U.S. Atomic Sub Cruises 66 Days Fully Submerged

HOLY LOCH, Scotland (AP)—The U. S. nuclear submarine Patrick Henry tied up in the Holy Loch today after a world record operational cruise of 66 days and 22 hours totally submerged.

U S. Navy officials announced the record after the Patrick Henry arrived alongside her mother ship, the tender Proteus. The first sub to cruise abroad with a full load of 16 Polaris missiles, the Patrick Henry is the first of the fleet of 10 American rocket-firing subs that will use the Holy Loch as a base within missile range of the Soviet Union.

"We could remain submerged a good many weeks more," the Patrick Henry's skipper, Capt. Harold E. Shear, told newsmen aboard the Proteus.

The atom sub's sister ship, the George Washington, held the previous record of 66 days 10 hours submerged.

Shear said he sailed the submarine from Charleston, S. C. under fully armed conditions. Asked if he expected he might get the order to "press the button" — releasing his missiles at an enemy—he replied: "We were certainly prepared for such eventualities."

Four of the six young Britons who tried to incite an anti-nuclear demonstration when the Proteus arrived last week made another effort against the Patrick Henry.

Laurence Otter, 30, of London, came out in a canoe and three others in a rowboat. Several dozen British naval and police launches fended them off, and the demonstrators never got close enough to the submarine for any kind of incident.

The docking was watched approvingly by a few citizens of Dunoon, the Holy Loch town that has generally rejected the anti-nuclear demonstrators and accepted the base as a desirable boon to business.

The Patrick Henry will be serviced by the depot ship and will take on a relief crew that arrived by air last week.

All told, the Patrick Henry was at sea 68 days. She surfaced during the night north of Ireland.

Morale aboard the sub remained high, Capt. Shear said.

"The air on the ship was perfect throughout the patrol," he said. "As a matter of fact, there were some comments that the air on the ship was better than the air outside after we surfaced."

Asked if any Soviet vessels were encountered on the voyage, Shear said:

"We are getting into operational matters. I just can't answer questions like that."

The Patrick Henry had 140 men aboard—13 officers, 122 enlisted men and 5 civilians who represented manufacturers of the equipment.

Joyner Files

FARMVILLE — W. E. Joyner, member of the Farmville Board of Commissioners, has become the first candidate to succeed Charles S. Edwards the town's mayor.

The Town Clerk's office reported Joyner has paid his $5 filing fee to officially become a candidate for the mayor's post in the May 2 municipal election.

Mayor Edwards announced Feb. 8 he would not be a candidate to succeed himself in May. The expiration of Edwards' current term on June 30 will mark his completion of three terms as mayor.

According to Town Clerk Harold Allred today, no candidates for the five commissioner posts had filed. However, it has been reported Commissioner Oliver Murphrey will seek re-election to a second term on the board.

Farmville Board Selects May 2 As Election Day

FARMVILLE—Farmville's Commissioners last night set the town's municipal election day for May 2.

The five-man board adopted an ordinance that set the first Tuesday in May (May 2) for electing a mayor and five commissioners.

The commissioners also reviewed a trio of legislative changes that will affect this year's election. The changes resulted in special legislation enacted for Farmville in the 1959 General Assembly.

New features pointed out were:

1. Prohibition of so-called "one shot balloting." The 1959 act requires voters to vote for no more or no less candidates than there are offices to be filled by the election. In Farmville's case, voters will be required to vote for five commissioners and a mayor.

2. More time between elections if a second or runoff election is required. The new provision provides that a second election, if needed, shall be held on the fourth Tuesday in May (May 23). Formerly, second elections were provided for on the third Tuesday in May.

3. Earlier filing deadline for candidates for mayor. Candidates for mayor, as well as candidates for commissioner, must file for the election 10 days before election day to allow more time to have ballots printed. Formerly, candidates for mayor could wait until five days before the election to file. The commissioner candidates' deadline was unchanged.

Further preparing for the upcoming election, the board appointed C. A. Lilley registrar and designated April 8, 15 and 22 as Saturdays for registration. Lilley will keep the books open until sundown April 22. He will register voters on the three Saturdays at the Farmville fire station.

The board also appointed James Kilpatrick and Arthur F. Joyner as poll holders for the election. Leroy Bass was named alternate poll holder.

In other action the board:

Adopted a new ordinance to give the town complete control of condemning buildings. Under the ordinance, a revision of an older one, Building Inspector Curtis Flanagan will be authorized to condemn buildings deemed, according to stipulations within the provision, unfit for human habitation.

Approved painting and repairing windows and doors of the Boy Scout Hut, formerly occupied by the Farmville National Guard unit.

UN Congo Command's Position Worsening As Harsh Terms Set

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The U.N. Congo Command bargaining position worsened today, at least temporarily, with an announcement that 800 Moroccan soldiers previously scheduled for transfer to Leopoldville would be flown home instead.

The United Nations had announced Tuesday that the Moroccans were already being flown in from Katanga Province, and observers saw them as a strengthener for the U.N. demand to return to Matadi.

But today a U.N. spokesman said there had been a change of orders and the Moroccans would be flown to Morocco.

The spokesman refused to comment on reports that the Moroccans had refused to board planes to bring them to Leopoldville.

Six hundred Tunisian soldiers did arrive in Lepoldville today on schedule to reinforce the local U.N. garrison. The first of 3,000 Indian soldiers are due next week. But 400 Sudanese troops who bore the brunt of Congolese army attacks in the ports of Matadi and Banana last week are being called home.

The Congolese government today presented a five-point ultimatum to Rajeshwar Dayal, Indian head of the U.N. Congo operation, and said it must be fulfilled before U.N. forces can return to Matadi, the chief supply port from which the U.N. Sudanese garrison was expelled Sunday.

The United Nations was considered certain to reject the Congolese demands, which were:

1. Dayal must be recalled and replaced by an "impartial" U.N. official. The Leopoldville government charges Dayal is opposed to it.

2. The Congolese must control the flights of all U.N. aircraft in the Congo and all river traffic.

3. The United Nations must hand over all strategic bases to the Congolese.

4. The United Nations must stage no more armed parades in Leopoldville.

5. Dayal must officially retract his "lying statements" that the Congolese fired first at Matadi and Banana.

An earlier Congolese demand for control of the strategic bases and air traffic in exchange for return of U.N. soldiers to Matadi had been termed "obviously unacceptable" by U.N. sources.

The Congolese demands were put to Dayal and Irish Gen. Sean McKeown, the U.N. military chief, by acting Premier Albert Delvaux and Jacques Massa, a member of his Cabinet.

As the negotiations continued, the Congolese talked with increasing belligerence as a result of their victory over the Sudanese garrison that withdrew from Matadi. Delvaux told newsmen "for the moment we have decided that U.N. soldiers will not go back" to Matadi, which is 150 miles southwest of Leopoldville.

A U.N. spokesman commented that the international command is determined to maintain a free hand in the movement of men and supplies. He refused to say whether U.N. troops were moving toward Matadi.

The United Nations has about 16,000 troops in the Congo. The fresh troops from India and Tunisia will boost the force to 20,000.

X-15 Test-Flown At 2,650 MPH

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—"I feel certain the X15 will achieve its design mission."

That was Air Force Maj. Bob White's casual way of predicting the record-setting rocket ship eventually will fly 50 to 100 miles high at speeds up to 4,000 miles per hour.

His fringe-of-space prediction came after the handsome, dark-haired pilot's test flight of the X15's powerful new engine Tuesday.

The engine, open only two-thirds of full throttle, hurtled White across the desert sky at 2,650 miles an hour—a record for manned flight. Officials said instrument checks may revise the figure upward to 2,800 m.p.h.

Another record was set when air friction heated the plane's stainless steel skin to an estimated 700 degrees, warmest yet for a man-carrying craft.

White, 37, said his pressure suit and air conditioned cabin kept him comfortable at all times.

The X15 program calls for speed increases of 330 m.p.h. on each flight. Temperatures of up to 1,200 degrees are expected to make the X15's skin glow cherry red on future flights.

Tuesday's flight scorched the white insignia off the fuselage and blistered paint on the tail.

The X15 dropped from its B52 mother ship at 45,000 feet over Silver Lake, 110 miles east of Edwards Air Force Base. White took it up to 75,000 feet for the speed run.

Two minutes and five seconds after the drop it was all over. White had surpassed his own X15 speed mark of 2,275 m.p.h.

He cut off the 57,000-pound thrust engine, soared up to 77,000 feet and began the glide back to base. Total elapsed flight time: seven minutes.

Another Entry In Beauty Pageant

Arlene Harrington of Greenville will be a participant in the Miss Greenville Beauty Pageant to be held in Wright Auditorium March 16.

Miss Harrington is a student at Junius H. Rose High School and will graduate this spring.

The blue eyed, brown haired contestant has been a member of the Glee Club for four years. She is a member of the Dramatics Club, has studied home economics for one year and is a member of the Bible Club.

. ARLENE HARRINGTON

She has had special training in music for three years and her talent for the pageant will be singing.

The five foot one inch beauty is the daughter of Mrs. Blanche Harrington of 1402 N. Washington St.

DELAYED RESTITUTION

DUNCAN, Okla. (AP)—County Treasurer R. E. Montgomery reported receiving $25 in a letter which explained the money had been collected for the county rodeo in 1928. The unsigned letter explained the oversight in net turning in the money had bothered the writer.

House Approves 'Tools Of Trade'

WASHINGTON (AP) — In tacit agreement that bourbon, scotch and martinis are "tools of the trade" to a diplomat, the House has voted $22,000 for entertainment funds for 17 new U.S. diplomatic missions in Africa.

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, had tried to knock that amount from an omnibus appropriation bill, asserting "entertainment" was a misnomer. "No matter how thin you slice it," he told the House, "it's still for more liquor."

Defending the appropriation, Rep. John Rooney, D-N.Y., assured the House the money, going to missions opened since last year, would not lead to "any alcoholic splurge on the continent of Africa."

Hard beverages, Rooney said, "are the tools of the trade."

Big Snowstorm Sweeps 3 States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A raging snowstorm, lashed by winds up to 50 miles an hour, whistled across Iowa, Nebraska and Wisconsin today, frustrating searchers for a missing 4-year old farm boy.

Lost in Iowa's worst storm of the season was little Jimmie Frank, who wandered away from his father in a field in Winthrop in the eastern part of the state Tuesday. The boy never reached home.

Searchers looked for Jimmie until 2:30 a.m. Then, in a dramatic mass effort to comb the area today, neighbors and townspeople were prevented from reaching the Frank farm by clogged county roads.

Five inches of new snow left a total of 17 inches on the ground in northwestern Iowa, while Denison in the western sector reported 14.

Iowa roads were closed as were schools and motorists were stranded in huge drifts. The northern half of the state measured 5 to 6 inches. Roads throughout the state were hazardous.

A foot of snow blanketed the North Platte area in Nebraska. Sidney in the Panhandle section measured 8 inches as did Norfolk in the northeast.

Heavy snow, driven by swift winds, whipped over Wisconsin south of a line from La Crosse to Green Bay. Shifting drifts made driving hazardous in the Milwaukee area. Heavy snow warnings were in effect.

South of the snowfall, freezing rain and sleet hit communities.

Still farther south, rain and thundershowers dotted the landscape.

The snowstorm barreled out of the Rockies Tuesday, moving eastward through Wyoming, Colorado and Nebraska after leaving up to six inches of snow.

Two highway deaths were attributed to the storm in Nebraska.

Liz Winning Her Fight For Life

LONDON (AP)—Film star Elizabeth Taylor, fighting for her life against double pneumonia, is "vastly improved" tonight.

Dr. Victor Ratner, one of seven doctors attending the 29-year-old actress, passed this word to newsmen as he left London Clinic for a rest at his home.

Eddie Fisher, singer husband of the lovely brunette actress, left the hospital smiling and cheerful. He told reporters:

"She is doing very well. I have spoken to her just now."

Asked whether Miss Taylor knew how ill she had been Fisher replied that, "She has a pretty good idea."

A crowd of 50 persons murmured good wishes as Fisher entered his chauffeur-driven car to return to the 30-pound ($84) a day hotel suite where he and his wife were staying when she fell ill last Friday.

Doctors said that for the first time since the 29-year-old movie star was stricken four days ago she was "sufficiently conscious to be able to assist in her own treatment."

A medical bulletin this morning from the bedside said her "condition is greatly improved and gives less cause for anxiety."

The beauteous actress made an amazing comeback during the night from the brink of death.

Just before midnight the doctors reported her condition improved but said it "still gives rise to considerable anxiety."

A few hours later they reported "her improvement is maintained. She is just on the danger list."

Only an hour afterward they issued a bulletin saying:

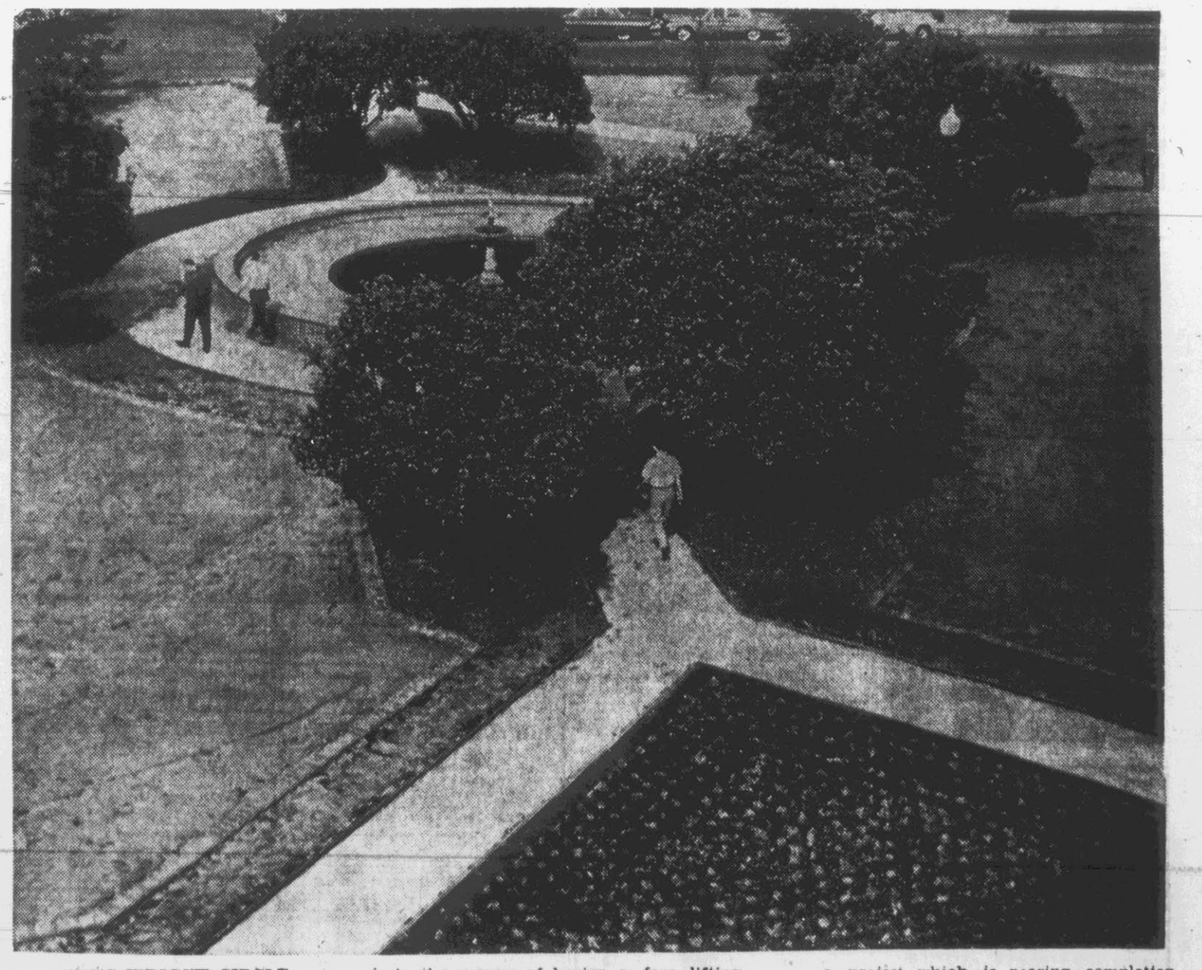

"(Her) condition is greatly improved and gives less cause for anxiety. In addition, today is the first day in which she has been sufficiently conscious to be able to assist in her own treatment."

Until Tuesday the young actress was in a coma much of the time, kept breathing only with the aid of an electronic lung pumping oxygen through a tube inserted in her throat.

An attack of anemia weakened her, and she was given blood transfusions. The only nourishment she could get was through a tube attacked to blood vessels in an ankle.

A hospital spokesman explained this morning that Miss Taylor was now able to move herself under her doctor's instructions—to empty her lungs of the liquefying pneumonia—and was completely aware of what was going on around her.

Thomas Beecham Dies In London

LONDON (AP) — Sir Thomas Beecham, 81, internationally known conductor of symphony and opera, died early today.

Beecham had been in poor health for many months, although he continued to make recordings. He died at his London home after a cerebral thrombosis.

He was Britain's greatest symphonic conductor of the 20th century and one of the world's foremost interpreters of the music of Mozart, Handel and Haydn. But he was known almost as well to music lovers for his caustic witticisms, sometimes shocking, usually irreverent, which infuriated or delighted his audiences.

In February 1960, while undertaking a three-month tour of America, he suffered a severe attack of virus pneumonia. He responded quickly to treatment, but it was obvious that the illness had made great demands on his strength.

Returning to Britain in April, he was forced by his doctors to cancel a series of performances at Covent Garden.

Sir Thomas inherited a vast fortune and a baronetcy from his father, who made his money manufacturing pills and other patent medicines. The son spent millions popularizing operatic and symphonic works, producing 120 operas in England early in the century, organizing eight orchestras over a period 40 years, and keeping alive the music of British composer Frederick Delius almost single-handed. He also introduced Russian ballet to the country.

He was married three times. His first marriage, in 1903 to Utica Celestia Welles of New York, ended in 1943 in divorce. Soon after he married English pianist Betty Humby, who died in 1958. In 1959 he married his secretary, Shirley Hudson, 27. He had two sons by his first marriage.

After studying music at Oxford, he made his debut in his teens conducting the celebrated Halle Orchestra. In 1906 he organized the New Symphony Orchestra and four years later the Beecham Opera Company. He moved into the front rank of British conductors when he took over the London Philharmonic in 1915.

He made his American debut with the New York philharmonic in 1928 and thereafter was a frequent visitor to American orchestras. He spent much of World War II in the United States.

In 1957 came fresh laurels. Beecham was made a Companion of Honor, one of Britain's highest awards.

Noted Artist Francis Speight Joining ECC

Francis Speight, noted artist and native North Carolinian, after a long absence, will return to this state in September as professor of art on the faculty of East Carolina College, President Leo W. Jenkins of the college has announced.

The "Francis Speight Retrospective Exhibition," a loan show on view from February 15 until March 26 at the State Museum of Art, Raleigh, is attracting attention throughout the state and introducing many art lovers in North Carolina to the work of a man who has been described as "unexcelled among native North Carolina artists" and as having "rare genius." A subscription dinner in Raleigh, honoring Speight, preceded the opening of the exhibition.

A native of Bertie County, born and reared near Windsor, Speight has taught since 1925 at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. In coming to East Carolina, he is fulfilling a wish to live in his native state again, to paint scenes familiar to him since his boyhood, and to help young artists in North Carolina.

Speight has won a number of outstanding awards. His works hang in more than 40 museums in this country and Canada and are included in several private collections.

Among prizes presented to him in national exhibitions of painting are the First Altman Prize for Landscape, the First Hallgarten Prize the Kohnstamm Prize, the Speman Gold Medal for Landscape, and the Obrig Prize.

His work is included in the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum, New York; the Boston Museum; the Toronto, Canada, Art Gallery; the Norton Gallery of Art, Palm Beach, Fla.; the Montpelier, Vermont, Museum of Art; and elsewhere.

Speight has been a member of the National Academy of Design since 1940. Last year the select National Institute of Arts and Letters elected him to membership. He is listed in Who's Who in America and in the Encyclopaedia Britannica, in which one of his works is reproduced.

The son of the Rev. Thomas T. Speight and Margaret Sharrock Speight, the distinguished artist spent his early life in Bertie County. While attending Wake Forest College, he began the study of art. After service in World War I, he studied at the Corcoran School of Art and for five years at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. In 1923 and 1925 he held European traveling scholarships.

He began his teaching career at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in 1925 and has taught there since that time. While on leave from this institution, he has taught also at the University of North Carolina Summer School; Shrivenham American University in England; Lehigh University and De Pauw University. He is a member of the Pennsylvania Academy's Committee for Courses Coordinated with the University of Pennsylvania.

Speight is married to the former Sarah Blakeslee, also a painter and art teacher. They have two children.

Lawmakers Agree Sanford 'Forthright', But Beyond That---

By AURORA DOLLEY
Reflector Bureau
Ass'n Afternoon Dailies

RALEIGH — Just about the only matter, taxation-wise, that is, on which legislators are agreeing is that Governor Terry Sanford's request for an increase in tax revenue was "forthright"

And with this one word the Assemblymen cease to agree. Some of the Solons are frankly waiting for reactions to pour in from their constituents and some are openly hesitant in their endorsement of the Governor's recommendations.

It is not uncommon to hear representatives unequivocally back Sanford's food tax as the fairest method of raising additional revenues; neither is it unusual to hear criticism, sometimes sharp, sometimes veiled, of the Governor's solution.

Many experienced legislators are not daring yet to predict the outcome of this chief topic of conversation at the Capital City these days.

Voicing the sentiment expressed by more than a few of the lawmakers is Catawba's Representative J. Henry Hill Jr. of Hickory, beginning his second term in the General Assembly. Rep. Hill makes it clear that "I reserve the right to support any other program which may come up to furnish needed increases in revenue".

The Catawba business man continues to explain that if it takes a food tax to supply additional taxes. Then he will endorse the Sanford judgment.

Also viewing the overall issues of increased tax revenue quite cautiously is Rep. Ed Kemp of Guilford, who has two terms of legislative experience behind him:

"There appears to be very strong sentiment against a sales tax on food, even among those who support Sanford' educational program, some oppose leaving off all luxury taxes."

Rep. Woodard of Wilson, who heads the mighty House Appropriations Committee, the group whose duties will be to recommend how the money raised is to be spent, quips, "I'm going to sound like a politician if I keep up", but soberly declares that Sanford "will be able to put it across in spite of determined opposition".

Wilson adds that "I don't think it would be becoming of me to take an active part in these debates" referring, of course, to his committee chairmanship.

Rep. Danny M. Courtney of Caldwell says he "is willing to go along with the proposed program as outlined by the governor", but prefaces his decision by saying that he wishes it had been possible to get tax from items that are not necessary, instead of the proposed tax on foods.

Rep. Courtney is another legislator who admits that he is still subject to change "if something better comes along."

Between food and tobacco taxes, I'd rather see tax on soft drinks, says Rep. A. A. Zollicoffer Jr., of Vance, with a trace of a smile to further indicate that beyond the humor of his statement lies the crux of the luxury vs. necessities tax fight. "I shall think a long time before I vote for a tax on food, and the need will have to be extremely urgent". Rep. Zollicoffer says firmly. "I'd like to see a vote of the people before we levy the taxes", he reasons.

Rep. Zollicoffer's approach to Gov. Sanford's tax message does not follow an "I'll-go-along-with-him" or "I-can't-see-it-that-way" track. The Vance representative says that he is not yet concerned with taxes, but "with the ways the money would be spent."

"I want to see concrete proposals that can hope to be accomplished with the 70 million; I don't believe that 70 million or 500 million dumped into teacher pay will greatly improve our schools. I'm sure that good teachers are doing their best, whether they be paid four hundred or six hundred dollars. I want specific details such as teacher load in elementary grades. I am a great believer

Mrs. Randolph Fleming, organist, presented the wedding music. Miss Patsy Jones, soloist, sang "Whither Thou Goest."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Waters of 2118 N. Village Dr., Greenville. Mr. Staton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lonnie Staton, also of Greenville.

The couple entered the church together. The bride wore a beige sheath dress with matching accessories. She wore a purple throat orchid to match her hat. The dress was fashioned with a portrait neckline.

Mrs. May Is Club Speaker

Mrs. Milton May, Home Economist for Pitt County, was guest speaker at a recent meeting of Gamma Delta Chapter of ESA held in the home of Mrs. Harry Dudley, with Mrs. A. D. McArthur Sr., co-hostess. Mrs. May was introduced to the group by Mrs. Bill Goin, program chairman.

Mrs. May's subject was "Consumer Buying," pointing out that today's homemakers were buying more commercially canned goods than ever before. She gave many timely hints on buying more economically and still being able to give the family foods with high nutritional value. Her talk was followed by a period of discussion.

Mrs. B. C. Branch was presiding officer for this meeting. She read an announcement of the Spring Council meeting to be held in Graham March 11. Members were urged to make plans to attend.

Mrs. Harry Dudley, co-chairman of the Welfare Committee, gave a report on the visit of the Chapter members to the School for Trainables in February. The school was visited on Valentine's Day and the students were given a party and presented valentines. They in turn gave each chapter member a specially made valentine.

Mrs. Ernest Cassick, social chairman, announced that there would be a dinner meeting on March 24 for the purpose of a Jewel pin installation. She also announced that April was rush month and plans for a rush party were being made.

Club Hears Mr. Loftin

The Greenville Music Club members were entertained with a program of songs presented by Mr. Leonard Loftin, baritone, of Kinston, at the March meeting held Tuesday in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Richard Gammon on Elm Street.

Mr. Loftin opened with two Mozart compositions: "Se vuol ballare" from "The Marriage of Figaro"; and "Deh vieni alla finestra," from "Don Giovanni."

Accompanied by Mr. Buford Goodman, a graduate of Davidson College, and currently the Minister of Music at the First Presbyterian Church of Kinston, Mr. Loftin continued his recital with "Since Thou, O Fondest" by Samuel Liddle; "Songs of Travel," a song cycle set to words of Robert Louis Stevenson by Ralph Vaughan Williams.

The concluding group of songs were: Spirituals, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See," "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child"; David Diamond's "Somewhere"; and "Oh, 'Tis An Earth Defiled," a dramatic aria from Howard Hanson's opera, "Merry Mount."

Having studied at the Manhattan School of Music, New York, and with Miss Beatrice Donley, Mr. Loftin currently is soloist at the Hayes Barton Methodist Church in Raleigh. His feeling and expression, his rich, "listenable" baritone quality, and his gracious manner contributed to making Mr. Loftin's recital especially enjoyable.

Following the business meeting of the club, the president, Mrs. Elizabeth Bodkin, presented the artists. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Richard Gammon, Mrs. Rouse and Miss Venitia Cox, who served coffee punch and cake following the recital. The Gammon home was decorated with arrangements of camellias and other spring flowers.

Finch Trial Has Lost Its Appeal

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Although countless persons once speculated about the outcome, it's hard to believe two lives are at stake as Finch murder trial No. 3 drones to an end.

The drama, and the principals, are still there—but the box-office appeal has faded.

The case was a page one sensation when socialite Barbara Jean Finch, 36, was shot to death July 18, 1959, her bloody white cocktail frock staining a lawn near her luxurious home in suburban West Covina.

Her husband, Dr. R. Bernard Finch, and his mistress, Carole Tregoff, were charged with murder and conspiracy.

Movie stars and producers once were among hundreds seeking courtroom seats to hear the prosecution thunder about lust and greed among the country club set.

The trial is expected to go to the jury for a third time late next week, but half of the press seats were empty Tuesday. About 80 spectators whispered casually. Bailiffs stifled yawns. Jurors listened to rebuttal witnesses as impassively as if they were watching travel slides at a church social.

When the third trial ends, the cost to the state and the defendants may run as high as $800,000. The first two trials, ending in jury deadlocks, lasted a total of 7½ months. The third started two months ago.

The prosecution says Finch and Miss Tregoff plotted Barbara's murder to avoid an expensive divorce settlement—and ambushed her in her garage. The defense version: Carole and Finch wanted to discuss a divorce with Mrs. Finch. Barbara pulled a gun. Carole ran. Finch and his wife struggled, and the gun accidentally discharged when the surgeon tried to toss it away. The death weapon has never been found.

Newsmen from around the nation covered the first trial in a big 300-seat room in the new county courthouse. Two subsequent trials, in a small court in the old Hall of Justice, got scant notice and few crowds—and have produced no surprises.

The state says Finch was lured by Carole's beauty—and she by his wealth.

After long months on a jail diet, Carole is no longer beautiful. Finch, reportedly once worth $800,000, has lost most or all of his fortune because of legal expenses.

Revenue Report Good And Bad

RALEIGH—The monthly report of collections for February, and the accompanying report for the first eight months of the current fiscal year, contains both good and bad news for the legislators who have responsibility for financing State government operations for the next two years.

Nearly every schedule, certainly all those which afford substantial revenue, yielded more for the eight months period than for the comparable time last year. But—nearly all yielded less for February — indicating an economic decline.

The income tax bracket yielded almost $10 million more for February, but of the total nearly $11 million was due to withholding. In February of last year the withholding plan had begun to pay off in full.

The general fund tax sources are producing just about what had been estimated. For the first time in many years the highway fund is falling below estimates.

Ayden Rotary To Hear VOA Man

AYDEN—David H. Sencindiver, Jr., administrative officer, Voice of America plant, will be guest speaker at the Friday meeting of the Ayden Rotary Club, it was announced today.

Ayden Obtaining New Police Car

AYDEN—A new police car has been bought for the town of Ayden, and may be delivered within 45 days, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor announced yesterday.

The car will replace the one currently in use, and will be especially equipped for police use. It is a 1961, four-door model Chevrolet.

There will be a color difference between the new and the old cars, Paylor noted. The new one will be black, probably with white markings, whereas the present vehicle is blue. The present car will be disposed of upon receipt of the new one.

Chief Reviews New Box System

AYDEN — Fire Chief Tillman Chauncey reviewed the new fire boxes and system at the monthly meeting of the Ayden Volunteer Fire Department this week.

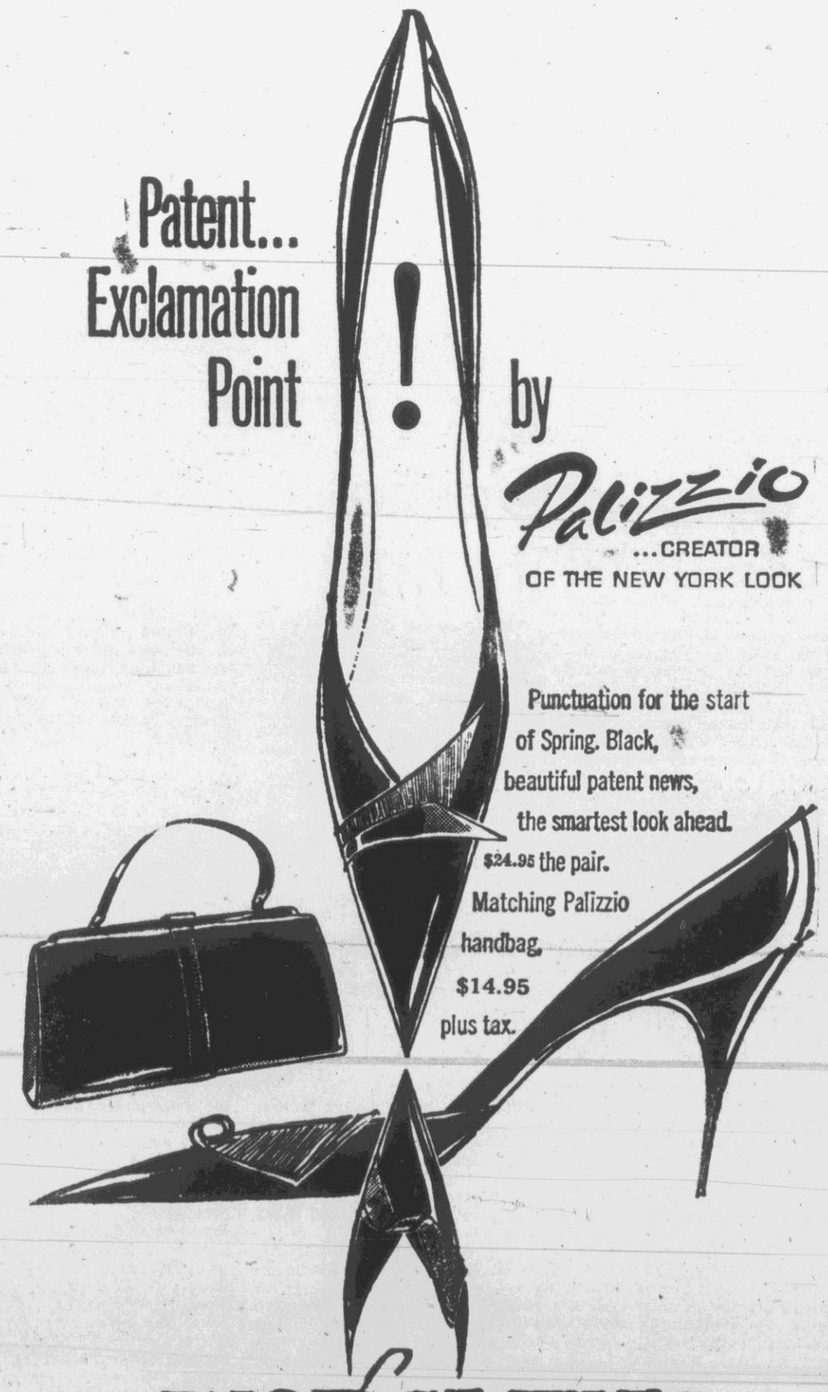

Chauncey, presiding at the meeting, pointed out that with the new system, firemen should be especially alert in order to tell where the fire was going on.

Food Sales Tax--Most Explosive

The success of Gov. Sanford's proposal for increasing state revenues has been tied to the most controvercial and politically explosive single issue in the state's tax structure . . . the imposing of a three per cent sales tax on food.

There are many other recommendations Gov. Sanford could have made to the legislature that would have stirred controversy; but none of them, we think, would have the universal impact of the proposal to eliminate the sales tax exemption on food.

Obviously the governor's proposal hinges on the legislature's decision on whether or not to eliminate the food sales tax exemption. By eliminating all the present 40-odd exemptions in the state's sales tax law, Gov. Sanford has estimated the state could expect $83 million in additional revenues in the next biennium. Eliminating the sales tax exemption on food alone would bring in some $50 million during the biennium, or 60 per cent of the total amount of new revenue the governor has called for.

If the exemption for food remains in the state's sales tax law—even though all other exemptions are removed—the legislature would have to find some $50 million from other sources to balance the proposed increases in expenditures in the next biennium. This would involve a number of new sources of revenue, each one of which would certainly be controversial.

The governor made clear in his proposal that he has sought the broadest possible base for his proposed tax increases. Certainly by eliminating the sales tax exemptions the broadest possible base would be achieved, and the revenue increase from year to year from this source could be expected to expand as the economy of the state expands. Few if any other possible new sources of state revenue would have either the broad base or the growth potential in terms of future revenues offered in eliminating sales tax exemptions.

When North Carolina's sales tax law was passed in 1933 as an "emergency" measure, it was passed with virtually no exemptions, and food was one of the items taxed under the law. Food remained an item subject to state sales tax in North Carolina until 1941 when it was exempted following a recommendation by the late Gov. J. Melvin Broughton Since then only certain "luxury" food items have subject to the sales tax.

Whether the legislature chooses to follow the recommendation of the governor concerning new tax sources remains to be seen. Under any circumstances, however, it is our opinion—as we have stated previously—that any new taxes should be founded on a broad base rather than designating specific segments of the state's economic structure to bear a disproportionate share of the increased revenues North Carolina needs.

Tarheels Stole Cincinnati Show

By LYNN NISBET

CAROLINA FIRST — North Carolina people and exhibits "stole the show" on opening day of the big Ohio Valley Sports and Travel Show at Cincinnati last Saturday. Tarheel participation was jointly sponsored by the advertising division of the C&D department, the Travel Council of North Carolina and half a dozen individual exhibitors. These included the Carolinian Hotel and the Nags Head area: Morehead City Chamber of Commerce; Wilmington Chamber of Commerce; Fontana Village; Cherokee Association, the Asheville Chamber of Commerce—embracing a wide mountain area, and Piedmont Aviation at Winston-Salem.

Because the North Carolina displays were grouped together making in effect one exhibit covering from the coast to the mountains, the section was by far the most impressive in the whole hall. Canadian and New England exhibits were fine, but were scattered.

Thirty or more Tarheels were on hand to man the display booths and pass out information and literature. The delegation was headed by Governor Terry Sanford and C&D Director Hargrove Bowles. The Governor's immediate party made the trip in a demonstration Beechcraft executive type five-place plane, piloted by Ken Brugh of Greensboro and Tom Warner of the Beechcraft home office. (Demonstrations of other types aircraft have been and will be given before the State officials decide whether to buy a plane or what kind to buy.)

Cincinnati weather was lousy Saturday and Sunday, while conditions in North Carolina were almost perfect. Governor Sanford insisted that he had no jurisdiction over Ohio weather. That was under Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges. The pilots were happy about the bad weather. It gave a chance to demonstrate radar and other instrument equipment.

GUESTS — The Carolinians were hosts at a luncheon Saturday honoring Governor Sanford and Mayor Bachrach of Cincinnati and other prominent local people. Governor DiSalle of Ohio was invited, but in a note to Governor Sanford he explained that he had made a campaign promise not to leave Columbus, the state capitol, while the legislature was in session. He suggested, further, that in view of the fact he is a Democrat and the Ohio state senate has 20 Republicans and 18 Democrats, it wasn't wise to leave town regardless of campaign promise.

Indians from Cherokee, pirates from Nags Head, ladies from azalealand around Wilmington in costume added to attractions at the luncheon and the display booths. Those who were not in special costume wore hats banded with North Carolina, or the little lapel Tarheel pins or some other particular designation for the state.

Exhibitors for western ranches and fighting-hunting camps also wore distinctive costumes. The Virginians featured Confederate gray uniforms, less distinctive of the particular state.

ONE TRACK — This was a one-purpose venture for North Carolina — the promotion of travel to the state by showing the natural and manmade attractions and the variety of sports and recreational facilities. Governor Sanford and Director Bowles had addresses of some industry contacts, but agreed that time was too short to diversify activities. Single-minded attention was given to travel. It was the first experience for the state folks in that restricted line, and the official voiced opinion that it was highly successful — just as had been other safaris and exhibitions promoting the purely industrial phase of development.

EDUCATION — The Governor and the director did steal out time enough to visit the central industrial vocational high school in downtown Cincinnati. They picked up some ideas that might be adapted in North Carolina, not on as big scale but in connection with the smaller industrial education centers throughout the state. The population of Cincinnati, from which the central school draws pupils, is approximately the same as that of what is coming to be known as the "Piedmont industrial triangle" of North Carolina, the points of which are roughly Greensboro - Statesville - Charlotte. The North Carolinians were somewhat surprised to learn that the percentage of non-white population in Cincinnati is higher than in this state.

UNIFIED — The North Carolinians had the primary purpose of teaching Ohioans and others about the home state. It developed they also learned something of value. Perhaps one of the principal dividends derived from participation of the several agencies in this travel show was the importance of cooperative and unified effort in the total job of selling North Carolina to the rest of the world. There was no evidence of warfare at Cincinnati between the pirates from Nags Head and the Indians from Cherokee. The charming ladies who manned the booths of the mountain resorts, with white coluds floating above blue peaks, and those who staffed the beach resort exhibits and emphasized historic sites, worked as a team to induce more people to come to North Carolina.

This evidence of unified and cooperative effort elicited commendation from the high ranking State officials who joined in the total effort to promote travel in and through North Carolina.

Tremendous Growth Of College Is Apparent

It was two years ago that the first men's dormitory on the new south campus of East Carolina College was completed. Since then another similar structure has been put in use in the area and approximately 1,000 men students are housed on the new campus.

Approval this week of a federal loan of $625,000 to be combined with state bond funds of a similar amount will mean another 500-man dormitory will be built in the same area. If recommendations of the Advisory Budget Commission are approved by the General Assembly this year, funds for a fourth men's dormitory on the south campus will be available.

In what will be a span of less than five years, East Carolina College will have added on its south campus facilities to house approximately 2,000 men students.

Certainly this represents tremendous growth in the housing facilities for men students at the College, but perhaps more significant is the fact that the growth of the college's enrollment has remained ahead of even this rapid rate of providing new dormitory facilities.

If the present rate of growth in the enrollment of East Carolina College continues—and all indications point to the fact that it will—by the time dormitory facilities now planned are completed. there will still exist the need for additional similar facilities.

East Carolina's growth is of increasing importance to higher education in North Carolina, and obviously its continued growth is of tremendous importance to Greenville and Pitt County.

More Rules In White House

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — It started with the maids and cooks and now it's all the way up to the generals.

President Kennedy last October laid down eight basic rules on morality and ethics in government which he said he would follow if elected.

One of them said no employe of the executive branch could use his official position for financial profit or personal gain.

Two days after taking office he set up a three-man committee to study ethical standards and practices in the government.

Then in February a former White House seamstress, Lillian Rogers Parks, came out with a book on her experiences in the executive mansion.

Kennedy's White House aides took steps to see that such a thing doesn't happen again.

The day before publication of the former seamstress' book, Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's press secretary, said all the present domestic and personal help at the White House had signed a pledge they will not write about their jobs.

Kennedy also laid down a rule about gifts to the White House but at this moment there's a little uncertainty about it.

This writer, hearing that any gift over $15 must be returned and any under that must be given to charity, asked Salinger if this is right.

He said it was. But another writer told Salinger he thought the rule was that any gift over $25 had to be turned over to the Smithsonian Institution.

Salinger said, come to think of it, maybe that was it. He said it was too late in the day to find out for sure.

But Monday Kennedy went far beyond all this.

Salinger told newsmen Kennedy intends to forbid officials of his administration to make speeches or write articles for pay unless they give it to charity.

And Salinger let it be known Kennedy intends to tighten up an old Pentagon directive to prevent members of the armed forces from cashing in on stories of their experiences, except after they retire.

There is such a ban now but there have been frequent exemptions. Salinger said the new policy will apply to all government people over whom the President has authority.

Kennedy also laid down a rule for himself in that speech last October. Explaining what he'd do about gifts if he became president, he said: "All gifts which cannot be appropriately refused —such as gifts from public organizations or foreign government to the President of the United States—shall immediately be assigned to the Smithsonian Institution or other federal agencies for historical, scientific or welfare uses. The president

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

IT ALL HANGS TOGETHER

"The very hairs of your head are all numbered." Thus said Jesus. (Matt. 10:30; Luke 12:7).

This may seem a strange, an unrelated, and unimportant utterance of the Great Teacher. But it was an utterance of great significance. It was our Lord's way of saying that everything in the universe hangs together. From the smallest thing in the universe to the greatest, all is one. The structure and growth of a hair, the rotation of the seasons, the movement of the planets—these are all tied together just as definitely as the smallest cell of our body is connected with every other cell.

Let us be aware of the fact that existence is a thrilling enterprise in living. What we call death is but the shedding of a physical envelope in which our personalities for a brief period are contained. Then we go on to another existence. If our training for eternity ends here, some of us are going to be embarrassingly unprepared. It may take millions of years to prepare us for an eternal abode in heaven.

And all the time we are living persons in a living universe. This universe teems with life. The life on this planet is nothing compared with the life that must exist throughout God's universe.

God is life. God is light. God is love. And we are all a part of the vast existence over which God presides.

Each To His Own Taste

Some of us like it. Some of us don't. Music, that is.

Some of us have them. Some of us don't. Old favorites, that is.

It's just another of those amazing varying notions that make us what we are—individuals.

And a popular and long-used bit of logic, as we all know, is: "Every man to his own likes and dislikes, tastes and distastes."

All this was called to mind yesterday in a discussion about music lovers, music makers and musical things in general.

In those fleeting moments when the nose is temporarily held a safe enough distance from the proverbial grindstone to avoid the slightest bit of abrasion, we often find it rather relaxing to discuss in a sorta haphazard fashion such topics as musical preferences.

Any topic will do. Just so it's something that is usually considered utterly irrelevant to anything of a consequential nature.

Our topic yesterday, however, just happened to be music. That was not unusual since Guy Lombardo had whisked through town. His visit apparently prompted our discussion.

As usually happens, the newsroom stragglers join with the composing room philosophers in thrashing out a subject. Yesterday was no exception.

One of the most outspoken of the philosopher group was admittedly a music fan. His ofjection to normal practice in the music profession was "monotony because of repetition."

"Would you go to hear the same speaker make the same speech hour after hour, day after day?" he asked.

We allowed we probably might not enjoy such a practice, whereupon he wanted to know: "Well, how come you love to listen to the same band playing the same song time after time?"

His point was well taken as several pairs of ears perked up a little more than they usually do during these sessions.

A few thoughtful seconds to let this line of reasoning settle and we announced that, while it would not be neccessary to agree to banish second-hand songs we would have to admit the basic idea was logically sound.

We silently repledged our allegiance to our old favorites, almost bemoaning the suggestion that they should never be heard again.

But at the same time, we felt refreshed to hear a new line of reasoning about the tastes of the human musical ear.

We firmly held to the belief that certain musical compositions are, to us anyway, definite artistic contributions to a cultured society.

But in the same thought we noticed a strong urge to say: "You're absolutely right. Some of these musical contributions are no more good the second go-round than a second-hand firecracker."

'Also Have Rights'

(Richmond News Leader)

A text has just come to hand of the superlative opinion handed down on January 20 by Justice Robert Hunt Parker, of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, in the matter of half a dozen defendants convicted of trespass as the outgrowth of a dime-store "sit-in" in Durham.

The merits of the case, in one sense, are beside the point. Sooner or later, retail merchants throughout the South will abandon their segregation policies in tea rooms and lunch counters. This is coming, as the night follows the day, and we neither weep nor applaud. So be it. Society changes, and one adapts to it.

But Justice Parker, in this case, crashed through the polite facade that has grown up around segregation issues in order to say some blunt things that badly need saying. Here, five Negro students at North Carolina College for Negroes in Durham accompanied by two white students at Duke, deliberately had trespassed at the lunch counter of a Kress store and had sought arrest. They contended, among other arguments, that "State action" had been invoked when the store manager summoned a local police officer to take them away after simple requests to leave had proved unavailing.

The North Carolina Supreme Court in unanimously upholding the convictions, began by upholding the right to discriminate. It is a priceless privilege now much degraded. The court said, citing impressive authority, that a private restaurant operator has every right to serve whom he pleases and to deny service to whom he pleases. In exercising this right, such a restaurant owner is invoking property rights that were old when the Constitution was young — "fundamental, natural, inherent, and unalienable rights" — that cannot ever be taken from him.

In point of fact, the defendants had not seriously challenged this right. Their principal contention was that when the store manager called in a policeman, whose salary is paid from public funds, he was thereby invoking "State action" to enforce racial segregation in violation of the defendants' rights as proclaimed by the Supreme Court. This contention has become quite popular of late. It is the principal defense relied upon by the NA ACP in all of the "sit-in" cases now working their way through Southern courts.

Without additional explanation or comment, let us quote Justice Parker's opinion. It speaks eloquently in behalf of a legal point of view that ought never to be obscured:

"Private rights and privileges in a peaceful society living under a constitutional form of government like ours are inconceivable without State machinery by which they are enforced. Courts must act when parties apply to them — even refusal to act is a postive declaration of law — and, hence, there is a fundamental inconsistency in speaking of the rights of an individual who cannot have judicial recognition of his rights. . .

"The fact that the State provides a system of courts so that S. H. Kress & Company can enforce its legal rights against trespassers upon its private property. . .cannot fairly be said to be State action enforcing racial segregation in violation of the 14th Amendment to the Federal Constitution. Such judicial process violates no rights of the defendants. . . .If a land owner or one in possession of land cannot protect his natural, inherent and constitutional right to have his land free from unlawful invasion by Negro and white trespassers in a case like this by judicial process as here, because it is State action, then he had no other alternative but to eject them with a gentle hand if he can, with a strong hand if he must. . . .White people also have constitutional rights as well as Negroes, which must be protected, if our constitutional form of government is not to vanish from the face of the earth."

Opinions In Brief

"The progress of the future is linked to freedom of thought and freedom of speech. Consequently, those who seek the truth should vigorously oppose any effort to curb them or circumscribe the right of man to formulate his own thoughts and express them freely to others."
—Oxford (Neb.) Standard.

"We get a sinking feeling in our stomachs as we read that in a survey among high school students on the question 'Who contributes most toward improved living standards — business, government or union leaders', —business ran a poor third."—Bridgewater (S.D.) Tribune.

Truckers' Tax May Help Rails

By ELMER ROESSNER

President Kennedy's plan to reduce the Federal Highway Program by heavier taxes on trucks may also rescue the railroads.

However, the increased taxes will eventually be passed on to consumers.

Most railroads are in trouble. They have lost cargo to trucks and, to a limited extent, to airlines. They have lost passengers to airlines, buses and private cars.

A fundamental reason is the tremendous improvement in highways. If the nation's highways were no better than they were in 1933, buses and private cars would not be half as popular as they are today and the bulks of bodies and freight would move by rail.

COMPLAINT

The railroads naturally complain that while the government maintains fine and constantly growing networks of highways—and while the government maintains the air route with radio and radar controls — the railroads still must maintain their rails and roadbeds.

A sharp rise in taxes on trucking would tend to equalize the cargo part of the inequality. It will take further action to put bus and private - car transportation on an economic level with passenger transportation.

Mr. Kennedy proposed to increase the Truck Use Tax on vehicles of 26,000 pounds and over from $1.50 to $5 per 1,000 pounds; to increase the levy on diesel fuel from 4 to 7 cents a gallon, and to increase taxes on truck tires, tubes and retreads.

HIGHER RATES

This would compel truckers to ask for higher rates, and they have the charming and persuasive voice of James Hoffa, now undisputed head of the Teamsters Union, to assist them.

In some cases, shippers would turn back to railroads. But in most cases, they would simply pay higher rates to cover truck use, diesel fuel levies and taxes on accessories.

The American Trucking Association estimates these increases will amount to about $200,000,000 a year. Assuming the shift to railroads and airlines will be negligible, this amount will be added to the bills of American consumers.

However, it may help get our highways built.

SHORT, SIGNIFICANT BITS OF BUSINESS

Colombia, where some of the finest coffee in the world is grown, has only three brands of instant coffee available. . . . Don't be alarmed if your child comes home from school greasy; the government has just bought 4,510,000 pounds of lard for the needy and the school lunch program. . . .Another coming boom: school equipment sales. So says B.E. Bensinger, Brunswick Corp. president. . . .A new film, with cartoons and sound-track, is designed to teach employees how to thwart bad-check passers. For details, write Redbook, 230 Park Ave., New York 17. . . .Mixing sugar into the soil will kill nematodes, the Department of Agriculture says. This is a sensational discovery, since sugar is cheap and harmless to animals. For details, write USDA, Washington 25, D.C. . . .Volkswagen is bringing out a bigger car, a sort of compact, but it will not be sold in the United States for a while. . . .The Bank of America credits employees' earnings directly to the checking accounts and is trying to persuade other businesses to do the same.

Nikita's Road No Easier

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It was undoubtedly Nikita Khrushchev's belief that the defeat of Richard Nixon and the election of John F. Kennedy would violently and sharply alter Russo-American relations. Furthermore, the Russians undoubtedly assumed that the return of Adlai Stevenson, George F. Kennan, and Charles E. Bohlen to the State Department would mean a return to the hey-day of Teheran and Yalta where everything was handed to Stalin on a silver platter.

It as come as a surprise to Khrushchev to discover that whereas Kennedy is a Democrat and looks very young and may be a bit play-boyish at times, he is also hard as nails and tough as the Boston Irish generally are and that flattery does not go very far because he has beem amply flattered and is used to it. Also, it must come somewhat as a shock that Adlai Stevenson, who, when out of office, talked loosely and often not too wisely, is, in office, no push-over and that he stands his ground well in debate and can lose his temper, too. Also, that whereas it was assumed that he was soft about Russia, his conduct in the United Nations proves that he follows policy as set.

In fact, the entire picture is the opposite of what Khrushchev expected. He had planned to come to the United Nations General Assembly and expected to be asked to visit the President at the White House which, in the formality of international relations, would have been a victory for Khrushchev, an insult to Eisenhower and as things stand today, a repudiation of France and Belgium.

It was a tempting thing to do from the standpoint of American domestic politics because it would then have been possible for Kennedy to say that where Eisenhower and Nixon failed, he succeeded. But at what a price? Instead, Kennedy proposed that the Five Stars be restored to Eisenhower, an honor he surely deserves. Such a tracious attitude it not understandable in countries where politics are still personally brutal.

Khrushchev has decided not to come to the United Nations, to forego the excitement of being guarded by the New York police force and of thumping his desk with his shoe for the benefit of the television cameras. Instead, Andrei Gromyko, who seems to have forgotten how to smile, is to come which means that such top men as Tito, Nasser, Nehru and other train followers of the mighty Russ will also stay away.

The three principal questions before the General Assembly will be:

1. The dismissal of Dag Hammarskjold as Secretary-General and the substitution of a Secretariat consisting of a Soviet, a Western, and a neutral secretary;

2. The removal of the United Nations from the Congo;

3. The admission of Red China to the United Nations.

If these three items are analyzed dispassionately this session of the General Assembly of the United Nations will decide whether that body continues to exist and in what form. Soviet Russia has developed an issue which can have the effect of forcing the Western countries, including the United States, to leave the United Nations. Should they choose to remain after Dag Hammarskjold is dismissed, the Western nations would be in a ridiculous position.

From this standpoint, this session of the General Assembly is climactic. The Congo issue is not over "Africa for the Africans" as "Soapy" Williams unfortunately said, but over whether Soviet Russia will take over a good part of Africa or whether the United Nations will be able to safeguard the independence of the countries liberated from colonialism. What is the advantage to the African people if they switch from France, Belgium, and Great Britain and are then taken over by Soviet Russia or the United Arab Republic? What is the advantage to anyone except the new exploiters?

Cutting through the oratory and the diplomatic gibberish, this is the Congo issue as it appears in the United Nations. Undoubtedly, Khrushchev was attempting to wean President Kennedy away from the American policy of protecting the new nations to

CHAPTER 10

My charming Laura darling (wrote Matthew), I write this late at night to be ready for tomorrow morning's ambulance to Driscoll, to connect with the mail eastward. I am well, busy and most of all, delighted. I shall say why.

The Hiram Prescotts have arrived. We have our new commanding officer and commanding lady. They came last week by the wagon from the tracks at Driscoll. We knew about when to expect them, and we had the troop in full dress, ready to turn out on parade. The timing was perfect. I was in charge.

Just as the wagon and escort rumbled up to the main gate we had our trumpeter play flourishes and the troop in ranks at attention presented arms, quite smartly We all held the salute until Major Prescott was able to descend and to help Mrs. Prescott out. Then they walked toward us, and he returned the salute to Teddy Mainwaring, and Teddy turned to me and asked for the order arms. It went off quite well.

Later we were all called to headquarters to meet them. Major Prescott is thickset, stocky, bald, frankly spoken, and quite evidently inclined to like people. His wife is as tall as he is, slender, and as far as I can judge most handsomely and fashionably dressed, in quiet style, but everything good. Her hair is graying. She has fine eyes—gray-blue, with dark lashes. She stands splendidly.

Her voice struck me. She speaks in rather abrupt little rushes. She spoke to each of us about ourselves, and soon knew the best thing about me, which is you. She knows your parents. Your Uncle Alexander Quait was a great friend of her family's (they're all dead now, it seems). She understood me almost before I said a word for she said to me, "We must arrange matters as soon as possible, so you can bring Laura here to join us." I am going to like her.

The Mainwarings are rather sorry to observe. They worked for days moving out of headquarters and taking their new and proper station in Quarters No. 3. (The Grays, he being a captain, rank them out of No. 2.) They knew it would come, all along, and you'd think they'd be used to it, and ready for it, but no. Mrs. Mainwaring has been red-eyed and too brave and Ted has been downcast. I think he is relieved to be relieved of his responsibilities, but bitterly hurt that he was superseded before he could be promoted. He wants rank, but not responsibility. Being in 3, they are now my next door neighbors, as I repose in No. 4, along with my bachelor dreams.

Certainly it got off officially to a right start, when Major Prescott made his first inspection. The officers all were directed to accompany him. I have never seen anything so thorough, or more deliberate. He felt at once the disaffection and lack of spirit.

To get to the causes for these, he interviewed the officers separately. My turn came last. When he saw that I was reluctant to make a full statement of my opinion of conditions prior to his arrival, he did me the grace of asking specific questions which I could not but answer truthfully.

I had two letters from you in the last bag. Mail service must be confused all over the West. I loved to have the two, but I grieved to think it must mean that another mail would lack any. I have a stunning solution to propose: for every two you used to write, please now write three. My dear love ever to you. M.C.H.

"I am favorably taken with young Hazard," said Hiram Prescott to his wife Jessica a few weeks later.

"Yes. We must do all we can for him."

"How does he manage for his meals?"

She smiled at Hiram. So often they came to the same notions independently.

"I think he took most of them with the Mainwarings before we came. He still does, though the Grays have him now and then. And of course, sometimes, he throws together some probably appalling dish for himself, in his quarters."

"Yes. Well, Jess, I am not prepared to do anything official about it just yet, but I see that he will be the officer on whom I will lean most heavily."

"Ted Mainwaring ranks him."

"Yes, I know. But I can handle that tactfully."

"Will you keep Mainwaring here?"

"Oh, I think so. If I sent him off it might look to the troop as though I were after all siding with them against him. He showed poor judgment. He brought upon us much of the trouble we found when we got here. But after all, he was the commanding officer. No, I will keep him. He will make a better subordinate than commander. I can make something of him."

"I always said: give you a horse, a dog, or a junior officer, and you could make something of him every time."

"Would it look odd if we asked Hazard to take his meals regularly with us? The better I come to know him, the sooner I can really put him to work."

"It won't look odd, since he is single, and you can use him as a sort of aide, and that would justify having him here."

"Would you mind? A stranger, here, with us, more or less constantly?"

"No. I was thinking of it before you brought it up."

"You were? Why?"

"My reason is ever so different from yours. I don't know if you'll see it."

"Well?"

"Mrs. Mainwaring."

"What about her?"

"I thought you wouldn't."

"Jessie, I swear, sometimes you—"

"No, I suppose only a woman would've noticed."

"Notice what?"

"Kitty Mainwaring must be making matters quite difficult for Matthew."

"How, in thunderation?"

Jessica sighed. "Oh, you'll say it is just female imaginings, but when I've seen them together, that poor Kitty Mainwaring comes close to making a fool of herself over Matthew."

"Over Matthew!"

"Hiram, don't look so astounded. It isn't the first time a pretty and rather bored and quite unsure wife has thrown herself at a handsome younger man in some sort of desperate hope of something. It was equally plain to me that Matthew is troubled by the whole thing. So I thought if you order him to take his meals here, we would take him out of a situation he may not know how to escape by himself." She paused, then added, "Or even wants to escape."

They looked at each other. Neither wanted to speak further of what was in their mature thoughts. They both knew the danger of openly admitting something which, once admitted, might suddenly have power to make trouble in the intimate garrison life they were in charge of.

Jessica broke the silence by saying, "You really ought to do two things. First, let him start messing here at once, and second, send him back East to be married, as soon as it can be managed."

Hiram nodded thoughtfully. These things he would do. But, "It will be hard to obtain leave for him much before a year's duty here has gone by."

"I suppose so. And he tells me that he was to wait a year, anyway, to satisfy the girl's family."

"Jess, you really do amaze me. You know so much about this place, so soon."

Economist Adds A Hopeful Note

WASHINGTON (AP) — An upturn in business conditions may come soon, says President Kennedy's chief economist.

But Walter W. Heller, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, added "an economic upturn would be only the beginning, not the end or the solution to our economic problems."

Heller said the key problem is "taking up this slack" between "what we are producing" and "what we can produce."

In testimony Monday before the Joint Congressional Economic Committee Heller said this gap now is about $50 billion, about 10 per cent of the $500 billion a year rate of current total output.

must set an example."

In February the Irish ambassador presented him with a 200-year-old silver christening cup from County Wexford, Ireland, where Kennedy's great-grandfather lived.

Kennedy in turn gave the ambassador for the people of County Wexford a piece of plank from the inaugural platform on which he took his oath as president Jan. 20.

The next day freshmen at Kennedy's old school, Harvard, which he has been denuding of professors to help him in the government, said they had bought a second-hand traditional Harvard chair and would send it to him.

They said they'd like it to stay in the White House so future presidents from Harvard could use it.

Lost Colony Ass'n Now In Contribution Drive

MANTEO — In an effort o raise money to rebuild its theatre and resume operation of The Lost Colony this summer, the Roanoke Island Historical Association this week, launched a drive for contributions.

"It will be impossible to reach all the people in this state and nation who are interested in preserving The Lost Colony. However, we hope that those who do, and those who don't hear from us will remember us," said J. Sib Dorton, general manager of the Paul Green drama.

At this time we plan to mail about 2,500 invitations to people whom we hope will take out memberships for themselves, members of their family and their friends," he added.

The letters of invitation ask individuals and organizations to become members of Roanoke Island Historical Association for the 1961 season. Memberships range from a $5 "regular" to $100 "life" for individuals; and a $100-and-up organizational or business membership.

Donna Damage

Hurricane Donna, in its sweep along the Carolina coast last September, leveled a major portion of the Colony's Waterside Theatre. Officials have estimated that $40,000 will be needed to rebuild and get back into operation by July 1.

Dorton emphasized that "the efforts to preserve this story of the spiritual birthplace of our nation are worthy of the people's support. We particularly need the help of North Carolinians who realize that The Lost Colony plays a vital role in the cultural and historical life of America." The drama portrays the first attempts to plant an English settlement in the New World by Sir Walter Raleigh's ill-fated "lost colony" of 1587.

The hunt for members of the association is the only fund-raising effort that The Lost Colony will undertake this year. Membership entitles the donor to one ticket to any performance of the show for each $5 contributed. In the case of Life membership, a life time pass is given for all performances.

Named Officers In NCEA District

Mrs. Edna Earle Baker of the Pitt County Schools and Mrs. Irma S. Worthington of Greenville City Schools have been announced as officers of the Northeastern District, North Carolina Education Association.

An election of officers was held Feb. 22.

Mrs. Baker, a supervisor in the county school system, will serve the district as vice president, while Mrs. Worthington will be secretary of the district.

Announced as N.C.E.A. delegates to the National Education Association Convention, to be held in Atlantic City in June, were Edward B. Bright of the Pitt County Schools and O. E. Dowd of the Greenville City Schools. Bright is principal of Grifton High School and Dowd is principal of Junius H. Rose High School here.

Mr. Louis Collie

Greenville's Louis Collie, one of New York Life's leading agents, has qualified for the fourth consecutive year as a member of the Million-Dollar Round Table and is a Life Member of that organization. Having placed insurance in excess of $1,000,000 during 1960, is a tribute, not only to him, but to this city's overwhelming acceptance of New York Life's modern protection.

The honor of being one of New York Life's leading agents for 1960 is one Louis Collie worked hard to earn and richly deserves. We extend not only heartiest congratulations to him, but sincere thanks to the many, many Greenville citizens whose acceptance of New York Life Insurance protection made his record possible.

Since joining New York Life in 1956, Louis Collie has achieved the enviable reputation of having been a million dollar producer each of the four years. He is not only one of his Company's foremost representatives but also a leading public-spirited citizen.

We believe that Louis Collie's outstanding record of service to the families and businesses in his community is typical of the quality of service rendered by New York Life agents everywhere. That is why, throughout the U. S. and Canada, we so so confidently say, "The New York Life Agent in Your Community is a Good Man To Know."

Three More For Bethel

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

MEMORIAL GYMNASIUM — Twenty-seven down and three to go.

That's the magic number needed for Coach Walter Latham to take his Bethel Indians to Durham next week to compete in the state Class A finals.

The 8:30 contest is the nightcap of the first round of the four-day district squabbling. Pantego, co-favorite with Bethel and defending district titleholder, embarks upon its journey to the finals tonight also.

The once-beaten Beaufort County champions tangle with little-regarded Murfreesboro at 7:00.

* * *

Latham prepared to face his opening opponent tonight with a tab of caution. "These tournament games can be rough. A lot of times some of these teams will surprise you."

He mentioned his club as "being in a good frame of mind." Don Dewar, a starting guard, has been bothered with an ankle injury but elsewhere things are looking good, according to the coach who also doubles as principal.

The Bethel club whisked past 16 county opponents in winning the regular season title and added three more to its list with successive wins in the county tournament.

Overall, the Bethel club stands at 27-2, their lone losses coming to non-conference Robersonville and Pantego.

The Bethel club has made it this far with a balanced effort instead of the individual star.

John Smith, who pumps in as a southpaw, and fast-moving Harvey Lewis tooted the victory whistle loud and clear, leading the three tournament triumphs.

Smith works under the boards, sometimes drifting outside for a long jumper, while Lewis, a guard, leads Bethel's running game, accumulating most of his points off the fast break.

Lanky Tex Everett, regarded as one of the top prep freshmen around, gives the club ample rebound strength. Fouls kept him in trouble throughout most of the county tournament.

The other two Bethel starters, Dewar and Herman Daniels, have been consistent with double figure performances. Both are strong rebounders.

James Ayers, a senior, serves as the club's bench strength. Boasting experience, Ayers, according to Latham, deserves a lot of the credit for the team's success.

Chicod, runner-up in the Pitt tournament, was placed in the same bracket with Pantego but will not open play until tomorrow night.

The Bob Howell-coached Hornets meet West Bertie, Bertie County champions, in the nightcap of Thursday's twinbill.

Short in depth and height, the Hornets turned in a successful season and survived it to the tourney finals strictly on hustle plus the standout performance of Raymond Fornes.

Fornes, probably the top scorer in the county this winter, is a shortie by basketball standards but joins junior Ephraigm Smith in capturing most of the clubs' rebounds.

* * *

Oak City, the Martin County champion, hopes to duplicate the trick it pulled in making the district playoffs.

Seeded third in a field of four teams, the gutty Oak City five swept past top-seeded Bear Grass and second ranked Robersonville enroute to the title.

Larry Worsely, a towering center, is the big point man for Oak City.

Hard Meal Ticket For ACC Winners

Someone asked us last week why the ACC champion never got an opening round bye in the NCAA playoffs, thus playing their first game in the regionals at Charlotte.

We didn't have the answer on our finger-tips but stumbled across it accidently. The ACC representative won't be getting a bye for some time unless it starts producing a national champion.

The bye goes to the conference in the East with the best record in NCAA post-season play. The Mid-Atlantic Conference (St. Joe) has a 17-10 mark while the ACC trails 18-15.

The Atlantic Coast has been burdened with defeats suffered in the old Southern Conference. They have tried to alter the situation, showing the ACC birth in 1954, but the NCAA says "no dice" . . . .

Tar Heels Have Real Dandy

Carolina basketball fans are looking for great things out of New Yorker Billy Cunningham. The sandy red head is only 17 years old but many claim he's ready for college glory.

Cunningham recently enrolled at UNC but may not play until 1962-63. He stands 6-6, and weighs a solid 190 pounds. College offers for him were as plentiful as penny suckers. Doug Moe, the Tar Heel All-American, played prep ball at the same school . . . .

'Pressure Good For Basketball'

Everette Case, whose brillant record at N.C. State is still untouched by other conference coaches, deems pressure is good for basketball.

Explains Case, "With pressure there is a strong desire to win. This provides interest which in turn gives you top notch basketball" . . .

The New York assembly last week voted against reducing the minimum age for caddies from 14 to 12. Assemblyman Joseph Kettler (D-Brooklyn) spoke against lowering the age limit. He said children under 14 should not be exposed to the language prevalent on golf courses . . .

Baseball Move Underway Here

A wild-fire move seems to be underway in this section of the state for the formation of a semi-pro baseball league this summer.

Several men in Greenville have been working toward forming a team. Their biggest problem to date has been locating a playing field.

Anyone interested in playing for the team is asked to contact Jimmy Harris at PL 2-4602 . . . .

Deacons Talk With Authority

Strictly from the Deacs . . . .

Alley Hart, the little Wake Forest guard from Kinston, considers the 1960 Deacon club as strong as this one. "That Dave Budd was a tremendous player," sighs Alley.

Big Len Chappell, left off the All-American team, had something he wanted to prove in the ACC tournament. "I wanted to prove I was as good as those other three guys (Doug Moe, York Larese, and Art Heyman) that made it." And he did.

Says Billy Packer, "When we're winning it seems like everybody gets open, you want to pass the ball instead of shooting and everything just goes right".

Someone asked Bones McKinney if Chappell, his gigantic star, ever got mad. "He's only human", replied Bones, "I remember one time and we cleared the building" . . . .

Spring is here (we hope) and you can tell it with the change over in sports. Baseballs are being heaved (watch those arms) around and tracksters are warming up. Golfers are back in business, either practicing on the local Driving Range or playing at the course.

Phant Matmen Edge Cardinals

Greenville won its final wrestling match here yesterday, defeating Jacksonville, 36-14.

The local matmen will compete in an all-day regional meet in Goldsboro Saturday.

Sammy Pugh, Dalton Owens, and Don Joyner won their matches against Jacksonville to remain undefeated.

The results:

98-lb. class — Christopher (G) pinned Wiggins.

105—Pugh (G) pinned Foran.

115 — Huffman (J) decisioned Boyd.

123—Owens (G) pinned Hoge.

130—Evans (G) pinned Cando.

Kinston Opens Play Thursday

CANTON, N.C. (AP) — Mount Airy, undefeated in 47 games, goes after a third straight state 3-A high school basketball title tonight to open the three-day annual tournament.

The Bears, who beat Reidsville 36-34 in a sudden death overtime last Saturday night to qualify for the tournament, meet Durham Northern at 7 p.m. Bethel plays Sanford in the other half of a doubleheader.

Kinston plays Dallas at 7 p.m. and Clinton faces Reynolds of Asheville at 8:30 Thursday night to complete first round action. Winners on the first two nights play in the semifinals Friday night. The title game will be played Saturday, preceded by a consolation game between the semifinals losers.

Durham Northern lost its first four games this season, but under coach Jim Armstrong came back to win 19 in a row and clinch the District 3 title. Kinston, also unbeaten this season, won 23 games and is a major title threat.

NIT Field Doesn't Offer Top Team

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The field for the 1961 National Invitation Tournament, finally completed Tuesday, doesn't include even one of the nation's top ten college basketball teams. But there's every indication that the competition among 12 teams should be very close.

In setting up the pairings, the selection committee didn't attempt to rank the four seeded teams. Instead it listed them in roughly alphabetical order without giving an explanation why these four were selected over the other eight.

The seeded teams are Dayton (19-7), Memphis State (20-2), Niagara (16-4) and either Colorado State University (17-7) or Utah (20-6). The last entry is to be determined Saturday when Colorado State and Utah play off for the Skyline Conference championship. The winner will go into the National Collegiate (NCAA Tournament and the loser to the NIT.

Dayton and the Utah-Colo. State winner were placed in one bracket and Memphis State and Niagara in the other. The seeded teams will go directly into the quarter-final round.

The schedule:

Thursday night, March 16 — first round: St. Louis vs. Miami of Florida (19-6); Holy Cross (18-4) vs. Detroit (18-8).

Saturday afternoon, March 18—first round: Temple (19-6) vs. Army (17-6); DePaul (17-7) vs. Providence (20-5).

Saturday night, March 18 — quarter finals: Colorado State U. or Utah vs. St. Louis-Miami winner; Memphis State vs. Holy Cross-Detroit winner.

Tuesday night, March 21 — quarter finals: Dayton vs. Temple-Army winner; Niagara vs. DePaul-Providence winner.

Thursday night, March 23 — semifinals.

Saturday afternoon, March 25—final and consolation game.

The selection of St. Louis after last year's winner, Bradley, had declined an invitation, brought a protest because Tennessee State had been ignored.

Percy Sutton, president of the New York branch of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, charged that the omission of the all-Negro school from Nashville, Tenn., gave indication of racial prejudice.

Ken Norton, chairman of the NIT selection committee and coach at Manhattan, denied that race was involved.

"We have invited small college teams before and they never have lived up to expectations," he said. "The members of the committee selected what they thought were the best and most efficient teams."

Joe Brown Wins Bout On Decision

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Joe Brown, the lightweight champion, took a unanimous decision Tuesday night over Joey Parks of Omaha in a 10-round nontitle bout.

Both Brown and Parks weighed in at 138.

Parks controlled the fight in the early rounds with a hard left and staggered the champion in one round. But he tired badly in the later rounds and Brown's smooth boxing made the difference.

The bout was a tuneup for Brown's April 18 title defense against Dave Charnley of London.

Loyola Newest Entry In NCAA Post-Season Action

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Loyola of Los Angeles, newly crowned champ of the West Coast Athletic Conference, had made it to the National Collegiate basketball championships for first time, leaving the NCAA with seven vacancies for its far-flung 24-team tournament opening next Tuesday.

Loyola, 19-6 this season, clinched the WCAC title Tuesday night with an 82-64 victory over Pepperdine that really wasn't needed. A few minutes before, Santa Clara had spilled San Francisco 51-39, eliminating the only team left with a chance to catch Loyola.

The Lions from Loyola, represenatatives of a conference that sent the San Francisco Dons on to back-to-back NCAA titles with All-America Bill Russell in 1955 and 1956, will play the Skyline Conference champs in their first tournament game in the Far West regional at Portland, Ore., March 17. The Skyline berth will be decided Saturday night in a play-off at Provo, Utah, between co-champs Utah and Colorado State. That's the play-off where even the loser wins. While the winner goes to the NCAA, the loser goes to the National Invitation Tournament, which completed its 12-team lineup Tuesday with the addition of St. Louis, No. 3 team in the Missouri Valley Conference.

Ed Bento, Loyola's ace, scored 27 points in the Lions' Wrap-up victory Tuesday night, the first undisputed WCAC championship for the Los Angeles school. Loyola tied with Santa Clara for the conference title last year but lost the NCAA berth in a play-off with the Broncos.

Filling of the WCAC berth left four conference berths and three at-large vacancies in the NCAA lineup. The Ohio Valley Conference will finally unwind its knot tonight at Louisville, with Morehead playing Western Kentucky for the right to enter the NCAA. Western, Morehead, and Eastern Kentucky finished in a three-way tie for the conference title. Morehead eliminated Eastern in the first round of the play-off Monday night.

Kentucky and Vanderbilt meet Thursday in a play-off for the Southeastern Conference berth Saturday, in addition to the Utah-Colorado State game in the Skyline, New Mexico State and Arizona State U. will play at Tempe, Ariz., to determine the Border Conference representative and the winner of the Xavier of Ohio-Chicago Loyola game at Chicago Stadium will get an at-large berth against the Ohio Valley Conference winner in the NCAA Mideast preliminaries at Louisville March 14.

The two remaining at-large berths in the Far West regional will be picked after a telephone poll Sunday morning, with Oregon State, Portland, Oregon and Seattle reported to be the leading contenders.

While the big boys were settling their disputes Tuesday night, the 32-team field for the NAIA small-college tournament in Kansas City in play-offs were Whitworth (Wash.), St. Norbert (Wis.), Missouri Valley, Carson-Newman, Anderson (Ind.), Steubenville (Ohio) Simpson (Iowa), Gustavus Adolphus, Emporia State (Kan.), and Linfield (Ore.).

Red Signs Cardinal Pact After Impressive Workout

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Aging Red Schoendienst, threatened with the end of a major league career spanning 16 seasons and a bout with tuberculosis, has been pronounced the "youngest-acting guy" on the St. Louis Cardinals and rewarded with a $25,000 contract.

The 38-year-old switch-hitter went at top speed in the Cards' intra-squad game Tuesday, cracking two singles, stealing a base, scoring one run and making a stop with the skill he used to flash as one of the National League's greatest second baseman.

Schoendienst, who had been working without a contract after getting his release from the Milwaukee Braves, accepted terms following the workout. General Manager Bing Devine said, "This is our break, not Red's. He has been most impressive and should help us tremendously."

Manager Solly Hemus concurred, calling the veteran "the youngest - looking, youngest-acting guy on the squad. My one concern was Red's health," said the Redbird skipper, "but no man could be ill and work the way he has the last two weeks."

Milwaukee's reluctant Wes Covington finally ended his holdout siege by signing after the club gave the 29-year-old outfielder an ultimatum to sign or go through with his threat to sit out the season.

Elsewhere, a rash of injuries broke out. The San Francisco Giants' Willie Mays escaped serious damage when a vicious foul spun off his left foot in batting practice. He suffered a bruised instep.

Rocky Nelson, first baseman for the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, was hit in the face by a pitched ball, but was not seriously injured. Chicago White Sox rookie catcher Camilo Carreon split an index finger on his right hand when he was struck by a foul.

The Cards reported that ailing shortstop Julio Gotay still has blurried vision from an eye inflammation. Outfielder Al Pilarcik, obtained from Baltimore in a trade, told the Kansas City A's he's retiring because of illness in his family.

The A's continued to get solid hitting performances from rookie outfielder Jay Hankins, who had two doubles and a single in an intrasquad test and is 8-for-19. Infielder Lou Klimchock slammed a double and single and now is 8-for-14.

Right-hander Don Drysdale, erratic last season with a 15-14 record, pitched four sharp innings in a Los Angeles workout. He gave up only one hit and two unearned runs—on a homer by Tommy Davis—struck out four and walked only one.

Joe Hicks had a homer and double in Washington's intrasquad contest. Roy Sievers connected for a pair of doubles in the White Sox' practice session. Bob Skinner and Bob Oldis each had three hits at the Pirates' camp. Gus Bell sparked the Cincinnati workout with a two-run homer.

Limited Time For Kennedy To Get Nuclear Test Ban

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Evidence mounted today that so far as congressional leaders are concerned President Kennedy has only a limited time in which to try to conclude an agreement with the Soviet Union barring test explosions of nuclear weapons.

The President obviously will be under very heavy pressure to resume testing of new U. S. atomic weapons later this year unless the Soviets make substantial concessions in their proposals for a test ban treaty.

Some further expressions of the administration attitude toward a new round of negotiations, starting at Geneva in two weeks, may come from Kennedy today at his weekly news conference.

The President and his top disarmament advisers conferred Tuesday at a luncheon meeting with a dozen senators and House members who are active in the disarmament field. Disarmament adviser John J. McCloy, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk were among those who participated in the conference.

Afterward, Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N. M., a member of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, said a majority of the committee was opposed to an indefinite extension of the moratorium on atomic weapons testing.

The moratorium has been in effect for 2½ years, beginning at the same time as U. S.-British-Soviet negotiations at Geneva on a permanent agreement enforced by an international inspection system to guard against sneak tests.

Members of the committee are reported to have emphasized to the President and other officials that they feel the United States is taking grave risks by not testing weapons in the absence of an inspection system.

The Soviets also, like the British, have had a moratorium policy since the Geneva negotiations got under way. But many congressional leaders as well as officials in the Defense Department and Atomic Energy Commission fear that the Soviets may have been testing some devices in spite of their public pronouncements to the contrary.

Anderson said, "I don't think many members of the committee trust the Russians."

The United States' continuation of a voluntary moratorium, Anderson said, amounts to giving the Soviets a suspension of testing without any inspection to assure they live up to any bargain.

"They would like for this to continue indefinitely," Anderson said. "Some of us do not agree."

Another member of the committee, Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, chimed in: "I am one of those, too."

Kennedy is reported to have made a firm decision to do everything reasonably possible to get a test ban agreement. The British government, under heavy domestic pressure to resume testing, is even more eager than the United States to get a ban and much more fearful of the consequences of resuming tests.

Authoritative sources in the capital said it was apparent that Kennedy is unwilling to fix any deadline for the negotiations beginning March 21. However, in administration quarters it is reported that McCloy feels that six weeks to two months should be sufficient time in which to find out if the Soviets seriously want a test ban treaty.

Top Mobile Map-Making Units Call Ft. Bragg 'Home' But Rarely There

FORT BRAGG — Topography is one of the science-arts of engineering the Modern Army uses, and the Strategic Army Corps, with headquarters at Fort Bragg, N.C., has the reputation of being best equipped of the finest Army in the world.

Thus, it's only logical that STRAC, whose mission calls for being able to move to any part of the globe at a second's notice, should host an entirely-mobile topographical unit, the 66th Engineering Company (Topographical). One of five such companies in the entire Army, the unit is the only one currently stationed in the United States. A larger, less mobile unit, the 138th Engineering Battalion (Topo), makes its home at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

But, though the 66th calls Ft. Bragg home, very seldom do the men and machines stay on post. Much of their time is spent "in the field", in support of STRAC paratrooper operations.

"At least one van accompanies headquarters on every field problem," Sgt. Thomas J. Newman, the company "First" for three years, stated. "We've got seven trucks now, and we'll be getting five more in the near future." Sgt. Newman has been with the unit longer than any other man of the current staff.

The "trucks," powerful giants that weigh almost two tons unloaded, carry thousands of dollars worth of equipment over rough or muddy paths every field problem. Men of the company have developed fondness for them, giving each a girl's name, and they even spend extra time polishing the vehicles, cleaning and repairing the powerful diesel motors, and freshening the paint. They depend entirely on the vehicles as their home in the field.

Of necessity, the vehicles ride comfortably. An entire offset printing plant, delicate enough in the back shop of a newspaper, must be available for use in map-making and other printing when the trucks roll to their stop in the field. A 24X30 process camera, two presses, and a smaller camera can't take much jarring or rough handling.

Through field problems here, in Louisiana, and near Struttgart, Germany, the 66th has provided topographical support, despite bad weather and roads. All paraphanalia, including a photography laboratory, plate process section, plate grainer section, and a rectifier, have arrived safely every time, to be of service in the field.

Other jobs, perhaps less dramatically illustrating the role of STRAC but just as important to STRAC's mission, are being performed by the company. Since the 1900s, surveyors, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and other engineering units have been over the Ft. Bragg area in map-making projects. Within a 100-mile radius, there are over 700 small cement markers stuck into various location-spots.

These markers are being discovered and noted by the 66th Engineers survey team. First, the team learns from old records approximately where the markers should be located. After so many years, it might not be there, or some reference-point like a tree or a stream might have disappeared.

When the team finds all the markers, then with the grid system so established, a rapid artillery survey control test will be made.

1st Lt. Stewart H. Williams, a relative newcomer to the organization but an experienced engineer with a degree from Michigan College of Mining Technology, commands the 107-man company.

Somebody Thought He Said 'Bomb' Under Seat

GREENSBORO (AP)—A plane made an emergency stop here Tuesday to give medical attention to one of the 15 passengers. While it was on the ground someone thought the passenger—who was later charged with public drunkenness—said, "There's a bomb under my seat."

Passengers were unloaded and baggage searched, but nothing was found amiss. And the passenger, Charles Edward Turner, 39, of Washington, D.C., said that what he had told sheriff's deputies was, "There's a bottle under my seat."

The Delta Airlines DC6, en route from Washington to Dallas, was not scheduled to land at the Greensboro-High Point Airport. It did so not because of any bomb scare in flight, but because passengers and a stewardess had noticed blood dripping from Turner's left wrist.

Turner, a pressman for magazine printers, was quoted as saying that while crushing out a cigarette in the plane's restroom, he had accidentally cut himself with a razor blade left on a shelf.

The pilot, Capt. Francis McDowall of Atlanta, said there was no mention of a bomb while the plane was in flight, and that he landed so Turner could get medical attention. A doctor at the airport said the cut was superficial.

Deputies said Turner told them he had taken a few drinks before leaving Washington to visit his ailing mother at Charlotte. They also said he told them he had just been discharged from a tuberculosis hospital in Maryland.

Neither a bottle nor his luggage was found on the plane. It was discovered later that his luggage had been put on an Eastern Air Lines plane in Washington when he exchanged his Eastern ticket for the Delta economy flight. A bottle of sherry wine was found in his luggage when it was searched at Charlotte.

The plane, which had a two-man flight crew and two stewardesses, continued its flight after a delay of an hour and a half here.

An FBI agent questioned Turner and said it was a case for Greensboro authorities. They arrested him on the drunk charge and held him until they complete their investigation.

Fraternity Carries On Project To Help Blind

Working in cooperation with the N. C. Commission for the Blind: Home Industries Division, members of the Alpha Delta Tau, industrial arts fraternity at East Carolina College, have begun a service project of making molds so that blind people can form and shape metal bowls and dishes.

Robert W. Leith, faculty member of the industrial arts department, is directing members of the fraternity in their work.

"We became interested in the project through Miss Irene Beaudine, state supervisor of workshops and home industries in the State Commission for the Blind," Mr. Leith stated. "Thirteen fraternity members are working on it at present. We intend to continue this service as need for additional molds arises."

To date, twenty molds have been completed. They are made of maple and range from four to fifteen inches in diameter. Shapes are round, rectangular, and oval. The molds will be distributed to the blind by the State Commission.

Bowls and dishes are made by placing a copper, brass, or aluminum disk over the mold and forming the object by a hammering process.

Alpha Delta Tau is a national honorary fraternity based on scholastic achievement in industrial arts. Among aims of the organization are to promote scholastic proficiency foster professional advancement, and to uphold personal and professional honor among members. Mr. Leith and Director Kenneth Bing of the industrial arts faculty at East Carolina are advisors of the college chapter.

Has Entries In Photo Contest

James Kirkland of Raleigh, photographer on the staff of the East Carolina College student newspaper, The East Carolinian, has entered a series of pictures in the National Collegiate Press Association Photography Contest sponsored by Compton Encyclopedia Company.

Kirkland, a junior business major, has been the East Carolinian photographer for the past three years.

The contest includes photographs from college newspapers throughout the United States. Each contestant is required to submit at least three pictures that appeared in his college newspaper during the course of the preceding school year.

Would Legalize Sunday Fishing

ATLANTA (AP) — The Georgia Legislature has passed a bill to legalize fishing on Sundays after Sen. Erwin Owens of Dahlonega said Sunday was the "only day I have to relax and go fishing with my kids."

In addition, Owens said he wanted the bill adopted because many tourists going through Georgia on Sundays "stop to eat at picnic tables beside a stream, throw out a hook, and a sheriff comes along and fines them $25."

Completes Work On Ph.D. Degree

Harold M. Goldstein, faculty member of the department of social studies, has completed work on the Ph. D. degree in public finance at Clark University, Worcester, Massachusetts. His dissertation deals with "The Impact of Federal Income Disbursements on the Southeastern States — 1929, 1939, 1949, 1957."

Dr. Goldstein, a native of Boston, Massachusetts, joined the East Carolina faculty as assistant professor of economics in September, 1959. Before coming to Greenville, he taught economics at Clark University for two years.

PEASMARCH, England (AP) — A trade union for clergymen to fight for higher wages is urged by the Rev. Lewis Roberts, a rural pastor of the Church of England who says he finds it hard to live on his $1,820 salary.

Show, Parade By Boating Club

GOLDSBORO — Wayne County Outboard Boating Club today announced plans for what promises to be the biggest boat show and parade in eastern North Carolina history.

The show will be held March 17, 18, 19 in the Victory Warehouse at Goldsboro and will be open from 1 p.m. until 9 p.m. on Friday and Sunday, and from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. on Saturday. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to register for door prizes.

Boat and boating equipment manufacturers and dealers within a 75 mile radius of Goldsboro will participate.

Commodore Frank Joyner of the Wayne OBC said reservations have been made for 61 warehouse spaces for displaying boats and other water recreation equipment.

In addition to full-line showings by dealers and manufacturers, space also is being provided for displaying fully rigged boats owned by members of the local club.

The parade will be held on Thursday, March 16, as a prelude to the boat show. Joyner said latest boat and motor styles are being entered in the parade by those participating in the show.

Small Nationalist Chinese Force Is Problem To U.S.

By TONY ESCODA

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Some 3,000 Nationalist Chinese irregulars—remnants of Chiang Kai-shek's anti-Communist force on the mainland—are posing a problem for Southeast Asia and the United States.

For 12 years the irregulars have been roaming the 100-mile long, heavily jungled frontier area where Thailand, Laos, Burma and Communist China meet.

From hideaways in Burmese territory, where they set up an opium processing business, the Nationalists made occasional forays on Communist Chinese border villages.

This earned them the name of bandits among Burmese officials, who feared the raids would spoil the increasingly friendly relations between neutralist Burma and its powerful Communist neighbor.

The Nationalist activities became even more of an irritant last year when the Burmese and Chinese reached agreement on a border treaty ending a long dispute between the two countries. Last January the Burmese army launched a campaign to clean out the Nationalists.

The Nationalists, armed mostly with World War II vintage weapons, slipped over the borders into neighboring countries. The bulk of them fled to Laos while about 1,000 crossed into Thailand.

Rumors that Nationalist planes from Formosa were dropping American-supplied arms to the irregulars were heightened last month when a Formosa-based plane was shot down in the border area. The Burmese claimed it had dropped arms to the irregulars, and thousands of Burmese rioted in front of the U. S. Embassy in Rangoon.

The U. S. government dispatched an American mission to north Burma to check on the rumors and expressed its concern to Chiang Kai-shek's government. Chiang's regime claimed the plane was unarmed, chartered by a relief association on Formosa, and was dropping food and medicine.

Thailand's government last week said it had ordered strong troop detachments to northernmost Chiengrai Province to disarm the Chinese and "in case of resistance to expel them from Thai territory by force." Monday night the Thais said the irregulars had withdrawn, presumably back to give the Burmese more headaches.

Advised Not To Take It Seriously

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Congress has been asked not to take the Arkansas Legislature too seriously.

State Sen. Douglas Bradley of Jonesboro and some associates Tuesday introduced a tongue-in-cheek resolution which noted that the Legislature had memorialized Congress "To do this and to do that; to raise taxes and to lower taxes; to balance the budget and to increase Social Security benefits; to abolish the income tax and capital punishment."

These resolutions "have induced in Congress a state of great confusion," the new resolution declared.

It concludes that Congress "is herewith urgently and respectfully memorialized to pay little or no attention to the resolutions heretofore adopted by this General Assembly."

Given Solitary For Prison Riot

FOLSOM PRISON, Calif. (AP) —Seven white and four Negro prisoners were sent to solitary confinement Tuesday for 29 days for taking part in last week's dining hall race riot.

The 11 sent to solitary were found guilty of pushing, throwing food trays, and promoting work stoppages.

Prison officials said rioting started after whites had objected to sitting next to Negroes.

ECC Faculty Told Russian Education System Inferior

Although after Sputnik, a segment of the American people decided that the Russians must "have something" in their educational system and that we should imitate them, their schools, in general, are inferior to ours, Superintendent Jean P. Booth of Kinston schools told East Carolina College faculty members Monday.

Mr. Booth was principal speaker at a meeting of the faculty in the McGinnis auditorium. President Leo W. Jenkins of the college introduced him to the audience.

Last year with 21 other educators Mr. Booth visited Russia under the sponsorship of the U.S. State Department. An inspection tour of Russian schools, covering 18,000 miles and including both secondary schools and institutions of higher learning, provided a basis for a comparison of the two educational systems.

Of the 2,000 schools in Russia, Mr. Booth said, 51% are one-teacher, one-room schools. Buildings, 81% of which were built before 1917, present a drab appearance on the exterior, and classrooms are poorly lighted. In general, he said, equipment is not modern. Library and laboratory facilities are poor by our standards, Mr. Booth told his audience.

Little or no flexibility, he stated, is evident in the curriculum or in methods and techniques of teaching in Russia. Instruction, he continued is authoritarian, and great emphasis is placed on drill and memorization in the classroom. "The student," he said, "has no chance for creativity."

If a disciplinary problem with a child arises, Mr. Booth explained, social pressure is brought to bear on his parents by other parents of the community.

The grade report of the Russian child, he says, differs from that in schools in the United States. In Russia the report covers approximately 80 pages and must be examined and signed by the parent each Sunday.

Some of their institutions of higher learning, however, he said, are "wonderful schools." Competition to enter these, he continued is rigid and severe, for only a few are selected.

Greenville and Kinston schools, he stated, are equivalent to or better than the best secondary schools which he visited in Russia

Flying Grandpa Girdles Globe For New Record

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Max Conrad, 57, the flying grandfather, landed deftly at Miami International Airport early today, completing an around-the-world flight in 8 days, 18 hours and 49 minutes.

The flight smashed a 29-day record previously held for light planes circling the globe.

A tailwind boosted Conrad and a companion, Dick Jennings of New York, in their two-engined Piper plane on the last leg of the flight from Port of Spain, Trinidad. The plane passed Miami Airport's checkpoint at 2:46 a. m. and was on the ground two minutes later.

The Winona, Minn., native and veteran sports flyer was clocked off Miami Airport at 8:07 a. m. Feb. 27 on the first leg of his flight.

The flyer would have arrived in Miami a day earlier had he not made an unscheduled landing Monday at Amapa, on Brazil's northern coast, en route from Dakar, West Africa, to Port of Spain.

Conrad embarked on a 25,457-mile itinerary in hopes of cutting 20 days off the 29-day record set in 1959 by the late Peter K. Gluckmann for planes in the 3,858 to 6,613-pound class. Gluckmann flew a 23,456-mile route. The record was recognized by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, governing body of sport flying.

The flying grandfather—of five children—has ten children of his own. He learned to fly in 1928 at Denver and has made more than 75 transatlantic crossings in light aircraft.

Blind Aid For Month Revealed

Aid to the Blind payments went to 147 persons in Pitt County during February, according to the Pitt County Welfare Department.

Three more persons were assisted in completing applications for the payments and two case swere closed during the month.

One person was placed by the Rehabilitation Department as operator of a store. Another is being assisted in starting a poultry project.

Forty-six persons were given eye examinations; glasses were recommended for 28; surgery for five; treatment for nine. Four persons were removed from the classification of blindness and four eye operations were performed.

The Greenville Lions Club during the month arranged for purchase of glasses for seven persons and transportation to Duke Hospital for two. The Lions also approved payment for glasses for 16 more persons, an artificial eye for one and special drugs for another.

The Lions donated $100 toward the purchase of a truck to be used in the Home Industries Division of the Commission for the Blind.

Perimeter Road Work Progresses

AYDEN — Work on a new perimeter road, from Gum Swamp Road to Highway 102 east, has progressed somewhat in the past week, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said yesterday.

A pipe has been installed in the ditch of the road. One day's full work has been accomplished on the road, Paylor said, since the ground was dry enough to begin.

The road is as yet unnamed.

DOUBLE PAYMENT

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis county tax collector's office is having second thoughts about its new system of returning the taxpayer's original bill as a receipt, marked paid. Some 500 taxpayers have returned the receipted bills, along with second payments in full.

Arrested Adults Face New Count

COLUMBIA (AP) — Thirty-three more Negro adults arrested in an anti-segregation march here last week may be charged with contributing to the delinquency of 156 minors also arrested.

All 190 defendants, including a white student and two officials of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, are charged with breach of the peace. The demonstration took place last Thursday on the grounds of the State House.

The white student, Frederick E. Hart, 17, of Washington, D.C., a freshman, has left the University of South Carolina voluntarily. The university said he had not been expelled.

The first eight students to be tried were convicted of breach of the peace Tuesday. The only adult in that group also was charged in a surprise move by the presiding magistrate with contributing to the delinquency of a minor or minors.

The charge was made by Magistrate Frank Powell against James Edwards, Jr., 21, a Benedict College student from Greenwood County. He was held at the Richland County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Powell apparently plans to charge all 34 adults with contributing to the delinquency of minors.

The charge is a felony, punishable by a maximum of three years in prison and a $3,000 fine. Breach of the peace, a misdemeanor in this case, carries a maximum of 30 days in jail and a $100 fine.

The demonstrators will appear for trial in groups of eight.

The next eight will appear before Magistrate Powell Monday.

Musicians Are Invited To Soviet

MOSCOW (AP) — Dmitri Shostakovich, composer, Tuesday invited young musicians from throughout the world to come to Moscow next year and try their luck in a new competition patterned after the one that catapulted pianist Van Cliburn to fame.

Shostakovich, who heads the organizing committee, said the second Tschaikovsky competition for pianists, violinists and cellists will be held in Moscow April 2-May 2, 1962.

Winners will receive gold medals, prizes of 2,500 rubles—$2,775 at the official rate—and the right to make recordings and extensive concert tours in the Soviet Union.

They Can Spell, But In Own Way

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It isn't that the ladies of a sewing circle here can't spell, but they do call themselves "The Sowers."

Mrs. A. R. Kasey, president of the group, explains: "There is another word spelled s-e-w-e-r-s, and if you pronounce it that way, it doesn't sound nice."

State FBLA Convention At Durham This Weekend

More than 600 high school and college business students will gather in Durham this week-end for the Seventh Annual Convention of the North Carolina Chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America. Headquarters will be the Jack Tar Hotel in Durham, March 10-12.

Dr. James L. White of the East Carolina College School of Business, state FBLA advisor, has announced the program, which will include addresses by a college president and a business man.

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, President of East Carolina College in Greenville, will be the principal speaker Friday night, March 10, at the First General Session.

An outstanding educator, Dr Jenkins has demonstrated his interest in young people and youth activities through service in Little League, Recreation Commissions, and Boy Scouts. He is a popular speaker before high school graduating classes as well as before educational and civic groups.

E. P. McCollum of Greensboro will speak Saturday morning, March 11, at the Second General Session. Mr. McCollum is manager of the Electric Typewriter Division of the IBM Corporation. As a businessman, he has been active in the North Carolina Business Education Council through service as a representative of the Greensboro Chapter of the National Office Management Association.

The Future Business Leaders of America is the national youth organization for high school and college students studying business subjects. It is sponsored by the United Business Education Association, a Department of the National Education Association. There are more than 2200 chapters of FBLA in the nation, with 85 of them in North Carolina.

Two optional features of the convention will occur Friday afternoon, when delegates may attend a special showing at the Morehead Planetarium at Chapel Hill or tour the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company factory in Durham.

Delegates to the convention will have an opportunity to share ideas and problems during group meetings scheduled for Saturday morning.

They will also have a chance to compete for outstanding prizes and certificates during contests on Saturday afternoon to determine proficiency in spelling, public speaking, and parliamentary procedure. Judges will select as Mr. and Miss FBLA the young man and young woman "most likely to succeed". Prizes will also be awarded for the most outstanding chapter scrapbook displayed.

President of the North Carolina Chapter this year is Tim Brackett, senior business education major at Appalachian State Teachers College in Boone.

Other officers include High School Vice President Jerry Owens, Fike High School, Wilson; College Vice President Janice Belford, Flora Macdonald College, Red Springs; Secretary Judy Lee, Pamlico County High School, Bayboro; Treasurer Bearl Vick of Rocky Mount, East Carolina College, Greenville; Reporter Sandra Kennedy, Allen Jay High School, High Point; and Historian Doris Lambeth, Senior High School, High Point.

Postal Service Said Worsening

WASHINGTON (AP)—The postal service is worse now than when the Eisenhower Administration took over says Sen. Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Johnston Tuesday characterized the operation of the Post Office Department under Republican former Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield as one of "mismanagement and maladministration."

He said today's service "is little better than the pony service."

Johnston declared improvements were never achieved and offered in evidence:

Postal spending rose more than $1 billion in seven years, rate increases have raised first class mail rates one-third, second class rates 90 per cent, third class rates 150 per cent, and fourth class rates more than 100 per cent.

He said greatly increased costs resulted from establishment of regional offices and interfered with operation of local post offices.

He said he plans legislation requiring Senate confirmation of all post offices appointees drawing more than $10,000 a year.

Nothing To Do, So Jaypee Quit

CLINTON, La. (AP)—Justice of the Peace James McDowell was out of a job today. Even when he had a job, he had nothing to do. That's why he is out of a job.

McDowell resigned from the $240-a-year job Tuesday with the explanation that the sheriff and district judge had performed most of the functions of his office. That left nothing for him to do. So he quit.

Wide Range Of 4-H Influences Are Seen

(Editor's Note: Following is the third in a series of articles during National 4-H Club Week. Linda Evans of Chicod Senior 4-H Club discusses the influence and interest of 4-H Club work.)

By LINDA EVANS
Chicod Senior 4-H Club

This week 4-H Club members throughout the nation are observing National 4-H Club Week. During this week members confront the public with our projects, purposes, ideals, and how they are carried out.

4-H is characterized by never-ending challenges. Through demonstrations and project work, we learn the significance of success, but, as in all things, we also familiarize ourselves with defeat.

The influence of our 4-H work is felt not only in the home and community, but also in the personal lives of members. They become acquainted with 4-H'ers from different schools, counties and states, widening their circle of friends year after year. The ability to rely upon ourselves to carry out the many plans and projects in 4-H Club work has an invaluable effect upon every day responsibilities. As 4-H'ers, we try not to content ourselves with a job only "well done," as we uphold our motto, "To Make The Best Better".

The wide range of work in 4-H provides an interest for all its members. Projects and demonstrations include homemaking, agriculture, health, recreation, talent, and many more. Only this past summer, we found ourselves caught up in the fascinating intrigue of the theater, as the Pitt County 4-H'ers presented the North Carolina State Health Pageant in William Neal Reynolds Coliseum at Raleigh. This event gave us an opportunity to venture into an entirely differedt field Work in projects such as these are both educational and rewarding.

Mental Health Meet In Wilson

WILSON—Residents from seven eastern North Carolina counties participate in an area Community Health Conference to be held in Wilson on Wednesday, March 22, it was announced today.

The conference is being sponsored by the Committee on Rural Health and Education of the North Carolina Medical Society and will be held at the American Legion Building here. Subject for the special conference will be Community Mental Health, it was announced by Miss Annette Boutwell of Raleigh, official of the North Carolina Medical Society.

Several other organizations in the area are helping to sponsor the conference. They are the Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs, Public Health Departments, the Wilson County Mental Health Association, county Granges, county Farm Bureaus, Four-H Clubs, county Medical Societies, and county Medical Auxiliaries.

Counties participating in the conference will be Edgecombe, Greene, Johnston, Nash, Pitt, Wayne and Wilson.

The conference will open at 1 p.m. and will close at 4:30 p.m. Several prominent speakers in the field of mental health will participate in the program, Mrs. Boutwell announced.

Bissette Named For ASC Post

Grifton's W. Ivan Bissette was one of five Tar Heels named by Sens. Sam Ervin Jr. and B. Everett Jordan Tuesday in a recommendation to increase the membership of the N. C. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee from three to five.

In their recommendation to Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman the North Carolina senators included Bissette among five recommended appointments to enlarge the ASC body.

The Grifton farmer-merchant, who for many years served as a member of the State Board of Agriculture, produces a wide variety of farm products on the farms he owns and operates in the Grifton area.

The senators said they asked Secretary Freeman for the two-man increase "because we feel a larger committee will be better able to administer more effectively the far-reaching farm programs which are so important to the over-all economy of North Carolina."

They pointed out that the state produces in major quantities five of the six basic farm commodities with which the ASC program is primarily concerned and that North Carolina has the second largest number of farms of any state.

In addition to Bissette, the senators recommended appointment of Marcus Braswell of Whitakers, Novile Hawkins of Mars Hill, Claude Thorne of Mt. Airy and J. Lee White of Concord.

Judson Blount Re-Elected As Board Director

Judson H. Blount Sr. was re-elected director to represent merchants of five states on the 24-member board of Tobacco Associates, Inc., at the group's meeting in Raleigh yesterday.

The group's president, J. B. Hutson of Washington, D. C., gave a report of the year's work, including progress made in market development programs, development in the European Common Market and the world-wide flue cured tobacco situation.

Hutson also listed plans for the coming year. Two of the projects mentioned were a continued market development program and work on re-opening the Philippines market for American Flue Cured tobacco.

Representatives from Bethel, Ayden, Farmville, Greenville, and other Pitt County areas attended the meeting.

Mrs. Cora Powell, secretary of the Greenville Merchants Association, represented local merchants at the meeting.

Rep. Eugene C. Brooks III of Durham joins the ranks of those Solons who "want to give more consideration" to the many aspects of North Carolina's tax problem.

The Durham attorney, serving his first term in the legislature, says he is in favor of raising additional revenues through a sales tax, and that a tax on food seems equitable. "I am not in favor of any tobacco tax," he says.

Lincoln County's "freshman" representative, C. E. Leatherman, Lincolnton attorney, says he would have supported a tobacco tax, had Gov. Sanford included it in his budget requests to the General Assembly.

"I reiterate my support to public education; however I stated during the campaigns I did not favor tax on basic food commodities," Rep. Leatherman states.

"Not too much opposition" to Gov. Sanford' program for increased revenues is prophecied by Rep. Frank M. Wooten Jr. of Pitt.

An additional vote of approval was voiced by the seemingly imperturbable attorney from Greenville, who continued to say of the Governor's address: "I thought it was good. I am in favor of a general sales tax on consumer goods and this came close to it."

Rep. Herbert Hardy of Greene likewise voiced a vote of confidence in the Sanford plan for more money, but, like many others, said he'd rather "feel my way along".

Rep. Hardy describes himself as "a Terry Sanford Man" and pledges himself to do everything possible to help the Governor get his program passed.

Many lawmakers feel that they have not had sufficient time for thoughts to "jell", and that reactions are so mixed yet that no clear-cut trend or prediction is possible.

The Governor, however, is cheerfully optimistic. Graham Jones, Press Secretary to Gov. Sanford, announces that on the day following Sanford's much-publicized request for funds to support his educational program, only three unfavorable telegrams had come in by noon. Supporting the Governor were many telephone calls and over forty telegrams, in the same time.

REVIVAL SERVICES TO BEGIN IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, N.C.—The Rev. Billy Franklin of Middlesex will be guest speaker for a revival at the Church of God (Sixth and Bonner Sts.) here beginning tonight. Services will start at 7:30 each evening for the two-week series.

More Showers In Store Here

More scattered showers and occasional thunderstorms were forecast for today by the weatherman over North Carolina, including the local area.

Already .89 of an inch of rain has fallen since midnight Monday, Kent Glisson of the Greenville Utilities Plant said.

Rains so far have not affected the level of the Tar River which continues to fall. This morning it was measured at 7.9 feet, compared to 16 feet on Wednesday of last week.

Temperatures today were expected to reach the lower 80's on the south coast. In Greenville, temperatures ranged from 64 degrees at 4 a.m. to 66 at 8 a.m. Tuesday's temperatures were a high of 77 and a low of 68 degrees, Glisson said.

Faculties Elect Head For Group

BELVOIR—The faculties of Belvoir-Falkland High School and Falkland Elementary School Monday elected Dan Wooten president of the joint professional group at its meeting here Monday.

Wooten will assume his duties next September for the 1961-62 school term. Mrs. George Clark was named new secretary-treasurer.

At the last meeting of the current school term, E. N. Warren, Charles Moye and Mrs. Edward Mayo discussed with the group a recent meeting with legislators that involved quality education ideas.

The group heard a tape recording by Dr. Mildred A. Dawson, co-author of the state's newly-adopted English textbooks.

Three Charges Followed Early Morning Collision

Three charges were placed against a local man early this morning following a collision in the 1300 Block of Dickinson Ave. which caused an estimated $185 damage to the two vehicles involved.

Greenville Police said James R. Skinner, 27 of 206 East 12th St. was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol, careless and reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident after his car struck a parked car at 5:40 a.m.

Investigators, who identified the owner of the parked vehicle as Mildred James of Norfolk, Va., said the Skinner vehicle struck the rear of the parked car. Both were headed East, officers noted.

Police estimated damage to the James auto to be about $35 and set damage to the Skinner car at $150.

No injuries were reported.

No charges were placed by officers who investigated a collision at the intersection of Third and Evans Sts. at 7:31 p.m. yesterday.

Police said an estimated $300 damage resulted to a car being driven by C. J. Harris, 45 of 601 East Ninth St., which was involved in the collision.

Driver of the second car was identified as Charlie Harris, Jr., 37 of 1202 South Wright Road. Damage to his car was estimated to be $250.

Institute To Be Held Tomorrow

A Trustee - Librarian Institute, one of four in the state, will be held here tomorrow at Sheppard Memorial Library, it was announced today.

The institute is sponsored by the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill, in cooperation with the North Carolina State Library in Raleigh and the N. C. Association of Library Trustees.

The meeting will be attended by head librarians, library trustees and city and county governmental officials. Representatives will also be here from the State Library in Raleigh and from the Institute of Government, as well as a guest from the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Office of Education.

The meeting will open at 10:30 tomorrow, with the principal address at 11 a.m. by James Blount of Rockingham. Following the address, there will be a panel discussion, in which Reginald Gray, Pitt County auditor, will participate.

Blount will discuss the trustee's job in connection with libraries. The event will last all day.

Qualifying Test Given 131 Pupils

One hundred and thirty-one students at Junius H. Rose High School took the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test on Tuesday, it was announced today by G. S. McRorie.

All students who took the test are to be considered for Merit Scholarships to be awarded in 1962. The qualifying test was a three-hour examination of educational development.

The test is the first step in the seventh annual competition for four-year Merit Scholarships provided by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation and by sponsoring corporations, foundations, associations and individuals.

Bids Include 2 Pitt Road Jobs

Two Pitt County projects were among 32 in 34 counties for which the State Highway Department asked bids yesterday.

One of them, a 9.5-mile paving project, calls for surfacing of secondary road 1900 from Hanrahan, north to a paved road; and on NC Highway 102 from the Beaufort County line to a point near Stokestown.

The other project calls for grading and drainage on 3.4 miles of secondary road 1709 from NC 11, three miles south of Greenville, to secondary road 1725.

Bids will be opened by the highway department March 28 and low bids will be reviewed by the Highway Commission when it meets in Raleigh the last of March.

The 32 road improvement projects involve a total of 236 miles of road work.

Former Member Of ECC Faculty Dies

Chester A. Scruggs, faculty member of the department of science at East Carolina College from 1946 until his retirement in 1955, died yesterday at his home at 1017 Adrian Street, Augusta, Ga.

Arrest Two On Bootleg Counts

Two white men were arrested on charges of possessing non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale and one of them for transporting the illegal booze, after officers stopped a car last night near the Pitt-Beaufort line.

Officers identified the men as James S. Whitaker, 28, of Route 2, Williamston and Jim Wynn, 32, of Route 2, Robersonville.

Officers noted Whitaker was charged with illegal possession and transportation of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale, while Wynn was arrested for possessing whiskey for sale.

Pitt ABC officer H. B. Lilley and Constable William Crandall, who made the arrest, said the two were charged after two gallons of booze were found in the Whitaker vehicle.

Both men were placed under a $200 bond for their appearance in Pitt County Court March 14.

Officers noted that the car, an old model, is being held pending court action in the case.

Bethel Board In Routine Meet

BETHEL—Bethel Town Board members had a routine meeting last night, with no important business transacted, Mayor Joe Butterworth said today.

In addition to authorizing payment of town bills, members heard a report on the progress of the water well project and learned that workmen are still waiting for arrival of the pump for the project.

Still Cleaning Up After Big Fire

BETHEL—The Bethel Manufacturing Company is continuing to clean up, following a warehouse fire Friday night, it was reported today.

The fire destroyed a frame cotton storage warehouse, in which an estimated 343 bales of cotton were stored. Damages were said to be between $50,000 and $60,000.
