Algerian Rebels Accept DeGaulle Peace Talk Bid

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The Algerian rebels today accepted French President Charles de Gaulle's bid for peace talks to end the long and costly Algerian war. Direct negotiations appeared imminent.

The rebels insisted on their goal in the 6½-year war: Independence from France. They softtened it somewhat by saying that Morocco, Tunisia and Algeria are planning to join in a loose federation retaining friendly ties with Paris.

The rebel announcement came in a joint communique issued after talks here between the Algerian nationalist leaders and their two neighbors and supporters, Tunisia and Morocco. Rebel Premier Ferhat Abbas conferred with King Hassan II of Morocco and President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia until just before dawn.

Bourguiba had come directly from Paris bearing a new offer for talks from De Gaulle.

French Information Officer Louis Terrenoire disclosed in Paris that De Gaulle told Bourguiba France is no longer insisting that the rebels lay down their arms before negotiations take place. A cease-fire would have robbed the Algerian nationalists of their main political weapon, which is the war itself.

The two sides see the negotiations differently. The rebels want to talk only about independence. De Gaulle, Terrenoire said, wants to discuss "the conditions for self-determination."

By this he meant the De Gaulle plan for letting Algeria decide its own political future through free elections. Independence from France is one of the choices De Gaulle has outlined.

The key portion of the North African leaders' communique said:

"Considering the recent developments of the Algerian problem, the three chiefs of state esteem that there ought to be no further obstacles to the opening of direct negotiations between the French government and the provisional government of the Algerian republic for independence in the framework for total decolonialization."

They also reaffirmed their determination to build the "Grand Maghreb." This is the Arabic expression for a political and economic grouping of North Africa. The world maghreb means far west, in this case the far west of the Arab world.

De Gaulle views this plan with enthusiasm because it would provide a means for France to retain ties with its former colonies and, hopefully, to neutralize the die-hard opposition of Algeria's European settlers to independence.

The rebel move came after weeks of delicate diplomatic maneuverings that brought Bourguiba and De Galle together on Monday in a session that apparently removed major differences.

During the past weeks there were also definite signs that the French were already in direct contact with rebel representatives on a lower level.

Although spirits on both sides of the Mediterranean appeared highly optimistic, there were some caution flags in the air.

The communique from Rabat was phrased in the conditional tense and did not specify that all obstacles to negotiations had definitely been swept away.

Terrenoire, speaking for the French cabinet, stressed that the negotiations should also include "all tendencies" (factions) in Algeria. This would weaken the rebels contention that they alone are qualified to speak for Algeria.

However, these appeared relatively minor points to most observers. There was no doubt that these subjects had been covered in Monday's talks between Bourguiba and De Gaulle. At the end of that meeting both sides gave the impression that they were not going to haggle over details.

The immediate reaction to the seeming long steps toward peace was favorable in both camps, although right-wing Frenchmen in Algeria and France probably will raise a howl when the significance of developments become clearer.

As another goodwill gesture, France Wednesday night took another step in the restoration of civilian rule in Algeria. The army's police powers were curbed parts of the territory. Arrests now must be made there with the approval of civilian authority. This was a step demanded by the rebels.

Anniversary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bright sunshine bathed the Carolinas today on this, the anniversary of 1960's great March snowstorms.

March 2 of last year brought the first of three heavy snowfalls that spread across the Carolinas from mountains to the sea. They were followed by additional severe snowstorms on March 9 and 11. They reached their greatest depths in northwestern North Carolina where the falls were measured in feet instead of inches. The situation in that region became so severe that Red Cross and other relief agencies flew helicopters to the region for the dropping of food and medical supplies to isolated inhabitants and feed for livestock.

But the March lion of 1960 became a lamb at the outset of March of 1961.

The Weather Man today had a contrasting forecast of fair and warmer.

Kennedy Unemployment Relief Measure Is Given Quick Passage By House

WASHINGTON (AP)—A thumping 392-30 House vote on the billion dollar emergency unemployment aid bill has gotten President Kennedy's antirecession program off to a good start in Congress.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., said today his finance committee will conduct a hearing on the bill next week, probably Tuesday or Wednesday.

Democrats would like to get the measure to the White House by mid-March so unemployed Americans who have exhausted jobless insurance benefits can start receiving the extra payments by April 1.

Byrd said he did not expect lengthy hearings or any serious opposition to the measure on the Senate side.

The emergency unemployment legislation has more bipartisan support than any of Kennedy's economic proposals, however. Thus its big House vote was no signal that other measures will slide through so easily.

Congressional committees continue work today on other more controversial administration bills.

The House Labor Committee begins its closed-door work on minimum wage legislation, planning to report out a bill some time next week. The subcommittee which conducted the hearings approved its version Tuesday.

The unemployment aid bill breezed through the House Wednesday with support of 248 Democrats and 144 Republicans. Opposing it were 28 Republicans and 2 Democrats.

The administration estimates as many as 3 million unemployed who have exhausted or will exhaust their jobless insurance benefits may receive help under the program.

They would get a maximum of 13 extra weeks of payments, and a minimum of half of the period now paid in the various states.

The program would cover those who use up their basic insurance rights during the two-year period beginning last June 30. The payments during the two years are estimated to total $927 million; they would be made through advances to the states from hte Treasury.

The Treasury would get back the money through a temporary increase in the unemployment compensation payroll tax to 3.5 per cent in 1962 and 1963. The permanent rate is 3.1 per cent.

Kennedy had recommended that the program be financed by raising permanently from $3,000 to $4,800 the wage base on which the levy is paid.

Business spokesmen objected strongly, and the House Ways and Means Committee substituted the temporary rate increase for the change in the base.

Ass'n Will Offer Plan To Council

A proposed ordinance calling for neighborhood conservation type of Urban Redevelopment will be presented to the City Council and interested citizens by the Greenville Property Owners Association tonight.

The meeting will be held in the court room at City Hall. Minutes of the last council session providing for tonight's meeting state that it is to begin at 8 o'clock.

Mayor S. Eugene West this morning disputed advertised claims by the Greenville Property Owners Association that tonight's meeting is a City Council Public Hearing.

"Contrary to the opinion or insinuation by the Greenville Property Owners Association, through their advertisements this will not be a public hearing," West stated. "That was made clear at the meeting when Mr. Williamson (Attorney Milton C.) requested that the City Council listen to the explanation of this program.

"On this basis the members of the council agreed to let them have a representative explain this program to members of the council. This meeting will not even be an official meeting of the council but only a courtesy extended to Mr. Williamson and his clients.

"I want to make this clear so that there will not be any misunderstanding by the people who attend this meeting."

The mayor said it was his understanding that tonight's meeting was to "inform the council so that we could take it under consideration in the future."

The regular March City Council meeting is scheduled for next Thursday night.

Advertising by the Property Owners Association describes neighborhood conservation as a program of urban renewal without public housing.

John M. Dwelle of the Charlotte Realty Board is to explain the program, the advertising states.

Lawmaker Victim Of Heart Attack

RALEIGH (AP) — State Rep. Fleetus L. Gobble, 70, of Winston-Salem, a veteran of almost 20 years in the House, died late Wednesday night of a heart attack he suffered earlier in the day.

Gobble, a barber and operator of a barber and beauty school in Winston-Salem, suffered the attack in downtown Raleigh shortly after the House had adjourned for the day.

He had been on hand for the session which convened at noon. He appeared in good health when he arose to announce plans for the legislators to have their pictures taken for the biennial House record.

A doctor said it was Gobble's first heart attack. He died in Rex Hospital here.

Wilbert Forbes, former state legislator, said he and Gobble were walking toward the Elks Club when Gobble complained, "A pain's just hit me."

In the lobby of the club, Gobble rested in a chair, said he felt better, and went in to eat a bite.

Forbes said the pain struck again, and Gobble went out to the lobby. A physician gave him an injection and called for an ambulance.

Dr. Edwin Pierce, a specialist in internal medicine, was called to attend him. He said Gobble was in critical condition, but was conscious and resting comfortably. He was given oxygen.

Gobble's wife and one of his sons, Dr. Fleetus L. Gobble Jr. of Winston-Salem, were notified and came to Raleigh.

Gobble served in each biennial legislative session since 1941, missing only the 1947 session.

He was recognizable by his white wavy hair and good grooming. He was the only barber in the Legislature.

Gobble attended school in Davilson County, and was a graduate of Atlanta Barber College.

Beauty Pageant Mar. 16

Six contestants have entered the Miss Greenville Pageant and more are expected to enter, Chairman Badger Clark said this morning.

The pagenat, sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees, will be held in Wright Auditorium March 16 at 7:30 p.m.

"We anticipate one of the finest pageants ever," Chairman Clark said. The theme this year will be "Fantasy", the chairman noted.

Last year's master of ceremonies, Bob Ray, will return to conduct the pageant, Clark said. A former Greenville radio station manager, Ray is now with a radio station in Burlington.

Music for the program will be furnished by the Ribbonaires, a combo which performed for last years pageant.

Ben Yelverton is co-chairman in charge of the Contestant Selection Committee, Dick Jones is in charge of production direction and J.Carlton Taylor is a chairman of ticket sale.

Dr. Clark pointed out that a printed program is prepared for the pageant and advertising is now being sold for it.

Among the judges who will select a new Miss Greenville will be Anne Herring of Winston-Salem, this year's Miss North Carolina.

Senate Is Given Five-Star Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administration bill to restore former President Dwight D. Eisenhower to a five-star general's rank was introduced today.

The honor, which Eisenhower has said he wants, may involve some financial sacrifice for him.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services committee, introduced the measure. It would authorize President Kennedy to appoint Eisenhower to the active list of the regular Army, in the general of the Army rank Eisenhower gave up to become president.

Russell's prepared announcement said that since Eisenhower is entitled by law as a former president to draw a $25,000-a-year pension for life, the bill declare that he should not be entitled to the pay or allowances of a general of the Army.

Committee sources said the compensation of a five-star general is $20,543.36 a year, but that since nearly $8,000 of this is tax free, it is "more advantageous" than the taxable $25,000 presidential pension.

Kennedy told a news conference Eisenhower should have the honor because of his "outstanding military record and the great affection and regard that the people of this country have for him."

Congolese Soldiers Slay 44 In Rioting

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Rampaging Congolese soldiers killed 44 civilians in bitter street fighting at Luluabourg, the United Nations reported today.

The troops ran wild through the town after three of their comrades had been killed and three wounded by a pro-Lumumbist mob.

The violence boiled over in the aftermath of last week's takeover of the capital of Kasai Province by Lumumbist troops from Stanleyville. These troops pulled out two days ago and left the town in a ferment.

Luluabourg, 400 miles east of Leopoldville, was the scene of tribal clashes in the days just after the Congo gained independence from Belgium last summer.

The United Nations reported that after the battle Wdenesday some 1,000 civilians sought U. N. protection.

Luluabourg, though officially within the orbit of the Leopoldville regime, is heavily populated by ardent tribal followers of the late Patrice Lumumba.

A U. N. spokesman said the trouble started Tuesday night when a yelling mob demonstrated to demand the release of an officer called Col. Mulumba.

Mulumba was arrested by his own troops for showing pro-Lumumba sympathies during the takeover.

The mob shot three of the soldiers.

There was no immediate report of any Europeans among the dead. Figures for injured were not known at U. N. headquarters.

The fighting raged through most of Wednesday but the U. N. reported that by 8 a. m. the town was quiet again.

The 1,000-strong contingent of U N. Ghanaian troops in Luluabourg took no part in the fighting.

After the fighting in Luluabourg, Ghanaian and Congolese troops joined forces to set up roadblocks and seal off the native township of Ndesha.

Trucks passing through the checkpoints were searched for illegal arms.

U.N. and Congolese officers later held what was described as a cordial conference on means of maintaining order. As a result, Congolese troops now are helping the Ghanaian forces to patrol the town.

In Leopoldville, the United Nations ordered its soldiers today never to surrender their arms and to open fire on anyone who tries to make them.

Reliable sources said the order went out to all U. N. forces around the capital. It followed a number of incidents in which Congolese soldiers arrested and disarmed U. N. troops.

Grooming For Battle Over Reapportionment

RALEIGH (AP) — A battle on House reapportionment loomed today in the aftermath of a serene public hearing featured by an appearance by the North Carolina League of Women Voters.

The league, only organization on the program, came out enthusiastically on both House reapportionment and Senate redistricting.

Rep. Dwight Quinn of Cabarrus —a county which would lose a House seat under the bill being considered—moved to adjourn after the hearing, saying it was customary not to act on a bill immediately after a hearing.

The bill's introducer, Committee Chairman Ed Kemp of Guilford, tenatively set the next meeting for Tuesday.

Afterwards, Quinn was asked if he intended to fight the Kemp measure. He said, "Let me put it this way. I wanted to delay action to allow time for another bill to be introduced." He said Rep. Frank Wooten of Pitt, another county slated to lose a member, would introduce the new measure.

Quinn said, however, "I don't plan to oppose reapportionment as much as I have in the past."

Kemp said he anticipated some opposition to his bill which was introduced on the first day of the session. "They may try to tie it to Senate redistricting," he commented "but I think the committee would resist that. I think this committee is in a frame of mind to approve this and get on to something new."

Kemp's bill would grant an additional seat each to Mecklenburg, Cumberland, Alamance and Onslow counties. In addition to Pitt and Cabarrus, Buncombe and Johnston would lose seats.

Coming along behind Kemp's bill is one calling for a constitutional amendment which would provide for automatic reapportionment of the House following each federal census without further legislative action.

Wooten said his measure, which may come in next week, generally would base House membership on population and Senate membership on geography.

He said it would provide for 150 representatives, at least one from each county, and so based on population. The Senate, he said, would be frozen in its present geographical districts.

The Wooten proposal would be introduced in the form of a constitutional amendment and would require three-fifths approval of both houses and an okay in a statewide referendum.

Uncle Sam Plans To Finish Large Housing Project

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — The government itself is going to complete the 800-unit housing project at the Camp Lejeune Marine Base on which Hal Hayes' Atlantic Contractors stopped work a year ago.

The Navy Bureau of Yards and Docks has been authorized to complete the Capehart housing development, and will ask bids from six North Carolina firms which bid on the original job. They are H L. Coble Construction Co. and T. A. Loving and Co., both of Greensboro, and these four Charlotte companies: J. A. Jones Construction, C. D. Spangler Construction, Thompson and Street, and Phillips Construction.

The Public works officer at the 5th Naval District in Norfolk will be the officer in charge of construction.

Hayes stopped work at Camp Lejeune and other military housing projects in a dispute with the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) over when payments were due.

Hoping To Speed Judgeships Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders hope to speed through the Senate today a bill to create 69 new federal judgeships despite Republican urgings to put on the brakes.

GOP Senate Leader Everett M Dirksen of Illinois said a motion might be offered to send the measure back to the Senate Judiciary Committee for further consideration.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R - N.Y., said he believed such a move should be made, but the heavy Democratic majority in the Senate appeared likely to reject it.

The bill, approved by the Judiciary Committee Monday without hearings, would create 10 more judgeships than the 59 recommended by President Kennedy to help speed the handling of cases in the federal courts.

The judgeship legislation approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee provides for 60 new district judges and 9 new circuit courts of appeal judges.

Under the bill approved by the Senate's Judiciary Committee, North Carolina would get two more federal district judges. The state has three federal judgeships

Approve Adding To Subdivision

Planning-Zoning Commissioners last night approved a 31-lot addition to Stratford subdivision on N. C. 43.

The plat was presented by Ollie VanNortwick and Graham Quinn. Portions of the subdivision, located just south of Green Mill Run, have already been developed.

Also approved was a preliminary plat of the J.A. Speight subdivision located between Greenville Bldv and Cedar Lane near the U.S. 264 intersection east of the city.

The subdivision contains 30 building lots.

Both subdivisions must now go to the City Council for final approval.

Councilman M. W. Aldridge brought up the problem of an access road from Elmhurst School through the new college property to N.C. 43.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam was asked to work with the college in developing such a road.

Trio To Face Tax Sentencing

GREENSBORO (AP) — Three men are to be sentenced Friday for failing to file federal income tax returns on time. They are James H. Eller of Winston-Salem, M. L. Gay of Rocky Mount, and William J. Howard of Wilson.

They pleaded guilty. Sentencing was delayed to permit them to confer with representatives of the Internal Revenue Service on their tax liabilities.

Peace Corps Has Heavy Response

NEW YORK (AP)—Rafer Johnson, Olympic decathlon champion, has volunteered to join the Peace Corps launched by President Kennedy, the New York Times said today.

Johnson was a track star at the University of California at Los Angeles in 1956-58. The 25-year-old athlete, a Negro, is assistant track coach at UCLA.

A Washington dispatch to the Times also said Forrest Evashevski, athletic director at the State University of Iowa, soon will take a job at the headquarters of the corps in Washington.

Evashevski, 44, formerly was football coach at Iowa and was noted blocking back at the University of Michigan in the 1940s.

The Peace Corps is a voluntary organization in which American men and women can help the developing countries of the world by working with their peoples.

The Times said the response to Kennedy's idea "has exceeded all expectations." The corps headquarters switchboard has been flooded with calls.

The story reported Sally Bowles, 22, daughter of Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles, and Nancy Gore, 23, daughter of Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., are already at work at corps headquarters.

Some of the headquarters staff members, such as Miss Gore, are not sure yet what they are being paid—and if they are being paid.

GOING TO SIBERIA

LONDON (AP) — Alexei Adjubei, editor of the Soviet government organ Izvestia, cut short a visit to Britain today and left for Moscow to join his father-in-law, Premier Khrushchev, on a trip to Siberia. Soviet Embassy officials did not disclose the purpose of the visit.

Hodges Assures Action Coming

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges has given assurances President Kennedy intends to do something to solve the problems of the sagging U.S. textile industry.

The President is after the facts of the situation, Hodges told a study subcommittee holding its first meeting on the subject Wednesday.

The subcommittee, headed by Assistant Secretary Hickman Price Jr., said the session was "purely for organization and assignment of duties." He said fundamentals of the textile industry were discussed.

Pitt County's Easter Seal Child

Three-year-old Lou Ella Daniels officially inaugurated the 1961 Easter Seal Sale early this morning when she sold the first sheet of seals to Greenville Mayor S. Eugene West. Little Lou Ella, admittedly "very enthusiastic" about the seal sale, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daniels of College Park. Easter Seal Sale. She has been a regular visitor to the monthly orthopedic clinic at the Pitt County Health Department sponsored by the Pitt County Society for Crippled Children and Adults, sponsor of the 1961 Easter Seal campaign

Psychiatric Training Sessions Will Start Tonight

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

A new concept — psychiatric training sessions for general practitioners and medical specialists—is scheduled to get underway here tonight.

A 12-installment course, to be conducted by psychiatry professor Hans Lowenback, M.D., of the Duke University School of Medicine, will begin at the Cinderella Restaurant tonight at 7 p.m.

Sponsored jointly by the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society, the weekly sessions became a reality from an idea developed and introduced by Dr. Philip G. Nelson, director of the local mental health clinic.

Dr. Nelson's idea, conceived some five months ago, won immediate approval of the N. C. State Board of Health. The training program is believed to be the furst attempt of its kind.

To prove its support of the training program, the state board agreed to make available some $1,500 to finance the series of sessions, Nelson said.

Pilot Operation

Dr. Nelson describes the 12-session course as a pilot operation that could result in more specific training for doctors who are not trained in psychiatry. "That is our hope," he says.

The Pitt psychiatrist, hired by the county in December of 1959, heads the clinic that serves some 22 Eastern N.C. counties with a population of around one million people.

"Theoretically," he says, "we serve a 10-county area. "but points out regular clinic visits represent 22 counties east of Raleigh Dr Nelson is reportedly the only practicing psychiatrist east of Raleigh north of Wilmington and south of Norfolk.

Tremendous Need

Dr. Lowenbach, according to the mental health director, is scheduled to present a basic outline of the course series at tonight's first meeting. Later, Dr. ... fied to administer treatment.

Nelson says, the professor plans to use actual cases—or maybe real patients — as instruction aids.

Dr. Nelson says he originated the idea after being confronted with a "tremendous need for this sort of thing" in Eastern North Carolina. He points out, "Under ideal conditions, a clinic the size of this one and well-staffed would be adequate to serve the population of Pitt County."

He says the possible development of such training programs in other counties "would take business from us" but, he emnhasizes, the population would be better served by more persons qualified to administer treatment.

Credit Given

According to Dr. Nelson, the American Academy of General Practice has agreed to give credit to doctors who attend and complete the course. The Academy requires a stated amount of postgraduate training every three years for membership.

The sessions are open to any of the around 40 members of the society and will be held at the Cinderella Restaurant each Thursday except each month's second Thursday, the regular meeting night for the Pitt society.

Each session, expected to last about two to three hours, will be begun with a Dutch treat dinner at 7 p.m.

The Jackie Kennedy Look Inspires Striking New Spring Fashions

By ANNE KEZIAH
Reflector Woman's Writer

What is all this about the Jackie Kennedy Look? Are women all going to have to try to look like her in order to be in fashion? These questions are being asked daily.

The "Jacqueline Kennedy Look" is young, charming and attractive, but no woman should feel obliged to copy the First Lady. This seems to be the opinion of most designers. Fashions always have more than one look to offer. A woman should always choose the look that suits her own personality.

The 1961 spring fashions are full of gay, vivid and daring colors. They have a "calm" look, a look of ease and movement They are clothes that women can enjoy wearing because they are comfortable and flattering and will provide new reasons for jewelry accents and new ways for jewelry to be worn.

TYPICAL JACKIE KENNEDY LOOK . . . is featured in this sleeveless dress modeled by Miss Terry Tripp.

THIS IS THE POPULAR . . . Spring look with double breasted jacket and pleated skirt.

Since the Kennedy inauguration much ado has been made about the clothes worn by Mrs. Kennedy, and the simple pillbox hat worn at the back of the head.

A survey of buyers for the fashion shops and department stores in Greenville, brings out a mixed reaction to the Jackie Kennedy style clothes and their influence in Spring fashions.

Mr. Morris Brody of Brody's said when asked to comment on styles worn by Mrs. Kennedy, "I think they will go good because they have the fluid eloquent look. I am very enthusiastic concerning change in clothes, because I think present fashion has run its course. There hasn't been a style change in several years."

Mr. Brody said, "Women's reactions to spring fashions are very good." He said that a "great deal of interest has been shown since the inauguration, especially since newspapers and magazines have played up the Jackie Kennedy styles. We bought a lot of the pillbox hats, popular with Mrs. Kennedy." He said the effect would be felt more as manufacturers get the feel of her styles. It will be April before stores adapt her style. "The color seems to be pink as Spring colors are vibrant", Mr. Brody said.

Women s Ready-to-Wear buyer for Blount Harvey's, Mrs. Mary Dunn said, "A few customers have requested styles similar to those worn by Mrs. Kennedy". She said, "Some of the manufacturers are playing up the ring collars similar to those Mrs. Kennedy wears". At the Spring Showing in New York, Mrs. Dunn said, "the manufacturer in displaying a dress, would say this is a Jackie Kennedy style. I think the style will go well because it is a youthful, becoming style. Most women like the new Spring fashions and the younger set is crazy about short skirts. Older people will wear skirts where they are most becoming."

When asked if the store planned to stock styles similar to those worn by the First Lady, Mrs. Dunn said, "I bought light to see how the public would react".

Mrs. Eli Bloom of Bloom's said, "A few of the dress houses in which we went had the relaxed look in the casual and sports wear line." She said, "We do not plan to stock too many in that style. In cities where women go in for high styles the style will be popular, but the average person is not going to buy that style clothes."

Mrs. Charles Forbes of C. Heber Forbes commented when asked if stores were buying the type clothes worn by Mrs. Kennedy. "In choosing Spring and summer fashions it didn't affect our buying."

Mrs. Mary Windle of the College Shop said that bright colors are very popular for Spring. The loose overblouse and bright, colored shirts will be popular. "I think the casual look will be real popular, we deal more in the sports wear line of clothes rather than the suits and ensembles. You don't see the flared styles except in high fashions. We can already tell this has been our very best Spring in the way of cotton dresses."

Belk-Tyler's Ready-To-Wear buyer Mrs. Mary Lloyd, when asked if they were carrying the type clothes worn by Mrs. Kennedy, said "When we bought spring clothes we didn't have her style in mind. When I buy I think of the customers, the type clothes they would like. When we bought clothes we are selling now, Mrs. Kennedy wasn't in the White House".

"The coiffure Mrs. Kennedy wears is an Italian bouffant, which is closer to the head than a bouffant," Mrs. Ruby Speight said in describing the First Ladies' hair style. "We have had a few customers to ask for that style, but not too many as yet."

The "Jackie Look" in hair style has been especially prolific among the fashion models. The pillbox hat has joined the flowered hats as a wardrobe necessity for Spring.

Slides Of Kress Art Collection Shown Club

Mr Charles Stanford, Curator of Education at the North Carolina Museum of Art, made the premiere showing of the slides of the Samuel H. Kress Foundation Art Collection to the Chatham Book Club Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. R. Conway

Upon arrival of the club members and guests, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore and Mr. Stanford, the hostess served a sweet course with coffee.

Mrs. A. C. Ruffin, club president welcomed all present and recognized Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, who in turn introduced the speaker.

Mr. Stanford, Curator of Education at the North Carolina Museum of Art, is a native North Carolinian. He was educated at the University of North Carolina and in Europe.

He prefaced his illustrated talk by saying the slides had just been completed and that he was showing them for the first time to the Chatham Book Club. He described the Kress gift of seventy pieces of Art as the largest gift that has been given to any museum with the exception of the National Gallery.

The Kress Collection, he said, is primarily of the Italian School, but the Dutch, French and Flemish Schools are also represented.

He spoke at length about the Peruzzi Altarpiece by Maso di Banco and read a short excerpt from an editorial in Art News January 1961.

In the editor's opinion the Peruzzi Altarpiece is one of the two "Best old master paintings acquired by an American public collection."

The president conducted a short routine business session. The club voted to make a donation to the Heart Fund. The members then made plans to visit the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh March 21. After the librarian distributed the books, the meeting was adjourned.

ECC Foreign Student Speaks To Clio Club

The Clio Book Club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. R. G. Lang at her home on Longmeadow Road.

Mrs. James Moye, president, introduced the guests, Mrs. A. C. Downs of Monroe, Ga. and Mr. Hushidar Motlagh, a foreign student at East Carolina College.

Mr. Motlagh was the speaker for the afternoon. He told of his college experiences which led him via Alabama, Chicago and California, to East Carolina where he is majoring in psychology. He plans to return to his country to teach upon completion of his doctorate in this field.

Questions from members of the club concerning his Bahai religion, the customs, dress, foods, home and family relationships and politics in his country were answered in an intelligent and friendly manner.

A key statement that "basically we all want the same things and must learn to work together for them" furthered a feeling of genuine interest in all agencies and individuals working toward a better understanding among nations.

Following this discussion, Mrs. Lang, assisted by Mrs. Dave Perkins and Mrs. Jack Gates, served a delicious sweet course with salted nuts and coffee.

Club Attends Garden Show

After a brief business meeting in the home of Mrs. Clarence Tugwell, the Chicora Book Club went to Raleigh to the Southeastern Flower and Garden Show.

Guests of the club for the occasion were Mrs. David Evans Jr., Mrs. Dick Green, Mrs. Walter Perkins, and Mrs. Guy Smith Jr.

The group, going by car, met at Balentine's in Cameron Village for a smorgasbord lunch. After lunch, the group met again at the State Fair Arena for the flower show. The afternoon was spent looking at the unusual gardens and arrangements throughout the building.

Cooking Is Fun

Good way to treat fish.

Stuffed Haddock Frances
Potatoes Broccoli
Crusty Rolls
Fruit Salad Beverage

STUFFED HADDOCK FRANCES

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup each finely chopped onion and celery
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms
Salt and pepper
2 haddock fillets (about 1 ½ pounds)
Extra butter
2 bay leaves

Heat butter and cook onion and celery lightly in it; mix in crumbs, drained mushrooms, ¼ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Sprinkle fish with salt and pepper. Place one fillet in a shallow baking pan; spread stuffing over it; top with over fillet; skewer sides together with food picks. Dot top of fish with extra butter; place bay leaves on top of fish. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven, basting a few times, until fish flakes easily — 30 minutes or longer. Makes 4 servings.

Easy to prepare!
Fish Chowder
Dutch Asparagus Salad
Hot Biscuits
Butterscotch Brownies
Beverage

DUTCH ASPARAGUS SALAD

2 cans (1 pound each) asparagus stalks
¼ pound bacon
1½ to 2 tablespoons wine vinegar
½ teaspoon sugar
Salt and pepper
Romaine or other lettuce
4 hard-cooked eggs
4 small green onions (scallions)

Drain asparagus thoroughly and arrange on serving platter. Dice bacon and fry until crisp; remove bacon tidbits; to bacon fat in skillet stir in the vinegar, sugar, and salt and pepper to taste. Pour hot dressing over cold asparagus. Garnish with romaine, sliced hard-cooked eggs and scallions (sliced thin and including most of the green). Makes 8 servings.

Crime Increase Is Local Problem

The 12 per cent increase in major crime in the United States last year should not be ignored by individual communities just because the increase represents a nation-wide condition.

While it is a national problem, to be sure, it is a problem that can be coped with effectively only at the local level.

Every crime committed is a "local" crime in some community. The first to investigate the crime and seek to prevent recurrence of similar crimes are the local authorities. The unhealthy environments which provide breeding places for crime are purely local in nature, and on the local level initial steps must be taken to wipe them out.

Too often, we think, most communities take the attitude that national statistics have nothing to do with their particular situation. The percentage figures may not correspond exactly, but it is from the records of individual communities throughout the nation that such statistics are compiled. The national statistics reflect the collective trend in the individual communities.

If the fight against the increasing crime rate of the nation is not taken up in the individual communities, it cannot possibly be effective. The fact that the national crime rate has increased sharply in the past year should concern every community in Pitt County and North Carolina just as it should concern New York, Chicago, San Francisco and every other city and town across the country. Unless the tide is stemmed, it will engulf the small communities as well as the large.

The fact that the crime rate has increased should concern the average citizen just as it does the law enforcement officer. When a crime is committed, it is usually one of the average citizens who is the victim . . . not a law enforcement officer. And if the trend in crime is to take a downward turn, it will require the efforts of the average citizens just as much as it will require the efforts of the law enforcement agencies.

Crimes after all, is a community problem. As such it is a problem for the community as a whole, not for just a few people in the community. The collective effort of every agency, every organization, and every citizen within the community should be pressed into the campaign to reduce the crime rate. Only if such an approach is taken can we hope to see a reversal of the alarming trend in the individual communities and in the nation.

Big Share Is In Travel Revenue

By LYNN NISBET

TRAVEL REVENUE — Analysis of the detail report on sales and use tax collections released last week by the Department of Revenue shows very clearly that the travel industry, directly and indirectly, is a major contributor to the economy of North Carolina.

With only a few exceptions the counties which have new attractions for tourists showed greater gains than those which do not have these attractions. Much more significant than the county by county listing is the breakdown of business classifications.

The tax collected on hotel and motel rooms, for example, was up 15.36 percent for the period from February 1, 1960, to January 31, 1961, from the same dates the year before. The increase in tax collections on restaurants, cafes and hotel dining rooms for the same period was 5.82 percent. From filling and service stations the increase was 4.47 percent, and from repair and storage garages 5.59 percent. Sales tax on auto batteries, parts and supplies went up 9.61 percent. These increases generally were higher than the average. (Maybe it ain't good propaganda, but honesty compels noting that the sales tax on tomb stones went up 14.72 percent and that paid by undertakers and funeral parlors went up 15.38 percent. These pessimist might argue that was also attributable to travel and the heavy traffic death toll. What we like to argue is that general prosperity enables families to pay more for coffins and tombstones for their deceased loved ones.)

Whatever the approach, the fact remains that the travel industry is a major contributor to the total economy, tax wise and otherwise, in North Carolina.

DOLLARS — Switching from percentage increases to actual dollars collected from sales taxes on travel-related business it is found that retail and wholesale taxes collected on automobiles for the six months period amounted to $4,849,227, and the tax on parts and accessories amounted to $3,109,970. From filling-service stations and garages the receipts were $6,242,501. From lunchrooms, restaurants, hotel dining rooms, etc., the tax take was $5,375,906. From room rentals in hotels, motels and other places the take was $1,042,793.

These five categories account for nearly $21 million of the total sales and use tax collections of $89,551,535. When it is remembered that travelers paid many thousands of dollars in sales taxes on merchandise bought from department stores, drug stores, and specialty shops, it would seem reasonable to assume that travel was responsible for at least one-fourth of all the sales and use taxes collected by the State during the past six months.

COURT REFORM — Sponsors of the "court reform" bill introduced last week by Rep. H.P. Taylor, Jr., are very optimistic about enactment of its essential features if not exactly as written. There are, however, very substantial groups in both House and Senate which have declared that "it shall not pass." The principal objection is that it attempts to drastic change at one time, and reluctance to yield as much authority to the chief justice as the bill would give him. Almost certainly some improvement will be made in courts below superior court level rending to uniformity. Many people think that will be the extend of change at this session.

N.Y. TIMES — The New York Times Sunday will include a 24-page section on North Carolina, filled with news stories and advertisements, many in colo. The front page features a color picture of Governor Sanford receiving from retiring Governor Hodges a brief case inscribed "Good Government is a Habit in North Carolina." The section will be included in all of the regular 1,371,000 edition of the Times, and the State will buy 10,000 reprints for distribution. The C&D Departments published a similar section about four years ago, but only in black and white. The current issue is much more attractive.

TRANSITION — A superior court judge was discussing the need for additional judicial manpower, and said that lawyers moving up to the bench ought to have at least 60 days to clear their private desks. He favors election of judges by the people where possible, thus assuring the waiting time. In cases where judges are appointed the effective date should be two or three months after the appointment is made, he said. He cited cases of delay in trials because lawyers either had to give up cases which they had prepared, or found themselves in embarrassing position as the sitting judge.

NEW QUEEN — In addition to "Miss North Carolina" who will close the North Carolina part of the Ohio Valley Travel Show at Cincinnati next week, the Tarheel contingent will have on hand all the time "Miss Variety Vacationland" in the person of Miss Jean Snyder of Charlotte. The travel show will be opened Saturday March 4 by Governor Sanford and closed Saturday night, March 12 by Miss North Carolina.

Promising Prospects Came To Nothing

Hopes that the 1961 General Assembly would get off to a faster start than its predecessors seemed to have fizzled with the third week of the current session coming to an end.

From all appearances the legislature this year has moved no faster toward getting down to the hard matters of legislation than has been the case in previous years. Although momentum is gradually picking up in Raleigh, the pace is still slow and the legislative accomplishments have been few.

It appears to us that little time was gained in getting committees down to work by the early caucus of House members to name their speaker in January. We had hoped that this would enable committees to be ready for operation just about as soon as the General Assembly convened; but this has not proved to be the case.

Another stumbling block now has appeared insofar as important money matters. The legislature seems to be marking time on the question of new sources of tax revenue until it hears the special message of Gov. Sanford slated for March 6.

Certainly it is not reasonable to expect the General Assembly to plunge into major decision-making sessions as soon as it convenes. But this year there were several signs which initially pointed to more rapid organization, a greater state of readiness to handle major problems earlier in the session than has been the case in the past. It seems to us that these promising prospects have come to nothing.

It to be hoped that the pace of legislative progress will increase appreciably in the next few weeks in order that the legislators can begin getting behind them some of the major problems that have to be resolved during this session. Otherwise the log-jam of legislative business will mount to the danger point for the legislators and for the state.

A Similarity In Dulles And Rusk

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—There is one basic similarity and two basic differences between the expressed views of Secretary of State Dean Rusk and his famous predecessor, the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

It may have seemed new when Rusk, after a three-hour session with the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday, issued a statement on his views about defense.

Actually, he was only echoing what President Kennedy said months ago in the 1960 campaign and what Dulles had said early in the Eisenhower administration.

Tusk foresaw the possibility of two kinds of war: the all-out nuclear kind and the limited war on the ground where both sides might tangle but both wanted to stop short of all-out.

Therefore, he called for building up both this country's nuclear striking force and its convention forces, such as ground troops.

This is exactly what Kennedy told the American Legion in Miami last October he would try to do if elected President.

Six years earlier—in the April, 1954, issue of Foreign Affairs quarterly magazine—Dulles said: "Massive atomic and thermonuclear retaliation is not the kind of power which could most usefully be evoked under all circumstances. To deter aggression it is important to have the flexibility and facilities which make various responses available.

"The free world must have the means for responding effectively on a selective basis when it chooses. It must not put itself in the position where the only response open to it is general war."

So much for the similarity between the two secretaries. Their differences are more noticeable.

Dulles often acted like a man who was feeding himself verbal pep pills. While his policy was generally defensive, there were times when he said confidently he could see the Soviets backing up under Western pressure.

On Feb. 24, 1955 he said the West had forced Soviet policies to fail and compelled the Russians to devise new ones. At other times he said he could not see where Soviet policies had changed.

At one time he could see the Soviets in a "bad way" and the "tide of history" turning. But there were other times when he displayed an impressive respect for Soviet strength.

So far Rusk has avoided any belittlement of the Russians or prophecies. He has been playing cautious since he took office in January.

Up till now the most notable difference between Rusk and Dulles has been in their salesmanship.

Dulles was the flamboyant, high-pressure type. Rusk goes in for the soft sell.

Dulles talked in scare terms, like "massive retaliation," which he never tried; and "agonizing reappraisal" of American relations with allies, which he didn't make; and treading on the "brink of war," which he carefully avoided.

Rusk, anxious if possible to establish as part of the Kennedy policy a new and friendlier relationship with the Kremlin, has pitched his few public statements so far in a low key.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DO WE REALLY KNOW ANYTHING?

Kipling wrote many years ago that—

There are six and twenty ways
Of composing tribal lays—
And every single one of them is right.

Some people just can't get this truth into their minds. "There are only two ways to do this thing—my way and the wrong way." "How can people be so stupid and perverse as to close their minds to this self-evident truth I am trying to advance?" "If folks would only listen to reason—"

So they rant along with the little sense they were born with gradually slipping away like wheat running out of a sack with a hole in it. A lack of self-confidence tortures and slays its thousands, but obstinancy and bigotry its tens of thousands.

The open mind should not be open at both ends, for then truth goes into the mind and out again without accomplishing anything worthwhile. But the mind must be kept open lest we die—particularly mentally and spiritually. There are ways of doing things vastly better than anything we ever thought about. Lots of "absurd ideas" have plenty of truth in them. What we know as compared to what there is to know is as a grain of sand compared to the area of the North American continent.

Real Thriller In The Other Room

By HENRY HOWARD

Sun On Alternate Days

Probably many persons, including myself, were quite pleased this morning to see a clear sky and a warm sun again.

And again tomorrow probably many persons, also including myself, will anticipate a recurrence of today's weather.

That's not strange in the least, but judging by the weather pattern during the past week or so, everybody may quite likely be greeted in the morning by completely overcast skies and maybe a little drizzle.

It's happened that way lately It seems every alternate day is bright and sunny. The interspersed days lately have been gray.

We must admit the topic is boring to say the least. But it seemes to us a vivid example of what they call the "weather cycle."

Up here in the newsroom, we open all kinds of letters from all kinds of offices, agencies and people.

The day's mail always brings the unexpected. Sometimes we receive quite timely news. Some letters report what the writer calls a "hot news tip" or something like that.

As a general rule, we receive copy through the mail that is similar to our own copy in at least one respect—we all make mistakes.

Most miscues are inadvertent, but nonetheless mistakes. While defended by their unintentional nature, mistakes are not protected from being amusing.

Grammatical errors are numerous enough. They would be even more plentiful, but often we fail to notice them. Naturally, to recognize an error a person must know quickly what should be in its place.

Other errors are also abundant. It seems, though, some of the most amusing are the misspellings written out in longhand.

For instance we recently received by mail a report on activities of a Cub Scout pack in the area. It was a timely report we were glad to receive.

What tickled us was the spelling: Club Scouts.

Speaking of Scouts and scouting, we recently learned from a Boy Scouts of America circular that President Kennedy, his vice president and the Cabinet are and have been active scouters.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the circular said, was "knot tying champion" in the Atlanta Council back in the 1920's.

We were thinking maybe his experience then may be quite helpful to him in his new job as he tries to untie a few.

Other Editors Saying . . .

No Foot-Dragging

(Greensboro Daily News)

Governor Sanford obviously has his hands full with an education program requiring much more pot-sweetening than the Advisory Budget Commission provides.

But in his desire to put first things first, the Governor, we are glad to see, will not play coy with other pressing needs. At his press conference Sanford said, "I am committed to redistricting and I am going to use my best efforts to obtain proper legislation." However, he added: By its very nature the job will be complex and "I think it best for me to wait and see what the developments are."

Most legislative observers anticipate little trouble getting House reapportionment since it requires reshuffling of only four seats. But senatorial redistricting is something else. Population growth in the Piedmont creates a sharp division of opinion between large and small population counties. There are more of the latter. Their present inclination is to oppose the clear constitutional mandate to reapportion.

This foot-dragging has been evident since the census of 1950 when the General Assembly was duty-bound to revise its membership in line with new population figures. Its majority has refused each year, using feeble excuses.

Now new census figures give the revision more pertinency than ever.

In 1941 Gov. J. Melville Broughton did not hesitate to speak out strongly for reapportionment and act behind the scenes to boost it. Many believe his leadership was crucial in persuading legislators to do what their constitution required them to do. No chief executive has put so much emphasis on reapportionment in the years since Governor Broughton's successful effort.

Governor Sanford also took the oath of office to uphold the State Constitution when he was inaugurated. As duly constituted Governor of North Carolina he has a responsibility to put all the weight of his office behind such legislation. We are glad he has reiterated his determination to do just that.

Understandably there must be give and take in the fight on reapportionment. Neither side can attain everything it wants. But in order to emphasize the importance of reapportionment the Governor as well as legislative leaders must lead. There has been enough foot-dragging.

RECIPE FOR SPRING

(The Anderson Independent)

Spring, a puddle mixed with a small boy, a chunk of wood, a partially split match and a piece of paper.

The recipe doesn't sound like much, but in yesteryear it was not an uncommon sight around the rural sections of the country and in the smaller communities. The boy got wet, probably got a scolding along with a hot bath and dry clothes, but even then what did it matter? He had sailed a pirate ship to Timbuctoo, or had sailed a Navy ship giving battle to vessels flying the Jolly Roger off the coast of Tangiers. He had explored 1,000 out-of-the-way places in the world.

To such an adventurer punishment meant little; for a few brief moments he had held the world in his hand.

Today's completely mechanized play equipment pretty well rules out the dreams playing in a puddle, but we'll bet it doesn't stop the visits to "enchanted places." Boys and dreams surmount even the most technical paraphernalia.

Opinions In Brief

"The world is divided into people who do the work, and people who take the credit. Try, if you can, belong to the first class; there's far less competition."—Mattoon (Ill.) Journal-Gazette.

"Time's winged chariot thunders on—a fact of which we are reminded in talking to a grown and married woman who can't remember where there weren't parking meters."—Nashville Tennessean.

"The American Negro today numbers 19 million. They earn more than 20 billion a year, or about $1,100 each. This per capita figure is as high as the per capita income of Britons and higher than that of the French."—Orlando (Fla.) Sentinel.

Robots Using Mails

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

I recently wrote something that started an endless receipt of mail, some antagonistic, some flattering — but all, beginning with the second paragraph, identical. So after a few missiv I stopped reading them as life is fleeting and time is precious. Some of the letter-writers had read the column they objected to; others frankly said that they had not.

As these letters pile up, I think of the poor members of Congress who, under the constitutional right of petition, receive a huge mail which no man could read even if he had nothing else to do. Some friends of mine solve the problem by counting the pros and cons — that is, having a clerk do it.

Popularity can be a poison. Many men are so astonished by their own importance that they lose all sense of proportion. The receipt of a thousand or so letters on one subject, whether pro or con, could make a politician believe that he was sent from Heaven. I am told that a movie actor once tried to walk on the water of his swimming pool after reading his fan mail. Alas! He did not drown.

Mass mail, pleasant or unpleasant, gives the impression of organization, of a planned attempt to influence opinion by pressure. Few men of character submit to this type of pressure. A mature man has developed his philosophy of life and whereas he might be influenced by a great teacher or an outstanding scholar, he will ignore any attempt to brain - wash him by mass correspondence. So far as I am concerned, I cannot help feeling that those disciplined robots who buttered me up in the first paragraph and then used a uniform second paragraph to set me straight, are intellectually and spiritually as weak as Communists who follow the party line.

The Communist accepts the party line because he recognizes himself as a soldier in a permanent war. His general staff (the Presidium) and his leader (the Secretary-General) do all his thinking for him. There are some conservatives and reactionaries who believe that this method is sound and should be adopted by all those fighting Communism. But the central fact of conservatism is the dignity of man, the independence of thought and action by an individual for which he assumes full personal responsibility. The man who lines up behind a leader as Hitler or Mussolini becomes a hopeless robot who can only move when wound up and when pointed in a direction.

One of the most serious problems facing this country and therefore the world is whether our system of government can survive the enormous social and economic changes which are taking place here. Segregation, for instance, is not so much a Negro question as it is one of the sovereignty of the state which the Constitution recognizes. The fact of the matter is that the states are no longer sovereign, that having been settled by the War Between the States. A sovereign political body can join or secede from a general confederation. For instance, the United States refused to join the League of Nations but it did join the United Nations. It could leave the United Nations at will. That is sovereignty. An American state has many limitations and the limitations are increasing as life becomes more complicated.

For instance, New York City is an area in which people work who live in New York, Connecticut and New Jersey. Also many who live in New York work in Connecticut and New Jersey. These states are so united by roads, bridges, tunnels, and administrative measures that increasingly they are becoming united. Recently, the three states met to consider joint commuting aid. The Port of New York Authority, an instrument of the States of New York and New Jersey and authorized by Congress, is an enormous joint venture uniting the two states in transportation and other services. Such joint operations are becoming increasingly numerous.

It will not be long before public opinion will force the United States to have a uniform divorce law for the protection of children. Already the FBI has step-

Wherein It May Be Deductible

By ELMER ROESSNER

In General, if a man takes his lunch near his office, the cost is not deductible for income tax purposes. If he goes out of town on a business trip and returns the same day, the cost of his vittles are not deductible under Internal Revenue Service rules.

But in certain circumstances, they may be, the Fifth Circuit Court has ruled. A railroad conductor took the train from Montgomery, Ala., to Atlanta at 5 a.m. every morning, had a six-hour layover there and conducted a train back to Montgomery that evening.

The Internal Revenue Service refused to accept his deduction for a meal and a room for napping in Atlanta, because he had not been away from home overnight. But the tax court decided that the conductor's 17-hour day required a deductible meal, a deductible hotel room and deductible tips.

Here are more curious items in the stream of business news:

"Celluloid collars dangerous, warned a sign offered plants by the National Safety Council after World War I. When fires broke out, wearers often got the neck signed. . .France is increasing its imports of soybeans. Maybe processors are mixing the oil with olive oil. . .Venus Pencil is celebrating its 100th anniversary. The original Venus is much older. . .Australia shipped 192,000,000 pounds of meat to the United States last year.

For the first time, Japan is allowing imports of instant coffee.

A businessman's guide to two-way radio is offered by General Electric to those who write to Section P, P.O. Box 4197, Lynchburg, Va. . . . A booklet on the fundamentals of retail salesmanship, called "Sally's Selling Primer," is being published by Fairchild Publications, New York 3, at $1.95. . ."Exporting for Profit" is a leaflet offered free for asking the SBA, Washington 25, D. C.

Sales of liquid, calorie-counted, diets are now at a rate of $100,000,000 a year. . .On the other hand, people are buying so many more sweets that manufacturers will spend $70,000,000 in consumer advertising this year. Don Gussow Publications estimates . . .We're clean. The Association of American Soap & Glycerine Producers says sales reached a new peak last year.

Recession note: Cash dividends in January were above a year ago.

A Long Island appliance merchant is convinced that the recession hit us because people are watching TV and movies instead of sallying forth to spend money. . .The public is bewildered by so many auto models that manufacturers will present simple, recognizable lines for 1962, says Business Week. . .Our dear Canadian friends sold Communist China $60,000,000 worth of grain this month. . .New postal rules denying second-class mail privileges to magazines with a minimum of 55 per cent paid circulation will be a crushing blow to small publishers, says the Gallagher Report. Editor Bernard P. Gallagher asks, "Who sent the Post Office, like a one-eyed monster, trampling over small publishers?"

COMMUNISTS SNATCH TWO U. S. MARKETS

While the United States is offering help to Poland, the Red Poles are replacing us in the Cuban market. An agreement provides for the exchange of $22,000,000 worth of goods this year, with Poland supplying bacon and materials for a slaughter plant, and Cuba supplying hides and other commodities.

Until 1960, Cuba had been importing $11,000,000 worth of meat, mostly pork, from the U. S. and selling hides and skins to the U.S. And in the first 10 months of 1960, Poland had bought $1,300,000 worth of hides and skins from us.

Following the meeting, Mrs. Blount served ice cream with strawberries. Books were exchanged and the meeting declared adjourned.

Fabric Mender

You don't have to sew a fine seam to mend a tear in wool, cotton, canvas, synthetics, or leather thanks to a new all-purpose fabric mender which comes in a squeeze tube for easy use.

Fabrics repaired in this manner can be washed even in hot suds, and ironed with perfect safety.

PATCHED PARASOLS

Mend small holes in an umbrella by placing upside down on ironing board. Cut patches from iron-on mending tape the same color as the umbrella and press over the hole with an iron.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

Hollies from the Orient have many uses in our gardens and on our home grounds. Starting with plantings around the house, the list that follows may be considered for planting this spring: At the corners and at the entrance use the upright Ilex crenata. This plant shears nicely and can be kept in bounds with minimum effort.

Under windows, the Ilex convexa, with its vase-like shape, fits in well. The only objection to this holly is that the puckered leaves are good places for mites. But a thorough spraying with a miticide (Aramite or Malathion) can keep them clean.

Under the same planting situation as the above mentioned, the Ilex microphylla can be used

When the windows are real low, use Ilex helleri (cushion holly). This low spreading plant follows the ground and you won't have many, if any, shoots to trim off the top. Helleri can also be used to advantage in planter boxes.

Ilex rotundifolia, the round leaf variety of this holly, can be used under windows as filler plants and at entrances. Both the I. microphylla and I. rotundifilia are useful plants to be used in the patio planting spaces.

Moving out from the house, you can use I. microphylla, I. convexa or I helleri at the street entrance to a driveway.

The problem of a hedge between the house and garden can be solved with I. rotundifolia, I. microphylla or I Convexa. For a hedge between you and your neighbor, the I. rotundifolia or I microphylla can be used. Bear in mind the fact that mites like the I. convexa when you plan to use it as hedge material The use of this type of plant in such a situation will run up your spray bill.

As specimens in the lawn area, I cornuta Burfordi or I. latifolia are very useful. The I latifolia used in a combination with Camellias and faced down with Azaleas makes an interesting evergreen border. You have a fine foliage contrast and colorful berries and flowers.

I. cornuta burfordi is a fine screening plant to hide an open field or the view of the yard of an untidy neighbor.

The use of hollies should give you a neat tidy planting, and the maintaining of such plants should not be over taxing. Plant them in a good soil that drains well and feed yearly. Hollies aren't too fussy and will respond to reasonable care, but like any other plant, they resent neglect.

From the cost standpoint, they may cost a little more than some other plants but their many assets offset this.

These plants or most of them can be seen in your local nursery. Take time to look and ask your nurseryman about their habits and cultural requirements. Tell him where you plan to use them A little information about the plants you want to use is always helpful. Spring isn't far off — find a good plant source before the rush begins. The best looking plants will be picked first—be on hand to get yours.

PAUL HORGAN'S GREAT HISTORICAL NOVEL — A DISTANT TRUMPET

From the book published by Farrar, Straus & Cudahy; Copyright © 1960, 1959, 1958, 1960, by Paul Horgan. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

The next two decades in Matthew Carlton Hazard's life were shaped by an incident in Fox Creek, Ind., when he was seven years old. It occurred when President Abraham Lincoln sat Matthew upon his knee on the rear platform of his private train and told the war-orphaned boy: "If my father's child can get to be the President, your father's child can make his heart's desire." Matthew expressed his wish to be a soldier like his father, and Lincoln gave the boy an army officer's cap and advised him to seek an appointment to West Point when he became the required age.

Entering the military academy when 19, Matthew succeeded in materializing his dream. And then, as a soldier and the guest of a classmate, Harvey Greenleaf, he met his friend's beautiful sister Laura with whom he fell in love—another decisive turn of events in his life.

On another leave now, he is about to confess his love for her. . .

CHAPTER 5

Matthew rose out of the shadows and faced Laura silently. He wore a baleful look, but it was not enough to conceal the marks of real suffering in his eyes. It made Laura's breath go shallow to see a man so strong as he and certain now show the marks of miserable uncertainty. That this change in him came about because of her was sweet and wonderful, she thought. She went closer to him.

"But you are still up!" she exclaimed lightly, while a pulse went rippling in the pit of her throat. "It's so late."

"Have you had a happey evening?" he asked in a muffled tone. His words sounded absurd to him, but he knew he must say anything at all in order to establish communication with her.

She raised her arms in a gesture of remembered delight.

"I have never had a better time," she said, seeing how it hurt him to hear this.

When he said that he was glad to hear it, his voice was almost a croak, for the emotion that filled him. He rubbed his brow as if to clear away a blinding pain.

"You are not feeling well, Matthew?" she asked, and at playing a game with him who was so deadly in earnest she felt a flicker of guilt try itself like a little flame in her breast.

"Laura," he said, near to her, rapidly and softly, "you are just about killing me, you must know that, you must see it."

Ther hearts began to choke them, for all was about to come plain between them, and they both knew it.

Bowing her head she tried to distract herself by taking off one of her long white gloves, but he caught one of her hands away from the other, and leaned down and kissed her fingers. In another moment they were in each other's arms, delivered of their hunger and their long-protracted game of evasion by their first kiss.

They loved each other for what they were, each of them. All obstacles and traditions, all disparities of position and advantage, disappeared. They confessed themselves to each other, now in their embrace, later in words. They sat late together in the dim drawing room, pledging all, but planning to keep their engagement secret until graduation in June.

In June, 1880, he received his commission as second lieutenant of cavalry and his first assignment to duty. He was to proceed to Arizona, in the Indian frontier, and report to Fort Delivery.

The lovers were not prepared for an assignment of such rigor and remoteness, but they said it did not matter; they would go anywhere together. Laura and her family were present at the graduation on Harvey's account, and when a suitable moment came, Matthew went to make his request for Laura in marriage. Her father, Colonel Greenleaf, listened. They were privately together on a grassy edge of the palisade overlooking the Hudson. The colonel was amenable. He liked and admired Matthew, though his code of raised eyebrow and privileged behavior made it impossible for him to show this frankly.

"Yes," he said, "Mr. Hazard, your request is not amazing to me. I am not blind, you know, nor have I been for some time, in this matter. I'd be inclined to give you my blessing. I believe you will make a career. I am glad Laura chooses to stay in the Army. It is my life, as you know." He became visibly proud in his superbly molded tunic. He added, "However, I shall, of course, have to discuss your proposal with my wife."

Matthew's heart sank, even though he had expected to hear this, for he knew where his real obstacle lay.

He was right, though he was spared having to witness how Mrs. Greenleaf took the news. She was opposed. The terms of her opposition were the more dangerous because she did not faint or have a heart attack or burst into hysterical tears; she lifted her chin and put her hands on her cheeks and broke into a little rill of laughter which contained everything but amusement. The proposition was too absurd for any other reaction. She murmured about the susceptibility of two pretty things thrown together incautiously for years, who, now beguiled by the emotions of graduation, thought they were in love.

But if Mrs. Greenleaf hoped to be rid of the matter by treating it lightly she misjudged, for once, the quality of her opposition. Laura, Harvey and even her husband were solidly in favor of an immediate marriage, so the new lieutenant could take his bride to the frontier with him.

When she saw these forces arrayed against her Mrs. Greenleaf withdrew into a wounded calm. She refused to speak to anyone in her family. She denied Matthew an audience at West Point. She swept her people back to Washington, and never let Laura out of her sight.

Matthew followed with Harvey, both on graduation leave. Harvey became an emissary between the exiled lover, who took a room at a boarding house, and the fortress he would penetrate. After days of negotiation, Matthew was sent for. There was a conference in the state drawing room of the Greenleaf residence. Then he heard the ultimatum. Mrs. Greenleaf gave it.

"Matthew, my dear boy. We have much to work out together and you must help me with your understanding and your good heart."

It was an ominously new tone for her to take with him.

"I will try, Mrs. Greenleaf," he said in a chastened voice.

"Of course you will; you are a reasonable boy, and you have done wonders with your own life. All my friends quite dote on you, and I feel it is wonderfully to your credit that in your circumstances you have somewhat distinguished yourself. I know something of your early years and the struggles that came to your family, and believe me, my heart knows something of youthful trials." She paused briefly.

"I should think your present circumstances, while honorable," resumed Mrs. Greenleaf, "were not entirely those to justify an offer of marriage to a young lady accustomed to certain comforts and a real stability in life. There is, of course, a future in the Army for anyone who shows devotion to duty. But how slow we are in our stodgy old army, and how often even real merit is somewhat lost in the shuffle!" She put her hand on his arm to indicate sympathy for him in the future she had just foreseen for him. "Oh," she said, "I know. I know too well, what it is to be young, and ardent, and impetuous. But"—her smile was a wistful shadow over her lovely mouth—"I know too the duties of a mother."

His answer lay there. He had only now to hear the terms of her refusal. When they came, he was amazed to find a ray of hope in them, and it as this he peaceably reached for, exactly as Mrs. Greenleaf, in her skill, had meant him to do.

She said she would agree, provided the lover would wait one year, to consider the proposal again. If at the end of that time they still persisted in their desires, Matthew was free to return, and the marriage could take place. In the meantime, though all announcements would be of course withheld, they might if they liked consider themselves betrothed.

In the silence that followed, Matthew saw that Laura had been made to agree to this in advance, Colonel Greenleaf nodded safely—he considered it an endurable compromise.

Matthew bowed to it.

As a reward, he was permitted to see her alone a few times before he had to leave on his long journey westward.

They vowed that nothing would make any difference to their love. They were destined to be together. Delay would only seal their devotion.

New Hampshire permits a boy of 14 and a girl of 13 to marry if parental consent is given.

Optimists Back Obscenity Curbs

Greenville Optimists Monday unanimously endorsed a local campaign aimed at curbing use of U. S. mails as a means of promoting and selling obscene literature.

Optimist action marked at least the third local group to go on record in opposition to the so-called "Smut Racket."

Greenville Parent - Teacher Associations and the Greenville Civitan Club had previously strongly urged local citizens to cooperate in a campaign to restrain the obscene publications going through the mails, according to Optimist Pres. Walter Whitehurst.

The local Optimist Club joined with its parent organization, Optimist International, in protesting the "Smut Racket." A recent issue of the organization's official magazine included an article by U. S. Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield.

Greenville Optimists called special attention in their endorsement to four preventive steps urged by Summerfield:

"1. To ask recipients of obscene mail to turn over to local postmasters the contents and envelopes in which objectionable material was received.

"2. To help mobilize community support behind vigorous enforcement of local ordinance and state laws.

"3. To urge all citizens to support local and state, as well as federal, legislation in this field.

"4. To emphasize the need to be vigilant where court actions are taken — and urge maximum enforcement especially by wavering jurists, of federal law covering the mailing of obscene materials."

Big Space Probe Series Set In '62

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - U.S. space scientists plan an all-out assault on the moon, Mars and Venus starting in 1962 with a series of spacecraft bearing the names Ranger, Surveyor, Prospector, Mariner and Voyager.

Ranger will be a lunar impacter launched by an Atlas-Agena B. Surveyor will be a lunar softlander launched by a Centaur rocket. Prospector will be launched by a Saturn to land a mobile laboratory on the moon with a traveling radius of 50 miles.

Mariner will include several planetary probes launched by Atlas-Agena B. to the vicinity of Mars and Venus. Voyager will be a series of later planetary probes, launched by Saturn rockets to orbit Mars and Venus and probably to eject instrumented capsules for landing on these planets.

Move To Abolish Death Penalty Faces Hard Row

By AURORA DOLLEY
Reflector Bureau
Ass'n Afternoon Dailies

RALEIGH, March 2—A bill to abolish capital punishment except in the case of second offenders may have a difficult time in the House.

The measure, which would sentence those convicted of first degree murder to life imprisonment, was introduced by Rep. W. C. Harris Jr. of Wake.

Neither would the death penalty be the fate of those convicted of rape or first degree burglary, according to the Harris Bill.

Co-sponsor of the proposal is Rep. H.P. Taylor Jr. of Anson.

Rep. Harris, Raleigh attorney serving his third term in the legislature, spoke only briefly as the bill was presented, basing his arguments against capital punishment on the basis of compassion.

Predicting that the bill is going to pass, Rep. Harris said in an interview that he has literally thousands of arguments in favor of abolishing the death penalty in North Carolina, and that later he will "present all of them".

Rep. James B. "ogler of Mecklenburg, veteran legislator, says that he would not be in favor of the Harris measure unless it specifically contained a provision denying the right of parole to a person sentenced for life.

According to Rep. W. Brantley Womble of Wake, "Punishment must be on the books so we can use it if we have to". The Cary attorney referred to the recent murders in Goldsboro and New York City, saying that he considers the abolishment of capital punishment unwise.

"Under present North Carolina law, the jury can now recommend mercy and the judge can then invoke a life sentence rather than the death penalty," Rep. Womble says.

Rep. Roland C. Braswell of Wayne, Goldsboro attorney, says that he frankly has not yet decided how he will vote in regard to the bill.

"I don't know whether capital punishment is best or not," Rep. Braswell states. "The tendency today is doing away with it, but just as your heart begins to soften, you hear of some brutal crime, and then you don't know whether the death penalty should be done away with or not."

RED INK DOWN

FORT MADISON, Iowa (AP)—Who says business is bad?

The Shaeffer Pen Co. reports consumer demand for red ink declined 8 per cent in 1960.

Castro Sounding Out Venezuela

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro reportedly was sounding out Venezuela today to help solve Cuban-United States differences as a fifth nation in the Americas severed relations with his revolutionary government.

The Venezuelan foreign ministry said in Caracas Wednesday it had received a note from Havana asking for efforts toward a solution. Sources said the note amounted to a Cuban request for conciliation — but outside the Organization of American States.

At the same time El Salvador broke off relations with Cuba in protest against a vigorous campaign in Havana against the junta that rules the little Central American country.

The Salvadorean ambassador to Cuba was recalled in mid-January and never returned here. The Cuban ambassador to El Salvador has now been asked to leave there as soon as he can.

The United States, Guatemala, Peru and the Dominican Republic previously cut official relations with Cuba. Four other nations—Haiti, Nicaragua, Paraguay and Colombia—have pulled their ambassadors out of Cuba.

In seeking Venezuela as a conciliator for its rift with the United States, Cuba chose a nation that believes in working with OAS—not outside the organization.

President Romulo Betancourt helped draw up the Bogota charter that regulates inter-American relations. He feels the charter should be strengthened even further. One Betancourt goal is to exclude any Latin-American government that takes power without free elections.

Cuban leaders in education and labor took advantage of a protest meeting over a school bombing to whip up a frenzied anticlerical demonstration Wednesday night in Havana. Nine students were injured in the bombing, blamed on counterrevolutionaries.

Education Minister Armando Hart and others assailed Roman Catholic priests. The crowd, mostly schoolchildren, shouted for execution of priests.

Hart charged Catholic schools are centers of counterrevolution.

Missiles Okay In Test Flights

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Polaris and Pershing, a pair of solid - fuel missiles assigned key roles in U. S. defense plans, have registered significant test flight successes.

The Army sent the Pershing winging 160 miles over the Atlantic early today in the first test of the missile's complete jam-proof inertial guidance system.

Several hours earlier, the Navy fired a "second generation" Polaris for the first time from a ship at sea. The stubby missile performed like clockwork in speeding 1,600 miles down the Atlantic range.

Both missiles are powered by solid propellant, a rubber - like mass which can be stored indefinitely. This gives them a high degree of mobility, which large liquid-fuel rockets like Atlas and Titan lack because of complex pumping systems and hard to handle propellant.

The Polaris was launched from the USS Observation Island, a 563-foot floating missile laboratory, about 10 miles offshore. The success was the fourth in five firings of the advanced Polaris, which is designed to hit targets deeper inland. It eventually will have a range of 1,725 miles, compared with the 1,380-mile reach of missiles now aboard submarines.

First undersea launchings of the improved Polaris are scheduled next month after the submarine Theodore Roosevelt arrives home.

GIVEN ALTERNATIVE

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Dupree Holloway, 29, was given a grim alternative by Dist. Court Judge Christ T. Seraphim Wednesday: Either go to jail, or pay back the $257 he has drawn from the County Welfare Department to help him make the $98 monthly payments on his Cadillac.

Dr. Fetsch At Ass'n Meeting

Dr. U. Wolfgang Fetsch, vice president of the N. C. Music Teachers Association and faculty member of East Carolina College, attended the Music Teachers National Association biennial convention in Philadelphia last week.

The association brings together college, public school and private teachers in every branch of music. This year, the American String Teachers Association held its convention simultaneously with the M.T.N.A. String Committee.

Over 2,000 musicians attended the four-day meeting, which ended Wednesday.

ped into local police matters, as, for instance, the Lindbergh kidnapping law.

The point I wish to make is that whereas many may feel, as I do, that states' rights is a sound doctrine, our economy and the pressure of war are undoing this system.

Not Retiring

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon Wednesday night assured well wishers that although he has no plans to run for public office he is not retiring from politics.

"I intend to get my affairs in order," he told a welcome-home banquet of about 2,000 persons. He said he has three immediate goals: return to private life, earn a living and "save enough to send my two girls to college."

He added: "While I have no plans to run for public office, I assure you I am not retiring from public life."

The unsuccessful Republican presidential candidate said he feels it's his duty to speak out on public issues and added: "To the extent my making a living will permit, I will devote just as much time as I can to participating in the great battles of our time" and "to make sure the opposition (the Kennedy administration) does just the best job it can."

Her Jail Cell Also A Nursery

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP)—A young mother has turned a Clovis jail cell into a nursery.

Betty Raines, 26, refused to pay a fine of $10, plus $5 court costs, for driving with an expired license and was jailed Tuesday. She is nursing her 10-months-old son, Terry.

There have been numerous offers to pay the fine but Mrs. Raines has rejected them all.

"I want my husband to get me out," she said.

"I don't expect any help and I don't want any in any shape or form."

Mrs. Raines claims the $5 court cost fee is unfair.

The lower bunk in her 5x10-foot cell has been turned into a crib. The mattress is propped along the outside edge so the baby can't roll off.

Mrs. Raines sleeps on the top bunk. Shelves contain baby powder, piles of diapers, lotions and salves and safety pins.

Dennis Raines, an auto mechanic, said he doesn't have the money to get his wife out of jail, but he indicated to newsmen that he might be able to pay the fine today.

The couple's son, Guy, 5, has been accompanying his father to work and then to the jail to visit his mother.

The fine is being served out at the rate of $1 a day.

UNFOUNDED RUMOR

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — A U. N. spokesman said Wednesday a report predicting India's Rajeshwar Dayal will be replaced as U. N. chief in the Congo was "speculation without any foundation in fact." He added "Dayal will stay as long as he is needed."

Lumberton Killing Traced To Youth

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — A teen - aged Negro has confessed raping and strangling an attractive, wealthy white widow, police report.

He also admitted making indecent and threatening telephone calls to another Lumberton white divorcee later, leading to his arrest, questioning, and confession of the rape-strangulation of Mrs. Rachel Biggs Henderson, 48. Her night-gown-clad body was found sprawled across a partially - collapsed bed Jan. 18 in the fashionable brick home where she had lived alone since the death of her husband in 1959.

Police said that Collen McKinnon, 17, one of 14 children of a sawmill worker, admitted Wednesday that he had lurked about the Henderson home the night of Jan. 17 until he had made sure she was alone, then entered.

Mrs. Henderson had called a woman friend the day of the slaying and said a man had telephoned her for a date, but would not identify himself, so she turned him down.

Police said there was no forcible entry into the home and originally had discounted robbery as a motive.

The story and a half home is on a double lot surrounded by long-leaf pines, and none of the neighbors heard anything out of the ordinary the night of the slaying.

The dark-haired widow was a major stockholder in the Biggs Corp., a large mercantile and farm supply house here founded by her late father, K. M. Biggs.

McKinnon was arrested Tuesday in connection with telephone calls to Mrs. Evelyn Boyer McIntyre, who lives in the area of the Henderson home. She reported receiving many calls early in February, all indecent and many threatening. Policemen A. L. Stubbs and Ertle Collins monitored two of the calls and traced them to McKinnon.

He was taken to Raleigh Wednesday by Lumberton police and an agent of the State Bureau of Investigation. Police Chief W. M. Harris of Lumberton said that under questioning in Raleigh, McKinnon admitted making 12 indecent calls to Mrs. McIntyre on Feb. 23, and raping and slaying Mrs. Henderson.

AS EXPECTED

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP)—Criticism of Queen Elizabeth's scheduled visit to Pope John XXIII in May has come, as expected, from the Free Church of Scotland. The strict Protestant sect adopted a resolution of protest against the visit at a meeting of its general assembly in Edinburgh Wednesday night.

Kennedy Obviously Dissatisfied With Preparedness

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy obviously is dissatisfied with this nation's preparedness to fight brush fire wars. Why?

First, a look at recent reductions in U. S. military manpower:

In three years—from 1955 to 1958—the Eisenhower administration lopped four divisions off the Army.

In 1959, the Marine Corps was cut from 200,000 men to 175,000 men.

Despite these cutbacks in troop strength there was no corresponding reduction in U. S. military commitments around the world.

All this boils down to the fact that the United States, supposedly the mightiest nation on earth, has only about 105,000 ground troops immediately available to fight limited wars.

Thus President Kennedy is not exactly happy with the United States' ability to fight the so-called limited wars without drastic revision of all our military commitments.

Kennedy said at his news conference Wednesday that he had under consideration recommendations from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara for an increase in conventional war forces.

Just what these recommendations entail is one of the Pentagon's closely guarded secrets.

The truth of the situation is that the United States now has only seven divisions available to fight in a limited war.

A limited war, by the way, is defined as a war in which the national existence of the United States is not at stake.

On paper, the Army has 14 divisions, the Marine Corps 3 divisions.

Five of the Army divisions are tied down in Germany as the first line of defense against any aggression by Communist bloc nations in Europe.

There are two under-strength divisions in Korea, each containing only 75 per cent American soldiers.

Not many Americans realize that Koreans supply an additional 25 per cent of the troops in these divisions and these Koreans could not leave that country without approval of their own government.

For all practical purposes, the two partially American divisions in Korea are immobile.

That leaves seven Army divisions to be accounted for. There are three highly trained ready-to-go divisions in the United States known as the Strategic Army Corps. There is a fourth ready division in Hawaii.

So what about the Marine Corps: The Marines have ready for combat one division of 17,700 men, another of 16,600 men and a third of 12,500 men plus a brigade of 5,000 men.

The crux of the administration's worry, according to Pentagon sources, is that once these seven Army and Marine divisions—an Army division is 13,500 men—are committed, the United States has practically no backup forces.

To support a large scale limited war, in brief, would require a helter-skelter rearrangement of our overseas commitments or a chaotic buildup in which reservists long out of uniform would be dragged back to active duty as in the Korean War.

There is a third alternative. That would be a to substitute nuclear weapons for manpower and this is something the administration apparently is reluctant even to consider.

All the cutbacks in armed force strength were part of what the Eisenhower administration called the "new look" in military affairs in which the greater reliance was placed on atomic weapons and the role of ground troops was subordinated. A clearer picture of what has happened is available if you consider what has happendd since 1953 at the end of the Korean War.

At that time the Army had 1,533,000 men in uniform and 20 divisions. In 1955 the Army was down to 1,109,000 men, reorganized into 20 smaller divisions. In 1958 the Army had been cut to 899,000 and supposedly contained 15 divisions. Actually the 9th Division at Ft. Carson, Colo., while listed as an active division was really nonexistent. It had zero strength on Army rolls.

This myth was perpetuated until 1959 when the Army was down to 862,000 men and 14 divisions. The 9th Division finally was dropped.

At the end of the Korean War the Marine Corps had an active duty strength of 249,200 men. The Marines were cut to 200,000 by 1957 and in 1959 were reduced to their present strength of 175,000.

Army sources, while reluctant to discuss any of the present administration's plans, have long insisted that if the United States had to fight a small war this nation would be severely embarrassed. Heretofore, however, nobody apparently took their arguments too seriously.

The result now is the Kennedy reappraisal.

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The blues after birth, dangerous cockroaches and new clues to hard-bitten teeth are subjects with a focus on health.

Blues of the Birth

One of 10 new mothers gets the blues just about the fifth day after her child is delivered, a scientist says. The reason is probably an anticlimax in the adventure of motherhood.

Throughout her pregnancy she gets lots of attention from her husband, friends, relatives and her doctor, explains Dr. George W. Morley of the University of Michigan.

This attention reaches its peak about two or three days after delivery. Then suddenly it decreases. Most patients can give no reason for the blues, admit that it's silly, but the blues are still there. Most frequent treatment is to have a good cry and talk it out.

Tougher Teeth

A new clue to ways to make teeth less suceptible to decay comes from University of Alabama scientists—and more than 300 human teeth.

The researchers softened the tooth enamel with a known softtening agent—and then rehardened the enamel by soaking the teeth in a solution of calcium salts. The teeth hardened faster when a small amount of fluoride was added to the soak.

The findings suggest how fluoride acts on teeth when added to drinking water or is directly applied to the teeth.

Beware the Cockroach

The lowly cockroach may be highly dangerous—thanks to its hospitality for a whole family of human ills.

Cockroaches have been found to carry four strains of polio virus, some 40 kinds of bacteria that infect man and the eggs of some worms that can affect both man and animals.

The cockroach also carries along some 220 other viruses, fungi, bacteria and worms which are harmless to man, says a report published by the Smithsonian Institution.

Good Old Days

Take a look into medicine in the past with Dr. Austin Smith, president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association:

The Romans treated alcoholics by putting eels in their drinking cups.

Asthma treatments included swallowing a ball of rolled up spider webs and breathing into the mouth of a live fish.

For colds, inhale the breath of a duck—or sneeze at your reflection in the mirror—to pass on the cold to the reflection.

For coughs, sleep with a cockroach in a jar under your bed, or nail a frog to the door.

Car Hits Actor John Payne

NEW YORK (AP)—Actor John Payne was struck by a car Wednesday night as he crossed Madison avenue between 61st and 62nd streets.

Payne was taken to Roosevelt Hospital for treatment of a fractured left leg, multiple cuts, and possible internal injuries. His condition was listed as fair.

The actor was struck by a car driven by Bernard Selz, 21. Payne was hurled into the air by the impact and thrown on the hood of the auto.

Selz, a research analyst for a Wall Street firm, said he didn't see Payne until it was too late. The driver was released after questioning.

Payne starred for more than two years on TV in "Restless Gun" until quitting last fall. An actor for more than 25 years, he appeared in at least 50 Hollywood movies before he stepped into his TV role.

Lost $10,000 Is Quickly Returned

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—T. Robert Thompson, an insurance man, lost $10,000 in cash on a street Tuesday, but thanks to the honesty of a housewife, he got it back a short time later. Genevieve Knedler, 30, mother of five children, found the money in a bank sack while on her way home from a grocery. The owner was located through a bank book inside the sack.

Thompson had dropped the bag on his way to a bank. He gave Mrs. Knedler a $50 reward.

Kinston, Washington Kick Up Heels

By LEONARD LAO
Reflector Sports Writer

WASHINGTON AND KINSTON advanced to the semi-finals of the 1961 Northeastern Conference tournament last night, defeating their first round oponents rather handily.

In the 7:00 p.m. opener, Washington's Pam Pack eliminated an aggressive Elizabeth City quint by a 71-56 margin, while the top-seeded Red Devils trounced New Bern by a 92-43 score.

The Pam Pack will play the winner of the Roanoke Rapids-Jacksonville contest which is on tap tonight at 7:00. Kinston will be matched with the winner of the Greenville-Tarboro game.

Coach Bo Farley's Phantoms, holders of a 7-7 regular season record, will lock horns with the Tarboro Tigers tonight at 9:00 p.m.

The semi-finals are scheduled for Friday night, and the final game, which determines the champion, will be on tap Saturday night at 9:00 p.m.

* * *

GRAY WINFIELD and Sam Grimes teamed up for a total of 33 points to lead Washington to a first round victory over Elizabeth City, despite a 22-point output by the Yellow Jackets' Sam Smith. Winfield accounted for 17 points, while Grimes was right behind him with 16 as the Pam Pack grabbed the lead with the first field goal and never trailed during the entire contest.

Both clubs had trouble finding the range in the early moments of the game. Washington finally hit the first bucket with 2:35 gone on a field goal by Bill Francis, who finished the game with 10 points. It was not until there was 3:45 showing on the clock that the Yellow Jackets finally found the range, and by that time they trailed 11-1.

The Pam Pack held a 21-10 lead at the end of the first stanza, and Smith had six of Elizabeth City's points on three 25-foot jump shots.

In the second period, Coach Howard Chapin's charges outscored the Yellow Jackets, 16-8, and held a commanding 37-18 lead. Winfield accounted for 11 of his 17 points in the first 16 minutes, sitting out most of the second half along with other Pam Pack starters, as Chapin substituted freely before intermission.

In the second half, L. E. Sawyer, a 5'11" guard, teamed up with teammate Smith to keep the Yellow Jackets in the contest. Sawyer tallied 12 in the last two periods and finished the game with 17 points.

Coach Bob Brooks inserted a full court press in the closing minutes of the contest, which saw the Jackets cut the lead to 11 points, but Chapin stuck his starters back into the game to put out the EC rally.

Washington finished the hot shooting contest with an amazing 58.3% field goal accuracy, hitting on 28 of 48 attempts from the floor. From the foul line the Pam Pack converted 15 of 26 for 57.7%.

The Yellow Jackets hit on 19 of 50 shots from the floor for an accuracy of 38%, but made 18 of 25 charity tosses for 72%.

IN THE 9:00 P.M. FINALE undefeated Kinston made it victory number 21 in trampling last place New Bern.

Four of the starting five for the Red Devils scored in the double figures as Coach Paul Jones' cagers neared the century mark, scoring 92 points while holding the Bears to only 43.

Pete Watkins, working beautifully under the backboards as well as from 25 feet out, led the Red Devils attack with 22 points, but he was closely followed by teammate Everett Cameron with 20.

Tommy Mattocks also hit 16 points for the winners and carried much of the rebounding load. Jerry Rice popped in 13 points for Kinston, all in the first eight minutes.

The hapless Bears found themselves faced with a 10-point deficit after only 2:35 had elapsed in the opening period, their opponents jumping off to an 11-1 lead behind the shooting of Rice and Mattocks.

By the end of the first quarter, the Red Devils led by a 25-10 margin.

In the second period, the Bears tallied their highest point total for any other stanza, 15 points, but the red hot Kinston outfit was pouring 21 points through the hoops and were ahead, 46-25 at intermission.

The third period saw Watkins, Mattocks and Cameron take over the Red Devil scoring by themselves, combining their shooting talents for 25 points. Watkins tallied 11, Cameron eight, and Mattocks six in the torrid third quarter.

Coach Jones substituted his second unit during the majority of the time in the last stanza, but they were still potent enough to outscore the losers, 21 to 9. Reserve forward, Ed Snead, tallied eight points in the fourth period.

Little Butch Ricks, a 5'9" guard led New Bern in the scoring department, pumping in 14 points, 10 of them coming in the first half.

The Red Devils hit on 37 of 73 field goal attempts for a 51% shooting accuracy. From the charity line, Kinston made 18 of 30 for 60%.

New Bern made 15 of 40 attempts from the floor for an accuracy of 38%, while converting 13 of 32 foul tosses for 40.6%.

Hard Night For Losers

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

MEMORIAL GYMNASIUM— A couple of Bobs had a lot in common last night. It wasn't by choice but by fate.

Coaches Bob Lewis of New Bern and Bob Brooks, of Elizabeth City, who resemble not only in first name but also in size, sat haplessly and almost unemotionally by last night, watching their teams bow out of contention in the Northeastern Conference tournament's opening round.

New Bern fell to the powerful Red Devils of Kinston, 92-43, in the nightcap. Washington stormed past Elizabeth City, 71-56, in the opener.

* * *

A LIGHT RAIN fell throughout the opening evening of 3-A basketball and Bob Lewis, the young New Bern coach in his second season at the Bear helm, would have preferred to be left standing in the rain on this particular night.

Instead, he watched his club crumble from the start, and thus become eliminated from the tournament. The outcome wasn't surprising but the rate at which Kinston rained balls through the nets was.

"No doubt, they're plenty good," Lewis commented with a big lump in his throat. And what else could he say. The scoreboard told the story in its entirety.

Pre-game plans of a stall never materialized for the Bruins, according to Lewis. They lost the opening tap and had the ball stolen three times in the first couple of minutes.

Lewis did like to talk about the future. "They (Kinston) lose a lot of boys and we lose only one. We'll get 'em next year."

Kinston's Paul Jones, accustomed to being in the winner's circle, termed it a "team effort."

"We have been coming on strong in past weeks and just hope we can keep it going. I thought the boys played real well.

"We didn't use Jerry Rice too much after the first quarter. He bruised his elbow in practice Tuesday and hurt it again early in the game. It seems that something has been wrong with him most of the season," Jones pointed out.

Actually, there wasn't much Jones could say. His club looked superb in rolling to its 21st victory. Viewers, both anti-Kinston and average 'Joe', weren't ready to bet their family jewels on a possible upset of the Red Devils.

* * *

COACH BOB BROOKS tried to half-way apologize for his club's showing. "I'm sorry we had to look so bad . . . . . we just made too many mistakes and gave the ball away," he recalled.

The fact that Washington hit well over 50 per cent of its shots from the floor had some effect on the game, he agreed.

Coach Howard Chapin, who is in his first season at Washington, figured his club played one of its best games this year. "We had a tremendous first half," he noted.

"We tried to work out our defense to stop their (Sam) Smith but he's really tough. We blocked a couple of his shots but he can really hit from the outside."

The Pam Pack didn't stick around too long after the first game. They headed home to get the necessary rest for Friday's semi-finals.

Duke Is Choice To Win AC Title

By KEN ALYTA

RALEIGH (AP)—Duke, ninth - ranking college basketball team in the nation, sets about the hazardous task tonight of earning the No. 1 designation in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Blue Devils, winners of 20 out of 25 games and 10-4 in regular season conference play, meet Virginia in the final game of a tripleheader which opens the conference championship tournament.

Afternoon games paired Maryland and Clemson and North Carolina State and South Carolina

Wake Forest, top-seeded on an 11-3 conference record, received a first-round bye because withdrawal of North Carolina from the meet left a field of seven teams. The nationally fifth - ranked Tar Heels are skipping the tournament because of a year's NCAA probation they received for irregular recruiting practices.

The winner here goes on to NCAA Eastern playoffs, meeting St. John's of New York March 14 in Madison Square Garden for a place in the four-team Eastern regionals later that week at Charlotte.

Wake Forest, in view of its first-round bye and record against its second-round foes, appears a good bet for the finals. The Deacons, whose 6 foot 8 Len Chappel leads ACC scorers with a 25.7 average, meet the Maryland-Clemson winner in the opener of Thursday night's semifinals program.

Wake Forest has swept four games from Clemson and Maryland this season by margins ranging from nine to 22 points.

Clemson, yet to win a tournament game after seven years of first-round losses, has split two regular season games with Maryland in the last three weeks. The teams went into overtime last Saturday before Maryland won on its home court.

North Carolina State, playing the tournament on its home court, has taken two from South Carolina by big scores. Duke swept a couple from Virginia, although one went into overtime.

Both Duke and Wake Forest have several players back from the squads that battled into the finals last year when Duke scored a 63-59 victory. But this time Duke has an important addition in sophomore Art Heyman, No. 2 pointmaker in the league with a 24.9 average.

Finals Set For Tourney Tonight

Grifton dropped The Jewel Box, 65-60, and Cozart's upset Carolina Dairy, 98-60, in the first round of the Industrial League tournament last night.

Cozart's, scoring 55 points in the first half, won rather handily over top seeded Carolina Dairy.

Andrews poured in 20 points in pacing the victory. Worthington fired in 23 for the losers.

Grifton led by seven points in the first half to dump The Jewel Box in the first game last night.

Johnson was high man for the winners with 17 points. Parker had 15 to pace the losers.

Grifton	The Jewel Box
Grimes	Holt 3
Taylor 14	Howard 6

Fullmer Plans To Trade Blows

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) —Sugar Ray Robinson couldn't knock out Gene Fullmer with his best punch, Fullmer's manager declared today.

"It may be a little dangerous to say that," Marv Jenson admitted, "but Gene has lost respect for Robinson's punches."

Jenson might have been thinking of a previous occasion, on which such a loss of respect resulted in a loss of consciousness for the bullish champion from Utah.

"Yeah, that's what happened when Ray knocked Gene out in Chicago in 1957," Jenson said. "But Gene feels that was a lucky punch, because he was moving in fast and supplied a lot of force himself."

Whether Jenson's theory stands up depends simply on whether Fullmer stays standing up Saturday night when he defends his NBA middleweight title against the 40-year-old challenger at Las Vegas Convention Center.

When Robinson and Fullmer fought to a 15-round draw in Los Angeles last December, Jenson said, Robinson nailed Gene with some magnificent punches in the fourth and eleventh rounds. "I think Robinson shot everything he had," Jenson said, "and Gene wasn't even dazed.

"This time he really wants to get in there and trade punches."

ECC Meets Newberry In NAIA District Action

East Carolina and Appalachian, a couple of teams that tied for second place in the North State Conference, have been given a new lease on their 1961 basketball life.

The two clubs, both upset in the recent conference tournament, vaulted into the NAIA district playoffs this week, thanks to High Point.

High Point, the team that turned giant killer in the final week of the season and maintained its impetus long enough to win the North State tournament, has declined an invitation to play in the district tournament which will decide who represents the Carolinas in Kansas City and the national tournament.

Roy Bartlett, one of the three Panther freshman stars, was the reason for High Point's withdrawal. The Indiana native passed only 11 hours the first semester. Under North State rules, he was eligible but NAIA requirements are 12 hours.

East Carolina is matched against Newberry College in Newberry tomorrow night while Appalachian plays at Lenoir Rhyne. The two winners meet for the right to take the Kansas City journey.

On the basis of their overall season record, Newberry and Lenoir Rhyne were named to play in the district tournament several weeks back. ECC and Appalachian received their bid early this week.

Lenoir Rhyne captured a couple of games from Appalachian during regular season. For East Carolina, it will be their first meeting with Newberry.

Lucas Named Top College Cager

By TED MEIER
AP Basketball Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—Jerry Lucas, of Ohio State's top-ranked and unbeaten Buckeyes, is college basketball's player of the year.

His selection, announced today by The Associated Press, provided a double honor within a few hours for the 6-8 whiz, who is expected to lead the Buckeyes to their second straight national collegiate (NCAA) championship later this month.

Earlier, Lucas had been named to the 1961 collegiate All-America by The Associated Press along with Tom Stith of St. Bonaventure, Terry Dischinger of Purdue, Roger Kaiser of Georgia Tech and Chet Walker of Bradley.

Lucas dominated the voting by 395 sportswriters and broadcasters from every section of the United States. He missed by only 13 points of getting the maximum 1,975 points based on five points for each first team vote. He received 392 first team votes for 1,960 points. This, plus two points for a second team vote, gave him a grand total of 1,962 points. Only two voters failed to mention him on their ballot.

Lucas, a junior and the only repeater from the 1960 All-America, was followed in the voting by Stith, a 6-5 senior whose play has made St. Bonaventure a national power. Stith polled 358 first team votes and an over-all total of 1,848.

Dischinger, a 6-7 junior, received 280 first team votes and 1,540 points. Kaiser, a senior and at 6-1 the smallest player on the first team, got 138 first team votes and 894 points. Walker, a 6-6 junior, polled 807 points, including 109 firsts.

Walt Bellamy of Indiana, Tony Jackson of St. Johns (N. Y.), Frank Burgess of Gonzaga, Billy McGill of Utah and Doug Moe of North Carolina were named to the second team. Art Heyman of Duke, York Larese of North Carolina, John Rudometkin of Southern California and John Havlicek and Larry Siegfried of Ohio State comprise the third team.

The 15 players on the first three teams will receive certificates from the Associated Press. In addition, Lucas will receive a special certificate as player of the year.

Surgery For Lee Petty This Week

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Race driver Lee Petty, injured in a spectacular crash Feb. 24 at Daytona Beach International Speedway, is slated for "open reduction" surgery on his shattered left leg late this week.

Petty was reported responding well to treatment at Halifax Hospital Wednesday night, though suffering considerable discomfort. The leg is in traction. Surgery has been delayed because of his slow recovery from the deep shock he suffered in the crash, it was learned.

"Open reduction" surgery involves cutting into the flesh at the point of the fracture, usually to insert pins into the bone, a hospital source said.

Petty, of Randleman, N.C., is a three times NASCAR grand national champion.

St. Bonaventure Loses Second In Row

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two basketball tournaments whose winners figure to be among the leading contenders for the National Collegiate Championship begin today and the results could confuse the issue as much as what's been happening to the St. Bonaventure team lately.

St. Bonaventure, beaten only by Ohio State in its first 22 games this season and ranked second nationally, was the first to accept an at-large invitation to the NCAA tournament. The Bonnies figured they could beat the mighty Buckeyes if given a second chance. So did a lot of impartial observers.

Then they ran into a couple of teams that were eager for bids to the National Invitation Tournament and pinned their hopes on one big victory. It was Niagara 87, St. Bonaventure 77 last Saturday. And Wednesday night an undermanned but fired up Duquesne team, playing without a substitution, conquered the Bonnies 79-74 in overtime. Now it's hard to figure who fits in where in the tournament picture.

The Atlantic Coast and Southern Conference Tournaments—starting today—could blur the scene a bit more. West Virginia, ranked eighth nationally in the Associated Press poll, is favored to win its seventh straight Southern title. Duke, No. 9, is seeded second but a slight favorite in the ACC event.

The windup of the Southwest Conference season tonight should produce another NCAA tournament entry. Texas Tech (10-3) can win the title by beating Texas Otherwise the winner of the Texas A&M-Arkansas game will tie. Each has a 9-4 conference record.

Tournament-bound and tournament-hopeful teams dominated the rest of Wednesday night's major program.

Holy Cross, seeking the same NIT berth that Duquesne wants, rang up its eighth straight victory, downing Boston College 87-74.

Western Kentucky, second in the Ohio Valley Conference, beat NCAA-bound Louisville 96-80.

Elsewhere Notre Dame ended a rare losing season with a 61-54 victory over Creighton; Colgate downed Connecticut for the first time in four years 83-71; Carnegie Tech downed Penn State 70-57; Seton Hall overpowered Scranton 94-82; Lehigh beat Rutgers 70-66 and the Air Force beat Regis 67-64.

Farrell Likes It With Phils

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—Relief ace Farrell likes it with the last place Philadelphia Phillies. He's not interested in going to the pennant contending Milwaukee Braves.

Farrell, 26, has been the object of trade talk since shortly after Gene Mauch succeeded Eddie Sawyer as manager of the Phillies last spring. There were rumors that the two weren't getting along, and there were reports that the Braves were deeply interested in acquiring his services.

Milwaukee Manager Charlie Dressen made it official last week when he admitted the Braves had offered unnamed players for Farrell.

Farrell hopes all this trade smoke doesn't fan into a fire.

"Sure it's nice to be with a pennant contender," he said today, "but I'd like to stay where I am. I'm sort of attached to this club. I like the city. I like my associations and I've come to understand my manager.

"It's no secret that Gene and I didn't hit it off well for a time last year. But I feel differently now. I've had time to think things over. I'm convinced whatever he did was for my good. I like the way he does things. He's aggressive and he likes his players to be the same way."

McIntire Favored In Second Match

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—Barbara McIntire is heavily favored in her second round match in the Florida East Coast Women's Amateur Golf Tournament today.

Miss McIntire, former National Amateur women's champion and current British Women's champion from Lake Park, Fla., won her opening match Wednesday over Mrs. Walter Thomas of Cincinnati, 8 and 7.

In the qualifying round Tuesday, Miss McIntire won medal honors with 73, two over men's par for the 6,545-yard Ponce De Leon course. Her second-round foe, Mrs. Charles Sayles of Hackensack, N. J., defeated Mrs. Shephard Merrill of Daytona Beach 3 and 1 in the first round.

Judy Bell of Wichita, Kan., the defending champion, faced Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore in the second round.

In first round matches, Miss Bell defeated Mrs. Walter McDougall of Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., 6 and 5; and Mrs. Glick defeated Mrs. Maureen Garrett of Bourneouth, England, 5 and 3.

Palmer Is 'Greatest'

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — South Africa's Gary Player, who qualifies as a shrewd appraiser of golf talent, labels Arnold Palmer "the greatest golfer in the world" and the big Pennsylvanian was out to substantiate this judgment today in the opening round of the $30,000 Greater New Orleans Invitational.

There was little discord of opinion that the 31-year-old Palmer, winner of three tournaments on the budding winter tour, was the man to beat. His seven-stroke victory in the Baton Rouge Open that ended Sunday was a pretty convincing factor.

Despite Player's glowing description and Palmer's recent successes, he won't suffer from the lack of competition.

Player, former British Open champion and currently the leading money winner on the tour with earnings of better than $16,000 will be among the leading contenders.

Eastern Division Of All State Band Clinic Here March 3-4

The Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic will bring to the campus of East Carolina College Friday and Saturday a group of talented instrumentalists from high schools in the area, Herbert L. Carter, director of bands at the college and chairman of arrangements for the event, has announced.

The event, first scheduled for February 3 and 4, was canceled because ice and snow in the eastern counties made road conditions dangerous.

Two bands will be organized here during the two-day meeting. A Symphonic Band of young musicians selected earlier by a committee conducting individual auditions in Eastern North Carolina counties will play under the direction of Earl L. Beach, head of the East Carolina music department.

A Concert Band, with members representing schools throughout the area, will be conducted by W. C. Duvall, director of music education in Norfolk County schools in Virginia.

Students attending the clinic will also participate in a series of sectional rehearsals for various of the band instruments.

A concert by the two clinic bands will climax the two - day program of study and rehearsal. The program is scheduled for Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Wright Auditorium. The public is invited to attend.

Members of the Greenville High School Band are assisting the college music department in arranging the entertainment of high school musicians during their participation in the clinic.

During the clinic here, auditions will be held to choose members from the Eastern North Carolina counties who will play with the All-State High School Band at a regional convention of the Music Educators National Conference in April in Asheville.

RETURN TO PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — For the first time in more than 100 years, the Methodist church will hold its quadrennial General Conference, its chief governing meeting, in Pittsburgh in 1964. The last such session here was in 1948.

Wandering Dudleys Left Trail Of 5 Dead

Editor's Note — More than 2½ years ago eight members of the Dudley family set out from upstate New York to make a living "on the road." Today, the parents are in jail and five of their children are dead. This account by Ed Young traces the trail of tragedy from coast to coast.

By ED YOUNG

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—In the summer of 1958 Kenneth Dudley, his wife, Irene, and six of their children left Syracuse, N.Y. in a battered sedan. They headed south to join a carnival.

Dudley—a sometime mechanic, junk dealer and odd-jobs worker—hoped to repair midway rides. His wife, when she could get the job, would sell tickets.

But the gypsy journey became for the Dudley youngsters a nightmare of hunger, horror and death.

Five of them died before the family's continent-spanning meanderings ended Feb. 10 with the parents' arrest for neglect leading to the death of the fifth child, Carol Ann, 7.

Wednesday the charge became more serious. Hanover County, Va., where police say Carol Ann died of malnutrition, exposure and neglect, issued warrants charging Dudley, 47, and his wife, 44, with murder.

Carol Ann's emaciated body, wrapped in an old blue blanket, was discovered Feb. 9 in woods just off U.S. 1 near Lawrenceville in southside Virginia She died, according to police, Feb. 1 or 2 and was kept in the rack seat of the Dudley's dilapidated car until her body was placed in the woods by her mother Feb. 6.

But, said a State Police investigator, E. M. Lloyd, the poverty, hunger and death had started long before Carol Ann's demise—in fact only four months after the Dudleys left Syracuse with the six children.

Statements by Dudley and police investigation, Lloyd said, have showed this is what happened:

Near Baldwin, Fla., on Nov. 17, 1958, death claimed the first of the youngsters, Claude, then 3. His body was wrapped in a blanket and deposited in an abandoned mine pit Nov. 18 or 19 near Lakeland, Fla.

The Dudleys, now carrying their family around in an old panel truck for which they had swapped the sedan, were heading east from California in December 1959, when two other children died.

Norman, 10, died Dec. 23 in Phoenix, Ariz.; Charles, 8, two days later—Christmas Day — in the same city.

The Dudleys kept on driving east and south, and, police said, waited until about Jan. 1 to dispose of the boys' bodies.

Then they wrapped them in blankets, weighted the human cargo, and tossed the dead boys into Lake Pontchartrain in Louisiana.

Then there were three.

Debbie, 3, was next-to-youngest of the children, and the next to go. She died at Gary, W. Va., May 21, 1960. Six days later, Dudley wrapped her body in a blanket and left it in the woods off a highway near Jenkins, Ky.

At Gary, authorities said they would launch an investigation into Debbie's death. The McDowell County prosecuting attorney, Harry S. Camper, said a carnival played in a baseball park at Gary last May.

Then there were two.

With Carol Ann's death last month, only one: Christene, 2½.

Christene was with the Dudleys when they were arrested Feb. 10 at Fuquay Springs, N. C., a day after the discovery of Carol Ann's body. She seems in good health and is now in a foster home in Lawrenceville, under care of the Brunswick County Welfare Department.

Mrs. Dudley, a frightened-looking woman with black hair, is in jail in Lawrenceville. Her husband—wiry, dark-haired, bespectacled—is in the State Penitentiary in Richmond, where he was transferred recently after attempting suicide.

Warrants charging the Dudleys with murder were dispatched to Brunswick County police by the commonwealth's attorney of Hanover County, Leslie Campbell. The couple first, however, must await disposition of the Brunswick County charges of neglect by County Court.

The Dudleys, married in 1934, are known to have had 10 children. Christene and two married daughters who live in Fayetteville, N. Y. are all who, now survive.

One child, Edward, born to the couple in 1937, died when three months old. Another born in 1941, Kenneth Jr., died in New York in 1947. Dudley served a prison term for burying him illegally.

Investigator Lloyd said there apparently was no connection between the Dudley case and the discovery of the body of a young girl last July 31 in a shallow desert grave south of Prescott, Ariz.

This child—"Little Miss Nobody," they called her—was believed between 4½ and 8 years old. Townspeople buried her when no one claimed her body.

A radio announcer, Dave Palladin, who headed a drive for burial funds, said one contribution came in the mail with a note saying: "Unemployed. Wish I could send more." The note was signed: "Dudley."

Lloyd said, however, "There appears to be no connection at the present time" between the Dudley case and "Little Miss Nobody."

He said the Dudleys never stayed in one place long in their wanderings from one job to another "from Maine to Florida and from Florida to California and back."

Estate Are Growing Ventures Into Real

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Real estate ventures have been taking an increasing share of the investor's money. The various ways open for such deals are growing steadily — to the confusion of some would-be profit seekers.

Almost $400 million in equities were offered last year by 85 corporations in the field. Some are listed on stock exchanges. Shares of others are sold over the counter by dealers.

An even bigger field is syndication. About 100,000 individuals are estimated by the National Association of Real Estate Syndicators to have invested last year in property valued at $3 billion. This partnership form of real estate operations got going strong in the late 1940s and early 1950s. Hundreds of real estate syndications are now started each year.

More traditional are the thousands of companies selling mortgages and the still more thousands of real estate salesmen in the field of direct ownership.

Just over the horizon is the real estate investment trust, given a go-ahead as a tax-favored investment by Congress last year and expecting in the next few weeks the final rules of operation from the Treasury and the Securities & Exchange Commission.

Interest in real estate ventures grows during quick-changing ups and downs in the economy. Morris Karp, president of Realty Equities Corp., which went public in 1960, says that is because real estate values tend to increase at a greater rate than dollar purchasing power during inflation, but shrink less in price during recessions.

Also many forms of real estate investment now offer a tax shelter through depreciation allowances, especially if helped by frequent sales turnover.

Real estate corporations traditionally have specialized. Among the many areas are: construction; syndication; mortgage banking and finance; property management; brokerage; land development.

The kind of returns often are quite different. John E. Marqusee, vice chairman of United Improvement & Investing Corp., notes that property management and leasebacks provide only current earnings, while land development generally offers only capital growth potential.

More recent is the trend toward big corporations that combine several types of investment. Marqusee says these often can provide capital growth, stability and a good rate of income through their diversification.

Such companies, Karp adds, buy property or land for development, resell or keep it in an investment portfolio, construct homes, apartments, shopping centers. Sometimes the corporation will syndicate a high-yielding property on a long-term lease at a set rental of 10 per cent or so.

The trend also is toward wide-ranging investments, often spanning the continent. Some, like Collins Tuttle & Co., regularly send a representative around the country looking for attractive real estate investment opportunities. It reports that recently their man returned from such a trip with a total of 104 bonafide offers totaling around $375 million.

POOR COLLECTIONS

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba's government-operated "People's Stores" have been doing fine business but haven't done so well on collecting debts, an official report said Wednesday. The collection failure was blamed on "faulty accounting methods."

Principal-Teacher Finds Satisfaction In Her Career

THIRD STREET PRINCIPAL . . . Miss Lela Brown Stancill

TEACHING GEOGRAPHY . . . to her class of 27 sixth-graders.

CHECK-WRITING . . . part of administrative duties.

COUNCILING WITH CHILDREN . . . a large part of her job.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Miss Lela Brown Stancill, a native born Pitt Countian and principal-teacher at Greenville's Third Street School since 1952, receives much pleasure and satisfaction from teaching children and having a part in their development.

Miss Stancill, whose home is about three miles west of Greenville on N.C. 43, attended school in Greenville and graduated from East Carolina.

Her teaching career started at Grimesland where she taught for several years before transferring to Ayden. After several years there, Miss Stancill came to the Greenville City School system and began her career at Third Street School in 1946.

Miss Stancill has taught the fifth and seventh grades at the school and is now teaching the sixth grade as well as being principal.

Her duties as teacher-principal include carrying a full teaching load. . .handling a class of 27 students. . .and carrying on the administrative duties and mechanics of school principal.

Miss Stancill explained that she loves "teaching boys and girls and watching them grow . . .and helping take part in developing character."

Noting "a teaching principal has a full time job", Miss Stancill said the "fine faculty and office help" at the school, "render invaluable service and help make the job enjoyable."

Miss Stancill pointed to the growth of the school by saying when she first came to Third St., there were approximately 225 students and seven teachers there. At the present, 385 students are enrolled in the first through the seventh grades and 13 teachers are employed.

"I think we have made strides forward and are doing a better job in reaching all of the children. . .developing their capabilities with improvements that we have made," she stated.

Miss Stancill noted the school is working under a special primary program, in which the primary grades are "grouped and re-grouped to make possible better instruction." She explained that the children are tested and grouped where they can best perform. She added that the first grade teachers continue with a group for two years

In addition to this special primary program at the school, students in the "fourth, fifth and sixth grades are grouped for arithmatic and reading . . . to provide for better instruction," she continued.

Miss Stancill, who noted she doesn't have much time for hobbies, said she "loves sports, especially basketball," and she said she coached basketball while teaching in Grimesland. She hesitantly added, but with a note of pride, her girls team won several Pitt County tournaments. Also included in her hobbies are reading and cooking.

She is a member of the Mt. Pleasant Christian Church, a member of the N.C.E.A. and N.E.A. and is a member of both the state and national principal's associations. Miss Stancill is also a member of the A.C.E. (American Childhood Education) and the American Association of University Women.

Mary Astor Prefers Her Writing To Movie Work

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"After 40 years, the glamor wears off." This was Mary Astor's frank view of yet another turn in her record movie career.

The actress started in films back in 1920. She has played everything from ingenues to character parts with an Academy Award in between ("The Great Lie"—1941). She has had more comebacks than Sugar Ray Robinson and may be due for another—which she doesn't want.

Miss Astor just finished "Return to Peyton Place." It was her most important role in several years, and several impartial sources predict she'll walk away with the movie.

To query her about this new development, I journeyed up the curving California coast to Trancas Beach, where she lives alone in a cliff-hanging house overlooking the sea. She looked less like an actress than a freckled, middle-aged authoress, which she admittedly is.

"I hate to leave this place," she said, gazing around the long, glassed-in living room and the desk where she writes.

"Even for a meaty role?" she was asked.

"Yes. After 40 years, you get tired of the routine of getting up at 5 in the morning and working a 12-hour day. Nowadays I view acting as a craft. It's a nice thing to have, and I work as much as I want—five or six TV shows a year and a movie every two years."

Miss Astor's discovery of writing came as the result of a personal crackup a few years ago. Beset with personal and career woes, she took the familiar escape of drink and despair. She got back on her feet with the aid of a Catholic priest, who urged her to write her life story as a form of therapy.

She converted the material into an autobiography, "My Story," which created something of a stir when it was published. She then tried her hand at fiction. A novel, "The Incredible Charlie Carew," was published last fall. She's now working on another one, "Baby-Kate."

Her writing labors were interrupted by "Return to Peyton Place."

"I was fifth choice for the part," she said. "That didn't bother me a bit. I didn't think much of the role when I read it the first time; I could see why the other girls turned it down. But I knew it had possibilities, and I think they were realized in the final script."

"The other girls" were Joan Crawford, Bette Davis, Margaret Leighton and Ilka Chase.

She talked more enthusiastically about her new novel, a saga of a small-town California family. Would she ever quit acting for the typewriter?

"Let's face it—you can't make a living from writing," she said. "I act to buy time to write.

"Would I ever stop acting? If I had a million dollars—you bet!"

Student Riot Movie Stirs Hot Civil Liberties Debate

By LEIF ERICKSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rival defenders of American liberties are embroiled in a nationwide conflict of intensifying bitterness, roused by a pieced-together movie of the San Francisco City Hall student riot of last May 13.

The disturbances in the City Hall rotunda climaxed a protest demonstration by college students against a hearing by the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Sixty-four students from San Francisco area campuses were arrested after police turned fire hoses on the demonstrators inside City Hall. Riot charges against 63 were dismissed. The one remaining accused goes to trial March 6.

The movie, "Operation Abolition," was put together from television newsreel clips subpoenaed by the committee.

The 45-minute film has been sold and shown in all the 50 states.

In the film, committee members declare the student demonstrators were "toying with treason" as the dupes of a Communist drive to destroy the committee and wreck the nation's security system.

Committee foes charge the film is a dishonest distortion. They call the movie the principal instrument of "vivid stimulus" spreading a grass roots revival of McCarthyism—without a personal leader like the late Red-hunting Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said last summer that FBI investigation made it evident that students participating in the demonstration were incited and used as dupes by Communist subversives.

In a year-end report Hoover said in December that "the Communists hope to repeat the success which they achieved on the West Coast last May in spearheading mob demonstrations by college students and other young people against a committee of Congress."

The violent disagreement has reached into churches, schools and industry across the nation, and is continuing to spread.

Protests against the film have flared at universities and colleges across the country—at Rutgers, Harvard, Minnesota, Nebraska and on Indiana campuses.

Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike declared the movie's "distorted presentation" was encouraging a "growth of the radical right and its fellow travelers that has reached much greater proportions than in the days of McCarthy himself."

Dr. Fred C. Schwarz, Australian physician who heads the Christian Anti-Communist Crusade with headquarters at Long Beach, Calif., declared: "Almost everyone who views the film with an open mind is most profoundly aroused and disturbed by it. It suggests the vulnerability of the student to the clever Communist agitator."

The National Council of Churches, meeting in Syracuse, N. Y., last week, voiced misgivings about the fairness of the film. It prepared an advisory to churches not to show the film without presenting supplementary facts about it.

The council said the film "does not contribute to a realistic understanding of communism and its dangers to the United States."

The Rev. Dr. Curtis Nims, pastor of San Francisco's First Baptist Church, resigned as director of the Northern California-Nevada Council of Churches in February because the council's board cautioned member churches about showing "Operation Abolition."

Dr. Nims said he was present when the City Hall violence erupted and believes the film "presents a fair representation of the deplorable events."

More than 600 print copies of the film have been sold, at $100 a copy, reported George Johnson, president of Washington Video Productions, Inc. Johnson said Fulton Lewis III, committee staff member and son of radio broadcaster Fulton Lewis Jr., edited the film and prepared the narration.

Because of questions raised in Minnesota, the St. Paul area Chamber of Commerce sent Jack McCauley, public relations director, to San Francisco in January to check.

San Francisco Mayor George Christopher recorded for McCauley a statement saying: "The pictures speak for themselves. They are true. They are authentic. They tell the real story and, of course, they are most unfortunate."

The St. Paul chamber declared subsequently: "We feel the film will continue to be of benefit to our American ideals program."

Fulton Lewis III obtained Mayor Christopher's permission to use the mayor's statement on his father's radio network program

Irving Hall, 24, California graduate student from Pomona, joined six other demonstration leaders in a statement disputing the mayor. It noted that Christopher did not witness the riot, but was speaking in suburban Burlingame at the time.

The Miami, Fla., school board purchased an "Operation Abolition" print for showing to high school classes. The board took under advisement a Florida Civil Liberties Union request that the classes be given "the whole picture" with a report of the criticisms.

The Lockheed Missiles and Space division with headquarters at Sunnyvale, Calif., shows the film to employes.

"But, we always advise the employe audiences that Lockheed neither supports nor opposes the House committee, but uses the film to show the actions of identified Communists in this area," said Ed Long, security training and education officer.

Following an October showing of "Operation Abolition" on the University of Minnesota campus, the student newspaper, Minnesota Daily, said editorially: "Yesterday we saw a spectacle—hardly a spectacular—conceived in fallacy and aimed at the third grade mind."

It urged: "The House of Representatives ought to take a long second look at the HCUA and a longer look at the Constitution."

John P. Greenagel, vice president of the Student Conservative Club which had sponsored the showing, sharply protested the student paper's news and editorial treatment as "applauding open defiance of the law."

A judicial review of the hotly disputed film report on the riot may be written in the trial of Robert J. Meisenbach, the one student against whom charges are still pending.

In dismissing charges against the others, Municipal Judge Albert A. Axelrod said, "I am convinced that they are not engaged in subversive activities, nor in spreading subversive propaganda.

"However, they chose the wrong means to accomplish their purpose and let themselves become victims of those who profit by creating unrest, riots and the type of conduct which is outlawed by the penal code."

Meisenbach, 22, an education senior at the University of California, is charged with beating a police officer on the head with the patrolman's own night stick.

"I believe all the facts surrounding the City Hall incident must be brought out to give him a fair trial," declared Jack Berman, Meisenbach's attorney.

"Neither Meisenbach nor any other student started the riot. The cause of the violence was the turning on of the hoses by the police without warning."

Robert Maurer, assistant district attorney, said the prosecution regards the trial as being strictly limited to the question—did or did not Meisenbach assault patrolman Ralph Schaumleffel?

While the trial could shed light on what happened May 13, the bitter debate over authenticity of the film goes on and on.

Bowling Sport Also Enjoyed By The Blind

By CHARLES L. WEST

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Welker O. Shue placed his left hand on a wire, carefully started his backswing and approach, dipped his right knee and let the ball go.

With a clatter, 10 points fell. The scorer marked up a strike for the blind judge of Municipal Court at nearby Graham.

Shue, 35-year-old Burlington native who was blinded by shrapnel in a World War II naval gun battle in the Pacific, scored three strikes and two spares in one game on his first day of bowling after a 14-year layoff.

He was bowling in the 170s when he quit in 1947 because Burlington's only bowling alley took out its ten-pin lanes. Recently, a new alley opened here with tens.

Judge Shue asked the proprietor if he had the guide equipment needed by a blind bowler. The proprietor had the next best thing, blueprints for the guide device, and three days later the judge was back in action. He bowled games of 114 and 128.

He hopes to organize a blind bowling league for Alamance County's estimated 100 sightless residents.

"Bowling is the most enjoyable sport for the blind," Judge Shue explained. "In fact, it is one of a very few in which we can participate.

"Many blind bowlers get good enough to compete with sighted persons."

That's an understatement. If the judge gets his score back up to his 170s of 1947, he'll whip most of the sighted persons he plays.

Even now, says one Burlington resident who has no trouble with his sight, "the judge can do better blind than I can looking down the alley."

The guide device is a wooden frame which holds a wire, waist high, along the approach area parallel to the gutter. The blind bowler slides his hand along the wire to get direction and distance to the foul line. Judge Shue, with his sensitivity to direction sharpened by his blindness, can tell instantly whether he has released a good roll or a bad one.

The judge never bowled before he lost his sight on Oct. 13, 1944. He first took up the sport during his rehabilitation.

College Help For Flabby And Forty

SAN MARCOS, Calif. (AP) — The Palomar College District board of directors has come to the aid of citizens whose physical dimensions have gotten out of hand.

The board approved a new adult evening course entitled "Physical Education for Mature Men."

What the course actually amounts to is dieting and exercising for the "flabby and forty set," says Dr. John Dunn, college president. But no credit can be earned, says Dunn, except possibly from admiring wives or jealous business associates.

UP TO SPECTATORS

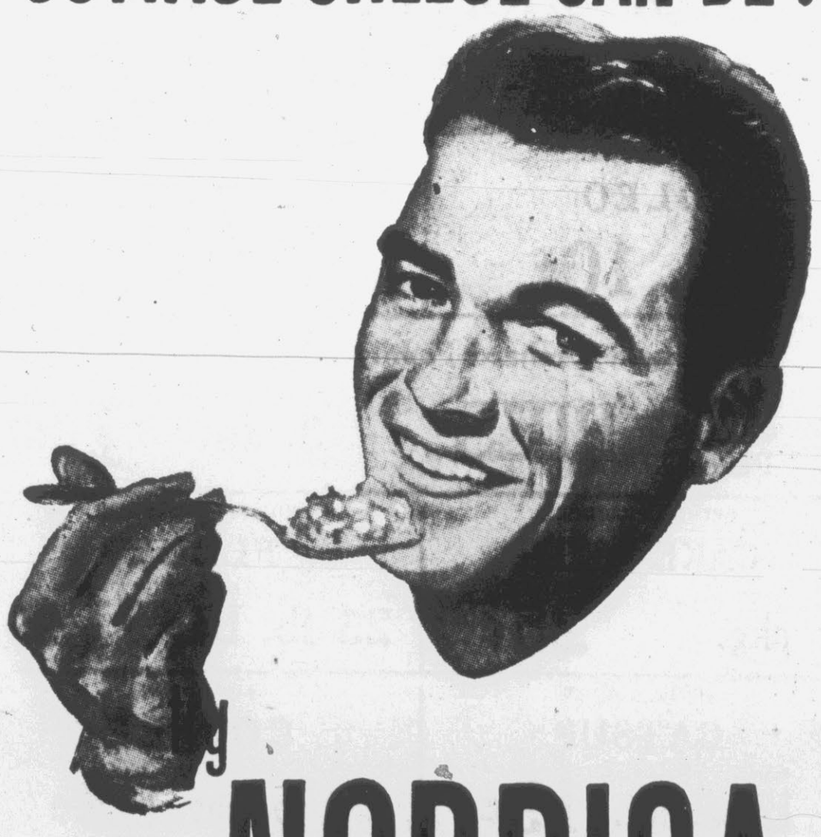

MEXICO CITY (AP)—City officials, who Monday stopped sale of beer at bullfights, said Tuesday they may extend the ban to soft drinks—and to all sports events — unless spectators quit throwing bottles.

Leslie Caron Has Quit Dancing

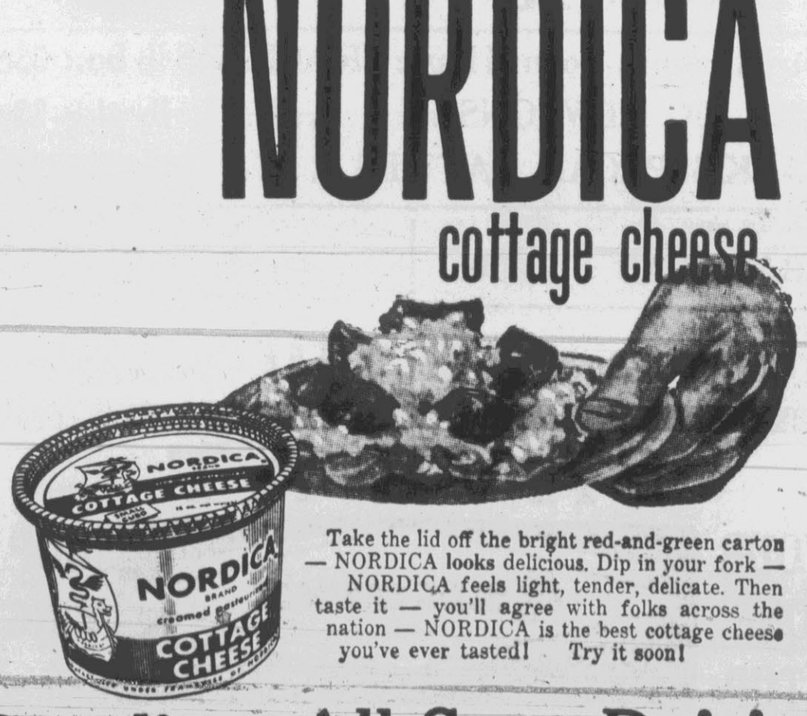

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"No more professional dancing," vows Leslie Caron, now a dramatic star with Maurice Chevalier and Charles Boyer in the film "Fanny."

"I decided one day that dancers had to subject themselves to the discipline of nuns, and that this life was irreconcilable with my role as wife, mother and actress. So I gave away all my dancing shoes."

None More Eager Than He For First Flight In Space

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —"He is always reading technical manuals and the big policy type journals, the kind the admirals and generals say should be read. He is one of those lucky men—his work is his hobby."

Louise Shepard once gave this nutshell assessment of her husband, astronaut Alan Bartlett Shepard Jr., 37, one of three men now training to become the first U. S. spacemen.

This complete dedication to his work is one reason the Navy commander is among the final three, one of whom will be lofted on a pioneer space journey perhaps as early as April.

Robert Gilruth, Project Mercury director who selected the trio from the seven original astronauts, said the choice was based on physical fitness and superior performance in training. The man who takes the initial flight will be picked in the same manner.

Shepard wants to be that man. He summed up his feelings this way:

"There are lots of answers why I want to be the first man in space, but a short answer would be this: The flight obviously is a challenge and I feel that the more severe challenge will occur on the first flight and I signed up to accept this challenge."

The crew-cut Shepard, a native of East Derry, N. H., has accepted challenges all his life.

He was graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1944 and saw World War II action in the Pacific aboard the destroyer Cogswell. He entered flight training after the war and served aboard Mediterranean aircraft carries, then became a test pilot.

He flew high-altitude research missions, helped develop the Navy's in-flight refueling system and contributed greatly to research on carrier landing techniques.

As a test pilot Shepard had several narrow escapes, with engines flaming out and canopies ripping off at high speed.

Because of his intense interest in acquiring knowledge, Shepard excels in the "school work" of the astronauts. This includes instruction in astronautics, particularly ballistics, trajectories, fuels, guidance and other aspects of missile operations, space environment, meteorology, astronomy, astrophysics and geography. In space flight, the pilots will be required to make scientific observations in these areas.

Off-duty, Shepard spends as much time as possible with his wife and two daughters, Laura, 13, and Juliana, 9.

Asked after his selection as one of the final three whether he's all set to ride the next Redstone-boosted space capsule, Shepard replied enthusiastically: "The answer is an overwhelming yes—a resounding yes."

Asked if he thought we were in a race with the Soviets to put the first man in space, Shepard replied, "We'd damn well like to beat the Soviets with a man in orbit, but definitely our objective in this program is not to beat the Russians.

"The specific objective of our program is to evaluate man's ability to survive, to react, and to observe in a space environment. This is the objective toward which we are directing our energies."

All the astronauts have a sense of humor, but Shepard is particularly noted for his ready wit.

Questioned on why he thought he was chosen as one of the final three, he responded: "Maybe I'm the link between Ham the space chimp and man."

When someone asked him how much notice he'd want if he is named for the actual flight, he grinned, "I just hope they tell me before sunrise on the day of the flight."

A source close to the astronauts said if Shepard is the man selected for the historic space shot, "He'll relieve the tension with his wisecracks.

"He'll probably even have a few good comments to make while he's hurtling through space. He's that kind of guy."

Delaware's First Negro Judge

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Sidney Clark, 32, who has been assistant city solicitor of Wilmington, will be the first Negro judge in Delaware history.

Clark Wednesday was given a 12-year appointment to the Wilmington City Court by Gov. Elbert N. Carvel. He will receive $8,300 annually. The court hears cases such as traffic violations and minor larcenies.

Attmore-Oliver House In New Bern Fully Restored

By MILTON ROGERSON
Staff Writer
New Bern Sun-Journal
Written for The Associated Press

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP)—The gleaming white, three-story Attomore-Oliver house has been completely restored and opened to the public in this first permanent capital city of North Carolina.

Historians pronounce the 170-year-old dwelling one of the finest architectural gems surviving the early Colonial days of North Carolina.

Its furnishings compare favorably with those of the nearby three-million dollar Tryon Palace restoration.

The elegant structure was erected about 1790 by Samuel Chapman during a great building boom of the era a few years following completion of Tryon Palace.

The builder was a prominent citizen of New Bern and a Mason of that period who had the distinction of greeting George Washington on his vist to New Bern in 1791.

The house was left to Chapman's daughter in his will of 1807 and through a series of sales and wills passed down to two prominent New Bern families, Attomore and Oliver.

The house was purchased from the Oliver decendants in 1953 by the New Bern Historical Society and has been completely restored and furnished with authentic antiques of which most were obtained in the local area.

According to John R. Taylor, president of the organization, nearly $60,000 hsa been invested in the restoration.

A prime example of colonial architecture, the house boasts a fireplace in every room and twin chimneys. Still intact is its beautiful original flooring of wide heart pine.

The dining room and parlor are in typical colonial decor. The dining room table is a museum piece of Chippendale design with ball and claw feet. The dining room sideboard is Hepplewhiee inlaid."

Beautiful flights of colonial stairs lead to the second and third floors. Gracing the rear of the house are twin porches of the Louisiana period complete with rocking chairs.

To the rear of the home is a small brick building used in the early days as a smoke house. This structure has been restored in autentic detail.

For the student of early history, an almost inexhaustive file of Colonial events is available. On display are early news accounts of local historical events such as the famous duel between former Gov. Richard Dobbs Spaight and wealthy Federalist John Stanly.

A collection of photographic scenes of early New Bern vividly depicts life as it was lived in the colonial capital.

Among the many historical treasures in the house is a silver service presented by the State of Rhode Island in memory of the soldiers of that state who lost their lives in military engagements here.

Students of the Civil War will find numerous photographic scenes showing homes occupied by Federal troops.

Tiny Town Talks Huge Bond Issue

SHEFFIELD, Ala. (AP) —Cherokee is a small, Tennessee Valley Community (Pop. 1,400) with big ideas.

The town in West Colbert County is considering one of the biggest industrial development bond issues on record — $25 million.

Income from the bonds would be used to build a huge fertilizer plant to be leased to Armour and Co.

Clifford Lanier of the investment banking firm of Thornton, Mohr and Farrish of Montgomery, Ala., said the bonds are expected to be sold later this month.

Armour and Co. will pay enough rental each year to retire the principal and interest on the bonds. At the end of 20 years, Armour will have several options on continuing the lease of the property and building from Cherokee, but the town actually will own the facilities.

At a meeting in Chicago recently, representatives of Thornton, Mohr and Farrish and the Armour firm drew up a lease agreement which is being studied.

After agreement is reached, Colbert County Circuit Court will be asked to validate the bonds.

W. E. Shelburne, president of Armour Agricultural Chemical Co. said the Cherokee plant actually would be "six plants in one," manufacturing ammonia, nitric acid, urea, nitrogen solutions, ammonium nitrate and ammophosphates.

Some 1,800 men are expected to be employed in construction scheduled to begin this spring. The plant will employ some 300 persons upon completion.

"Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" is the state song of Virginia.

Asks Court Help Win Back Love

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Judi Meredith has asked Superior Court to help her win back the love of the husband who is suing for an annulment of their marriage.

The court Wednesday ordered Robert Westbrook, oil fortune heir, to appear March 8 at a reconciliation hearing.

The petition of Miss Meredith, 24, contended that her husband still loves her but "outside influences" are keeping them apart. The court order instructed Westbrook's aunt, Katherine M. Fairchild, and her husband, Peter Fairchild, to attend the reconciliation hearing.

Westbrook, 21, charges in his suit that they parted last Dec. 11, the day of their Las Vegas, Nev., marriage. His complaint contends she was not the virtuous girl she professed to be during their courtship.

But her separate maintenance suit alleges they remained together until last Jan. 25.

STRONG EARTH SHOCK

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A strong and prolonged earth tremor shook Santiago, Valparaiso and other central Chilean cities Wednesday night. There were no immediate reports of damage.

Firemen Respond To Two Calls

Greenville firemen responded to two calls yesterday, one a false alarm and one to a hot heater.

Fire officers reported today, fire units were sent to Fifth and Contentnea Sts. yesterday when Box 154 was turned in at 3:15 p.m. Firemen said no fire was found and the alarm was listed as false.

At 7:15 last night, a truck was sent to 1015 Fairfax Ave. when a hot heater was reported.

Responding firefighters said the fire was out when they arrived and said only slight smoke damage resulted.

Watched Driver Ram It Again

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Patrolman Joseph Pinson, pursuing a woman driver who had just rammed a parked car, watched in amazement as his quarry circled the block and again rammed the same car.

Cherie Roddey, 25, a private nurse, explained it all to Municipal Judge Albert Cohen.

She said she was angry at her husband when she found his car parked in front of another woman's house.

"I can appreciate your feelings, but I must ask you to use other methods to take out your anger," said the judge. He fined Mrs. Roddey $100 and suspended half of it.

Annual Banquet For HD Club Members

AT HOME DEMONSTRATION BANQUET . . . Mrs. Capehart, Pitt Home Economics Agent; Mrs. Brown, guest speaker and Mrs. Reaves and Mrs. Hawkins, County Council officers, discuss Mrs. Brown's talk. (Photo by Stuart Savage.)

There is a need for dedicated leaders, Mrs. Minnie Miller Brown, assistant state home economics agent, told over 200 Home Demonstration Club members attending their annual banquet last night at Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church here.

Speaking on the theme, "Leadership Development," she said that there is a need for leaders in the school, the church, agricultural organizations, social and civic organizations and other groups. Leaders, to accomplish their aims, must have a purpose, vision, determination and a will to work.

Mrs. Brown was introduced by Mrs. J. M. Reaves, treasurer of the County Council. Mrs. Willie Hawkins, president of the council, served as mistress of ceremonies for the evening. Taking part in the program were Mrs. A W. Braxton, vice president, who gave the devotional; Mrs. M. T Burney, secretary, who welcomed the guests; and Mrs. A. E. Jackson, 4-H Club leader of Grifton, who gave the response.

M. T. Lewis spoke in behalf of principals of Pitt County schools.

Among the guests, J. H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, spoke in behalf of the bookmobile project; D. H. Conley, superintendent of Pitt County schools, spoke in regard to the educational program being carried out in the county.

The County Council presented corsages to Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Negro home economics agent; Miss Gracie Cheek, assistant agent; Mrs. Willie Hawkins, president; Mrs. Burney, secretary and Mrs. Reaves, treasurer.

A token of appreciation was presented to Mrs. Maggie Strong, past president of the Home Demonstration organization.

We Get A Break In The Weather

The weatherman provided a break today and presented a sunny, warm day. But, tomorrow may bring more clouds, he predicted.

Tonight will be fair and rather cool with Friday fair but with increasing cloudiness and likely showers in western North Carolina.

Last night's rain accumulated almost .3 of an inch of precipitation in this area up to midnight, according to L. M. Bullock of the Greenville Utilities Plant.

He reported that the Tar River has fallen two inches since yesterday, measuring 15.8 feet this morning. The river crested Wednesday at 16 feet. Bankful here is about 13 feet.

Temperatures today ranged from 45 at 4 a.m. to 43 at 8 a.m., Bullock reported. The weatherman said temperatures this afternoon would reach the 60s. Wednesday's high was 55 degrees, while the low was 43.

FIRST TOLL ROAD

CANNES, France (AP)—France opened its first toll highway Wednesday, at 14.3-mile stretch of road along the Rivera. Motorists must pay 40 cents.

Civitan Group Going To Meet

Greenville Civitan Club President Kenneth L. Quiggins is scheduled to head a three-man delegation from the local club to the Civitan year's final N. C. District Council Meeting in Durham Friday and Saturday.

Quiggins, Luther Craft and Bernard Jackson will join some 500 Civitans from throughout North Carolina for the two-day session slated for Durham's Jack Tar Hotel.

Governor Francis Essic will hold a cabinet meeting of his district officers and committee chairmen Friday with the main assembly of local club representatives set for 10 a.m. Saturday.

Jackson of East Carolina College will be the Greenville club's contribution to a state-wide enrollment "class scheduled for induction as a highlight of the Saturday morning session.

The new Civitan members will be honored as "Founders' Day Members" in recognition of Civitan's Birmingham, Ala., birthday March 17, 1917.

Saturday afternoon's session will feature workshops and discussions designed to consider: "What can Civitans do in the field of mental retardation?"

Two of the Greenville club's projects are aid to the mentally retarded and support of the Junius H. Rose High School band.

Healing Service Offered Tonight

The Ministry of Christian Healing will be held tonight at 7:30 at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The Rev John W. Drake Jr., Rector, will present a meditation on Acts 13:5-12, Spiritual Blindness. Hymns of Healing will be sung by the congregation. The laying on of hands will be offered for those desiring this ministry.

These healing services are regularly a first Thursday monthly observance in St. Paul's Parish. People of this community are invited to be present. The prayers of faithful people are requested and the presence of all is desired.

STREAMLINING

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican streamlined its telephone number today to 658. The old system had four separate listings of six digets each.

2nd Court Reform Bill Is Introduced

RALEIGH (AP) — A second measure to revamp North Carolina's court system was introduced in the General Assembly today and immediately brought a flurry of discussion in the Senate.

Sen. Luther H. Hamilton of Carteret was joined by 29 other senators in sponsoring the court measure in the Senate.

The Hamilton measure would be much less far - reaching than a court measure introduced in the House last Friday by Rep. H. P. Taylor Jr. of Anson and in the Senate Wednesday by Sen. Lunsford Crew of Halifax.

The Taylor-Crew measure has the backing of Gov. Sanford and the State Bar Association.

If either bill is passed by the Legislature, it would have to be submitted to a vote of the people since it calls for an amendment to the state constitution.

Crawford said his side has enough votes in the Senate to kill the Taylor-Crew bill, which proposes sweeping changes in the court system.

Both bills would amend the constitution to provide for a uniform system of inferior courts. The Taylor-Crew bill would do much more. It would give the State Supreme Court general administrative authority over the entire court system, and authorize the high court to make rules of practice and procedure for the court system.

TB Week Here Reaches Close

Discussion sessions Monday and Tuesday at C. M. Eppes High School here capped Tuberculosis Emphasis Week, termed by sponsors "very successful."

The week-long observance was sponsored by the N. C. Joint Council of Health and Citizenship and the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association in cooperation with county and city schools.

Dr. A. A. Best, president of the joint council; Dr. G. Earl Trevathan Jr., president of the tuberculosis association; and Dr. Malene Irons spoke to the group at Eppes in a joint effort to summarize the week's activities and to explain the medical aspect of the respiratory disease.

TB association executive director Mrs. Milton V. Clarke also spoke to the student assemblies and urged the students "put into practice" the suggestions publicized during the emphasis week.

Mrs. Clarke said each school participating in the emphasis week program displayed educational material and literature on bulletin boards. She added the students completed various research projects related to tuberculosis, its causes, effects and treatment.

MYF To Sponsor Supper March 8

Members of the Senior M. Y. F. of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will sponsor a fried chicken supper on Wednesday, March 8, as a money-raising effort.

The supper will be held from 5 until 7 p.m. in the fellowship hall at Jarvis Memorial Church.

A poster party was held at the church on Saturday with Melinda Coleman as chairman. The posters have been placed throughout town.

Three Arrested For Possessing Illegal Whiskey

Three local Negroes were arrested by Pitt County officers yesterday and charged with possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

Officers identified the three as Annie Johnson, 39, of 104 Ford St., Tincey Bell Williams, 504 14th St., and Willey Harris, 52, of 1406 Factory St.

Officers said the Johnson woman was arrested at her home when officers found one gallon of booze in her possession.

Five quarts of illegal spirits were found in the possession of Tincey Bell Williams, they said, when she was arrested, while Harris was charged when officers found four pints of booze at his residence.

Investigators, who said all three were released on $200 bonds for trial in City Recorders Court, noted all three have previous liquor-law violation records.

Making the arrests were ABC officers J.M. Ward, H.B. Lilley and Walter Taylor, and Constable W.H. Crandall.

Five Collisions Reported By Local Police Yesterday

An estimated $1,000 damage resulted in one of five collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday, officers reported today.

Investigators said an estimated $900 damage resulted to a car being driven by Nathan Scott, Jr., 17, of Route 5, Greenville, after it went out of control on Me-Wade St., was charged by officers with failure to yield the right of way following a mishap near the intersection of Fifth and Greene Sts. about 7:13 p.m.

Damage to the pole officers estimated, was about $100.

Police said the Scott vehicle was headed South on the road, and quoted him as saying he started to apply his brakes and the vehicle started to skid, then struck the pole.

The youth was charged with careless and reckless driving police reported.

No injuries resulted, they said.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to a car being driven by Oscar Daniel Stoneham, 21 of 1104 West Third St. when the vehicle was involved in a collision with a truck operated by Edmond Timothy Love, 57-year-old Negro of 613 Hudson St., in front of the Stoneham residence about 3:54 p. m.

Police, who charged Stoneham with failure to keep a proper lookout while backing, said Stoneham was backing from his driveway at the time of the mishap.

Damage to the Love truck was placed at $150. No injuries were reported.

Robert Kents Harris, 30, of 107 morial Drive and struck a utilities pole about 8:17 p.m.

Officers said the Harris vehicle collided with a car being driven by William Irvin Warren, 18 of ECC, causing an estimated $25 damage to the car. Damage to the Harris truck was set at $35.

No injuries were reported

In another collision last night, a car being driven by James Robert Davenport struck a parked vehicle at Respess Brothers on North Greene St., causing about $30 damage to the Davenport auto and an estimated $60 damage to the parked vehicle.

Officers said the parked vehicle was owned by Jim Patrick Craft, 35, of 307 South Greene St.

Following investigation of the collision, Davenport was charged with failure to keep proper lookout while backing, police noted.

No charges were placed when cars driven by George Allen Smith, 46-year-old Negro of 310 Washington St., and Mrs. Lee James Harris of Route 6, Greenville collided near the intersection of Second and Evans Sts. at 12:52 p.m.

Officers set damage to the Smith car at $20 and placed damage to the Harris vehicle at $10.
