Still Rising

The Tar River is continuing to rise and this morning stood at a little over 16 feet, spokesmen at the Greenville Utilities Plant said.

If the weatherman is correct in his predictions, the river may rise further. He is forecasting possible thunderstorms in the east this afternoon, with a gradual clearing and cooler tonight. Wednesday should be a clear, cool day.

Temperatures in Greenville rose to a high of 76 spring-like degrees yesterday. L. M. Bullock of the utilities plant reported, while the low for Monday was 41 degrees. The low this morning was 49 degrees, recorded at 4 a.m., Bullock said.

Question Is Not 'Whether', But 'How' Languages Will Be Taught Tots

By G. K. HODENFIELD
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The teaching of foreign languages in the elementary grades is here to stay, and the schools may as well make the best of it. That appeared to be the consensus of superintendents who heard the issue debated at the convention of the American Association of School Administrators Monday. Those who are reluctant to start such programs in their schools aren't against foreign language experiences, and as preparation for high school and college. "But the first three of these are too complex for elementary school children. Enrichment experiences can be more effectively developed in art, music and social studies programs. And we must never look upon the elementary school as just a stepping stone to high school and college." Dawson said. "We don't have to get them."

Prof. Charles W. Lovy of Contra Costa College, San Pablo, Calif., said in reply: "If foreign languages are to be taught at all effectively, they must be taught in the elementary schools. We now postpone this teaching until the pupils are no longer able to learn rapidly and efficiently. "We know now that at an early age—and up to about age 12—the human brain has unlimited elasticity. During this period, a child can learn to speak two or three languages at the same time with equal ease. "Then the brain becomes stiff and rigid, so far as the ability to learn a language is concerned. The children can still learn a foreign language, of course, but never again with the ease and facility of their younger days. "In a lengthy discussion from the floor that followed the debate, the school superintendents made it clear that the question with them wasn't whether the foreign language program should be started, but how.

Kennedy Assigns Highway Tax Burden To Big Trucks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy today proposed a tax formula for financing superhighways by placing a greater share of the burden on big trucks. The President, in a 3,500-word special message to Congress, said his pay-as-you-go plan would complete 41,000 miles of express roads by 1972 without resort to a higher federal gasoline tax. However, he said Congress should not permit a scheduled June 30 reduction in the gas tax from 4 cents a gallon to 3 cents. And he added that if his proposals for heavier levies on trucks are rejected, Congress should be prepared to increase gasoline taxes on all users. Kennedy's plan would boost taxes and fees on heavy trucks, diesel fuel, tires, tubes and retread rubber. While truckers would bear the brunt of these, Kennedy said even so they would not pay "their fair share of the cost of this program." The President also made some sharp comments about roadside billboards, which he said "tend to detract from both the beauty and safety of the routes they line." Kennedy said the states should be given a bigger incentive to regulate billboards. If that doesn't work, he said federal control or billboard taxes might be necessary. In arguing the merits of superhighways, Kennedy said they will save each year at least 4,000 lives, 42,000 years of travel time and 9 billion stops for red lights and intersections. Declaring the road program vital to the nation's security, safety and economic growth, Kennedy said "I am wholly opposed to either stretching out or cutting back" the work. He was equally emphatic about paying for the job out of revenues from taxes on highway users without dipping into general funds and unbalancing the budget. The only time regular Treasury funds should be used, he said would be in times of recession. He added that he believes anti-slump moves already proposed will be sufficiently effective to make such action unnecessary. If a later reading of economic signposts indicate, otherwise, Kennedy said, Congress might want to use general funds to repair winter road damage in areas of substantial unemployment. The President said the road program is in real peril because of a threatened shortage of funds. He said that if the job is to be finished on schedule federal revenues must be increased by $900 million a year after June 30. Otherwise, he said, the program will take an extra five years. The federal government pays 90 percent of the cost of the new superhighways and the states the rest. The total bill is expected to approach $40 billion by 1972. To raise an additional $900 million a year, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower last month recommended that the gas tax be boosted to 4½ cents a gallon. Kennedy called this "clearly acceptable." However, he said that because of economic conditions he would "prefer not to raise taxes on the general consumer at this time." His alternative suggestion: provide $600 million a year by preventing the scheduled 1-cent cut in the gas tax and raise the remaining $300 million through the heavier taxes and fees which would bear most heavily on truckers. The Kennedy plan would increase the annual federal license fee on a 45,000-pound tractor-trailer from $27.50 to $95. The tax on a 100-pound truck tire would jump from $8 to $10 and trucks burning diesel fuel would pay a tax of 7 cents a gallon instead of the present 4 cents. The biggest effect on the average motorist would be the higher tire tax—a matter of an extra 40 cents on a typical 20-pound

Three Congo Regimes Sign United Front Pact Against Leftist Rebels

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The central Congo government today signed a military pact with independent Katanga and the Kasai mining state for a united front against the leftist rebels. But a rebel threat to this capital seemed to be evaporating. As the pact was signed in Katanga President Moise Tshombe's capital of Elisabethville, the United Nations reported that leftist rebels had pulled out of the Kasai provincial capital of Luluabourg while their spearhead at the frontier of Leopoldville Province had vanished. The pact among the three frequently feuding regimes could lead to a political federation capable of challenging the Communist-backed regime of Antoine Gizenga, the dead Patrice Lumumba's political heir, in Stanleyville. Premier Joseph Ileo, sent by President Joseph Kasavubu to Elisabethville to seek Tshombe's help, signed for the Leopoldville government. President Albert Kalonji signed for his independent mining state of Kasai Province. Tshombe signed for Katanga. One clause of the agreement said the signatories "are determined to solve their problems themselves and will not accept any outside intervention." Kasavubu had a private talk with G. Mennen Williams, touring U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs. He was said to have told Williams that the Congolese government is not waging a cold war against the United Nations. Williams assured Kasavubu of President Kennedy's continued support for the Leopoldville government against the Stanleyville regime. Kasavubu was said to have asserted his will to cooperate with the United Nations if it consults with and works with the Congo central government. In Leopoldville the Congolese government is continuing high after the outbreak of violence and rape by Congolese soldiers Sunday night against U.N. personnel. Two Moroccan members of the U.N. staff were arrested on the Leopoldville-Matadi road. U.N. soldiers remained on the alert through the night. The use of U.N. vehicles for pleasure trips in the city was barred. The United Nations said Gizenga's soldiers who reached Luluabourg, originally estimated at 350, now were reported to be about 150. Apparently disgruntled, the soldiers pulled out north, leaving their commander in the lurch. He took asylum at U. N. headquarters. The spearhead that had advanced from Luluabourg and was reported Monday to have crossed into Leopoldville province also seemed to have vanished. The soldiers from Stanleyville, where political heirs of slain Congolese leader Patrice Lumumba have their headquarters, occupied Luluabourg last Friday after traveling halfway across the Congo. Luluabourg lies about 500 miles east of Leopoldville. Advance units had pushed 100 miles or more toward the capital. U.N. reports said the rebels appeared to have lost heart after being ordered off the Luluabourg airport by Ghanaian soldiers of the United Nations. In addition, a U.N. spokesman said, they seemed to have become suspicious of negotiations going on between their own officers and officers of the Luluabourg garrison. The airport incident started Monday when a detachment of the original Congolese garrison turned up demanding a share in the guard duties. The airport was then being manned jointly by Ghanaian U.N. soldiers and a detachment of the Stanleyville soldiers. The Ghanaians refused to let units of both Congolese factions stay at the airport. "So they requested them all to leave," the U.N. spokesman said. The military pact signed today brings together the squabbling anti-Communist leaders in the Congo — at least for the time being. An agreement signed in Elisabethville, capital of the secessionist province of Katanga, provides badly needed aid for Kasavubu's disorganized forces. It was signed by Premier Joseph Ileo, who represented Kasavubu's Leopoldville government; Albert Kalonji, leader of the mining state of South Kasai, and Katanga President Moise Tshombe. Under terms of the pact they will pool their troops to combat the Communist dictatorial regime of Gizenga in Stanleyville. Permanent contacts for both military and political cooperation are to be set up.

Rusk Faces Quiz Today On Conventional Arms Stress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk faces congressional questioning today on reports he favors shifting away from a policy of "massive retaliation" and advocates a big build-up in conventional military forces. The buildup by the United States and its allies is said to be favored by Rusk to meet the danger of brushfire war and lessen the risk of a nuclear conflict. Conventional forces would be used to combat any Communist military aggression that might be stayed off without use of nuclear weapons. "Massive retaliation" as enunciated by the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, would put primary reliance on nuclear weapons as means of combatting Communist aggression. Rusk's views were given in a secret paper to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. Rusk's appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today was scheduled several days ago. Informants said Rusk favored holding off the use of nuclear weapons until a Communist attack reached a more massive level than would have triggered atomic retaliation under the Eisenhower administration's policy. In defense language, this is known as raising the atomic threshold. High officials made clear that the U.S. government still plans to draw on its atomic arsenal if necessary against Communist attacks abroad. A story in Monday's Washington Star described Rusk's position as this: "1. Use of the big missiles and bombers carrying atomic weapons should be confined to deterrence of attacks on this country and deterrence of 'nuclear blackmail.' "2. Attacks on Europe should be met with conventional non-nuclear weapons unless the enemy started to use nuclear weapons. "3. Limited aggressions outside Europe should be handled by our troops, rather than those of our allies, and we should use non-nuclear weapons in meeting such aggression."

While declining to specify what Rusk recommended, Lincoln White, State Department press officer, denounced the Star version "as the grossest distortion of the views of the Department of State." State Department authorities voiced concern that the Soviets might get a wrong impression from the Star's account and decide that West Europe is open for invasion without danger of atomic counterattack. An inquiry was under way to find what leaked a story about the top secret Rusk memo to press. White accused those who leaked the story of "the most irresponsible and reckless attitude."

Two Arrested For Corn Theft From Warehouse

Two men have been arrested on charges of breaking and entering and larceny as the result of the theft of some corn from Farmers Warehouse during January. Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson identified the two as Nathan Coggins, 50, who lives on 13th St. and Farrow Best, 42, who lives on Fleming St. Both are Negro.

They are accused of taking 40 to 50 bushels of corn which had been treated for seed. The corn, which belonged to Speight Seed Farm, is valued at $300. Sheriff Tyson said it was found stacked in a wooded area in Greene County. The corn, in two bushel bags, was recovered in good condition. Coggins was released on bond and Best was still in jail today. Both men waived preliminary hearing and their trial has been set for Superior Court during the March 27 term.

Digging Deep For Wreck Bits

GOLDSBORO, N.C. — (AP) — Large-scale digging operations are underway at the scene of a Jan. 24 bomber crash near here. Rumors resulting from the digging operations prompted Air Force authorities Monday to issue a statement that it is digging for scraps of wreckage—and not for nuclear devices. "Local water supplies are not contaminated by any after-effects of the B-52 crash of Jan. 24," said the statement. "Water samples taken by the Air Force indicated there was absolutely no evidence of water contamination." Three men were killed in the crash while five others parachuted to safety. The Air Force said one of the plane's two nuclear weapons was jettisoned before the crash. The other was found in the wreckage. The Air Force said at the time both had been recovered and there was never any danger of a nuclear explosion. Some visitors to the crash scene have reported seeing as many as 10 bulldozers, 10 earth-movers, two drilling rigs, a crane, tents and trucks in the area. They said an excavation there was upwards of 250 feet in diameter. "We want to stress that parts of the plane are what we are looking for," said Lt. Burris DeBennig, public relations officer at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base. "No nuclear material is involved." He said the board of officers investigating the crash "desires to have every possible piece of the aircraft recovered" and "some of the pieces are buried deep in the ground."

Insured Jobless Ranks Still Climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — State insured unemployment has climbed to a new high for the second week in a row. The Labor Department's Bureau of Employment Security said Monday state insured unemployment was up 32,000 for the week ended Feb. 11. This brought the total to 3,390,600 and represented 8.4 per cent of the total employed, compared with 8.3 the previous week.

Castro Again Says U.S. Plots Downfall

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's government launched an all-out attack on President Kennedy's administration today and charged anew the United States is plotting to overthrow the Cuban strongman. The blistering attack was contained in a lengthy note sent Monday night to Latin-American foreign ministers. It was to be distributed later to the Organization of American States and the United Nations. The Cuban note recalled the invasion charges Castro hurled at the Eisenhower administration a few months ago. Washington denounced those charges as a cover-up to divert the Cuban people's attention from economic troubles at home. One Latin-American diplomat shrugged off the latest Cuban note as "the same old story" — this time directed at the Kennedy administration. Foreign Minister Raul Roa charged the United States with plotting a twofold plan to bring down the Castro regime. "The first phase would be an attempt to overthrow Castro before the conference of Western Hemisphere foreign ministers in Quito,"

Living Cost Index Sees Slight Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs declined slightly in January—the first drop in 12 months. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today its consumers price index dropped by a tenth of one per cent because of lower prices for clothing, used cars, eggs, milk, fresh fruits and tomatoes. The index fell to 127.4 from December's record level of 127.5. In the index, 100 represents average prices in 1947-49. Despite the drop from December, January prices were 1.6 per cent higher than in January 1960. The index rose in every month last year except August, when it held steady. Because prices did not rise in January, there will be no change in wages of about a million workers in the auto industry and related fields whose pay is adjusted to the living cost index. Robert J. Myers, BLS deputy commissioner, attributed much of the January price drop to weather conditions, although adding that a recession decline in demand doubtless had some effect. Myers said the weather curtailed clothing sales in December and that department stores, because of large January inventories, offered sharp price reductions in women's suits and coats. There also were some price cuts in shoes and other clothing items. Average clothing prices dropped by 1.1 per cent from December to January. Used car prices were down 2.5 per cent and Myers said this development was influenced, too, by the weather. Food prices, on the average were down a tenth of 1 per cent. As for the February outlook, Myers said he would expect little change although a drop between January and February is normal. In a separate report, the bureau said the spendable earnings and buying power of factory workers were virtually unchanged in January. Spendable earnings—take-home pay after taxes—for a factory worker with three dependents amounted to $79.97 a week, the same as in December. Earnings normally drop in January following the pre-Christmas work rush, but the bureau said, the decline came in December this winter because of severe snowstorms which cut back hours of work. While used car prices dropped significantly in January, price tags on new cars were unchanged at levels slightly below those of a year ago. Housing prices also were unchanged but the cost of medical care rose by three-tenths of one per cent. Charges of medical insurance and hospital rooms rose. Fuel oil prices were up 3.6 per cent, about one-third more than the average January increase over the past six years. The Kennedy administration has announced it is looking into the winter rise in fuel oil prices.

Linens Yellow?
 What makes bed linens turn yellow? This condition is partially caused by their absorbing the oily, sebaceous material secreted by skin and hair.
 To combat a distasteful yellow cast on sheets and pillow cases, change them often and launder efficiently in plenty of hot soap or detergent suds and rinse.

After a wedding trip to points of interest in Washington, D. C., the couple will make their home in Greenville.

Mrs. Price, John Jr. Jackson and Miss Elizabeth Lang of Farmville directed the wedding.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, aunts and uncles of the bride entertained at a reception at the DAR Chapter House. The hosts were: Mr. and Mrs. Archie L. Speight, Mr. and Mrs. Sam T. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Baley and Mrs. Olive Lewis Gay, all of Farmville; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Modlin of Portsmouth, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. John Price Jr. of Jackson; and Mr. and Mrs. J. The east mantel of the drawing room was banked in sprays of Lady Claire camellias. The other mantel was ornamented with matching vase arrangements of variegated camellias in shades of pink to rose and Picadilly gladioli. The balcony about the refreshment punch table was decorated with a background of magnolia, which was centered with wide satin bows and trailing streamers. On the balcony, seven branched, floor standard candelabra held lighted white tapers and was entwined with fern. Pedestal urns of orange and yellow lasmine and floor baskets of magnolia foliage complemented the floral setting in other parts of the room.

The punch table was overlaid with a cloth of unusual and lovely design, featuring alternate squares of lace and embroidered Irish linen. It was centered with a center decoration of white flowers, fern and rhinestone flecked tulle which was flanked by burning tapers in silver candelabra. The tiered wedding cake iced in white roses with touches of silver, topped with a bride and groom, was on a table covered with an antique white linen cloth edged in lace.

Mrs. Price and Mrs. Ellen Lewis Carroll and Mr. and Mrs. Speight greeted guests and introduced the receiving line, composed of the wedding party and parents of the bride couple. Mrs. Ethel Godley Tucker of Greenville directed guests to the punch table where Mrs. Clara Roberson of Bethel, an aunt of the bridegroom, presided at one end and Mrs. Wilkerson at the other. They were assisted by Mrs. Bagley and Mrs. Gay. Identical crystal services were at either end of the table.

A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the refreshments and decorations in the dining room. The table, spread with a white Madeira embroidered cutwork cloth, was centered with a bouquet of pink carnations and snapdragons, flanked by pink candles in silver holders. Pink candles were also used in the silver branched candelabra on the buffet.

Mrs. Herman Baker, mother of the bride, served the tiered white iced wedding cake which had been topped with bride and groom figurines. Mrs. Wade Thurman Ward of Bethel, mother of the bridegroom, presided at the silver punch service. Both ladies wore shoulder corsages of pink camellias.

The bride couple were presented a cake knife in their chosen pattern of silver.

Miss Baker was gowned in a princess dress of Champagne pure silk styled with a bustle back bow.

Her corsage was of delicate pink cameo camellias.

Wedding Breakfast

Mr. and Mrs. Archie L. Speight and daughter, Miss Louise Speight, and Mrs. Olive Lewis Gay and son, Melvin Gay Jr., were hosts at a wedding breakfast on Sunday morning for the immediate family of the bride.

Wedding Supper

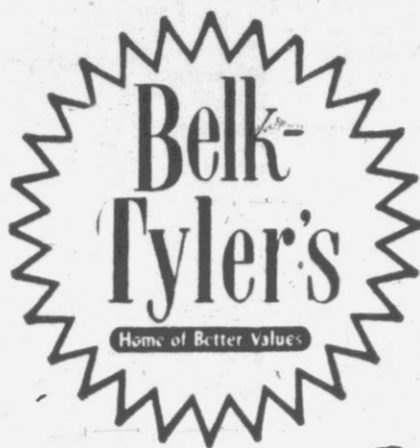

Following the wedding reception at the DAR Chapter House, the bride's parents held Open House. Friends, relatives and out-of-town guests were served supper buffet. The spring floral note was carried out in the bouquets throughout the house. The dining room table was spread with an antique white linen cloth, embroidered in Florentine design, and was centered with white flowers interspersed with rhinestone flecked tulle and fern. Magnolia and white candles in silver holders were used on the buffet and mantel and a bouquet of pink camellias and First Breath of Spring ornamented an antique sideboard. Mrs. Hubert Simmons presided at the silver coffee service.

Qualifications For Baby Sitter

RALEIGH—Are you a parent's idea of a desirable sitter? When you volunteer your services as a baby-sitter, you are answerable like any person in any job, to your employer. The expectations of most parents are quite reasonable. How well are you living up to them?

- 1. Do you exhibit these characteristics?
 1. Love and understanding—All most every child will respond to your interest in him and in what he is doing.
 2. Maturity—To care safely and well for young children, a girl or boy must display such adult qualities as level-headedness, common sense and dependability.
 3. Adaptability—Familiarize yourself with the physical setup of each house you visit, and ask any necessary questions before the parents leave.
 4. Good manners and ethics—A sitter should respect a family's privacy. Going through closets, drawers or papers is worse than poor taste.
 5. Safety—Good sitters are safety-conscious and make every effort to protect their charges from accidents.
 6. Job proficiency—One should have knowledge and experience in the basic techniques of feeding, dressing, diapering, bathing, and amusing infants and children.To parents, a good baby-sitter is a blend of dependability and deftness, a girl who learns all she can about children and does her best on the job.

Factors In Unemployment Picture

At first glance one might conclude that the drop in unemployment claims in Pitt County at this time this year compared with the corresponding period of last year means that employment conditions here are better now than they were last year.

Before any such conclusion can be drawn, however, one must consider factors other than just the number of unemployment claims filed with the local office.

It is a fact that fewer people are drawing unemployment compensation now in Pitt County than was the case in February, 1960. But as has been pointed out by the head of the local Employment Security Commission office, "employment opportunities in the county now seem to be fewer than a year ago."

In the overall picture, the drop in unemployment claims is probably partially attributable to the fact that fewer people may be eligible to draw unemployment compensation this year. It is not necessarily because they have jobs now, but because in the past year they have not been employed a sufficient length of time to qualify for unemployment compensation.

The fact that employment opportunities are fewer probably does not mean that considerably more people are gainfully employed, but rather that the demand for additional employees in many areas of the local economy is not as high as a year ago. Another factor that should not be overlooked is that apparently more claims for unemployment in the county are being filed by people who have not filed claims before or who have not filed claims in recent years. This would tend to indicate some who have had steady employment for a considerable period of time are now out of work.

Pitt County, of course, traditionally has had its highest unemployment during the months of February and March. Seasonal workers who move from one kind of employment to another at various times during the year find job opportunities at a low point during these months. And many of these workers are not eligible for unemployment compensation.

Comparatively speaking, the unemployment situation in Pitt County is not nearly as serious this year as in the case in some other areas of the nation where industrial layoffs have put many out of work. Even so, there are some signs that suggest there is more unemployment at this particular moment in Pitt than was the case a year ago.

These signs point up the continuing need for more year-round employment opportunities in this county, or at least seasonal employment to take up the slack during the months that agricultural activities are at a minimum and tobacco processing plants are not operating.

There is every reason to believe that the employment picture of the county will change rapidly for the better in the next several weeks as better weather brings about the seasonal upswing in local employment. In addition this year, Pitt will see its demand for workers increased sharply by the beginning of construction on the $26 million Voice of America facility.

It is at this particular season of the year, however, that Pitt County should see most clearly its need for more year-round employment opportunities to offset seasonal dip that comes during the early months every year.

Department Split Now No Longer Considered

Any consideration which might have been given to splitting the State Department of Commerce and Development into two separate departments has now been eliminated from Gov. Sanford's plans for reorganizing that agency.

The decision, we think, will serve to strengthen the C and D more than would have been the case if that department had been split into two agencies as has been proposed. Reorganization within the department can serve to put greater emphasis on phases of activity that have taken a back seat in the past; but this can be done at much less cost and within greater efficiency than would be the case if two separate state agencies were formed from the C and D.

The department of Conservation and Development plays a paramount role in the economic development of North Carolina. In this role, it touches practically every phase of the state's business and commercial activity. The vigor and effectiveness with which the department carries on its many activities determines in large measure the leadership afforded the state's overall effort for economic development.

Now that the decision not to split the department has been reached, attention of state officials should be turned to increasing the effectiveness of the activities of the department in all phases of its activities.

Up To The Neck In Frustrations

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev are up to their necks in friendly frustration. They have laid a pleasant foundation for a future meeting which seems inevitable, like two men who wanted to bury a hatchet but not in each other's head.

They have exchanged cordial messages and avoided name-calling and personal attacks which would make a meeting impossible, as Khrushchev made a meeting with former President Eisenhower impossible because of what he said.

But beyond that there's no basic difference between Khrushchev's relations with Kennedy and his relations with Eisenhower. With both his main policy has been consistent: push where he sees a chance. The chance he sees now is in the Congo. Although Kennedy wants the United Nations' forces to stay there to keep the peace, Khrushchev wants them out altogether.

Russia's chance for influence among the Congolese and a shattering penetration of Africa would be vastly improved with the U.N. Forces gone. From the Russian viewpoint, this is natural enough. It's also natural enough for Kennedy to want nothing of the kind. So, while Kennedy has extended a friendly hand to Khrushchev, he has kept the other fist clenched.

Upside-Down 'Sit Down'

Delightful Sort Of Hoax

It may be the contrast in the weather (since Saturday) is deceptive, but I'll go along with the deception.

So much bright sunshine, blue skies and mild temperatures has brought about some flower bed cultivation, some twig picking - up, some weedplucking, some grass seed-sowing. It's as though spring's spirit has reached through the veil of time and turned the growing season switch to "on."

All this is too good to be true. It's too early for tender hands to be groping in muck, wielding a hoe and thinning bushes. The last day of February does not mark the end of winter nor sound the trumpet call of spring.

March is the month of winds and kites, and one might add it is also a time for ladies on streetcorners to firmly hold down their skirts against mischievous gusts.

Yet, we have already had winds, and kites (I might add), leaving little for March except to pick up April's game.

This is too much to expect. It follows that we are being deceived.

But on looking out Monday's window, this has been a delightful hoax.

The driver of a light blue 1959 Ford, license number LE 499, might check his left tail light.

A neighbor and I glimpsed it last night; said tail light being about one-third full of water.

We speculated on what might happen when the light bulb became hot and water splashed on it. Quite possibly the water has leaked out of the tail light by now, but it was in there Monday evening. It provided a brief and colorful diversion.

To date, we have relatively few families connected with the Voice of America project in this area. The work isn't far enough along for the expected many it will call for.

Yet it's surprising how the few VOA families here now have permeated Greenville.

You meet a pleasant lady at a PTA meeting and are told "her husband is with the VOA"; or a club speaker is from that agency; or you'll meet some newcomers at a dance... at a church... at a bloodmobile collection center; and it turns out they are involved in the VOA project.

There are only a few of these people here, but you run into them in all phases of community life. Always they give the impression that they "fit" - that they're at home here. It's a remarkable thing.

These people represent a vanguard of the families yet to come. The prospect is most pleasant.

And from the Fort Myers (La.) News-Press comes the story of the village gossip pumping the local doctor about the recent demise of their town's richest man. "YOU knew him well," she cooed. "How much did he leave?"

"All of it, madam, all of it," the old doctor replied.

Other Editors Saying Without Federal Control

(Washington Daily News)
In every session of Congress in recent years federal aid to education has come up for considerable discussion. And from what various members of Congress say, one must conclude that a majority of the congressmen and senators favor federal aid to education, provide some federal government does not seek to exercise control over education in the 50 states.

It seems to us that the matter of federal aid versus federal control is becoming a little overworked. This is particularly true when any appropriation for education must come from Congress, and Congress has the simple power to decide on how the appropriation must be made, on any strings that might be attached, on any controls which might be exercised, and in general has the full say-so on the scope of such an appropriation.

If the congress of the United States wants to appropriate money for education and give it to the states without any measure of control whatsoever, then Congress can do just that. We suspect that over this land some congressmen might be talking out of both sides of their mouths on this matter. While they say they favor federal aid to education without federal control, at the same time they profess to believe that one is not possible without the other. And as a result they align themselves against federal aid to education.

If now Congress decided to appropriate money for education and set out clearly that the money was to be matched by state or local funds, and that the money was to be used solely for school building purposes, then does such a limit on the spending constitute control? We say that it does not.

When we think of the word "control," we think of the curriculum and what must be taught. We think of the salaries of teachers and uniformity of such salaries. We think of building standards determined by the federal government rather than by state or local governments. We think of several factors which might be said to be "control" which might directly influence certain aspects of any appropriations which might be voted by the congress. But we do not consider it to be "control" for Congress to set out that its appropriations must be used for school building purposes only.

Some people want federal aid to raise salaries of teachers. Many do not. If federal money is ever used to pay salaries, then we might well have salary uniformity all over the United States among teachers. Then "control" would take on a definite hue of federal regulation.

We admit that when any argument comes up regarding federal aid to education, there are two sides. And one can argue his feeling with great conviction and great seriousness. But one all too often finds what he is seeking to find. If he is against federal aid, then he has a multitude of arguments to present. He can state positively that he is against federal aid because he feels that it is impossible to have federal aid without federal control.

Meanwhile, our school building crisis in America is growing ever more serious. We have more and more youngsters to be educated, and the tax burden inevitably is becoming heavier and heavier.

We would be opposed to federal aid for schools if the federal government itself entered the field of education on the curriculum or teacher basis. But today many states need help badly. We can have that help without "controls" which would hamper the normal operations of schools by states and local authorities. And that is the true solution, it would seem.

Start Of A Cult

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

In a period of fear and dissatisfaction, cults are readily formed.

The Nation of Islam is a Negro anti-white movement. It is the Ku Klux Klan in reverse. Its preparation is for the "War of Armageddon" during which blacks will overcome the white devils. Call this movement a fake, a fraud, what you will. The fact is that it exists and that its membership is widespread. "The Fruit of Islam," the masculine part of this movement, emphasizes physical training and judo practice. The object is to overcome the weak and degenerate white "niggers."

The female membership "Muslim Girls Training," must live up to the following rules:

- Do not use lipstick or make-up
- Do not wear hair up unless wearing long dress
- Do not smoke or drink
- Do not commit adultery
- Do not use pork in any form
- Do not cook in aluminum utensils

"Do not wear heels over 1 1/2." "Do not dance with anyone except one's husband."

The essence of the teaching of the Nation of Islam is hatred for the white man and to that end many temples maintain schools; often called a university. In such schools, the history of the Black Nation is taught. Islam on the March, a pamphlet published by this movement, shows that this education includes such subjects as "Ending of Spook Civilization," "The Historical Display of Spook Civilization for 6000 Years." The Student Enrollment Lesson is a sort of catechism. A few examples of the teachings are given herewith:

"Who Is The Original Man?"
"Answer: The original man is the Asiatic Black Man, Owner, Maker, creator of the planet Earth. God of the Universe and Father of Civilization."

"Who Is The Colored Man?"
"Answer: The colored man is the so-called white man or Caucasian, Yacobs grafted devil, skunk of the planet Earth."

"What is the birth record of said nation of Islam?"

"Answer: There is no birth record of said Nation of Islam."

"Who is the birth record of said white man?"

"Answer: The birth record of said white man is: Buddhaism - approximately 35,000 years old. Christianity - approximately 551 years old."

"Why isn't the devil settled on the best part of the Planet Earth?"

"Answer: Because the earth belongs to the Original Black Man and knowing that the devil was wicked and there would not be any peace among them, he put him out in the worst part of the earth and kept the best part preserved for himself every since he made it. The best part is in Arabia at the Holy City Mecca. The colored man or Caucasian is the devil. Arabia is in the far east and is bordered by the Indian Ocean on the south."

Only too often, it is said that cults and movements should not be dignified by notice and discussion. The fact, however, is that only six or seven persons, one woman included, formed the core of the Bolshevik movement which not only conquered Russia in 1917 but a large part of the world by 1961; Mussolini was an editor of a socialist newspaper supported by a Russian woman, Angelica Balabanoff - ultimately he took over a country.

The Nation of Islam gives its members a sense of power and strength. It was best described by a New York minister on television:

"You can go to any small 'Muslim' child and ask him where is hell or who is the devil and he wouldn't tell you that hell is down in the ground or that the devil is something invisible that you can't see. He'll tell you hell is right where he has been catching it and he'll tell you the one who is responsible for him having received this hell is the devil." The devil is, of course, the white man.

Another Retail Sales Dip Seen

By ELMER ROESSNER
When the last cash register tinkles in Nome tonight, it is probable that February retail sales will have recorded another dip. Sales of the nation's department stores have been showing substantial declines in weekly Federal Reserve reports and retail sales usually follow the department-store trend.

Quote

"Here's a nice little mathematical problem for those in the northern states to work on: Given they're stuck in traffic; Given 1,000 homeward-bound motorists on your route; when each traffic light changes, the back wheels of each car make 25 extra revolutions to get under way due to the slippery roadway. How cold will supper be when you get home?" - Sumter Daily Item.

The latter, however, include only data that department stores volunteer, and include mostly stores in metropolitan shopping areas.

In the Commerce series, not all groups of stores are covered. Can you guess which of the major groups showed the largest gains? Guess now and compare it with the answer, which will appear in a few sentences.

Not all reported lines shared gains. Durable good stores as a whole declined 1 per cent while nondurable stores gained 3 per cent.

The automotive group, which bulks large, showed no gains, but franchised new car dealers gained 1 per cent while tire, battery and accessory dealers dropped 1 per cent.

APPLIANCES DOWN
The furniture and appliance group was down 3 per cent from 1959, and of this group the household appliance, radio and TV stores showed a 5 per cent drop. The building and farm-supply group showed a 3 per cent drop from a year earlier and the lumberyard segment showed a 6 per cent slump.

Lawmakers Take Greensboro Trip

RALEIGH (AP) — Lawmakers boarded 10 special buses today for Greensboro to hold an afternoon legislative session and honor House Speaker Joseph M. Hunt of Greensboro. Wives of the legislators, plus members of the Council of State, made the trip. They will tour the city, be feted at a dinner and attend a hockey game. Gov. Sanford also planned to be on hand for the session in Greensboro. Rep. Ed Kemp of Guilford told the House Monday night Greensboro was "atwitter and agog" over the visit of the legislature. House Speaker Hunt and Lt. Gov. Cloyd Philpott, Senate president, asked the lawmakers Monday night to hold up offering of new bills until today's session in Greensboro. Philpott said this would "make things interesting for school children and others in Greensboro. We need something to fill out the program." Hunt told House members, "We want to put on a good show." The legislature will hold another out-of-town session April 19 when it visits Winston-Salem.

Hope For Reversing Of Business Slump Rising

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Hopes that the current business slump may be reversed—whether in April or in June—are rising today. They are still just hopes. But they are built on studies of three ways the economy usually works its way out of any recession. They are: 1. Government spending. This is both in the short-term area of more spending money for the distressed, and in the long-term field of projected spending for larger projects. 2. Business spending. This can be in the immediate area of new orders linked with sales promotion and stepped-up production, or in the longer term area of spending for plants and equipment. 3. Increased consumer buying. Consumers often are the last to change their ways. Business usually has turned the corner and is well on the way to upgrade again before the consumer shakes off its caution and decides to spend rather than save. This caution still rules, according to a survey by the Federal Reserve Board. This indicates that fewer families now than a year ago plan to buy new houses or home appliances, although slightly more expect to buy new used cars. But the survey was taken in January when uncertainty was at its peak. Not only did most people feel at a loss to assay business prospects, but few had any clear notion what to expect when the new administration took over from the old in Washington. A few positive signs that business was looking up again could change consumer attitudes quickly. And personal income totals are still high, if slightly below their peak, and total savings on which to draw are at a record. In the area of business itself, caution still rules actions but reviving confidence is showing at least in the talking and planning stages. Some prime producers are reporting a slight upward trend in new orders. This could be because stocks have been trimmed to the limit and it's a question of ordering or stop producing. But it could be because sales prospects look better and industry is getting ready for more business in the spring. In government spending, pump priming seems a sure thing. Just how much is still a question. And just how effective it will be is a matter of sharp debate. But government spending is sure to rise in some degree. State and local spending continue to rise of their own momentum. The federal government has speeded up spending of money already

It's Ruled: Booth Is A Building

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Supreme Court has ruled that a telephone booth is a building. A man had appealed his conviction on a charge of breaking into the coin box of a booth. This couldn't be burglary, he argued, because a telephone booth isn't a building. The court's opinion said: "A building is a structure which has the capacity to contain man or animals or habitation or shelter."

Sixty-Year-Old Is Parachutist

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Police Judge DeWitt Rowland says he found his first parachutist jump like "stepping out of a bathtub... except for the landing." Rowland, 60 years old and a pilot since 1928, made the jump from 2,500 feet "for practice," in case of an emergency. He landed with a bump and roll to the cheers of younger friends in the Rainier Parachute Club.

Russian People Given Hint Nikita Considers UN Trip

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government has let the Soviet people know that Premier Khrushchev is thinking of a return visit to the United Nations and the possibility of a meeting with President Kennedy while in the United States. Films of two of the President's news conferences were shown on television Monday night, including newsmen's questions to Kennedy on whether he would meet Khrushchev if the Soviet premier visits the U.N. General Assembly opening next Tuesday. Kennedy replied only that he hadn't heard yet whether Khrushchev was coming. The showing of the films was an unprecedented gesture. It also was the first time that the Soviet people learned that a new Khrushchev visit to the United Nations is possible. Such ideas are rarely put in the public mind unless they are likely to become accomplished facts. Kennedy's statement gave the Soviet public the impression that the initiative for a visit is up to the Soviet Union and that Khrushchev would be welcome in the United States. Soviet diplomats in Washington have been active in spreading the idea that Khrushchev would like to make a visit, and diplomatic circles in the U.S. capital have said they would not be surprised if Khrushchev comes to the United States late in April, when the assembly session will be winding up. Televising of the conferences here also coincides with the return of U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson from talks with Khrushchev in Washington. The ambassador is carrying a message from the President reportedly expressing his full confidence in Thompson and hope that talks between the envoy and Khrushchev will result in better relations between Washington and Moscow. This would appear a move to keep Soviet-American relations off the summit level, an eventuality hard to avoid if Khrushchev goes to the United Nations. An announcement before the TV show said the Kennedy news conference were being carried at the request of the United States as part of a Soviet-American cultural exchange agreement. No previous announcements of the showing was made although it was broadcast in prime evening time to assure a big audience. Both conferences had been cut, one to 25 minutes and the other to 17, or a little more than half their original length. In addition to the questions about a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting, Soviet film editors also left in the President's statements on freeing the U. S. RB47 fliers, repeating the American pledge for no more U2 flights over the Soviet Union and taking steps against rising unemployment in the United States.

Early Favorites In 'Oscar' Race

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Liz Taylor, Jack Lemmon and a family movie, "The Sundowners," rated early favorites today as Hollywood's 33rd annual Oscar derby was off and running. For the beautiful Liz, her Academy Award nomination Monday as top actress was her fourth straight. Ironically, it came in a picture—"Butterfield 8"—which she balked at doing. "It's pornographic," she once confided to a newsmen. But she did it—still bound to her MGM contract—and gave the John O'Hara trollop a rousing portrayal. Lemmon is one of the screen's best light comedians, but it was his pathos in "The Apartment" that made him the actor to beat. If the Harvard-educated Lemmon wins, he will become the first actor in Academy Award history to win both the supporting and top actor awards. Lemmon won the supporting Oscar a few years ago as Em. Pulver in "Mr. Roberts." The other top actresses nominated were Greer Garson, the Eleanor Roosevelt of "Sunrise at Campobello"; Deborah Kerr, who got her sixth nomination in "The Sundowners"; Shirley MacLaine, Lemmon's girl friend of "The Apartment"; and Melina Mercouri the happy-go-lucky prostitute of "Never On Sunday." Lemmon's competition includes Burt Lancaster, the controversial revivalist of "Elmer Gantry"; Britisher Trevor Howard, the honky-tonk song and dance man of "The Entertainer"; and Spencer Tracy, who played Clarence Darrow in "Inherit the Wind." Tracy's nomination was his seventh, making him the all-time champ nominee. If he wins, he will become the first actor to win three top Oscars. "The Sundowners," filmed mostly in Australia, was an unusual picture for 1960. It has no sex theme, no violence. The other pictures nominated as the year's best were "The Alamo," "The Apartment," "Elmer Gantry" and "Sons and Lovers."

Clemency Asked By Union Group

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The AFL-CIO Executive Council believes the sentence of eight unionists in a North Carolina textile strike was "very severe," and the three months they have served is enough. It has asked Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina to free them. Boyd Payton of Charlotte, Carolinas director of the Textile Workers Union of America (TWUA), and the others are serving sentences ranging from two or 10 years at hard labor. They were convicted of conspiring to dynamite property of the Harriet and Henderson Cotton Mills at Henderson in connection with a strike that has been going on for the last 27 months. The AFL-CIO resolution passed Monday said no damage or harm occurred, and the men were "convinced on evidence that they engaged in talk and nothing more. It seems to us that the unusual severity of their sentences resulted from their trade union affiliation, the strike activity in which they were engaged, and the inflamed emotions caused by the long strike." It noted that the men had previous clean records. George Meany, AFL-CIO president, said the decision of the court was not being challenged, but it was felt the sentence was very severe.

Northeastern Tourney Opens Here Wednesday Night

A new tournament and new teams—but the same site. East Carolina College's Memorial Gymnasium, fresh from setting a record attendance mark at the Pitt County Tournament, will serve as host to the Northeastern classic which starts tomorrow night.

Drawings for the Northeastern tournament took place last week and the action starts Wednesday night with two games on tap each night through Saturday. Kininston's defending tournament champions ride in with claims already staked out on the 1961 event. The Red Devils' 14-0 conference record is proof enough of their power.

The most serious challenge for the Red Devils is expected to come from Roanoke Rapids and the two teams should meet in the finals if things go as expected. Kininston opens its defense in the nightcap on Wednesday, meeting eighth-place New Bern at 9:00. The tournament opener will send third-seeded Washington against Elizabeth City in a 7:00 game.

Greenville files into action on Thursday night with a 9:00 game against Tarboro. Second-seeded Roanoke Rapids clashes with Jacksonville in the Thursday night opener. Winners of the Kininston-New Bern and Greenville-Tarboro games meet on Friday at 7:00 with the Roanoke Rapids-Jacksonville and Washington-Elizabeth City winners meeting at 9:00. The championship game will be held Saturday night at 9:00. A consolation game of Friday night's losers will be played at 7:00.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Olympic champion Wilma Rudolph, whose graceful movements belie her blazing speed afoot, was hailed as citizen and sports great Monday at a luncheon honoring her as the Female Athlete of the Year in 1960. The 20-year-old Tennessee State junior who captured three gold medals in the Olympic Games at Rome was presented the fraternal order of Eagles-Frederick C. Miller trophy awarded annually on the basis of The Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Rafael Johnson, the 1960 Male Athlete of the Year, was grounded in Los Angeles by a reservation backlog caused by the recent airlines strike and was unable to make the civic luncheon. His trophy will be shipped to him. Tom Rosandich, a suburban Milwaukee high school teacher who is a track and field expert abroad for the State Department, praised Miss Rudolph as "an amateur athlete dedicated to do something for her country."

Ted Smits, Associated Press general sports editor who has directed AP Olympic Games coverage since World War II, declared that "even the Russians said this girl was the best athlete—man or woman—in the Olympics." Miss Rudolph, a slender, 5-11 sprint star who overcame polio as a child, said she plans to "go into some kind of recreation work that the United States can remain on top."

Miss Rudolph made a runaway in the balloting for Female Athlete of the Year award after winning 100-and 200-meter dashes and anchoring the U.S. 400-meter relay team to victory in the Olympics. Johnson, Olympic champion in the gruelling decathlon, barely edged pro golf great Arnold Palmer for the male athlete honor.

Local Grapplers Place Second In Conference Meet. KINSTON—Greenville's wrestling team captured three first places and finished second in the 1961 Northeastern Conference wrestling meet held here. Greenville's team score of 72 was second only to conference champion New Bern's 114. Kininston finished third with 62 points and Jacksonville fourth with 60. The other entry, Washington, collected six points.

Three former conference champions from Greenville defended their title successfully while a fourth was pushed to second place. Sammy Pugh, in the 106 pound class, Dalton Owen, in the 123 pound class, and Don Joyner, in the 147 pound class, picked up first place points for Greenville as well as individual titles. Finishing second for Greenville were Garris Evans, a winner in 1960, and Gary Monroe.

Taking third place honors for Greenville were Chris Christopher, Charles Boyd, Donald Brown, Daniel Mosier and George Van Nortwick. Greenville finished third in the conference meet last season. Coach Jerry Warren will carry his grapplers to Goldsboro for a match tonight and will be at home against Jacksonville on March 7.

HORNUNG TURNS ACTOR. NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Hornung, Green Bay Packers high scoring halfback, has turned actor. He is appearing in "My Sister Eileen," a CBS television series. Later on he will play a rookie policeman in "Ruth, The Reformer."

Greenville's Chance For Tourney Title Looks Slim

By JOHNNY HUDSON, Reflector Sports Editor. Chances of Greenville winning the Northeastern Conference tournament which starts here Wednesday night are paper-thin. The same applies to six of the other seven entries—Kininston being the lone exception.

But yesterday the observer would never have guessed that Greenville would be an also-ran in the four-day tournament. The club whipped through an afternoon practice with a dead-serious attitude.

Alan McArthur made a steal and drove up for a lay-up in the scrimmage session. Kroghie Andresen hit one from the outside and freshman Rodney Knowles rolled one in from under the basket. The Phants were looking sharp.

Later in the evening, Coach Bo Farley agreed to talk about his team and the upcoming tournament. "It has really been a funny season," he started out. "I just haven't been able to figure this club. Sometimes they look good and at other times terrible. "They have been looking good all season in practice and I thought they would jell but never have. I do think they are in a different frame of mind this week with the tournament coming up but you can't ever tell what will happen," Farley explained.

Will the team be at full strength for the tournament? "Billy James still has a hurt hip and hasn't been able to go full strength. And Erskine Duff's ankle hasn't completely healed. Other than those two, we should be ready," Farley noted.

Will there be any special changes injected into Greenville's pattern of play? "We've brought (Rodney) Knowles, (Jack) Foley, and (Kenney) Allen up from the junior varsity and feel they will help us some. It will give us a chance to rest some of our starters," Farley answered.

Being placed in the same bracket with undefeated Kininston isn't bothering Farley right now. Number one on the list, according to the Greenville mentor, is a Thursday night contest with Tarboro. The two teams split their regular season meetings.

"We hope we can beat Tarboro but we will have to play at our best. Our big trouble has been we would either start off slow or either hit a dry spell somewhere in the game, going for four or five minutes without even scoring. We can't do that and expect to win," Farley pointed out.

If Greenville gets by Tarboro and Kininston wins over Elizabeth City as expected, the two will clash in the first game on Friday night. Farley is hoping for some

New Selection In NCAA Tourney

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Marquette University today joined the lineup for the NCAA postseason basketball championships as an at-large entry. Roy S. Keene, athletic director at Oregon State and chairman of the Western Selection Committee said Marquette, a sophomore-dominated club with a 12-9 record, would play the University of Houston 15-9 at Houston March 15. The winner will advance to play the Big Eight Conference representative, Kansas State, in the Midwest-NCAA regional at Lawrence, Kan., March 17.

Soviet Official Defends Thomas

NEW YORK (AP) — A high-ranking Soviet athletic official today came to the defense of John Thomas for losing two epic high jumping duels with Russia's Valery Brumel.

"Look at it this way," said Leonid Khomenkov, chief of the Russian version of the AAU, through an interpreter. "Put Brumel and Thomas in a competition with any other high jumper in the world. The other jumper would automatically wind up third! Either Brumel or Thomas would win every time."

Kansas State, Marquette Join NCAA Tournament

By DON WEISS Associated Press Sports Writer Kansas State's Wildcats and the young Warriors of Marquette have joined the lineup for the NCAA basketball championships, bringing to eight the number of schools set for the 24-team national tournament next month. Kansas State clinched the Big Eight Conference's assignment in the tournament, whipping Nebraska 77-67 Monday night — an hour or so before Marquette announced acceptance of a bid to play as an at-large team in the NCAA's Midwest regional.

Texas Tech, still leading the Southwest Conference, failed in its bid to join the NCAA lineup Monday night — losing 95-91 in overtime to Rice at Houston. Tech at 10-3, has clinched at least a tie for the SWC title but Arkansas and Texas A&M both are 9-4 and could share the title and force a playoff or coin flip unless Tech beats defending champion Texas in its last loop game on Thursday.

Mississippi State, now 19-4 overall, will not play in the NCAA tournament because of the unwritten state law against competition with Negroes. As a result, the next eligible team in line — Vanderbilt or Kentucky — will draw the tournament assignment. Both Arkansas and Texas A&M kept alive in the SWC race—the Porkers beating Southern Methodist 88-82 in overtime, and the Aggies routing Baylor 90-69.

Eight with a 10-2 mark to 8-3 for NCAA-ineligible Kansas. Oklahoma State Downed Iowa State 58-55 and Colorado beat Missouri 70-67 in other Big Eight games. DePaul, in the National Invitation Tournament field along with Memphis State, Providence, Detroit, Army, Miami of Florida, Dayton, Temple and Niagara, went on a 20-0 burst in the second half and whipped Youngstown 78-55 for a 10-7 record. Xavier of Ohio 16-7 beat Miami of Ohio, 86-81 in overtime, and Chicago Loyola 14-6 routed Washington of St. Louis 105-77 with Gerry Harkness scoring 33 points.

Bootlegger Used Plain Horsepower

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP) — Most Tennessee moonshiners deliver their illicit wares in cars with plenty of horsepower so they can outrun police in a pinch. But in Ellis Harris' case, he had the horsepower and police had the pinch. Harris was arrested on charges of delivering a bootleg liquor in a horse and wagon.

Freeloader In City's Suburbs

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Homer Blincoe enjoys all the services provided by the city of Dunedin, but pays none of the city's taxes. His house is surrounded by the city, but is not a part of it. Through oversight, the lot on which Blincoe's house is built was not included when the city annexed the suburban area in which he lives.

Wilt Expected To Break Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain is expected to break his single season National Basketball Association scoring record early in tonight's game against Los Angeles when his Warriors play host to the Lakers in Philadelphia.

Chamberlain moved to within six points Monday night when Philly beat the Lakers 113-88 in Los Angeles and he scored 35 points. An ice-cold first half during which he scored only three points kept him from breaking the mark of 2,707 he set last year as a rookie. Counting Monday night's game, Chamberlain has scored 2,702, and still has five more regular season games left after tonight.

Bernardi Holds Five Stroke Lead

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — A five-stroke lead had Sam Bernardi, 54, sitting pretty today for the final 18 holes of the PGA Club championship. Bernardi, resident pro at Winnetka, Ill., used only 30 putts in putting together a 5-under-par 67 third round with an eagle, five birdsies, 10 pars and 2 bogeys. His 54-hole total at the end of Monday's play was 204. The second-day leader by a stroke, Ron Montross, 29, Venice, Fla., shot a 73 that put him in runnerup spot with 209.

PAUL HORGAN'S GREAT HISTORICAL NOVEL A DISTANT TRUMPET

WHAT HAS HAPPENED The next two decades in Matthew Hazard's life were shaped by an incident in Fox Creek, Ind., when he was seven years old.

CHAPTER 3 To the rest of the boys in Fox Creek Matthew was an acknowledged leader. He was among them worked after school as a railroad man? Who made his own money at other than chores about the house, and was paid in more than mere pennies?

terms that were his alone—a what he could show and give to a stranger. This did not mean that the magic had all gone from the Lincoln cap or the scene of its presentation. Quite the contrary.

The congressman was of an appearance which could signify any age from thirty-five to sixty. He listened without asking questions while Matthew talked himself out.

Entering the military academy in the summer of 1876, he succeeded in realizing the terms of his life. He was a soldier. Keeping the secret of it now, as always, he took the Lincoln cap with him among his few private possessions.

When they went to a ball together, along with Harvey and another girl, Matthew decided that at last he knew what the dancing instructor at West Point meant by all his insistence on the value of the dancers, the waltz and the schottische to the well-rounded officer.

Chilean Leftists Today Are On March

EDITOR'S NOTE — Part of Chile is almost 6,000 miles from Washington. But the things going on in this most distant of Latin American neighbors may soon have repercussions in the United States, for the left is on the march in Chile.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN Associated Press News Analyst SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — An aggressive combination of Communists and Castro admirers is showing its strength in Chile. It

Bill Would Add 2 Judges In N.C.

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina would get two more federal district judges under a bill approved Monday by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The committee approved creation of 69 more federal judgeships, nine more than the list submitted by President Kennedy. The bill includes two more for North Carolina, which already has three. Under the President's bill North Carolina would have received only one more judge.

Ask a wealthy or upper-middle-class Chilean about this, and he replies with a shrug: "After all, they're Chileans first." Chile's small well-to-do class stands stubbornly in the way of reform. Because most Chileans are tolerant, peace-loving and law-abiding, upper-class elements seem confident there is little to fear from the extreme left's rising strength.

But highly qualified outside observers say Chile's rich either must submit to broad social, economic, and agricultural reforms or be swept aside in an angry tide of rebellion. These observers say this would have been so even if there had been no Fidel Castro in Cuba.

The small but tightly organized and disciplined Communist party in Chile had been playing a cautious game. It had used the classic approach of allying itself with the middle classes. It had announced itself in favor of nondisputed things and had avoided emphasis on seizure and nationalization. It won wide support from impatient young intellectuals.

Communists, extremist Socialists and a non-Marxist splinter party joined in the FRAP—Frente Accion Popular or Popular Action Front. Even before Castro took power they came within 40,000 votes of electing a Chilean president in 1958. They now have high hopes of showing significant strength in congressional elections March 5 and of victory in the 1964 presidential elections.

By Latin American standards, Chile is a literate country. But among its angry intellectuals the Communist party has made itself attractive by alluring promises. Communism, the intellectuals are told, brings technology and with technology Chileans can accomplish miracles for and by themselves.

The United States, say intellectuals will tell you, offers as a slogan only anticommunism. They say this despite a heavy flow of American loans, grants and technical aid along with generous contributions to reconstruction after last spring's earthquakes. Many Chileans know little of this aid.

Castroism in fact, forced the Communist hand. The Communist party in Chile had been playing a cautious game. It had used the classic approach of allying itself with the middle classes. It had announced itself in favor of nondisputed things and had avoided emphasis on seizure and nationalization.

Castroism's rise set a new pattern. The Castroist Socialists demanded action, swift and violent. To capitalize on the impact of Castro, the Communists openly had to confess their all-out Communist aims.

Chile, while differing in many respects from other countries of South America, presents a capsule picture of Latin American problems. It underscores a continent-wide challenge, not only to Latin America's ruling politicians but to the United States and Western democracy to understand the urge for reform and to attempt to channel it constructively. But time is running out.

Like much of Latin America, Chile is plagued by inflation. It is carried by a fever to end a hated big landlord system and institute obviously needed land reform. It is struggling with problems of industrialization. It is nagged by one of the worst housing situations in all Latin America. Like many another sister republic, it desperately needs tax reforms.

But Chile's wealthy give one the impression they feel if they close their eyes the threats will vanish. The intellectual, the university student, the young man eager for reform — powerful forces in a country of 7½ million — make it clear they see the rich as defenders of ancient evils, ultraconservatives devoting themselves to stubborn defense of old abuses.

They make it clear, too, that in their view the United States seems for the most part on the side of the conservatives, the status quo, and that this is a U.S. liability. "In a very real sense," one earnest Chilean told me, "the administration of President Kennedy is on probation here."

Sees Correcting Primary Fault Insurance Law

RALEIGH (AP)—A co-sponsor of the compulsory auto liability insurance program said today a pending bill would correct "the primary technical fault of the law."

Rep. Herb Hardy of Greene said today the legislation would require that auto tags be retained by a motorist if he sold his car. Under present law, the tags go along with the purchased car.

"There is no question in my mind but what this bill will pass," Hardy said.

He said he expects to introduce a bill soon to extend indefinitely the compulsory insurance law, which was passed in 1957 and is scheduled to expire May 1 unless it is reenacted. He expects several other legislators to join him in sponsoring the bill.

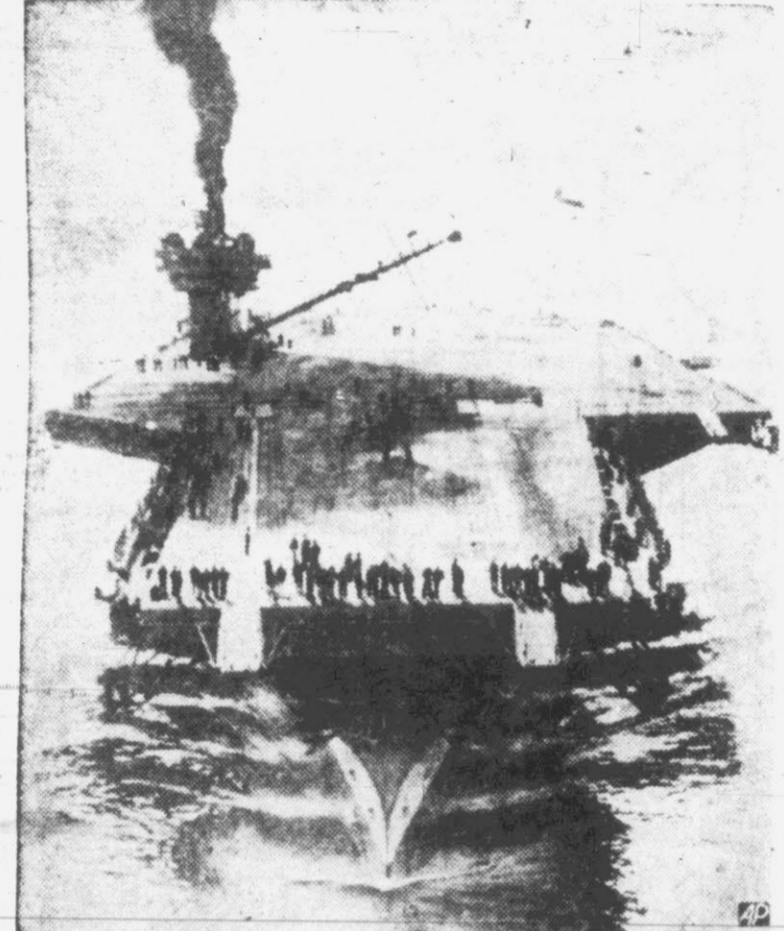

Hardy said before the legislation is to be offered to double the insurance coverage motorists would be required to keep on their automobiles. "I will not object to the bill," he declared.

Mica Interests Seek Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of Western North Carolina mica interests are trying to get the government to extend its purchasing program for the mineral, although it doesn't expire until July, 1962. There is widespread unemployment in some western counties.

Samuel L. Phillips and Lew Aldridge, both of Spruce Pine, are conferring with congressmen and government officials. Mica is used in electronic equipment.

Phillips said one third the labor force of Avery, Mitchell and Yancey counties is involved in mica mining. He added that one of every four workers in the three counties is unemployed.

One Day This Spring A Man Is Going Into Space; It Could Be Col. Glenn

By HOWARD BENEDICT
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)

In the gray dawn one day this spring—if all goes according to plan—a good-looking young man will walk across the concrete deck of launch pad 26A with the bright lights of this spaceport gleaming on his silver space suit. He'll climb the stairs of a red and white tower to a cramped, bell-shaped capsule. He'll wiggle through the hatch and settle into a couch fitted to every contour of his body.

The hatch will close, and his earphones will buzz as the countdown progresses on the 63-foot Redstone rocket beneath him.

When the seconds tick away to zero, he will feel a tremendous jolt as the powerful Redstone engine ignites.

If all goes right, the capsule will hurtle 115 miles high and land 290 miles down the Atlantic tracking range 16 minutes after blastoff. Peak speed will be 4,200 miles an hour.

This young space pilot will become the man of the hour. His name will be recorded in headlines and history books.

The glory will go to one of three men: John Herschel Glenn Jr., Virgil Ivan Grissom or Alan Bartlett Shepard Jr. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has selected this trio to train for the United States' first manned suborbital flight, expected in April or May. All are brilliant men, skilled test pilots and extraordinary physical specimens.

The oldest, most experienced of the group is Glenn, 39, a Marine Lieutenant Colonel from New Concord, Ohio. Like Grissom and Shepard, Glenn is an expert at wringing the bugs out of all types of aircraft.

He has chalked up more than 5,100 hours flying time, 1,600 in jets—He flew—59 fighter-bomber missions in the Pacific in World War II and 100 missions in Korea, gunning down three Communist MIGs near the Yalu River in the last nine days of fighting. He holds five Distinguished Flying Crosses and an Air Medal with 18 clusters.

In 1957 he became the first man to fly supersonically from Los Angeles to New York, covering the distance in 3 hours 23 minutes in an F8U jet. He later became familiar to television viewers when he won $25,000 on a quiz program, "Name That Tune."

Last week Glenn—a powerful athletic type with close-cropped reddish hair and green eyes—found himself a step closer to new adventure.

"I wouldn't trade places with any guy in the world," said the colonel at a news conference. "We've been looking forward to this day for some time. And it's an understatement to say that I'm happy. However we've tried to play down the 'first' aspect."

"We have continually thought of ourselves as a seven-man team. The nearer we get to launch day, the more important each member of the team becomes."

The four astronauts not chosen for the first test will be eligible for later, perhaps even more ambitious, space missions. "Actually the second, third and fourth flights may accomplish far more scientifically than the first flight does," Glenn commented. "That first mission is going to be a sort of 'Oh, gee whiz, look at me, here I am maw' type of deal. The second flight, once a man has been briefed on what to expect, should accomplish a lot more."

Whether the next capsule will be manned—is being determined now by NASA officials studying data from the last Redstone test, which boosted Ham the space chimp on a successful 156 mile high flight.

The rigorous training the astronauts have undergone at various test centers across the country has upset normal family life. "I've spent so much time on the road," Glenn said, "that I've had to be re-introduced to my wife and two kids."

His wife is the former Anna Margaret Casler of New Concord. The children are John David, 14, and Carolyn, 13.

Glenn has trimmed down from 208 to 168 pounds since his space flight training began 22 months ago. Running two miles each day on the sandy beach south of Cape Canaveral when he is here helps keep him in shape. He also enjoys water skiing and boating.

Like the other space candidates he watches as many missile launchings as possible at the cape.

"The more familiar you are with the shots," he says, "the less awesome they seem. But I don't think they'll ever stop being impressive, particularly if you think yourself sitting there on top of the rocket waiting to be shot into space."

Firmest Film Fans Found In Hong Kong

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HONG KONG (AP)—You'd have to go far to find better film fans than the citizens of Hong Kong.

Movie business is so good that television can't hurt it. This may be the only place in the world that TV hasn't been a success.

After five years of TV, there are still only 5,000 sets among Hong Kong's 3 million population. Factors holding back TV include:

1. Cost. The average citizen is too poor to afford a TV set. Even those who can buy one object to the system. All TV is transmitted by wire, and subscribers must pay a monthly fee of about $2.50.

2. Programming. Hong Kong's sole channel broadcasts only four or five hours daily, relying on old American series and ancient Chinese films.

3. Language. Only a tiny segment of the population speaks English. Dubbing is too expensive, and it is difficult to read Chinese subtitles on the small screen. Even the old Chinese movies have to be dubbed. They are mostly in Mandarin Chinese, while Cantonese is the principal tongue in Hong Kong.

The average citizen goes to the movies 20 times a year, compared with less than 14 in the United States. That keeps Hong Kong's 65 theaters busy, and competition is hot among the world's film suppliers.

American films can be popular, but they have to fight for the market. Local fans are star-conscious. If a Hollywood film has no names, it has to be sold on other merits—story, spectacle, color. The Chinese especially like color.

A thriving local industry competes with the American product. There are several studios, including a new one built by Run Run Shaw, a colorful film magnate who also has studios in Singapore and 130 theaters throughout Southeast Asia. He makes 40 films a year in Hong Kong.

Red China also provides competition. Hong Kong has been importing movies made by the Communists, most of them versions of Chinese operas, an ancient art form loved by the local population. Ostensibly, there is no propaganda content, but many of the operas carry an antiwar theme. And very often the rich man is the villain.

The censor keeps a sharp eye on violence in all films. This can mean wholesale cuts in some of the Hollywood product and banning of a few.

University Will Make Plea For More Money

RALEIGH (AP) — The Consolidated University of North Carolina will make a plea Wednesday for more money than has been recommended for it during the next biennium by the Advisory Budget Commission.

University President William C. Friday said Monday he was disappointed that many of the university's "B" budget requests were not included in the Budget Commission recommendations to the legislature.

Friday added he will ask the legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee Wednesday to restore these requests and to approve capital improvement requests turned down by the Budget Commission.

He noted the Budget Commission approved only $13 million of the $33 million the university requested for capital improvements. "B" budget items turned down included requests for additional personnel and supplies and all requests for new programs.

Hodges Suggests Lower Pay Is But One Factor

BOSTON (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges says a lower wage scale is only one of many reasons why foreign producers have outstripped United States firms in many areas.

The former governor of North Carolina said in an address at the 42nd annual convention of the Associated General Contractors of America Monday.

"Although we compete with lower wage scales elsewhere, it seems to me that the truth is that more modern production facilities, more efficient labor practices, better planning, more aggressive salesmanship—in short, greater productivity, superior research efforts and more initiative have enabled foreign producers to outdo us in many areas of legitimate business competition."

Hodges, who spent 30 years as a textile executive before turning to public service, said: "A lot of talk and grumbling will not solve our problems. We need to dig for business. We in government are taking some practical steps."

Best Mikes For Bats Determined

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Scientists have discovered the best microphones for picking up ultrasonic cries of bats are made by attaching electrodes to the ear nerves of living moths.

The discovery was reported at a meeting of aircraft scientists interested in bionics—a new science that includes potential application of biological functions to engineering. The U.S. Air Force is interested, too, the scientists were told.

PARDON WAITING

Fire Damages Tobacco Barn Last Night

STOKES—A kerosene-kindled fire last night caused an estimated $400 damage to a tobacco barn two miles north of here, firemen reported today.

The Carolina Township Volunteer Fire Department, headquartered here, answered at 8 p.m. a call to the burning barn on the farm of Walter Carson on NC Highway 33.

Firemen reported the fire was extinguished after the barn had been damaged around its roof and on the outside.

According to reports, two youths were drawing kerosene from a tank beside the barn when one dropped a lighted match into the fuel, starting the blaze.

No injuries were reported.

The burning barn, situated between two more curing barns, initially posed a threat to the adjacent structures until firemen brought the blaze under control.

The house of Willie Williams, tenant on the Carson farm, stands some 50 yards from the fire site, "a safe distance from the fire," firemen said.

Local Boy Held For Car Thefts

A 15-year-old Negro boy is being held by Greenville Police in connection with the theft of two vehicles here yesterday, and the theft of two cars in South Carolina.

Police said the youth, a native of Greenville, "is also an escapee from Marion Training School at Hoffman, N. C."

According to officers, the youth was taken into custody last night after ECC policeman Gerald Davis noticed a truck driving down the street with no lights. As Davis stopped the vehicle, the youth jumped from the truck and ran.

He was found in a closet in his home after bloodhounds trailed him from the stolen truck to his residence. Police said the stolen truck belonged to College View Cleaners and Laundry.

Detectives noted the boy, prior to the truck theft allegedly took a car belonging to William Farrow, Negro of 1221 Davenport St. Earlier, officers found an abandoned car which had been reported stolen from South Carolina. The vehicle's registration plates were found in the Farrow car when it was recovered by officers. Officers said the youth admitted the theft of these three cars, and a fourth vehicle in South Carolina.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents were questioning the boy about the theft of the car from South Carolina this morning. It is a federal offense to transport stolen property across state lines.

Investigators reported at noon today no charges had been placed against the youth pending further investigation.

AFL-CIO Moves To Counter Big Deficit

By NORMAN WALKER
Associated Press Labor Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The AFL-CIO is tapping its members for an extra $2.2 million to counter a deficit caused by a combination of bad luck and bad work.

The bad luck is the unemployment situation. In five years the AFL-CIO has lost a million members, many of them made jobless in the 1958 recession and the current one with consequent dues payment loss.

The bad work comes from a lack of successful organizing. The federation's unions have lost either their technique or zeal or both in enlisting new members.

These are the reasons behind a decision made Monday by the 29-member AFL-CIO Executive Council, high command of the labor union federation, to levy a special assessment on the organization's 12.5 million members.

The special dues payment will be three cents a month per member on top of the regular five cents a month dues payment. This makes a total of eight cents a month payable by each affiliated union on each of its members.

This is a temporary expedient to meet a financial crisis. AFL-CIO leaders said privately that when the federation's convention convenes in December they expect to propose, and get, a permanent two-cent hike in monthly per capita dues.

All this underlines the fact clearly shown in the 10-day winter meeting of AFL-CIO chiefs, now nearing a close, that union labor's main organization is currently wobbling both in word and deed.

Pronouncements from the AFL-CIO leaders have largely dealt with the bread and butter wage and job security matters that worry the average worker.

This is partly due to the changing American scene—the fact that the era of manual labor is fast disappearing and that the day has dawned for the clerical workers more highly skilled and less susceptible to becoming union members.

The labor leaders are aware of this change but as yet haven't decided on a successful formula to handle it.
