Russians Launch Mystery Rocket Toward Pacific; No Explanation

U.S. Experts Unable to Determine Yet If Space Shot Or Missile Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. scientists puzzled today over a mystery rocket fired from the Soviet Union in the direction of the Pacific Ocean.

The Air Force said early today it had not determined whether it was a long-range missile or a space vehicle.

An Air Force radar station at Shemya Island, Alaska, detected the object passing in a south-easterly direction.

Three Soviet missile instrument ships were spotted earlier this week moving toward an impact area about 1,000 miles southwest of Hawaii, where the Russians have tested long-range missiles before.

The presence of ships was considered an indication that Russia might be preparing for another missile test or possibly a space launching.

But latest reports from the Navy indicated the three ships were still a day's sailing away from the impact area. Also in previous international warnings so that ships might stay clear of the impact area.

There has been no such warning this time.

There was speculation among scientists that the Russians might be attempting some sort of space shot and felt it was not necessary to give any warning to ships.

HONOLULU (AP)—A member of the Washington, D.C., Armed Forces Industrial College said Friday the Soviet space program has undergone a shake-up resulting from the death of two astronauts fired into space.

Army Lt. Col. Paul D. Hickman made the statement during a national security seminar. He said the United States has "good evidence" that two Soviet spacemen failed to get back into the atmosphere alive and that the identity of one of them is known.

Hickman said all this was resulted in the Russian space agency getting a new head man. He did not identify him.

When sighted earlier this week the three Soviet instrument ships were moving southeast from the Kamchatka Peninsula to the previously used impact area.

They were a little over halfway along the route toward the impact area when observed Tuesday. The ships — the Sibir, Chukotka and Sakhalin — were deployed in a wide triangle at the time of the sighting. They were about 400 miles west of Midway Island and about 1,200 miles from Hawaii.

The 44,000 square mile impact area in the Pacific has been used for missile firings from points in southern Russia over a range of about 8,000 miles.

Solicitor Finds 'No Foundation' To Cobb Charges

CARTHAGE, N.C. (AP) — Charges by State Republican Chairman William E. Cobb of corruption in the North Carolina Highway Commission are without foundation, says Solicitor M. G. Boyette.

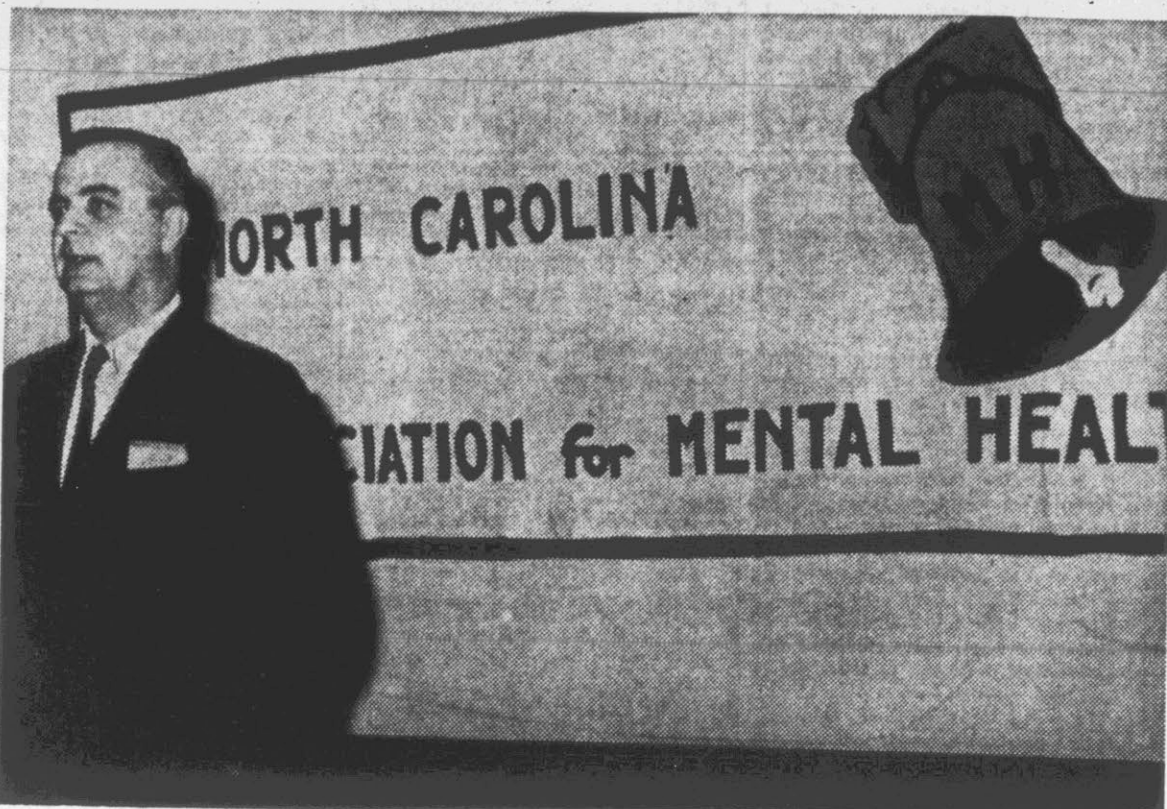

Cobb made the charges before the general election when he said three former highway workers had signed affidavits citing instances of theft of Highway Commission supplies among other things.

Boyette said Friday an investigation has uncovered no evidence, and that two of the three men who signed affidavits said they would not testify against any Highway Commission employees.

Boyette said also that the affidavits are in general terms and based almost entirely on suspicion and conjecture.

He added that the State Bureau of Investigation obtained records and statements from highway employees indicating the charges are without foundation and that there was no violation of the law.

Receive Welcome To Institute Here

WELCOMING ADDRESS . . . at today's mental health institute delivered by Dr. Jenkins, ECC president.

Mental Health Institute Here Draws Big Turnout

Some 200 community leaders from Eastern N. C. counties crowded an East Carolina College lecture room this morning as a one-day mental health institute got underway at 10 a.m.

Sponsored by the Mental Health Association of Pitt, Lenoir and Wilson Counties, the institute in ECC's Flanagan Building was scheduled to include a series of addresses by mental health authorities before a 12:15 p.m. luncheon and three separate group discussions during the afternoon session.

Heading a list of speakers and discussion leaders was Dr. Louis Cohen, director of the Department of Psychiatry at Duke University's School of Medicine in Durham.

Dr. Cohen was on the program to deliver an address at the luncheon to be held in a college cafeteria.

Following registration that began at 10 a.m., E. O. Parkinson Jr., president of the Pitt County Mental Health Association, presided over the institute's opening session.

ECC president, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, extended a welcoming address and Dr. A. A. Best of Greenville, Greenville psychiatrist, spoke to the group.

Dr. Best described accomplishments and presented suggestions in the field of social improvement. Dr. Nelson's topic was "Incidence and Detection of Mental Disorders."

At 11:30, the institute heard a talk by ECC counseling and guidance specialist, Dr. Frank G. Fuller. Dr. Fuller discussed "Counseling and Guidance of Mental Health Needs."

Following the morning session, Dr. Cohen was scheduled to deliver his principal address at the luncheon. Mrs. Ellen Carroll, Greenville City Schools supervisor, was to preside at the luncheon program.

Dr. Jerome G. Tolochko of Kingston, the Rev. John W. Drake Jr. of Greenville, and Dr. Walter Sikes of Raleigh were slated to head the three afternoon group sessions.

Dr. Sikes, superintendent of Dorothea Dix Hospital in the State Capital, was scheduled to lead a session on "Crime, Delinquency, and Mental Health," to be highlighted by a panel discussion. Panelists scheduled to appear were George H. Adams of Raleigh, educational director for the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program; Gene A. Bass of Goldsboro, clinical psychologist at Cherokee Hospital; and Frank Hodges of Wilson, chief psychiatric social worker for the Wilson County

Mental Health Association. A. A. Privette, Wilson Police Department chief, was slated to serve as the panel's resource leader.

The Rev. Drake, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church here, was to preside over a session on "Mental Health and Our Homes and Schools." The third group meeting, "Mental Disorders and Religious Counseling," was under the leadership of Dr. Tolochko, president of the Lenoir County Mental Health Association.

Dr. Carl L. Adams of Greenville, chairman of the institute's program committee, had urged East-ern N. C. law enforcement officers to attend today's institute.

Dr. Ray D. Minges of Greenville, vice president of the Eastern Area of the N. C. Mental Health Association, had issued invitations to "anyone interested in the field of mental health with special emphasis on the attendance of school teachers, ministers, police officers, health department personnel and welfare department workers."

A 3:30 business session for the three-county association was the last item on today's agenda. A short general meeting for summaries of the group sessions was set for 3 o'clock.

Castro Extends Alert, But Hints Reconciliation Goal

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro has extended Cuba's warning invasion alert from Jan. 18 to Jan. 20, the day President-elect John F. Kennedy takes over his office from President Eisenhower.

Castro hinted Friday night at a labor rally that he wants a reconciliation with the United States after Eisenhower leaves the White House but that the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay might be his asking price.

Castro said Cuban coast defenses still will maintain vigilance after Kennedy is inaugurated. The full-scale alert, now in its 19th day, apparently will be called off.

There were signs fewer Cubans were being detailed to watch the sea for an invasion which Castro declared would come from the United States during Eisenhower's administration.

Some armed units were withdrawn from atop buildings and along Havana's seafort.

President Osvaldo Dorticos told the rally, which had been advertised as a victory celebration over an invasion that never came.

"The battle against the invader has been won," Castro also had been expected to claim his military might had frightened off the invaders, but he did not.

About 30,000 persons, a small crowd considering a week-long government effort to whip up enthusiasm, turned out to hear Castro.

He seemed to expect the two-year battle with the United States would be laid aside the instant Kennedy takes office. But he indicated he also wants changes in policies in Washington.

"We have no points of friction with the incoming government," Castro declared, "since all industries, all mines and all banks are ours."

"The only problem is Guantanamo, and we are in no hurry about that base. It's their headache because after breaking relations (with Cuba) the position of the United States before world opinion is untenable as regards the base."

He added that the Kennedy administration "must rectify" the U.S. position regarding Cuba's revolutionary regime in the best interests of the United States, Cuba and the world.

"From the very first moment," he said, the Kennedy administration "have to determine what to do in respect to war criminals, foreign mercenaries and military instructors."

This apparently referred to reports that the United States has financed a big air base in Guatemala and provided instructors for troops alleged to be training to attack Cuba.

This base he termed a "hot potato" for the Kennedy administration.

Castro made an oblique reference to help from the Soviet Union's missile forces if Cuba is attacked.

"Our people will resist for the length of time necessary so that over the heads of the aggressors will fall apocalyptic lightning that could signify their disappearance from the earth," he declared.

Preliminary Approval For Kennedy's Cabinet Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy's cabinet choices appear to have clear sailing ahead toward Senate confirmation. But some of his second-line appointees are in troubled waters.

The Senate, which has heard seven prospective Cabinet members explain their views, will hear from three more next week. They are J. Edward Day, picked for postmaster general, to appear Monday; Robert S. McNamara, secretary of defense, Tuesday; and Luther H. Hodges, secretary of commerce, Wednesday.

McNamara is expected to be questioned closely about defense policies, with particular attention to a Pentagon reorganization report made to Kennedy by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

Republicans will want to know what Day's views are on the postal rate increases President Eisenhower recommended but Congress refused to approve. Hodges will face inquiries on his proposed policies in the business field.

All three are expected to get the same kind of advance approval indicated for seven of their colleagues who already have testified in public hearings.

There may be some fireworks, however, when the Senate gets down to consideration of second-rank appointees.

Chester Bowles, named for undersecretary of state, can expect stiff questioning from Republicans on Red China policies when he appears before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee next Thursday. Senators also will have some inquiries about pledges Bowles helped to write into the Democratic platform.

Bowles' nomination seems in no real danger. But that may not be true of the choice of Robert C. Weaver, chairman of the board of directors of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, to be housing administrator.

Construction trade leaders already are contending that if Weaver puts nondiscrimination tags on federal housing programs, their business may fall off drastically. Weaver, who has said he'll resign from the NAACP post has strong defenders among liberals of both parties.

In a day of intensive activity Friday, Senate committees indicated approval for six potential cabinet nominees.

They included Robert F. Kennedy, attorney general; Douglas Dillon, secretary of the treasury; Arthur J. Goldberg, secretary of state; Orville L. Freeman, secretary of health, education and welfare; Orville L. Freeman, secretary of agriculture; and Stewart L. Udall, secretary of interior.

Previously, Dean Rusk had been given tacit approval by the Foreign Relations Committee as secretary of state.

Kennedy, the President-elect's brother, got approval of the Judiciary Committee after Republicans made the point that he hasn't had any experience as a trial lawyer. Democrats contended that neither had Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers before he took office.

Kennedy announced he has sold all his stocks and put his liquid funds into state and municipal bonds and into cash. He said he will receive income from three family trusts over which he has no control.

Univ. Of Georgia Awaits Another Integration Test

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Students and faculty members at the University of Georgia today anxiously awaited a second test of integration in an atmosphere of mingled apprehension and reassurance.

The grim memory of recent rioting was offset to a degree by a promise from Gov. Ernest Vandiver that he would provide any forces necessary to prevent a new outbreak of violence.

All the same time the governor warned that law enforcement officials of great experience had informed him that "tinder-box conditions exist."

In turn university officials said they would act swiftly to prevent any demonstrations when Charlayne A. Hunter, 18, and Hamilton E. Holmes, 19, return to the campus of this oldest chartered state university in the country.

The two Atlanta Negro students were ordered readmitted by a federal judge in Macon who sternly warned that no action must be taken to expel them.

Judge W. A. Bootle restrained all state officials having any connection with the school or university officials themselves from again suspending or dismissing them.

Bootle ruled Friday that the university's "order of withdrawal or suspension is hereby terminated by 8 a.m., Jan. 15." The two students were suspended early Thursday morning in the wake of a campus riot finally broken up by authorities using tear gas and fire hoses.

Miss Hunter and Holmes were taken to their Atlanta homes, where they remained in seclusion. Both said they were eager to return to the university to resume studies started without major incident during the daylight hours Wednesday.

The first Negro coed ever admitted to the state-supported university said she understood classes were being held today but she hadn't heard whether she and Holmes would attempt to re-enter before Monday.

"I was very pleased with the judge's decision," she said. "I'm all set to go back to the university. All I have to do is pack an overnight bag."

The judge's injunction against another suspension or expulsion provided that such action could not be taken "on the grounds that the same is necessary for their personal safety because of mob action or violence on the campus."

The decision held that law and order had not broken down in the university town of 20,000 and said the court did not find that authorities are unable to maintain order at the school.

Dr. O. C. Aderhold, president of the university, said the court order will be carried out and the two Negro students readmitted.

He also expressed confidence that "public opinion and the full resources of the state will move to prohibit the commission of violence by outsiders whose illegal acts endanger life and property."

The president did not explain whom he meant by outsiders.

However, Athens police said eight of the persons arrested during Wednesday night's rioting were members of the Ku Klux Klan.

Dean of Students Joseph Williams, who issued the orders suspending the two Negroes, said university officials would make every effort to prevent gatherings of students which might lead to violence.

He said several students already have been suspended for taking part in the rock and firecracker throwing rowdy demonstration and that others at the university were under investigation.

The B58 carried a 4,408-pound payload. By carrying this weight, it automatically broke records for flights made with lesser payloads and with no payload at all.

The six records claimed broken are: 1. For no-payload flight, 700.47 m.p.h., set by an Air Force F101 in April, 1959; 2. For 1,000-kilogram payload, 639.18 m.p.h., claimed by the Soviets for unidentified plane, October, 1959; 3. For 2,000-kilogram payload, 630.18 m.p.h., claimed by the Soviets for same unidentified plane; 4. No-payload mark of 596.47, claimed by the Soviets TU104, April, 1960; 5. 1,000-kilogram mark claimed by the Soviets for same TU104; 6. 2,000-kilogram mark claimed by the Soviets for same plane.

The small branch bank had been open about 25 minutes when the man entered. Employees and several customers were in the building.

Reece said the man, who apparently had been drinking heavily, brandished the pistol and demanded money.

The loot consisted of 400 20 dollar bills, 1,500 10 dollar bills and 400 to 500 one dollar bills.

NEW TITIAN PAINTING

BERLIN (AP) — A previously unidentified painting of Jesus by Titian is reported to have been found in Prague. ADN, official news agency of Communist East Germany, said the picture is called "Ecce Homo" (here is the man) and used to be in the Slovak National Gallery at Bratislava where it had been attributed to an unknown 17th century artist.

Jobs For Two

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy today gave two former Midwestern governors $20,000-a-year jobs. And he reportedly has decided to name Elvis J. Stahr Jr., president of West Virginia University, as secretary of the Army.

The governors Kennedy chose were defeated in November election bids. Kennedy announced appointment of George Docking of Kansas as a director of the Export-Import Bank, and Herschel Lovelace as a member of the Federal Negotiation Board.

Announcement of selection of Stahr, 44, was reported to be imminent. Filling of the Army post would complete top echelon organization of the Pentagon.

Stahr served as special assistant to the secretary of the Army during the Korean War in the Truman administration.

Six New World Speed Records Claimed By B58

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The U.S. Air Force is claiming six world speed records for its B58 Hustler bomber—including five in categories where the Soviets previously claimed supremacy.

And all of the six may not last through the weekend, although in some cases they are more than twice as fast as the old times.

The Air Force announced Friday that the four-jet, delta-wing bomber made its record flight Thursday, averaging 1,200.194 miles per hour on a 621-mile run over the California and Arizona deserts.

The Air Force said this plane and another B58 would attempt another record-breaking flight, possibly today.

The pilot on the record run was Maj. Henry J. Deutschendorf Jr. of Tulsa, Okla.

"The flight was routine," he said, "except for a normal amount of nervousness."

The plane was going so fast that paint was peeled off its fuselage.

The B58 carried a 4,408-pound payload. By carrying this weight, it automatically broke records for flights made with lesser payloads and with no payload at all.

Small Sum Taken Friday Night In Ayden Theft

AYDEN—Thieves entered the Ayden Fertilizer plant Friday night and netted about $25, Police Chief William Dawson Brooks said today.

Nothing else has been reported missing from the business, so far, the chief said.

Ayden police and other investigating officers theorized that two persons, probably amateurs, entered the building during the night by taking the window out of the rear door of the building, which is located on Third Street.

The break-in was discovered about 7:30 a.m. today when employees opened the company for business.

Ayden police, aided by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department are investigating fingerprints found at the scene. Sgt. James Ross of the Ayden Police Department is assisting Chief Brooks in the local investigation.

Face-Saving Formula For Laos Peace Needed

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. officials were reported today still hopeful of finding a face-saving formula to put an end to the civil war in Laos. But the problem almost certainly will go over to the incoming Kennedy administration.

The aid of Eisenhower administration officials during their last week in office is to try to lay the basis for a solution through diplomatic negotiation and avoid if possible any dangerous new military flare-up in the continuing crisis.

However, their success in this respect, officials said, will depend on what the Russians and Red Chinese do about further helping the Laotian rebels.

The United States is expected to stall off for the time being at least a Cambodian proposal for a 14-nation conference to seek a peaceful solution of the Southeast Asian conflict. A note to that effect probably will be dispatched to Cambodia in a few days.

The State Department is reported now to feel that the best possibility for making peace in Laos lies in reviving an international control commission composed of Communist Poland, neutralist India and Allied Canada.

The barrier to this kind of approach is that the United States strongly supports the pro-Western government of Premier Boun Oum at Vientiane, while the Soviet Union insists that Savanna Phouma, now in Cambodia, is the legitimate head of the Laos government, even though he fled the country several weeks ago.

Diplomats are not certain whether a way can be found to reconcile the contradictory American and Soviet positions, but some say privately that a face-saving solution may yet prove possible.

The rebels fighting the Boun Oum government are still receiving supplies flown in by Soviet planes. State Department officials reported. The greatest immediate danger they see is that the Soviet Union may expand the airlift to bring in substantial reinforcements. One immediate objective of U.S. diplomacy is to get the airlift stopped. The United States is understood to have told the Soviet Union that heavy outside help to the rebels could have very serious consequences.

One possible result, it was understood here, might be an appeal by Boun Oum to the South-east Asia Treaty Organization of which the United States is a member. If Communist reinforcements were brought in on one side and SEATO reinforcements on the other, the civil conflict in Laos might spread throughout Southeast Asia.

Efforts to prevent this from happening have been under way for several weeks. Two weeks ago President Eisenhower deployed some U.S. military forces in the Pacific to deal with the situation if, as was then considered possible, heavy Communist reinforcements moved into Laos from North Viet Nam.

Some authorities here think this display of determination on the part of the United States discouraged the Communists from open and massive intervention.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

How true health and harmony are established will be brought out in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Life" at Christian Science churches Sunday.

Included in the Bible readings is this statement from Deuteronomy (5:33): "Ye shall walk in all the ways which the Lord your God hath commanded you, that ye may live and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess."

This passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will also be read: "Our proportionate admission of the claims of good or of evil determines the harmony of our existence—our health, our longevity, and our Christianity" (187:7).

The Golden Text is taken from I John 5:11: "This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son."

SPACE PROBE

When Christopher Columbus began his probe of an unknown ocean there were many who predicted he would soon reach the edge of the world... and fall off into nothingness. Today we are probing that nothingness. The edge of the world is everywhere; and man eagerly reaches for whirling worlds that pioneers yet unborn may colonize. As we explore the vastness of God's creation we realize with greater awe His might and majesty. But greater, we know, is our need for understanding His Will, and His Love for man. For man can take to his new worlds tomorrow only the Truth and Faith and Life he discovers in this world today. Therefore, while a few gifted scientists are building highways from the edge of the earth, the Church is offering everyone opportunity to probe the spiritual depths which shall determine our destiny.

All About Town

With Anne Keziah

Ever wonder where Book Club names come from and what the names mean? The Semi-Cent Book Club was formed in 1950, the name being selected because it was the "center of the century."

The club sponsor is Mrs. Tyson Bilbro. The second and fourth Tuesday night from September through May are set aside for their meeting time. They haven't a year-round project, but help needy families at Christmas.

The club strives to select a variety of books every year with some biographies, autobiographies, novels, mysteries and, occasionally, a book on gardening or flower arranging.

Some years their programs have been centered around one general topic like the year they studied the books of the New Testament, but most of the time the program topic is left open to the member who is hostess.

Occasionally, they have social meetings like the Valentine bridge luncheon they have planned for next month.

A club member, Mrs. Charles Hudson, who furnished information for this article, said "Greenville has such an excellent source of good speakers on almost any subject that we have no trouble having interesting programs all year."

Mrs. C. B. Taff is president of the Semi-Cent Book Club. Serving as officers with her are Mrs. Norman F. Little, vice president; Mrs. T. M. Vicars, secretary; Mrs. E. C. Harris, treasurer; Mrs. W. C. Taylor Jr., librarian.

Members who make up the Semi-Cent Book Club are: Mrs. R. C. Abee, Mrs. Richard Balzer, Mrs. C. Frank Dall, Mrs. Harry W. Douglass, Mrs. C. E. Fleming, Mrs. Leslie H. Garner, Mrs. E. C. Harris, Mrs. J. D. Higgins, Mrs. Charles T. Hudson, Mrs. W. E. Hudson, Mrs. Norman F. Little, Mrs. J. R. Russ Jr., Mrs. J. G. Smith, Mrs. J. Frank Strawn, Mrs. C. E. Taff, Mrs. W. C. Taylor Jr., Mrs. T. M. Vicars, Mrs. J. L. Corey.

Among the parties being given today for bride-elect Nina Paul was a luncheon at one o'clock at the Silo. A buffet dinner party will honor Nina and her fiance, Jim Galloway, of Grimsland. They will be married Sunday, January 22, in the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. Jim is in the Air Force stationed at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro where they plan to make their home.

"Rush Week" for East Carolina College's eight social sororities has been scheduled for January 16-20. This will be the first formal rush under the National Panhellenic Council. Ninety women students will participate.

Rush week will consist of a series of parties at which prospective members will have an opportunity of becoming acquainted with all eight sororities. The first two nights of rush, there will be four parties each night and each woman student must attend all of the parties.

On Saturday, January 21, the women students will be notified of the sorority that they are to pledge. They will meet with their respective future sisters for an informal gathering.

Carol Rankin, junior from Washington, D. C., and member of Delta Zeta Sorority, is chairman of Rush Week.

The Delta Omicron Chapter of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority at East Carolina College initiated seven women students Friday, January 13, at the home of Mrs. Lee Folger in Greenville. The initiation climaxed the observance of friendship week in the sorority.

After the initiation the sisters were entertained at a slumber party at the farm home of Judith Jolly of Greenville.

The Delta Omicron Chapter was pledged at East Carolina October 17, 1959. Alpha Delta Pi works with crippled children and contributes to women's education by offering various scholarships to worthy women.

New members of the sorority are Judith Cullifer, Bethel; Agnes Lawler, Goldsboro; Tenny Bowlers, Washington; Virginia Fowle, Washington; Jinny Lynn Walton, Scotland Neck; Diane McCulley, Quantico, Va.; and Betty Sue Carsons, Sanford.

The Rev. Richard Ottaway was the speaker for the January meeting of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club at the Woman's Club Thursday evening.

Rev. Ottaway was introduced by Miss Elizabeth Deal, chairman of the Health and Safety Committee. He explained the Pitt County Cancer program and he and Mrs. Ann Hancock, Executive Secretary of Pitt County Unit of American Cancer Society, answered many questions at the end of his talk.

Hostesses for the meeting were the members of the Legislation Committee, Mrs. Margaret Farley, chairman, Mrs. Alma Letchworth, and Mrs. Frances White.

A business meeting followed the program. The club voted to give $150 to purchase furniture for the state Business and Professional Women's Club Building at Chapel Hill as a memorial.

Miss Camille Clark thanked the members for their cooperation in making the Christmas Bazaar a success and announced that two Business and Professional Women's Club signs would be placed at two of the entrances to Greenville at a future date.

Committee reports were given. Special guests were Mrs. Preston Cannon Sr. and Mrs. Ann Hancock.

Following several progressions of bridge and Canasta, gifts for scoring in bridge were presented by Mrs. E. V. Ricks, recreation chairman, to Mrs. W. S. Stafford, Mrs. G. A. Taylor, and Mrs. K. F. Whiteley. Mrs. A. G. Nonemaker was presented the gift for Canasta. Mrs. F. L. Davidson, Jr. was presented the door prize.

Luncheon and a period of socializing followed the morning of cards.

The club meets the second and fourth Thursday mornings of each month and is expressly set up for new residents to the community, who are entitled to join the club. Information may be obtained from Mrs. Stafford, membership chairman, by calling PL 8-2428 or Mrs. N. F. Merritt, PL 2-5217.

Moose Buffet
Sunday night's buffet at the Greenville Moose Lodge will consist of country style pork chops, fried fish, spaghetti and meatballs, creamed potatoes, apple sauce, corn, slaw, relish, olives, celery hearts, radish, cornbread, rolls, french bread, fruit Jello, chocolate pudding, milk and coffee. Movies will be shown for the children.

Persons
Mr. Ralph P. Hardee is recuperating at his home in Ayden after undergoing surgery in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Commission on Education
The Commission on Education of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will meet Tuesday, January 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the church office.

News And Notes From Bethel

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McIver of Northport, L. I. were overnight guests Sunday of Mrs. Z. V. Manning and Mr. and Mrs. John Condon, enroute to Florida for a vacation stay.

Mr. E. W. Reeves of Ivanhoe is here for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Reeves at their home on DuPont St.

Mr. Ed Sutton was a Durham visitor Saturday. He accompanied his infant son, Edward Lee IV, home from Duke Hospital where he was a patient; the youngster is reported doing fine.

Mrs. George McArthur visited her father, Mr. Harry Sweeney, a patient at McPherson Hospital, in Durham on Saturday. Mr. Sweeney will return to his home in Forest Acres this week.

Miss Carolyn Davis of Kingston spent the weekend here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Davis.

Mr. John Glenn was at McPherson Hospital in Durham Saturday for an eye examination.

Bethel Round Table Book Club Meets
The Bethel Round Table Book Club met in the home of Mrs. C. G. Garrenton on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. S. C. Whitehurst presiding. The club collected for Mrs. J. B. Bunting after a brief business session. Mrs. Garrenton presented Mrs. Walter Latham, who gave a program on the best known building in America "The White House". She described it as it was originally and as it is since its revolution at a cost of six million dollars. She told some interesting facts concerning its thirty three tenants through the years, and their contributions. She also showed pictures of the various rooms and their part in White House entertainment.

After books were given out by the Custodian, Mrs. F. L. Ardrews, Jr., refreshments consisting of chicken salad on lettuce, pickles, cheese biscuits, coffee and lemon tarts were served by Mrs. Garrenton, assisted by Mrs. Grover Whitehurst and Joan Garrenton. Several visitors were welcomed by the club members.

Exchange Book Club
The regular monthly meeting of the Exchange Book Club met Thursday afternoon at three forty five in the home of Mrs. Roscoe Everett with Mrs. A. L. Whitley as co-hostess.

Three invited guest present were Reverend and Mrs. C. W. Barbee and Mrs. W. C. Whitehurst, Sr. Soon after the arrival of the sixteen guests, pecan pie, crab apple, and coffee were served.

Mrs. Whitley introduced Rev. Barbee as speaker for the occasion. He gave many interesting thoughts concerning poetry and quoted several of his favorite poems telling who the authors were and under what circumstances the inspiration came to them for these writings.

In the absence of Mrs. W. H. Rogerson, the president, Mrs. R. Whitehurst presided and a short business session was conducted.

After the custodian, Mrs. Wilford Whitehurst distributed the club books the meeting closed to meet again in February with Mrs. Linwood Briley and Mrs. Mitchell Alexander.

Bethel Home Demonstration Club Meets
New furniture from old was the demonstration given by Mrs. Sue May, home agent, when the Bethel Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday. Mrs. May showed slides of old discarded furniture retrieved from attic and barns which had been cleaned, repaired and refinished. On some of the furniture one coat of walnut stain and five coats of penetrating seal had been applied. Mrs. May ended the demonstration by emphasizing that to do a professional job of restyling furniture you must plan the changes carefully before you make them.

Mrs. Dennis Hardy, President, presided at the business meeting when hostesses for the year registered. The club voted to have a joint meeting February ninth. Mrs. R. R. Whitehurst was appointed to select books to be presented to the Bethel Public Library.

Mrs. F. C. James, home beautification leader distributed information on pruning trees and shrubbery.

The meeting adjourned with the group repeating the club collect in unison.

The hostess, Mrs. Claude Williamson showed members and guests over her new home where many pieces of furniture had been refinished.

Cochran Speaks To Jay-C-Ettes

Bill Cochran, director of the Redevelopment Commission, was guest speaker at the Jay-C-Ettes meeting Wednesday evening at the Woman's Club.

Reports were made by Mrs. Badger Clark and Mrs. Bob Harper on the baskets of food, clothing and toys distributed by the club at Christmas to two needy families of crippled children in Pitt County.

Plans were made for the annual Valentine party to be given for husbands to be held at the Country Club on Friday, Feb. 10.

Cochran spoke on Urban Renewal, which was followed by a discussion period.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Badger Clark.

Jarvis Memorial W.S.C.S. Meets

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church met Monday, in the Fellowship Hall of the Church.

Mrs. Clara Woye Shackle, president of the W.S.C.S., presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Reynolds Maye, vice president and program chairman, presented Mrs. Ed. Batchelor as program leader for the day. The program highlighted different phases of the work of the W.S.C.S. of Jarvis Memorial. Participating in the program were: Mrs. Sam White, Mrs. W. H. Taff, Mrs. M. P. Hoot, Mrs. Judson Blount, Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, Jr., Mrs. Judson Blount, Jr., Mrs. Helen Hawes, Mrs. Joe Moye and Mrs. Herbert Hadley.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT
Mrs. C. M. Jones

The Patient Circle of the King's Daughters and Sons of Greenville, North Carolina, records with extreme regret and sorrow the loss of our beloved member and co-worker, Mrs. Eliza W. Jones.

Be it therefore resolved that whereas it has pleased God in His infinite wisdom to take from us a member who has been with us many years, we bow in submission to His will for the loss we have sustained.

Those who have had the blessed privilege of sharing in the King's Daughters work with this member and friend feel that our lives have been enriched by the association.

"To live in the hearts of those we leave on earth is not to die."

Rose High Events

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON
The Rose High cheerleaders sponsored their first pep rally of the basketball season yesterday morning during homeroom period.

Orren E. Dowd, principal, welcomed the students and explained that although we had already played several games, this pep rally was to launch the remaining season in a big way.

After opening cheers by the group, Mrs. G. Beach, music instructor, led the audience in singing the school's Alma Mater several times. She used that opportunity to help some of the newer students learn the songs.

Melinda Coleman, chief cheerleader, then introduced each of the varsity players and the two coaches, "Bud" Phillips and "Bo" Farley.

Mrs. Virginia Guice, mother of one of the cheerleaders and an avid Phantom supporter, urged the students to take advantage of the thrill and excitement of a good, clean athletic event. She also suggested that fans not only attend the major sports contests, but also those which don't usually draw large crowds.

"When the boys spend hours each week practicing, the least we can do is to go out and watch them and give them our moral support," she stated. She closed her talk by showing this sign, which drew a large cheer: "BEAT KINSTON."

Coach Phillips then presented certificates to those who earned a place on the All Conference Football Squad. He stated that it was a great honor for Rose High to have placed three on this team this year, since the total number in the conference had been lowered this year from 22 to 11.

Layne Jorgensen, Bill Wade, and Alan McArthur, outstanding end, center, and halfback, respectively, received this signal honor.

Dr. Otto Eisenhilm, nationally-known lecturer on subjects ranging from chemistry to the Civil War, spoke to interested math and science students Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. Eisenhilm, who was born in Vienna, Austria, in 1880, founded the Scientific Oil Company of Chicago in 1912 and is now chairman of the board. He is also a past president of the American Chemical Society and is listed in Who's Who.

Dr. Eisenhilm stated that all of us are trying to catch something. Most high school students are after their high school diploma. He suggested that we first try to find out what we're going to do with what we're trying to catch!

After graduation from school or college, Dr. Eisenhilm suggests that the student lock himself in his room for 24 hours in order to discover what qualities or superlatives he possesses. "It is the qualities which you have and recognize which no one else has which will make you a success. It might be talent, charm, a smile, or size."

He also asked students to compare the success of those who recently graduated with the grades they made. "There is a difference between information and knowledge, facts you must have, but that alone will not help you. You must know how to use these facts, for life won't ask you the same questions you found in your high school text."

After the student finds out what he has, then it's time to go job-hunting. He suggests that the applicant always TYPE letters of application, for the handwritten ones are discarded first. For an interview, BE YOURSELF. Go exactly as you intend to do day after day if you get the job.

In your job, stand out from the crowd. Look around for things to do. Protect the interests of those for whom you work and use initiative to make money on your own for the company.

He closed by saying that occasionally he received letters from people who had heard him speak, telling him that he had played in their success. "These letters always make two people very happy—the writer and me."

After the assembly, Dr. Eisenhilm remained in the Chemistry lecture room for a few minutes, answering the questions of students.

Optimist Contest
The Reverent Tom Money announced to the National Forensic members and other interested students Wednesday morning that the Optimist Club would again sponsor its national Boys Open Oratorical Contest.

Contestants must not have been sixteen before December 31, 1960. Each will speak between four and five minutes on "Optimist—Ingredient for True Leadership."

Those interested in entering the contest should contact Robert B. Starling, NFL adviser, or submit their speech to Mr. Starling on or before February 6 for initialing.

Club Officers
Members of the Cressy K. Proctor Chapter, Order of DeMolay, elected officers at their regular meeting Tuesday night. New officers for the next six months term include: Danny Smith, Master Councilor; Lewis Brewer, Senior Councilor; Wayne Sumrell, Junior Councilor; and Bobby Hardee, Secretary-Treasurer.

The group began their meeting with a barbecued chicken supper. The Andersen restaurant furnished the trimmings for the chicken which the group bought and prepared.

FHA Sale
Members of the Junior Future Homemakers of America sponsored a bake sale this morning in downtown Greenville. They sold all kinds of cookies, cakes, and other homemade goodies.

Exams
Exams for midterm will begin Wednesday, January 25 and last through Friday of that week. The schedule for each exam has been posted on each teacher's bulletin board.

SAT Test
Several Rose High seniors took the Scholastic Aptitude Test at the college this morning. The majority of seniors took this test December 3 in New Bern.

Masonic Notice
Greenville Lodge No. 284, A.F.A.M., will have a stated communication Monday, January 16, at 7:30 p.m. All Master Masons are cordially invited.

Inland Ports Pose An Opportunity

While the State Ports Authority is considering plans for major expansion of its deepwater ports at Morehead City and Wilmington, it is fitting, we think, that careful study again be given to the potential for smaller inland ports along some of North Carolina's waterways.

Extensive study already has been done along the Cape Fear with a view to increasing the use of water transportation as far upriver as Fayetteville. Along these same lines, there are other rivers which seem to offer potential as arteries for transporting the increasing flow of raw materials and finished products being consumed and turned out by North Carolina's industries.

Such feeder ports might well prove a tremendous asset to increasing tonnage for the two deepwater ports operated by the state. A series of smaller inland ports along rivers in the Eastern section of the state likewise should prove distinct assets to building the economy of a broad area of the state.

North Carolina has long recognized the fact that its vast system of waterways has tremendous potential. A considerable amount of cargo already moves along the inland waterway which goes North and South through the state. In conjunction with this shipping—and the cargo which moves in and out of the deepwater ports—there should be a potential for developing water freight farther inland up our rivers.

We would like to see the State Ports Authority or some appropriate group make a serious study of the potential of developing a series of inland ports in North Carolina as an adjunct to our deepwater ports. If such facilities appear practical—which we believe such a careful study would show—they might well be financed by local governments, or through a joint undertaking by the state government and local governments in the immediate areas in which such facilities might be located.

North Carolina is not taking full advantage of the transportation potential offered by many of its rivers in the Eastern section of the state. Until it makes a serious effort to develop inland ports where they appear practical, it is missing a bet for further economic progress and it is likewise denying itself another transportation advantage which might attract even more industry into the state.

Can See 3 Big Assembly Issues

By LYNN NISBET
ISSUES — Indications are there will be three big issues in the 1961 General Assembly which will be obvious. A fourth, and in some respects the most significant, will be apparent only to experienced observers.

Money is always a big problem, and will be this year. The total amount of the budget is a closely guarded secret, but it is commonly known it will be the biggest in history — going well above a billion dollars for the biennium, including Federal aid funds.

Education, mainly the public school system, will require nearly two-thirds of the total, more than 75 per cent of the general fund. The rest will go to build and maintain highways, law enforcement and courts, health and welfare, and general administration.

To meet the demands of education a lot of new money will be necessary. Not all of it will have to come from new sources, because the advancing economy will afford more dollars from current sources. But some new sources must be found. Most likely is elimination of present exemptions in the general sales tax. The tax may be applied to many foods now exempted, and a straight three percent on automobiles is no improvement. Many of the arguments successfully used in the past against soft drink and tobacco taxes have lost their force.

The problem in some of these matters is that the Federal Government also is seeking new revenue sources, and there is danger that double impact may invoke the law of diminishing returns. That is particularly true with respect to cigarettes, liquor and gasoline. There will not be a State-level property tax, but there is danger that effort will be made to shift to counties and cities larger share of the total burden, requiring higher ad valorem levies.

COURTS — Government reorganization, of which the chief segment will be revision of the judicial set up, will be a major issue. It may take a lot of time, or it might be disposed of rather quickly, though not without bitterness. There is a sort of tacit understanding that "court reform" efforts will be limited to inferior courts. It is conceded on all sides that the program presented two years ago was too comprehensive for one dose.

Private money will figure almost as prominently as public money in consideration of banking and insurance laws as they affect the small loan business. Traffic safety, including all the segments of compulsory insurance, scientific tests for drunkenness, and the point system for revocation of driver permits will occupy attention.

RE-DISTRICTING — Necessity for re-districting the state to afford eleven instead of the present twelve congressional districts, and to re-arrange the State senatorial districts for more equitable representation, looms as the most bothersome and time-consuming problem to face the Legislature. It is loaded with the dynamite of sectional jealousy, partisan politics and personal antagonism.

There will be more "horse trading" on this issue than any other, and deals made in this field will affect votes on nearly every bill of importance coming before the General Assembly. In many respects re-districting will be more important to more individual members of the House and Senate than the appropriations and tax bills, or any of Governor Sanford's ideas for quality education or governmental organization.

MAIN ISSUE — Underlying all these surface fights over money and organization and re-districting, and exerting more influence upon all decisions reached than casual observers can understand, is the basic struggle for control of the Democratic party and State government. And, despite the upsurge of Republican strength this year, the items are almost synonymous. The Democratic party has controlled North Carolina government for 60 years, and chances are it will retain control for many years to come.

But factions in the party are almost as clearly defined as the two-party system in other states. For most of the 60 years the so-called conservative element in the party has been dominant — but often by close margins. Notable exception was the election of Kerr Scott as Governor in 1948. Scott never did get control of the party organization or the General Assemblies which met during his tenure to the same degree most chief executives did.

Governor Sanford has declared by word and action his purpose to be the leader in fact as well as in name of the government and the party organization. He offers the type of leadership that has been missing for several years. But his claim will be challenged.

A sort of hybrid combination of oldtimers who resent being displaced by youngsters, and disappointed supporters of other candidates in the late primaries, is being organized (?) to give the new Governor as much worry as they can during the next few months.

That background and undercurrent fight for control may well be the major development of the 1961 General Assembly.

Financial Sacrifices In Serving The Nation

When Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson sold out his 39,477 shares of General Motors stock in 1953 after President Eisenhower appointed him to that important post, eyebrows across the nation were raised at the "high cost" of being Secretary of Defense.

Counting appreciation of stock values, differential in salaries between the president of GM and the Secretary of Defense, it was estimated that Mr. Wilson took a loss of some $4 million during the four years he served in the Eisenhower administration.

The Wilson incident was recalled last month when Robert McNamara, named Secretary of Defense by President-elect Kennedy, sold 23,215 shares of Ford stock for $1.5 million and gave away another 1,000 shares of stock. He also gave up a job for which he received more than $400,000 in compensation the year before and released his options on additional shares of Ford stock.

Potentially, the monetary loss to the new secretary of Defense could run to equally as much or more than that estimated for Mr. Wilson.

Now comes the word that President-elect Kennedy has authorized the sell-out of all the stocks over which he has control and the invested sum invested in federal, state and local government bonds. What loss in appreciated values of his former holdings Mr. Kennedy will take during his term of office, no one has gotten around to estimating so far as we know. Suffice it to say it will be appreciable. Based on the fact that Mr. Kennedy's principal interest in trust funds over which he has no control has been estimated at some $10 million, it would not be surprising if the assets over which he had control likewise is a large amount.

The monetary loss he sustains while in the highest office in the land probably will be much higher than any financial sacrifices others in his or any other administration have made.

United States As Seen By Ike

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower paints a cheery picture of America. But study groups President-elect John F. Kennedy created to advise him see a lot more needed than Eisenhower accomplished.

The outgoing president, in his last State of the Union message to Congress Thursday, could have offered programs. But incoming Kennedy will do that.

So Eisenhower reviewed America as he sees it and the work of his administration. No doubt he hopes it will also be the verdict of history. He seemed satisfied. At times he spoke glowingly.

The following is the contrast between the views of Eisenhower and the Kennedy groups:

DEFENSE — As usual, Eisenhower defended his handling of this, predicted "the near future will hold such wonders as the orbital flight of an astronaut."

But the Kennedy groups think Russia will beat us with a man into outer space and said this country is lagging behind the Soviets in ballistic missiles and outer space exploration.

THE ECONOMY — In this field Eisenhower was both sunny and glum. He praised America's economic progress, admitted "there is little room for complacency in the economy" is operating at "high levels" but was concerned about unemployment.

But he didn't mention recession. Many economists say the country is in one. The Kennedy group suggested the new president act quickly with a batch of emergency measures to get recovery fast.

Kennedy has put top priority on still another study group's ideas for helping both unemployment and depressed areas.

HOUSING — Eisenhower seemed to feel pretty good about this field. He said "more houses have been built during the past eight years over nine million—than during any previous eight years in history."

But Kennedy's study group suggested broad programs to meet housing needs of low-income families, of the elderly, of farmers, of college students, plus broad spending for city planning.

Last December The Associated Press reported: "Housing disappointed in 1960. Demand fell, costs rose, money grew scarce, and fewer homes went up."

EDUCATION — Eisenhower recounted, with apparent pride, what his administration has done in this field. But the Kennedy study group on education thought far more is needed. It proposed a vast program of federal aid.

"Millions of children, particularly in certain rural areas and in the great cities are deprived of an opportunity to develop talents that are needed both for society and for their own lives," it said.

This group called its proposals the minimum for accomplishing the needed "significant uplift" in American education.

SOCIAL SECURITY AND THE AGED — Eisenhower pointed to progress made in Social Security—the broadening of its coverage and new benefits added—and said this about the aged: "New legislation provides for better medical care for the needy aged. The administration recommended a major expansion of this effort."

But the administration's recommendations, while they would

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
FAILURE AND SUCCESS
The Bible gives us pictures of failure, recovery, and triumph in the career of John Mark—the man who wrote the second Gospel.

Mark as a young man started out with Paul and Barnabas on their first missionary journey. When the going got hard and hazardous, Mark deserted his older companions and lit out for home. Paul was furiously angry about the whole episode. Later he refused to join Barnabas in another missionary journey because Barnabas wanted to forgive young Mark and let bygones be bygones. But Paul was adamant. The young fellow had shown the white feather when his presence was desperately needed, now he was out so far as Paul was concerned. But was he? Years later, Paul spoke of Mark in terms of tenderness. In his second letter to Timothy, Paul writes, "Take Mark and bring him with thee; for he is profitable to me for the ministry." In his epistle to Philemon, Paul also speaks of Mark as "a fellow laborer." Time appeared to have made a difference both with Paul and with Mark—the former as he came to old age, the latter as he reached maturity.

The mistakes of life are never failures unless we make them so. We fail not when we make mistakes but when we give up. John Mark, the failure, ended up as one of the greatest figures in the whole of church history. His career has often been re-

By HENRY HOWARD His First Working Day

Pitt Countians should be in for a real treat with the arrival of a new fellow citizen and co-worker.
Monday marks the first "working day" for the second director of the two-year-old Pitt County Development Commission.

A man with a remarkable record of accomplishment is scheduled to arrive in Greenville Saturday or Sunday to take over the helm of the county agency created by Pitt's voters to boost the county's economy through industrialization.

Dr. C. Sylvester Green, lured here last fall from a post at William Jewell College in Liberty, Mo., represents a well-known figure in many circles.

The native Tarheel steps into the office vacated by L.A. Weston, whose services with the commission were terminated last summer following several stormy months.

Dr. Green is an accomplished journalist, public relations agent, college president, scholar, Baptist minister, and industry hunter. He has served with the state department of conservation and development.

Before coming to Pitt County, Dr. Green has made a reputable name for himself in various fields. Unlike the great majority, he has risen to high rank time and again in the various fields in which his services have been engaged.

Equipped with a reputation for possessing a most personable personality, Dr. Green may well provide the "shot in the arm" many taxpayers seem to feel the commission needs.

Pitt Countians who have not yet met the commission's new executive director may discover that a man with such a formidable record deserves a warm welcome.

Sometimes, they say, perfectionists develop ulcers when glaring errors rear their heads. Perhaps it's true in some cases.

But for the sake of the public health and general welfare, we sincerely hope all perfectionists passing a certain highway sign near Williamston "just happen" to be looking the other way.

Granted, many persons are, either maliciously or otherwise, often guilty of such obvious boners. Miscues in the daily newspaper are not uncommon.

But this particular sign, we would venture to guess, very likely draws more than a little attention. It may even draw enough attention to result in correction.

The placard in question is one of the countless hundreds that adorn the state's highway system telling motorists how far they've been and how much farther "til destination."

It furnishes mileage information from Williamston to a point believed to be Washington.

The only hitch? The name of the town is lettered in bold, black letters: "W-a-s-h-i-n-g-t-o-n."

We admit our proofreaders sometimes neglect to notice miscues in eight point type, but letters four inches high...?

ing their functions over to the state and municipal governments. "Consolidation and the merging of small units into larger ones for the sake of efficiency and to eliminate duplication of effort, costs and jobs is a trend that has been in progress in government and in business for a number of years. It is an idea that has been given popular approval in principle, although in the case of school consolidation in the pinch of practice there have been many cases when strong community resistance has been aroused by the prospect of the loss of a school regardless of all arguments for better schooling at less cost."

And, the same sort of resistance, except a much more powerful resistance, is what has stymied the very sound idea of reducing the number of counties by consolidation or merging.

The idea simply does not get a start because of the political influence at the very root of the evil, if excessive and needless cost of too many governmental units may be considered evil.

This is the influence of the suffocating county officials whose jobs would be eliminated. They are politically powerful and influential. Moreover, they are strongly organized, each group of them having their state-wide organizations that resist any and all efforts to reduce their prestige or prerogatives.

The idea of consolidating counties is as sound as the idea of consolidating schools—or merging small and struggling banks. It is the difficulty of putting the idea into practice that keeps the idea wrapped in moth balls, regardless of its practice in business and some areas of government.

Revolt against U.S. cars
4. Canadian political and economic leaders are showing rising opposition to American labor organizations. AFL-CIO unions are forcing wages up beyond the resources of the Canadian economy. Many charge, in the months ahead, there will be demands that Canadian unions break with "dominating" American unions and establish a Canadian federation. Watch this significant development carefully.

5. Canada will again try to develop its own auto industry. The Canadian Association of Consumers has already raised the cry that U.S. cars are not suitable to the Canadian climate, distances and sense of economy.

An important reason for this economic hostility is the fact that Canada is suffering a worse dip than we are at present. The resentment, this fulminates is increased by the fact that the American economy, in spite of the effects of the weather, keeps many Canadians jealous.

NO SWEET SOLUTION
What to do? Boycott Canadian goods? Hamper tourism? Ban goods? Hamper tourism?

Ban Canadian liquor? Bring other economic pressures?
Any retaliatory measures would only make matters worse. The best thing to do is to recognize the fact that the Canadian business dip is worse than ours, and try to alleviate it. We are in this same old boat on the continent together.

Here's another prediction: Sugar speculation will soon become the world's greatest gamble. With the United States no longer stabilizing the price of the most important producer, Cuba, and with the Russians dashing in and out of the market like Cossack horsemen, sugar will become the most mercurial commodity in international markets.

A rumor from Luzon or a storm in Martinique can send prices diving or zooming and, with each visit, fortunes can be made or lost.

Really Not So 'Mean'

By GEORGE E. SKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Apart from reading Cleveland Amory's book on the decay of American society, I read the learned sociological study of Lee Mortimer on "Women Confidential," a subject on which no one knows so much. I envy these men who know the ins and outs of everybody's lives and the goings and comings of various celebrities. They must have a wonderful time staying up all night and sleeping all day.

Wickedness is not my special line, although I often deal with politicians. But I am always astonished at how many decent people there in the world who mind their own business. Now this fellow, Lee Mortimer, is a very fine person and if I were in need, I can imagine no one who would come to my rescue sooner, but why does he wallow in sheer wickedness as he does in this book?

Well, there is no telling about human beings. The other day, I read somewhere that I was mean, which really I cannot be. It is true that I am a suspicious person but then, that is an occupational disease. Old reporters were trained to be suspicious. They always thought of the old man who gave little girls candy. They looked upon all politicians as such. They saw a reformer and wondered what he got out of his reform. They dug in all the muck of their day. They toppled great reputations with small tattle. They were the guardians of the people, the tribunes in the forum. It was glorious profession and the cynical feared lest their sentimentality be exposed.

Thus, came the day of giving everyone the benefit of the doubt. Therefore, little was dug up but as one editor said, "It will be a great story when we get it." One politely sits and waits for the truth to become available. And if the truth never becomes available, what then?

It is, of course, a question and I think I have many answers. It is quite fully in his enormous tome "Who Killed Society?" which is so truly dead.

And yet, let me tell you of a wonderful experience I had on New Year's Eve. I went to the house of a great lady who belonged when it was something to belong. And there was gathered a fine company of quietly distinguished persons. And when the moment of midnight approached, the lights were put out, a window was opened; the guests were silent except for the playing of a piano in eloquent beauty. The old year flew out; the new year flew in. The window was shut; the lights went on.

We bade each other a happy New Year with whatever affection. And we were jolly but not noisy. It was a novel ceremony which my hostess had known since she was a little girl many decades ago when her mother pursued it.

There is much peace and beauty in this world in many places that are not publicized. In fact, this is the real strength of our country which is strong despite all the trickeries of politicians and conniving persons who fight not for the whole of what we are but for some little part of us which they fill. I was thinking of that the other day when I listened to a recording of Dimitri Tiomkin's music for John Wayne's picture, "The Alamo." I listened to a recording of Dimmy's music and realized how this country can seem an alien's soul, so that he becomes a part of us. It is authentic American music; not this horrible beat thing called rock-n-roll, but music that makes you want to sing as we sang the tunes of Stephen Foster or of Gus Edwards.

A European journalist writes to me asking why President-elect Kennedy appoints so many school teachers to big jobs. I had not noticed that it is so, it might be because what the man knows he got from teachers who he respects. The Europeans speak of an intellectual as though he were really something special. The words are full of intellects and even intelligent folks here. I know some simple gals, friends of mine, who rattle away in three or four languages, have read everything, been everywhere, major.

Relations With Canada To Slip

By ELMER ROSSNER
Our relations with Canada will worsen. This will create a new problem for John F. Kennedy because Canada means more to us as a friend, customer and ally than any other country.

Many elements in Canada have been jealous of the United States. For the most part, this has been a kind of sibling rivalry. But lately, feelings have tensed. Some indicators:

1. The new tariff regulations put into effect by Canada are aimed at cutting imports from the United States. This will cause a rise in U.S. unemployment.

2. Changes in Canadian tax laws take about 65 per cent of profits of American-owned companies. Previously, taxes were about equal to the American corporate rate of 52 per cent.

3. Canadian enterprises have been moving into the vacuum caused by the U.S. trade restrictions with Cuba. Canadian corporations are offering machine parts, tire and other goods which Americans are forbidden to sell there. One report says Canada may double or triple its trade with Cuba this year.

4. Canadian political and economic leaders are showing rising opposition to American labor organizations. AFL-CIO unions are forcing wages up beyond the resources of the Canadian economy. Many charge, in the months ahead, there will be demands that Canadian unions break with "dominating" American unions and establish a Canadian federation. Watch this significant development carefully.

5. Canada will again try to develop its own auto industry. The Canadian Association of Consumers has already raised the cry that U.S. cars are not suitable to the Canadian climate, distances and sense of economy.

Grimesland 62 Chocowinity 48

GRIMESLAND—Grimesland basketball cagers pulled off a first here last night—winning their first doubleheader of the season.

Visiting Chocowinity proved to be victims of the Grimesland sweep, the boys losing 62-48 and the girls finishing on the short end of a low-scoring 36-28 contest.

The Hardee clan—Lewis, Curtis, Carlton, and Lindsey—joined by Nile Dail struck a big blow early, scoring 18 points in the first quarter, and sailed to an easy win in the nightcap.

Carlton Hardee scored 11 of his 13 points in the first half as the Wasps broke the contest wide open and took a 33-22 lead into the dressing room at intermission.

Lindsey Hardee, hitting with a high-jumper from the outside, continued his hot scoring spree and plucked in 22 points for scoring honors.

Dalton Buck had 24 for the losers and Jerry Price was second high with 14.

In the girls' game, Grimesland blunted a last quarter rally and broke a 12-game losing streak with a 36-28 victory.

Betty Morgan, with 24 points, and Sara Tucker, with 12, did all of the winners' scoring.

Grimesland is host to Winterville in league action Tuesday night.

Bethel 85 Robersonville 50

ROBERSONVILLE—Bethel's hot running Indians sputtered a few times in the first quarter but turned up in the second period to smack non-conference Robersonville with an 85-50 shellacking.

Harvey Lewis, who was high scorer for the night with 25, led a first half drive that pushed the Indians into a narrow 19-14 first quarter lead.

John Smith, the talented senior, took control in the second period as Bethel pulled away and raced to its 15th victory of the season.

With Smith bombing away from the outside with 11 points, the Tribe scored 25 points in the second period and departed for half-time with a 44-26 spread.

Lewis, scoring most of his points on lay-ups and a jump shot from the corner, and Smith continued to heckle the Rams in the final half and were never pushed to the limit in racking up 85 points.

Smith wound up with 20 points and freshman center Tex Everett numbered 10.

Bonnie Stevenson and Tommy Ward, the bulk of the Rams' scoring attack, hit for 14 and 12 points respectively.

In the opening attraction, Bethel divided its scoring among Janet Cobb and Carolyn Manning to sink the Rams 41-35.

Manning was high with 26 points and Cobb had 15. Clark tossed in 21 for Robersonville.

Chicod 72 Farmville 54

CHICOD—Scrappy Chicod outpointed visiting Farmville in each period here last night and went on to rap the Red Devils, 72-54, in a Pitt County Conference contest.

Big Ephraim Smith and sharpshooting Ray Fornes teamed up with a superb effort to carry Coach Bob Howell's quint to its eighth win of the season and fourth within the conference.

Smith kept the cords hot in the first half as the Hornets broke it wide open, 36-25.

Ray Fornes, one of the conference's top scorers this fall, pumped in 18 points for the winners but his total was second to the 19 recorded by Smith.

Scoring ace J. Y. Monk was Farmville's top point-maker with 19 points. Ben Moore had 11 for the losers.

Chicod spotted Farmville a four-point lead in the first quarter of the preliminary game but surged from behind in the second half to score a 41-39 triumph.

Mary Louis Hudson bucketed 24 points for the winners and Pansy Jones had 10. Kay Allen was high for Farmville with 15.

Winterville 60 Ayden 45

AYDEN—Winterville's Wolves reached their peak here last night in throwing back a strong Ayden five, 60-45, to move into third place in the Pitt County standings.

James Braxton, Steve Worthington and John Weathering paced the upset win for Coach Blaine Moye.

Winterville fell behind 6-0 in the first few minutes but a fast break attack and a tight man-for-man defense zoomed them into a 15-11 lead by the end of the first quarter.

By halftime the Wolves had a 31-24 edge and continued to pour coal on the fire in the final 16 minutes, outscoring Ayden 30-17.

Steve Worthington, who made the mistake of scoring a bucket for Ayden, was a ball of fire, making amends in the second half and wound up with 15 points.

The easy-moving Braxton totaled 16 and Weathering had 15. The Tornados, unable to come up with their usual balanced scoring attack, saw William Edwards top the scoring column with 14 points. Dinky Mills bucketed 10 while Ted Norris was held to only seven points.

The Winterville girls, coached by Troy Jackson, remained undefeated with a 61-41 victory in the night's opener.

The duo of Carolyn—Barnes and Cayton—scored 44 points between them in leading the victory march—the eighth in league play.

Harris netted 19 for high honors for outclassed Ayden.

Roanoke Rapids proved to be a band of opportunist here last night in rapping Greenville with a crushing 67-50 setback. And the Phantoms could do no right.

The Jackets grabbed top stock in the battle for second place with Tarboro by defeating Greenville. At the same time, the stumbling-fumbling Phantoms fell into a fourth place tie with upstart Washington.

Coach Bo Farley, long associated with the fast-moving indoor sport, was a disappointed man in a blue suit. It wasn't a question of the veteran mentor giving up on his club but what to do next.

Greenville's night of basketball was filled with mistakes. And they left their shooting shoes at home to say the least.

Over-all, their shooting average from the floor wouldn't measure up to the age of an eight-year med student.

Roanoke Rapids didn't waste any time in building up a quick lead. While the Phantoms were having their troubles, the Jackets pushed ahead 10-0, and it was a lead that never loosmeanings. Greenville shifted to a zone press midway the first half and hit a hot streak for a short span, slicing an 18 point lead to eight at one time.

The Jackets adjusted and sailed back into a 14-point spread by halftime, 35-21.

In the second half, Roanoke Rapids' lead varied from 14 to 21 points.

The Phantoms used their fast break often in the second half but it always fizzled with a bad pass or some other infraction just prior to reaching the basket.

Husky Arthur Davis displayed his All-Conference wares and chopped the Phantoms' defense to splinters both from the outside and inside.

His final total read 19 points. But his play off the boards was the key factor in breaking the Phantoms' back early in the game.

Shearin of Roanoke Rapids was top scorer the night with 20 points. Wood had 11.

John Bynum, Greenville's most recent success, tallied 17 points and did a commendable job off the boards but his play was lost in the shadow by the Phantoms' over-all erratic showing.

Greenville's junior varsity, with three regulars hitting double figures, swept a 65-33 win in the opener.

Rodney Knowles, Jack Foley and Richard Taft scored in double figures for the winners.

In other conference games, Kingston brushed past Jacksonville 73-34, Washington blasted Tarboro 71-65, and New Bern dumped Elizabeth City 70-53.

From the way things have been going in college basketball this week, the Friday the 13th jinx may catch up with top-ranked Ohio State tonight, a day late.

On paper the unbeaten Buckeyes, seeking their 12th straight, shouldn't have too much trouble against Northwestern in a Big Ten conference struggle. But look what happened to Bradley, St. John's (New York) and Kentucky.

Second-ranked Bradley was upset by Houston, fifth-ranked St. John's was humbled by St. Joseph's (Pa.), and Kentucky, a power in the Southeastern Conference, lost for the first time in 25 years to Louisiana State.

The Kentucky stumble came Friday night on Friday the 13th, so it behooves Ohio State to beware on the Northwestern hardwood tonight. Jerry Lucas, the Scarlet and Gray All-American, is nursing a knee injury but is expected to play.

LSU's 73-59 victory over Kentucky broke a seven-game losing streak for the Tigers. Adding to the cup of woe for Kentucky's coach Adolph Rupp was the fact that the defeat marked only the second time in 21 years that his Wildcats have lost two straight conference games. Unbeaten Vanderbilt took the Wildcats early in the week. Ellis Cooper and Stan Jacobs sparked LSU in scoring with Maury Drummond dominating the backboards.

Florida also came through with an upset in the SEC. The Gators beat Auburn 58-53 behind Lou Merchant's 22 points. It was Florida's third straight conference victory and stamped the Gators as a surprise title contender.

From the way things have been going in college basketball this week, the Friday the 13th jinx may catch up with top-ranked Ohio State tonight, a day late.

On paper the unbeaten Buckeyes, seeking their 12th straight, shouldn't have too much trouble against Northwestern in a Big Ten conference struggle. But look what happened to Bradley, St. John's (New York) and Kentucky.

Second-ranked Bradley was upset by Houston, fifth-ranked St. Joseph's was humbled by St. Joseph's (Pa.), and Kentucky, a power in the Southeastern Conference, lost for the first time in 25 years to Louisiana State.

The Kentucky stumble came Friday night on Friday the 13th, so it behooves Ohio State to beware on the Northwestern hardwood tonight. Jerry Lucas, the Scarlet and Gray All-American, is nursing a knee injury but is expected to play.

LSU's 73-59 victory over Kentucky broke a seven-game losing streak for the Tigers. Adding to the cup of woe for Kentucky's coach Adolph Rupp was the fact that the defeat marked only the second time in 21 years that his Wildcats have lost two straight conference games. Unbeaten Vanderbilt took the Wildcats early in the week. Ellis Cooper and Stan Jacobs sparked LSU in scoring with Maury Drummond dominating the backboards.

Florida also came through with an upset in the SEC. The Gators beat Auburn 58-53 behind Lou Merchant's 22 points. It was Florida's third straight conference victory and stamped the Gators as a surprise title contender.

Marketing researchers at the University of Minnesota say Americans spend an average of 23 minutes in the grocery each time they go marketing.

Still Turning Up Nazi Criminals

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The face of the sausage vendor on the railroad platform looked familiar to the two Polish doctors. The Prague-Nuernberg train had just reached Schirmding, its first stop on West German territory.

A few hours later, sausage vendor Emil Bednarek, 53, a former trust at Auschwitz extermination camp, was arrested as a war crimes suspect—identified by the two doctors, former camp inmates on their way to testify at a West German war crimes trial.

In Frankfurt Jail Bednarek joined 15 other Auschwitz suspects rounded up recently.

"Nazi crimes keep a large part of the German justice machinery busy and nobody can tell how long it will last," says chief prosecutor Heinz Wolf. "It may well go until 1970 but I certainly hope not."

Scores of suspects are under arrest in West Germany. Every three weeks or so last year, a trial involving World War II atrocities opened somewhere in the country.

Prospects are that this average will be maintained in 1961.

Adolf Eichmann will face an Israeli court in March as a key director of the German program to exterminate Jews. His henchmen from Auschwitz will be tried in Germany.

Investigations of war crimes have been speeded up since creation in 1958 of a central agency coordinating the efforts of the 10 West German states. Until then, probes were mostly conducted on a hit and miss basis.

"First the Allies handled all war crimes trials in the early postwar period," explained Wolf. "Then, the creation of the West German Republic on a strictly federalist principle delayed central coordination. And work was made enormously difficult for us because the Western Allies and the Russians had seized practically all documentary evidence."

The complex Auschwitz case has been going on for almost two years and is not expected to come to trial before 1962.

Wolf is helped by a special squad of police detectives, all young enough to exclude the possibility that they were involved in atrocities themselves.

The Nazi background of many police and justice officials has impeded the investigation in Germany. Hundreds of policemen, who served in the dreaded "Einsatzgruppen" (or special groups) of SS boss Heinrich Himmler, have been under suspicion. Most cases against the rank and file were dropped because they held they acted under coercion and would themselves have been shot had they refused orders.

Higher ranks are held for further investigation and possible trial.

Many Nazis assumed aliases after the war. SS Lt. Gen. Wilhelm Koppe, former police chief in occupied Poland, worked under a false name in Bonn, the West German capital. Most other suspects also have been found making a good living, chiefly as industry employees or salesmen.

The statute of limitations sets a deadline for the prosecution of most Nazi atrocities. For manslaughter, the deadline expired in 1960. For murder it will be 1965. The statute is automatically set aside, however, if some sort of legal action—such as a warrant—has been taken against the person involved.

The biggest trial of 1961 in Germany probably will be that of Karl Chmielewski, 57, SS captain and former commandant of a sub-camp of Mauthausen. He allegedly invented the cold water death in which inmates were drenched at subzero temperatures and then frozen to death. He is charged on 300 counts of murder.

Doctor Begins Practice In Greenville On Monday

Dr. J. Edwin Clement, 30-year-old obstetrician, is scheduled to begin a Greenville practice Monday, Medical Arts Clinic announced today.

The Georgia native and Duke University School of Medicine graduate comes to Greenville from the Crawford W. Long Memorial Hospital of Emory University in Atlanta where he has recently completed his training in obstetrics and gynecology.

Dr. Clement is married to the former Victoria Stedman of Lumberton and they have two children, James E. Jr., 2 1/2, and Victoria S., four months.

DR. J. E. CLEMENT

The new addition to Greenville medical circles is a graduate of Needham Broughton High School in Raleigh where his family moved in 1945.

He entered the University of North Carolina in 1947 where he completed his pre-medical training in 1950. At UNC he was a member of the Sigma Chi social fraternity, Phi Eta Sigma, Phi Beta Kappa, the Order of the Old Well, the varsity swimming team, and the Monogram Club.

From UNC, he went to Duke where he received the Doctor of Medicine degree in 1954. At Duke, Dr. Clement interned in internal medicine and pediatrics during 1954-55. While at the Durham University, he was a member of Alpha Omega Alpha Honorary Medical Society.

From 1955-57, he served with the United States Air Force. His tour of duty included a period of training in Alabama and Texas and overseas service in Japan as a flight surgeon.

Dr. Clement is the son of Edwin A. and Sue Ewing Clement, currently of Charlotte. His father is with the Southern Bell Telephone Co. there.

His hobbies are hunting, fishing, golf, photography, and music.

Plan Awarding $1500 Fellowship Bundy Speaks To Greenville Kiwanis Club

Lucille Coulbourn of Windsor, president of the Gamma Phi chapter at East Carolina College of Alpha Xi Delta, announced today that as part of its philanthropic program and national Alpha Xi Delta social sorority will award a graduate fellowship in the amount of $1,500 for advanced study in the field of social service. Any graduate of an accredited college or university is eligible to apply. Miss Coulbourn said presently the Gamma Phi chapter is participating in the national program and also is aiding a junior high student in this area. It is the aim of the sorority to help this student financially, as well as to develop her interest in education and culture.

Persons interested in the national scholarship may obtain applications for the Fellowship at this time from Lucille Coulbourn, P.O. Box 1160, East Carolina College. Deadline for filing applications is March 1, 1961.

Alpha Xi Delta, national social sorority for college women founded at Lombard College sixty-eight years ago, numbers more than 34,000 college and alumnae members. In service to others, their efforts are focused on the American child and methods of combating juvenile delinquency, by working locally with juvenile courts and social agencies.

Earns Doctorate At Kentucky U.

Samuel W. Dry, assistant professor in the School of Business at East Carolina College, has just been awarded the doctorate in education from the University of Kentucky. His work there was in the field of business law.

Writing to Director Elmer R. Eroning of the East Carolina School of Business, Dr. Vernon Musselman, Dr. Dry's major professor at Kentucky, stated that Dr. Dry's oral doctoral examination was the best on record at the university.

Dr. Dry joined the East Carolina faculty in 1958. He teaches finance, management, and business law courses at the college here.

A native of Newwood, N. C., Dr. Dry holds the bachelor's degree from Lenoir-Rhyne and the master's degree from Appalachian State Teachers College.

Approve Sum For Fire Department

STOKES—The Stokes Ruritan Club approved a donation of $450 to the Carolina Township Volunteer Fire Department at its meeting Wednesday night in the school lunchroom.

Purchase and erection of two outside basketball goals to be placed on the school yard was also approved. The goals are to be used by community children when the school gym is closed.

Fire Chief W.F. Roebuck told the club that an air horn, to be used as a fire warning device, had been donated to his organization.

A quail dinner was served to club members by Mrs. M.T. Barnhill and Mrs. CL. James, Jr.

Collecting Data On Employment

Information to be used in compiling national figures on employment and unemployment will be collected locally by Mrs. Shirley Benson during the week of January 19 in the Current Population Survey.

Director Joseph R. Norwood of the U. S. Census Bureau's regional field office in Charlotte made the announcement today. He said that information collected from local families will be combined with that collected in 329 other areas of the country to provide the national estimates. Approximately 25,000 households are included each month in the Current Population Survey.

GRIFTON—A Grifton resident was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way after he backed his car out of his driveway and into the path of an oncoming car Wednesday night, Police Chief Luther Lewis said today.

The man was identified as William Mahler, a resident of Church Street, Grifton. Driver of the second automobile was Major Frederick Barwick of 11-C Mount Vernon Park, Kinston. Chief Lewis said, "Damage to each car was estimated at $200. Chief Lewis noted, 'No injuries were reported. The case is scheduled for trial Thursday, Jan. 19, in Grifton Record's Court.'

Backed Car Into Path Of Another

STOKES—Out of three fire calls answered during the month of December, one dwelling was a total loss, Fire Chief W.F. Roebuck of Carolina Township Volunteer Fire Department reported this week.

The calls were to two farm dwellings and one truck that was aflame. One dwelling and the truck were saved, with only slight damage, Chief Roebuck said. No false alarms were turned in and no injuries reported during the month.

Barco Took Issue With Intervention Charge

Barco took issue with intervention charge. He said that "membership in the Security Council itself" had not prevented such behavior.

His remark seemed to be aimed at the United Arab Republic, whose President Gamal Abdel Nasser participated in last week's Casablanca conference with the pro-Lumumba heads of state of Ghana, Mali and Morocco.

Safe, Routine Ride On School Bus

STUDENT . . . bound happily for home.

Safe To End Of The Line

I boarded a small, new school bus—capacity 60 students—one afternoon this week at Winterville High School, prepared to ride to the last stop.

Winterville school principal Paul J. Clark put me on the bus a little early: I was expecting a stampede.

However, the students—all ages—filed out of the school in an orderly manner and boarded the 12 waiting buses. Each student, I learned, has an assigned seat. Fortunately, I sat in a seat vacated by two absent students. The third student, Polly Ann Langley, took the whole thing in stride.

Our ride began when we left the school yard and entered Greenville. After making a few stops, we proceeded to a bumpy dirt road and traversed this approximately one mile. At Cannon Crossroads, we turned left onto the Tar Road, leaving off scattered students all the while.

Meanwhile, three boys continually pulled off a little girl's blue hair until she disembarked from the bus. One of the boys talked incessantly, teasing. Some of the others put him in his place by talking about one of his girl friends

The students were very well behaved and relatively quiet. Most of the time, little boys and older ones paused to allow ladies off first. The talking and cap pulling was all good natured.

Some students inspected test papers and drawings made during the day, talked about the day's events, homework and what would happen the rest of the day. Some just sat and seemed to take time for relaxation.

We took roads that eventually led to Evans Street Extension (in Greenville), dropping off students all the time. Like the students themselves said, a good portion of riders all got off at once: 13 of them.

The bus driver turned around near the city limits and went to Hooker Road, down Hooker Road—the bus was nearing empty—turned around again and went back up Hooker Road. Finally, via several roads, we reached U.S. 13-N.C. 11 and then got on the Farmville Highway. About seven of us were left at this point.

The bus driver, James Allen Braxton, an 11th grade student, lives along the route, on the road known as the Farmville Highway. He parked the bus in his yard and what was left got off: the driver, his sister, a photographer and me.

It was a glimpse at 35 minutes of the students' rides—one of the shortest routes—and a little of what passes through their minds. Some hardly waiting to get home for a snack; some to play; some for basketball practice; some for chores; some for homework. Nearly all looked in a mailbox on the way to their houses.

The driver himself is a tall lanky youth who plays basketball and minds his bus driving. Some of the smaller children held him as a sort of idol and he seemed to be a sort of father to them. Each child crossed a street and was safe before the bus started. Many turned back to wave.

The ride itself was pretty smooth—the seats are comfortable, floors clean (except for new dirt tracked in), everything so new and modern-looking windows. James stopped and looked at every corner and intersection. It was a safe ride.

All the way to the very last stop.

HOME . . . at last

Operating Buses Is Systematized

The driver is the key person in the Pitt County School Bus System, D.H. Conley, superintendent of county schools, believes.

He is nominated by his school principal, who submits names for bus drivers to the chairman of the local school committee and they in turn submit approved names to the Pitt County School Board.

For every one of the 157 buses in Pitt County, there is one driver: one substitute; and one alternate.

The driver is approved to serve only so long as he proves satisfactory to the authorities responsible by law for the school bus system.

The driver-nominee is required to take 18 hours of book training and six hours of road training before he is officially accepted into the system. Russell Rogerson of the Highway Safe Division in Greenville conducts this program here.

After he passes the course, the driver receives a certificate to drive a school bus. He must be 16 years of age and have his own North Carolina driver's license. He is paid $23 per month, Conley said.

About a third of the drivers in Pitt County are—believe it or not—girl drivers. Conley noted that the girls take their work seriously and make good drivers.

As for safety features, the Highway Patrol inspects every bus in the Pitt County system once a month and mechanical repairs go on all the time. Persons delivering gas also make a routine inspection and report any disorders. Lelan C. Forlines of Winterville is in charge of school bus maintenance.

In addition to these two safety checks, the driver himself is supposed to report any defect he notices.

The Highway Patrol checks steering, brake service, brake parking, stop sign, exhaust, door control, lettering, governor, windshield, door glasses, side glasses, horn, license plates, lights, mirror, entrance step, sun visor, windshield wiper, cleanliness and other general

Student Invited To Inauguration

Glenn Reginald Jernigan of Charlotte, president of the Young Democratic Club and senior at East Carolina College, has been invited to attend Inauguration activities in Washington, D. C., January 18-20. Invitations to Young Democratic Club members in the United States is limited to 1,000.

While in Washington, D. C., Jernigan will attend a dance honoring President-elect John F. Kennedy and Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson and their wives and also a reception for Young Democratic Club members. He has a reserved seat for the Inaugural parade on January 20.

At East Carolina Jernigan is a social studies major with emphasis on economics.

In student activities, he is a member of the Circle K Club and the Student National Education Association, and is one of the East Carolina student leaders selected to appear in the 1961 edition of the national yearbook "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

He was campus campaign manager at East Carolina for Governor Terry Sanford and statewide college campaign manager for Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Jernigan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Jernigan of Charlotte.

Busy Session For WOTM

The induction of new members, a talk on adoption processes, a vote to co-sponsor a local drive, and planning for a conference were all part of Thursday night's meeting of Greenville Chapter 1308, Women of the Moose.

New candidates installed at the Chapter Night proceedings were Mrs. Eleanor Coleman and Mrs. Louise Brocato.

Childcare Committee Chairman Toni Thompson, acting as Chapter Night hostess, introduced the speaker, Mrs. Badger Johnson. Mrs. Johnson is a resident case-worker for the Children's Home Society of Greensboro and works in the field of adoptions.

The Women of the Moose also voted to co-sponsor the Cerebral Palsy campaign for this year. The drive will extend from January 16-20.

Plans were mapped for holding of the Mid-Winter Conference scheduled in Greenville, at the Moose Auditorium, on January 29. Mrs. Johnson spoke of her varied and rewarding activities as a case worker for the Children's Home Society of North Carolina. This Society is a licensed, statewide, private adoption agency. It was organized in 1902 for the purpose of finding homes for homeless children. Many changes have taken place over the years as the work has grown but the purpose has remained the same. Mrs. Johnson said this agency offers services to couples who wish to adopt and to mothers who wish to place their babies for adoption. Services are given also to school-age children referred by orphanages or child care agencies for the purpose of adoption. Counseling and sound legal and case work procedure are provided to safe-guard those involved.

More than 6,000 children have found love, security and life-time homes through the services of

Aids Foundation Drive In District

Mrs. Inez N. Martinez, instructor in the School of Nursing at East Carolina College, has been named on the committee for District 20 including Pitt County and the area nearby, in a nation-wide fund-raising effort being undertaken by the American Nurses' Foundation, Inc.

Contributions will be used to support Foundation programs for better health through research in nursing.

The Foundation, which is the research arm of the American Nurses' Association, Inc., is conducting a $1 million fund appeal across the nation to expand the Foundation's research grants program and to provide means for widespread sharing of research results.

Mrs. Martinez will assist in this area in raising the national campaign goal. Contributions will be sought from business, industry, nursing, and non-nursing groups.

In accepting the committee assignment, Mrs. Martinez expressed confidence that these groups and the general public will join hands to help assure the success of the fund-raising drive.

"I consider it a privilege," she said, "to be able to take part in this program initiated by ANF to create a climate for continuing health progress in future years."

Those who wish to contribute to the fund, Mrs. Martinez stated, should send checks payable to the American Nurses' Foundation, Inc., to her at School of Nursing, Box 37B, East Carolina College.

Two Children Die In Blaze

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Two small children died early today in a fire which swept through their home. Police said they were investigating the possibility of arson.

Three other children and two baby sitters, a man and his wife, escaped the blaze.

The dead children were Steve, 2, and Pamela, 8 months. They were the children of Mary Bowman, a widow, who police said was away at the time of the fire and was not located immediately.

Firemen reported that gasoline apparently had been doused on portions of the frame house. The two baby sitters, who police did not identify, were held for questioning.

Operating Buses

Items. Buses are grounded if there is any mechanical deficiency and repairs begin immediately, Conley noted.

The bus driver, when he receives his final approval, must sign a contract. He consequently agrees to keep the bus clean, and to prohibit smoking and use of profane language on the bus—and to abstain from the practices himself.

He agrees to certain safety measures, such as making complete stops at all railroad crossings and stop signs; following any other bus on the road going in the same direction at 300 feet; follow only the route prescribed by the school principal; he is responsible to report dangerous spots on the road, blind spots, wash outs, and other hazardous places.

And, he agrees "that if I am convicted of a traffic violation, whether it be while driving bus or private vehicle, that my school bus license will be revoked by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles."

There has been only one accident this year involving a school bus; it was minor, with no damage to the bus.

BUT NOT INJURED

FARMINGTON, Ill. (AP)—A car driven by Joyce Bledsoe skidded off a road Friday, snapped a utility pole, ripped out 7 1/2 feet of fence, and overturned a wagon laden with corn before returning to the highway. She was uninjured.

Will Be Speaker For Fraternity

Dr. C. V. Troup, president of Ft. Valley State College, Ft. Valley, Ga., will be keynote speaker at the annual Founder's Day service of Phi Beta Sigma Chapter of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc., scheduled for Sunday.

Services will be held at Holloway Community Center in Kinston beginning at 3 p.m. W.A. Foster is president of the fraternity and C. W. Wade is chairman of the Founder's Day program.

In addition to his duties as president of Ft. Valley State College, Dr. Troup spends much time lecturing across the country. He is a past national vice president of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity. He received his A.B. degree from Morris Brown College in 1925 and his M.A. from Atlanta University in 1937. Other degrees include the Ph.D. from Ohio State University, L.L.D. from Wilberforce University and L.L.D. from Morris Brown College.

He is listed in Leaders in Education, World Biography, Who's Who in America, Who's Who in American Education and Who's Who in Colored America. He is involved in numerous other activities.

Music for Founder's Day will be presented by the Adkin High School Choral Club of Kinston, under direction of Mrs. M. D. Rham. The public is invited to attend.

Highway Dept. Is Closing Road

RALEIGH (AP)—The Highway Department will close a Beaufort County secondary road between Sidney Crossroads and Belhaven Tuesday through Friday.

The span over Pantego Bridge will be removed to enable Army Engineers to dredge the creek channel. Appropriate detour signs will be posted.

Sanford Changes Grifton Date

GRIFTON—The office of Governor Terry Sanford notified Grifton Jaycees that the date of the Governor's appearance in Grifton has been changed to February 10. Originally, Governor Sanford accepted an invitation to make the principal address February 17 at the Jaycees Distinguished Service Award Banquet.

The banquet will begin at 7:30 February 10, and will take place in the old gymnasium of Grifton High School, Jerry Greene, publicity chairman, told The Daily Reflector.

Mrs. Sanford is expected to accompany the Governor to Grifton.

Trying To Avoid Drawing Of Lots

PINELLAS PARK, Fla. (AP)—Two city council candidates are digging into Florida law to determine if they can get out of drawing lots to break a tie in their race.

Stephen Bednar and Donald Raine received 453 votes each in recent municipal elections for the council post. Three recounts failed to break the tie.

They were scheduled to draw lots, as provided in state law, to determine the winner at a council meeting Thursday night.

However, both men said they wanted to exhaust all other means in order not to "gamble" for the post.

GRANTED ASYLUM

CANBERB, Australia (AP)—Prime Minister-Foreign Secretary Menzies in a statement today announced that Dr. Ryzard Stanislaw Zielinski, former commercial consul to the Polish Consulate General in Sydney, and his wife Marta, had been granted political asylum in Australia for themselves and their children.

In addition to the county courthouse and its principal office building, Pitt County also owns and maintains a formidable group of buildings utilized by its agencies and services.

And in some of these buildings, the picture is somewhat brighter than conditions experienced daily by offices in the courthouse and the old hospital on Johnston St. in Greenville.

The county's property has grown from the original government center—the courthouse. As agencies have expanded, the county has responded to provide more office facilities outside the courthouse.

Included in this group of buildings that house Pitt agencies are a modern health center, built and equipped in 1954-55 for slightly more than $300,000; a new mental health clinic, added to the county's real estate in 1958 for $40,000; and other office facilities.

The Tucker Building on the corner of Third and Greene Streets in Greenville was purchased for around $22,000 and currently serves as headquarters for the county board of education.

Bought for $40,000, the Edwards Building and property just behind the courthouse provides space for only one county agency, the Pitt County Development Commission. Other occupants of the building include the county Tuberculosis Association, the county Farm Bureau office, and three lawyers' offices.

Another county unit, the old mental health building just behind the jail on Washington St., is currently divided between the county veterans service officer and the Pitt County Social Security Program.

Other county property includes the County Home south of Greenville and Pitt County Memorial Hospital, currently undergoing a substantial enlargement operation.

At the county health department, most accommodations are generally described as adequate for the present. The modern facility provides the department's staff, headed by Dr. Georgia V. Mills, above-average working conditions in comparison with county agencies housed elsewhere.

A similar condition exists at the newer mental health center of which Dr. Phillip G. Nelson is director. While employees admit more space could be used, they also admit that may well be the case anywhere. Further, they concede the need in many county instances is much greater.

Both county public health facilities, when compared with housing provided for other county agencies in the courthouse and the County Office Building, are seen by most observers as enjoying adequate space and working conditions for the present.

At the time of construction of both health centers, county officials allowed for moderate expansion of the agencies within the buildings. Taking a longer look into the future, room for further expansion of the county health agencies is available on the existing property, originally furnished the county for its hospital project.

With Supt. D.H. Conley at its helm, the Pitt County Board of Education finds adequate space to meet its current needs in the Tucker Building. Conley, his clerical assistants, and professional staff occupy and utilize both floors of the county real estate unit.

The board of education moved into the Tucker Building when courthouse agency expansion crowded the school offices out of the courthouse space currently occupied by the auditor's office. Since the move, Conley's office has enjoyed more working space and room for departmental growth.

W.K. Whichard and the county Social Security Program, unique on the county level, occupy half of the old mental health quarters. Whichard's offices recently moved from an extremely crowded conditions in a corner of the welfare department in the County Office Building.

The other half of the small building is used by Veterans Service Officer Walter Tucker. The N.C. Veterans Commission branch moved to Pitt from Wilson about a year ago and the county furnishes office space.

In the Edwards Building, the county industry-hunting organization seems to enjoy adequate space for its present operation. The Development Commission has seen a recent lull in activity during a personnel turnover. Under new director Dr. Sylvester Green, the commission's quarters include a reception office and a private director's office.

The Edwards Building's second floor, long since unoccupied, has as yet rendered no office service to the county. Officials say heavy repairs would be necessary before the upstairs space could be used and maybe not even then. Excluding the courthouse and the County Office Building, the problem of office space is seen by most observers as relatively mild. The agencies scattered around the Pitt County Seat in various buildings appear to enjoy more "elbow room" than those in the two main buildings.

The question of long range planning for future expansion, however, may draw attention of another color.

Governor Speaks Tonight At YDC Meet In Durham

DURHAM (AP)—Gov. Terry Sanford will address North Carolina's Young Democrats here tonight at a banquet at which the organization's new officers will be installed.

The new president is Samuel H. Johnson, Raleigh lawyer. He succeeds Monroe M. Redden Jr. of Hendersonville.

Sanford, himself, is a former president of the organization. Two other former YDC presidents, Congressmen Basil Whitener and Horace Kornegay, will attend the meeting.

Sanford was the first former president of the YDC to be elected governor, and Whitener, now in his third term in Congress, was the first former YDC president to be elected to Congress.

Whitener represents the 11th District, and Kornegay, now serving his first term, represents the 6th District.

Quiet Birthday For Schweitzer

LAMBARENE, Gabon (AP) — Dr. Albert Schweitzer today quietly observed his 86th birthday, interrupting work at his famed jungle hospital only long enough to open presents and read a sheaf of greetings.

Among presents were those brought by a group of followers, mostly from America, who visited Schweitzer in late December and early January. One present was a battery-operated radio which will pick up stations around the world.

THE FERGUSON AFFAIR

CHAPTER 1

The case began quietly, on the women's floor of the county jail. I was there to interview a client, a young nurse named Ella Barker who had been arrested on a stolen-property charge.

Specifically, she had sold a diamond ring which was part of the loot in a recent burglary; the second-hand dealer who bought it from her reported the transaction to the police.

Our interview started out inauspiciously. "Why you?" she wanted to know. "I thought that people in trouble had a right to choose their own lawyer. Especially when they're innocent, like me."

"Innocence or guilt has nothing to do with it, Miss Barker. The judges keep an alphabetical list of all the attorneys in town. We take turns representing defendants without funds. My name happened to be next on the list."

"What did you say your name was?"

"Gunnarson. William Gunnarson."

"It's a funny name," she said, wrinkling her nose.

She wasn't intending to be rude, but she was suspicious of me. Fear made her stiff and stupid. I wished we had a better place to talk than the visitors' compartment of the jail.

"You want to get out of here, don't you, Miss Barker?"

"No, I want to get up house-keeping and live in here the rest of my life. Wouldn't anybody?"

"I was going to suggest that the quickest way out would be to tell the truth. Tell me how you got hold of the diamond ring you sold to Hector Boorman?"

She looked at me with a kind of bleak pride. In her special way she wasn't a bad-looking woman. In decent surroundings, properly groomed, she could be a handsome one—the kind of girl you'd want to give a ring to.

"Who gave you the ring, Miss Barker? I mean you didn't steal it. Even the police don't think you broke into the Simmons house, yourself. But we've had a number of burglaries recently. There's an organized gang at work in this area."

"You think I'm a member of it?"

"I don't. But your refusal to talk leads the police to that conclusion. They know you're covering up for criminal, and as long as you persist in that, it seems to make you one of them."

"She plucked at her skirt with fingernails from which the polish was flaking. "Say I do tell you all about a man I met on my vacation in San Francisco. His name, and everything. What happens then?"

"I think I can get you off. He's here in Buenavista, isn't he? Are you in love with him?"

"Don't make me laugh." But she was far from laughing. "Say you do get me off. What happens then?"

"To you, nothing. The worst you can expect is a couple of years on probation."

"You think so, eh? I bet I wouldn't last a couple of years."

"Probation isn't so bad."

"I don't mean that. I mean as though the room where Ella was waiting had gone down like an elevator."

"All I want to do," Willis said, "is ask her how she got hold of it. Surely you don't have any objections to that."

"I'll ask her."

But before we could summon the matron, a man called up the stairs: "Lieutenant? You up there?"

Willis leaned over the balustrade. "What is it, Granada?"

"Trouble on Pelly Street."

"What kind of trouble?"

Sergeant Granada thrust his dark, saturnine face up through the curved shadows in the stairwell. "Somebody tried to knock off Hector Boorman."

Willis let me ride along in the back of his black sedan, Granada drove, using the siren. Before we were out of the police car, an ambulance, pulled in to the yellow curb behind us.

Boorman's store stood in a poor neighborhood between a lamale shop and a run-down hotel. Its window displayed a hand-lettered sign: WE BUY AND SELL EVERYTHING. In the dusty gloom halfway down the steps, a white hat hovered like a puff of ectoplasm. A dismal voice called out from under it: "Here he is, back here."

Willis and Granada strode toward the white hat and the voice. The ambulance men, a tall one and a short one, trotted behind them light-footed as shadows, and I brought up the rear.

A bald man with a bright wig of blood was sitting up on a couch. He was supported by a brown, thin man who wore the white hat and apron of a short-order cook. The bloody man was breathing loudly, gasping his breath in and groaning it out.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

Willis was leaning on the balustrade above the spiral stairwell. He was a man in his fifties with nearly thirty years of law enforcement behind him. He had short gray hair, a pugnacious brow of a nose.

"I don't like this," I said when the matron had closed the door. "It's hard enough questioning a client in these surroundings without the police horning in on top of that."

Something came up. I thought you'd like to know," Willis added in a mildly questioning tone: "Is she giving you a difficult time?"

"She's frightened."

"Then why doesn't she break down and give us the facts we need?"

"She doesn't deny that she sold the ring at Hector Boorman's store. But it doesn't prove that she's involved with the burglary gang."

"It does when you put it together with certain other facts. I'll tell you something, because I don't want to see you climbing way steal it. Even the police don't think you broke into the Simmons house, yourself. But we've had a number of burglaries recently. There's an organized gang at work in this area."

"You think I'm a member of it?"

"I don't. But your refusal to talk leads the police to that conclusion. They know you're covering up for criminal, and as long as you persist in that, it seems to make you one of them."

"She plucked at her skirt with fingernails from which the polish was flaking. "Say I do tell you all about a man I met on my vacation in San Francisco. His name, and everything. What happens then?"

"I think I can get you off. He's here in Buenavista, isn't he? Are you in love with him?"

"Don't make me laugh." But she was far from laughing. "Say you do get me off. What happens then?"

"To you, nothing. The worst you can expect is a couple of years on probation."

"You think so, eh? I bet I wouldn't last a couple of years."

"Probation isn't so bad."

Commendation For Greenville Man

COMMENDATION MEDAL . . . Maj. William Briley (center) receives medal from Col. George J. Eade, wing commander, as Mrs. Briley looks on. In addition to the medal, the major received his retirement certificate.

SHREVEPORT, La.—Maj. William C. Briley, Greenville, N.C., native and stationed at Barksdale Air Force Base here, has been presented the Commendation Medal upon his retirement after more than 20 years' service in the Air Force.

The commendation was awarded the major for "meritorious service rendered" from the period April 14, 1958 to Dec. 31, 1960 while serving in the combat operations section of the 4328th Strat. Wg. based here.

The Pitt County, currently residing in Shreveport, is the son of Mrs. J. R. Gowans of Greenville and the late William S. Briley. His wife also attended the award ceremonies.

Maj. Briley first entered service in December, 1939, and served as Aircraft crew chief at France Field, Panama, from 1940 to 1943. From March, 1944, to July, 1945, Maj. Briley served as flight engineer on B-29 type aircraft in the China-Burma-India theater, flying 35 combat missions.

The major served at Carswell AFB as flight engineer on a B-36 from 1950 to 1956. He was next assigned to Barksdale in 1958, where he served until his retirement.

Maj. Briley has 6,120 flying hours to his credit.
