John F. Kennedy Solemnly Sworn As New President, Calls On Communists To Renew A Quest For Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—John F. Kennedy solemnly stepped to the inaugural platform at the Capitol at 12:11 p.m. today to take the oath of office as 35th President of the United States.

There were members of Congress and the Justices of the Supreme Court. There was former president Harry S. Truman, who drew a cheer from the crowd as he arrived, wearing top hat and black overcoat.

The new president took office with a solemn pledge to defend the liberty of the United States at all costs and an eloquent plea to the Communists to join in a new quest for peace.

In this frigid setting—you'd have to go back to the blizzard of 1909 at William Howard Taft's inauguration for a worse one—Kennedy held out warm words for the future.

But during the night, the snow mercifully stopped and hundreds of snowplows went to work. Aided by rock salt, they cleared the 1 1/2-mile parade route along Pennsylvania Avenue from the Capitol to the White House.

This time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans—born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a cold and bitter peace, proud of our ancient heritage—and unwilling to witness or permit the slow undoing of those human rights to which this nation has always been committed, and to which we are committed today.

Kennedy stood bareheaded as he delivered his inaugural address from the open, windswept stand on the east side of the Capitol Building.

Eisenhower was there to welcome the Kennedys, and the other dignitaries. These included the man Kennedy defeated in one of the closest presidential races in history, Richard M. Nixon.

Jetliner's Crash Claims 4 Lives; 102 People Safe

NEW YORK (AP)—A jet airliner crashed Thursday night seconds after taking off in a wind-whipped snowstorm. The huge ship's speed sent it slamming across a highway, clipping an auto and skidding in flames into a marsh.

The one person aboard who might have the answer is William B. Poe, 52, of Miami, Fla. check pilot aboard the plane. But Poe's condition early today at St. Joseph's Hospital in Queens was described as "still critical."

The State Highway Department reported all highways passable in the mountains but advised motorists to use chains. Highway crews put sand and salt on the more dangerous spots and high winds during the night helped sweep much of the snow from the roads.

Former Teacher Mrs. Hodges Avoids Spotlight

AP Newsfeatures
Dignified, silver-haired Martha Hodges has the strong features of a woman who knows her own mind, and who tempers her view of the world with a warm sense of humor.

She prefers to leave the public spotlight to her energetic husband, North Carolina's Gov. Luther H. Hodges, the new secretary of commerce. Except for infrequent appearances before small groups of women, she has always stayed off the political campaign trail.

Although in public she gives the impression of being reserved, friends say she becomes witty and outgoing in her circle of intimate friends.

Private Wife
She dresses well, but with little attempt to follow fashion. Her taste runs to tailored suits.

When Gov. Hodges' term ends, the couple will buy a home in Chapel Hill, N.C., and Mrs. Hodges is expected to spend a good deal of time there.

She is used to setting up housekeeping in various places — including New York and Paris — to follow her husband's busy career in the textile industry and in government service. The Paris life came when he was an assignment with the Economic Cooperation Administration.

In Washington, the Hodges will live in a rented, furnished two-bedroom apartment.

Martha Elizabeth Blakeney grew up in the quiet little town of Monroe, one of six daughters of a well-to-do landowner.

She was graduated in 1918 with a bachelor of science degree from the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina. Later she took graduate work at Columbia University and the University of Chicago.

Hodges, who was reared in Leaksville, N.C., and worked in a textile plant there, met his future wife while she was principal of the Leaksville school. They were married in 1922.

They have two daughters, both in their early 30s: Mrs. D. M. Betsy Bernard, in Anacortes, Wash.; Mrs. John O. (Nancy) Hodges Jr., 24, a graduate of Harvard University, is married and the father of an 18-month-old girl.

Mrs. Hodges is an excellent bridge player. She also paints, a hobby she took up during the war when she found it helped take her mind off the problems of the world. She reads widely, and has a keen interest in the state's Museum of Art in Raleigh.

She is obviously proud of her husband, and a close friend says Hodges frequently talks problems and issues over with her, asking her advice. Since he is such a traveler and so wrapped up in his

Snow, Cold Puts Damper On Glossy Inaugural 'Gala'

By RELMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—John F. Kennedy spent the first hour and a half of his inaugural day watching the last acts of a glossy revue staged in his honor by a huge cast of Hollywood and Broadway stars.

He appeared to be having the time of his life.

But when the massive show ended at 1:30 a.m.—90 minutes behind schedule—Kennedy struck a serious note.

"It is now inauguration day," he said, quietly. "I hope that all of you will join Lyndon B. Johnson and myself in committing us all to the defense of the Constitution of the United States."

The oath of office is the core of the ceremony scheduled to start at noon.

Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, and Vice President-elect and Mrs. Johnson drove to the National Guard Armory through a stinging, blinding snowstorm. It was one of the worst in Washington's history.

Traffic congealed. Thousands of formally dressed celebrants, stranded for lack of transportation to the armory, milled around in hotel lobbies.

Snow and ice that quickly formed on the streets, and hundreds of cars left abandoned by their owners contributed to one of the greatest tieups the capital has ever seen.

Kennedy's car, and those following it, had trouble getting up Capitol Hill.

It was Mrs. Kennedy's first formal appearance since the birth of her second child. She wore white silk ottoman, and a diamond and emerald necklace.

The Kennedys reached the armory about a half hour after the show was scheduled to begin. But that was well before thousands of others in the audience reached there. Sir Laurence Olivier, one of the principals in the cast, was reported stranded at the British Embassy. Olivier finally made it. Eleanor Roosevelt, also scheduled to appear with the cast, didn't get to the scene at all.

Apparently in order to give other guests time to arrive, Kennedy and his wife waited in a reception room for an hour instead of going to their box. The show was timed to start a moment after he took his seat. It was an hour and 40 minutes late.

The armory, with a capacity of 13,000, was about half filled when the show started. Democratic officials hoped nevertheless that tickets sold would bring an estimated $1.3 million toward defraying campaign expenses. Kennedy said the party had gone into debt $4 million to win the presidency.

Once the big show was under way, the howling storm and bitter cold outside were forgotten.

Bette Davis, Frederic March, Sidney Poitier, Anthony Quinn, and Olivier started it off. Each briefly recited some aspect of the world, the United States, and the presidency in the hour of Kennedy's coming to office.

Then, for more than two hours, the stars followed each other on stage.

Frank Sinatra, co-producer of the show, quipped that "nobody in the cast is young enough to be in the new Cabinet."

There were singers Sinatra, Ethel Merman, Helen Traubel, Louis Prima, Ella Fitzgerald, Nat

King Cole and Harry Belafonte. Between songs, comedians Joey Bishop, Alan King, Jimmy Durante, and Milton Berle held the stage. Gene Kelly and Juliet Prowse performed the main dance numbers.

After the intermission, Johnson was introduced and spoke briefly. He said the appearance of so many people on such a night was "a perfect example of the spirit of the Democratic party. Neither rain, nor sleet, nor snow can stop the Democrats once they get going."

Mrs. Kennedy did not stay until the end. She left around 1 a.m. As the last number closed, and the house lights went up, Sinatra announced, "The president-elect, John F. Kennedy." The audience rose to a man and gave Kennedy a long ovation.

Like Johnson, he said the presence of so many people "when the winds of adversity blow" was a testimonial to the character of the Democrats. He said, too, that he was proud of his party because it had gone $4 million into debt in the campaign.

He got a laugh when he said, "I wasn't a bit disturbed about that until I saw a one-way ticket to Mexico, dated Nov. 9. Then I realized we had to get going."

He said "the happy relations between the arts and politics have come to a culmination here tonight." He singled out Sinatra as a special subject of his appreciation.

Then, in reminding his listeners that the inauguration ceremony was only hours away, he left. He reached home about 3:45 a.m. after stopping with friends at a downtown restaurant.

Dramatic scene from "The Old Maid and the Thief" to be presented by the Opera Theatre of East Carolina College tonight and tomorrow night, pictures the cast of student singers who will appear in tonight's opening performance. Peter John Grotton, Conn., in the role of the engaging tramp Brb, is getting rough treatment from Mrs. Martha Bradner of Greenville (right) as Miss Tod, the old maid, and Mrs. Alison Moss of Greenville as Laetitia. At right is Ann Daroen of Williamson, who plays Miss Pinkerton. The Menotti Opera is scheduled for performance each night at 8:15 in the McGinnis auditorium. Tomorrow's cast will be Jessamine Hiatt of Clinton as Miss Todd, Bettie Hancock of Scotland Neck as Laetitia, Patricia Roberts of Farmville as Miss Pinkerton, and Jerrold Teachey of Washington as Bob.

Cold And Winds Arrived In Night

Tree limbs flew and roofs grew colder by the minute as a new winter cold spell moved into the Greenville area last night, bringing temperatures down into the middle 20s.

Winds last night ranged fairly steadily from 20 to 35 miles per hour, according to Vance Briley Jr. of the Greenville Utilities plant, where velocity is measured every hour. There was only slight rain, about 1/8 of an inch, and much of this had frozen during the cold night.

Temperatures dipped down to 24 during early morning, falling from the 4 a.m. temperature of 33 degrees. At 8 a.m. it was a cool 28 at the Greenville Utilities plant, Briley said. Thursday's temperatures ranged from a low of 34 to a high of 54 degrees.

The weatherman has forecast continued windy, sunny and cold weather for today, with Saturday becoming partly cloudy and cold with snow flurries in the mountains. Tonight should be mostly fair and colder, with lows in the 20s.

The Tar River level, measured this morning, was 6.2 feet, Briley said.

SNOWED OUT

Other dignitaries here, will be Harvey Sprinkle, president of the State Moose Association, and William Moon, State Director and Supreme Lodge representative.

Saturday's schedule calls for registration at the Moose Home during the afternoon; a dinner for Legion officers and 25 club members; and the Legion Ball (from 8:00 p.m. to midnight).

Breakfast will be served Sunday morning at the Moose Home to Legionnaires and their ladies, followed by a business meeting and enrollment of candidates. The Legion banquet is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m.

Visiting ladies will be entertained by Women of Greenville Chapter 1308, who will also provide transportation for the guests to church of their choice on Sunday morning.

Eli Bloom, Entertainment chairman for the Greenville Lodge, has announced music for the Legion Ball will be provided by Hal Lundy and his orchestra, from Raleigh. This event is open to all members of the local Lodge.

Secretary E. M. Baldree told a supper meeting of Greenville Legionnaires last night that he is looking for one of the largest enrollment classes yet held by Enoca Legion.

Founded in 1916, the Legion of the Moose offers a broader channel for humanitarian service to members of the fraternal organization. Last year it was responsible for constructing an outdoor campsite for the children of Mooseheart, Ill. Its current project is the building of a new residence at Moosshaven (Florida) for aged members now in retirement.

Patton said he spent the night in the plane and then hiked into Stuart. He said his radio equipment was broken in the crash.

Patton, a pilot for the Clements Brothers Construction Co. of Hickory, telephoned his home office from Stuart.

No Easy Time For Him, Or Nation

The United States has a new president today! The oldest man to serve in the highest office in the land has completed his term and the youngest man ever elected to the office has taken his place.

To say the transition represents an important event for this nation and the free world may sound trite; but it is nonetheless true.

Upon the shoulders of John F. Kennedy now rests the responsibility for leading this nation, for preserving its freedoms and integrity at home and abroad. The decisions he makes in the next several years will effect not only the American people at the given moment, but they may well have repercussions in this country and throughout the world for many years to come.

There is an immense task before the young man who is now President of the United States. It is his primary responsibility to see that the government of the United States keeps faith with its fundamental principles of the past, and at the same time keep faith with its people by preparing for the future. It is his task as the leader of the most powerful and influential nation in the world to see that every possible means is employed to preserve peace throughout the globe. The scope of his responsibility reaches far beyond the borders of this nation and the people who live within those borders. By the very position which this nation occupies, the President of the United States has responsibilities to people throughout the free world, and indeed to people who quest for freedom and liberty throughout the globe.

By comparison with his predecessors in this high office, President Kennedy is well qualified for the role he now assumes. By comparison with the vastly and complex array of problems he must confront during his term of office, who can say that any man is equal to the task which lies before the President?

President Kennedy has promised no easy time for the American people during his administration. The world today lives in a period of recurring crises, and at times teeters on the brink of what could be the most horrifying holocaust in history. The complex defense structure which must be maintained by the free world will require continuing sacrifices in this nation and in others. And yet the efforts to prevent the necessity of employing these tools of war must be intensified.

On the domestic scene there will also be problems and crises as ways are sought to meet the needs of our complex society without destroying those things which have given it vitality and growth throughout its history.

The new President has taken his oath of office. He must now turn all the human resources he possesses to the duties of the most difficult job in the world.

Joint Projects Only Possible For Friends

In a world in which fortifications bristle along borders between nations, it is reassuring to see the United States and Canada continuing in joint ventures along their common border rather than trying to out-arm one another.

The opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway in recent years marked a high point in the joint efforts of the two nations to develop resources in which they had a common interest. The seaway already is proving a great benefit to both nations and will continue to be increasingly important.

This week another joint venture between the United States and Canada was made official with the signing of a 60-year treaty for development of Columbia River projects along the boundary which separates the two countries.

Such projects are impossible between nations whose relationship is not based on a long period of friendship, mutual respect and confidence. Unfortunately, the number of adjacent nations in the world who enjoy such relations with their closest neighbors is far too few. As time brings to light the benefits accrued to both the United States and Canada by such joint projects, perhaps other nations around the world will adopt a more positive attitude about cooperating in programs across their national boundaries. As a more positive attitude develops, the rate of development of great untapped natural resources in many sections of the world will increase rapidly.

The U.S.-Canadian projects are setting a good example for other nations of the world to follow.

Eisenhower In Good Spirits

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP)—It was a sentimental journey and a different kind of President.

On Feb. 17, 1953, when President Eisenhower held his first news conference after taking office, reporters jammed into the high-ceilinged room in the old State Department building near the White House.

He was 62 then and he seemed unsure of himself and tense. Wednesday, eight years and 192 news conferences later, reporters jammed into the same room to see and talk with the same man, now for the last time as President.

He was 70 now and very sure of himself. And he was at ease. The reporters didn't really go looking for news. They didn't expect much, and as it turned out, there wasn't. Eisenhower had only three days left in office and there was no reason to think he'd light a freerack.

They went for various reasons, besides asking questions and jotting down answers. For instance, they were curious to remember how he had looked in his first meeting with reporters as President, to see how he looked in the finale.

But there was also a sentimental reason for jam-packing Wednesday's news conference. Somehow by this big turnout the reporters wanted to wish him a hearty goodbye.

In the end they never said the word goodbye at all. They just stood up in respect and applauded as he walked out quickly, his hands high in that familiar gesture of good will he always used when standing in the back of an open car to greet crowds in New York, London, Paris, New Delhi.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS WE SEE AS WE THINK

Three men were watching the sunset. One said, "The sun looks like a big silver dollar, and boy, do I wish I had more of them."

The second man, a scientist, said "This star called the sun is the center of a planetary system. I wonder if there are no other such systems throughout the universe?"

The third man of the group was a minister. Gazing at the beauty of the sunset, he murmured, "Holy, holy, holy. Lord God of hosts, the whole earth is full of thy glory."

man's experience, then everything appears to him from a monetary standpoint. If science is first, then he thinks of the phenomena of the universe only in terms of scientific principles and interests. But if he is a religious man, he looks upon nature and sees behind it nature's God. Surely in intelligent being created this physical order and operates with precision and uniformity. The highest thing we know in this universe is personality. If God does not have personality then we, who do have personality, are superior to Him. And this is blasphemously absurd. To be sure, God may have something even better than personality, but if so, "Glory be." That makes the godhead even more marvelous.

Cross Off One Black Cat

Traveling south on Cotanche St. the other day, we could scarcely help noticing an ancient superstition in action.

Perhaps superstitions are okay, at least we'd kinda hesitate to say otherwise, but still they're amusing at times.

Directly ahead of us, also headed south, was a long, 1948-model limousine—one of those with the greatest distance between the driver's seat and the windshield made that year.

As the limousine cruised merrily along, and we followed suit, it was a normal late afternoon.

Normal, that is, until a small black cat darted from behind a street-side shrub and into the path of the limousine. The driver, to avoid running the feline down, was forced to grind quickly on his brakes.

Again we followed suit.

The little black cat escaped and both vehicles resumed their course southward. Instantly, the driver ahead decided to "mark the cat" off his windshield.

Calmly at first, then almost frantically he tried in vain to reach the limousine's wide windshield that appeared at least four feet from him.

The driver discovered, to his apparent dismay, that, try as he may, he could not reach the windshield with his "X"ing finger.

We could not restrain ourselves from being suddenly very interested in the whole business of "X"ing away the bad luck cat. And, in our old dilapidated Chevy, we had little trouble applying as many cross marks as we wanted.

The driver ahead, however, drew a degree of sympathy since he was obviously making his most honest effort to ward off bad luck from the little kitten.

As most stories that are told, this one, too, had a happy ending.

Within a block following the cat's startling appearance a red traffic light halted the limousine ahead.

Ordinarily, people are not especially fond of red traffic lights, but this particular person welcomed the opportunity to stop his limousine without being spurred on by honking horns.

A split second after his auto had rolled to a stop, he climbed hurriedly around the large steering wheel, reached comfortably across the wide dashboard, and crossed off the pesky cat with a deliberate, Capital "X".

Other Editors Saying No Haste In Arms Policy

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

A 14-man "task force" has advised President-elect John Kennedy to withhold any statements about disarmament policy until a group studying the subject has a chance to make a complete review. This is good advice for several reasons, advice Kennedy is sure to heed.

First, Kennedy has been warned there will be heavy international pressures, especially during the spring session of the United Nations, for early statements by him on arms control.

He has been urged to resist these pressures until the subject has been thoroughly studied and debated within his administration. Only in such a manner can he hope to grasp a clear picture of the complexities and problems related to the disarmament question.

To jump head-first into this business of arms control will avail him little. For, as the task force pointed out, the U.S. has never really developed basic policies on arms control in the past. The group noted 15 years of fruitless disarmament negotiations—and this takes in administrations of both parties.

A hiatus which results in the production of sound positions would be time gained, rather than lost.

Since this country has made such little progress in this field—indeed, has no basic policy as such—it would be wise for Kennedy to delve into the reasons behind past failures, and to do this would require study of previous negotiations between the great powers. From there, the administration could begin to advance some fresh ideas that might be introduced at some future sessions on arms control.

The study group also suggested the creation of a semi-autonomous agency on disarmament control whose director would work as an equal with the secretaries of State and Defense in planning U. S. policies and proposals looking toward a cessation of, or at least a slowdown in the arms race.

One important step has already been taken in this direction by Kennedy. He named John J. McCloy as head of the disarmament policy branch within the State Department. This was a post established but never filled nor utilized by the present administration. McCloy was a sound choice; he is a former high commissioner to West Germany and has had vast experience in dealing with nations of Europe, including the Soviet Union.

There is a very good possibility the U.S., under the new administration, will make no more progress than former administrations in reaching some sort of agreement on disarmament. But it behooves Kennedy to make a vigorous effort in that direction. He is aware that the Russians are almost impossible to deal with. He knows they have no intention of giving up any munitions or armament programs. But he can so maneuver them as to pass the burden of the arms race on to the Russians if future talks fail. After that, Kennedy will know he has at least done his best to halt the mad race.

Most people around here are, more than likely, aware today is inauguration day for John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

We don't mean to mention the occasion here because we think somebody doesn't already know about it.

We refer to the historic occasion simply because it happens only every four years—at the most. An event of such importance is probably worthy of mention . . . and tomorrow we would have been a day late.

However, the decline to elaborate further on the inauguration festivities; since America will be examining the entire proceedings through that scientific keyhole—television.

Opinions In Brief

"Life does not really begin until one comes to realize how soon it ends."—Elberton (Ga.) Star.

"It does seem peculiar that the Rural Electrification Administration can, by law, borrow money at 2 per cent from the Federal government, and because they have surplus, loan it back to Washington for three and one-half per cent."—Johnsonburg (Pa.) Press.

"Most people work hard because of a habit formed in early life: eating."—Wall Street Journal.

Perhaps No Sacrifice Involved

By ELMER ROESSNER

When John F. Kennedy takes the oath of office today, he swears in without suspicion of taint. He has sold his stocks and invested the proceeds in Federal, state and local bonds.

Sacrifice? Perhaps not.

Stocks, despite what Mr. Kennedy's advisors have called a "recession," have held up well in price. Many are rising and may continue to rise substantially. The chits Mr. Kennedy sold may be worth considerably more on Jan. 20, 1962, and much more in 1965. It would be a historic test if the Kennedy Administration so improved the economy that the Republicans who bought his stock were enriched while he gained little from his bonds.

However, his investment in bonds may be lucrative indeed. NO TAXES ON STATE BONDS There has been no public statement of how much worth of stock Mr. Kennedy sold, or how much he is putting into Federal securities and how much into state and local bonds.

He will pay Federal income taxes on his interest on Federal bonds, just like you and I. But the interest on state and local bonds is free of Federal taxes.

A state bond paying 3 1/2 per cent a year—and many pay that—yields more to a married man with a net taxable income of $40,000 than a stock paying 7 per cent—which few do today.

The Kennedy income is none of our business. One unconfirmed report said that his assets are about $10,000,000. If this were all in stock, the yield might be in the neighborhood of $500,000 with Federal income taxes about $400,000, leaving a net of $100,000.

But if it were all in tax-exempt securities, the yield might be between $300,000 and $350,000, all net. SALARY TAXABLE In addition, Mr. Kennedy must pay taxes on his $100,000-a-year salary, but not on his $50,000 anual expense allowance.

If all his holdings have been converted to tax-free securities, and if his salary is his only taxable income, he can keep about half of it. But if he had held on to his stock, his Presidential wages would have been in the 91 per cent bracket.

That means that the U.S. would have gotten a President for $9,000 a year—a bargain even for a Democrat.

Assuming that Mr. Kennedy's securities have all been converted to tax-free bonds, he may get $200,000 to $250,000 more net income a year than he would if his capital were in high-grade stocks.

If there is a lowering of interest rates and inflation over the next four years, both bonds and stocks will tend to increase in price. If the basic interest rate is pushed down to 2 per cent, bonds paying 3 1/2 per cent will be worth a hefty premium. If there is inflation, stocks will be worth more.

Second Tier Is Key One

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

As the sprawling, unorganized American Government is constituted, great significance must be attached to the Second Tier, that is the Under Secretaries and the Assistant Secretaries. The constitution has a rule, the actual administrative heads of government, John Foster Dulles, for instance, played an important role in the affairs of the world, but he could not move about at his pace and be familiar with the actual daily operations of his department. The real work was being done down the line and the day-by-day decisions of deskmen faced both Dulles and Eisenhower with facts accomplished.

Franklin D. Roosevelt recognized that. His first Secretary of State was Cordell Hull, a delightful gentleman, opposed to a high tariff and merely interested in Roosevelt's fast moving activities. There is ample evidence that Roosevelt did not keep him informed. However, Roosevelt, appointed as Assistant Secretaries men who were close to him, Raymond Moley, A. A. Berle, Jr., Sumner Welles. He operated the State Department through the men on the Second Tier.

The Cabinet has been losing its significance because of the existence of the National Security Council where the really meaningful decisions of our times are made; secondly the President is dependent for advice upon experts, often men outside of government, increasingly these experts are university political personalities, university professors or businessmen or even clergymen who specialize in particular fields. John Kennedy's Second Tier will include an extraordinary number of academicians, for whom he apparently has great respect, although they are often unrelated to the world about them. When strictly are not excessively objective, they become fanatical about some favored dogma. Their knowledge has often not been tempered by the fires of experience and they tend to accept the findings of other scholars as perfection depending upon the man's qualifications in terms of degrees of the outstanding honors. Nevertheless, Private enterprise has, of course, found the engineer and geologist and researcher worth their weight in gold when they stick to what they know.

The Kennedy Second Tier seems to be made up mostly of intellectuals. Of course, Chester Bowles, who will be Under Secretary of State, is not strictly within this category, he having earned his means by being an advertising man, generally referred to as a huckster. Nevertheless, Bowles comes of an amazingly brilliant family from Springfield, Massachusetts, whose best known member was Samuel Bowles, in his time one of the outstanding editors in the United States. Chester Bowles will fit in well with the Second Tier intellectuals.

What needs to be watched carefully is what Kennedy does with the Independent Agencies, the powerful carbanics which have become attached to the Executive branch of the government, but which usurp the power of Congress by regulations, the decisions of the courts by their own semi-judicial decisions and which act with full Executive powers. The Independent Agencies have received their basic authority from Congress but these have been expanded by their regulations and by their decisions. The Hoover Reports propose their reorganization; the second Landis Report is even stronger.

On the whole, the men appointed to these Independent Agencies which exercise such vast powers are mediocre persons who work in technical fields for which few of them are technically equipped. Too many of them have in the past used membership on an Independent Agency as a stepping stone to private industry. There can be little question but that during the Kennedy Administration many changes will be made in the Independent Agencies.

Thus far, there have been no Cabinet appointments or Second Tier appointments over which Congress will make a great fuss. However, the fight will come when legislation is proposed The Conservatives in Congress have already shown their claws and the Kennedy forces wisely back-

County Teams Face Heavy Slate Tonight

By LEONARD LAO
Reflector Sports Writer
The basketballs will be bouncing and the nets will start popping once again tonight as eight Pitt County teams square off to do battle in conference action.
League leading Bethel goes after its 11th straight Pitt County victory when the Indians don their traveling shoes and journey to Farmville to lock horns with the Red Devils.
Coach Walter Latham and his troupe, owners of a 16-1 overall record, will be highly favored to bring home win number 12 from the Red Devils. John Smith and Don Dewar are the current leaders of the Indian club, and if their past performances are any indication of their future ones, they both should prove to be thorns in the side of the Farmville club. Coach, Elbert Moye's Red Devils have posted only one victory against seven losses.
The preliminary battle between the school's girls' teams should also prove to be an important contest, for the Bethel lassies are currently in the runner-up spot in the race for the Pitt County girls' championship.

In another conference tilt, Belvoir-Falkland travels to Winterville. The latter club, coached by Blaney Moye, is currently riding high on a four game winning streak.

Belvoir-Falkland's latest win came Tuesday night in a thrilling 60-49 squeakers over a powerful Ayden club which was decided by a foul shot after the final whistle had blown. The victory over the Tornados pushed B-F into sixth place. Before the exciting Ayden contest, Belvoir-Falkland was locked in a seventh place tie with Grimesland.

Winterville should provide plenty of competition for Belvoir-Falkland. One of the Wolves' latest victims was also the Tornados.

The Winterville girls are currently undefeated and set the pace in the girls' standings. Belvoir-Falkland's lassies hold down the third place spot in the loop.

Grifton, second in the boys standings, journeys to Stokes-Pactolus in a third conference tilt. The Bulldogs boast an 8-2 Pitt County record and a 13-2 over-all state.

In the other contest scheduled for tonight, Chicod, paced by the Fornes boys (Ray and Roy), host Grimesland, owner of a 2-7 conference record.

Kansas State, Cincinnati In Key Road Tests Tonight

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Kansas State and Cincinnati, two streaking college basketball powers, take to the road for key tests tonight and take it from DePaul's shocked Demons—the word is: Beware!
The 10th-ranked Kansas State Wildcats, unbeaten in their last 10 games, defend their Big Eight Conference lead against arch-rival Kansas at Lawrence, Surging Cincinnati, now 12-3 after a 7-game string of successes, is at tough Drake in a Missouri Valley Conference match.
Both would take kindly to avoiding the kind of trap the road has held this week for seventh-ranked DePaul. Their 12-game streak snapped Tuesday night at Notre Dame, the Demons moved on to Kalamazoo Thursday night and were ambushed by Western Michigan, 85-60.

Reawakened Houston (10-5), which lost its five by a total of 17 points, spilled Texas A&M 89-85; Dayton (10-4) nipped state rival Wittenberg 46-45; and Kentucky Wesleyan edged St. Francis (Pa.), 78-76 in overtime, in other major games on Thursday night's slim program. Montana State College squeezed by Pacific Lutheran 37-70.

The Aggies, challenging for the Southwest Conference lead, became the third straight victim of Houston, which in its last two starts ended third-ranked Bradley's 15-game winning streak and then thumped St. Louis.
Houston broke a 83-83 tie in the last three minutes on two driving layups by Ted Luckenbill and two free throws by Tommy Thomson. The Aggies got their last two points on Don Stanley's jump shot with six seconds left. Luckenbill finished with 29 points for Houston, Stanley with 27 for the los-

Sports In Brief

GREENSBORO (AP) — East Carolina's Pirates, averaging 77.7 points a game, are leading the North State Conference in offense. Lenoir Rhyne, allowing opponents 61.7 points a game, leads in defense.
Lenoir Rhyne is second in offense with an average of 76.5 points a game, and Appalachian is second in defense with an average of 62 points a game.
Appalachian leads the league however, in two departments, free throws and rebounds. The Mountaineers have a free-throw accuracy average of 76.1 per cent, and have averaged 50.7 rebounds a game.
Elon is third in offense at 73.4, and Appalachian fourth at 72.7.
In defense, Catawba is third at 62.8, and High Point fourth at 68.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Did a whistle blow, or didn't it? That's what Belmont Abbey basketball Coach Al McGuire and his team would like to know.
The swore they heard a whistle blow as Lenoir Rhyne's Tommy Burton stole the ball, raced down the court and scored to give the Bears a 65-64 victory over Belmont Abbey. Just before that, Burton had scored to narrow the Abbey's lead to 64-63.
Belmont Abbey players stood flatfooted as Burton scored the winning goal. McGuire said he heard a whistle while his team was bringing the ball down the floor after Burton's first goal. He said his players heard it, and that they gave up the ball and prepared to take a time out. That's when Burton scored the winning goal.
Both officials said there was no whistle to stop play.
Jim Wiles led Lenoir Rhyne with 15 points. Danny Doyle and Jim Mullen got 15 each for Belmont Abbey.

DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — The Duke Blue Devils will meet six Atlantic Coast Conference foes and four outside football teams next season. The opener is Sept. 25, a night game with ACC rival South Carolina at Columbia, S.C.
Duke's non-conference opponents include Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Michigan and Navy. Notre Dame and Virginia are back on the schedule after a two-year absence.
The schedule:
Sept. 23 at South Carolina (N); 30-Virginia at Richmond (Tobacco Bowl).
Oct. 7 Wake Forest; 14 at Georgia Tech; 21 Clemson; 28 at N.C. State.
Nov. 4 at Michigan; 11 Navy at Norfolk, Va. (Oyster Bowl); 18 North Carolina; 25 open.
Dec. 2 Notre Dame.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, who has a long record of title fight postponements, is getting another one.
Robinson's 15-round bout here with NBA middleweight champion

Gene Fullmer, scheduled for Feb. 25, was re-set Thursday for March 4.
Promoters Jack Doyle and Mel Greb said Robinson was unable to get started with his training because of two court actions in the East.
In recent weeks Robinson has been involved in a paternity suit brought by a New York woman. Thursday he won a federal court decision over Nicholas Troilo, who sued Sugar Ray for $75,000, charging he reneged on an agreement to fight Fullmer in 1956 under Troilo's promotion.
Robinson is scheduled to fly from New York to Los Angeles Saturday, then go to his training camp at San Jacinto, where he worked for his Dec. 3 bout with Fullmer. That one ended in a draw.

BOSTON (AP) — The last-place Boston Bruins, winless in six previous outings, were strangely unimpressed by their 4-2 decision over Detroit.
Leo Labine and Doug Mohs held a technical discussion in the dressing room on who was out of position on a particular play. Jerry Toppazzini sat on a table while a trainer looked at some bumps and bruises. Others dressed quietly and left quickly.
"Yes, it's nice to win one for a change," Coach Milt Schmidt admitted. "Now it's a question of putting two of them together."
Boston's first home victory since New Year's night — only their ninth of the season — was the only NHL action Thursday night. The Bruins start a three-game road trip in Toronto Saturday. Other Saturday games pit Detroit at Montreal and New York at Chicago.

Longest pass interception play in the Big Ten last season was turned in by Iowa's Larry Ferguson against Northwestern. He went 70 yards.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Husky Bob Goalby swung into today's second round of the $50,000 Bing Crosby golf tournament with a one-stroke lead and a string of six straight sub-par holes.
The 29-year-old former University of Illinois football player fired five birdies and an eagle as the windup to his first round.
That brought him the lead with a six-under-par 66. Right behind him at 67 were defending champion Ken Venturi, Howie Johnson, Dave Hill and Bill Collins.
Deadlocked at 68 were Jack Burke, Jerry Barber, Dave Ragan, and at 69 were Dick Stranahan, Sam Reynolds, Dow Finsterwald, Lionel Hebert, Al Balding, Walter Burkemo, Ted Kroll and Bob Rosburg.
Warm, sunny, windless weather provided the chance for low scores and no less than 39 fired sub-par first rounds.
Goalby, one-over-par through the first 12 holes, said, "I was just trying to shoot 70. I figured that was about the best I could do."
Playing the Monterey Peninsula course, he had missed the greens at the fourth, seventh, and tenth holes.
At the 13th, he sank a six-foot putt for a birdie and added another at the 14th with a four-footer.
Arnold Palmer, golfer-of-the-year in 1960 and winner of last week's San Diego Open, kept in contention with a first-round 70. Art Wall, the top player of 1959 and that year's Crosby champ, had a 73. Gene Littler, runner-up in the Crosby two years ago, also KINSTON — An undefeated Kinston Red Devil five, averaging 72 points per game, will be favored to win its 11th straight tonight when it entertains up and down Greenville.

The Red Devils will be playing with scoring and rebounding star Everett Cameron. The sharpshooting center was averaging 18 points and 19 rebounds per game.
The other four starters—Tommy Mattocks, George Rhem, Jerry Rice, and Pete Watkins—are in top shape and figure to be enough to give Coach Paul Jones a sixth conference win.
Greenville caught fire in the second half Tuesday night to topple Elizabeth City 63-50. It was the Phants' third win in five starts and boosted them into fourth place.
Greenville starters will be John Bynum, Layne Jorgensen, Alan McArthur, Billy James and Erskine Duff.
The loss of Cameron by Kinston may open the door slightly for the Phants but whether or not it will be a big enough crack to pull an upset remains to be seen.

Tomorrow Night

ECC Here Against Pfeiffer

A couple of North State basketball clubs with a wheelbarrow full of problems solve a couple here tomorrow night. East Carolina entertains Pfeiffer in an 8:00 contest.

The basic problem of Coaches Francis Essie of Pfeiffer and Earl Smith of East Carolina is the same—winning basketball games. But it goes a little deeper than this.

The records differ vastly. The visiting Falcons have only two wins to boast of in their first season as a North State member. They are struggling to gain a berth in the Lexington tournament the last of February.

East Carolina has won seven of 10 conference games but the Bucs haven't jelled as many expected. With few exceptions, the club has failed to live up to pre-season billing.

Smith claims his club is still a good one — one to reckon with over the final league standings.

And the Buc mentor, in his second season as head coach, may get the opportunity of laying down the final word. The Pirates slapped Western Carolina in the final of a two-game road trip. The next four outings will see them on the home court with league-leading Appalachian being one of the intruders.

Pfeiffer's entrance into the North State wasn't one that went over with a bang. It lost its opener to East Carolina 71-67 in Misenheimer, and went on to lose nine straight before hitting the win column.

The Falcons are improved over their pre-Christmas showing with an upset of High Point to verify this.

Bill Claypoole, a 6-2 junior, has been their big scoring punch, averaging 15 points per game.

As a whole, the Falcons' offense hasn't been too potent. They are last in the conference with an average of only 59.5 points.

On defense, they rank fifth, three notches ahead of East Carolina.

The Pirates bank largely on the outside shooting of Cotton Clayton and Charlie Lewis, and the inside work of Don Smith.

Smith, the only senior, was slowed down on the western trip but Lewis, the Kinston junior, picked up the slack.

These three, along with Bill Otte and Lacy West will start for East Carolina.

Games at home for ECC following Pfeiffer will be against Western Carolina, Appalachian and Atlantic Christian.

Gametime tomorrow night is 8:00.

Ingo Changing Style For Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Ingemar Johansson is looking for a training camp in Florida and Floyd Patterson is ready to begin bearing down at his Spring Valley, N.Y. quarters now that the financial details for their March 13 fight in Miami Beach have been settled.

Johansson and Patterson signed an agreement Thursday to box for the third time in the Convention Hall at Miami Beach, having already entered into satisfactory agreements with Feature Sports, Inc., the promoters. Each signed for himself.

The agreements call for Patterson and Johansson each to get 25 per cent of the live fight gate. After the closed circuit TV firm takes its cut, Patterson will get 50 per cent, Johansson 35 per cent and Feature Sports 15 per cent of the ancillary rights to theater TV, movies, radio and so on.

Roy Cohn, a director of Feature Sports, predicted the fight would gross $5,000,000 from all sources. Their second fight last June 20 brought in close to $3,500,000. He said the advance ticket orders were about $230,000 and pointed out that the radio rights, sold for some $300,000, brought almost twice as much as the rights for their last bout.

Johansson optimistically figured his end would be about $1 million and Patterson, more conservative, guessed his gross would be around $800,000.

One complication that had held up the actual signing for the fight, announced before Christmas, was Patterson's insistence that there be no segregation at the arena. He had both verbal and written assurance from the city of Miami Beach, plus a $100,000 bond deposited by the promoters to guarantee it.

The champ, first man ever to win back the heavyweight title, said he weighed 198 as compared to 190 for his last fight.

"I expect to be about the same as last time," he said. "I don't expect to change anything."

Johansson, flattened by Patterson's left hook in the third round some seven months ago, said he expected to use his left hand more.

"I know changing styles is dangerous," he said. "But if you can make it better it is good for you."

He said he weighed 205 pounds as compared to 194 1/2 last June.

THE FERGUSON AFFAIR

WHAT HAS HAPPENED William Gunnarson, a young California lawyer, is relating the difficulties in which he entangled himself as the court-appointed defender of a youthful nurse, Ella Parker, who is in jail on a stolen-property charge. She sold a dealer, Hector Broadman, a valuable ring, and he reported the transaction in accordance with police regulations. The ring was identified as a piece of loot whose owners were at the hospital, either as patients or visitors. As a nurse aware of the respective families' goings and comings, Ella had tipped off marauders, and police suspicions of her were strengthened by her refusal to explain how she got the ring and their subsequent discovery of a stolen watch in her home. Ella is no more communicative to Gunnarson than to police.

But his interest in her has been aroused, and he is willing to believe that she is covering up for a gang because of fear. This belief is heightened when a fatal attack is made on Hector Broadman. Shocked by the assassination Ella confessed to Gunnarson that Larry Gaines gave her the ring and watch, after she had had met Gaines through Broadman. She believes that Gaines had Broadman killed. Gaines is still at large, while police seek a discharged clerk of Broadman's, Gus Donato, as the assassin.

CHAPTER 6

There was a police seal on the front door of Broadman's store. I peered through the duty pane. The evening light fell slanting across the furniture and bric-a-brac.

I became aware of voices next door, a woman's voice raised high, and a man's growling under it. I strolled over and looked in through the window of the tannery shop. The man in the white hat was arguing across the counter with a black-haired woman. "But they will kill him," she cried.

"Let them. He asked for it." "What will I do if they kill him?" "You'll be better off."

His eyes were brown liquid slits under his white hat. They widened when they saw me through the glass door. I tried it. It was locked.

"I'm closed, I'm sorry. There's a good place around the corner on Main Street." Then he gave me a second look. "Are you a policeman?" I saw you with Mr. Granada this afternoon."

"I'm a lawyer, William Gunnarson. Could I talk to you a little, Mr. Donato?"

"I have already talked about my brother Gus to the police." The woman had crowded up behind him. She was a young pretty woman, but her face was puffed and discolored with trouble. She said with one hand in her tangled licorice hair: "Tell him nothing!"

"Be quiet, Secundina. You are a fool." He turned back to me, trying to control his feelings.

"I want to talk about your neighbor, Mr. Broadman," I said. "Your ex-neighbor."

Donato didn't seem to hear me. "I have no need for a lawyer. I have no money to pay a lawyer." I guess he was using me to continue his argument with the woman. "If I had money I would go and buy a nice new rope and hang myself."

"Liar," she said. "You have a savings account. And he is your own brother."

"I am his only brother, too. What has he done for me?"

"He worked for you." He mopped the floor and left it dirty. But I paid him. I kept you eating."

"Bit shot!" her mouth curled. "Gus is the big shot. He throws his weight, and I pick up the pieces. This time there's one big piece, a dead man. I can't pick it up."

"But he is innocent." "Like the Devil himself, innocent."

Her teeth flashed. "Dirty liar, you must not say that."

"And Gus is the one who tells the truth? I tell you, I am finished with Gus. He's not my brother. He can live or die. I don't want to know about it." He turned to me. "Go away, Mister, eh?"

"Where is your brother?" "Out in the tules someplace."

How do I know? If I knew, I'd go out and bring him in. He took my pickup." "He borrowed it," Mrs. Donato said. "He wants to bring it back. He wants to talk to you."

"Have you seen him, Mrs. Donato?" Her face closed up. "I didn't say that."

"I must have misunderstood you. Can we go someplace and talk? I have some questions I'd like to ask you."

"What about?" "People you may have heard of. There's a man named Larry Gaines, for instance, who works as a lifeguard at the Foothill Club."

"He eyes became hard and dim and sultry like the glass eyes you see in deer heads. I never been there in my life. I don't know nobody out there."

"You know Tony Padilla," her brother-in-law said. He looked at her significantly.

"Who's he, Mr. Donato?" "Fellow tends bar at the Foothill Club."

"What's he got to do with this?" "Nothing," he said impassively. "We don't, neither. Excuse us now, Mister, how about it? You see what family trouble I got. This is a bad time to visit."

I took a taxi to the Foothill Club and told the driver not to wait. There was a police car with undercover plates among the limousines and sports cars in the tree-shaded sports lot. I was in no mood to talk to policemen. I leaned against the trunk of one of the trees, as far as possible from the police car, and waited for Willis's detectives to come out.

The mere idea of detectives at the Foothill Club was incongruous. It was one of those monumentally unpretentious places where you could still imagine that the sun had never set on the international set. It cost five thousand dollars to join, and membership was limited. Even if you had the five thousand, you had to wait for one of the members to die. And then take a blood test, for blueness.

The members straggling out in twos and threes from the ninetenth hole all looked as if they intended to live forever. One of them wondered audibly what had happened to that nice young pool attendant. A silver-haired man in a white scarf said, with some satisfaction, that the fellow had been fired. He'd made one pass too many at you-know-who, but in his opinion, which his voice cared, the woman was just as much to blame as the lifeguard, what was his name? Too many new faces, slipping standards.

Twilight gathered in the folds of the foothills and rolled like blue fog down the valley, catching in the branches of scattered oaks. The slopes of the golf course dissolved away into darkness.

A car came up the road from town. Its headlights wavered like antennae before it entered the parking lot. I stopped just inside the stone gateposts.

A man got out and strode toward me busily. "Park it, bud." He wore a light suit, a sunburst tie, and a light hat with a band that matched the tie. He had a voice like a foghorn and a breath, when he came up close, like the back room of a bar. "You deaf or something?"

"I was feeling declassified and sultry, but I answered mildly enough: 'I'm not a parking attendant. Park it yourself.'"

He didn't move. "You must be the manager, eh?" Without waiting for an answer, he went on: "Nice place you got here. I'd like to pick up a club like this myself—high class, wealthy clientele, quiet surroundings. I could turn a place like this into a gold mine. How much do you make a week?"

"I have nothing to do with the management of the club."

"I see." For some obscure reason, he decided that I was a member and was snubbing him. He jerked a thumb at his car. "Don't judge me by that—it's just a rental. Back home I keep a four-car garage, nothing in it but the best. I don't wanna brag, but I could buy this place outright, cash on the line."

"Bully for you," I said. "Are you in the real-estate business?" "I guess you could say I am, at that, Salaman's name."

Idaho Did Best Job Of Getting Voters To Polls

NEW YORK (AP) — Idaho with its liberal registration procedures did the best job of getting its voters to the polls in the 1960 presidential election, the American Heritage Foundation said.

Idaho had 80.7 per cent of its voting age residents cast their ballots. The national average was 64.3 per cent.

States with election laws which make it easier to register and vote got more of their citizens to the polls, Brendan Byrne, executive director of the foundation, said Wednesday.

"On the other hand," said Byrne, "consider Mississippi which has the poorest voting record — 25.6 per cent. Mississippi requires two years residence in the state and one year in the election district."

The voting percentages for other states included: North Carolina 34.30, Tennessee 50.39, Virginia 34.37, South Carolina 31.51, Georgia 31.31.

The shortest distance across the Atlantic Ocean is 1,850 miles between Dakar, Africa and the bulge of Brazil.

Wall Streeters were kept away from the city by a heavy snowstorm which started transportation and by strikes on some of the commuter rail lines. The presidential inauguration was another factor which distracted attention.

After a mixed start, the market moved to the upside under the leadership of utilities and selected industrials. The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.64 at 634.03. Corporate bonds were mixed in light trading. U.S. governments were quiet and unchanged.

Sit-In Verdicts Are Upheld By N.C. High Court

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Supreme Court today upheld the trespass convictions of seven persons during a sit-in demonstration and the conviction of a Negro integrationist for leading another demonstration.

The court found no error in the trial of the seven, who included five Negroes and two whites. They were convicted of trespassing last May 6 at the S. H. Kress variety store lunch counter in Durham.

The court also found no error in the conviction of Robert Williams, president of the Union County chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He led a group of Negro teenagers in a sit-in demonstration at a Monroe drug store last March 11 and was convicted of trespassing. Williams was sentenced to 30 days in jail, suspended on condition he pay a $10 fine and costs and good behavior.

The seven defendants were Joan Haris Nelson and Frank McGill Coleman, whites, and John Thomas Arent, Callis Napolis Brown, Shirley Mae Brown, Donovan Phillips and Lacy Carrole Streeter. Coleman, Phillips and Callis Brown received 30-day jail sentences. Streeter got 20 days and Arent 15. Miss Nelson and Miss Brown received a continued judgment.

The court said in its opinion that no North Carolina law "requires the exclusion of Negroes and white people in company with Negroes from restaurants and no statute in this state forbids discrimination by the owner of a restaurant of people on account of race or color, or white people in company with Negroes."

However, it said, in the absence of such laws "the rule is well established that an operator of a privately owned restaurant, privately operated in a privately owned building has the right to select the clientele he will serve and to make such selection based on color, race, or white people in company with Negroes or vice versa, if he so desires."

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — Georgia has a booming new industry—legal moonshine. A Viking Distillery of Albany recently added a new beverage to its line, Georgia moon, a corn liquor guaranteed to be less than 30 days old.

Bottled in a replica of a quart jar—traditional moonshine container—the 90 proof whiskey is distilled to meet government specifications. Sid Wilten, Viking vice president, said it took him three years to get federal government approval to market the gimmick moonshine.

Executive Club Speaker To Tell Of Russian Tour

John W. Crutcher, a former naval lieutenant commander who served in World War II and the Korean war, and whose latest foray was a many thousand mile journey through Russia and some of its satellites, will be the guest speaker of the Pitt County Executive Club at 7 p.m. tomorrow in East Carolina College's South Dining Hall.

The purpose of his recent trip was to analyze the Russian mind and determine what makes the average Russian think and act as he does. He started his tour in the North in Leningrad and went south to Odessa. Then he took a Russian steamer across the Black Sea and went east into Central Asia to within 100 miles of Red China.

All the while, Crutcher was asking questions and jotting down answers; making observations, seeing people in various trades and occupations at work, and even inquiring as to their "politics." It is upon these interviews and observations, plus a three-hour interview with Nikita Khrushchev behind the red brick walls of the Kremlin, that Crutcher bases his address.

A graduate of the University of Kansas and a former personnel interviewer and efficiency engineer for two corporations — Johns Manville and Allis Chalmers—Crutcher is presently engaged in the investment business in Hutchinson, Kan., county seat of Reno, the State's largest wheat-growing county.

He is a past president of the Kansas Reserve Officers Association, past commander of his American Legion post, and has spearheaded various civic groups. Last year he was a close, but unsuccessful candidate for the United States Congress from Kansas's large sixth district.

PAW PAW, Mich. (AP)—Donald Weede, 22, of Lawton, awaited trial today on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He is accused of driving a truck into a parked car in front of the Van Buren County sheriff's office Thursday. It did $200 damage to the car of Sheriff Fred Roper.

NEW YORK (AP)—Numerous survivors of the Mexican jet airliner crash Thursday night said a lack of hysteria probably saved a lot of lives. "The people were excited but there was nothing you could call a real panic," said Patricia Smedley of Hartford, Conn. "For the most part, people were courteous in letting others get out."

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Mexican jetliner which crashed in New York was originally scheduled to be delivered to Eastern Air Lines. "We ordered 16 of them but agreed to give one up as a good will gesture," commented an EAL spokesman in Miami. The $5.5 million dollar DCB was delivered direct to Aeromexico, a national airline, from the Douglas Aircraft Co., last December.
