Litterbugs Left A Big Clean-Up Job

House To Probe Major Air Force Role In Space Plans

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House committee today questions top Air Force officers about a controversial Pentagon decision that gave the Air Force a virtual monopoly in military space projects. The decision drew a protest from Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, the Army officer who heads the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He reportedly said the ruling "goes too far" and was rushed along without giving the military chiefs a chance for proper study.

Laos Rebels Expected To Overrun Countryside

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Laotian army should be able to hold its cities—although the pro-Communist rebels are likely to overrun more of the countryside—until U. S. instructors can get loyal troops in shape to put up a stronger fight, U. S. officials said today. These officials indicated U. S. military aid personnel will intensify efforts to assure that royal Laotian troops are prepared adequately to cope with the growing threat from the Pathet Lao rebels. Training of Laotian forces traditionally has been the responsibility of the French military mission there.

New Service By Farmville C-of-C

FARMVILLE — Farmville's Chamber of Commerce has announced a new service to its 102 members—maintenance of a classified file of available employees. The Chamber approved the filing system at its last meeting and Secretary Louis Williams has begun accepting applications at the organization's office in the Town Hall. Williams said the new file will supply a source for member merchants to look for the type of employee desired. A feature of the new service, Williams said, is the elimination of a lot of prospects who would not be qualified for a particular job. Completed applications, he said, will be kept in the file under job-type classifications. Application forms are available at the Chamber office.

Northeastern District Science Fair Here Mar. 24

The Northeastern District Science Fair for junior and senior high school students in this area of North Carolina will take place at East Carolina College Friday, March 24. Students from the 22 counties of the district, winners in preliminary local fairs, are expected to enter their work in the science fair here. Carolina science department, district director, has issued an invitation to the public to view "the many evidences of talent, ingenuity, and skill displayed by our young people." Last spring more than 5,000 people saw the Science Fair exhibits at the college. The fair at East Carolina is one of eight similar district events staged during March and April in the state. Sponsored by the North Carolina Academy of Science, the fairs have the purpose of discovering and encouraging students who are interested in the various fields of science. Projects in the district fair at East Carolina will be entered in one of two divisions: the Junior Division of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades or the Senior Division of the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades. Work in both the biological and the physical science will be judged. Ratings will be based on the creative ability shown and the scientific thought and principle involved in the project. Thoroughness, skill, clarity, and dramatic value will also be considered. Winners in the Senior Division of the Northeastern District Fair become eligible to compete in the State Science Fair at Duke University, April 7, and 8. At Duke, state winners will be chosen for participation in the national science fair later this year in Kansas City. Prizes for the Northeastern District have been given by the Eastern-N.C. Section of the American Chemical Society, the

Legislative Week Is One Of Tax-Boosts

By ROBERT A. WILLIS RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina was treated this week to the striking spectacle of legislators almost tripping over one another in the rush to introduce bills that would raise taxes. The rush resulted from the lawmakers' desire to avoid placing a tax on food as proposed by Gov. Sanford. Rep. Thurston Arledge of Polk even got his name on two of the three bills introduced in the General Assembly. The Republican minority couldn't get its proposals in bill form fast enough, but rushed out a statement telling its own plan for new taxes. This unusual state of affairs was brought about by what seemed to be strong public reaction against the proposed sales tax on food — the backbone of Gov. Sanford's tax program to finance education improvements and expansion of some other state services. Most legislators appeared to favor the $70 million school betterment program, but many thought the voters would be more receptive to raising some of the needed new revenue through taxes on such items as tobacco and soft drinks, rather than food. The tax issue almost obscured a history-making event—the vote in the House to reapportion its membership according to population shifts shown by the 1960 Census. The state constitution requires this be done after every census, but this duty was neglected in the 1950s. Other significant bills during the week included several measures to stiffen the vehicle safety laws; and one to spell out what state officials are in line to succeed should the governor and other top officials die, and how the governor might be judged unable to fulfill his duties. Rep. Arledge offered his tobacco tax bill Tuesday, proposing three cents per pack of cigarettes, half a cent on small cigars, one and a half cents on large cigars, and on smoking tobacco, one and a half cents per 10 cents or major fraction of the retail price. At the same time, Sens. J. Max

Rusk, Gromyko Conferring Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk confers with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko today on the crisis in Laos and other critical issues involved in efforts of the Kennedy administration to improve U. S.-Soviet relations. Rusk was expected to make a new effort to get the Soviet government to halt its airlift of military supplies to pro-Communist Laotian rebels, U. S. officials

Hunting Father, Four Children

WALSTONBURG — Greene County law enforcement officials today were searching for a 31-year-old father who allegedly kidnapped his four children from their foster parents' home here yesterday. Greene Sheriff Clifton Barfield told the Daily Reflector today his department has no definite clues to the whereabouts of Edward Lee Russell, father of the four young children adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Carl T. Hicks Sr. of Walstonburg. The children, ranging in age from three to nine years, were adopted after their mother—a daughter of the Hicks—died about a year ago, Sheriff Barfield said. They were: Carolyn Hicks, 9; Edward Lee Hicks, 7; Richard Neal Hicks, 5; and Patricia Ann Hicks, 3. Sheriff Barfield said the children's names were changed to Hicks by the recently-completed adoption proceedings. Barfield said he has had reports that Russell has remarried since the children's mother's death. The sheriff said Hicks signed a warrant charging Russell with taking the children from the front yard of the Hicks home about 4 p.m. yesterday. He said eyewitnesses told him the children were unwilling to get into a 1958 model Buick, identified by the witnesses as the car Russell was driving. Barfield said his opinion is that Russell may be on his way to Jacksonville, Fla., where he is reportedly a resident.

Woman Seeking Seat On Board

FARMVILLE—Farmville's May 2 municipal election will be unique to this town in at least one respect. A woman will be among the candidates. Mrs. Frances Joyner Harper of 308 E. Belcher St. has filed as a candidate for the town's Board of Commissioners. In announcing her candidacy, Mrs. Harper becomes the first woman in Farmville's history to seek a seat on the five-member board. Mrs. Harper, daughter of Mrs. C. C. Joyner and the late Dr. Joyner, joined a four-man field seeking commissioner posts. Already announced as candidates are incumbent commissioners Oliver Murphree, Howard Moyer and W. C. Wooten and C. B. Mashburn Jr. seeking his first elective office. Through yesterday, no new candidates for Farmville's mayorship had been announced. Two men, W. E. Joyner and former mayor O. G. Spell, are seeking the post to be vacated June 30 by Mayor Charles S. Edwards who declined to seek re-election.

Freight Struck Herd Of Cattle

OXFORD, N.C. (AP)—A herd of animals belonging to an Oxford dairy farmer strayed into the path of a Southern Railway freight train Friday and were cut down like pins in a bowling alley. Thirteen milk cows and one bull were killed or put to death after suffering incurable wounds, and five milkers were injured. The herd was valued at $6,500. The farmer, Hoffman Suit, said the herd strayed during the brief absence of a farm worker. The engineer, J. H. Milstead, said he put on the brakes but the train ploughed into the herd before stopping.

Sanford Claims Small Tax Cost

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The proposed elimination of sales tax exemptions to finance educational improvements would cost North Carolinians only an average of 1 1/2 cents each daily, Gov. Terry Sanford said here Friday. In Charlotte for Friday night's first round of the NCAA Eastern Regional basketball tournament, Sanford told a news conference he has been surprised by what he termed favorable reaction to his proposals to finance an $83 million educational improvement program. "I've been in much rougher political campaigns," he said when asked about criticisms to the plan. He also said that when the citizens realize that the sales tax "is the only way to finance the program they will rally to its support. The young governor did not rule out other means of revenue—such as tobacco, whisky and luxury taxes—but said they would not supply the needed revenue. He said a tobacco tax could not pay for more than 1-3 of the proposed program. Sanford also defended the sales tax program as the best plan for the future. "This tax program," he said, "will grow with the state's population . . . and should not have to be altered for many years." Sanford also reiterated he favors legislative plans to reapportion the General Assembly and revamp the state's courts. He did not, however, specify any specific plans for this.

Continue Prayer For Judgement

Prayer for judgment was continued yesterday by the Greenville Recorders' Court in a case involving a 22-year-old Negro charged with hit and run driving, which stemmed from a January 16 collision on N. C. 11-15 just north of the Tar River Bridge. The man, William Nathaniel Brown, of Route 6, Greenville, was charged March 3, when he told Greenville Police he was the man operating the vehicle in the collision instead of the man being tried on the charges in court today.

Allies Told U.S. On Independent Course In Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States has notified Western colonial allies it will steer an independent course on Africa as the General Assembly headed into an agenda bristling with explosive African issues. The United States position was spelled out in a statement Friday night explaining the Security Council vote in which it split with the Western allies on Portugal's method of governing her African territory of Angola. The U. S. delegation said the move had been made after high level consultation and indicated the Kennedy administration would not hesitate to take a position at odds with an ally on other issues concerning racial or colonial issues. The U. S. announcement was certain to have a sharp impact on the 99-nation body confronted with such hot potatoes as South Africa's white supremacist policies, a U. N. probe criticizing Belgian actions in Ruanda-Urundi and fresh demands for reforms in Portuguese Angola. Asian-African nations were jubilant. They had welcomed this week's U. S. votes rapping Portugal on Angola and censuring South Africa for its policies in southwest Africa but many were doubtful whether this was a mere gesture, or signified a real change. Some diplomats wondered if U. S. Chief Delegate Adlai E. Stevenson had acted on his own without White House sanction. But Francis W. Carpenter, U. S. delegation spokesman, in a formal statement Friday night, said the U. S. decision to vote for the Angola resolution was made only after Stevenson had consulted with State Department officials and after approval by President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk. "The policy decisions behind the vote, which were all reflected in Gov. Stevenson's speech before the Security Council, had been carefully considered," Carpenter said. "Our allies were informed in advance. We have a deep and continuing interest and concern in Africa. The difficulty and complexity of African questions are however, such that there are and may continue to be differences in approach in some of them." The assembly, stalled for two weeks while the big powers dickered over what to discuss, resumes session next week with African issues blanketing the agenda.

Portuguese Move To Halt Slaughter

By MARIO PIRELLI LUANDA, Angola (Portuguese West Africa) (AP) — Portuguese troops have been flown northward to the Angola-Congo border area, where tribal terrorists have been hacking to death and mutilating any whites they find on remote Angola plantations. At least 30 persons—planters and members of their families—were reported slain. Portuguese colonial rulers here turned to armed might in hopes of ending the Mau-Mau type of slaughter. The same planes that rushed in troops brought back terrified settlers. Faced with the prospect of growing Congo-like massacres, colonial authorities here in the capital said today they are confident they can put down the bloody antiwhite uprising despite the hindrance of torrential rain. Negroes swinging machete knives have killed and hacked up countless men, women and children in the past three days. One report said 28 persons were murdered at a big coffee plantation near Quiexa, less than 150 miles northeast of this coastal city. A young girl was reported cut in half near Viege. One mutilated settler died after being evacuated here. Soldiers and paratroopers rushed northward faced the job of flushing the raiders from hiding places in dense forests.

Walter Dail To Seek Winterville Mayorship

WINTERVILLE—Walter Dail, a veteran of 12 years on the Board of Aldermen of the Town of Winterville, announced last night his candidacy for Mayor of Winterville in the May 1, elections here. Dail made the announcement at a special meeting of the town board after present mayor, Burney Tucker, told the aldermen he would not seek re-election to the office. The board had called the meeting to schedule the coming election. Tucker has served six terms as mayor of the town, for a total of 12 years in office. He has never been opposed in an election. Tucker, who gave the board no reason for his decision, said he had enjoyed serving the town as mayor and told the group the things accomplished by the town during his terms in office could not have been done without the cooperation of the people in the town or without the aldermen working together. He pointed out that when he first became mayor, the population of Winterville was only 853 and

WALTER DAIL

Other progress made by the town during the past 12 years listed by Tucker, included, the building of a fire department and purchasing of three fire-fighting units; paving of city streets; the hiring of a full-time town clerk; and having a full-time policeman and purchasing a radio-equipped police car. Tucker concluded by noting the town has also purchased all light lines within the town and, at present is making plans for a sewage disposal plant. At the meeting the aldermen set April 1, as the date to open the registration books and the opening date for candidates to file for election. April 22 was set by the board as the last date for candidates to file, while April 15 was set as the date for the registration books to close. April 22 was also set as challenge day. Filing fee was set at five dollars by the board. Date of the election for the town officials was set for May 1. Dail, who has served as mayor seven terms and head of the town's utilities during his entire term of office as an alderman, said he would file for the office as soon as the books open. A native of Winterville, Dail has for the past 11 years been engineer at Pitt Memorial Hospital. He is married to the former Dorothy Rich McLawhorn of Winterville, and they have four children.

There is a deep gloom that sometimes enshrouds the human soul. It comes silently, and usually without warning. Like an evening fog it seems to rise out of the marshes and imprison us in its chill tentacles.

There is a gleam of faith that is capable of penetrating the gloom. It seems to leap time and space to unite the soul with God. Men call it PRAYER.

Mrs. Ruby Speight Attends N. Y. Hair Design Institute

Mrs. Ruby Speight, owner of the LeAnne Beauty Salon, has just returned from an advanced course in hairstyling techniques at the Robert Fiance Hair Design Institute in New York.

Besides hair fashion design, Mrs. Speight also attended seminars in hair fashion construction, which includes the latest methods in Hair Cutting with Razor and Shears, Doubling Fashion Curl Formation, and Creative Hair Design.

While attending this well-known hair design center of post-graduate studies, Mrs. Speight spent some time at the Institute's new Fashion Wing. This is an international research and education center for the development of up-to-date hairstyling techniques and designs, with emphasis on hair styles that are both flattering and functional. The Fashion Wing was recently added to the Institute by the Director, Robert Fiance, who has a world-wide reputation as a "scientist" of hair design because he has applied principles of physics, chemistry, biology and scientific laboratory methods to the field of hair cutting and hairstyling. Mr. Fiance's students learn a scientific, rather than a trial and error or experimental approach, to hair design. Having completed studies in the new hair fashion trends and their creative techniques, Mrs. Speight is now making an advanced confidential report available to her patrons at the LeAnne Beauty Salon. Mrs. Davis To Attend Session

Coochee Council No. 60, Degree of Poochontas met Thursday night at the Red Men Hall on Broad Street. The meeting was called to order with Poochontas, Sister Marie Stocks presiding. Sick members were remembered with get well cards.

During new business, Sister Rosa Davis was elected by the members to attend the Great Council Session to be held in Asheville in May. Sister Lila Mae Fussell was elected as her alternate.

Under "Good of the Order," Sister Hazel McLawhorn gave a very interesting report on the history of the growth and success of the Council since it was instituted March 20, 1957. This meeting noted the third birthday of Coochee Council No. 60.

At the close of the meeting members gathered around the attractively decorated table for refreshments. A birthday cake with lighted candles served as the centerpiece. Individual sandwiches, salted nuts, apple rings, potato chips and fruit punch was enjoyed by everyone.

Laughinghouse HD Speaker

Using samples of the many different types of carpeting, Mr. Billy Laughinghouse spoke to the adults in the Home Economics Cottage at Winterville Thursday afternoon. His topic was "Selecting the Best Kind of Carpet for the Best Service."

Miss Ayla Ray Taylor, home economics teacher, reminded them of the meeting March 23rd when the speaker will be Mr. Ed Ratcliffe, A&P Co. manager at Greenville.

Refreshments of coffee cake and punch made by the H. E. students were served by Joyce Judah and Rose Robinson.

Those present for this meeting were: Mrs. N. T. Cox, Mrs. Vernon Cox, Mrs. B. F. Faulkner, Mrs. Lelon Forlines, Mrs. Robert V. Hall, Mrs. Wayland Hunsucker, Mrs. Beatrice Jackson, Mrs. J. H. McLawhorn, Mrs. Perry McLawhorn, and Mrs. Mark Pilgreen.

To help soothe a bleached back, wear a clean white blouse under sweaters—because wool can be uncomfortable and itchy in direct contact with troubled skin. Naturally, the blouse should be laundered after each wearing.

HOME DECORATING TODAY

By MRS. R. W. DAVENPORT

HINTS ON THE CARE OF YOUR FURNITURE
Vacuum clean or brush fabrics carefully at least once per week. Reverse loose type cushions every few days to reduce wear and maintain smooth tailored appearance. THIS IS PARTICULARLY IMPORTANT WITH CUSHIONS OF FOAM RUBBER.

Protect furniture from prolonged exposure to direct sunlight. Strong sunlight will cause fading to any fabric color.

Remove stains from fabrics as promptly as possible. The quicker the stains are removed, the easier and more effective the stain removal. Do not allow solvent to soak through fabric—dry immediately. This is particularly true when a cleaner other than soap and water is used.

Never allow cats, dogs or other pets to sit on your upholstered furniture. Animals' claws and other sharp objects will cause snagging of fabrics.

The Home Furniture Store has the right cleaning supplies to do any kind of cleaning. (Adv.)

Mrs. Ruby Speight Attends N. Y. Hair Design Institute

Mrs. Ruby Speight, owner of the LeAnne Beauty Salon, has just returned from an advanced course in hairstyling techniques at the Robert Fiance Hair Design Institute in New York.

Besides hair fashion design, Mrs. Speight also attended seminars in hair fashion construction, which includes the latest methods in Hair Cutting with Razor and Shears, Doubling Fashion Curl Formation, and Creative Hair Design.

While attending this well-known hair design center of post-graduate studies, Mrs. Speight spent some time at the Institute's new Fashion Wing. This is an international research and education center for the development of up-to-date hairstyling techniques and designs, with emphasis on hair styles that are both flattering and functional.

The Fashion Wing was recently added to the Institute by the Director, Robert Fiance, who has a world-wide reputation as a "scientist" of hair design because he has applied principles of physics, chemistry, biology and scientific laboratory methods to the field of hair cutting and hairstyling. Mr. Fiance's students learn a scientific, rather than a trial and error or experimental approach, to hair design.

Having completed studies in the new hair fashion trends and their creative techniques, Mrs. Speight is now making an advanced confidential report available to her patrons at the LeAnne Beauty Salon. (Adv.)

Quality Of Faculty Is Big Factor

No matter how large or how small a school—be it a grammar school or a huge university—the key to its fulfilling its educational purpose is the quality of its faculty.

President Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College emphasized this point before the Joint Appropriations Committee of the General Assembly this week in placing top priority on the need for $123,372 during the next biennium to increase faculty salaries at the college.

As Dr. Jenkins pointed out in his appearance before the committee, there are many things ECC will need in the next biennium that were not included in the recommendations of the Advisory Budget Commission. The most pressing of these, he said, is the need for improved salaries for members of the faculty and staff.

It is generally recognized in North Carolina, we think, that the state must arrive at a more competitive scale for teacher salaries in the public schools if the state is to retain a sufficient number of teachers and attract talented people into the education profession. The same situation faces the institutions of higher learning in the state; but the public does not seem to be aware of the situation as it applies to colleges.

As Dr. Jenkins pointed out to the Joint Appropriations Committee, East Carolina College "is finding it increasingly difficult to secure new faculty members of the caliber we have now" because of the salary scale. Perhaps of even greater significance is the fact that more than 20 per cent of the present faculty of 239 at East Carolina have "indicated that out of necessity they are actually seeking employment out of the state because of more favorable salaries in other college positions."

It is a grave situation North Carolina's colleges face when they find on the one hand difficulty in obtaining new faculty members because of salary scales, and on the other hand their present facilities being syphoned off to other states because of the salary schedule.

If the quality of education North Carolina provides for its young people is to be significantly improved, there must be improvement at the college level as well as at the public school level. And unless steps are taken to assure state supported colleges of faculties of the highest possible caliber, a deterioration of education at the top rung of the ladder is bound to result. In the case of East Carolina College, which graduates more teachers for the public schools than any other college in the state, a deterioration of the caliber of the faculty will also result in the deterioration of the caliber of new teachers being produced to fill the classrooms of our public schools. A natural chain reaction is set up to defeat the very goal of overall improvement in education which the state seeks.

While the legislature appears intent on taking a positive step to improve salaries of public school teachers, it is also imperative that it take a positive and realistic approach to improving salaries for members of college faculties also.

No Tax Bill For Popular Vote

By LYNN NISBET

CONSTITUTION—It is pretty generally conceded that the Legislature will not submit any tax bills to a vote of the people, either before or after the assembly itself acts upon them. Discussion of that proposal in Governor Sanford's second budget message occasioned some further research on the respective responsibilities of the three branches of State government and of the people.

Although the government of North Carolina is the constitutional republican type rather than a pure democracy, the ultimate supreme authority is vested in the people. Only the people can adopt or amend the constitution. Once a constitution has been adopted the legislative, executive and judicial branches are bound by its provisions, which only majority vote of the people can change.

The constitution places responsibility for administering and enforcing laws upon the executive department. There is further requirement that the chief executive officer (the Governor) shall from time to time advise and recommend policies to the legislature. Responsibility for interpreting statutes and preventing enforcement of laws contrary to the constitution is vested in the judicial department. But only the legislative branch, the General Assembly, can make laws. Even in those instances, which many observers fear are becoming too frequent, when authority to issue decrees or executive orders with force and effect of law is delegated to some other person or agency, primary responsibility cannot be avoided by the Legislature. That is true also with respect to some issues submitted to vote of the people.

ELECTIONS—There are only three areas in which a vote of the people is mandatory and authoritative: The election of officials provided for in the constitution; amending or changing the constitution; and the pledging of the full faith and credit of the State for debt above a constitutional limit. Prior to 1936 there was no limit upon the power of the General Assembly to pledge the full faith and credit of the State in the desperate plight of the State and its political subdivisions in the years of the Great Depression led to submission by the 1935 Legislature and adoption by the people in 1936 of an amendment limiting the power of any governing body to pledge faith and credit for new debts in an amount more than two-thirds of the total debt retirement in the preceding fiscal period. There is further limitation upon local governments against issuing bonds or creating debts for other than essential governmental purposes.

All other elections are advisory, and results are not binding upon the General Assembly. That rule applies even to the frequent and much publicized local elections on extending corporate limits of cities and towns. Because counties and municipalities are creatures of the Legislature, the General Assembly has full authority to enlarge, reduce or even abolish the creature.

For many years each legislative session has furor of argument about a statewide referendum on liquor. If the General Assembly submitted this issue to popular vote there might be a moral obligation to abide the result, but no constitutional or legal obligation. And, since it is inherent in our constitutional concept that one legislature cannot bind another, there is question whether the next session after the issue was submitted would be morally bound by the vote.

HISTORY—North Carolina has had three statewide referenda on the liquor question. In 1881 the people voted 166,325 to 48,370 against prohibition. In 1908 they voted 113,612 to 69,416 for prohibition. The 1933 vote on repeal of the 18th amendment to the Federal constitution came weeks after the amendments already had been repealed, and the vote was 293,484 to 120,190 against calling a convention to pass on the issue.

The 1935 General Assembly established ABC liquor stores in several counties, and the 1937 session enacted a statewide law providing machinery for local elections in every county. Results of all these local elections have been respected by succeeding Legislatures, but there remains the constitutional question of whether the General Assembly could, on its own authority, ignore these results and enact laws putting the ABC system in every county or taking it out of all of them.

TRIPARTITE—Pursuant to his constitutional prerogative Governor Sanford has recommended certain tax levies, and suggested submission to popular vote. Pursuant to constitutional requirements for interpreting the constitution the Supreme Court in a recent decision opinion written by the present Chief Justice, and reported in 216 N. C. 421, said: "The constitution of North Carolina vests the power to levy taxes exclusively in the legislative branch of the government."

The Legislature has "farmed out" this power to local governing boards of counties and municipalities, but has the inherent right at any time to rescind that delegation of power. Since the General Assembly has sole authority to levy taxes the implication is clear it has sole authority to determine what use may be made of the tax money collected. There is question whether even the Legislature has the right to spend tax money to pay for an election, the only effect of which would be to aid the members in making up their minds as to how they should discharge their responsibility.

Test For Drunkenness Still Seems Practical

It is to be hoped that the legislature in this session will look more favorably upon the proposed scientific test for drunkenness than was the case in 1959 when the proposal by the Department of Motor Vehicles was killed.

The bill would provide that persons charged with drunken driving take tests for alcohol content of the blood or face suspension of their driver's licenses. It specifies the levels of alcohol content of the blood which would be considered prima facie evidence that a person was not drunk, the level which would be prima facie evidence that a person was drunk, and the levels between which no specific conclusion could be drawn solely upon the basis of the tests.

Drunken driving continues to be a major problem facing the Department of Motor Vehicles in its program to provide safer highways for the people of North Carolina. With such a law on the books of the state, enforcement officers would be provided with a scientific basis for bringing drunkenness charges against drivers. At the same time, the tests would provide greater protection for those people who might otherwise be brought to trial unjustly for such charges.

It will provide the courts which hear cases of persons charged with driving drunk a more scientific basis than now is available for determining the guilt or innocence of the individuals.

The proposed law provides a practical approach to one of the serious problems which faces North Carolinians not only on the highways, but in the courts as well.

Africa Policies Undergo Shift

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's start down a new road on African policy this week, like much he has said and done since entering the White House, was foreshadowed by what he said in the presidential campaign.

It's a switch from the policy of the Eisenhower administration and has already pleased Asians and Africans.

But if pursued steadily—it's too soon to know how far Kennedy intends to go—it will almost certainly irritate if not anger some American allies and cause difficulties with them.

Repeatedly during the campaign Kennedy, promising a new attitude toward Africa, used this phrase: "We must ally ourselves with the rising tide of nationalism in Africa."

And even before that his secretary of state, Dean Rusk, was part of a group which said pretty much the same thing about the kind of attitude this country should have toward Africa.

In 1959 Rusk was chairman of a study panel set up by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, after studying American foreign policy problems, he said: "Today the United States is in the position of encouraging by practical, on the spot measures, the emergence of a new political order in Africa. It has an equal interest in seeing the era of colonialism pass, and in seeing that disorder and violence do not succeed it."

Twice in the past two days this country in the United Nations has given evidence of following the policy both Kennedy and Rusk said was necessary.

The first was Wednesday night when Adlai E. Stevenson, American ambassador to the United Nations, lined up with the Soviet Union and three African-Asian Delegations in the Security Council on a resolution calling for reforms in Portuguese Angola.

Previously this country had almost always lined up with its big allies on colonial issues. For example, just last fall the Eisenhower administration abstained from voting on a resolution calling for an end to colonialism as soon as possible.

Then Thursday the United States in the General Assembly took a position opposite Britain, France, Belgium and Portugal when it went along with a resolution censuring the Union of South Africa for repeatedly ignoring U. N. resolutions aimed at eventual freedom for the territory of South-West Africa.

That area, larger than Texas, has about 540,000 people, including 66,000 Europeans.

It seems reasonable to assume that since both Kennedy and Rusk not only had time to think through the consequences of this policy, good and bad, they will, now that they've started it, go on with it.

During the campaign Kennedy said the desire to be independent "is the most powerful force of the modern world." He added: "It is vital that we unequivocally place ourselves on the side of man's right to govern himself."

"Nationalism is the one force with the strength and endurance to threaten the integrity of the Communist empire itself."

Kennedy talked a great deal about American help to Africa. None of it has taken shape yet. It is in the formative stage and will probably appear piece by piece.

As a first step weeks ago Kennedy sent his assistant secretary of state for African affairs, G. Mennen Williams, to Africa to look around and get acquainted. Even this trip, when Williams talked about "Africa for the Africans," angered some American friends.

What's The Rush?

By HENRY HOWARD

They Don't Know It All

Some of the people who keep the wheels turning in the Voice of America headquarters apparently would like to see one of two things.

Either they would like to revise the wording of a neat blue and white sign posted beside the headquarters' front door.

Or, more preferably, they would like to see a much broader public education on how to interpret said sign.

As some people know, Voice of America is a branch of the United States Information Agency.

And, as most people around here may have seen, the neat blue and white placard by the VOA door reads: "United States Information Agency."

The trouble? Well, it's not really trouble. It's more like a mild pain in the neck—a slight and somewhat consistent irritation.

Passersby seem awfully inclined to take the placard literally.

Some of the VOA personnel will tell you people are constantly dropping by to ask questions ranging from:

"Can you explain this income tax business to me?" to "Can you tell me where the local draft board is?" to "How many rivers are there in the United States?"

These and many other questions are posed for the Voice of America personnel.

And when the questioners are told the information they want is not available at the VOA office, they want to know:

"Isn't this the Information Agency?"

We heard another of those tales the other day. The kind that's supposed to be true.

Well, we don't know, but we'll pass it along.

The scene was in a municipal courtroom somewhere around these parts and the judge was asking a defendant in a shotgunning case: "How do you plead?"

"Defense," was the weather-beaten old man's reply.

"You shot this man here in defense?" the judge wanted to know.

"Well, yer honor, not exactly that," the old man drawled. "I shot him in the back when he jumped de fence."

Like we said, we don't know whether there's a grain of truth in it.

Other Editors Saying Stronger Traffic Laws

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Once again an effort is being made to strengthen the traffic laws of North Carolina through bills introduced into the General Assembly relating to annual mechanical inspection of motor vehicles and scientific tests for persons accused of drunken driving.

The state once had a vehicle inspection law, but for various reasons it was discarded. Many citizens thought it too inconvenient, not realizing it was designed for their safety. It ultimately became a political football, and some legislators saw it as a means for incurring constituent support by voting it out. This was an unfortunate decision.

The inspection measure, as introduced in the Senate by Sen. Cutlar Moore of Robeson, would require annual checks of motor vehicles at state licensed garages or service stations. Items to be inspected would include brakes, lights, tires, horns, steering mechanism, windshield wiper and registration. Such inspection could prevent serious or even fatal accidents on the roads.

The other bill calling for tests for persons suspected of drunk driving provides that any person driving a vehicle in the state shall be deemed to have given his consent to such tests, provided the tests are administered at the direction of a law enforcement officer having reasonable grounds to believe such person to have been driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

The bill also provides that a person tested shall be allowed to have a doctor of his own choosing administer a test in addition to the official one. Refusal to submit to a test would be grounds for suspension of a motorist's driving license.

Now of course, there will be some who will object to this latter provision on the grounds that it is too severe, that a motorist shouldn't have his license taken away. But we must remember that drunken driving is a serious crime and little mercy should be shown to such guilty drivers. There really is no excuse for driving while drinking.

While on the subject, we might as well point to those misguided citizens who feel it isn't sportsmanlike to allow highway patrolmen to ride around in unmarked cars and use radar to trap speeders. This contention, of course, is nothing but stupidity at its worst. It is the same mental quirk that causes otherwise decent citizens to think they're being persecuted when they have their autos inspected for mechanical defects which could prove fatal to them.

Toy Buyers Favor Restraints

By ELMER ROESSNER

The CAB's New York office has issued a series of regulations intended to take much of the artful misrepresentation out of such commercials. They will be examined by the Television Code Review Board.

WHY THE APPLAUSE The buyers at the shows—the American Toy Fair, the International Toy and Trade Fair and all scattered through three hotels and a dozen office buildings—favor the regulations for two reasons:

1. The sharp television commercials often bid for mail-order sales, or send shoppers to discount houses. Both of these outlets compete with retailers whom the buyers represent.

2. The commercials are creating a resentment against all claims for toys, hurting total

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS LISTEN AND RESPOND

We live in a period of human development when people think and talk very little about angels. Most of us are of the dogooder variety. We want to see humanity transformed, the world made a better place in which to live. But how about angels?

If angels do not exist then the testimony of the entire Bible is seriously impugned. If they do exist, then they are so real, so influential in our lives, so beautiful and inspiring that we should give them much attention.

The Bible is full of teaching about angels. They are not just beings up in heaven but also our guardians as we walk the pathways of everyday life. They are round about us. They lay their hands on the circumstances of life and make a difference. The word "angel" means "messenger." Angels, therefore, are messengers to our souls. Through them God is conveying to our minds and souls a sense of his providence in our behalf.

There is entirely too little preaching today about angels, and too little teaching also. Unless we want to thrust the Bible and the teachings of the Church from us, we must believe that God's Holy Messengers, unseen though they are, through the pathways of human life and make a difference in men's living. They walk beside us, they touch our arms, they whisper their message to our hearts.

Batista Should Testify

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

After a silence of two years, Fulgencio Batista has presented his point of view in a letter to "The Miami Herald." It is surprising that the Senate Committee on the Bayley evidence that Batista addresses himself. Batista says of Pawley: "I am surprised that the Senate Committee on the Bayley evidence that Batista addresses himself. Batista says of Pawley: '... He further said that, although he was not authorized by the State Department, high officials of the latter were of his opinion, however, he could not say or remember their names.'"

Of course, Pawley may have declined to reveal the names of the State Department who agreed with his view that Batista should form a government including the opposition. But it is impossible to believe that he did not remember who they were. Pawley has had a long experience in Asia and in Latin America, and is not likely to forget readily why he came to Cuba.

Batista replied to the idea of including the opposition in his government as follows: "During this private talk I gave my opinion about the very serious situation that confronted my country, which was a victim of intense terrorism at that moment, and under Communist pressure, whose influence and control had been amply proved. I explained to him that the conversations with the opposition had come to an end, because Castro opposed them, threatening the leaders with permanent loss of all promotion, prison or death, if they continued to have contact with my representatives."

This is mindful of those days in China when General George Marshall and General "Vinegar" Joe Stilwell were putting pressure on Chiang Kai-shek to include the Chinese Communists in his government. It is mindful of those very busy people in the State Department who were under the influence of the Institute of Pacific Relations and who were busy trying to formulate policy to accommodate Soviet Russia. The policy which has brought damage to the United States.

Batista thereupon states his reasons for accusing Castro of being a Communist and according to his statement, the State Department was fully informed in 1958. This confirms the statements of the Ambassadors that they had informed the State Department of Castro's Communist affiliations prior to Castro's seizure of power. Although Pawley could not establish in Batista's mind the bonafides of his authority, a week after the Pawley visit, Ambassador Earl E. T. Smith returned to Havana from Washington. Of this, Batista said:

"We met at night in my library at the Eugenio Estela, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Dr. Gonzalo Gueill, and I, The Ambassador apologized for what he was about to say, and told us in as many equivalent words that Washington considered my government over and they could not recognize that of Dr. Rivero Aguiro, president-elect, who would be sworn in the following February."

"At the end he surprised me greatly by practically repeating Pawley's words, in the sense that a provisional government could establish peace through negotiations with the leader Castro, or confront him with arms, duly supported, if the Communist leader rejected to consider the negotiations; that Washington was of the opinion that I should avoid great bloodshed if I abdicated, adding that my family could go directly to Daytona Beach, and I also, if I wished, although the government officials with whom he had spoken in the United States preferred, for political reasons, that I should go to Spain, or some other country for three or four months, at the end of which I could rejoin my wife and children in the (Continued on page six)

Wake Forest Chops Down Bonnies, Plays St. Joe

CHARLOTTE (AP)—RED-HOT WAKE FOREST and streaking St. Joseph's of Philadelphia meet here tonight in the finals of the NCAA Eastern Regional basketball tournament. The winner goes on to Kansas City, along with three other regional tournament winners, for the national semifinals opening Friday.

Wake Forest brought down favored St. Bonaventure 78-73 in a tremendous team effort, and St. Joseph's weathered a late challenge by Princeton's dead game Tigers to win 82-67 in Friday night's regional semifinals.

St. Bonaventure, the nation's third-ranked club, meets Princeton for third place at 7 p.m., with the championship game at 9 o'clock.

TONIGHT'S FINALISTS met in January on the Wake Forest court and St. Joseph's was the winner 72-70. That is one of 10 defeats against 19 victories on the Wake Forest record. St. Joseph's is 23-4 and has won 14 in a row.

Coach Bones McKinney's Wake Forest Deacons have been a super-charged squad for two weeks, ran through Maryland and nationally ranked Duke to win the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament, then followed up by thrashing favored St. John's at New York last Tuesday in their first NCAA test.

Against St. Bonaventure they overcame a six-point early deficit to move in front with 15 minutes to play and never lost the upper hand.

THE OVERFLOW crowd of 12,000, which came alive in the exciting closing minutes of the St. Joseph's-Princeton game, exerted almost as much energy as the players with a steady roar that accompanied the Deacons' superb play.

Big Len Chappell's 24 points and 15 rebounds were about as expected for the Deacon ace. But he got 10-point last half help from 6-foot soph Bob Woollard, who also collected 11 rebounds.

Dave Wiedeman, a late blooming soph who was ineligible the first semester, added 14 points and seven rebounds.

The Bonnies' All-America ace Tom Smith, scored 29 points and Fred Crawford 19, but they lacked the squad depth that kept the Deacons rolling.

EACH TEAM had 26 baskets on 67 shots, and both took 34 free throws, but the Deacons hit 26 of 21 for the Bonnies for their margin.

A 56-47 rebound advantage also was a vital factor in the upending of the favorites.

Beaufort Seeks Third Straight Class A Title; Meets Boonville

DURHAM (AP)—Beaufort will be shooting for its third straight Class A high school basketball title when it collides with Boonville here tonight.

The defending champion Seadogs belted Red Oak 57-49, and Boonville beat Colfax 66 - 60 in semifinal games Friday night.

Red Oak and Colfax collide in a consolation game prior to the championship game.

Beaufort's Pud Hassell netted 30 points, hitting 14 of 27 shots from the floor and both his shots from the free throw line, to pace the Seadogs.

Basketball Fixes Revealed; May Be Nationwide Scale

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A smouldering college basketball scandal—one that would dwarf the scandals of 1951—threatened today to erupt on a nationwide scale.

Already three players have confessed accepting bribes to have points and two gamblers are in custody.

Police sources said that 15 to 20 schools from coast to coast might be involved in the scandal which has been under investigation five months.

"We expect it to be far bigger than the 1951 scandals," said one high official. "The investigation is continuing. Other schools and other players are the subject of inquiry."

A grand jury at that time found that 86 games had been fixed in 23 cities in seven states. Thirty-three players had been bribed.

Only two of the three players involved in the current scandal have been identified. Both play for Seton Hall. They are Henry Gunter, center from New York, and Arthur Hicks, a forward from Chicago. Neither had any comment.

One player on the University of Connecticut team is involved, but neither the office of Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan, nor the university would name him.

"In fact," said a Connecticut official, "we are not sure just who the boy is. But we have a pretty good idea from the questioning by the district attorney."

The two gamblers in custody, described by Asst. Dist. Atty. Peter D. Andreoli as representing a nationwide syndicate, are Aaron Wagman, 28, Joseph Hacken, 41, both of New York. They are charged with bribery and conspiracy in an attempt to fix college games.

NAIA Asked To Study Proposal

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics will study further a proposal to prohibit high school all-star football and basketball games.

The NAIA has been asked by the National Federation of High School Athletics to endorse such a ban. The federation wants to impose a penalty of one year's loss of collegiate eligibility for violators.

A.O. Duer, NAIA executive director, said Friday the executive committee decided to postpone a decision until "wise and consistent policies of sanction can be determined which can be administered by our organization with assurance. We have not come to a decision as to the legality and moral right to control an individual not subject to the rules and regulations of our program."

O'Hara Wins In One Mile Event

CLEVELAND (AP)—Thomas O'Hara, 18, Irish redhead, won the mile run at the 21st annual Knights of Columbus track meet on St. Patrick's night. He finished in 4:08.8 before 7,155 fans in the Cleveland Arena.

The 130-pound Loyola of Chicago freshman stayed far back in the pack for most of the race, then turned on the steam to whip Ed Moran.

Moran, a former Penn State star, led all the way and by as much as 25 yards near the last lap. But he was so tuckered out, he got beat for the runner-up spot by George Harvey of Purdue.

O'Hara crossed the finish line 15 yards in front.

The meet wound up the indoor track season in spirited fashion. Three meet records were set, along with a world mark of 2:21.1 by Grace Butcher in the 800-yard run. The 27-year-old Chardon, Ohio mother of two knocked five-tenths of a second off the mark set a week ago by Helen Shipley of Wellesley, Mass.

George Kerr, the Jamaican who holds the 600-yard world record, beat Dave Mills of Purdue by three yards in 1:10.1, snapping Mal Whitfield's 11-year-old meet mark by seven-tenths of a second.

Rally For 56-55 Triumph Over Louisville

Buckeyes Chalk Up One Point Win

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Surprise defeats of St. Bonaventure and Southern California and the narrow escape from elimination of Ohio State's unbeaten and top-ranked Buckeyes featured the start of a hectic weekend in the National Collegiate (NCAA) Basketball Championship Tournament.

Ohio State chalked up its 30th straight victory (25 this season) 56-55 over a fired-up Louisville team. The Buckeyes, with their nine points, came from seven points back to tie at 54-54, then won in the last six seconds on John Havlicek's basket.

With one second left Louisville's John Turner got a chance to tie the score from the free-throw line on a 1-and-1 situation. He missed the first charity toss, but missed the second as 18,883 spectators groaned.

St. Bonaventure and Southern California, third and seventh ranked nationally, weren't so fortunate. Wake Forest tripped the Bonnies 78-73 in the East regional at Charlotte and Arizona State University, champions of the Border Conference, upended the Trojans 86-71 in the Far West regional at Portland, Ore.

ACC Stars Clash With SC Tonight

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Picked all-star basketball squads from the Southern and Atlantic Coast conferences clash here tonight in a benefit game the sponsors hope to set up on an annual basis.

Even though eight of the first-team all-conference selections from the two leagues won't be present for one reason or another, 18 players who averaged in double figures during the past season will be on hand for the 8:15 p.m. tussle at the Richmond Arena.

Chuck Noe of Virginia Tech will coach the SC all-stars and Vic Bubas of Duke will handle the ACC squad, and the fiery Gobbler mentor already has gotten in the first lick—wordwise, that is.

"I'm going to tell 'em only one thing," Noe says of his squad, which includes All-Southern aces Jeff Cohen of William and Mary and Chris Smith of Noe's own Tech team.

"You guys, I'm gonna say, 'had better play for me like you play against me.' If they do that, we could lick anybody," says Noe.

Cohen, 67, led the Southern Conference in scoring with a 23.8-point average, while the 6-6 Smith had a 19.9 average. The Southern Conference also boasts height and scoring in 6-6 Tom Conard of Furman (18.5) and 6-5 Dick Markowitz of George Washington (18.5).

But Bubas can call on four of his own Duke players—Carroll Youngkin (13.6), Howard Hurt (12.3), Doug Kistler (12.1) and John Frye (10.0)—and may get better teamwork if he gets them all on the court together.

In addition, the ACC squad will have a height advantage with Kistler at 6-9, Bob McDonald of Maryland (12.8) at 6-7 and Youngkin and Bob Distefano of North Carolina State (13.2) at 6-6 each.

Rounding out the ACC squad are rebounding and scoring ace Art Whisnant of South Carolina (19.1) and two high-scoring backcourt stars—Tony Laquintano of Virginia (19.8) and Choppy Patterson of Clemson (19.0).

The rest of the Southern Conference squad is made up of Bobby Ayersman of Tech (17.5), Danny Higgins (16.3) and Tom Booker (17.7) of Richmond, and Lee Patrone (14.6) and Jim Ritchie (11.6) of West Virginia.

Yastrzemski Filling Big Shoe Of Ted Williams

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Red Sox apparently have come up with a genuine rookie outfield phenom who may help ease the task of finding a replacement for the retired Ted Williams.

Carl Yastrzemski, 22, a former Notre Dame athlete, is expected to fill Williams' spikes as the Sox' regular left fielder. And so far he has been very productive at bat in exhibitions along the cactus trail.

Yastrzemski collected four hits in five trips Friday as Boston turned back the Los Angeles Angels 10-5 for their fourth victory in six outings. The solidly built left-handed swinger slammed a triple, double and two singles, giving him eight hits in the last four games.

In other action Friday, Detroit won its sixth game in seven starts by defeating the Los Angeles Dodgers 11-6. Pittsburgh outslugged Milwaukee 14-10. Philadelphia downed Cincinnati 5-3. San Francisco edged the Chicago Cubs 9-8. St. Louis whipped Minnesota 7-2. The Chicago White Sox tripped New York 5-2 in 11 innings and

Wright After 2nd Upset Win On TV

NEW YORK (AP)—Ted Wright, hard-punching knockout artist from Detroit, will be seeking his second straight victory over a "name" opponent when he faces Argentina's Federico Thompson in a nationally televised 10-round bout in the St. Nicholas Arena tonight.

Wright upset last Sugar Hart of Philadelphia in his last start Feb. 27. He'll go into the ring with a 34-5-3 record including 16 knockouts. Thompson was outpointed by Benny (Kid) Paret in a welterweight title bout Dec. 10. The Argentine has 54 knockouts among 99 victories in 116 matches.

Utah, upset by Loyola in its opening game last December, had little trouble against the Los Angeles team this time as Loyola's star, Ed Berto, fouled out with 12 minutes left. Billy McGill led the Utes with 29 points.

Paul Hogue and Bob Wiesenhan with 24 and 21 points, sparked Cincinnati to its 19th straight. Larry Comley's 18 points led Kansas State as their seventh straight. Vince Kempton, with 21 points, sparked St. Joseph's to its 14th straight victory although the Hawks had to stave off a late Princeton rally led by Pete Campbell.

Turner, who missed the foul that would have tied the game at the end, was Louisville's star with 25 points against Ohio State, along with 6-11 Fred Sawyer who guarded Lucas.

"We played a lousy game and got away with it," said one Ohio State player in the dressing room afterwards. Havlicek, who tossed in the winning basket, topped the Buckeyes with 17 points.

Bob Goalby Takes Pasadena Lead

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—The field in the St. Petersburg Open hasn't whittled the Pasadena Golf Club down to a par-62 course yet, but give it time.

In the first round of the $20,000 event two players—Jack McGowan and Bill Casper, Jr.—broke the course record by shooting 63—over the 6,296-yard, par 36-35-71 layout with its flat, expansive fairways and comfortable greens.

In the second round Friday, Bob Goalby, a husky, dimpled sharpshooter just turned 30, cut the record to 62, and his two-round total of 129 was good for a one-stroke lead in the 72-hole event which has turned into a travesty of big-time golf.

So easy has the course been that it took a two-round score of 140, two strokes under par, to survive the cut to the low 60 and ties who will play the final two rounds today and Sunday. Eighty-two players in the field of 159 were under par for the first two rounds, and 10 more equalled par figures.

CHAMPIONSHIP BASKETBALL

McGowan, 30, assistant pro from Toledo, Ohio, came back with a 67 after his first-round 63, and his 130 total was good for second place. Casper had a 70.

McGowan could have tied Goalby's 129 if he hadn't hit a tree with his drive on the 18th hole and wound up with a bogey six.

With over half the field on a sub-par scoring binge, and 17 players within six strokes of the leader, it still was anybody's tournament.

Ted Krull was in third place at the start of today's round with 67-64-131, and Bob Brue, with 67-65, and Mason Rudolph, with 65-67, were docked at 132.

Casper was in a three-way tie with Doug Ford and Don Faircliff at 133. Bud Gary Player, South African, is bracketed with Paul Harney at 134.

Ken Venturi, with 141, failed to make the cut for the first time in two years. Gardner Dickinson and Marty Furgol also had 141. Howie Johnson and Jim Ferre 125, and Frank Boynton and Al Balding had 144s.

He has been an outstanding citizen in his native city and has served in many capacities in civic, church and professional work. He is a teacher by profession and is now principal of a large elementary school in Wilmington.

No Arrests In Safe-Cracking

No arrests have been made in a safe-cracking at K. R. Wooten Store in Falkland last week. Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson reported today.

The sheriff, who had not reported the robbery earlier, said the case is still under investigation. Sheriff deputies have been working with the assistance of SBI Agent Clyde Dentress.

Sheriff Tyson described the safe robbery as a rip job. Tear gas capsules in the safe were set off but the robbers continued their work. They took less than $100 from the safe along with some papers.

The safe crackers pried open a front door of the Falkland firm to gain entrance. The robbery was discovered when the store was opened for business on the morning of March 17.

Officers Named At PTA Meet

At Thursday's meeting of the Third Street School P.T.A., new officers were announced and those present heard an address by Mrs. Ellen Garroll on the grouping system in the city schools.

New officers, to be installed at the next meeting, are Mrs. Marvin Riddle, president; Mrs. John Allen, vice president; Mrs. Frank Diener, Jr., secretary; James Davensonport, treasurer.

Mrs. Garroll, director of instruction for the Greenville schools, discussed the system of grouping of children according to their rate of learning.

She illustrated her talk with slides taken in the city schools, starting with the trainable child and working through the junior high level.

Mrs. Milton Clarke, president of the P.T.A., presided at the meeting. Mrs. Peggy Denton gave the devotional.

Following the meeting, room visitation was held. Among things on exhibit was are work done by the students.

Agnes Fullilove PTA Has Meet

New officers of the Agnes Fullilove School P.T.A. were presented at a meeting Thursday afternoon in the school library.

Mrs. J. T. Cox will serve as president, while other officers include Mrs. Ernest Avery, vice president; Mrs. Donald Presser, secretary; and Miss Novella Exum, treasurer. The installation will be held in April.

Mrs. Dallas Clark, librarian, presented a program on the type of books children enjoy most. Many times a child satisfies his needs by reading, she said. Mrs. Clark stressed the importance of teaching children how to obtain information with the available facilities. She said students need to have access to a well equipped library.

"Improving Our Library" is the project of the P.T.A. this year. The library committee, related during the meeting what is being done on the project. Ideas and suggestions were also invited.

Mrs. E. S. Jones, president, opened the meeting.

Following the program, Mrs. Ellen Carroll, director of instruction for the city schools, requested that each person contact his representatives and inform them about feelings toward the proposed tax program, to raise funds for public education.

Officers Named Attendance Problem Is Discussed By Seawell

GRIFTON—Malcolm Seawell, former North Carolina attorney general, was guest speaker at the Griffon Masonic Lodge Ladies Night held Wednesday evening.

Seawell, discussing the problem of attendance, told the 135 guests present about a personal experience he had had when a Sunday School teacher in Lumberton. Explaining that members had been trying to build up Sunday School attendance, he said one member suggested that the men sponsor a project.

The project decided upon was working with underprivileged children. Members of the Sunday School became "uncle" to these children, and took them to a summer camp for a week, where they remained with them in the cabins, and their wives accompanied the girls.

Seawell expressed the thought that all organizations are faced with an attendance program, but that in this case, the members benefited from personal experience. He gave Biblical illustrations during his talk.

He was introduced by Griffon Attorney Robert Wheeler.

Edward Sutton, senior warden, presided during the evening in the absence of Alton Lewis, worshipful master. He welcomed the guests. Mrs. Billy Phillips, the incoming worthy matron of the Eastern Star, gave the response.

A turkey dinner was served by ladies of the Eastern Star.

South Ayden Students At Commerce Day Program

DURHAM—South Ayden School students of Ayden were among 600 high school students who participated in the Tenth Annual Commerce Day held at North Carolina College here on Friday.

Among the South Ayden students were 23 seniors, one junior, one sophomore and the business education teacher, Mrs. Annie M. Brown. Commerce Day is held to assist students in planning a better career by helping them to become acquainted with the opportunities in the field of business. Its purpose also is to make them aware of the training and initiative that are necessary for development in the business field.

Other speakers included William A. Clement of Durham and Dr. G. W. Maxwell, president of William Penn Business Institute in Philadelphia, Pa.

During the day, South Ayden senior, Neida Ormond competed with some 60 contestants in the state typewriting contest which highlighted the annual commerce day.

Books Mean Much To 16-Year-Old Shoeshine Boy

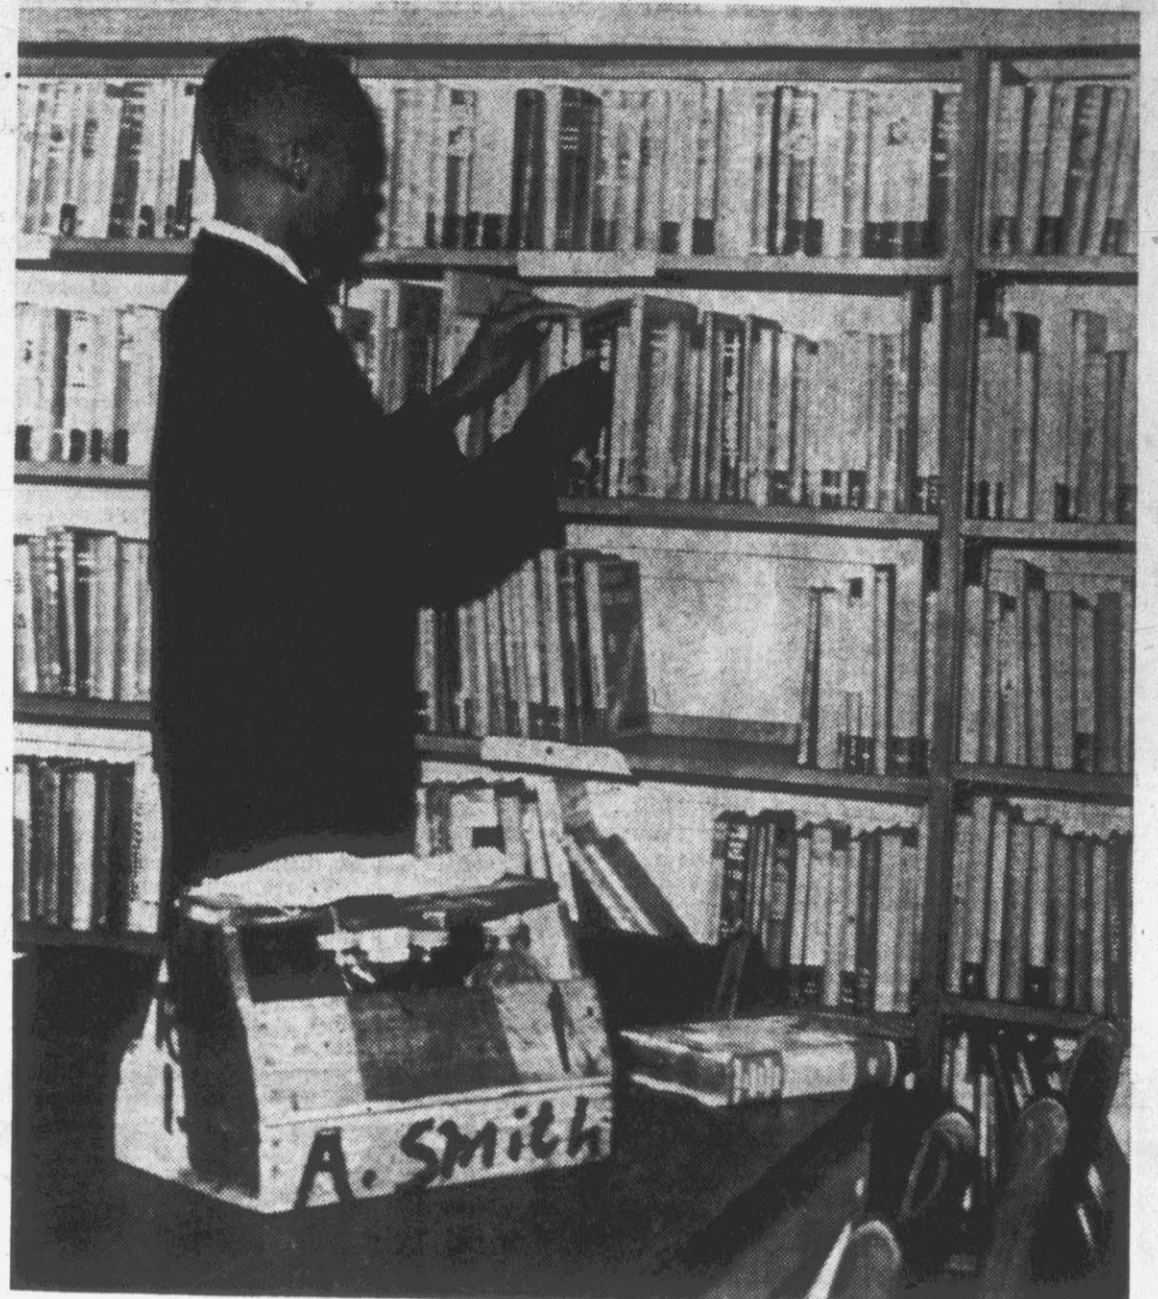

GIVING BOOK TO LIBRARY . . . Anninias presents a book of collected fiction stories to Charlotte Hawkins Library in Ayden. Accepting are Mrs. Mary B. Dixon, librarian, and Mrs. Josephine Wilson Reaves, chairman of the library board.

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — At work a lot of times there would be no shoes to shine, so Anninias stepped next door to the library, got some books and took them to the barber shop where he read between customers. He's been doing this for the past year, ever since the Charlotte Hawkins Library opened in Ayden, next door to the barber shop where he works. Mostly he likes history books and biographies — about Stonewall Jackson, Eleanor Roosevelt, Booker T. Washington and the Wright Brothers. But he likes journalism books, too, and from these he learned "how much work there is in putting out a newspaper." Anninias has read about the F. B. I. and science. One of his favorite books was "Our Space Age Jets," about space probes and satellites. Why does he like to read? "If I read history, I learn about things that passed long ago. In science books, I learn about the rockets," Anninias replies. All the books he has read are information, or non-fiction. The day we saw Anninias, he had just received a book of fiction stories from someone. When we asked about the book, Anninias said someone had given him the book free, and he wanted to give it to the library. Before the Charlotte Hawkins Library came into existence in February of 1960, Anninias went to South Ayden School early, where he read newspapers and magazines at school before classes started. He also used resources at the library about music, because Anninias is very interested in music. He takes lessons now. He has been going to the school library for several years to do this and still goes. Anninias hasn't had much time to read at home. After school he is busy doing his homework — he keeps about a "B" average at his school in Ayden. Now that Anninias' mother, Mrs. Martha Smith, has moved to Winterville, he has continued in school at Ayden but has to commute for his school and his job. "When I finish high school, I plan to go to college and I would like to major in music," he answered. He takes music lessons from a lady in Winterville. Before taking music lessons, he took two years of music appreciation in school and got interested in piano. Now he has had two years of piano lessons. When he grows up, Anninias would like to do something in music. He hopes to get a scholarship to college, perhaps Howard University in Washington, D. C., or A & T in Greensboro. A junior in high school, he still has another year to make up his mind. In the summertime, when school is closed, Anninias does something else. He works in tobacco. But undoubtedly he will continue to read. It was the library, really, that got him interested in reading. And Mrs. Mary B. Dixon, the librarian, has taken the time to help Anninias pick out books to read. Probably now he would continue to read, even if something took his library. What good has his association here done him? "The library has yielded me a better understanding of the world, now and the world to come." That's what Anninias says. A lot of his "extracurricular activities" are connected with these interests. He is president of the Student Library Club here and a member of the Library Club at school. A member of Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church, he reports on church news and sends it in to the "Free Will Baptist Advocate." He is also the A. H. Club reporter at South Ayden School, secretary of the Junior Church at Little Creek and member of the New Farmers of America. Today is another Saturday, and if you drop by the barber shop next door to Charlotte Hawkins Brown Library, you'll find Anninias with a shoeshine kit in one hand and a library book in the other.

She Raised Tobacco To Realize An Ambition

Whatever Happened To Theodosia Burr Alston?

By SARAH H. KIRKPATRICK East Carolina College News Bureau Staff Writer

Barbara Ann Moser of Rt. 1, Julian, wanted so much to go to college that she became a tobacco farmer in order to realize her ambition. Now a senior at East Carolina College, the attractive farmwife believes that the time and energy involved in her project have been well worth while. In academic work she is specializing in mathematics and physics and has a high scholastic record. She also participates in a number of extra-curricula activities and has received recognition as a student leader on the campus.

Miss Moser has been renting a portion of the farm of her grandfather, James W. Staley of Julian, since her senior year in high school. "I shall return to my farm in May to transplant the tobacco seedlings by hand," she said.

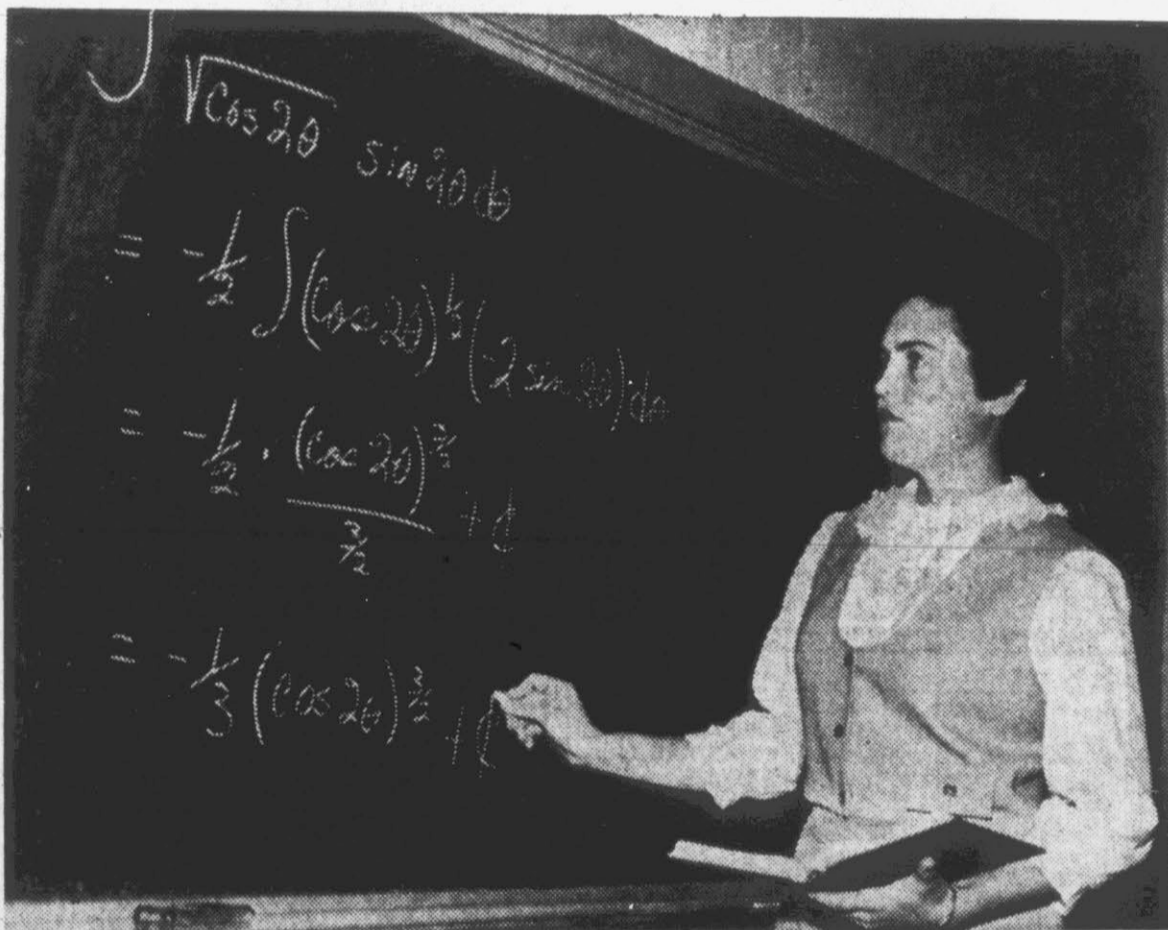

When asked the question "Do you farm alone?" her reply was twofold. "When I became interested in farming," she added, "my Uncle, William O. Staley of Julian, and I decided to become partners. He rents four and a half acres of my grandfather's farm also. It is with his assistance and with him as overseer that I am able to maintain my farm and continue my studies at East Carolina," she stated.

In the western section of North Carolina, where Julian is located, the harvesting of tobacco takes place around the second week of July. "It is at this time that I shall hire hands to help cure the tobacco at the barn," Miss Moser added. "When this is completed, I shall store the tobacco in the packing house until the tobacco market opens," she concluded.

With an ardent smile on her face, the brown-haired, brown-eyed student eagerly awaits the opening of the tobacco markets in Greensboro and Burlington, where she will put her tobacco up for sale.

During the winter quarter this year Miss Moser did student teaching in mathematics under the supervision of Miss Frances Smith at the J. H. Rose High School in Greenville. Her class included twenty-six students in algebra and twenty-three in geometry. Working two afternoons a week, she is presently assisting Mrs. Ellen C. Fleming, faculty member of the department of mathematics at East Carolina College, in field work. She also works part time in the cafeteria under the supervision of Miss Camille Clarke, college dietitian.

As one of thirty-eight East Carolina students chosen for the honor, Miss Moser was selected as a representative of the college in the 1960-1961 edition of the national publication "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." She is president of the Mathematics Club, composed of mathematics majors and minors at East Carolina College. She is also a member of the Alpha Gamma Chapter of Chi Beta Phi, national honorary science fraternity, and of the Woman's Recreation Association of the college.

"Calculus is my favorite subject," she said in discussing her courses. She also enjoys courses in the field of physical education, particularly tennis and swimming.

For her hobbies, Miss Moser participates in the softball semi-professional league during the summer months. Sponsored by the Payne Oil Team in Burlington, her team competes against leagues of High Point, Durham, and Asheboro. She also enjoys reading. One of the most recent books which she completed was "Exodus" by Leon Uris.

She is undecided at the present time about her plans for the future, other than maintaining her farm. When asked how she liked East Carolina College, Miss Moser stated that she has thoroughly enjoyed the college and that she has never been homesick a day.

The granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Staley of Rt. 1, Julian, Miss Moser has one sister, Lois K., sixteen years old, who resides with her grandparents.

Dedicate Memorial Garden On April 8

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — The first four have attractive gates Maude Moore Latham Memorial Garden in soft green of antique iron made Garden at Tryon Palace Restoration is to be formally dedicated here April 8, honoring the late Mrs. James Edwin Latham of Greensboro, whose financial gifts and bequests made possible the complete restoration of North Carolina's first State Capitol. Designed in the manner of 18th century English gardens, the garden is a masterpiece of landscape design. The entire restoration is a living memorial to the late Mrs. Latham, but the formal, ornamental garden on the southwest side of the main building especially honors her memory. Along the eastern side is a brick wall, in the center of which is a pavilion reminiscent of similar classic structures of the mid-18th century. On low pedestals in front are two antique carved Bath Stone fruit baskets, gifts of the Dogwood Garden Club of Greensboro. There are five garden entrances, two on the north, two on the south and one on the east. The member.

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

It was a sad and dispirited Theodosia Burr Alston, sick in mind and body, who said goodbye to The Oaks that December day in 1812. The Oaks, her home on the Waccamaw, she loved so well and where she had found a few snatches of happiness, much uncertainty, and sadness. It was here, Joseph Alston, had brought her as a bride of eighteen. It was here at The Oaks, they had buried their beloved Gampy (Aaron Burr Alston), who had died of fever in his eleventh year. It was as if the greater part of her had died also and slept with him in that grave beneath the moss hung trees.

Hoping a change would benefit her physically and mentally, her father, Aaron Burr, had sent an old friend, Timothy Green, to accompany her to New York. Green wrote to Burr stating: "Mr. Alston seemed rather hurt that you should conceive it necessary to send a person here, as he or one of his nephews would attend Mrs. Alston to New York. I told him you had some opinion of my medical talents; that you had learned your daughter was in a low state of health and required unusual attention and medical attention on her voyage; and I had torn myself from my family to perform this service for my friend."

And then a later letter dated Georgetown, S. C., Dec. 22, 1812: "I have engaged passage to New York for your daughter on a pilot boat — you must not be surprised to see her very low — feeble and emaciated. We shall sail in eight days."

Gov. Joseph Alston, fearful for his wife's safety — pirates and wreckers were always on the lookout for a prize and the British Fleet cruised off the Carolina Shore — and knowing he could do nothing about the pirates and wreckers, had written a letter to the British Admiral, requesting free passage for his sick wife.

They sailed from Georgetown, S. C. on Thursday, Dec. 30, 1812. The Governor sailed with them down Winyah Bay as far as the bar. "The wind was moderate and the day was fair," as the Governor bade her a tearful goodbye. Then the "Patriot" sailed on, passing through North and South Islands, out into the Atlantic Ocean. It was the last time they were seen or heard from. Although later, it was learned that the British Fleet had been encountered, and free passage had been granted by the Admiral. A furious storm sprang up off Hatteras and the "Patriot" is said to have gone down, taking with her all on board. This was the kind of happening that causes stories to be told and retold with each telling adding some spice of his own. Rumors of what had happened, rumors that persisted about tales of mutiny and piracy and of looting by the wreckers of the coast were narrated. Confessions by criminals about to be executed — like the two sailors who claimed to have been part of a crew of wreckers who looted the "Patriot" and killed her passengers when they landed on the wind swept sands. For twenty, thirty, and even more years, there came these stories — like in 1830, an old man who claimed to be a pirate and member of a pirate crew that had captured the "Patriot" and forced all on board to walk the plank. He, himself, had held the plank over which the tragic Theodosia had walked to her death. The old man tells of the portrait of a lady hanging on the cabin wall and a little tan and black dog.

And the beggar, dying in a Michigan Almshouse, tells of a pirate raid and a young lady pleading to be allowed to go to her father in New York. And how the face of the young lady haunted him in his dreams. Was it the face of Theodosia Burr Alston, or something conjured up in the last flickers of a mind?

In 1869 Dr. W. G. Pool of Elizabeth City, N. C. was spending the season at Nags Head. He was called to treat an old banker woman, who lived near Kitty Hawk. After a long and severe illness, in which the doctor was in attendance, the old woman gave him in gratitude (some say it was for his fee; the portrait of a young woman painted in oil on polish mahogany and set in a gilded frame. And with the portrait came another story:

When she was young, a small pilot boat had come ashore at Kitty Hawk. The sails were set and the rudder lashed to one aboard, with no sign of bloodshed or violence. All on board was in order — an untouched meal on the table, silk dresses in the cabin, and a portrait on the wall. The old woman's sweetheart had taken the portrait and later given it to her.

After Dr. Pool had returned home to Elizabeth City, he changed upon a picture of Aaron Burr in a magazine and noted a resemblance between Burr and the girl in the portrait. Remembering back to the story of the disappearance of Theodosia Burr, Pool published a letter in the New York Sun (some say he took photographs and had them sent to members of the Burr family, retelling the tale of the stranded boat and how it happened to get the portrait. Some members of the Burr family came to Elizabeth City and viewed the portrait. After comparing it with miniatures of Theodosia, they were convinced the portrait was that of their kinswoman. The portrait is now in a private museum in New York and is accepted as that of Theodosia. What really happened to the "Patriot" and those who sailed on her that December Day in 1812 probably never will be known. It has been one hundred and forty eight years since the broken hearted Joseph Alston, hoping against hope, wrote a letter to Theodosia from Columbia, South Carolina (Jan. 15, 1813): "Another mail and still no letter! I hear, too, rumors of a gale off Hatteras the beginning of the month. The state of my mind is dreadful. I shall count the hours till noon tomorrow. If I do not hear then, there will be no hope till Tuesday. To feeling like mine, what an interval. May God grant me one word from you tomorrow." And another letter dated January 19, 1813: "I may no longer have a wife; and yet my impatient restlessness addresses her a letter. . . Tomorrow will be three weeks since our separation and not yet one line." On Feb. 25, 1813 a letter to Aaron Burr: "My boy — my wife — gone, both! This, then, is the end of the hopes we had formed."

Happiness never came again to Joseph Alston, he died just before summer changed into fall on Monday the 16th day of September in 1816.

And in the family burying grounds at The Oaks on the Waccamaw, they put up a stone that bore the record of three untimely deaths. Two recorded at the county seat and the other written in the mysterious book of the sea and the sandy lands that lie next to the sea.

NEW YORK (AP) — The reason he decided to write a gospel, St. Luke explained in his prologue, Jesus said, are also yet withheld: was to give the world an accurate and understandable account of the life and message of Jesus.

Thus the task facing translators over the centuries has been to keep the words of Luke and the other Bible authors as understandable and as accurate as they were in their original languages in which they were written. Two groups of scholars, one Roman Catholic and the other Protestant, have published new translations which critics say accomplishes the twofold-end better than any previous efforts. Both works have scholarship as their hallmark, and both are written in contemporary English style with utter rage against Sidrach, which gives a freshness to the familiar Bible stories. They are a New Testament translation by scholars of the Protestant churches of the British Isles, and an Old Testament translation sponsored by the Roman Catholic Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. New knowledge of the Biblical languages gained in recent years were Old Testament portions. The (from such sources as the Dead New Testament and final volume Sea scrolls, to name one) have of the Old Testament are expected to be finished in a few years. There likewise is no definite timetable for the Old Testament portion of the New English Bible, the Catholic Douay-Rheims version of the New Testament was published March 14. Most critics are skeptical of whether either new rendition will win the favor among Bible readers as either the Douay or King James versions. Churchmen have found that many persons feel words like (how the New English Bible puts and whither and beliveth are into everyday English the lan-proper for the Bible, and that gauge of the King James Ver-modern expression somehow dishonors "the word of God."

Difficult Task In Translation Job

BETSY HANCOCK of Rt. 2, Scotland Neck, and Peter Johl of Groton, Conn., will appear in the leading roles of "South Pacific" when the Rodgers-Hammerstein hit is presented at East Carolina College March 21, 22, 23 and 24. Both are students of voice at East Carolina and have appeared in productions of the East Carolina College Opera Theatre and as soloists in the annual performances on the campus of Handel's "The Messiah." Johl has also had a wide experience in summer stock companies. Miss Hancock will appear as sprightly Ensign Nellie Forbush, Navy nurse, and Johl as the middle-aged planter Emile de Becque, with whom she falls in love.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

Reviews and Reflections Phi Beta Kappas of Pitt County, arise, cast off your sloth, and make yourselves known! We say this with a note of urgency because so far there have been only two replies to our appeal last week that local Phi Betes send Miss Mary Green at ECC their addresses. Could this mean that our local egg-heads have also joined the New Frontier in Washington City? A worse thought is that possibly we are not honored by their weekly perusal, as they might put it. This explanation we must reject as a matter of policy, whatever the Editor may think.

Reports come in that plans are shaping up for the Pine Arts Festival to be held in Greenville this year during the last week in April. Of immediate moment in that connection is the announcement by the Woman's Club that for the second successive year it is sponsoring three awards for creative writing as part of the Festival. These awards are open to any man or woman in Pitt County who has never had any work published. The Eva Berry Harris Award is for the best lyric poem other than a sonnet. For the best sonnet there is the Maynie Ives Woolard Memorial Award. The Virginia Collier Tripp Award is for the best short story, not longer than three thousand words. We are hoping that many people will enter this competition, and so we shall quote the rules governing it: "All entries, accompanied by the writer's name and address, must be submitted to Mrs. W.C. Harris, 708 West Third St.,

Greenville, by April 1, 1961. Three copies of the manuscripts must be typed and double spaced and signed by nom de plume only, including return postage." New Bible The "New English Bible" has finally been released, and copies of it are locally obtainable. It reads extremely well (that is, the New Testament, which is the only part published) and perhaps it will be accepted by various Protestant denominations, since an interdenominational team produced it. Moreover, the various Biblical translations by scholars like J. B. Phillips, which have been so popular recently, have made the language of this new version seem less bald than it otherwise would.

Censorship The problem of literary censorship always seems to be with us. Recently in NC certain communities have put various public officials to the task of weeding out indecent newsstand publications. This is a tough job for anyone to tackle. Practically all the difficulties of censorship were mentioned by John Milton in his "Areopagitica" (1644), the great classic on the subject. One problem, as Milton says, is the difficulty of finding a person educationally qualified to do the work who at the same time is willing to be saddled with the tedious task of being the "perpetual reader of unchosen books and pamphlets, oftentimes huge volumes." Another difficulty is that the very nature and terms of a censor's employment "enjoins him to let pass nothing but what is commonly received already." In other words, censorship tends to stifle change.

Recently in Rhode Island the problem of censorship has come up. In that state a judge has ruled illegal a "Commission to Encourage Morality in Youth" which operated with the sanction of the legislature. Under the direction of its executive secretary, A. T. McAloon, the Commission simply sent out lists of paperbacks which dealers were "advised" not to stock. Mr. McAloon was allegedly pleased with the "cooperation" which he received from merchants. But a suit was brought anyway by some unhappy publishers.

"Nix," said the judge, in effect. "This is intimidation and a violation of the guarantee of freedom of the press, if a book contains material which transgresses the law, bring criminal proceedings against the seller." And so another device to control literature falls by the way. To turn to the light side, a New York bookstore had this ad in its window the other day: "Buy a Book—Help Stamp out TV." And a London shop placed this sign above a shopworn pile of Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women": "Four young girls tell all."

NEGOTIATING SOON

LONDON (AP) — India and Pakistan are expected to open negotiations soon for settlement of the bitter Kashmir dispute and strengthening military cooperation.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

Red Oak Christian Church will be host to an expected 125 youth and leaders for the Annual World Fellowship Youth Meet which began Friday at 4 p.m. and will close tonight (Saturday) at 8:00. The theme of the meet is "Into All The World Together."

The Pastor's Class on "The Meaning of Church Membership" will be held in the sanctuary at 10 a.m. Assisting in the class will be Edgar Denton, Charles Manning and S. C. Winchester.

Guest minister at the morning worship will be the Rev. William Edge, pastor of the First Christian Church, Grifton. Presiding for the service will be Thurston Wynne, vice-chairman of the Official Board. The Rev. Howard James will be leading a "Decade of Decision Service" at First Christian Church, Grifton, at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Flowers will be provided at Red Oak Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Roland Cannon and Miss Mary Helen Cannon. The Men's Quartet will sing "Is It Well With Your Soul?"

The Committee on Budget Planning will meet Sunday at 7 p.m.

Sanctuary Choir rehearsal will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The Red Oak C.M.F. will have an oyster roast at Elm St. Park Thursday at 7 p.m. with Jack Gray and Charles Allen as hosts. A Baptismal Service will be held March 26 at 7 p.m.

PRAYERFUL LANDING... A shipwrecked family gives thanks for its survival in Walt Disney's Panavision-Technicolor feature, "SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON." Left to right, they are Francis (KEVIN CORCORAN), Father (JOHN MILLS), Ernst (TOMMY KIRK), Mother (DOROTHY McGUIRE), and Fritz (JAMES MACARTHUR). The $5,000,000 production is released by Buena Vista, and is brought back to Greenville by popular request. Starts WEDNESDAY at the STATE.

ON THE CRUISER, THE PASSENGERS ARE UNLOCKED...
WHERE ARE THOSE RUFFIANS? THEY TOOK EVERY CENT I HAD!
RELAX, MA'M. IT'S ALL OVER.

THERE THEY ARE, MA'M~ DUMPED ALL OVER THE SHIP!
WHAT~ HAPPENED TO THEM?
SOMEBODY HIT THEM.

I TRIED TO WARN YOU. THESE ARE THE GOGGLE-EYE PIRATES. YOU DIDN'T FIND THEIR WEAPONS OR OUTFITS, BECAUSE THEY WERE HIDDEN IN THE HOLD!
ABOUT 25 OF THEM ON THIS SHIP~ LISTED AS PASSENGERS.

THIS IS TOPS, THEIR LEADER. THEY ALL WEAR IDENTICAL. THEIR CABINS~ SHOVE COSTUMES. THE LOOT WAS TO BE FLOWN AWAY IN THAT 'COPTER.
~THEN THEY RETURN TO THEIR CABINS~ SHOVE WEAPONS AND COSTUMES THRU THE PORTHOLE~ AND YOU CAN NEVER IDENTIFY THEM~

YOU DESTROYED THIS ARMED MOB SINGLE-HANDED! HOW?
TOOK A BIT OF DOING. THEY'RE ALL YOURS, CAPTAIN, EXCEPT THIS ONE, THE PILOT. I NEED HIM.

HE KNOWS WHERE THE LOOT FROM THE FIRST SHIP IS. I HAVE TO TURN IT OVER TO THE AUTHORITIES.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

Man is sustained under all circumstances through an understanding of God's omnipotence. This theme will be emphasized Sunday at Christian Science church services.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Matter" is the Golden Text from Psalms (73:26): "My flesh and my heart faileth; but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion forever."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy this passage will be read: "Consciousness constructs a better body when faith in matter has been conquered. Correct material belief by spiritual understanding, and Spirit will form you anew" (425:23-26).

Scriptural selections will include this additional citation from Psalms (56:4): "In God I will praise his word, in God I have put my trust; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me."

Memorial Baptist Announcements

The Fidelity Sunday School Class will meet Monday evening at 8:00 with Mrs. P. B. Upchurch. The assisting hostesses will be Mrs. J. L. Winstead and Mrs. Chester Walsh.

The Bert Tyson Sunday School Class will meet Monday evening at 8:00 with Mrs. A. B. Whitley. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. Kenneth Mercer and Mrs. Herbert Paschal. The Sunday school officers and teachers will meet Tuesday night at 7:30 in the church basement.

The mid-week worship service will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30. The pastor will be in charge of this service. The Church Choir will practice Thursday evening at 7:30.

CHAPTER 19

Soon after sunrise Trumpeter Rainey, on duty as Major Prescott's orderly, ran down the gravel walk in front of the officers' line and banged on the door of Quarter 4.

"Lieutenant! Lieutenant!" he shouted. His young, excited voice seemed to do as much violence as a bugle to the calm of the desert that lay rosy and hot in the early light of August. Almost at once the door was opened from within by Major Hazard, who stood in dark-blue flannel shirt, sky-blue jersey breeches and black boots, holding a silver-backed hairbrush in each hand.

"Yes, orderly?" he said gently.

The trumpeter reported, "The commanding officer's compliments, sir, and will the lieutenant report to him on the double?"

"Thank you orderly, and my respects to Major Prescott, and I will report immediately."

The youngster in tight flannel saluted and ran up the line. Matthew, watching him, was already at work on possibilities. If it should happen that he must leave her for field duty, there were things to tell his wife before he was gone. He turned back into the minutely crumbling adobe hut.

Laura came to him. She touched him and he felt her tremble faintly as she questioned inwardly by the meaning of the hasty summons so early in the day with no previous warning. But she mocked the unknown, saying, "Matt, don't be too long. I shall die of curiosity until you come back. Do you suppose our party tonight is to be postponed?"

Almost in one movement, he kissed her, took up his yellow neckerchief and left her, thinking, Perhaps it has come sooner than you might have expected.

At headquarters the flag was up at the top of the tall pole out front. It hung inert, making pale shadow on the hot, sandy ground. Matthew ran up the two steps to the tin-roofed porch and into the wide hallway. He paused before the major's closed door to the left and straightened the knot of his necktie. The door to the right was his living quarters, to the right of the hall, was also closed. Matthew knocked and entered.

Major Prescott was at his desk. His right arm was already raised forward in mid-air, and hanging from his right hand was a pale blue paper. The single suspended gesture told Matt several things. He was to read the paper. It was about something urgent. A decision had already been made. The commanding officer disliked waste motion and liked to anticipate. In Major Prescott's clear, heavy writing, it stated:

Received at 11q. Troop F, 6th U. S. Cavalry, Fort Delivery, Territory of Arizona, 23 August, 118-6:10 A.M. by helicopter.

1. Horse herd, escort wagons mounted squad proceeding to Fort Delivery ambushed night of 21-22 August near Ransom Rock by undetermined number of Apache under Chief Rainbow Son.

2. Fire exchanged, with four seriously wounded in squad. All horses scattered and driven east to southwest. One Indian killed and abandoned.

3. Survivors commanded by Sgt. Burns reached Ransom Rock relay station last night with news.

4. Sgt. Burns of opinion that Rainbow Son and followers driving horses toward Half-Moon Canyon as nearest natural refuge.

"Well, it's hit us, sir," said Lieutenant Hazard, putting the dispatch on Major Prescott's desk. "It happened right before last."

Major Prescott said, "If it took Burns till the next night to reach the relay station on foot, under scouting conditions, the column was about thirty miles away from there. They must have been trailed and watched for several days. There must have been a good many of the squad would've handled them. Rainbow Son has turned those men into foot soldiers, not only there, but unless we recover the herd, even here, in time, since we needed those remounts badly. With our troop horses in the condition they're in. If the Apache have headed for Half-Moon, we will find one advantage and one disadvantage in that. First, we will find them gathered instead of spread around the map, but second if they have enough to eat they can hold us off there indefinitely. Is this pretty much as you see it?"

"Yes, sir," Matthew answered, but saying nothing of the question in his heart. His whole bearing asked what was now to be done, and whether there was a place for him in any plan of action.

The troop's other line officer, First Lieutenant Mainwaring, would have preferred he was sure. Captain Gray, the surgeon, was not on duty as a line officer.

"We must do three things," said Major Prescott. "One, we have to get our people, especially the wounded, out of there; two, we have to get those horses back; and if they have to shoot the Apaches that will strike back, and fast, even at heavy cost to us. And we have to do all these things at the same time. You remember what Half-Moon is like, don't you?"

"Yes, sir, I've been there," Matthew's heart began to feel solid and able. What was coming?

"Then you can see the problem."

"Yes, sir, or I will, sir."

"Yes. After all, I haven't stated it in your terms."

"Mine?"

"Yes, I'm giving it to you. There is other work for Mainwaring." The major gazed at Matthew to stifle any betrayal of opinion. "You will take out two squads of the second platoon, find Rainbow Son, to recapture the herd, and kill or bring in all the Indians you can. Mr. Mainwaring will head a relief party, with led horses and supplies, to pick up Burns and the first platoon near Ransom Rock. With two operations mounted out of this post in opposite directions at the same time, I'll have to stay here at the center. What will be the first thing you'll do?"

"Sir, I'll personally supervise getting my men and equipment ready."

"Then?"

"Then I'll move out in scouting order in the general direction of Half-Moon Canyon. It's the only lead we have."

"And then?"

"If I find them there, I'll work out something on the spot."

"The cave is a natural fortress and their line of fire above you will come from sources invisible to you."

"Yes, I've been thinking of that. But there's a way to beat them and I'll find it out."

The major stood up.

"I'll do. But I'll tell you what, I'll see to getting your outfit ready, if you want to have a little time with Laura. And I'll ask Jessica to take her on while you're gone. Those two have hit it off, you know."

"Yes, sir, I know. Thank you."

Cleaning Up After Litterbugs Is Real Job

The painstaking process of cleaning up after highway "litterbugs" was underway on the south side of Greenville yesterday.

And it took five employees of the State Highway Commission two days to pick up paper, bottles and cans that littered the 4 1/2 mile strip of the US 264 bypass that reaches around Greenville's southern side.

Cleaning up the highways is not a one-shot operation either. The Highway Commission's landscape and beautification division spends, statewide, at least a half-million annually to gather up rubbish scattered along the road shoulders by and so forth were anything but scarce. Bagful by bagful, the litterbug "crop" was harvested and hauled away to its proper place—the dump.

Laws have long been in North Carolina's General Statutes to prohibit the everyday practices of the litterbug.

A maximum of a $50 fine or 30 days on the roads is provided for motorists or vehicle passengers convicted of littering the highways.

In North Carolina, a vigorous campaign was initiated, however, just four years ago when signs informing motorists of the Litterbug penalty went up along Tar Heel routes.

Special emphasis was placed on the litterbug law and State Highway Patrolmen were on the alert for debris flying from auto windows.

That was four years ago. Arrests have been made and litterbugs have been convicted and fined. Still, the state spends a half-million each year as evidence that the litterbug is still on the loose.

Patrolmen deplore the fact that the litterbug today is much more careful than ever before.

A local officer describes a familiar scene:

"A guy rolls down his window and polses himself to toss a pop bottle out. Before he throws, though, he peers slyly in his rear-view mirror or over his shoulder. If a patrolman is in view, postpones his toss. If he doesn't see one, he lets it fly."

In addition to the patrolmen, highway commission personnel deplore the litterbug situation. They feel a more responsible motoring public would allow the state's half-million to be used for improvements of a different nature.

All connected officials realize and admit the elimination of the current expense involved in highway clean up rests largely with Tar Heel motorists taking more pride in their own highways.

Highway 13 Is Bestowed Name 'Pleasure Route'

AHOSKIE — US Highway 13 Wednesday night acquired the promotional name—"The Pleasure Route"—at a meeting here of mayors and representatives of towns along the route from Norfolk to Snow Hill.

The local officials discussed the potential of increased business and income through increased traffic on US 13 upon scheduled 1963 completion of the Chesapeake Bay bridge-tunnel that will link the Norfolk area with the Virginia capes.

Councilman Charles King represented Greenville at the meeting and was named to the temporary board of directors of The Pleasure Route.

According to Ransom Shoup II, president of the US Highway 13 Association, local committees in each town along the route will be formed to map plans for promotion of the continuous route proposed by R. B. Nelson of Roberstonville to eventually span the United States from Montreal to New Orleans.

In Pitt County, the route passes through Bethel, Greenville and Farmville.

Pre-School Registration For City Schools In March, April

Dates for the pre-school registration have been announced as March 21 at Elmhurst School, March 28 at Third Street School, and April 4 at South Greenville School.

All meetings will be held in the school auditoriums. Parents have been asked by school officials to attend alone, without their children. The purpose of the registration is to register children who will be six years of age or below Oct. 16, who will be starting school this fall.

Mrs. Ellen Carroll, director of instruction for city schools, said that parents should bring birth certificates for the child and records of immunizations.

The law requires every child to be vaccinated for smallpox, diphtheria, whooping cough and polio before he starts to school. These immunizations may be obtained at the Health Department Clinic every Monday from 9 a.m. until 12 noon, and from 1 p.m. until 4:30 p.m., or at the family doctor's office.

There will not be a doctor present on registration day to give the immunizations.

At the pre-school registrations, there will be information available on the summer kindergarten program, scheduled to begin in June. Mrs. Carroll noted, for those prospective first graders who have not had previous kindergarten experience.

Following are the dates and schedules of pre-school registration throughout the elementary schools of Greenville:

March 21, Elmhurst School, 8 p.m.; March 28, Third Street School, 2 p.m.; Wahl-Coats School, 2 p.m.; and Agnes Fullilove School, 2 p.m.; April 11, Fleming Street School, 2 p.m.; April 12, South Greenville School, 2 p.m.

Films Available At Local Library

The following films are available at Sheppard Memorial Library through March 31:

"Answering the Child's Why," EBF 1951, 13 min., sd., b&w—Actual situations dramatized in which youngsters meet with positive and negative attitudes toward their questions. Suggests the resulting effect on their personalities. For parent groups.

"Art and Life in Italy," Coronet 1950, 10 min., sd., color—The art of Italy is shown as the results of activities of the Italian people in the land in which they live. Photographs include scenes on the streets of Florence, Giotto's frescoes in the Arena chapel in Padua, and views of other historic monuments and works of art.

"Dare: Birthplace of America," North Carolina U., 1952, 22 min., sd., color—An historical documentary film dealing with the first English colony in America, Sir Walter Raleigh's Lost Colony, and with Virginia Dare also portrays Orville and Wilbur Wright's first powered-driven plane flights in 1903-1908 at Kitty Hawk. The acceptance of the challenge of these two "New Worlds" took place in what is now Dare County, North Carolina. Cooperation of the "Lost Colony" drama made possible filming of many historic shots. Stock footage of an early Wright Brothers' flight, and interviews with men who knew the Wright Brothers are also significant.

"Lure of the North," Can Travel, 14 min., sd., color—Unspoiled lake country of northern Ontario. Fishing, ranging in size from 20 to 50 pounds, are pulled in by a party of fishermen who travel by light seaplane and motorboat to Eagle Lake and Lake Keekawa.

Dr. Nelson To Speak At Community Conference

WILSON — Dr. Phillip Nelson, director of the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic in Greenville, is among the speakers scheduled to participate in a special community health conference for the promotion of better mental health.

Community leaders from a seven-county area will meet here Wednesday, March 22. The conference is being sponsored by the Medical Society of the State of North Carolina with assistance from several organizations in the Wilson County area.

Among speakers, other than Dr. Nelson, will be Dr. Robert M. Pink, of Raleigh, consultant for the Mental Health Section of the N. C. State Board of Health; Dr.

Astronauts Will Be Tidy Eaters

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Astronauts won't be messy eaters when they whirl through space.

"There won't be a crumb in sight," says Miss Beatrice Finkelstein, who guides the Air Force's research program to find the best ways to feed men in space vehicles.

She stopped here Thursday before heading back to Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton, Ohio.

"One crumb," she explains, "could circulate in the cabin, since there's no gravity, and could land on a delicate instrument, botching it up."

'Little Census' Inquiries Slated

A "little census" will be conducted here this month, with Mrs. Shirley Brotherton collecting local information for the Census Bureau.

Joseph E. Norwood of the Census Bureau's regional field office in Charlotte said the census will consist of special questions to be asked in the March Current Population Survey in addition to the regular monthly inquiries on employment and unemployment.

The special questions will be on consumer income, migration and family characteristics. The purpose of the inquiries is to supplement and keep up to date the detailed information about the nation's population which is collected every 10 years in the decennial censuses.

All information about individuals furnished to the Census Bureau is held in strict confidence under Federal law.

The survey will be conducted here during the week of March 20.

West German Forces To Grow

BONN, Germany (AP) — The West German armed forces will reach a total strength of 300,000 April 4, when 39,500 draftees and 6,000 volunteers join up, the defense department said Thursday.

There will be 186,500 in the army, 69,000 in the air force, 25,000 in the navy and 19,500 in territorial defense and central command units.

Special Signal To Look Away

PARIS (AP)—The French state television network, which occasionally spices its programs with sex and undraped actresses, today adopted a special signal to warn when youngsters should look the other way.

A little white square will bob up in the lower-right corner of the screen, remaining there throughout the "adult only" program in case anyone tunes in after the announcer has given the usual verbal warning.

AGREE TO EXCHANGE

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Academy of Sciences and the American Council of Learned Societies have agreed to exchange three university lecturers and five research scholars during the next academic year. Subjects will be history, law, geography, economics and literature.

GOING HIGHER

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The X15 rocket plane is expected to take man to 150,000 feet on its next flight, higher than he has ever been before. Present record is 136,500 feet, set by an X15 last year.
