Hunt Picks Six More Committees

House Organization Shaping Up; Assembly Votes Greensboro Trip

RALEIGH (AP)—House Speaker Joseph M. Hunt named six additional committees today to bring house organization a step nearer completion.

Meanwhile, both House and Senate adopted resolutions accepting an invitation to travel to Greensboro on Feb. 28 to honor Speaker Hunt.

Until today, Hunt had appointed 13 of the 47 committees which will study House legislation.

Chairmen of the six committees named today were: Salaries and Fees, Rep. Carson Gregory of Harnett; Justices of the Peace, Rep. J. M. Phelps of Washington; Public Utilities, Rep. Irwin Belk of Mecklenburg; Commercial Fisheries and Oyster Industries, Rep. Walton S. Griggs of Currituck; Enrolled Bills, Rep. F. L. Gobbe, Forsyth; and Federal Law, Rep. Austin Jones of Ashe.

The Guilford delegation put in the joint resolution inviting the General Assembly to meet in Greensboro.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Guilford explained it will be "Joseph Hunt Day" in the country, to pay tribute to its first native son to become House speaker in some 60 years.

The legislators already have accepted an invitation to go to Winston-Salem April 19.

The Joint Appropriations Committee, idle today to give lawmakers a quick start for a week-end at home, will begin hearing state departments and agencies outline their spending requests next Tuesday.

Rep. Thomas H. Woodard of Wilson, co-chairman of the committee, indicated Thursday the committee intends to follow closely a time schedule in carrying out the budget hearings.

He said State Auditor Henry Bridges would be allotted 10 minutes Tuesday, the State Library 30 minutes, the Department of Archives and History 15 to 30 minutes, and the State Art Society 15 minutes.

"At the end of their time, if they are not finished, they will be gavelled down," Woodard declared. "We have got to keep the hearings moving."

The Advisory Budget Commission has recommended a state budget calling for total spending of nearly $1.5 billion during the 1961-63 biennium.

In other legislative developments Thursday: The Senate Public Health Committee approved a bill with minor amendments to place the responsibility of licensing nursing homes solely with the State Board of Health. Under present law, either the State Medical Care Commission or the State Board of Public Welfare can license such homes.

Rep. S. Bunn Frink of Brunswick introduced a bill to amend membership in both houses. The bill would give each of the 100 counties one senator, and increase House membership from 120 to 130. The Senate now has 50 members.

Asian, African Govm'ts Seek Initiative On Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—A group of Asian and African nations moved today to seize the initiative in the Congo crisis with a peace plan for the Security Council to take a middle road between the United States and the Soviet Union.

A flurry of diplomatic activity raised cautious hopes of averting a direct East-West clash in the African republic stemming from the slaying of Patrice Lumumba.

The three African-Asian members of the 11-nation council—neutrals Ceylon, pro-Western Liberia and the left-leaning United Arab Republic—were expected to put forward today a compromise resolution backed by 18 other countries.

Basically, the emergency section of the proposed resolution: 1. Urged U. N. troops in the Congo to use force if necessary to prevent civil war; 2. Demanded Belgian and other non-U. N. foreign military personnel, mercenaries and political advisers leave the Congo immediately; 3. Called on all countries to prevent such personnel from going there; and 4. Called for an immediate and impartial investigation into Lumumba's death.

Some supporters of the African-Asian plan were counting on a united front of the nations from their two continents to bring the big powers into line. Other diplomats feared the Soviet Union would remain adamant in its opposition to U. N. action and veto the resolution.

From the Congo came a report that Congo President Joseph Kasavubu's new premier, Joseph Leo, has begun negotiating with rival political leaders to broaden his new Leopoldville government into a coalition.

The 11-nation U. N. Conciliation Commission sent to the Congo by Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld before Lumumba's death also submitted recommendations echoing the Asian-African draft resolution.

A long-range section urged that the Congoese Parliament—suspended last September after President Kasavubu fired Patrice Lumumba as premier—be convened immediately and that all Congoese armed units be reorganized and brought under discipline and control to keep them from interfering in politics.

The resolution in preliminary form came much closer to ideas put forward by Hammarskjöld and the United States than a Soviet resolution already before the council demanding the dismissal of the secretary-general and an end to the U. N. Congo operation within a month.

But the commission, made up of nations which sent forces to the Congo, went further by calling for a summit meeting of Congoese leaders of all factions to agree on changes in government and suggested a federal system of loosely associated states—the aim of Kasavubu and Katanga President Moise Tshombe—rather than the strong central government demanded by Lumumba and his political heir, rebel Premier Antoine Gizenga.

Pitt Demo Chairman John Clark Resigning Post At Meeting Here Tomorrow

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Democratic Chief John G. Clark Sr. has called a meeting tomorrow of the county Executive Committee to submit his resignation after 17 years at the helm of Pitt's Democratic organization.

Clark told the Daily Reflector today he mailed letters Wednesday to the county's 25 precinct Democratic chairmen informing them of his intentions to resign and calling the meeting for noon Saturday at Respass Brothers Restaurant in Greenville.

The 68-year-old party leader said he had been "thinking about resigning for several years" but had been persuaded to retain his position to which he has been re-elected at eight consecutive county Democratic conventions.

Clark succeeded Dr. Paul E. Jones of Farmville as executive committee chairman in 1944. His current term expires at the county convention in 1962 and his successor would fill the resigning chairman's unexpired term.

Clark named no choice as his successor. He said, however, he "hopes a new chairman will be chosen" at tomorrow's executive committee session.

The county executive committee is composed of the 25 precinct chairmen and the county chairman and vice chairman. Charles Horne of Greenville, Bill Stroud of Arden and Mrs. W. C. Spencer of Chicod Township are county vice chairmen.

A simple majority of the precinct chairmen will be required for Clark's successor. Clark pointed out today his resignation, "of course, will not be effective until we have a new chairman."

Clark said he has "enjoyed working with the members of our committee." He commented the party group for "always meeting its party obligations."

He said, "The men and women of the committee during my tenure have done a good job. We have had good cooperation that I am sure we will continue to have."

A Granville County native, Clark has been a Pitt County resident since his father, A. F. Clark, moved to Pitt County as a farmer in the early 1890's.

Clark, who will mark his 69th birthday next month, entered the sand and gravel business in 1920 and became area distributor for the Sinclair Refining Co. in 1933. He still maintains that distributorship.

During his career with the Democratic Party's organization, Clark has been a delegate to the State Democratic Convention each year during his county chairmanship.

Twice, in 1952 and 1960, he was a N. C. delegate to the National Democratic Conventions in Chicago and Los Angeles. In 1956, he was named at-large presidential elector from the East for Tar Heel Democrats.

From 1942-49 Clark served as Highway Commissioner for the Second Division and in 1951 was affiliated with the Office of Price Stabilization, a post he resigned after about six months.

He was named to the State Democratic Executive Committee at the 1956 convention and held the post until he resigned at the Raleigh Convention last summer.

In the early 1950's he served as chairman of the unsuccessful Virginia-Carolina Toll Road proposed to connect the Norfolk area with Manteo, N. C. The project failed because bonds remained unsold.

He is married to the former May Langley and they have four sons and a daughter: John G. Jr. and Lewis, both of Greenville; Virgil, an Air Force captain of Albany, Ga.; Charles of Los Angeles; and Mrs. M. B. Massey Jr. of Greenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark have 12 grandchildren and reside at 2007 E. 5th St. here.

Airliner Slides In Safely At Goldsboro; Gear Failed

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP)—A Piedmont Airlines F27 plane carrying 18 passengers made a successful emergency landing here today despite a fouled landing gear.

The plane made a "beautiful" belly landing at 11:05 a.m. after circling the Seymour Johnson Air Force Base for nearly an hour.

The prop-jet ship was attempting to land at Charlottesville, Va., earlier this morning when it found that only part of its landing gear would lower.

The right main gear would lower but the pilot was unable to lower the nose wheel and the left main gear. The plane was then diverted to Winston-Salem, home of the airlines, a base well equipped to handle emergencies.

The air base reported that the pilot was able to retract the good gear on the right side and the runway was holed with foam, a protective measure against fire.

The pilot then brought the ship in on what was described as "a beautiful" landing.

The right landing gear, which did not retract completely, collapsed during the landing but the pilot was able to keep the ship under control.

The plane left Winston-Salem at 7:15 a.m. for Washington, D.C., with a scheduled 8:35 a.m. stop at Charlottesville. When the bad gear was discovered, the ship was diverted back to Winston-Salem where it remained in the air while arrangements were made for it to attempt the landing at Seymour Johnson.

From Winston-Salem, the crippled ship was accompanied by a Piedmont DC3 to Seymour Johnson.

A gear on the right side and the runway was holed with foam, a protective measure against fire.

The right landing gear, which did not retract completely, collapsed during the landing but the pilot was able to keep the ship under control.

Inquiry Slated Into 6 Deaths At Atlsa Site

ROSWELL, N. M. (AP)—An official investigation was scheduled today into the accident at an Atlas missile launching site which took the lives of six men Thursday afternoon.

An official of the Corps of Engineers, which is supervising the construction of the intercontinental ballistic missile complex in the Roswell area, was to head the investigation.

A huge crane toppled 172 feet to flaming destruction in the bottom of the concrete-lined pit in which the men were working.

Nineteen workers were injured. Six of the injured were treated and released from a hospital.

Today the cause of the accident had not been determined and there were conflicting reports as to what exactly happened.

Dazed survivors could provide little help in clearing the picture. They were working on steel framework along the sides of the deep pit, to be used as a launching site for the nation's Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile, when the crane toppled in on them.

"They yelled down and told us it was coming," said one of the survivors, L. D. Crumrine, 48, of (605 W. 6th) Amarillo, Tex. "I looked up, saw it moving backwards toward the hole. I got behind a column but the fire got me."

Gasoline tanks on the crane ruptured after the machine struck the steel work. Sparks or hot welding equipment ignited the gasoline and filled the 52-foot wide pit with flames.

Crumrine said Howard L. Frampton was working on the same level with him.

"I guess he got killed, because he fell," Crumrine said from his hospital bed.

Frampton, 35, (1409 E. 9th) Pekin, Ill., was one of the six dead.

One worker, H. R. Davis, told Deputy Sheriff Bill Smith he saw the back wheels of the crane going over the edge and jumped in the cab to try and brake it. He leaped to safety before the crane toppled into the hole.

A board of investigation, headed by Maj. Stanford I. Polonsky, executive officer of the Roswell District of the Corps of Engineers, was scheduled to meet today.

N.C. May Gain Federal Judges During The Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—North Carolina stands a good chance of getting two or three more federal judges this year, Rep. Basil L. Whitener, D-N.C., reports.

Whitener said he and Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., are going to be "working hard" for the addition of two U.S. district judges. Ervin and Whitener are members of the Senate and House Judiciary committees, respectively, which will consider proposals for creating new federal judgeships throughout the country.

"We need another judge in the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals also," Whitener said, "but that is up to President Kennedy. It is possible if Congress passes the legislation recommended by the President and his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, that one of the appellate judges would be assigned for each of the five states in the 4th Circuit, including one for North Carolina."

Whitener plans to confer this week with Ervin at the nearby Bethesda Naval Hospital, where Ervin is recovering from an operation for hernia.

The President asked Congress for 59 more judges "to relieve serious congestion and delays in many federal courts."

Rep. Emmanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, has introduced a similar bill to add 63 judges.

Whitener said he will offer an amendment for two additional district judges for North Carolina and recommend assignment of an appellate judge to the state's jammed dockets.

Ervin and Whitener have been studying the Carolina court needs for some time.

Draws 15 Years In Embezzlement

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP)—The middle-aged daughter of an Iowa banker was sentenced to 15 years in prison today for embezzling $2 million from her father's bank.

U.S. District Judge Henry N. Graven sentenced Mrs. Burnice Iverson Geiger, 58, to five years on each of the first three counts of a U.S. attorney's information to which she had pleaded guilty last Jan. 30. The sentences are to run consecutively.

The judge also sentenced her to five years on each of the other 33 counts of the information, but those sentences are to run concurrently with the first count.

Mrs. Geiger had a slight smile on her face as she entered court for the final chapter in her embezzlement story which started last Jan. 16 when federal bank examiners uncovered the shortages in her accounts of Sheldon National Bank.

The matronly woman, a cashier and director of the now defunct bank, occasionally dabbed at her eyes during the 20 minutes she was in court for sentencing.

Mrs. Geiger, daughter of W. P. Iverson, 83, long-time president of the bank, under the law faced a maximum sentence of 175 years in prison and a $175,000 fine.

Judge Graven did not levy a fine. The information specifically accused Mrs. Geiger of embezzling $122,393.54 during the period of Nov. 5, 1957 and Jan. 13, 1961. Authorities said she admitted taking $126,859.10.

Mrs. Geiger was nattily dressed in a tan dress, fur-trimmed brown coat and velveteen hat for the one-block walk from the jail to the courthouse.

One of the startling disclosures during the brief hearing was when U.S. Dist. Atty. F. E. Van Alstine said that Mrs. Geiger had discovered a $75,000 shortage shortly after she went to work in the bank 38 years ago.

Van Alstine said she hid that shortage and began speculating and misapplying the bank funds herself.

New Govm't Reports Show Production, Incomes Drop

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two new government reports show a further lag in the economy with industrial output dropping for the sixth straight month in January and incomes falling for the third month.

In one report, the Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that production at mines, factories and utilities dropped 1 per cent to a point 8 per cent below the record level achieved in January, 1960.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said personal income dropped by $600 million last month to an annual rate of $406.3 billion. This compared with last October's record rate of $409.2 billion.

The board said a sharp cutback in auto assemblies, which has continued this month, was only partly offset by a better than seasonal pickup in steel.

The board's industrial production index dipped by one point in January to 102—only 2 per cent greater than the average for 1957.

Further declines in production of business equipment, clothing, furniture, auto parts and some nondurables were noted by the board. Petroleum output increased and appliance production held steady. There was little change in activity in mining and utility industries.

The Commerce Department report said most of the January income decline reflected a reduction in manufacturing payrolls.

Wage and salary payments in manufacturing dropped at the rate of $400 million a year last month while marketing payrolls were down $300 million. Larger payrolls in government and service industries partly offset these declines.

The income of business and professional people dropped $200 million to the rate of $35.5 billion a year. There was little change in other types of income.

Meanwhile, the Small Business Administration announced a new move to help stimulate hard-pressed sections of the economy. SBA said size standards for businesses eligible for its aid are being increased by 25 per cent in areas having substantial unemployment.

What this means is that more and larger firms will be eligible for assistance.

President Kennedy said Wednesday night that this action would be taken.

In another step to spur the economy, the Veterans Administration said that, working overtime, it now expects to complete distribution of some $238.5 million in 1961 GI insurance dividend payments before the last week of March.

The announcement represents a speedup from the original completion date of June 30.

Normally the payments are spread out over a full year. Kennedy ordered immediate distribution to help stimulate the economy.

Record Has 31 Pages On 'Day'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate was not in session Wednesday. The House met for three minutes. But the Congressional Record, official transcript of congressional doings for the day, runs 31 printed pages.

Six pages are devoted to business—the three minutes of proceedings, lists of members who have taken their oaths of office, bills introduced and communications.

Twenty-three pages are filled with undelivered speeches, newspaper articles and the like inserted by members.

Two pages are taken up by summaries of committee action and programs for today.

It costs $81 to produce the average page in the Record.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Temperatures will average 5 to 10 degrees above normal and rainfall around one inch. Saturday through Wednesday. Showers over the weekend followed by colder. Rising temperatures Tuesday with showers again about Wednesday.

Proofsheets Of Secret Parleys Said Retained By Eisenhower

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Daily News said today that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has in his personal custody proofsheets of the secret papers of various World II summit conferences.

A copyright story from Washington added that Eisenhower took the proof with him when he left the White House Jan. 20 "as insurance against any tampering with or suppression of the documents by the Kennedy administration."

Asked about the story, Eisenhower said at Palm Springs, Calif., where he is vacationing: "I have no records here and no recollection of anything they are talking about."

The News story said in part: Eisenhower has the proofsheets, now classified secret, of the Cairo-Tehran conferences of 1943 and of the 1945 Potsdam conference. The papers had been scheduled to be released by the State Department later this year in printed form under arrangements made when Eisenhower was president.

"Unless they are released as is, or if there is any undue delay in releasing them, the former president firmly intends to see that his own unexpurgated file of the documents reaches the American people," the News said.

The papers are reported to contain "far more dynamite" concerning U.S. concessions to the Soviet Union than was revealed in the Yalta conference documents when the veil of secrecy of those Stalin-Churchill-Roosevelt talks was lifted six years ago.

The concessions made by President Franklin D. Roosevelt at the Cairo-Tehran meetings cleared the way, it has been charged, for the postwar grabs of Eastern Europe and mainland China.

The papers on the Potsdam conference—held in July 1945 after Roosevelt's death—are considered relatively unimportant compared with those of Cairo and Tehran. Former President Harry S. Truman attended the Potsdam conference.

Eisenhower's decision to take personal custody of the material was reached at a White House conference with Republican congressional leaders shortly before President Kennedy was inaugurated.

A New Deal For Bar Cookies

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
For some reason or other, old-fashioned cook never discovered the virtues of the bar cookie. Look into cook books published 50 or so years ago and you'll see plenty of recipes for rolled dough from which cookies are cut out. Later rolled cookies gave way to the "icebox" variety that can be sliced without rolling out. Thank goodness the easily made bar cookie did show up. Baked in a shallow pan, these are cut into bars or squares after they come out of the oven. Usually they have delicious flavor, a satisfying cake-like texture and store well. We're particularly fond of a new recipe for a bar cookie. Made with uncooked prunes and walnuts, they're chewy and flavor-some. The batter that surrounds the fruit and nuts is like sponge cake—it doesn't call for fat. And this recipe takes modern tastes into account. It has less sugar added than one might expect; from the point of view of both flavor and calories, this is all to the good. Because the batter is not overly sweet, the true flavor of the uncooked prunes predominates. This is a fine cookie to wrap individually and send along in a lunch box or to a youngster at college. Or tote them over to a friend's house some afternoon to enjoy over a cup of tea and a good talk.

PRUNE SPONGE BARS
1/2 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon each baking powder and salt

2 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/4 cups chopped packaged prunes
1 cup chopped walnuts
Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Beat eggs until foamy. Gradually beat in sugar and vanilla; continue beating until ivory colored. Fold in flour mixture in two additions; add prunes and walnuts and fold in. Turn into greased 8 by 8 by 2 inch pan that has been greased, lined with waxed paper and the paper greased. Bake in slow (325 degrees) oven 30 minutes or until top has dull crust and cake tester inserted in center has no particles of batter clinging to it. Turn out on wire rack; remove paper; turn right side up. Cut into 16 bars while warm. Store in tightly covered container.

PRUNE SPONGE BARS, individually wrapped, can be packed in a lunch box or sent away to that youngster at college.

Home Ceremony Unites Couple

GRIFTON—Miss Betty Jean Travis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Houston Travis of Clinton, Tenn., and Ervin Travis Langston, son of Mr. Louis C. Langston of Kingston and the late Mrs. Langston, were united in marriage on February 8.

The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. George Sumrell, 514 Church St. in Grifton. The Rev. William Edge, pastor of the First Christian Church, officiated at the double ring rites which were said in the presence of family and a few friends.

The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Sumrell and stood for the ceremony before a table on which was placed a fan-shaped arrangement of white mums and candles in three-branched candelabra.

For her marriage the bride wore a blue wool sheath featuring a large collar and three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a matching feather clip and a white orchid corsage and black accessories. Mrs. Sumrell's dress was a hyacinth blue wool made on princess lines and she had a white carnation corsage.

The bride attended Grainger High School in Kingston and is now employed in Grifton. The bridegroom attended Centennial School and served with the U. S. Army in the Korean War. He is now in Ayden with the Ayden Fertilizer and Fuel Company where the couple are making their home at 611 Second Street. For her wedding trip through the mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee, the bride added a fur cape to her costume.

Reception
Immediately following the ceremony a reception was given to honor the couple, family and friends. Mrs. Gordon Callicutt greeted guests and presented them to the receiving line. Guests were directed to the brides table by Mrs. Raymond Reel of Greenville. The table was covered with a lace cloth and held a silver bowl filled with white carnations and touches of pink and white candles in single silver holders.

The three tiered wedding cake in white and pink topped with the traditional bride and groom was at one end of the table and the punch bowl at the opposite. After the bride couple had cut the first slice of cake, Mrs. J. E. Cannon of Ayden completed the serving. Fruit punch was served by Mrs. D. L. Smith of Ayden.

Assisting her were Mrs. Norman Wheatley and Mrs. Raymond Reel. Mrs. L. C. Patrick, grandmother of the bride, presided at the brides' table. All those serving in the home wore for the evening single white carnation corsages.

Exercise Care
Handle with care! That should be every woman's motto when washing face and neck. Save hard scrubbing for back, arms and legs, but be gentle as you massage warm soapsuds into these more delicate skin areas. Whether you use a washcloth, a complexion brush, or your hands, apply the suds with light circular motions when you wash face and neck.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

Last week we were speculating about the amount of interest there is these days in studying Latin.

After some research on the subject, we can report that interest does actually seem to be increasing in that field since the '50's, when the number of Latin scholars in the U. S. dropped to less than 7 per cent of high school enrollment.

How much better things are now nobody seems to know. Yet such a fact as that membership in the Junior Classical League has increased from around eleven thousand to some seventy-seven thousand in a decade is significant, as is the strong demand upon the colleges for Latin teachers.

This demand is becoming more and more frustrating because almost no one takes Latin these days beyond the second year — not long enough to prepare to teach it, by a long shot.

However bright things are in the field of elementary Latin studies, we are still willing to bet that there are a few scholars around who share the feeling expressed in this old bit of doggerel that used to turn up scrawled inside the front covers of Caesar or Cicero:

All are dead who ever spoke it,
All are dead who ever wrote

All will die who ever learn it—
Blessed death! They surely earn it.

De Gustibus
Shifting to science, we saw a clipping the other day telling about the results that a University of Illinois psychology professor has been getting from some experiments concerning the sensation of taste: (1) Children instinctively like candy. (2) A bitter taste is strongly disliked by almost everyone.

Local Authors
The local woods are bustling out with books, like spring. First, we mention "Windows of Life," a collection of poems by Maybell Roberson of Robersonville (originally an Everette from Everetts). Mrs. Roberson is a two-talented artist who, after the fashion of William Blake, encloses each of her poems with an illustrative design. This volume from Exposition Press is available at Ellington's.

Second, Professor Ralph Napp at the College is coming out next week with a book. This is a study of World War II, done in collaboration with a German, Retner Rodenhause, and called "Breaking Down the Barrier: A Human Document on War."

The outstanding historian of war Professor Theodore Ropp of Duke calls it "a fascinating human and intellectual document on war."

Last, Cambridge University Press is shortly to release Professor Robert Rickett's new edition of "Henslow's Diary," an important work for students of Elizabethan drama. Henslow was the tight-fisted manager of the Admiral's Men, the group of players in competition with Shakespeare's troupe. Henslow is one of the few Elizabethans whom no one has put forward as the real author of Shakespeare's plays.

Carson
The grapevine says that Rachel Carson's "The Sea Around Us" is being discontinued in paperback in favor of a new hardback edition. If anyone has been planning to purchase a copy of this work in paperback and sees one on a newsstand, he'd better grab it quick.

And Mitchell Wilson's "Meeting at a Far Meridian" has the distinction of being the first book ever to be published in Russia and the United States on the same date. That sounds pretty strange, since the Russians have been in the habit of simply appropriating the works of the best American writers, like Mark Twain, without saying royalty to anyone.

"Spectra Hoax"
The poet Jay Smith has recently published "The Spectra Hoax," which tells the story of one of the biggest leg-pulling sprees in American literature. The hoaxers, Witter Byner and Davidson Ficke, had as their purpose the parodying of some of the more extreme fashions in pre-War War I poetry, and they turned our heads of verse under pseudonyms before they were caught.

Actually, some of the stuff is pretty interesting, as, for example:
How terrible to entertain a lunatic!
To keep his earnestness from coming close!
A Madagascar land-crab once lifted blue claws to me
And rattled long black eyes
That would have got me
Had I not been gay.

New Duties For Scott Crossfield

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Scott Crossfield, first man to fly the X15 rocket plane, has been named head of North American Aviation's new engineering branch to test manned space systems.

He'll supervise the flight test program of the Air Force Hound Dog missile and help develop new manned space craft.

Crossfield, chief test pilot for North American's Los Angeles division, joined the company as a design specialist and engineering test pilot on the X15 project in 1955.

He became the first man to fly the dart-shaped craft in June 1959. He made 15 flights in the X15 before North American turned it over to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Student, Faculty Artists Giving Series Of Exhibits

Exhibitions by student and faculty artists at East Carolina College are now being staged in Greenville, Wilson, and Rocky Mount. These shows will later be on display in banks, places of business, and public buildings in various other towns and cities of Eastern North Carolina.

The series of off-campus exhibitions is scheduled as part of a program to develop the cultural potentialities and to encourage a greater interest in the arts in the eastern part of the State.

To carry out this purpose, forty prominent men and women in the area recently effected an informal organization at a meeting at the home of East Carolina President Leo W. Jenkins. The suggestion, made by President William Shaw of the People's Bank and Trust Company, Rocky Mount, that exhibitions by college artists might be shown in various localities has now become a reality.

The shows now on view were prepared in the college art department under the direction of Dr. Wellington B. Gray and Metz T. Gordley of the faculty.

Opening the series is an exhibition of paintings by students at the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. in Greenville. Artists whose work appears in the show are Lucille

Officers Chosen By Library Club

Feb.—Student members of the Library Club at East Carolina College heard a discussion of "Librarianship in the Public Library Field" at their February meeting this week in the Joyner Memorial Library on the campus.

A special event of the meeting was the election of new club officers for 1961-62.

Elizabeth Copeland, librarian of the Sheppard Memorial Library in Greenville as guest speaker, gave a brief background of public librarianship in North Carolina and discussed requirements for a school librarian.

Wages, fringe benefits, and actual duties of public librarians were topics brought up by club members and discussed informally by Miss Copeland.

New officers who will direct activities of the group during the coming school year are Vickie L. Morgan, Elizabeth City, president; Mary Ruth Scott, Durham, vice president; Ronnie A. Cooper, Elizabeth City, secretary, treasurer; and Faye Hofmeister, Raleigh, reporter.

The Library Club brings speakers to the campus every month and is open to anyone interested in the field of Library Science. Emily S. Boyce of the college library staff is advisor to the group.

Sandra Dee Has Picked Up Bonds

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Because she's a married lady, actress Sandra Dee now has control of $25,000 in government bonds previously impounded in the County Clerk's office.

Miss Dee, 18, picked them up Thursday. The bonds accumulated under terms of a 1957 court order which directed that 20 per cent of her earnings at Universal International Studio be invested in the bonds.

The court usually makes this order before approving contracts for unwed minors. But last Dec. 1 the actress married singing star Bobby Darin, a circumstance which makes her legally an adult.

budget support of the forces required. In the case of the Army, all the resources and assets including the Active Army, the Army National Guard and the Army Reserve, as well as the manpower produced by Selective Service, are combined into a cohesive ONE ARMY to accomplish the mission assigned by joint plans. In developing this phase of the planning cycle the Army aligns forces to accomplish the four broad missions of the Army.

Next is the development of a sequence or plan of mobilization of these forces to insure that they are deployable at the time required and at the required degree of combat or operational readiness. Based upon these schedules the Army then determines what is required in peacetime in terms of strength, equipment, and training to insure that the required degree of readiness to accomplish the assigned mission will be maintained. This determination is the basis for the Army's annual program and budget submissions to the Department of Defense.

Peanuts Going Back To Army Commissaries

Peanuts and peanut products will be restored to the list of goods authorized for sale in Army commissary stores, according to Congressman Herbert C. Bonner.

In a statement Wednesday, Rep. Bonner said a discovery that the armed services were not stocking peanuts in the various commissaries and PX's was "very disturbing."

Bonner said he contacted the office of the Secretary of the Army and other services and pointed out the food and nutritional value of peanuts and peanut products. He said he urged the peanuts be returned to the shelves in the service shops.

The First District congressman said he received a communication Wednesday for the Secretary of the Army stating that salted peanuts and other formerly deleted items will go back onto commissary and PX shelves as of March 1.

Military Success May Depend On RESERVE MOBILIZATION

"Everyone will now be mobilized and all boys old enough to carry a spear will be sent to Addis Ababa. Married men will take their wives to carry food and cook. Those without wives will take any woman without a husband. Women with small babies need not go. The blind, those who cannot walk or for any reason cannot carry a spear, are exempted. Anyone found at home after receipt of this order will be hanged."

—HAILLE SELASSIE

History is replete with examples of the mobilization efforts of many nations. These examples differ widely. Some demonstrate a considerable degree of prior planning for a phased and orderly expansion of military forces. Others demonstrated a complete lack of prior planning and of an immediate, compulsive effort to exact manner planned. Nevertheless, it is apparent that where mobilization plans were prepared in advance, they proved to be invaluable as a basis for proceeding with actual mobilization. This has been particularly true where war struck with little or no advance warning. Since it is this type of threat which confronts the Nation today, it is immediately apparent that mobilization planning must constitute an essential element of National defense. This requirement has been recognized by our National leadership, in that Section 3062 Title 10, U.S. Code, provides that the Army is responsible "in accordance with integrated joint mobilization plans for the expansion of the peacetime components of the Army to meet the need of war."

Just how does the Army discharge this responsibility? The first step in this process is the development of a broad National strategy as to how the United States will apply its military forces to achieve the national objectives, both military and political. Based on this strategy, objective plans are prepared by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. These joint plans include not only the military objectives essential to support the national strategy but also establish the overall size of military forces of each Service required to achieve these military objectives. The joint plans, when approved by the Secretary of Defense, establish the basis for the overall force structure of the Services. In other words, these plans determine how many divisions, air defense units, and supporting elements the Army requires to carry out its assigned mission. Underscoring Needs In Education

The past few days have brought to light additional forceful information pointing up the necessity of North Carolina's beefing up its educational program if it expects to make progress in this important field.

A report of the National Education Association shows that North Carolina ranks 50th among the states in increasing teacher salaries during the past decade.

Another report, this one by the North Carolina Education Association showed that one out of every two teacher graduates of the state's colleges is lost to other states or to other professions.

In the face of these facts, added to the mounting store related to our school needs, it is imperative that North Carolina take positive, comprehensive action both to retain the teachers it now has and to assure that in the future more young people will be inclined to the teaching profession.

The fact that North Carolina had done less toward increasing teacher salaries than any of the other states during the past decade probably came as a surprise to most Tar Heels. The state in that period improved its schools considerably and made some progress in improving teacher salaries. Compared with what was done in other states in the realm of teacher salaries, however, North Carolina fell far behind.

To a great degree this fact probably played a large part in our loss of teacher graduates from the colleges of this state. Although better salaries elsewhere probably was not the sole reason for North Carolina holding only one out of every two teacher graduates from our colleges, it certainly was a major reason.

The loss to North Carolina when these young teachers go elsewhere is two-fold. Obviously we lose teachers which are needed in our own public school systems. In addition, we lose young people who have received their teacher training in part at the expense of the taxpayers of North Carolina.

Every student in a state-owned college in North Carolina receives in effect a state scholarship during each of his college years. The tuition paid by the individual student in our state supported colleges covers only a portion of the cost of the education he is provided. State appropriations to these institutions defray the remainder of the cost of operating our colleges and universities.

The fact that North Carolina is training teachers at taxpayers expense and then exporting them to other states to teach because our salaries are too low magnifies the need for bringing our teacher salaries to a more realistic position in relation with those of other states.

North Carolina can ill afford to continue exporting half the teachers it trains, and neither can it afford to remain at the bottom on the ladder in what it does toward increasing teacher salaries.

Pitt Countian's Hat Is Now In The Ring

Endorsement by the Pitt County Bar Association of J. W. H. Roberts of Greenville for the post of U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of North Carolina puts a Pitt County hat in the ring for one of the major federal appointments that will be made in this section of the state.

There are others from other counties of this area who have been prominently mentioned for the post, but it seems to us whatever weight Pitt is able to swing in determining this political appointment should be thrown behind the attorney the county bar association has endorsed.

Roberts has been a Greenville attorney since 1935, served a number of years of judge of the Greenville recorder's court and likewise served as a special assistant to the Eastern District U.S. attorney from 1951 to 1953.

We are pleased to see the local Bar Association give its endorsement to a Pitt County attorney for this important post, and we trust the bar association and others will join in supporting Roberts for the position.

A Balancing Act In White House

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy is doing a balancing act: Attempting to be firm while acting on the theory that a soft answer turneth away wrath.

He's doing this with Russia and Congress, trying to stiffen both without making either angry. He demonstrated it again at his news conference Wednesday night.

It's a technique which is good when it works. Kennedy's problem, at least with Congress, is: Will it? It hasn't, so far.

Congress has done practically nothing for 45 days. Kennedy has been pleading for action, particularly on the recession. But he's avoided saying anything so far it would make getting congressional action even harder.

He has been firm with the Russians—warning them Wednesday night not to move into the Congo—while still seeking to repair American—Russian relations and hoping to do business with Premier Khrushchev.

Wednesday was Kennedy's worst in this field. The Russians, following the killing of the Congo's Patrice Lumumba, demanded U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld be fired and indicated they might intervene in the Congo.

Kennedy warned the United States would back the United Nations against any "dangerous and irresponsible" intervention by anyone and then spoke hopefully of peace through improved relations with the Soviets.

This was exactly the same sturdy—nice policy with Russia Kennedy laid down from the moment he took office—in his inaugural address. It seemed to be working at least until Wednesday.

The Russians treated him mildly. And Khrushchev held his tongue.

But the President's problems with Congress are no less immediate. There, although his own Democrats have a majority over the Republicans, the conservatives of both parties dominate. And the Republican leaders have downgraded his plea for fast action on the recession. It was in his State of the Union message Jan. 30 that Kennedy tried to convey to Congress a sense of urgency at home and abroad.

He used phrases like these: "I speak... in an hour of national peril... each day the crises multiply... each day we draw nearer the hour of maximum danger."

Wednesday the Washington Post said the Republicans' Senate leader, Everett Dirksen of Illinois, told them Kennedy's message had about as much impact on Congress as a "snowflake falling on the bosom of the Potomac."

At his news conference Kennedy referred to that reported statement of Dirksen without referring to the senator by name.

If this is the kind of attitude and cooperation he has to look forward to from Congress, Kennedy will have to decide whether to abandon his pleasant approach to Congress for a much tougher one.

For a while after President Truman took over in 1945 he had a kind of honeymoon with Congress. In the end he got very tough. So did Congress. What followed was a prolonged cat-and-dog fight. But Truman got a lot of action.

For eight years President Eisenhower never tried the tough approach. He got some action. But a lot he suggested was shoved under the rug and ignored.

This was one reason he was criticized for lack of leadership. It was thought that Kennedy's extremely broad use of television for his news conferences would be a powerful force for lining up public opinion on his side and thus influencing Congress to act as he wished.

He may have to reexamine his approach. He has tried repeatedly in dealing with Congress to convey a sense of urgency for what he requested. Judging from congressional response, or rather the lack of response, he has failed to convey it.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
QUANTITY AND QUALITY
Ben Johnson, the playwright-poet who was a friend of Shakespeare, once wrote:

It is not growing like a tree
In bulk, doth make man better
Size alone is not important—size of reputation, size of bank account or size of anything else.
Quantity is not quality. We are too ready to be impressed by the big names, the big income, the big car, or the big house.

If someone famous honors us with his attention, we are likely to glow with pride in the reflected light. What nonsense!
It is necessary and inevitable that there be outstanding men and women in all fields of endeavor, whose names are household words. But let us never forget that they are but leaders; the bulk of the good work in the world is done by the thousands and thousands of relatively unknown but productive people without whose effort and power the wheels would soon cease to turn.

Many men become embittered at seeing the lack of leadership of others while they themselves comparatively un-rewarded. In their bitterness at missing bigness, they sometimes forget that they can still achieve goodness. In the long run, it is quality, not quantity, that counts. Happiness and peace of mind make better companions than fame and fortune.

The Accompanist

By PATRICIA MOORE

They'd Follow The Style

IF Jackie Kennedy changes her hair style now, what will all the women do who have styled theirs after hers, an interested man asked?

Well, what did they do when the shoe manufacturers began making pointed toe shoes? They bought the new pointed toe shoes. But you can bet that a lot of women saved their round toe shoes for the day which would eventually come (they hope).

Probably one factor saved these poor women from having to buy a new supply of shoes again the next year—as the skirts and suits have changed from year to year, necessitating new buying. That's the fact that it cost the shoe manufacturers millions of dollars to make the new shoe molds (so we have been told), from which they make the shoes.

We suppose that answers the question about Jackie Kennedy's

"swan" hair do. Recently, we heard about a bridge tournament that was held somewhere.

Prize for men's high score was a package of light bulbs (what any man wants). Second high was a container of paint brush cleaner for the man who has everything.

Very interesting. And now they are telling us we are in a recession. Any housewife who buys her own groceries could have told you that some time ago.

About the recession, a spokesman of the post office recently informed us that there was an increase in mail volume, particularly the third class mail.

Third class mail generally includes a lot of advertising. It seems that, because there is a recession, and people are spending less money, the big firms are sending out what is called "occupant" mail, trying to encourage the population to buy their products. (In other words, spend money which will circulate).

The occupant mail includes samples of materials, perhaps for car seat covers, to remind you that you need new seat covers. And little goodies, such as pencils, etc., to illustrate a product and what all.

Well, we certainly wouldn't mind getting some of those pencils.

Opinions In Brief

"We note where a large amount of money is spent each year on clothes for dogs. Maybe when a dog sees another's suit like the one he has on causes him to growl."—Lexington Herald.

"Regardless of feelings about repeal of Tennessee's law forbidding the teaching of evolution, this much must be agreed in light of Tuesday's flight of the climp: Seldom before has it been demonstrated so well that a lot of knowledge can come to man from the descent (and ascent) of a lower animal."—The Oak Ridge Ridger.

"It will be difficult to find a way for the federal government to hand back to the states some of the tax sources that have been pre-empted, but it is imperatively necessary that this be done unless we are willing to undergo a rapid change in the fundamental character of our American government."—Dallas Morning News.

"A headline that is becoming more typical every day reads: 'Man Jailed In Gun Death Of Dad Of 9.' It is getting so that hardly anything can be printed about a man without leading off with the number of children he has sired. It is just as much a crime to murder a bachelor, though we might not think so from much current news reporting."—Alabama Journal Montgomery.

"It is the duty of nations as well as of men to own their dependence upon the overruling power of God; to confess their sins and transgressions in humble sorrow, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon; and to recognize the sublime truth, announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history, that those nations only are blessed whose God is the Lord."—Abraham Lincoln, 1863.

Other Editors Saying... Financing Campaigns

(Henderson Dispatch)
Out of somewhere has come the suggestion that all expenses of political campaigns should be financed through public funds. But this could prove to be a greater evil and more a source of corruption than the present system, whereby the candidate and his friends are compelled to provide the cost of such aspirations to office.

Against the proposal has been offered the suggestion that many citizens as taxpayers would be helping to support the individuals they do not like. Nor would the plan eliminate private spending. If the public treasury defrayed expenses, would each candidate be provided a stipulated sum? And would not he and his friends simply spend to their own satisfaction all such additional funds as they might feel to their advantage and that they could raise?

Running for office has come to be big business in recent years. Except for the aid of supporters, only the well-to-do can supply the necessary cost of a campaign. The greater the office the more money required to make the fight.

Laws limiting the amount of cash a candidate can spend have been proved meaningless. Outlay for certain essential costs was listed as legitimate expense. Many times that amount was and is used in the conduct of a campaign. False reports were as common as daylight, and everybody knew they were largely fictitious.

But this does not support the theory of paying for a campaign from the public treasury. It would only aggravate the situation and would breed still greater corruption.

Not Housing, But New Plumbing

By ELMER ROESSNER
It may be that what America needs is not more housing but more plumbing.

President Kennedy, in his State of the Union Message, promised to offer legislation "to stimulate housing construction," adding, "We will do what must be done."

Our cities are being engulfed in squalor. Twelve long years after Congress declared our goal to be "a decent home and suitable environment for every American family," we still have 25,000,000 Americans living in substandard housing. A new housing program—under a new Housing and Urban Affairs Department will be needed this year."

Shortly thereafter, a Census report under the name of his Secretary of Commerce, Luther H. Hodges, showed that, in the last three months of 1960, 7.6 per cent of the rental housing units in the United States were vacant and that 1.2 per cent of the private homes were unoccupied.

LOTS OF SPACE
The rental vacancy rate appears to be higher than at any time since World War II.

Commerce Department, noting the figure for the last three months of 1960 were unchanged from the third quarter, added, "There is an indication, however, of an upward trend in the supply of available housing over the past few years."

This is apparent when the average rental rate for 1960 is compared with the average rates for the preceding years. "The 1960 average rental rate was 7.4 per cent, which was substantially higher than the 6.4 per cent average for 1959 and the 5.9 average for 1958. The average home-owner vacancy rate, on the other hand, remained at substantially the same level."

PLENTY OF ROOMS
The Commerce report also said that about seven-tenths of the vacant rental units had three rooms or more and that nine-tenths of the homeowner units had at least four rooms.

There is not necessarily any conflict between the Kennedy and Hodges statements. There can be a rental surplus of 7.6 per cent and still be a shortage of "decent" housing. The Commerce report found that "the proportion of vacant rental units with all plumbing facilities has consistently been about seven-tenths."

"All facilities is defined as both flush toilet and a bathtub or shower inside the structure for the exclusive use of the intended occupants, and hot running water. But if one of every 13 rental

Although the outward drain of gold remains a serious problem, no one in government has yet come up with a workable solution.

One of our problems is our short term liabilities which are a potential drain on our gold supply. As of October 1960, these short term liabilities amounted to about $21,400,000,000. Of this sum, $10,200,000,000 represented liabilities to foreign central banks and governments which are entitled to be paid in gold rather than in dollars, if they prefer gold. They were, therefore, a direct threat to our gold reserve. Of the remainder, $3,600,000,000 was held by International Institutions and $7,600,000,000 in other institutions and private persons. Deducing our short term claims on foreigners, the United States was left with a short term liability of approximately $18,100,000,000 which exceeded our monetary gold reserve. This set off a period of gold speculation on the London gold market and called universal attention to the American gold difficulties.

The balance of trade has been favorable to the United States during 1958, 1959 and 1960. The difficulty arose not from ordinary trade relations but from expenditures for economic and military aid to other countries and to the distribution of American troops in foreign countries. Even these expenditures, averaging for the years 1958, 1959 and 1960 $3,100,000,000 for American military purposes left with the country and grants in aid averaging $2,400,000,000 annually do not wholly explain our troubles.

The export of private capital has been very large during these years and although no absolute figures are available, it is generally accepted that they are an enormous factor in the situation. Many causes entered into this situation, perhaps the principal one being that quotas and tariff restrictions and the organization of the Common Market and the Free Trade Association in Europe forced many of our businesses to open plants in European and Asiatic countries in order to be able to compete and operate in restricted areas. This amounts to an export of jobs and the factor in the continued unemployment in the United States.

If all foreign nations removed their quotas and permitted the import of American goods, it would be helpful, although that alone would not solve the gold problem or unemployment, particularly as the balance of exchange of merchandise is still favorable to the United States.

The entire question of military expenditures outside the United States requires reconsideration and revision. The United States accepted the heavy load of the reconstruction of friend, foe and neutral in the hope of finding a road to peace. It is difficult to convince the world that our moral and political leadership is the result of the American objectives were based solely upon materialistic considerations. We have now reached the point at which the "give-away" programs, as their opponents called them, can no longer be carried forward without endangering the economy of this country and the stability of its currency.

There can be no question but that European nations and Japan will realize that their own economic stability still depends upon the stability of the American dollar and that it will benefit no country, except Soviet Russia, to take advantage in the American economic difficulties. The fact that the entire Western world is on a gold exchange standard is not readily understood in this country where it is only too often assumed that we have had nothing to do with gold since Franklin D. Roosevelt altered our gold standard. The fact is that the currency of all nations can be exchanged for dollars which in turn can be exchanged for gold through governments and central banks.

The question thus arises, is there enough gold available to take care of all the monetary needs of the world? The world monetary supply of gold, at $35 an ounce, amounts to roughly $40,000,000,000. This is the central problem in the gold situation and is hardly one with which amateurs can do very much. In a word, the gold reserve of the world needs to be (Continued on page five)

"THE TITLE of today's lesson contains three great words, Lord, Life and Death," writes the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith, author of "Peloubet's Select Notes," from which this lesson is taken.

"We must keep focusing our attention upon what these chapters say about Christ and His teaching concerning, and His relationship to, Life and Death."

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber. But he that entereth it by Word was brought to Him that His friend, Lazarus, living in Bethany, was ill. He was in the town of Mary and her sister Martha, friends of our Lord, with whom He sometimes stayed.

"When Jesus heard that, He said: 'This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of Man might be glorified thereby.'—John 11:4.

Christ told His disciples that Lazarus slept, and they said, 'Lord, if he sleeps he shall do well.' Jesus meant that he was dead.

When Jesus and His disciples came to Bethany, Lazarus had Jesus said to her, "Thy brother shall rise again." Martha said she knew he would rise again in the resurrection, and she wept.

Lazarus lay in a tomb and a stone lay upon it. Jesus ordered them to take the stone away, then cried in a loud voice, "Lazarus come forth."

Plan Dedicating Building Sunday

AYDEN — Bishop Paul Neff Garber, assisted by the Rev. Dr. A. J. Hobbs, will conduct the ritual of dedication for the educational building of Ayden Methodist Church, Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Robert Booth, Chairman of the Commission on Education, will present the building for dedication.

At the close of the service an open house reception will be held in the education building. Construction was started in the winter of 1954 under direction of a building committee with William R. Stroud as chairman. It was completed in 1956, representing an investment of over $80,000 and many hours of labor by members and friends of the Ayden church.

The building is of block and brick construction, with tile floors, casement windows and tile floors. With dimensions of 60 to 146 feet, the building provides space for 13 classrooms, three rest rooms, a large fellowship hall complete kitchen facilities and a pastor's study.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

It was a high moment in last Sunday's Morning Worship when the Rev. Howard James announced that 42 people would be placing their membership with Red Oak Christian Church. The new members sat in the reserved pews and were presented to and welcomed by the congregation on Decision Day of the Driskill Crusade For Christ. A goal of 34 new members had been set by the Evangelism and Membership Committee, R. E. Squires, chairman.

Gifted Students In Special School Enjoy New System

EDITORS NOTE: This is another in a series on North Carolina gifted children, made available to The Associated Press by The Charlotte Observer.

By JACK CLAIBORNE
Charlotte Observer Staff Writer
Written for The Associated Press
CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — In Winston-Salem's Dalton Junior High for the "gifted", this is what the school day looks like — Carl Younger, a confident, almost cocky — little 12-year-old, walks to the blackboard, pulls down a map of the Western Hemisphere, and begins talking rapidly.

He doesn't search his memory for facts, he doesn't "uh..." and "ah..." around.

As he talks — without notes — he points with a yardstick to the various countries, beginning with Alaska and going south all the way to Argentina.

He talks about their mountain ranges, principal rivers, major cities, plains, plateaus, and major industries. He spices his facts with words such as "topography," and "sub-soil," and "subterranean drainage."

From the corner of the room, in rhythmic Spanish, comes the proper pronunciation, "Tierra del Fuego." It is supplied by Gordon Weinrath, a fellow seventh grader in Mrs. Cecile Harriman's class.

Gordon, 12, obviously is the class "authority." When the rest of the gang doesn't know something, they ask him.

Down the hall, the situation is altogether different. In Donald Hays' eighth grade, it is "committee work" time and the room is a bedlam.

In groups of threes, fours, and fives, energetic 13-year-olds are gathered around tables, talking all at once. If you want to be heard, you just talk louder.

"Don't mind the din," Hays shouts. "This is the time of day I like best. They're on their own, doing what they want to — within a given field, of course. Right now the field is economics."

At another table, three boys are looking over stock market reports. Their chairman, Bob Shepherd, explains that their field includes banking, stocks, bonds and real estate.

"Did you know," he asks, "that your chances for success are 1,600 times better if you go into real estate than if you start a business of your own?"

These scenes explain a great deal about Dalton Junior High and its 12, 13, and 14-year-olds who go there.

They tell you why these seventh graders, unlike seventh graders elsewhere, don't change classes every hour on the hour. These spend three hours in the same classroom, under the same teacher.

In the eighth grade, when adolescents are fidgety and exploring the time under one teacher is cut to two hours. In the ninth grade, when they're practically "grown up," it is cut to one.

In these time blocks the "gifted" learn English, History, geography, sociology, economics and political science. But they do it by solving problems — i.e., why does the stock market fluctuate?

From Dalton Junior High, they go to Reynolds High, where they are grouped according to their abilities in the various subjects — English, history, science, foreign languages.

And as seniors, they take Advanced College Placement courses which may earn them college credit even before they finish high school.

Rev. Bradshaw Will Be Speaker

The Reverend Robert W. Bradshaw (above), formerly of Greenville, will conduct the Spiritual Enrichment Week service being observed at Saint James Methodist Church during the week of February 19 through 24.

Evening services will be held at 7:30 p.m. and morning services at 10:00 a.m.

The Reverend Bradshaw received his A.B. Degree from Duke University in 1919 and his A.M. Degree from Columbia University in 1922. After serving as principal of Lakewood School in Durham, N. C., and as principal, coach and Assistant Superintendent of the Children's Home in Winston-Salem, he became minister of Jenkins Memorial Church in Raleigh in 1931. Since then he has served as minister of St. James Church in Tarboro, of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Greenville, of the First Methodist Church in Wilson, and is presently pastor of Duke Memorial Methodist Church in Durham.

His evening sermon topics during his week at St. James will be "I've Got to Be Sure," "From Bondage to Bondage," "The Miracle of the Soul," "Subject to the Higher Powers," "Yield Yourself unto God," and "Have Faith in God."

Saddle Club To Plan Horse Show

The Greenville Saddle Club will hold a special meeting tonight at 7:30 in the offices of Steinmeyer-Ramsaur to discuss plans for the annual horse show in April.

Plans will also be discussed concerning a horse show circuit in eastern North Carolina. Charles Steinmeyer is president of the club.

California Jobless Report Recalls Chapter Out Of Hard Days Of '30s

Struck It Rich Back In 1891

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — George Cornwell really struck it rich back in 1891. He married Julia Gold. Sunday, George, 90, and Julia, 88, celebrate seven decades of married life.

George has a quick answer for that inevitable question: What's your secret?

"I found a good woman and I treated her right. We had arguments, but never any fusses. And she's the boss in the family."

The Cornwells grew up in the Double Shoals community of Cleveland County and still live there.

"I knew I wanted to be a farmer," says Cornwell, "and I didn't want to live by myself. And, by gosh, I liked Julia."

The honeymoon was a rather rapid one. The day after the ceremony, Cornwell was up with the sun and went to work on his father's farm.

Cornwell made his first cash selling wood. "I'd chop half a day or a day," he recalls, "and then haul the wood in a one - horse wagon to Double Shoals mill. When I had made four trips, I had earned a dollar."

A small piece of land given to the Cornwells by George's father grew to many acres. But now they spend most of their time in two big easy chairs reading or watching television.

A dozen of their 13 children will be on hand to help celebrate Sunday. The family also includes 37 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren.

effects of the recession. State social workers surveyed 13 of the 58 counties the week of Feb. 5. Their findings were released Thursday by Gov. Edmund Brown without comment.

The report said: "In all counties checked, unemployment is substantial and increasing."

"In all counties it is greater than it was a year ago and some report it was the worst since the depression of the 1930s."

No figures were given in the report. Statewide unemployment was 517,000 in January, an increase of 65,000 or about 14 per cent from December.

The 517,000 reported Thursday is the largest January figure in a decade and represents 8 per cent of the covered work force.

Irving Perliuss, state director of employment, however, says the statistics haven't "started snow-balling downhill." He said he hopes, but can't guarantee, the recession has about reached bottom.

Perliuss said, "The important thing for us to do is not to hold our heads in our hands; but to do something to create jobs."

At the governor's request, John M. Wedemeyer, director of social welfare, assigned crews of investigators to selected counties, both big and small, industrial and agricultural.

The counties: Los Angeles, San Diego, Alameda, Santa Clara, Contra Costa, Riverside, Kern, Stanislaus, Fresno, Marin, Humboldt, Mendocino and Shasta.

Wedemeyer said interviewers talked to county welfare officials, businessmen, bankers, union leaders, educators, nurses, auto dealers, private charity agency officials and others.

The report said: Unemployment is particularly bad in construction, aircraft, steel and lumber.

There is some evidence of migration into the state of needy people from states with high unemployment.

Private agencies noted "considerable privation" due to families moving together and overcrowding.

There have been instances of hungry people stealing cattle in Humboldt county. Stockmen have posted a $1,000 reward for anyone caught rustling.

In Riverside County, the Salvation Army had only $18 on hand. The Catholic Welfare Bureau in Kern County reported a "frantic" increase in relief work in January.

In Fresno County, unemployment benefit claims are 31 per cent higher than a year ago.

Health agencies in Mendocino County said mothers are unable to follow diet suggestions because of lack of funds.

A Pittsburg school health official mentioned one family which had been living on potatoes alone for five weeks.

San Diego County has an estimated 7,000 to 9,000 unsold private dwellings, rental vacancies run 25 per cent or more.

A utility company in Humboldt County reported a 400 per cent increase in shut-off notices.

Some farm families are unable to get free surplus food because they can't afford gasoline to drive into Fresno for it.

Canada Awaits Coming Parley

OTTAWA (AP) — Next week's talks between President Kennedy and Prime Minister John Diefenbaker will be watched here with unusual attention because of recently impaired relations between the United States and Canada.

Canadians, both inside and outside the government, have expressed hope that Kennedy's invitation to Diefenbaker will become the first step toward a new era of good neighborliness.

While the Canadian prime minister plans to spend only Monday in Washington, the discussions may lead to more detailed talks later.

Canadians seem pleased that Diefenbaker is among the first government chiefs invited for consultations with the new U.S. administration. Some Canadians have felt that the U.S. government has been taking Canadian-American friendship for granted.

It seems unlikely that this initial get-together will deal with widely publicized irritants in U.S.-Canadian relations, including Canada's trade with Cuba and Canada's unfavorable balance of trade with the United States.

Because of time limitations the discussions are expected to give priority to parts of the new administration's foreign policy which might have some impact on the forthcoming meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers in London in March.

Disarmament probably will be one of the issues discussed. It will not be surprising if the question of seating Red China in the United Nations comes up, since this is now a live subject in Commonwealth consultations.

Vice President Inspects Center

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The Aerospace Medical Center stood inspection Thursday for Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and the head of the nation's space program expressed satisfaction with his findings.

Johnson spent an hour looking over the laboratories and equipment in the multi-million-dollar medical center installation and heard a half-hour briefing by the heads of the school's seven departments.

Johnson said he doesn't know yet whether he will visit the missile and satellite launching center at Cape Canaveral, Fla., before returning to Washington.

Nat'l Exam For Future Teachers

East Carolina College seniors preparing to teach will be required to take the National Teacher Examinations on April 15. Dr. Frank A. Scott, Director of Testing, announced today. This requirement is based on a resolution passed by the 1959 General Assembly which makes the tests mandatory for all college seniors in the state who apply for a North Carolina teaching certificate.

The examinations will be given at state expense as part of a statewide study of teacher preparation being made by the State Board of Education, Dr. Scott said.

Elect 5 Members To Fraternity

The Tau Chapter at East Carolina College of Phi Sigma Pi, national honorary fraternity for men in education, has announced the election of five new members of the organization. The students were chosen on the bases of leadership, scholarship, and fellowship.

Those initiated into the fraternity after a week of pledging are: Wilbur Castellow, Rt. 2, Windsor; Ronald Capps, Rocky Mount; James Massey, Pleasant Hill; Harold Polsky, Wilmington, Del.; and John Roberson, Parmele.

The Daily Reflector's 1961 All-County

Three Clubs Lead Final Selections

Bethel, Grifton and Chicod three leaders in the Pitt County Conference—placed two men each on the 1961 All-County team, thus dominating The Daily Reflector's first such selection. Other schools to gain berths on the team voted on by the Pitt County coaches were Winterville, Ayden, Belvoir - Falkland, and Grimesland. Six of the ten county players selected drew unanimous support from the voting coaches while one missed just one vote and the other three were left off only two ballots. Selected by an unanimous vote were Billy Mahler of Grifton, Lindsey Hardee of Grimesland, James Braxton of Winterville, Raymond Fornes of Chicod, and John Smith and Harvey Lewis of Bethel. Gathering the other four spots were Joe Jenkins of Belvoir-Falkland, Ted Norris of Ayden, Alan Jackson of Grifton, and Ephraim Smith of Chicod. Four of the selectees are re-

Thomas Set On Defeating Brumel In Meet Tonight

By BOB HOOBING Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Unruffled John Thomas has geared every muscle in his towering frame toward defeating Valery Brumel the Russian tonight. The Boston University student wants to win the classic indoor meeting of the world's best jumpers at the New York AC games so much he can taste it. He sees it as a competitive super-challenge. But Thomas, 19, bristles at what he terms an "ignorant" conception that two teen-agers can conduct the cold war or settle the missile race over a quivering cross bar. "I don't like the public placing international issues on the competition of athletes from two countries," said Thomas who normally is a quiet, reserved young man. "I'm quite sure Brumel feels the same way. If I win tonight it doesn't mean the United States is better. If he wins, it doesn't mean Russia is better. "And it doesn't mean in a second meeting that the loser of the first will be a killer thirsting for revenge." Thomas, son of a Cambridge, Mass., bus driver, has made the seven-foot high jump a commonplace—clearing that mark or higher on 57 competitive occasions. His world record of 7 feet, 3 3/4 inches remains intact despite Brumel's historic 7-4 1/2 leap indoors at Leningrad Jan. 23. Reason: The International Amateur Athletic Federation which passes on world records refuses to recognize indoor performances. For Thomas this is the long-awaited rematch of his third place finish at the Rome Olympics. Brumel and Robert Shavlakadze beat him on jumps of 7-1, the latter winning the gold medal on the basis of fewer tries. But Thomas won't stand for any talk about a revenge motive. "We're looking forward to this meet as a chance to go against the best opposition," said Thomas' coach Ed Flanagan. "Unfortunately, nine out of every 10 people think of tonight's jumping as Russia vs. the United States. "Using athletics as a form of cold war contest deviates from the true meaning of sportsmanship," Thomas added. His remarks made up quite a speech for Thomas who prefers to let his achievements do his talking for him. It was an indication of how deeply the subject was felt by the normally unemotional 6-foot-5 athlete. "Could this high jump, like some races between outstanding milers, be decided at 6-9, say, because both of you are trying for victory, not records? Thomas was asked. "Sure, it could be decided at factor in the late season success. He averaged in double figures in his first season as a starter. Chicod's one-two punch of Raymond Fornes and Ephraim Smith stacks up with any in the county. Both are seniors. Fornes has hit consistently above 20 points from his guard slot. Smith, a good rebounder, has been effective both as an inside and outside shooter. Grimesland has been handicapped with the lack of depth and talent. Yet, Coach Sam Reese rates his Lindsey Hardee with the best around the league. Lindsey has been slowed down several times this season with defenses concentrated around him. Yet, he still owns a scoring average close to 20 points per game. Other coaches have described him as "a real hustler." All nine coaches of the county took part in the voting which was co-ordinated by The Daily Reflector sports department. Girls All-County: Will be announced Monday.

Gray Holding Stroke Lead

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — John Gray, former major league pitcher now with Indianapolis, today held a one-stroke lead over the rest of the field in the 21st annual National Baseball Players' Golf Tournament. Gray came in with a 73 in Thursday's opening round to take the play away from favorites Alvin Dark and Peanut Lowrey, who shot 74. Ralph Terry, New York Yankee pitcher, also had a 74 for a share in runner-up honors with Dark, manager of the San Francisco Giants, and Lowrey, coach of the Phillies. The biggest surprise of the day was Yogi Berra, the popular Yankee catcher, who played the best round of his career, a sizzling 79. Jim Hearn, the defending champion, also had a 79, the same figure reached by Philadelphia's Robin Roberts, Boston's Billy Herman and Kansas City Manager Joe Gordon. Roy Challenbine, former Detroit Tiger, outfielder, led the inactive major leaguers with the best round of the day, a 71. The 72-hole match play tournament ends Sunday. The 84 forward passes caught by Elroy Hirsch of Los Angeles in 1950 is still a National Football League record.

Wilmington Tops Leading JC Field WILMINGTON (AP) — Favored Wilmington College leads a four-team field into tonight's semifinal round of the Carolina-Virginia Junior College basketball tournament. The Seahawks seeded No. 1 in the eight-team tournament, will play Lenoir in the second game. In tonight's first game, Frederick College of Portsmouth, Va., tackles Campbell College of Buies Creek, N.C.

Bucs Meet ACC Saturday

The wars continue to wage in the upset happy North State Conference. But the final blow prior to the league tournament will be struck Saturday night as teams wind up regular season play. The newest in a season-long series of surprises came last night when Elon thumped newly-crowned conference champion, Lenoir Rhyne, 94-77. In other league action, Atlantic Christian slapped Catawba 83-73 and Pfeiffer pecked away for a 74-71 triumph over Guilford. East Carolina, resting in second place with Appalachian, both holding 11-6 conference records, closes its season tomorrow night against arch-rival Atlantic Christian in Wilson. Nudged from second place Wednesday night in a 71-68 upset by High Point, East Carolina still cherishes hopes of finishing second, thus being in the bracket opposite Lenoir Rhyne in the tournament. While East Carolina tries to avenge an earlier loss to Atlantic Christian tomorrow night, Appalachian will have its hands full in a battle with Catawba at Salisbury. Coach Jack McComas' club showed ample scoring strength in edging ECC 62-61 in their first meeting at Greenville. Stubby guard Jack Boyd hit a last-second set shot to trigger the win. Besides the high scoring Boyd, Dick Knox and Jerry Fritz can shoot with the best on a given night. Dale Fillingame, a 6-8 sophomore, gave ECC rebound trouble in the first meeting. Veteran Bobby Atkinson will be the other ACC starter. Sophomores Lary West and Cotton Clayton found the range earlier this month, moving ECC into second place, and Coach Earle Smith will again rely on their scoring skills. Clayton tops the team in scoring with a 15.3 average. The other four starters—West, Charlie Lewis, Bill Otte and Don Smith—have been hitting the nets at a double digit clip. The game will close ECC's regular season action. The tournament drawing will take place Sunday with action scheduled to start on Wednesday night.

McDonald Accepts New Coaching Job

By JOHNNY HUDSON Reflector Sports Editor East Carolina College football assistant William (Bill) McDonald has accepted the head coaching job at new Frederick College of Portsmouth, Virginia. The announcement of acceptance by the ECC assistant came this week by college president W. J. Blanchard. A relatively new college, Frederick has existed only as a junior college in the past. The college will expand to four years beginning in the fall of 1961. A Portsmouth native and outstanding athlete of Woodrow Wilson High, McDonald played his college ball at East Carolina from 1949-1953. He was a tackle under former ECC tutor Bill Dole and current coach Jack Boone. He returned to his alma mater to complete his M.A. and serve as assistant coach of the Pirates in the fall of 1957. After coaching one year at Grimesland (1958) McDonald spent the next three years as a player-coach in the Air Force. He served as player-line coach for Shaw Air Force Base in South Carolina in 1954. The following season he took over the full reins at Shaw, producing a 15-4-1 record over a two-year span. His 1956 service team was the third ranked service team in the country while his previous one was fifth. He was honored as one of the outstanding service coaches in 1956. In addition to serving as line coach at East Carolina, McDonald carried a full teaching load in the Health and Physical Education Department. Other coaching assignments while at ECC included tennis, golf, and track. McDonald becomes the second East Carolina assistant in two years accepting a head coaching job at a four-year college. George Tucker, also an ECC graduate, matriculated to Elon last spring. Regret in leaving East Carolina was expressed by McDonald. "It's always hard to leave your school but I think the new job offers a wonderful opportunity and challenge," he asserted. McDonald is married to the former Annie Frances Riddick and they are the parents of one child.

Sugg, Bethel Meet In Tourney Finals

BETHEL — Bethel Union and favored H. B. Sugg rolled to tournament victories here last night, advancing to the finals of the PCIT scheduled for Saturday night. Bethel Union slapped Winterville with a mild upset, 48-46, and Sugg High swamped Pitt County Training School, 73-47 in the semi-final round. Tourney favorite H. B. Sugg swept the boards clean and used a lightning fast break in racing to a 23-14 first quarter lead. Coach Jerry Evans' outfit never let up in blistering the Training School with a one-sided licking. Roosevelt Taft, Edward Pitt and Marvin Langley accounted for 57 points for the winners. Taft was high with 27, Pitt had 20, and Langley 10. The other two starters, James Maye and Jimmy Smith, displayed their wares off the boards, hauling in 30 rebounds between them. Each had eight points. Evans turned the contest over to reserves with a little less than seven minutes remaining and Sugg leading, 65-39. In the girls action, the same story applied for the finals with Bethel Union and H. B. Sugg matched in the title game. Sugg, with Celestine Mix scoring 21 points, dropped Pitt County Training School, 44-17, and Bethel Union streaked past Robersonville Union, 22-10. Finals are set for the Bethel Gym Saturday night, the opening game on tap for 7:30.

Phants Play Here

Greenville meets Elizabeth City here tonight in a North-eastern Conference game. Start-time for the junior varsity game will be 6:30. The Phants have won two of their last three games and hold conference record of 6-5. Greenville has a game on tap with Kingston next Tuesday and closes its regular season in Washington on Friday.

Field Reduced For NCAA Title

NEW YORK (AP) —The field for the NCAA basketball championship was reduced to 24 and pairings for four first-round games were announced today by the tournament committee. The committee, headed by Bernie Shively of Kentucky, decided to give the Southwest Conference champion a bye into the second round of the Midwest regionals against the Missouri Valley champion at Lawrence, Kan., March 17. Originally, the committee was considering naming a team at-large as a first round opponent for the Southwest Conference winner. The pairings, announced by the NCAA Service Bureau, include the tripleheader scheduled for Madison Square Garden March 14 and a first round game on the same date between Louisville, an at-large selection, and the Mid-American Conference champion, at Louisville. The other game of the March 14 doubleheader at Louisville will be made up of the Ohio Valley Conference champion and an at-large selection to be named. In the Garden tripleheader, with the winners joining the Mid-Atlantic Conference champion in the second round at Charlotte, the lineup will be: Southern Conference champion vs. Ivy League titlist; Yankee Conference champion vs. St. Bonaventure, and Atlantic Coast Conference champion vs. St. John's (N.Y.).

GW Gets Final Shot For Berth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS George Washington's Colonials tonight set what may be their last best chance to escape an indignity suffered by only one GW basketball team in the last 20 years. The indignity: Failure to win a berth in the eight-team Southern Conference championship tournament. Since GW joined the conference in 1941, it's qualified for every tournament except the 1957 affair. Now 27 inside the conference and in seventh place, without much cushion over Davidson (2-8) and last-place VMI (2-10), the Colonials have three more league games to go. The first of these arrives tonight when GW tackles hustling Richmond (5-8). The other GW games are at powerful Virginia Tech (10-3) on Feb. 21 and at 10th-ranked West Virginia (10-1) on Feb. 25. While GW and Richmond tangle at the arena, VMI bids to climb up out of the conference cellar in a game on its home court at Lexington against William and Mary (7-6). Davidson's tournament hopes were dealt a serious blow Wednesday night when Virginia Tech, solidifying its hold on second place in the standings, whipped the determined Wildcats 79-72 on the Davidson court. Davidson shot a blistering 53.6 per cent but took fewer shots than Tech and was badly outdone under the boards, 47-39. Bob Ayersman had 27 points, Chris Smith 22 points and 21 rebounds for the Techmen. Joe Markee paced the Wildcats with 22. Tech now is 12-6 over-all. Davidson 8-12. Furman was the only other conference team in action, upping its over-all record to 14-8 by trouncing Wofford 77-51. The Paladins hit an amazing 68.8 per cent of their first-half shots, careened into a 50-18 lead at intermission and coasted home. Jerry Smith showed the way to victory with 21 points while Tom Conard added 20.

Six NIAA Clubs Averaging 90 Points Or Better

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Lawrence Tech of Detroit held the team offense and individual scoring leads at the close of last week's basketball competition for members of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. Lawrence Tech had scored 95.2 points per game and its John Bradley led in scoring average with 32.6. Harvard swimmer Bill Schellstede, a breaststroker, comes from Tulsa, Okla.

Many Reasons For Bethel's Climb To Championship

Bethel's basketball team has had one of the most successful roundball campaigns seen in the Pitt County area in several years. And Indian Coach, Walter Latham can account for the team's success with a long list of reasons.

At the top of the list is a 6'0", 180 pound senior by the name of John Smith (no relation to the late Captain John Smith). An All-County choice last season, the likable Smith was just yesterday named to the honor squad again this year. The stocky forward is currently being looked over by several college coaches in the state.

Smith is averaging over 19 points per game this season in leading the Indians to a 32-2, won-lost state. He has scored in the double digit column on 23 of 25 outings and, although he is not exceptionally tall player, Coach

Latham is pleased that he can rebound with the best of them. "John really loves the game," smiles Latham, "and he plays whenever he gets the chance." A "B" average student scholar-ically, Smith is now in his third season as a regular. According to the Indian mentor, he is the type of boy who, when he sees something he wants, he will go after it with everything he has. "And he sure loves to win", continued Latham.

Now in his twenty-second year at the helm of the Indians, Latham is absolutely convinced that Smith is "the best outside shooter that we have ever had at Bethel."

Another determining factor in the success of this year's edition of the Indians is a little guard with a big heart, Harvey Lewis, another senior, has made a sizeable contribution to the winning ways of Bethel basketball. Lewis is the second leading scorer on the squad with a 13.7 average per contest. The 5'9" 155 pounder was just another ball player last season, according to Latham, but the Indian coach is quick to add that the backcourt ace "really came into his own this year." His 13 point average isn't a real high one mentioned Latham. "It's still a good one in this league." Of course it takes more than two players to make a winning ball club, and Latham is the first to admit it. When the likable coach mentions his other three starters, another broad smile crosses his lips. And one can understand why. Two of them are juniors and the other is only a freshman.

The junior duet is composed of Herman Daniels and Don Dewar. The former is another who craves the game of basketball, and also carries a substantial scoring average. He is a strong defensive player, steady, and as Latham puts it, "can tear up a zone defense with his terrific outside shooting." Perhaps what stimulates the widest grin on Latham's face is Tex Everett. The 6'2" freshman is currently swishing the nets at a 10.8 clip per outing, and his tall 162 pound frame is not easily shoved around under the backboards. "He means 10 points to us with his tremendous rebounding ability," beams Latham, "and he never gets rattled in there. You ought to see him broad jump!"

Latham, better known as the Everett Case of Pitt County, has had the honor of coaching the Bethel school to many championships in the past, once running a streak of nine consecutive County Championships between the years of 1935 through 1944.

This season, Latham can credit success to strong offense and a stingy defense. His Indians are currently averaging 72 points per game while holding their opponents to only 45 points a game.

Bonti, Benham Still Favored

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—A duel between Italy's defending champion Eugenio Monti and record holder Stan Benham of Lake Placid appeared more likely than ever today as bobsledders of ten nations took stock of their chances in the world four-man championships starting Saturday.

Monti, winner of his fifth straight two-man championship last weekend, and Benham, who holds the record of 1:08.88 for the mile-long Mt. Van Hoevenberg run, gained the favored starting positions in the draw Thursday.

Monti will start in the No. 7 slot and Benham No. 8. The starts are rotated to minimize the effects of a slow track at the beginning and a rough one at the end. The middle places are considered best.

Germany's Franz Schelle, who twice broke Benham's record in practice, drew the No. 6 position Sergio Zardini, driver of Italy's No. 2 sled and another of the favorites, drew No. 15. The second U.S. sled, driven by Larry McKillop of Saranac Lake, will start in 11th position.

The championship is decided on the total times for four runs down the icy, twisting course.

The Mt. Van Hoevenberg run was closed to practice today.

Some of the darkhorse entries in the 15-sled field are England's Bill McCowen and Austria's Paul Axie, both of whom bettered 1:09 Thursday, and two veteran Swiss drivers, Max Angst and Hans Zoller.

In Golf Tournaments

Demaret Bemoans Slow Play

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Jimmy Demaret was bemoaning the slowness of play in big golf tournaments and the varying conditions for play during a day, helping some, hurting others.

"I think all tournaments with large fields eventually will have 'shotgun' starts," the three-time Masters winner said between rounds of the Professional Golfers Association Seniors championship in which he is competing for the first time.

"That is, at a signal threesomes or foursomes will start from each of the 18 tees simultaneously. As it is, they start a tournament from the first tee, and the whole course is empty, and won't be filled until the first group completes its round."

Jimmy, a very real link between the younger tournament golfers and the seniors, as he is equally at home with either group, today gets his chance to improve his first round three-under-par 69 as the 50-54 age bracket goes into action for its second round of the 22nd annual Seniors event.

The younger group, or the junior seniors, will be chasing Buck White of Greenwood, Miss., who shot a spectacular 32-31-63 Wednesday when the 50-54 contestants shot their first round.

The 55-and-up field played its second round Thursday, with former champion Pete Burke of Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., taking the lead at the halfway point with a total of 137 on rounds of 68 and 69.

Burke edged out Bill Goldbeck of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., by two strokes, with Walter Hall of Hyannis Port, Mass., and Harold Sanderson of Summit, N. J., tied for third at 140.

George Smith, Lake Forest, Ill., the first round leader with 67, took a 74 for his second round and wound up in a tie at 141 with Gene Sarazen, Germantown, N.Y., Mortie Dutra, Bonita Calif., and Tony Longo, Clarks Summit, Pa.

Leonard Ruck of Sylvania, Ohio, Buck White of Greenwood, Miss., with a 66 was second to White after the first 18 holes in the 50-54 category.

After today's round the entire field will be cut to the low 125 and ties for the final two rounds of the 72-hole affair Saturday and Sunday.

Terps Upset Duke, 76-71

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Utah Redskins scored their sixth straight victory and widened their Skyline Conference lead to a full game with a 67-62 whipping of Denver University Thursday night.

The test at Denver actually was easier than the final score indicates, since the Utes had a 15-point lead until the closing minutes as they ran their Skyline record to 8-1 compared to 7-2 for idle Colorado State U. Each has four conference games remaining before they have their showdown at Fort Collins, Colo., on March 4. The Utes could be out of reach by then.

Duke's first Atlantic Coast Conference game without suspended ace Art Heyman was a flop. Cincinnati fanned its Missouri Valley Conference lead while extending its winning streak to 13, and fifth-ranked Bradley, Providence, Niagara, and Temple scored key victories in other features of the college program.

Maryland, beaten in its last five games, topped third-ranked Duke to third place in the ACC with a 76-71 upset at College Park, Md. It was Duke's first start since ACC Commissioner Jim Weaver suspended Heyman for three remaining conference games because of his role in a fight during a Feb. 4 game with North Carolina. North Carolina, which has lost Larry Brown and Don Walsh by Weaver's action, now leads the conference at 9-2 with Wake Forest second at 10-3 and Duke at 9-3. Fourth-ranked Cincinnati beat tough Wichita 67-64 and at 8-2 opened a game lead in the MVC over Bradley, which toppled Houston 90-74 in a non-league clash.

Providence (17-4) downed DePaul 81-77 in a duel of National Invitation Tournament teams, and Niagara (13-3) improved its chances for an NIT berth—nipping Seton Hall 78-76 on Ken Whalen's jump shot with 2 seconds left. Temple, dethroned St. Joseph's (Pa.) for the NCAA berth from the Middle Atlantic Conference, pushed its league record to 8-0 with a 70-60 victory over Lehigh. Elsewhere, Leo McDermott's jump shooting in the second half gave Xavier of Ohio (14-6) a 58-54 triumph over Iona College before New York U. downed Manhattan 71-65 in a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden. Drake won its fifth straight, 88-84 over Tulsa; and St. Louis handed North-Texas State its 18th loss in 19 games, 86-57. In other Missouri Valley matches: Florida State hit 54 percent to spill Georgia to its sixth straight loss, 77-68, and Virginia Tech won 70-72 over ...

Herbert Second In Tucson Open

By MURRAY SINCLAIR
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)

Lesser known golfers were very much in evidence as the $20,000 Tucson Open headed into today's second round.

Ever hear of Frank Wharton? Probably not, because he's never finished better than seventh in a PGA event. But because the slim Austin, Tex., youngster was raised on the wind-swept courses of West Texas he earned a one stroke lead with a six under par 31-33-64 in Wednesday's opening round.

Other pros moaned that 25 mile per hour winds, with gusts even stronger, ruined their scores. Clouds of dust swirled across the fairways, clogging ears and eyes. This afternoon is supposed to be windy again, but nothing like Thursday.

"This was like home," Wharton said. To prove it he birdied the 16th and 17th holes when the wind was the strongest to clinch his lead.

PGA Champ Jay Hebert momentarily checked the youth movement by grabbing the runner-up spot with a 33-32-65.

Tied with 66s, were: Bob Shields, a long-hitting club pro from Wichita Falls, Tex.; Tom Talkington, club pro from Ypsilanti, Mich.; Buddy Sullivan, Yuba City, Calif.; Harold Kneese, Aiken, S.C.; and Dave Marr last year winner of the Greenbriar open.

The veteran Marty Furgol was grouped with Thorne Wood, High Point, N.C., and Bob Wagner, San Jose, Calif. at 67.

Bob Goalby, winner at Los Angeles last month; the South African Gary Player, currently the leading money winner; and Jack Fleck carded 68s.

Norman Sloan, University of Florida basketball coach, formerly coached the sport at The Citadel. Jack McCreary, Louisiana State basketball coach, compiled a 25-10 record for his two seasons as a coach at DePauw University.

No other conference teams were scheduled.

Tonight's entire conference fare moves to the Charlotte Coliseum where North Carolina plays South Carolina at 7:30 p.m. and Clemson meets North Carolina State in the second game. The two North Carolina teams swap South Carolina opponent Saturday night.

North Carolina, the new conference leader after Duke's slump, takes a 9-2 ACC record into the contest. N.C. State is 6-6 in league play while Clemson is 3 - 6 and South Carolina 2-8 — including a surprise win over sixth - ranked North Carolina.

Wake Forest moved into second place with a 10-3 ACC record after Duke's defeat.

Duke, dropping its second game of the week, saw its seasonal mark dip to 17-4. In the conference, the Blue Devils now stand 9-3.

Down by 12 points, Duke rallied at Maryland to tie the game at 65-65 with two minutes to play. The Terps, however, then scored five straight points, getting a start on Bill Stasulatis' three - point play.

Maryland had lost four straight ACC games before tripping up Duke. An 18-point performance by Bob McDonald, who fouled out with 6:45 to play, led the Terps. Bob Wilson, a 6-foot-10 performer, added 17.

Coach Vic Bubas got a balanced attack from the remainder of his team. Doug Kistler led the way with 16 points, Howard Hurt had 14 and John Frye and Fred Schmidt 12 each.

Duke lost another starter, Jack Mullen, when he ran into scholastic difficulties at the end of the first semester.

Burgess Remains Scoring Leader

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Burgess of Gonzaga, now the eighth major college player to top 2,000 points in a three-year career, remains the No. 1 scorer among big school basketball players.

Now on a 10-day break from basketball, Burgess built his season record to 716 points in 22 games for a 32.5 average and a 14 lead over East Tennessee's Tom Chilton. Figures from the NCAA Service Bureau show today.

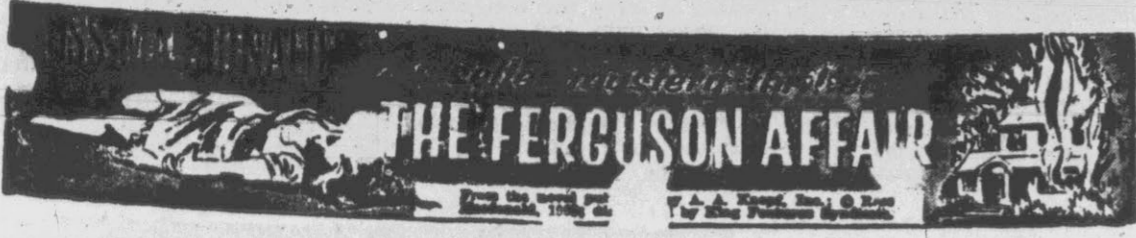

Chilton, who would need to average over 42 points a game in the three games he'll play while Gonzaga and Burgess are idle to take the lead, is second with a 31.1 average on 622 points in 20 games. St. Bonaventure's Tom Stith remains third with a 30.7 average on 613 points in 20 games.

THE FERGUSON AFFAIR

CHAPTER 30

When consciousness returned to me, I lifted my head and saw the firelight dancing on the wall. I rolled over and sat up. One side of the room was alive with flames. They fluttered toward me like ribbons in a fan draft and toward the woman lying on the floor. I thought with something of approaching awe that Larry Gaines had included her in his plan of destruction. Her clothes were disarranged as though she had put up a struggle. A blue bruise spread from her temple across one eye.

I started to crawl toward her, and discovered that my right arm wasn't working. Before I reached her, a tongue of flame licked at her outflung hand. Her fingers curled up away from it. Her whole body stirred sluggishly. She wasn't dead.

Which meant I had to get her out of there. I scrambled to my feet. Fire flapped like flags around her. I twisted my good hand in the tails of her shirt and heaved. The shirt tore.

She was becoming very important to me. Holding my breath against the heat, I caught hold of her limp wrist and dragged her into the hallway. It was like a flash of light and she was gone. I pulled her out into the blessed night.

The fire was beginning to sing and surge behind me. In no time at all it would be a roaring furnace. I looked for my car. It was gone. I maneuvered the unconscious woman to the edge of the veranda, hauled her up to a sitting position, crouched in front of her, and lifted her by the wrist across my good shoulder.

Somewhat I got my knees straightened out under her weight, and started down the driveway.

The trees on either side swayed mystically in the moonlight. My faint and hunched shadow shadowed my movements. The soft burden on my back seemed to increase with each step I took. Then I began to slip.

Before she slithered from my grasp entirely, I went to my knees at the side of the drive and let her down carefully. We were still under trees, a hundred feet short of the gate, but this would have to do.

I sat down heavily in the weeds beside her and covered her with my jacket.

The right side of my shirt was dark and clammy. I felt the dark soot with my fingers and only then recalled the shocking image of Hilda sighing across her knees and fringing. With my left forefinger I found the hole she had made, just under my collarbone. It was wet and warm. I balled my handkerchief and held it against the wound.

The woman whimpered. Faint coppery lights were moving on her face. I thought for an instant she was coming to, then realized it was the fire's reflection. The up stairs windows, the house were rectangles of twisted orange and black. Black smoke boiled up toward the moon in clouds whose belying undersides were flame-lit and peppered with flying sparks.

Help arrived sooner than I expected. A single pair of headlights fanned up the winding road, turned in at the gate without pausing. I got up onto my feet and stumbled into the middle of the driveway.

The headlights stopped a few feet short of me. Behind them I recognized the bulky shape of an ambulance. Whitey and his partner Ronny climbed out on opposite sides of the cab and converged on me.

"You got here fast, boys."

"That's our job," Whitey looked me over in the glare of the headlights. "What happened to you, Mr. Gunnarson?"

"I have a shoulder wound that needs attention. But better look after the woman first."

"What woman?"

"Over here," Ronny waded from the side of the road. His voice was vaguely familiar, though I didn't remember hearing him speak before. He switched on a flashlight and examined her, turning up her eyelids, sniffing her breath.

"She may be under drugs," I said.

"Yeah. It could be an overdose of morphine, or heroin. There's needle marks on her arm." He indicated several dark pinpoint in the white flesh of her upper arm.

"She was talking and acting as though she was high on something."

"Whatever it is, she's mighty low on it now."

"You mean she talked to you?" Whitey said. "What did she say?"

There were dancing orange gleams in the centers of his eyes, as if he was burning up with curiosity.

"She said a lot of things. They'll keep. Let's get a temporary dressing on this shoulder." "I guess we better do that, Ronny. I may need your help with Mr. Gunnarson."

The hinges of my knees were as loose as water. I barely made it to the ambulance. They hoisted me up into the back, turned on the roof light, and let me down gently on a padded stretcher. As soon as I was horizontal, my head began to swim and my eyes played tricks. Whitey and Ronny seemed to hover over me like a pair of mad scientists exchanging sinister smiles.

"Strap his wrist," Whitey said.

"That won't be necessary, I won't fight you."

"We won't take any chances. Strap his wrists, Ronny."

Ronny strapped my wrists to the cold aluminum sides of the stretcher. Whitey produced a triangular black-rubber mask attached to a narrow black tube.

"I don't need anesthetic."

"Yes you do. I hate to see people suffer, you know how I am."

Ronny snickered. "I know. Nobody else knows, but I know."

Whitey shoved him. He fitted the soft rubber mask over my nose and mouth. Its elastic strap circled my head.

"Pleasant dreams," he said. "Breathe out and then breathe in."

A sense of survival deeper than consciousness made me hold my breath. Behind my eye, broken pieces were falling into place. I had heard Ronny's snicker on the telephone.

"Breathe out. Then breathe in."

Whitey's face hung over me like one of those changing faces you see between sleeping and waking at the end of a bad day. I raised my head against the downward pressure of his hand. The end of the black tube was wrapped around his other hand. Using both hands, he forced my head back down.

"Listen," Ronny said. "There's a car coming up the hill." After a listening silence: "It sounds like a police car."

"You should have been monitoring police calls. You goofed, man."

"You said you needed me in here."

"I don't any more. I can handle him."

"How's the patient doing?"

"He'll be gone in a minute. Get out there and give them a story. We pulled him out of the fire, but he died of asphyxiation, poor fellow."

He leaned hard on the mask. I was far from gone. One of my sports was diving without a lung.

Ronny leaned over to look at me. I doubled up my right leg and kicked him in the middle of his face. It felt like stepping on a snail.

Whitey said: "You devil!"

I tried to kick him. He was beyond the reach of my flailing legs, bending over my face with his full weight on me. The dark wheel of unconsciousness started to spin in my head. I tried to breathe. There was nothing to breathe.

The sound of a motor shining up the grade detached itself from the whirring of the dark wheel. Before the two sounds merged again, headlights filled the ambulance with light. The pressure was removed from my face. I caught a blurred glimpse of Whitey standing over his prostrate partner with a black automatic in his hand.

He fired it. The ambulance interior multiplied its roar like an echo chamber. The single sharp crack that followed was more than an echo. Whitey bowed like a performer at the footlights, clapping his abdomen.

Sergeant Pike Granada came into the ambulance and took the rubber thing off me before I followed Hector Bradman and Secundina Donato all the way into darkness.

Overdue Library Book Arrests Had Effect

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

Midnight raids to homes of library users having overdue books from the East Orange, N. J. library have resulted in the return of some long overdue property to the Sheppard Memorial Library.

Immediately after the news of "midnight" raids and $100 bonds in East Orange, local citizens filed to the library, Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian, said. Some of them told staff members they had been reminded of overdue books in their possession by publicity of the midnight raids.

In one case, a young lady returned six record albums—she originally took out seven, one in November—and paid her fine. She didn't mention the East Orange case, but she returned the records the day after the news came out.

This same young lady had been sent the reminder card about having overdue books, as well as a first class letter, a bill, and numerous telephone calls from staff members. A staffer noted that even with the return of six record albums, the young lady still has one album out: it was due November 2, which means she actually borrowed it from the library in October.

State Law

There is a state law in North Carolina about overdue library books, which are regarded as public property. Librarians in North Carolina could conduct a "crack-down campaign" legally, if they so desired.

The law reads like this: "Whoever willfully or maliciously fails to return any book, newspaper, magazine, pamphlet or manuscript belonging to any public library to such library for 15 days after mailing or delivery in person of notice in writing from the librarian of such library, given after the expiration of the time, which by regulation of such library such book, newspaper, magazine, pamphlet of manuscript may be kept, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not more than fifty dollars or imprisonment for not more than 30 days; Provided, that the notice required by this section shall bear upon its face a copy of this section."

Prior to a 1925 amendment, violation of public library property was punishable within the discretion of the court.

Actually, the fine in New Jersey was just $25, compared to North Carolina's $50.

Miss Copeland noted that daily fines during Feb. 9-13, after the East Orange case, had totaled as high as $12.36 on one day. Usually fines average from $3 to $5. Last year's total intake from fines was $1,393.34, Miss Copeland said.

The policy followed in Greenville at the Sheppard Memorial Library on overdue library property is as follows:

When a book is one week overdue, a postal card is sent as a reminder and contains the name of the book, author and date due.

If there is no response, the second week after the book is due, a first class letter is sent, again containing information on the book's title, author and date due. The letter notifies the receiver that a third notice will contain a bill if the book is not returned.

The third step, three weeks after the book has become due, brings the formal bill with a note on it that library privileges are suspended until the fine is paid. The library borrower then has a choice of returning the book and paying the cost of the book, so that it may be replaced.

The ultimate goal of the library is to collect its property and return it to circulation.

The maximum fine here is $1 on an adult book and 50 cents on a children's book. This means that a fine on an adult book may accumulate as much as a dollar, but it will go no higher.

Again, Miss Copeland emphasized that "this policy of Sheppard Memorial Library is designed to encourage return of books no matter how much time has passed."

College Home Ec Club Acquires Memorial To A Former Student

An engraved Betty lamp, official emblem of the American Home Economics Association, has been acquired by the East Carolina College Home Economics Club and will be used as a memorial to Rachel E. Spivey of Hertford, East Carolina College student killed in an automobile accident Dec. 4, 1960.

Miss Spivey, an outstanding student at East Carolina, was a member of the Home Economics Club, the Young Women's Christian Association, the Young Democrats Club, and the College Union Student Board. She also served as class editor of The Bucanera, college year book, and social chairman of Fleming Hall, dormitory for women. She was a member of Chi Omega, social sorority.

The Betty lamp, symbol of the Association, "suggests the idea for which the American Home Economics Association stands: the application of science to the improvement of the home." It is an open wick iron lamp which the first New England pioneers brought with them to this country. The design of the lamp and the principle by which it gives light are the same as that of lamps found in the ruins of ancient cities which had their rise and fall many centuries before the Christian era.

The memorial to Miss Spivey, the Betty lamp, will be used for

Day Of Prayer For Students To Be Observed

The Universal Day of Prayer for Students will be observed Sunday at East Carolina College with a service conducted by students in the Y-Hut.

Scheduled to begin at 5:00 p.m., the Rev. Terry Agner, Lutheran pastor in Greenville, will be speaker for the service.

Supper will be served at 5:45 p.m. to those attending the service, by the Lutheran Student Fellowship.

The denominational student groups and the Y's are cooperating in the planning of Sunday's observance so that Christian student organizations might come together for an ecumenical service of prayer and dedication to the mission of the Church among students throughout the world.

Bank's Dollar Sale Sees Rush

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—"Merchants are always having sales or discounting this and that," bank president Aubrey E. Austin Jr. explained.

So, when it came time for Santa Monica dollar days, his bank made an announcement: Silver dollars marked down to 98 cents.

The result Thursday was rush of customers at the Santa Monica Bank. Thirty were lined up outside before the doors opened. By noon the bank had sold 2,500 cut-rate dollars, many to youngsters.

A Treasury Department spokesman said there was nothing illegal about the sale. "You can give them away if you want to," he added.

House Rules Committee Is Fast Turning Into A 'Sieve'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Rules Committee apparently is changing from a bottleneck into a sieve.

Its chairman, Rep. Howard W. Smith, D-Va., indicated Thursday he plans to turn loose for full House consideration every bill on the committee's docket, including some that are actively disliked by Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex.

In the past Smith and another Southern Democrat joined four conservative Republican committee members to bottle up legislation they didn't like; the bills never reached the floor of the House.

But early in this session Rayburn declared war on this ancient custom, saying that President Kennedy's proposals deserved to be voted on by all House members.

They battle between Rayburn and Smith was bitter and close, but Rayburn won by five votes in a dramatic vote of the entire House. The committee was enlarged from 12 to 15 members, and the new Democrats on it gave Rayburn a majority that would send to the floor the bills he wanted.

But Smith apparently intends to send not only bills Rayburn wants, but bills he doesn't want as well. "We have a mandate to act," he said Thursday. "We are going to act."

Among proposals Smith's committee may act on next week is one to permit radio and television coverage of House committee sessions. Rayburn is dead set against this one.

"I've always been against it and I am yet," the Speaker told newsmen.

Other bills on the Rules Committee docket are to allow dual sponsorship of bills, to permit the President to veto individual items in appropriations bills, to lump all appropriations in a single bill, and to create a special committee to count the nation's gold supply at Ft. Knox.

Some are hardy legislative perennials which the Rules committee in the past has quietly shelved with the tacit approval of the Rayburn leadership. The radio-TV proposal comes under that heading.

Smith said he's against the proposal too, but feels bound to allow the committee to vote on it. If the committee is going to be called a bottleneck again, he said, he doesn't want to be blamed.

Smith also is likely to order roll call votes on all committee actions this year. This could embarrass some members who were content in the past to let bills die quietly in the committee.

"They have the votes on the committee," Smith said of the Rayburn backers. "If they don't want these things to get to the House for a vote, they can kill them in the committee. But I don't want to be blamed. I have a mandate."

Area People Use Cancer Clinic

ROCKY MOUNT — Thirty-five persons were examined in the Cancer Detection and Diagnostic Clinics Wednesday, when the clinics were held for the 424 time by physicians of Edgecombe and Nash Counties.

These clinics are held each Wednesday at the Rocky Mount City Health Department, 1616 West Thomas Street, Rocky Mount, and they are open only to persons thirty-five years of age, and older, regardless of race or ability to pay. Those under thirty-five may be admitted with referral from their physician. The 35 persons examined consisted of one white man, 21 white women, 11 colored women, and 2 colored men. Only 3 of the examinees had been referred to the clinic by a physician.

Persons examined represented Rocky Mount and outlying areas: Roanoke Rapids, Enfield, Pineblow, Nashville, Elm City, Bath, Greenville, Ayden and Tarboro.

In order that those that live at a distance may be sure of an examination when they come to the clinic and thus not make a trip in vain, priorities will be issued on request to anyone living twenty miles or more from Rocky Mount. Requests for these priorities should be addressed to: Cancer Control Center, City of Rocky Mount Health Department, 1616 West Thomas Street, Rocky Mount, North Carolina.

These clinics are operated by the Edgecombe-Nash Medical Society and the Rocky Mount City Health Department, in cooperation with the State Board of Health, and the local unit of the American Cancer Society. They are being operated on a non-permanent basis as an educational feature and public service. While on this basis, there is no charge to anyone.

TV Will Explore Mystery Involving Lincoln's Death

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Saturday night viewers who are accustomed to having their whodunits and westerns satisfactorily tied up at the end of 30 or 60 minutes, may be in for an unnerving experience.

CBS' Show of the Month has preempted "Have Gun, Will Travel" and "Gunsmoke," and for 90 minutes will explore the mysterious circumstances surrounding the assassination of Abraham Lincoln.

The drama, "The Lincoln Murder Case" was written by Dale Wasserman, and is an examination, based on documentary evidence, of many of the unexplained and strange events before and after the shot was fired in the theater.

Wasserman originally was assigned to write a play based on "Web of Conspiracy," by Theodore Roscoe, a historian whose research led him to believe Lincoln's death was part of a conspiracy which included important members of Lincoln's official family. He did not believe, as the accepted version has it, that John Wilkes Booth was a madman who dreamed up the whole idea himself.

Wasserman, after studying the book, continued research, ultimately going to Washington to check original source material. Like Roscoe, Wasserman is absolutely convinced a high-up conspiracy was operating.

"Why did Vice President Johnson act so strangely the night Lincoln was shot?" he asked rhetorically. "Why did he lock himself in his room early in the evening and refuse to come out? Where was the guard who was supposed to be at the door of Lincoln's box? Why were two men — one of them Booth — permitted to escape over a well-guarded bridge and then one pursuer stopped? Why did Johnson deny he knew Booth when in fact he knew him intimately?

TV Will Explore Mystery Involving Lincoln's Death

"There are hundreds of questions that can be asked and the events can't all be coincidences," Wasserman expects that his play will be controversial — in fact he hopes it will be.

"I think people ought to be shaken up every once in a while," he said. "This show just shoots some questions up in the air. And maybe people won't like it. I suspect that most people like to have their legends neatly wrapped and all the ends tied up, and hate having them disturbed or destroyed."

The die is cast and the Dinah Shore Show, after all these years, will leave the NBC Sunday night lineup next season. (Dinah, however, will appear in an occasional special show on the network.) And it is expected that the Walt Disney Show, moving over from ABC, will take over the hour now occupied by the Shirley Temple Show.

Family Watched Glowing Object In Night Skies

LAKEPORT, Calif. (AP) — A Lakeport family watched a brightly glowing object for nearly half an hour in the sky west of here Thursday night.

Robert Sneed, a local insurance man, sighted the object at 9 p.m., an estimated 20 degrees above the horizon over Cow Mountain west of here.

He and his wife and son, Victor, a local photographer, went to a small hill where they watched it "until it went out" at 9:25 p.m. Sneed said Victor took two photographs of the object and said he would develop the film today.

Through field glasses, Sneed watched the object carefully and said it seemed to stand still but appeared to have some movement possibly a spinning motion.

He said it was perhaps 10 times as bright and as big as the planet Venus, as it appeared in the cloudless sky.

The sheriff's office received no other sighting report.

Jaycees Hear Reynolds May On Urban Renewal

"I am against the government interfering with private business," Reynolds' May told the Jaycees last night in presenting a proposed ordinance for upgrading the city's residential property.

May said he would not describe the ordinance as "perfect."

"It's just a start," he declared. The speaker said it was patterned after an ordinance on the books in Charlotte.

The private group of citizens, which had the proposed ordinance prepared, plans to present it to the City Council at a special session March 2.

May said he represented no group, but was presenting his own views on Urban Renewal and public housing.

"I have never been against anything for the progress of the town and for the betterment of its citizens," May, who is in the building supply business, said. "I honestly don't think that what has been presented is the best thing for the town."

However, he said, "Regardless of how this referendum comes out, you fellows (the Jaycees) have done a good thing because you've got the people thinking and when the people get to thinking something good is bound to come out of it."

"I agree something certainly should be done," May told the club members. "The downtown district certainly is going to have to be expanded." He advocated the city doing such planning without federal interference.

"They tell us you cannot have Urban Renewal without public housing," he stated. "I'm against that and don't mind who knows it. If public housing comes in your will see a change in the economy of Greenville."

"We don't have to have the things that we can bring on us with public housing."

Teacher Pay Is Also S.C. Issue

COLUMBIA (AP) — Amendments to raise funds to finance a raise for South Carolina's public school teachers were almost certain to touch off spirited debate in the State House of Representatives today.

The teachers' pay issue was left as the first order of business at the conclusion of an extraordinary night session Thursday.

During the second day of debate on the $183 million general appropriations bill the House increased the mileage allowance for state employees and, over heated objections, adopted a provision calling for an increased appropriation for the state's educational television system.

Among proposals to raise the salaries of teachers was one from Rep. F. Mitchell Ott of Orangeburg and others which provides that all surplus funds up to $5 million be used to finance the move.

The proposal further specifies that if the money isn't available that five million dollars worth of bonds be issued.

Ott estimated that total revenues for 1961-62 will be close to $200 million rather than the 187.2 million estimated by the Budget and Control Board. The Ways and Means Committee, which authored the measure, has recommended appropriations to comply with the Budget Board's revenue estimate.

When Udall became Interior head he said the decision was under review.

Indications are the department will build a saline water laboratory in connection with the conversion project, Sanford said.
