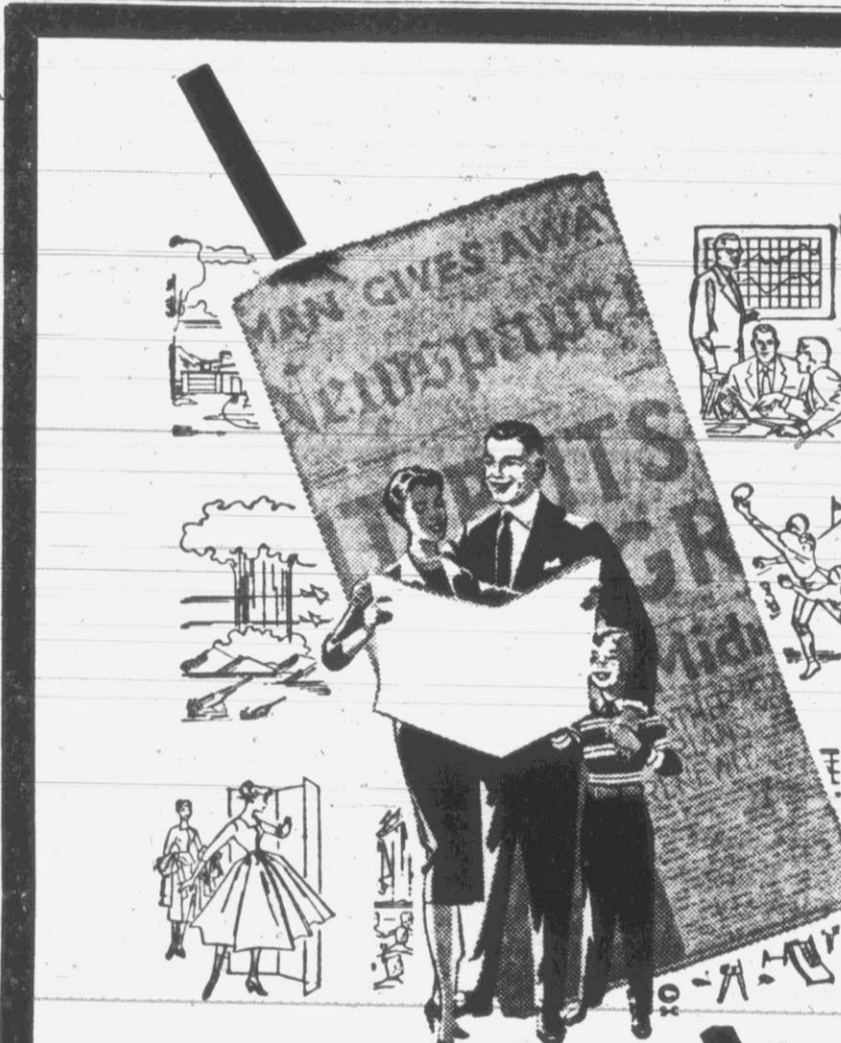

Army Successful Ten Years Later

DETROIT (AP) — The Army has Brian Stott, 10 years after its first try.

Back in 1951 Brian received his greetings. Since he was only 13 years old, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Stott, asked the Army to reconsider.

Someone else, it was found, had registered for the draft under Brian's name and address. Brian, now 22, recently got another letter from Uncle Sam. There was no mistake this time. He left Saturday night for Ft. Knox, Ky.

Pitt School Enrollment Trends Are Studied

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

A study of enrollment in the white elementary schools of Pitt County, grades one through eight, from 1947 to the present, has been conducted this year to determine trends and to help plan for the future.

Arthur Alford, supervisor in the county school system, said the study came about partially as a result of research by Dr. James B. Conant of Harvard. Dr. Conant, in one of his findings, has advanced the theory that a 500-student high school is necessary to accomplish what he thinks a good high school should do.

Results of the local study shows the ups and downs of enrollment of white elementary schools, and then in the nine white high schools of the county in the past 14 years.

Three schools have shown general decreases in enrollment in these years, Alford pointed out. Fountain elementary school has fallen from a high enrollment of 250 to a present low of 183. Stokes elementary school has fallen from a high of 230 to 177 at the present time. The third school, Grimesland, has fallen from a high of 418 to a low of 243, which occurred in 1959.

This past year, the enrollment at Grimesland has increased to 233. At Belvoir elementary school, the enrollment has fallen from an original high of 298 but in recent years has regained students. The decrease continued through about 1957, and then in the last three years an upsurge in student enrollment occurred, with present enrollment at 288, Alford said.

On the other hand, Grifton and Winterville have shown strong increases in enrollment. Ayden and Farmville have shown some increase also, Alford has noted.

In Grifton, where almost phenomenal growth is noted, enrollment during the period 1947-1960 went from a low of 258 to a high this past year of 517. The growth is attributed almost entirely to the new industry coming into the general area. For the most part, those entering Grifton schools as a result of new families moving in have been of elementary school age.

Those students now are reaching high school age.

Winterville has shown the next greatest growth, from a low of 405 to a high of 586. Ayden and Farmville elementary schools, though having ups and downs in enrollment, have generally shown increases, Alford stated.

Bethel elementary school showed a slight decrease for the first half of the 14-year period but during the second half of the period, Alford said the school picked up 50 to 75 more students.

Pactolus, Chicod and Falkland have been a little more steady in their enrollment, not fluctuating as much as some other schools, Alford commented.

In terms of high schools, during the 14-year period, the greatest growth was made in the Winterville school, which moved from a low of 90 students to a high of 216 at the present time. Some of the growth, according to Alford, took place due to consolidation of the Arthur School in 1952.

Other high schools showing increases are Ayden, Farmville,

Stokes-Pactolus and Grifton. Ayden has gone from a low of 124 students to a high of 199 this year. Farmville has grown from 175 to a high of 287 and at the present time has 281 students. Increases at the Stokes-Pactolus high school are due specifically to consolidation of the Pactolus School with the Stokes School some years ago, Alford pointed out. Growth has been from a low of 42 in high school in 1948 to the present 185.

Grifton, from a low of 55 in 1948 to 117 last year, has shown gradual increases in high school enrollment over the years. This year, the school experienced an influx of large grammar grades into high school and enrollment reached 146. Alford said the enrollment here probably will reach 250 students within three years' time.

Other high schools, for the most part, including Belvoir, Bethel, Grimesland and Chicod, have not changed considerably in enrollment in past years. The slight growth noted in these schools is attributed to increased holding power of the schools, Alford said.

"The most significant point, with respect to these enrollment figures," Alford stated, "is that each of these high schools in the county, even with decreased elementary students in some cases, has grown in the high school enrollment, due again to increased holding power of the high schools."

It might also be pointed out here that in Winterville and in Grifton, where notable population increases were recorded in the 1960 population census, most notable increases have been observed also in the schools.

Today's Pitchman Suggests Baby Ought To Be In Pictures

BABIES, BABIES, BABIES . . . In the hands of an experienced photographer such as Josef Schneider (center), infants are sugar and spice. For others, well . . . they're always themselves.

By RENE CAPPON
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—New parents-to-be are usually poured full of well-meant advice on all sorts of subjects, from nursery decor to midnight colics and diaper rash. But no one prepares them for another inevitable problem—the baby photographer, a special breed of snake oil pitchman and child psychologist who is as enterprising as a corsair and as ubiquitous as a virus.

The beginnings of infant portraiture are hazy, but most likely go back to the barbaric dawn of humanity.

When the first ingenious cave dweller scrawled an infant's physiognomy on the fire-lit wall, he must have been rewarded with an extra mastodon's steak by the mother. The artist instantly realized he had a racket, and there's been no stopping him since.

Bird Watch

Today, thanks to Mr. Daguerra, his craft is refined and rationalized and that birdie our parents watched has matured into a full-grown vulture.

The baby photographer may creep into a maternity ward to snap a mulling arrival "on speculation," which is about as chancy as an election in an Iron Curtain country.

They acquire your name off some list or other and ply your wife with sales talk over the telephone.

And they'll materialize at the voluble strings attached to those offers of one (1) free baby photograph by companies purveying infant services or furnishings.

You didn't fail to stock up on Baby's First Picture in the hospital—how could you?—and you're equally helpless while that gratis photo mushrooms into additional orders for a dozen others.

"They change every day at this age," the visiting lensman says. "So while we're at it, we might as well . . .

Any feeble indication of sales resistance is drowned in baby oil. Your child, the photographer purrs is the most beautiful he's photographed in years. This assignment isn't work, it's sheer pleasure (though not to the point of giving you those additional prints at cost).

His way with children is just as impressive.

Camera Sly

Well before our daughter consented to smile at her doting Dad, a hulking, leather-jacketed, cigar-chomping cameraman reduced her to paroxysms of grinning delight. His presence even quieted her objection to being dressed up.

So now our daughter in three months of life has been photographed professionally more often than Elizabeth Taylor in a year. There are scores of pictures, in color or black and white, square-shaped, oval or round, in albums, baby books, on desks and mantel pieces, in wallets and handbags.

Smile Baby

Obviously, it's long past time to call a halt.

In fact, I've developed some cunning defenses against further inroads on our balance of payments position, but I'll have to tell you about those some other time.

Right now we're having the baby photographed, courtesy of a high chair manufacturer, and the fan says he'll let us have six extra prints for a mere $7.50 each.

Fire Equipment Failed In Test

TOMPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP)—While fire equipment fizzled, the home of B. O. Jackson Jr. burned. The Jacksons were at church Sunday when their home caught fire. In order:

1. The siren used to notify volunteer firemen wouldn't work.
 2. Trying to start the fire truck, someone flooded the engine and the battery ran down.
 3. Firemen pushed the truck downhill, started it, arrived at the scene, hooked a hose to a nearby hydrant and turned it on.
 4. Out came a mere trickle of water. The pipeline apparently was blocked.
 5. By carrying water on two more trucks, firemen saved an apartment next door belonging to Jackson's mother.
- Only a freezer was rescued from Jackson's home.

Hold Suspect In Vault Burglary

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—One man is in custody on an accessory charge in the $421,961 armored car vault burglary, and police say they recovered $9,980 of the Dec. 27 haul.

Jose Lino Alvarez, 42, was arrested at his home Saturday night. An employe of the Rasdale Armored Car Service at the time of the theft, he was fired that day after allegedly refusing to take a lie detector test or answer questions.

Officers said that after they seized Alvarez at his home, they found in an east Tampa house a cardboard candy box containing part of the loot. The house is owned by Margaret Dorado, a sister of Alvarez.

Alvarez was charged with aiding and abetting other persons in the burglary, largest in Florida's history.

Adult Classes In Art Available

Instruction for adults interested in figure drawing, water color and oil painting is available at the Greenville Art Center in classes during the winter session. Information may be obtained by contacting the art center at PL 8-1946.

Children's classes, which are taught by Lynn Burgess, are filled at the present time, but application may be made for a spring session, which begins March 21.

A figure drawing class, taught by Dr. Bruce Carter, associate professor of art at East Carolina College, meets each Thursday evening from 8 until 10. Lessons in water color are being given by Paul Minnis, assistant professor of art at East Carolina College, Tuesday evenings, 7:30-9:30. A course in oil painting is offered on Tuesday mornings, 9-11, and Wednesday evenings, 7:30-9:30, by Mrs. Marilyn Gordley and Tom Mims, respectively.

A tuition fee is charged in all classes.

The ceramics workshop activity will resume during spring, with Mrs. Marjorie Jackson and Mrs. Rose Brooks as instructors.

Cadets Will Re-Enact First Civil War Shots

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Cadets from The Citadel this afternoon fire on a federal ship in a re-enactment of what some historians have called the opening shots of the Civil War.

The historical show, part of the nationwide 100th anniversary of the beginning of that war, will be led by Gen. Mark Clark of World War II fame, now president of the college here.

It was 100 years ago today that The Citadel cadets fired on the Star of the West from Morris Island in Charleston Harbor.

A Navy minesweeper has been rigged up to look as much like the 1861 ship as possible. The cannons, the uniforms and the Rebel yell will be authentic.

The Star of the West was trying to relieve troops at Ft. Sumter on Tuesday mornings, 9-11, and Wednesday evenings, 7:30-9:30, by Mrs. Marilyn Gordley and Tom Mims, respectively.

A tuition fee is charged in all classes.

Missionary To Address Church

FARMVILLE—The fifth in a series of nine installments in a Professional Improvement Program under way at the H. B. Sugg School here was scheduled to convene today at 4 p.m.

Designed and conducted especially for elementary school teachers, the series embraces members of the profession from schools at Bruce-Falkland, Nichols and Pountall, in addition to the local school.

A primary purpose of the program is to improve teacher competency in vital areas of instruction. The program was initiated to prepare the current elementary student body for secondary instruction.

High school teachers are consulted to determine the greatest areas of need in the current high school student body.

Today's session, set for the Sugg symposium, was scheduled to feature Dr. R. L. Humber, Pitt County senator, as principal speaker. The subject of today's workshop-type session was art.

Mrs. James Neelon, Sugg instructor and Greenville resident, was chairman for today's art session. Another Sugg teacher, Mrs. Ada Pulley, is overall chairman of the program.

Other divisional chairmen include Mrs. Pulley, language arts; Mrs. M. L. Blount, math; Mrs. B. W. Mobane, science; Mrs. E. L. Borge, social studies; I. A. Artis, health; H. A. Pulley, guidance; Mrs. M. M. Knight, language arts; J. T. Evans, physical education; and Mrs. Woodard, music.

MRS. HUGH FARROW

A woman who has spent the past three years in the Congo, Mrs. Hugh L. Farrow, wife of a medical missionary, will address the Hollywood Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

While in the Congo, as missionary of the Presbyterian Church, U.S., Mrs. Farrow helped in the teaching of languages and with the local youth fellowship. She attended Florida State University and the Presbyterian School of Christian Education, acted as assistant to the Protestant Chaplain, Western Reserve University, and was a social worker in North Carolina. She is a native of Charleston, W.Va.

Following the advice of the highest official of the Congolese Church and United States Consular authorities, the Farrow's withdrew from their mission station July 11, leaving supplies in the hands of the Congolese leaders to be used to continue the work.

Hugh Farrow, after taking his wife and child to safety, returned to the Congo, where he and a group of Presbyterian U.S. missionaries are continuing their work. Mrs. Farrow and daughter, Lillian Hope, are living in Charlotte until they are permitted to return to the Congo.

Several Injured In Weekend Accidents

GREENVILLE—Police in a series of collisions investigated over the weekend, which caused heavy damage.

Mark Spain, 12, of 906 Colonial Ave., was treated for bruises at Pitt Memorial Hospital Saturday afternoon after he was struck by a car at 1011 West Third St.

In addition to Williams, two passengers in the car, Frank Stuey Jr., 30-year-old Negro of 1400 W. Fifth St. and George Green, 59-year-old Negro of Short Street, were charged with aiding and abetting leaving the scene of an accident.

Green received bruises to his forehead in the mishap.

Damage to the car was set at $300 while an estimated $500 damage resulted to the building.

A total of $675 damage was reported by officers in a three-car wreck at the intersection of 10th and Elm Sts. at 6:02 p.m. yesterday.

They noted that a car driven by Mrs. Janice Roberson White of 1306 N. Overlook Dr. collided with a car driven by Bertha Lois Stan-cill 16 of 703 E. Third St., which was stopped for a stop light, after the brakes on the White car failed. The force of the impact knocked the Stan-cill auto into a car driven by the Melinda C. Coleman, 17, of 208 Pineview Dr., officers added. The Coleman auto was also stopped for the traffic light.

Nancy Lou White, 4, and Jo Anna Tyson, 42-year-old Negro, of 1125 W. Fifth St., both passengers in the White car, received minor injuries in the collision.

No charges were placed.

Franklin D. Anderson, 707 West Seventh St., Ayden, was charged with following too close after his vehicle collided with the rear of a car driven by Magaleen C. Avery in front of the Avery home at 2531 S. Memorial Dr. yesterday at 9:28 p.m.

Police set damage to the Avery car at $50 while damage to the Anderson vehicle was placed at $45.

No injuries were reported.

Police Hunting Vandals After 2 Cars Damaged

GREENVILLE—Police reported vandals caused an estimated $350 damage to two cars on Warren St. sometime Saturday night or early Sunday morning by cutting the seats in the two cars and pouring paint remover over the vehicles.

Investigators said Lucy Harrell of 2401 E. Fourth St. reported that the rear seat of his vehicle had been cut in two pieces and paint remover had been poured over the rear of his car when it was parked in the yard at 204 Warren St.

Damage to the seat was set at $50 while damage to the outside of the car was placed at $75.

Police also said Gordon Goodman of 204 Warren St. reported that vandals cut the front and rear seats of his car and poured paint thinner over the top and both sides of the vehicle during the night.

Damage inside the vehicle was estimated at about $125 while damage to the outside was placed at $100.

Investigation is continuing in the case, police officers said.

Tar Heel Among Likely Choices

WASHINGTON (AP)—A North Carolinian mentioned for a high Agriculture Department post is expected to meet today with Agriculture Secretary designate Orville Freeman.

Horace D. Godfrey of Raleigh, N.C., now administrative officer for the North Carolina Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, has been recommended as an assistant secretary of agriculture.

Rep. Harold D. Cooley, D-N.C., House Agriculture chairman, said at his Nashville, N.C., home this weekend that he is hopeful Godfrey will get the job.

Godfrey had official business in Washington today, and there was speculation he would stop by the office in the Agriculture Department where Freeman has set up shop.

Cooley said he turned over to Freeman, former Minnesota governor picked by President-elect Kennedy for the top agriculture post, letters from 75 to 100 persons endorsing Godfrey.

"I think it would be hard to find a man as well qualified from training, experience and character as Horace Godfrey," the congressman asserted.

Gov. Sanford To Speak Tonight At Chicago Meet

RALEIGH (AP)—Living up to his "man-on-the-go" campaign slogan, Gov. Terry Sanford will fly to Chicago this afternoon for his first out-of-state speech since he took office last Thursday.

The Tar Heel governor speaks tonight before the Mahogany Association in Chicago. He will return to North Carolina Tuesday.

A meeting of the State Board of Water Resources will occupy Sanford Wednesday (4 p.m.). His first news conference is set Thursday (9 a.m.). Then he will go to Fayetteville to preside at a meeting (11 a.m.) of the Methodist College Board of Trustees. He will cap the busy day with an afternoon (3 p.m.) speech at dedication of the W. F. Fancourt Co. plant at Greensboro.

Sanford will go to Durham Saturday for installation ceremonies (6 p.m.) for officers of the State Young Democratic Clubs.

Class Named To Honor Teacher

The Adult Class of the Meadowbrook Presbyterian Sunday School has been officially named the Carl L. Adams Bible Class in honor of its teacher for the past 17 years, Dr. Carl L. Adams.

A proclamation to this effect, signed by all members of the class, was presented to Dr. Adams Sunday, with the expressed hope "the may continue as the beloved teacher of the class indefinitely."

The Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church is located in north Greenville on Church Street. The pastor is Rev. C. W. Kimbrough.

There are about 55 members of the adult class.

No Mishaps In Two Emergencies

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—No mishaps occurred in an emergency landing of one air liner and the interrupted landing of another.

A National Airlines Electra returned Sunday night from a scheduled trip toward New Orleans when one of its four propellers overheated. Its emergency landing with 75 passengers was made without difficulty, crewmen said.

Earlier an Eastern Air Lines DC8B, carrying 102 passengers from New York, was within an estimated 300 feet of the ground when a light plane which landed ahead of it taxied across the air-liner's intended runway.

The EAL plane made a second approach, landing without incident.

Burma Visit Ends For Chou En-Lai

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai ended a weeklong goodwill visit today amid reports his regime has granted neutralist Burma an $80 million loan.

Informed sources said the Chinese loaned the money on a long-term, low interest basis for development of a cotton spinning factory, a paper mill and other industrial projects.

Capsule Is Fired 1,000 Miles Up Not Recovered

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The capsule ejected from a payload that rocketed 1,000 miles into space apparently sank in the Atlantic Ocean.

The Air Force presumed this Sunday when a recovery ship failed to find the 90-pound package during a day-long search. The 392-pound payload and capsule were sent aloft Saturday by a Blue Scout I rocket which performed perfectly on its maiden flight. The capsule parachuted into the ocean 1,200 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral.

A plane spotted it floating in the water and directed the ship to the area, but the vessel could not locate it.

The capsule contained instruments to measure velocity and payload temperatures during the flight. Recovery was a secondary objective. The Air Force was chiefly interested in how the Blue Scout I performed.

Technicians today continued to study data radioed back from eight experiments in the payload.

Fire At Rear Of Local Warehouse

GREENVILLE—Firemen, who responded to an alarm from Box 72 at Fleming Street School yesterday found the rear of the Growers Warehouse on 400 Boyd Ave. on fire.

Officers, who said light damage resulted to the structure, said the blaze was started from a grass fire at the rear of the structure Saturday. Firemen were called to 702 Revere Ave. when an oil cook stove flared up.

Firefighters who answered the call said minor smoke damage resulted to the house while some damage was done to the stove.

Oil Distributors Meet Tomorrow

The Greenville Oil Distributors Association will hold its first 1961 meeting at 12:15 p.m. tomorrow at the Silo Restaurant here.

Chairman W. O. Moore urged all members to attend tomorrow's session "because we want to make plans for our year's work." He added, "We also want to discuss advertising."

Demonstrations For 4-H Meeting

FARMVILLE—Ronnie Tharlington, assistant farm agent, and Miss Lily Harper, assistant home economics agent, gave demonstrations at the monthly meeting of the Farmville Senior 4-H Club recently.

Tharlington discussed "How to Give Demonstrations" with the boys and Miss Harper gave the girls a talk on clothes.

It was announced that the County Council meeting will be held Monday, January 16, Jimmy Dilda, vice president, presided at the meeting, held in the school music room. Charles Phillips led the pledges.

Cross Burned By Kluxers In S.C.

COLUMBIA (AP)—A band of nearly 100 Ku Klux Klansmen burned a 15-foot high cross on U.S. 76 near Newberry Saturday night while calling for a united front against integration in South Carolina.

The robed klansmen met at the Columbia Airport and proceeded in a 50-foot caravan to Newberry for a speech and cross-burning. There was a Dutch supper after the cross burning.
