CONFIDENCE 'IN STATE OF THE UNION'

Merchants Association Officers Elected

MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION OFFICERS... elected this morning at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the group look on as outgoing president Herbert Wilkerson presents the gavel to the newly-elected president, Larry L. Averette.

Eisenhower Reminds Congress That Progress Implies Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower described America today as standing at unprecedented heights, and asked prayers that future leaders will be able to keep this nation strong and at peace. In a farewell State of the Union message, the 70-year-old President reviewed for Congress the years of his administration and saw them as a period in which this country forged ahead in foreign and economic policies.

Riotings On Georgia Univ. Campus Bring Negro Students' Suspension

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—Negro students hurried to Macon today to contest in federal court suspension of two members of their race from the University of Georgia. The young Negroes, visibly shaken, reached their homes in a patrol car in the predawn hours. Both declined comment.

Aim Ordinance At Poor Housing

A suggested ordinance being drawn up for presentation to the City Council is designed to eliminate all substandard housing that may exist in the city of Greenville. Attorney Milton C. Williamson, representing a group of local rental property owners and home owners, said the ordinance being drafted, if passed, would compel property owners to upgrade their property within the city limits.

Reds Complain Ships 'Buzzed' By U.S. Aircraft

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union charged today that U.S. military aircraft buzzed 35 Soviet ships in various seas last month. The Soviets warned that such incidents must cease. Minister Viktor Bakayev, at a news conference, waved a piece of paper and said it was a radiogram from a Soviet sea captain reporting that a British bomber was "raiding"—meaning buzzing—his ship this morning.

Sanford, Kennedy Conferring Today

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford flew into Palm Beach today to confer with President-elect Kennedy. Sanford said his aim was to try to get more Tar Heels in the new Kennedy administration at the policy-making level. "I'm not trying to get jobs for individuals," said Sanford. "I'm trying to improve North Carolina's position."

Semiofficial Cuban Press Dropping Invasion Theme

HAVANA (AP)—Predictions of a "Yankee invasion" were dropped from the front page of the semiofficial paper Revolution today and replaced by an announcement of plans to build 20,000 government homes for workers. This report was given banner-headline prominence, although the newspaper continued to drum up enthusiasm for Friday night's grand march to the presidential palace as a show of support for Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government against any threat of "Yankee aggression."

Laotian Aircraft Strike At Rebels

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Laotian pilots, flying hastily armed U.S.-made trainer planes, strafed and bombed pro-Communist rebel forces Wednesday and today in the first air raids of the Laotian civil war. British, French and other European diplomats in the Laotian capital expressed grave concern over the air raid—first reported in the six-year-old civil war—would trigger a retaliatory action by the Soviet Union or Communist China.

Senate Liberals Taking Glum View After Initial Setback

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defeat in their drive to strengthen the Senate's filibuster rule at the outset of the new Congress, Senate liberals took a glum view today of their chances for success later. "A devastating blow," said Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., who contend a rules change is necessary to permit passage of meaningful civil rights legislation. But Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of Southern foes of the move, hailed the outcome as "a great victory for the sanity, dignity and prerogatives of the Senate."

Screening Finalists For Morehead Scholarships

One of seven district screening committees today began the process of selecting 42 finalists in competition for the coveted $5,000 Morehead Scholarship for 1961-62. The 42 finalists, to be selected from a field of 169 county-wide finalists across North Carolina, will appear before the central scholarship committee in Chapel Hill Feb. 24 and 25. The field of 169 includes two Pitt County candidates for the education grants supplied by the Morehead Scholarship Foundation of the University of North Carolina.

Friday 13th Is A Festive Time

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—Friday the 13th is a festive time for Mr. and Mrs. Terry Cates of Spartanburg. They reside at 313 Glendalyn Place. Mrs. Cates was born on Jan. 13 which makes this coming Friday the 13th her birthday. She and her husband met on Friday the 13th. They were married on Friday, March 13, 1926. Her wedding rings contains 13 diamonds. There are 13 letters in the name of the shoe store Cates manages here — and 13 in Spartanburg, S.C. And for good measure: His car license plate for 13 years has borne this identification: F-213!

Now $1.3 Million In Hurricane Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—A total of $1.3 million in federal funds has been allocated to North Carolina in repairing damages left by Hurricane Donna last September. President Eisenhower allocated $300,000 Wednesday for rehabilitation of hurricane-damaged public facilities, including roads and highways. Last October $1 million in federal funds was allocated. The latest North Carolina allocation was asked by former Gov. Hodges. REINFORCEMENTS SENT LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Col. Joseph Mobutu rushed reinforcements to North Equator Province today after reports that pro-Lumumba rebel forces were concentrating on the border of neighboring Oriental Province. Equator is one of the few areas still loyal to Mobutu.

Gov. Terry Sanford Will Address Grifton Program

GRIFTON — Governor Terry Sanford will speak at the Grifton Jaycees Distinguished Service Award Banquet, to be held February 17, it was announced today by Ed Casey, DSA chairman. His address will highlight the Jaycees principal event of the year, when the Distinguished Service Award is announced. President of the local Jaycees, George Saleeby, was notified in a telegram from Tom Lambeth that "Governor Sanford will be happy to speak to your group on February 17." It is expected that Mrs. Sanford will accompany the Governor to Grifton. Tentative plans are being discussed for a reception preceding the banquet, in the new Governor and Mrs. Sanford's honor, Casey said. Nominations for the Distinguished Service Award are made by local citizens and will be judged by a panel of three judges. The person nominated must be between the ages of 21 and 35. Details of the Governor's speech have not been fully completed as yet, Casey said. The banquet, for husband and wives, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Grifton community building. Some 250 guests are expected to attend. Obligations, including the national inauguration, prevented Governor Sanford's accepting an invitation to speak in Grifton during January.

Tea Honors Bride-Elect

GRIFTON — Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Cecil Cobb and Mrs. Edwin Reeves entertained at tea at the home of Mrs. Cobb on Thomas Lane honoring Miss Rebekah Wall, whose marriage to Mr. Jack Thomas of Greenville will take place on January 21st.

Sharing honors was Mrs. Overton Sulter, a recent bride.

For the occasion Miss Wall wore a turquoise blue dress which was complemented by a pink carnation corsage, a gift of the hostesses. Mrs. Sulter was remembered with a similar corsage.

Mrs. Cobb greeted the guests and Mrs. Reeves presented them to the honored guests. Mrs. Thurman Williams and Mrs. Johnnie Gardner directed callers to the dining room for tea. Goodbyes were said by Mrs. L. L. Mewborn and Mrs. B. C. Troutman. Tea was poured by Mrs. Dewey Wall, mother of Miss Wall, and Mrs. W. I. Bisette. Party sandwiches, chicken salad puffs, almond balls, cheese straws, mints and salted nuts were served.

In the foyer decorations were of white gladioli. In the living room yellow snapdragons and white gladioli and tall white candles made a pretty decorative note. The dining room table was covered with a white satin cloth and for the center decorations silver candelabra with pink candles flanked replicas of double wedding rings tied with pink net and white pom-poms.

The guests of honor and Mrs. Dave Tucker and Mrs. Burt Tripp, recent brides were remembered with crystal ash trays.

After January 15, they will be at home in Greenville.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. Duncan

The gardener should be about his winter chore of dry gardening with the aid of paper and pencil. Next spring's gardens should be planned out and plotted. This early year's work will eliminate a lot of haphazard and costly work later on. You can put a lot of ideas on paper and later change or do away with them altogether. Not so with plants in the ground. You either keep them or do the job over. This is time consuming and costly. With the aid of a little bit of simple arithmetic, you can figure accurately the number of plants required.

In drawing up your flower and shrub beds, try something different from the old time work and antiquated ideas. Put a touch of originality in your planning by using some different flowers and shrubs. Get a few catalogues with colored pictures. These should help you plan good color schemes — colors that make your garden an eye pleasing space instead of one that has only a group of plants that clash in eye appeal.

Try using the blues for cool effect in heat of the summer. Warm yellows for the cooler days in spring. Red, oranges and yellow colors look well for fall.

In planning ahead, find out the amount of fertilizer you will need for feeding your lawn, shade trees, and flower beds.

Gardening can be costly or if well planned can be cut almost in half. Make a list of tools that should be replaced. If your spray tank is leaky and doesn't do a good job, get another. You will save on spray mixtures by getting better coverage on your plants.

In line with your spraying, get a "Pesticide Manual" from State College. This helpful book will enable you to use the right insecticide and fungicide in proper amounts.

Dry gardening or gardening on paper — making work sketches, figuring materials, reading up on garden practices, learning how to control pest and diseases should help you get the bugs out of your garden program before you dig the first spadeful of soil this spring.

The tools for this type of gardening are easy to come by—graph paper, ruler, pencil and eraser (very essential to rub out mistakes before you make them in planting time) and a few hours in company of colorful catalogues. You will find it interesting as well as helpful.

New March Of Dimes Drive Shaping Up In Pitt County

Here in Pitt County, Co-Chairman for the 1961 New March of Dimes are Mrs. Earline Coghill, Pitt County, and Mrs. Louise Carrigan, City Chairman. J. H. Rose is Pitt County Chapter Chairman and handles the distribution of funds in Pitt County.

Mrs. Coghill was appointed by Andy Carrigan, County Chairman in 1959, to be City Chairman. She has been associated with the March of Dimes for about five years.

Mrs. Coghill is bookkeeper at H. A. White and Sons, Inc. and is a member of Red Oak Christian Church, Women of the Moose and Credit Women's Breakfast Club.

Mrs. Carrigan has worked with the March of Dimes for about six years. She is manager of the Glamor Shop and a member of Immanuel Baptist Church, Credit

Women's Breakfast Club and Women of the Moose.

Mrs. Coghill and Mrs. Carrigan alternate between City and County Chairmen from year to year. They work under the supervision of Jack McGee, state representative for the National Health Foundation.

The New March of Dimes campaign for the current year will get underway Friday at 2 p.m. when Jimmy Newman of Radio Station WOOW, begins the "Announcement."

Request records will be played for 25 cents or more in donations for the March of Dimes. Pledges can be telephoned or delivered in person to the station. Newman will continue his program until a stated amount of funds have been reached.

"I am doing this entirely for the March of Dimes," commented Newman. "I hope that everyone in Pitt County will take this opportunity to contribute."

In 1960, Newman stayed on the air for a total of 54 hours and over $500 was collected. Items of merchandise were donated by local businessmen for pledges enabling the total to reach a certain amount. This feature will be used again this year.

During the time that Newman is on the air, members of the Angel Flight and the ROTC Drill Team of East Carolina College, students of Rose High School and the announcing staff of the radio station, will handle the telephone calls and other donations.

Fifty-one paralytic polio cases occurred in North Carolina in 1960 as of December 2. Polio claimed five lives here in the state as of December 2.

The money that is collected during the campaign is divided into two parts. One-half is kept in the country for patient aid and the other half is sent to the National Health Foundation for research and providing financial aid for youngsters suffering from certain birth defects and rheumatoid arthritis. Approximately $5,000 was collected here in Pitt County last year.

Other fund raising projects for the campaign include: roadblock; Mother's March; Mrs. Lucy Harrell; Coffee Day; Dr. Kenneth L. Quiggins; Blue Crutch Sale; Valinda Whitchard; March-a-thon; ROTC Drill Team of East Carolina College.

Odds Now Leaning To Fair Inauguration Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a better than even chance that it won't rain or snow on Jan. 20, Inauguration Day. And the chances are even better that the temperature will be above freezing.

That should be a bit comforting if you are one of the thousands who has dealt out from $3 to $25 for a grandstand seat to watch President John F. Kennedy's inaugural parade.

There is one parade unit that is rather hoping for a heavy snow. That's from the state of Maine, and it has 10 northwoods huskies ready to pull a sled down Pennsylvania Avenue.

If there's no snow, they'll have to put wheels on the sled, and that might spoil the effect.

The Weather Bureau says it's still too early to forecast the weather accurately for Jan. 20, but the weathermen checked into the past records and came up with these statistics:

There's a chance of 3 out of 5 that there will be no rain or snow, and an 8 out of 10 chance for above-freezing temperatures.

Inauguration Day was changed from March 4 to Jan. 20 in 1937, for Franklin D. Roosevelt's second inaugural. It rained heavily. But since then there have been five Jan. 20 inaugurations with no precipitation.

The early presidents had good luck. George Washington's first in New York was a fair day, and so was his second in Philadelphia. The first Washington inauguration — Thomas Jefferson's — on March 4, 1801, also was on a beautiful day.

But over the years March 4 turned out to be a pretty chancy day weatherwise. In 1945 James G. Polk took his oath under an umbrella in a downpour. There have been many other wet ones.

The echoing, drafty National Guard Armory here is being transformed into a ballroom fit for a president. But the Inaugural Ball is so big it will be in three sections and three locations. The Kennedys and the Lyndon B. Johnsons will visit all three.

The walls of the armory are being covered with pale gray cloth called Egyptian rep. Gold eagles with 40-foot wingspreads will look down from each end of the huge auditorium. The balcony will be faced with white satin and studded with the 50 state seals.

The presidential box will be topped by a gold satin canopy. In the middle of the floor will rise a 40-foot circular bandstand decked in satin, golden ropes and a gold eagle.

Altogether 19,000 will attend the Inaugural Ball, paying $25 per ticket or $320 a box. The other sections will be at the Mayflower Hotel and at the Sheraton Park Hotel.

Tags Own Car For Overparking

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (AP) — Patrolman J. Paul Leyden is a policeman with courage perhaps above and beyond the call of duty.

While ticketing automobiles for overtime parking, he spotted a familiar one—his own. His wife had parked it, and the meter read "Violation," so Leyden sadly shook his head and wrote out a ticket.

Agency-Renovation Requires Study

During the new administration of Gov. Terry Sanford, as has been the case in state administrations in the past, there is certain to be some reorganization and streamlining of state departments and agencies and their functions.

Each new chief executive and his top advisors have their own ideas about the needs of their administration, and the organization of state agencies which can best be suited to filling those needs. It follows naturally, therefore, that some reorganization, alteration of duties, changes in functions comes about early during the administration of most governors of North Carolina.

There have in the past been instances in which such reorganization has brought about not only decentralization of responsibilities, but also overlapping authority between two or more groups, overlapping fields of interest, and confusion over where one group's jurisdiction ended and another's began. Instead of becoming more streamlined, there has resulted a more cumbersome machinery within the governmental organization.

It is our hope that as Gov. Sanford and his staff evaluate the present agencies of the state and their duties, they will avoid the pitfall of duplication of jurisdiction and effort on the part of departments which may be separated or in new groups which may be formed.

Particularly in the Department of Conservation and Development—where separation of some functions has been proposed—should care be taken not to create a departmental machinery which will be more unwieldy than that which already exists. If the operations of this or any other state agency can be streamlined without loss of effectiveness, it will be for the betterment of the state. But if in the name of "streamlining" there is built a structure which will lead to inter-agency confusion and conflict of jurisdiction, the best interests of the state will not be served.

The new administration of Gov. Sanford needs to give careful study and evaluation to the overall structure of the state's agencies and their functions—as well as to individual departments and agencies—before they begin their program of renovation.

Keep To Policy On Advertising

By LYNN NISBET

ADVERTISING — In turning down the proposition to pay $4,500 for space in the Democratic Digest magazine's inaugural edition the advertising committee of the C&D department adhered to policy established many years ago. That policy is to spend State tax money for advertising only in bona fide newspapers and magazines with paid subscribers and general reader interest. And not a dime to be spent in North Carolina publications.

It is possible that the Democratic Digest might qualify under the specifications, but there would undoubtedly be criticism because of its ultra political bias. The Digest can be bought on news stands all over the country, and can be subscribed for by mail. But it is frankly a propaganda sheet for the Democratic party, and therefore suspect under the general interest criterion.

The State advertising division has resisted pressure from many special interest publications — Rotary, Kiwanis and other civic club magazines, college papers, et cetera. Also there have been almost innumerable requests for participation in convention program and for furnishing souvenir gifts for such events. General policy has been not to get into any of these affairs, unless they are sponsored by the State of North Carolina. Souvenirs and other gifts are provided for Governors' conferences held in this state, for meetings of Honorary Tarheels wherever held, for booths at travel shows and other expositions in which the State of North Carolina participates, and for the industry-hunting parties sponsored by the State. This limited scope puts a burden on the meager advertising funds available, and for such items as participation in the forthcoming 1964 world's fair in New York a special appropriation will be required.

PROTOCOL — The grapevine route brings word that for a little while last week Gen. Capus Wayne, master of protocol for the inaugural proceedings, was disturbed about what to do with Robert (Bobby) Kennedy. Young Kennedy is a brother of the President-elect and is U.S. Attorney General designate. But as of right now he is just a private citizen, resident of another state. As such, he didn't raise any recognition. But — as a good personal friend of the Governor who was being inaugurated, a brother of the President-to-be and a prospective cabinet officer, he could not be relegated to the back row. After a little thought General Wayne came up with the solution. Bobby would be qualified as the personal representative of the President-elect. That put him in the parade and the reviewing stand just behind the visiting Governors, but ahead of the personal representatives of other Governors who could not attend. And everybody seemed happy.

ROUGH SPOT — Speaking of protocol and rank, there is a rough spot in the constitutional designation of the executive department. Prior to 1944 the constitution set out that the "executive department" should consist of a Governor, a Lieutenant Governor, a Secretary of State, an Auditor, a Superintendent of Public Instruction, and an Attorney General. The Council of State was constitutionally composed of the Secretary of State, the Auditor, the Treasurer and the Superintendent of Public Instruction, with the Attorney General designated as ex-officio legal advisor of the executive department.

A constitutional amendment adopted in 1944 added three other statewide elected officers to the executive department — the Commissioner of Agriculture, Labor and Insurance. These new members also became members of the Council of State.

MIDDLE — In carrying forward the new wording, the Attorney General was left in the list following the Superintendent of Public Instruction, but ahead of the Commissioners of Agriculture, Labor and Insurance. The section defining the Council of State added the three commissioners, and still left the Attorney General at the bottom as legal adviser, not a voting member. Result is that the constitution in one place puts the Attorney General ahead of three members of the Council of State, in another place it puts him below them. In protocol seating and in the issuance of auto license tags (which the late Secretary of State W.N. Everett arranged) the Attorney General takes the middle position.

When your reporter suggested to the late Harry McMullan that the post should be either at the top or the bottom, not split the Council of State, he said the existing arrangement is all right. "The Attorney General is right in the middle of everything else," he said, "and I see no reason to protest being in the middle of this list."

DELAYED — This is belated, but is still worth passing along. Last week as workmen were taking down the Christmas decorations on Raleigh streets, other workmen were right behind putting up the red, white and blue bunting for the inauguration. One fellow clipped: "They just did get Santa Claus out of town in time for Terry Sanford to come in. But, it seems a little early to be putting up Fourth of July decorations."

An Eisenhower Budget Means Little Today

In case some Americans may have gotten their hopes up over the fact that President Eisenhower has prepared a "balanced" national budget for the coming fiscal year, we'd offer a word of caution.

Although the budget may serve as a guide for the new administration in planning its program for the coming fiscal year, it can hardly be viewed as anything more. The Eisenhower administration which prepared the budget ends its term of office next week. At that time the new Kennedy administration will officially take over the executive branch of government. And certainly the new Democratic administration does not see eye-to-eye with the retiring Republican administration on fiscal policies.

There is another point that must also be considered. There have been many times in the past in which "balanced" budgets were proposed by the Presidents, and those budgets were altered considerably before they were finally put in official form by the Congress. Even without a change of administration at this particular juncture, there is no guarantee that the nation would have a balanced budget for the next fiscal year. Even if it were balanced when Congress finished with it, there would be many major changes from the original.

It is our hope that the Kennedy administration will seek a balanced budget for the nation during the coming fiscal year. It is our hope that the new administration will use its influence with Congress to see that the pay-as-you-go method of operations is followed for current expense appropriations for the next year.

Even so, the fact that President Eisenhower's administration has prepared a balanced budget to be presented to Congress means little now. Whether balanced, the budget that is finally adopted will have to fit the program that is hammered out by the new administration and Congress in the next several months. Trying to fit an Eisenhower administration budget with a Kennedy administration program would be like trying to fit a square peg into a round hole.

Suggestions All Over The Place

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's raining recommendations. President-elect John F. Kennedy, during the campaign and after his election, wanted ideas on how to do better for the government and the people. He wanted them before he was sworn in Jan. 20.

So he appointed study groups which went under various names — task force, committee, study panel — to look into the problems assigned them and come up with proposals.

They're coming in now: recommendations which range from reorganizing the Defense Department to sending a peace corps of young Americans to newly independent Asian and African countries as technicians.

This is a big advantage for Kennedy. It gives him a head start in putting together programs he can submit to Congress in a hurry.

President Eisenhower was prodigious in creating commissions but he waited until he moved into the White House. The long delay in making some of the studies simply delayed action on the problems. The last Eisenhower commission — on national goals — reported Dec. 1.

Right now in Washington 2,500 people from all over the country are taking part in a conference on the problems of aging. Congress wanted this one and Eisenhower had to call it.

When there's a conference this size on any problem there should be no surprise if the result is hash.

PASSING NECESSITY Vacation.

What? In Winter? Yes, if you can afford the time and money. And, of course, we always have to ask ourselves what we have to have in the way of rest and refreshment to get our work accomplished most efficiently.

We human beings are a strangely put-together lot of creatures. One thing is absolutely uniform amongst us, namely the necessity for rest. Have you ever pondered the fact that at least 40 per cent of our lives is spent in sleep? If we work seven days a week for an extended period, we soon find ourselves in trouble. We are simply made in such a way as to render imperative a certain amount of rest every twenty-four hours in the nature of sleep and a rest every seven days — not ten, as was tried in France after the Revolution, but one in seven.

Then we have come to see in modern times that we need, at certain seasons each year, to subject ourselves to a vacation experience — a time when we vacate the mind of tension and responsibility and let the batteries recharge while we are relaxed. And this vacationing period, which we have come to call vacation, varies in its necessity with individuals.

Take the rest you find you need. Take it when you need it. Take the kind that will refresh and replenish you most thoroughly.

By DON SCHLIENZ

More Music These Days

Lo! There is evidence the unhappy trend of the "big beat," inane lyrics and unmelodious song hits is fading.

The ten best-selling records of the week, based on The Cash Box Magazine's nationwide survey lists the following: Exodus (Ferrante & Teicher), Wanderland by Night (Kaempert), Will You Love Me Tomorrow (Shirelles), As You Lonesome Tonight (Presley), Calcutta (Welk), Rubber Ball (Vee), Corrina, Corrina (Peterson), Angel Baby (Rosie & Originals), Last Date (Cramer), North to Alaska (Horton).

I count this survey as being impartial, sound and business-like. (There is something substantial in a magazine using "Cash Box" in its title; it inspires a feeling of reliability, as do such words as "vault," "deposit box," "bank," "bonds" and "securities.")

True, some of the above records are obvious holdovers from the era which turned me away from phonograph music, but well over half of the recordings Cash Box lists can be listened to with enjoyment.

It's also a matter of record

(pun intended) there are a goodly number of other musical numbers pleasing to the ear that are available and faring well on radio and the market places.

Come springtime with rising sap, budding leaves and a mellowing of spirit, and the new trend toward beauty in popular music should become even more pronounced.

And speaking of music, Broadcast Music, Inc.—formed an even twenty years ago to serve composers, publishers and users of all types of music—reports that as of 1939 there were an estimated 250 symphony orchestras in the country as compared with 1200 today. And where there were 15 million people playing musical instruments in 1939 there are 31 million today.

They say there are more people making music and listening to music than the world has ever known before.

Trusting, I hope this is not merely due the rise in population.

It isn't the middle of January, yet one can sense the hours of daylight are already lengthening.

Only a couple of weeks ago I recall rising before Old Sol got fairly over the horizon and driving home from work in the late afternoon with car lights showing the way.

The mornings are still gray, but the afternoons are longer . . . noticeably so.

Of course, it's too dark to do any chores around the yard after office hours; but it still seems remarkable that in so brief a span of time the lengthening days should be apparent.

Then there's another school, another viewpoint, which says: "Come now, Schlienz; you're only leaving the office earlier."

Opinions In Brief

"Sooner or later we must spell out precisely what we will stand for with regard to labor unions. And the time is not far away, in view of the growing tendency to organize just about everything. We cannot give the unions a carte blanche because we can not tolerate an uncontrolled political or economic force within our republican democracy. A will will have to be found to control without destroying and it won't be easy because it will involve sacrifice and a degree of surrender. But the public must be sovereign." —The Oregon Voter.

"A budget has been defined as a pay-as-you-go financial plan that doesn't let you go anywhere." —Mason City (Iowa) Globe-Gazette.

"We've figured out why so many people have so much good advice to offer. They took so little of it when they were growing up." —Bartow (Ga.) Herald.

UP-TO-THE-MINUTE MEN DEFENDING AMERICA

YOUR NATIONAL GUARD

American tourists do not generally create too much good-will, anyhow. But that is not the point. They export dollars unnecessarily. In the case of tourists, of course, the professor is right. They buy letters of credit or get travelers' checks and they generally do not carry too many dollars with them. But in the settlement for these letters of credit and travelers' checks, the balance could go against us and the actual settlement might have to be made in gold—probably earmarked gold. Until the dollar is restored to sound value, it is not necessary to stimulate tourist activities.

More statistics on our curious recession. Department store sales last year, according to Federal Reserve figures, were 1 per cent above those in 1959.

Results in the 12 Fed districts varied. The New York districts were up 2 per cent; Cleveland, Atlanta and Chicago districts were up 1 per cent; the San Francisco and Philadelphia districts were even; Richmond and St. Louis districts were down 1 per cent, and Dallas was down 3 per cent.

Tax-Forgiveness Has Its Faults

By ELMER ROESSNER

The idea of getting the boom into orbit again by forgiving Federal personal income taxes is so pat that it creates suspicion that there is something wrong with it.

There is. President-elect John F. Kennedy was told by his economic advisors headed by Dr. Paul A. Samuelson, that there should be plans to cut taxes by 3 or 4 per cent. These plans would be put into effect only if business conditions grew much worse.

The AFL-CIO has another proposal: that, in the discretion of the President, each taxpayer get a $100 yearly tax forgiveness when unemployment exceeds 7 per cent of the labor force.

The labor proposal would give the taxed about $5 billion in additional spending or saving power; the economists' somewhat less.

Sounds great. Giving taxpayers several billions of dollars to spend would surely boost retail sales, create more jobs and generate more dividends.

But in all the economic experimentation since 1933, we should have learned one thing: money has to come from some place.

If either of these plans were put into effect, the Federal deficit would increase by approximately the amount of taxes forgiven. This would be made up by borrowing, which would mean generating more money, which would mean more inflation.

And inflation is a tax more subtle but no less burdensome than the income tax. Inflation reduces the true value of savings, of insurance, pensions, annuities and other put-away sums. In effect, the economists and the labor leaders are saying, "If things get worse, let's buy our way out by again levying the tax of inflation on the thrifty, the incapacitated and the aged."

There are other faults with the tax remission idea.

One is that it involves a "filtering up" concept. The chief beneficiaries would be those in low income brackets. Their extra spending would have to filter prosperity up to the employer level where it is assumed, more jobs would be created.

In the old pre-FDR days, one theory held that bestowing benefits on the big corporations, prosperly filtered down to the working classes. The New Dealers lambasted that idea. And now the new New Dealers are advancing a new filtration concept, one that goes up and down instead of merely down.

A second fault is that the tax remissions benefit those in the low and moderate income brackets. But those people (I mean us) are not the ones in CONCRETE AND LOW COST—This is a popular-priced model in the vast Lomas Verdes housing development, a suburb of San Juan, Puerto Rico.

ON THE HOUSE

Some building interests in the 50th state, Hawaii, are casting a professional eye at mass construction of concrete, low and medium priced houses in Puerto Rico.

No doubt they are attracted by the assembly line possibilities of concrete building.

Versatile concrete would offer the same advantages as a house material in Hawaii as in Puerto Rico. It's ideal for the hot, moist tropical climate; impervious to rot, termites and other insects, and high humidity.

It is this quality, plus availability at relatively low cost, that makes concrete probably the most widely used material for house construction in many Latin American areas.

Whether the Hawaiian public would accept the development house made of concrete is some-

Home Ec Club Hears Discussion On Japan

"Japanese are different from any other Orientals," Kenneth Whichard, Pitt County Social Security consultant, told an audience of approximately sixty Home Economics Club members at East Carolina College Tuesday night, Jan. 10.

During the meeting, club members planned a memorial to Rachel E. Spivey of Hertford, East Carolina student killed in an automobile accident Dec. 4, 1960.

Stationed in Japan and China with the rank of Colonel in the Army during World War II, Mr. Whichard spent about three years abroad, accompanied by Mrs. Whichard.

Betty Rose Frazier of Rt. 4, Henderson, vice president of the Home Economics Club, introduced

Dr. Bessie McNeil, director of the home economics department at the college, who conducted a devotion service in memory of Miss Spivey, an outstanding student at the college.

She was a member of the Home Economics Club, the Young Women's Christian Association, the Young Democratic Club, the College Union Student Board. She also served as class editor of the Buccaneer, college year book; social chairman of Fleming Hall, dormitory for women; and Chi Omega, social sorority.

A memorial committee composed of Betty Jo Sutton, chairman, of LaGrange, Roberta E. Harrison of Williamston, and Ann H.

Middleton of Raleigh, was appointed to determine the Home Economics Club memorial to Miss Spivey. Mabel Dougherty and Lilah R. Gaut, faculty members of the department of home economics at East Carolina, were also appointed to serve as advisors on the committee.

To the question "Why are Japanese different from any other Orientals?" Mr. Whichard answered that Japanese are more industrious and more appreciative people.

The homes, he said, have very little furniture. A stove is usually seen in the center of the room to provide warmth. One never sees a Japanese or visitor wearing sandals in the house because of the old legend of salt on bare feet which is said to purify the house. A religious people, the Japanese pay daily tribute to the spirits of imperial ancestors, historical personages, and some deities of nature.

Scenic slides of Japan, shown by Mr. and Mrs. Whichard, concluded the trip to Japan.

Print Exhibit By B. Spruance

Thirty lithographs by Benton Spruance are being displayed in the hall gallery at Rawl Building, East Carolina College. Spruance, who is primarily interested in printmaking, teaches and is art director at Beaver College, Jenkintown, Pennsylvania.

The print exhibition covers a wide range of subjects varying from the human figure to landscapes. However, one can see the artist's major interest is in his fellow human beings, since few prints escape the inclusion of the figure.

Color plays an important role in many of the prints in the exhibition. Brilliance of color is strikingly achieved by transparent colors which reflect the white of the paper beneath them. Clear colors that seem to belong with one another are used to create a unified effect.

Spruance not only portrays people and their activities, feelings, etc., but uses the human figure as a designing element in his prints.

The lithographs are a welcome show both for the variety in technique which they offer and the competence of their execution. The show will be open to the public through the month of January.

It may be of interest to those seeing the exhibit to know that Dr. Bruce Carter who is in charge of the graphics area in the Art department at the college studied with Mr. Spruance this past summer.

No Influence In His Wife's Case

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Judge M. Walter Bell of Marion County Superior Court handed his bailiff a broken fountain pen and a slip of paper.

Of the pen, the judge said: "Please have this fixed."

But about the paper, the judge said: "Do not have this fixed." The paper was a jaywalking ticket given his wife. The judge paid the fine.

houses a day.

Two methods are used. One, developed by the firm itself, employs a steel form the size of a house. After a huge crane sets the form on a slab, the concrete is poured in. When the form is lifted off the next day, there is the house, with both interior and exterior walls in place. The roof, also of reinforced concrete, is placed atop the walls and welded to reinforcing bars within them.

A precast panel method also is employed. With this concrete wall sections are cast in vast casting beds at a strategically located spot and, when cured, trucked to each house site for erection. Each section is welded to its neighbor and, of course, the joints are filled in with cement.

Landis the job of overhauling them. This won't be easy since Congress will have a strong say in any change.

The latest study group's report on welfare came Tuesday with recommendations which suggested a broad expansion of Social Security, public assistance, unemployment pay, medical education, and immediate passage by Congress of a program Kennedy himself unsuccessfully backed last year in the Senate—a medical care program for the aged tied to Social Security.

This very subject is under discussion now at Eisenhower's conference on the aging.

Other Kennedy groups have given him recommendations on distressed areas, the nation's economy, education, housing and the peace corps.

But the quick work of these study groups will let Kennedy lay down programs to Congress faster than Eisenhower did when he took over. Eisenhower, starting out, had his hands full with Sen. Joseph McCarthy and the Korean War.

CHAPTER 29

The courtroom fell deadly still when the Honorable C. Matthew Arnold, District Attorney, stood in stern and businesslike, settled in a large table, untripped his briefcase, extracted a single exhibit, and placed it carefully in the center of the table.

Wally Goggins and Jane McPhipps saw it at the same instant. It was Jane's notebook.

Wally looked at her, grinned crookedly, and sighed aloud. "My pen pal!"

Jane shivered a little at that, but managed a stoic smile.

The Honorable Timothy X. O'Malley, Judge, walked in while looking at his watch, a fat gold timepiece with a hinged cover which he snapped shut.

Representing the Defendant was the Honorable Justin R. Tilly. Twelve citizens were seated in the jury box, and in view of the defendant's personality Jane was gratified to see that nine of the twelve were women.

At a signal from the bench, both attorneys squared off to declare themselves ready, in the formal plea of Not Guilty was formally asked, the complainants were sworn in as a body, and as Jane's blood congealed slightly, Gertrude Green was asked to step forward as first witness.

Hoping to set a perfect example for the girls, Miss Green had asked the D. A. to take her first, and she was impressive. She answered briefly, in well-rounded tones, and most willingly. But since she had never purchased any Canadian Countess, her testimony was utterly useless to the prosecution.

Then it was Jane's turn. As she thought the witness stand, the mere thought of her big idea made her go blank, and she looked at the menacing figure of the District Attorney as if she'd never seen him before.

He asked the expected questions, and then: "Calling your attention to approximately October of last year, did you have occasion to talk with the defendant?"

"Yes," Jane answered.

"Did the defendant mention to you a certain 'security by the name of Canadian Countess?'"

"Yes," she said.

"Now will you tell the court, as nearly as you can recall, exactly what the defendant told you about Canadian Countess?"

Now was the moment, and Jane could almost feel as a tangible force the girl's support as she leaned forward to give proper emphasis to her words. Her eyes brightened with eagerness to tell her story, and her lips formed words. A she plunged ahead, rapid fire. But only a dim and toneless sound came out.

The District Attorney looked sharply at her, looked up at the Judge, who was not alert, said to his witness, "Will you repeat that—louder?"

She went through it again this time adding gestures. But still her voice was far faint to be heard.

The District Attorney leaned toward her. "Will you speak louder, that the court may hear you?"

Smiling apologetically, Jane said distinctly, "I'm sorry, I shall try."

She cleared her throat. "As I was saying..."

Her sound box shut off again, while the lips went on. She was smiling encouragement to the D. A. when he shut her off with a shout.

"Louder, louder—that the court may hear you!"

Stealing a look at the Judge, who was totally absorbed in examining the nail of his little finger, Jane murmured, "Sir, may I ask you to repeat the question?"

The District Attorney eyed her balefully, opened his mouth, glanced uneasily at the Judge and then closed his mouth. What with a Judge distracted by a torn nail, and with a difficult witness, he had forgotten his question. Finally he barked at the court reporter to read it. The reporter stood and read in a monotone.

"Now will you tell the court as nearly as you can recall, exactly what the defendant told you about Canadian Countess?"

"Oh, yes, indeed." Deciding to address the jury directly, Jane thought she'd better speak firmly for a change. "Mr. Goggins told me he was with a firm interested in special situations. Many of them were wonderfully successful. I was impressed." Her voice trailed off, and nobody heard anything more.

The District Attorney noticed the Judge's yawn, quickly decided to change his pace. After all, he'd known this Judge to nod right off in open court. Walking to his table, he picked up Jane's notebook and addressed the Judge.

"Council has inspected this, your Honor. May I have this marked the People's Exhibit Number One for identification?"

The Judge nodded sagely. "It may be so marked."

Turning back to Jane, the District Attorney begged, "Now, will you tell the court about your purchases of Canadian Countess?"

"Not purchases, Jane corrected him. A single purchase about 1958. All right! But let's hear about it!"

"Well," she began, "what may I tell you about Canadian Countess?"

"How much was the amount of your purchase?"

"You mean in shares or dollars?"

"Shares!" thundered the D. A. "Twenty-five shares."

"And how much per share?"

"Twenty-five cents. And twelve thousand times twenty-five makes three thousand. Three thousand dollars."

"Thank you," said the D. A. He then rifled through the notebook. "This is your notebook?" asked the District Attorney, handing it to Jane.

She examined it with the greatest care, finally admitted to owning the People's Exhibit Number One. Then, there being no escape, she identified Wally's comments on the Countess.

"That is all. Next witness, please." The District Attorney's face screwed up.

Taking her turn, Mrs. Hope worked her lips as if they were full of novocain. But Jane thought her satisfactorily exasperating.

So continued the trial of Wally Abner Goggins, as complainant after complainant did her best to serve the defendant; and the District Attorney wished he had never heard of either. Finally, goaded beyond endurance by tiny-voiced witnesses, he called Wally to the stand.

His attorney, however, slowly took to his feet. "Your Honor," he said, "my client respectfully declines to testify at this time."

At this Miss Green, completely capitulating to her admiration for legal processes, thawed and whispered to Jane, "A beautiful move! Wally really must have a defense."

Disgusted, the District Attorney sat down heavily and waved his hand to turn proceedings over to Mr. Tilly. With a wide smile Mr. Tilly called his own client to the stand. He took Wally through his recent trip to Canada.

"Will you tell the court exactly where you went in Canada recently?"

"Fort St. John and Edmonton." "For how long?"

"For two weeks in Fort St. John, where I investigated the group of promoters who sold Canadian Countess. Then for eight days I was in Edmonton."

"And in Edmonton?"

"I was consulting with the Canadian correspondents of my own firm."

The unexpected really happens in real life, and to Jane. See the concluding chapter of "Lady in the Market" here tomorrow.

They Will Pray Separately For Unity; Different Path

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP)—Protestants and Catholics throughout the world next week will kneel together—and pray separately.

They will be praying for unity—though with different ideas of the form it should take—in dual observances of a devotion as unique in origin as it is in practice, and one which goes far beyond any current endeavor of the popular ecumenical movement.

Unlike most current ecumenical efforts being carried out by learned church leaders on a lofty theological plane, this is an annual assault on religious differences by simple people on their knees.

Catholics call it the "Chair of Unity Octave"; the World Council of Churches calls it the "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity."

It will be observed Jan. 18-25. Can persons pray together from opposing positions?

The question itself, says Dr. Keith Bridson, secretary of the World Council's Faith and Order Commission, helps participants "to sense the naked scandal of Christian disunity."

He feels the observance at least brings the churches together to face their differences, and "things is one of the most creative things it can accomplish."

There is no mistake, however, about the route the founder of the observance had in mind for his prayer movement.

His name was Lewis Thomas Watson, a deeply religious man and an eloquent speaker who graduated from the General Theological Seminary in New York in 1885 and assumed the name Father Paul James Francis.

From his earliest days in the ministry he dreamed of establishing an order of Anglican friars dedicated to the apostolate of unity.

This he did in 1898, in the monastic quiet of Graymoor, near Garrison, N.Y., across the Hudson River from West Point.

Father Paul called his new religious order the Society of the Atonement. He explained he chose the word not in its usual sense of expiation, but because of its literal, though archaic, connotation of at-one-ment, reunion. He and his 16 followers, including a small group of Anglican nuns, by this time were convinced they should be Roman Catholics.

For 11 years, however, they refused to desert their faith individually. Instead they worked toward corporate reunion with Rome of the entire Anglican Church. In their zeal, they considered such a goal attainable.

It was a trying period for Father Paul.

Understandably barred from Protestant pulpits, he likewise was berated by the Catholic press for his apparently contradictory position.

Finally in 1909—a year after his friars conducted their first octave of prayer for unity—Father Paul turned for advice to his Anglican superior, the Rt. Rev. Frederick J. Kinsman, bishop of Delaware.

"Either give up belief in a divinely established papacy and in Roman dogmas," advised the bishop, "or else give up Anglican orders—and be a good Roman Catholic. I have no hesitation in saying that if I were in your position I should choose the latter alternative."

Before the year was out the Society of the Atonement became the first non-Catholic religious community ever received as a group into the church of Rome.

Father Paul was ordained a Catholic priest eight months later, and in the years that followed he watched his society grow into a sizeable religious order with more than a dozen houses in North America.

Its goal of Christian unity never has changed, and has remained focused on the eight days beginning with the Catholic feast of the Chair of St. Peter in Rome, Jan. 18, and ending on the feast of the conversion of St. Paul, Jan. 25.

In 1916 Pope Benedict XV extended the Graymoor devotion to the entire Catholic Church, making it perhaps the only Catholic observance which originated as a non-Catholic venture.

Father Paul's intent for the octave plainly was for conversion of all people to Catholicism. But in 1935 a Catholic religious group in Lyon, France, began an observance on the same dates to pray for unity "in the way Christ wills and by the means he chooses."

Under this modification, one of the parent bodies of what is now the World Council of Churches adopted the dates for the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity.

The first Protestant observance was in 1940—the year Father Paul died.

Yankee Hero In Re-Staged Event

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Even re-staged history can have its heroes.

When a replica of the old Union supply ship, the Star of the West, sailed into Charleston harbor Monday, "Confederate" cannons began firing at her as part of the nation's observance of the 100th anniversary of the Civil War.

Suddenly, a fire broke out in one of the batteries manned by cadets from The Citadel, South Carolina's military college. One of the cadets quickly doused the blaze. The hero?

A Yankee, Robert Theobald of Union City, N.J.

Among the birds traced back to the last glacial period of the Ice Age are the crane, duck, goose, grouse, owl, partridge and swan.

First Permit By Official Board

AYDEN—Ayden's first building permit was issued Monday to a coin operated laundry. Town Manager Cleveland Paylor announced this week.

This is the first permit issued since the adoption of a zoning map and ordinance by the town's official board, and the appointment of a building inspector at the December session of the Town Board. Paylor said yesterday that Tillman Chauncey, the building inspector, has the machinery for his duties set up now.

It was pointed out that from now on, those wishing to obtain building permits must obtain an application at the town office. The application is to be completed by the person who is in charge of the new building, and the building inspector makes a survey of the area and plans. After he approves the plans, the town office issues the building permit.

Actually, this type of operation is an outgrowth of the establishment of the building ordinance and map. All buildings must conform with the ordinance now.

Paylor noted that a one-and-a-half-inch water connection meter required by the laundry, will be installed by the city this week.

This laundry probably will be ready for operation by February.

Consumer Survey Shows Confidence Is Unchanged

(Editors Note: Following are results of the latest survey of consumer attitudes and inclinations to buy, conducted by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center. Interviews for this study were conducted in the Greenville and Pitt County areas.)

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Consumer confidence in the economy has not changed in recent months, despite increased awareness of a business recession, the University of Michigan Survey Research Center reported Wednesday.

Based on interviews with a scientifically selected sample of 1,400 adults, the survey was conducted just before and just after the Presidential election. More than 200 trained interviewers across the country, including Pitt County and Greenville, conduct surveys of economic attitudes quarterly.

A sharp deterioration in consumer sentiment, which occurred during the first half of 1960, has been arrested, according to Prof. George Katona (Ph.D.) and Associate Prof. Eva Mueller (Ph.D.).

Consumers have remained uneasy about business, but they have not become alarmed at signs of the current recession. Results of the University of Michigan Survey Research Center's latest survey of consumer attitudes and inclinations to buy "are consistent with the notion that the present recession will remain unusually mild," Katona and Mueller added.

Results showed a "pronounced rise" in intentions to buy new automobiles. This stemmed in part from more widespread satisfaction with stable prices. Similar satisfaction also is apparent in attitudes toward major household goods and clothing.

Popular evaluation of business conditions improved considerably after the election, but "to some extent this shift represents an expression of partisan feelings and may be temporary," the professors have said. The persistence of moderately optimistic long-term expectation for the economy is a third favorable factor in the consumer outlook. The survey indicated that few people believe long depressions and serious reversals in their own financial situation are likely. On the other hand, awareness of the recession has become more widespread in recent months and more than half those interviewed reported there is unemployment in their community. Expectation of good times has given way to uncertainty rather than pessimism, however.

Concern about personal financial developments has also grown somewhat. Fewer families report that their financial position has improved over the past year. More report "no change." Worries about job security and employment opportunities are somewhat more common than in 1959 or the spring of 1960. And optimism about personal finances in the coming year has diminished slightly.

The Center's Index of Consumer Attitudes, an overall gauge of public feelings toward the economy and buying inclinations, remains virtually unchanged from May and August of 1960. Questions included in the latest survey show "no evidence" that consumer needs have been satisfied in recent years, Katona and Mueller report.

"Most consumers have unsatisfied desires which they can discuss specifically—for better housing, a new car, other durable goods, vacation trips and many other things," they said. Intentions to buy new cars are now at least as high as they have been at any time since late 1956. This is probably related to greater satisfaction with car prices and a favorable attitude toward compact cars.

The proportion thinking of buying a compact remains the same as it was in early 1960. Intentions to buy used cars have not improved over the levels reported a year ago. Intentions to buy houses are unchanged from a year ago, and much lower than in the spring of 1959. Yet the potential demand for better housing remains as great as it was five years ago, and housing is still highly regarded as investment, the survey indicated.

"The current slackness in housing buying seems attributable to lack of buoyancy in consumer attitudes and incomes, an impression that mortgage credit is hard to get, and some dissatisfaction with current house prices," Katona and Mueller have explained.

Plans to make home improvements or additions are about the same as a year ago. Plans to purchase major household appliances, on the other hand, have declined somewhat in frequency. The one exception is plans to buy TV sets, which are comparatively high.

Report Links Space Program To 'Prestige'

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A study committee report sharply critical of the Eisenhower administration's space program calls on the Kennedy regime to recognize America's prestige is at stake in the race with the Soviet Union.

The report, made public by President-elect John F. Kennedy Wednesday night without comment, says the odds are heavily against the United States beating the Soviet Union in the contest to put a manned space ship into orbit around the earth.

The committee, appointed by Kennedy, urged determined effort and the spending of more money on the space exploration program, generally—and particularly on development of more powerful rocket thrust for launching of spacecraft.

The group mentioned no specific figure in calling for additional spending.

The current Soviet advantage in firing vehicles into space stems from superior booster rockets. The study committee asserted there is "overriding necessity to provide more efficient and effective leadership" for the U.S. space effort.

President Eisenhower has stated repeatedly that America's prestige is not at stake in the space exploration race.

The Kennedy committee's report said: "Space exploration and exploits have captured the imagination of the peoples of the world. During the next few years the prestige of the United States will in part be determined by the leadership we demonstrate in space activities."

The committee was headed by Prof. Jerome B. Wiesner, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology scientist. In making the group's report public, Kennedy announced appointment of Wiesner as his special assistant for science in the new administration.

"Because of the lag in the development of large boosters, it is very unlikely that we shall be first in placing a man into orbit around the earth," the report said.

"While the successful orbiting of a man about the earth is not an end unto itself, it will provide a necessary stepping stone toward the establishment of a space station and for the eventual manned exploration of the moon and the planets."

Bitten By Rat In Retrieving Coin

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—"Rats!" exclaimed Thomas E. Lane when he dropped a quarter on the sidewalk—and indeed there were.

Lane told police that a large grey rat ran out of some bushes and bit him on the left hand as he bent down to retrieve the 25-cent piece. The 20-year-old victim was treated at a hospital and released.

"The ultimate goal of this kind of endeavor would, of course, be an actual landing of man on the moon or a planet. It is not possible to accomplish such a mission with any vehicles that are presently under development."

The U.S. Project Mercury has as its officially stated goals a short, manned space flight in April or May, and a manned craft orbiting the earth late this year.

Futile Raid On An Empty Safe

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—More than three years ago the C & I Drug Store got a safe from a bakery on a trial basis. But nobody knew the combination.

An expert wanted $50 to open the safe. So it sat in the drug store unopened.

Until recently, that is, when a burglar pried it open and found nothing.

But the project reportedly is considerably behind schedule.

The Soviets have announced no target date. But Soviet Premier Khrushchev said last September they were ready to fire a man into space.

Seven Coeds All Have Same Name

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—A call for Sue Smith at Miami University could bring a lot of confusion.

A check of student records shows seven coeds enrolled this fall who answer to the name of Sue Smith.

They are Susan Kay Smith of Lakeside, Ohio; Suzanne K. Smith of Rossburg, Ohio; Sue Caroline Smith of Birmingham, Mich.; Mrs. Sally Sue Vinnedge Smith of Hamilton, Ohio; Susan Arline Smith of Indianapolis, Ind.; Carol Susan Smith of Los Angeles and Sandra Sue Smith of Toledo, Ohio.

Guaranteed, No Matter The Cost

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Merritt Supply Co., a building materials firm, was embarrassed to find itself completely out of a brand of paint to meet an urgent order of two gallons. Delivery had been promised within 24 hours.

The manufacturer was called in St. Louis. Ten hours later an employee of the manufacturer stepped off a plane at Pensacola with the two gallons of paint. Retail price of the paint, $6.

Wrong Stamps For Occasion

ROCKINGHAM, N. C. (AP)—A young man bought 200 stamps which showed, whooping cranes and their young. He soon returned to exchange them for other stamps.

"They won't do," he told the stamp clerk. "We're sending out wedding invitations and my girl says these birds look too much like storks."

131 Students At ECC Qualify To Receive Degrees

Students who completed their work at East Carolina College at the end of the fall quarter include 131 candidates for degrees. Registrar John H. Horne has announced.

With other members of the Class of 1961, graduates of the fall quarter who are eligible for degrees will receive their diplomas at the annual commencement exercises, scheduled for Sunday, May 21.

All of the fall-quarter graduates at East Carolina are North Carolinians, except three, who come from Florida, South Carolina and Virginia. The 128 North Carolinians represent 41 counties of this state.

Those completing their work at the end of the fall quarter include 95 candidates for the bachelor of science degree, which is awarded in the field of teacher education. Twenty-one will receive the master of arts degree; and fifteen the bachelor of arts degree.

Pitt Countians included on Dr. Horne's list are:

M. A.—Ruby Magdalene Underhill Briley, Bethel; Shirley Kinlaw Dennis, Ayden. A. B.—Royal Arnold Lynch, Greenville; Jack Sawyer, Winterville; Durwood White, Bethel; B. S.—Dallas Fred Allen, Grifton; Shelsa Dean Allen, Farmville; Roger Hardy Averette, Remy Walston Baker, Greenville;

Nelson Isaac Baldrée, Ayden; Miner Knowlton Brotherton, Dee Bryson, Gaynelle Williams Cade, Judith Arlene Corbett, all of Greenville; William Haywood Farnior, Farmville; John Gurard Gilikin, John Lewis Hudgins, Nancy Carole Kennerly, Laura Cecelia McArthur, Greenville; Jessie Lucile McLawhorn, Ayden; Joseph Lee Mason, Robert Joseph Nelson, Greenville; Hilda Raye Owens, Rt. 1, Fountain; Mike, Gillis Riddick, Greenville; Janie Stancill Rollins, Bethel's Al Warren Sartin, Willis Johnston Stancil, Geraldene Mills Sutton, all of Greenville; Jasper Cornelius Wynne III, Bethel.

Dairy Ratings Are Announced By Health Dept.

Dr. Georgia V. Mills, Pitt County Health Department director, announced yesterday the following distributors delivering milk and milk products in Pitt County were rated Grade "A" for the period ending Dec. 31, 1960.

Carolina Dairies, Greenville; Southern Dairies, Wilson; Maola Milk and Ice Cream Co., New Eern; Wayne Dairy, Goldsboro; and Gardner's Dairy, Rocky Mount.

E. L. Kilpatrick, Pitt sanitarian, inspects the 12 producer dairies located in Pitt County an average of three times each six months for cleanliness and proper milk handling.

Samples of milk and milk products are collected monthly from each distributor in the county. Complete tests are made on these samples to assure the public the Milk Ordinance and Code of the Public Health Service is complied with, Dr. Mills said.

Window-Washer Among Suspects

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A Houston window washer who may have hauled his loot out in a water bucket is a suspect in 14 robberies in a downtown office building.

The robberies in the Cotton Exchange Building were discovered Tuesday when another window washer, Glen Robert Harris, 26, told his employer the man carried out money and loot.

People in the offices checked after notified by police and found about $2,000 in money, bonds and jewelry missing.

Good News And Bad In Annual Profit Reports

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Wall Street is finding plenty of good news among the bad these days as the profit reports roll in.

The big drop in profit margins that depressed the stock market six months ago seems to have been halted. Fourth-quarter earnings mostly held at third-quarter levels, and many companies say they expect the first three months of 1961 to show the same leveling trend.

Corporations announcing profit gains in 1960 over 1959 outnumbered by a slim margin those reporting declines.

And in the reports Wall Street is finding still further proof of how uneven the business slowdown has been—many industries trading steadily upward as others lagged. And also showing up is further evidence of a greater role for service industries, which mostly are advancing while the manufacturing ones often are ailing.

Among the first 118 nonfinancial corporations to report on their fiscal 1960 earnings, 64 show gains over the previous year and 54 report declines.

The banks and other financial institutions mostly report record or near record earnings. The railroads, however, are trailing badly. The utilities are expected to show modest gains when their full year reports are in. The one giant to report so far, American Telephone & Telegraph, shows an increase of 9.5 per cent in the 12 months ending Nov. 30.

The reports are getting special scrutiny today, not only by the stock market but also by government agencies trying to gauge their tax collections, and by business planners looking for any clue as to 1961 prospects.

Wall Street is taking comfort from the many corporations who have braked the slide in profit margins, which was sharp in the spring and early summer. Many firms have been able to cut costs, such as inventory carrying charges. Others have pushed the more popular products or services in their diversified activities.

And in spite of some dire predictions about the months ahead, more business executives are saying they expect a pickup in new orders soon, with output gains to follow—and also better profits.

But they admit that in the current three months, profits may level with the end of 1960 but still look bad against the many records set early in that year.

Adding it up, if business is slower today than many felt, the net results are still pretty encouraging.

Father Maurice Tew, a one-time "yankee" from Boston, has made a home for himself in Greenville since coming here in 1935 to establish a parish in St. Gabriel's on West Fifth St.

Father Maurice, who attended grade school and part of high school in Boston, entered monastic schools until he was ordained a priest in 1926. He came to Greenville from a monastery in West Springfield, Mass., after volunteering for the assignment.

The "parish" awaiting Father Maurice on his arrival here, consisted of a large weed-covered field. "A cow was grazing" in the lot Father Maurice recalls, and with his characteristic sense of humor asked the Bishop "Does the cow go with the lot?" "If it does," he continued, "at least I will have some milk to keep me from starvation."

The cow did not go with the lot, but hope and faith in the future did, and with this hope for the future and spiritual and financial assistance from friends, St. Gabriel's Parish has become a reality.

Father Maurice began with neither parishioners nor buildings. He soon rented a store building, a fish market, for $10 a month, and to attract a "congregation", acquired a mammoth bell. The ringing of the bell brought local Negroes to the mission, and from these, the nucleus of the present parish was obtained.

The missionary was forced to give up the building after several months when he was unable to pay a $5 per month increase in the rent.

He then, after moving into a private home, decided to take the "momentous step of building a church. Through God's providence in supplying the needed financial help through contributions from friends in the North," the first structure of the parish was built and dedicated March 2, 1936. The building, seating 160 persons, is still in use as the church.

The rectory located next to the church was built two years later. After being here three years, Father Maurice boasted a parish membership of 42 and by 1940 the number had increased to 72.

Father Maurice's hopes did not end with the construction of the two structures. He wanted more: a recreation hall; school and convent for the parish. In 1948 a parish hall was constructed, which serves as an instruction hall and is the social center of the parish.

Finally, seeing a dream come true, a Catholic school for Negro children was opened in 1956 and the convent, to house its teachers, was erected across the street.

The school and convent, which cost about $160,000 were financed for the most part in the same manner as the other buildings of the parish, by "free-will contributions of my many friends" Father Maurice commented with a broad grin.

The school, a one-story structure, included six classrooms, a principal's office, a library, infirmary kitchen and an auditorium seating 350 persons, contains eight grades with an enrollment of 170 students.

Father Maurice emphasized that non-Catholics are in the majority at the school, with only 59 students being member of the parish. The priest also stressed that "there is no obligation whatsoever in attending the school . . . nothing in the school" is taught about the Catholic faith. He added that at present, the parish has a membership of 135.

Father Maurice said his "average" day begins at 6:30 a.m. with Mass and continues with a second Mass at 8 a.m. Charity work, "helping the poor", visitation of members and working around the parish and school comprise the remainder of the day, he explained.

"It is hard to put into words", Father Maurice said about the things that give him the most satisfaction in his work at the parish.

"I think my work with youth—the building up of moral character and seeing it bear fruit in later life—gives me the most satisfaction", he commented reverently. "Seeing a person return 'grateful for the training he received here', is a great reward."

Commenting on his title "father", Father Maurice said that "in a mission like this" he has to be a "father to the people" not only spiritually but "in a lot of ways. Helping, advising, counseling" are all part of the job "down here" in the South. "It is not so in a big city", he noted.

The priest, in talking about the aid and cooperation he has had from the people said he has had "grateful response from the people . . . who have needed help."

Father Maurice, with a look of self-satisfaction . . . one of pride in seeing a dream-come-true . . . said his greatest reward is having had the "satisfaction of seeing the parish grow", truly a "motive of God".

Father Maurice noted that in addition to the buildings, the parish also had the first playground in the city, and when the first city recreation committee was appointed by the mayor, he was made a member of the group. Sixty-five dollars was appropriated that first year, Father Maurice said, for the group to spend on recreation for the city. Now, in addition to the playground operated by the parish, a teen-age club has been started, with meetings being held each week in the school building, he said.

Saying he has "no spare time" for hobbies, the priest said he likes "sports, especially baseball and basketball."

Could Trigger A Full-Size War Stopping Reds In Laos

Editor's Note—Laos has become a key point in the cold war. Thousands of words involving claims and counterclaims swirl around this small kingdom. What are the basic facts in this situation? Here is an appraisal by an experienced AP reporter who has worked in China, Japan and the Soviet Union—and spent most of the last six months in Laos.

By ROY ESSOYAN

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The Communist movement is chalking up gains in Laos. And the United States has little hope of reversing the tide without triggering full-scale war.

Most responsible officials here feel the United States will not take such a step unless Communist North Viet Nam invades Laos.

And these officials do not expect such an invasion.

This leaves two alternatives:

1. A political settlement benefiting the Communists because recent military successes have placed them in bargaining position.
2. Continuation of the six-year civil war in which pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels now hold the initiative thanks to military aid and advice from Soviet Russia, Communist China and Communist North Viet Nam.

The Pathet Lao are doing fine without a Communist invasion, and the Communists traditionally stop short of triggering bigger wars than they can handle.

A massive land invasion of Laos from China or North Viet Nam is physically impracticable.

It would take days to move invading forces down treacherous mountain paths and through jungle trails. Only a few so-called highways exist in Laos. The invaders would have only the weapons they could carry on their backs because the terrain is too rugged to haul anything bigger.

Air invasion of Laos would be more practicable militarily, but practically no one here believes the Soviet Union and Communist China are prepared knowingly to precipitate an all-out war for a covert test of strength with East and West each aiding and supplying its side, yes, but not all-out war.

A major East-West clash in Laos could envelop most of Southeast Asia because of the location of this landlocked jungle kingdom. Communist conquest of Laos would bring Communist borders to Thailand and South Viet Nam. Both countries have warned they are ready to fight to prevent this. Both countries are backed by the United States.

Communist China and North Viet Nam are equally concerned about possibility of a Western takeover of Laos because it would bring the West's frontiers to their edges.

It is generally believed both blocks would settle for a neutral Laos but each side wants Laotian neutrality to lean toward its side.

Souvanna Phouma, the former premier, considered by many as one of the few outstanding patriots of integrity in Laos, twice tried to make this sort of neutrality work. Both East and West apparently distrusted him. The Communists heckled him from one side, and the United States refrained from giving him wholehearted support.

The United States has poured $300 million in aid, mostly military, into Laos in six years. The Soviets won a foothold during Souvanna's 15-week tenure. Feeling deprived of U.S. aid, he called on the Soviet Union for economic assistance.

The Soviets responded with an airlift of rice and gasoline, which was switched to arms and technicians when Souvanna fled the country last month and pro-Communist Laotian elements took over.

It is likely that 95 per cent of the two million people, easygoing subsistence farmers and villagers, know nothing of communism or democracy.

Most live in remote mountain and jungle villages. They do not even know that Laos won its independence six years ago. Many have not heard of Souvanna or of Prince Boun Oum, the current premier.

The bulk of American aid has meant nothing to them.

Some have benefited from American agricultural reform and irrigation programs and U.S. medical aid and sanitation measures, an estimated 2 percent of total U.S. aid to Laos.

A handful of devoted American agricultural specialists and health experts living the life of the primitive Laotians have won friends for the United States.

They are a drop of pure spring water in what is largely a sea of murk.

"What are we—or the Laotians—supposed to do?" asked a top American official. "Let the Russians keep pouring their guns and ammunition in? And once the Communists are ready, is the Laotian government supposed to lie down and let the Communists walk over them?"

"Now that the first bomb has been dropped," a British diplomat commented, "no town or village in Laos will be safe from air attack."

Walter Slezak, Broadway stage and Metropolitan Opera star, was a medical student and bank clerk in Vienna before he turned to the theater.

N.C. Business Education Council To Meet At ECC

The winter meeting of the North Carolina Business Education Council will be held at East Carolina College on Saturday, January 14. Approximately 50 business teachers, school administrators, and businessmen are expected to attend. The morning meetings will be held in Rawl Classroom Building and will include a coffee hour at 9:30 followed by committee and Executive Board sessions.

The full Council will meet at noon in North Cafeteria for a luncheon-Council meeting. President Joyce Bateman of the School of Business, Wake Forest College, will preside. Greetings from East Carolina College will be brought by Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, president, and Dr. E. R. Browning, director of the School of Business.

Important items on the agenda include discussions of the business education service at the state level, community surveys, layout and equipment for business education departments, and recommendations to the Textbook Commission.

The North Carolina Business Education Council is an organization comprised of business teachers, businessmen, and school administrators. The purpose of the Council is to provide a co-ordinating agency for these groups to work together in improving the business education program in the high schools of North Carolina.

One of the most important projects already completed was a status study of business education in the white high schools of the state. Currently the Council is actively engaged in promoting a state service for the more than 800 business teachers in North Carolina.

Cooper Outlast'em All, And Secret Is Still His

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What has made Gary Cooper outlast all other movie stars?

A lot of famous names grappled with that question this week with only fair results. The occasion was the Friars' Club annual money-raising banquet. This year the funnymen chose to honor not one of their own but durable, unchanging Cooper.

It was a good idea. Too often Hollywood waits until the obit to pay tribute to its greats.

The tributes ranged from the awful to the eloquent. In the former class was a parody sung by Tony Martin. "The most beautiful man in the world." In the latter were Carl Sandburg's words about Cooper: "A tradition while he's living."

Audrey Hepburn tried verse: "A Gary Cooper is very rare—there is only one—and there will never be another—under the sun." Sam Goldwyn observed, "Gary doesn't say very much, but what he says makes a helluva lot of sense."

Others played with the star's "yup"ism. Said Henry Ford II: "He was in talking pictures five years before anyone realized he could talk."

Milton Berle, in a smashing monologue called him "Rafidolph Scott with novocain lips." Jack Benny, George Jessel, George Burns, Art Linkletter and J. B. Warner also played the comic theme with mixed results.

Cooper observed that since his start in films 35 years ago "a lot of celluloid has flowed under the bridge—and a lot of it is showing up on the late, late show."

Then he told the crowd at the Beverly Hilton International Ballroom: "I want to thank each and every one of you for coming here tonight. Never has so much fuss been made by so many over so little. The only achievement I am really proud of is the friends I have made in the community."

End advance pms of Thursday.

Kennedy Wants Build Up Of U. S. Military Forces

Editor's Note—As the inauguration nears, problems facing the Kennedy administration in military affairs outnumber announced programs for solutions. In the fourth of five articles on the broad outline of Kennedy policies, an Associated Press specialist identifies areas awaiting important decisions.

By ELTON C. FAY
AP Military Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy has said he wants to speed up the missile program, expand forces for fighting conventional war, improve air defense, do more about protection against rocket-firing submarines.

If the incoming administration makes these and other changes in the nation's military program it will cost money—perhaps more than the $42-billion or $43-billion defense program expected to be submitted by the outgoing Eisenhower administration. But Kenney also has expressed belief that billions can be saved by administrative improvements and curtailing service competition.

Beyond these programs which can be controlled by Kennedy and his defense secretary-designate, Robert S. McNamara, are other potential factors which can not be decided by national policy making alone.

Shifts in the international situation can influence profoundly Kennedy's national defense policies. He comes into office as new tensions mount in Southeast Asia, as relations with Cuba worsen, as the future trend of NATO defensive strength is considered, as pressures increase for resumption of nuclear weapons tests.

Any one of many world problems can dictate the size, kind and deployment of U.S. forces.

An argument reiterated during the presidential campaign was that the United States had lost prestige militarily as well as politically. Democratic critics aimed particularly at the missile category. In answering a series of questions by the publication "Missiles and Rockets," Kennedy said during the campaign that he would send to Congress several specific requests, among them proposals to "accelerate our Polaris, Minuteman and other strategic missile programs."

In the same statement, Kennedy said competition between the armed forces must be minimized, that "our competitors lie on the other side of the Iron Curtain."

It happens that the sharpest competition among the services at the moment concerns the very weapons mentioned by Kennedy—the Navy's Polaris missile-atomic submarine system, on the one hand, and the Minuteman and other strategic missile programs of the Air Force.

For years, the Air Force had been keeping its eye on and directing sharp words at the Navy's aircraft carrier force, that "other air force." It was still concentrating on the competition of naval airplanes and carriers when suddenly it became aware of the Polaris weapon system, by now a reality with the first rocket boats on station.

Overseas continental target areas which can be hit with missiles fired from submerged submarines also can be attacked with the long range strategic missiles of the Air Force. So now Air Force spokesmen are hammering hard on the idea of precision attack on military targets instead of attacks on enemy population centers designed to inflict broad, general damage. Precision attack and a "counter-force" of missiles primarily aimed to destroy enemy military power has become the new Air Force position.

Available to Kennedy will be the policy followed by the present administration: a mixture of strategic weapons launched from distant or intermediate ranges, from protected sites and from submerged submarines, by plane-carried nuclear bombs as well as missiles.

But there undoubtedly has been duplication in the development programs of the services. Missiles closely similar in range and load-carrying capability have been developed independently not only by the Navy and Air Force but by the Army.

There are problems other than these strategic concepts facing Kennedy and McNamara. The budget, for one, Kennedy has said "defense spending must be based on the security needs of the nation, not the pre-determined confines of a budget."

This statement is not unprecedented. It has come from all administrations of peacetime years. Always it has been countered by the argument that the shape of the military is of necessity patterned to that of the budget.

One of the first things that Kennedy may have to do is tackle the question of service dependents overseas.

The Eisenhower administration, seeking to arrest the dollar drain, decided that the number of families of servicemen living abroad should be halved. Angry objections came swiftly. It was contended morale was threatened, that military personnel might leave service by the thousands.

The outgoing administration retreated a little, softened some of the measure. The new administration will be under pressure to void the whole dependents-return order.

The dependents' question is only

Alley Will Be Leveled In Ayden

AYDEN—An alley located between Lee Street and Pitt Street will be leveled in the near future and the necessary catch basin installed, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said yesterday.

This will make the alley more convenient to traffic, it was noted. This is part of the alley project which is scheduled for paving next spring, Paylor noted.

a facet of the bigger problem of reducing the dollar-gold outflow. If the situation does not improve, it conceivably could influence the size of forces which can be continued in the NATO organization

Survivors Have Formed A Club

TOKYO (AP) — Seventeen Japanese whose ship almost killed John F. Kennedy in 1963 gathered here this weekend to draft a cable congratulating him on his inauguration Jan. 20 as U.S. president.

They are the survivors of the Amagiri, the Japanese destroyer that rammed and sank Kennedy's torpedo boat in the Solomons. Kennedy received a severe back injury but swam to safety.

The Amagiri's former skipper, Kohei Hanami, 51 and now a farmer, said Kennedy's election brought so much attention to the incident that the destroyer's survivors have formed a club.

and elsewhere overseas. Friday: farm and city.)

Putting Money Into Trust Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert S. McNamara, while serving as secretary of defense, plans to put the money received from sale of his Ford Motor Co. stock into a trust fund.

McNamara, Ford president before he agreed to serve in President-elect John F. Kennedy's cabinet, received more than $1.5 million for sale of 24,705 shares of Ford stock.

Senators said that under the proposed trust the money could be invested but McNamara would not know what it was invested in. He would have no control over the money until he steps out of government service.

The Senate Armed Services Committee staff is examining the proposal.

Heyman Scores Winning Basket

Late Comeback Gives Duke 92-90 Victory In Overtime

By DON WEISS Associated Press Sports Writer Hey, man, this Heyman's still at it—acting like the sophomore of all college basketball as he and the Duke Blue Devils drive toward the regular season championship in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Just earning a starting spot on Duke's veteran team might have been honor enough, but young Art Heyman's doing much more. Like

Stasavich Second In Coaches Vote

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Clarence Stasavich, coach of Lenoir Rhyne's NAIA football champions was named runnerup Wednesday night as minor college coach of the year.

Warren Woodson of New Mexico State edged Stasavich for the honor accorded by the American Football Coaches Association. Murray Warmath of Minnesota was named major college coach of the year, and Jim Owens of the University of Washington was runnerup.

New Mexico State was undefeated in 11 games, winning the Sun Bowl 20-14 from Utah State. Stasavich coached Lenoir Rhyne of Hickory, N.C., to an undefeated season in 1960. The Bears' only blemish was a 20-20 tie with Northern Michigan in the NAIA's Eastern Regional playoff. Lenoir Rhyne was awarded the playoff spot on the basis of yardage. The Bears then whipped Humboldt State of California 15-14 in the NAIA's Holiday Bowl at St. Petersburg, Fla., for the small college championship. Lenoir Rhyne has won six straight North State Conference championships and 23 regular season games in succession. Stasavich has been coach at his alma mater since 1946. His teams have won eight North State Conference championships. Only twice—in 1946 and 1953—has Lenoir Rhyne had a losing season under Stasavich. The 1955 and 1956 team did not lose a game and in 1952 the only loss in an 8-1 season was in a bowl game.

Pender-Downes Title Bout On TV Saturday

By MURRAY ROSE Associated Press Sports Writer BOSTON (AP) — Having two champions in one division makes for some confusion but it's a merger mixup as far as the fighters are concerned. Take the middleweights, for instance. Paul Pender of Brookline, Mass., is recognized as world champion of the 160-pound class by Massachusetts, New York and most of Europe. Gene Fulmer of West Jordan, Utah, is hailed as king of the division by the National Boxing Association. Because it can be billed as a title fight, the fourth Fulmer-Sugar Ray Robinson battle on Feb. 25 has been sold to television for $150,000. The same goes for the Pender-

Cuban Players Awaiting Status

HAVANA (AP)—Cuban baseball players are awaiting—some anxiously—clarification of their status as members of United States major and minor league clubs. The rupture of U.S.-Cuban relations last week threw a cloud over the future participation of Cubans in organized baseball in the states. But baseball authorities here are confident the U.S. State Department will give the green light to Cuban players. Felipe Guerra, Cuban sports director, has announced there will be no restrictions imposed on Cuban players requesting exit permits to play abroad. Washington's official attitude about issuing baseball visas still is not known. In the past Cubans entered the United States under special permits renewable annually. It has been a practice for a club to which the player or players belonged to make visa requests on their behalf via the State Department. It is not known here if any club thus far has made the usual visa request for Cubans. American clubs have a good sized investment in Cuban talent. Nearly 200 Cuban players are ticketed for action in the major and minor leagues this season. Between 14 and 19 of them carry big league credentials for spring training, at least.

Colts, Packers Dominate West's Starting Lineup LOS ANGELES (AP)—West Coach Vince Lombardi has named four Baltimore Colts — and only two of his own Green Bay Packers — to a tentative starting offensive lineup for Sunday's pro bowl game at the Coliseum. Green Bay's Paul Hornung, who set a National Football League record last season by scoring 176 points, is not among the starters. He suffered a leg injury late in the season, and again in the play-off game against Philadelphia, but is expected to be able to play Sunday. Buck Shaw of Philadelphia, coach of the East all-stars, hasn't announced his lineups. Tentative starters in Lombardi's backfield are quarterback Johnny Unitas of Baltimore, halfbacks Lenny Moore of Baltimore and Jon Arnett of Los Angeles and fullback Jim Taylor of Green Bay. Up front are ends Gail Cogdill and Jim Gibbons of Detroit, tackles Jim Parker of Baltimore and Bob St. Clair of San Francisco, guards Tan Jones of Chicago and Art Spivney of Baltimore and center Jim Ringo of Green Bay. The West is favored by one point, the smallest margin odds-makers have assigned to any team in the 11-year history of the event. The West has won 6 of 10 previous games.

Bears Nip Tribe For 8th Straight

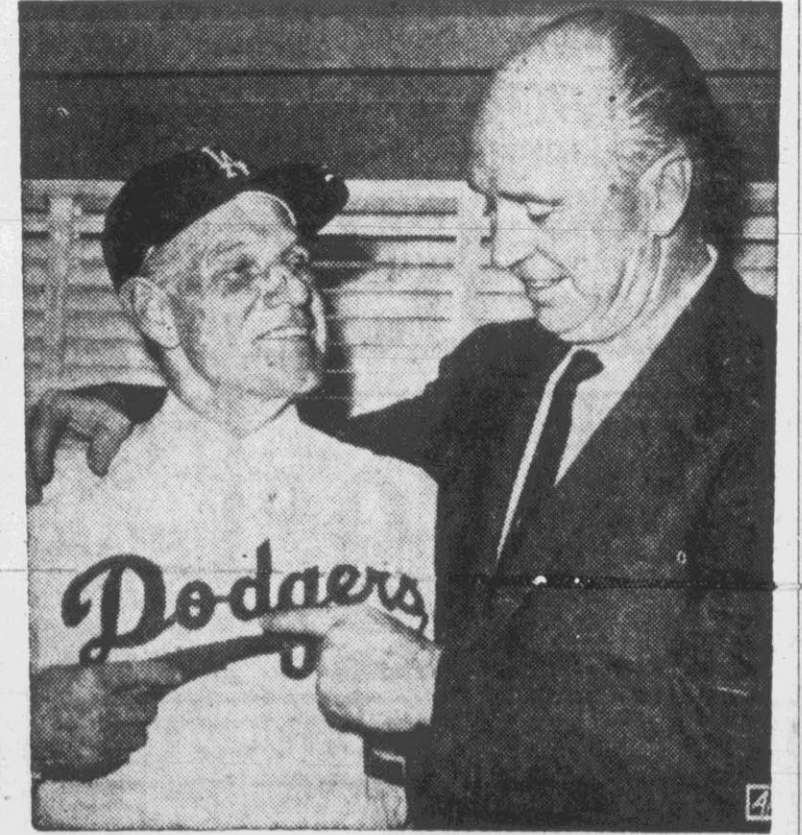

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Lenoir Rhyne, riding an eight game winning streak, pushed its North State Conference record to 7-2 Wednesday night with a 71-63 victory over Catawba. Tommy Burtawba led the Bears with 19 points and Horace Medford topped Catawba with 18. In another conference game, Atlantic Christian lost again, falling to Elon 77-76 on Jug Irvin's jump shot with two seconds left. The win left Elon 3-3 in the conference and ACC 2-3. In another game, Wofford of South Carolina whipped Pembroke State 84-66. Appalachian, the No. 2 conference team behind front-running High Point, plays at Western Carolina in tonight's only conference game.

Signs Pro Pact

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Danny House, Davidson College's top pass catcher, has signed a pro contract with the Dallas Texans of the American Football League. House, a 6-1, 190-pounder from Henderson, played end and halfback at Davidson. His '32 catches in 1959 led the South Conference. Last season, after coach Bill Dole started House at halfback, he returned him to his familiar end spot. House led the team with 11 catches for 212 yards and one touchdown.

VPI, W. Virginia Wage Hot Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Rebounding Virginia Tech and red-hot West Virginia continue their battle for Southern Conference basketball supremacy tonight in a pair of league games that probably won't rearrange the standings at all. Tech's Gobblers, 4-0 and leading the conference, play host to Virginia Military Institute's hot-shooting but height-shy Keydets (1-4). At the same time, six-time league champion West Virginia (4-1) goes to George Washington's somewhat disappointing Colonials (2-1). By winning, Tech can assure itself the top spot until Saturday night at least. A West Virginia victory would boost the Mountaineers into undisputed possession of second place. They're now tied with The Citadel. West Virginia has an imposing 9-2 over-all record that includes seven straight victories. GW is only 3-5 against all opposition. Tonight's only other game, a non-conference affair, has Furman (8-5 over-all) playing host to Clemson. All league teams were idle Wednesday night.

Maryland, Duke Win In AC Wars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A goal by Duke's Howard Hurt with 17 seconds left kept Virginia's Cavaliers from pulling the biggest upset of the year in Atlantic Coast Conference basketball. The hapless Virginians, who've won only twice in 11 games, led Duke's eighth-ranked Blue Devils 83-81 when Hurt scored two points to send the game into overtime. In the extra period, Duke finally beat down Virginia to win 92-90 Wednesday night. In a non-conference game, Maryland, rallied in the last half to down Georgetown 55-47. No other games were scheduled. Tonight's schedule has only one game, Clemson (5-8) at Furman in a non-league battle. Virginia, with John Hasbrouck and Tony Laquintano, leading the way, led by 11 points with only 2:45 left in the game at Charlottesville, Va. However, Duke's sophomore Art Heyman, Carroll Youngkin and Hurt began to hit. A goal by Heyman finally tied the score at 81-81, but Gene Engel put the Cavaliers back in front, 83-81. This set the stage for Hurt's deadlocking goal just before the end of regulation time. In the overtime period, the teams matched points until it was 90-90 with :120 showing on the clock. Heyman finally got the ball and dropped in the winning goal with 12 seconds left. Virginia then missed a shot that would have tied it up again.

Tennessee State Holding AP Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Tennessee State, riding a 13-game winning streak, has increased its lead over Hofstra in the weekly Associated Press small college basketball poll. Tennessee State, beaten only in its season opener, collected seven first place votes and 79 points in the balloting by The AP's eight-man board, representing each of the NCAA districts. Hofstra (10-1) drew the remaining first place vote and 63 points, although it lost to Albright after 23 straight victories. A week ago, Tennessee State was named the top team on only three ballots and received 57 points while Hofstra had two firsts and 53 points. The leaders, with won-lost records through Jan. 9 and first place votes in parentheses (points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis): 1. Tennessee State (7) (13-1) 79 2. Hofstra (1) (10-1) 63 3. Strong Field In Sixth Prep Meet Set For Saturday

TROPHY OR FEMALE?—Something seems to have startled Raleigh's Louis Guilette (in highest seat) in the above photo after the Cap swimmer received his first place trophy in the Individual Medley event last winter. Guilette will be one of the returning swimmers here Saturday.

The largest and strongest field ever will be competing in the sixth annual East Carolina College Invitational High School Swimming and Diving Meet here Saturday afternoon and night. Co-sponsored by the East Carolina College Aquatic Club and the Athletic Associations of North Carolina and Virginia, the meet will be held in Memorial Pool, with the preliminaries starting at 2:00 in the afternoon and the finals at 8:00 that night. Fourteen swimming teams from North Carolina and Virginia will be represented in the meet, including defending champion Myers Park of Charlotte. Returning teams of past years include Myers Park, Page High of Greensboro, Senior High of Greensboro, Chapel Hill, and Needham Broughton of Raleigh. Teams attending for the first time are Tarboro, Fort Bragg, Appalachian High, Granby High and Norview High of Norfolk, Va., Daniels High and Millbrook High of Raleigh, and East and West Mecklenburg schools of Charlotte. The event will have a couple of returning individual champions—Fad Adams of Myers Park and Louis Guilette of Raleigh. Adams won a first place in the 200 and 400 yard Freestyle events last winter and Guilette took a first in the Individual Medley. A swimming clinic, starting at 8:30 Saturday morning, will be held for the second consecutive year. According to ECC swimming coach Ray Martinez, the clinic was popular last year and was included this year by request of high school swimming coaches. Staff members included on the clinic agenda are Dr. Nephil Jorgensen, Dr. Ray Martinez, Dr. Robert Haubrich, Jack McCann, and Dr. G. P. Reeder. The public is invited to attend the clinic and meet. There is no admission charge.

DISCUSS SCHEDULE WILSON, N.C. (AP) — The Carolina League's 1961 schedule will be considered at a meeting of the Carolina League baseball club owners in Durham on Sunday, Jan. 22. The president of the Class B league, Bill Jessup, said Wednesday the proposed schedule would be in the hands of the owners in the next few days. He said he hoped to have a schedule accepted at the meeting.

NCAA Eliminating Prep Talent Scouts

By JIM KENSIL Associated Press Sports Writer PITTSBURGH (AP) — On the heels of the North Carolina probation case the National Collegiate Athletic Association has put recruiters of high school athletes on a no-cash basis. Legislation adopted at the business session of the 55th annual NCAA convention Wednesday stipulated that colleges may not pay the expenses of athletic talent scouts. It was also ruled that a member college may not put a recruiter on the payroll and claim him as a staff member. The legislation was drafted in advance of the disciplinary action Tuesday that placed North Carolina on probation for a year and barred the school's seventh-ranked basketball team from the national championships. But it was recalled by convention delegates that one of the charges against North Carolina involved unitemized expense accounts turned in by semi-official recruiter Harry Gotkin, who scouted high school basketball players in the New York area. Wednesday's convention climax was one of the longest ever but the NCAA gathering was expected to wind up quickly today with a routine morning meeting of the council. Recruiting rules were also tightened by the adoption of a measure which requires persons paying for the transportation of an athlete on a visit to a college campus to accompany the athlete. The NCAA feels boosters won't encourage so many campus visits if they have to make the trips themselves. Other legislation adopted included: Complete member-college support of a previously announced break with the Amateur Athletic Union over what the NCAA feels is inconsistency in rule enforcement by the AAU. Approval of four bowl games for 1961. Three are new—Aviation Bowl (Dayton, Ohio), Presidential Trophy Bowl (Washington, D.C.) and the Mercy Bowl (Los Angeles). The Gotham Bowl in New York, unplayed in 1960, was re-certified. A rule limiting college athletes to competition within five calendar years. A stipulation that high school football and basketball all-star games must be approved by the state's high school federation, or if interstate, by the National Federation of High Schools. Provisional approval of Chicago as the 1962 convention site. Elimination of the national boxing championships from the list of NCAA post-season events.

Fossils Found Here Date Back Thirty Million Years

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

Prehistoric shells and bones, some identified as fossils 30 million years old, have been found preserved in a layer of blue clay where workmen are building Greenville's new sewage plant.

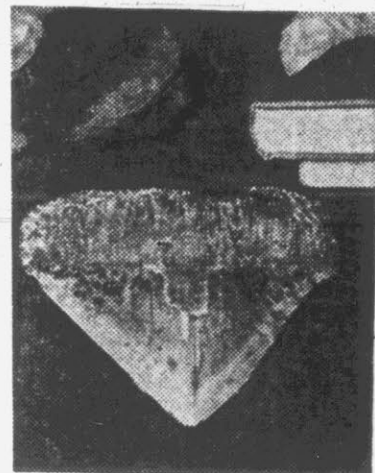

It is quite likely that something heretofore unknown will be unearthed from this section. Dr. Jean Lowry of East Carolina College believes—since these prehistoric fossils are being gathered in such large quantities.

The shells found in the region, are being identified as of the Miocene age, 30 million years old. The bone fragments being found now have not been identified. When enough have been collected, Dr. Lowry plans to consult an expert for identification.

It is not unusual that old fossils are being found in this region, covered by water in ages past. But it is unusual to find fossils in such large quantities, many of them unidentifiable here.

Dr. Lowry, who was engaged in field work with the Virginia Division of Geology for nine years before coming here, is now an assistant professor in the E. C. C. geography department.

In a collection gathered here for two years by herself and by others, there is a shark's tooth, identified as being some 30 million years old. (Man is only about one million years old.) It's size, enormous in comparison with sharks' teeth today, measures four and a half inches at its widest point; four and a half inches long in the middle; and about five and a half inches from longest point to the razor edge.

There is a fragment of a dinosaur bone, identified as of the older cretaceous age, 60 million years ago. This bone fragment was found by Jimmy Ricks of S. Harding Street, a high school student, near Library Street. The dinosaur bone was identified by an expert.

The numerous shells which have turned up in different places: the new sewage location, along the river near Library Street, near the Port Terminal, in deep pits and wells, vary from the Miocene to the Cretaceous ages. Fossils being found in the Library Street area generally are identified at about 70 million years of age. Coral and barnacles also have been found.

Other fossils found in different areas so far generally have been about 30 million years of age. At any point where digging has been done in this section, it is possible that fossils can be found—and have been. Some have been collected by more dedicated students, and some by people who simply put them in a drawer for a while, and then eventually discard them.

Significance
The significance of finding fossils and old relics is that "They prove the ocean has been here and give some information as to climatic and other conditions of prehistoric ages," Dr. Lowry says. The finding of such fossils over years has pieced together the story of evolution, from one age to the next, she added.

Contrary to some popular thought, there is no market value for old fossils, unless a person might find a whole skeleton of a dinosaur, for instance.

Identification
When these fossils are brought to Dr. Lowry and her contemporaries, they are able to identify some of them by referring to books which provide descriptions and pictures of key fossils. "Once you have found enough to get to a period which is more specific," Dr. Lowry says, "you can better identify each object."

A key factor in identification of a shell is the hinge. The general shape, size and ornamentation is helpful in identification of a fossil, but the hinge is the all-important factor. Little marks—referred to as "teeth" marks on the hinge are also helpful. Some of the fossils found have been in perfect shapes after being cleaned. Certain fragments are common to a certain period, and have never been found in another. Dr. Lowry says. Outside that period, they are assumed extinct when never found again.

Age substance of a new fossil is ascertained by determining the rate of decay of a radioactive substance in the fossil and analyzing the content. The radioactive substance used might be uranium, or potassium or carbon 14 for instance. It varies with the periods of history. If there is no radioactive substance in an object found, substances nearby can be examined.

The Coastal Plain of North Carolina is the only part of the state where any fossils are found, Dr. Lowry stated. It was this part of the state which, 60 million years ago, was covered by water during the Cretaceous Period. And later during the Miocene Period. Within these two periods of history, water came in and receded several times.

Search for Fossils
Dr. Lowry first began looking for fossils in this region when she arrived at East Carolina College, two years ago this September. One of the first things a geologist does is try to find out what is of interest in the area in which he lives. Reference books gave hints as to what fossils had been found in this area, Dr. Lowry said. In her first geological explorations, Dr. Lowry examined banks along the Tar River, in a boat. She found her first fossils here near the Port Terminal landing, where she also found a number of sharks' teeth. Her first findings were fossils of the Miocene Period, 30 million years old. She has later found fossils in other locations.

She reported that a boy near Winterville had found part of a leg bone of a prehistoric horse in a pit on his father's farm. Dr. Lowry plans to gather a collection of shells and other objects which will be identified and put on display, for reference of students at East Carolina College. Other fossils, after identification will be sent to other schools in the United States, which in turn will send this college fossils from their areas, providing for a larger and more extensive collections. Dr. Lowry, a native of Butler Pa., received her B. S. degree from Pennsylvania State in geology, and her Ph.D. in structural geology from Yale in 1951. Until joining the staff at E.C.C., she was associated with the Virginia Division of Geology as district geologist for the southwestern part of the state. Meanwhile, the search for prehistoric shells continues at the sewage area. City Manager L.P. Bloxam said the area will be filled in soon. The search and collecting has been intensified, since Dr. Lowry and her students feel there is a good chance some new fossil—and perhaps a bone—may be unearthed.

Nathan Leopold Asks Parole Cut

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Nathan Leopold, sentenced to life plus 99 years in prison for a 1924 "thrill slaying" that stunned the nation, has asked that his parole period be cut to permit him to marry and to become a teacher.

Leopold served 33 years before his sentence was commuted. He was given a five-year parole term when released from Stateville Prison Oct. 12, 1958.

Charles F. Kinney, chairman of the Illinois Parole and Pardon Board, said Leopold and his attorney, Elmer Gertz of Chicago, as well as several persons in Puerto Rico, have asked the board to reduce the parole period to three years.

Leopold was paroled to work as a hospital technician in Puerto Rico and subsequently undertook graduate study in social work at the University of Puerto Rico.

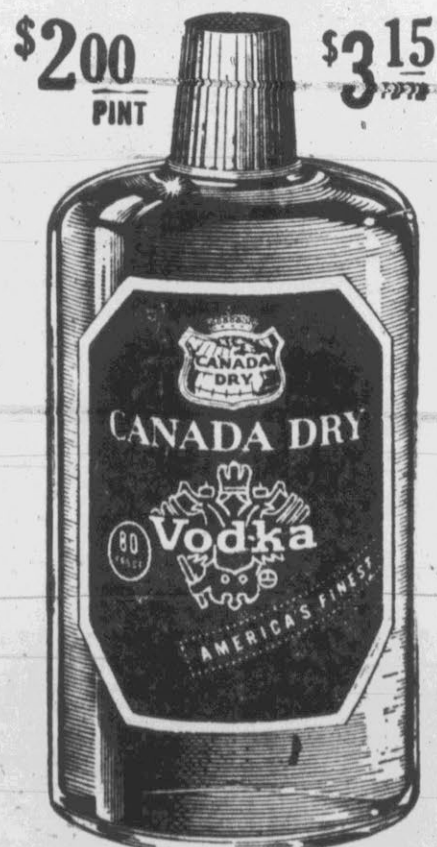

Should the request be granted, his parole would end in March. Kinney said Leopold wants to become a medical social worker and also to teach at the University of Puerto Rico. Under Puerto Rican law, a parolee can do neither.

Leopold also wants to marry a widow in Puerto Rico, Kinney said. As a parolee, he could obtain permission to wed from Illinois authorities, but the request was included with the plea for a shortened parole period.

Kinney said the board may express an opinion on Leopold's request when it meets next week and may set a date for a formal hearing.

Leopold and Richard Loeb killed children of wealthy Chicagoans, were convicted of the slaying of young Bobby Franks. Loeb was killed in prison by another inmate.

Jacqueline Kennedy Preparing For Her Role In White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy is getting ready for her White House role with two secretaries and a public relations aide.

But, she's going to get into it slowly, giving herself plenty of time to recover from the cesarean birth Nov. 25 of her second child, John F. Kennedy Jr.

The word came from her Palm Beach resort resting place Wednesday that Mrs. Kennedy plans to take part only in the main festivities of her husband's inauguration.

That includes just about everything she'd been expected to attend except a pre-inaugural reception Jan. 18 for distinguished ladies. About 4,500 guests are expected for the reception in the National Gallery of Art.

But, the announcement serves notice that Mrs. Kennedy won't be at any of numerous unofficial celebrations Washington big-wigs are planning.

The future first lady, 31, has been engaged in a quiet planning operation. Shortly after Jan. 1, she called in her former part-time secretary, Mrs. Raymond Gallagher, a mother of two who lives in nearby Alexandria, Va.

At Palm Beach, the two have been working on correspondence and other chores.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Mrs. Kennedy's social secretary, former schoolgirl friend Letitia Baldrige, went to work in preparation for the White House moving day.

The latest addition to Mrs. Kennedy's personal entourage is Pamela Turnure, 23, who will help with public relations. A former secretary in Kennedy's Senate office, she has been added to the White House staff of News Secretary Pierre Salinger.

Mrs. Kennedy thus will have as her aides three women who have been close to the Kennedy official family long before the presidential election.

Miss Turnure's appointment came as something of a surprise, since she does not have a news or public relations background. She is expected to work closely under the direction of Salinger.

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower had no similar aide. Her press relations were handled either by her social secretary, Mary Jane McCaffree, or by Presidential News Secretary James C. Hagerty.

The youngest of the trio of Mrs.

Kennedy's staff, Miss Turnure worked in the Belgian embassy here before she joined the Kennedy staff in 1957.

Social Secretary "Tish" Baldrige, daughter of a former Republican congressman, has lots of diplomatic training. She worked for Clare Boothe Luce when she was ambassador to Rome, and also learned the ropes in international society from Mrs. David Bruce, wife of the former ambassador to France.

Mrs. Gallagher, wife of an insurance agent, has been working for Mrs. Kennedy on a part-time basis for the past four years. It looks as though her chores may run into fulltime now. She says she's come to feel like a member of the family and considers Mrs. Kennedy the "ideal boss."

The wife of the vice president-elect, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, is getting ready for her new role, too. She's selected one of her close younger friends, Bess Clements Abell, wife of a Washington lawyer, to be her personal secretary. Mrs. Abell is the daughter of former Kentucky Sen. Earle Clements.

Russia May Seek End Belgian Trusteeship

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union was expected to demand today that the U.N. Security Council ask the General Assembly to end Belgian trusteeship over Ruanda-Urundi, east of the Congo. There was a possibility the Soviets would ask for an emergency assembly meeting.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin also was ready to press a new attack on Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, charging that he condoned the use of Ruanda-Urundi as a jump-off site for a Congolese army attack on pro-Lumumba forces.

The council meeting was called to take up the Soviet complaint that Belgium helped organize the New Year's Day move by Col. Joseph Mobutu's troops against forces loyal to deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba in the Congo's Kivu Province, next to Ruanda-Urundi.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, signaled the Soviet tactic Wednesday night with a government statement calling for immediate independence for Ruanda-Urundi and again demanding "immediate withdrawal of Belgian armed forces and civilian personnel" from the Congo.

The Soviets said the U.N. should also carry out the recommendations of the Casablanca conference last week of the government leaders of Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Morocco and the United Arab Republic. They demanded that Mobutu's army be disarmed, Lumumba released from arrest and the Congolese Parliament called into session.

The statement concluded that the Congo should be discussed "at an emergency session" of the General Assembly if necessary.

The attack from Ruanda-Urundi failed and was a sharp blow to Mobutu's prestige.

A detachment of Mobutu's army fled from the Congo's Kasai Province to Usumbura, capital of the trust territory and was taken to the frontier in trucks. When the troops entered Kivu Province, fighting broke out with pro-Lumumba troops already there. A Belgian was killed in an exchange of fire, and the Mobutu forces apparently were either killed, driven back into Ruanda-Urundi or taken prisoner.

Hammarskjold sent the Belgians three protests. They replied that Mobutu's soldiers were already in Usumbura before the Belgian government learned they were en route and that they were sent immediately back to the border.

In complaining to the council, Zorin cited Hammarskjold's protests to support his own charge. But in its statement Wednesday night the Soviet government said official documents showed Hammarskjold "knew in advance of the plans for attacking Kivu Province from Ruanda-Urundi."

Hammarskjold had said in his first protest to Belgium. The day before the airlift to Usumbura, that he had "information from a trustworthy source" that the Congolese army had asked permission to land its men in Usumbura.

Hammarskjold cut a week off a tour of Africa and Asia to hurry back to defend himself. He was due in Friday from South Africa.

Belgium administers Ruanda-Urundi, a former German territory, under a 1946 agreement with the U.N. General Assembly. Only the assembly can terminate the agreement, but the council can ask the assembly to act. The territory is scheduled to become independent in 1962.

Final Report

A total of 1,769 individuals were reached by Christmas cheer activities of the Salvation Army, Captain Earl Reagan, commanding officer, announced this week.

Reporting on the final tabulation of Christmas activities, Captain Reagan said 1,231 toys were given to children; 251 Christmas cheer baskets given; 230 favors and fruit (hospital, prison and county home); 150 Sunday School gifts; 922 garments given; and 43 pairs of shoes.

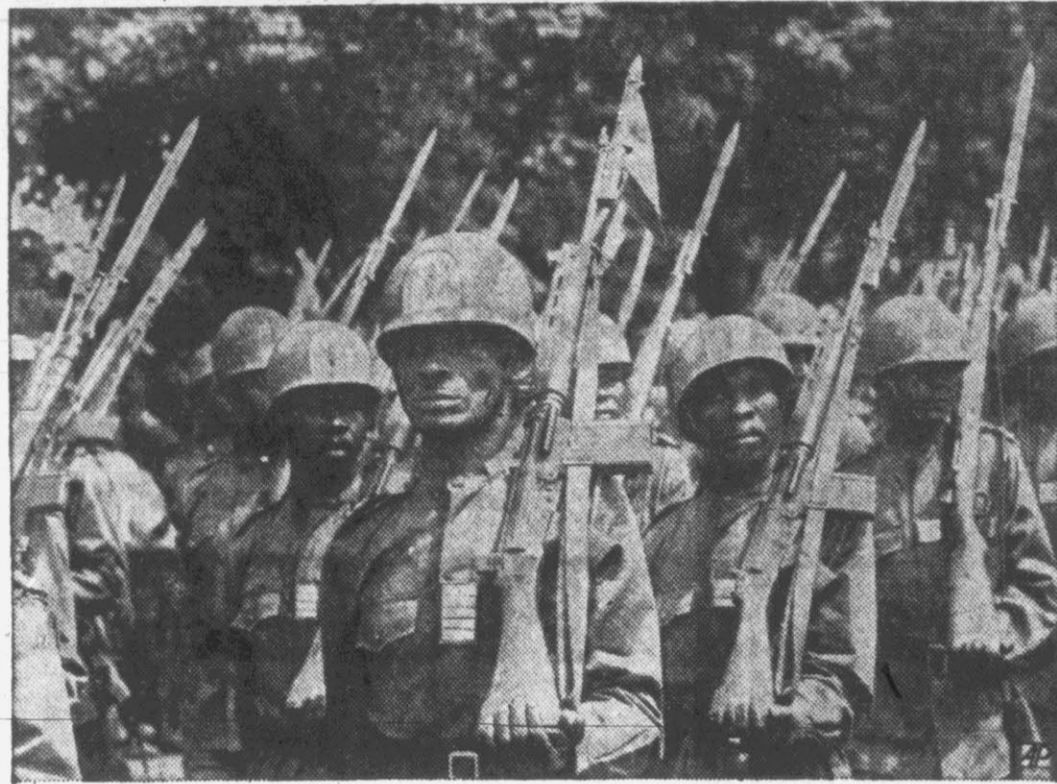

Captain Reagan and his co-workers have expressed appreciation to those who cooperated with The Salvation Army in conducting the program.

His First News Session 'Live'

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — John F. Kennedy's first news conference as president will be held in Washington the evening of Jan. 25 and will be carried nationwide on live television and radio.

The announcement was made by Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, at the president-elect's headquarters here Wednesday night.

Salinger had announced earlier that Kennedy would set precedents by holding news conferences at night from time to time, and permitting the TV and radio networks to broadcast them live.

President Eisenhower's sessions with newsmen have been filmed and recorded for use later the same day on TV and radio. Only one of his conferences was on live television.

Salinger said Kennedy's first news conference, five days after he takes office, will be carried on TV and radio by NBC, CBS, ABC, and on radio by the Mutual network and various independent stations.

The press secretary added that all the networks are reserving the half hour starting at 6 p.m. EST. for the broadcast. He added that the long-standing custom of reporters deciding when to end the conference will continue, but he did not know whether the networks will keep the session on the air if it should run more than 30 minutes.

A BOY IN THE SPACE AGE

Roger peers into throat of rocket engine. A few minutes later, in test firing, an ignited mixture of liquid oxygen and liquid ammonia poured more than 500,000 horsepower of energy out of the nozzle.

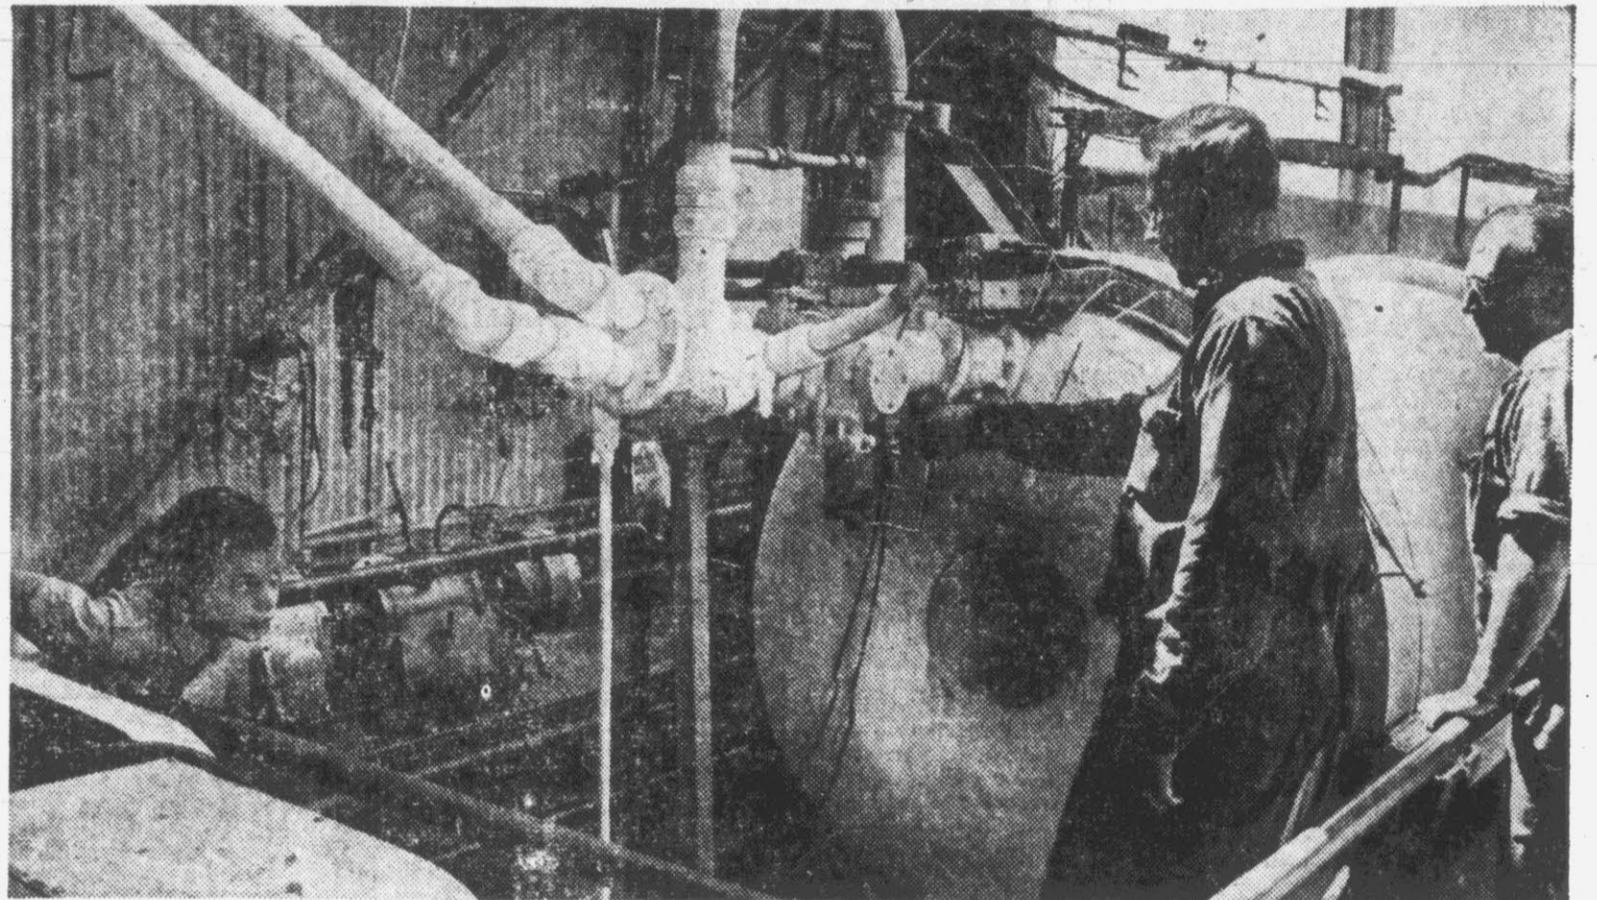

Roger Kuchs is eight years old. He lives in a small New Jersey town near a rocket engine plant where his father, Harry Kuchs, a top rocket expert, is in charge of the development and building of the 500,000 horsepower liquid rocket engine which is currently being installed in the X-15 air space craft. Its makers expect it to propel the manned X-15 at a record breaking 4,000 miles an hour at an altitude of at least 100 miles — faster and higher than man has ever gone before.

One day recently an excited Roger visited his father at work, at the Thiokol Chemical plant, in Denville. It was a visit most lads dream about. For two hours, young Roger scampered over the test stands, peered into the exhaust nozzle, watched technicians make adjustments in the maze of piping valves and instruments, gaped at men in protective rubber suits and helmets, played with the engine's throttle in the control room, similar to that which the pilot will use. Finally he had his ears stuffed with cotton in order that he could stand outside the control blockhouse and hear what 500,000 horsepower sounds like.

Maze of engine's "plumbing" and wiring captivates Roger as he watches technician make final test check.

He watches technicians inspect lines that carry liquid oxygen and liquid ammonia to engine's fuel tanks.

In blockhouse where firing tests are recorded, Roger handles throttle that controls engine's thrust.

Roger called the rubber-suited, hooded technicians who work with liquid oxygen "the men from Mars." The lad watches from a safe distance. Frost on tank is caused by condensation of the liquid oxygen.

Roar of 500,000 horsepower forces Roger to cup his ears as he tries to get view of engine firing from outside instrumentation blockhouse. Long frosted tank in background is filled with liquid oxygen; similar unfrosted tank in foreground holds liquid ammonia.

Campus Troupers Follow A Rugged Tobacco Trail In Providing Entertainment

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—There's no business like show business—especially on the campus-to-campus theatrical circuit.

With Broadway hits, undergraduate acting squads are barnstorming a rugged trail that stretches from frigid Greenland to torrid Thailand.

Competition for the honor of performing—and demand for the product—keep growing.

"Being chosen has become a new kind of intercollegiate rivalry," reports Jerome Coray, who handles the enterprise as entertainment director for United Service Organizations.

Between 50 and 75 schools apply annually to participate, says Coray, a stocky battery of galvanic energy. Between now and next July, nine companies will tour the sub-Arctic, European and Pacific military areas.

Troupes assigned in the latter two zones give about 35 performances in 7 weeks, those in the frigid north about 20 in 5 weeks.

"We could use more if we could handle the job," Coray adds.

The paper work, logistics and paraphernalia of preparation is complicated because some of the groups are loaned by the USO to the state department for civilian cultural exchange programs en route.

Coray initiated the college program eight years ago and uses it to supplement the professional entertainment that is a major part of the USO work.

Military transport necessity imposes some restriction on theatrical flexibility. Companies doing musical comedies are limited to 18 members, including chaperon, director and any needed technical icians; straight drama groups are held to 15.

Costumes are carried on tour and so is scenery—all designed to fold into foot-lockers, the only luggage permitted.

"Sometimes they perform with neither, depending on where the show is given," says Coray. "Sometimes it is in an open field, without anything resembling a stage; or it can be on the hatch cover of an aircraft carrier."

The groups swinging out this season include the University of Utah, doing "Damn Yankees"; St. Cloud, Minn., State College, "Wonderful Town"; University of Maryland, "The Mischief Maker"; Southwest Missouri, "Pinian's Rainbow"; University of Denver,

"Bernadine"; University of Minnesota, "The Matchmaker."

Also UCLA "45 Minutes from Broadway"; Brooklyn College, "The Male Animal"; and University of Delaware, "The Boy Friend."

To make sure that as many as possible get a chance, the program bans any school from being sent out in consecutive years. Screening is done by a professorial committee of the American Education Theater Assn.

"The colleges are chosen a year in advance," explains Coray, "so that they have plenty of time to set up seminars and language study for the areas where they will perform. We pay the necessary expenses and students get full college credit—and that's all."

The USO director likes to stress that the project does more than simply fill part of the huge entertainment needs for overseas personnel.

"Seventy per cent of those stationed abroad today are under 25 years of age—in the identical bracket with the college students," he says.

"The morale value in the socialization that's possible as a result is tremendous."

And he points out proudly that "We've never had to send a college student home and there's never been a breach of behavior."

"They have to be more than actors—every one of them is an ambassador for America."

COLLEGE CAST—Touring students from St. Cloud, Minn. State College get a last minute briefing from Dr. Arthur Housman (extreme left) before a performance of "Wonderful Town" at Thule AFB in Greenland.

TOUGH TOUR—Amherst, Mass. College girls, on a show tour of Western Europe for the USO, get willing helping hands from soldiers as they pass through the mud en route to a performance.

Very Much Alive Despite Reports Both Were Dead

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A mother and her daughter are very much alive today, despite a mistaken identity incident Tuesday which had them both notified that the other was dead.

The incident occurred when someone at Tampa General Hospital called Eva Hicks of Tampa and told her that her daughter, Mrs. Gilbert McCormick of Brenton, had died of injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

A short time later Mrs. McCormick received a call from the hospital saying her mother, Mrs. Hicks, had been killed.

A half hour later, the hospital called Mrs. Hicks again to tell her it was all a mistake. They couldn't reach Mrs. McCormick. However, Mrs. Hicks called her daughter to find she was still alive.

Ironically, said Mrs. Hicks, the woman who was mistaken for both her and her daughter hadn't died at all. Hospital authorities wouldn't identify the injured woman or the caller.

Tobacco Tips

By S.J. WEEKS

Pitt County Tobacco Agent

One of the greatest hazards facing the flue-cured tobacco grower is caused by nematode diseases. There are only a few fields in which tobacco is grown that parasitic nematodes are not a problem.

Nematodes generally damage tobacco in two ways. They either enter the roots and feed internally, or they puncture the roots and feed from the outside. They rob a portion of the food supply from the tobacco plants when attacking the roots either of these ways.

During the feeding process nematodes inject substance into the plants that may kill part of the root tissues, cause swelling or stunt growth. A "sick" root system results and eventually the entire plant may be stunted and the leaves begin to "fire" around the margin and tip. The wound made by the nematodes also makes it easy for disease producing organisms to enter the plant. Tests have shown that the presence of certain nematodes will make black shank and Granville wilt worse even when using resistant varieties.

There are three different types of nematodes that attack the tobacco plant. There are ten or more species within these three groups. This fact makes nematodes more difficult to control. The crop preference of the different nematode species is such that each may attack a wide variety of crops.

Any given crop may be resistant to one kind of nematodes and susceptible to another. It is believed that root knot and meadow nematodes cause much more damage to the tobacco crop than stunt nematodes.

Nematodes do most damage when high numbers are present in the fields at transplanting time. This fact makes it important for farmers to do everything possible to prevent a big carry-over of nematodes from the previous season. High infestations at transplanting time may stunt the tobacco plants so severely that they may not recover.

If you do not know that your nematode population is low enough to prevent injury to the tobacco plants, you should fumigate your soil with one of the recommended fumigants. Do not overlook the importance of transplanting a nematode-free plant in the field. Be sure your plant bed is fumigated for nematode control.

Crop rotations which include crops that are not susceptible to nematodes will help the nematode population. For example, in crop rotation experiments conducted at the Oxford Station, a four-year rotation in which oats and fescue, followed by fescue, then followed by tobacco, produced a per acre value of $1009 in comparison with a per acre value of $799 where tobacco was grown continuously.

The nematode population can also be reduced by plowing out the roots as soon as harvest is completed. In experiments where this practice was tested for four years the root knot index was reduced from 90 in the plot where the roots were not plowed out in comparison with 58 when the roots were plowed out.

Let's plan to carry out the best possible nematode control program on your farm in 1961 and the years that follow.

Cuban Consul Is Not Going Home

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Cuba's San Francisco consul, Rodrigo Parajon, says he has no intention of returning to Havana despite orders to do so immediately. He said he fears for his and his family's safety.

Parajon told a news conference Wednesday he has become increasingly disenchanted with the regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro over the past several months. Orders for his return followed the closing of Cuban consulates in the United States as the result of the United States' breaking off diplomatic relations with Cuba.

Parajon, 42, also has served in New York and Kansas City.

Building New Greenhouse For ECC Science Dept.

For use by the East Carolina department of science, a new $5,700 greenhouse is now being constructed on the South Campus at the college. Plants for use in classes and laboratories in such courses as botany and plant physiology will be grown there and various types of demonstration materials will be on view.

A small structure, completed in 1950 and located near Flanagan building. The old greenhouse, Vice President and Business Manager F.D. Duncan stated, is no longer adequate for instructional needs of the department of science and is placed on the location of a new east wing soon to be added to the Flanagan building.

The new greenhouse will be completed in the near future. Mr. Duncan stated, and will be put into immediate use by the department of science.

Street Project Said Completed

AYDEN—The East Avenue extension from the power plant to county road 1122 north of Ayden, has been completed, as well as two blocks of a High Street road project, Town Manager Cleveland Pavior announced this week.

The East Avenue extension is an all-weather road, though not paved, and will provide free access for town trucks traveling to the city dump, without their using heavily traveled Highway 11. The extension also gives direct access to the route to the colored cemetery and provides an out-of-town route for residents of northern Ayden.

Work on widening Venters Street has not begun yet, Pavior said. He noted that the good weather which prevailed last week was ideal for road work and said much progress probably will be made this week, while weather remains good.

The old greenhouse, Mr. Duncan said, "will be demolished, it cannot be reused," he explained, "because it is in bad condition and its materials cannot be salvaged."

The Ickes-Braun Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago, is constructing the new greenhouse. The basic materials are galvanized steel and aluminum and glass.

Plans for the interior of the greenhouse provide for three sections, a work-space area, a middle section for growing plants, and a third section for demonstration materials.

Dr. Christine Wilton of the science department is in charge of the greenhouse.

The work-space area, she stated, will be used for potting and storage of supplies and for various activities of students of plant physiology. Materials for botany classes and laboratories will be grown in the middle section. This area will also be used for experimental work in plant physiology.

Will Speak At A Study Course

Dr. Gertrude M. Lewis, a specialist in elementary education with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare of Washington, D. C., will be the speaker at a study course sponsored by the City Council PTA to be held January 26 at 8:00 p.m. at Elmhurst School.

She will be introduced by Homer Lassiter, supervisor of instruction of the State Department of Public Instruction.

Mrs. Cameron Dudley, study course chairman, announced plans for the course at the council meeting held at Wahl-Coates school Tuesday night. Dr. Lewis will speak on the topic, "What Part the Parent Should Play in the Making of a Good School."

Mrs. Dudley said, "We feel that the study course will be of interest to all parents and hope that they will attend and will ask questions."

The second session of the study course will be held February 9. Mrs. M. P. Bailey, Jr., president of the council, read a letter from J. H. Rose, As chairman of the Pitt County chapter of the National Foundation, he asked the help of City PTAs in putting on a Mother's March of Dimes during this month.

Mrs. Lacy Harrell, head of the Mother's March, urged all schools to do their part toward making the drive a success.

MISSILES AND SUBS STOCKHOLM (AP) — Neutral Sweden will build six new long-range submarines and spend $10.4 million on guided missiles in 1961-62 under a record $3.3-billion budget submitted today to Parliament.

Bethel Native Is Named To Post At State College

Bethel native J. C. Williamson, Jr., has risen from the ranks of a high school valedictorian to fill a new top job in the State College School of Agriculture, as assistant director in charge of marketing.

Williamson's appointment was approved by the executive committee of the Consolidated University Board of Trustees, meeting with Governor Terry Sanford.

He will be in charge of a stepped-up program in both agricultural marketing research and extension work for the college. He has been serving as associate professor in the department of agricultural economics.

Specialist Flies To Study Ailment

NEW YORK (AP)—An American specialist in internal medicine left Tuesday for Yugoslavia to investigate a mysterious kidney disease that has afflicted thousands of Yugoslavs.

Dr. Robert C. Griggs, of the Metropolitan General Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio, said the kidney ailment has been prevalent in the villages of the Sava River Valley about 60 miles west of Belgrade for possibly more than 50 years. The ailment, if untreated, is usually fatal.

Dr. Griggs, whose trip is sponsored by the National Institute of Health, Washington, D.C., said it is believed that lead poisoning may be responsible. It has been learned that millers use lead to fill niches in grain-grinding millstones and it is suspected that the grain is being contaminated and slowly poisoning the inhabitants.

Guest Wound Up On Kitchen Duty

TRINIDAD, Colo. (AP) — A crew-cut youngster walked into Trinidad's Community Hall and promptly was pushed into the kitchen.

An hour later, the Holy Trinity High School Football Mothers' Benefit dinner was over.

When the boy took off his dish-washing apron, one of the mothers thanked him and asked: "What position on the team do you play?"

"I don't," the youngster answered. "I just came up here looking for a friend."

Flash floods cause from 200 million to 500 million dollars damage in the U.S. each year.

Williamson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Williamson, Sr., of Bethel, was reared on a farm. From his youth, he has been interested in farming and livestock raising. He was valedictorian of his high school graduating class in 1939.

He returned to State College following his work at the University of Chicago and has been employed there since.

A veteran of two and a half years in the Pacific during World War II, Williamson for a while worked with a Bethel supply company, which put him at the head of dealing with farming in general.

He is married to the former Sally Joe Gurganus of Bethel, and they have two sons, Claude III and Joe Linwood. They reside at 2210 Wheeler Road in Raleigh.

Public Notices

NOTICE OF SALE OF LAND
NORTH CAROLINA
PITT COUNTY

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain deed
of trust executed by Robert Tilley, dated the 5th day of January, 1955, and recorded in Book F-27 at
made in the payment of the indebtedness thereby secured and said deed of trust being by the terms thereof subject to foreclosure, the undersigned Trustee will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the Courthouse door in Greenville,
North Carolina, at noon, on the 4th day of February, 1961, the property conveyed in said deed of trust, the same being particularly described as follows:

FIRST PARCEL: That certain parcel of land situate, lying and being in Greenville Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, and more particularly described as follows:

Containing 14.16 acres, more or less, and adjoining the lands of Joseph Teel on the North, the land of Blount-Harvey Company on the East, Luke Grimes on the South and Zeb Brown on the West and beginning at a point 410 feet S.
2-09 E. from an iron stake, corner between the lands of Eureka Lumber Company, Randolph Brothers and Joseph O. Teel, and running thence S. 86-30 W. 910 feet to the road; thence with said road S. 7-45 E. 641 to Luke Grimes' land; thence with said road S. 86-30 E.
838 feet to a stake; thence N.
2-06 740 feet to the beginning.

Being the second parcel of land described in that certain deed from
J. L. Williams and wife, Mattie
L. Williams, dated January 1, 1945, and recorded in Book H-24 at page 226 of the Pitt County Registry, and being the same parcel of land
described in that certain deed from Charles W. Harris and wife, Geraldine P. Harris, to J. Sam Fleming, dated October 28, 1946, and recorded in Book H-26 at page 454 in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, North Carolina.

SECOND PARCEL: A certain lot or tract of land lying and being in Greenville Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, and on the North side of Tar River, and bounded and described as follows:

It being woodland and containing 8.83 acres, more or less, and bounded on the North by the lands of Eureka Lumber Company, on the East by Randolph Brothers Company, on the South by Marion M. Teel and on the West by Zeb Brown, beginning at an iron stake, corner between Randolph Brothers
Eureka Lumber Company and J.
O. Teel; and running thence South
89 degrees West 394 feet; thence South 87 degrees and 15 minutes
West 565 feet to a road; thence with the road South 7 degrees and 45 minutes East 412 feet; and thence with M. M. Teel's line North 86 degrees and 30 minutes East 910 feet to a stake; thence North 76 degrees West 410 feet to the beginning; it being one of the lots of land shown on map made by H. L.
Powers in January, 1938, and being one of the tracts of land, the third tract of land, described and conveyed in that certain deed of J. D. Harrington and wife
Claudia Harrington, Marion M.
Teel and wife Alice M. James Teel,
Vern Bell Edwards and husband,
J. W. Edwards, to Joseph O. Teel, and which deed is recorded in Book D-22 at page 57 of the Pitt County Registry, and Being the tract of land described in that certain deed from
J. O. Teel and W. H. Woolard,
Trustee, to J. Sam Fleming, dated January 4, 1941, and recorded in Book T-23 at page 551 in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, North Carolina.

But this sale will be made subject to all outstanding and unpaid taxes and special assessments, if any.

This the 29th day of December, 1960.

NOTICE OF SALE OF LAND
NORTH CAROLINA
PITT COUNTY

Under and by virtue of the power
of sale contained in a certain deed
of trust executed by William Henry Jenkins and wife, Elizabeth Jenkins, dated the 1st day of October, 1959, and recorded in Book H-31 at page 171, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness thereby secured and
said deed of trust being by the terms thereof subject to foreclosure, the undersigned Trustee will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the Courthouse door in Greenville, North Carolina, at noon, on the 4th day of February, 1961, the property conveyed in said deed of trust, the same being situate in the Town of Bethel, Pitt County, North Carolina, and particularly
described as follows:

TRACT ONE: BEGINNING at a point on the division line between Lots 45 and 46, which point is located 68.75 feet on a course of North 4 1/2 degrees East from where the division line of Lots 45 and 46 intersects the northern property line of Church Street, and runs from said beginning point, with the eastern line of Lot 45, North 4 1/2 degrees East 68.75 feet to the southwest corner of Lot 49, and the northeast corner of Lot 46; and runs with the southern line of Lots 49 and 48 in an eastern direction, 50 feet to the southeast corner of Lot 48, which is also the northeast corner of Lot 47; thence South 4 1/2 degrees

West, following the eastern line of Lot 47, 70 feet to a point which is 70 feet North 4 1/2 degrees East along the easterly property line of Lot 47 from the northern property line of Church Street, thence in a western direction, parallel with the first call, 50 feet to the point of beginning, this call being a new line made by deed recorded in Book
F-31 at page 440, and which divides
Lots 46 and 47 in half.

TRACT TWO: There is also conveyed a right of way for the purpose of ingress and egress to the property described as Tract
No. One and the said right of way is located along the western property line of Lot 46 and has a width of twelve (12) feet, the eastern line of said right of way being parallel to the eastern line of Lot 46, and runs twelve (12) feet from the said eastern line of Lot 45.

But this sale will be made subject to all outstanding and unpaid
taxes and special assessments, if any.

This the 30th day of December, 1960.

Kennedy Fills 4 Important Interior Department Posts

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy today filled four top positions in the Interior Department. He also announced that the Eisenhower administration's reclamation bureau chief will remain.

The reclamation commissioner is Floyd E. Dominy, 51. A political independent and a veteran in the bureau, he was named director by President Eisenhower last year.

The president-elect also announced selection of James K. Carr, 46, chairman of the California Water Commission, as undersecretary of the interior.

Kenneth Holm, 45, Grotton, S.D., farm leader, as assistant secretary for water and power. John A. Carver Jr., 42, administrative assistant to Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, as assistant secretary for land resources.

And Frank Barry, 47, Tucson, Ariz., lawyer, as the Interior Department's solicitor or chief legal officer.

Kennedy announced the selections—all Democrats—after consultation with Rep. Stewart Udall, D-Ariz., who will be secretary of the interior in the new administration.

Kennedy, getting in a final visit to the Atlantic shore home of his parents before taking office Jan. 20, had only one scheduled business engagement today—a morning conference with Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina.

The president-elect plans further work on his inaugural address and another round of golf. He played Wednesday with two executives of the Miami News—James Cox Jr., president, and Daniel J. Mahoney, publisher. The other member of the foursome was Matt McCloskey of Philadelphia, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

Wednesday Kennedy—at 43 the youngest man ever elected president—paid a social call on the oldest living former president, Herbert Hoover, 86.

Hoover is in Florida for the dedication today of a dike named for him. It is located at Lake Okeechobee at Clewiston, Fla.

The president-elect and his father, Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Britain, called on Hoover at the home of Palm Beach banker H. Loy Anderson, who was host at a reception for the former president.

The incoming president smilingly asked Hoover whether he had any advice "now that we are taking on these new responsibilities."

County HD Council Sets Plans For Coming Year

Plans for the new year were made at a recent County Council meeting of home demonstration clubs, held at the Tucker Building here.

Mrs. J. M. Reeves was appointed chairman of the home demonstration club banquet, to be held March 1. Appointed to work with her were Mrs. Annie P. Moore, Mrs. Anallia Rodgers, Mrs. Rebecca Chapman and Mrs. Edith King.

Achievement Day was scheduled for November 8. Plans were also made for chartering a bus for the State Council meeting to be held in Raleigh on March 22. The district meeting will take place November 2.

Bookmobile Drive The Council voted to give $15 to the Pitt County bookmobile drive. In other business, members made up a donation of $10 to give to Mrs. M. T. Burney, whose home was destroyed by fire on Christmas day.
