

Firemen Battle Bethel Cotton Warehouse Blaze

BETHEL FIREMEN—don smoke masks as they prepare to enter rows of cotton-bales in the remains of a cotton storage warehouse at the Bethel Manufacturing Company last night.

Fear Over $50,000 Fire Loss

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer
BETHEL — A blaze, which caused an estimated $50,000-60,000, destroyed a frame cotton storage warehouse at the Bethel Manufacturing Company here last night.

Perry noted Robersonville and Station-House fire departments sent units to aid the Bethel firemen when it was thought the blaze might rage out of control.

D.O. Speir, manager of the company, estimated the damage at from $50,000 to $60,000. He pointed out that the loss was insured and some of the cotton stored in the building was salvagable, but added it could not be used as "number one cotton."

Speir said the fire undoubtedly was "well along" when it was sighted. He said two cotton storage warehouses near-by were not damaged, but slight damage resulted to the mill office.

Southern Pines Chief Of Police Slain In Gun Battle

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP)—Police Chief C. Ed Newton was shot and killed Friday night by a man he was trying to arrest. The killer was then slain in a blazing gun battle with other officers.

Congolese And UN Troops Clash As Violence Spreads

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Congolese troops battled United Nations' soldiers in the vital port town of Matadi today as anti-U.N. violence gathered pace through the Congo.

At 4:15 p.m., Congolese troops surrounded the Sudanese camp and laid down a half-hour mortar barrage. Nearly five hours later they reopened mortar fire on the camp.

The first Congo troop fire was met by a volley from the Sudanese, who fired over the heads of the Congolese. The Congolese scattered for shelter, leaving behind two prisoners.

Then another sizable Congolese force appeared offshore in boats and moved into the town, the spokesman said. The Sudanese retreated to the nearby coast town of Kitona, formerly a Belgian base and now an important U.N. base.

Will Coax, And Talk 'Tough' On Stream Pollution

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Stream Sanitation Committee, backed by Gov. Sanford, will try to combine diplomacy with toughness in its attempts to get cities to proceed with pollution abatement.

Sanford told the committee Friday he was aware of their problem and also stressed the need for diplomacy.

"There's not a case we couldn't win in court, but you know how a slick lawyer can drag a case on once you get it in the courts. We can accomplish more, and faster, with patience."

"That's the trouble now," Vann argued. "They don't feel like you can do anything but pussy-foot around, beseech and beg."

Assembly Falling Behind 1959 Pace

By LYNN NISBET Reflector Bureau, Assn. Afternoon Daily
RALEIGH — The 1961 General Assembly is still behind, and falling relatively further behind, the 1959 session in disposing of work.

At end of the fifth week, which included four full work weeks, the current session had received 199 bills and resolutions — 67 in the Senate and 132 in the House. To the same date two years ago there had been 263 bills and resolutions received—86 in the Senate and 177 in the House. Not only have fewer bills been introduced and passed than in 1959 to comparable date, but some of the most important matters have not been presented at all. For example, although money has been regarded as the main issue before this Legislature, and from beginning of the primary campaign a year ago until now it has been understood that the program advocated by Governor Sanford would require many millions more current spending, yet no revenue or tax bill has been introduced.

The long standing custom of the Advisory Budget Commission offering master revenue recommendations along with the appropriation bill was not observed this year. Several tax bills are expected immediately after Governor Sanford delivers his second budget message Monday night.

Convicts Injured In Muslim Riot

FOLSOM, Calif. (AP)—Ten convicts were injured at Folsom Prison Friday night in a race riot that broke out in a mess hall. Some were hit by flying trays and plates, others by lead ricocheting from the ceiling when guards fired warning shots.

Six Negroes and four whites were injured, none critically. Warden Robert Heinze said the outburst erupted from tension over the black supremacy Muslim sect at the huge penitentiary near Sacramento.

Currie Plan Has Pitt In 3-County District Set-Up

Pitt County would become part of a three-county two-senator district under Sen. Claude Currie's bill for redistricting. The bill introduced in the State Legislature yesterday, would place Pitt County in the Fourth District along with Edgecombe and Halifax Counties. Two senators would serve in the district giving a representation of 91,562 persons per senator.

India Offers To Send A Brigade

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—India has offered a 3,000-man brigade to help beef up the U.N. Congo command and restore order in the divided African nation.

The offer came as leaders of all the anti-Communist Congo factions were meeting on the island of Madagascar in the Indian Ocean to try to thrust out a peaceful settlement of the confused Congolese problem. Rebel chief Antoine Gizenga ignored an invitation to attend and his absence dimmed hopes of progress.

Meantime the expressed hope that lack of revenue bill troubles might accelerate action on other matters, like government organization and redistricting also failed to materialize. Result is that very few public hearings have been held by the committees, and so far only 14 bills and 14 resolutions have been ratified in law.

India's promise of troops, transmitted to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold by Indian Ambassador C. S. Jha, came on the heels of similar assurances of reinforcements from Liberia and Tunisia. It brings the total of new forces volunteered to about 4,000.

Hammarskjold had appealed for more troops to buttress the dwindling U.N. force up to 25,000 he said is needed to keep peace in the chaotic new nation. The original Congo force was about 20,000 but protests against Hammarskjold's policies led to some withdrawals. The present strength is 18,500.

Sending combat troops abroad would set a precedent for India. Units have been used in Korea, Indochina, the Gaza strip and even in the Congo but only on medical missions, as guards and other such non-combatant duties.

Nehru had insisted in clarification of Congo policies before agreeing to send troops. He gave approval to passage of a resolution in the Security Council authorizing U.N. forces to head off military clashes and civil war if need be.

Jha said reinforcements for the U.N. were needed to implement this measure. The Indian envoy said it was not easy for India to send a brigade, but "realizing the situation in the Congo and the urgent need for help, the step was decided upon."

THE CHURCH FOR ALL

ALL FOR THE CHURCH. The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship.

Only wise men and hungry children fully appreciate their blessings!

Many of God's gifts, like the air we breathe, are received without thought. Others, like the abundance of the harvest, we think about only in season.

This isn't Christmas... or Easter. And we hope it is not a time of personal crisis for you and your family...

If it's just a normal week, full of the routine of life—then it's an ideal time to remember your blessings. And Sunday will be an ideal day to begin, renew or strengthen that wholesome habit of worshipping God in the church of your choice.

Rose High School News

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON
 Several Rose High students have been participating in the Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic yesterday and today on the campus of East Carolina College here in Greenville.

Along with band students from thirty high schools in the eastern section of the state, the following were chosen in auditions to play with this "cream of the crop" of area high school band students: Jan Coward, Judy Batchelor, Pat Carter, Martha Henderson, David Nobles, Marvin Buck, J. G. Proctor, Richard Paul, and Tommy Brown.

These students will appear in concert tonight at 7:30 in Wright Auditorium. In addition to the Symphonic Band under the direction of Earl F. Beach, music director at East Carolina College, there will also be a Workshop Band under the direction of Clyde Duval from Norfolk, Va. The public is cordially invited.

Final Pep Rally
 Varsity cheerleaders sponsored the final pep rally of the year yesterday afternoon during sixth period.

Chief Melinda Coleman began the program by having the Phantom Victory Bell brought in three Monogram Club members—Wayne Sumrell, George VanNortwick, and Russell Fields.

Erky Duff, president of the Monogram Club, officially inaugurated the new green and white bell with Phantom emblem and "G" by saying, "The Monogram Club and cheerleaders officially present this bell to the school class of '61. He then explained that the bell would be passed down each year through the Monogram Club.

After the cheer, "Clap Victory," Melinda introduced the five seniors who are playing their last season for Greenville: Erky Duff, Peter Hunt, Ben White, Layne Jorgensen, and John Bynum.

Melinda introduced Junius H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, who praised both the team and the student body for the game the night before—the team for having won a close and hard-fought victory, and the student body for splendid sportsmanship.

Mr. Rose closed by expressing the hope that this epitaph would speak of Kinston in the tournament semi-finals: "He fought a good fight, but his razor was dull!"

The squad closed the rally with three "other cheers." This year's cheerleading squad, in addition to chief Melinda Coleman, includes Myrtle Mogg, Bibbro, assistant chief, and Ginger Melton, Phyllis Moore, Janice Bentley, Sara Collier Webb, Lina Christopher, Jeri Sue Clark, Rose Christy, Gigi Willis, Gigi Givens, Brenda Bowden, and Ann Hunt.

Merit Test
 School officials will give the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test to juniors Tuesday morning. Test fee will be $1.00.

One of the main purposes of the test given by this corporation is to rank students throughout the country on the same scale for use by colleges and other scholarship and financial aid sources.

More specifically the purpose of this test is to determine especially able high school students who perhaps need aid in order to continue their education. All scholarships awarded are based on need.

From these papers Tuesday, the corporation will determine the necessary mark for students to make in order to become semi-finalists. Each state is awarded so many semi-finalists, based on the number in the senior class. These semi-finalists complete various activity, financial, and other forms and take the SAT before they are eligible to become finalists. Only about one-half of one percent of U. S. high school seniors receive this distinction.

The broader purpose of the National Merit Corporation is to encourage intellectual attainment and the pursuit of it.

This year's senior class includes five finalists: Ed Hooks, Steve Humbert, Peter Hunt, Danny Smith, and Craig Worthington.

Public announcement of this year's scholarship winner will be made by April 27.

Math Contest
 Mrs. Kemp H. Baldwin, Rose High math instructor, will give the preliminaries of the National Mathematics Contest Thursday morning of this week.

Mrs. Baldwin, by virtue of her membership in the Mathematics Association, has received approval of people interested in advanced mathematics studies, has received authority to administer this test those taking advanced math courses in the school.

Members of the math department will grade the papers of the 47 participants and will send the three highest to a regional contest. The local winner will be awarded a plaque at commencement.

Rose High's affirmative team will meet Kinston's negative team in Raleigh while Greenville's negative team will meet Raleigh's affirmative team in Kinston. Kinston's affirmative and Raleigh's negative teams will debate here in Greenville.

How was the name Athenium Book Club chosen? Generally speaking, the word Athenium has come to mean a literary club, but historically we find the word originated from the name given the great Grecian goddess Athena.

Athena was the wisest of all the gods and goddesses except the great god Zeus. Whether the club deserves this name might be questioned, but it pleased the club when Mrs. E. M. Crisp suggested this name to the group.

Reading from the club minutes of several years ago is the following paragraph:

"On Tuesday, March 16, 1937, an enthusiastic group of young women met in the Shepherd Memorial Library to discuss the organization of a book club. The following officers were elected to serve: president, Mrs. D. M. Clark; vice president, Mrs. S. M. Crisp; librarian, Mrs. W. A. Darden; hostesses and program committee, Mrs. J. B. Cummings, Mrs. J. K. Proctor, Mrs. D. J. Whichard Jr.; book club committee, Mrs. W. H. Bradsher, Mrs. J. J. Perkins and Mrs. Clifton Edwards."

Other charter members present at this meeting were: Mrs. J. L. Winstead, Mrs. J. J. White, Mrs. W. W. Lee, Mrs. H. L. Ormond, Mrs. K. B. Pace, and Mrs. Curtis Perkins. Additional members who later joined were: Mrs. Graham Flanagan, Mrs. Walter Harrington, Mrs. Reid Perkins, Mrs. J. H. Rose, Mrs. N. O. Warren, Mrs. W. F. Young, and Mrs. Ty Wagner.

The club will observe their 25th anniversary in 1962.

At first the club met at three o'clock in the afternoon, but later decided to change to a luncheon meeting. It was decided to include the husbands for at least one meeting; hence, at Christmas time, the year 1938, the husbands were entertained for the first time at the home of Mrs. C. H. Edwards with Mrs. D. M. Clark as assisting hostess. Each year thereafter the husbands have been the guests of the club at a Christmas party.

The Athenium Book Club prides itself on being a literary, social and even benevolent club. The group has responded to many civic activities, and to local, state, and national needs.

The programs have been varied in nature and interesting. They have ranged from the frivolous to the serious and even to the religious. For two years the programs were based on the Bible. In the beginning the group gave their own programs, but as time moved on, members followed this practice less and less. It was found that interesting outside speakers and entertainers could easily be located to present subjects and programs.

The Athenium Book Club remains as it began, a social, civic, literary, and often benevolent club. If Athena, the wise goddess of ancient Greece, could speak to Athenium, she would likely assure the members of this group that there are ample reasons for the existence of the Athenium Book Club, for history tells us that the ancient Greeks believed in gracious living and she was their great and wise goddess.

Last year marked the 50th anniversary of Samuel Clemens' death, but he is still "being read with surprising enthusiasm," Mrs. Taylor said that Mark Twain became famous overnight with the publication of his famous story, "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," and a series of newspaper articles and lectures on the Sandwich Islands. He "blew into American literature like a fresh wind off the prairies."

Samuel Clemens had this to say of his own work: "My books are water. Those of the great geniuses are wine; but everyone drinks water."

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. E. Winslow and Mrs. Joseph Taft.

Thetis Speaker Is John Clark

Mr. John Clark, former diplomatic courier, and presently employed with television station WNCN, was guest speaker at the recent meeting of the Thetis Book Club Tuesday.

At the time Mr. Clark was employed by the diplomatic corps, there was free travel by Americans in almost all of the countries in the Near and Far East, and during that period, the United States maintained diplomatic relations with most of the Oriental governments. The speaker's only real concern was the delivery of top priority papers to the representatives of these governments.

Contrary to public opinion a diplomatic courier's life is not filled with cloak and dagger episodes; however, Mr. Clark did reiterate several ironic incidences which would not occur in a more stationary vocation.

The speaker concluded his talk by saying there is one which he would advise any qualified young man in going into, as it affords the opportunity of travel and meeting people of different countries, which is an education in itself.

Mrs. Gordon Lynch was hostess to the club members and guest, Mrs. Tom Snowden, at her home on Overlook Drive. Following Mr. Clark's informal question and answer period, Mrs. Bill Laughlin and Mrs. E. L. Clark assisted the hostess in serving individual lemon pies and coffee.

A short business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Marshall Whitehurst, at which time a letter of acknowledgement was read from Mrs. Davenport, chairman of the Pitt County Bookmobile—thanking the club for its contribution.

Urban Renewal Talk Given

Mrs. Burney Warren Jr. was hostess to members of the Lector Book Club and guests at her home on Shady Lane Tuesday at 12:30.

Arrangements of early spring flowers decorated the home. Upon arrival, members and guests were served a three course luncheon.

Mrs. Powell Speight, president, presided over a short business meeting and welcomed the following guests: Mr. Hubert Lee, Mrs. Jack Edwards, Jr., and Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, Jr.

The nominating committee presented the slate of officers for the coming year which was unanimously approved by club members. They are as follows: Mrs. Kenneth Phillips, president; Mrs. Herbert Hadley, vice-president; Mrs. Hugh Winslow, secretary; Mrs. Hally Van Dyke, treasurer; and Mrs. Charles King, librarian.

Mrs. Warren introduced Mr. Herbert Lee, guest speaker for the meeting. Mr. Lee spoke on the new Urban Renewal Plan for Greenville. At the beginning of his speech, Mr. Lee passed out for each member an alternate plan for Greenville and stated that he favored this program of neighborhood conservation rather than the urban renewal plan that is being considered. He went on to explain that urban renewal and public housing is a program sponsored by the Federal Government to clean-up run-down areas and revitalize business districts. Public housing naturally goes hand in hand with urban renewal because a plan for living must be provided for those whose homes are bought for the location of Urban Renewal Federal housing tends to hurt the economy of a town and often breeds slum areas.

Under the neighborhood conservation plan many areas of Greenville would be cleaned up by private property owners and many private businesses would benefit. This plan is more in keeping with our American way of life; much better than Public Housing with Federal aid which tends to be Socialistic.

Books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

HOME DECORATING TODAY

By MRS. R. W. DAVENPORT
HOW TO PLAN A ROOM WITH MUSIC IN THE PLAN

People who know how to live fill a room with beauty, comfort, convenience and their own personalities—never merely with furniture, fabrics, and rugs. To many—thousands more every year—a full life at home means music performed by themselves, a piano in a favorite room.

Always place the piano at least four inches from the wall.

To light a piano—you may have a recessed or suspended light from the ceiling—the light may be attached to the wall, built in or floor standing.

The piano top is best left bare, or nearly so, in favor of wall decoration above it. Make sure that the picture or picture grouping hangs low enough to relate to the instrument, and is large enough to be in good proportion to its size.

Good decorating blends, soft materials, fabrics and rugs with hard surfaces—walls, floors and furniture woods. A good balance of the two is best for music from the piano. The sound can be muffled or too loud in a room that has too much of one or the other.

If the piano is too loud, add a carpet or drape a wall near the piano.

Kimball and Guhrman pianos. They will be happy to help you (place one in your home.—Adv.)

Another Major Asset For County

Approval by the State Board of Education of Pitt County's application for one of the state-supported industrial training centers offers another major asset for this county both from the standpoint of training local people for better job opportunities and for attracting new industries to the section.

The County Commissioners, and the County Board of Education when they meet next week should waste no time in setting in motion the necessary procedure for fulfill the county's obligations which will make the school here a reality.

Under the cooperative program for such technical schools, the county is obligated to provide the building to house the school, and the state defrays the predominant cost of operating the school. If Pitt is to take advantage of the opportunity now before it, the county will have to construct a building for the center, estimated at slightly more than $300,000. In all probability it will require a bond issue by the county to provide this capital outlay. The County Commissioners and the Pitt Board of Education who already have indictated their support of efforts to get the school for Pitt, should begin work immediately on bringing about the bond issue.

The State Board of Education's approval of Pitt's application for the school represents quite a prize for this county. It is likewise a tribute to the broad support for the school which came from throughout the county, both from official bodies and from individual citizens. It is also a tribute to the leadership afforded by Sen. Robert Lee Humber who spearheaded the effort to have one of the state's 20 industrial schools designated by the State Board of Education for Pitt County.

The technical school assigned to Pitt County is the last of those originally authorized by the legislature. The others previously had been assigned to communities and counties throughout the state, and some of the schools already are in operation.

It would be difficult to overestimate the potential advantages the industrial training center will offer Pitt County and its people. With it, Pitt will have the facilities for providing technical training for almost any jobs for which there is a demand. In addition, it will provide a ready-made facility for training persons in specialized skills as are needed by new industries. Its presence here should appreciably enhance the possibilities of the county's being chosen for industries that required skilled workers in many fields.

Now that the state has approved the location of this new technical training center in Pitt County, it is up to the county to follow through with its part to make the training center here a reality as soon as possible.

Rival Date For Assembly Start

By LYNN NISBET

KEY DATE—Tuesday, March 7, bids fair to rival Wednesday, February 8, as the date for beginning of the 1961 General Assembly. The assembly convened on February 8 amid a fanfare of publicity about getting off to a fast start because the Governor had been inaugurated five weeks before and the House Democrats had already selected the Speaker and other key personnel. All records for speed were busted when Governor Sanford announced he would deliver his biennial budget message the next day along with the Advisory Budget Commission report and appropriations bills. On Friday, the third day of the session, Senate President Philip announced committee assignments. This was another speed record for action. Then the folks who had been huzzling about progress took time to remember that action on money bills required joint participation of House and Senate—and the House committees had not been named and were not for another ten days.

The pause for reflection also gave legislators time to digest some significant phrases in Governor Sanford's first budget address. He said the budget report he was presenting was that prepared by his predecessor, that generally he regarded it satisfactory as providing a sound base upon which to build a greater State. Then came this very significant comment: "There are, however, a few important areas in which I am convinced that this budget must be increased. In a relatively short time I shall come before you with additional recommendations for strengthening the budget at certain points, particularly in its provisions for education. At that time I shall also recommend to you specific measures for obtaining the additional revenue which my appropriation recommendations will require."

CONTROLLING—The more time legislators had to think about that promise the more they were convinced that any attempt at action on appropriation or tax bills before hearing the Governor's speech would be premature. So they are waiting for the address scheduled for Monday night, March 6. Opinion prevails among members of the assembly that the 1961 session will "really start" on March 7, and that most of the time since convening date has been preliminary to the main show.

There has been some disposition to defer action on important bills not directly related to money—such as court reform and redistricting—in order to avoid building up anomalies that might interfere with support of the administration tax proposals.

COURT BILLS—Companion bills introduced in the House by Reps. Pat Taylor and others and in the Senate by Sens. Bell, Crew and others would submit to vote of the people constitutional amendments for revision of the entire Judicial set up in North Carolina along the same general lines as those proposed and defeated in the 1959 session.

Bills introduced in the Senate by Sens. Lindsay Warren, Boyce Whitmire and others (the bill was signed by more than half the senators), and in the House by a substantial group including Rep. Irvin Crawford of Buncombe, would revamp the court setup below superior court level, but not touch the superior and appeal courts.

Except for the limited application to inferior courts the Warren-Crawford bill differs from the Bell-Taylor bill mainly in the placement of rule-making and regulatory power over the courts. Bell et al would place control of the courts in the hands of the chief justice; Warren et al would leave rule-making and regulation to the General Assembly, where it has been vested since beginning of State history.

INTERLOCKED—The fact is that legislative votes for or against appropriation and tax bills, for or against court changes, for or against redistricting proposals, are so intricately interlocked in background and basic reasoning it is difficult to separate them into specific positions on the issues.

It has not yet been determined whether a special tax on cigarettes, for example, would be heavier in relative degree of impact on the tobacco farmer or on the employee of a cigarette factory. Certainly the counties which stand to lose representation in the General Assembly and in the Congress on population basis are the counties which will be most affected, relatively, by extension of the sales tax and less affected by increase in raising the income tax levy.

These are the counties which have low value in popular voting, and generally low value as tax contributors, but very high value in the legislative voting strength because of the provision that every county, regardless of size, must have one representative in the Legislature.

Big counties resent this excess legislative voting strength of the little counties; and the little counties resent with equal or greater vehemence the provisions in many appropriation bills requiring counties to match State funds in order to benefit from them.

Most legislators expect Governor Sanford to outline some plans along these lines, as well as pin point sources of revenue, in his Monday night speech that is why everything is waiting for that address and why most legislators say the 1961 session will really begin on March 7 rather than on February 8.

Emphasis On A Policy Of Person-To-Person

President Kennedy's Peace Corps proposal places new official emphasis by the United States government on the idea of person-to-person international relationship in the effort to cultivate better understanding between the United States and other nations.

There is nothing new about the person-to-person diplomacy among citizens of different nations. Already it is being used extensively in student exchange programs sponsored by the government and by private organizations. It has been used extensively by church groups that have sponsored exchange programs for young people traveling to other countries either for study or special work assignments. It has been employed by private groups which have sponsored various bands of medical personnel to aid areas in underdeveloped nations.

The proposal by President Kennedy for the formation of a permanent Peace Corps under federal sponsorship, however, offers the prospect of a much greater flow of Americans to other nations for this kind of person-to-person program. By increasing the number of Americans engaged in such programs, it would afford a greater opportunity for people of other nations to get to know first-hand Americans working or studying beside them, living with them and speaking their own language.

It would afford citizens of other countries the opportunity to see more Americans in roles other than as tourists, and likewise it would afford more Americans to view the people of other nations in a light different from that in which the American tourist sees them.

Person-to-person diplomacy by average citizens of different nations has become increasingly important to better international understanding as the community of nations has grown smaller. The President's proposal to enhance the U.S. position in this respect has merit.

A Closer Look At Peace Corps

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Peace Corps which President Kennedy created this week is still new to have precise form. But it is possible to indicate the shape it will take.

It will, of course, require much time, many months, before the full picture emerges. Kennedy simply set up a temporary Peace Corps. He asked Congress to go beyond this and by law make a permanent Peace Corps. Kennedy hopes his temporary arrangement will be able to train and send 500 or more young people overseas by fall. But the permanent peace may have 5,000 or more members.

There are four general questions to ask about the corps whose members will go to backward countries and, by living and working side by side with the people there, help them improve their life and living; How will they be picked? Where will they go? What will they do?

Congress last year authorized a study of the corps idea. It was undertaken by Colorado State University's research foundation. This week it made a preliminary report. It will make a final one in April.

What follows is based on that preliminary report, the result of extensive investigation by the foundation and interviews with hundreds of people here and abroad, including government people here and overseas.

The purpose — To help speed the social and economic development of the world's backward areas. Peace Corps members will not get a salary. They'll get a subsistence payment. This government will look out for their health.

They'll live with the people in towns and villages, educate them, work with them, teach them skills from farming to engineering and nursing. How they'll be picked — The government will set up a Peace Corps agency. Kennedy's executive order done Wednesday. Standards and qualifications will be established for choosing Peace Corps members.

Each member must have some skill needed in the area to which he is assigned. He will undergo training. He must know the language of the country to which he is sent, the culture, customs, and problems. He must be physically okay.

Where they'll go—Simply, they will be sent where needed, provided the country which can use them wants them.

What they'll do—The foundation found the greatest needs, in 10 countries its investigators visited, in these fields:

Education (especially teaching English, science, literacy, adult education, and vocational training). Health and sanitation (nursing, technical assistance, mother and child care, sanitation, and so on). Community and rural development (farm programs, problems of the home, building schools and roads, cottage industries, adult and youth clubs and so on).

Here are some of the specific needs pointed out in the foundation's survey:

Farming—Livestock improvement, improved garden and field crops, irrigation, tool care and maintenance, 4-H clubs, cooperatives, marketing, and grain storage.

Speaking Of Shoes—

Secret Attack On Him

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the FBI, was reappointed by President Kennedy and so far as anyone knows, he intends to remain on the job. However, "The Insider's Newsletter," says that some Washington "insiders" predict that Hoover will be out of the top FBI job by Summer.

A direct inquiry brought no confirmation of such a prediction but one can always wait for a Summer to come. Hoover has given 40 years of his life to the FBI and undoubtedly expects to give more years.

Why is it that the rumor is so often spread that J. Edgar Hoover will resign, when it is quite well known that he will not resign but could, of course, be dismissed by his chief, the Attorney General. Hoover is not likely to make it easy for anyone by resigning because he does not choose to risk the integrity of the FBI by making it easy for anyone to use it politically.

The day must come when Hoover will not be able to continue in his job, for such a time comes to all men unless they die with their boots on. When that day comes, it would be J. Edgar Hoover's hope that his successor might be a person in the FBI and not some politician who could use this mighty agency of government to the disadvantage of the American people.

Whenever it has been proposed that the FBI be expanded into a national police force, Hoover has opposed it. He has also opposed amalgamating the FBI with the Secret Service, the Bureau of Narcotics, the investigative agencies of the Immigration Service and State Department, because it has always been his theory of operations that the only way to protect the people from a Gestapo-like organization is to limit its functions. There have been times when the FBI was so popular that Hoover could have got any measure through Congress; he avoided expansion beyond efficiency as he avoided becoming an independent agency outside the Department of Justice.

Whereas, in the past, there have been direct attacks on J. Edgar Hoover, the current campaign is more subtle. It is devoted to creating an atmosphere of imminent departure. It is like suggesting that a man is about to die or is really dead already. It starts out with the assumption that a man is too old, that he ought to retire, or will soon retire. It is like the propaganda a year or so ago that Justice Felix Frankfurter was retiring and a number of judges and lawyers put themselves in noticeable positions with the hope the spotlight might fall on them. Frankfurter fooled them all. He just stayed on and said nothing.

It was like that with Vice-Admiral Hyman Rickover. All sorts of plots were devised to end his days in the Navy. It was not planned for him to resign, rather he was to be passed over and his name would no longer be there. It was such a simple plan. But Congress took a hand at that one. The scheme fell short of its purpose and the United States has its fleet of atomic submarines which it was expected that Rickover would not succeed in building.

So it is now with J. Edgar Hoover. There are some who are anxious for him to retire and to have some outsider, perhaps someone whose "green file" would make startling reading, chosen in his place. They spread this report that he is on bad terms with Robert Kennedy, the Attorney General, who is Hoover's chief. Robert Kennedy is an astute man who has had long service in the investigative functions of Congress. He knew his way around the FBI before he became Attorney General. Thus far, he has avoided any political mistakes or getting involved in a controversy with Congress. It is not likely that he will fall for the scheming and plotting which always go on in Washington as they do in every world capital. For to dismiss J. Edgar Hoover would start such a fracas as no one needs; so let a person with political ambitions and political sense, those who hopefully speculate on the prospect of Hoover's resignation have, I fear, been talking to the wrong insiders.

Patience Is Not For Me

Playing the waiting game is not my speed.

This one began in early January when my guesstimations indicated there might be a small refund coming from federal and state tax offices.

Being very short on funds, for necessities — such as pipe tobacco, airmail stamps, paying fines on overdue library books, and new shoe laces — my "please remit" forms with W-2 attached were put in the mail at an earlier date than ever before accomplished.

In other years, such an early-bird role would have been cause for some smugness; but this taxpayer's thoughts were on how best to spend those forthcoming nickles and dimes. So patience set in. It "sat in" through January and began to get restless in early February.

That restlessness became more acute with presidential announcement the tax office was ordered to make haste in their refunds so as to help fire up the economy. There was also mention made that the Veterans Administration would speed payment of GI life insurance dividends, which made my cup positively run over. Not only would I be able to afford tobacco for my pipe, I would also be able to buy a new pipe!

Such visions strained my patience. At day's end, on reaching home, the refund-hungry husband and father would brush by his offspring to locate their mother (and guardian-of-what-comes-in-the-mail) to ask "has it come yet?"

The invariable "no" restored sanity and paternal love. Children were patted on their head, questions asked about school, life in the doll family, how many spankings they had during the day, etc. Once, when a fellow-taxpayer wearing a glazed expression told me "I got it, I got it, I got it", half-buried fears of a refusal by the Internal Revenue Bureau to allow my Mary Jane as a dependant came to the fore. She has carried that status on only three past income tax forms, and any investigator would quickly see she is very self-sufficient and can wheedle apples, oranges, ice cream in quantities to go into business for herself. (This, the tax people need not know.)

Hopes hit a new high when the wire services reported the man-in-charge of paying NSLI dividends had personally delivered the dividend payment for John F. Kennedy, care of The White House.

Surely, I thought, his would be the last such payment to be made on the list. Does a captain leave his sinking ship first? Mine must be in the mail. Maybe it was delivered this morning.

So I telephoned. The answer was "no". Gloom descended.

It was broken, or cracked, early this week when my helpmate greeted me at the door with word one of the refund checks had arrived. "I can see", she added, "there'll be no mink for me".

And another part of the wait was ended yesterday with delivery of second official-looking check. . . big enough to be worth a million dollars. . . but actually being only an infinitesimal fraction thereof.

All this strain has taken its toll: A sort of relapse has set in and a "who cares?" attitude prevails.

The waiting game is not over; somewhere between me and the Veterans Administration there is another slip of paper with my name on it, but the thought does not excite.

It is only money. . . it does not last. . . its value is subject to the cost of living. . . there is not enough to paper my bedroom ceiling nor yet enough to cause a coat pocket to sag.

More noble thoughts are waiting to be thought. Patience is worthy of greater things.

Quote . . .

"What we must do is to decide, coldly and analytically, what is necessary and unavoidable for government to do—as against what may be merely desirable." — Batesville (Ind.) Herald-Tribune.

Other Editors Saying Death Penalty Opposition

(Burlington Daily Times-News) Governor Terry Sanford has stated he does not favor the death penalty, probably is face-to-face with his first decision in the case of Robert L. Case, convicted of raping a Lincoln County farm wife. What will he do? Will he commute the death sentence to life imprisonment?

If the Governor intervenes in the case, he will have rejected the finding of a jury of citizens who convicted the man of the charge without recommending mercy, the judge who sentenced him to the gas chamber and the United States Supreme Court (Earl Warren et al) that refused to review the case.

It has been accepted in these columns that Terry Sanford, prior to his ascension, now and in the future, is invested in the right to have, to hold and keep sacred his personal opinion in the matter of capital punishment or any other subject sociological, political, judicial or economic.

If Governor Sanford reads the headlines day after day, if the case of Fred Thompson, 59, who lured, raped and murdered a 4-year-old child in New York only a few days ago, failed to impress him that elimination of such fiends from society is justifiable then, again, he is entitled to his opinion.

Thompson himself, who abandoned his own family 15 years ago and once was charged of the hideous crime of molesting his own daughter is not, many believe, worthy of public expense to keep him alive.

Whether a deterrent development or not, it might be a test worthy of trial, if the law in New York State permitted a man like Thompson to mount a scaffold in Times Square, there to be seen by the public as a hovel character with a rope around his neck and dropped through a trap door.

Those of us who value life, who respect and would protect womanhood against violent perversion, find difficulty in forming any conclusion opposed to the death penalty with the only exception that in cases like Thompson's, a confessed rapist of a mere baby he lured to his hovel, the courts are too sluggish.

The weakness, if not the fallacy of the public mind, is a tendency to forget as time goes on the brutality of violent crime, its luckless and innocent victims, to the point that sympathy for the culprit develops. The courts may be stagnant or stagnated temporarily, even for years, if there is the "means" available to the defense.

Perhaps Governor Sanford might have remained "status quo" if he had witnessed Fred Thompson in the act of the bestial crime. We are privileged to doubt it. A rabid dog should be killed. . . and quickly!

Some Boomlets Are On The Way

By ELMER ROESSNER

Business look-aheads: Some boomlets are developing. Among them:

Home furnishings: The rise in home building, which demands and governmental pressure appear to assure, will create about 4,000,000 more rooms this year, all needing furniture, carpeting, appliances and other equipment.

Early American: The Jacqueline Kennedy decision to make the White House a showplace of Early American furniture will boom sales and increase prices of genuine pieces — which exist most abundantly in Massachusetts, the Kennedy home state.

Perhaps the most interesting might have remained "status quo" if he had witnessed Fred Thompson in the act of the bestial crime. We are privileged to doubt it. A rabid dog should be killed. . . and quickly!

Auto sales: Indications are that auto sales will be better than predicted as recently as yesterday. Although, in the rhythm that auto makers have inflicted on themselves, this is destined to be an off-year, some perkiness in sales is immediately ahead.

Young buyers will help move more cars. In recent years, rising insurance rates have been taking college-age youths out of the used-car market, and that has contributed to the recent slump in sales. But youngsters who have been stopped from buying old used cars are finding that savings on compact and smaller cars, plus lower insurance rates for these models, are again making them good buys.

HIGHER PRICES FOR CLOTHES Here are more look-aheads, based on analyses of current trends: Costlier apparel: Peace in the garment industry has been bought with 5 1/2 per cent pay increases for garment workers in nine states producing the most clothing. The raise is spread over three years, meaning that clothing costs will rise at least that figure over that time.

Travel aid: The Magnuson bill to establish a United States Travel Service has passed the Senate and seems likely to pass the House, since it has strong Democratic support. This will mean the establishment of travel offices in most foreign countries. If you need work, if you have a foreign language or two, and if you are familiar with the travel business, keep alert for Civil Service employment here.

Tape: A new magnetic tape for recordings, intensely competitive with those on the market, will come out later this year. Projector: An upcoming slide projector will employ ultrasonic waves to focus and change slides by remote control. Speculation: Considerable increase in investments in the world sugar market will come in the next few months, orbited by confusion over the marketable world supply. (Stay out, this market is for pros!)

FRIENDLY DISCOUNT KEEPS PROFITS UP

"I've just come from a visit with an old friend who runs a restaurant," the Old Promoter said when he dropped in to call today.

"So we see," we said. "Never mind looking at my vest," he snapped. "He has a good idea and you should pass it along. Naturally, a lot of friends and people pretending to be friends drop in. After he greets them, my friend calls over the waiter and says, 'These are friends of mine. Take 10 per cent off their bill.'"

"That immediately takes him out from under the obligation of giving them a free meal. Furthermore, the diners thinking they are getting a bargain, order more expensive dishes, and never question extra charges for bread and butter."

"In the end, my friend makes a little more than he would ordinarily, and develops a reputation for always giving friends a break."

Red Devils Drop Phantoms For The Long Count, 79-39

By LEONARD LAO
Reflector Sports Writer

KINSTON'S RED DEVILS won their 23rd consecutive win against no defeats last night, dropping Greenville, 79-39, in the first of two semi-final games of the Northeastern Conference Tournament on the East Carolina College basketball court.

In the second game, which got under way at 9:00 p.m., Roanoke Rapids skinned by Washington by a 69-66 score to gain a berth in the tourney finals.

The Yellow Jackets lock horns with Coach Paul Jones' Red Devils tonight.

Jinx, Or No; Thomas Falls Short

NEW YORK (AP)—After losing to Valery Brumel three times in a row—John Thomas denied today that the Soviet whiz-kid held a whammy on him.

"No, I don't think he has a jinx on me," Thomas said. "No one is unbeatable. I'll just keep on trying."

Brumel soared 7 feet, 3/4 inches Friday night in the Knights of Columbus Games in Madison Square Garden to shatter the indoor board track record by half an inch.

Last Jan. 28, Thomas went 7-3, and two weeks ago, it was Brumel, himself, who cleared 7-3. The same day Thomas accomplished his 7-3, Brumel got over 7-1/2 in Leningrad. It was an indoor meet, but the takeoff was dirt, so there is some question about it being accepted as a world record.

While Brumel was going 7-3/4, the best Thomas could do before a shocked crowd of 14,255 was 6-10—the first time in two years he has failed to clear 7 feet in a major meet.

"I thought I was going to do it," Thomas said wistfully, apparently referring to beating Brumel. "But I just didn't make it. I know I am jumping under my capabilities."

So Brumel and two other Soviet athletes—broad jumper Igor Ter-Ovanesyan and distance man Evgeny Momoikov—head home tonight. Ter-Ovanesyan and Momoikov didn't set any heads to shaking, but, oh, that Brumel!

Here is how the 18-year-old Brumel took care of Thomas in their three meetings:

New York A. C. games—7-3 to 7-1.
National AAU championship—7-2 to 7 even.
Knights of Columbus meet—7-3/4 to 6-10.

Thomas missed three times at 7 feet in the K of C meet, while Brumel made the height on the first try. Brumel made 7-3/4 on his second try. Then he went for 7-5 three times and missed each time. That was about his only disappointment in his entire trip.

Thomas and Brumel probably will meet again in the Soviet championships in Moscow on July 1-2, and again in the U. S.-Soviet dual meet in Moscow July 15-16.

Sanders' Swing May Be Dubious, But He's Ahead

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Golf purists can "tut tut" all they want about the hesitating swing Doug Sanders uses, but the California professional could point to his lead today in the third round of the $30,000 Greater New Orleans Invitational Tournament.

Success and money—$9,000 earned this year—both have settled on the 27-year-old Georgia-born swinger who plays out of Ojai, Calif., but golf form—never. Despite the absence of the classic swing, Sanders was three on top entering today's third round with 68-65-133.

Johnny Pott of Shreveport, La., whose form is much nearer the normal, trailed Sanders at 68-68-136 with Gay Brewer of Crystal River, Fla., third at 72-65-137.

Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., and Freddie Haas of New Orleans were two more strokes back at 139.

Tournament favorite Arnold Palmer, who now plays out of Miami rather than his Pennsylvania home, was eight strokes from the top with nine others, including such players as Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N.Y., and South Africa's Gary Player.

Devils tonight, with the winner claiming the Northeastern Conference title. Tip-off time for the championship will be set for 9:00 p.m., following a consolation battle between Greenville and Washington at 7:00.

EVERETT CAMERON hit two free throws in the first minute of action to give Kinston a 2-0 lead. The Phantoms' John Bynum tied it up with a field goal, but Pete Watkins put the Red Devils ahead for good with a bucket from 20 feet out.

From that point, the unbeaten Kinston quite increased the lead as the game progressed. By the end of the first eight minute period, the winners had a 15 point lead at 19-4. Greenville could not manage to find the range of the hoop, and failed to score in the last four minutes of the first quarter.

In the second period, things were not much better for the locals as they could manage only seven points for an eleven point halftime total. On the other hand, Kinston, behind a blazing fast break attack pumped in 17 more points. Watkins and Kinston's leading scorer, Tommy Matlocks combined for a total of 24 points in the first half. Each had a total of six points in each of the first two quarters and 12 points each at halftime.

Ten personal fouls against the Phantoms contributed to the fact that they did not control the ball very much in the first half of play. The winners wasted no time in making use of their opportunities from the charity line, as they hit twelve in a row before George Rhem missed the first one with two minutes left before intermission. The Red Devils left the floor with a sizable 36-11 halftime lead.

The locals improved their scoring in the last two periods, but unfortunately so did Kinston. Billy James and Erskine Duff, an All-Conference choice this season, both connected for five points in the third period to total 10 of the Phantoms' 12 third quarter points.

Meanwhile, Kinston was putting together its largest point total in the third period, 25 points to give the Red Devils a 61-23 lead going into the home stretch. Cameron, who finished the game with 11 points, accounted for nine of them in Kinston's hot shooting third eight-minute period.

In the fourth quarter, Jones emptied his bench, and little Tommy Dail, a reserve guard, showed capabilities of becoming a front line performer next season. The bespectacled south-paw swished eight points in the last frame.

Watkins finished as the game's high scorer with 20 points. Right behind him was teammate Matlocks with 18 and Jerry Rice with 16.

Duff led the Phantoms in the scoring department with 12 points, as he was the only local to hit the double figure mark. Trailing Duff was James with nine points.

REBOUND KINGPIN—Pete Watkins of Kinston pulls in a rebound for the Red Devils in their 79-39 shellacking of Greenville last night. Watkins was the leading scorer and rebounder for the winners, pumping in 20 points. Kinston battles Roanoke Rapids tonight in the tourney finals at 9:00.

Pam Pack Tripped In Semifinals By Roanoke Rapids

ART DAVIS, an All-Conference center, led Roanoke Rapids to a thrilling 69-66 semi-final round victory over Washington's Pam Pack last night in East Carolina's Memorial Gymnasium, pumping in a total of 30 points and bringing gasps from the packed house with his fierce rebounding.

The six feet-five inch south-paw tallied 14 points in the first half, and added 16 in the last sixteen minutes for the highest individual scoring performance in this year's annual Northeastern Conference Tournament.

The victory sends the Yellow Jackets against Kinston's unbeaten Red Devils tonight in the finals of the four day affair. Tip-off time for the championship affair is set for 9:00 p.m., preceded by a consolation contest between Washington and Greenville, loser to Kinston in last night's opener.

Coach Don Curtis' Yellow Jackets fought back in the second half of a high tension battle and came from behind twice to grab a sweet victory from a very strong Pam Pack quint.

The winners, faced with a cold first period, found themselves with the problem of a six point deficit at the end of the first eight minutes of action, down by a 17-11 margin.

The Yellow Jackets rallied in the second quarter behind the shooting of Davis and Robbie Heuay to cut the Washington lead to one point at halftime, 29-28.

Junior Shearin took the second half tip-off from Davis and dribbled all the way in for a layup, and the Yellow Jackets had a one point lead, 30-29. Shearin, who was fouled on the play added a free throw to make it 31-29.

Then I. B. Paul, the Pam Pack's All-Conference representative this year, dumped a field goal with 6:45 showing on the clock to tie it up at 31-31. After that, the lead changed hands six times in the torrid third quarter, with Roanoke Rapids finally coming out on top on a pair of charity tosses by Heuay with two seconds left in the period to give the Yellow Jackets a slim 46-45 lead at the three-quarters mark.

Heuay took up in the fourth quarter where he had left off in the third and added another free throw and Roanoke Rapids won on it's way for good, leading 47-45. Shearin added a field goal and Davis, who scored six points in the fourth stanza, got all four of them in the first minute and forty-five seconds, boosting the Yellow Jacket lead to 55-49 with 6:15 showing on the scoreboard.

The winners spread the margin to ten points at one point in the last quarter, on a field goal by Heuay with 3:50 left to go. It 63-53. However, the Pam Pack, behind the shooting of Ben Crimes cut the margin to one point at 62-61 with 1:20 left. A field goal by Joe Leggat, who had been fouled by Shearin, put the Yellow Jackets back in the lead, 64-61. Then Allan Boyer, who had a two charity throws, and the Yellow Jacket lead was dwindled down to two points, 67-65.

Once again, it was Heuay to the rescue. The stocky guard was fouled while attempting to bring the ball up the floor, and calmly stepped to the free throw line with 36 seconds left. On a one-and-one situation, Heuay sank both attempts to insure the victory for the Yellow Jackets.

Grimes added another free throw for the Pam Pack, and also managed to get ball possession after his second try missed, but could not get a shot away before the final horn sounded.

Behind Davis in the scoring for Roanoke Rapids was Shearin with 16 points and Heuay with 11.

Grimes led the losers with 23 points, 11 in the last period. Trailing him was Paul with 19 and Billy Francis with 11.

Dressing Room Sounds Tell The Story

By ROY MARTIN

MEMORIAL GYMNASIUM—In the basement, where the teams competing in the Northeastern Conference, sound carries tremendous

After each ball game during the current tournament, visitors to this area of Memorial Gym usually hear on one side of the hall the cheering, loud talking, and other characteristics which indicate that a victory has been won. However, on the other side of the hall, the losing side, there is silence and dejection.

Last night, these sounds carried more than usual, for two of the winning teams, Kinston and Roanoke Rapids really had something to cheer about, for they had gained the coveted trophy.

The Greenville dressing room was a dismal place after the Phantoms had taken the 79-39 loss to Kinston. Coach Bo Farley, a veteran of the ups-and-downs-of the basketball business was a man of few words as he commented about the action which had just concluded on the floor above.

"There's not much you can say . . . we looked awful bad . . . a few baskets would have helped, but we just didn't get them."

As far as Kinston's chances of taking the tournament championship, Farley seemed confident that the Red Devils would walk away with the honor. "I think they have an awful good team . . . a good combination, probably the best of any team in this conference."

DON CURTIS, whose first year of coaching at Roanoke Rapids has brought his team into the finals of the Northeastern Conference Tournament appeared to be extremely thankful man as he reflected on the 69-66 squeaker which his Yellow Jackets had won

Duke Tops South Carolina Cinderella Squad By 92-75

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

RALEIGH—Duke's determined Blue Devils painted a pretty picture for Reynolds Coliseum basketball fans last night and killed South Carolina's Cinderella hopes, 92-75.

Young Coach Vic Bubas admitted afterwards this was the one his club wanted. "We really wanted to get by this one. Now I think we'll be ready for the tournament."

"This was the game that scared me but now I think the boys will be in the right frame of mind for Wake Forest."

"We didn't look too good in the first half but that was partly because of South Carolina. They have a fine team."

"I've never seen a club take those long shots with the confidence they do. They have some excellent outside shooters and that (Art) Whisman has proven the past two years that he's one of the best inside men in the league."

The big Blues from Durham had to fight off the game South Carolinians often in the first half but with sophomore star Art Heyman back in action and never looking better, Duke rode into the finals with an early second half spurt.

"Heyman did a wonderful job for us and (Carroll) Youngkin cleaned the boards. If Youngkin and (Doug) Kistler can play that well tomorrow night we'll be all right," predicted Bubas.

Commenting on the Wake Forest game, Bubas wouldn't predict another high scoring game like the first two Duke-WF contests, the winner scoring over a 100 points in each, but added, "They give some big trophies and you never know what might happen."

He continued, "We thought Wake played a sensational first round game tonight. Everything they shot turned to gold. Chappell was driving for the basket and couldn't be stopped . . . and that (Dave) Wiedeman, I thought he would never miss."

As Bubas finished his press conference, Scotti Ward, the standout Gamecock guard, came in to wish him luck in the finals. "And just think," said Bubas, "he lived just outside my hometown in Cary, Indiana."

McKinney Believes Demon Deacons 'On Fire Now'

RALEIGH—Head Wake Forest cheerleader, towel-thrower and coach Bones McKinney believes it's the way you finish the season that counts.

The Demon Deacons put McKinney's theory in action last night by stamping themselves as the club to beat for the Atlantic Coast Conference title with an explosive-packed 91-76 flurry over Maryland.

The expected Wake Forest victory sent them winging to the ACC finals tonight against Duke's defending champion Blue Devils.

Bones, standing on a pair of scales outside the Deacons' dressing room in order to tower over a horde of well-wishers, in a joking mood, praised each of his starters beginning with hulking center Len Chappell.

"He's an All-American in my book and it was a miscarriage in basketball when they left him

NEWBERRY—Carl Short dropped in two free throws with 35 seconds left in the contest to give Newberry a 65-64 win over East Carolina last night in the NAIA District 26 playoff game on the Indians' home court.

Short's free throws gave the Indians a three point lead, at 65-62, but Lacy West dropped a field goal with 20 seconds remaining to cut the margin to one point.

The Pirates got ball possession once again before the end of the game, but a long shot by center Bill Otte missed its mark with seven seconds left.

Coach Earl Smith, though his team lost, was high in praise for his Pirates. "They really played their hearts out for this one," said the EC tutor. "Especially Otte (Cotton) Clayton and (Charles) Lewis. We have lost a number of games by one, two and three points this season simply because we don't have anyone who can take over as a floor leader," continued Smith. "But I don't want to take anything away from Newberry. They have a fine ball club."

The Pirates enjoyed the game's biggest margin of lead at nine points with 11 minutes to go, but Newberry, behind Short, rallied to catch the losers and from that point until the end of the contest only two or three points separated the teams.

Lewis led East Carolina in the scoring department with 17 points, but he was closely followed by Clayton with 15, Lacy West with 14, and Benny Bowes with 10.

Both teams had no trouble in hitting the bucket from the floor. The Pirates hit on 26 of 47 field goal attempts for a 55.3 percent accuracy.

The Indians made 21 of 41 attempts from the floor for an accuracy of 51.2 percent.

Rosenbluth's single game scoring mark and (3) it was the most points scored on a Maryland team this season.

"We didn't care about breaking any tournament records and we wanted to rest Chappell for the finals."

Asked about tomorrow, Bones replied, "What day is tomorrow," and grinned. It was reserve Dave Wiedeman that put the Deacs on the victory rail early in the game. McKinney's "ace in the hole" threaded the nets with 20 points, most of them coming on outside jumpers.

Talkative Bud Millikan took the defeat in stride. "We knew the only way we could stop Chappell was to cut off his legs and that's illegal."

The Terps, who reached the semis with a lop-sided win over Clemson, were unable to match Wake Forest off the boards or in the shooting percentages.

The Deacs pulled in 50 balls off the boards, and hit on 49.4 percent of their shots. Maryland cleared the boards 36 times and hit on 36.1 percent of their shots.

Bill Stasiulatis led Maryland scrabers with 20 points.

The locals held a one point advantage at the halfway mark, 36-35.

The Indians actually won the game at the free throw line, hitting 23 of 28 attempts. East Carolina made five more field goals than the winners did, but the Pirates only scored 12 of 17 from the charity line.

ED took scoring honors for the evening, pumping in 28 points, one below his season average. John Bouknight trailed Short in the Indian scoring column with 13 points.

Lewis led East Carolina in the scoring department with 17 points, but he was closely followed by Clayton with 15, Lacy West with 14, and Benny Bowes with 10.

Confesses He Is Hit-Run Driver As Another Tried

A 22-year-old Negro man was arrested by Greenville police yesterday on charges of hit-and-run driving and careless and reckless driving, after telling officers he was the operator of a car involved in a collision on U.S. 13-N.C. 11 near the Tar River bridge January 16. The Negro made the confession as J. L. Stokes, 25, of Rt. 4, Greenville, was being held on the charges in City Recorder's Court.

Officers identified the Negro as William Nathaniel Brown, Route 6, Greenville. He was released under a $1,000 bond.

Police said the charges stemmed from the collision of a car being operated by Mrs. Mabel Peaden Windham, and a car owned by Mrs. Beatrice Stokes of Route 4, Greenville.

Officers reported the Stokes car traveling south at a high rate of speed, skidded 150 feet and struck the rear of the Windham vehicle, then continued 300 yards down the road before coming to a halt.

The Windham vehicle traveled 105 feet out of control off the highway and overturned, coming to rest against two trees, they said.

Stokes was found in the lowlands near the highway, "hiding behind a tree," officers said.

Police noted a second man identified as James J. Andrews, 34, of 309 East Gum Road, was found in the Stokes car and was charged with public drunkenness.

Investigators noted at the time that Stokes denied driving the vehicle, but would not identify the operator of the car.

Stokes was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital following the collision, suffering from lacerations of the head and right shoulder, and back injuries. Andrews was treated for minor injuries and released.

Mrs. Windham was treated for abrasions to her back and left ear and neck injuries. She was riding alone in her vehicle.

In court yesterday, Stokes was found guilty by Judge Charles H. Whedbee on the charges of hit-and-run and careless and reckless driving, and sentenced to 90 days in jail on each charge.

According to Judge Whedbee, the case was re-opened following the sentencing of Stokes on a motion from the defense who reported new evidence had been uncovered in the case.

The judge said he had no knowledge of what the new evidence was.

Whedbee noted that Stokes' sentence had been stayed until the evidence can be heard. He added that the charges against Stokes still stand, and he is still under bond.

Hearing of the evidence is set for Friday, he added.

Would Prohibit Teachers' Role In Demonstration

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A drive has developed in the State Legislature to put a damper on teacher-led student demonstrations such as those against the House Committee on un-American Activities.

Assemblyman Louis Francis, a San Mateo Republican, said today he will introduce legislation Monday to prohibit teachers from indoctrinating public school students in any doctrine that preaches overthrow of government.

His measure also would bar teachers from engaging in partisan political activities on campuses. He would prohibit teachers from involving students in such activities.

Francis claims some teachers have utilized their positions to organize students for political activity. He specifically mentioned a recent mock session of the House Committee on un-American Activities sponsored by two Long Beach, Calif., college professors.

Sanford Travels To Push Travel

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Sanford and 30 other Tar Heels traveled outside the state today in an effort to influence others to travel in the state.

The contingent was headed for Cincinnati and the Ohio Valley Travel Show to plug tourist advantages in North Carolina's Variety Vacationland.

After a meeting with newsmen shortly after his arrival, Sanford was to go to a luncheon.

During the afternoon, he was scheduled to present gifts from North Carolina to Cincinnati's mayor and then make appearances at the North Carolina exhibit.

Included in the Tar Heel party were North Carolina's Conservation and Development Director, Hargrove Bowles, and Lynn Nigam, president of the North Carolina Travel Council.

The North Carolina exhibit featured large, lighted color transparencies of the state's vacation attractions. It was built at a cost of about $2,400 and is to be used at other travel shows.

Individual cities, including Asheville, Morehead City, Wilmington, Nags Head, Cherokee and Fontana, and Piedmont Airlines also had displays at the show which began today and ends March 12.

Traffic Light Fell Atop Car When Truck Hit Pole

A traffic light, loosened when a truck hit a utilities pole, crashed down on top of a car at the intersection of 14th and Charles St. yesterday.

It was one of four traffic accidents, with damage estimated by police at over $3,000, to occur in Greenville during the day. Two of the collisions were three-vehicle mishaps.

Investigators said a truck, being driven by Joseph Ralph Spain, 24 of Route 5, Greenville was traveling north on Charles St. and collided with a car being operated by Joseph Earl Joyner, 66 of Route 2, Greenville. The Joyner car was headed east on 14th St. officers noted.

Investigators said the force of the impact caused Spain to lose control of his truck and the vehicle struck utilities poles at the intersection, causing the traffic control light hanging over the center of the intersection to fall on a car being driven by Miss Linda L. Chauncey, 19 of Grifton.

Police set damage to the Spain truck at $1,200, and estimated damage to the Joyner vehicle at $300. Damage to the Chauncey car was estimated to be about $25. The Chauncey car was headed south on Charles St. at that time, police noted.

Officers estimated damage to utilities poles, a fire hydrant, street signs and other property at the intersection at $550. The accident occurred at 11:29 a.m.

Following investigation of the collision, Joyner was charged with failure to yield the right of way. No injuries were reported.

In a second mishap, William Mitchell, Jr., 29-year-old Negro of Route 2, Ayden was charged with failure to yield the right of way

Oppose Boosting N.C. Sales Tax

RALEIGH (AP) — Several Tar Heel merchants have registered opposition to any increase in the state's sales tax rate.

Early returns from a questionnaire distributed by the North Carolina Merchants Association showed a two to one ratio in favor of retaining the present sales tax and extending it to food sales.

Gov. Sanford goes before the General Assembly Monday night and is expected to offer recommendations for new taxes to finance a program of public school improvements.

There has been speculation he may suggest a boost in the sales tax rate from 3 per cent to 3 1/2 per cent.

Executive Vice President Thompson Greenwood said, "Our folks say they have enough trouble figuring up the 3 per cent rate, much less 3 1/2 per cent."

Of 90 merchants who submitted answers to the 600 questionnaires mailed this week, 60 favored extending the 3 per cent rate to food items which now are exempt.

The questionnaires, Greenwood, said were sent to sample opinion before the association's Board of Directors meets here Wednesday.

Much opposition to a sales tax boost has come from merchants near the border of Virginia which has no sales tax.

Has Maxim For Sec. Goldberg

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 32-year veteran congressman gave a political maxim Friday to one of the Kennedy administration's newcomers to public office.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., and Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg got into a discussion of who should run the program to aid depressed areas.

Goldberg said he was not recommending the Labor Department, although "it would be normal to put your horn for your own agency."

"There are some people in politics," Patman said, "who believe that for him that tooth not his own horn, the same shall not be tooted."

90,000 Fugitives Running Loose

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover today estimated that on any given day there are possibly 90,000 fugitives from justice loose in the United States.

Tagged to this report was a new Hoover appeal for greater public cooperation with law enforcement agencies in combating criminal activity.

Writing in the March issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, Hoover said:

"There is little chance that the dikes of decency and morality in America can long withstand the surging tidal wave of crime threatening our nation unless every citizen, just as in flood-menaced communities, is willing to pitch in to help stem the tide."

Hoover announced the FBI is making available on request law enforcement agencies, civic and service organizations a new poster designed to rally public help.

Old Drugs And Remedies On Pharmacy's Shelves Not So Outdated As Supposed

By HENRY HOWARD Reflector Staff Writer

"Old drugs and remedies? Yes, we got plenty of them."

"Outdated drugs and remedies? Well, I'm not so sure the old ones are so outdated."

That's what the man said (Mr. B.A. Pharmacist, that is) when questioned the other day about the old remedies he still carries in stock.

B.A. quite readily confirmed the belief that a considerable number of people still place absolute faith in the curative and preventive powers of the time-tested standbys.

In fact, he said, a "considerable number" of Greenville still abide by the strict rules of certain remedial practices long considered by doctors and pharmacists "completely outdated" or even "superstitious."

Positive proof of B.A.'s observation and declaration lies in the fact that every major drug wholesale house still stocks supplies of the oldtimers among substances popularly used as drugs.

In some parts of the country, a demand still exists for leeches for customers who still cling to the ancient leeching method of reducing swelling and lessening discoloration of bruises.

While he caches of leeches were uncovered in Greenville, an impressive collection of long-used materials on drug store shelves. Some of the substances, even though intended for a useful purpose, are mainly purchased to be used as elements of superstitious practices.

None of the old drugs, says B.A., are harmful—even though they might prove relatively ineffective. "As long as people want them, though," he maintains, "I've got no choice but to keep them on my shelves."

Snake Oil

B.A. says an ordinary layman who has been sort of unconsciously following the modern trend toward "the newer-type drug" may be quite surprised to discover the uses of an older preparation—snake oil, for instance.

Mr. Pharmacist reports there are "many calls for snake oil" for use as a rubbing compound or liniment for sore muscles or joints. It is used "with amazing frequency" as a treatment liniment for rheumatism, he says.

In recent years, however, many snake oil customers have been dismayed somewhat as liniment firms have seen fit to curb the product's production. To meet demands, however, many former snake oil bottlers have made it quite clear on the bottle labels (in letters at least an inch high) of the product's substitute that the new preparation is as good as or better than snake oil. They consistently emphasize their product was formerly called "Snake Oil."

This is because, according to B.A., "It's the 'Snake' that made the difference."

Many Others

But snake oil is only one.

Among other popular remedies that have been used for who knows how long are such items as sugar of lead, lump alum, catnip herb, flaxseed, senna pods, rock candy, glycerated asafoetida, Hungarian Chamomile, saltpetre, Dewee's carminative and more.

And B.A. says many of these time-tested remedies and curing agents are quite valuable. They have been replaced in most cases by newer preparations, he points out, but they "still prove their worth to the people who use them," he says.

Only a few of the uses of the materials are so-called absurd practices.

B.A. knows real examples, for instance, of people who place a small piece of asafoetida in a little cloth sack and tie the "charm" around the neck of a child to cure or prevent colds. Others chew small pieces of the gummy substance to eliminate cold symptoms.

B.A. professes no knowledge of any medicinal use for asafoetida.

He points out, furthermore, that some people tuck an alum lump in their jaw and suck on it to cure sore throat. "This," he says, "is ridiculous, but it must be fun."

Working his way down his shelf of old remedies, B.A. pinpoints:

Rock candy is used to make solutions for children or "those who don't take whiskey" for curing coughs and colds.

Catnip herbs are used to brew "Catnip Tea," an age-old remedy for colds.

Flaxseed prove "quite satisfactory" in removing foreign matter from the eye.

Dewee's carminative is used "quite frequently" for baby's colic.

Hungarian chamomile is brewed into a preparation that has been long used for treatment of certain skin rashes.

Sugar of lead is mixed into a solution to soak parts of the body affected by poison oak or ivy.

Senna pods are boiled in water to prepare a brew that acts as a laxative agent.

B.A. Pharmacist admittedly has no objection to stocking the old remedies for his customers. To the contrary, he says he sorta likes the business.

And, going a step further, he vividly emphasizes that, while some of the popular oldtimers are utterly superstitious, many of them "really do work."

He confidentially admits: "I use some of them myself."

OUTDATED OR JUST TIME-TESTED? . . . This collection of common remedies is representative of the "old drug" shelf in the corner drug store. Many of them, still in demand, have been in use for centuries.

Grifton Library Earns Feeling Of Appreciation

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

GRIFTON — A growing patronage at the Grifton Public Library reflects a feeling of appreciation for the institution, which is now hardly a year old.

The library is a one-room affair, 25 by 32 feet, with room for expansion. It contains books gathered from different sources, including Sheppard Memorial Library in Greenville, the State Library in Raleigh and some 1,400 volumes which have been given to the library's permanent collection.

It is used primarily by children, many of them drop by after school hours in the afternoon. Smaller children come in to select books for their parents to read to them.

Some of the older students use the library as a place to study.

As for the adult readers, they are thankful for the library. They, of course, take more books out at a time and consequently visit less often. Some of them traveled as far as Greenville and Kinston to get books, before Grifton had its own public library.

One observer has commented that the existence of the library here has increased the reading interest in Grifton, and that it seems that the town's reading level has "come up."

One indication of adult interest in the library and its books is the meeting of a first-year Great Books Discussion Club every other Thursday night in the library building. Leaders are Mrs. William Edge and Frank Davis. It is the only such organization in Pitt County.

Book Supply

In addition to the 1,400 books owned by the library, 600 books have been on loan from the State Library in Raleigh, and about 50 books per month are exchanged with Sheppard Memorial Library. Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian of Sheppard Memorial Library in Greenville, has allowed the Grifton Public Library to select 50 books per month from their collection for reading purposes, and return and exchange them for 50 others each month.

Other books are available at the library through the Sheppard Memorial Library bookmobile, which stops about every three weeks.

Land Given

Interest in a public library for the town of Grifton became active during the fall of 1959. In November of 1959, an interested group of citizens established a temporary library in a flower shop owned by Mrs. Gladys Burney of Grifton. The library remained here a few months, until the building was needed for other purposes.

As interest in the project grew, the library committee began a drive to raise funds for financing a building.

Land for the site was given by two sisters, Mrs. Murie Harvey Nelson and Mrs. Jean Harvey Williams, in memory of their husbands, Richard A. Nelson and Thurman J. Williams.

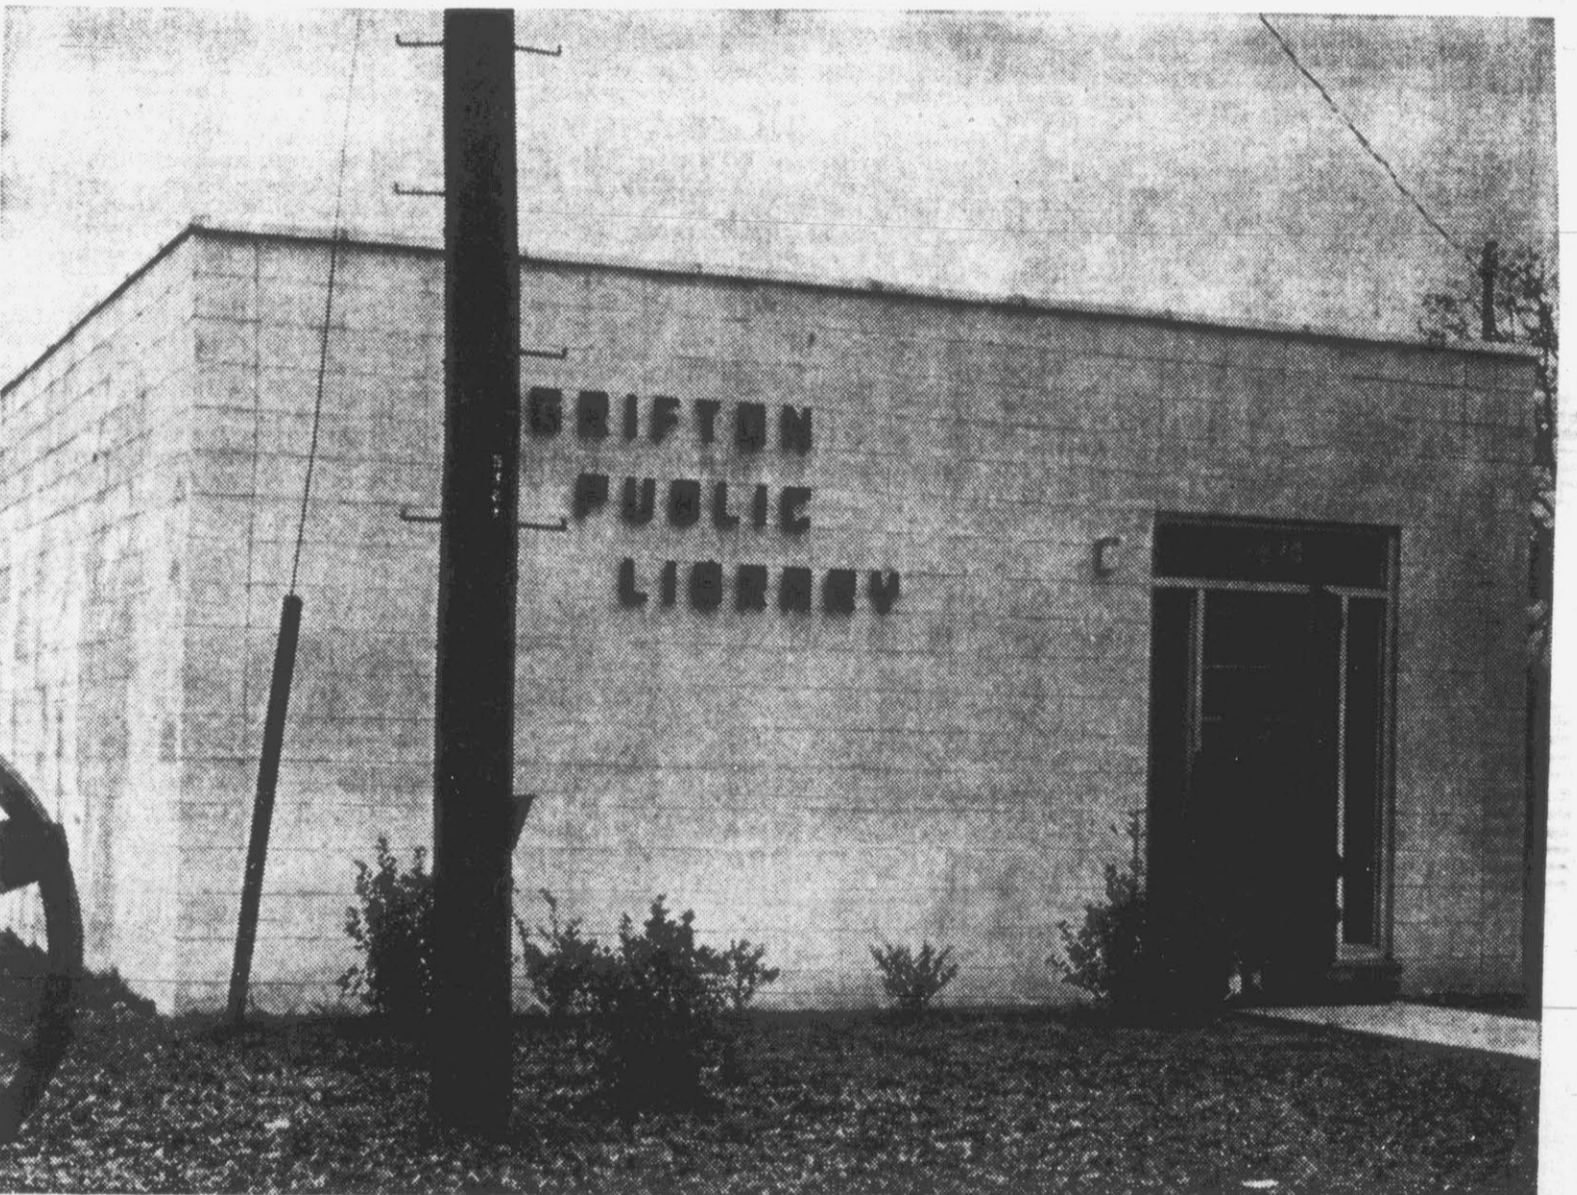

Some of the labor and painting in the library building was done by volunteers, while the construction was financed by funds raised by an interested library committee. A drive to raise funds for the building preceded the building — and when the committee of eight turned the deed for the property over to the town, the project went with no liability and no debt. Mayor Wiley Gaskins accepted the deed on behalf of the town at dedication ceremonies last April.

All workers in the library were volunteers until July 1, 1960, when Mrs. Gladys Burney became the first paid librarian. She recently resigned from the post effective March 1, and Mrs. Ed Bright of Grifton was selected to take her place.

Members of the original library committee included W. A. Lylerly as chairman; Dr. David Fosbury, treasurer; Mrs. Lylerly, secretary; Ed Bright; Mrs. Ivan Bissette; Mrs. Charles Kline; Don Casey and George Saleeby.

The Library Board now consists of Lylerly as chairman, Don Casey, Mrs. Ivan Bissette and Mrs. Kline.

A GROWING INSTITUTION . . . with a growing patronage is foreseen for the Grifton Public Library.

AFTER SCHOOL . . . there is time to pick out a favorite reading book. Here Phillip Brown, Jimmy Brown and Johnny Craft do just that.

NEW LIBRARIAN . . . Mrs. Ed Bright becomes acquainted with books in the Library.

TV Pilot Season Activity Is High

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The pilot season is rolling full-steam in Hollywood these days, with millions being gambled on hopeful TV series.

Sponsors are buying early this year. That news has sent the film factories scurrying to produce new attractions to replace the season's casualties. Nowhere is there more scurrying than at 20th Century-Fox.

The studio got into TV late, so far has scored only two successes—"Dobie Gillis" and "Adventures in Paradise." Next year may be different. A big chunk of coin is being dropped into six proposed series with Roy Huggins, late of "Maverick," in charge.

This flurry of activity bore looking into, so I visited the lot Stage 11 I found Ginger Rogers, ready for her fifth leap into marriage (to producer William Marshall) and her first into a TV series. It's called "The Ginger Rogers Show."

"Margie," another movie re-tread with Cynthia Pepper in the shall and her first into a TV series.

"House on Rue Riviera" in Southern France with John Ericson and Richard Anderson seek. "One is a writer, intensely practical, hard-headed, direct. The field among the scenery, other is a designer, flighty, impractical, living in a world of dreams. Charlie Ruggles plays my uncle."

Over on Stage 14 they were shooting the pilot of "The Hunters," an hour-long hopeful about big game hunting in Africa. There was Brett Halsey making love to Felicia Farr with the velvet in back.

On the back lot, the movie makers were aiming at the sure-fire frontier market with another hour effort called "The Jaylarkers." A couple of new lads, Jack Gaynor and Jack Betts, were being groomed to head this project.

Already filmed are three other lead chapters of hopeful series: "Bus Stop," using characters from the movie-Tuesday Weld in the Marilyn Monroe role, Gary Lockwood as Don Murphy, plus Joseph Cotten, Marilyn Maxwell to see what was going on. On and Buddy Ebsen.

"Margie," another movie re-tread with Cynthia Pepper in the shall and her first into a TV series.

Pitt 4-H Clubs Observing Week

Beginning today, 875 4-H Club members in Pitt County will join fellow members throughout the United States in observing National 4-H Club week.

A variety of activities will be used by certain clubs in celebrating the week.

4-H Club work gives the members training and experience in citizenship, community life, character building and spiritual development, as well as teaching them better farm and home methods and skills.

This work is conducted through a planned program, including project work, recreation and activities such as health, safety, conservation, courtesy and grooming. Members participate in such events as National 4-H Club Week, State 4-H Club Week, County, District and State Achievement Programs, International 4-H Conference and Congress, 4-H Sunday and Camp.

There are projects available to deal with practically every phase of farming and homemaking. Many projects require little, if any, expense on the part of the club members.

Adult leaders serve in each community, and other leaders serve through the county Farm Agent's office and the Home Economics Agent's office.

(A series of articles will follow during 4-H Club Week, March 4-11, written by local 4-H Club members and leaders.)

Sugg Speaks At HD Club Meet

"New Inheritance Laws and Wills" was the topic presented by Bruce Sugg, Jr., guest speaker at a meeting Tuesday of the Simpson Home Demonstration club, which included husbands and guests.

Sugg said laws of North Carolina give each adult citizen the right to make a will and dispose of his or her estate as desired. He used graphic charts to illustrate how property will be disposed of where no will is left and the court appoints an administrator.

C. J. Goodman, assistant farm agent, urged farmers to use good farm practices to increase the family income and to train youth to be leaders.

Mrs. Ella Pate, president, welcomed the guests and Lyman Mills responded.

Other guests included Mrs. Sue May, county home economics agent; Milton May; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Goodson; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Moore; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spell; and Mrs. Zeno Hudson.

A covered dish supper was served.

Greetings From A New President

GARDNER, Mass. (AP) — Victor Bronislavski passed her 112th birthday Friday, doing her household chores as usual.

One of her biggest thrills of the day was a congratulatory message from President Kennedy.

Two other presidents — Truman and Eisenhower — had saluted her since she was 100.

Mrs. Bronislavski has 34 living descendants.

Revival Services

The Winterville Pentecostal Holiness Church announces revival services beginning Monday night, March 6. Evangelist C. V. Hux will be bringing the messages each evening at 7:30. There will be special singing each evening. The public is cordially invited.

By ROBERT A. WILLIS RALEIGH (AP) — Court bills continued to hold the stage this week in the North Carolina legislature, which was enlivened by a holiday-like trip to Greensboro and saddened by the death of veteran Rep. Fiecius Gobbie of Forsyth.

Sen. Lindsay Warren of Beaufort was joined by 29 other senators in sponsoring a bill to establish a uniform system of inferior courts.

This bill carried the endorsement of Sen. Lindsay Warren of Beaufort, a powerful influence in the senate, and quickly became identified as one of his major interests.

It would make less sweeping changes than the bill introduced earlier by Rep. H. P. Taylor Jr. of Anson and Sen. Lunsford Crew of Halifax, which would put the entire courts system under administrative control of the state Supreme Court and create a "united and uniform" court system.

Sen. J. Spencer Dell of Mecklenburg, a backer of the Taylor-Crew bill, said the Warren-Crawford measure is good as far as it goes in revamping the courts system. Bell said, "The question is, which bill will more nearly achieve the stated objective" of improving the system?"

Warren predicted that his bill would get unfavorable committee reports, but told senators, "Let me assure you, you will have a chance to vote by roll call on this bill."

Both bills would amend the state constitution, and passage of either would require approval by three-fifths of the legislators.

Another bill, affecting only the magistrates' courts, was offered by Sen. Edward B. Clark of Bladen, who termed it "an attempt by the magistrates to clean their own house." An identical measure was also introduced in the House.

It would give the legislature authority to determine the number of peace justices, and decide which of them is to be elected or appointed; provide for uniform fees, bonds and audits, and prohibit jaypees from receiving more money from a conviction; and empower county commissioners to determine fees in civil cases.

Another controversial issue was laid before the General Assembly when Sen. Claude Currie of Durham introduced his long-awaited bill to redistrict the State Senate so as to bring senate representation more in line with population changes.

The bill, certain to arouse heated controversy, would make a number of changes in the present set-up of Senate districts and would reduce the number of districts by one, from 33 to 32.

It would give the state's three most-populous counties — Mecklenburg, Guilford and Forsyth — two senators each. They now have only one each.

The reluctance of the state's small counties to allow the big counties more than one senator is one reason the General Assembly refused for the entire decade of the 50's to re-district the Senate or reappoint the House. The constitution says it should do so after every federal census.

Tuesday's trip to Greensboro included a session conducted before more than 2,700 people, mostly school children, in which Rep. W. C. Harris of Wake introduced a bill to ban capital punishment except on second offenses of such crimes as murder and rape.

The 70-year-old Gobbie, who was serving his 10th term in the legislature, suffered a heart attack after the Wednesday session, was hospitalized and died that night. He was eulogized by members of both houses and a large delegation was named to represent the assembly at his funeral.

Other legislative action during the week:

The House Committee on Elections and Election Laws reported favorably on a resolution to make North Carolina the 22nd state to ratify the 23rd amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The amendment would give District of Columbia residents the right to vote for president and vice president, and allow them three electoral votes. The bill is scheduled for House consideration Tuesday.

The House Congressional Districts Committee was urged by the North Carolina League of Women Voters to reappoint House membership and redistrict the Senate in accord with 1960 census figures as required by the state constitution.

The group took no action on one bill to reappoint the House. Rep. Dwight Quinn of Cabarrus said Rep. Frank Wooten of Pitt would introduce a bill to amend the constitution, provide for 150 House members instead of 120 and freeze the present Senate apportionment by geographical districts.

Spring Business Spurt Is Generally Accepted

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Stockbrokers' customers are just as split as the politicians on Capitol Hill as to where the economy is going—and why.

The questions: Is the downturn in general business activity petering out? If so, when will an upturn be evident? And what will the government do about hastening it?

The last question causes the widest split in Wall Street opinion. Strong opposing views on what the government will do and what the effects will be, have led to the heavy trading of late in the stock market.

In Washington the game of guessing when the business downturn will end, and why it will, is both economic and political.

President Kennedy stated the administration view in his Wednesday news conference. He hopes—as do many in business—that the economy will move up in the spring and summer. He has no statistical evidence that an upturn has taken place.

And in any case the President thinks his anti-recession proposals are still necessary and should be adopted.

But many on Capitol Hill don't think they seem as urgent now.

A large portion of business opinion also holds that the economy is set to cure itself shortly.

And in the stock market opinions as to the effects of government measures are widely split. Some think the proposals would be bad for business in the long run after their temporary stimulus wore off. They fear business profits would be cramped, taxes would rise, especially those governing capital gains. Above all they fear another dose of inflation. So many see this as a time to sell stocks, take what profits they may have and wait and see.

The other school thinks the Congress is in a mood to pass legislation aimed at increasing the long term rate of economic growth. Many companies should stand to gain, they reason.

And if this should bring along with it another round of inflation on the heels of Treasury deficits, well, stocks are regarded as a good hedge. This is because their prices tend to rise as the purchasing value of money goes down, while the yields on many other forms of investment or savings tend to drop.

So they see today as the time to buy.

True, business statistics still are mostly gloomy. Many refer to January or December conditions. They reveal a real slump compared with a year ago. Jobless totals are still the gloomiest of the lot.

But the rate of downturn has slowed in many other important sectors.

Business trimming of inventories seemed to have halted in January, if only momentarily. Government spending is beginning to rise. Hopes are strong for rising steel orders by April.

Auto men think their market has a better tone, auguring well for spring sales. Home builders look for some upturn, if not much before summer.

And, of course, the enthusiasm of the large coterie of bulls in the stock market tends to be catching.
