Peace Officers Told No Higher Calling In Duty

"There is no higher calling" than the enforcement of the law, Judge William J. Bundy told members of the Pitt County Peace Officers Association last night at the group's annual dinner meeting.

Judge Bundy, Resident Judge of the Third Judicial District, told the lawmen it is a "high calling in which you are engaged."

The jurist explained that "elected representatives make the laws that govern us . . . but they are not worth the paper they are written on except for law enforcers."

"Justice has no chance of existing without lawmen," he stated, and questioned, "what good are laws unless they are executed?"

"It is not the idea," of the officer, Judge Bundy said, "to punish people. Their purpose is to protect human rights and privileges."

"Be rewarded with the knowledge within you," he told the officers, "that you are promoting the ends of justice."

Law enforcement is "often a thankless task." "Officers could be making more money in another calling but it just gets in your way, rendering a service to the community in which you live. In all sincerity," Judge Bundy stated, "when man has done that," he should be rewarded.

Soviet Acts To Harass UN Operations In Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union pressed today for an immediate report on United Nations progress in forming military and political advisers out of the Congo.

In a move obviously intended to harass the U.N. operation in the Congo and Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin complained Thursday that three days had passed since the Security Council adopted its new peace plan for the Congo but council members had been given no information on withdrawal measures.

The Soviets did not endorse the peace plan originally, abstaining when the council voted. And Zorin's arithmetic was in error, since he wrote two days after the council action early Tuesday.

The resolution authorized U.N. troops to use force if necessary to end fighting in the Congo and called for reorganization of the Congo army along nonpolitical lines as well as withdrawal of Belgian and other foreign military and political personnel not attached to the U.N. But Zorin ignored the other features of the plan and declared: "The subversive activity of Belgian personnel and mercenaries still remains the chief cause of tension in the Congo."

The Soviet delegate, who is boycotting Hammarskjold, directed his protest to Sir Patrick Dean of Britain, Security Council president for February.

Hammarskjold met Thursday for the third time with his Congo advisory committee to discuss ways of putting the peace plan into effect. He scheduled another meeting for today.

So far no announcements have emerged from these meetings, but reports from the Congo pictured the U.N. command there as cautiously optimistic about ending the civil war.

Brig. Gen. Paul Ward, commander of U.N. forces in North Katanga, met Thursday with President Moise Tshombe of the secessionist Congo province.

Ward then left for rebel-held Manono, where he was expected to seek neutralization of pro-Lumumbist rebel forces sent in by Antoine Gizenga's rebel regime in Stanleyville.

The Katanga government admitted its troops were still on the offensive against Baluba tribesmen in central Katanga even though Tshombe reached a pact with the U.N. to halt troop movements likely to cause friction. A Katanga spokesman claimed "our troops are only advancing in the Bukama area and as they are not meeting any opposition they can't really be said to be fighting."

Deputy Sheriff James Sasser said Mrs. Waters' husband, a civilian employe at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, found the body when he returned from work about 8 p.m.

Mrs. Waters was alone in the house in the Adamsville section east of here. The couple had no children.

Mrs. Waters had been stabbed four times. Her throat was slashed and her head badly beaten.

Officers recovered a butcher-knife and a wooden ice mallet, believed to be the death weapons, which the killer apparently tried to wash in the kitchen sink.

No Arrests In Wayne Killing

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Authorities said today no arrests have been made in the slaying of Mrs. Billy Waters, whose body, beaten and stabbed, was found in her home near here Thursday night. She was about 25.

Deputy Sheriff James Sasser said Mrs. Waters' husband, a civilian employe at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, found the body when he returned from work about 8 p.m.

Officers recovered a butcher-knife and a wooden ice mallet, believed to be the death weapons, which the killer apparently tried to wash in the kitchen sink.

Neighbors reported having seen a strange car in the driveway of the Waters home about 4 p.m. There was evidence of a scuffle at the doorway and in the living room and kitchen, where the body was found.

Mrs. Waters was an employe of a Goldsboro bank but had not worked for several days because of illness. She was an honor graduate of Princeton High School in Johnston County.

Plan Completion Of 5 Big Housing Projects

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Housing Administration announced today it has entered into an agreement with the Defense Department for completion of construction of five military housing projects.

The prime contractor, Hal B. Hayes, halted work on the projects last May. He said he had been misled and had bid too low and was unable to complete the jobs.

Involved are projects at Beale Air Force Base in California; Ellsworth AFB in South Dakota; Nike Village, Ft. Bliss, Tex.; Grand Forks AFB in North Dakota; and Camp Lejeune, Marine Base, N.C.

FHA said it has received undistributed proceeds of the mortgage loans involved and will make these funds available to the Defense Department.

The Defense Department, the FHA said, will arrange for construction to be completed in accordance with approved plans and specifications.

"Having been unable to agree upon a settlement with the sureties, it is anticipated that the FHA will submit to the Department of Justice the matter of protecting and preserving the rights of the government under the payment and performance bonds," the FHA said.

James B. Cash, acting FHA commissioner, said this means the government will seek to recover any losses which might be involved when Hayes quit work.

There was no indication how soon construction would be resumed.

Cash said Continental Casualty Co. of Chicago held most of the surety bonds.

TAKES YOUNG BRIDE

ACQUIL, Italy (AP)—Francesco Oddone, a retired journalist, was married at nearby Ovada Thursday to Raimonda Remy Gario. The bridegroom is 81, the bride 23.

Both Democrats and Republicans have long set their sights on each other, but the battle is now in the open.

A peace treaty is nowhere in sight.

Though only a skirmish had been noted a few days ago, the second "battle" of the 1961 session of the House could be termed more of a major encounter.

Shots in the second battle were fired first by the Democratic soldiers from the left.

McLaughlin immediately came to the aid of the Republican side.

next round in his seldom-imitated oratorical tone.

The Republican recruit from Burke, Rep. Dan R. Simpson, returned the volley with another blast of oratory.

Verbal battles are seldom waged without a last word from the "little woman" and in this case the Republican lady from Alexander, Rep. Tressie Fletcher, fired the final round of ammunition for her team.

The bloody attack went thusly: House Speaker Joe Hunt recognized Rep. McLaughlin who had risen to fire.

"If it hadn't been for the People of Eastern North Carolina we might have been in the 'disappearing scallywag days of the nineteenth century,'" resounded McLaughlin.

Continuing to explain that the eastern section of North Carolina kept the state from "going Republican," the Iredell candidate for Purple Heart, after his House wounds, ceased fire by saying that he wanted "to thank the people of North Carolina" for electing the Democrats.

To the rescue of McLaughlin, who apparently was choked with emotion, came the cavalry in the nick of time and in the person of Cuzzin' Wayland, charger from Bertie: "I'm not used to nice, fine, dressed-up Republicans like we see here today," said Rep. Spruill, gesturing to the staunch troop of fifteen Republican representatives in the House.

the Republican flanks and the day's battle with honor volley aimed, specifically at Bertie's battler.

Both sides retired to lick their wounds, but it is not expected that the wounds will be permanently healed.

Anyone selling tickets to the House fracas could have made a fortune.

Voting the Republican ticket, Rep. Spruill solemnly declared, is "an unforgivable sin in my county."

To the fifteen Republican fighters, Soldier Spruill said, "I love you; you are all right; but you just got off on the wrong track."

Rep. Simpson immediately manned his battle station and took careful aim. Letting go with one cannonball, he charged:

"Mr. Speaker, if my wife loved me that way, I'd leave home." And Mrs. Fletcher closed the Republican flanks and the day's battle with honor volley aimed, specifically at Bertie's battler.

Airports Hum As Strike Is Ended; Flights Resume

NEW YORK (AP) — Airports around the nation hummed with activity again today and the big passenger planes zoomed into the air in increasing numbers with the end of a flight engineers' strike.

The six-day work stoppage, worst tieup in American aviation history, cost crippled airlines an estimated $40 million.

Many more millions were lost by vacation resorts and industries connected with air travel. Railroads and bus lines reaped an unexpected revenue harvest, however.

Travel plans of an estimated 500,000 persons were affected during the shutdown period. Many of them were stranded away from home when the strike began, and had difficulties obtaining alternate transportation.

With whine of big jets and the roar of propeller-driven aircraft once more heard on the runways, Pan American World Airways was the first to restore full service. It announced this morning that operations were back to 100 per cent.

Other lines ranged downward to as low as 30 per cent. Some said it might take them a day or two more to get all schedules going again.

Miami Beach estimated its revenue loss at $3 million a day during the strike. So did the Caribbean area including Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the Bahamas.

The end of the strike was announced personally Thursday by President Kennedy.

Flight engineers agreed to go back to work immediately while a presidential commission started work on finding a way of remedying the basic cause of their strike.

The men are members of the Flight Engineers International Association.

Kennedy made the announcement late Thursday at the White House. At his side was Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, who had a large part in bringing about the end of the walkout.

For Goldberg it was the second major strike he has had a personal hand in settling since he took office a month ago. His very first task was to end a strike of railroad ferrymen in New York City that had virtually cut off commuter rail service.

Six airlines — Pan American, American, Trans World, Eastern, National, and Flying Tigers — began cranking up their operations Thursday night. All were resuming many flights today and expected to be back to normal by Saturday or Sunday.

Western Air Lines, one of those struck by the engineers, refused to join the agreement.

Western's situation was left somewhat hazy. The line did countermand orders furloughing 1,300 nonstriking employes. But Western said nothing new about its flight engineers.

That apparently left in force Western's announcement that the engineers would be hired and supplemented by pilots.

On the other hand Robert Hicks, spokesman for Western's flight engineers, said the men had been assured by Goldberg they would be included in the back-to-work settlement.

Western had announced it was firing its 130 flight engineers and hiring qualified pilots to replace them. This stand for a time held up agreement to end the walkout on the other lines, with the union insisting the Western engineers had to be reinstated first.

But Kennedy amended his order setting up the three-man study commission to include Western. Ronald A. Brown, head of the engineers' union, said he considers that the inclusion of Western in the presidential order means the engineers should be reinstated.

"I assume they are not going to defy the President," Brown said.

The cause of the strike was not wages, but union security. The walkout was in protest over a National Mediation Board decision that flight engineers of United Air Lines must join the Airline Pilots Association.

The engineers union feared this would spread and their union would be swallowed by the pilots. Engineers keep big airliners engines running properly and handle other details in flight. Some airlines require them to be qualified pilots, others do not.

Brown said the strike was caused by "deep-seated indignation at the loss of their right to be represented by the union of their choice and the threat to their job security."

The presidential commission, headed by Nathan Feinsinger, University of Wisconsin law professor, went to work immediately seeking a solution to this problem.

so as to remove a possible cause of future strikes.

Feinsinger said the commission has "latitude without parallel in the history of industrial relations in the United States and perhaps any other country."

He said there would be no formal hearing until the end of March. Until then, he said, the panel will spend weeks investigating. It may meet with any of the principals separately, ride airplanes to get a firsthand look at flight engineers' work and problems.

The only restriction, Feinsinger said, is that any documents supplied to the panel must be made available to all parties concerned.

Floors Returning As Part Of Decor

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Floors and walls, areas of the home that have been taken for granted in the past, have come into their own. Floors are enhanced with brilliant rugs, planters and decorative cushions. Walls lend their space to masses of art and objects that relate to the decor.

But, if you take advantage of the new emphasis on floors, be sure that you prepare your floors for the drama, says Patricia Harvey of New York, member of the American Institute of Decorators.

"If your floor needs attention to make it an asset, then go to work with sander, sealer and wax. Many floors could be beautiful if attention were given to refinishing them. The 'old world' look in wood floors, embodying the antique browns and darker shades—is the trend now," she points out.

New floors may be prepared more easily, and given a mellow patina with frequent applications of paste wax, she says. This gives concentrated protection and, in time, will give that handsome old finish that may be desired.

"An area rug must have purpose, not used simply as a rug on the floor," Miss Harvey advises. "The area rug on a polished floor should be used to highlight the beauty of the wood, and to anchor a furniture group or emphasize the color plan in the room."

Oriental rugs are getting a big play now among leading decorators, she says, because of the current interest in floors, and their usefulness in either modern or traditional settings.

"If you have one rolled up in the attic, now is the time to make use of it, if it fits into your room scheme. But floors must be in good shape to take the splendor of these rugs," she says.

Patterned area rugs are more popular than plain colors and many fringed rugs are shown. Carved rugs are popular and add a note of elegance to a modern setting. Hot reds, yellows and brilliant blues of the Spanish rugs are much liked in contemporary rooms.

More subdued colors are used for traditional decor. American copies of the elegant Aubusson rugs are available and we are importing area rugs with a deep pile from Japan.

If you are the type who likes wild patterns, be sure to use rugs in small doses or the rugs may overpower your decorating plan, Miss Harvey says, advising that you avoid using small rugs in too high a pile as heels may get tangled and the floor covering may slide, causing a bad spill.

"The floor is the first thing you see when you enter a room," she says, "so it should be as smooth as wax and regular care can make it. In these days of area rugs, when they can be removed for easy cleaning, there is no reason for a rug not to be a complement to the floor and decor."

APPLESAUCE RAISIN BREAD

1 1/2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar
2 eggs
1-3 cup shortening (melted)
1 cup applesauce
1 cup raisins
1 cup regular or quick cooking rolled oats

Sift together all the dry ingredients into a mixing bowl. Add remaining ingredients; stir just until well mixed. Turn into greased loaf pan (about 9 by 5 by 3 inches). Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 1 hour. Turn out; cool entirely on wire rack before slicing. A cracked top is "normal" for this loaf.

ORIGINALS

STROKE OF GENIUS

Utter simplicity, resulting in a look of uncontrived elegance is found in Marion McCoy's sheath dress of textured pure silk. The cardigan neckline and the slot seam detailing which is set down the center, ending in an arrow below the waist, is widely bias-bound in self fabric. Sleeves are of below-elbow length and set in, the contoured belt fabric-covered.

CASH CHECKS FOR CHIC

Fashion endorses checks for spring, especially appealing in pure cotton. Marion McCoy chooses "zephyr checks" for this costume with its loose jacket, rimming the neckline with a rounded collar and long revers. Unmounted sleeves and the deep yoke are bias-cut, marked with a flange. A bright flower blooms at the side, and taffeta tells the inside story. The sheath dress with its shallow scooped neckline has short raglan sleeves, and novel bias-worked slot seaming details, minimizing the waist, lashed with a narrow covered belt.

Wife Explains Care Of Authors

MR. AND MRS. ERSKINE CALDWELL
Quiet life in a thin house for best selling novelist

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Virginia Caldwell keeps house for a tall, thin husband in a tall, thin house in San Francisco.

The husband is author Erskine Caldwell, a reserved man with a quiet sense of humor whose 1933 novel, set in his native Georgia, "God's Little Acre," swept immediately into a maelstrom of controversy.

It was denounced as obscene, taken to court, banned in Massachusetts—and sold nine million copies.

The house is five stories high, furnished in "a little bit of almost everything you can think of," and built around what she calls a courtyard and he calls an air vent.

The entire top floor is Caldwell's study for "deep concentration," containing one chair, a table, typewriter, unabridged dictionary and a "wastebasket that's a half barrel painted black so he can pitch it without looking."

Hungry Cat

There Caldwell turns out a book in nine or 10 months, writing and rewriting alone from 9 to 5, six or seven days a week, stopping only for his own lunch and that of Mister, the cat.

"Erskine feeds the cat, that's his little chore," Mrs. Caldwell explains. "About 4 in the afternoon if he has his door closed, the cat scratches. If the door is open, he goes in and climbs in the manuscript box and Erskine has to feed him before he can get any more work done."

While Caldwell writes, his wife can be found in her more lavishly equipped office where she takes care of correspondence, book-keeping and filing, in the kitchen ("I do the cooking. We have somebody who comes in and does what we call the janitor work") or at her roof garden, which last summer produced 72 tomatoes and a crop of four-leaf clovers.

Fresh Start

If everything else is done, Mrs. Caldwell will indulge her hobby of painting. At her husband's suggestion, "the one going right now is the view from the house of roof-top chimney pots."

The Caldwells take short trips, traveling two or three months of the year. They come to New York, Caldwell says, "to see two publishers, an agent and an attorney who advises me what to do and what not to do," visit and revisit the South "just so we won't miss anything" and go abroad "spending our time going from one publisher to another."

They were married at two minutes after midnight, Jan. 1, 1957, Caldwell says, "to start over again in life January first." He had been divorced three times, has three grown children by his first wife and a son, Jay now 16 living with his third wife. She had been divorced once, has a son, Andrew Fletcher, also 16, who lives with the Caldwells in San Francisco.

In 38 years of writing, Caldwell has authored 38 books, about half of them novels. He considers himself an amateur sociologist even though writing fiction. "I feel if you're writing about people, you're dealing with sociological problems. We all belong to the society we live in."

Doesn't Swear

"I dislike a lot of my characters," Caldwell says. "I'm ashamed of them. They do something I don't approve of. But it can't be helped, they've got to be what they are."

"The most embarrassing thing in the past, on the few occasions I would go to cocktail parties—a very innocent looking young woman would come up and start talking in the most vulgar way, trying to impress an author by talking in his own manner. I don't use vulgarities. I don't curse and don't swear, so I can't answer her. I'd just have to walk away."

Mrs. Caldwell is fascinated by the mail her husband receives, especially letters from people who think they know one of his fictional characters or say they have known somebody just like a character.

"The most wonderful letter, though," she says, "was from a man who wrote and offered home to one of Erskine's characters. He said, 'If there is really such a person, we'd like to help her. She has such a terrible life in the South—we'd treat her much better than she was treated in the story.'"

Be An Individual Says Designer

NEW YORK (AP)—Jean Louis is a handsome couturier designer who knows so much about women's figures he feels protective.

He designs for some of the world's most elegant women, but he believes that the first step in becoming well dressed is to be an individual. "Wear what you look best in," he insists.

"You shouldn't try to copy fashions you see a favorite actress wear. It isn't designed for you and if you feel embarrassed in your clothes you can't look good in them."

"You can't copy anyone else and be a star—and that goes for all women, not just actresses."

Jean Louis has had years of experience with movie stars—for 16 years he has outfitted most of the important stars; his latest is Marilyn Monroe in "The Misfits."

shapely and the scene calls for her in a bathing suit, he explains, they take a faraway shot of a beautiful girl in a bathing suit, and then do a closeup of the star.

If you worry because you don't look as glamorous in your slip as the actresses do in those bedroom scenes, it's not your fault. The filmed bras and slips and nightgowns are built up and zippered to fit snugly like a dress, he says.

Furthermore: "The young starlets are impossible," he says indignantly. "They know nothing about dressing. Their idea of a wardrobe is sport clothes, a very tight jazzy dress—open or closed but very short, and with the bosom out to here."

His advice for an 18-year-old starlet is to learn to walk, to keep well groomed, and dress very simply.

About Joan Crawford, whom he admires very much, he recalls: "I said when I first saw Joan Crawford that when I designed for her, I'd first get rid of those shoulder pads. Then I learned they weren't shoulder pads. They were Joan Crawford."

LOUIS 20TH CENTURY . . . Jean Louis' sketch of his cobalt blue wool middie jacket-suit for Ben Reig. Turban of bayadere striped silk matches neckline scarf.

Before that he was a mainstay of Hattie Carnegie in New York where his first customer was Irene Dunne. When Hollywood hired him to help bring fashion elegance to the screen, his first star was Irene Dunne.

Marlene Dietrich is also one of his special pets, and his transparent dresses for her ("they don't really show anything") have made international news.

Now he designs two lines a year for Ben Reig one of New York's couture houses.

Jean Louis is strong for hats. "Men like them," he says. "You can always catch a man's eye with a hat. In the 30's everyone wore hats; then there was bare-headed period. Now they're coming back, because women realize that one minute after you come out of the hairdresser's you can be a mess. But real hats—hats that cover your head—hide the hair, frame your face and give you a well dressed look."

From his long experience in Hollywood, he has no illusions that every actress has a perfect figure.

Reducing Fat Steaks

By FRANK PITMAN
DENVER (AP)—Cattlemen who grow those steaks you like so well are perplexed over how to give you a tender, juicy, flavorful T-bone or sirloin without a lot of fat.

Fat has become a nasty word recently. Some persons believe it causes excess weight, bringing on health problems. Others hate fat for economic reasons. The fat on steaks costs $1.29 a pound (or whatever is the going rate) and some persons don't eat it—like Jack Sprat.

But fat bears heavily on the palatability of a steak. Fat also figures in federal grading of meat—usually the more fat the higher the grade. And the grade determines profit for the cattlemen.

"The consumer wants lean meat," says Dr. Gladys E. Vail, head of foods and nutrition at Purdue's School of Home Economics. "She does not want to buy a high proportion of fat which is no longer consumed at the table, or which may not even reach the table but is discarded during the preparation of the meat."

"This great aversion to fat is of fairly recent origin," Dr. Vail adds. "As a youngster I recall that it was a rule that we eat fat along with the lean."

L. E. Kunkle of Ohio State University says that while meat handlers object to the costly fat trim of the over-fat carcasses "they all admit the desirability of quality which frequently is combined with excess finish." Finish is the fat that is deposited on the outside and dispersed within the muscle of beef cattle.

"Cattlemen are making every effort to meet the growing demand for meat of consistent quality with less waste fat," says C. W. McMillan, executive vice president of the American National Cattlemen's Assn.

There is a trend to marketing of younger cattle, whose meat is apt to be less fat and more tender than cattle a few months older. A large proportion of range cattle are sent to feed lots when they are from 18 to 21 months old. A few years ago most of them were past 2 years old before going to the feed lots where the finish fat is produced with rich diets.

Many research projects are underway in breeding and feeding. McMillan said "All are aimed at developing efficient methods of producing an animal yielding tender, juicy meat with the least fat."

During this season of winter colds, it's important to take every precaution against transferring infection from one member of the family to another.

N.C. Should Devise Own Program

Gov. Terry Sanford offered sound advice to North Carolina with his assertion that the state should not tie its own effort for public school improvement to what the federal government might do for the state's school in the way of federal aid to education.

As Gov. Sanford so concisely pointed out, North Carolina should not use the possibility of federal aid to our schools as a crutch to do less than we should at the state level for public education. He also declared that the state should not put itself in the position of depending on federal aid as the only means of bringing public education of North Carolina to the level the people of the state desire.

The legislature, it seems to us, should face squarely the needs of the state's schools and the recommendations of the state administration for improving the schools in the coming biennium. It should consider these needs and recommendations in the light of the state's ability to provide them, and exert every reasonable effort to see that they are provided for. It would be a mistake indeed for the legislature to take the attitude that the state will assume only a portion of the responsibility for improvement from its own resources, and rely on federal aid to fill the rest of the needs.

Such an attitude would make the state's schools dependent upon federal aid to education even before such actually becomes a reality, and further it would place the state in a position of having to accept federal aid for its schools regardless of what stipulations might be attached to any such aid which becomes available.

If sweeping federal aid to education proposals are adopted by Congress, it will be up to the state's officials to determine whether North Carolina wants to participate in the program. In the meantime, however, the legislature should not put the state in a position where it cannot successfully operate its schools at the desired level without federal funds being poured into our educational operations.

North Carolina's public school system today is not as good as many people of the state would like for it to be. In spite of the many shortcomings of our public school system, however, it has steadily improved over the years by the wise use of the state's own resources. With the people of the state apparently willing to pour more of their own resources into further improving our schools, it is no time for the legislature to use the prospect of federal aid as a stall to back away from the challenge.

If the time comes when far reaching federal aid is available to state public school systems, we believe North Carolina will want to be in a position to consider as objectively as possible the advantages and disadvantages of accepting such aid, along with whatever federal stipulations go along with that aid. Unless the state forges ahead to provide with its own resources the best possible public schools for its young people, it will not be in a position to consider the proposition of federal aid objectively in the future.

Possibilities of future aid North Carolina's schools might be able to get from the federal government have no place in current considerations by the legislature of what will be done to improve the schools of the state. It is up to the legislature to determine what North Carolina needs in education and what it can do itself to fill those needs.

Unusual Letters Being Delivered

By LYNN NISBET

MAIL—The postman is delivering some unusual and "funny" mail to the capitol these days. Legislators are getting lots of letters urging them to support Governor Sanford's program for education. That despite the fact the Governor has not yet outlined his program—except in very broad general terms. He is scheduled to present it before a joint session of the General Assembly on March 6.

Oldtimers have never had this type of mail before, especially since a lot of it is signed by school teachers. Heretofore the school teachers and others of the United Forces for Education have asked legislators to ignore the budget commission and the Governor, and to support higher appropriations. This time it appears that the Governor will go further than the other agencies, and the school folks are getting on the band wagon early. Some of the smart ones among them hope the blanket commitment of support will not get them in trouble when details of the Sanford program are presented—including the extent of local participation.

QUESTIONED—While many of the schools are blindly endorsing the Governor's position, many legislators are hesitant about committing themselves until they know what the program is to be—and where the money to finance it will come from.

One of the principal past times around legislative circles is speculating on where the Governor will recommend digging for the $70-odd million new source money thought to be required for his plan. Little groups of legislators and lobbyists and news reporters are seen huddling several times a day, swapping information and gossip and seeking some basis for intelligent guessing at the Governor's idea.

DIVISIONS—The legislators can be roughly classified in three major divisions, which seem to coincide pretty well with divisions among the people back home.

First, and believed to be the largest group, are those who recognize the need for better educational facilities and opportunities, and who believe the people are willing to pay a reasonable bill for these basic services, even if additional tax sources must be used.

The second group is made up of those who recognize the importance of education and the public school system, but who refuse to accept it as having priority over everything else, but want to maintain a fair balance in meeting requirements of all phases of government.

The third and much smaller group consists of those who are opposed to any additional taxes for any purpose whatever, insisting that the main obligation of the current General Assembly is to hold the line at current levels, until the overall economy becomes more stable.

There are subdivisions in each of these groups, more perhaps in the first, where differences arise over what constitutes "basic" needs in public school operation. As of now it appears likely that the general ideas of this first group will prevail, that there will be substantially more money for public schools, but not as much as the Governor and the more liberal educators would like.

SOURCES—There is much speculation about where the new money will come from, in whatever amount is decided upon. One thing seems almost certain. The new money will come from some type of consumer tax, rather than a levy on income or property. In other words, the tax will be levied upon people rather than upon dollars.

The three specific courses most frequently mentioned are expanding coverage of the general sales tax by eliminating exemptions; a special tobacco products tax, based on package rather than percentage of retail price; and a "crown tax" on soft drinks, particularly the bottled variety, which again would be on volume rather than price.

Governor Sanford has said he thinks the present income tax rate in North Carolina is high enough. He has many times indicated support of the traditional policy of no State tax on property. There are numerous places other than the consumer consumption brackets of general sales, soft drinks and tobacco. Alcoholic beverages is one, although the taxes levied in that field are fast approaching the point of diminishing return.

Federal, State and local government taxes on beer, wine and hard liquor presently account for more than half the retail price of these goods. Same thing is true of the tax on cigarettes, except that the danger point of diminishing return seems farther away.

It is known that some legislators are exploring the possibility of getting additional revenue from increasing professional licensing fees and utilities franchise rates, rather than increasing income tax rates. If that is done the professional practitioner and the utilities will add the extra cost to their service bills. The net effect would be a "consumer tax" collected at the business counter rather than by the State tax collector.

When all the pieces are put together the picture that emerges is that the General Assembly will sort of mark time for another week, waiting for Governor Sanford's speech on March 6. Immediately after that the lines will be drawn, sides chosen up, and the real scrap will be underway to see how the tax bill will be collected. There is not now, and will not be then, any doubt about who will pay the bill.

House Committee To Get Issue Clarified

If, as an average American citizen, you are confused over the question of whether there is a missile gap between the United States and the Soviet Union, you should find either consolation or further consternation in the fact that the House Armed Services Committee has called on top Pentagon officials to answer the question in closed hearings.

Apparently this House Committee is likewise confused by the seemingly conflicting statements on this important subject that have come from top administration officials in recent weeks.

Defense Secretary Robert McNamara recently was quoted as saying there was no missile gap between this nation and the Soviet Union. Subsequently President Kennedy—who made the missile gap a point in his campaign—said that no studies had been completed on the question since his administration took office. Still later, McNamara said the studies were still underway.

Naturally these seemingly conflicting statements confused the American people. It appears they confused members of the House Armed Services Committee whose responsibility to recommend proposed military expenditures to the House of Representatives.

We trust the committee will get some answers to the question in its closed meeting with top Pentagon officials and while we don't expect the committee would see fit to tell the American people whether it thinks a missile gap does or does not exist.

(Richmond Times-Dispatch)
Judo comes from the Japanese word for plant. Its art is to win by losing. The strength of one's opponent is used against him. Undoubtedly there is a moment of exultation when the unsuspecting victim of a judo expert feels his opponent unheeded. But after the moment of euphoria comes the crash to the floor, as all one's own strength is multiplied by the deft twist, the expert yielding, of the judo expert.

That moment of exultation was experienced Monday night in the United Nations Security Council room. All night the chamber had been the scene of heated debate. The Secretary General has earlier announced as confirmed that six more Lumumbists had been killed in Kasai province. It was feared that this would jeopardize the plan for UN supervision of a coalition government. Would Russia veto the plan, in line with its protest against the UN's interference in the Congo?

The popular game now being played by commentators, the game of Who's-Putting-Pressure-on-the-Kremlin? (normal answer: China), was varied through the night. Stanleyville was now pressuring those poor Russians into a grudging acceptance of the UN's continued presence in the Congo. Antoine Gizenga, not a native of the tribal-conscious Stanleyville, longs to return to Leopoldville, if only as a member of the coalition. And so Russia did not veto the plan; with France, it huffily abstained.

That is, the Kremlin won by yielding. After a great show of horror that the UN continues to exist in the Congo, it sat back and watched the UN do its work. And with the dreadful crash of a victorious 9-0 vote, Western powers fell to the mat.

Kennedy Applies Mild Approach

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy is following the Lyndon Johnson plan for getting things done.

It's simple: Use the modest approach which asks for less than everything.

Vice President Johnson used it repeatedly when he was the Senate's Democratic majority leader from 1954 through 1960.

He avoided asking action on all he might have requested in order to avoid arousing extreme opposition which might have resulted in no action at all.

While this may have created an image of Johnson as a reasonable middle-roader, his critics complained he settled for too little.

But he did get action which otherwise might have been impossible.

One good example: He got through Congress this century's first civil rights bills over Southern Democratic opposition which, however, was mild. But so were the bills.

Kennedy, whether or not Johnson persuaded him to the same kind of course, has stopped short of going all-out in the programs he has asked Congress to approve.

For example: On his requests for a boost in the minimum wage and federal aid to education.

Already he is being criticized for not asking more. The AFL-CIO has complained his economic recovery plans are fine so far as they go but don't go far enough.

Precise Word Meanings

It's quite understandable that young children, especially the ones in their first two or three years, often are not scholarly precise in immediately identifying precise meanings with the words they hear.

Still, it seems at times some adults have a tendency to speak to the younger little people in words and syllables that would more readily apply to the high school or college level.

This was called to mind by one of the kiddie television shows yesterday afternoon. (We often find ourselves pausing to watch the cartoon show for at least a short while.)

The program's host was interviewing each of the children in the studio audience. He would ask each:

"What's your name? Where are you from?" Then he'd ask two or three more short questions before moving to the next child.

Yesterday the host questioned a three-year-old girl and found she was a resident of a relatively distant town.

Without even considering the strong likelihood the little girl would identify a question built around the word "what," the emcee plunged ahead. How was he to know the three-year-old mind would identify "what" with something she could readily see, touch or describe.

So he asked: "What brings you all the way down to this park of the country?"

In all sincerity, the youngster replied: "My mommy and mommy's blue car."

Speaking of television, a program last night mentioned a list of four last table delicacies.

Some man was supposed to be overjoyed when he was told over the phone he would be sent pickled octopus, boiled snails, some kind of grasshoppers and pickled ants.

The viewing audience was allowed to listen in on the phone conversation. Quite frankly, the man seemed politely grateful but not particularly impressed with the fine dinner triflings he had won.

That, in itself, was kind of amusing but far from what tickled us most.

A friend of ours just happened to be in the next room when the gift of delicacies was announced.

What he heard was fragmentary. But he heard enough to exclaim:

"Pickled ants? A delicacy? Aunt Lucy was always pickled and she was sure a long ways from being delicate."

You see? Kids are not the only group of youngsters when it comes to concise meanings of words.

"External conditions are the accidents of life, its outer trappings. The great enduring realities are love and service."—Helen Keller.

"A man pays a luxury tax on his billfold, and an income tax on the stuff he puts in it, and a sales tax when he takes the stuffing out of it."—Information Magazine.

"Disc jockeys pledge to judge songs 'fairly.' If they go through with it, sidewalks under their office windows will be knee-deep in broken records."—Bremerton (Wash.) Sun.

new UN decision are concerned with expulsion of the Belgians. (Whenever Mr. Hammarskjold cannot decide what to do next about the Congo, he attacks the Belgians). The Belgian technicians and advisers to Moise Tshombe, men invited by the only government worth calling a government in the Congo, have preserved what remnants of order there are in this "republic." The stringent UN order that all UN nations refuse to give Belgians safe conduct on any trip which would take them into the country, is a summons to chaos.

Next proposal? Why, investigate the death of Lumumba, of course. That is, continue the manufacture of a Communist myth of martyrdom. Turn this dope-crazed demagog into legend while ignoring the mass murders of the Stanleyville whites, the rapes and tortures committed daily by Lumumba's forces.

Then, having undermined the only stable leader in the Congo, Mr. Tshombe, the obvious next step is to topple Colonel Mobutu, the army chief who expelled the Russians, imprisoned Lumumba, and opened the way for peaceful union of Leopoldville to Katanga. The Congo army is to be "neutralized," its political control of the UN forces.

Finally, to cap it all, the secretary general is to summon all the elements of disorder to a new "Parliament" and start over, from the beginning, the whole farce of national democracy for the Congo. Only this time the UN, while playing the same game, will take all the blame itself. Intervention will be open, not covert.

And Khrushchev walks away dusting his hands, not a hair ruffled. We did it all ourselves.

Most of the proposals of the 1896 Democratic Convention had to deal with the question of sound money—that is, currency based on gold, or currency based on the free coinage of silver. The convention was split—Bryan had practically no position in the convention and no following. However, Bryan wangled the opportunity to deliver a speech to close the argument against gold. The "Cross of Gold" speech was oratory. It received the response of great oratory. At that convention, William Jennings Bryan was nominated for President. His proclivities were repeated by orators throughout the country.

Aware Now Of Money

The American people, including the Congress, is becoming increasingly conscious of trouble about money. There have been other periods in American history when the currency was not "worth a continental." That phrase is not used much these days but it was for a very long time a reminder of the issuance of currency by the Continental Congress. This money soon enough lost value. Similarly the notes issued by the Confederacy during the War Between the States lost value.

The greenback was a legal tender, non-interest-bearing note first issued by the Federal Government during the War Between the States and originally not redeemable in either gold or silver. Then the term, greenback, came to be used for any kind of paper money. Secretary of the Treasury Chase used a patented green ink for this paper money, which was popular because it was accepted throughout the United States. Like all currency not supported by gold or silver, the "greenback" in due course lost in value. A device developed between East and West, that is, between Wall Street and the farmers. The latter preferred cheap money, plentifully provided, producing inflation; the New York banks insisted upon a stable, hard currency supported by gold.

The Greenback-Labor Party went before the people and in the election of 1878, they showed remarkable returns. The major strength of this party was centered on bankrupt farmers who wanted easy money. One of the principal items of farmers' distress was to find money to move his crops. The tiny banks of the farm country were dependent on the large reservoirs of capital in the big cities, principally New York, Boston and Philadelphia. From their exactions, the farmers sought relief. In 1884, the greenback issue presented James G. Blaine from being elected to the Presidency.

However, the Populist Party—often called the People's Party—supported cheap money. The Populists regarded the Gold Standard as a conspiracy against ranking. Organized in 1891, it was a Socialist party, accepting the doctrine of the class struggle and seeking to protect the worker and farmer against the bankers and the moneyed classes. It was an outgrowth of the Farmer's Alliance which was very popular in agricultural states, particularly Nebraska.

William Jennings Bryan, who three times was nominated to the Presidency, brought Populism into the then moribund Democratic Party and gave it new life.

William Jennings Bryan is one of the most astonishing characters in American history. He represented the "Common Man" who regarded himself as oppressed and who sought relief from his bankers and from the new developed trusts. Bryan's skill was oratory—an art now destroyed by radio and television. Men and women came to listen to Bryan because his voice, his gestures, his organization of words were things of beauty.

The 1896 Democratic Convention had to deal with the question of sound money—that is, currency based on gold, or currency based on the free coinage of silver. # Need A Tighter Curb On Credit

By ELMER ROESSNER
The rise in personal bankruptcies here, clearly indicates two actions by independent businessmen.

1. More critical examination of new credit applications.

2. Tighter collection procedures on current credit.

On the first point, questioning of applicants for credit, or for extension of present credit, can no longer stop at the query: "Are you or your husband employed?" The gentle questions about "How long?" and "At what salaries?" must be hardened to specific detail. And, asking the direct question or not, the credit interviewer must determine whether the wage earner in the family will continue to be employed. If the applicant's husband is an autoworker, the credit interviewer may be justified in asking questions to determine whether the wage earner will be employed for long.

BROADER INTERVIEWS
Under present circumstances, credit interviews might also ask how much unemployment insurance or how much in guaranteed annual wages an employee can expect to collect in event he is laid off.

Old criteria no longer apply. Once a husband or wife of a wage earner with good skills and reasonable health could have anything from a footstool to a new car on installment credit. But those days are galloping fast. Credit selectivity is becoming greater than ever.

The corollary of more cautious credit granting is more aggressive tactics in collecting bills.

Credit men say that their difficulties increase with the square of the delinquency time. They say that it is four times as hard to collect an account 60 days overdue than it is to collect one 30 days in arrears.

HOW TO GET YOURS
Few debtors have no money at all. Each creditor's problem is to get the debtor to pay him first.

There are many books on the matter, but the newest one, "Credit and Collection Letters," gets down to cases. It's by Richard H. Morris, an authority on business letters, and published by Channel Press, Great Neck, N. Y. (295 pages, $5.95).

Recommended techniques are too detailed to describe here; one chapter alone suggests 25 steps to take to get a slow-payer to come through. However, most suggestions fall into this pattern: scare the debtor, then assure him you are his friend and sorry you alarmed him and make him feel that the way to salvation is by paying you.

If the current unemployment is not cured quickly, many collection agencies will be hiring more collection men. There is a fabled town where the citizens make a living taking in each other's washing. If we believe some of the prophets of economic disaster, the United States may become a nation in which we all make a living collecting past-due bills.

JURY FINDS GUM CAN REDUCE WEIGHT
Chewing a medicated gum can reduce your weight, a Chicago jury believes. It returned a not-guilty verdict against manufacturers of Slim-Smoke, cracked down by the government for advertising that chewing the gum helped weight reduction. Four doctors testified that tests showed that 127 gum-chewing patients lost up to more than a pound a week beating their gum.

Red China Churches Are Tied To Govm't

By EDWIN Q. WHITE TOKYO (AP) — Official Communist accounts of religious activity in Red China emphasize there is no question of separation of church and state.

On the surface at least, it's all state. The New China News Agency reports a national conference of Chinese "Protestant" churches was held recently in Shanghai. It said 345 representatives of Protestant churches from 25 provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions attended.

The fact that such a meeting was held openly on the Red mainland might appear to indicate an active religious movement there. But the Communist agency's account of the conference proceedings made it sound more like a gathering of the commune cadre.

NCNA said conference speakers "pointed out with satisfaction that the Chinese Protestant churches had made great achievements in their patriotic, anti-imperialist movement in the past 10 years." It said they had transformed themselves from an instrument of imperialist aggression into churches administered by Chinese Protestants themselves.

The church conference described as "unprecedented the achievements of the Chinese people under the leadership of the Communist party and Chairman Mao Tse-tung and guided by the three Red banners—the general line for building socialism, the big leap forward and the people's Bethany Church Announcements Sunday school begins at 10:00 and Superintendent Bill McLawhorn urges anyone who may not have a regular place of attendance to meet with us for a study of the lesson "The Challenge of the Cross" from John 12:20-36.

There are classes for all ages. Nobles Craft will report on the Sunday School Convention. Morning worship is at 11:00. There will be special music and the pastor will continue a series of Lenten sermons on Christ's last words from the cross. Sunday's sermon is "The Second Word: Forgiveness," from Luke 23:43. Tommy Manning will be at the organ.

The monthly Sunday School Council will be postponed until next Monday night. On Wednesday at 7:30, the Bible Class will meet for a study of I Thessalonians 5:12-28. The class is ended with a discussion period in which those present ask questions concerning the lesson. Choir rehearsal follows at 8:00. This Wednesday the choir will discuss the purchase of choir robes.

This past Monday, Daily Morning Prayer was added to the church program. This prayer period is held each day at 9:00 and is open to all. Anyone who would like to join in this prayer time at home is urged to write the pastor at Route 1, Box 219, Winterville for information.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the Lenten self-denial program which involves each person having a small bank and placing a certain amount in it on each day of the forty day season. The banks will be collected on Easter Sunday.

Sunday evening at 7:00 the regular worship service will take place. The pastor will speak and Tommy Manning, the organist, will sing one of his new compositions.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

All of our new members, as well as our total membership and friends, are cordially invited to be present for Sunday school and church during the next six weeks through Easter Sunday.

The sermon topic Sunday morning will be "The New Testament Church" and will include background on hoy Thomas and Alexander Campbell founded the Disciples of Christ.

Mrs. Scott Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Lenwood Heath and Staff Sgt. and Mrs. Waddell Heath will provide Sanctuary flowers in loving memory of their husband and father, Scott Heath. A nursery is provided during church for the convenience of parents.

The Sanctuary Choir anthem will be "Blessed Are They." Choir rehearsal will be held Tuesday night at 7:30. A Workers' Conference, composed of all Sunday school teachers and assistants, Sunday school officers and all members of the Christian Education and Worship Committee, will meet Wednesday night, March 1, at 7:30 p.m.

Cyprus Planning National Lottery

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Cyprus will set up a national lottery soon, President Archbishop Makarios said Thursday. He told a news conference that investment by Cypriots in British football pools will be banned as soon as the lottery starts here. It is estimated about $2.8 million is spent annually by Cypriots on British pools.

85-Year-Old In Prison Asks Out

By TOM SHAWVER

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—A little old lady with bright dark eyes and an unwrinkled face told the men on Michigan's State Parole Board why she wants to leave the prison that has been her home since 1933.

"I haven't very long left in this world," she said. "I would like to be free."

Elizabeth Ziolkowski, 85, is the oldest of some 400 women prisoners at the Detroit House of Correction. She was sentenced to life imprisonment 28 years ago after a jury convicted her of poisoning her third husband with arsenic.

The sentencing judge, in a statement, said it was thought that she murdered her spouse to collect his insurance. The judge, now dead, said there were indications that she killed her second husband the same way although she never was brought to trial for his death.

Mrs. Ziolkowski, a plump, pleasant-faced grandmother, said at her trial that she was innocent. She still says so.

She told her story to the parole board Thursday in hopes that Gov. John B. Swainson will commute her sentence, making her eligible for parole.

John Ziolkowski, 41 when he died, bought lead arsenic powder and used it in an attempt to heal sores on his body, she said. Some of it, she said, apparently got into his blood system.

"I didn't even know what it was," she said.

She said her second husband died of a heart attack after eight years of marriage. She and Ziolkowski, an auto plant worker, were married four years. She and her first husband were divorced. Only a son and daughter of her eight children are still living.

Checks Signed By U. R. Stuck

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The FBI says a Florida man who admitted passing bad checks in 10 states told agents he even cashed one with the signature "U. R. Stuck."

He was identified as Roland Delano Bradford, 25, of Daytona Beach, Fla.

Bradford, arrested Thursday, was quoted by the FBI as saying he usually used the signature "O. E. Grant" on the checks, written on a Daytona Beach bank. Authorities estimated he had cashed $13,000 worth of checks in 10 states.

He admitted cashing checks in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and the Carolinas, the FBI said.

Bradford, a former grocery clerk and insurance salesman was stopped by two highway patrolmen in Jackson County Thursday and was arrested when he could produce no certificate of ownership for his car, which bore Georgia license plates.

When authorities found a typewriter, rubber stamps, and blank checks in the car, the FBI was called into the case.

Bradford was held in jail here in lieu of $10,000 bond on federal charges of interstate transportation of tools to prepare fraudulent securities. He waived a hearing before U.S. Commissioner Lawrence C. Stoker.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

Tuesday the winter issue of the ECC literary quarterly, the Rebel, was distributed. Congratulations to Editor Roy Martin of Greenville and his associates for a fine job.

Featured in the Rebel is an interview with Jonathan Daniels, of the Raleigh News and Observer. In the interview Mr. Daniels makes some colorful and stimulating remarks about the present situation in Eastern North Carolina and about the role of ECC in that situation.

Industry

On industrial development: "I think Eastern North Carolina has got to develop its resources. You remember the story in 'Uncle Remus' when Old Uncle Remus was telling the little boy about the fox chasing the rabbit, and the rabbit climbed a tree. The little boy said, 'Oh, oh, Uncle Remus! Rabbits don't climb trees!' And he said this rabbit was 'bliged to climb. I think Eastern North Carolina is 'bliged to climb and I have the hope that a part of the vitality that we've got to have in that area is going to come from such an institution as East Carolina."

On statewide leadership from this section: "Things move in cycles and I believe there will come from Eastern Carolina in its turn, and in its necessity, contributions to North Carolina which will serve both that section and serve the state."

Reapportionment

"And in this relationship I would like to say this: we are not going to serve North Carolina by insisting that Eastern North Carolina continue to have a larger representation than in proportion to its population. We've got to be willing for the state to grow as it grows, and if we try to put any curbs on the democracy of other people we'll put them on ourselves as well."

Controversy

On the value of controversy: "When people are debating and discussing and disagreeing, North Carolina is in a healthy state. I wish East Carolina, I wish Eastern North Carolina plenty of controversy. Keep them stirred up, because when people are stirred up they're alive; when they sit down and stop talking and stop doing, they're dead."

Maybe that's what political primaries are for.

Kress Lecture

Turning from the Rebel to another important local cultural institution, we learn from Barbara Batchelor of the Greenville Art Center that an illustrated lecture on the Kress Collection in the State Museum will be given at the Center next Tuesday night, 7:30, admission free.

The lecturer will be Charles Stanford, Museum Curator of Education.

As practically everyone knows, the Kress Collection, a recent acquisition, contains some of the most important holdings of the Museum. Mr. Stanford will be talking about works by such masters as Giotto, Botticelli, Veronese, Tintoretto, Rembrandt, and Hals, and his lecture should be important and valuable.

Guest Review

This week we have a guest review by Professor Herbert Paschal of ECC. The book which he is discussing is interesting in the light of what Mr. Daniels says about leadership from the eastern part of the state, as well as for other reasons.

Willard B. Gatewood, Jr., Eugene Clyde Brooks, Educator and Public Servant. (Durham: Duke University Press, 1960), 279 pp., $6.00.

The late Eugene Clyde Brooks belonged to that small group of educational statesmen in North Carolina who during the first half of the twentieth century furnished the leadership for an earlier "New Day" in state educational progress. The important role which Brooks played in this movement as public schoolman, college professor, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and president of State College is skillfully and clearly presented in this excellent biography.

The author, until last year a professor of history at East Carolina College, has been forced by the nature of his subject to move along virtually uncharted paths of recent North Carolina history. Indeed, his carefully documented accounts of important events and movements in North Carolina during this century comprise as valuable a contribution as his study of Brooks' life. Of particular interest to this reviewer was his account of the fight over the establishment of the Consolidated University in the early 1930's.

Born in Greene and reared in Lenoir, Brooks was a product of the same rural area out of which came two other great educational leaders, Ascock and Joyner. Of particular interest to the people of Pitt County are the author's descriptions of Grifton and the other communities along Contentnea Creek in the 1880's and 189's which Brooks knew well as a child. Following a limited secondary education, Brooks entered Trinity College from which he graduated in 1894. After a fling at journalism, he entered upon his career as an educator. Before ill health forced his retirement in 1934, he managed to leave the impress of his personality upon every phase of North Carolina's educational development. Possessed of vast energy and great ability, he went beyond the field of education and made significant contributions in such diverse areas as county government reform and conservation.

If there is any flaw in the work, it lies in the author's failure at times to show clearly the man behind the image of the famed educator and public servant. This, however, is but a minor matter in a work of such distinguished scholarship and great excellence.

Charlotte Woman May Be Delegate

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Charlotte, N.C., woman, Mrs. Charles Tillet, reportedly will be appointed a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations.

Although there has been no formal announcement from the White House on the appointment, one is expected soon, an informed source said Thursday night.

The Charlotte Observer said the nomination had already been made by the President.

Mrs. Tillet is expected to be appointed to the U.N.'s Status of Women Commission which convenes March 13 in Geneva, Switzerland. Mrs. Tillet has been active in politics for many years. From 1940 until 1950 she was vice chairman of the national Democratic Executive Committee.

She managed the campaign of Dr. Frank Porter Graham for the U.S. Senate in 1950.

Child's Emotional Problems Discussed For PTA Members

The second half of an annual study course for Greenville P.T.A. members was held last night at Emhurst School auditorium on "The Emotional Problems of the School Child."

Mrs. M. P. Bailey, president of the City Council P.T.A., welcomed everyone and presented the panel of four featured speakers, Dr. Lois Staton, Mrs. Trudy Neis, Miss Mary Thomas Smith and Dr. Earl Trevathan.

Introduced to give the invocation was Rev. Thomas Davis, executive secretary of the Albemarle Presbytery, after which Junius H. Rose, city school superintendent, made the opening remarks preparatory to presenting the moderator, Dr. Staton.

Dr. Staton, of the E.C.C. faculty working with student teachers spoke on "Establishing School Emotional Health" in the school child. "Stoicism in children's lives is no longer a way of life as was the case in days gone by, but instead we must teach them to appreciate and enjoy the beauties and joys of life through a sense of feeling, or emotion," she said. "They have varying emotions, such as joy, sorrow, fear, resentment and anxiety but each may have a different capacity of feeling. This 'capacity for feeling' through a consciousness characterized by feeling, is what emotion consists of, she stated. "Anxiety that cannot be discharged into action, turns into disease, and because of inhibitions of anxieties, frustrations and emotional problems may develop, she said.

A child needs to grow properly in five major areas, Dr. Staton continued; mentally in English, sentence structure, vocabulary; physically in body growth and maturity; outside growth or social adjustment must remain individual and not be constantly compared with another child; spiritually a child has to give and take more than he or she would like in order to glorify God; and the need to be recognized and acknowledged for his accomplishments.

Mrs. Neis of the E.C.C. psychology department spoke next on the "Psychological aspects of Emotional Health." As late as 1956 there were 170,000 Americans in penal institutions and 150,000 alcoholics, she quoted. The ratio of female to male offenders in 1942 were 1 to 10; in 1945 it was 6 to 10; and in 1960 the ratio was 1 to 3. There are an estimated 3,000,000 children today in need of help in the form of special therapy or psychiatric help, as a result of emotional problems, Mrs. Neis stated. Good emotional health might consist of a certain quantity of aggressiveness and assertiveness but not to the point of being a bore. The child should be happy and may at times even be irritating to the parents because of his bounding energy and enthusiasm. The child should exercise creativity and will probably consider what he is doing to be of the utmost importance. And Mrs. Neis observed, every child has to get away into his own world of fantasy, to day-dream and to escape reality, as adults often do.

Mrs. Neis said that "every child should be allowed to matriculate in his own special field of interest and be recognized for his efforts, which parents frequently fail to do.

Dr. Trevathan, pediatrician, made observations of "Physical Aspects" as they pertain to the emotions of the school child. As far back as even before birth, the emotional make-up of the child.

Even though new "wonder" drugs and modern science tend to make the child physically healthy, he may not be emotionally healthy. The various motor movements, such as sitting, standing, crawling and running, follow in an orderly progression, but not necessarily so with his emotional development, Dr. Trevathan said.

It is hard to determine what this development will be, and it is up to the parents to help guide the child through some semblance of emotional progression in the right direction themselves. Frequently parents can determine the cause of "headaches and stomach aches" of sorts to be due to anxieties, apprehensions or the wanting of attention, by talking with the child, understanding, analyzing, and recognizing his needs. Dr. Trevathan concluded by saying that with proper physical health and growth and an understanding of emotional difficulties, many children grow up to be leaders in their fields.

The fourth and final speaker on the panel was Miss Smith, teacher at the Wahl-Coates school, who spoke on "Emotional Problems Observed in the Classroom." Miss Smith observed that though materials in the classroom can help the child to mature emotionally, a sound environment at home help. An attempt is made in the classrooms to duplicate good environment, and although most children are sound emotionally some do have discipline problems, she said. Some children are rebellious and seek independence or try to act grown-up. No child is really bad, she said, but some don't receive their share of attention at home because of a large family, some receive too much attention in the form of over protectiveness and some are dealt with too harshly by parents who do not recognize the child's needs.

Dr. Staton, as moderator, directed questions to various members of the panel and they in turn briefly discussed specific problems of emotional nature arising in the classrooms.

EFFECTIVE!

Newspaper Advertising Is a Powerful Factor in Effective Retailing

In local advertising there's just one Champ—the daily newspaper. It's the retailer's own ad medium, and local advertisers back up their belief in this power-packed medium with a $2.7-billion-a-year investment—more than in all other media combined. The flexibility of newspapers makes it easy for retailers to tie-in with national advertising, adding to their own local selling effectiveness. Put more power in your advertising punch. Lightning Does Hit Twice - Ask Pirates

LEXINGTON — Atlantic Christian proved quite convincingly here last night that lightning can strike twice in the same place.

The Bulldogs of Coach Jack McComas pulled a trick out of the hat in the final seconds in defeating East Carolina, 72-71.

It was the second time ACC has beaten the Pirates this season—and the second time the win came on a last second shot.

Night Of Rewards For Ayden, Chicod

IT WAS a frustrating evening in East Carolina's Memorial Gymnasium last night for four Pitt County coaches.

Underdog Chicod leveled Grifton's second-seeded Bulldogs with an uncanny accuracy from the free throw line plus the standout performance of Raymond Fornes, 47-45.

many cage performances of Chicod's Fornes clan. First, it was Jimmy leading the Pack. Now it's brother Raymond who's doing the damage.

Last night, the flashy senior pumped in 22 points, hauled in a large share of Chicod's rebounds, and was all over the court in the final three minutes as the Hornets hung on to a small lead and eliminated Grifton, 47-45.

For Winterville another Allen County selection, James Allen Braxton sparked his club's play with a total of 11 points for the tournament clash.

Improving Ayden and ambitious Chicod kept alive in the Pitt County post-season affair by capturing heart-stopping wins over Winterville and Grifton, respectively.

The victory projected them into the tournament finals Saturday night. Ayden plays in the semifinals tonight against top seeded Bethel.

The Ayden-Bethel class tonight will be the only boys game and will start at 9:00.

A continued barrage on the baskets brought the Hornets a 34-29 lead at the end of the third quarter.

The shouting was far from over as Grifton fought back into contention and moved to within one point, 44-43, with 2:15 left in the game.

Playing its first game of the tournament, Ayden ganged up on hot-and-cold Winterville in the final half to surge from behind and triumph, 46-42.

The Bulldogs elected to try for a last shot and the victory almost backfired when Oden was Carolina's first and only lead in the game.

The shouting was far from over as Grifton fought back into contention and moved to within one point, 44-43, with 2:15 left in the game.

Fornes coolly dropped in three of four free throws in the final couple of minutes to ice the game.

For the night's work, Raymond gained scoring honors with 22 points. Junior Ephraim Smith was the next runner for the winners with 16 points.

CLARK SPECIAL—Celia Clark drives around defenders for an easy layup and two points last night as Robersonville dropped top-seeded Jamesville in the opening round of the Martin County Tournament. Clark scored 34 points for the Ram lassies.

Upsets Come 'Dime A Dozen'

By LEONARD LAO, Reflector Sports Writer. UPSET WAS the word in the Martin County Tournament as there were two of them in the opening round of play last night on the Robersonville floor.

In the 7:30 opener, the Robersonville girls, who finished the regular season in third place with a 3-6 record, pulled the upset of the year by downing Jamesville's lassies who were previously unbeaten in conference play, by a close 54-52 score.

In last night's 9:00 p.m. finale Oak City's boys knocked off the top-seeded team, Bear Grass to complete the cycle of eliminating the regular season champs in the first round. The Wildcats took the lead in the opening minutes and kept it for the entire game, outscoring the Bears 57-45.

The win puts Oak City in the finals scheduled for 9:00 p.m. on Saturday night, where it will be pitted against the winner of the Robersonville - Jamesville game which is on the schedule for tonight at 9:00 p.m. CELIA CLARK, Robersonville's potent scoring attack, led the Ram lassies to their upset over top-seeded Jamesville, scoring 34 points to lead all scorers for the night.

The high tension contest saw the lead change hands nine times before the final horn sounded. The Red Devil lassies jumped off to a quick 5-0 lead in the early moments of the game, but the Rams rallied and took a 6-5 lead with 3:44 left in the opening stanza. At the end of the hot shooting first 8 minutes, the Robersonville girls held a slim 14-13 lead.

The lead changed hands six of the 8 times in the second period, with both teams finding the range of the basket and hitting it with consistency. The second quarter battle seemed to narrow down to a scoring duel between Clark and Jamesville's Diane Griffen. Both took turns in hitting the baskets that put their team ahead, but Clark hit two in a row in the last minute of action to give the Ram lassies a 32-29 intermission lead. Clark accounted for 22 of the 32 in the first 18 minutes, while Jamesville came out in the third quarter as hot as a firecracker, and outscored the Rams, 20-9, to grab a substantial eight point lead at the end of the third eight minutes, 49-41, and it looked to observers that it was all over for the Robersonville lassies.

But the Jamesville girls hit a cold streak, while the Rams' Clark was hitting two field goals and Madge Rogerson hit a free throw to make it 50-49 for Robersonville. Another free throw by Rogerson and another by Clark made it 52-49, but then the Robersonville lassies received a blow when Rogerson fouled out with 3:56 still left in the contest. Earlier, the Rams' other starting forward, Judy Williams had fouled out, and now the winners were left with one senior and two sophomores in the lineup.

It was not until 2:40 left that Jamesville hit their first points in the third quarter, when Linda Gardner dropped a hook shot to make the score 52-51. But Clark, with ice water in her veins, stepped to the foul line and dropped two shots to insure the victory for the Ram lassies.

LARRY WORSELEY pumped in 32 points to lead Oak City in its upset victory of top-seeded Bear Grass in the nightcap last night. The 6'5" center hit 12 points out of 18 in the first period to give the Wildcats an 18-10 first quarter lead which was never seriously threatened.

The Oak City boys led by as much as 13 points in the second period. With 2:37 left, it was 29-16 in favor of the Wildcats, and at the intermission, the lead was by nine, 29-20. Worsley had accounted for 19 points in the first sixteen minutes.

The Bears found that they still could not chop the lead any in the third quarter, and were still 10 points down at the end of it, 39-29. However, in the last stanza, Bear Grass hit a hot streak behind the shooting of Van Parker and Wynne to cut the lead to six points, 39-33 with 7:15 left in the game. But two quick field goals by Worsley and a pair of free throws by the lanky center made it 45-35, and the Wildcats had their ten point lead again.

Bear Grass was forced to throw a full-court press on the winners in the closing minutes, and when Worsley grabbed the rebound, as he did most of them for the night, he just slung it down court to his teammates for easy layups to insure the victory.

Lane Looks To Dodgers For Pitching Strength

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Trader Frank Lane, the Kansas City Athletics' general manager, is looking toward the Los Angeles Dodgers in his efforts to make a deal that will strengthen the A's pitching staff.

After talking with Buzzie Bavasi, the Dodgers GM, Lane Thursday assigned George Selkirk, player personnel director, to the Dodger Camp at Vero Beach, Fla., to look over some of the young mound talent. No names were mentioned, but Lane indicated he hopes to make a deal before the training season ends.

Lane might do worse than look toward the New York Yankees' camp, although the A's owners have said they don't want to trade with the Yanks.

erjack pitchers in my life. There isn't a bad one in the lot." Bob Turley, rejoined the Yankee pitching squad Thursday after a tussle with tonsillitis.

Pitchers were very much in the spotlight as most clubs who have opened their camps limited drills to batters and a few early arriving infielders and outfielders. Even before the official opening of the Milwaukee Braves' camp at Bradenton, Fla., right-hander Carl Willey was nominated as one of four regular starters—if he can hold the job against a batch of promising newcomers.

Larry Jackson, who pitched 282 innings and had an 18-13 record for the St. Louis Cardinals last season, agreed to contract terms in a telephone conversation with General Manager Bing Devine. "All the Cards now have signed," Robin Roberts, Phillies veteran, checked in ahead of time at Clearwater, Fla., and announced he's eager to start throwing.

The Detroit Tigers' Ray Narleski and Paul Foytack, troubled by injuries last season, worked three innings each in an intrasquad game and said they felt fine afterward. Pittsburgh's Curt Raydon, a good rookie prospect in 1958 who was relegated to the minors because of arm trouble, pitched well in batting practice and impressed Manager Danny Murtaugh as a prospect for a regular job.

The early arrivals at the San Francisco Giants' camp were Willie Mays, the $85,000 center fielder, and Don Blasingame, both of whom looked fit after winter gym work.

Harvey Whips Foe With Four Under

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Chances are good that medalist Bill Harvey will still be around for the semifinals of the National Tournament of Golf Club Champions.

The 30-year-old golfer from Greensboro, N.C., was four-under-par Thursday when he whipped Koderick Sears of Bryn Mawr, Pa., 5 and 4 in the first round. Only one former winner of the tourney remains in the running. He is John McKay of Orlando, Fla., who won his opening match 2 and 1 over Charles Highley of Spring Lake, N. J.

Jimmy Paul of Delray Beach, Fla., the 1948 winner of this select event for golf club champs, fell before Sam Marsh of Greenville, S.C., 3 and 2 in a first round upset.

With two 18-hole matches scheduled today Harvey's second round foe was Dillar Traynham of Greenville, S.C., who won his opener over Frank Brooks of Niles, Mich., 8 and 7.

Marsh faced Joe Miller Jr. of Hamilton, Ohio, a first-round winner over John Morell of Glen Elynn, Ill., 3 and 2. McKay met Matty Cioccola of West Boylston, Mass., who beat Jack Thornton of Rochester, N.Y., 2 and 1.

Heyman And Blue Devils Ready For ACC Tourney

By DON WEISS, Associated Press Sports Writer. Duke's Blue Devils are ready, confident and able to earn their crack at the NCAA basketball championship in the Atlantic Coast Conference title tournament next week.

And take it from the Madison Square Garden jury—Art Heyman, the Blue Devils' sophomore offensive wizard, is liable to take 'em there.

Heyman, the controversial 6-5 kid from Rockville Centre, N.Y., matched the Garden season single game record of 36 points Thursday night as Duke matched the season team record in a 112-78 rout of Seton Hall. It capped a tripleheader that also saw classy St. John (16-4) rout Marquette 65-69 and surging New York U. upset Wake Forest, 70-61.

The effort was tabbed "just what we needed," by Coach Bunas, whose Devils have been stuttering a bit since losing Heyman for their last three ACC games for his part in a fight during a North Carolina game earlier in the month.

This was the last game before the ACC tournament at Raleigh March 2-3 for Heyman, who hit 15 of 21 shots and added six of 10 free throws in matching the 36 points scored by Seton Hall's Hank Gunter at the Garden against St. Joseph's (Pa.) last Dec. 31 in the Holiday Festival. He'll sit out Duke's ACC regular season finale at North Carolina Saturday.

NYU, making a determined drive for an NIT berth despite a 10-9 record, beat bigger, heavier Wake Forest with top team defense, and the steady shooting of Al Aillard (18 points), Ray Paprocky and Art Loche. Tony Jackson hit 28 points and Leroy Ellis added 26 as St. Johns, which will play the ACC tournament winner in the NCAA eastern regional, won its fifth straight.

Second-ranked St. Bonaventure (21-1) boosted its winning streak to 12 and its home court string to 99 with a 99-57 rout of Siena as Tom Stith and Freddie Crawford each scored 27 points. Third-ranked Cincinnati (20-3) made Houston its 15th straight victim, 85-80.

Fourth-ranked Bradley (20-4) beat tough Wichita, 57-56 for its sixth straight.

Utah, leading the Skyline Conference, won its eighth straight 95-80 over Brigham Young. Providence thrashed Lemoine (N.Y.) 85-70 for its 18th triumph against six defeats. Drake won its seventh straight 83-63 over North Texas State.

Holy Cross scored a 122-94 rout of Fairfield, and Virginia Tech rallied second place in the Southern Conference regular season chase with a 103-81 win over Furman.

Ken Rothoff's 22 points led North Carolina State over Villanova 78-65 despite a 34-point burst by Villanova's Hubie White.

Palmer Top Pro At Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Defending champion Arnold Palmer headed the field as 153 professionals and 13 amateurs prepared to tee off today in the $20,000 Baton Rouge open golf tournament.

Golfers had one eye cocked to the sky, as they hoped there would be no repetition of rains that soaked a good part of the South—and the New Sherwood Forest Country Club—earlier in the week. Venerable Sam Snead of Boca Raton, Fla., who set a tournament record of 275 in 1953, his last appearance—here, heads a threesome that also includes Don Fairfield of Jacksonville, Ill., and Doug Sanders of Ojai, Calif.

Palmer, who plays out of Miami, plays with Doug Ford of Crystal River, Fla., and Howie Johnson of Cog Hill, Ill., the 1959 winner.

Golfers reported a day of sunshine Thursday had left the 6,700-yard, par 70 course in good condition. They said the course was playing long but the greens were in good shape.

The tournament was shifted to the Sherwood course this year from the Baton Rouge Country Club where the previous nine tournaments were played.

Due to a one-day postponement in the start of the event because of the rains, the field will play 18 holes today and Saturday a wind up with 36 holes on Sunday.

The state of Georgia was named for King George II of England.

Heyman Sparkles For Home Crowd

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Art Heyman played before the home folks Thursday night in New York's Madison Square Garden and the big Duke sophomore didn't disappoint them.

He scored 36 points—matching the Garden's single-game record for the season—as the Blue Devils smashed Seton Hall 112-78.

The Duke-Seton Hall game was part of a tripleheader in which Wake Forest, another Atlantic Coast Conference team, took part. The Deacons didn't fare as well as Duke, taking a 70-61 beating at the hands of NYU.

North Carolina State, meanwhile, scored a 78-65 victory over Villanova to gain revenge for the 72-63 loss to Villanova in the first round of the Dixie Classic in December. Ken Rothoff led the Wolfpack with 22 points.

A crowd of 11,781 in Madison Square Garden saw the ACC's two top scorers, Len Chappell of Wake Forest and Heyman. Chappell led the Deacons with 23 points.

The two now have exactly the same point production for the season. Each has scored 349 points in 22 games. Chappell will have a chance Saturday to gain the upper hand in the scoring derby when the Deacons play South Carolina. Heyman won't be playing when Duke faces North Carolina Saturday because he was ruled out of regular season games against conference opponents as a result of the fight in the last Duke - North Carolina game.

Thus, Thursday night's game was the last for Heyman until next week's conference tournament. In the only game scheduled to night in the ACC, Clemson plays at Virginia.

The upset of Wake Forest was accomplished with relative ease. NYU gained the lead late in the first half and went ahead by 16 points midway of the second half. Wake Forest now has a 14-10 record.

Duke, ranked sixth in the nation, takes a 20-4 record into the game Saturday with seventh-ranked North Carolina.

N.C. State finished regular season play and takes a 16-8 record into the conference tournament.

THE FERGUSON AFFAIR

CHAPTER 36

I placed a phone call to Michael Speare in Beverly Hills. I was reeling things. He agreed to call on me that night.

Shortly after eight o'clock I heard a racing motor die coughing in the street. Through the window I watched Speare embark from a low-slung silver car and take off his helmet and goggles.

In full light I saw that he was a worried man. I ushered him into my private office and shut the door.

"About those little discrepancies, Bill," he said. "You got to understand, I had a lot at stake in Holly's career."

"Just don't tell me any more lies."

"I came here willingly to co-operate, Bill. I'm in a worse bind than you know. The whole thing started early last spring before Holly left me. That sister of hers, the one you're looking for, ran up some bills in Palm Springs stores, using Holly's name. I hired a detective to track the sister down.

"I got into the papers, it wouldn't be good. The sister was traveling with Gaines at the time. My gunshoe traced them to San Antonio and dug up a dentist there who'd put crowns on Hilda's teeth. Hollywood style. The dentist led him to a crooked plastic surgeon who specialized in fugitives from justice. He'd given Hilda a nose job and some other touches working from a photograph of Holly. From San Antonio the two of them went to Houston where she promoted herself a wardrobe. Then on to suck-er-land."

"The suckers in Miami weren't having any, not the respectable ones with the big money. Hilda looked like Holly, but she lacked the class. She had to settle for fringe benefits, using Holly's name to ramble on. She fell into the hands of a cookie named Salzman—the hood they arrested in L.A. the other day. When my man caught up with her finally, she was still using Holly's name. I flew to Miami the end of August to put a stop to it."

"Holly wasn't your client at the end of August."

"I know, but I was hoping to get her back. I brought Gaines and Hilda here and kept them on the hook for a while, wondering what to do with them. Some way or other they got the idea that I'd be pleased and happy if Holly's marriage didn't work out too well. I talk too much sometimes when I've been drinking."

"I'll translate that. You black-mailed Gaines and Hilda into coming out here and trying to break up Holly's marriage."

"That's a rough way to put it, Bill. Gaines needed no urging. He had his own ideas about Holly May. I think he got delusions of grandeur traveling with her double. He told me one night when he was high that he was going to take her away from Ferguson and marry her himself."

"What was he high on?"

"Heroin. They both take heroin when they can get it."

"I stood up behind my desk. Speare sat down quickly, for fear I was going to hit him. 'I didn't know it was going to turn out this way.' His face had broken up like crackleware. 'Look. I'll make a deal with you. Forget about this little business, keep my name out of it, and I'll give you something you really want. Gaines and the woman.'"

"You know where they are?"

"I said a deal. If this thing spills in the L.A. press, I'm a nothing man, I'm dead."

"I gave it some thought. It didn't take much thought, with the entire country being ransacked for the pair."

"It's a deal. Give me Gaines and the woman, and I'll forget you. With pleasure."

"I can't guarantee Gaines for sure. Hilda says he ran out on her. But she should be able to lead you to him."

"Have you talked to her?"

"Oh, yes. I've talked to her. You think I blackmailed her? She's been blackmailing me!"

"What threatened to wreck my reputation unless I gave her money. I guess she's afraid to spend the ransom money. Or else Gaines really did run out on her. I've been putting her off with peanuts for the last two days, and incidentally slowly going crazy. She's sitting there like a ticking bomb. Last night she threatened to shoot me."

"Sitting where? Where is she?"

"She's holed up in a beach shack between the Palisades and Malibu, on 10 Highway."

"He gave me the address. It's a brown shingle shack on the right-hand side of the highway, just a few hundred yards past a driveway named Jack's. I'm supposed to meet her there tonight, with five grand."

"I drove from Buena Vista to Malibu with Ferguson in his big sedan."

"Holly is going to stay with me whatever comes," Ferguson said. "This thing has brought us closer somehow—closer than we were. I know now that she loves me."

"You're lucky to have such a woman."

"I realize that, Gunnarson. Both Holly and I have realized a number of things. I thought I could start a brand-new life at the age of fifty-six, as if I hadn't already had a life. Holly was going the same thing in her own way. She tried to turn her back on everything, her family, the whole past. But the past has its revenge."

"We were near the top of the grade. Ferguson had slowed to thirty-five or forty. A pair of headlights came up behind us rapidly. A low-slung car went by like a silver bullet. I caught a glimpse of a goggled, helmeted head."

"I think that's Speare," I said.

"Below, the road curved back toward the sea. At the end of the curve a red sign flashed: JACK'S DRIVE-IN."

Speare's silver car swung wide on the curve and almost went off onto the left-hand shoulder. I saw it pause, incredibly, like a bird in flight, and heard the screech of its brakes."

A tiny skinned figure, black in the headlights, was running across the highway. She stopped in the middle, facing the weaving car, with something in her hand. The something sputtered fire. The car flung her off the road before I heard the shot, and slewed on for another hundred feet. We got to her before Speare did. Ferguson went to his knees beside her. He touched her ruined head."

Speare came trotting, throwing off his goggles as he ran. "I didn't mean to do it. You saw her run out in the road. She tried to shoot me. I did my best to avoid her, but I couldn't. You're a witness, Bill!"

His eyes were headline black. He clutched my arm, babbling and shaking. People began to gather like Martians dropped from the pierced sky."

Ferguson had the dead woman in his arms.

"Who is she? Do you know her?" somebody said.

He looked up at the Martians and their sky. A shudder went through him, violent and unwilling. "She's my daughter," he said in a clear voice. "My daughter Hilda."

The Highway Patrol found the gun in the ditch. It turned out to be Gaines's revolver, and it held three empty shells and three loaded shells. A dentist from San Antonio, Texas, identified the charred jawbone Willis had dug out of the ashes. It was the jawbone of a man he had done some fillings for the previous May. The name on the charts and X rays was Larry Grimes.

Hilda's second shot had not been aimed at me.

In due course the bones of her son were released to Adelaide Haines for burial. Lieutenant Willis attended the funeral, he told me later. He was interested in the fact that Mrs. Haines had paid thirty-five hundred dollars for a bronze casket with silver embellishments.

Willis followed her home after the service to ask her a few questions. She tried to buy him off with ten thousand dollars in cash. He found the rest of the money her son had left with her inside the piano. He found also a first-class airline ticket to Rio Janeiro, made out in the name of the Reverend Cary Caine.

As for the diamond brooch, the nurse who undressed Mrs. Haines in the psychiatric ward of the Mountain Grove Hospital discovered that she was wearing it pinned to her slip under her black mourning.

Doctors Can't Fight 'Fashion'

LONDON (AP)—The health officer of Northamptonshire says ruefully that medical arguments can't persuade the ladies they'd be happier if they'd give up shoes with sharp toes and heels.

But Dr. C. Milliken Smith said in an address at Kettering Thursday night that the wheel of fashion may be coming to his rescue.

"I believe that stiletto heels are on the way out, and that square-toed shoes are coming in," he said.

"There is no other relief in sight because it is obvious that girls and young women—despite clear warnings of trouble that lies ahead—will continue to wear pointed toes and stiletto heels as long as they are fashionable."

But the doctor speculated that if the recent trend in footwear continues, it might go as far as it did in the 15th Century in Britain.

Dr. Smith said that in the early 15th Century women's shoes were so long and so narrow they became known as "pikes," which they resembled, and that religious leaders became alarmed.

The Pope, he said, was persuaded to condemn making pikes longer than 11 inches. Within 20 years broad "duckbill" shoes, some of them 9 inches wide, came into fashion and there is no record of papal or medical disapproval.

Onetime House Plant Is Multi-Million Dollar Deal

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Grandmother's house plants have found a new home.

Around $300 million a year is spent by business firms for flowers and foliage to soften the stark lines of modern buildings or to bring warmth to offices, banks, stores and even to data centers of electronic brains.

Sales for indoor beautification of public or working areas of commercial buildings have jumped 300 per cent since 1954, according to the National Clay Pot Manufacturers Association. Its members supply 150 million clay pots a year to some 12,000 commercial growers.

Retail sales to business have increased much faster than to home owners. This parallels the record boom in commercial and industrial construction in the last six years in such centers as New York, Chicago, Detroit, Dallas, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pittsburgh and Miami.

The biggest sales growth of all in recent years has been for interior use in such buildings.

Softening the outside lines of modern architecture with plants got a big boost almost 30 years ago from the wide usage in Rockefeller Center in New York City. Much later, plants showed up in volume in the reception rooms, executive offices, and secretarial areas of a long list of the nation's biggest corporations.

One big impetus for indoor planting came with the opening of the Fifth Avenue branch of Manufacturers Trust Co. of New York. Its glass facade revealed to the passer-by a lush interior display of flowers and foliage plants. Since then banks across the country have bought plants by the gross and new commercial buildings have followed the trend.

A New York specialist in large indoor plantings for business and industry, C. Kind & Co., holds that "most architects, decorators and builders are agreed that carefully selected and properly potted live plants are essential to add warmth to modern interiors."

Florists have pushed the spread of plants from home to office. Clay pot makers say potted plants made up one-fourth of all retail florist dollar sales in 1950 and one third in 1960.

But much of the growth in retail sales of plants in recent years has come from the mushrooming of roadside garden stores and self-service plant department in supermarkets and variety stores.

The Department of Commerce lists potted plants along with bulbs, vegetable and bedding plants as horticultural specialties. Its 1959 figures put the 10 states producing the most of these specialties in this order: California, Pennsylvania, Florida, Ohio, New York, Illinois, New Jersey, Michigan, Massachusetts, Texas.

Recently built structures using plants to enhance interior beauty include Prudential Life Insurance buildings in Houston and Chicago, and Union Carbide in New York.

Police Arrest 37 In Lottery Raids

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Police arrested 37 persons, all Negroes, in lottery raids at two houses here Thursday night. Those arrested included a bondsman, identified by police as Charles Dan Flanders.

Sgt. Jack Porter, head of a team of special investigators, said the raids ended several months of undercover work.

Officers raided the two houses, and then arrested everyone who knocked at the doors of the houses.

Police seized lottery tickets and other evidence. Porter described the two houses as "pick-up" points.

Recently built structures using plants to enhance interior beauty include Prudential Life Insurance buildings in Houston and Chicago, and Union Carbide in New York.

Venezuela is half again as big as Texas.

Veteran Film Director Looking For New Stars

By BOB THOMAS

KYOTO, Japan (AP)—"Now you take Gable. Once he agreed to a script, that was it. He was on the set every morning at 9, no questions asked. But these new actors—murder!"

This was Raoul Walsh reflecting on the old and the new among Hollywood stars. He has directed them all, and discovered scores of them from Anna May Wong to Rock Hudson.

Walsh was explaining why he brought a group of nonstar actors here to film a Korean War saga, "Marines, Let's Go."

"We need some new stars in Hollywood or we'll be going out of business," he said. "Besides I like to take a bunch of newcomers and throw them into the pot, maybe one of them will come out a star."

"I get tired of pampering stars along. By the time you get through negotiations with them, you could have had the picture shot and in the cutting room. They want to rewrite the script as they go along."

Walsh is one of the movies' great characters. His history goes back more than 50 years. He has directed over 400 films, from one-reelers to wide-screen.

He reflected on some of the old and new names over whisky at the Miyako Hotel, meanwhile rolling his own cigarettes.

"Gable was great, and so was Spencer Tracy. Cagney too. He might come in one morning and say, 'Look, skipper, maybe we could do this scene a little different.' We'd talk it over and agree in a hurry."

"Greg Peck was a little more trouble. He'd say, 'I don't feel like doing it this way.' I'd say, 'okay, but let's shoot it my way, too, and we'll decide later.' You can imagine which version got on the screen."

"Bogart was a cinch, but then he remembered I gave him his first starring role. That was in 'High Sierra,' which George Raft turned down because he didn't want to die in the end. It was the first picture for Arthur Kennedy, Cornel Wilde and Joan Leslie."

"Raft never forgot his old pals. He kept coming to me and asking if I could find a part for a friend of his from New York. I said okay, then later the FBI on the policy would come and take the guy away. George always said his pal was framed."

Prolonged Strife Has Left Belgian Congo Splintered Into 6 Govm'ts

By PETER GROSE
LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Eight months of strife have left the old Belgian Congo splintered into six nominally independent governments.

Finances are hopelessly disorganized. Frontiers are vague. Communication among the self-styled capitals is erratic, and cooperation on even the most routine administrative matters often depends solely on whims.

No mail service exists between Leopoldville and Elizabethville, the largest cities. Telegrams and telephone calls from Leopoldville to South Kasai must be routed through Brussels.

Government treasury in some cases may amount to nothing more than the tribal chief's bank account.

Some of the governments are rich. Katanga and South Kasai collect vast revenues from diamonds, copper and uranium mines. Others verge on bankruptcy—the Lumumbist province of Oriental is barred by blockade from trade, and food for the population is short.

The main Leopoldville administration is committed this year to pay the army an amount equal to almost the entire government income, revenue derived mainly from taxes on large international firms.

In mountainous, scenic Kivu Province, successive pro-Lumumba heads of the provincial government have arrested and deposed each other.

In much of the province, roughly the size of Pennsylvania, ordinary life has ceased. Electricity and gas in the towns have been interrupted. European residents have fled to the safety of Belgian-administered Ruanda-Urundi.

At the other end of the scale is Katanga, the first region to break away from the central government and now lightly organized into what many consider a police state.

Under the grip of President Moise Tshombe, Katanga has its own flag, radio station and central bank. Belgian money pours into the country and its national army boasts firm discipline under highly paid European officers.

Next door to Katanga is the wealthy mining state of South Kasai, ruled almost as a feudal holding by tribal chief Albert Kalonji. He negotiates with Tshombe and President Joseph Kasavubu of the Leopoldville government almost on terms of equality. Huge revenues from diamond mines go to his own treasury. His aim is to keep his own interests secure in any Congolese federation.

Hit by inflation and wage demands, this government "is running a deficit equivalent to $16 million a month. This is being met by credit advances from the Congolese Central Bank, which so far has advanced over $120 million.

U.N. financial experts say this situation cannot go on for more than a few months.

Premier Antoine Gizenga and other Lumumbists are fighting an uphill battle to retain support and authority.

The central government of Kasavubu and Premier Joseph Ileo still can claim control of about half the country. Though plodding and often ineffective, it is recognized by most of the world and speaks as a member of the United Nations.

On the world stage the leading players in the Congo drama are the two governments in Leopoldville and Stanleyville, each claiming to be the legitimate government for the whole country.

The Stanleyville regime was established in the name of Patrice Lumumba. Now that he is gone,

Section 1. DEFINITIONS. The following terms whenever used or referred to in this ordinance shall have the following respective meanings unless a different meaning clearly appears from the context:

(a) TRAILER. Any vehicle, housecar, camp car or any portable or movable vehicle on wheels, skids, rollers or blocks, either self-propelled or propelled by any other means, which is used or designed to be used for residential living, sleeping, commercial or utility purposes, but not including those vehicles primarily designed for the transportation of goods.

(b) TRAILER CAMP. Any park, trailer park, trailer court, court, camp, site, lot, or parcel or tract of land designed, maintained or intended for the purpose of supplying a location or accommodations for any trailer, trailer coach or trailer coaches, upon which any trailer, trailer coach or trailer coaches are parked, whether a charge is made for the use of the trailer camp and its facilities or not. "Trailer Camp" shall not include automobile or trailer sales lots on which unoccupied trailers are parked for the purpose of inspection and sale.

Section 2. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to place or maintain any trailer used for human habitation, or to use any trailer for living, sleeping or business purposes on any lot or premises located within the "Residence District" or within the "Business District" of the City of Greenville, North Carolina.

Section 3. No trailer camp shall be constructed or maintained within the "Residence District" or within the "Business District" of the City of Greenville, but, subject to the following regulations, trailers may be placed and trailer camps constructed and maintained in the "Industrial District" of the City.

(a). The minimum land area used or occupied by any one trailer unit in a trailer camp shall be 25 feet by 50 feet and the same shall be defined by a marker at each corner; and provided, further, that the minimum width of walkways serving such trailer plot shall be 10 feet.

(b). No trailer shall be placed nearer than 5 feet to its individual side lot line nor nearer than 7 feet to its back lot line nor within 20 feet of any street or exterior boundary line of the trailer camp.

(c). One off-street automobile parking space shall be provided on the site for each trailer unit in such trailer camp. The off-street parking spaces shall be set aside in a location convenient to the occupants of the trailer units and shall have ingress and egress by means of a public way. Where parking areas are provided adjacent to a public street, ingress and egress thereto shall be made accessible through driveways or openings not exceeding 25 feet in width in the curb line of said street.

(d). Each trailer camp shall be provided with at least one refuse collection station provided with water and fly type containers for each 12 trailer units conveniently located to serve the occupants of the trailer units and such station shall be conveniently located for the collection by the City forces.

(e). No trailer shall be used as living or sleeping quarters unless and until connections have been made with the city sewer system for sewage disposal.

Section 4. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict with this ordinance are hereby repealed.

Section 5. This ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its adoption.

FTC Sees Unusual Proofs Of 'Honesty'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—At a Federal Trade Commission hearing investigating a TV commercial recently, an advertising executive introduced into evidence three pieces of coarse sandpaper and testified he had shaved them with a safety razor after first soaking each piece with his brand of shaving cream for periods ranging from 2 1/2 to 30 minutes.

When the manufacturers of a brand of detergents recently made a commercial demonstrating how much more efficient their product is than those of competitors, witnesses and notaries public were present to watch the dish-washing and then signed statements to that effect.

When the maker of a cooking oil wanted to make the point in TV commercials that his product unlike others remained liquid under refrigeration, samples of the oil and of eight competitive products were placed in nine different refrigerators and given a chance, under controlled conditions, to solidify for one solid week.

When a carpet manufacturer wanted to claim the fibers of his product did not come loose, vacuum-cleaner tests were made and the dust bags emptied out and inspected by witnesses.

"Ah, yes," sighed an executive of a New York studio where large numbers of TV commercials are made. "The honesty kick is still on. Even the steam you see coming up from a cup of coffee is real steam these days. The days of holding a burning cigarette behind the cup are gone—forever, I guess."

After all the preliminary announcements, the Perry Como Show quietly junked its idea to do three musical comedy shows in a row, vaguely connected under the general title of "Love Story." This week's show, with Anne Bancroft and Jimmy Durante, was supposed to have been the first, sub-titled "Boy Meets Girl." Instead it was a variety show in the usual Como mold—but with the principals breaking up just a little too much and too often.

According to NBC, everyone liked the idea of doing some original "book" musicals, but the scripts just didn't work out satis-

BULK CURING WITH MAYO SACK SYSTEM AND PREFAB BARN

MAYO LOW-BARN: Designed for Mayo Sack Curing or Bulk curing. 22 feet long, 22 feet wide and 10 feet high. Barn has five rooms, 4 tiers. Made of frame and Douglas Fir Plywood. It's completely prefabricated. Can be built and filled in one day. Holds 1,000 to 1,500 lbs. of cured tobacco. Equipped with FM Superjet Automatic Oil Curing System. It is also suitable for curing potatoes, drying peanuts and all types of grain. Barn costs less than $800.00 for on-the-farm construction. Florence-Mayo will supply specifications and prints. Superjet Oil Curing system for 22x22 barns $375.00—15x15 barns $298.00.

NEW FLORENCE - MAYO SUPERJET The King Of The Tobacco Curers

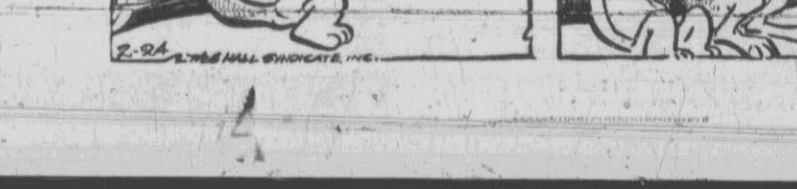

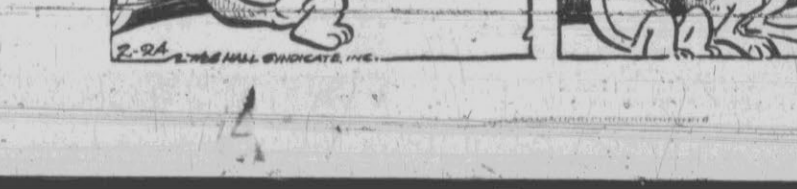

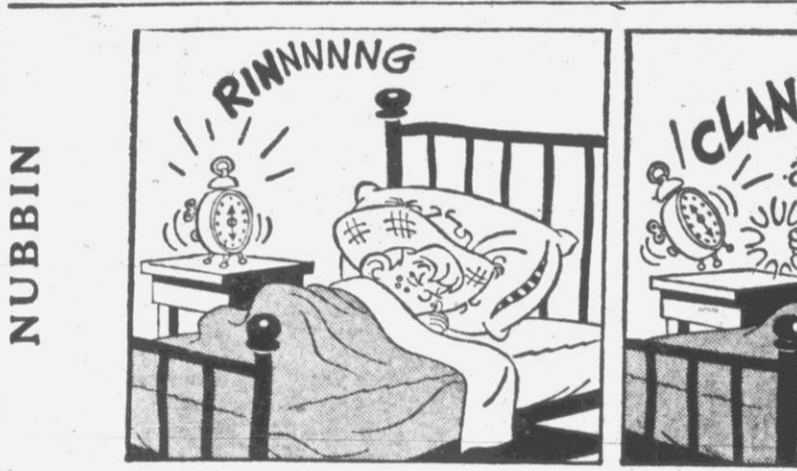

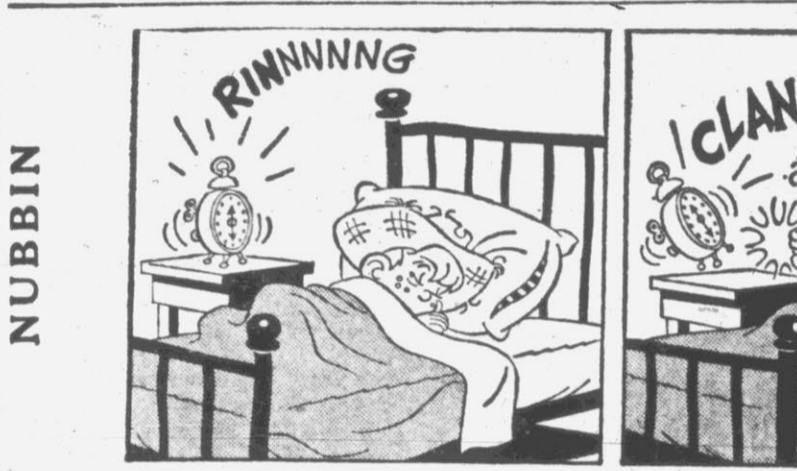

The new Superjet can be used for bulk curing in the new Mayo pre-fab barns, and can be transferred to regular barns. Uses 8 extra large galvanized heat spreaders that last 8 to 10 times longer than black stovepipe. Comes with new dual control. Heat spreaders are louvered. New metal baffle, insulated with rock wool, allows limited radiation to come up from unit in the center of the barn. Provides perfect heat distribution throughout the barn. For specifications on new Mayo pre-fab barns, and complete details on new FM Superjet Oil Curer, see your FM dealer or visit the Florence-Mayo factory in Farmville. Barn and Superjet Oil Curer available for 1961 curing season.

Curing units located inside the barns are more economical to operate than any unit located outside of the barns.

Modernize your old Peerless and Anchor Curers by installing Florence-Mayo's Patented Galvanize Heatspreaders for better heat distribution. Florence-Mayo's Galvanize heatspreaders will last 5 to 10 times longer than Black Stove Pipe.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets steady. Supplies of all sizes about adequate, demand generally good. Prices paid producers for clean, unsorted eggs, delivered nearby grading stations on a grade-yield basis, cases exchanged: grade A large, whites 4 to 43; medium, whites 39 to 40, mostly 39; small, whites 35 to 36, mostly 35.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — Hog prices mostly steady to 25 lower. Tops of 17.50-18.75 Wilson; 17.75-18.25 Bebel, Murfreesboro; 17.25-18.25 Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Mount Olive, Newton Grove; 17.50-18 Rocky Mount; 18 Clinton, Fayetteville, Elizabethtown; 17.75 Rich Square, Castle Hayne, Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck, Goldsboro; 17.50 Albemarle; 17.25 Lillington.

Wilson cash cattle prices irregular: Steers and heifers, choice 26, good 22-22.50, standards 17-21.50; beef cows 13.50-16; heavy cutters 13-14; bulls, light weight 13-15.50, heavyweight 17-18.50.

NEW YORK (AP) — Extremely heavy trading prevailed in the stock market early this afternoon as it churned ahead narrowly on balance. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .40 at 237.50 with industrials up 1.10, rails down .10 and utilities up .20. Gains of most key stocks were small, some extending to a point or so. A few more losers crept into the list as trading wore on.

The ticker tape lagged as much as six minutes behind trading most of the morning and volume for the first two hours was 2.12 million shares compared with 2.21 million Thursday when the day's full total was the biggest in 3 1/2 years.

Many specially-situated stocks were active, especially those related to recent Washington developments.

Airlines were generally higher now that the strike against most airlines was over. Selected gains among aircraft-missiles, steels, motors, chemicals and base metals helped the average.

The Kennedy administration's anti-recession policy, with accent on aid to education, home building and buying, development of natural resources and more defense spending was reflected in stocks related to these areas.

Some very large blocks were traded in favored issues from the start. As the session wore on Rexall rose 3/4 to 45 1/2 on a huge transaction of 52,600 shares and extended its gain to about 2. Brunswick advanced 1 1/4 to 58 on 22,300 shares and also ran the gain to 2. Polaroid spurred about 5 points. Texas Instruments more than 2 and American Machine & Foundry more than a point.

San Diego Imperial was fractionally higher and heavily traded. Fairbanks Whitney continued active and up slightly.

Johns-Manville (ex dividend) ran up 3 points or so. Ford picked up about 2 as auto industry output was scheduled to rise. Zenith spurred more than 2.

Small losses were shown by Dupont, Chrysler, Goodyear and Republic Aviation. U.S. Gypsum and Air Reduction lost about a point.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.18 at 653.60. Corporate bonds were a shade higher. U.S. government bonds declined.

A "DRIVE IN"? . . . Well that is practically what happened when these two vehicles collided at the intersection of 10th and Cotanche Sts. yesterday.

Foggy Highway Crash Kills Four

CONOVER, N.C. (AP) — Four young men were killed and five men were injured, one of them critically, in a smash-up on a foggy highway a mile west of here late Thursday night.

The four who were killed, and the youth who was critically hurt, were in a car that slammed into the rear of a P & G Chair Co. furniture van being towed by a wrecker. The van had broken down and was being towed to Hickory.

The car, jammed up beneath the rear of the van, was then hit by a station wagon. The four men in the station wagon were not injured seriously.

Highway Patrol Cpl. H. J. Hunt, who with Patrolman J. L. Brinkley investigated the accident, identified the victims as Larry Nelson Scarlett, 19, of Rt. 3, Hickory, and his brother, Russell Wayne Scarlett, 21, of Rt. 3, Hickory; Thomas Wesley Weaver, 19, of Rt. 3, Hickory; and Douglas Evans Houser, 18, of Rt. 3, Hickory.

The officers said Ernest Ray Punch, 18, of Rt. 2, Conover, was injured critically.

The four in the station wagon were identified as Houston D. Havener, the driver; William L. Abernethy, 46; Ronda W. Watts, 54; Silvey Leroy Whitener, 47, all of Hickory.

The accident on Rt. 64-70-321 occurred on a stretch of highway where 12 persons have been killed in the last three years.

Grimesland HD Club Banquet Is Set Next Week

GRIMESLAND —The Grimesland Home Demonstration Club made final plans for their annual banquet, which will be held at Mt. Calvary Baptist Church in Grimesland next Wednesday.

Plans also were discussed concerning the hat workshop and the State Federation, which convenes March 22 in Raleigh. Members were reminded to attend the free film on "Cancer Detection" to be shown Saturday afternoon at the Roxy Theater.

It was announced that a furniture refinishing workshop will be held March 27 at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. John Wilson, where the February meeting was held.

The demonstration was on "Dress for the Occasion" and was given by Mrs. Rubelle Smith, clothing leader. She presented points on the type of dress and accessories to be worn on different occasions, using charts to illustrate her points.

Mrs. Fleeta Tetterton will be hostess for the March meeting. Mrs. Cora Hardy, vice president, presided at the meeting.
