County Health Director Resigns Post At Meeting

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer
Dr. Georgia V. Mills, Pitt County's public health director since August, 1958, resigned her post at a meeting of the Board of Health here last night.

much dissension even if Dr. Mills would be perfect.
He continued: "I think it's only fair that we give her enough time to secure employment elsewhere and give the county a chance to secure another director."

of allegations that centered around a general theme of uncooperativeness.
Dr. C.G. Garrenton, chairman of the county Medical and Dental Society's Public Health Committee, appeared in behalf of the society. The tuberculosis association was represented by Mrs. Milton V. Clarke and Veterans Service Officer Walter Tucker appeared for the Veterans Commission.

Income Tax Receipts Pace Rise

Sanford Is Told General Fund Collections Well Over January 1960

RALEIGH (AP) — Income tax receipts led the way as North Carolina's General Fund collections during January showed an increase of $6,691,917 over the same month last year.
Revenue Commissioner William A. Johnson reported to Gov. Sanford Monday that General Fund revenue for the month totaled $23,000,853.

Sanford Asserts Goal Is Possible

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—Gov. Sanford says he is convinced that the task of providing North Carolina a public school system second to none "is a goal we can, and must, reach."

No Missile Gap Today In New Pentagon Conclusion

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union have equal strength, the new top Pentagon command has concluded tentatively.
This finding—that there is no "missile gap" favoring the Soviet Union at present—is based on a swift but careful investigation ordered by President Kennedy.

These tentative conclusions emerged from a comprehensive review of strategy, defense weapons and policy ordered by Kennedy as a prelude to strengthening U.S. defenses.
In his State of the Union message Jan. 30 Kennedy said he had ordered the reappraisal of military strategy to meet a coming "period of uncertain risk."

At present, the new Pentagon team appears to be convinced the Soviets do not have more nuclear-tipped missiles than the United States.
Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara is under order to have the military reassessment ready for the White House by the end of the month.

marine construction, increase the force of transport planes for limited war situations and beef up the missile program.
The tentative conclusion—that the Soviet Union does not enjoy a missile advantage now does not rule out a Defense Department decision to seek more and newer weapons.

More Fines Levied On Big Firms In Anti-Trust Case

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Nearly half a million dollars in fines were imposed on 11 giant electrical companies today in a little over an hour as a federal judge continued sentencing antitrust law violators.

on the first four indictments, he fined 11 companies a total of $455,000 and 14 individuals $28,500.
The first sentencing today came for collusive sales of distribution transformers. General Electric and Westinghouse, the nation's biggest electrical firms, were fined $30,000 each.

division, was fined $3,500 (He had received a $5,000 fine and 30-day suspended jail term Monday).
A R. Waechner, Milwaukee, director of McGraw-Edison's transformer sales, was fined $1,500 and Joel Watkins, Troy, Mich., a Kuhlman vice president, $1,500.

Firms Prepare For Big Crowds On 'Dollar Day'

A record breaking crowd is expected for Thursday's Dollar Day, Merchants Association President Larry Averette stated today.

Greenville merchants have been preparing for the event for several days. Special merchandise has been bought for the occasion by some of the merchants, while others are reducing merchandise to offer special bargains to shoppers. Some stores will offer discounts on merchandise sold.

Youth Faced By Arson Charges

MARS HILL, N.C. (AP)—Robert Lee Henry Jr., 23-year-old former Mars Hill College student, has been charged with arson in a series of fires here Sunday night that resulted in an estimated $70,000 in damages to the college campus.

Groans Abroad Over Plan To Limit Duty-Free Buying

LONDON (AP)—President Kennedy's plan to limit duty-free purchases by Americans traveling abroad to $100 drew groans from foreign shopkeepers but American tourists generally accepted the move philosophically.

Almost simultaneous with the Kennedy cut-back program, West Germany announced its long-rumored offer to give the United States more than $900 million in immediate financial help.

The West German aid would be in the form of prepayment of $325 million for military equipment and $587 million in postwar debt over the next 27 years. It carried the condition that the United States wipe out the remaining $200 million in West Germany's postwar debt in settlement of German Assets in America seized during World War II.

Commissioners Agree Add Another Car To Pitt Pool

Pitt County's Commissioners yesterday cut a pair of strings on county-owned vehicles and agreed to add another automobile to the county's pool.

Several appeals have come before the board for individual salary increases, but the commissioners have indicated they feel the county should continue to operate within its established budget.

Commissioner Robert L. Martin of Bethel appointed freeholders Walter Gray, J. R. Bunting and R. E. Reddick to investigate a loss in the Bethel area incurred by a stray dog.

British Gov't Charges Red Spies Based In London Suburb

LONDON (AP) — The British government charged in court today that a small house in a quiet London suburb housed a high-powered radio station transmitting British naval secrets to Moscow.

Attorney General Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller, opening the prosecution of five persons charged with stealing top submarine secrets from a naval research station, said government agents made tests in the house and heard signals coming from the Moscow headquarters of a spy ring.

Manningham-Buller said the Krogers provided the spy ring with its communications center "and possibly acted as its bankers."
Manningham-Buller said detectives had been keeping an eye on Houghton and Miss Gee for several months before they arrested them and Lonsdale on Jan. 7.

Trains Running After Blizzard

NEW YORK (AP)—Plane and rail transportation, hard hit by the weekend blizzard, was reported sharply improved today.
All long distance trains were running, but some lines reported delays ranging up to an hour and a half.

New Bern District Officers Of WSCS Have Meeting

Officers of the New Bern District of the Woman's Society of Christian Service held an executive meeting Friday in Trenton Methodist Church. Mrs. Albert Venters presided.

Mrs. Venters urged all officers to attend the Southeastern Jurisdiction meeting February 21, 22 and 23 at Trinity Methodist Church in Durham. Others interested in attending one day only should choose Wednesday when the evening service will be held in Duke Chapel.

The New Bern District meeting will be held April 20 in Centenary Church in New Bern. Spring sub-district meetings were announced as follows: Jacksonville sub-district, April 25 in Swansboro; Greenville sub-district, April 27 in Vanceboro; Kinston sub-district, May 2 in Trenton; New Bern sub-district, May 4 in Rhems; and Morehead City sub-district, May 11 in First Methodist in Morehead City. Mrs. Venters urged all women to begin making plans to attend these meetings now.

The date of the North Carolina Conference Annual Meeting was also emphasized by Mrs. Venters. This will occur April 11 to 13 in Hays Barton Methodist Church in Raleigh. The theme will be "The Faith That Compels Us."

Alleviating 2 Of Worst Problems

The new arrangement designated by the City Council for voting procedure in Greenville will not answer all the problems involved, but at least the new system promises to alleviate two of the worst problems.

In recent city elections it has been obvious that registration books are outmoded and antiquated. Many names that should have been removed from the books long ago still remain, and many other people who thought they were properly registered have been told on election day their names are not on the books.

By purging the books, as the Council has decided to do, most of the names that should not be on the books—names of people who have died or moved away—will be removed. The names that remain will be arranged in alphabetical order and new names added during the coming registration period will be inserted in their proper places alphabetically.

Such a procedure will eliminate the necessity for a completely new registration, but at the same time it will provide the city with up-to-date registration books for its elections.

By eliminating the old ward registration books and combining the names of all registered voters of the city into one set of books to be used at one polling place, another problem will be eliminated. No longer will poll holders have to search through one set of books after another for a person's name while the prospective voter and others await their turn at the ballot box. Neither will a voter be referred from one polling place to another to seek his name on the voting books. This in itself should eliminate much of the waiting and confusion that has been present at the city's two polling places in recent elections.

The fact that only one polling place will be used in the immediate future may in itself create problems unless city officials see that sufficient poll holders are available on election day to expedite the procedure. Having only one polling place for the entire city rather than several likewise may prove inconvenient from the standpoint of geographic location. In the past, however, the city's two polling places for municipal elections have been located in the same general area downtown, and we assume the one polling place to be designated will be in a central location.

In spite of the handicaps that one central voting place may have, we believe the revisions in the city's voting machinery authorized by the Council last week will offer considerable improvement over the present system.

The registration books will be cleaned up and that in itself should enable individual voters to cast their ballots with less waiting and less confusion than has been the case in the past. Although the new set-up may not prove the ultimate in voting procedures, it will at least be a great improvement over what the city has had in its municipal elections.

Legislators' Feelings Are Not Surprising

Pitt County, over a long period of years, has evidenced its interest in public education both from the standpoint of local support for public schools and from the standpoint of state-wide undertakings for bettering the educational system.

It is not surprising, therefore, that two of Pitt's legislators who will serve in the 1961 General Assembly have positioned themselves squarely behind Gov. Sanford's proposed program for enriching public education. The third of Pitt's representatives in the legislature also has voiced the need for educational improvement although he intimated that he may differ with Gov. Sanford at some points on what the greatest immediate needs of the state are.

The views voiced by Sen. Robert Lee Humber, Rep. Frank Wooten and Rep. Clifton Everett in recent articles in The Reflector, reflect, we believe, rather accurately the general feeling in Pitt County toward public schools. There is, we believe, a feeling on the part of the great majority of the people of Pitt County that the public school system must be considerably improved in the immediate future. With this there is the recognition that such improvement will not be had without more revenue to put into the school program. And there are also differing viewpoints on the course to follow to best achieve the greatest immediate needs of our schools.

Had the people of Pitt County been indifferent toward their schools over a period of years, we do not believe there would be near the concern for public schools on the part of Pitt's elected representatives in the General Assembly. If there was not throughout the county considerable pride in what already has been done to improve the schools locally, there would not be the genuine concern for further school system improvements.

While this and other counties are for the moment watching to see what comes of the school improvement on a state-wide basis, there should also be the recognition that all our school needs cannot be filled from Raleigh. Individual counties and communities must be giving serious thought to local efforts to improve schools while the legislature is determining what can be done from the state level.

Neither 'K' Is Stuffed Shirt

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—The two K's—President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev—have some things in common besides debating Richard M. Nixon.

Neither is a stuffed shirt. Both to some extent, are unpredictable and give their bodyguards the creeps.

They're blunt, have humor, believe in action, and show an interest in individuals.

Khrushchev almost has turned patting babies into a hobby. His antics scared his bodyguards when he was at the United Nations in New York.

He would scoot away, button-hold strangers, pop up in shirt-sleeves on his hotel balcony in full sight of any crackpot with a gun.

U.S. Secret Service men, used to protecting the fairly predictable former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, have their hands full with Kennedy.

He gave them fits at the inaugural ball by jumping boxes to shake hands with friends.

At 2 a.m. he dashed off to a party in a friend's house in Georgetown.

Last week, after a snowstorm, he left the White House for a local theater to see a movie which ended at midnight.

Kennedy, like Khrushchev, is a shirt-sleeves man.

Reporters who were with him during and after the campaign still recall his sitting down with them, coat off, smoking a cigar, chewing the fat for hours.

A week ago he wandered into the White House office of his press secretary, Pierre Salinger, found a newsman there, sat down and talked with him for 15 minutes.

Kennedy has always been informal. Even on his inauguration day he did the unexpected a few minutes before going to the Capitol.

He took a plaque across the street to the home of a woman neighbor as a token of thanks for her kindness in giving hot coffee to newsmen who had been standing for days in freezing cold outside his house.

The day after his election he began arrangements to have his own physician, Dr. Janet G. Travell, treat a newsman who had covered his campaign with an acutely painful, ailing back.

Kennedy later appointed her White House physician, the first woman in history in that job.

Stolid Stalin sat in the Kremlin. Khrushchev, a man of action, bounces around the world, makes speeches, gives interviews, and has turned Russian foreign policy into new, imaginative, and aggressive channels.

Kennedy promised action which began as soon as he entered the White House and shows no signs of letting up.

Both men debated Nixon when he was vice president. Khrushchev in Moscow, Kennedy on TV in the presidential campaign.

The Russian likes bluntness, as he showed when he demolished the 1960 summit conference and ridiculed Eisenhower.

Women Back In Raleigh

RALEIGH — Two of North Carolina's most politically successful women are returning to the legislature eager to begin work on educational measures.

Both Mrs. Grace Taylor Rodenbough, veteran of four previous terms in the North Carolina House of Representatives, is qualified by experience and background to speak authoritatively on problems besetting the University system. She is particularly interested in maintaining the prestige of this institution.

"As long as we slice our funds for the University we stand to lose," Mrs. Rodenbough feels. She hopes to maintain the status and respect the University now has and to retain qualified professors and administrators.

Though a practicing physician in Kinston, Dr. Davis has long been a staunch advocate of increasing the quality of education itself and instilling an even greater respect for education in North Carolinians. "For years I have talked to my patients about educational needs in this state," she says.

"Quality education should apply not only for the gifted child but also to all ability levels," feels Dr. Davis. "The upper 30 percent cannot carry 70 percent; we must look at the whole population's needs."

"I am interested in whatever it takes to do this," is Dr. Davis' answer to a request to discuss types of legislation she has been considering.

Mrs. Rodenbough hopes that in the early weeks of this session the legislature will thrash out problems pertinent to schools. "I have never liked waiting till the rush of the last days to push through such important bills," complains the former Salem college history professor.

From teaching state government in Salem college to becoming a state lawmaker, Mrs. Rodenbough's interest in politics was increased by the fact that two of her brothers, John and Edward Taylor, preceded her in the North Carolina House. Active in the Young Democratic Club spurred her own ambition to participate further.

Dr. Davis' political career formally began when she was appointed by Gov. J. Melville Broughton to the N. C. Commission of Correction and Detention. Though in Kinston her office remains open when she must be in Raleigh for legislative sessions and committee meetings, Dr. Davis explains that other physicians in her hometown attend to her patients.

With a seriousness of purpose matched only by their enthusiasm and willingness to devote themselves to whatever work becomes necessary in the important legislative session ahead, both Dr. Davis and Mrs. Rodenbough will undoubtedly continue to set an example of high standards for other "Freshmen" in the house — men and women alike.

Every school, every home, must become a Freedom Forum.

Well, let's listen to the general opinion on the situation today:

"Only half the men entering the Marines can make a rational explanation of the meaning of the Fourth of July, and fewer can discriminate intelligently among the Constitution, Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence."

"They are aware that communism is bad and that they should be against it, but they don't know what they are against... even worse, most of them are not sure what they are for."

The men in Korea did not know what they were fighting for, and were unprepared to accept or understand the reasons.

This, then, still is a picture of too many young people today—a generation adrift from the basic principles of life and freedom. These things don't come naturally—they must be learned, must become a part of and a way of our life.

The Federation Forums, such as the one just conducted in San Diego, will go a long way to help restore the concepts of patriotism. But, in the end, we must reach down and down through the entire educational system, and finally into the homes, if we are to survive.

Other Editors Saying Let's Restore Patriotism

(San Diego Union)

The Korean-War turned up a basic weakness in America—not of strength but of heart. The blood of many young men poured out over the snow and they died in doubt and bitterness. American prisoners of war succumbed to enemy blandishments in unprecedented numbers.

What was wrong? What had happened in America in the previous decade, or decades, that cut youth adrift from faith and patriotism, that took away their capacity to understand the meaning of sacrifice?

The answer, of course, lies a long way from Korea. It goes back to the universities, the colleges, the schools, and the home—and the waves of attacks on the values of society and the dignity of the individual.

The truth of this was brought home this past weekend to hundreds of persons, mostly young people, who attended the San Diego Freedom Forum.

Two speakers in particular told the story of how it happened.

William Teague, president of Pepperdine College, Los Angeles, told how it began: "It started way back in the early 1930's, when it became fashionable to be liberal in criticism of American economic enterprise and history, and the elimination from textbooks of such patriotic remarks as Commodore Perry's 'Don't Give Up the Ship' and John Paul Jones' 'I Have Only Just Begun to Fight.'"

Maj. Gen. Victor H. Krulak, commander of the Marine Corps Depot, showed the result in Korea: "The Communists alerted us to the knowledge that our fighting man was ignorant of the issues, hopelessly naive in political matters, and unable adequately to defend himself in a dialectical discussion. They proved he

Remedy Not Yet Found

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"Economic News," published by American Institute for Economic Research, starts one of its very interesting bulletins thus:

"Fifteen years ago West Germany stood virtually destitute, stripped of its industrial power, apparently overcropped, ill-nourished, ill-clothed, and ill-housed. Bomb damage estimated in excess of $50,000,000,000, more than 10 times the damage in England, had destroyed much of Germany's industrial plant. Who would have believed that within 13 years the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States and the Under Secretary of State would come to Germany, hat in hand, to beg a little financial help in various ways?"

It is to be remembered that the occupation authorities, Americans included, attempted at the end of World War II to impose on Germany, as it did on Japan, a Keynesian, Fabian Socialist economy. The West Germans, escaped from that. They established sound money, backed by gold and as far as they could, they restored the free market. West Germany's economy is among the soundest in this disordered world.

President Kennedy, in every statement he has thus far made, has spoken of the reading economy of the United States. Some have criticized him for scaring the wits out of the American people; others contend that he is giving us a bad name throughout the world. But, the fact is that our economy is doing quite badly and while it is difficult to get absolute figures, unemployment looks larger than the 5,000,000 figure which the President has given. For in many plants there has been a reduction from five days to four days and even less and although such a worker is regarded as employed, he must also be regarded as unemployed or, at least, in adequately employed.

Undoubtedly the principal error, from the standpoint of our economy, has been the execution of the Marshall Plan and continuing to this day and beyond in various forms of aid. This has involved export of dollars, allocation of gold from our coffers to that of other nations, and the loss of revenue to American industrialists and workers. It is impossible to abolish, at a moment's notice, every kind of foreign aid without antagonizing many more nations which have accustomed themselves to drawing upon us for their needs.

Much that has actually happened was duly described in advance of the occurrence by those who have regarded the entire foreign aid program as misconceived and surely, as very badly handled. Nevertheless, we have gone through with it and now face the position of the man who outlived his own generosity and has to ask for support from those whom he aided. Their reply quite naturally is that they have problems of their own.

These two items, the dollar and unemployment, are not postponable and the solution to them must produce results. Freeing unemployed workers is not giving them jobs. It is not a solution; it is a palliative. Giving out food stamps only puts Americans on the dole. A grandiose program of public works will not provide permanent jobs. This country has had a long and trying experience with welfare state remedies which reduce the dignity of the American individual and tied him to government. We need a better device than a dole; we need jobs.

This is what President Kennedy faces. His program of palliatives will help, but they will not solve the problem which is to produce goods at prices which will make them competitive in the markets of the world, including the American home market.

It is true that the current depression did not start in 1961. The statisticians put it at 1958. It can be traced back, in some phases, earlier than 1958. The accumulation of problems relating to unemployment, inflation, a weak dollar, an inadequate gold reserve, now dumped in President Kennedy's lap. It does not matter that it is not his fault; what does matter is that (Continued on page six)

Proposals On The Unemployed

By ELMER ROESSNER
If the Kennedy Administration and the Congress accept some current proposals for increasing unemployment compensation, the unemployed may be better off than the workers.

The First National Bank's monthly letter points out that the Kennedy task force headed by Professor Paul A. Samuelson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology urged "improved unemployment compensation as a most important anti-recession measure." It quoted:

"Unemployment compensation benefits, so to those who need them and who will spend the money promptly; they also go up at the right time and the right place."

The report also suggested varying benefits that would go up when unemployment is high and go down when unemployment is low.

When unemployment passed 3,000,000, the CGC payment would rise to two-thirds and perhaps to a top of four-fifths of the difference at 4,000,000. At this point—the position we have been in these last six months—the worker who earned the average 1956 weekly wage of $80, and was entitled to a regular (and comparatively generous) payment in that year of $36, would have a total weekly income of $71.29.

There are three essential things that this approach ignores: First, employment involves some personal inconven-ences such as responding to alarm clocks and getting to and from work in fair weather and foul. Second, holding a job involves out-of-pocket expenses, for transportation, meals, proper clothing, union dues, etc.

Finally, the proposal overlooks the fact that unemployment compensation is tax-exempt whereas the worker is subject to withholding taxes which make his 'pay' a mythical amount that has no meaning save as a base for calculating deductions and tax liabilities.

In New York State, for example, a single man or woman working at $80 a week would find a maximum of $63.80 in his pay envelope. He could get himself a raise of 32 per cent by taking Prof. Galbraith's $71.29 a week. If idleness were made so rewarding, it is hard to see how the unemployment rolls could ever be reduced. The problem instead might be to get people to work.

At the moment, the possibility is still remote. However, action on it should be watched because ideas like these sometimes suddenly flower into laws.

Bankruptcies hit a new high in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1960. Commerce Clearing House reported. The total was 110,034. The increase was largely due to the rise in personal bankruptcies, which constituted 94,414 cases.

Garden Club Meets

The Robersonville Garden Club had a Dutch treat luncheon Wednesday noon.

The table was decorated with evergreen interspersed with Nandina foliage and berries. Place cards marked the places of the members and their guests.

Prior to the meal, Mrs. Glenn Norman gave the invocation. The menu consisted of fruit juice, turkey, dressing, asparagus, biscuits, tomato aspic salad, pecan pie and coffee.

The president, Mrs. Wallace R. Roberson, presided over the meeting and she gave a report of the accomplishments of 1960.

The state president suggested "Together We Grow" as the theme for the year. Mrs. Roberson added "Working together makes for success, growth and progress. Let's not be an idle club."

She mentioned the North Carolina Garden School Course 4 to be given in Raleigh February 20 through the 22nd. She stated that the local garden club plans to have advance tickets for sale for the Flower and Garden Show to be held at the State Fair Arena, in Raleigh Feb. 24-28.

Anyone desiring to attend is urged to purchase tickets from the club members. The Garden Club will receive a commission on all tickets sold by its members. This money will be used for the local beautification program.

The meeting was adjourned with the reading of the collect.

Home Demonstration Meets

The Robersonville Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday with Mrs. Stonewall Parker.

Mrs. Lester Roebuck presided over the meeting which was opened with singing "Onward Ever Onward". The devotional by Mrs. Hattie Hardy followed. The Home Agent, Mrs. Helen Hoskins gave a demonstration on "Pattern Alterations" and "Professional Tips".

A report on Home Beautification was given by Mrs. Dalton Brown.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and the treasurer gave her report. Plans for the February Workshop on Hat Making and Clothing Construction were discussed.

During the social hour several lantern selections were played. The hostess served refreshments to 11 members and three guests: Miss Gladys Bailey, Mrs. Henry Herbert Pope and Mrs. Harvey Roberson.

Delta Alpha One Year Old

The Delta Alpha Chapter of Alpha Phi International Fraternity celebrated its one year anniversary on the East Carolina campus this week—February 6.

One of the highlights of the week was the visit from Mrs. Bennett L. Smith of Fort Worth, Tex., president of the sorority. The chapter had a dinner at the college cafeteria and a special get-acquainted meeting in her honor. Mrs. Smith is trying to visit every college campus where Alpha Phi has a chapter during her term as president.

The girls entertained their dates at an informal dance Saturday night at the Rotary Club as part of the weekend festivities.

Mrs. Smith was guest of honor at a luncheon given by Mrs. Ralph Brimley at her home on Eastern Street for the East Carolina Alpha Phi Chapter Advisory Board. Other guests were Mrs. Frank Allen, Farmville, president of the Alpha Phi Alumnae Club of this area, Mrs. John H. Horne, Mrs. James Tucker, Mrs. Claude Goodman, Mrs. John P. Stauffer and Miss Gay Hogan, all of Greenville.

Club Has Get-Acquainted Meet

Mrs. Bill Sermons and Mrs. J. T. Hale were co-hostesses for the Gamma Delta Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha at the home of Mrs. Hale.

A highlight of the meeting was a get-acquainted period, in which each member gave a brief biographical sketch of her life.

Mrs. B. C. Branch, presiding officer, recognized a new member, Mrs. Harry Dudley.

Welfare Committee chairman announced that the chapter would give a party on Valentine for the children at the Trainable School.

QUICK DRYER

Dry freshly laundered handkerchiefs and other small articles by placing them on a small rack over the top of a floor lamp. The heat from the lighted bulb will dry them.

Wilson of Robersonville attended the ordination.

Book Club

Mrs. David Grimes Sr. was hostess to the Book Lover's Club Tuesday afternoon.

Red berries, greenery and potted plants were used to decorate the living room and the den.

The president, Mrs. Vance Roberson opened the meeting and presided over the brief business session.

Mrs. Grimes presented Mrs. Nathan R. Roberson whose subject was "Churches of Our Community" which was a repeat of the very interesting program that she gave last November in the Ex Libris Club. The speaker showed a hand-drawn map which gave the location of each building.

Following the exchange of books the hostess served a sweet course salted nuts and coffee to the members and her two special guests Mrs. Oscar Smith and Mrs. N. R. Roberson.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. C. Abraham Roberson.

Favorable Reaction Given Plans To Curb Gold Flow

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's program to halt the flow of gold abroad is winning favorable reaction on Capitol Hill. By his proposals sparked a new controversy over foreign aid spending.

Robertson said he is satisfied that foreign aid outlays could be cut $1 billion without hamstringing the program. He said all of Kennedy's wide-ranging proposals "can be helpful if Congress also will avoid rushing pell mell into a program of heavy spending."

expand the necessary corrective actions initiated by President Eisenhower. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N. Y., said that to accomplish anything Kennedy's program would have to be "backtd up by vigorous and effective economic policies at home."

'Triple Play' In Planting Fish

LANGLEY AIR FORCE BASE, Va. (AP)—Striped sea bass from Virginia's James River were transported to Kentucky Lake on the Tennessee River by a triple play. The fish, which live part of their lives in salt water and part in fresh, were collected by the Virginia Fisheries Laboratory.

Sit-In Pressure Being Centered On Rock Hill

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP) — This South Carolina city apparently has been selected as a focal point where pressures of the entire Negro student sit-in movement will be applied. Four Negro students who were arrested Monday on charges of trespass said they would go to jail rather than post $10 bond.

Hausfraus Irked By Dull Work

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—German women complain that their life is just one dull chore after another. When the German Home Economics Institute took a poll recently, 92 per cent of the married men said they were happy at home. And ninety per cent of the women called their lives slave existences.

The Philippines Look On SEATO As Dismal Failure

SPACE CHECK — This is one of the remote-controlled rotating aerials set up at Winkfield, Eng., to track U.S. satellites and to follow the first British satellite.

Editor's Note: Jim Becker, AP chief of bureau in Manila, has been reporting Asian and Pacific affairs since the Korean War from many points. He was recently in Bangkok to cover SEATO meetings on the Laotian crisis and returned to Manila in time to report the meeting of the anti-Communist Asian foreign ministers. Now in Manila for the visit of President Carlos P. Garcia, he writes of acute Philippine discontent with SEATO.

By JIM BECKER
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) — The Philippine government thinks SEATO has collapsed and is ready to write it off as an ineffective anti-Communist force in Asia. Filipino leaders think the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization might not survive its March meeting. This was learned as Foreign Secretary Felixberto Serrano and other Philippine officials arrived to prepare for a state visit Wednesday by President Carlos P. Garcia to this neighbor Southeast Asia nation. It was learned Serrano bluntly told the U. S., British and French ambassadors in Manila that his government feels SEATO has failed to meet the Laotian crisis because it has not driven back the Communists there. Serrano's government thinks

Britain and France have paralyzed the organization and fear that the United States may be bowing to its NATO allies in Asia. Philippine officials also fear some sort of "sellout" to the Communists in Asia on the issues of Laos, the Nationalist Chinese offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu and the possible admission of Red China to the United Nations. Serrano may be brewing in exchange for a settlement with the Reds in Europe.

Serrano it is understood, is planning to go to Bangkok next month for the SEATO foreign ministers meeting prepared "to call a spade a spade." He reportedly will urge the anti-Communist nations of Southeast Asia to replace SEATO with separate defense treaties with the United States, thereby bypassing Britain and France.

It is understood these views are shared by South Korea, South Viet Nam and Nationalist China, and possibly Thailand, which is one of the three Asian members of SEATO along with the Philippines and Pakistan. These nations are opposed to the British-sponsored plan to restore the international armistice commission for Laos composed of Poland, Canada and India. They fear it would mean a halt to American aid to the anti-Communist forces in Laos and a same time would make easier Communist penetration of the strategic kingdom. The Philippine and Malayan governments already have proposed formation of a new association of Southeast Asian states. Reports from Bangkok today said Thailand's Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman, would come to Kuala Lumpur next weekend to join Malayan Prime Minister Abdul Rahman and Serrano in talks about the proposed group.

Retired Experts Organize; Give Help As Needed

ATLANTA (AP) — Senior citizens looking for a useful way to occupy their idle hours might do well to follow the example of Charles R. Younts, retired board chairman of the Plantation Pipe Line Co. Younts had scarcely vacated his position with Plantation when he organized Retired Associates, an organization with a two-pronged mission.

"We work for nonprofit and charitable institutions at no cost to them," Younts explained. "We" includes an electrical engineer, an accountant, a construction engineer, and a building contractor, plus a list of other specialists ready on call. So far, Retired Associates is limiting its activities in behalf of four organizations — Churches, Homes for Business Girls, Southern Area YMCA, the Blue Ridge Assembly at Asheville, N.C. (owned by the YMCA) and Erskine College at Due West, S.C.

Retired Associates saves Churches Homes thousands of dollars yearly in maintenance work. The organization is a nonprofit, nonsectarian undertaking which provides a homelike atmosphere with parental-type controls for hundreds of girls who come to Atlanta to work or attend school. When Younts relinquished the reins at Plantation he felt compelled to remain active. "If an old warhorse who's been in the harness all his life ever stops, brother, he just withers," Younts said. "And the first thing you know, some person is giving the old boy's funeral sermon."

"If a retired man has a continuing interest chances are he'll keep going strong. So any retired executive who joins us is really doing himself a favor. "But it's really more than that for all of us. I've always believed a person should do something for his God. Now I have the opportunity to do something full time."

Owed $2,955 On An Overdue Book

BENTON, Ill. (AP) — A book checked out of the Benton library in 1879 was returned recently during a drive to find books long overdue. Fines were suspended during the campaign but under rules of the old Benton Library Assn. a total of $2,955 would have been owed on the book. The 19th Century novel, entitled "Pretty Mrs. Gaston," was found in the attic of George Powers, a member of the Benson Library Board.

Bees And Snake Guarded A Still

CAMDEN, S. C. (AP) — When raiders hit a big still near Camden, they found the human operators had fled leaving some natural guardians behind. First, a flock of bees, apparently tipsy from the mash, attacked. The officers countered with a smoke screen. Then, from under the mash barrel, came a water moccasin, too much under the influence to crawl straight. The snake fell into the nearby creek and floated off downstream — too drunk to swim, said a raider.

PHYSICIAN — Dr. Janet G. Travell, 60-year-old New York doctor of orthopedic medicine, is the new White House physician and first woman ever to hold that post.

Very Sick Gorilla Merely Suffered Human Ailment

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Mike sat in his zoo cage, holding his head in his hands. His veterinarian despaired. Mike was a big, sick kid, and he can thank the Creator that his tummy is built much like that of any other kid. He also can thank confused zoo employees. Mike is Forest Park Zoo's only gorilla. Several weeks ago he had his flu shots. He also became ill. He got the standard treatment for flu shot after-effects but that didn't help. Dr. C. D. Bourke, the veterinarian, gave him all the antibiotics but Mike just got sicker and sicker. His digestive tract was upset and he wouldn't eat. He just held his head.

Dr. Bourke made lab tests but found nothing in veterinary books about the ailment. Zoo director Lawrence Curtis had placed a call to an internal medicine specialist to discuss an employee's illness. When the physician called back, an office worker wasn't even thinking about Mike. So she filled in the doctor on Mike's symptoms, forgetting to mention that Mike is a gorilla. If the man was that sick, the doctor said, he'd be right out. Well, the doctor got there, and by the time identifications were

Twenty Taking Pre-Induction Exams Today

Twenty men were forwarded to Raleigh today for armed forces pre-induction examination. It was reported by Mrs. Selma Rogers of the local Selective Service office.

Eleven men who have failed to report for examination are Edward Earl King, James Earl Dixon, John Robert Green Green, Jesse Lee Givens, Mack Harris Dupree, Newton Clemons, Jr., Samuel Louis Ebron, Sylvester Junior Brown, Percell Ridley, William Earl McGlone and Samuel Thompson.

Anyone knowing the address or whereabouts of any of these men is asked to contact the local board at once and give any information concerning the whereabouts of these men. This will avoid the local board having to declare these men delinquent and therefore order them for immediate induction into the armed forces. If they are ordered for induction as delinquents. After they are located by the F.B.I., they may be prosecuted for violation of the Selective Service law, which requires that every man notify his local board of his correct address at all times and report for any examination or induction.

Violation of the Selective Service law is punishable by fine or imprisonment or both.

Two registrants who have failed to report for induction are Bobby Gene Ross and Joseph Everett, which automatically makes them delinquent and they are being reported to the U.S. attorney as such, the local board reported. Anyone knowing of their whereabouts should contact the local board.

The local board has made an effort to contact the following registrants to get current information as to their status but has been unsuccessful. Unless these men contact the board at once, they will be declared delinquent and ordered for immediate induction.

These men are: David Dixon, Jr., Garland Rudolph Little, Charles James House, Jr., Melvin Lee Tyson, Curtis Donald McCray and Johnnie Junious Jordan.

Little People Adjust To World Of Larger Sizes

By CHARLES L. WEST
BLACK MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP)—To drink from the office water fountain, Danny Turner places a chair leg on the fountain's foot pedal, then climbs onto the chair to reach the water tap.

Danny, a 35-year-old state highway engineering aide from Black Mountain, is only 4 feet, 5 inches tall.

The fountain is just one of the many adjustments he has had to make in a lifetime of looking up in a world sized for big people.

"Actually, I have led a pretty normal life," says Danny. "I have grown accustomed to it."

Many of the nation's 3,500 midgets and dwarfs, however, have not adjusted themselves so readily to their size. That's why Little People of America was formed. Danny is president.

"Some won't face reality and shy away from meeting the public," Danny explains. "We try to get these people out of their shells."

Little People's purpose is to provide job opportunities, job training, education and social contacts for the nation's diminutive citizens. Danny, one of the 30 charter members, was chosen vice president at the organizational meeting in Reno, Nev., in 1957. He moved up to the presidency at Little People's second meeting, last November in Las Vegas, Nev.

For four days, 125 delegates ranging from 3-foot-7 to 4-foot-10 swarmed over the nation's gambling mecca.

"We had free rooms and the meals were half price," Danny continues. "They had special stools for us to reach the arms of the one-arm bandits and they had ramps to the dice tables."

Despite the circus atmosphere, the convention established three $500 scholarships, ironed out organizational details and made plans for reaching more of the citizens under 5 feet tall.

"We want all the little people in America to join us. We're a growing organization," Danny quips.

Danny is a bachelor. His parents three brothers and sisters were of normal size. "I didn't reach my full growth until I was 30," says Danny, who weighs 93 pounds.

His size has meant solving quite a few problems in the day-to-day business of living.

"Telephone booths. I always have trouble at a pay station," he explains, "getting up to drop in the coins."

"Little cars are no help. They're built for big people."

Furniture, business equipment, the list is endless.

"Clothes, for instance. I have to have all my clothes tailor-made. I can't buy at a boy's department. They're just not suitable. I want to dress like a man."

But there are some compensations.

"I went for half fare until I was 20 years old, movies and buses and everything," Danny says. "I don't know whether I ought to say that though. All those guys are going to be asking me where the rest of their money is."

Senators Will Be Consulted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bert L. Bennett, North Carolina Democratic chairman, says state party leaders want it clearly understood that (National Chairman John M. Bailey will communicate directly with the state's two senators when considering federal patronage posts.

Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., said Monday after a Democratic National Committee meeting here that postmasterships would be an exception. Ervin said, "Postmaster patronage belongs to the congressman from the district in which the post office is located."

On such matters as federal judges or district attorneys, however, Bailey was told to communicate directly with either Ervin or Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C.

Ervin said he and Jordan would work with Bennett, of Winston-Salem, in making job recommendations. Bennett said state leaders in the party want "no crossfire of purposes that will prevent the state from putting people in federal jobs."

The North Carolina group said two women, Mrs. Charles W. Tillett of Charlotte, N.C., and Connie B. Gay, now of Washington but formerly of Lizard Creek, N.C., has been recommended by all at Monday's meeting for respective posts at the United Nations as ambassador to the Virgin Islands.

Sanford Begins Safety Campaign

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Sanford has launched his highway safety program with the formation of a new organization aimed at reducing traffic fatalities.

Sanford met with a gathering at the Executive Mansion Monday and announced later that the North Carolina Traffic Safety Council Inc. had been formed.

The chairman will be Alex Galloway of Winston-Salem, president of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. Some other top business leaders are on the council's list of officers and directors. J. M. Wasson of Charlotte, a vice president of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., is vice chairman.

The council's goal the first year is to save 100 lives.

The group which met with Sanford agreed to raise $150,000 to set up an office and full-time staff.

Sanford told the group he has been concerned about highway safety for a number of years. He said, "It seems to me we ought not to put up with the death of 1,000 people a year on our highways. Every state has been looking for a fresh approach to this problem. I think if we can devise a plan that can save lives, we will have made not only a contribution to the state but all over the country."

Quits Post Over Night Club Stay

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—City Attorney Olavi Hendrickson has resigned his $17,500-a-year post, saying he was sorry if his eight-hour stay in a night club embarrassed the city.

Hendrickson, 46, said he was at the club to collect information about legality of its operation.

"I understand I may have been over-zealous — over-enthusiastic," he told the commissioners Monday.

Hendrickson and an aide left a $72 unpaid bill at the club, but they said the management had refused to let them pay it.

Eight Ambassadorial Choices Said Made By Administration

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times said today it is understood in Washington that President Kennedy has instructed the State Department to seek agreements of the governments concerned for the following ambassadorial appointments:

Belgium — Douglas MacArthur

II, who has been ambassador to Japan since 1957.

Spain—Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, now adjutant general of Pennsylvania and former minister to Norway and ambassador to Poland.

Denmark—James Graham Parsons, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs since 1959, and minister in Tokyo from 1953 to 1956.

Switzerland—Earl E. T. Smith, Palm Beach, Fla., financier, and ambassador to Cuba from 1957 to 1959 under former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Smith, a friend of the Kennedy family, is a former chairman of the Palm Beach County Republican Committee.

Ireland—Grant Stockdale, former administrative assistant to Sen. George Smathers, Florida Democrat, and now a real estate dealer in Miami.

Iran—Henry A. Byroade, former ambassador to Egypt and most recently ambassador to Afghanistan.

Morocco — Tyler Thompson, ambassador to Iceland since January 1960.

United Arab Republic—G. Frederick Reinhardt has been asked to remain at his present post.

The story also said it is understood that Secretary of State Dean Rusk, with the approval of the President, has asked H. Freeman Matthews, present ambassador to Austria, to remain in Vienna for the time being.

Business Notes

AYDEN — Pharmacist B. B. Reinhardt has moved his family to 307 Montague Ave. in Ayden where he will be permanently associated with Purser Drug Store.

Trim Prices On Long-Held Leaf

RALEIGH (AP) — The Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. has announced price cuts on the oldest flue-cured tobacco it has in storage in hopes of channeling it into trade.

Lloyd T. Weeks, general manager of the corporation, said Monday the reductions on the 1955 and 1956 stocks being held under government loan are 7 1/2 to 30 per cent below 1960 levels.

"These reductions should move a substantial quantity of the tobacco this year," Weeks said. Stabilization holds 152.7 million pounds of the 1955 crop and 127.9 million pounds from the 1956 crop. Much of the tobacco from these crops came from "discount" varieties which failed to gain acceptance in world trade.

Weeks said the 1955 crop reductions from last year's base prices amount to 15 per cent on grades considered primarily domestic, and 20 to 30 per cent on the export type.

For the 1956 crop, reductions are 7 1/2 per cent for the domestic type and 10 to 12 per cent on export grades.

If the stocks from the two crops are sold at these prices, Weeks said, government loans will be $39,315,000 for the 1955 crop and $10,770,000 for the 1956 crop.

He noted, however, "There would be no loss of principal on the 1956 crop and a loss of $18,600,000 principal on the 1955 crop."

"If these crops aren't sold this year," Weeks declared, "the government stands to lose more money next year."

SAFE SAFES

MYSTIC, Conn. (AP) — Two safes at a local jewelry store were really safe. After fire raged the store, the safes were fished from the wreckage. More than $10,000 worth of jewelry, watches and cash was recovered virtually unharmed.

More than one-third of the male doctors in America earn more than $20,000 a year, according to a recent survey.

Wabash, Ind. was the first city in the world to be lighted by electricity.

NOT IN ORBIT — Silicon rectifiers to improve TV reception appear to be orbiting around Helen Marinella in this display at manufacturing plant in Lodi, N.J.

Woman Invokes Equal Pay Law

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California women doing men's work for less pay had reason today to hope for improvement.

Marjorie Freeman, until recently a publicist for the Bank of America, won her case Monday in the State Division of Industrial Welfare. She charged that her $465 a month at the bank was $215 a month less than that of two fellow publicists—males—in the same department.

Marie Melrose, a field agent for the division, held that Mrs. Freeman's performance was equal, if not superior, to that of the men. Mrs. Freeman was the first woman to successfully invoke the 1949 equal pay statute.

Dessert And Coffee For Eight O'Clock

INVITE FRIENDS over for dessert and coffee; then treat them to an ice cream cake with chocolate brownie base put together shortly before serving.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Newsfeatures Food Editor

WANT A SIMPLE way of entertaining? Invite friends to come at eight o'clock in the evening for dessert and coffee. This idea was wildly popular some years ago. It's worth reviving.

Fine fare for this occasion is a wintertime ice-cream cake. A recipe we tried recently is made with a chocolate brownie cake base and topped with three kinds of ice cream—vanilla, chocolate and mint.

If you prefer other ice cream flavors, make sure their colors are compatible. You want this dessert to look pretty as well as taste good. We've tried substituting coffee ice cream for the mint. If the coffee variety isn't available or you don't care for it, two layers of either vanilla or chocolate might be used.

You can serve any of these combinations with a chocolate sauce. We found this sauce recipe made enough to offer with plain ice cream for those dessert addicts who appreciate second helpings. Put this ice-cream cake together shortly before serving so the cake base won't get too hard. It should defrost in about the time it takes the ice cream to get soft enough to eat easily.

PARTY ICE-CREAM CAKE
3-4 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 squares (2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate

1/2 cup butter
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
3-4 cup chopped walnuts
1 pint vanilla ice cream
1 pint chocolate ice cream
1 pint pink or green mint ice cream

Sift together to flour and salt. Melt chocolate and butter over hot water. Beat together until thick the eggs and sugar; beat in the melted chocolate and butter. Stir in flour mixture until blended, then fold in walnuts. Turn into a buttered round 9-inch layer-cake pan. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 25 to 30 minutes. Place on wire rack to cool, then turn out. Spread vanilla ice cream over top of cake; freeze until firm. Spread chocolate ice cream over vanilla ice cream; freeze until firm. Spread mint ice cream over chocolate ice cream; freeze until firm. Serve with chocolate sauce.

CHOCOLATE SAUCE
1-3 cup butter
1 box (1 pound) light brown sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1-4 teaspoon salt
2 squares (2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate
1 cup evaporated milk (undiluted)

Melt butter in a saucepan over low heat. Add brown sugar, corn syrup and salt; stir constantly until sugar dissolves. Add chocolate and stir until melted. Slowly add evaporated milk, stirring constantly until smooth. Serve warm or cold. Makes 3 cups.

Mrs. J. E. Ethridge, international relations leader of Mapleville club in Franklin County, recently decided that she would like to know more about foreign countries. She called the other leaders together and assembled a kit of material for each club.

Miss Lillie Mae Dean, home economics agent in Franklin County, says the kit contains written material on customs of the country and the people, a devotional thought, flowers and fruit characteristic of the country, plus a native recipe. These reports will be given at each club.

Selection of Coats and Suits
The 4-H girls in Anson County recently learned signposts for good buys when shopping for a new coat. Miss Rebecca Leonard, assistant home economics agent, reports the girls were urged to plan, shop around, and look for quality and good workmanship.

As a follow-up, Miss Leonard conducted a clothing workshop for junior 4-Hers. They learned to trim patterns, measure and fit. Some principles of simple construction were given.

Use Canned Foods Wisely
How do you judge a wise buy in canned foods? Miss Mary Cornwell, home economics agent in Haywood County, recently gave helpful hints to observe when using canned foods.

Miss Cornell stressed values of canned foods from: (1) nutritional standpoint; (2) economy measure; (3) variety of ways to use canned foods; (4) storage of both commercial and home canned products; (5) and inventories of canned foods for time savers.

Selection and Care of Shoes
"In the selection of shoes proper fit is most important," said Mrs. Lois Britt, assistant home economics agent in Duplin County, as she showed 4-H club members how to select shoes.

Club members were shown how to properly fit shoes and care for them. Airing, oiling of soles, polishing and waxing of shoes was demonstrated.

Interest Grows in Entomology
Do you know the difference in insects that are destructive and those that are beneficial? The 4-H girls in Beaufort County are learning how to make an insect collection.

Miss Sue Ormond, assistant home economics agent, reports that in order to make an insect collection, you need a killing jar, insect net, storage box, display box, identification labels, and a knowledge of how to pin insects.

Care of Shrubby and Trees
Since February is a good month to take a look at those trees and shrubs, Home Demonstration club women in Rowan County have been learning care and maintenance of shrubby and trees.

Miss Edith Hinshaw, home economics agent, says the women learned how to plant, fertilize, prune and thin, and to recognize diseases and insects.

Free Enterprise Bumps Into The Organization Man

ORPHAN FOURSOME—Two lion cubs, abandoned by their mother after their birth in November, join two hyena pups whose mother refused to feed them at zoo in Amsterdam, Holland. Keeper Henk Nijdam, who has fed them by bottle, holds them on his lap.

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Free enterprise is bumping squarely into the organization man in federal court here. He has been handling competition as his electrical equipment company apparently wanted, with the least pain to anyone involved—unless maybe the customer. In many cases the organization man—he doesn't ask why, he just follows policy—has even been seeing that the little fellow in his industry gets a share of the business. The federal court collision between free enterprise as set forth in the antitrust laws and what some regard as merely realistic business practices leaves a nagging question. How widespread is the custom of price-fixing and market-dividing in other industries beside the electrical equipment one under fire? Is it a practice only of a giant industry of nationwide scope, or does it extend into the field of small businesses in small areas secretly making competition less of 20 to be passed on, Chief Judge J. Cullen Ganey of U.S. District Court has imposed fines of $921,500 and sentenced seven executives to 30 days each in jail. Pleas of attorneys for leniency stressed that the men were doing what they thought best for their companies, or what they thought everyone else in the business might be doing, or what they thought they must do to hold their jobs. Or that they had followed, as good organization men should, the pattern set by their predecessors.

The public is interested either as taxpayers who put up the purchasing money, or as customers of the companies who bought the gadgets and presumably passed along their prices in final charges. The big fines in federal court—and even more sensational, the jail sentences—are the headlines. But what businessmen have been talking about ever since the indictments and the guilty pleas is this: Could other industries be under investigation? Is the practice of quiet understanding widespread throughout business, big and small? In other words, just how free is our free enterprise?

Rumor Negro Was Enrolled By Error

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP)—Mid-term registration at the University of Mississippi ended today amid campus rumors that a Negro had been accepted by mistake.

According to the report, one faculty member said attorneys for the unidentified Negro were prepared to see a federal injunction if Gov. Ross Barnett attempted to close the segregated university or prevent the Negro from attending classes.

The rumor spread after university officials declined to comment on an earlier report by an unofficial source that five Negroes had applied for admission. Of the five, three were said to have been rejected and two others were under consideration. State highway patrol cars were stationed on roads leading to the campus. Patrolmen were seen at several points and students said two were at registration lines in the gymnasium. The university has approximately 5,000 students. The governor, University Chancellor J. D. Williams and other school officials declined to comment on the reason for stationing highway patrolmen in the campus area. "It is for the best interest of the state for me not to make a statement," Barnett said in Jackson.

CAMERA in style

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

An entirely new method for making practically instantaneous contact prints in normal room light without conventional dark-room apparatus or skill has been introduced to this country.

The new device, called "Rollaprint," was invented in France. It consists of a small plastic box in which a special contact paper, given an exposure in the normal way through a negative, is rolled through to make a finished print within ten seconds. The print comes out a bit damp but it is fixed or "stabilized" and requires no further washing.

The plastic box, about nine inches long, six inches wide and three inches deep, is its own compact, automatic darkroom. Lifting a hinged lid on its left side reveals a contact printer. The right side has the self-contained darkroom. Let's examine it: On top are two grooves about four inches long and one-half inch wide. A roller handle is on the upper, right hand side. The top of the plastic box, with the grooves and handle, comes off. When we turn it over, we see three sets of double rubber rollers, hooked up together through clockwork plastic gears. Turning the handle, turns all the rollers but only in one direction: clockwise.

On the bottom section of the plastic box is a removable plastic tray, divided into two compartments. One has a yellow marker; the other a red marker. These compartments are filled with special solutions from yellow and red plastic bottles. The solutions are pre-mixed ready-to-use developer (yellow) and a stabilizer (red) which fixes it.

The special Rollaprint contact paper comes in a package of 100 sheets, each 3 1/4 x 4 1/4 inches. It is not affected by normal room light but is susceptible to sunlight, bright or prolonged light. The negative is placed on the ground-glass, emulsion side up. The paper is placed on its emulsion side down. The hinged lid comes down over them, pressure is applied and the light goes on to make the exposure. (The plastic box has an electric cord which is plugged in first, naturally.) The exposure varies from one to eight seconds, depending on the density of the negative.

The exposed paper is then inserted into the first groove and the handle is turned slowly and constantly. The paper is gripped by the inside rollers, guided through the developer compartment, into and through the stabilizer compartment and then out through the second groove into the right again.

If the print comes out too light or too dark, a new print can immediately be made with more or less exposure, as needed. The Rollaprint process, invented by Els Bauchet et Cie, Paris, makers of sensitized materials, is being distributed in this country by U. S. Photo Supply Co., of Washington, D.C., starting in February. The unit itself will cost under $20. The set of two solutions (cost, $2) will process the package of 100 sheets (cost, $3).

In my tests with the process, I found the 10-second, reappearing of the paper with a finished picture under normal room-light conditions almost magical in effect. After the exact exposure time had been determined, it was like child's play. . . so I let my daughters have fun making prints.

However, I wouldn't say that the finished prints had the same high quality as good, conventional contact prints. These had an overall yellowish tone and some of them

Losses Reduced By Alarm System

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Tallahassee merchants have set up a cooperative alarm system to cut down on losses from worthless checks passers and shoplifters.

When a storekeeper detects a bad check or sees a shoplifter making off with goods, he calls the sheriff's office and gives all the information available about the offender. A deputy calls two merchants and each calls two more and so on until the alarm is out all over town. If the shoplifter or bad check writer tries his tricks at another store, there's a good chance he'll be nabbed immediately.

Young Scientist Studies Cancer

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—Blue-eyed Judy Vary is hoping her 99 white mice will provide mankind with a cure for cancer.

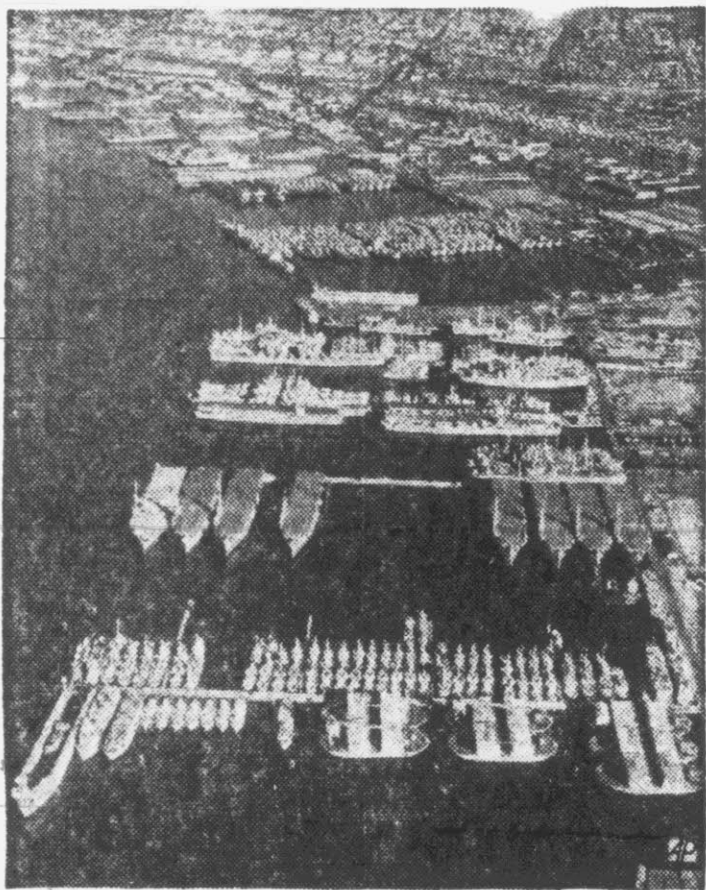

Judy is only a high school senior but she's been working on her project for a year and a half. She has a theory that cancer can be treated with radiation if anti-radioactive agents are injected under the diseased areas. This would protect the surrounding healthy tissues from harmful radiation. She'll test the theory after she finishes the long process of developing cancer in some of the mice.

were mottled and streaked. I will be making further tests and getting more information to see why the print quality isn't better.

SAFETY SLOGAN

STOCKDALE, Ohio (AP)—A truck loaded with caskets passed through with this sign on the back: "Please Drive Careful. Your Casket Isn't On This Load. These Are All Ordered."

The Byzantines anticipated modern rocket warfare with a device employing a mixture of petroleum and saltpetre.

IN RESERVE—Huge U.S. Navy fleet, from cruisers to small craft, rides at anchor at San Diego, Calif. The fleet is ready for quick conversion to sea duty if needed.

PRINT MAKING, in the light, is possible with this new French Rollaprint process. The exposed paper, after a 10-second trip in which it was developed and fixed, emerges as a finished picture from the second groove.

Melody Returns To Top Of Hit Parade In Italy, But Barely

SAN REMO, Italy (AP)—Melody returned today to the top of the hit parade in the land of "O Sole Mio." But the howlers who have been Italy's most popular singers for three or four years were still in there yelling.

The "Melodici" or melody singers, and the "Urtatori" or howling singers, collided in the San Remo Song Festival that annually picks Italy's headline song and songster. A blonde who once dreamed of being an airline hostess and a polio victim who leans on a chair when he sings gave the Melodici their victory.

The winning song was "Al Di La," written by Carlo Donida and Enzo Mogol. "Al Di La" means "Beyond" and the song is a sweet little ditty in which a lover tells his loved one that beyond everything—dreams, the stars, the world, the seas—there is only "you for me."

First Betty Curtis, a 25-year-old Milanese with flashing white teeth sang the song in a husky, sug-ary voice. It was the kind of performance that made her a hit with her first pop recording in 1952, when she changed her name from Roberta Cori.

After Betty, Luciano Tajoli took over. Still without full use of his legs as a result of polio, he leaned on a chair and cooed honey all over "Al Di La." But the howlers came in a rousing second with "Ventiquattro Milla Baci" or "24,000 Kisses." The bouncy cha-cha-cha was howled and yelled vice, once by its composer, Adriano Celentano, and once by a newcomer, Little Tony.

Celentano clowning through the song in a way that put the pro-Urtatori in ecstasy. With a long string-bow tie and his long lean frame, he occasionally yelled his song but more often let the orchestra carry the tune while he knocked his knees together.

Little Tony—real name, Antonio Clacci—handled the song in rock 'n' roll fashion. The teenager, who has the younger set swooning, started his career singing once a week in the Milan jails as a municipal employe hired to entertain the convicts.

The San Remo Festival opened a week ago with 24 songs. Since then Italians have been sending in their votes. Monday night they were counted, and to almost everyone's surprise "Al Di La" won with a massive 708,104 votes. "Ventiquattro Milla Baci" had 679,175.

What was hardest for the howlers to take was the debacle of their heroine, a bushy-haired songstress who calls herself Mina. She was the big favorite before the festival started, singing "Le Mille Bolle Blu" or "Thousands of Blue Bubbles." She finished fifth, with a poor 175,863 votes.

The Melodici had another triumph. The big final of the festival was a previously unknown singer, a fishmonger's daughter who calls herself Miava. She sang "Il Mare Nel Cassero" — "The Sea in a Drawer" — to win 648,776 votes and third place.

Travel-Study Tour Of The Southwest Is Organizing

East Carolina College's 1961 Summer Travel Tour of the Southwestern United States is proving popular. Already the number of applications is well over half the total needed to conduct the tour.

Dr. Robert E. Cramer, Professor of Geography and Tour Director, reports that letters of inquiry are being received daily from many states, and applicants have signed up from as far away as Florida. Four of those joining the tour have been with Dr. Cramer on previous tours he has conducted for the college.

The tour to the Southwest will take place June 4-July 3 during the first term of summer school.

Nine quarter hours of college credit can be earned in either geography or education, and at either the undergraduate or the graduate level. Credits can be applied to work towards a degree or to certificate renewal.

Those interested in the tour, but not needing college credits, may also join the group.

Travel will be by chartered air-conditioned Trailways buses with stops scheduled at first-class hotels and motels. Nineteen states and Juarez, Mexico, will be covered during the thirty day tour.

Some of the highlights include New Orleans, a dude ranch in Texas, Carlsbad Caverns, Juarez, Grand Canyon, Boulder Dam, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Yosemite National Park, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Colorado Springs, St. Louis, Louisville, and the Smokies.

The Southwestern tour, planned as more than a sightseeing tour, will combine education with pleasure. As on the other travel tours conducted by Dr. Cramer, mimeographed sheets will be supplied each day, listing the time of departure and highlights of the day. The geography of the country to be seen that day will be described, as well as points of historic importance.

Also, pamphlets and folders will be distributed along the way to familiarize each student with the state, city, or special items to be visited. In addition, colored slides will be taken by the Director, and duplicates can be purchased or slides borrowed without charge for private showings.

Interested persons are urged to write directly to Dr. R. E. Cramer, Box 307, Extension Division, East Carolina College, Greenville, N. C., for a detailed folder of the tour.

Snow, Sleet, Fog And Rain Strike Tex. Panhandle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow, sleet, rain and fog beset Texas while the Northeastern states labored today to eradicate the drifts of their multimillion-dollar weekend storm.

One to two inches of new snow fell in an area from north-central Texas through eastern Oklahoma and into eastern Kansas. The snow is spreading toward the middle Mississippi and the lower Ohio River Valley. Spared from the new snowfall was Texas' eastern Panhandle, buried under previous amounts up to 12 inches.

Texas had snow as far south as Eagle Pass, near Laredo, where snow is rare. Schools were closed in scores of places.

Clear skies brought relief to the Northeastern states, victims of the weekend storm that left snow as deep as 17 1/2 inches. The seven states hardest hit by the snow reported more than 55 storm deaths.

While the Northeast struggled with snow, Midwest water traffic labored against ice floes that jammed the Great Lakes and the Ohio River. Ice jams closed four dams on 70 miles of the Ohio River. A spokesman of the U. S. Engineers said it was very difficult to move any traffic through the heavy ice. He said the worst stretch was the 180 miles between Marysville and Louisville, Ky.

Temperatures generally were below freezing except for marks in the 40s and 50s in the West from Washington and Idaho southward and in the Southeast. Temperatures in the 60s and around 70 occurred in central and southern Florida.

Jacksonville Man Is Held For Camp Lejeune Robbery

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A 31-year-old unemployed Jacksonville man, Hubert Bryant Newcomb, is being held under $15,000 bond in last Friday's $6,796.33 armed robbery of a laundry route supervisor. The robbery occurred at Camp Lejeune near here.

The FBI, which announced Newcomb's arrest, said Raymond Henry Martel, 27, a Marine sergeant stationed at Camp Lejeune, also was arrested and charged with being an accessory after the fact. Martel's bond was placed at $1,000.

Donald Roney, agent in charge of the Charlotte office of the FBI, said only about $360 of the money was recovered. He said, however, that the FBI expects more of the loot to be uncovered shortly.

U. S. Commissioner C. W. Sum-merlin gave the men preliminary hearing, and they were ordered held for a federal grand jury. Both men spent Monday night in the Onslow County jail in Jacksonville.

In the complaint filed by federal authorities, Newcomb is charged with taking $6,796.33 at gunpoint from a laundry route supervisor, Allen Thomas Bowen.

Martel is accused in the complaint of assisting in concealing the robbery.

Scene of the holdup was a parking area in a remote section of Camp Lejeune. The laundry firm uses the point on the military reservation to collect proceeds from a dozen route trucks which travel the Camp Lejeune area.

Bowen said he had just finished collecting the day's receipts Friday when the bandit, a knitted wool hood pulled over his head, stepped from the woods waving a pistol. The bandit took a bag containing the laundry receipts and locked Bowen and two other employees inside a panel truck. The three laundry men sounded the alarm when they freed themselves several minutes after the man had fled.

The laundry receipts belonged to the College View Cleaners of Greenville. The firm is owned by William F. Smith.

Spot Lost Plane In Wilderness

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U. S. Army plane that has been missing more than a week has been spotted on a 1,200 foot mountain in Iran.

The Air Force said Monday there were no indications around the plane to indicate what happened to the two men aboard. An Air Force search plane discovered the wreckage of the Army plane.

The plane has been missing since Jan. 27. It was carrying Capt. Joseph Thomson of Shreveport, La., and Navy Yeoman Darrell Adair Bost of High Point, N. C.

Scene of the wreckage is in rugged mountain area 100 miles northeast of the Iranian town of Ahwaz. A ground party and a helicopter will attempt to reach the site of the crash.

The Army said the terrain in the area is so rugged it may have to delay the search until spring, if the ground party and helicopter are unable to get through.

Bost's wife is still in Iran. Thomson's wife, Florence, is in Shreveport.

Bost's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alex Bost, live in High Point at 1509 Highland Road.

Draws Prison In Slaying Case

DANBURY, N.C. (AP)—James Lequeel Dodson, 33, of Rt. 2, Walnut Cove, has been given 24 to 27 years in prison in the death of his stepfather, James Matthew (Preacher) Nelson.

Dodson pleaded guilty in Superior Court and was sentenced here Monday for second degree murder in the slaying of the 42-year-old Nelson. The shooting occurred at Nelson's home on Jan. 8. He died two days later in a hospital at Reville.

Only last July, Dodson was released from State Prison after serving 10 years of a 12 to 15 year term for assault with intent to kill his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Griffin of the Sandy Ridge community. Dodson's wife has since divorced him.

Small Wonder Court Was Cold

QUINCY, Ill. (AP)—For nine long winters—ever since the new City County Building was completed—Police Magistrate Edward Moore has presided in a chilly atmosphere.

But Thomas Kelly, the building maintenance engineer, promised Monday things will be as warm as toast in the courtroom from now on.

Kelly removed the wall panels that screen the courtroom radiators and found them functioning while still muffled in their original pacing crates. After Monday's court session, Kelly stripped the boxes away from the radiators and let the heat flow free.

Trample Indiana Five

Buckeyes Roll To Easy 100-65 Big Ten Victory

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer Two Eastern teams, St. Bonaventure and St. John's (New York) already have accepted places in the National Collegiate Basketball championship tournament. And they might as well reserve a spot for Ohio State, even though the Big Ten season is only half over.

The unbeaten Buckeyes, 1960 national champions, vented their wrath over unfavorable comparisons on the Indiana team Monday night and rolled up a 100-65 victory over what had been considered their strongest rivals. "Our players got sick and tired of reading in the papers that they were better than we were last year," Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor afterward explained. Indiana had beaten the Bucks late last season—their last defeat before the start of a winning streak that now has reached 22 games.

Mississippi State continued its strong bid for the Southeastern Conference crown by whipping Tulane 73-59 on a 28-point performance by Jerry Graves while Tennessee knocked once-threatening Florida down into a second-place tie with Vanderbilt. Tennessee handed Florida its second straight loss 83-68; Vandy beat Alabama 73-70. In another SEC surprise, Louisiana State came up with its first victory on the Ole Miss court since 1954—75-69. In the meeting between the Big Ten's big boys, Jerry Lucas of Ohio State had a big edge over Indiana's 6-11 Walt Bellamy. Lucas scored 34 points and helped limit Bellamy to 19. Bellamy, however, grabbed 19 rebounds for the Hoosiers. Coach Taylor called it the best total effort by his team since he has been at Ohio State—even better than the one in the NCAA final against California last spring. As a result of Indiana's defeat, Purdue moved into a third place in the Big Ten standings with a 96-79 triumph over last-place Michigan, gained largely by sinking 40 of 48 free throws. Illinois also passed the Hoosiers by defeating Wisconsin 77-73. In a non-conference game, Michigan State beat Notre Dame 89-74, ending a 24-game winning streak for the Irish on their home floor. Drake ended an even longer home court string for Bradley—46 straight. Bradley now has a 5-2 conference record while Cincinnati, idle Monday night, is 6-2.

Teacher Vs. Pupil In AC Game Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS It will be teacher against former pupil again tonight in the only Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game scheduled. The teacher, veteran North Carolina State Coach Everett Case, will send his Wolfpack into action against Duke, coached by a former Case pupil, Vic Bubas. Duke, the top team in the conference (8-0), will take the ACC's best over-all record (16-1) into battle at Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh. It was at Reynolds Coliseum that Bubas got his initial coaching experience, first as N.C. State's freshman mentor and then as varsity assistant. In all, he spent eight years on the N.C. State staff as a coach, and before that was a star player on Case's Wolfpack squads. Since going to Duke, Bubas has shown he learned well from Case. In his first year at Duke, Bubas' team won the ACC championship tournament and compiled a 17-11 over-all record. This season Duke fortified a veteran team with sophomore sensation Art Heyman and has zoomed to national ranking on the wings of a 16-1 over-all record. N.C. State is in fourth place in the conference with a 4-5 record, and over-all the Wolfpack is 11-7. Tonight's game will mark the fourth meeting of teacher and pupil since Bubas moved to Duke. The record favors Bubas, whose Blue Devils have come out on top three times in meetings with N.C. State. Last year the teams split two games, and in their only meeting of the current campaign Duke won 81-67. All conference teams were idle Monday night. One game also is on the schedule for Wednesday night, North Carolina visiting South Carolina.

McGuire Would Still Like To Have Heyman

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—Back in May 1959 a release from the University of North Carolina Sports Information Office announced that basketball Coach Frank McGuire "landed quite a catch" in an OceanSide High School player from New York named Art Heyman. The university release noted that "the announcement failed to receive the space and attention it deserved in the crowded sports pages." Within a couple of weeks the rangy New Yorker was the central figure in a storm of controversy involving North Carolina and its ancient rival, Duke. It ended with Heyman finally deciding to go to Duke. It was the first major recruiting feather in the cap of young Vic Bubas, who a short time earlier had taken over the Duke job, his first as a head coach after many years on the staff at North Carolina State. Heyman was next heard from in December 1959 when he began scoring points in wholesale clusters for the Duke freshmen. When Heyman first met the North Carolina freshmen, in a game at Siler City, he ended up in a hospital. He was dropped to the floor in a mid-court mixup with North Carolina's Dieter Krause. The furore brought players from both squads streaming onto the court before it was quelled. Heyman, although he missed the last eight minutes, scored 35 points to lead Duke to victory. A hospital check disclosed no serious injury. Shortly after that there were reports that Heyman was quitting school. Duke freshman Coach Bucky Waters conceded that Heyman "had been homesick for New York and a bit unhappy, but we had a talk and straightened out everything." Now a 6-5, 205-pound sophomore Heyman has assumed the role of top scorer and rebounder for an otherwise veteran Duke team that has won 16 out of 17 games and a high place in the national polls. Ironically, Heyman again was a key figure as Duke and North Carolina met last Saturday. Heyman scored 36 points to spearhead Duke's victory in the battle of national powers, but referee Charlie Eckman banished him after a free-for-all broke out with nine seconds to go. Eckman said Heyman threw the first punch that touched off the explosion. Tar Heel Coach McGuire ruefully acknowledges he'd still like to have Heyman on his side.

Johnson Seeking Title Tonight

By WHITNEY MARTIN Associated Press Sports Writer MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The end of the rainbow loomed tonight for Harold Johnson. The 32-year-old Philadelphian meets Jesse Bowdry of St. Louis in a scheduled 15-round bout at Miami Beach Convention Hall, under the National Boxing Association version of the world light heavyweight championship prize. Johnson is rated a 3-1 favorite over his 23-year-old opponent, so anything but a successful quest for the title he has been chasing for years would rate as a distinct upset. Promoter Chris Dundee said he expects a crowd of 6,000 and a gate of $80,000 for the show, which will not be broadcast or televised. Bowdry used two fights as a springboard to the match for the crown taken from Archie Moore by the NBA for failure to defend it within a stipulated time. The St. Louis youth knocked out Freddie Blades and then won a decision over Willie Pastrano. Middleweight Henry Hanke had knocked him twice running before those two bouts. It will be Johnson's second crack at the crown. He was knocked out in the 14th round by Moore in 1954 in the fifth of their meetings, but the only one involving the championship.

Football Stars Honored Again

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Quarterback Norm Van Brocklin, who guided the Philadelphia Eagles to last year, end Joe Bellino, Navy's All-America halfback, were honored Monday night by the Maxwell Football Club. Lenoir Rhyne Wins Again; ACC Dumped

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Hot-shooting Lenoir Rhyne won its 16th straight basketball game Monday night, whipping Newberry College 94-87. In a North State Conference game, Elon cooled off Atlantic Christian 92-78 to move into a tie for third place. All other teams were idle. No games are scheduled tonight. Lenoir Rhyne hit 67 per cent of its shots from the floor in beating the South Carolina team at Newberry. The Bears, who trailed 45-41 at the half, and Newberry are ranked among the better small college teams in the South. Jerry Wells' 26 points led Lenoir Rhyne, now 20-2 on the season. Elon got a 28-point effort from Ken Smith in winning its ninth conference game in 14 tries. Elon over-all now stands 14-9. Dick Knox led ACC with 19 points. ACC is now 6-7 in the conference and 9-9 over-all.

Rubber Game Anybody's Guess

Like the boys in the back room predicted, the second Duke-Carolina meeting was a real classic. It was basketball at its best, making the average fan proud of the caliber of ball played in Dixieland.

The rubber game has the potential of the H-bomb—explosions and all. Even the winner of this one can't be declared the best. A two-of-three series doesn't provide the real authority with two teams of such equal talent involved.

Sports Illustrated had this to say about Carolina's withdrawal from the ACC tournament; "Behind the desire (to withdraw) is a desire to kill the tournament, which Coach Frank McGuire has opposed for years, and a long-range plan to leave the conference for independent status". It is the feeling of many that it might be more to this assumption than wild speculation.

Art Heyman, the Duke sophomore star, accepted the Carolina challenge with the determination of John Kennedy running for an election. He scored 36 points in the Blue Devil victory Saturday.

In the first game, he was a type of "goat" after Doug Moe spun a defensive web around him. The Carolina star was on the other end of the rope this time.

Dougie is still one of the best in the land and ranks pretty high as a mid-court fist-swinger.

EC Defense Perks Up

East Carolina Coach Earl Smith considers himself fortunate in having Wendell Carr, the former Wake Forest cager, as an assistant.

According to Smith, the former Deac Captain is one of the most capable coaches in the conference. This is Carr's second season on the ECC coaching staff.

Defensively weak the first part of the season, East Carolina has made some improvement in past games.

Cotton Clayton did a standout job against Appalachian's Rick Howe and Lacy West put the clamps on AC's Jerry Fritz. Charlie Lewis has also made strides in the least noticed phase of the game.

'Bohunk' Missed At EC-AC Games

While attending East Carolina College for five years, I always looked forward to the basketball games with Atlantic Christian. The games always drained the best from both clubs and student bodies. "The Bohunk Trophy", an old wooden bucket passed along to the winner, was a coveted award. It carried a lot of tradition.

Due to a small outbreak in Wilson last year when ECC students roughed the bucket away from AC, "Bohunk" was all but retired from duty. It is not seen at the games now.

According to old stories, the bucket originated as a good-will token. Through the years it has done more good than bad. Surely, there are ways of handling "Bohunk" rather than banning it from games and passing it along to the winner at a later and uneventful time.

Wilt Pouring In Points Each Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Week to week the National Basketball Association's scoring star reads the same: Wilt Chamberlain.

Philadelphia's still continues to lead the scoring parade with 2,108 points and a 37.6 point average. He also is the most accurate shooter from the field, with a .491 percentage, and is No. 1 in rebounds, with a 27.7 average, according to league statistics released today.

Chamberlain's closest competitor in the scoring race still is Elgin Baylor of Los Angeles, who has scored 1,931 points for a 35.1 average.

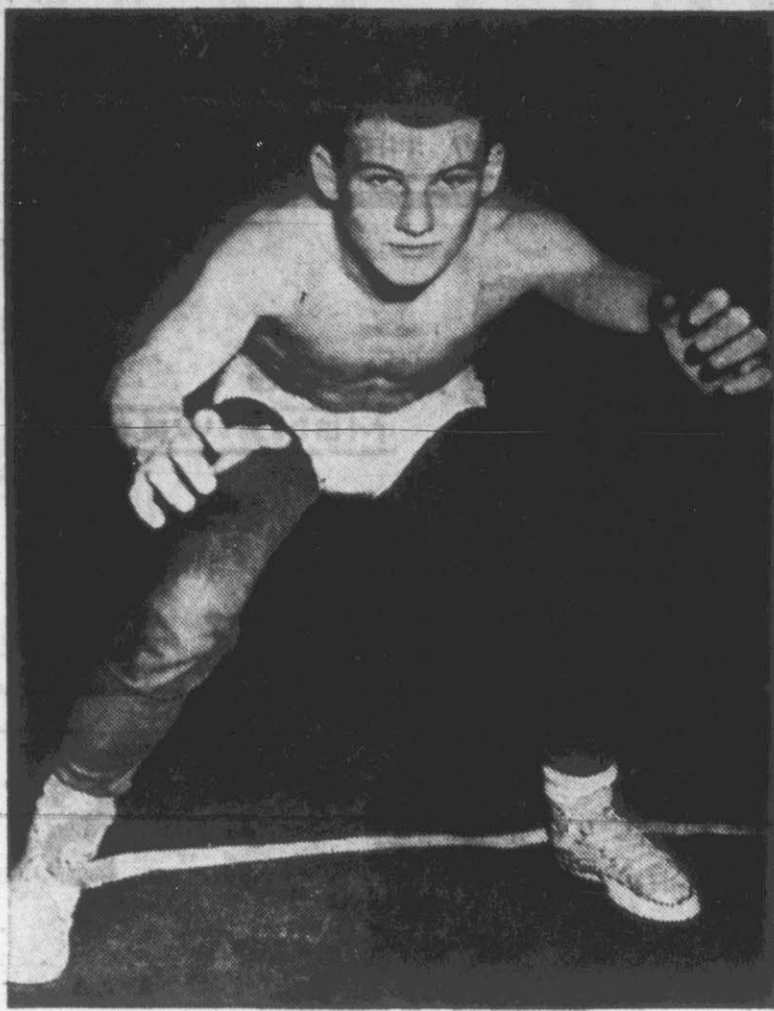

Baylor picked up 35 additional points Monday night as the Lakers whipped the Cincinnati Royals 110-101 in the only game scheduled. Oscar Robertson, the Royals' brilliant rookie, was the game's high scorer with 37 points.

Starting time for the match is 7:30 at the high school gymnasium. There is no admission and the public is invited.

Duke Jumps Into UNC Sixth

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State shut out all opposition for the eighth straight week today in the weekly Associated Press poll to determine the No. 1 major college basketball team in the nation.

It was a 36-0 clean sweep of the sports writers and sportscasters voting from coast to coast. All voting was based on games through Saturday, Feb. 4.

Winner of 16 straight this year and 21 in a row over a two-year span, Ohio State polished off two more victims last week when it beat Wisconsin and Michigan. The Buckeyes added another victim Monday night, Indiana 100-65.

St. Bonaventure almost had a clean sweep of the second-place votes after knocking off Bradley in a Thursday game at Madison Square Garden 75-61. The Bonnies drew 33 seconds. Two went to Duke and one to Mississippi State.

Duke, coming on strong with a seven-game winning streak to match the Bonnies, took third place by a comfortable margin over Bradley which was fourth despite defeats by both Cincinnati and St. Bonaventure.

Cincinnati, which has won 11 in a row after taking only five of its first eight, moved into fifth place by two important victories over Bradley and Iowa.

North Carolina's defeat by Duke 81-77, dropped the Tar Heels to sixth place and Kansas State, winners over Iowa State and Oklahoma, moved up from 10th to the No. 7 place.

Southern California broke even in two games with UCLA last week and remained in eighth position, followed by Iowa and Louisville. St. John's of New York, named Monday to the NCAA tournament, dropped out of the top 10. Cincinnati was the only new entry.

- The top 10 with first place votes in parentheses: 1. Ohio State (36) 360 2. St. Bonaventure 312 3. Duke 274 4. Bradley 172 5. Cincinnati 151 6. North Carolina 148 7. Kansas State 119 8. Southern California 86 9. Iowa 65 10. Louisville 61

Others receiving votes: Mississippi State, West Virginia, UCLA, St. John's, Kansas, Indiana, Vanderbilt, Utah, Kentucky, Memphis State, Wake Forest, Providence, St. Joseph's, Purdue, Wichita.

W. Va. About To Lock SC Title; Scrap Develops

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The most stirring fight in Southern Conference basketball as the 1961 season heads down the stretch isn't for first place in the standings, as you might suppose, but for next-to-last.

For George Washington, Davidson and VMI it's a no-hum matter that West Virginia has just about put a lock on the No. 1 spot in the regular-season race. All they want to do is escape the cellar.

The big reason, of course, is that the ninth-place finisher in the league doesn't get invited to the March 2-4 tournament in Richmond that alone determines the conference championship.

Davidson was the left-out last year, but the Wildcats indicated Monday night they have no intention of missing the trip to Richmond two years running.

After floundering in the basement most of the season, the 'Cats finally chinned themselves up to eighth place and deposited VMI in ninth by beating the Keydets 88-79 on the Davidson court.

The triumph left Davidson with a 2-6 conference record and VMI at 2-5. George Washington, at 2-5, is the non-toe-occupant of the No. 7 rung on the conference ladder.

Davidson has four league games to play, three on the road; VMI has three, all at home; GW has five, four of them on foreign courts.

Bill Jarman and Joe Markee each poked in 24 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to pace Davidson past VMI.

Though only 7-10 for the season over-all, Davidson now has a nifty three-game winning streak going. VMI is 4-12 against all comers.

Two conference teams took on non-conference opposition on the road Monday night and both ended up wishing they'd stayed home.

The Citadel, 12-7 over-all, fell victim to Florida State's late rally and bowed to the Seminoles 83-77 despite Dick Jones' 29-point barrage.

Richmond (8-8) absorbed a terrific 104-73 shellacking from potent Memphis State.

Richmond moves over to Loyola of New Orleans and George Washington (4-10) visits Georgetown in a pair of non-conference affairs that constitute tonight's league schedule.

G-Men Play Here

Greenville tries to end a two-game losing streak here tonight when it hosts Northeastern rival Jacksonville.

Both teams are 3-4 in the conference and tied for fifth place.

The game will start at approximately 8:00. A junior varsity game will get underway at 6:30.

ECC Gunning For Catawba Tomorrow

An opportunity to strengthen its grip on second place and keeping pace with rampaging North State leader Lenoir Rhyne will be the primary concern of East Carolina tomorrow night when it invades Catawba for a league contest.

The Indians fell to East Carolina in a pre-Christmas contest at Greenville but have improved since that time, jumping into fourth place with an 8-5 conference mark.

With new coach Sam Moir calling the shots, the defending league champions have a four-game winning streak going.

East Carolina had a three-game streak going in its favor before losing to Atlantic Christian last Friday night. The Bucs are currently in second place with a 9-4 work sheet.

Catawba has a short team, as far as basketball standards go, but have been dangerous with their slow-down and deliberate style of play.

The slow-down tactics, used last season in winning the conference title, usually force the opponent to play Catawba's type of game. East Carolina forced the Tribe to run last season and won both meetings.

Coach Earl Smith, dejected over the first half play of his Pirates against ACC, hopes to make the Indians play his style of attack tomorrow night.

Smith, speaking of the ACC game, was concerned over the shooting of his club. "We just couldn't hit in that first half. We expected them to be tense for a while but they just couldn't shake it until the last half."

East Carolina rallied from a 12-point halftime deficit only to lose by a single point to Atlantic Christian, losing ground in the race to overtake Lenoir Rhyne.

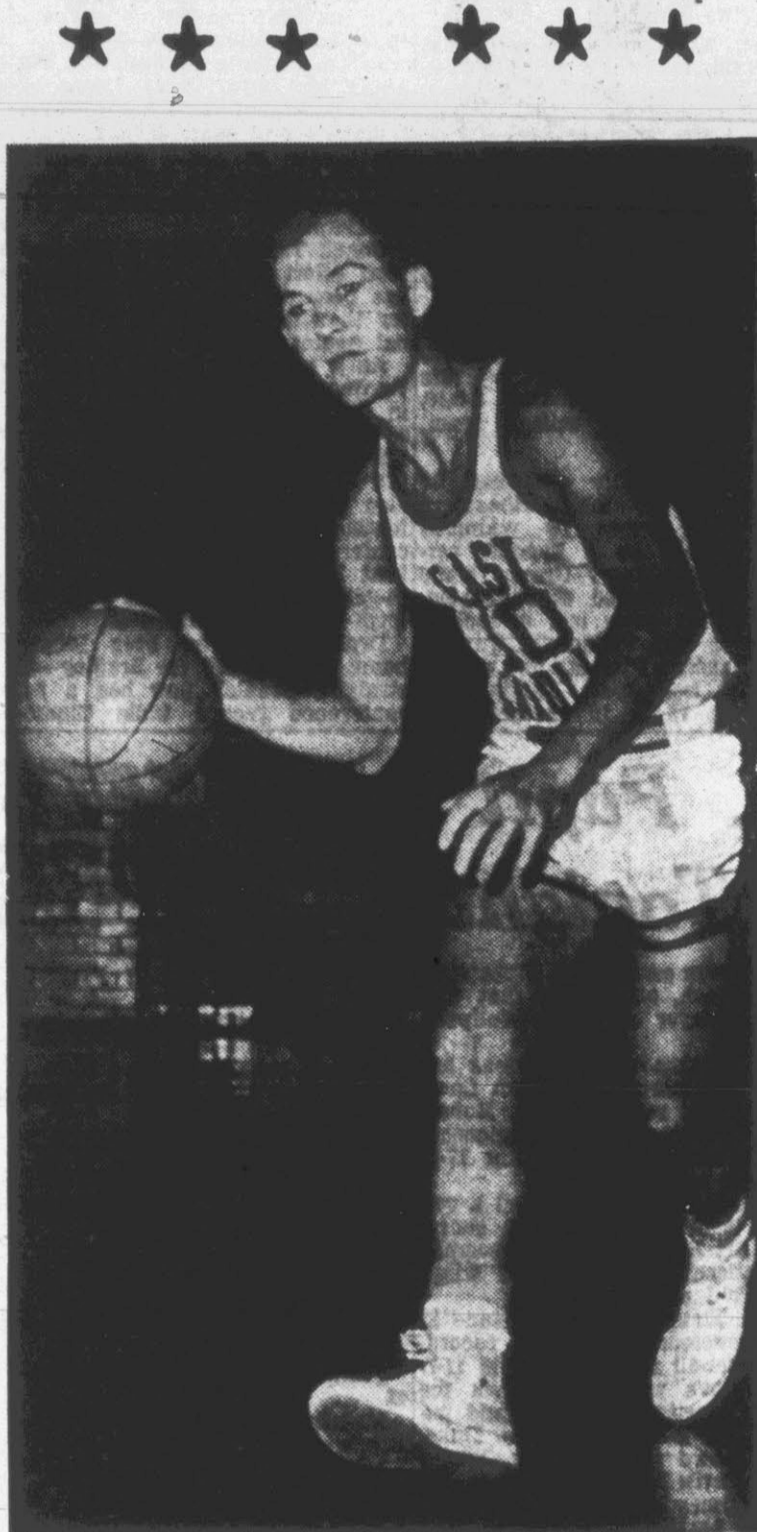

Catawba has three seasoned starters in Roger Snow, Larrell Forbis and Horace Medford. The latter stands 6-6 and is the tallest member of the starting five by four inches.

East Carolina, with big Bill Otte being a giant off the boards, will try to capitalize on their height. Besides Otte, Don Smith, Cotton Clayton and Lacy West have been big rebounders.

Smith, the only senior, Clayton and Charlie Lewis are the club's big scorers.

Benny Bowes, junior veteran, and freshman Benny Bowen will be the top reserves Smith will call on.

The second place Pirates return home for games with Western Carolina Friday and Elon Saturday. It will be the final home games for the 1960-61 club.

READY FOR DUTY—Benny Bowen, freshman guard, will be ready for action tomorrow night against Catawba if needed. Bowen has been Coach Earl Smith's top backcourt reserve.

Atlanta Race Has Large Purse Ready

ATLANTA, Ga.—Prize money estimated at close to $200,000 is on the schedule for race drivers competing on the Atlanta International Raceway this year.

OF SKIES AND SKIS — Members of a ski class assembled on the sunny top of Baldy Mountain at Sun Valley, Idaho, face a run through a low-hanging cloud on their way down the two-mile run to the valley floor.

Jets Giving Major League Teams Travel Headaches

Ed Short, traveling secretary of the Chicago White Sox, was the first to moan about the new problem. "Nearly all the major airlines are switching to jets and trading in their piston-engine equipment," he said.

THE FERGUSON AFFAIR

CHAPTER 21

"Was Broadman strangled?" I asked Dr. Simeon. He shook his head. I've found no evidence of strangulation, Mr. Gunnarson. The neck structures are intact. There's no sign of external violence at all, apart from the injuries to the back of the head. But the internal evidence points conclusively to asphyxia.

"How did it happen?"

"That's a difficult question. There's a possibility that it was an accident, if Broadman lapsed into unconsciousness and swallowed his tongue, as they say. The possibility of accident is remote. The tongue was in a normal position when I examined him. I'd say that he was smothered in some way."

"In what way?"

"I wish I knew, Mr. Gunnarson. Since he was in a weakened state, it's possible that someone simply placed a hand over his mouth and nostrils, and cut off his air. I've seen infants that were smothered in that way. Never a grown man."

"Wouldn't the marks show on his face?"

"They usually do, yes. But as I said, he was in a weakened condition, perhaps unconscious. Not too much pressure would be required."

"Have you passed on your findings to the police?"

"Naturally. Lieutenant Willis was very much interested. So was Sergeant Granada. His eyes were bland. Granada was here just before dinner."

"Inquiring about Broadman?"

"Incidentally he was inquiring about Broadman. But his main interest was in the other cadaver."

"Donato?"

"Donato's wife. I can understand Granada's interest. He was the one who found her."

"I did a moral double-take that rocked me on my heels. Donato's wife?"

"That's correct. She took an overdose of sleeping pills. At least that's what Granada thinks."

"What do you think, Doctor?"

"I'll let the condition of the organs tell me what to think. I do know this. I didn't give her enough sleeping pills to make a fatal dose. It's possible she had some already, though, or got hold of some more."

"My attention was drawn to the doorway. Tony Padilla was standing there."

"Frankie heard on the radio about Secundina." He looked at the doctor. "How did she get herself killed?"

"If we knew that, I wouldn't have to perform an autopsy. Sergeant Granada believes she took an overdose of sleeping pills."

"What has Granada got to do with it?"

"He found her. He went to her house to ask her some questions. She was in bed with her children crying around her. Apparently she was dead, but he couldn't be sure, so he rushed her here in an ambulance. Unfortunately she was dead."

"Just like Broadman, eh?"

"Simeon shrugged and looked up impatiently. "I'm sorry, I don't have time to canvass all these issues with you. Lieutenant Willis and Sergeant Granada are in a hurry for my results."

"Why? Don't they know the answers already?" Padilla spoke from his whole jerking body, as a dog does when it barks.

"I don't know what that's supposed to mean," Simeon turned to me. "I gather this chap is a friend of yours. Explain to him that I'm a pathologist, will you—a scientist? I can't discuss police matters."

"You think I'm stupid?" Padilla cried.

"You're acting stupidly," I said. "If you have no respect for the living, show some for the dead."

Padilla became silent. With an apologetic glance around the room he turned and trudged out. I followed him into the corridor. "I didn't know you cared so much for her, Tony."

"Me, either."

The metal door had closed behind us. He looked at it as if life was on the other side, and the automatic door had cut him off from life.

"Why don't you go back to work now, Tony?" I said. "Forget about death and destruction."

"Sure, and let Granada get away with it."

"You sound pretty sure he's guilty."

"Aren't you, Mr. Gunnarson?" It wasn't an easy question to answer. I was less sure than I had been. I knew that Granada had shot Donato. I could imagine him killing Broadman. The thought of him killing Secundina, a woman he was said to have loved, seemed impossible to me. And Tony's insistence on his guilt aroused my occupational reaction, which was doubt.

"I'm not at all sure of his guilt. I certainly don't think you should go around making accusations."

"I see." His voice was wooden. He'd asked a question of a man and been answered by a profession. Which was the way I wanted it for the time being.

I offered Padilla a cigarette. He refused it. I sat down on a bench against the wall. Padilla remained standing. An uneasy silence set in, and continued for quite a long time.

"You could be right, Mr. Gunnarson," he said at last. "It's been a bad day for me. I can use a cigarette, since you were so kind to offer. I left mine out at the club behind the bar."

I gave him a cigarette and lit it for him. Before it had burned up, Dr. Simeon opened the metal door and glanced out. "There you are. I didn't know whether or not you were waiting. I have some preliminary findings. I'd say it's practically certain she died in the same way Broadman did, of asphyxia."

Padilla spoke up. "Does that mean she was gassed?"

"That's one form of asphyxia. There are several. In the present case, as in Broadman's, indications are that death resulted from simple lack of oxygen. There's a similar edema—a waterlogged condition—in the pleural cavity. And again, there are no external marks of violence. I haven't got to the neck structures yet, but I'll venture the opinion that she was smothered."

"Did she take the sleeping pills?" I asked him.

"There are indications of it. I should be able to tell you more about that later. Now I'd better get back to the lady. She may have something more she wants me to know."

Padilla glared at him, outraged by his levity. Simeon appeared not to notice.

I said to Padilla: "Let's go down to Secundina's place."

Secundina's sister came to the door when we knocked. A baby was sleeping in her arms.

She looked at Padilla with hard eyes. "What do you want this time?"

"Ask you some questions, Arcadia. This is Mr. Gunnarson. He is a lawyer trying to find out what happened here today."

"This is Mrs. Torres, Secundina's sister."

Arcadia Torres failed to acknowledge the introduction. Her intense, dark gaze was focused on Padilla. "What happened today? Secundina died today. You know it."

"Did she do it herself, with sleeping pills?"

"She took the sleeping pills from the hospital, the whole bottle. The copper—the policeman—she said when he came back here, there wasn't enough pills to kill her. But she's dead, ain't she?"

"What would make her do such a thing?" Padilla asked.

"She was crazy about that Gus of hers, I guess. And she was scared."

"What was she frightened of?" I asked.

"Getting killed," she replied.

Arcadia has a family secret to reveal, reluctantly. Continue the story tomorrow.

TV Debut For Actress Following Dad's Footsteps

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Jane Fonda, who is doing it, believes that following a parent's footsteps in show business is more often caused by a neurotic drive than by inherited talent.

June 22, already is established as a Broadway and motion picture star and tonight makes her TV debut starring in an NBC dramatic special, "A String of Beads."

"One must be neurotic to get into the performing arts," insists the pretty young actress. "In other areas, creative people do their creating in private, perfecting and polishing until the thing is ready for presentation to the public. That's true of painters and writers. But actors are on exhibition when they are creating. And to be willing to subject oneself to this involves lots of complicated psychological things."

Therefore, she reasons, actors "must be more neurotic and selfish—insecure—than the average person."

"And if they happen to be parents, they are not likely to be particularly good parents," she concludes. "And they pass this insecurity along to their children."

Jane insists that her father, Henry Fonda, has been an exception to the theory. But she admits that a lot of her own drive is to be as good as Daddy.

CBS just can't seem to make up its corporate mind about anything these days. After all the hullabaloo last week over cancelling Circle Theater's "The Spy Next Door," a drama about Soviet espionage in this country, it has now been rescheduled for Feb. 15—after the taped show had been seen by a covey of vice presidents and pronounced safe in areas which might bring a Red protest.

On Friday, the network announced that, contrary to earlier announcements, clarinetist Pete Fountain would not appear on Sunday night's Ed Sullivan Show. But on Sunday night, there was Pete Fountain on the Ed Sullivan Show, tooting away. Ed just changed his mind at the last minute.

And those conferences about what to do with the Jackie Gleason show resumed Monday morning. Latest word on that up-in-the-air program is that although one sponsor has pulled out, others are interested, and the remaining sponsor likes the revised program. Jackie, it is reported, wants to take his talkathon to Florida for a few weeks. The chimpanzee will not be a regular guest.

Buenos Aires Commuters Find Space At A Premium

By BRIAN BELL
BUENOS AIRES (AP)—An authority on public transportation has confirmed something Argentinians have long known — it's tough to get anywhere in Buenos Aires.

"From what I have seen I believe the transport system here is the worst in the world," says Col. Sidney H. Bingham of the U. S. Army who has been advising governments all over the world on transportation problems for the past 30 years.

The Buenos Aires transport problem is similar to that of any great city in the world—only here it appears to be worse.

Col. Bingham drew up the railway plans for the invasion of France in World War II and got 80,000 kilometers of railways in operation quickly after D-day. He was brought here by a group trying to interest private capital in investing in transportation facilities.

The colonel's opinions are not new to the five million people who live in greater Buenos Aires. They have been struggling to get somewhere for years.

The only thing wrong with the transportation system is that there are not nearly enough trains, buses, street cars, taxis, cars or even horses.

A seat on any public conveyance is a rare jewel to be fought over and even bled for. Clutching space on the outside of buses and trains is not to be despised.

Trains, trolley buses and the subway are owned by the government. The trains alone are expected to run up a 220 million dollar deficit this fiscal year. The buses and street cars are also heavily in the red. With these staggering deficits the government has been unwilling to invest in improvements.

For many years the trains were run efficiently by private British firms but they were nationalized by ex-dictator Juan Peron 13 years ago. The subways and buses were also in private hands many years ago. Both fell victim to bureaucracy with swollen pay rolls and politically expedient low fares.

When you can squeeze onto them, it costs less than two cents to ride the street car and 2 1/2 cents for the subway. A commuter can buy a daily round trip second class pass on the train from his home 15 miles in the suburbs to Buenos Aires for a dollar a month.

A total of 3,700,000 travel daily in the city and greater Buenos Aires on the subway, trolley buses, street cars and buses. Every year 416 million passengers cram into 270 subway trains of three to four cars each. Some 400 million jam 1,020 buses; 377 million crowd into 980 street cars and 165 million squeeze into 170 trolleys.

A new U.S. car, one of the cheaper models, costs about $12,000 here because of tariffs. Even small European models, many of them being produced locally in Argentina, sell for $4,000, more than the average Argentine earns in four years. Therefore there is a tremendous scarcity of automobiles.

Taxis, many of them antiquated, charge only 17 cents a mile, but they are all but impossible to find during the rush hours. And a series of assaults and murders of taxi drivers have made many cab drivers reluctant to work at night.

Thousands of Buenos Aires residents get around on "collectivos," privately owned buses which go almost everywhere and are usually crammed to overflowing with riders hanging on by sheer friction.

The trains are in such disrepair that on some lines passengers must put up umbrellas inside the cars when it rains. They are so crowded the conductors often ride up front with the engineers and your ticket gets punched about twice a month.

Passenger riots over poor service during which trains and station are damaged are not infrequent. Many riders dive through open windows to get seats when the train pulls into the main Buenos Aires station.

The British ran the trains faster with 30,000 employees than the government does now with four times that many but the administration is reluctant to fire railroad workers en masse for political reasons. Fares have raised once in the past two years and to do so again with such bad service prevailing would provoke an uprising.

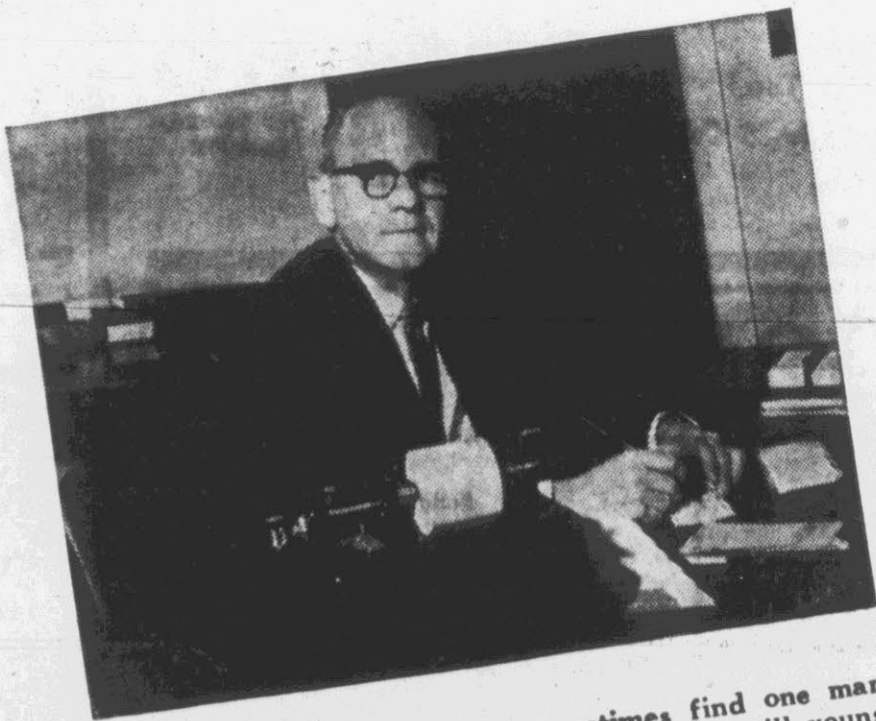

The yearly financial losses of the railroads and the Buenos Aires transport network, alone, account for the entire budget deficit for the nation each year. And

Chicks Have A Hatching Muscle

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — A Southern Illinois University professor says a special hatching muscle enables baby chicks to break out of an egg.

Harvey Fisher, chairman of the SIU zoology department, says when the chick reaches full development inside the egg, its brain signals a muscle which stretches from the back of its head to the nape of its neck.

The muscle pulls the head back and forth in a herring motion which eventually cracks the shell. Fisher spent part of the year at the Delta Waterfowl Station in Canada watching birds hatch.

Old Chairs Were For Swallowtails And The Usual Hip Pocket Flask

By MOTTE V. GRIFFITH Jr.
Raleigh Times Staff Writer
Written for The Associated Press
RALEIGH (AP) — They weren't very comfortable, but they were fashioned just right for a swallow tail coat and a hip pocket flask.

The original 170 chairs which came as standard equipment with the State Capitol when it was built in the 1840's have been gathering dust for several years now in a storage warehouse.

George Cherry, who heads the General Services Division, has the chairs — which are about 120 years old — stored in a building on Caswell Square.

"We used to keep them in the House and Senate chambers when the legislature was not in session," he said, "but the wear and tear of moving them began to take its toll."

By the more than a 110 years of use — are packed away.

Cherry figures to reactivate the furniture in the near future.

"When the new State House is completed (probably in 1963), we are planning to put the original chairs back in the chambers," Cherry said.

About 10 years ago the old equipment was removed in favor of newer and more modern sitting facilities.

"Those old chairs weren't the most comfortable things," Cherry said.

The story is that they were well suited to the days when the swallow tail coat was in style and lawmakers had the habit of carrying pint bottles around in their hip pockets.

"They were supposed to have been well designed for sitting with a bulge on the hip," said Cherry. The old chairs, which have weathered storms and tranquil days on the lawmaking scene, are still used in the lawmaking chambers.

Over the years, according to Cherry, there have been several attempts to purchase several of the chairs.

"A number of people have inquired if they could buy a certain chair," said Cherry. "Most of the time their father or grandfather happened to occupy the chair in years past."

The Council of State has never given the o.k. to sell any of the chairs, no matter who used to sit in them.

After the Legislature moves its home to the new building now being prepared, the chambers in the Capitol will be used on a limited basis and the chairs can be returned to their original home.

Paratroopers used to feed fuel to planes are trailed from pods under the GV-1's outer wings.

Sole Dissenter To Call For Limiting Textile Imports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of the U. S. textile industry have called for restriction of foreign imports. They say import quotas are needed or the textile industry in this country will collapse.

The lone dissenting voice at hearings Monday by a Senate Commerce subcommittee was Mike M. Masako, Washington, representing the Association on Japanese Textile Imports Inc.

He said the textile industry still has not exhausted other legal provisions for assistance.

The hearings continue today.

Two years ago, the subcommittee recommended quotas on foreign textile imports as "the only satisfactory solution." The restrictions were not imposed.

Robert T. Stevens, president of J. P. Stevens & Co. Inc., with textile plants in New England and the Southeast, said the collapse of the industry predicted for several years has arrived with a bang.

Stevens said textile imports have more than doubled in the past two years. He added: "If the facts of two years ago were a source of concern then, the facts of today are truly devastating now."

Masako said Japan has been penalized already by its voluntary quotas on exports to America and mandatory quotas should not be imposed.

William I. Kent, president of the Kent Manufacturing Co., Clifton Heights, Pa., said that while employment, production and plant installations in the United States have been receding, "the tide of imports since 1957 has been surging at storm levels."

Kent's company also operates a woolen cloth mill in Charlottesville, Va., and a worsted yarn plant in Pickens, S.C. He suggested quotas should be imposed by categories and by countries.

"Government figures show a loss of 248 wool textile establishments between 1947 and 1958," Kent said. "Since 1958, at least 34 mills have gone out of business. Others are considering liquidation."

Leads Police To Body Of Victim

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A boy who attends a school for the mentally retarded led police early today to the city dump where the bludgeoned body of a 5-year-old girl was found.

The victim, Linda Faye Worley, stepdaughter of an unemployed janitor, had been the object of an intensive search since she was reported missing Sunday.

Homicide detectives Pat Rowe and John Stargel Jr. said the youth, identified as Bobby Scales, 18, told them he hit the child in the head with a rock.

Jesse C. Worley, 34, had told police his stepdaughter went "across the alley to play" shortly after returning home from Sunday School.

Scales is enrolled at the Orange Grove School here where the dead child's stepfather once was employed as a janitor.

BANDITS FEEL COLD

SULLIVAN, N. H. (AP)—Even bandits apparently feel the bite of New England's long period of intense cold. John J. Hammond, proprietor of an authentic country store, reported two men who robbed him of $40 Monday night wore fur masks.

Burned Out For A Second Time

GROVER, N.C. (AP)—Merchant R. B. Keeter's business in this Cleveland County town has been burned out for the second time in 10 years.

A fire of undetermined origin Monday night whipped through the two one-story brick buildings that house Keeter's grocery and dry good stores.

Keeter, who has been in business here for 30 years, declined to estimate damages. A fireman at the scene, however, said it appeared damages would exceed $100,000.

Chief Clyde Randall of the Grover Volunteer Fire Department said had the wind been blowing in the "opposite direction," the flames would have seriously threatened seven other buildings in the same block. The Keeter stores were the first two buildings on the block, and the chief said he doubted if the other seven stores could have been saved under different wind conditions.

Eighty firemen from Cleveland and Cherokee County, S.C., responded to Grover's alarm. They battled the fire for two hours before it was controlled and some spent the night there in case flames flared up again.

Cleveland County VFD Chief Delane Davis said several of the firefighters were overcome by smoke, but not seriously affected. None were hospitalized.

The R. E. Hambricht Hardware and Grocery, which occupied the building next to the two Keeter stores, received some smoke and water damage.

The Many Faces of LINCOLN

Earliest photograph of Lincoln known to exist—a daguerreotype taken by N. H. Shephard in Springfield, Ill., in 1846.

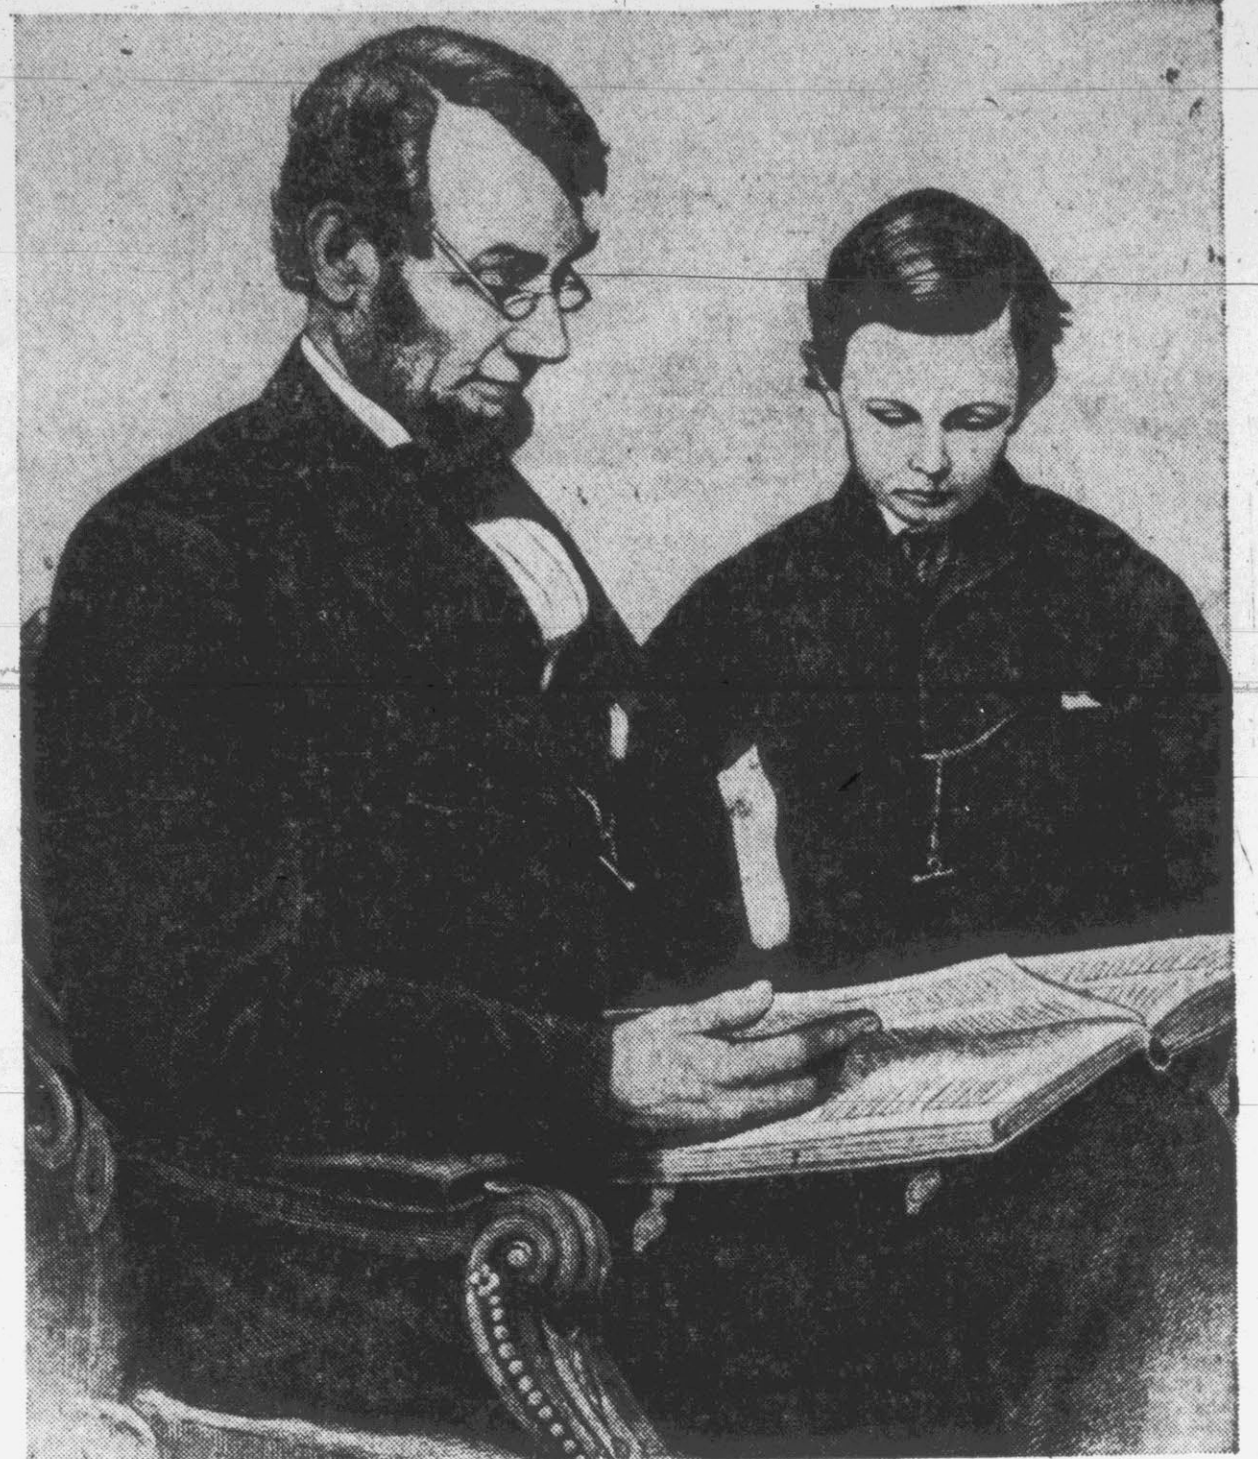

Abraham Lincoln was the photographer's delight. The tall, gaunt figure and the sad, serious face of the Emancipator were captured by the early daguerreotype and the early plate camera in hundreds of poses.

The bearded Lincoln is the one most familiar to us, but there were scores taken of the less familiar clean shaven Lincoln, from his earliest known portrait, a daguerreotype taken in 1846 when he was a Congressman until he started growing a beard at the time of his election to the Presidency in the fall of 1860. When his first hirsute portrait appeared on November 26, 1860, a newspaper jibed "old Abe is 'puttin' on airs."

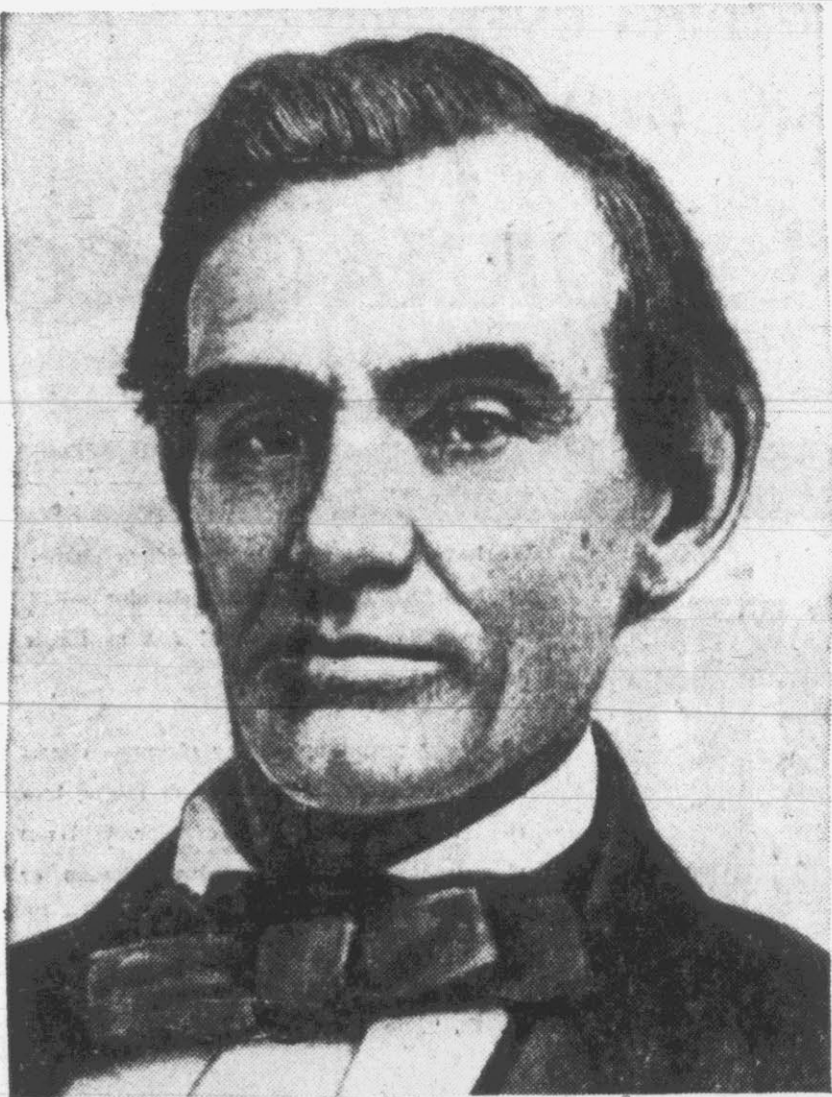

Lincoln really became photograph-conscious after Matthew B. Brady, the famed Civil War photographer, took his picture when he spoke at Cooper Union in New York City in February, 1860—a speech that some historians say helped win him the Presidential nomination. Lincoln told Brady later that he liked the Cooper Union picture and said in compliment that it was the speech and the photograph which made him President. Brady became one of Lincoln's favorite photographers.

Lincoln liked Brady's work so much that on the day of the inaugural in Washington he walked over to Brady's Photographic Parlor on the corner of Pennsylvania Avenue and 7th Street to have his picture taken, a serious, unsmiling pose. George H. Story, a portrait painter, who was visiting Brady at the time, watched the sitting and said that Lincoln "gave the impression that he was overwhelmed with anxiety, fatigue and care."

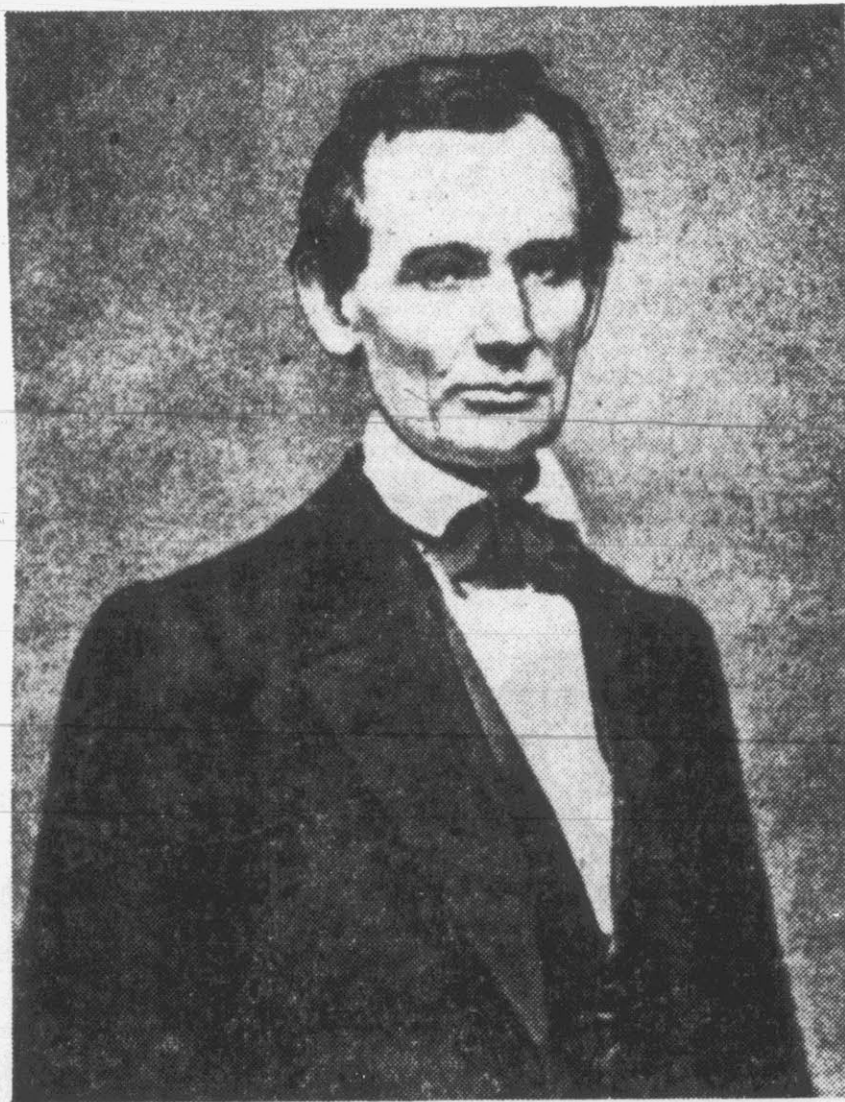

Lincoln's last portrait was taken Palm Sunday, April 9, 1865, five days before he was shot and fatally wounded by John Wilkes Booth in Ford's Theater in Washington. The picture was taken by Alexander Gardner.

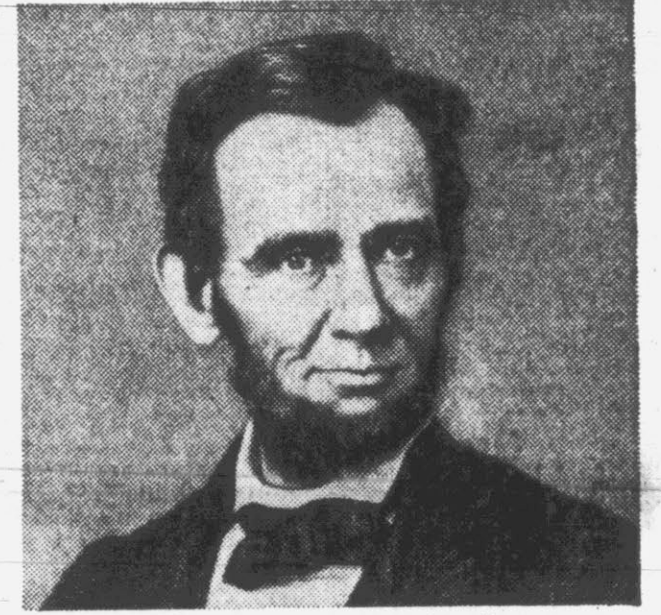

Lincoln and his son, Thomas, posed for this camera study by Matthew Brady, when the boy was only eight years old and affectionately called "Tad" by his parents.

Republican Legislator Had Democrats' Help

RALEIGH. — Growth of the two-party system in North Carolina may be new, but it even newer to Tarheelers is the brand of Republicanism exhibited by one of this state's most politically successful women.

Occupying Macon county's seat in the forthcoming session of the North Carolina House of Representatives will be Mrs. W.N. Cook, one of the two Republican women in the 1961 State Legislature. Amiable and disarmingly frank, Mrs. Cook explains that she ran on the Republican ticket, enthusiastically endorsed the Sanford educational program, and was elected by Democrats.

Calculating that Macon county voters are forty percent Republican, Mrs. Cook reasons that a good deal of her support also came from local Democrats; she attributes her election to the fact that she is well-known as a former postmistress in Highlands, schoolteacher, and church and civic leader.

As a Republican, she plans to join Democrats in promoting legislation, forseeing no party clash. As a woman, however, she laughingly foresees that her biggest problem will be to "keep quiet and listen."

"There's goal in both parties" is a claim not unique to the twice-widowed Mrs. Cook, but her reasoning is that "I should know; I have been married to a Republican and to a Democrat". Later she adds that some of her best friends are Democrats and that even her twelve step-children, who are "scattered now from Franklin to Raleigh" are all Democrats.

Admitting that she does not always vote Republican on the local level, Mrs. Cook's refreshingly frank version of herself continues to explain that she is not radical in her thinking, and that she tries to maintain a positive approach.

Of vital interest to this new legislator is her concern for a change in traffic courts in her area. She feels that the present system of having tourists post and then forfeit bond is injurious to tourist trade, and she is anxious to see a more speedy trial for alleged violators of traffic codes.

How does a woman suddenly decide to enter politics? Mrs. Cook says, that in her case, she had always been interested in people, but that "I was just sitting here when the chairman of the Republican party came by and asked me to file".

Mrs. Cook defies political traditions and feminine traditions as well, for this time it did not take this woman long to make up her mind. She said "I will", and she did. And the rest is Macon county history in the making.

Little evidence of party-consciousness or at least party-partiality is shown by Mrs. Cook's conversations. Foremost on her mind seems to be the responsibility she feels and the responsibilities which she has undertaken. "I don't even know yet whether I am excited or not," she says. "All I keep thinking of is my responsibility to the people".

For seven years Superintendent of the Baptist Women's Missionary Union, Mrs. Cook is also active in the Eastern Star and the Franklin Home Demonstration Club. Though she especially likes to cook and to entertain friends, there is seldom enough time for this.

Mrs. Cook insists that she has "no ax to grind", and with her friendly, homespun manner of speaking, she might not find it necessary to slash out at opponents in the forthcoming legislative session.

'Agribusiness' Expert Will Join Bank Staff

A nationally recognized agricultural leader will join the staff of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company next month to direct an agribusiness development program here and throughout northeastern North Carolina.

R.W. Howard, senior vice president of the bank, said today that J.W. (Joe) Pou, formerly head of the Animal Industry Department of N.C. State College and more recently Director of the Agricultural Extension Service for the State of Arizona, has been named manager of the bank's Agriculture Department here.

J. W. POU

"His addition to our staff is an indication of Wachovia's desire to help citizens of this area increase their incomes and improve the overall economy of northeastern North Carolina," Howard said. "With the importance of agriculture in Pitt and surrounding counties, we hope that we can make a significant contribution to area progress through this expansion of our agribusiness staff."

Dr. Pou will work with Wachovia officers here and throughout the area in adapting credit standards to the changing needs of farm customers. "Technological progress, varying consumer demands and other problems faced by farmers will be considered so that we will be able to help our customers take advantage of their most promising opportunities," Howard said. Dr. Pou will devote considerable time to encouraging expansion of processing and marketing facilities for northeastern farm products. "Farmers in this area have improved their production in quality and quantity. With processing and marketing facilities to match this great production capacity, the agricultural economy can become more stable and opportu-

Confident Jewels Will Be Found

KLOSTERS, Switzerland (AP) — Mrs. Peter Lawford, sister of President Kennedy, said today the New York police are confident the $30,000 worth of jewelry recently stolen from her New York hotel suite will be recovered.

Mrs. Lawford arrived for a 10-day skiing holiday at this fashionable resort by automobile. Asked about the theft of her jewelry, she told newsmen: "The police told me I'll get it back."

New York police have complained she avoided discussing the theft with them. Mrs. Lawford declined to elaborate on her statement.

KNOWING LAD — OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A McGinness High School teacher asked if anyone in the class knew what 44-16-46 stood for. One studious lad replied with an enthusiastic whistle.

From 1938 until 1941, he was assistant agricultural agent in Iredell County. Following service in World War II, he was head of the Dairy Department at the University of Maryland. In 1953, he returned to North Carolina as head of the Animal Industry Department at State College, a position he held until he went to Arizona in 1958.

He has served as chairman of the Agricultural Extension Service Directors organization in the western states and as a member of the Arizona Agricultural Conservation and Stabilization Committee.

In addition, he has had published in scientific and farm publications a number of articles dealing with livestock breeding and nutrition as well as farm management and marketing. Dr. Pou, who will make his headquarters in Greenville, will assume his new duties March 1.

Kinston Educator Declares Russian Schools Lag Behind Those Of U.S.

"People in the United States are being misinformed when they are told that Russian schools are better than those in this country," Superintendent Jean P. Booth of Kinston schools told an audience at East Carolina College Saturday night.

His comments were based on observations during an inspection tour of Russian schools in October, 1960. With 21 other educators he visited Russia under the sponsorship of the U. S. State Department.

Of the 2,000 schools in Russia, Mr. Booth said, 51 per cent are one-teacher schools. Buildings, 61 per cent of which were built before 1917, present a drab appearance on the exterior, and classrooms are poorly lighted. In general, he said, equipment is not modern.

Little or no flexibility, he stated, is evident in the curriculum or in methods and techniques of teaching in Russia. Instruction, he continued, is authoritarian, and great emphasis is placed on drill and memorization in the classroom.

Library facilities are exceedingly poor, Mr. Booth told his audience. A school with 1450 students, one of the largest which he visited, provided only eight seats for readers, he stated.

In Russia, however, he said, there is no drop-out problem, for those that discontinue academic work are placed in jobs on farms or in industry.

If a disciplinary problem with a child arises, Mr. Booth explained, social pressure is brought to bear on his parents by other parents of the community.

The grade report of the Russian child, he says, differs from that in schools in the United States. In Russia the report covers approximately 80 pages and must be examined and signed by the parent each week.

Academic success, he continued, brings the Russian student a number of reward Trophies awarded for good work are on display in every school, he said.

Greenville and Kinston schools, he stated, are equivalent to or better than the best schools which he visited in Russia.

Santa Maria's Passengers Arriving Home By Airliner

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Thirty-eight passengers from the liner Santa Maria, which wrote modern-day history on the high seas, arrive home by plane today, calm but grateful.

"There were tears—you'll never know," said Mrs. Chester A. Churchill, Lima, Ohio and Asheville, N. C. as she walked from the airliner which flew them here from Brazil.

A pleasure voyage aboard Portugal's second largest vessel was interrupted one day short of a scheduled arrival at Port Everglades, Fla.

Capt. Henrique Galvao and a small band of armed rebels, took control of the ship in a brief but bloody middle-of-the-night battle. For 12 days and nights they steered the Santa Maria on an aimless voyage through Atlantic waters.

Galvao's floating revolution succeeded to the extent of focusing worldwide attention on the Portuguese regime of Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar. The Santa Maria was finally sailed into Recife, Brazil, where the passengers debarked and the rebels sought political asylum.

On their arrival here today, the passengers were treated to breakfast at the Miami International Airport hotel's restaurant after they were processed through customs.

One of the first passengers to clear customs was Lucille Gray, Chicago, who told newsmen "You don't know how glad I am to be home."

Mr. and Mrs. Churchill cleared next. Churchill, a retired Ohio contractor, said, "It takes a trip like this to make you realize the prestige of the United States and the freedom of this country. You don't have to have men with guns at the airport."

Edna Chubb, Pasadena, Calif., spoke kindly of Galvao. She said the passengers were treated with courtesy and the first-class passengers were guests at a farewell

Rail Merger Hearing Has Much Spectator Interest

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Spectator interest heightened today as further clashes between attorneys were expected during federal hearings on a proposed merger between the Atlantic Coast Line (ACL) and Seaboard Air Line (SAL) railroads.

Attorneys for three opposing railroads and an employees' representative used cross examination techniques to batter at testimony given by witnesses favoring the merger in Monday's session.

Interstate Commerce Commission Examiner Hyman Blond said the hearing is booked for a week but indicated he might take action to speed up the testimony.

The 12 witnesses who testified Monday all favored the merger. The majority of the remaining 20 to 30 witnesses will probably go on record in favor, also, one source said.

Testimony generally fell into the same pattern. The witness issued written statements which said he or his firm favored the proposed merger because of increased efficiency and lack of duplication.

Then attorneys for opposing factions would cross examine the witnesses as to their authority to testify, basis for their facts and general thoughts on the "public interest."

Infant Can Use Artificial Limbs

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Kenneth I. Craig Jr., is only 21 months old but already he is feeling himself with artificial arms and learning to walk with artificial legs.

The boy is a quadruple amputee. Surgery was ordered to save him from a rare affliction that prevented blood from coursing through the small vessels in his hands and feet.

Doctors amputated his left leg last July 20 and seven days later removed his other leg and both hands. He has undergone 10 operations in all.

Kenneth has two brothers, Gary, 14, and Scotty, 9. Their father, 38, is an automobile salesman.

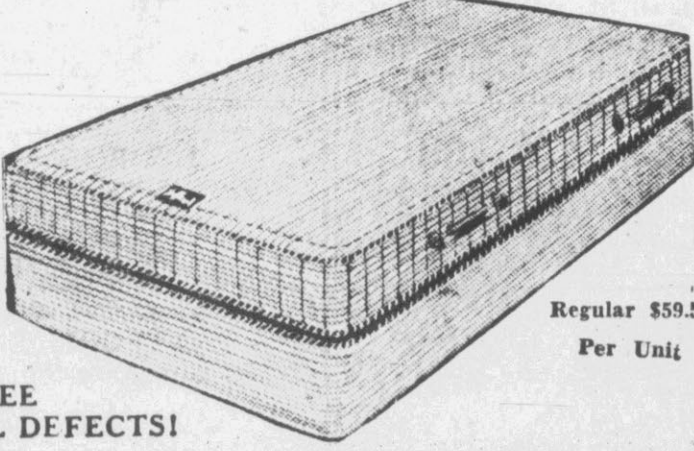

THAT'S PURR-FECT — Kitten and its mother have a way to beat the cold outside their home in Springfield, N.J., where they're pets of the Joseph Montanari family. The youngster appears to have adjusted the radio to complete satisfaction of its mother.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to drift off in fairly active trading early this afternoon although a number of issues encountered speculative demand.

The Associated Press average of 50 stocks at noon was off .80 at 233.90 with industrials down 1.60, rails unchanged and utilities off .30.

Losses of fractions to around a point among key stocks outweighed advances in the same range. Some wider moves either way were made among more speculative issues.

The market was down from the start as it continued its correction of the six-week advance. Analysts said the list was due for some consolidation. At the same time, the general economic news was uninspiring.

Steels, oils, motors, aircraft missiles, building materials and electrical equipments declined. Deadweight airlines, nonferrous metals and chemicals were mostly higher.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 3.20 at 642.45. Corporate and U.S. government bonds were mixed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert E. Giles, 36-year-old North Carolina Democrat, has been named to a $20,000 a year post as general for the Commerce Department.

In the department, Giles will serve under Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges, former North Carolina governor. Giles was Hodges' administrative assistant while he was governor and also served for a time as assistant attorney general in North Carolina.

President Kennedy announced the appointment of Giles on Monday. Giles has been serving under Hodges' appointment as deputy general counsel for the department.

A World War II veteran, Giles served in the Army Air Corps. He was on a plane that was shot down during a bombing raid over Germany in 1944 and was held as a prisoner of war until 1945 near the end of the European conflict.

Giles is a native of Spartanburg County, S.C.

Light Damage In 4 Wrecks Here

Light damage was reported by investigating officers in four wrecks investigated in Greenville yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from the collision of two cars at the intersection of 10th and Charles Sts. at 6:28 p.m.

Officers, who investigated the wreck, identified the drivers of the cars as George Wilbur Wilkerson, 47, of 223 Orion Dr., and Miss Margie Louise Fugh, 19, of 1586 Rhen Ave., New Bern, a student at ECC.

Driver of the truck was identified as Isaac Franklin Moore, 41, of Kinston. Damage to his vehicle was placed at $10.

Investigating officers made no charges in a fourth wreck investigated, involving a truck driven by Ernest John Cassick, 42, of Route 1, Greenville and Mrs. Mildred A. Page, 55, of East Carolina College.

The collision, according to officers, occurred at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Sts. at 9:45 a.m.

Damage to the Page auto was set at $10. No damage was reported to the Cassick truck.

Official Helps School In Accreditation Program

A representative of the State Department of Public Instruction has spent the past two days in Pitt County, working with Grifton High School in preparation for their study to become accredited by the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges.

The representative, J. L. Cashwell, is supervisor of supervision and curriculum with the state department. He is a former principal of the Arthur school and later the Grimesland school in Pitt County.

It will be at least next year before the Grifton school is visited by the association, it was reported.

During his visit here, Cashwell observed College Day conducted at Ayden High School Monday for students from Ayden, Grifton and Winterville high schools. Twenty-one colleges were represented at College Day.

Cashwell left Pitt County in 1950 and assumed the principalship of Albemarle High School. He joined the State Department of Public Instruction in July of 1960.

Dr. E. H. Sloop Died Monday

CROSSNORE, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Eustace Henry Sloop, whose medical and educational work in the mountain counties of Avery and Mitchell gained wide acclaim, died Monday. He was 83.

Funeral services are planned Wednesday at Crossnore Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Sloop and his wife, Dr. Mary Martin Sloop, founded the Crossnore school nearly 50 years ago. Dr. Sloop also was influential in the founding of Garrett Memorial Hospital.

Bootleg Still Is Destroyed In Pitt

A 60-gallon drum-type still, complete with cap and copper coil was destroyed by Pitt County ABC officers yesterday, about two miles north of Belvoir.

In addition to the still itself, eleven 55-gallon mash barrels containing 450 gallons of mash were found at the site. The wood-fired unit was destroyed by blasting with dynamite, officers reported.

The illegal distillery was not in operation at the time of the raid and no arrests were made.

Participating in the raid were ABC officers J. M. Ward, H. B. Lilley and Walter Taylor.

Simpson Meets Bookmobile Goal

The drive to finance a second bookmobile for Pitt County neared completion as announcement was made this week that Simpson has turned in its $100 quota.

Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian, Sheppard Memorial Library, reported that Lafayette Williams, recently completed the drive in that community.

Only one community now has not completed its drive.

The bookmobile may arrive by 14-February, it was reported.

Asian, African Nations Seek Release Of Lumumba

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Asian and African nations, hopeful of support from the United States, pressed their campaign in the U.N. Security Council today for release from prison of deposed Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Ceylon, the United Arab Republic and Liberia were preparing a resolution demanding release of Lumumba, disarming of the Congo army led by Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu and reconvening of the Congo Parliament.

With U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson telling newsmen he would not speak in the council's Congo debate before Wednesday, Lumumba's supporters were expected to dominate the discussion today.

There was no definite word from Stevenson whether the Kenyan administration's Congo policy would specifically support liberation of the deposed Congo leader now in prison in Katanga Province.

Stevenson has been engaged in a round of private conferences with council members and other delegates. Monday he talked with Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold and the chief Soviet U.N. representative, Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin.

Stevenson told newsmen he gave Hammarskjold a fill-in on private U.S. talks aimed at finding a "consensus of views" on the future of the Congo and the U.S. responsibility toward that new African nation.

He said he was hopeful that progress was being made, and that there seemed to be general support for Hammarskjold's efforts in the Congo.

Asked about release of political prisoners, including Lumumba, Stevenson said he could make no precise reply.

Informed sources had said previously the United States was exploring the possibility of release of all political prisoners, the disarming of Congolese troops advocated by Hammarskjold, the reconvening of Parliament, the establishment of a more broadly representative Congolese government, and the barring of non-U.N. aid to the Congo.

The council adjourned last Thursday to permit consultations with home governments, and to give the new U.S. administration additional time to shape up its new Congo policy.

Hammarskjold has asked the

Citywide PTA Course Thursday

A citywide P.T.A. study course with emphasis on characteristics of children in each grade level will be conducted Thursday night at 8 p.m. at Elmhurst School.

The study course is the first of two which will be sponsored by the City Council P.T.A. this year. All interested parents have been invited to attend.

Dr. Frank Fuller of East Carolina College will introduce the subject. Those attending will then divide into the following groups for further study on specific levels:

Burning Truck Is Complete Loss

GRIFTON — A truck which caught fire on Highway 11 three miles north of Grifton Monday morning was a complete loss, it was reported to The Daily Reflector.

J. B. Mayo of Ennill was driving the truck. He is employed by the road oil division of the N.C. Highway Department. No injuries were reported.

Grifton Police Chief Luther Lewis said the Grifton Fire Department answered the call at 7 a.m. and found the inside of the cab burned and one tire on the right front burning. It is not known how the truck caught fire, Lewis stated.

Mayo was on his way to work when the fire occurred.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Glennie Stroud

Mrs. Letha Sparrow Stroud, 65, widow of Glennie Stroud, who was killed Friday night when an automobile crashed through her home and into the living room where she sat, will be held at the Tabernacle Methodist Church, White Oak School Community, Tuesday at 4 p.m.

The services will be conducted by Rev. W. E. Fickett and Elder A. A. Washington, pastor of Latter Day Saints, Jacksonville. Interment will follow in the Maysville Cemetery.

Surviving are one son, Sgt. Luther Stroud, U.S. Marines, stationed in Okinawa; two daughters, Mrs. Doris Reed and Mrs. David Cumbo, both of Maysville; two brothers, George Sparrow, Kinston, and Felix Sparrow of Roseboro; one sister, Mrs. Lola Franks, Norfolk, Va.; nine grandchildren.

council for authority to reorganize the Congolese army and take it out of politics. Mobutu has said this will result in bloodshed.

Hammarskjold made clear again Monday that he has no intention of recalling Rajeshwar Dayal, his Indian personal representative in the Congo, as demanded by Congo President Joseph Kasavubu.

WILLIAM WIRT WALKER JR. of Fountain is one of six finalists of District 1 for Morehead scholarship awards, as announced this week by the University of North Carolina's Morehead Foundation. The son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wirt Walker, he is a senior at Farmville High School, where he serves as editor of the "News and Views" newspaper and editor of the school annual. He has also been active in sports activities.
