Airliner Safely Brought In Despite Faulty Gear

AIRLINER SLIDES IN SAFELY—This Piedmont Airlines F77 made a successful emergency landing at Seymour-Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro yesterday despite malfunctioning landing gear. The faulty equipment was discovered at Charlottesville, Va. and the plane returned to Winston-Salem. From there it was directed to Seymour-Johnson which is well equipped for emergency landings. The inset photo, taken by an Air Force photographer, shows the plane as it touched down on the runway with one wheel down and the other two up. The down gear collapsed an instant after the inset picture was taken and a smooth belly landing was made on the foamed runway. The larger photo, taken by Roy Hardee, shows the big plane after it came to rest. The 18 passengers and three crew members reported they barely felt a shock as the pilot brought the plane in for the emergency landing.

Harrell Elected Chairman Of Pitt Demo Committee

By HENRY HOWARD, Reflector Staff Writer

J. Henry Harrell was elected chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee today shortly after noon today.

The veteran Democratic party worker succeeds John G. Clark who submitted his resignation at the noon meeting of the Executive Committee after 17 years at its helm.

Harrell was elected first by a 16-to-9 vote among the 25 precinct chairmen who make up the Executive Committee. A second rotation made the action unanimous.

Harrell was nominated by S. C. Ives of Bethel. This was followed by the nomination of Charles O.H. Horne by Hugh Winslow.

Charles Gaskins made a motion, which carried, to conduct the vote by secret ballot.

All the precinct chairmen were present or else represented by proxies. M. E. Cavendish voted James Poindexter's proxy for Greenville No. 8. C. D. Langston voted Ray Oglesby's proxy from Winterville and Leon Moore's from Greenville No. 2.

Secretary Gilbert Peel held the proxies for R. P. Gaskins of Chocod No. 3 and Ivan Bissette of Grifton.

Cavendish raised the question of whether Peel and Langston could vote the proxies outside their own precincts.

He pointed out party laws state that in the absence of precinct chairmen or vice chairmen proxies should be cast by residents of the precinct which they represent.

Clark said this particular situation hadn't been questioned at state conventions.

"I may be wrong but I'm going to rule that way today," he said in admitting the proxies.

Clark submitted his resignation prior to the nominations. The committee passed a resolution of appreciation for Clark's services.

The group this morning also unanimously endorsed local attorney J. W. H. Roberts for Eastern District U.S. Attorney.

J. H. HARRELL ... new chairman

Election of a successor by the 25 chairmen made Clark's resignation effective. He had been re-elected at eight consecutive Pitt party conventions and had completed one year of the two-year term to which he was elected last year.

His successor will serve Clark's unexpired term before the chairmanship will be filled again by the 25 precinct chairmen at the 1962 county convention.

During his tenure Clark was opposed only twice. Both times he was successful by votes of 19 to 1 and 15 to 5. Both occasions came several years ago before the county was redistricted to create 25, instead of the previous 20, precincts.

Clark succeeded Dr. Paul E. Jones of Farmville as county chairman at the 1944 convention.

The executive committee's election of Harrell today required only a simple majority of the 25 precinct heads.

Non-voting members of the executive committee were chairman and vice chairmen—Charles Horne, Bill Stroud and Mrs. Curtis Spencer. Only the 25 precinct chairmen are allowed to vote for the county chairman, under county party rules.

In leaving the post, Clark expressed his gratitude for "the good cooperation that I am sure we will continue to have." He said he "enjoyed working with the men and women of our committee" and commended the party organization for "always meeting its obligations to the Democratic Party."

In an interview yesterday Clark told the Daily Reflector he was hopeful a new chairman would be selected at today's executive session. He named no choice as his successor.

Clark said he had been "thinking about resigning for several years" but had been persuaded to retain his top county Democratic position "time after time by some of my very good friends."

Area distributor for the Sinclair Refining Co., Clark said that the county chairmanship required much of his time and that he wanted simply "to get out."

To avoid being again persuaded to retain the job, Clark said he prepared the letters on a confidential basis and "mailed them before anybody knew I was going to resign." He said, "I didn't even tell my wife until just before I mailed the letters" to the committee members.

Clark, who will observe his 69th birthday in March, attended eight state and two national Democratic conventions as a delegate during his tenure as county chairman. His party chores during his 17 years included appointment as one of North Carolina's 14 Democratic presidential electors in 1956.

Asian And African Governments Ask Stronger UN Hand

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Leaders from Asia and Africa pressed the Security Council today to bolster the United Nations' hand in the Congo. The move could leave the Soviet bloc alone in its efforts to force the U.N. out of the strife-torn nation.

Ceylon, Liberia and the United Aab Republic pushed a resolution that would authorize the U.N. to use force if need be to head off civil war in the infant African state, and claimed widespread support in Asia and Africa.

But the resolution faced major hurdles that raised the possibility of an emergency Assembly session. The aim of the proposal received support from the United States—with reservations. Chief U.S. Delegate Alai Stevenson told reporters Friday night he was doubtful about some provisions but that "it offers a basis for negotiations."

The United States was reported urging that the resolution be broadened to give specific support to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and Congo President Joseph Kasavubu.

Such a change would almost certainly provoke a veto from the Soviet Union which has denounced Kasavubu as a traitor and called for Hammarskjöld's dismissal. The Soviets are demanding an end of the whole U.N. operation in the Congo within a month.

One diplomat said the resolution has an even chance in council—if the United States votes for it and the Soviet Union abstains. Should it run into a veto, an emergency session of the 99-nation Assembly almost certainly would follow in 24 hours. Guinea and Yugoslavia have said they would seek one.

If the resolution should fail by abstention, no emergency session would be possible under the rules and further Congo action would have to await the Assembly's resumed 1960 session beginning March 7.

A Soviet resolution before the council seeking to scuttle the U.N. Congo command has no chance of passing.

The new proposal would have the council urge "that the United Nations take immediately all appropriate measures to prevent the occurrence of civil war in the Congo"—by force, if necessary.

The sponsors fell back on vague phrases, to avoid a Soviet veto. The Soviet government stated Tuesday that it would no longer deal with Hammarskjöld and wanted him fired, charging he was "an organizer of and participant in" the killing of Congo premier Patrice Lumumba.

The resolution further urged immediate withdrawal of all Belgians from the Congo, called on all countries to keep military personnel from going there, provided for an impartial investigation of Lumumba's death and reaffirmed previous council decisions on the Congo.

It also urged the convening of the Congolese parliament; the reorganization of all Congolese armed units and their elimination from political activity.

Revolt Said Brewing In Congo Leftist Forces

By PATRICK MASSEY LEOPOLDVILLE, THE CONGO (AP)—President Joseph Kasavubu's government claimed today a revolt is brewing in the armed forces of leftist rebels. Military sources here said the rebel regime is behind in payments to their troops.

Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu, Congo army commander, was reported to have received offers of support from military camps in rebel-held Oriental Province if he can reach them.

The Leopoldville government tightened its blockade of the western borders of Oriental and neighboring Kivu provinces cutting off supplies and preventing sale of that region's valuable cotton and palm oil exports for the Stanleyville regime to pay soldiers and civil servants.

One top Western diplomat says the picture of rebel chaos and confusion could completely change overnight if the leftists get the support of Sudan, leading into the northeast where Stanleyville is located.

Sudanese support for the Stanleyville government of Communist Antoine Gizenga would clear a path for arms and supplies to flow to the rebels from the United Arab Republic, a staunch supporter of his regime.

So far Sudan has stubbornly refused to let planes fly overhead or trucks roll through its territory to the Congolese frontier. Western observers have seen no sign of a change in that attitude.

In Cairo, Egypt, an official of the Stanleyville regime denied getting any aid from the United Arab Republic.

(The U.A.R. has not yet helped us materially and we have not violated other territories," said Fall Salmeone, in charge of Gizenga's diplomatic mission in Cairo.

"Up to now the Sudan refuses to allow medical equipment to be sent to us. Therefore, how do you want them to permit arms to be shipped through their territory?"

(Salmeone denied that Gizenga is a Communist, saying: "We are nationalists." He blamed the United States as the chief instigator of troubles in the Congo, first by calling Lumumba a Communist and then by giving Gizenga the same label.)

Uniting To Push 4-Lane Highway

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Tourist and highway interest of North Carolina's southeastern beach area have united to seek widening of U.S. 17, the coastal highway, to four lanes in the state.

They decided at a meeting here Friday to name committees which will meet with Gov. Terry Sanford and State Highway Commission officials. They will ask that the interstate route be widened before the opening in January 1964 of the $200 million Chesapeake Bridge and tunnel near Norfolk, Va.

Tourist and highway agencies from South Carolina and Virginia also were represented at the meeting. The South Carolinians indicated plans are being made to widen U.S. 17 through South Carolina by 1964.

Air Force Doubly Delighted By New Discoverer Satellite's Launching

ECC Branch For Lejeune Marines

By PATRICIA MOORE, Reflector Staff Writer

A two-year branch of East Carolina College is to be established at the Camp Lejeune Marine Base near Jacksonville, the State Board of Higher Education decided Friday.

The branch is the first of its kind in North Carolina, though similar programs are carried on throughout the nation. Credits earned through the two-year branch may be transferred to any recognized college in the nation, Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina College, said today.

The program will be self-supporting. Tuition and fees paid by the students will be sufficient to operate the entire center, so that an appropriation will not become a part of the East Carolina College budget, Dr. Jenkins noted. Director of Higher Education J. Harris Purks commented that no state tax funds will be appropriated for the branch.

The Marine Corps will provide books for the library, and classes will be conducted in the library. A director and the nucleus of a full time staff will be employed in the future, Dr. Jenkins stated. The remaining teaching staff will be obtained from qualified people in the base area and from East Carolina College faculty on a part-time basis.

Emphasizing the caliber of teaching personnel available, Dr. Jenkins said the Marines reported as of December 1960, there were 31 persons holding Ph.D. degrees and 108 holding Master's degrees in the base area. Retired Marine personnel provide a further source of instructors.

Jenkins' Reaction "I have a great deal of confidence in this center and feel that it will probably be an exceedingly strong school, because of the caliber of instructors available," Dr. Jenkins stated. "From another viewpoint," he continued, "we feel that it is the responsibility of state institutions such as East Carolina College to extend education in our area as far as it is feasible."

"We are particularly happy to bring this opportunity to the 30-some thousand military personnel in that area," Dr. Jenkins added.

Officials of Camp Lejeune requested that a branch school be established there last year. Camp Lejeune has been offering courses for several years under an extension service plan carried on through East Carolina College.

Purks noted that base officials wanted to establish a branch college "because under Southern Association rules, only one year out of four can be applied toward a degree."

Under the program, people who complete work at the center will probably enroll at colleges throughout the United States and in the world, as well as at East Carolina College, to earn their ultimate degrees, Dr. Jenkins said. The program will afford an opportunity for young service men to continue their educations while in service. Many of the older men have taken advantage of extension courses.

VANDEMBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)

The Air Force was doubly pleased today about the orbit achieved by the latest Discoverer satellite, No. 20 in the durable series.

First, the 2,450-pound satellite is the heaviest in the series so far, outweighing previous Discoverers by 750 pounds. Second, despite its weight, the perigee or low point of its orbit is 201 miles—highest of any Discoverer. A more powerful engine accomplished this.

Reason for Air Force jubilation is that the higher perigee is indicative of a long life for the satellite.

The Discoverer XX projectile, 31 feet in length, zoomed into a cloudless sky at 12:26 p.m. Friday and two hours later the Air Force confirmed that its second stage was in polar orbit.

The satellite, now making a pass every 95 minutes, carries a 300-pound recoverable capsule of the type that next month is expected to house a space-traveling monkey. The monkey will sample hazards man will encounter during an extended period in orbit.

The current bell-shaped capsule has a distinction, too: if all goes well it will be ejected after a record four days in orbit.

The plan is for automatic ejection over Alaska. Cargo planes will attempt to snag its parachute as it drifts down over the target area near Hawaii.

In case of emergency, weather or mechanical, the ejection can be moved up a day or so.

Discoverer XVIII, launched Dec. held its capsule three days—the longest so far. It was the third capsule to be caught in the air. A fourth was recovered from the ocean.

Discoverer XX, longer by six feet than its brethren, was boosted by an improved Thor medium range missile burning a more powerful fuel. The extra space and weight accommodates refined stabilization devices.

The satellite's highest point in orbit is 400 miles above the earth. The capsule itself contains equipment to measure the effect of radiation of devices planned for the Samos eye-in-the-sky camera satellite and the Midas missile-detection satellite.

A radar beacon of the type to be used in future transit navigation satellites also is aboard.

Camera stations of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory will try to photograph small tracking lights strung on the outside of Discoverer XX. The lights are not visible to the naked eye.

Hunt yesterday named six more committees but none involved party's representatives or Greene's Party. Nineteen of a possible 49 committees have been appointed by Hunt.

Earlier he had named Wooten a vice chairman of the House Rules Committee.

In addition to his chairmanship, Hunt was appointed Thursday to House committees on agriculture, wildlife resources, and mental institutions.

Wooten Pleased By Legislative Appointment

Pitt County Rep. Frank M. Wooten Thursday drew an appointment as chairman of one of the most important House committees.

Appointments by House Speaker Joseph M. Hunt of 10 committees Thursday named Wooten chairman of the House Judiciary I Committee.

Rep. Herbert Hardy of Greene was named chairman of the Banks and Banking Committee and Pitt Rep. Clifton W. Everett was placed on four committees—Conservation and Development, Agriculture, Judiciary I, and Education.

In addition to his appointment to what is often considered the House's third most important committee, Wooten was placed on the House State Government group.

Wooten's committee, a workhorse group, is responsible for clarity and legal accuracy of bills involving basic law changes.

Home for the weekend today, Wooten told the Daily Reflector he was "very pleased with the appointment." He said he elected to accept the chairmanship over another head job offered by Hunt—the chairmanship of the Courts and Judicial Districts Committee yet to be named.

Traditionally, attorneys in the House have been members of the two judiciary committees that rule the legal wording of House bills.

Hunt yesterday named six more committees but none involved party's representatives or Greene's Party. Nineteen of a possible 49 committees have been appointed by Hunt.

Earlier he had named Wooten a vice chairman of the House Rules Committee.

In addition to his chairmanship, Hunt was appointed Thursday to House committees on agriculture, wildlife resources, and mental institutions.

Hunt may appoint two more than the usual 47 committees after the Rules Committee, at the speaker's request, recommended the addition of committees on water resources and control irrigation and drainage.

The plane, equipped with communications enabling it to direct military operations from the sky, visited 30 countries in Latin America, the Far East and the Near East.

Another funnel ripped out of a savage thunderstorm at Oklahoma City and struck the eastern part of the city and skipped into Jones northeast of here.

Six persons were slightly injured at Jones as the twister bowled over houses and house trailers as though they were a child's building blocks.

There were numerous close calls.

Guy Adkisson, Oklahoma City, watched the funnel through his front door. Suddenly it was "right on top of us," he said.

Winter Tornadoes Hit Central Oklahoma Hard

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—Winter tornadoes slashed paths of destruction through central Oklahoma Friday night, heavily damaging one town and battering four others.

Weather alerts were credited with keeping the casualty rate low in the face of widespread property damage. No deaths were reported, but at least 12 persons were slightly injured.

Hardest hit was Konawa, a town of 2,000 about 60 miles southeast of here. A twister stormed down main street leaving 85 percent of the business district destroyed or damaged.

Five of the injured were from Konawa, including F. M. Perkins, 55, who was buried for half an hour beneath the rubble of a collapsed brick wall. Rescue workers found him safe, save for lacerations.

National Guard units cordoned off the stricken town from looters and sightseers while workers spent the night probing debris for possible victims.

The clean-up task in Konawa was formidable. One residential street was blocked by an uprooted house. Downtown sidewalks were littered with clothing blown from wrecked merchandise stores.

Other streets were strewn with refrigerators, bathtubs and trees uprooted by the force of the funnel. Several autos were squashed by the fallen trees.

In a bizarre sidelight to the destruction, the body of Louise Cravens, 45, was found in her home,

At first she was thought to have died of a heart attack during the storm. Law officers said she had been dead several hours before the storm hit.

The twister was first sighted about three miles southwest of Stratford. It passed over the top of the town lifting roofs and smashing windows of four downtown businesses.

One woman in Stratford was slightly injured.

The funnel moved due north-east to sweep through Konawa.

From there it laced the outskirts of Wevoka where several garages and four houses were heavily damaged.

All three communities were darkened overnight by loss of power lines.

Gerrymandering At Tuskegee Is Upset By Court

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—A state law which took about 99 percent of the Negro voters off the poll list at Tuskegee has been ruled unconstitutional in federal court.

Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. has also prohibited enforcement of the 4-year-old statute which rearranged Tuskegee's city limits and virtually abolished Negro voting there.

Johnson acting Friday on a suit filed by 12 Tuskegee Negroes, decreed that the 1957 legislative act denies Negroes the rights guaranteed by the Fifteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Local authorities were forbidden to enforce the law, which reduced from about 400 to only four or five the number of Negro voters living within the newly redrawn city limits.

Scots Gather To Protest U.S. Polaris-Carrying Subs On Clyde

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—The clans gathered today for a show of Scottish protest against the basing of American Polaris-armed submarines in their storied River Clyde.

They came from Edinburgh and Aberdeen, from Falkirk and Stirling. There were Highlanders from the north and Lowlanders from Avyrshire and men from Lanark, Kilmarnock and Aberdeen.

And they brought their pipe bands—with them.

Organizers said they expected between 7,000 and 10,000 people to turn up for the mass march across the city and two national demonstrations against the stationing of American nuclear subs in the Holy Loch, in the Clyde.

Setting out from Glasgow's West End—a high class residential district—the marchers were to mass in a park on the shores of the Clyde which has been the scene of some of Scotland's most historic political rallies.

Moving spirits behind the demonstration were left-wing legislators, trade union leaders, pacifists and church representatives.

The rally, organized by the Scottish Council for Nuclear Disarmament, originally was planned to coincide with the arrival of the Polaris depot ship Proteus. But the Proteus' arrival date has now been put back to late February or early March.

Roderick MacFarquhar, chairman of the Nuclear Disarmament Council, invited the U.S. consul-general in Glasgow, Maxwell McCullough, to watch the march from a special observation point where he could have "privacy and comfort," MacFarquhar said.

The consul-general declined the offer.

The hardest of the Scots gathered early, outside the consulate. A small party of them sat the night out there, watched by strolling cops. There were youths for obstructing a public way, and girls in jeans. A sympathizer with an apartment nearby served tea.

In London, meanwhile, another demonstration was organized for a silent march down Whitehall to the offices of the Ministry of Defense.

On the cold stone steps of the ministry, white-haired philosopher Bertrand Russell, 88, has announced he intends to sit down—and stay there for several hours as protest against the defense of Britain by nuclear weapons.

All the other demonstrators were urged to squat on the sidewalks.

They all risk being hauled off to jail by the cops for obstruction. "I don't look forward to going to prison," Russell said. "I shall take less than 10 shillings ($1.40) with me—so that if I am fined I cannot pay. I would much rather go to prison than pay."

Church Planning Special Week

Saint James Methodist Church has completed its plans for Spiritual Enrichment Week February 19 through 24.

The Reverend Mr. Robert W. Bradshaw, former pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church of Greenville, will conduct the services which will begin Sunday evening at 7:30 and each morning Monday through Friday at 10:00. Members of the church's congregation will participate in the services. The prayers at the morning services will be given by Mrs. Howard Hodges, Jr., Mrs. Julian J. White, Jr., Mrs. Stanley M. Weller, Mrs. James H. Parrnell, and Mrs. John J. Stauffer, Jr. During the evening services George W. Smith, Kenneth G. Hite, Leon D. Hunning, Lawrence D. Curle, Wyatt R. Highsmith, and Jessie Dalton Higgins will give the prayers.

Special music for the Sunday evening service will include the choir's rendition of "Open My Eyes" and a solo "His Eye is on the Sparrow" by Miss Rachel Steinbeck. Monday night the choir from Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will bring the message in music; Tuesday night the Methodist Men will sing "Blessed Assurance" and "My Hope is Built"; Wednesday evening Mrs. E. H. Peterson, Jr., will render "Gloria" and "How Beautiful are the Feet of Them"; Thursday evening will include "Show Me Thy Way, O Lord" by the choir and a solo "Arise, O Lord" by Mrs. G. G. Reeves; and the Junior Choir will sing "All That's Good and Great and True" and "Dear Father, Up in Heaven Above" on Friday night.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

An effective approach to world problems of disunity and inharmonious may be found in the Lesson-Sermon on "Mind" which will be read at Christian Science churches Sunday. This hopeful promise from II Corinthians will be among the Bible citations read (13:11): "Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you." From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following passage will be cited (276:4-9): "When the divine precepts are understood they unfold the foundation of fellowship, in which one mind is not at war with another, but all have one Spirit, God, one intelligent source, in accordance with the Scriptural command: 'Let this Mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus.'"

Ancient Egypt's impressive looking cargo vessels were so frail that they had to receive support from a great twisted hawser that was laid over supports from bow to stern.

Student Teaching Program Discussed

Mrs. Elsie Eagan told of the program on the primary level and Dr. Holmes of East Carolina College told about the upper grades level.

Art Festival Date Announced

The steering committee for the 26th Annual Community Arts Festival met Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Jr., chairman.

The dates have been set for April 29th through May 5th.

The weeklong festival will begin with a luncheon in the South Dining Room at East Carolina College, the program to be announced later. Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell is luncheon chairman. Other programs of music, drama, art exhibits and other phases of the arts are being planned. It is the hope of the committee to plan programs which will further the purpose of the festival which is to stimulate greater awareness of the arts and their use in serving individuals and groups.

The festival is sponsored by the Woman's Club of Greenville and East Carolina Art Society with the co-operation of Greenville City Schools, East Carolina College, and other civic groups.

Serving on the steering committee are: Mrs. J.C. Galloway, Jr., and Mrs. S.H. Mitchell, Co-chairmen; Mrs. J.H.B. Moore, Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, Mrs. Fran Gordley, Mrs. Bernard Jackson, Mrs. F.R. Atkinson, Mrs. Wellington Gray, Mrs. Tige Gardner, Mrs. C.A. Bowen and Mrs. W.E. Roseveare.

Mrs. Poffenbaugh Gives Program

The Lakewood Pines Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. F. Hendrix Tuesday with Mrs. A. L. Whitehurst as co-hostess.

Mrs. Harry Billica, president, called the meeting to order and asked for committee reports. Mrs. W. M. Reading Jr., award and rating chairman, reminded the members to turn in all Garden Club Award work they have done this year. Mrs. W. J. Stell Jr. passed out the study course leaflets, emphasizing filler material for flower arrangements. Mrs. Billica passed around snapshots of the exterior of the Art Center showing the area as it appears before the landscaping undertaken by the Garden Club as a two year project. Tickets were given to those planning to attend the Flower and Garden Show to be held in Raleigh Feb. 24-28.

Mrs. A. L. Whitehurst, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the following slate of officers for 1961: president, Mrs. W. M. Reading Jr.; vice-president, Mrs. W. E. Roseveare; secretary, Mrs. J. H. Harrell; treasurer, Mrs. R. G. Hunt; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. A. Jordan; Garden Club Council Representative, Mrs. R. P. Heller. The slate was accepted unanimously.

Following the business part of the meeting, Mrs. William Poffenbaugh of Kinston presented the program of color slides on various flower shows along with comments as to proper procedures.

Members were reminded of the Small Flower Show to be held at the Art Center on March 14. This show is to be open to all garden clubs of Greenville, and the Art Center will be open to the public from 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Commission on Missions
The Commission on Missions of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the church office.

In discussing the primary level Mrs. Eagan said the primary purpose of the Student Teaching Program is to help the prospective teacher develop a high level of competency in teaching. She told of the many people student teachers work with including the principal, staff members, parents, building custodian, and lunchroom workers, as well as the supervising teacher and students.

Dr. Holmes called education the world's biggest and most important business. To stress the importance of a good education he quoted the following average lifetime earnings: grade school graduate, $178,000.00; high school graduate, $243,000.00; and college graduate, $347,000.00. He pointed out the fact that only 55.7 per cent of students graduate. Russia, he said, has no teacher shortage, having one-third more teachers than the United States, and they put emphasis on teaching science and languages.

Two student teachers, Miss Elizabeth Twining and Miss Betty Dunn, told the audience what student teaching has meant to them. They told of the satisfaction of working with children and watching them grow mentally and physically.

Miss Agnes Fullilove, principal, presented the 14 student teachers who have been at Agnes Fullilove School this year.

The Rev. Howard McLamb, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, gave the devotion.

Following the program there was a business session with reports from the various committees.

Carolyn James will wear her debutante dress when she marries Robert Thorson in the First Presbyterian Church on April 15. Libba, as she's known, who works for an investment broker firm on Fifth Avenue in New York City, met Bob through mutual work soon after she went to New York two years ago.

Libba attended the Woman's College and the University of North Carolina in Greensboro and was graduated from Carolina. She was presented to society in 1955 at the Terpsichorean Debutante Ball in Raleigh. She worked with Wachovia Bank in Winston-Salem for a year prior to going to New York.

Bob was graduated from Stanford University and from the Stanford Graduate School of Business. He is a partner in the investment banking firm of Paine, Webber Jackson and Curtis in New York.

Valentine was well celebrated by the Junior and Senior German Club members at a dinner dance Tuesday at the Moose Lodge. The occasion called for decorations in keeping with the Valentine tradition.

Elizabeth Overton of Greenville was a piano accompanist for the musical comedy "Westward Ho, The Women," presented by the Junior Class last night at Woman's College.

In March of 1902 the Sans Souci Book Club was organized. At the request of Bruce Forbes (Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley) and Miss Winnie Skinner, 12 friends met at the home of Miss Pattie Skinner (Mrs. Stuart Carr) to form a club to "advance literary efforts and promote social activity."

The name Sans Souci (without a care) was suggested by Mrs. Thomas Jarvis, wife of North Carolina's Governor Jarvis. Only single girls could join the club in its early years.

Mrs. Hadley and Mrs. Haywood Dall, formerly Mary Blow, are the only charter members currently in the club.

The club has combined a good time with the enjoyment of literature and active participation in various community projects. Several times during its existence, Sans Souci has given up books for a year to carry out some project. In 1936 it gave to the library the portrait of Harper Sheppard, donor of Greenville's Library Building. The club sponsored "Bundles for Britain" prior to World War II, until the organization was merged with the Red Cross.

Over the years the members have enjoyed luncheons and parties, as well as trips to historical sites.

The current officers of Sans Souci are Mrs. C. C. Abernathy, president; Mrs. F. J. Forbes, first vice-president; Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley, second vice-president; Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, secretary; Mrs. W. I. Wooten, treasurer; and Mrs. S. T. White, librarian.

Lee Speaks To Book Club

The Pickwick Book Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Moulton B. Massey, Jr. Mrs. Harry Allen, president, conducted a short business session prior to the program. She read a letter from the Cancer Society stating that an education film would be shown at local theatres on February 24-25.

Mrs. Massey introduced Herbert Lee as guest speaker for the afternoon. Mr. Lee talked on Urban Renewal and Public Housing.

According to Mr. Lee the trend toward citizens building homes further out from town has resulted in outlying shopping areas for the convenience of shoppers. Urban Renewal then would establish a shopping business district even further from shopping convenience. He stated that the relocating of dwellers in the district under urban renewal consideration was definitely a problem. Mr. Lee read excerpts on public housing from the book "Savings and Loan Associations" by Horace Russell. Mr. Lee concluded his talk by saying that his main argument was that a large segment of our own economy would be destroyed by the program of public housing.

Following the program Mrs. Massey served strawberry shortcake and coffee. The librarian distributed books and the meeting was adjourned.

Alpha Xi Delta, social sorority at East Carolina College, has accepted seven new members. The women students became members of the sorority after informal rush and a pledge period held during fall quarter.

In Sept., 1959, the Gamma Phi Chapter of Alpha Xi Delta became the first sorority chapter on the campus to pledge a national sorority. The sorority encourages the formation of lasting friendships among its members and strives to be an active influence for good on the college campus.

New members are: Agnes Rhue, Swansboro; Beth Kellum, Hubert; Judith Wilson, Durham; Mary Alice Munn, Rockingham; Phyllis Nash, Rt. 5, Monroe; Vickie Lee, Coats; and Iris Herring, Rt. 2, Selma.

HOME DECORATING TODAY

By MRS. R. W. DAVENPORT
THE NEWEST PIANO FASHION . . . IN A DINING ROOM

A piano in a dining room? Why not? People love to gather around a dining table at any time—meals and between times. And the dining room is no longer the laziest room in the house with a piano in it, to play for hours every day—or at night to set the pitch of a party.

Kimball designers, always alert to decorating trends, added a hutch to a brand new Early American piano—a hutch with show-off shelves and fascinating drawer and door compartments which changes usual piano appearance completely. The hutch is separate and attached to the wall rather than supported by the piano top. Thus musical tone cannot be affected, and the piano can move out from the wall.

This is the piano that lovers of Early American have looked for so long. It's a wonderful, decorative showpiece for a living room, den or family room, as well as a dining room.

Let the Home Furniture Store show you the brightest new piano idea to come along in years.

Much Hinges On How Crises Met

It was a matter of a few weeks ago that overtures of cordiality were being exchanged between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev of the Soviet Union.

Now, less than a month since the President took office, the atmosphere which seemed to hold promise of a return of the "spirit of Camp David" between the heads of state of the two nations has all but vanished.

Khrushchev, through his spokesmen, has unleashed a double-barrel attack at the United States and the United Nations that is as vicious as any that has come about during the cold war. The exchanges over the Congo situation have included a blunt warning by the new President of the United States to the Soviet Union not to intervene directly in the affairs of that strife-torn African nation.

Where a few weeks ago there seemed to be in the making a summit conference between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev in the near future, there now appears little likelihood of such a meeting soon. Relations between the two nations have become considerably more strained. Diplomatic channels have become clogged with rising tension and personal cordiality between the heads of the two nations has cooled considerably.

Within the first month of his term of office, President Kennedy is faced with one of the most serious international situations in recent years. How he handles the situation, the decisions he makes under the intense pressure, and the manner in which he acts and reacts as new developments occur will be watched closely by allies and potential enemies of the United States. The President's action during this period of crisis will likewise be evaluated carefully by uncommitted nations of the world.

The impressions of the new President that are formed on both sides of the Iron Curtain may well determine future events. Among our allies and the uncommitted nations confidence in the new, young President of the United States will either rise or sag. If the Soviet Union decides either to press new crises and create tension, or to reduce international tension and restore more cordial relations with the West may hinge on what President Kennedy does and how he does it.

This is the first baptism of fire for President Kennedy in a major international crisis. How he acquits himself will be an important factor in the future course of international events.

Relatively Shy In Facing Task

By LYNN NISBET
SEY—The committees which have been assigned the task of getting down to work on redistricting the state for congressional and state senatorial seats show a high degree of shyness and modesty in approaching the job. The committee on senatorial districts adjourned as soon as it approved the bill setting up the committee, but without any action on the subject matter.

The committee on congressional districts did very little better. It did receive material prepared by the Institute of Government, agreed to hold joint sessions with a House committee when one is appointed and adjourned.

Sitting members of the Congress are warning State legislators to go slow, because there is a chance that the total membership of the House may be increased to the point that North Carolina will not lose a seat.

Even so, redistricting would still be necessary in the interest of fairness and democracy, because at present some districts have more than half a million people and some only about a quarter million.

The redistricting committees are under pressure from all sides. The incumbent congressmen do not want to be disturbed. Counties and districts in the state do not want to lose representation in the Legislature. So there is developing a neat little bit of Machiavellian political activity which paralyzes the old feish of legislative courtesy.

Under this proposed plan the House will not interfere with distribution of seats in the Senate, and the Senate will not interfere with apportionment of seats in the House. Since concurrent action of both branches if necessary for enactment of the net effort of this plan would be no change in the present inequitable arrangements.

ABSENTEES—Some observers read significance into the fact that of the 12 members of the Senate committee on congressional districts the only absences at its first meeting were Claude Currie of Durham and Lindsay Warren of Beaufort. These veterans of many law-making battles were pitted against each other in the 1959 session on the question of constitutional revision as it affected legislative representation. There was off-side speculation as to whether they cut the meeting to avoid a scrap, or if they just regarded it as not important enough at this stage to require their attention. It is anticipated that before the session if over these giants will be engaged in parliamentary combat.

EX-OFFICIO—Introduction of a bill by Senator Joe Eagles of Wilson takes a long needed step toward eliminating some of the "ex-officio" positions held by State officials who were elected because of their capabilities in other fields.

The Eagles bill would X out the ex-officio assignments of the Attorney General as a member of the State Board of Assessment, the State Banking Commission and the Board of Directors of the North Carolina Art Society. The reason given is eminently sound, other than from the ineptness of general ex-officio membership.

Eagles says that inasmuch as the Attorney General is the legal adviser of the various State agencies and departments, it is inconsistent for him to be a voting member of a group which he must advise legally.

There are many other instances of ex-officio positions which do not have that valid objection but which still are difficult to justify.

EDUCATION—There is good reason for the elected State Superintendent of Public Instruction to be an ex-officio member of the Board of Education, and perhaps of the Board of Trustees of the University. There doesn't seem much point in the Lieutenant Governor being an ex-officio member of the education board.

It has been pointed out many times that the ex-officio positions accorded by statute to the State Treasurer are far more important than the duties incumbent upon his elective office. In the election campaigns, however, it is seldom stated that the candidate for treasurer is also running for chairmanship of the State Banking Commission, the Local Government Commission, the Teachers' and State Employees' Retirement System and the Local Government Retirement System; and for membership on the State Board of Education, the State Board of Assessment, the Law Enforcement Officers' Benefit and Retirement Fund—and maybe some others over and above the listing. The office of treasurer is constitutional. So is the treasurer's place on the other assignments are statutory.

While there is no conflict of interest among these positions, which might arise in connection with the Attorney General, it must be admitted that some of them have no direct relationship to the duties set out in the constitution for the elected treasurer. Nothing in this set up violates the letter of the law against dual office holding, but casual glance at the picture will indicate some violence to its spirit.

The treasurer is the most promiscuous ex-officio, but there are many other instances where duties imposed by statute do not accord with the main job of the elected official.

Legislators Do Want The Views 'Back Home'

Most of the legislature's 170 members are scattered across the state's 100 counties today, each back home in his own bailiwick seeking out local reaction to what has been going on in Raleigh.

It is important to the state and its future, we think, that citizens throughout the state let the legislators know how they feel about the issues that are coming up in the General Assembly. In Raleigh the legislators get many expressions of opinions from numerous lobbyists, spokesmen for various groups and organizations. Back home for the weekend, however, they have the opportunity to get the candid opinions of individual citizens.

Most legislators are anxious to reflect in their actions in Raleigh the feeling of most of the people from the area they represent. It is difficult for them to do so, however, unless local citizens freely express themselves on issues being considered by the General Assembly.

We would urge the people of Pitt County to express their feelings on legislative matters to Pitt County's three members of the General Assembly. Sen. Robert Humber, Rep. Frank Wooten and Rep. Clifton Everett most likely will be in Pitt every weekend while the General Assembly is in session. As elected officials they are in the legislature to represent the views of the people of this county. If the legislators, during their weekend visits here, receive expressions of opinion from individuals on legislative matters, they are likely to have a good cross-section of feeling of the county's wishes.

If, on the other hand, individuals are reluctant to express themselves, the legislators will have to resort to making their own contacts, in which case the reaction they receive to important issues may not accurately reflect the general feeling with the county. The better informed the legislators are of the feelings of their local citizens on various matters, the better job they will be able to do of representing their respective counties in Raleigh.

A Subtle Third Burden For Him

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has a double load on his back—and maybe a very subtle third one—in trying to convince Congress that not only action but urgent action is needed to pull the economy out of its spin.

One of his handicaps, obvious from the beginning, is the narrow margin of his election victory. A second is the conservative nature of Congress and its traditional, almost lazy, slow way of doing business except in deep emergency.

The fact that he is now in a position of trying to lead a group of men—the members of Congress—among whom he was just one of many not long ago may without its being realized handicap him in getting what he wants.

At 43 Kennedy looks younger. He always looked younger than his age from the time in 1947 he first came to Congress and one lobbyist addressed him as if he were a boy.

But behind him Kennedy has 14 years in Congress. In that time, however, he was not in a position of leadership except when acting as captain for some piece of legislation or as chairman of a committee.

In the main he was like the other 436 members of the House and the 99 members of the Senate, just one among many where the voices of some of those around him, the older men, had more weight than his.

Now in a very real sense he is captain of all of them but still, because of the separation of powers between the presidency and Congress, unable to give orders.

His main instruments are the prestige of his office and his powers of persuasion. It would seem natural if some of the older members of Congress would be less receptive to his urgings than if he were close to their age.

This in the end may be just a minor factor. It is a factor at all in the problems he faces with Congress.

His extraordinarily narrow margin of victory in the presidential race, as has been pointed out before, does not carry the same overwhelming persuasiveness a landslide victory would have given him starting out.

But Congress, and this goes for members of both parties, for years has been used to rocking along without any feeling, as Kennedy put it, that time and tide were running against us.

There is a certain provincialism in the House—more, perhaps, than in the Senate—where the members, facing some piece of legislation or a bill, are apt to think more in terms of the needs of their own district than the one 100 miles away.

Even though the unemployment figures are climbing toward six million—not a pretty spectacle for a nation competing for a nation-competitor. (Continued on page six)

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE FAITH WE USE
Jesus declared that if one had faith as a grain of mustard seed he might say to a mountain: "Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove." And nothing would be impossible to anyone possessing such faith. (Matt. 17:20; Luke 17:6.)

People often complain and say that they have very little religion and God is not interested at all in the quantity of our faith but in its quality. A mustard seed is so small that one can scarcely see it as it rests in the palm of his hand. Yet that little seed has in it such vitality that it grows into a large shrub. What God is interested in regarding our faith is whether or not that faith has vitality. The faith of some people is like a huge rock. The faith of others is like a mustard seed. God cares not how much faith we have. His only interest is in whether or not our faith is growing. Does it have within it the potential of vitality? Can our faith get us somewhere? Can it do something to us and for us? Does it bring us closer to God and God closer to us? Does it make life round about us—with the members of our family and with our associates in general—better or worse, happy or deplorable?

Take the faith you have and start using it. God is interested only in the faith we can use because it is vital—and do use because we are vital.

New Frontier

A Nerve-Wracking Job

Industry—hunting, a venture that has become a very real part of activity around the South in recent years, is generally regarded by the hunters and the hunted as "ticklish business."

The multi-phase task of luring some manufacturing outfit to a particular area or specific location becomes at times quite nerve-wracking and tedious.

Hunters of industry are time and again faced with the task of preparing countless collections of data sheets for industrial officials who almost unanimously elect to remain anonymous. While it may seem a hunter would be more inclined to strive much harder for his game if it were identified, the hunters of industry just as unanimously take the unknown element in stride and carry on.

With all the secrets involved in contacting representatives of industry, it is easy to understand what happened recently to Dr. Sylvester Green, new executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission.

In an informal chat with members of the commission Wednesday, the director was describing briefly a rendezvous with a prospect. Dr. Green pointed out quickly he was encouraged by the meeting, even though he had not the slightest idea what industry he was contacting. It's confidential, even to the hunters, you know.

He was telling the commissioners he was quite surprised when he questioned the representative about his name. Dr. Green had asked the industrialist: "The name you're using, it's not your real one, is it?"

The reply? "Sure it is." They say surprises in the business never cease.

In view of the perfectly beautiful weather around these parts of recent days, this column obviously owes a deep apology to ole Groundhog.

Early in February we blatantly charged the weatherman of the animal kingdom of not knowing his business. There were a couple of days immediately following the little animal's initial appearance that provoked the charge.

Since we are heartily in favor of the type of weather we've had around here for the last couple of weeks, we beseech ole Groundhog to accept our apology.

And it what's said here ain't enough, we'd be glad to do more—anything—if it's necessary to have this weather continued.

Again, we're sorry if the Groundhog got flied up over our earlier comment.

If anybody sees the animal weatherman, how about passing the word along.

Other Editors Saying... Same Act, Same Audience

(Richmond News Leader)
The U.N.'s Mr. Hammarskjold has by no means been astirngently anti-Communist. In fact, he fired Denmark's Pavi Bang-Jensen precisely because the Dane was unbending before Communist pressures. Nor has Mr. Hammarskjold been the foe of Patrice Lumumba, who probably owed his entire career to the Secretary General. Then why does Mr. Khrushchev turn, in a rage, and denounce the leader of the United Nations?

Do not seek a reason in the more general laws of human converse and logic. Khrushchev does not attack because provoked, or grow friendly because pleased. He is always manipulating a situation according to the Communist logic of action, and Mr. Hammarskjold is just a factor in that situation—a key factor, now that pressing down on this man can bring such a response from the Western forces. The important thing is to realize that the large headlines about Khrushchev's attack on the United Nations do not signal any real change in the situation. Russia has used, abused, or ignored the U.N. only insofar as it served the Communist purpose.

Mauldin the cartoonist, who recently replaced Fitzpatrick as the "Herblock" of the mid-West, drew a memorable cartoon when Khrushchev first started attacking the U.N. last summer. A prim American First Lady is clutching her bedclothes around her as Khrushchev strolls into her boudoir taking off his coat and tie. The caption: "Strange Bed-Fellows: Enemies of the U.N."

The wit here was spectacularly divorced from wisdom. The responsible critics of the U.N. have always known that Russia has no respect for the organization. These critics do not believe Khrushchev when he is paying it lip-service; and—unlike Mauldin and the New York Times and Adlai Stevenson—they do not fall into the trap of canonizing Mr. Hammarskjold just because Russia happens to be attacking him.

Khrushchev is right—but for the wrong reasons—when he says that Hammarskjold brought chaos to the Congo. Moise Tshombe is right—and for the right reasons—when he says the same thing: The U.N.'s pressure in Katanga was directly responsible for civil strife in that province. It is a masterpiece of Khrushchev's strategy is tried as well as true in its aim. The same strategy led to the West's glorification of Hammarskjold last summer and the heavy commitment of U.N. forces to the Congo—followed by the expulsion of all Belgian elements of order, the rebukes given to Tshombe, the support given to Lumumba, Krumah, and the other African exploiters of Congo trouble. The same strategy worked when Khrushchev gave his table-pounding performance in New York. The same thing, or a slight variation of it, will probably work next year. That born actor in the Kremlin must be very happy to have such a responsive audience.

They say surprises in the business never cease.

Since we are heartily in favor of the type of weather we've had around here for the last couple of weeks, we beseech ole Groundhog to accept our apology.

And it what's said here ain't enough, we'd be glad to do more—anything—if it's necessary to have this weather continued.

Uphill Fight For The President

By ELMER ROESSNER
President Kennedy has tossed a lot of work at Congress and his legislative proposals will be pitched as soon as they are ready.

Mr. Kennedy's legislative schedule is approaching that of President Roosevelt's in 1933. Mr. Roosevelt had a frightened, compliant Congress, at least for the first 100 days. But the 87th Congress is of different stuff. So far, it has gone along with all of the President's appointments. But it is showing signs of stiffening against some of the new New Deal proposals.

Mr. Kennedy may succeed in getting his program, or most of it, enacted. But whether he does or not, there will be a long, hard fight.

This will mean little or no time for a comprehensive tax reform, or for much legislation in other fields.

AUTO WORKERS DEMANDING
Here are more look-aheads in business:
Tough United Auto Workers demands: Despite allegations that labor, especially auto workers, have "priced themselves out of the market," the U.A.W. will formulate heavy, costly proposals when it convenes in April. Many delegates will demand 40 hours pay for 30 hours work.

There will also be demands for lowering the retirement age to 60. Both proposals will be intended to create more jobs. No one will suggest creating more jobs by reducing wages so that the employers can cut car prices and start selling them again.

SWEEPING GOVERNMENTAL CHANGES: A report on a staff study of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, coming on the heels of a report to President Kennedy by James M. Landis, makes considered changes in Federal agencies more than likely. The Senate committee urges the abolition of the ICC, the Civil Aeronautics Board, and the Federal Maritime Board, putting their functions in a Federal Transportation Commission with Cabinet status. Many men close to Mr. Kennedy favor bringing all independent agencies in under the Cabinet structure.

FOREIGN INVESTMENTS TO RISE
More speculation abroad: There is likely to be a rise in Americans' investments abroad. Foreigners are not allowed to hold shares in Japanese companies, many of which pay very high dividend rates. But the Japanese Government has agreed to allow certain shares to be deposited in banks abroad, and permit owners to sell "depository receipts."

The Securities and Exchange Commission has approved the sale of American depository receipts (ADR's) of 12 Japanese companies. Bankers and brokers around the country will have details soon.

Meanwhile, depository receipts of shares of six European companies are being traded on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Most American brokers can handle purchases for clients.

INVESTORS PAY CONSPIRACY PENALTY
The government levied a little under $2,000,000 in fines on officers of Westinghouse, General Electric and lesser companies and sent a small parcel of them to jail. But their losses were

Tastes Will Differ

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Is politics the total of life? We are too often told that the United States having become a world leader, the American people should all become historians, international lawyers, exchange experts, sociologists and economists. The fact is that most people prefer to mind their own affairs, knowing a little of this and that, getting acquainted with Kasavubu but also with Marilyn Monroe and the First Lady, and wondering whether fights are fixed.

Let us put it another way. Last Sunday, many musicians were interested in Aaron Copland music as provided by Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic. Personally, I have not been a disciple of Copland, admitting quite freely that I do not always understand what he wants to say. Leonard Bernstein, however, has a gift for teaching and as he explained his friend, Copland, to the young people who were listening at Carnegie Hall and the older people who were watching television, I had a new listen to Copland and a better understanding.

It is true that the time I spent on Copland might better have been spent reading Mao Tse-tung's attacks on Khrushchev, but there it is. I was diverted to Copland. Maybe, one should never look at Perry Mason because he diverts from the very serious problem of gold.

During the summer, I live far away from wisdom and devote my days to reading principally those remote volumes which I forgot to look at earlier in life. Also I read a local newspaper which tells about new road repairs in the county, about who was born or died, of new visitors to various friends, etc.

Also, the world in which I am geographically situated during the summer is musical. All kinds of music festivals occur. Also there are the local newspapers which tell me what I want to know. To me, all this is very important and it is equally important to my neighbors, all of whom read this newspaper not for great coverage of the doings of Khrushchev or the erudite editorial opinion of its editor, but because it satisfies a very human desire to know what is going on in the neighborhood.

The other day, I listened to an argument of the responsibility of editors and publishers to provide people with what they need to know. And there was much wisdom in the assumption that if the people in a free country are badly informed or inadequately informed about great matters, they will vote stupidly.

There is much truth in this, except that who is so absolutely sure about what anyone needs to know. For instance, I read about a missile or rocket or platform or something that the Russians shoot heavenward and wonder why the experts say that it will take us a year or so to catch up with that. So I ask myself a few questions:

1. Why should we catch up?
2. Why do we need to go to Venus?
3. If we get to Venus, what will we do about it?
4. How much new mathematics do I need to study to understand what it is all about?

I know some teen-agers who are wise about such matters and they can explain it perfectly. They know all about physics and astro-physics and why a teen-ager has a rough time with parents these days because they, the parents, are so dumb about things that really count. So some parents these days because they, children by reading science fiction which is easier than reading Max Planck or Albert Einstein or even the pamphlets about a Sane Nuclear Policy.

Just to show off a little, I find history or pathological psychology very thrilling some days and other days, I like Agatha Christie. But I know lots of people who, when they come home from work, like to look at a few comic strips, read the sports pages, look at a couple of pictures, read one or two

Hebert, Sullivan Tied For Lead

By MURRAY SINCLAIR TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Tourney-wise veterans and upstart, hungry youngsters clustered near the top of the $20,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament today as a tightly packed field moved through the third round. Hebert used putting and Sullivan long, straight drives for respective rounds of 66 and 65 over the 6,464-yard, par 70 El Rio Golf and Country Club course. Honeymooning Frank Boynton, a 24-year-old Florida rookie who has earned only $550 so far this year, is just a stroke behind with 68-64-132. Former U.S. Open champ Tom-

HIGH SCHOOL SCORES

Bethel 69 Pantego 63. PANTEGO—A fired up Bethel basketball team successfully avenged an early season loss to Pantego, defeating the previously unbeaten club last night by a 69-63 score. Winner of 25 games in a row, Pantego suffered their first loss of the season, and ironically it was Bethel's last regular season game. All five Bethel starters scored in the double digit column, as the Indians' balanced scoring attack overpowered the one man scoring barrage of Ray Respass of Pantego. Respass was the high point man for the night with 32 points, but it was all in vain. For the visiting Indians, John Smith, who was named to the All-Pitt County team just yesterday, led in the scoring with 19 points. Right behind him were the other four starters. Don Dewar tallied 14, Tex Everett 13, Harvey Lewis, another All-Pitt County choice, 12, and Herman Daniels had 11. One other Bethel player saw action, James Ayers, but did not score. Bethel Coach Walter Latham attributed the win to the fine play of all five starters, and did not single out any particular one man. As far as the Indian menior was concerned, it was a terrific team effort. In the preliminary contest, the Pantego girls dropped the Bethel lasses 54-37, behind the 25 point performance of Osborne, Whitley and Keech also added 16 and 13 points respectively for the winners. Janet Cobb was the high scorer for the Indian girls with 17 points. She was followed by Carolyn Manning with 14.

Larese, Moe Lead Carolina Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS North Carolina's two-man basketball team, York Larese and Doug Moe, scored 56 points between them Friday night in leading the Tar Heels to a 92-68 victory over South Carolina. It was revenge for the Tar Heels, who last week had been upset by the Gamecocks, 89-82. The golden twins scored more points than the whole Clemson team which lost to North Carolina State 62 in the second game of a Charlotte Coliseum doubleheader. Choppy Patterson, Clemson's leading scorer, made only nine points, just half the number he has averaged in 20 games. He took 17 shots and made only four baskets. It was a different story for Larese and Moe, whose talents led North Carolina to first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference with a 10-2 league record. Larese scored 30 points. He took 22 shots and made 11 field goals, and sank all eight of his free throw attempts. Moe's 26 points included 11 goals in 19 attempts, and four-five at the foul line. The games were the only ones Friday for Atlantic Coast Conference teams. The teams reverse opponents in Charlotte tonight. North Carolina playing Clemson and North Carolina State meeting South Carolina. In addition, Duke is at Navy in a game to be televised regionally beginning at 2 p.m., and other night games are Wake Forest vs. Villanova at the Greensboro Coliseum, and Maryland at George Washington. Wake Forest is second in the conference at 10-3. Duke is third at 9-3, and North Carolina State brings up the first division at 7-6. Next in order are Maryland 4-8, Clemson 3-7, South Carolina 2-9, and Virginia also 2-9. North Carolina moved nearer clinching fourth place with the victory over Clemson. At the intermission, Clemson had a 29-28 lead. But Bob DiStefano's basket put State ahead 36-35, and Clemson never again drew even. State improved its shooting in the second half, ending the game with a 40.9 percentage. But the Tigers were only 22.6 in the last half for an over-all 27 per cent. After tonight's games, there will be only one more week of activity before the conference tournament begins in Raleigh March 2.

Chicod 64 Belvoir-Falkland 46. BELVOIR—Chicod roared out in the second half last night to take their final Pitt County regular season win over Belvoir-Falkland, 64-46, on the latter's home court. With the score tied at intermission, 21-21, Raymond Fornes and Ephraim Smith teamed up to widen the margin in the final 15 minutes. Fornes tallied 19 points and Smith added 15 for the winners. Willie Wallace was the high scorer for the losers, dumping in 14. The Belvoir-Falkland lasses won in the preliminary contest, coming from behind to emerge with a 52-34 win over the Chicod girls. Phyllis Nichols led Belvoir-Falkland in the scoring department with 20 points, while teammate Carolyn Harris added 12. Reserve forward Frances Stepps added another 12 points to the winner's cause. Mary Louis Hudson and Pansy Jones were the scoring leaders for the losers. Jones tallied 15 points and Hudson 13.

Terry On Way For Big Upset

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Ralph Terry, 25, who took up golf only three years ago, was on the way today toward pulling the biggest upset in the 21-year history of the National Baseball Players Championship Golf Tournament. The New York Yankee pitcher fired a 75 Friday on top of his opening round 74 to lead the field of active major leaguers at the halfway mark with a 149 total. Terry's 5-over-par performance was remarkable considering he bogeyed the first four and the last two holes. Ralph birdied the 11th, 13th and 15th. "My long irons were good and I missed only one tee shot," the young righthander explained, "but I had trouble with my putter. I three-putted the 17th and 18th." Managers Paul Richards of Baltimore and Gene Mauch of Philadelphia, and Phillies coach Peanuts Lowrey shared second place with 36-hole totals of 150, a stroke off the pace. Richards had Friday's best active major leaguer's round, a 73, despite six bogeys. Mauch had a 74 and Lowrey, who played despite a mild case of the flu, had 76. John Gray, former Philadelphia pitcher and first round leader, took a 78 for a 151 total. Three-time tournament winner Alvin Dark, who was considered the man to beat, soared to a 79 and led Jim Hearn, ex-Ford hurler, at 153. Hearn, defending champion, improved his first day score with a 74. Yogi Berra, Yankees catcher who shot a creditable 79 Thursday, had an 85 for a 164 total. Teammate Mickey Mantle had an 84 for a 36-hole score of 170. Both were the victims of hinks perpetrated by a not the Yankee, pitcher Whitford Ford, who faltered for the second day to break 90, heckled Berra and Mantle on several tee shots and finally exploded a firecracker just as Mantle stroked a chip shot on the 10th hole.

Winterville 47 Farmville 44. FARMVILLE—Winterville's Wolves came back from an one point halftime deficit to defeat a scrappy Farmville quint last night by a close 47-44 score before a screaming crowd of mostly Farmville followers. Down 23-22 at intermission, the Wolves outscored the Red Devils 25 to 21 in the last two periods to insure the victory. James Braxton led the Wolves in the scoring department with 16 points. He was followed by L. Worthington with 14 and Sammy Gold with 13 points. William Reason and Ben Monk tied for high scoring honors for the losers with 13 points each. The loss gave the Farmville boys a 6-10 record. Carolyn Barnes led the Winterville lasses with 29 points in the preliminary contest, which the Wolverines won 56-34. Reserve forward Betsy Allen led the losers in scoring with 11 points. The loss by the Farmville girls gives them a season's record of six wins and nine losses.

Grifton 62 Jasper 31. GRIFTON—The Bulldogs of Grifton doubled Jasper's score here last night, outclassing the visitors, 62-31. The Grifton starting five found themselves riding the bench in much of the game, with the subs carrying the load. Burch, a reserve for the Bulldogs, was their high scorer with 13 points. He was followed by Tyndall with 11, and Alan Jackson and Tommy Riley with 10 points each. Jasper's Harris led the visitors in a losing cause, dropping in 21 points to lead all scorers for the evening. In the preliminary game, the Jasper lasses defeated the Grifton girls 40-32. Murphy and McDaniel led the winners with 20 and 14 points respectively, while Jane Mewborn led the Bulldog lasses in defeat with 16 points. The losers are still without the services of their high scoring ace, John Smith, who is ill.

Ayden 67 Robersonville 57. AYDEN—The Tornados of Ayden High School hit their offensive peak as far as field goal shooting is concerned last night, defeating Robersonville to the tune of 67-57. Hitting on 30 of 48 shots from the floor, the Tornados were hitting at a 62.5 percent clip for the night, and led by as much as 21 points during the contest. William Edwards and Tommy Dunn led the Tornado attack with 35 points each, but were closely followed by teammates Ted Norris and Dennis Mills with 13 and 10 points respectively. Bonnie Stevenson had one of his best scoring nights for the Rams but in a losing cause. The 6'5" senior center hit the nets for 26 points. Tommy Ward, another Ram hot shot, dumped 17 points in defeat. In the preliminary contest, Ayden's Andrea Harris continued her personal scoring derby, dropping in a total of 37 points for the Tornados, but the Robersonville girls won the game, 56-46. Celia Clark led the winners with 23 points.

Dump Elizabeth City 63-39

Greenville Wins Seventh

They said Greenville would never do it... overpower another Northeastern basketball team that is. Last night they turned the trick. After a tipsy-turvy first half Coach Bo Farley was able to sit back and relax for the first time this season as his improving club worked over visiting Elizabeth City, 63-44. The victory elevated Greenville's conference record to a respectable 7-5 and assured them of at least an even split in its regular season play. They have games remaining with Kingston and Washington next week. Playing little less than sensational, the Phants didn't open like a house on fire. Although Farley designed a 1-2-2 defense which kept the visitors in check, Greenville erratic shooting payed off. Only a 12-11 first quarter lead. Greenville had spurred to a 12-6 lead with 1:25 in the initial period but a couple of two-pointers by Sam Smith and a free toss by Wright made it close again. A couple of quick field goals by Billy James and Kroghie Andresen pushed Greenville ahead 18-11 in the opening minutes of the second period. It was the breaking point for Phants and they added to their margin the rest of the night, leading 29-15 at halftime. Greenville made good on seven of 10 free throws in the second period while outpointing the Yellow Jackets 17-4. The gap was opened even more in the third quarter when Greenville's fast break produced some easy baskets. By the end of the stanza it was 42-24. The starters pushed the score to 50-39 midway the final quarter and Farley turned the final outcome over to reserves—for the first time this season. Guard Kroghie Andresen was high man in scoring, for the winners with 14 points. Husky Layne Jorgensen netted 13 and Alan McArthur and Erskine Duff had 10 points each. Sam Smith, who came into the game averaging well over 20 points, was high for Elizabeth City with 18. Bill was the only other starter in double figures with 10. Farley, commenting after the game, praised the hustle of his club. "I've always said they had a lot of hustle... that has been our biggest asset." The local junior varsity kept its recent winning string in motion by turning back Elizabeth City, 53-39, in the preliminary contest. Kenny Allen bucketed 22 points for the winners and Rodney Knowles had 18.

Brumel Scores Win Over Thomas In Indoor Meet

By ED CORRIGAN Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP)—If there are any non-believers in the house on the quality of Valery Brumel's high jumping, please take leave—he is great, just plain great. "He's the greatest," admitted John Thomas, the Boston University junior today. Brumel, an 18-year-old Russian, and Thomas, a 19-year-old American, clashed Friday for the first time since last year's Olympics when they met in the New York Athletic Club Games at Madison Square Garden. Brumel, sandy haired and handsome, cleared 7 feet 3 inches, which equaled Thomas' best indoor performance. Thomas still holds the official world record of 7-3 3/4 but Brumel climbed over 7-4 1/2 three weeks ago in Leningrad, jumping indoors on a dirt floor. When the bar was raised to 7-2, only Brumel and Thomas remained in the competition. Both had cleared 7-1. But Thomas missed three times at 7-2, and Brumel cleared it on his first shot. Then the bar went up to 7-3. Brumel missed twice and the crowd of 15,930 who packed Madison Square Garden moaned. The spectators were with the Russian. On the third try over he went and the crowd went wild—Brumel hardly wasted a minute before ordering the bar to 7-5. But he missed on all three tries. Besides calling Brumel the greatest, Thomas did not appear too upset. "If anything was wrong with me," he observed, "it was my takeoff. Otherwise, I was all right."

Big Slate For North Staters

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Only one game separates the second through the sixth team in the North State Conference race. East Carolina and Appalachian are tied for second at 11-5. And Catawba, High Point and Elon are tied for third at 10-7. The seventh-place club in the 10-team league, Atlantic Christian at 9-8, is only two games behind the runners-up. Lenoir Rhyne, which is 14-3 and has clinched the regular season crown, is at High Point tonight. Appalachian is at Catawba and East Carolina is at Atlantic Christian in games that will have a bearing on the seeding for the conference tournament. Elon also will be seeking to stay in the first division in its game at Guilford, which has won only one of 16 league games. In Friday night's only game involving a league team, Pfeiffer lost to Pikesville, Ky., 96-75. WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Wilmington College, regular season leader in the regular season, Campbell tonight for the championship of the Carolina-Virginia junior college basketball tournament. Campbell of Buie's Creek, N.C., last night eliminated the defending champion, Frederick College of Portsmouth, Va., 82-63. Campbell used only six players in defeating a team which had beaten it twice in the regular season. Dick Connelley had 27 points for Campbell and Jim O'Keefe was high for Frederick with 15. In the other semifinals game, top-seeded Wilmington gained the lead early in the second half and held it thereafter to whip Louisiana, N.C., 65-47. Ed Matusowski had 20 points for the Wilmington Seahawks. Mickey Seasons scored 16 for Poughsburg.

Law-Enforcement Bodies Saluted By Exchange Club

By STUART SAVAGE, Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville, Pitt County and Eastern North Carolina law-enforcement agencies were presented plaques by the Greenville Exchange Club last night in recognition and appreciation for the work done by them.

The enforcement agencies recognized last night were the Greenville Police Department, the Pitt County Sheriff's Department and Highway Patrol Troop "A", whose headquarters is here in Greenville.

The Plaques, which read "In appreciation of meritorious service" were accepted by Cpt. R. T. Rogerson for the Greenville Police Dept. and by Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson for the sheriff's department. Cpt. S. H. Mitchell, commander of Troop "A", in accepting the plaque for the Highway Patrol, said, "Without the cooperation of good citizens an officer doesn't get very far", and stated, as Sheriff Tyson and Cpt. Rogerson, "It is a great pleasure to receive this."

Several other representatives of the three law-enforcement groups were guests of the club at the supper and heard Horton Roundtree an attorney with the Attorney General's office in Raleigh talk on the state's average criminal.

According to Roundtree, a Farmville native, of the 1,568 prisoners admitted to Central Prison during the past fiscal year, the largest percentage had only an eighth grade education. He noted 239 of the convicts had completed the eighth grade, while 631 were in the seven-through-ninth grade level. Only four had completed four years of college. He added that 45 percent of the prisoners sent to the roads during the period were in the seven-through-ninth grade group.

Twenty-eight and seven-tenths per cent of the 1,568 were repeaters who had been committed to state correctional institutions three or more times, Roundtree stated.

"The majority of the crimes committed by these 'repeaters' who have only an eighth-grade education" included 514 burglaries, 307 larcenies and 131 robberies.

"How old are these people who have an eighth grade level, are thieves and repeaters", Roundtree questioned, then told the group, "28 percent" of the 1,568 convicts or 441, "were 19 to 24 years of age."

Roundtree summarized the figures by saying, according to the 1,568 prisoners sent to Central Prison last year, the average North Carolina criminal is between 19 and 24 years of age, has an eighth grade education, is a repeater in correctional institutions and is a thief.

Roundtree, quoting from the FBI report of crime in the U.S. last year, said there are three severe crimes each minute, one murder each hour and one robbery every seven minutes. "In North Carolina, there was one crime for each 11 persons in the state last year", he emphasized.

"Think back. Ask yourself why didn't I commit a crime when I was 19 to 24 years old? You might answer, 'I had strict parents, or I went to work or went to college, or I was active in church work. These are just some of the thoughts, 'A man never stands so tall as when he stoops to help a boy'." Roundtree commented, adding "there are many facets to stooping to help a boy."

"When you were young, there was probably always someone there to give you a helping hand . . . parents, preacher, teacher or scout master", Roundtree explained, and added, "you might never know what that one little thing might do for the boy."

In closing, the attorney emphasized, "Crime prevention is the problem of you and me as parents and citizens." He urged that citizens do everything in their power to encourage youth to stay in school and reject a criminal way of life.

Also at last night's meeting, the club endorsed a Greenville, P.T.A. Council proposal "of riding news stands of obscene literature." The details of the plan was not brought at the meeting.

Luther Moore, president of the Exchange Club, presided over the meeting.

Rose High Team At Chapel Hill

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON

Several members of the Rose High School swimming team are participating today in the Southeastern Interscholastic Swimming Meet in Chapel Hill.

These boys left yesterday after school and plan to return late today. Along with Coach Reggie Edgerton, the following swimmers represent Rose High: John Bell, Billy Brown, Eddie Harrington, Don Pierce, Scott Smiley, Lanny Smith, Jehu Taff, and Tommy Webb.

This year's is Rose High's first swimming team. Team members, who practice daily from 5-7:00, number about 30 and use the pool at East Carolina College. Their coach, Reggie Edgerton, is a college student.

The two explained that it is important for some one to have a job according to his interests and values, needs, temperament, and aptitude skills. They added that in order to get ahead in many fields, the person must strive to reach the peak in performance and ability for competition is rugged.

They suggest taking this little test before choosing a job; consider duties involved, trend in employment, requirements for job, training, licenses needed, working conditions, salary, opportunities locally or elsewhere, and general advantages as well as the disadvantages.

Each senior later filled in a form for the Employment office. Officials of the Employment Security Commission will study these forms and from them will choose the students who may take the vocational aptitude tests sometime within the next several weeks.

Senior Orders

Seniors completed the ordering of their cards and announcements this week. They also had the privilege of ordering Thank You cards, Memory Books, Appreciation Folders, and Souvenir Covers. Seniors expect these orders to arrive just a few weeks before their May 31 graduation exercises. Mrs. Elizabeth L. Mims, senior adviser, has been handling these sales for the class.

NFL Congress

Several members of the Rose High National Forensic League plan to attend the District Student Congress next Friday and Saturday in High Point. This Congress was postponed earlier because of bad weather.

Teachers Sponsor Dance

Rose High's Future Teachers of America (F.T.A.) Chapter sponsored the dance after the Elizabeth City game last night. Club officers assisted in taking up money and in preparing publicity for the event. Officers include Betsy Bryant, Myrtle Moon Bilbro, Lynda Hunning, Mary Goodwin, and Ruth Clark. Mrs. Kemp H. ing with world communism—Kennedy has a problem making vivid to a House member from a well-fed district the shattering necessities of people from a depressed, unemployed and hungry area.

During an election campaign the Democrats and Republicans speak and act as if there were profound differences between their political and social philosophies.

These differences tend to blur after the returns are in. For a big part of the Democratic party which talks in liberal terms during a campaign is as conservative as the Republicans. This is particularly true of Southern Democrats.

The result: The dominant force in Congress, no matter which party runs the show, is conservative. And that's what this Congress is. Kennedy's programs so far have been only mildly liberal, mostly middle-road.

Yet, they do call for some changes. But the very definition of conservatism is opposition to change.

So, overcoming conservatism, imposing his leadership at least to the extent of getting action, and convincing Congress his programs are a necessity, even though his election victory was not an overwhelming mandate, are Kennedy's tasks.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A temporarily lost polka dot balloon satellite has been detected sailing serenely through space.

The Civilian Space Agency marked the satellite's rediscovery Friday by naming it Explorer IX.

The 12-foot sphere began playing hide and seek with trackers soon after it was hurled aloft from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's station at Wallops Island, Va., Thursday morning.

Radio signals were heard as it soared that morning over Johannesburg, South Africa, and Woomera, Australia. Then there was silence.

Thursday afternoon, volunteer moonwatch teams at Pretoria, South Africa, and the Baker-Nunn photographic tracking station near Johannesburg, made the first visual sightings.

The space agency did not consider the orbit confirmed until early Friday when the photographic tracking stations at West Palm Beach, Fla., and at Woomera reported they had successfully photographed the balloon.

The balloon's radio beacon apparently had malfunctioned, but the satellite is now being tracked optically—by telescopes and cameras. The sphere was spotted and tracked as it circled the earth in about the same orbit as the burned out casing of the fourth stage of the launching Scout rocket.

The casing is orbiting the earth at altitudes from 404 to 1,604 miles.

Space scientists at Research Center, Langley, Va., are proceeding with air density experiments using optical sighting data. As the balloon gradually slows, it is expected to provide new information on the amount of resistance or friction in the earth's atmosphere at the various altitudes it is traveling.

The satellite will be visible at certain times everywhere in the United States.

Lost Satellite Is Found In Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A temporarily lost polka dot balloon satellite has been detected sailing serenely through space.

The Civilian Space Agency marked the satellite's rediscovery Friday by naming it Explorer IX.

The 12-foot sphere began playing hide and seek with trackers soon after it was hurled aloft from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's station at Wallops Island, Va., Thursday morning.

Radio signals were heard as it soared that morning over Johannesburg, South Africa, and Woomera, Australia. Then there was silence.

Thursday afternoon, volunteer moonwatch teams at Pretoria, South Africa, and the Baker-Nunn photographic tracking station near Johannesburg, made the first visual sightings.

The space agency did not consider the orbit confirmed until early Friday when the photographic tracking stations at West Palm Beach, Fla., and at Woomera reported they had successfully photographed the balloon.

The balloon's radio beacon apparently had malfunctioned, but the satellite is now being tracked optically—by telescopes and cameras. The sphere was spotted and tracked as it circled the earth in about the same orbit as the burned out casing of the fourth stage of the launching Scout rocket.

The casing is orbiting the earth at altitudes from 404 to 1,604 miles.

Space scientists at Research Center, Langley, Va., are proceeding with air density experiments using optical sighting data. As the balloon gradually slows, it is expected to provide new information on the amount of resistance or friction in the earth's atmosphere at the various altitudes it is traveling.

The satellite will be visible at certain times everywhere in the United States.

Bonn Pretty Well Meets U.S. Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano took off for home today after giving President Kennedy pretty much what he wanted in the way of German contributions to aid for underdeveloped countries.

Brentano's plane left here at 6:40 a.m. He was scheduled to stop briefly at Idlewild Airport, New York City, on his way to Bonn.

However, he encountered an unexpected delay when a strike of flight engineers caused cancellation of a Pan American World Airways jet flight on which he was to have left at 10 a.m.

Pan American offered him alternate accommodations on a later flight to be made with supervisory personnel but it was not known immediately what the minister's decision would be.

Reversing the previous German position, Brentano agreed that Germany would help underdeveloped nations on a permanent basis. And he hinted that this aid would total about a billion dollars a year, although he made no commitments on the figure.

Previously the Germans had offered a one-shot one-year deal of less than a billion.

Kennedy was reported by press secretary Pierre Salinger to feel the new offer was satisfactory and "had the effect of clearing the atmosphere."

The United States has insisted that new prosperity West Germany take over more of the load of aid to poorer nations as a means of helping to stop the heavy drain on U.S. gold and dollar reserves. With West Germany doing its part, the United States would not have to spend so much abroad.

The beclouded relations between the two NATO allies over this matter began in the closing days of the Eisenhower administration. Eisenhower's secretary of state, Robert B. Anderson, made a hurried trip to Bonn last November and laid down substantial demands for German aid contributions. He was offered far less than he wanted and the mission was regarded by some as a failure. Critics said Anderson did not do enough diplomatic groundwork first.

After Kennedy took office the Germans again made similar offers. Much of the amount would have been in repayments of old debts to the United States and prepayments of German purchases of American arms—money which the United States would get eventually anyway.

But last week Kennedy bluntly told a news conference the German proposal "do not meet the problem or the opportunity."

This candid language shocked the Germans, and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer told Brentano to try a fresh approach at his meeting with Kennedy here.

After his White House meeting with Kennedy Friday, a joint communique was issued. It said the President "heard with satisfaction that the federal West German government will be prepared to provide the necessary means to carry on its program for the underdeveloped countries in future years."

Draw Plans For Experimental Mill

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP) — Plans are being drawn for an experimental spinning mill which textile officials believe may help to cut costs, and meet foreign competition.

The announcement was made Friday following two days of talks here by Southeastern textile engineers.

BETHEL FIRE DEPARTMENT PRACTICES . . . training is paying off for personnel of new rural departments.

Dollars-And-Sense Involved In Growth Of Rural Fire Depts.

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

A few years back a house or barn fire in some areas of Pitt County meant the complete loss of one or more buildings.

Today, in some sections at least, a fire truck manned by residents of the rural area, will roll up to the scene of the fire. Volunteers, who are becoming increasingly better trained, will jump from the truck, unroll their hose and perhaps save a portion of the burning building. If they fail in this, they might save a nearby building from a fiery fate.

A decade or so ago, only the county's larger municipalities had fire departments. They were Greenville, Ayden, Farmville, Fountain and Bethel.

These departments answered calls in the rural areas but frequently they were too far for the firemen to do any good by the time they drove to the scene.

Then, too, in recent years, Greenville was told by the Fire Underwriters that it must cease the practice of answering calls beyond the city limits.

The Underwriters can do this and make it stick because it is this agency which sets fire rates for a community. Thus if the city had failed to comply the Underwriters could have changed the local classification, bringing about rate increases for all local property owners.

Movement Underway

Luckily for the rural areas, a movement has been underway in recent years for better fire protection in the county.

So volunteer departments were organized in Winterville and Grifton, both incorporated communities.

Next came departments in Grimesland, Staton-House, Carolina Township and Simpson.

Now Eastern Pines community is expected to place a truck in service soon. A movement is underway for a rural truck in Greenville to serve the area in a five-mile radius of the city.

Plans are underway for rural fire departments at Pactolus, Belvoir-Falkland and in addition the Grimesland department has placed an order for a rural truck to go with the one now owned by the town.

Pitt Firemen's Association president D.E. Perry of Bethel, says that the Ballards-Bell Arthur area badly needs a rural fire department and there is a need for perhaps three departments along N.C. 43 beyond Vanceboro. He suggested they might possibly be located at Child School, Hollywood Church and Calico.

It is possible that a department is needed in the Penny Hill section, Perry said.

He pointed out that a rural fire department's effective area is five miles.

"Once we get the county set up and covered, ultimately every one should be approximately five miles or less from a department," he noted.

The Pitt Firemen's Association has assisted in the organization of the rural departments by furnishing speakers for interested groups in the communities and after the departments are organized, by furnishing assistance in training of the men.

Perry pointed out that any of the existing fire departments or personnel of the Pitt Firemen's Association will be willing to meet with interested groups in the various communities.

Other Counties Organized

Roy Hardee, vice-president of the Pitt Firemen's Association and a past president, points to other counties in this area which have organized community fire departments until their counties are completely covered. Wayne County, for instance, has its department areas limited to three miles. The county has a full-time fire marshal and three full-time radio operators who maintain a calling system 24-hours a day.

Rural fires are reported to a central telephone number and then the radio operators dispatch the nearest fire department to the scene.

The set-up has reportedly resulted in lower insurance rates in that county.

Nash County is another which has organized departments until all areas of the county are virtually covered.

Such a system could evolve in Pitt as the number of departments grow. And eventually the county government will be asked to give financial assistance to the rural fire fighting system. "When we get the departments it will be time for the county to assume its responsibility as the other counties in the area have come to the support of their departments," Hardee said.

"The Pitt Firemen's Association will ask for funds to support the organized departments."

No uniformity will be found in the type of equipment used by the various Pitt County departments. Local conditions and funds available determine what is purchased. But all departments have one basic thing in common. That is a desire of the people behind the project to provide adequate fire protection.

"As long as the equipment does the job it doesn't make any difference how it looks," one fireman said.

Rural fire departments provide protection for millions of dollars in public buildings as well as for private property. And not to be overlooked is the fact that in this day and time of possible emergency trained crews are located all over the county to provide the backbone for a county-wide emergency program.

Answering Some Misconceptions On 'Blood Bank'

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

Why give blood?
Why should the Red Cross want your blood anyway?

Some think that giving blood in Greenville is giving just for the people of Greenville.

These people are wrong, says Kenneth Whichard, chairman of the bloodmobile program in Pitt County.

The Red Cross acts as a collecting agency to provide safe facilities for collecting blood which must be collected under strictly supervised conditions.

Whichard pointed out. No one profits from this blood collection — financially, that is.

Hospitals under the program must sign a contract and agree that blood received through the blood program, of which Pitt County is a member, will not be sold. (There is, however, a laboratory fee.)

Collecting and distributing the blood is financed in part by the local chapter of the American Red Cross, Whichard said, and there is no cost to the person giving blood, other than time.

After the Red Cross collects blood in a locality, the bloodmobile returns to Norfolk, Va., the center of the Tidewater Region Blood Bank, of which this county is a member, and the blood is carefully preserved there. None of the blood is "wasted," Whichard commented. What is not needed as whole blood is broken down into plasma and other components which can be used to help the sick and injured. And no blood is used unless it is safe.

Whichard emphasized the fact that no hospital or the blood bank would permit use of blood which, for any reason, might jeopardize the life of the person receiving it. Blood is very perishable and can be preserved only 21 days under ideal conditions. Before giving blood, a person is tested to make sure that his blood can be used; otherwise, the donor is rejected.

These reasons alone explain why blood must be taken under the strictest supervision, which is available under the bloodmobile program.

Bloodmobile Program

In 1952, Pitt County joined the bloodmobile program and became a member of the Tidewater Regional Blood Bank, along with 16 other counties in Northeastern North Carolina and a number of counties in southeastern Virginia. This is a cooperative plan of pooling blood resources and processing facilities to meet the needs of the entire area. The Tidewater Regional Blood Bank is operated by the American Red Cross, and is a part of a nationwide plan of supplying blood and blood derivatives needed to help save lives in the modern age.

There are two bloodmobiles in this region, which travel constantly to participating units. Twelve visits are made per year, usually composed of two days per area.

On the two days that the bloodmobile is in Pitt County, the county is furnishing one half of the total blood requirements of the Tidewater area on those days, Whichard pointed out.

Since 1956, Pitt has not met the requirements—and has used more blood than the citizens have put in the bank.

Last year a plan was suggested by Dr. Howard Gradis, former blood program chairman, which was intended to lessen the deficit in bloodmobile collections here. A number of civic and community organizations agreed to send seven donors to the bloodmobile when it visited Greenville.

A look at the bloodmobile record since 1956—the year blood collections here began to fall below the amount of blood actually used through the blood program—shows that officials haven't been kidding about a deficit.

For 1956-57, 1,100 pints of blood were given, while 1,606 were used.

For 1957-58, 1,318 pints of blood were given, while 1,506 were used.

In 1958-59, 1,065 pints of blood were collected, while 1,377 were used.

Again, in 1959-60, 1,281 pints of blood were collected, and 1,462 were used. The extra blood needed so far has been supplied by other areas.

In comparison, Whichard estimated that Pitt County normally needs 1,440 pints of blood per year.

Without the Program

What would happen if Pitt was not a member of the blood program?

Some other way would have to be worked out for collecting blood. In the process of collecting blood, donors would have to be strictly supervised. Needs would have to be met and probably blood would be wasted, since for a single hospital, more might be needed one month than another, while donors might vary considerably from one month to the next.

Rare blood would pose a problem. Even consistent donors might not be available when needed.

On the other hand, membership in the blood bank cancels these problems. When extra blood is needed, it can be rushed from Norfolk, or from a member hospital. Rare blood is available when needed.

Giving Blood

Giving blood may help to save a member of your own family, Whichard says, and it could give the donor a feeling of satisfaction in participating in a community effort.

Giving blood doesn't hurt the health of a person approved, and does not cause pain, Whichard added. "Except for the finger prick for a drop or two for test, the whole process could be performed without waking a normal, sleeping person," he said.

(Note: The next visit to Greenville of the bloodmobile will be Thursday, February 23, at the Moose Lodge, from 12 noon until 6 p.m. The following day, the bloodmobile will be in Ayden.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS . . . cause a demand for blood. Because of the bloodmobile program, it is always available.

BLOOD . . . recently collected is stored in the bloodmobile, which will take it to Norfolk, Va., for further processing and preserving. Blood cannot be preserved more than 21 days under ideal conditions.

More Dramatic Developments Ahead In Conquering Of Space

By ALTON BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Writer CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Space age satellites and rockets are speeding along the time when you flick on TV, settle back and watch Olympic games, political crises, news events the very moment they are happening half a world away, or out in space. Lovers still look at the moon—but sometimes with spyglasses in hopes of seeing machines exploring its surface, or signs of men who landed on the moon. News bulletins answer the great mystery whether life exists on Mars, or elsewhere in the solar system. By radio-telephone, your voice shoots into space and back to a friend in Calcutta, the conversation clear as a bell, the cost of the call likely less than one made today. Someone you know may know someone whose son has a fascinating job—he's floating in space, helping a great space station out of prefabricated materials carried up into that precise orbit by freight rockets. You know what the weather will be weeks in advance, to time a golf date or a wedding and know what to wear. Astronomers harvest a gold mine of knowledge clarifying the origin and fate of the universe and world from a clear-eyed observatory circling above earth's obscuring blanket of air. Some of these space age dividends could be realities within 5 years, others in 10 or so. Plans for all of them already are under development. Scientists engineers, industries, technicians have started building the rockets, the instruments, the satellites, are engaged in all the complex calculations and proposals as the infant space age rushes toward maturity. All, and more, are included in a 10-year space plan drawn up last year by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. President Kennedy's administration has not yet spelled out any changes it may make. Great policy questions are involved. For example, whether a network of communications satellites for civilian use should be operated and paid for by government or private industry. In addition to NASA's ambitious plans, the Air Force, which has launched the majority of successful U.S. satellites to date, is developing satellites for communications, detecting launches of any enemy missiles, and observing military installations around the globe. The Navy is developing transit satellites to give ships, planes and submarines highly reliable "fixes" of their exact location at sea or over land. Hopefully, this year will see an astronaut orbiting the earth. This year's schedule also calls for launching the first stage of the huge Saturn rocket, designed to develop 1 1/2 million pounds of thrust, or about double the Soviet Union's present great booster rocket. (The USSR undoubtedly also is working on bigger rockets). The Saturn rocket could put a 14 1/2-ton satellite into orbit, or land six tons on the moon. Also scheduled are a solar observatory to study X-rays and radiation from the sun, and satellites to expand understandings of sun-space-earth relationships.

Pontiff Breaking Another Tradition In Language-Use

By JULES LOH One day last spring Pope John XXIII made a lesson visit to the Church of Our Lady of Help in Rome. He knelt through a half hour of prayers—all in Latin—then rose and made an epochal pronouncement. Henceforth, said the pontiff whose breaks with tradition have become commonplace, "efforts will be made to make more widespread the use of the language of the people in public religious ceremonies." Thus emboldened, the church has been vigorously setting about removing what one prominent liturgist, the Rev. John LaFarge, S.J., describes as "a barrier between the sanctuary and the nave." But the highly ritualistic Roman Catholic Church is not the only one concerned with this so-called language barrier. A Unitel Lutheran Church pastor, for example, describes the Elizabethan English of his worship service as "a combination of myth and mumble" which many reject as unintelligible. The Rev. Henry E. Horn, pastor of University Lutheran church in Cambridge, Mass., complains the archaic English words of his denomination's liturgy are "musty with age and poetic beauty, but lacking in reality to our people." A fellow churchman, the Rev. Krister Stendahl, a professor of New Testament at Harvard Divinity school, said he also is concerned with "the coldness of Lu-

Concerned Over Source Of Arms

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has expressed serious concern over reports that modern U.S. arms have found their way to isolated Chinese Nationalist soldiers still operating in the northern hills of Burma. An inquiry was ordered Friday, and the U.S. government again offered to evacuate these Chinese, who are the remnants of Chiang Kai-shek's army that was driven out of mainland China into Burma in 1949. The Chinese troops have been a source of repeated friction in Burma, and in 1953 Burma asked the United Nations to do something about them. The United States at that time helped evacuate about 70,000 of these soldiers. Chiang repudiated those who remained in Burma. It is not known how many are left there. State Department press officer Joseph W. Reap told of the inquiry Friday when asked about reports from Rangoon saying the Burmese had shot down an American-built plane and had captured modern U.S. arms and the remaining Chinese.

Twelve Cars Of Freight Derail; No One Injured

WALNUT COVE, N.C. (AP)—"Sometimes those two trains pass right here. If they had today, a lot of people might have been killed." That's what C. H. Davis, 50-year-old station agent of the Norfolk and Western Railroad, said after 12 freight cars derailed in front of the Walnut Cove station Friday. No one was hurt. Just before the derailment he was outside waiting to pass a message up to the last car of the 76-car freight. It said that the southbound freight would pass passenger train 11-12 a few miles up the track at the Fulp community. Twenty-eight passengers were on the northbound passenger train. There was speculation that wheels snapped off one freight car, throwing it off the track and causing others to pile up in a 75-yard string of wreckage and spilled coal. The cars, mostly open-top coal carriers, were on train 53, headed for Winston-Salem some 20 miles to the south. Wreckage blocked the main tracks between Winston-Salem and Roanoke Va., but they were cleared today.

The lunchroom menu for the coming week, as announced by the supervisor of city school cafeterias, is as follows: Monday—hamburger in bun, cole slaw, buttered crowder peas, apple sauce, milk; Tuesday—baked cured ham, candied yam, string beans, homemade roll and butter, Jello with whipped topping, milk; Wednesday—roast pork with gravy, creamed potatoes, fresh collards, cornbread and butter, cherry cobbler, milk; Thursday—vegetable beef soup and crackers, half deviled egg and half bologna and half peanut butter sandwich, ripe olives, pineapple cake, milk; Friday—fish stick, stewed potatoes, buttered corn, corn muffin and butter, grapefruit cup, milk.

Follow The Leader

VIENNA (AP)—Hungary is following the lead of the Soviet Union and other Communist bloc countries in recognizing the Czech government of Antonin Giszenga, says Budapest Radio. It says the Hungarian government will extend "all possible aid" to the Giszenga regime.

Young Musicians In Competition

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Musicians from eastern North Carolina high schools were judged in solo and ensemble playing here today. The competition at the Women's College of Duke University was sponsored by the North Carolina Music Educators Association. Certificate award winners were judged superior or excellent. These junior and senior high schools were represented: Acme-Delco, Bladenboro, Needham Broughton of Raleigh, Carr Junior High of Durham, Durham High, Elizabeth City, Hallsboro, Havelock, Jacksonville, Lumberton, Northern High of Durham, Roanoke Rapids, J. H. Rose of Greenville, Tabor City, Williams High of Burlington, and Hugh Morson Junior High of Raleigh.

Offer Land To School Boards

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Prison Commission will sell two parcels of its land in Wayne and Onslow counties to each county's board of education if the State Department of Administration approves. The Wayne County plot, near Goldsboro, is 18.8 acres and would be sold for $36,360, or $2,000 an acre. The Onslow land would be sold for $900 an acre, a total of $9,100. Both boards had asked to buy the land to expand their school units. The Prison Commission took the action at a meeting Friday.

Cause Of 'Recession' Continues A Mystery

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—The battle over words—is this recession or something else—is topped today by another question: Whether it's a recession or a slowdown or a mild adjustment, what caused it anyway? Industry started out at a fast clip in 1960. Predictions of still better days ahead came at an even faster clip from many corporation presidents and business economists. Then something happened. President Kennedy calls that something a recession and says it must be counteracted fast or it might grow into that uglier word, depression. Many business executives insist that the present slowdown is merely an adjustment. That is, business is whitening down stocks that were built up too fast, or waiting for demand to grow up to the new capacity which had been added at a fast clip. Some add that the less said about the current problems the quicker mended. But a few economists think the turn more fundamental. They call the peak reached in 1960 the final spurt of the postwar boom, which had been slowed down only temporarily by three previous recessions. They say the nature of today's economy is different and business must tackle new problems in new ways. Whichever view is right, the actual turn of events is usually credited to these immediate factors: 1. Changing inventory policies. These, in fact, are widely credited with causing both the ups and the downs which have marked industrial production over the last two years. The big upward spurt in early 1959 was due in large part to the building up of stocks in anticipation of a steel strike. That shut-down in the summer and early fall of 1959 depleted some stocks and cut industrial output. Settlement of the labor trouble sent many business firms on a spree of buying for inventory that carried into the early months of 1960 and made the economy look healthier than it actually was. Then overstocked firms stopped ordering altogether. Others began ordering on a hand-to-mouth basis. Industrial production in many basic fields started a long descent in the spring of 1960. And with it came increasing unemployment. 2. A drop in business spending for new plant and equipment. Overcapacity in many lines was blamed. Also some firms shelved plans when new orders dwindled. Attacked, too, were long-standing rules on depreciation allowances for tax purposes. 3. A slump in home building. First-a shortage of funds for mortgages was blamed. But easier money policies didn't help much. Some think high building costs and some saturation of demand may be the trouble. Other factors contributed to the downturn or helped to speed it. Auto sales were good late in 1960 but not as high as Detroit expectations. Dealers stocks piled up. Production was cut. Unemployment rose. The auto makers' troubles spread to allied fields. Consumer nervousness over the business outlook at home and over world tensions led to a slowdown in purchases of some big ticket items, such as appliances. Stock market weakness in the first half of last year played a big part in the uneasiness. A hard core of unemployment in long depressed areas ate into the health of the over-all economy. It cut purchasing power and raised relief costs.

Two Approaches Offered On Reapportionment

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Legislature received bills this week representing two approaches to the difficult and emotional problem of legislative reapportionment.

Sen. Lindsay C. Warren of Beaufort and Rep. Ed Kemp of Guilford offered identical bills that would amend the state constitution to make reapportionment automatic after each 10-year census, rather than leave it in the hands of the General Assembly.

Another bill, also requiring constitutional amendment, was presented by Rep. S. Bunn Frick of Brunswick. It would increase the membership of the State Senate from 50 to 100, one from each county; and boost House membership from 120 to 130, one from each county with the other 30 allotted by population.

Frick's bill also would lengthen Senate terms from two to four years.

The Assembly also received measures to raise its members' subsistence pay from $8 to $81 daily; raise subsistence allowances for state highway patrolmen from $40 to $75 a month; and to authorize the governor to appoint, if necessary, four more special Superior Court judges for limited terms.

The Senate passed a bill forbidding organization of any more small loan companies for 90 days. Its purpose is to hold off a rush of applications while the Legislature considers bills to curb alleged small loan abuses.

House Speaker Joseph Hunt named 16 committees and promised another batch would be named next week.

The joint appropriations and finance committees wound up a week of briefings on the $1.5 billion budget for the 1961-63 biennium proposed by former Gov. Luther Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission. Committee members were warned that even without the increased spending proposals of Gov. Terry Sanford, tax increases looked likely.

David S. Coltrane, director of the Department of Administration, said that the proposed budget is based on expectations that revenue from present taxes will rise by 8 per cent, while most other states expect no more than a 5 per cent increase.

The Senate Public Health Committee approved a bill which its chairman, Dr. Dennis S. Cook of Caldwell, offered, vesting licensing authority for nursing homes solely in the hands of the State Board of Health. Responsibility now is divided between the Medical Care Commission and the Public Health Commission.

No bills have been offered yet to realign the districts and reduce their number from 12 to 11, as required by 1960 Census figures.

Elisabethville, Katanga, followed a planned development instead of growing helter-skelter.

REV. BERNARD C. MEECE, Director of Christian Education for N. C. CHAPTER 31

I opened my eyes and saw Detective-Lieutenant Willis scowling at me through bars.

"You can't keep me in jail," I said. "Judge Bennett will give me a writ of habeas corpus."

Willis grinned at me balefully. "It will take more than that to spring you out of this, Gunnarson."

I sat up swearing. My head took off from my shoulders and flew around the big dim room, bumping into empty beds. It looked more like a dormitory than a jail.

"Take it easy," now," Willis leaned on the barred side that turned me back into a sort of cage. Grasping my good shoulder, he pressed me back onto the pillowless sheet. "You're in the recovery room in the hospital. You just got out of the operating room."

"Where's Sally? What happened to Sally?"

Nothing happened to her except in the course of nature. She gave birth to a little girl last night, eight pounds ten ounces. The two of them are right here in this same hospital, down on the third floor. Both doing well.

"Is that where she went last night?"

"This is where she went. What bothers me is where you went, and why. What were you doing up in the mountains there?"

"Hunting deer by moonlight out of season. Arrest me, officer."

Willis shook his head curtly. "Get off the mental jag. This is serious, Bill. You ought to know how serious. Pike Granada says you were within seconds of getting smothered to death. If he hadn't been keeping an eye on those ambulance drivers, you would have been a goner."

"Thank Granada for me."

"I'll do that with pleasure. You owe him personal thanks, though, and maybe an apology, eh? You were pretty hot against Granada."

"I was half convinced that he killed Broadman."

"Yeah. We all know different now, thanks to Granada. He figured out for himself that the ambulance attendants, Whitey Slater and Ronald Spice, were the guilty ones. I didn't buy it myself at first, so Granada followed through on his own time. After Doc Simpson told him Mrs. Donato was killed the same way Broadman was, he stuck to Spice and Slater like a leech."

"Why didn't he arrest them?"

"Premature. He wanted them to take him to their leader."

"Have you caught Gaines?"

"Not yet." Willis sat down solidly, and crossed his legs. "I was hoping for some help from you on that, and other matters."

"I don't want to be in hospital," I said. "But I happen to have a wife and a new baby that I'm eager to see."

"Forget them for now. You'd never make it down to the third floor anyway. And I have some things I want to ask you about. There's been a lot of talk about a kidnapping. Was there a kidnapping?"

"Technically, yes. Gaines kidnapped me in Mountain Grove last night. He took me to the mountain lodge where Granada found me. Gaines and I had a fight there, which he more or less won."

"He shot you?"

"I was shot, yes, and out for a while. He set fire to the house and left me to burn."

"And Mrs. Ferguson? He left her to burn, too?"

"Evidently he did. I came in time to get her out. Is she all right?"

Willis answered carefully. We were fencing, and both of us knew it. "It's hard to tell. Her husband is having her privately looked after. He says he doesn't trust the hospital, with all the shenanigans going on. I'm wondering if he doesn't know more than I do about the shenanigans going on."

"Have you talked to him?"

"Just for a second, when he picked up his wife in the emergency ward. He wasn't communicating, and I can't force him to. He hasn't done anything criminal, that I know about. The wife is another matter, now. I can't figure what she was doing up in a mountain hideout with a wanted man. Was she there voluntarily?"

"I don't know."

"You must have some opinion on the subject. You saw her there with Gaines, didn't you?"

"I saw her."

"Was she tied up, or confined, or under duress?"

"I don't know."

"How can you help knowing?" Willis said sharply.

"There are various forms of duress," including the psychological.

"Was she conscious?"

"Yes."

"Did he threaten her?"

"Yes. As a matter of fact, he hit her with a gun."

"Same gun he shot you with?"

"Same gun," I said, but I was beginning to sweat. I hardly knew why I was framing my answers so as to protect the woman I was in no condition to work out a conflict of conscience. The worst of these conflicts is the tendency they have to crop up when a man isn't equal to handling them.

Willis sensed my indecision. "This psychological duress you mentioned, it's an interesting idea. What does it boil down to, the fact that he had something on her?"

"I don't know."

He said as if at random: "Poor kid, they had to walk her for nearly two hours. She was loaded to the gills with morphine, did you know that?"

"I suspected she was drugged, yes."

"Is she an addict? Is that what Gaines had on her?"

"Your guess is as good as mine."

"I doubt that. You've had opportunities to talk to them, her and her husband both. I understand you've been seeing quite a bit of him in the last day or two."

"I saw him once or twice. He's a pretty good man, in case you're in doubt about that."

"Would you vouch for the wife, too?"

"I hardly know her. The sweat was soaking through my hospital gown. Unless I concentrated on my vision, I tended to see Willis in duplicate."

He went on: "Spice says Gaines ran out with his and his partner's share of two hundred thousand dollars which Ferguson paid to Gaines as ransom for Mrs. Ferguson. He says she was snatched from the Poothill Club while he and his partner stood by, monitoring our calls on their short wave so we wouldn't get in the way. Which incidentally they've been doing all through this wave of burglaries. It was a neat little system they had, passing along information on hospital patients and then keeping track of our movements while Gaines and Gus

More Efficiency For Sputnik Field Claimed

MILAN, Italy (AP) — A Soviet woman Sputnik scientist acknowledged today that the United States leads the Soviet Union in some phases of the space race. But she said the Soviets have a more efficient program.

Prof. Cilia Massevitch, visiting Italy at the invitation of the Italian-Soviet Friendship Assn., said in an interview that she was not a Communist party member. But she was full of praise for the Communist system and took a few raps at capitalism.

Prof. Massevitch, 39, who is in charge of observation of Soviet Sputniks, said the Soviet Union's spectacular space strides were achieved by making the Soviet government master coordinator of all rocket research.

"We have a mastermind ordering a certain course of research," she said, "and the whole nation follows it with discipline. This is what leads to great results."

In contrast, she declared, scientific research in the United States is carried out by both private enterprise and various government organs which often duplicate efforts in the same direction.

"Our results are certainly due to our organization," Prof. Massevitch asserted.

The scientist, whose husband is a physicist and a Communist party member, disclosed the Soviet "Lunik" satellite which took photographs of the far side of the moon and relayed them by television in October, 1959, was damaged on its return trip by collision with a meteorite.

She said the Soviet "space ship" now heading toward a springtime rendezvous with Venus does not have cameras to take pictures of the planet.

"We want to know the exact distance between earth and Venus," she said, "and we hope to learn this from radio signals."

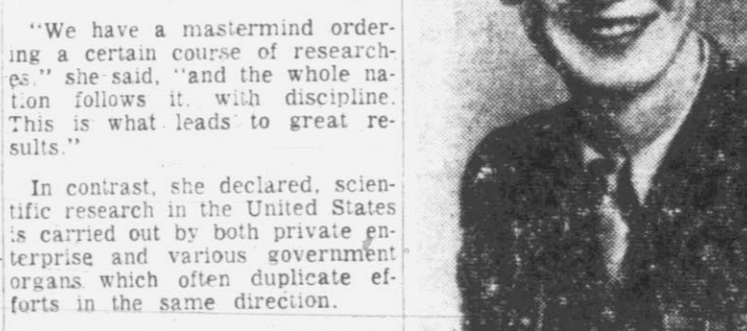

Prof. Massevitch said 17,000 persons have written to Soviet authorities asking to take the first ride in a Sputnik. She would not say when the Soviets hope to put a man into space.

"There are many dangers," Donato burglarized their houses.

"According to Spice, they did the same thing yesterday noon when Ferguson made the money drop. They were supposed to get a cut of it, twenty-five grand apiece of services rendered. But Gaines ran out on them with the whole bundle. You can understand why Ronald Spice is spouting like a whale. Of course he's trying to cheat the fireless cooker, too. Not that we'd make a deal with scum like that."

Willis was hoarse with anger. "Scum of the earth, masquerading as public servants, using their position to knock off injured people. You know what they are. They almost did it to you."

WAF Recruiter Here Thursday

Technical Sergeant Ellen Barton (above), Air Force Recruiter for Women in the Air Force, will be at the Post Office in Greenville on Thursday, February 23 to counsel young women interested in Air Force Careers.

Sgt. Barton is the only member of the WAF (Women in the Air Force) stationed in this area. She serves as the WAF representative for the U.S. Air Force Recruiting Service and her area involves all eastern North Carolina.

Besides her role in enlisting WAFs, Sgt. Barton also seeks applications from nurses, medical specialists and dieticians. On this visit she is introducing a new program for college women, OTS, otherwise known as Officer Training School. In this program college graduates are accepted and utilized in their field of college major. Young women accepted for this program are commissioned as Second Lieutenants.

She may be contacted Thursday by visiting the local USAF recruiting office or by appointment through the USAF recruiter.

Knottiest Problem Lies In Determining Gifted Child

EDITORS NOTE: This is the last in a series on North Carolina's gifted children, made available to the Associated Press by The Charlotte Observer.

By JACK CLAIBORNE

Charlotte Observer Staff Writer Written For The Associated Press CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) —How can you tell whether a child is "gifted?"

This question is probably the knottiest one facing educators interested in starting a program for talented children.

Putting a child who doesn't have the potential in a class with children who easily out-perform him can lead to emotional catastrophe.

Or committing a child who does have the ability can cause heart-break and defeat the purpose of the entire program.

In its recommendations to the state legislature, the North Carolina Commission studying the gifted did not make any specific recommendations for identifying "gifted" children.

But Dr. C. D. Killian and Dr. Harold H. Bixler of Western Carolina College, leaders of the commission, have offered some suggested guidelines.

They say that whether you call all children "gifted" who have IQ scores of 130 or more, or whether you include those with scores of 115 and above, depend on the size of the school system you have and the size of the program you envision.

But they suggest that any child you select should be well-rounded socially and emotionally, and advanced at least two or more years ahead of his class in the several basic skills.

In Winston-Salem's program for the "gifted," each child selected is tested by psychologists twice before being accepted in the special classes.

Drs. Killian and Bixler also caution teachers to make sure that they are not judging a child by his achievement rather than his potential.

Knowing that a program as drawn up a modest proposal for "gifted" children needs gradual development, the North Carolina Commission for the "gifted" has sent to the state legislature for getting a state-wide program started.

That proposal will soon be present to the state legislature for adoption.

It calls for:

- A supervisor for the "gifted" and a supervisor for testing and guidance, both of whom would work out of the State Department of Public Instruction. Cost: $24,000 a year.
- Thirty additional teachers to be allotted to operate the five pilot programs now under way at Hendersonville, Henderson County, Greenville, Pitt County, and Winston-Salem, and publish reports on these projects. Cost: $25,000.
- Salaries, travel allowances, and office costs for 10 school psychologists who would work throughout the state, testing and identifying "gifted" children. Cost $120,000.
- Salaries, travel allowances, and office costs for 10 supervisors of classes for the "gifted," who would work in schools throughout the state. Cost: $90,000.
- Continue to operate the five pilot programs now under way at Hendersonville, Henderson County, Greenville, Pitt County, and Winston-Salem, and publish reports on these projects. Cost: $25,000.

The total cost of these recommendations over the two-year period from 1961-63 (until the legislature meets again) would be $900,000.

Long Hours For Atty General Robert Kennedy

By JACK ADAMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the Justice Department, which has about 23 acres of floor space, Robert F. Kennedy is becoming known as "the roving attorney general."

The new department chief, 35 years old, is getting acquainted with his big bailiwick. He frequently pops up anywhere in the eight-story building to find out what's going on in a particular spot.

During the last three weeks, many a hired hand has looked up from his desk a little startled to find a smiling visitor looking down and saying:

"I'm Robert Kennedy. What are you working on here?"

One breathless employee gasped back: "Yes, yes I know. I recognize you from your pictures."

Currently, Kennedy's regular work week includes Saturdays, and sometimes Sundays. He frequently tours the hallways on these days to see who has come in for a little weekend work, and seems pleased when he finds someone putting in overtime.

The attorney general is an overtime man himself, and displays a brand of energy that seems to run in the family.

He starts the day around 9 a.m. and is often in his office until 9 or 10 o'clock at night. He has established a night shift of top level department lawyers whose advice he might want "after hours."

In his private suite, the attorney general works in shirt sleeves rolled up above the elbows, with his tie loosened and his collar unbuttoned.

More often than not, around midday, a messenger brings a sandwich and a glass of milk to his massive walnut desk. Under the stares of the massive figures in the immense murals which decorate the place, Kennedy munches the sandwich while continuing to take phone calls, or dictating to one of his several secretaries.

In the hallways outside his suite the traffic is almost continuous. While getting acquainted with his department and organizing a new team of top aides to run it, he has had as many as 50 persons on his appointment list in a single day.

Coffee House Takes Over Tokyo Scene

By BOB THOMAS

TOKYO (AP) — The Teahouse of the August Moon is old stuff nowadays. The coffee house has taken over.

The Japanese have taken to the coffee house with a passion. There are more than 7,000 in Tokyo alone, and more open every week.

The coffee house here bears little resemblance to the American variety. You'll find no beards, bards nor beatniks. The Japanese coffee shop might be described as a combination drug store and saloon, with elements of the cabaret and Coney Island.

They are strictly a postwar phenomenon, providing a place for young couples to date. The American style of dating was not practiced in Japan before the war. The coffee houses are—well, you just can't understand them without seeing them. Even then, you may not be sure.

First stop is the Fujiya Music

Salon, a tastefully decorated place. As is the custom in the coffee places, you buy a ticket at the door for your refreshment—tea, coffee, fruit drinks, beer, sandwiches, etc., at around 150 yen (42 cents) apiece.

You take a seat on one of the tables, and the waitress takes your ticket and brings the order. You sip and listen to a combo of six sleepy-eyed musicians playing progressive jazz that would be more than acceptable on the Sunset Strip.

Next comes the Tennessee. You take a table in the balcony of the rococo place, sitting alongside bobbers just out of school. All of a sudden the bandstand erupts with a rock 'n' roll "I'm Going to Stop Shopping Around," complete with honking sax and thumping guitars.

The din becomes too great, and you walk to the Yie-Lai-Shian, a tastefully decorated Chinese palace. At the far end is a platform where a 10-piece chamber-music group is playing "Liebestraum." The atmosphere is hushed, and couples whisper over their coffee cups.

You could keep walking from one such place to another until you were awash with coffee. They are all over the city in an infinite variety. One features waitresses in negligees, another offers bikini. One is fashioned as an airplane; customers are strapped with seat belts in reclining chairs.

Feel Time Isn't Ripe For Effort

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina says the time is not ripe to attempt mediation between the United States and Cuba.

This stand was taken by Foreign Minister Diogenes Taboada in a note to Ecuador's Foreign Minister Jose Chiriboga, who had urged joint conciliatory action.

There was "SHANE," "HIGH NOON" AND "RIO BRAVO" . . . NOW THIS NEW GIANT OF WESTERN SUSPENSE!
