Blimp's Ballast Dumped On Car

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — When a Navy blimp dumped some ballast water, scoring a direct hit on a sports car, the result was a pretty unhappy sports car driver.

William A. Skiles, 29, Wednesday demanded an apology and $1-50 for a car wash. He charged his car was drenched with "dirty bilge water" Sunday as he and his wife watched the antics of ducks on Newport Harbor's upper bay.

After the water-bombing, Skiles admitted tried to hit the offending aircraft with a rock. His wife, Marilyn, estimated the rock was "about 900 feet short of its target."

Wednesday night the Navy repudiated informally through a member of the blimp's crew. "It was clean ballast water," he said. "We change it every day. We developed engine trouble and had to dump ballast to get rid of extra weight."

RALEIGH (AP) — The joint appropriations committee was asked today to boost state spending for various agencies and private organizations by a total of $223,257.

Dr. Paul Whitaker, member of the executive committee of the Medical Care Commission, asked that $2,000 be added to the recommended $194,400 administrative budget as a salary increase for William Henderson, the commission's executive secretary.

Briefings Ended On Possible New Tax Sources

RALEIGH (AP) — The Joint Finance Committee completed revenue briefings today after discussing a long list of possible new tax sources.

The next committee session will follow introduction in either legislative house of new tax measures. None have been introduced so far. Much of the discussion today centered around the possible levy of a tax on tobacco products.

Hudson Stansbury, state director of tax research, rattled off information, but no opinions, concerning the new tax possibilities. He said he could not determine whether tobacco taxes, now levied in all states but Oregon and North Carolina, affected consumption.

Stansbury told the committee the average cigarette tax in all states amounted to 4 cents a pack and varied between 8 cents and 2 cents.

The Revenue Department estimated that a tobacco products tax would bring in nearly $10 million a year. It would be based on 2 cents per pack of cigarettes, 1 cent per cigar, 1 cent on each 10 cents of smoking tobacco and 1 cent on each 3 ounces of chewing tobacco and snuff.

On another subject, Stansbury said North Carolina's corporate income tax set up was among the highest in the nation. The department had estimated that a boost in the tax rate from the present 6 per cent to 7 per cent would bring in more than $8 million a year.

Wooten Measure Is Introduced

Pitt County Rep. Frank M. Wooten of Greenville Wednesday introduced in the House a bill changing the method of electing members of the North Carolina State Board of Dental Examiners.

Johnson Matthews, asked that the recommended budget of $772,223 for his agency be increased by $7,735 in the next biennium to hire another stenographer and buy equipment.

Mrs. Marie Noel of the State Nurses Association expressed complete agreement with the $50,000 grant recommended for student loans.

The Recreation Commission presented a host of pleaders, headed by the Rev. Charles S. Hubbard of Chapel Hill, chairman. They asked that the recommended budget of $138,562 be increased by $82,022, mainly for additional employees.

A. D. Leon Gray, superintendent of the Oxford Orphanage, asked that the $104,500 grant recommended from the state be boosted to $200,000. He said the state gives more aid per child to a number of other private children's institutions.

John W. Vogler, superintendent of Alexander Schools, at Union Mills, wanted $36,000 added to the $44,000 recommended grant. He was backed by Sen. Robert Morgan of Cleveland, who said the schools "serve a purpose few others, do, and at little cost."

Erbert N. Peeler, superintendent of the State School for the Blind and Deaf, did not ask for increased appropriations. But he noted that the commission had failed to recommend certain additional employees, and asked that the school not be held to account for $10,440 these employees would have paid back in room and board.

Congress Is Sent Program Of Resource Development

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy today sent Congress a program for vast development of America's natural resources and he asserted Eisenhower administration policy took a heavy toll of lives "by postponing essential flood control projects."

In a special message, the President set forth plans for both immediate and long range dealing with a host of problems in the field of resources. He said: "If we fail to use these blessings prudently, we will be in trouble in a short time."

He called for facing up to the problems now, and added: "The task is large but it will be done." Kennedy placed no price tag on his far-reaching program which, among other things, envisages development of economically competitive nuclear power within 10 years to replace or supplement power from conventional fuels in areas where such fuel is expensive.

Rates Hike Is Approved For Hospital

An "absolutely necessary" rate increase — approximately 10 per cent — for Pitt County Memorial Hospital was adopted Tuesday by the hospital's board of trustees, board chairman Jesse R. Moyer Jr. announced today.

The new rate schedule, Moyer said, will become effective March 1. In announcing the rate boost, Moyer told the Daily Reflector the 17-member board was "very reluctant to have to increase our rates, but, in view of the situation regarding rising costs of supplies, materials, services and so forth, we found it absolutely necessary to do so (increase the rate schedule)."

Moyer reported an overall increase of around 10 per cent for six major hospital services — including operating room, laboratory, anesthesia, and delivery room — was adopted along with a new per diem room rate schedule. Effective March 1, room rates will be increased as follows:

- 1. Ward beds — from $8 to $9 daily.
2. Semi-private room — from $10 to $11, $12 and $13, depending upon the type of room.
3. Private room — from $12 and $14 to $14, $15 and $16, depending upon the type of room.

In making the announcement, Moyer pointed out the board of trustees' last rate hike approval became effective Jan. 1, 1957. During subsequent years, he said, the board "realized the cost of operating the hospital was increasing due to the gradual increase of supplies, materials, services and so forth."

He said, "For some time now, we (the board) have considered that, in order to avoid running a higher monthly deficit, it would be necessary to consider increasing the rates of the hospital."

Moyer cited figures to show the newly-adopted rate schedule "is in line" with average rates of at least 17 similar capacity hospitals in "our general geographic area."

The board chairman said the hospital operates on a basis of about 75 per cent collection for its services rendered. The 75 per cent, he said, includes all funds received from all sources.

He said, "The board was most reluctant in raising the rates, but it was something we had to do to avoid running a higher monthly deficit."

IRRIGATION TASK MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Agriculture Ministry says it will start an $8-million program in April to rehabilitate irrigation facilities in northwest Mexico.

Kennedy program over present levels of resources spending until studies by the Budget Bureau and other federal agencies have been completed. These officials indicated they look for very little swift impact on the budget with several of Kennedy proposals geared to needs years from now.

Specific recommendations by the President include doubling spending on research aimed at making salty ocean water suitable for use in the home and by industry. The administration said "this would hike the outlay to $10 million a year."

"I pledge," said Kennedy, "that when this know-how is achieved it will immediately be made available to every nation in the world who (sic) wishes it, along with appropriate technical and other assistance for its use. Indeed the United States welcomes now the cooperation of all other nations who wish to join in this effort at present."

The Kennedy program dealt with water resources generally and the prospect for doubled consumption — to 600 billion gallons daily by 1980; big scale expansion of electric power; forest conservation; exploration of the oceans for oil, gas and minerals and for seafood; great expansion of recreational areas; and control of air and water pollution.

Kennedy said that in marketing federal electric power, preference will be given to public agencies and cooperatives. In outlining plans for water resources development, the President said "we reject a 'no new starts' policy." Kennedy did not name the Eisenhower administration but aides said this was a slap at his predecessor's regime. Kennedy and other Democrats contended during the campaign last year that the government under former President Dwight D. Eisenhower stifled development of water resources by advocating an economy policy, which, the critics said, blocked the start of new projects.

"Such a policy," Kennedy said today, "denied the resource requirements and potential upon which our economic growth hinges; and took a heavy toll in added costs and even human life (sic) through flood control projects."

As for the future in this field, the President said: "I have requested the director of the Bureau of the Budget, working with appropriate department and agency heads, to schedule a progressive, orderly program of starting new projects to meet accumulated demands, taking into account the availability of funds."

In this case, and generally throughout his message, Kennedy mentioned no specific projects. Legislation detailing these is expected to go to Congress later.

"From the beginning of civilization, every nation's basic wealth and progress has stemmed in large measure from its natural resources," Kennedy told Congress. "This nation has been, and is, especially fortunate in the blessings we have inherited. Our entire society rests upon — and is dependent upon — our water, our land, our forests and our minerals." Kennedy continued: "But even under conservative projections, we face a future of critical shortages and handicaps. By the year 2000, a United States population of 300 million — nearly doubled in 40 years — will need far greater supplies of farm products, timber, water, minerals, fuels, energy, and opportunities for outdoor recreation."

He said "Wise investment in a resource program today will return vast dividends tomorrow, and failures to act now may be opportunities lost forever."

Kennedy said his goal was to bring together in a single message "the widely scattered resource policies of the federal government." He added that in the past, these policies have overlapped and often conflicted, "and funds were wasted on competing efforts."

The President said he was striving for coordination of policy by directing his Council of Economic Advisers to enlarge its staff and report on the status of resources programs in relation to national needs.

Establishing, under the council, a presidential advisory committee on natural resources. Instructing the budget director to formulate within 90 days general principles for application of fees, permits and other user charges at all types of natural resource projects, and to re-evaluate standards for appraising feasibility of water resource projects.

Pentagon Chiefs Called To Outline Defense Picture

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon's top officials were summoned today to paint for a House committee the nation's defense picture as the Kennedy administration views it.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were called for the close session by Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., veteran chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

In issuing the invitation, Vinson pointedly suggested that McNamara talk about "missile gaps or any other gaps he has on his mind."

McNamara recently was quoted as saying there was no missile gap with this country trailing the Soviet Union. That put President Kennedy on the spot, because he had made a major campaign issue out of the alleged missile gap. The President said when asked about McNamara's statement that no studies had been completed as yet on the problem. McNamara also said in later statements that the studies still were under way.

In the Senate Wednesday Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said there is no question the administration thinks the United States is behind the Soviet union in missile power and is doing something to close the gap.

Symington has charged that the Soviets have a 3 to 1 edge in long range missiles and said two Eisenhower defense secretaries — Neil H. McElroy and Thomas S. Gates Jr. — had conceded this.

"I predict that in closed testimony before Congress it will also be admitted in the hearings which we are to begin shortly," Symington said. He said some "would like to ignore the missile gap, or to explain it away, or to jump to the conclusion that it does not exist at all."

Vinson's House committee passes on all major military programs. Before it now is a $10-billion bill for new ships, planes and missiles.

The committee has given tentative approval for military construction projects totaling nearly $1 billion.

One fourth of this amount is for completing launching bases for 13 Atlas and 14 Titan intercontinental missile squadrons, and to add to last year's work on the concrete-lined holes from which the newer Minuteman missiles can be fired.

A 17-year-old Negro escaped with only minor injuries yesterday after being thrown from the car he was driving when it went out of control about four miles east of Greenville on U.S. 254.

Driver of the car, identified as Milton Clemons, 17, of Route 1, Grimesland, was thrown from his car as it rounded a curve and went out of control as the vehicle was headed east on U.S. 254, investigating patrolman W.K. Chapman said.

According to the officer, Clemons, one of the three passengers in the vehicle, John Smith, 19, also of Route 1, Grimesland, was thrown from his car as it rounded a curve and went out of control as the vehicle was headed east on U.S. 254.

News And Notes From Bethel

BETHEL—Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Chesson entertained in the Woodmen of the World Hut Saturday night honoring their daughter, Mary, on her 16th birthday.

The hall was made festive by the use of a green and white motif. Each window ledge was covered with green ivy centered with a burning white candle.

The appointed table was covered with white green ivy trimmed with and centered with a five-branched candelabra holding burning green candles. Mr. Chesson, Mary's father, poured the punch at one end of the table while the birthday cake was served at the opposite end by the honoree and C. J. Harris. The guests helped themselves to white and green minis and assorted nuts.

Following the refreshment period, Miss Chesson opened and displayed her gifts. Guests were from Robersonville, Greenville, Rocky Mount, and Bethel.

W.S.C.S. Meeting

The Bethel Methodist Church held its February meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service with Miss Camille Staton, president, presiding.

The meeting was opened with a hymn, after which Mrs. D. O. Speir presented the devotional, taking as her text the first four verses from the first chapter of John. She used several other passages of scripture to illustrate the life and light of God in man, closing with a prayer.

Mrs. Speir continued with the program, "The Power of the Word." A worship center to complement the program displayed the Bible with burning candles on either side. At the head of the Bible was a Biblical picture and at the foot of the Bible were disarranged words. Mrs. Speir pointed out that we have many words at our command; it is up to us how we arrange them.

God has given us the wonderful gift of speech. It can be constructive or destructive. Without words, there would be no communication between God or man. We must use this gift to communicate with God, and to allow God to speak to us that we may carry His message to those who have never heard the word of God, stated Mrs. Speir.

The Bible was not written by God, Mrs. Speir continued, but by prophets like John, who were eternal spirits, conveying the word and holding the world together; a light shining out from God Himself to give light and life to men. As a light today, let us not be conformed, she said, but rather, transformed, that His light might be revealed through us.

Miss Staton presided over the business portion of the Society, after which the meeting was adjourned with the benediction.

Home Demonstration Club

The Bethel Home Demonstration Club met Thursday night in the master dining room at Respass Bros. in Greenville. This was an annual occasion for having husbands and friends present as guests of club members.

Mrs. J. S. Moore received the guests and directed them to the dining room where they were seated at tables decorated with seasonal flowers.

Edmondson and Mr. Edmondson, her husband, responded in the absence of Mrs. Dennis Hardy, club president, was Mrs. R. R. Whitehurst, vice-president. She recognized guests Mr. and Mrs. Bob Martin of Bethel, Mr. Goodman, County Farm Agent from Greenville, who spoke on ways of improving the production of tobacco, corn, hogs, etc. He suggested that they use the best products and proper fertilizer for crops, thereby improving marketing of same.

Most of all, Goodman emphasized the assisting of Home Demonstration Club members in their projects and encourage community leadership which would pay off in the future by giving the county better qualified homemakers and farmers.

Mrs. Whitehurst recognized Miss Lily Harper, Assistant Home Economist of Pitt County who introduced Mr. Mose, Trust Officer and vice president of Wachovia Bank in Greenville. Mr. Mose spoke on the new Wills and Inheritance laws which become effective July 1, 1961. He emphasized the importance of making a will. He stated that citizens over 21 have the right to make a will and dispose of his or her property or estate as he or she desires when no will is left to provide for the disposition of same. Further worthwhile information was given by the speaker.

At the conclusion of his address, Mrs. R. R. James, recreation leader, assisted by Mrs. Donald Jennings at the piano, led the group in singing.

Door prize was won by James A. Manning.

Dr. Brewster Speaks At A.A.U.W. Meeting

Dr. Lawrence F. Brewster was the speaker at a meeting of the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women at the Alumni House Monday. Dr. Ruth Modlin, chairman of the Education Committee, introduced the speaker.

Dr. Brewster's lecture was about Cuba and Castro. He sketched the background of conditions today by telling of the 400 years of Spanish rule, when there was both neglect and repression. In 1898 the Spanish rule ended, and the United States assisted at the birth of the Cuban Republic. Certain privileges and restraints were imposed by the United States, one of which was the naval base at Guantanamo. The Cuban government has been sometimes democratic and sometimes dictatorial.

After giving a sketch of Castro's life and the revolution, Dr. Brewster described Castro as a man of contrasts. Like most dictators, he seeks to create an image of himself and is a master of communication and public appeal; yet he is too lazy to work at the business of government and has others do it for him. He is an idealist who sincerely believed that his revolution was good for the people, and yet he was absolutely ruthless in carrying it out.

In regard to Castro's program, Dr. Brewster listed several areas in which errors have been made. There was land reform, but it was not accomplished in a democratic way. Land was taken away from some of the people. As to education, more schools were established, but they were taken over for mass propaganda. The economy has been hurt, for Cuban capitalists have been alienated, and outsiders are afraid to invest. The foreign policy of Castro is well known; he is against the United States and in favor of Russia.

The worst danger of the Castro regime is the influence on other Latin American countries. Castro wishes to carry the revolution to these countries.

There is much dissatisfaction with the Castro regime. Several large groups are opposed to it. There is an active underground movement, and lately there has even been armed rebellion. Many Cubans have sought refuge in the United States.

Dr. Brewster concluded his lecture by saying that he hoped that the successor to Castro would not be another dictator, but someone whom Cuba really needs.

During the social hour refreshments were served by the hostesses: Mrs. D. S. Spain, Miss Lella Higgs, Dr. Tora Larsen, and Mrs. Hugh T. Patterson.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

While the control of the clover mite isn't a garden problem in the strictest sense of the word, they become a problem for both those that garden and those that don't when they get into the house.

Several people in Greenville have been troubled with this mite in recent days. This red mite is about 1-30 of an inch in size and sucks juices out of grass and clover. When it isn't at its appointed chores, it gets into dwellings. In order to control this insect, two methods can be used, or perhaps both methods combined will give better results: (1) Cultivate an area about 18 inches wide around house and keep this area clean. (2) Spray a four foot band around the house, using either Malathion 57 percent E.C. — 2 teaspoons to the gallon or Aramite 15 percent W.P. — 2 tablespoons to the gallon. Aramite is safer to use from the human safety factor viewpoint. It is strictly a miticide—do not use on food crops.

These warm days have brought hopes of an early spring. Now is a good time to get a jump on some of the insects and diseases that are sleeping in twigs and limbs of your plants. Look for the spindle shaped bag of that heavy eater, the bagworm. Gather and burn these bags. Clean up any board or brick that may have been overlooked last fall. These are ideal places for a bug to hide during the cold months.

Look over your Junipers and gather the brown galls. If left there, these galls will turn to orange jelly-like masses with prominent orange colored horn. When the spring rains come, the spores that shoot out from these horns will cause the leaves of your apples, crabapples, and hawthorne to become infected during the summer. Left over spores on these trees will infect the Junipers next fall. An early cleanup of the Junipers will save costly spraying later on.

Rake up all fallen leaves and twigs on your rye grass lawn. Put them on your compost pile. In doing this, you may head off diseases and insects that are on these leaves and twigs and insure yourself humus for later garden use. As your rye will start growing when the warm days come, a clean lawn area means a better mowing job. While you are about it, give your grass a liberal feeding of 5-10-5 or 8-8-8 fertilizer. This should give you a longer lasting stand of rye, and your shade trees will benefit also. Use 40 pounds of 5-10-5 or 25 pounds of 8-8-8 to each 1000 square feet of lawn area. This will give you 2 pounds of actual nitrogen to each 1000 square feet fertilized.

Flying ants have been noticed coming out of the ground near some shrubs and in lawn areas that bordered these shrubs. Sprinkle some Chlordane 5 percent where they have emerged. This should control them.

If you have an underground cut-off for your garden water supply, clean out the tile pipe or whatever place it is in before you put your hand in to turn on your water. Black widow spiders lurk in such places and even though they haven't hatched out yet, it is best to be careful and prevent the chance of getting bit later on.

Looking out for and controlling insects and diseases before they can get a start, saves time and money later on. A general garden clean up the last of this month may mean a brighter April as far as your plants are concerned.

Problems For Industrial Centers

Many industrial centers of the nation apparently are facing long-range unemployment problems that will not be altogether solved even with a significant business upturn.

In this respect, their problem is not unlike that which has been faced in a number of agricultural areas of the nation where farm employment has declined with mechanization and displaced farm workers have been forced to seek other means of making a living.

Automation in industry has reduced to some extent the number of jobs available, but of greater significance it has made possible considerable increase in production without the necessity of a corresponding increase in the number of employees. Changes in the nation's economy—for example the decline in the use of coal—has eliminated a number of jobs in specific industries that will not re-open even if another economic boom.

The shift in national defense policies from aircraft to missiles has eliminated—perhaps permanently—many jobs in the aircraft industry, and a similar situation applies in a number of other industries associated with the national defense effort.

In addition to these factors, the bumper crop of post-war babies are now becoming adult citizens and are entering the pool of people seeking employment. This further complicates the employment picture in some industrial areas that have been caught not only in the recession, but likewise in the change taking place in the industrial complex.

While economists say the number of production jobs will not increase to keep pace with the growth of people needing employment, they likewise are predicting an increase in service jobs throughout the nation.

It is becoming obvious, it seems to us, that many people now unemployed will not be able to return to their old jobs even though the economy moves steadily upward. They are going to have to find new jobs of other kinds, even if it means they will have to learn new skills or new applications of the skills they have used for years.

In agricultural sections of the nation such as Eastern North Carolina, many people have been forced from the farms in the past decade. Many have moved into the cities and towns of their immediate areas and have found jobs of various kinds. Others have moved to other sections of the nation where there appeared to be better opportunities for non-farm employment. Still others have found it necessary to move from one temporary job to another until they were able to find permanent employment . . . often far removed from the farm employment they were accustomed to.

Although unemployment in many industrial areas of the nation is looked upon as a result of the so-called "recession", at least a part of the unemployment problem is attributable to a more basic change that is taking place in American industry. Effective remedies will have to reach the root of the problem rather than just deal with the more obvious and superficial causes.

Favor Less Use Of Credit Cards

By LYNN NISBET
STATE GASOLINE—State employee drivers of central motor pool cars have been surprised a number of times lately at absence of Esso credit cards from the glove compartments. For many years nearly all State gasoline was bought from Esso stations and employees got the habit of stopping at the Esso sign.

The big contract for bulk deliveries of gasoline has been with Esso for many years, with very few temporary breaks. There were provisions even then for quick purchases on credit cards from other companies, in event a State car ran short and no Esso station was at hand.

The contract for bulk deliveries to school bus tanks, highway commission, highway patrol, forestry and wildlife services, and similar large users, is still with Esso. Last year Esso and Amoco canceled their roadside credit card service to the State.

Nearly all the other major companies except Gulf offer the service, along with a two percent discount from regular retail price. So the driver who picks up a car at the pool will not find an Esso or Amoco or Gulf credit card in the pocket—he may find two or three others like Crown, Pure, Phillips 66, Shell, Sinclair, etc.

Purchase and contract folks discourage the purchase of gasoline in this manner, except in cases of real emergency. They insist that State cars fill up at highway patrol or other bulk storage points. The discount on bulk deliveries is much more than the two percent allowed on little purchases.

TAXES—Other big users of gasoline delivered to storage tanks in bulk get a discount from regular retail price, but all private users, whatever the quantity, must pay the gallonage tax—7 cents to the State and 4 cents to the Federal government. The State does not pay the Federal tax on any purchases, but except for school buses and other vehicles owned by the operated exclusively for the public schools, all State agencies pay the 7 cents North Carolina road tax.

ECONOMY—The division of purchase and contract several years ago established the policy of having State cars get their gasoline from highway patrol and other bulk storage points as an economy measure. There is a saving of maybe two or three cents on every gallon as compared with the private roadside filling station. On the millions of gallons used that runs up to a sizeable amount. Unfortunately it is not all "savings." There is the matter of lost time and mileage setting to the bulk tank, the record keeping time required of State employees, plus the fact that often the man handling the pump is worth more on his regular job.

When all the factors are taken into account, the P&C folks think there is substantial saving in using State-purchased bulk gasoline rather than a few gallons at a time from retail private stations, and there is presently no indication that the policy will be changed.

PROBLEM—In response to a question at his latest news conference Governor Terry Sanford said the main problem with respect to secondary roads in North Carolina is that there just isn't enough money available to do the needed job.

Last week at a Wilmington meeting where beach erosion was under discussion Col. Harry Brown, chief of the Water Resources Commission, and a recognized authority on the subject, said there are no serious engineering problems involved in protecting the outer banks and the beaches. The only real problem is one of money. In both instances the money they are talking about is big money, multi-million dollars of it.

Equitable solution of the problem of where the money should come from is bothersome. It is complicated by the legalistic device of "matching funds." The Federal government will put up major part of the cost of a highway—if the State will match funds on some sort of prorata basis. Maybe the State folks don't need the road, but the lure of Federal money leads them to join the project. The State will run a super-highway through a city if the municipality will pay a certain part of the cost. Maybe the road isn't worth much to the city, but it can't afford to "lose" the State money.

Projects to halt beach erosion usually call for joint Federal, State, local government and private participation. Many coastal communities and private property owners protest the "matching" idea. They contend the project is for the all over common good, and the whole public should foot the bill. The rest of the overall public thinks that individuals who gain substantial monetary benefit should pay a larger share of the total cost. So the basic need for money involves the discussion of who should put up the money.

Washington, after two terms as president, surely had no illusions about mankind. His Farewell Address is a catalogue of warnings on how the nation and its citizens should conduct themselves.

James Madison had no illusions, either, about man's endless struggle with man. He used the word "faction" to describe it. "By a faction, I understand a number of citizens, whether amounting to a majority or minority of the whole, who are united and actuated by some common impulse of passion, or of interest, adverse to the rights of other citizens, or to the permanent and aggregate interests of the community." Madison said, "There are two methods of curing the mischiefs of factions: the one, by removing its causes; the other, by controlling its effects."

The Constitution was meant to be the controller. It isn't any more perfect than man, but it has worked, because it is based on a realistic view of the nature of man, extremely well.

But we still have factions, more numerous and powerful than in Washington's time, at home and abroad. It's because of factional disputes, on a world scale now, that this country is in its present deadly struggle.

A thousand years from now, when the world may look a little different, if it's still here in the present conflicts, if compared with the struggle going on then, may seem very small, a little factional difference of opinion.

By that time the earth we live on may be in intense interplanetary dispute with other men, or maybe monsters, on other worlds.

Even the short time lapse between Washington's day and ours shows how near-sighted even the wisest of us can be because at times we tend to see no further than the contemporary (Continued on page 5)

The Outlook Is Unhappy

We read that it is time for TV producers to "slice" programs, switch them around and make changes, supposedly for the better, for the coming season. And also, that soon there will be more TV quiz programs, with audience participation (unfortunately).

They figure that some of the storm over the quiz show rigging has died down enough to bring new quiz programs to the screen. That is fine if you like to watch quiz programs, all the time, hoping somebody from California instead of a person from Illinois will win a mink coat and a Florida beach cottage.

But we fear lest the programming get less interesting than it already is, and they move favorite programs to less convenient times.

It would be so nice if little we, all of us, had more to say about what programs we would watch and when.

Speaking of watching, it was a very short time ago that we were in the Grifton Town Office watching. We were observing a pickup truck across the street that had stakes to which were attached something like yellow and black striped tails (like cats' except bigger) waving in the air. There was a sign that said something about "we buy furs, any kind, other and mink."

What we saw was not other or mink (we hope).

While we were still observing, entranced, the police chief ended the trance by telling us those were con tails. A long way from mink, we'd say.

After the World Day of Prayer service last week, we noticed an automobile parked in the drive-way at the municipal parking lot near Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. It wasn't at a parking place, you see, because there weren't any left.

A little note had been left on the windshield saying occupant gone to church service. Well, there wasn't any ticket.

Never doubt the resourcefulness of a lady.

Other Editors Saying . . . The Zeus Debate

(Burlington Daily Times-News) More interest in being shown, and there even are some demands within Congress, for the Nike Zeus anti-missile missile to go into immediate production.

Local Western Electric officials who have charge of the Zeus project for the Army don't have a production order, of course, and they don't know for sure that they will get one. Yet the research and production which have gone into the weapon, and the tests which have been conducted, have gained much support from high authority.

The comment of last year by Rep. Carl T. Durham is well remembered at this point. At the time Congress was in debate on whether Zeus would be placed on a lower priority, with the Bomarc missile being given top attention, Rep. Durham, in the Senate's Armed Forces Committee, said that he would never support the Zeus, though two of Western Electric's plants were in his district, if it were not the best line of missile defense available to the nation. Bomarc at the time had not been tested.

Congress switched what appeared to be a dangerous blow to Zeus and placed Bomarc on the lower priority list. Research and development continued on Zeus.

There still are some questions about the effectiveness of Zeus, but there seems little question but that it is the most effective potential we have at present, and there is none other in sight. To delay in providing the nation with a defense against missiles in a missile age is causing much concern from advocates.

Out local Western Electric plant, as others in the state, would not be lost to us if the Zeus were dismissed from the nation's defense program. There would be other work to be done after a period of adjustment. We cannot overlook the economic interest which we have, however, through the decision which is to be made.

But we feel sure that there would be no real gain for us if we got a contract for a weapon that was not what the nation needed. We would be facing an uncertain economy, and that would be dangerous.

There are those in high authority who now are joining Western's feeling of confidence. Statements of support have come from Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, chairman of the Senate's Armed Forces Committee, Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the Army's Lt. Gen. Arthur Trudeau, and a growing number of Congressmen and civilian scientists.

Therefore, our immediate interests in economics affecting our own area moves into a wider category. We, in turn, can rightfully ask, without our personal association, whether the government is acting wisely in not heeding the warnings and moving with speed toward Zeus production. With the missile potential of our potential enemies, it's hard to believe we have a well-rounded military program unless we can shoot back.

WHAT IS EDUCATION?

The home is humanity's most important school. Parents are humanity's most influential teachers. The education of childhood and youth is humanity's important enterprise.

How should we go about educating the immature? by combining information and training in such a way that maturity results. For we are put in the world to grow, and that growing process is the most important thing with which we ever have to deal. We may fill the minds of our children and young people with facts and at the end of their "educational careers" they may be as ignorant as naked savages. What we have to ask ourselves constantly, as we strive to give our children an education, is whether or not our efforts are producing growth and maturity or whether these efforts are simply enabling us to conform to accepted social patterns, give the kids a headful of facts, enable them to get a diploma.

Is the child's wisdom growing in the grade school? Is his judgement improving in high school, preparatory school? Is his college curriculum and his college environment getting him oriented—directed—toward life's problems. Is his professional training making him just a professional man, or a sensitive, informed, imaginative, courageous member of society, a leader of its principal projects?

What is education? Here is a question continually to be pondered if we would grow and help our children to grow.

First The Hot Money

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

President Kennedy wants a report by April on tax havens, on whether "undue amounts" of American capital may be flowing to industrialized nations. Douglas Dillon, Secretary of the Treasury, is to get the facts together with the object of developing legislation. It is to be hoped that he does not limit his investigations to Treasury officials, as they have not been able to do very much about this subject during the 40 years that it has been a problem.

Any study of tax havens must begin with "hot money." By definition, this is currency which came to its owner illegally and which he dares not disclose. His principal task is to make "hot money" legitimate; otherwise he is stuck with a currency that he cannot use. "Hot money" is actually cash and is moved as cash.

The first big block of "hot money" was Prohibition money—the coin that went to bootleggers, hi-jackers, the importers of forbidden liquor, the bankers who provided the money for this purpose and the gangsters who gave them protection. Nobody knows for sure what this amounts to, but the figure most often used is that the residue is about $2,500,000,000. Most of this money first found its way from various American cities to the Canadian bootlegging centers and from there to Europe where it was legitimized and put into industry and commerce throughout the world, including the United States. No taxes were ever paid on these earnings.

The second largest block of "hot money" is dope. This has to be financed because the sums involved are enormous. The principal export center is Italy, although considerable dope comes from the Middle East and Red China. It is generally said that Lucky Luciano is the king of this business throughout the world, although he, living in exile, denies this overlordship. All transactions are in cash and therefore no taxes are paid. The United States maintains an inadequately financed agency to meet this situation under the direction of Harry J. Anslinger, who has done more than is to be expected on the slender support he has. This dope money should be taxed but it is not easy to find the owners. If a tax of 200 per cent were put on caught heroin or marijuana or opium, it would be very helpful. The peddling or financing of dope should be made a capital offense.

The third largest block of "hot money" is currency obtained by a variety of methods, including under-the-table payments to politicians. Such money is physically taken to places like Switzerland or Panama or Hongkong and is banked there either under numbered or fictitious accounts. The money is then managed from abroad and may never actually be returned to the owner in this country. American shares may be purchased in London or Amsterdam or other cities and sold on a rise, the accretion never being taxed. Dividends on these shares are taxed. The money is also used for investment in foreign enterprises or in American-owned enterprises abroad. It thus becomes denationalized and pays no taxes to the United States. The sums involved in these operations are not known. In the business world the low estimate is $50,000,000,000.

Actually, the tax law permits an American to continue to retain his earnings abroad and thus avoid taxation in the United States. The Treasury seeks to correct this by requiring American parent companies to supply information concerning foreign subsidiaries, but this is not the largest factor in the situation. What is needed is information about those Americans who have numbered accounts in Switzerland and other countries and to make such dollars taxable.

There can be no excuse for the lack of knowledge on these subjects except that too many big names are always involved. There is plenty of free discussion and free action on these subjects and nobody seems particularly worried about them or afraid of government action. All tax havens involve tax (Continued on page five)

The Civil War Boom Has Begun

By ELMER ROESSNER
The Civil War boom, long predicted here, is starting in earnest.

Products and projects involving millions of dollars are coming out of the development stage. Hundreds of commemorative events will be held at historic sites over the next four years. Many of these will take on aspects of fair, rich in pageantry, attracting millions of people in the aggregate.

There will be countless tours to historic places in addition. Bus, plane and railroad lines as well as travel agencies have long been planning excursions. The commemorative events and the tours will result in huge spending in many localities; they will insure good business for hotels, motels, restaurants and other enterprises catering to travelers.

Civil War map, an eagle with Union and Confederate flags, and a book of sales suggestions, one of which is that dealers accept from $5 to $15 in Confederate money toward payment for appliances. Hotpoint is also offering dealers Civil War hats, balloons, extra flags, old-fashioned subnotebooks and Civil War ties. It looks as if Hotpoint is trying to steal the war from Mr. Catton.

The centennial will also boost business for many others; stamp and coin dealers, lecture bureaus and lecturers, actors, costume companies, television producers and countless others.

The total boom in business, however, will not equal the cost of the war itself, as once stated here. Federal expenditures during the four war years were about $3 billion; the South's expenditures were less, probably under $2 billion. The cost in private property is incalculable, with the South losing the most. Private losses may have doubled the total cost, not counting the book value of the freed slaves.

SEE? IT PAYS TO HAVE AN EDUCATION

For inventing the word "cheerleader," Mrs. Rose W. Klapp, a Jersey City, N.J., fourth-grade schoolteacher, has been awarded a sports car. Hers was the winning entry in a contest for the best one-word description of joys of drinking one brand (Carlsbad) of beer.

UNITED STATES LAGGING IN STANDARDIZATION
There may be trouble for American exporters in the years ahead because of lack of United States interest in international standardization. The United States has representation on only 50 of 100 committees in the International Standards Association. Declared Arnold Scott, of the National Bureau of Standards:

"We are too snug in our feeling that our technology and industry lead the world—that our way is best, that we do not need international standards."

Sen. Byrd Sets Theme To Fight Education Program

A PAL GOOD AND TRUE—A sympathetic Boots looks into the eyes of his young master, Matthew Menke, 2, who was bitten on the face by another dog, Matthew had to have a suture taken on his left cheek. He also suffered scratches and bruises. But Matthew says he still likes dogs, especially his pal Boots. The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Menke of Bancroft, Iowa. (AP Wirephoto)

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., sparked fresh Southern opposition to President Kennedy's aid to education program with the assertion today that it will open a back door to school integration.

Byrd said he is convinced after an analysis of Kennedy's proposals for federal educational grants to states to spend as they see fit that the program will "pave the way for the most colossal sort of expenditures."

But even more distasteful to him, he said in an interview, is what he regards as the probability that Congress eventually may require school desegregation in all states accepting federal funds.

"No one can guarantee that there will not be federal efforts to control our schools to this extent," Byrd said.

"Any bill Congress passes now may not carry a desegregation provision. But there is real danger that on some future bill appropriating the money to make the payments to the states a rider may be attached saying that no funds shall go to any state which does not desegregate its schools."

Secretary of Welfare Abraham Ribicoff told a news conference Monday he believed it would be a great tragedy to use federal aid to education as a lever to end school segregation.

Ribicoff endorsed the 1954 Supreme Court ruling against segregation in public schools. But he said he would oppose any amendment that would deny federal aid to schools because they are segregated.

Byrd's outspoken opposition to the education program was regarded as significant because some Kennedy administration officials believed the Virginian might go along because of the state control features of the Kennedy bill.

Their efforts to woo Byrd over to their side have been matched by attempts to chip other Southern Democrats away from a bipartisan conservative coalition opposing the Kennedy proposals.

Even strong administration supporters like Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., are wary of any intrusion of the school segregation issue.

Smathers, secretary of the Senate Democratic Conference, said he supports the "general principles" of the Kennedy program. But he added that he will stand with other Southerners against any effort to enforce integration through it.

Byrd's colleague, Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., told the Senate Wednesday that Kennedy's proposals have raised the issue of government help to church schools.

Robertson said that Kennedy's exclusion of parochial elementary and secondary schools will be contrasted with the lack of any such limitation on college dormitory loan funds. He said the doctrine of separation of church and state is bound to be debated.

Siding with Byrd, he said: "The most practical way Congress can help education would be to reduce federal spending and cut taxes so local communities would have more money to spend on their school systems."

Byrd said he can't see any need for the program, which would call for $5.7 billion in federal outlays in three years.

"The states can finance their schools," he said.

Opines Greater Insurance Rule Will Be Adopted

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—A Brunswick County legislator believes the General Assembly will approve his bill to increase the amount of insurance required under the state's Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Law.

Rep. S. Bunn Frink said his measure, introduced Wednesday, is "designed to protect people on the highways. This is a matter of public safety."

Under the financial responsibility law, motorists involved in traffic accidents may be required to furnish proof of their ability to pay any resulting court judgments against them.

Frink's bill would increase the required insurance from $5,000 to $10,000 for the first party injured, or a total of $20,000. It also would increase from $1,000 to $5,000 the amount of insurance required to cover property damage.

"The amount of insurance under the present law is not sufficient," Frink declared. "Regardless of how many people are injured in a car they can collect a total of only $10,000."

Frink's bill is similar to one approved by the Senate two years ago but which failed to pass in the House.

In other legislative developments Wednesday:

The House Congressional District Committee, armed with volumes of maps and figures, received several brochures as it set out to determine how to solve the issue of congressional redistricting. North Carolina will lose one of its 12 congressmen on the basis of the 1960 federal census. The legislature faces the task of cutting the congressional districts to 11.

Rep. Ed Kemp of Guilford sponsored a resolution which would help give voting rights to citizens of the District of Columbia. The resolution provides for North Carolina's ratification of a proposed 23rd amendment to the U.S. Constitution, allowing District of Columbia citizens to vote for President and vice president.

While one might say how different these paintings are, judged on the basis of the common denominators: painting mechanics and structure to convey a personal message, all the works displayed have within their unique styles a unifying factor.

Student Art Exhibit Is Being Shown Here

By TRAN GORDLEY

At Wachovia Bank, Greenville, an East Carolina College student painting exhibit is currently on display. The exhibit is one of three shows circulating North Carolina public buildings, banks, business houses. This is the first of a new series of exhibits stemming from the Art Department at East Carolina College under the direction of Dr. Wellington B. Gray and Mr. Tran Gordley which will travel throughout the state to encourage interest in the arts.

Another show of prints from Dr. Bruce Carter's class is opening at the same time in Wilson, North Carolina and a painting show by Mr. Donald Sexauer in Rocky Mount, North Carolina.

The Greenville show contains work done by Ann Wall, Lucille Coulbourn, Joanne Lackey, Vivian Rice, John Robbins, Lynn Burgess and Sharyn Burt. All the above are students attending East Carolina except the last who worked in the painting area last year. These students have explored realism, impressionism, abstract expressionism and variation of other legitimate modes of painting. The show demonstrates the fact that the students through searching the tradition of painting which is his heritage can arrive at a personal and satisfying mode of expression.

Miss Lackey in her "Man and Chair" has retained a figurative image. Clearly the face and figure of a human being can be discerned from the vibrant color structure of her painting.

Miss Coulbourn, in contrast to the Lackey approach, has two paintings which are clearly definitive of the stimulus or subject matter which challenged her. Her paintings are none the less complete in arriving at an abstract order or unity. Her vehicle for expression being realism is the only thing which separates her way of working from Miss Lackey or any of the other student painters exhibiting their work.

While one might say how different these paintings are, judged on the basis of the common denominators: painting mechanics and structure to convey a personal message, all the works displayed have within their unique styles a unifying factor.

THE FERGUSON AFFAIR

CHAPTER 35

Salaman leaned toward Mrs. Ferguson and said, "You're Holly May, ain't you?"

"That's my name, little man," she replied.

Colonel Ferguson looked at her in bitter doubt. She answered his look. "This boy has got me tabbed for somebody else. It happened another time last year, before I went to Canada. Some stores in Palm Springs sent me bills, and I hadn't been in Palm Springs all winter."

"Aw, cut it out," Salaman reached for her face in a sudden movement and snatched off her dark harlequin glasses.

"Don't you dare, you!"

"Hey! Salaman said, "Come out in the light. I want to look at you."

He took hold of her wrist, not roughly, but with an easy assumption of superior force, and pulled her out into the sun.

"Let go of my wife," Ferguson cried. "I'll break your neck."

Ferguson started to move on him. I tried to hold him, but he tore himself out of my grasp. The woman swung her body between the two men. She jerked her wrist free and grabbed her dark glasses out of Salaman's hand. Salaman's eyes remained intent on her face. Then he looked around at us.

"What are you trying to pull on me? She ain't Holly May!"

The woman let out a laugh of savage enjoyment. "Too bad, lover-boy, some gal conned you good. You better get out of here before somebody steals your wallet."

As Salaman left grumbling to himself, I noted his license number, and telephoned it in to the police station. If he had a criminal record, as he almost certainly had, concealed-weapon charges would keep him out of mischief for some time. This pleasant duty accomplished, I asked for Lieutenant Willis.

Willis was on his way in from the mountains. The desk sergeant said it was urgent he could direct him by radio to Ferguson's house. I told him it was urgent, and went back to the big front room.

Ferguson sat on a stool beside the woman's chair, holding her hand.

"Take off your glasses again, Mrs. Ferguson," I said. "Would you mind?"

She made a mouth at me. "I hate to, Mr. Gunterson. I look awful with this black eye."

But she removed the harlequin glasses and let me look at her. The bruise was an old one, already turning green and yellow at the edges. She couldn't have received it within the past fifteen hours. Besides, it was on the wrong side. Gaines was right-handed. The woman in the mountain house had been struck on the left side of the head by his revolver.

There were other, more subtle differences between that woman and the one in front of me. She had had a frozen face, as hard as a silver mask, and eyes like blight torches which had burned holes in it. The face I was looking at was mobile and lively, in spite of the damage to it. The eyes and mouth were smiling.

"Has somebody been masquerading as you?" I asked.

"It certainly looks like it," she said. "My gosh, I'm beginning to get the picture. Who do you think I am?"

"I know who you are, Hilda." You may think you do, but you don't. I happen to be June. Hilda was the one who used my professional name to run up bills in Palm Springs. Mike Speare hired a detective and found out. I guess I should have done something about her then. But you sort of hate to sick the law on your own sister. I certainly wasn't going to sick that hoodlum on her.

"I can't blame her too much," she added in a softer voice. "She always wanted to be a big name actress. It must have driven her crazy when she saw me on the screen, and realized I was her little sister June."

"Hilda's your oldest sister?"

"That's right. Hilda's only our half-sister, though."

"Do you know that for a fact?"

"I ought to. It was no secret in our family. Her father was some guy that Momma knew in Boston before the old man married her. The jerk ran out on her. He sent her a thousand bucks, which Dotery used to buy a car to come to California. That's all I know about it."

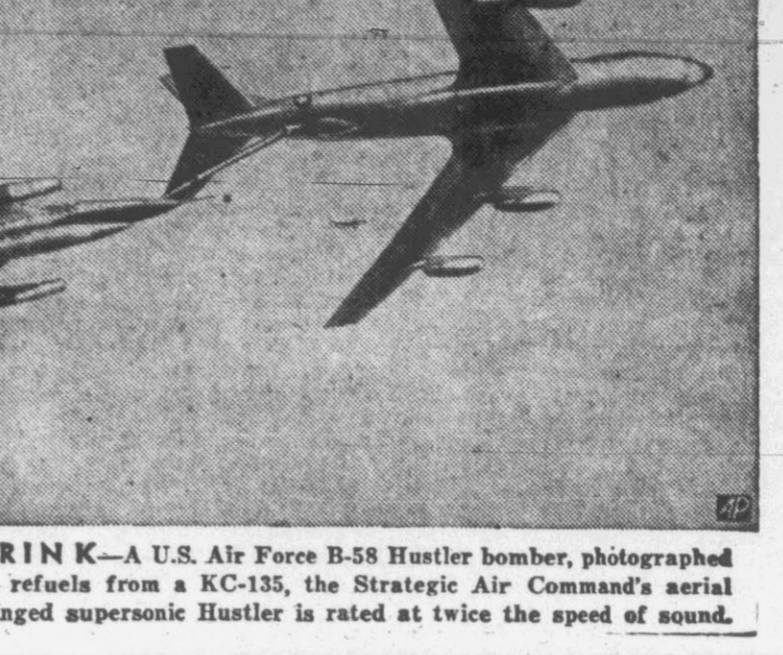

It was enough. Ferguson's teeth were set like a wounded man's biting on a rag.

Willis arrived and I met him at the door. He told me that Ella Barker had been released from jail and had been promised her old job back at the hospital.

Mrs. Ferguson told her story to Willis and I monitored the interview, ready to suppress hearsay evidence and irrelevancies. I was Ferguson's lawyer, after all, and Hilda was his daughter.

Willis sat slumped in a chair and listened without arguing. He looked very tired. There was a black smudge of char on his right cheekbone. He shook his head at her when she had finished.

"I wish you'd spoken up this morning, Mrs. Ferguson. Time is of essence in these matters, and your sister could have traveled

Foresees Time Of No Refueling

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Nuclear submarines which will never need refueling may be built soon, says Capt. William R. Anderson, former skipper of the nuclear sub Nautilus.

Anderson, who took the Nautilus on its historic trip under the North Pole, gave an interview Wednesday.

"The Nautilus could go 60,000 miles on its first load of fuel," he said. "Before long it will be possible to build a reactor that will not need refueling for the entire life of the ships — maybe 25 years."

Anderson, of Bakersville, Tenn., is now an aid to the secretary of the Navy. He said the most significant recent occurrence regarding nuclear subs was President Kennedy's action in accelerating the Polaris missile program.

Police Alert To Any Bed-Pushing

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State police are on the alert to deal with any highway bed pushing.

It appears that pushing beds is the latest collegiate kick — like swallowing goldfish or crowding into telephone booths. The pushing of a bed along a road — any road — is the idea.

Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs is prepared. He said a catch-all state law would be invoked. The law says no one shall refuse to comply with a police officer directing or regulating traffic.

Suspended For Birthday Honors

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP)—Twenty-five Twin Falls High School students thought it highly inappropriate to have to attend classes Wednesday. So they didn't.

They sat in a corridor and sang "Happy Birthday" to George Washington, the nation's first president, on his birthday anniversary.

Principal James Paluska suspended them.

It started when somebody put the school's bell system out of commission. About a fourth of the 1,100 students did not go to first-period classes on time. They heard no bell.

Some started singing the birthday song. The principal had the students advised that school had started. Most returned. Those who didn't were suspended until Monday.

Non-Farm Work In N.C. Declines

RALEIGH (AP)—Seasonal layoffs and production cut backs caused North Carolina's non-agricultural employment to decline 30,700 during January, the State Department of Labor reported today.

State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane said employment usually drops in January and February and then picks up in March or April, depending on when Easter comes.

Crane said non-farm employment in the state last month totaled 1,172,900, down 30,700 from December and 3,200 below January, 1960.

Factory employment for the month totaled 489,000, a decline of 7,300 from December and 13,500 below January last year.

Non-manufacturing jobs totaling $683,000 in January were down seasonally by 23,400 from December but were 9,800 above the level of January last year.

"Although factory employment dropped sharply last month," Crane said, "the overall decline in non-farm jobs did not by any means set a record low. Considerably larger January decreases have taken place in five of the last 12 years, followed by employment upturns during March or April," Crane added.

Appointee Safe In Plane Mishap

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A disabled plane carrying Paul B. Fay Jr. to Washington to be sworn in as undersecretary of the Navy ran off the end of the runway at the municipal airport early today and plunged into a deep-water ship channel.

None of the eight persons on board the U.S. Navy twin-engine Convair was seriously injured. The New York to Washington flight was carrying Fay, his wife, Anita, his 4-year-old daughter, Sally, an aide, and a crew of four.

Fay was in New York Wednesday to inspect the burned-out aircraft carrier USS Constellation at the Brooklyn Navy Yard and to inspect the Third Navy District.

The Convair left New York for Andrews Air Force Base, Md., but fog and rain prevented a landing there.

While looking for a place to set down somewhat in Maryland or Delaware, the plane's electrical system failed.

Pilot Harry Patterson said Atlantic City's 3,000-foot long runway would have been long enough for the landing under normal conditions, but because of the power failure he "couldn't reverse the propellers to slow the plane down. The Convair plunged into the Great Thorofare 45 feet off Bader Field. It floated for five minutes, then sank halfway into the channel.

Ten minutes later, a police launch rescued the eight and took them to Atlantic City Hospital.

The aide, Cmdr. William A. Golden of Falls Church, Va., suffered a broken left ankle. The others were released.

Richardson said the building itself will contain approximately 20,000 square feet of floor space and there will be around 17 employees.

Bethel Club Ragged But Triumph, 63-48

By ROY MARTIN
TOP-SEEDED BETHEL displayed their power-packed offense last night, as they rolled over Grimesland by a score of 63-48.

The victory moves the Indians into the semi-final bracket of the Pitt County tournament play. On Friday at 9:00 p.m., Bethel will meet the winner of tonight's game between Ayden and Winterville which will be played in Memorial Gymnasium at 6:30 p.m.

The Hornets from Chicod and Grifton's defending champions will also meet tonight at 9:30 p.m. to decide a position in the finals which will be played on Saturday night.

BETHEL PRACTICALLY decided the outcome of last night's contest in the first quarter of play, running up their lead over Grimesland to 11 points by the end of the first period.

For the duration of the contest, the Indians kept a safe lead, never once faltering in their torrid race towards victory. Lewis Harvey, who was the Indians' leading scorer for the night, posting a 21 point final tally, and John Smith, an All-County selection, were everywhere on the floor throughout the night.

Smith, one of the leading scorers for Coach Walter Latham's five during the regular season, fell off his scoring pace somewhat, last night, being held to 11 points for the night's action. Don Dewar, another forward, was the runner-up for scoring honors, posting a 16 point total for the night.

All-County Lindsey Hardee teamed with Linwood Baker to carry the scoring burden for Grimesland's Panthers. Hardee, consistently a top scorer, bucketed 15 points, while his teammate, Baker, dumped in 12 points during the action.

Grimesland never threatened the Bethel advantage, although in the fourth quarter the point lead which Bethel held at the end of the third period was cut to 15 points by the time the final horn sounded.

Tonight's lineup is a dandy with the second seeded Grifton club paired against third seeded Chicod.

The other boys game tonight has fourth seeded Winterville meeting the fifth place Ayden club for the right to place Bethel in the semi-final round on Friday night.

This is the first tournament appearance for both Ayden and Winterville, thus winding up first round action.

Grifton mowed down Farmville 49-35 on Tuesday night and Chicod plied Belvoir-Falkland 61-49 the same night.

Grifton is led by Billy Mahler, Tommy Riley and Alan Jackson. The chief source of trouble for Chicod is Raymond Forney.

Winterville has a scoring punch in big James Braxton while Ayden has a balanced attack with Ted Norris standing just a little ahead of the others.

B-F, Winterville Move To Semis

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor
TOURNEY FAVORITE Winterville and darkhorse Belvoir-Falkland stomped to the semi-finals against each other last night with victories over teams of lesser strength.

A tight Belvoir-Falkland sextet was cool as an ice cube in the first quarter but stormed from behind with big scoring sprees in the second and third periods to sink Chicod, 54-43.

As expected, the regular season champions, Winterville, moved to the semis but although winning 45-29, were outscraped by eighth-seeded Stokes-Pactolus.

The first round of the girls' semi-finals will come off tonight when Ayden and Bethel clash at 8:00.

Ayden moved into the semis with a 39-27 upset of Grifton and Bethel got by Farmville, 51-47, after an overtime period.

Bethel came into the tournament seeded third while Ayden was placed seventh.

Nichols, who usually carries the scoring burden, tossed in 28 for high honors while the quick-moving Stepps finished with 11.

Sophomore Mary Pollard, a starter, added nine points and Carolyn Harris six.

Buckets by Pansy Jones and Judy Mills pushed Chicod ahead in the first period but they lost the lead midway the second quarter and trailed over the final half.

Mills pumped in 18 points in leading the losers. James had 14 and Mary Louis Hudson 11.

Slaying from behind with middle quarters of 22 and 17 points, Coach Ed Warren emptied his bench in the waning minutes of the contest.

Bethel favored with scoring star Carolyn Manning and All-County guard Jane Crandall set to lead the way.

Guard Billie Thompson and forward Andrea Harris were instrumental in the Ayden win of Monday night and will again carry Coach Tommy Craft's upset hopes.

Stokes-Pactolus had defeated Grimesland earlier, thus gaining the right to meet Winterville in the quarterfinals.

Tonight's game will find home over the final eight minutes. Lillian Crisp was top scorer for the losers while Linda Warren added 10.

TENSE AS a first grader on his first day at school, Belvoir-Falkland experienced the "tournament jitters" in the first quarter of its nightcap game last night, scoring only four points.

The shock was lost in the second quarter when a couple of jump-shooters—a rarity in girls basketball—laced the nets often to send the Eagles sailing ahead.

Phyllis Nichols, an All-County selection, and reserve Frances Stepp heaped the post-game praise after some nifty outside shooting.

A YOUNG STOKES-PACTOLUS' club outscraped favored Winterville for the most part but failed to produce a consistent scoring punch.

Coach Jack Edwards' defense was able to contain the Carolyn duo of Barnes and Cayton to some degree but his offensive half couldn't score enough to stay in contention.

Barnes, the All-County forward, finished up with 29 points but her scoring average was in jeopardy at times. Running mate Cayton scored the other 16 points for the winners.

Coach Troy Jackson's team led 13-9 after the first period and stretched the gap to 25-13 at halftime.

Despite a tremendous defensive effort by the Blue Jay's Angelene Haddock and Phyllis Barnhill, Winterville moved out of reach in the third period and coasted

G-Men Close Season With Pam Pack Friday

Greenville's Phantoms close out their regular season play Friday at Washington and third place will be up for grabs in the final season battle.

Washington smacked the Phants with a loss in their first meeting.

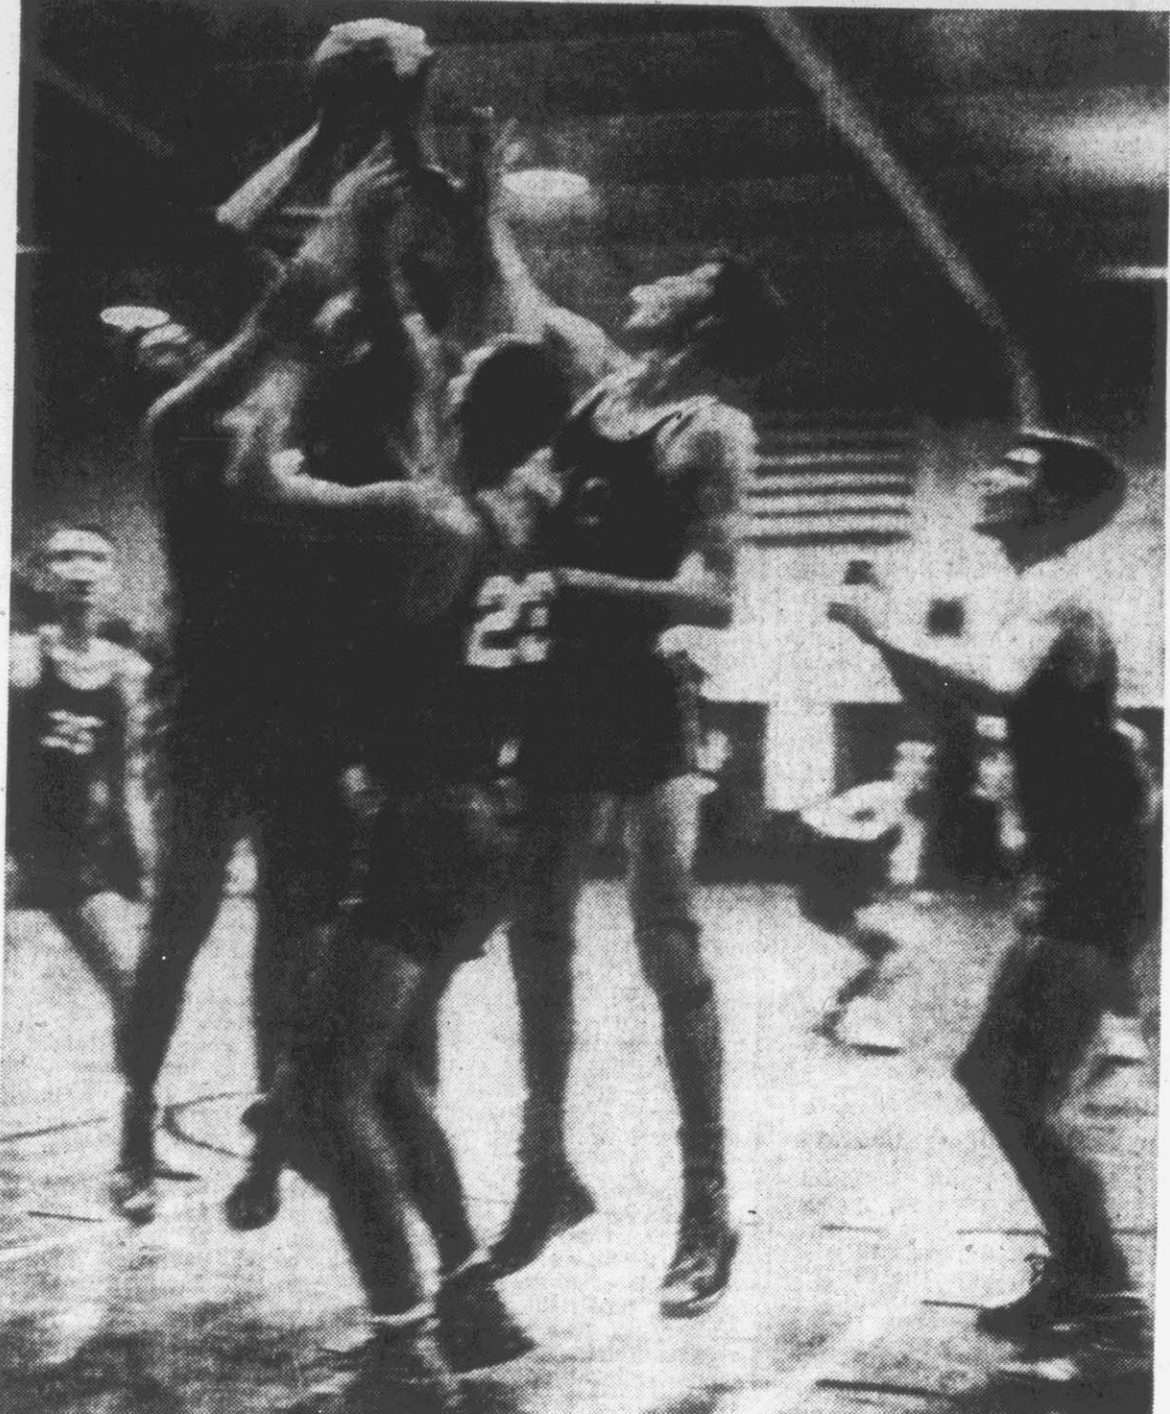

Coach Bo Farley's club carries a 7-6 conference record into the game while Washington is 6-6, losing to New Bern Tuesday night. Greenville lost to Kinston the same night.

Farley has been going with the same starting five most of the season and no change is expected Friday. Starting will be Erskine Duff, Alan McArthur, Layne Jorgensen, John Bynum and Kroghie Andresen.

Billy James, a junior hampered with a hip injury, will be available for spot duty.

Greenville's current 7-6 record is good enough for third place behind Kinston (13-0) and Roanoke Rapids (8-3).

Washington is fourth at 6-6 followed by Tarboro (4-7), Jacksonville (4-8), Elizabeth City (4-8) and New Bern (3-10).

LOT OF HANDS—Players from Bethel and Grimesland scramble for loose ball in last night's boys action won by the top seeded Indians. Players identified are Bethel's Benny Alexander (23) and Jimmy Lewis (35) and Grimesland's Lindsey Hardee (10).

East Carolina Plays Tonight

High Point Upsets Elon; Apps Win In NS Tourney

By KEN ALYTA
LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The North State Conference basketball tournament's first upset wasn't long coming.

High Point, twice beaten by Elon over the regular season, scored twice in the last 10 seconds Wednesday night to trip the Christians 80-78 in the opening game of the first round.

Appalachian lived up to its second seeding in a 107-85 romp over Western Carolina to gain a semi-final spot against High Point at 7:30 Friday night.

The initial round will be completed tonight with East Carolina meeting Atlantic Christian at 7:30 and top-seeded Lenoir Rhyne playing Catawba's defending champions. The winners will play the second game Friday night.

High Point and Elon had shared fourth place with 11-7 records in the regular league campaign. Elon had beaten High Point by 22 points, then by two, but the fourth-seeded spot had gone to High Point in a draw.

Jack Short tipped in the clinching basket for High Point with three seconds to play. Just seven seconds earlier Larry Nolan had stolen the ball and scored the lay-up that tied the count at 78-all for the Panthers.

Phil Garrison's 22 points led High Point, which hit at 54 per cent. Coach Virgil Yow started three freshmen for High Point as he had in recent games and the result was the sixth victory in a row.

Appalachian fell six points shy of the conference scoring record held by Lenoir Rhyne in walloping Western Carolina, a team it had outscored by a total of only 16 points twice before this season.

Western Carolina, relying solely on freshmen and soph, was ranked last in the field. Apps led 56-33 at the half and it was 92-63 when their subs took over for the last six minutes.

Don King's 28 points paced Appalachian, which converted 41 of 49 free throws. Mel Gibson was the WCC-leader with 27.

Lenoir Rhyne, beaten in its last two conference games, posted a 14-4 record with a club built around sophomores. During the season the Beats beat Catawba twice en route to a 14-4 record.

Catawba is 10-8 in league play and unranked. Last year the teams met in the finals, Catawba winning in overtime 59-57.

East Carolina, third seeded, split a pair with unranked Atlantic Christian during the season. ECC turned in a 12-6 conference record against 9-9 for ACC. They score notable victories at home over Lenoir Rhyne on successive nights early in December.

Veteran Players Anxious To Get In Training Camps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Although the spring training season is just starting, veteran ball players apparently can't wait to get into camp — where the meals may be skimpy for overweight athletes, but they're free. Among Wednesday's early arrivals were Willie McCovey, who reported with the first contingent of the San Francisco Giants at Phoenix although he's not due until Monday, and Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles.

Robinson, seven pounds overweight, is one of ten Oriole infielders and outfielders who joined the squad at Miami in advance of the March 1 reporting date to receive special conditioning. McCovey, rookie of the year in 1959, wants to keep his weight at the present 202 pounds. McCovey was one of 14 Giants who reported to their new manager, Al Dark. Pitchers Mike McCormick and Stu Miller and catcher Hobble Landrith were the only other regulars.

Sixteen Cincinnati Reds' pitchers turned out for the opening workouts at Tampa and Manager Fred Hutchinson said one or two may become starting pitchers. Best bet appears to be Joey Jay, who came from Milwaukee in a trade. Hutchinson figures on Bob Purkey, Jim O'Toole, Jay Hook and Jim Maloney as regular starters.

The champion Pittsburgh Pirates had only one player, first baseman Dick Stuart, still unsigned, as their battermen began drills at Fort Myers, Fla. Two of the top rookie prospects in the New York Yankees camp aren't expected to make the team this year unless they can show enough to catch on as regulars. Pedro (Speedy) Gonzales, 22, a second baseman has lived up to his impressive minor league record so far, but he probably will wind up with the Richmond, Va., farm club, where he can play every day. His camp roommate, catcher Jesse Gonder, is more or less in the same position.

The Milwaukee Braves, opening their camp for battermen today with veterans Lew Burdette and Don McMahon still unsigned, indicated they're still after relief specialist Dick Farrell of the Phils.

Kansas State In For Third Crack At NAIA Title

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Counting the Kansas State Wildcats in for their third crack in the last four years at the NAIA basketball championship.

The Wildcats, bidding for their fifth Big Eight title in Winter's eight seasons as head coach, just about put away the NAIA berth Wednesday night when they shrugged off a slow start and whipped arch-rival Kansas, 81-63 at Manhattan, Kan.

The Cats and the Jayhawks, who beat 'em out for the tournament spot in a playoff last year, are tied for the conference lead now with 8-2 records with Iowa State and Colorado, both at 5-5, the closest challengers. But Kansas is out of tournament consideration this year and next because of probationary action by the NAIA. And with three games left with only four left, including home matches with Missouri, Nebraska and Colorado, it doesn't seem possible for the Wildcats to finish.

St. Joseph's (Pa.) moved within one game of nailing the Middle Atlantic Conference's NAIA berth and NIT entries Dayton and DePaul won major tests in other features of the Wednesday program.

St. Joseph's pulled away in the late going for a 92-67 rout of Bucknell.

Dayton, pushing its winning streak to six for a 17-6 record, routed Xavier of Ohio, 94-71 as Garry Roggenbuck scored 24. DePaul, trailing at halftime, fired in 12 straight points soon after the intermission and downed NCAA-bound Louisville 75-67.

LaSalle and Seattle, a couple of tournament possibilities, won again—the LaSalle Explorers (14-5) thumping Lafayette 104-86 and Seattle (15-7) snapped Idaho State's 11-game winning streak, 64-57.

Clyde Rhoden took 11 shots, hit 10 as Arkansas won a Southwest Conference game from TCU 96-76. Maryland won a 77-62 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over Virginia.

Two of the nation's top ten scorers had big nights. East Tennessee's Tom Chilton, who ranks No. 2 with a 31.5 average, scored 33 points and plucked 21 rebounds in an 82-79 triumph over Wofford. Gettysburg's Ron Warner set a school career record of 1,155 points although he's only a junior—netting 30 in an 87-60 rout of Elizabethtown (Pa.)

Florida, challenging for the Southeastern Conference's NAIA berth, nipped non-leaguer Florida State, 75-74, and soph Bill O'Connor's 34 points led Canisius' 83-78 whipping of Syracuse.

Wake Forest, Duke Play In Garden Action Tonite

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A lucky bit of scheduling will give Duke, Wake Forest and St. John's a preview tonight of teams they may play in the NCAA basketball eliminations.

The three are involved in this tripeheader in New York's Madison Square Garden: St. John's vs. Marquette, Duke vs. Seton Hall, and Wake Forest vs. NYU.

St. John's is the at-large entry which will play the Atlantic Coast Conference entry—likely Duke or Wake Forest—at Charlotte March 14 in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

Coach Joe Lapchick of St. John's will have another basis for comparison. Duke and Wake Forest both played Marquette in the Dixie Classic at Raleigh, N.C., in late December. Duke winning and Wake Forest losing.

Duke, 18-4 and rated No. 6 in the nation, meets Seton Hall team "B" 11-8 and has been beaten lately by Niagara, Dayton and Lafayette.

Wake Forest, 14-9 but tied for second in the ACC at 10-3, is favored over NYU, 9-9, if it can escape the Garden jitters.

In the only other game tonight involving an ACC team, North Carolina State, 15-8 in all games, meets a Villanova team that overcame a 14-point halftime deficit to topple State 72-63 in the Dixie Classic. Villanova is 11-9, but has risen to the occasion to beat Niagara, Detroit, West Virginia, Marquette, and Wake Forest 60-56 last Saturday.

Maryland beat Virginia 77-62 last night in the only game involving ACC teams. The Terrapins ran their season record to 12-11 and took fifth place in the conference with a 5-8 mark.

After tonight's games, there will be only two days of competition remaining before the ACC tournament in Raleigh March 2-4. Clemson is at Virginia Friday, and on Saturday Clemson is at Maryland. South Carolina is at Wake Forest and Duke is at North Carolina in an afternoon game that will be televised regionally.

Temple Confident Of Good Season

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — About a month ago, a Cleveland reporter called Johnny Temple at his home in Tampa.

"Did you know that Frank Lane has offered to trade you to Kansas City for Jerry Lumpe and was turned down?" the reporter asked.

"Is that so?" Temple retorted. "Well, Lane is now the general manager at Kansas City. Why don't you call him and ask him whether he would make that same trade now? I'll bet he would."

That should give you an idea of what kind of a player is Temple, confident of his ability and proud of his reputation as one of the best second basemen in the business.

His pride was shattered last season when he was uprooted from his second base position, where he was an established star and stationed at third base where he became a lukewarm hot corner man.

"It was a nightmare," Temple recalled with a shudder. "It killed the whole year for me. It made for a long and unhappy season for me."

Temple, acquired from Cincinnati for Cal McLish, Billy Martin and Gordon Coleman, was batting .300 when he suffered a leg injury in June and was sidelined for a month. When he was ready to return to the lineup a month later, Manager Joe Gordon sent him to third base because Ken Aspromonte, his replacement, had caught fire at the plate and was doing a creditable job at second base.

"It didn't take me long to find out I was no third baseman," said Johnny. "Second base is the only position I know how to play well."

His pride hurt, his leg still far from mended, Temple became a mediocre performer.

That was last year. Johnny looks forward to the new season, his tenth in the majors, with his old eagerness. Aspromonte is gone having been sold to the Washington Senators. Temple figures to be back at second base.

New Records To Fall In AC Meet

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A batch of new records is expected in the Atlantic Coast Conference individual swimming championships. The meet opens here tonight with the 1,500 meter race.

Maryland, North Carolina State and North Carolina wound up in a tie for the team title in dual meets during the regular season.

Time trials will be held Friday afternoon for low board living and events of 50 to 200 yards, with the finals in these events Friday night. Trials for high diving and 100 and 400 yard events will begin Saturday at 10:30 a.m. The finals will be at 4:30 p.m.

North Carolina's Bob Bilbro and Vinny Simonton, Ray Ostrander of Maryland and Jim D'Anna of North Carolina State are four individual champions back from last year's meet. Ostrander won the 100 backstroke and 200 individual medley. D'Anna captured the 100 butterfly. Simonton the 200 butterfly and Bilbro the 200 backstroke.

Prairie View In Top AP Poll Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Prairie View of Texas suffered its first defeat last week after 22 straight victories, but easily retained its lead in The Associated Press' small college basketball poll.

The special panel of sports writers and broadcasters gave Prairie View seven of 10 first place votes and 93 points. Tennessee State (72-4) the leader until last week, was second with one first place vote and 67 points on the 10, 9, 8, 7 etc. basis.

Leaders, with first-place votes and records through Saturday's games in parentheses:

1. Prairie View (7) (22-1) 93
2. Tennessee State (1) (22-4) 67
3. Mississippi South. (1) (19-2) 54
4. Southern Illinois (20-4) 37
5. Hofstra (1) (17-2) 35
6. Northern Michigan (16-2) 24
7. Grambling (25-4) 18
8. Westminster (Pa) (13-3) 18

10. (tie) Maine (16-4) 16
- Calvin (17-0) 10

VPI, Furman Tangle Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Virginia Tech's Gobblers and Furman's Paladins, a couple of teams who agree there's no place like home, tangle tonight. The scrap could have a bearing on four spots in the Southern Conference basketball race.

The Gobblers are shooting for second place in the standings and No. 2 seeding in the conference tournament next week. The Paladins, who have the advantage of being at home, would like to grab the fourth spot.

Tech is 11-3 and can clinch the No. 2 spot with a victory. Should the Gobblers lose, they could be overhauled by The Citadel (9-3), which closes its campaign at home against Davidson Saturday night.

Like the Gobblers, Furman is playing its final league game. The Paladins are 6-6 and could gain ground on Richmond (8-6) by winning. Furman could take over fourth place should Richmond lose its finale Saturday night at William and Mary.

Furman and William and Mary will meet in the tournament first round regardless of which team finishes fourth. But there's a certain prestige value to the higher ranking.

If statistics can be relied on, this should be Furman's night to howl. In compiling a 15-9 over-all record, the Paladins have run up a 12-1 record on their home court at Greenville. They show a poor 3-8 mark for games away from home.

Tech is even more impressive at home, with seven straight victories—and 26 in a row at Blacksburg, Va. The Gobblers are 7-6 on the road in compiling a 14-6 over-all slate.

The Tech-Furman tiff is the only one scheduled tonight for conference teams. All were idle last night.

Pits May Have Last Word In Daytona Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The pits may have the last word in determining the winner of the "Daytona 500" at Daytona International Speedway Sunday.

Pit crews and drivers alike express the belief that the time spent in the pits on each of the stops—nearly all drivers figure on four stops in the 500—could be the difference between winning and losing.

Several experienced trackmen estimated a pit stop would take between 30 and 40 seconds, and using 35 as an average that would mean a car would be in the pits a total of two minutes and 20 seconds.

"The most important thing in the race will be getting in and out of the pits quickly," said Walter (Bud) Moore of Spartanburg, S.C., chief mechanic for Joe Weatherly.

"Anyone who sits in the pits more than 35 seconds for a stop is hurting. That 35 seconds includes tire changes. So many cars are capable of winning they'll be breathing hot right down each other's necks. The pits will be a big factor, probably decisive."

Glenn (Fireball) Roberts, Daytona driver who won the inside pole position for the big race—Weatherly holds the outside pole—echoes Moore's opinion.

"There are 15 or maybe even 20 cars capable of winning," he said. "I believe a 40 second pit stop for a tire change would be a good thing. For just a gas stop, 30 seconds should do."

The cars are limited by NASCAR rules to 22-gallon gas tanks, and get from four to five miles per gallon at peak speeds.

Last year Junior Johnson of North Wilkesboro, N.C., won the Daytona 500 by 23 seconds over Bobby Johns of Miami, Fla., and in the inaugural 500 two years ago Lee Petty of Randleman, N.C., won by inches over Johnny Beauchamp of Harlan, Iowa. Those two races alone give an idea of the value of seconds spent in the pits.

Ray Nichols of Highlands, Ind., veteran Indianapolis chief mechanic, will be in charge of the pitcrew for Paul Goldsmith, one of the two Indianapolis drivers who will compete Sunday as a result of Speedway president Bill France getting FIA sanction for the race. The other is Jim Rathmann of Miami, the 1960 Indianapolis winner.

Nichols figures Goldsmith's pit stops will take about 40 seconds, and on one stop he plans to make a complete tire change as a precaution, regardless of the condition of the rubber. Other pit chiefs will go all the way on one set of tires if the treads don't show dangerous wear.

Tournament winner H. B. Sugg of Farmville placed James Maye on the top five. Others gaining spots were Ray Howard of Bethel Union, Haywood Wyche of Pitt County Training School, Charles Becton of South Arden, and James Ennis of Robinson Union.

Sugg High, also winners in the girls tournament, placed two on the six berth All-County team. They were Helen Walston and Ruth Matthews.

Others named were Margaret Smith of Bethel Union, Mary Carmon of Pitt County Training School, Myrtle Darden of South Arden, and Icerlean Daniels of Robinson Union.

Thompson Heads Golf Seminar

GREENSBORO (AP) — One of golf's longest hitters, Jimmy Thompson, told how he does it at the second annual Carolina PGA business and teaching seminar at the Sedgfield Golf and Country Club here today.

A full day of classes was scheduled.

The featured speaker at the banquet tonight will be National PGA President Lou Strong of Rochester, N.Y.

Roland Proud, pro at the Forsyth Country Club in Winston-Salem, was director of the seminar. Joe Davis of Spartanburg, Carolina PGA president, also appeared on the program.

The Carolina PGA executive committee held its spring meeting during the day.

Palmer, Snead Heading Field

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — With some sunshine expected to help dry out the Sherwood Forest Country Club course, entrants in the $20,000 Baton Rouge Open today took advantage of a day's delay in starting the tournament to get accustomed to the course.

The 72-hole event was due to start today but officials delayed it 24 hours because of weather conditions. It will run through Sunday.

Heading the field will be defending champion Arnold Palmer, fresh from his victory in the Phoenix Open, and the venerable Sam Snead, who set the tourney record here of 275 when he last competed in the event in 1953.

The winter tour's leading money winner, Gary Player of South Africa, will play in a threesome with 1952 winner Jack Burke Jr. and former LSU star Johnny Pott of Shreveport.

Palmer will play with 1959 Baton Rouge winner Howie Johnson, and Doug Ford, who has won more money here over the years than any other golfer.

Harvey Winner In Florida Event

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Bill Harvey of Greensboro, N. C., runner-up in the Tournament of Golf Club Champions last year, was favored to finish first as match play began today in the 29th annual tourney.

Harvey won medal honors with 139 for 36 holes—shooting a four-under-par 67 in Wednesday's second half of the qualifying round. He battled strong southerly winds as well as a select field of challengers on the 6,585-yard Ponce De Leon course.

Ed Brantley of Signal Mountain, Tenn., finished second with 72-68—140 but withdrew from the tourney, saying personal affairs required him to leave.

First-day leaders Larry Beck of Kingston, N.C., and James Paul of Delray Beach, Fla., strayed over par in the second half of qualifying play. Beck finished third with 68-74—142. Paul had 68-75—143, tied with Bob Tomlinson of Jacksonville, Fla., who shot 69-74.

Harvey's first round foe was Roderick Sears of Bryn Mawr, Pa., who qualified at 77-73—150.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

MODERN COLONIAL: Deep windows, simple roofline and colonial casing give the exterior of this three-bedroom, one-story home a colonial look while modern planning provides the interior with convenience. ## Improvement And Repair To Houses Shapes Up 'Big'

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—If the demand for new homes has slackened, the yen for fixing up and enlarging present houses hasn't.

Some eager to cater to this trend optimistically estimate Americans will spend a record $21 billion this year on improvements and repairs.

This would help the economy in general at a time when such aid is welcome.

It also would please makers of all kinds of building materials, home furnishings and appliances, as well as architects, decorators and builders. Sharing the boon would be dealers in lumber, plumbing fixtures, paint, and a fairly newcomer to the scene, the operator of home modernization centers.

The trend also would please various purveyors of credit to the masses—for improvement financing can run all the way from government-approved mortgage loans to advances by your friendly banker or finance company officer.

One of the services the home modernization center offers in a single package is that equally modern device, on-the-cuff financing.

The size of this market compares favorably with new housing put in place. Total spending on nonfarm residential construction in 1959 was put at $22.3 billion by the Bureau of the Census. Farm dwellings added another $819 million.

Those close to the modernization market think its growth has been one reason for the slowdown in building of new houses. The National Retail Lumbermen's Association has been plugging the market, especially since new home building slackened.

Many of its members are getting into the home modernization center business. These are often located on a busy highway with huge signs to lure the passing motorist.

If he stops he's likely to find inside sample kitchen and bathroom layouts, scale models of basement playrooms, sample floor plans and even before-and-after pictures of alteration jobs.

The homeowner explains what he wants, gets a cost estimate, signs a contract—and can get credit arrangements, too. The center then does the rest, from drawing plans, ordering materials and hiring workers.

Withdraws His Name As Choice For Ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP)—Earl E. Smith, Palm Beach financier, has asked President Kennedy to withdraw his name as ambassador to Switzerland. He thus got Kennedy off a diplomatic hook.

Smith's appointment, never formally announced, was criticized strongly in the Swiss press. It drew some adverse comment at home, too.

A republican, Smith was ambassador to Cuba in the Eisenhower administration until just after Fidel Castro took over. He was quickly replaced there by a career diplomat.

Castro said Smith was too friendly with Fulgencio Batista, the dictator Castro overthrew. Since the United States broke diplomatic relations with Cuba recently, the Swiss have been handling U. S. interests in Havana at U. S. request. Much of the Swiss criticism apparently centered on this factor—that the new appointment of Smith might cause embarrassment and difficulty in carrying out these duties for the United States.

Smith's appointment to Havana was regarded as a political appointment. During his election campaign, Kennedy often struck out at political payoffs in the naming of ambassadors.

There was some surprise, therefore, when it became known here that Smith was Kennedy's choice for the Swiss post.

But Smith is a long time friend and neighbor of the Kennedy family at the Florida resort. While vacationing there before taking office, Kennedy played golf with Smith several times.

The Swiss government did not openly oppose Smith, but its cabinet delayed approval of him and made it clear it would rather have someone else. Ambassadorial nominations are never submitted to the Senate until the host government has indicated the nominee is welcome.

All this presented Kennedy with a rather tricky problem. If he withdrew Smith's name himself, he would have risked charges that he knuckled under to Castro's displeasure.

But Smith provided the graceful way out by his announcement Wednesday night at his Florida home. He said he asked the White House to withdraw his name "because of the controversy that has been stimulated."

Kennedy said in a statement "I nominated Mr. Smith because I felt he had the qualities to be an effective representative of our country. It is still my view. I therefore accept his decision with real regret. I hope that at some future time he can be again of service to our country."

JOINS COMMUNISM

LONDON (AP)—Roland W. Casasola, a former member of the labor party's national executive council, said Wednesday he has resigned as a Laborite and has joined the Communist party. Casasola charged the party leadership, headed by Hugh Gaitskell, has gradually "whittled away the basic principles of peace and socialism in which the real strength of the party lies."

HOLLYWOOD'S BIRDMAN

Outside his home A. W. Kennard works with his cockatoo act. The birds are trained to ride a merry-go-round of sorts, work a teeter-totter, pull a string to fire a cannon, and push a small cart.

Birdman A. W. Kennard and his prize bird, a trained cockatoo named "Corky." The bird is pure white with a touch of yellow on the underside of his wings and a beautiful chrome yellow comb.

Seated in hallway of home, Kennard lets different types of birds fly around and get used to him.

Whenever a Hollywood movie studio needs birds to act, like doing tricks, playing dead, or just chirping a tune, it almost invariably turns to A. W. Kennard, a bird trainer who operates a Bird Wonderland at his home in Thousand Oaks, just north of Los Angeles.

Kennard has been training birds for the stage, screen, TV and nightclubs for years. His feathered performers range from the tiny sparrow and canary to the more robust macaw and cockatoo.

At times, Kennard has to supply birds on short notice. For quick training he has converted a hallway of his home into a cage. There, with the doors shut and a small light burning, he sits for hours until the birds become thoroughly accustomed to him and learn to take his orders.

In one cage he keeps as many as 800 canaries. He'll sometimes get an order from a studio to furnish several hundred birds for a scene or several birds that are good singers.

An actor will often go to Kennard's place to get to know the birds with which he's going to perform. Burt Lancaster, one of Kennard's most recent visitors, was playing the part of a prisoner who catches and trains birds in his cell.

The biggest problem in training birds for the movies, Kennard declares, is to train the actors to relax with the birds. "You would be surprised," he says, "at the number of actors here who are scared stiff of a bird. They say the bird will peck the eyes out."

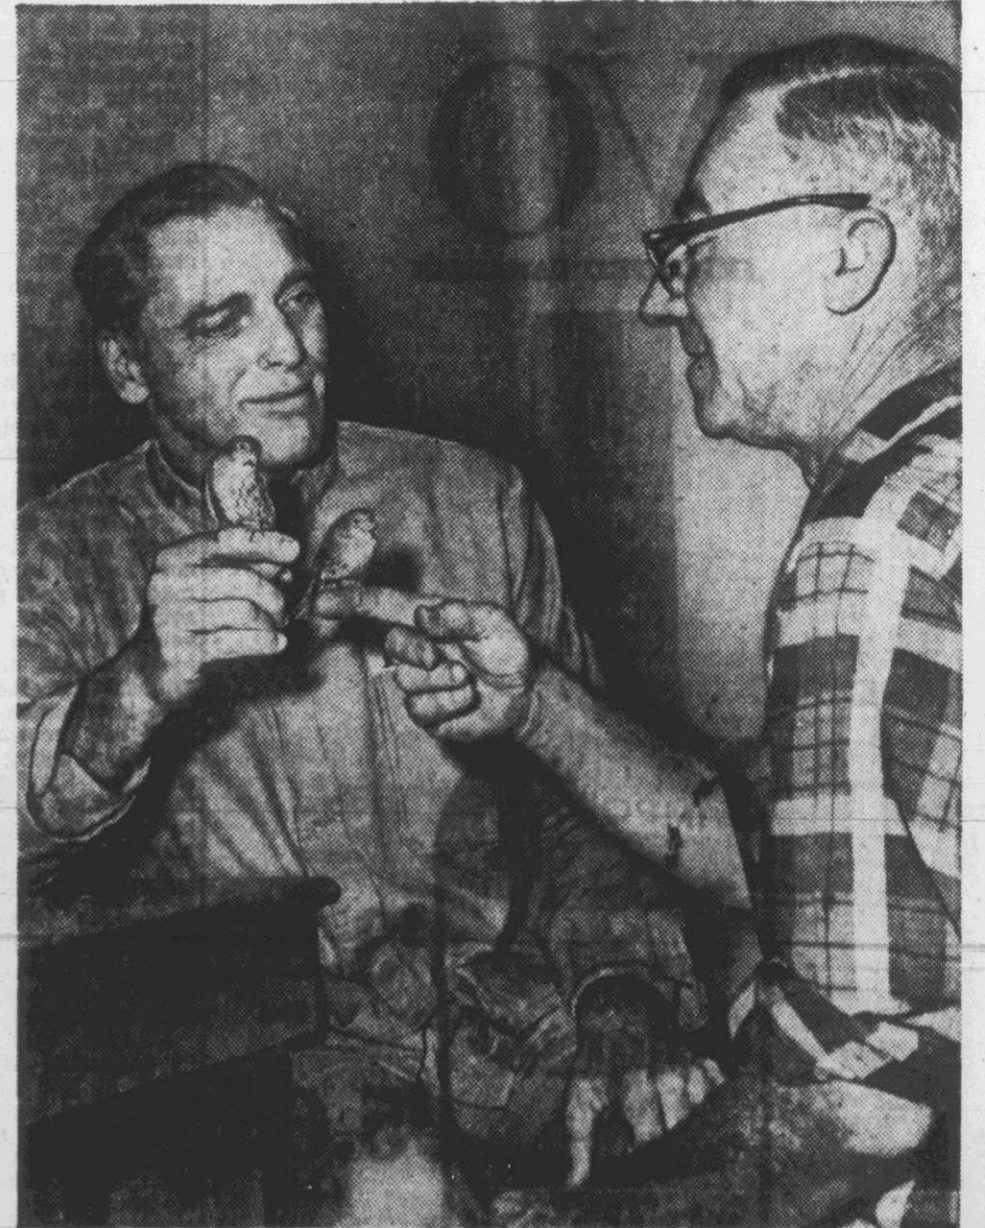

Here in the canary cage Kennard spends many hours just sitting with lettuce leaves on his knees as he lets the birds light on him and become used to his presence.

Kennard and wife Dorothy train a canary to walk a rope. Takes a lot of patience, he says.

He teaches a bird to lie on its back. Because of back's bone structure, this is difficult trick for bird.

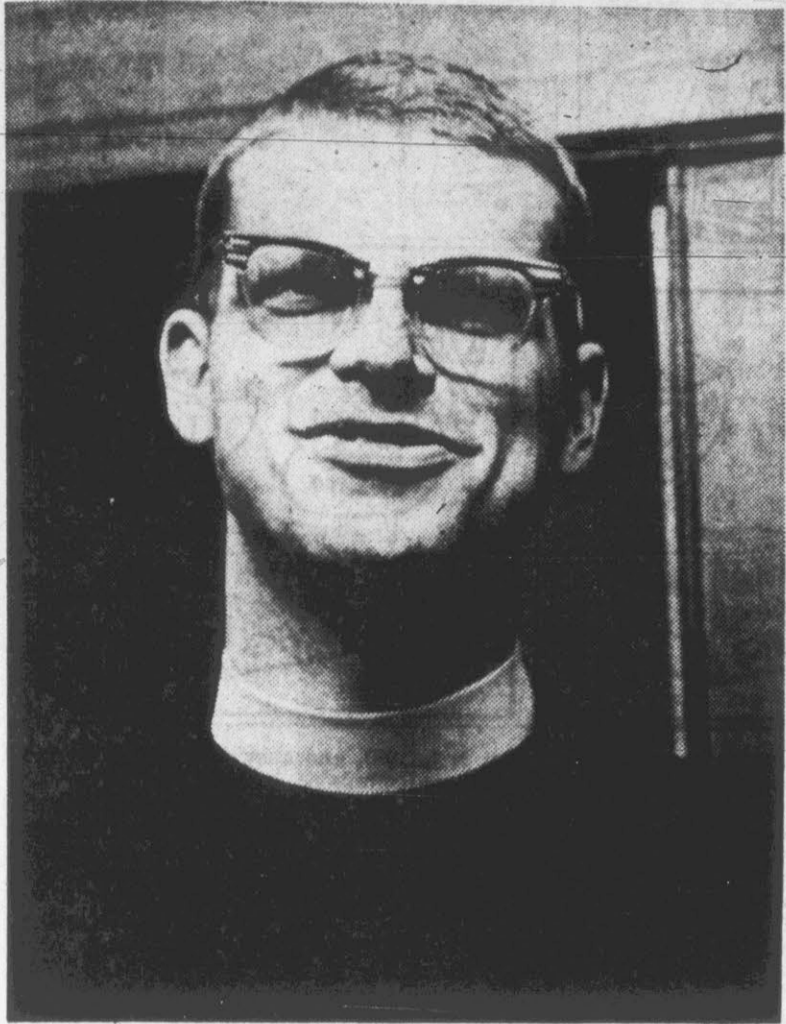

Two trained linnets find perch on fingers of actor Burt Lancaster and trainer Kennard. Birds will act in new film with Lancaster who has part of prisoner who catches and trains birds in cell.

Seeing Results Of Labors Means Much To Minister

REV. TERRY AGNER . . . of Our Redeemer church.

READING . . . one of Rev. Agner's hobbies.

CHECKING PLANS . . . for the congregation's new building.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Working with people and "seeing the results of your labors" are two things which mean a great deal to the Rev. Terry Agner, pastor of "Our Redeemer" Lutheran Church here.

Rev. Agner, born in High Point, attended school in Spencer, then went to Lenoir - Rhyne College where he majored in Christian Education. Following his graduation there, he entered the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettesburg, Pa., where he graduated in May of 1958.

According to Rev. Agner, he received a call from the Board of American Missions following his graduation and, after his ordination on June 8, 1958, came to Greenville on June 11 to establish a Lutheran mission here.

His primary purpose in setting up a mission was the organization of a congregation, and the establishing of a church, both of which he has done.

The church at present has 65 adult members and 45 children, and is making plans to build a sanctuary on the church's lot at the intersection of Elm St. and Overlook Drive. According to Rev. Agner, it is hoped that construction of the church will be started before the end of the year.

The minister's duties, which are varied, include mainly "preaching and teaching, . . . working with the Lutheran College student, and administrative and programming" activities.

It is "difficult to say what I like best," Rev. Agner stated, but noted there is a great deal of "personal satisfaction. . . joy, in seeing a family, which has never been active, become active in the church. Working with a family, . . . seeing the results of your labors" is very encouraging.

Noting that "personal communication" takes a large part of his time, Rev. Agner said he enjoys the "personal contact with people . . . talking with them and sharing their ideas and problems." "People open up more in personal contact", he noted.

Rev. Agner reflected, "It is a big challenge in an area that doesn't have another congregation to supply people to draw on" but he emphasized it is "a privilege to be the only representative in the community." He added that in a community, like Greenville, where the people are so friendly, "it makes you want to work that much harder."

Rev. Agner, who married the former Janice Clodfelter of Statesville in August of 1959, is a member of the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce and is president of the Greenville Ministerial Association.

His hobbies include hiking and sampling, photography and reading.

Chief Resigns Under Fire

TOKYO (AP) — Tokyo's police chief, Ken Ogura, resigned today. He had been under fire because of an upsurge of ultra-rightist terrorism.

Ogura had been police chief for two and a half years. The National Public Safety Commission accepted his resignation and sent it to the cabinet for approval.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

A couple of weeks ago I described the new Rollaprint device whereby contact prints can be made in room light in 10 seconds. Following instructions, my first test prints came out yellowish and mottled.

Since then, a press demonstration of the device was held and I made further tests which reveal how better prints can be made. It is a matter of timing.

When the operator is too slow and cautious in rolling the prints through, the mottled tone appears. When the roller handle is turned fairly rapidly and steadily, the tone is correct.

It takes only six to seven seconds from the moment the exposed contact print is inserted in the first groove, developed and fixed. It requires no washing and dries in a few minutes.

For those who missed the original announcement, the Rollaprint is a white plastic box about the size of a cigar box which is its own compact "dark room" for making contact prints. It has a tray contact printer and two inner trays which hold the extremely rapid developer and stabilizer solutions.

The special contact paper, 3 1/4 x 4 1/4 inches, after an exposure of several seconds, is guided through the two trays by three sets of interlocking rubber rollers before it emerges as a finished print.

The Rollaprint is an ingenious device but it does not solve all contact print-making needs. It is limited to one size and only one grade of paper. It does its best job when the negatives to be printed are of average contrast and density, and large enough to be seen and studied. Not so satisfactory are high contrast negatives and strips of 35mm film.

However, the press showing also revealed future developments in the Rollaprint field with interesting possibilities for 35mm camera fans. They demonstrated a fixed focus enlarger which produces jumbo enlargements from 35mm negatives or color slides in normal room light.

Somewhat larger than a shoe box, the device has a vertical slit near one end in which a film holder fits. A strip of 35mm film is put into this film-holder. When the enlarger light is switched on, any frame of the strip is automatically focused on the end of the box to make a 2 1/4 x 4 inch enlargement.

When a single frame has been selected, the enlarger light is switched off and the special Rollaprint contact print paper is put in place. It is exposed for several

OUT OF THE DARKROOM and into the light comes this new device to make contact prints in seconds. The Rollaprint will also process jumbo enlargements from 35mm films in the near future.

Same Qualifications In Kennedy's Selections

By LEWIS GULICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has been picking new ambassadors with about the same language qualifications as former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's ambassadors.

A check of Kennedy's 13 announced choices of men to represent America at foreign capitals showed today that: Eight speak a language native to or commonly used in the countries to which they are sent—five do not. Their Eisenhower predecessors had the same ratio of language qualifications.

seconds, according to its density, then processed in the same manner as a contact print. The end result is a jumbo enlargement of the 35mm negative within seconds.

It can also be done with a color transparency but it requires an extra step. Instead of the paper going into place, a special film sheet, 3 1/4 x 4 1/4, is inserted. This is unaffected by ordinary room light but is exposed for several seconds by the enlarger light.

The film is then processed in the contact-print machine. It comes out as a damp, black-and-white negative. When dry, in minutes, a contact print can be made in seconds so that the final result is a black-and-white enlargement from the original color slide.

National distribution of the Rollaprint contact-printer has started as of this month (February). However, it is estimated it will take a couple of months before the jumbo enlarger and special film become available.

Kennedy also has been selecting about the same proportion of career men as Eisenhower.

In "U. S. government parlance a "career" ambassador is a person picked from the career foreign service while a "political" ambassador is anyone else, whatever his merits. Some "political" ambassadors, however, have had a great deal of diplomatic experience.

For example, David K. E. Bruce, a wealthy Democrat who was Eisenhower's ambassador to West Germany and is now going to London for Kennedy, has had extensive diplomatic experience and enjoys a high rating from career diplomats.

Seven of the Kennedy appointments are career diplomats, six are political appointees.

The 13 Eisenhower envoys replaced include six career diplomats, seven political appointees. Kennedy, whose father was a politically appointed ambassador to London, raised the issue of the competency of U. S. ambassador in his campaign for the presidency last year.

"I believe it incumbent upon the next president of the United States," he said, to appoint "the best people he can get, ambassadors who can speak the language—not merely people who make a political contribution, but can speak the language."

Spaniards began to settle Venezuela and develop its agricultural resources in the 16th Century.

Just 100 Years Ago Today Abraham Lincoln Quietly Arrived In Capital

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER
WASHINGTON (AP)—One hundred years ago today, at 6 o'clock in the morning, President-elect Abraham Lincoln stole into Washington.

No bands played. No crowds surged against police lines. Indeed, there was no semblance to the tumultuous receptions to which presidents-elect were then and are now accustomed. No one, almost, was there to greet him. Lincoln, nine days before his inauguration, had not wanted to enter the city of his political destiny in stealth. Friends, however, feared for his life. They were terrified by reports that rebel-sympathizers in Baltimore were plotting to assassinate him. They persuaded him to creep through Maryland by night train, when no one would know he was aboard. Lincoln lived through it all right. He lived to rue it. There really had been nothing to fear, his enemies said. Was the nation to be led in perilous times by a "spineless" rail-splitter from Illinois?

A reporter wired his newspaper that Lincoln slipped into Washington wearing a spotted plaid cap and a very long military cloak, so that he was entirely unrecognizable. Historians insist this just wasn't so. Lincoln did acknowledge donning a soft wool hat on his journey to Washington, but said it was a gift from a friend in New York.

Lincoln's critics were elated. Cartoons depicted "the flight of Abraham." Lincoln was ridiculed as a coward who would stoop to disguise himself in woman's clothes.

Those were perilous times. There was no secret service as we know it today. Troops of Virginia, soon to join the Confederacy, drilled on a countryside overlooking a capital secured only by the local militia and a handful of regulars. Maryland, through which Lincoln would travel, was alive with men who pictured Lincoln as a demon. Gov. Thomas H. Hicks advocated union of all the states and had been threatened for his beliefs. Baltimore Police Marshal George P. Kane was an open secessionist. Only a few weeks earlier he had scoffed at rumors that assassins were aiming a knife at Lincoln. A lie, Kane said, concocted by barroom rowdies.

This was 1861, a year of tension almost unbelievable in 1961. Lincoln set out from his home in Springfield, Ill., on Feb. 11. En route to Washington he met the people, talked with political leaders—in essence, cultivated support for his administration. He made 20 speeches, conferred with five governors. In some places he was greeted with polite demonstrations in others with elaborate but tepid courtesies. In Philadelphia, on Feb. 21, he was greeted with a warning.

Allan Pinkerton, the detective, said he and his men had uncovered what "beyond the shadow of a doubt" was an assassination plot. Among the instigators, he informed Lincoln, was a barber named Ferdinand and another named Hill. Ferdinand, Pinkerton said, but decidedly did not like Lincoln.

"I am here to help in outwitting the assassins," Pinkerton announced.

Frederick W. Seward, son of the senator who would become Lincoln's secretary of state, arrived that night from Washington with a similar report. He urged Lincoln to cancel dates in Philadelphia and Harrisburg the next day and head immediately for Washington, without notice. So did railroad executives Norman P. Judd and Samuel M. Felton. Lincoln refused. On Feb. 22 he raised the flag at Independence Hall, went to Harrisburg, made two speeches, attended a reception and hotel banquet. There he finally yielded to Judd and Felton, but reluctantly.

"What would the nation think of its president stealing into its capital like a thief in the night?" he asked.

The night ride began in a one-car train. Ward Hill Lamon, with whom Lincoln once practiced law in Illinois, was the president-elect's only companion. Lamon carried two pistols, two derringers and two large knives. The train was blacked out. Harrisburg was cut off from the world. Telegraph wires had been disconnected.

Pinkerton directed a cloak and dagger melodrama in Philadelphia. He whisked Lincoln and Lamon by carriage from one depot to another. A lady detective had reserved berths in the rear car of the New York-Washington train one for her "invalid brother." Lincoln was the "brother."

Pinkerton did not realize that another passenger on the car packed a revolver. This was John A. Kennedy, New York Police superintendent, who likewise did not realize the company he was in. Kennedy was on his way to Washington to make sure Lincoln would be carefully guarded through Maryland the next day. At 3:30 a.m. the train pulled into Baltimore. During a layover of more than an hour, a drunk reeled and sang "Dixie" on the platform. There was no incident. At 6 a.m. the train reached Washington. A stranger to Lamon strode up to Lincoln and said, "You can't play that on me." Lamon swung into action but was checked by Lincoln, who recognized the man as Rep. Elihu Washburne of Illinois. Washburne was a one-man reception committee, suggested by Senator Seward. Later that day the presidential special from Harrisburg arrived as scheduled in Baltimore. It was met with thunderous yells—for Jeff Davis and the Confederacy—and boos for the man who wasn't there. Lincoln had been spirited into Washington.

Censorship Threat Raised Abroad For Broadcasters

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The broadcasting industry, already under attack from many quarters, now has a new worry: Threat of formal censorship. It has joined the motion picture and publishing industries in an effort to re-open a new Supreme Court decision, even though its lawyers don't think TV and radio are immediately involved.

The decision was one upholding the right of local and state censorship boards to preview a film before permitting it to be shown in theaters. "There are dangerous potentials," said Douglas Anello, chief counsel for the National Association of Broadcasters. "Whenever you impose censorship in one medium, it might spread to another. The whole idea of prior restraint is abhorrent. And if this case (the one on which the decision was based) stands, it is conceivable that Congress could pass a law requiring the submission of TV film to the Federal Communications Commission or some other place before it was broadcast."

The decision comes at a time when broadcasting is in serious trouble, its public favor "is dangerously low," said former Gov. LeRoy Collins of Florida, new NAB president, in a recent speech.

Farmer Trapped Gasoline Thieves

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Oren Thompson summoned the sheriff to his farm home to apprehend thieves who had filched gasoline from his tractor fuel tanks.

They'll be somewhere nearby, he assured Sheriff Hugh Campbell Monday night.

Sure enough, down the road about a mile, Campbell came upon four youths in an auto stalled with four flat tires and a conked out engine.

The farmer told Campbell he had been laying for gasoline thieves. He set a trap by placing a plank driven full of spikes in a driveway near the tanks, and switching gasoline to a tank labeled "fuel oil" and fuel oil to a tank labeled "gasoline."

The youths were charged with petty larceny.

BAN ARMS SHIPMENTS

BONN, Germany (AP)—The Bundestag made punishable by fine or imprisonment any unauthorized manufacture or transport of military weapons to troubled areas endangering peace. The measure, passed Wednesday, now goes to the upper house where approval is regarded as certain.

Pickets March To Protest Talk By Navy Expert

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A group of persons, identifying themselves as Youth for Nuclear Disarmament, Wednesday picketed the director of the Navy's fleet ballistic missile program spoke. The pickets, who said they are calling for a halt to the U.S. and Soviet arms build-up, marched in the rain past a full-sized model of the Polaris outside the institute. Several of the pickets, most of whom were college students, carried placards. The picketing was peaceful.

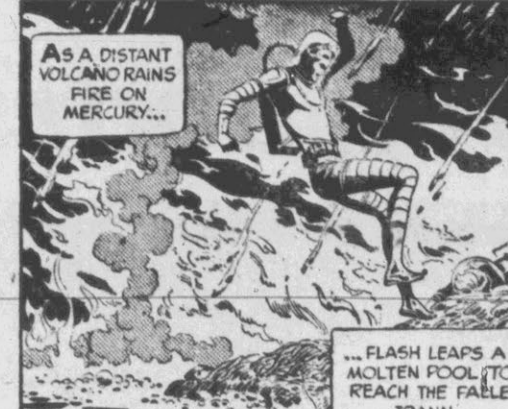

Speaking before a joint meeting of the Franklin Institute and Engineering Societies, Vice Adm. William F. Raborn said the Polaris is the most powerful weapon ever conceived and a major deterrent to war.

Earlier, at a news conference, Raborn said that by 1964 atomic submarines carrying the Polaris will be able to hit any spot on the earth.

Space Capsule Is Found Unharmed

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A Project Mercury man-in-space capsule, apparently in excellent condition after a punishing rocket ride, was returned here today for minute examination.

List Reminders For Health Week

Here are daily suggestions by the N. C. Joint Council on Health Citizenship for individuals during Tuberculosis Emphasis Week, sponsored jointly by the council and the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association in cooperation with city and county schools:

THURSDAY — Clean house thoroughly. Soap and water are cheap and they offer a protection against TB. Remember that dirt and filth harbor germs.

FRIDAY — Read all the facts possible on tuberculosis. Keep in mind that one of every three Americans has the TB germ in his system. Keep body resistance high with good nutrition, proper clothing and adequate housing. Guard yourself.

SATURDAY — Remind all the people you know of the danger of tuberculosis. It is the number one killer of all the diseases caused by germs. It strikes every seven minutes, kills every 34 minutes. Complete cleaning and all unfinished projects. Children are out of school today. Use them to help finish the job.

Kinston Editor And Publisher Honored On His 80th Birthday

NO TAXPAYERS' MONEY INVOLVED

—PARIS (AP)—A spokesman at U. S. Army European Command (Eucom) headquarters said today that no taxpayers' money had been earmarked for an expansion and remodeling job at its officers' club.

The spokesman said the cost of the project was to have been met by club dues and profits.

President Kennedy killed plans Tuesday to expand the club. It was part of Kennedy's program to help curb the outflow of dollars which has strained the U. S. balance of payments. Kennedy said he acted after receiving information about the club project from an unidentified woman.

Reports from Washington said the project was to have cost $200,000. Officials at Eucom refused to confirm or deny the figure.

A spokesman said the woman must have been acting on inaccurate information when she suggested part of the money for the improvement project was coming from government funds. Instead, he said, the project was to have been paid for from the $5 monthly dues paid by club members and from club profits, realized from sale of drinks and meals and slot machine profits.

The spokesman made these other points in answer to a reporter's question:

Repair work on the club is necessary from a sanitary standpoint. The plumbing is leaking and there are holes in the ceiling.

More Rain Over Eastern Carolina

RALEIGH (AP) — New rains over central and eastern North Carolina will prolong minor flooding on the Neuse and Cape Fear rivers, the U. S. Weather Bureau said today.

Moderate to heavy showers Wednesday night and this morning may be sufficient in some cases to raise stages on the already swollen rivers, said the bureau's station at Raleigh-Durham Airport.

Traffic Toll

Consider Wage Bill Discussion

RALEIGH (AP) — A group of General Assembly members is discussing the possibility of holding informal meetings to develop bills which would "improve" the state's minimum wage law.

Randolph County Sen. Sam Burrow said the group would consist of House and Senate members "friendly to the minimum wage."

Burrow and others introduced the 1959 minimum wage bill which was enacted after long and bitter argument.

Hearing Slated On Bond-Jumper

NEW YORK (AP) — A hearing for the Rev. Walter M. Cavert, 51, in his fight to avoid extradition to Rock Hill, S. C., has been tentatively set for March 2.

The Negro integrationist had been scheduled for a hearing today in his fight to avoid return to South Carolina, where he faces an 18-month jail sentence.

York County, S. C., Sheriff Grover Noe said he was notified by the Queens County district attorney's office of the delay in the hearing for the Rev. Mr. Cavert. He has skipped $5,000 bond posted before his unsuccessful appeal of the sentence imposed for reckless homicide in the traffic death of an 83-year-old white man at York, S. C., three years ago.

The bond was arranged by Harvey W. Maners, Rock Hill car dealer whose car Cavert was test-driving at the time.

Cavert, of Charlotte, charged that last Feb. 3, after he had won postponement of the extradition hearing until today, Maners met him outside the Queens County Court and assaulted him, in an effort to kidnap him to South Carolina.

Maners denied it, saying, "To me it looked like a prearranged thing."

On Feb. 10, Queens County Magistrate Bert Koehler Jr. refused the minister's request for a kidnap warrant against Maners, noting that the law does not forbid a bondsman "from coping in and taking his principal."
