Hammaraskjold Says Six Associates Of Lumumba Have Also Been Killed

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General Dag Hammaraskjold told the U.N. Security Council today that six associates of the slain Congo leader Patrice Lumumba had been killed in secessionist Kasai Province.

They looked for these proposals to take the form of amendments to a Congo peace resolution sponsored by Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic with broad Asian-African support.

Any pro-Hammaraskjold amendment was considered certain to die by Soviet veto, however. The Asian-African resolution submitted Friday, urged that the United Nations use force if necessary to head off civil war in the Congo, that all Belgian military personnel and political advisers leave there and that all countries deny transit to non-U.N. military men headed for the Congo.

Week Of Activity On Money

RALEIGH (AP) — The General Assembly's powerful money committees will be active this week hearing appropriations requests and discussing possible new tax sources.

Reliable sources said Sunday that Gov. Sanford would address the legislature March 6 and make recommendations for new revenue sources to pay for his school improvement plans.

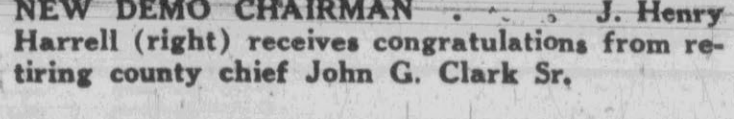

Lawmakers return to Raleigh tonight to begin the second full week of the 1961 session. The big appropriations committee is slated to start budget hearings Tuesday morning.

Harrell Calls For Continued Effort

Pitt County Democratic Chairman J. Henry Harrell Saturday called on members of the party's county executive committee for a "coordinated effort in continuing to make a strong party organization in Pitt County."

In a brief address to the committee following his election to succeed John G. Clark Sr. as Pitt's Democratic chief, Harrell expressed "my deepest appreciation to you, the committee, for choosing me. I am deeply touched," he said.

Harrell's choice was made unanimous following a secret ballot vote that saw him garner 16 of the 25 precinct chairmen's votes. Charles O.H. Horne, the other nominee for the county organization's top post, drew nine votes.

Kennedy Proposes $5.7 Billion Plan Of Broad Aid To Education

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy today proposed a $5.7 billion aid-to-education program designed to set "a new standard of excellence in education" available "to all who are willing and able to pursue it."

A three-year program of outright grants to the states for use in building classrooms or raising teachers' salaries. It would provide an average of $19.75 for each child in average daily attendance in public elementary and secondary schools the first year, increasing to an average of $24.22 the third year. Total cost: $2.3 billion.

The President told Congress, "This is a modest program with ambitious goals." It does, indeed, fall far short of the recommendations he received from his special task force on education last month, and short even of the aid to education bill which died in Congress last year after passage in the Senate.

Kennedy's proposed grants to the states for classroom construction or teachers' salaries would cost $666 million the first year, $766 million the second, and $866 million the third.

Benton-Waters Speak Vows

BETHEL—In wedding rites Sunday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon at the Methodist Church in Bethel, Miss Joyce Magelene Waters became the bride of Mr. Frank Eldridge Benton. The Rev. Carl W. Barbee, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Vows were spoken before a background of greenery and lighted cathedral tapers.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. R. Harold Stator, organist, played a program of nuptial music just before the Wedding March by Mendelssohn. Mrs. Samuel C. Whitehurst sang "I Promise You" by Rosanna Bleacher and "Because" by D'Hardelot, and for the benediction Mrs. Whitehurst sang "The Wedding Prayer" by Duncanson, as the couple knelt on a satin covered prie dieu.

The bride entered the church with her father by whom she was given in marriage. She wore a full length bridal gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle. The overskirt of lace was topped in the center front with three Chantilly lace rosebuds. Her full skirt fell from the waist to the floor in the back with tiers of lace and nylon tulle ruffles. Her sabrina neckline was covered with iridescent sequins and pearls. The waist was a fitted basque forming a point in the center front. The sleeves were fitted and long forming points at the hands.

Her three tiered bridal veil of net was attached to a coronet of silk braids, outlined with pearls. She carried a white satin covered Bible showered with Stephanotis and topped with a white orchid. Mrs. John Linwood Gurganus Jr. of Bethel was matron of honor. She wore a cocktail length dress of aqua silk organza, fashioned with a fitted bodice, and scoop neckline. The waist featured a cummerbund of contrasting color forming panels floating to the hemline of the bell-shaped skirt. She wore a matching Dior bow hat accented by simulated pearls, and carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations, tied with pink ribbons.

The bridesmaids were Miss Shelby Waters of Washington and Miss Marie Walter of Greenville, sisters of the bride. They wore dresses of pink silk organza with Persian rose cummerbunds, fashioned like that of the honor attendant. They carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations and aqua pom poms and tied with aqua ribbons.

Mr. F. Leland Andrews Jr. of Bethel, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Mr. David T. House III of Bethel, Mr. Bradley Gray, Mr. Kenneth Gray, and Mr. J. R. Waters Jr., brother of the bride, all of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Waters wore a Dior blue lace dress with blue accessories, and a white orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a violet neu d'ance silk with blending accessories and white orchid corsage.

The grandmother of the bride wore a black suit with a corsage of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride couple received in the vestibule of the church.

Directing the wedding was Mrs. J. L. Brown, and in charge of church decorations was Mrs. Donald H. Jenkins.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Waters of Greenville. She is a graduate of Belvoir-Falkland High School, and for the past three years has been employed by Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. in Bethel.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Andrews Benton of Bethel. He is a graduate of Bethel High School and Fishburne Military Academy, and he attended East Carolina College. He is employed in the finance division at the Cherry Point Marine Air Station.

After a wedding trip to Florida the couple will reside in Newport.

For her traveling costume the bride wore a tweed suit with matching accessories; she wore the white orchid lifted from her white Bible.

Gurganus Sr. honoring Miss Joyce Waters and Mr. Frank Benton. Hosts and hostesses with Mr. and Mrs. Gurganus were Mr. and Mrs. D. T. House Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Brown.

Dinner was served from the dining table covered with a banquet cloth of Italian cutwork, a centerpiece of carnations and candelabras flanked by silver candelabra containing pink candles.

Cake Cutting
Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gurganus Jr. entertained with a cake cutting at their home immediately after the wedding rehearsal of Miss Joyce Waters and Mr. Frank Benton.

Hosts and hostesses with Mr. and Mrs. Gurganus were Mr. and Mrs. Burton R. Ayres and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Teitson.

The dining table was covered with a white cloth overlaid with white net. The net was made adorned with a fitted ruffle around the edge of the table, and showed pink all around with nosegays of pink and white tulle. In the center of the table was a flower arrangement of pink and white snapdragons centered with a five-branched silver candelabra holding white candles.

On the buffet was a bride and groom doll surrounded by smaller dolls dressed as bridesmaids.

The three-tiered wedding cake was served at one end of the table by Mrs. Elizabeth A. Benton, mother of the bridegroom. After the bride and the bridegroom had cut the first slice, Mrs. J. R. Waters, mother of the bride, served punch from a silver nunch bowl.

Guests included the wedding party, relatives and close friends of the family.

Wedding Breakfast
Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Andrews Jr. were hosts at a wedding breakfast Sunday at their home on Whitehurst Street honoring the Benton-Waters bridal party and out-of-town guests.

The home was decorated with flower arrangements throughout.

The guests were served tomato juice cocktails on arrival, after which they were directed to the dining room where they were served from a buffet table.

The menu consisted of turkey scalloped oysters, ham, snap beans, candied yams, relishes, cranberry salad, and for dessert cherry pie with whipped cream.

ECC Students Give Program
The Lector Book Club met at the home of Mrs. A. H. VanDyke at her home on Rockspring Road Tuesday.

Upon arrival members were served a three course luncheon. The Valentine motif was used in decorating the home. The hostess presented each member with a Valentine box of mints.

A musical program was given by East Carolina College students, Miss Betsy Hancock, soloist, and Miss Kay Riggs, accompanist.

A short business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Ken Phillips, vice-president.

Guests were Mrs. Ray Minges, Mrs. Roy Honeycutt, Mrs. Ray Masden, and Mrs. Carl Wade.

Theatres To Show Cancer Film

The motion picture theatres of Greenville will show two educational films on cancer this week for women. These films, sponsored by the Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society, have been prepared to teach women how to detect in their early stages two types of cancer that take more women's lives than any other type of cancer.

On Friday, at 10:30 a.m. the Pitt Theatre will present a showing; on Saturday, at the same hour, the State Theatre will show the films; and on Saturday, also, at 2:30 p.m. the Roxy Theatre will present the program.

There is no admission charge. The Cancer Society has arranged for a doctor to be in attendance at each of the three showings to conduct a question and answer session after the movie.

Elbert Bennett, president of the Pitt County Cancer unit, said today, "We are grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sturm, Mr. Van Jones and Mr. John Warner—managers of the three theatres—for showing these educational films."

"The Cancer Society believes in a strong program of information and education as well as in research and service. These films should be seen by as many women in the county as can do so."

"An increasing awareness of the importance of early cancer detection can bring further reduction in deaths due to this disease."

American Legion Auxiliary Meets
The American Legion Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Frank Taylor at her home, 405 Eastern Street, at 8 p.m. Thursday. Miss Julia Escalona, East Carolina College graduate student from Chile, will be guest speaker.

Nurses Meet
The registered private duty nurses will meet Thursday at the home of Mrs. Robert Davis at 7:30 p.m. in Bethel.

Thetis Hears Dr. Poindexter

Dr. James E. Poindexter related facts about poet and playwright William Shakespeare when he spoke to the regular meeting of the Thetis Book Club.

The speaker said that due to the poet's lack of formal education, many historians and writers have tried, unsuccessfully to prove that Shakespeare's works were not his own.

Dr. Poindexter said it is interesting to note that all of the facts about The Bard of Avon come from legal documents and transactions. Due to the mysteries of parts of his life, many legends and myths have sprung up about him and his relationship with his family. However, it can be safely said that Shakespeare lived a very normal life in Elizabethan England.

Mrs. B. Marshall Whitehurst was hostess to the club members at her home on Oaklawn Avenue. After Dr. Poindexter's talk and discussion by the group Mrs. E. L. Clark assisted the hostess in serving cake and coffee.

Mrs. Trevillon Lyons distributed the books and the meeting was adjourned.

Training School
A training school for home management and house furnishing leaders of Home Demonstration Clubs will be conducted Tuesday from 2 until 3:30 p.m. in the Home Economics Laboratory, Agriculture Building. Mrs. Edith McGlamery, specialist in home development with the N. C. Extension Department, will conduct the course.

Sideline Members Meet
Sideline members will be honored at a regular meeting of Greenville Chapter No. 149, O.E.S. Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Masonic Hall. Members are asked to be present. Visiting stars welcomed.

Mrs. Howard Is Club Speaker

Mrs. John Howard was welcomed as guest speaker when Mrs. W. J. Davenport Jr. entertained the Cosmos Book Club.

The hostess carried out the Valentine motif in floral arrangements of white chrysanthemums and in refreshments.

Assisted by Mrs. C. W. Howard Jr. and Mrs. I. J. Edwards Jr., Mrs. Davenport served cherry tarts, coffee and Valentine candy.

Mrs. Howard showed the club movies in color taken when she and her husband were in Cairo, Egypt, plus slide trips to Paris and to Munich, Germany where she visited her sister. Mrs. Howard showed many of the ruins and temples of ancient Egyptian life in Luxor. Also seen were the Nile, the Pyramids, the Sphinx and the writings and colored drawings on the walls which depicted life in those times.

Numerous questions were answered by Mrs. Howard at the conclusion of the film.

Mrs. Quinn Bostic presided over a short business meeting at which time the members voted to become a luncheon club as of next year.

"Should My Cashmere Coat Be Dye-cleaned?" — Mrs. R. T. W.

Dear Mrs. R. T. W.:

Yes, your Cashmere coat should be dye-cleaned. It should never be wet-cleaned. Cashmere is a natural fiber obtained from the fine underdown of the Kashmir goat found in the high plateaus of inner Asia. Yarnage for one genuine Cashmere coat requires the yield of approximately 30 Kashmir goats. That fact, plus primitive transportation to the inaccessible areas where it is grown, contribute to the high cost. The natural color is white, gray or tan, but it can be dyed from very light pastels to dark blue, brown or black.

Real Cashmere is a hair and should not be classified as a wool. It is highly susceptible to wear from rubbing which you'll notice first at the collar, cuffs, pockets, front openings and seat.

Genuine Cashmere has a greater tendency to shrink than wool. It is more sensitive to certain chemicals than wool and is known to change color from some moth-proofing agents. The nap can be disturbed easily which is a further reason for professional care in spot removal.

If you notice small dark hairs in your pastel colored Cashmere, these are guard hairs which were not removed from the fine down fibers before they were spun into yarn.

Yes, take your Cashmere coat to a professional dyer-cleaner. Make certain that he knows it is Cashmere. A Cashmere fabric is delightfully soft in feel. It is expensive. A professional cleaner knows how to give it the special handling it deserves.—(Adv.)

Chinese Touch For Everyday Fare

ROAST DUCKLING, crispy brown and appetite-teasing, takes to a saucy topping of pineapple and mandarin oranges.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
YOU'RE RIGHT in style if you want to give your cooking a Chinese touch. All over the country cooks are using tricks from this fascinating cuisine to vary everyday dishes.

So here comes roast duck with a Chinese-type fruit sauce to pine apples.

Even though we suggest roasting the duck at a low temperature its skin will be crispy as can be if you follow our recipe directions. Serve the duck with lots of steam rice — there's plenty of sauce to give zest.

ROAST DUCKLING WITH MANDARIN SAUCE
1 4 to 5 pound duckling
Salt and pepper
1 clove garlic (crushed)
2 tablespoons honey
1 teaspoon brown gravy flavoring
Mandarin Sauce
Thaw duck if frozen; wash, drain and pat outside and cavity dry.
Rub cavity with salt, pepper and garlic. Skewer neck skin to back. Tie drumstick ends together. Place on rack in shallow roasting

- Broccoli with Hollandaise Sauce
- Coconut Pineapple Bars
- Beverage

COCONUT PINEAPPLE BARS

- 1/4 cup butter
- 1 cup firmly-packed light brown sugar
- 1 cup sifted flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 cups flaked coconut

Pineapple Filling: Stir together 1/4 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch and 1/4 teaspoon salt in a 1-quart saucepan; stir in a 9-ounce can of crushed pineapple, including syrup. Cook and stir constantly until thickened and clear, bringing to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in 1 tablespoon each butter and lemon juice.

pan — have rack level or slightly higher than top of pan. Roast in a slow (325 degrees) oven until drumstick is soft to touch — 2 1/2 to 3 hours. Remove duck; pour off drippings. Increase oven temperature to hot (400 degrees). Brush duck skin with honey mixed with gravy flavoring. Line pan with foil and return duck (on rack) to oven for 30 minutes, basting occasionally. Serve with Mandarin Sauce. Makes 4 servings — with plenty of sauce.

MANDARIN SAUCE

- 1 can (13 1/2 ounces) pineapple chunks
- 1 can (11 ounces) mandarin oranges
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 1/4 cup dark molasses
- 1/2 teaspoon ginger.

Drain pineapple and oranges; add enough water to their syrup, if necessary to make 2 cups. Gradually stir syrups into cornstarch to make smooth. Stir in soy sauce, mustard, vinegar, molasses and ginger. Cook and stir over moderate heat until thickened and clear. Add drained pineapple and oranges. Simmer about 5 minutes to blend flavors and heat thoroughly.

'Treat Them As Ladies'

OTTAWA, (AP) — The only woman on the National Parole Board, thinks the 100-odd women prisoners of Kingston Penitentiary should wear "something soft and feminine."

This was the spontaneous reaction of Mary Louise Lynch upon hearing that the women there are restricted to blue or brown in a penal version of the sack dress. One of Canada's few corporation lawyers, Miss Lynch has won wide respect in the profession.

Her support for the proposal to provide less austere garb for women prisoners is backed by penal authorities who regard it as a means of encouraging self-esteem and good behavior.

"If we want them to behave as ladies when they are released, we should treat them as ladies," one official says.

Miss Lynch, one of Canada's few corporation lawyers, this

Forging Ahead To A New Horizon

In what is becoming an era of New Days for the state and New Frontiers for the nation, East Carolina College has forged ahead to a New Horizon in higher education in North Carolina with the announcement that a branch of the institution will be established at Camp Lejeune.

The project, which has been under study for some time, received approval of the State Board of Higher Education last Friday.

It will represent another "first" in higher education in North Carolina, for no other college in the state has previously established such a "branch" operation. In other sections of the nation, colleges have used the method effectively to offer college work to more people than otherwise could have reached. In the case of East Carolina's new branch at Camp Lejeune, the college will be offering a greater service to the state by making college training available to many more people.

Of further significance is the fact that this new venture by East Carolina College will be carried out on a self-supporting basis which means the cost of operating the branch will not be financed out of state tax revenues. Tuition and fees paid by those attending the ECC branch at Lejeune will be sufficient to cover the cost of operating the branch.

Under the proposed program, persons may complete the first two years of college work, and credits earned may be transferred to any recognized college in the nation. Some of the students who begin their work at the ECC branch at Lejeune certainly will transfer their credits to colleges and universities in other states where they will earn degrees. Many of those who enroll at the ECC branch, however, will certainly transfer credits earned there to ECC and other colleges and universities in North Carolina.

For several years now East Carolina College has offered a broad range of extension courses at Lejeune and at other places throughout the state. Enrollment in such courses has included more than 2,500 students in a single year. Thus, East Carolina for several years has extended its educational facilities far beyond the campus in Greenville.

By the establishment of the branch of Lejeune the college has forged ahead with another step that will be of great significance to higher education in the state. It will enable East Carolina to render even greater service than is now the case and it will likewise put college training within reach of many who otherwise would not have the advantage of college training.

Officials of East Carolina College are to be commended for taking this bold new step in higher education in North Carolina, and the State Board of Higher Education is likewise to be commended for having the foresight to give its approval to this new venture.

Although the new ECC branch at Lejeune will not be a "pilot" operation as such, it may well set a pattern for further development of this new phase of higher education that will help North Carolina's colleges to cope with the period of increased college enrollment in the years immediately ahead.

Fast Start, But Gains In Doubt

By LYNN NISBET
PROGRESS — Despite the much publicized fast start of the 1961 General Assembly there is serious doubt in minds of many observers whether it is any farther along with its work than previous sessions have been at end of the first full week.

The budget report prepared by former Governor Luther Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission which served with him was presented the second day of the session, along with a budget message from Governor Terry Sanford. That broke all records for early presentation of these matters to the lawmakers.

On the third day of the session Lieut. Gov. Cloyd Philpott announced the full slate of senate committees — another all-time record for speedy action. Speaker Joe Hunt announced House committees on appropriations and finance, but no others. Most of the other assignments came late in the second week — which is about normal timing for them.

Meanwhile some highly important legislation was introduced, including procedure for congressional and senatorial redistricting, and two or three versions of small loan agency regulatory bills. The early introduction didn't speed action very much, because the House committee had not been appointed and the Senate committees manifested reluctance to face up to the problem.

The money committees have been meeting in the mornings instead in the afternoons as has been the custom, and have been subjected to general briefing of the revenue picture. Very little attention has been given to specific items.

Bragging — Most members agree that early appointment of the big money committees served to speed up work, but there is widespread doubt that the progress has been as much as the leaders would like to claim. One veteran of many sessions observed that the big boys are spending so much time bragging about progress they haven't had a chance to make their boasts come true.

An example of dilly-dallying on the redistricting matter is found in the handling of a senate bill. On the opening day of the session a bill was introduced (SB-4) stating it was the sense of the Senate that an appropriate committee should be appointed to begin immediate study of the problem of revamping senatorial districts and apportioning seats in the House. The bill was referred to a committee which had not then been appointed. It was appointed next day and had a meeting on the following Tuesday, gave the bill authorizing day, and adjourned. The Senate on Thursday enacted the bill into law, which means the committee is legal — but it has not started its work.

SMALL LOANS — The anticipated floor fight over the bill proposing a 90-day moratorium in the licensing of small loan agencies failed to develop in the Senate. Sen. Jennings King of Scotland, who had threatened to object to the bill, said he decided it was not important enough to fight over. He feels sure that the final action of the General Assembly will be to greatly strengthen the small loan laws and reduce the monopolistic hold that established firms have in the business. King said the bill which was offered in the House last week by Rep. Irwin Belk and known as the "banking commission bill" should be entitled an "act to license money lenders to rob the poor people of North Carolina."

56 PER CENT — The Scotland Senator noted that the bill permits the loan agency to charge $22 on the first $100 loan, to be paid in advance. That means the borrower will sign a note for $100, but will get only $78. If he pays that back on equal monthly installments it will be the equivalent of having the use of $39 for a full year — on which he has paid $22 interest and charges, or a little better than 56 per cent. That, King insists, is pretty high rent for the use of money.

Spokesmen for the loan agencies contend that the much greater than usual risk involved in their type of loans, and the amount of bookkeeping required to keep track of them, justifies the charges.

ISSUE — The two main points at issue in the small loan legislation seem to be the schedule of charges and the degree of monopoly which might be accorded established or new agencies. The two phases sort of offset each other. If there is no restriction on either charges or number of agencies permitted, competition will take care of the situation. If there is to be limited operation, constituting a virtual monopoly, then the charges should be very closely regulated — with perhaps some "assigned risk" loans after the manner of the assigned risk automobile insurance policies.

The schedule of charges and the monopolistic phase are also involved in the maximum amount to be considered as coming within the purview of a small loan. The "banking commission" bill goes up to $900. Some folks would like to make it $1500 and others think that $300 should be the limit for a "small" loan. There is considerable sentiment for a $500 mark.

Clark Leave Record Of Forceful Leadership

In retiring from the post of Pitt County Democratic Chairman after 17 years, John G. Clark, Sr. has left behind him a record of energetic and forceful leadership in the Democratic party in this county.

During the period of years in which he has stood at the helm of the Democratic party in this county, the party's voting strength in Pitt has increased almost 50 per cent. This record stands as proof of his organizational ability used in behalf of the party in this county, and also as a tribute to his ability to bring unity within the party in general elections after bitter battles in the party primaries that have been waged in Pitt during the years he has been Democratic Chairman.

John Clark, during his long tenure as Pitt's Democratic chairman, served the party well and certainly gave to that important post boundless energy and political ability that stood the party in good stead under his leadership.

Measures To Correct Deficit

By RALPH ROBEY

It was imperative that President Kennedy take action with a view of correcting the deficit in our international balance of payments. This was necessary because, while we still have enough gold to meet the demands that may be made upon us, neither we nor any other nation can withstand indefinitely the pressure of such a relatively large international deficit.

The Eisenhower Administration, through the use of various steps for the purpose of getting the deficit reduced to manageable size, but the problem still remained. Among these steps by Eisenhower were the encouragement of exports, getting foreign nations to reduce their restrictions on imports from us, asking that other nations help us carry the load of giving necessary aid to developing countries, ordering that in so far as possible more of the purchases for foreign aid be made in the United States, instructing the military to make a reduction in the number of family dependents abroad, and eliminating the right of our citizens to hold gold in a foreign nation.

With one exception President Kennedy is continuing this program. This one exception is the curtailment of military family dependents abroad. That item had aroused substantial criticism, and it has been replaced by an order by the Secretary of Defense that all foreign military personnel and their families each year spend $80 per person less. That may work but certainly it will be hard to enforce.

Also of particular interest is the recommendation that the Congress go back to the provision that an American may bring in only $100 of goods duty free. The present figure is $500. According to President Kennedy, our tourists and travelers abroad spend about $2 billion a year.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

ARE YOU FULLY CONSCIOUS? A friend who works in a small office with a gas space-heater complains that in cold weather he is anesthetized without even realizing it. As he explains it, the atmosphere in the room slowly comes to have more fumes and less oxygen, and he gets groggy and groggy; but this takes place so gradually that before he knows that he is drugged, he is, too drugged to know it. Only when some errand like lunch draws him outdoors does the blast of fresh air shock him into comprehending how nearly unconscious he has become.

My friend's experience is a common one, and it is not limited to those who work in offices with space heaters. It is very easy to become morally or spiritually drugged, too. We can go on living in a low moral atmosphere for so long that we become quite accustomed to it and do not even recognize it as a low one. We can gradually accept as normal conduct things which would have shocked or disgusted us a few years before. And the same process may take place in our spiritual atmosphere, too. What we all need, at regular intervals, is a good breath of moral and spiritual fresh air to bring us back to ourselves. We should breathe it in church every Sunday. We should breathe it in prayer every day. And we should choose friends who live in this fresh atmosphere, too.

Flat On His Face

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Discipline Is Essential

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Francis Robinson of the Metropolitan Opera repeated a sentence of Amelia Galli-Chiuri: "You can't play with the same toys all your life."

I thought of this when I read a letter from a student in El Paso, Texas in which he took me to task. He says:

"I am an economics major at New Mexico State University which is co-educational and smoking is permitted in most all of the classes. 'The students wear, for the most part, dungarees or wash pants and sport shirts, the women — skirts and blouses. 'My argument is this: what is wrong with smoking or wearing 'hooligan' type clothes? If a person's private morals allow him to experience the pleasures of marriage without the responsibilities, then why censor him? 'This young generation is the first to grow up with the threat of complete thermo-nuclear destruction imminent. 'Therefore I only wish to point out to you that a generation judges another by the criteria it has set up. This is wrong, every generation is facing new problems, it must react differently from the last generation."

This raises many questions of the temporariness of propriety. It used to be that the President of the United States did not go a-visiting because if he called on one, how could he decline to call on another. But today, we have a new generation President who steps out to a movie show visits a friend, sets up a bar in the White House. Is it right or wrong? Surely my young friend from El Paso would say: "What's the difference. Only old fogies go by protocol. If the President wants to receive President De Gaulle in dungarees and a sweat shirt, let him. Thank God, we don't have a President who is a stuffed shirt."

The question that stumps me is:

"If a person's private morals allow him to experience the pleasures of marriage without the responsibilities, then why censor him?"

The excuse for such a view is that this generation is the first to grow up under the influence of the atom bomb. Therefore, there are to be no moral standards, no responsibilities, no respect, no decorum. Are we to turn this country over to hooligans?

Of course, this is not a new point of view. Actually, many thought and acted that way in the generation of the flappers. Al Capone, hi-jacking and spiked beer. For a while anything went, but we got over that perhaps not too soon. It was the period when so-called society merged with gangsters and produced cafe society; it was a period when big businessmen found it profitable to associate with racketeers and when Murder, Inc. came into existence as a third party to labor disputes, being employed by both labor unions and industrialists.

The question that this student of the New Mexico State University raises is not the issue. We are not dealing with "the pleasures of marriage without the responsibilities, then why censor him?" for there can be no marriages without responsibility. The issue is that an "economics major" at an American university should not have discovered that responsibility is an essential factor in life and that one who is irresponsible is literally mad. Are we to say that discipline—self-discipline most of all—is to disappear from our society?

William Benson discusses this question, from another standpoint, in a stirring article in "The Saturday Evening Post" in which he says:

"The most shameful part of the situation is that colleges supposed to provide guidance for the future are shortchanging youngsters and their parents who foot the bills. A liberal arts curriculum in a good school cuts superficiality to the bone and requires concentrated doses of English, mathematics, the natural sciences, history, psychology, economics and the humanities. Sure, it's tough, but tough subjects that tax a student's capacities develop the mental discipline and reasoning powers that can be projected to areas beyond a man's immediate experience."

But it is not only mental discipline but moral discipline that is essential. And moral discipline includes manners and the outward display of manners which is propriety of dress. Although styles in dress do change, A dirty face and dirty hands and unkempt nails — the exterior trade mark of a Beatnik — can never be justified even by the fanciful assumption that frowziness is a mark of dissent. A boy can be angry with or without a beard.

Other Editors Saying... Bill Reaches Hopper

(Burlington Times-News)

Failure of the General Assembly of North Carolina to reappoint House membership according to Constitutional Law based on percentage population shifts indicated each decade by the Federal census report, is a challenge up again in Raleigh this year.

There appears bright prospect of favorable action on a bill introduced by Rep. Ed Kemp, of Guilford, chairman of the House committee which will deal with legislative reapportionment. He does not believe much opposition will develop seeking to forestall the present Assembly from discharging an obligation its predecessors, ignoring duty playing politics, failed to respect.

Reapportionment takes one House seat each away from Pitt, Johnson, Buncombe and Cabarrus and gives them to Mecklenburg, Alamance, Onslow and Cumberland. The number of House members when this duty is honored will remain the same, at 170.

State Senator Lindsay Warren of Beaufort County and Ed Kemp in the House sent twin bills forward in Senate and House providing reapportionment automatically each decade, eliminating special legislation on the subject and preventing violation of the law through failure to comply with it.

Senator Warren, veteran of the United States Congress, former comptroller of the United States, long influential in Democratic party affairs, is the principal sponsor of this proposed automatic system. Rep. Kemp approved the idea and immediately accepted responsibility for the companion bill in the House.

Before an automatic reapportionment plan can be made effective, however, the question would have to go before the people of the state as a proposed amendment to the Constitution of North Carolina.

Senator Warren has stated, however, that he has no idea of promoting his plan until the Kemp bill now in the House may settle the matter until after the next Federal census.

Meanwhile, the Amendment could be ordered during the current Assembly and tested at the polls next general election. Passage will mean it becomes a fixture, obligating the Speaker of the House to announce whatever changes indicated within 60 days after the Assembly meets.

This proposal will simplify this system, and more. It will remove the possibility of members of General Assemblies in the future who might be tempted, as in the past, to ignore one of their principle obligations — to understand, respect, and abide by Constitutional authority and directive.

Petty Pilfering Is Big Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Petty pilfering to dash off a paradox, is big today. Owners of many businesses complain they are being pushed to the edge of bankruptcy more by em- $30,000 in pilferage.

Pilferage has become such big business that services designed to combat pilferage have also become big business. There are scores of companies that, for a fee, will send analysts, operatives and accountants into your company to find out how you are being robbed from within. Rates are usually reasonable: for $20,000 you can find out how to stop $30,000 in pilferage.

But the most interesting, even amusing, kind of pilferage is the operation of a business within a business. HOW IT WORKS. The idea that he may be nesting a cuckoo business may seem ridiculous to a businessman. Nevertheless, it can be true.

A Californian set up a television sales and repair shop. Profits were less than expected. Investigation showed that one repairman was bringing work into the shop, repairing it on paid time with his employer's parts, and billing customers himself.

An Eastern publisher was outsmarted by two employees. They thought a book he rejected had more possibilities than he knew. They published it, advertising it for mail order sales, using the publisher's own address for their mail. They may have been using his postage meter, too.

A real estate dealer advertised heavily to bring in prospects. One of his salesmen specialized in showing prospects three or four houses that did not fit their requirements, then took the prospects to a house for which he had an exclusive sales contract. He got rich while his boss got poor.

pany eventually noticed losses in inventory. An employee was found to have opened his own discount store, selling shoes below wholesale price.

An accountancy firm discovered that it was losing profitable accounts to employees, who handled the business at reduced rates outside of business hours. The operator of a candy and cigarette stand was puzzled by the drop in income. His clerk was buying candy and cigarettes wholesale, selling them and pocketing the profits. (The clerk was a dope; he could have made much more taking bets and selling sweepstakes tickets.)

So what business are you in? And what business is in yours? ODD-SHAPED BITS IN BUSINESS JIGSAW. The Puerto Rican Association of Actors and Technicians (PRAAT) is demanding that the island's hotels hire as many na-

Role Of Human Nature

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.—I am writing this column to further emphasize that Presidents do not make or unmake conditions; but that conditions make or unmake Presidents. This will be tested in 1964, and perhaps at the next Congressional Election in 1962.

INSURANCE AGAINST DEPRESSIONS

The Democrats are counting upon the various stabilizing measures which have been passed by Congress since 1930 and even before the Depression from which Mr. Hoover ultimately suffered. Let me enumerate ten of these topics:

1. Social Security, which provides billions of dollars annually to millions of people in pension and dependency payments. This should be a real stabilizer and prevent certain unemployment which would otherwise surely occur.

2. Unemployment Insurance. Presently about 45,000,000 workers are entitled, in an emergency, to unemployment checks from their states. Added to this, most states give old-age relief to especially needy persons. This latter will be pressed by President Kennedy's proposed old-age aid legislation.

3. Farm Price Supports, for which several billion dollars are distributed annually to the farmers of the nation. This money will largely filter through to farm labor which otherwise would be reduced. Hence, this should help as an employment stabilizer.

4. Insuring Bank Deposits. Shortly after Mr. Roosevelt took over the Presidency in 1933, nearly every bank was temporarily closed to prevent more bank failures and alleviate the financial panic then developing. The country was shocked. This resulted in legislation to insure bank deposits up to $10,000 and to provide more careful supervision of banks. This restored confidence and helped stabilize employment.

5. Mortgage Loans were formerly written for five or ten years at a rate of around 6 per cent. New legislation permits them to be written for 20 years or more at an average rate of 4 1/2 per cent. This surely is a stimulant to building and real estate, and hence to employment.

6. The Securities & Exchange Commission was established to eliminate "bucket shops" and to give investors confidence to buy good securities. Probably the Mutual Funds, which have had such a tremendous growth during the past few years, were greatly stimulated by the SEC. This helped employment by resulting in the incorporation of new companies.

7. Government Spending was greatly expanded and the money mostly comes back to the people after the government receives taxes from the contractors. This has been the greatest stimulant of employment. Although I pray for peace, I shudder to think what will happen when this "shot-in-the-arm" no longer exists.

8. Checking Wall Street Speculation. Speculation under controlled conditions is a good thing. It enables an investor to have a market available to buy or sell stocks. But before 1929, very little margin was required so that almost every telegrapher and elevator operator was buying stocks. Starting at 55 per cent in 1936, margin requirements have subsequently been dropped to as low as 40 per cent and raised as high as 100 per cent; and now 70 per cent. These under the Federal Reserve System, stabilized Wall Street and again gave it a good name.

9. Labor Unions were encouraged by Franklin Roosevelt. They prevented wageworkers from becoming panicky and management from unnecessarily cutting wages. Although certain labor leaders now go too far, these unions stabilized wages, from which the country then benefited.

10. Inflation — This may become most potent of all; but it needs no description here.

HUMAN NATURE MAKES UNMAKES PRESIDENTS AND NATIONS

When I am in Florida, I look out on acres of orange groves which are being sprayed to kill worms which destroy the fruit. I once asked the foreman in charge how many times he sprayed. He replied: "Now we must spray three times each season because the worms and fleas get immune to the old sprays." (Continued on Page 5)

Big Opportunity Cited For Swine

"Hogs, in my opinion, have the brightest future of any farm commodity today," said Jim Butler of Gwaltney Packing Company, in a recent talk to the Pitt County Livestock Association. Baxter G. Dean, area marketing specialist, referred to Butler's declaration and stated today: "We feel that farmers today have a good opportunity to do much toward supplementing their farm incomes with a sound swine operation. Small to middle sized farmers especially can, in most cases, work a sound and profitable swine enterprise into their farming operations. This not only boosts their farm income but helps to utilize their labor on a year-round basis and this labor will be available during rush seasons with other farm products."

Mebane Talks On Negro History

WINTERVILLE—An address by F. H. Mebane, principal of Sugg High School in Farmville, climaxed activities of Negro History Week recently at Robinson Union School. Reviewing a former overall picture of the Negro, he traced progress of the Negro in spite of handicaps. Pointing out some of the cultures established, Mebane told students that they have a rich heritage; that they must be educated that they have multiple responsibilities and must "take active part in determining destiny of manhood."

He advised that they prepare economically, morally and academically and strive for accuracy, because a competitive society demands it. He urged them to develop to fullest capacity. Ella Grimes, freshman, presented the background of Negro History Week, and Lillie Robbins, junior, related the life of Carter G. Woodson. Two selections were rendered by a capella choir under the direction of Mrs. A. P. Williams.

Remarks by Principal J. W. Maye included announcements of a pre-school clinic to be held at Robinson Union School Tuesday, March 21, at 8:30 a.m. A Parent-Teachers meeting will be held Tuesday night, February 21. A panel discussion on "The Role of the Home and School in Modern Society" will be presented by Miss Sallie Dupree and Mrs. T. A. Lawrence, with Mrs. C. U. Bess as co-ordinator.

Babson...

(Continued from Page 4) and we must continually find and try new ones." Now this is how "human nature" applies to the business outlook. Preceding periods of U.S. prosperity did not have the artificial stabilizers that our present period has, but they had others: For instance, the Prosperity Era of 1848-1858 was inspired by the famous Discovery of Gold in California. The post-Civil War Prosperity was stimulated by great Railroad Building. The Prosperity Era of 1898-1906 was stimulated by Consolidations. In all cases, the stimulator or stabilizer was not removed. Gold continued to come from California, the railroads continued to operate; and we continued to enjoy the development of oil and electricity. But we finally became immune to all these stimulations and stabilizers... because there was no change in human nature.

WHAT IS HUMAN NATURE? Frankly, I do not know who to describe it. It seems to take centuries to change human nature one per cent. Comparing today with the days of the Persian, Grecian, or Roman Empire, people seem to have the same swing from Depression, to Recovery, then to Prosperity; and back again to Decline and Depression. This is now called the "Business Cycle"—but it is only human nature, which intrinsically is ambitious and selfish, then discouraged and prone to failure; which always over-reaches and then learns only by suffering. Stimulation has always helped get nations out of depressions. During the days of Columbus it was the Era of Discovery which saved Spain; it was the Thirty Years' War which saved Austria; and our own Revolutionary War was the stimulus for products.

artificial stimulants mentioned early in this column. Of course, it takes time for human nature to work. Furthermore, so long as the cold war lasts it may be necessary for the United States to provide full employment and continued prosperity; but the end must come someday.

Mouse-eye view...of... people plugging for trouble

Overloaded circuits, insufficient outlets are sure signs of low housepower. That means your house has inadequate wiring... means trouble with electric washers, dryers, ranges, air conditioners, irons and other appliances. These electric servants can't perform as they normally should. And you suffer the added inconvenience of blown fuses when you use too many appliances at one time.

First step to take in resolving a low-housepower problem—call your electrical contractor. He can give you an accurate rewiring estimate and install plenty of circuits to help you live better electrically!

[It's Pitt Tournament Time...And The Fans Love It]

By Johnny Hudson

Sports Scope

Wash your troubles away and be on hand for the Pitt County tournament. That's the admonition offered from this corner as county basketball reaches its peak with the staging of the annual tournament beginning tonight and running through Saturday when the champs are crowned.

It merely needs mentioning that Saturday night trophies come along about as often as a two dollar bill and are treasured with the greatest of pride.

For the champion dansels, it means the end of the season and the tucking away of a larger portion of glory. For the boys, the blue chips are even higher. With the tourney trophy comes a berth in the district playoffs and, possibly a shot at the state title.

Fans Eager For Tournament

County fans await the big classic—and this year is no exception—with the ardor of a politician on election night. A new record attendance each year in East Carolina College's Memorial Gymnasium is of little surprise. (And just think of the results if a field house was available.)

Three games—two being of the girls version—inaugurate the tournament tonight and the same number will be played through Thursday. The bill will call for only two games on Friday and Saturday.

In past years when the lining up time came one team—as often as not—stood a little higher in each category. Such is the case this season.

Every tournament has to have a favorite and this one is no exception. Yet, this large drawing event has seen the prediction chart go a little haywire in the past.

Those who like to pick winners by tabulating scores and records, its strictly Bethel in the male bracket and Winterville in the other half. Both finished ahead of the field in regular season play, Bethel going unscratched and Winterville losing only once.

Indians Favored To Triumph

Bethel enjoys the distinction of being a strong tournament team as well as a basketball hotbed. Walter Latham, who has a split personality—one as principal and the other as coach, has contributed a large portion of this success with his coaching knack. His record as a coach speaks for itself.

The Indians are still whooping it over a stunning 69-63 upset of previously unbeaten Pantego and ride into the go-for-broke affair with a 23-2 season record. They have some super stars in Harvey Lewis and John Smith. But their chief ingredient is scoring balance and depth.

With a strong record on paper plus the decisiveness of victories, Bethel gets my vote to capture the 1961 title. Coach Blaine Moye's Winterville club is our darkhorse with Chicod given a shaky chance to sneak in.

Girls Boast Balanced Field

The favorite isn't as clear-cut in the girls bracket. At least six teams have developed into contenders and even last place Grimesland can't be taken for granted until defeated.

Grifton is the defending champion, having ended a long iron-hand rule of Stokes-Pactolus with a dramatic victory in the tourney finals last season, and our pick to take the top award again. This is if forward John Smith gets back into the swing of things after a bout with a virus. Otherwise, yours truly will stick with the regular season champ, Winterville.

The pick as darkhorse goes to Coach Ed Warren's Belvoir-Falkland outfit. And too, look for Coach Robert Bruce's young Farmville team to give some trouble.

Those are our choices to throw out and kick around. But as every fan knows, its a wide-open affair and its a man with courage (other than a know-it-all sports writer) that makes his predictions open to the public.

For the record, games tonight find Stokes-Pactolus and Grimesland meeting face-to-face in both brackets while Grifton's second-seeded girls hook horns with seventh place Ayden.

First game starts at 6:30. A reminder: Be early to get a good seat.

EC Third In Pairings

GREENSBORO (AP)—High Point meets Elon, and Appalachian faces Western Carolina in Wednesday's first round of the North State Conference basketball tournament at Lexington.

East Carolina plays Atlantic Christian and top-seeded Lenoir Rhyne collides with Catawba Thursday night. The semifinals are scheduled Friday, and the finals Saturday.

These pairings were determined here Sunday in a drawing. Lenoir Rhyne, which finished atop the standings with a 14-4 record, drew Catawba (10-8).

Appalachian and East Carolina, tied for second place with 12-6 records, drew for the No. 2 seeding. Appalachian won and East Carolina took the No. 3 spot. High Point won the No. 4 spot in a draw with Elon. Each finished with an 11-7 record.

Here's how the rest of the conference teams finished in the standings:

Atlantic Christian (9-9) followed Catawba. Then came Western Carolina (5-11), Pfeiffer (3-14), and Guilford (1-16).

Only the top eight teams won berths in the tournament.

In games Saturday, High Point upset Lenoir Rhyne 89-88 in two overtimes; Appalachian beat Catawba 73-67; East Carolina clubbed Atlantic Christian 68-50; and Elon dumped Guilford 102-82.

Pfeiffer plays at Newberry Tuesday, closing out the season for North State teams, except for the tournament.

The Daily Reflector's 1961 All-County

Three repeaters from the 1960 All-County club head The Daily Reflector's 1961 girls All-County selection. Twelve girls were chosen by a vote of the Pitt coaches.

Belvoir-Falkland's Phyllis Nichols and Betty Harrell were named to the select group for the second consecutive year as was Chicod's Nancy Dixon.

Dixon and Harrell are guards while Nichols is a forward.

Joining these on the 12-girl team were forwards Carolyn Barnes of Winterville, and guard Harris (Ayden), Mary Louis Hudson (Chicod), and John Smith and Jane Mewborn of Grifton.

Other guards named were Jane Crandell (Bethel), Sally Dona (Farmville), Dolly Harris (Winterville), and Billie Thompson (Ayden).

Ayden, Grifton, Winterville, Belvoir-Falkland, and Chicod placed two girls each on the team and Bethel and Farmville picked up the other two spots. The voting was close with only three girls receiving the nod of all the coaches. They were forwards Phyllis Nichols of Belvoir-Falkland and Carolyn Barnes of Winterville, and guard Dolly Harris of Winterville.

Barnes was probably the top scorer in the county this season—hitting 57 points in one game. She, along with guard Dolly Harris, was instrumental in bringing the regular season title to Winterville.

Nichols, a consistent double figure scorer, and Harrell were the mainstays on Coach Ed Warren's Belvoir-Falkland club. Both were seniors and performed at a high level throughout the season.

Chicod, shy of the essential big girl in a winning team, proved to be a pesky competitor all season. Mary Louis Hudson, a flashy forward, and guard Nancy Dixon received credit for a large portion of their success.

Ayden was unable to gain much ground in the regular season play but had a couple of standouts in forward Andrea Harris and guard Billie Thompson. Harris led her club in scoring in almost every game.

Bethel, usually weak in the girls bracket, surprised many during the season and finished with a 11-5 conference record. One of the reasons for their tour to the first division was the play of senior guard Jane Crandell.

Coach Robert Bruce molded a group of youngsters into a strong basketball club at Farmville. Heading the play was guard Sally Dona. The latter received praise more than once for her ball-hawking antics.

Phantoms Close Home Season With Kinston

The basketball wonder of the Northeastern Conference will put its wares on display here tomorrow, night. Needless to say, we're referring to undefeated Kinston.

The hotter than red Kinston five has won 18 straight, including a 102-60 walloping of New Bern last Friday night, and will be bent on making Greenville its 19th victim.

The Red Devils destroyed just short of a 10 point average. Greenville has come along strong in recent weeks, winning four of their last five games, and may prove capable of giving the Devils some trouble.

Although a victory would boost the Phants in the final standings, Coach Bo Farley isn't expected to spring any surprises on the visitors. The brain trust probably won't apply any special strategy on the Devils until the tournament if by chance the two run into each other a third time.

Farley has bone with his starting five of John Bynum, Alan McArthur, Kroghie Andresen, Laysa Jorgensen, and Erskine Duff in the recent winning spree. Billy James, nursing an injured hip has been used as a spot performer. The Phantoms pulled off their meet impressive win of the season here Friday night, sinking Elizabeth City, 63-44.

The game tomorrow night will be the final home contest of the season for Greenville. They close out the season in Washington on Friday night.

ECC Scores Final Victory Over AC

WILSON—East Carolina grabbed the lead early in the second half here Saturday night and ECC rivalry will head the Thursday night tournament round. ACC won the first meeting by a single point in Greenville.

The win gave ECC a share of second place with Appalachian in the final North State standings but the rating was of little value in the long run. The Pirates, in a draw for the bracket opposite Lenoir Rhyne and second place, dropped to third in the tournament pairings and were thrown against ACC in the first round on Thursday night.

East Carolina streaked past the erratic shooting Bulldogs in the second half after trailing most of the first half.

Junior Charlie Lewis and sophomore Cotton Clayton led a second half barrage of baskets that buried the cool-shooting Bulldogs by 18 points.

The Bucs, hitting 40 per cent of their shots, had only two more field goals than ACC but drew heavy support from the charity line, hitting on 26 of 33 attempts.

ACC hit only 28 per cent from the floor and made only 12 of 28 free throw attempts.

After the lead swapped back and forth in the first 10 minutes, a quick surge by ACC moved them ahead 23-17. East Carolina rallied in the waning minutes of the half, closing the gap to 25-24.

Big Bill Otte bucketed a quick basket in the second half and East Carolina never trailed again. Bobby Atkinson hit a free toss, tying it at 26-26, but Don Smith and Lewis made consecutive baskets to provide the first link of what was to be a large gap.

Lewis finished the game with 20 points with Clayton hitting for 18. Lacy West was also in double figures with 12 points.

Jack Blyd scored 18 points to lead ACC, who definitely missed scoring star Dick Knox, suffering from an ankle injury. Jerry Fritz scored 12 for the losers.

East Carolina opened practice today for its bid in the tournament which starts Wednesday.

THE FERGUSON AFFAIR

CHAPTER 32

"Has Ronald Spice confessed the Broadman killing?" I asked Detective-Lieutenant Wills from a cot in the hospital recovery room.

"In effect he has. He didn't know he was confessing. He thought he could blame it on his dead partner. Whitey Slater did the actual murder, apparently, while Spice was driving the ambulance to the hospital. But Spice shared the knowledge and intention, which makes him equally guilty, as you know. Gaines is equally guilty, too. Broadman was killed on his order."

"Why?" I asked.

"Broadman was an ex-leader of the ring, with emphasis on the ex. He was at the point of turning them all in. I think he knew they were on their way to capital crime, and he wanted to cut himself clear of them. The purchase of that diamond from Ella Barker was a small thing, but when he reported it to us it served no purpose on Gaines. Gaines turned Donato loose on Broadman. Donato fumbled the job. Slater and Spice were standing by, and they stepped in and finished it. Next day they did the same to Donato's wife, for the same reason."

"Was Secundina a member of the ring?"

"I doubt it. But she knew who was, and she was about to talk to us. Granada thought she was, anyway. And apparently Gaines and his ghouls thought so. When she panicked and took those sleeping pills, it gave them a chance at her. They didn't want her waking up."

"Nice people."

"Yeah. All nice people. What I don't understand, Bill, you've got a chance to help us wind up the case, but the rest of them behind bars. But you won't take it. What does this Ferguson woman mean to you?"

"It was a hard question. The cliché phrases like 'beauty in disress' didn't answer it. Neither did the answer I gave him. 'Ferguson is my client. He retained me yesterday.'

"Mrs. Ferguson isn't."

"Ferguson retained me for the specific purpose of procuring information about his wife. The information is privileged."

"I'm not asking you to talk for the record, just for checking purposes. Spice's story got pretty fantastic at certain points, and I can't afford to make any false moves."

"You'll be making one up you try to force me to give you privileged information. You can't force Ferguson to talk about her, either."

Wills sat with his chin in his hand, and pondered the situation. I tried to do some consecutive thinking about the rule of privilege, but my line of thought was invaded by images: my wife in childbirth, Secundina dead, a body fallen in fire, and a woman being across her knees at me. Whatever else was covered by the rule, that shooting wasn't, and I knew it. I was holding back on my own responsibility, for reasons that wouldn't stand up under examination.

Wills looked up from his deep thought. I suspected that it had been partly assumed, to give me time to consider.

"I know," he said in a soothing voice, "how want to be fair to your client, and you want to be fair to the law. I'll tell you a funny thing, it may help you to decide. Ronald Spice came up with quite a snapper when we pressed him. He claims that the kidnaping at the Pothill Club was a phony, something cooked up between Gaines and the woman to extort money from her husband. He claims that she co-operated with them all the way, that she even drove the car for Gaines when he picked up Ferguson's box of money. That she deliberately showed herself to her husband at that time so that he wouldn't know what action to take. Does that fit in with your information about her? Or was Spice just trying to get off the hook as accessory to a kidnaping?"

"I wouldn't know."

"I don't believe you, Bill. I talked to a waiter in a bar and grill where you and Ferguson had a pow-wow yesterday. He heard some mighty queer snatches of conversation. Privilege or no privilege, bullet wound or no bullet wound, you're on shaky ground if you're trying to cover up a kidnaping."

"I thought you theory was that no kidnaping occurred."

"I don't have a theory. I don't know what occurred. I believe you do. I'm asking you to tell me."

"When I find out, I will."

"It can't wait. Don't you see, if this Hollywood floozie is in cahoots with Gaines, she probably knows where he is, or where he's headed. Don't you want him caught?"

"As much as you do. Get that straight, at least. From the jumble of images in my head, I dredged up a fragment of a scene in merry hell. 'I remember something that was said last night. Gaines and the woman are headed for South America. Gaines's mother was supposed to buy tickets for them.'

Wills stood up abruptly, crossed the room to press the elevator button, and came back to me. "This is the first I heard of a mother. Who and where is she?"

"Her name is Adelaide Haines. She lives on Canal Street in Mountain Grove."

The elevator came and took him away.

I noticed for the first time that there was a telephone sitting on a lower shelf of the bedtable. I picked it up and tried to call Sally. The switchboard operator told me acerbically that maternity had no telephones. I called Ferguson's house instead.

He answered himself, in a hushed voice "Who is calling, please?"

"Gunmarson."

His voice rose in pitch. "But I thought you were in the hospital."

"I am. Come and see me. Room 454."

"I've been planning to, naturally. I'll try to drop by tomorrow. Or is tomorrow too soon for you?"

"It isn't soon enough. I want you out here this morning," I said, and hung up.

I got out of bed and found a striped cotton bathrobe hanging behind my clothes in the closet. I more or less got into it, and re-considered the corridor.

The elevator doors were beeping across the hall. I went in the other direction, down the fire stairs. On the third floor I found an orderly with gray hair and a paternal expression, to whom I explained my problem, omitting salient details. He escorted me to the door of Sally's room.

She was lying there with her bright hair spread on the pillow. She looked pale and wan and wonderful.

I kissed her smiling mouth, and she kissed me back. Her arms came around me, with the warmth of reality itself. Then she pushed me back to look at me.

"You're a wild man, a positive wild man. Are you all right, Bill?"

"Fine. It was only a flesh wound," I lied.

"Then why is your arm in a sling? And who shot you, anyway?"

"I don't know. It was dark."

Her hand tightened on mine. "Bill, will you promise me something—just one thing? Promise me you won't take criminal cases and rampage around the countryside and all."

"I promise." But I had mental reservations.

My wife may have sensed them. "You have a family to think of now, not just me. She's beautiful, Bill."

She turned toward me, pushing her hair back. Her eyes were deeper and softer than I had ever seen them. "Do you mind awfully the fact that our joint product is not a boy? You like little girls, don't you?"

"I like girls of all sizes."

"Don't try to be funny. We have a serious problem."

"Is there something the matter with her? Where is she?"

"Don't get panicky now. She's in the nursery, and she's physically perfect. Not to mention precociously intelligent. That makes the problem even more urgent. We have to give her a name, for her to start forming her personality around."

"How about Nancy?"

"I like Nancy. Let's both think about it."

Suspect Suicide In Car Explosion

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Thomas O. Williams, 60, Harrison, Ark., was killed Sunday by an explosion that tore his car apart in a parking lot.

"From all indications he committed suicide," said police Capt. George Owen.

Williams was a contractor. His wife, Fay, 43, told police they came to this area last week on business.

Police said Williams apparently held the explosive charge in his lap. A piece of wire, of a type commonly used to detonate dynamite, was found in his right hand.

Outraged As 5th Car Enters Yard

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—When another automobile piled into his front yard Sunday, the outraged Rev. E. J. Stelle decided to keep the car—at least for a while.

The Rev. Mr. Stelle said it was the fifth car to crash into his yard in 2 1/2 years. His house is located on a curve of a southeast Portland street.

"We just get our fence built up and it happens again," said Mrs. Stelle wearily.

The driver was booked on a drunkenness charge.

More than 50 bituminous coal mines in the United States each produce more than one million tons of coal per year, the National Coal Policy Conference reports.

WESTERN and SOUTHERN LIFE
A REPORT OF DYNAMIC GROWTH

ASSETS	INSURANCE WRITTEN	INSURANCE IN FORCE
$1 BILLION, 59 MILLION	$844 MILLION	$5 BILLION, 241 MILLION
1940: $188 MILLION 1950: $423 MILLION 1960: $1,301,836.70	1940: $173 MILLION 1950: $264 MILLION 1960: $2,703,000.40	1940: $993 MILLION 1950: $2,785 MILLION 1960: $4,985,781.50

The record above speaks for us and we proudly acclaim our progress. This growth means over six million policyholders pleased with the protection they own. It means a sales force well-trained and responsive to the needs of the millions of men and women they serve.

These factors have brought national leadership to The Western and Southern Life Insurance Company.

Each year in greater numbers people guarantee their financial future with our policies. At the end of every year our protection embraces more people insured for more money. Each year our resources increase at an ever rising rate.

The Company's growth has necessitated expansion of Home Office and Field Agency facilities throughout the nation. During 1960 a new seven story building was added to our Home Office, marking the second major improvement in three years. A newly erected office building was opened as Western Regional headquarters at 2600 Wilshire Boulevard in Los Angeles. There are now six regional offices.

Sound principles of management and faithful and competent service will continue to be our foremost objective.

Drainage Tile In County Goes Over 3 Million Feet

GRIFTON — Soil Conservation Service activities reached a three-million-foot milestone on a farm just north of here last week.

Drainage tile contractor Julius Parker of Greenville installed several thousand feet of the six-inch terra cotta tiling on a farm owned by Mrs. Jean Williams of Grifton that pushed the total tile installations in Pitt County beyond three million linear feet.

Tobacco Tips

By S. J. WELLS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

One way to economize in the production of tobacco is to reduce the amount of fuel used to cure the tobacco crop. The amount of fuel can be reduced on many farms by improving the construction of the curing barns.

The curing barn should be constructed with the view of securing equal heat distribution throughout the entire barn space.

The amount of water removed from the tobacco leaf which escapes through the ventilation system of the barn in the curing process would cover the barn floor about three inches deep. Therefore, an adequate controlled ventilation system should be included.

In other words, a barn should be equipped with ridge ventilators that can remain open during the yellowing stage of curing and gradually closed as the moisture is dried out of the tobacco leaf and stem.

Fuel Savings

Curing tests have been conducted at the Oxford Tobacco Research Station using a well-constructed barn equipped with adequate ridge ventilators. These tests showed that oil consumption could be reduced as much as 48.5 gallons per barn when curing 700 sticks of tobacco.

The entire barn needs walls with the same thickness. The walls in the gable end of the barn should be the same thickness as the body of the barn. A solid sheeted roof, when used with adequate controlled ridge ventilators, will also help reduce fuel consumption.

Insulation

Insulation of the barn walls will help save fuel, too. For best results, insulation should be used only when a barn is constructed as described above.

If you have a barn that needs repairing it would be a good idea to improve the quality of construction so that you too can get benefit from maximum fuel efficiency.

Built A Strong Farrowing House

HILLSBORO — "The wolf huffed and puffed, but the little pig's house didn't blow in."

That's what happened to Walter Burnett of Mebane, Rt. 3. His sow had nine pigs on a cold day in January.

"Walter didn't take any chance on his pigs winding up like the one with the flimsy house in the nursery rhyme," says S.N. Shelton, Orange County Negro agent. A 4-H Club member, Walter built a strong "A"-type farrowing house for the pigs.

The installation of the nearly 570 miles of underground drainage networks spans some 18 years SCS has been aiding Pitt Farmers in obtaining better land usage.

The foot-long sections of the tiling are installed an average of three-and-a-half feet below the land surface to carry off excess water as it seeps through the soil, making the croplands more productive and more accessible.

Average cost of the installation in Pitt is around 33 cents per foot. The Agricultural Conservation Program, federal program administered under the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation program, furnishes assistance funds approved by SCS and ASC to the tune of about 15 cents per foot. This financial assistance, however, is available for only a limited footage. In most cases, landowners accept the ACP funds and increase total footage installed considerably.

Average footage required borders on 400 feet per acre thus setting an average-cost-per-acre figure at around $132.

Parker, who is the only contractor in Pitt equipped to install the tiling, averages around 3,000 feet per day. His advertised rate is 12 cents per foot. Parker, a former SCS employe, installed some 70 miles of the drainage tiling last year in Pitt and Greene Counties.

Soil conservationists on federal salaries are available to help the farmers develop individual farm conservation practices in the form of specific farm plans. SCS personnel is also available to offer technical advice in installing the tiling.

Last week's installation on one of Mrs. Williams' farms boosted total tiling on her network of farms, managed by Charlie L. Hardee, to 29,000 linear feet.

Under the federal assistance program, ACP funds are allocated on an annual basis to the various administrative units. In Pitt's case, the lump sum is spread evenly throughout the county to answer requests of landowners for aid in drainage tiling. The number of requests governs the extent to which each farm may be assisted.

Wheat Exemptions Cited For The Small Producer

Several factors affecting wheat producers who have wheat allotments of less than 15 acres for 1961 were called to the attention of farmers today by Wayne L. Wang, manager of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office.

The law that authorizes marketing quotas provides that as much as 15 acres of wheat may be produced on any farm without being subject to marketing quota penalties. This provision applies to farms with no wheat allotments as well as to farms with wheat acreage allotments of less than 15 acres.

However, wheat on such farms is subject to marketing quota penalties when more than 15 acres of wheat is produced. When the 15-acre limitation is exceeded, the excess bushelage of wheat is determined by multiplying the normal yield for the farm by the number of acres of wheat above the farm allotment.

Wang cited the following as an example:

A farmer with a wheat allotment of 12 acres for 1961 produces 20 acres of wheat. The difference between the allotment and the wheat acreage produced — 8 acres—would be considered excess acres. The 8 acres excess would be used in determining the amount of wheat subject to the marketing quota penalty. However, if the acreage over 15 is disposed of, the wheat would not be subject to marketing quotas.

Farmers who have an application approved under the feed provision may produce as much as 30 acres of wheat for use on the farm are not subject to marketing quota penalties unless they produce more than 30 acres.

Hog Program Is Given Tenant

Pitt County Negro Farm Agent James M. Goode recently visited Jack Streeter in the Bruce community with information on a hog program for 48 brood sows.

The program according to Goode, "is of interest because the farmer is a tenant."

Streeter furnished the labor and the landlord all the buildings, and equipment. The two shared half the cost of brood sows and other costs and divided the profits.

Goode said, "The whole program is being carried out on cement. The program they are using includes the following: multiple breeding of 13 brood sows every other month; ration free choice and anemic and hog cholera vaccination.

Streeter has just started crossbreeding of his registered Yorkshires with a Hampshire boar for faster gains.

The program is something "relatively new" in the county, Goode says, in that Streeter and his landlord feed the pigs until weaned or fed to about 50 to 60 pounds, then have them transported to the finishing ground and topped to around 225 pounds.

After the sale of the pigs, Streeter says, average cost per pig is $13 and that he and his landlord are averaging a net profit of $21 per animal.

Streeter and landlord plan to expand brood sows in the near future, says Goode.

There is no question about it—the use of agricultural lime to sweeten the acid soils in Pitt County has been a most important factor in pushing the acreage and yields of corn, cotton, peanuts, soybeans, and others to present all-time records.

But the job is by no means complete or even approaching any degree of completeness. Results of the recent countywide soil testing program in which over 3,400 fields were sampled show that the average field needs lime. Some of them need large quantities of lime.

The fields tested and requiring recommendations for corn production showed 68 per cent needing lime ranging from 1,000 pounds per acre to three and one-half tons. Some of these fields had a pH reading of 4.3 which is too

In addition to telling you the amount of lime needed they will give you the level of calcium, phosphate, potash, and nitrogen, and will recommend a fertilizer program for the crop or crops you intend growing. There is no charge for this service. Your only cost is for postage to get the soil to the laboratory.

One word of caution: do not lime fields unless you know they need lime. An over-limed field is in much worse shape than one under-limed. Determine the amount needed and apply just that much.

Pitt Has 3,926 Farms In Census

The 1959 Census of Agriculture counted 3,926 farms in Pitt County, according to a preliminary report just issued by the Bureau of the Census of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Total land in farms was 304,500 acres. The average size of farm was 77.6 acres. The average value of farms (land and buildings) in the county was $30,151, the survey showed.

Of the county's farm operators, 926 owned their farms, 373 owned part of the land and rented additional acreage, and 2,623 were tenant farmers.

The average age of farm operators in the county was 46.0 years. There were 302 farms operators 65 or more years of age.

Of the 3,926 farms in the county, 2,488 were commercial farms.

Detailed statistics on crops, livestock, equipment, etc., are presented in the preliminary report, with comparable statistics for 1954.

Local Entries In Duke Contest

DURHAM — Approximately 200 high school students, including those from J. H. Rose High School in Greenville, participated in the State Solo and Ensemble Contest held at Duke University on Saturday.

Held annually at Duke, the competition is sponsored by the North Carolina Music Educators Association. Dr. Paul Bryan, associate professor of music at Duke, is chairman of the eastern division.

NCOs Plan To Sponsor Dance

A "Minuteman Dance" has been scheduled for Wednesday as part of the local National Guard unit's observance of Muster Day.

Sponsored by the Battery "A," Non-Commissioned Officers' Club of the 4th Howitzer Battalion, the program was planned to observe the birthday of George Washington — regarded as the first National Guardsman.

Music will be furnished by the "Hi-Jinks" of Greenville and the program gets underway Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the local armory on Evans St. Tickets are available at the armory.

Driver Unhurt As Car Hit Train

Thurman Elks of Route 1, Grimesland escaped injury Saturday night as his car collided with a Norfolk and Southern freight train at a crossing about a quarter of a mile from Simpson on the Black Jack-Simpson road.

Investigating Patrolman J. B. Surles quoted Elks as saying he was headed west and when he saw the train, he jammed on his brakes but they did not hold, and the vehicle struck the stopped train. Surles continued quoting Elks by saying just after the car struck the train, the train started off, dragging the car down the track, and Elks jumped from the vehicle.

Surles noted the car was moved about 30 feet by the train. No warning lights or flagman were present at the crossing, Elks said.

Investigation of the collision is continuing, Surles said, noting the train had left the scene of the mishap by the time he arrived. The collision took place about 9:45 p.m.

Funeral Tuesday For Mrs. P. H. Manning

Mrs. Smithie Viola Farmer Manning, 54, died at her home on the Pachtolus Highway Saturday morning.

Funeral services will be held from the Greenville Funeral Home Chapel Tuesday at 2 p.m. Rev. Lewis Jarman, pastor of Free Will Holiness Church of Seven Springs, of which she was a member, will officiate. Interment will follow in LaGrange Cemetery.

Surviving are her husband, Patrick Henry Manning; one son, Mercer Farmer of Wilmington; one daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Yarboro, Chesterfield, S. C.; two brothers, Herman Farmer, Hamilton, William Earl Farmer, New Bern; four sisters, Mrs. Nora Hill, Mrs. Clara Hill and Mrs. Thelma Holloway, all of Kinston, and Mrs. Bessie Rouse of LaGrange; seven grandchildren.

Excavations have shown that Stone Age people lived in Russell Cave near Bridgeport, Ala., for more than 9,000 years.

Make Dean's List At Campbell College

John Stephen Noble of Greenville and Roy Hooker Thomas III of Farmville were among 89 students who qualified for the Dean's List during the fall term at Campbell Junior College.

The list was announced last week by Dean A. R. Burkot. He said the 89 qualified by avoiding demerits and overcuts and making a "B" average for at least 12 semester hours.

Bethel Rotary Officers Chosen

BETHEL — Linwood Briley recently was elected president of the Bethel Rotary Club.

Other officers elected at the same time include Walter Gray, vice president; Dave Speir, secretary and treasurer; Alvis Mewborn, Tom Andrews, Swan Ives, and Kury E. Manning, directors.

Officers will assume their positions in July, it was announced.

Post Office To Close Wednesday

The Greenville Post Office will be closed Wednesday in observance of George Washington's birthday, Postmaster J. Knott Proctor announced today.

There will be no deliveries on either city or rural routes and all windows will be closed. There will be a delivery of parcel post in all sections of the city and a collection from all mail boxes beginning at 5 p.m.

Varied Charges In Arresting Of 17-Year-Old

WINTERVILLE—Sheriff's deputies took a 14-year-old youth into custody here Saturday in connection with a series of recent fires, it was reported today.

The Sheriff's Department said there had been a series of woods fires, as well as a fire in a vacant house and a tobacco barn fire on Saturday, in the Winterville area. The youth has been turned over to juvenile authorities in Greenville.

A spokesman for the Winterville Volunteer Fire Department reported that the department had received a call about 12:30 p.m. Saturday to a vacant house on Rt. 1, Winterville, owned by R. M. Abbott, farmer. However, by the time firemen arrived neighbors had extinguished a burning couch in the upstairs hall of the house.

About 4:30 Saturday the department received another call, this time to a tobacco barn located on the Charles McLamb farm on Rt. 1, Winterville. Both the Saturday fires occurred in the Reston section.

The youth was taken into custody following the tobacco barn fire, it was reported.

Three Jailed On Liquor Charges

Three Negro men were jailed over the weekend on liquor charges according to Pitt County ABC officers.

Saturday night, Spencer King, 43, of Route 2, Farmville, was arrested by officers, who allegedly found 56 gallons of non-tax-paid whiskey in his home in the Butts Cross Roads Section.

Officers, noting the liquor was contained in 36 one gallon jars, quoted King as saying someone must have slipped the booze into his house during the night.

He was placed in the Pitt County Jail under a $500 bond and is scheduled for trial here Tuesday.

Taking part in the arrests were Pitt ABC officers J.M. Ward, H. B. Lilley and Walter Taylor, and Greene County Sheriff's deputies Harry Creech and Ray Murray.

Last night, Elmer Kornegay, 37, of 128 Mills St., Ayden, was charged with possessing non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale, when a half-gallon of booze was allegedly found in his possession. James E. Sanders, 37, of 205 Prince St., Ayden, was also arrested, and charged with possession of non-tax whiskey at the Kornegay residence.

Kornegay was placed under a $200 bond while Sanders was placed under a $100 bond. Both are scheduled for trial in Ayden Recorder's Court today.

Making the arrests were ABC officer H.B. Lilley and Ayden Police Sgt. James Ross and Ayden policeman Herbert Gardner.

Three Complete Scouting Course

AYDEN—At the recent Ayden Lions Club meeting, W. C. Ormond presented Certificates of Commission to three Explorer Scout advisors upon their completion of a basic training course in Explorer Scouting.

C. O. Pratt, advisor of the Explorer Scouts, Glen Gaylor, associate advisor, and Kenneth Branch, institutional representative and associate advisor, received the certificates.

Ormond also presented cards to Kermit Sumrell, Stuart Sugg, Jesse Corbett and Kenneth Branch as committeemen. He pointed out the importance of each member's making Explorer Scouting a success and a worthwhile adventure.

Pratt, advisor of Local Post No. 334, said the Explorers had held previous meetings and voted to set their meeting dates as the first and third Monday nights each month at 8 p.m.

Explorer officials will be elected at a later meeting.

President of the Ayden Lions, Stuart Sugg, called for a brief business session.
