'Cottendale' Burns In Spectacular Fire

SEARING FLAMES . . . sweep skyward and light up the area around the 100-year-old Cotten home near Bruce which burned to the ground late Saturday night.

Old Pitt Plantation Home Burns To Ground; Faulty Wiring Is Suspected

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE—A 19th century home, "Cottendale," four and one-half miles north of here on the Bruce Highway, burned to the ground late Saturday night. The fire apparently started from faulty electrical wiring.

The old plantation home, built in the mid-1800s, was owned by Julian Timberlake of Virginia Beach, Virginia.

W. C. Wooten, Farmville Assistant Fire Chief, said the fire was discovered about 10 p.m. A fire truck and about eight Farmville Volunteer Firemen responded to the alarm. Wooten said, but the building was engulfed in flames and the front portion of the dwelling was "falling in" when the firefighters arrived.

The out-buildings around the large house were saved, Wooten reported.

Ben Atkinson of Route 4, Greenville, a guest in the house when the fire was discovered, said the fire apparently originated in the ceiling over the front porch. He said he thought the fire was caused by faulty electrical wiring. He explained that he and Mrs. Atkinson, along with Mrs. Sally Cotten Wiggins, Mrs. Lyman A. Cotten, Sr., and Lyman A. Cotten, Jr., were seated in a room at the rear of the large house when they smelled smoke. This

Upon investigating, Atkinson said, they found the "whole roof" over the front porch afire. He noted that when they discovered the fire, the porch ceiling "had burned to a crisp."

He said that the Farmville Fire Department was called about 10:15 p.m.

Atkinson said there was no insurance on the old building, which contained antique furniture, china, silver and paintings.

No estimate of the value of the home could be obtained.

She was Lady Manager on both the nationals and states boards at the Chicago World's Fair and was appointed Lady Manager for North Carolina at the Atlanta and Charleston exhibitions.

She was, for many years, president of the End-of-Century Club of Greenville.

In more recent times, life at Cottendale has departed from the Old South and the life of Sallie Southall Cotten and Col. Cotten.

It is now owned by Julian Timberlake, a grandson of Robert Randolph Cotten, who is a resident of Virginia Beach, Va. The house has been more of a weekend guest retreat and summer home in recent years, used by family members who reside not only in North Carolina, but in other states as well.

Timberlake still engages in farming interests at Cottendale, where tobacco and cotton are the principal crops.

The grandson was on his way to Greenville this morning, to survey the remnants of Cottendale.

large farmer and merchant of Falkland, and his wife, Sallie Southall Cotten, lived in the home in the old days. Now one of the women's dormitories at East Carolina College, Cotten Hall carries the family name.

Col. Cotten, a native of Edgecombe County, was a member of the Confederate forces during the Civil War, and surrendered with General Lee at Appomattox. After the war he came to Falkland, and opened business about 1868.

He had been a director of the State Hospital in Raleigh, the State Penitentiary and had served as a state representative and senator.

Sallie Southall Cotten may be best remembered as the author of "The White Doe," a long poem steeped in early North Carolina history. Her poems and stories were published in various magazines.

Pravda Says Soviet Ready To Negotiate Laos Peace

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union will welcome a solution for Laos at the conference table instead of the field of battle, the Communist party paper Pravda said today. But while willing to negotiate, Moscow warned against SEATO intervention in Laos.

The Pravda article was a broad approval for American and British moves to bring the situation into negotiation. But it left in doubt just how a ceasefire, as proposed by the British, would be worked out.

The paper noted the British proposal for an immediate ceasefire to be followed by an international conference.

"It is not hard to see that concrete possibilities exist for the adjustment of the Laotian problem if all the countries concerned strive for this on a mutually acceptable basis and do nothing that might complicate the situation in Laos," Pravda said.

Pravda commented favorably on President Kennedy's call at a news conference for a truly neutral Laos. This probably foreshadowed the message Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko carried to Washington for his conference today with the President.

It was understood from diplomatic sources that the British proposals on Laos—expressed in a note to the Kremlin March 23—are being studied and a reply can be expected shortly.

Pravda, blaming the Laotian crisis on the Western powers, accused SEATO of bringing Chinese Nationalist soldiers into the conflict. It warned against intervention by any SEATO nation and demanded U.S. military advisers get out of the Asian kingdom.

Pravda declared that force would be met with force if necessary, but its main emphasis was on negotiations for a peaceful solution.

The article was signed "Observer" meaning it came from the highest government authority. In Washington there was no immediate official comment from the State Department. But officials said if the Pravda account turns out to be Soviet acceptance of the British proposals the United States will, of course, be very gratified.

"The British government stands for an immediate cessation of the fire in Laos, after which it considered possible a convening of the international control commission in Laos," the Pravda article said.

"Britain agrees with the (Soviet) proposal for speeding the international conference to consider the Laos problem and stands for a speedy solution of the problem of a neutral government of national unity in Laos.

"It is not difficult to see that there are some real possibilities for regulating the Laos problem if all interested countries try to achieve that and do nothing that could aggravate the situation in Laos."

Although it put the blame on the United States for the situation in Laos and took issue with much that President Kennedy said at his news conference Thursday, the Observer article welcomed the statement of the President that the United States wants peace in Laos and not war.

"They want to solve the problem in a conference and not on the battlefields. That is what the Soviet Union wants."

The Soviet agreement to a Laotian truce and conference was coupled with a stern warning against intervention by the South-east Asia Treaty Organization, whose foreign ministers are now meeting in Bangkok to make plans for possible action in Laos.

"Peace-loving states will not remain indifferent to plans for intervention in Laos," said Observer. "The use of force against the people of Laos will meet counterforce."

The article also gave a preview of what the Soviets are likely to demand at an international conference on Laos. It restated the Soviet position that Prince Souvanna Phouma heads the legal government of Laos and that Western-backed Premier Boun Oum is leading a revolt, "inspired from abroad," against the legal government.

It demanded that Thailand not be used as a base to supply Boun Oum's forces, that American military advisers leave Laos at once and that the international conference "help restore peace in Laos on a basis that would be acceptable to the lawful government, the national patriotic forces (meaning the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels), and other political forces of Laos."

Reason To Think Missing Plane Was Shot Down

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department said today it has information indicating that a U.S. plane missing in the Laos area was shot down.

Press officer Joseph W. Reap, asked about the U.S. Embassy C-47 that disappeared Thursday with eight American military men aboard replied:

"Our information is the plane is missing and I guess it's a fair assumption that it's been shot down."

Reap declined to detail the available information making it a "fair assumption" that the two-engine transport craft went down because of gunfire.

He said he had no information about the plane's crew.

The craft left Vientiane, capital of Laos, Thursday morning. Its ultimate destination was Saigon in neighboring South Viet Nam.

An announcement that the plane was missing was made Saturday.

There was no word whether the craft might have flown over territory controlled by the rebels who are getting Soviet and North Viet names supplies, and are fighting the royal Lao government.

The direct Vientiane-Saigon route would have carried the plane over friendly Thailand and not over the battle area in north-eastern Laos.

Family Is Burned Out Second Time

STATON—A Saturday afternoon fire one mile north of here destroyed a family's belongings during the second time in 13 years.

Ed Hemingway of the Staton-House Fire Department reported today the blaze, reported about 4:30 p.m. Saturday, "completely gutted the inside" of a house occupied by Clayton Davenport and his family.

Davenport, Hemingway said, lost his belongings in a 1948 fire. Hemingway said the fire apparently started in the kitchen of the house owned by Mrs. Minnie Whitehurst of Route 3, Bethel. He said it was "an electrical fire."

Firemen from the Staton-House department and the Carolina Township Fire Department based at Stokes extinguished the blaze in time to save the roof and parts of the exterior walls.

"Only a very little of the furniture was saved," Hemingway said. He said a passing motorist discovered the fire. At the time of discovery, Hemingway said, Davenport's wife and two daughters were in the house and unaware of the fire.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The strong stance on the crisis in Communist-menaced Laos that President Kennedy is attempting to project to the Kremlin is getting mounting endorsement from prominent Republicans in Congress.

Statements over the weekend by Republican senators indicate that despite their differences with the President on domestic matters they mean to give a bipartisan tone to the U. S. position on Laos.

Kennedy's handling of the situation got unqualified support from one of the Senate's prominent conservative senators, Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

Bridges, who heads the Senate Republican Policy Committee, expressed belief that Kennedy's "strong, clear position" will bring a peaceful settlement of the crisis.

Bridges said in an interview that Republicans intend to support fully any decision Kennedy makes in efforts to prevent a Communist takeover of Laos.

Bridges and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N. Y., took the view that if military action became necessary it should be a cooperative effort of the SEATO nations.

Javits publicly backed use of U. S. troops in Laos if military intervention is necessary. Another Eastern Republican senator, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, took a similar position. They expressed their views during TV programs.

"I hope we do not have to send troops, but if we do have to send troops as the only way to stop the loss of one more country to the Communists, then I will support the President's decision to do it," Scott said.

Scott also preferred that any military intervention be through SEATO.

Although Kennedy has set as the Western goal a "truly neutral Laos," Scott said at a party rally at York, Pa., that he thought any general policy of ready acceptance of neutralism would be a mistake.

A leading spokesman for the GOP conservative wing, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, said every Republican should say, "Well done, Jack Kennedy" for his firm stand on Laos.

"When the President is right we should back him," Goldwater said Saturday night in a speech to a young Republican convention in Perth Amboy, N. J. Goldwater said Kennedy's position on Laos was "eminently correct."

The Democratic chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, called for unquestioning support of Kennedy in the Laotian crisis.

Support for Kennedy came, also from William R. Burke, national commander of the American Legion. In a cablegram from Rome, Burke backed the President "in whatever steps he deems necessary, including force."

Pitt Democrats Assured Of Meeting New Dinner Quota

Pitt County Democrats apparently are already assured of meeting their higher-than-ever quota of patrons at the April 15 Jefferson Jackson Day Dinner in Raleigh.

In session here Saturday, the county Executive Committee heard its chairman, J. Henry Harrell, announce Pitt's quota has been hiked to $800 for the 1961 expanded version of the $50-a-plate dinner.

On the heels of Harrell's announcement came commitments from Greenville, Bethel, Grifton, Ayden, Farmville, Winterville and Chocoid that totaled 18 Pitt County Democrats lined up to attend the fund-raising dinner.

No Free Tickets Harrell told the group the "money has to be sent to Raleigh before we get any tickets." Former chairman John G. Clark, who attended Saturday's meeting to receive a token of the committee's appreciation for his 17-year service, warned, "There won't be any free tickets this year."

State Chairman Bert Bennett Jr. Davenport, Hemingway said, lost his belongings in a 1948 fire. Hemingway said the fire apparently started in the kitchen of the house owned by Mrs. Minnie Whitehurst of Route 3, Bethel. He said it was "an electrical fire."

Firemen from the Staton-House department and the Carolina Township Fire Department based at Stokes extinguished the blaze in time to save the roof and parts of the exterior walls.

"Only a very little of the furniture was saved," Hemingway said. He said a passing motorist discovered the fire. At the time of discovery, Hemingway said, Davenport's wife and two daughters were in the house and unaware of the fire.

Davenport's furniture was insured for $1,000 but there was no insurance on the house itself, Hemingway said.

He complimented the Carolina Township firemen for answering the alarm and helping extinguish the fire.

No injuries were reported.

has been pushing this year's Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner to the tune of 1,000 paying Democrats expected. If the attendance goal is reached, the state party will collect the $50,000 recently borrowed to pay off North Carolina's share of the national party debt.

Both Harrell and Clark expressed the hope Pitt would send several more Democrats than state headquarters has required of it. Previous quotas for Pitt, Clark pointed out, have been between $500 and $600.

Supporting ECC Before discussing the money-raising dinner, the committee unanimously approved a motion by Dr. Jim Poindexter, chairman of Greenville precinct No. 8, to request Pitt's legislators to continue their support of East Carolina College in the General Assembly.

Poindexter said reports he has had indicate a lack of written support for the Greenville school from county citizens. He said Reps. Frank M. Wooten and Clifton Everett "have been flooded with letters and telegrams" urging support for other state-supported schools.

He urged the committee members to "say a word in our (ECC's) behalf if you should run into our legislators." Poindexter is a member of the school's faculty.

Copies of the committee's action were to be sent to Wooten and Everett, Pitt Sen. Robert L. Humber and ECC President Leo W. Jenkins.

Clark Cited Immediately after convening, Poindexter introduced a motion that the committee present Clark with a "token of our appreciation for his years of leadership."

The precinct chairmen voted unanimously to present Clark with a $95 wrist watch. Secretary Gilbert Peel telephoned the former chairman who arrived some minutes later to receive the gift.

White Will Leave Road Commission

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Sanford said today that J. Lee White of Concord has indicated he will resign as a member of the State Highway Commission upon his appointment as a member of the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

White, who has served on the commission since 1957, is one of five men who have been recommended for appointment to the State ASC Committee by North Carolina's two U.S. senators.

They made their recommendations to Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, who is expected to announce the appointment shortly.

Gov. Sanford, who conferred with White several days ago, said "he has indicated he will resign" when he takes the ASC post. The governor said there was no reason for White to resign before that.

Involvement In Price Fixing Vigorously Denied

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS North Carolina bakers and salt and sugar brokers have denied vigorously any knowledge of, or involvement in, price-fixing in bids for state contracts.

A Greenville sugar broker, J.B. Kittrell, was one of two firms which emphatically denied any suggestion of price fixing. The Kittrell firm is a broker for Savannah Sugar Refining of Atlanta.

The other sugar broker, Harold Barbee of Raleigh, representing Pennsylvania Sugar, explained his bid by pointing out he arrived at the figure by taking the list price and subtracting the cash discount.

The Kittrell and Barbee firms were two of three which submitted identical bids on confectionary sugar for prison bakeries. The contracts were let Friday after a drawing of lots.

The three brokers entered bids of $3.08 a case and $926.10 for 300 cases.

State Purchase and Contract Director William White said he did not feel this could be a "coincidence."

The denials came after disclosure by Gov. Sanford's administration and the State Division of Purchase and Contract of identical bids on their commodities.

North Carolina newspapers Sunday, William C. McIntire Jr., executive secretary of the North Carolina Bakers Council, said:

"The council has nothing to do with the operations and management of the bakeries of North Carolina. Each bakery is individually owned or under management of several national chain baking companies.

"As to recent publications regarding bakeries, the council has had no part in this matter and cannot give any information."

A Greensboro baker, Paul C. Jones, said his firm "absolutely does not engage in price fixing or individuals to have an agreement, contract or understanding to maintain standard prices.

week state institutions have "regularly encountered" identical bidding on bakery products.

He said this has resulted in a jump of from $21,000 to $30,000 a year in the cost of bread at Dorchester Dix Hospital at Raleigh. At the University of North Carolina, he said, the price has jumped from about $19,500 to $32,583.

Walter T. Adams of Raleigh, representing Morton Salt Co., cited competition and study of past low bids as a likely reason for the fact that five salt firms offered identical bids of $127 per 100 pound bag for 600 bags of table salt.

After denying any consultation among the companies before bidding, Adams said, "as I understand it, that would be a violation of the anti-trust laws.

One of the projects of the Ladies Auxiliary is its work with Caswell Training School. Requests from Caswell for toiletries and other needed articles have been supplied, according to Mrs. J. A. Joyner Jr., who serves as chairman of the Caswell School committee.

A contribution of $42.30 was made by the members to the cancer project sponsored by the national organization of auxiliaries. In addition to the sponsoring of a research center, monetary assistance is also available to members who have cancer.

The group favored a contribution toward the purchase of a gift for the retiring state president which is to be presented at the annual state convention.

Following the business session, Mrs. Stancil, assisted by Mrs. Kathleen Whichard, served refreshments during the social hour.

Mr. and Miss Courtesy were elected by the student body as being the ones to represent the ideals of courtesy which Twirp Week each year tries to further. This festival was the highlight of the Rose High Twirp Week, during which the girls extend to the boys all of the courtesies normally expected of the boys.

Gigi Guice, who was in charge of the floor show, welcomed the group and introduced the master of ceremonies, J. G. Proctor. The first number of the floor show was "Getting to Know You" and "Wouldn't It Be Lovely," a quartet sung by Myrtle Moon Bilbro, Donna Day Bissette, Ruth Cotton Clark, and Sara Collier Webb.

Peggy Bentley, Nancy Harrington, Joanne Crawford, Viki Ricks, and Linda Hollowell formed a chorus line for "Bessame Mucho."

The master of ceremonies joined the program at this point. J. G. did his "Famous" Beatnick monologue, accompanied by Mac McKenzie on the bongos.

Sally Willis and Betsy Coughlan did a modern interpretive dance to the music of "Bongos, Bongos, Bongos."

The last number on the program was a medley of ballads sung by Jack Barnhill, Erskine Duff, Peter Hunt, and Mr. Courtney, Lester Brown.

Today is Sad Saturday for Rose High students. Everyone is sad (?) that Twirp Week is over. Students have celebrated this week the following days: Miss-Matched Monday, students wore unmatched clothes; Turn-About Tuesday, girls performed various extra courtesies for the boys; Wicked Wednesday, everyone mourned the death of courtesy and left off the basic courtesies; Truthful Thursday, everyone tried to tell the absolute truth; and Faculty Friday, the day set aside to honor the teachers.

During Faculty Friday, the Student Co-operative Association, which sponsored Twirp Week, presented applies to the teachers and entertained them with a tea. Janice Bentley and Phyllis Moore headed Twirp Week activities this year. Officers of the SCA also took part in the plans. These include Erky Duff, president; Larry Roberts, vice-president; Janice Laughter, secretary; and Johnny Reynolds, treasurer; Mrs. Nellie R. White advises the SCA this year.

Cheerleader Conference
Greenville cheerleaders hosted the eighth annual Northeastern Cheerleaders Conference this morning in the Rose High gym. Varsity and junior varsity cheerleading squads from the eight conference schools gathered at 9:00 to begin competing for various trophies and awards.

In each division, first and second places were awarded. In addition, the girls themselves elected the squad which together with its fans had shown the best sportsmanship throughout the season.

The program officially started at 10:00 with the welcome to the school. Junior varsity competition began at 10:30 while varsity started at 11:30. Approximately 200 girls from the 16 squads (varsity and jayvee) participated in the competition.

Judges included two cheerleaders each from State College in Raleigh and East Carolina College in Greenville. Johnny Hudson, sports editor for The Daily Reflector, and Stuart Tripp, head coach at Ayden High School.

In last season's contest, Elizabeth City's varsity squad took top honors. Washington's junior varsity team was awarded first place. Greenville's junior varsity squad tied with New Bern for second place.

Today's decisions were not available at press time.

NFL Session
Rose High's National Forensic League will sponsor its last practice session of the year Tuesday night at 7:00 with Kinston.

All members are urged to attend this session which will include across-the-table debating in addition to the usual activities.

Wrestling Meet
Eight Rose High wrestlers are attending the State wrestling meet in High Point this weekend.

These boys, who went with Coach Jerry Warren, include Sammy Pugh, Dalton Owens, Garis Evans, Don Joyner, Gary Monroe, Ronnie Williams, Van Harris, and Joe McKay.

Seniors Tested
Representatives of the University of North Carolina Testing Department administered a questionnaire to members of the senior class this week.

This questionnaire concerned the individual's reactions to many social, family, and alcoholic situations.

These forms will be used in a survey being conducted by the University and will be repeated next year in order to see if there has been any change in the ideas of those tested.

FHA Party
Members of the senior FHA attended a party at Janice Laughter's house this week in honor of Mrs. Rachel Welborn. Mrs. Welborn has been the group's advisor for the past three years, but is resigning her post at Rose High and thus will no longer advise the club.

'South Pacific' Had Capacity Audiences

"South Pacific," presented in five performances by the East Carolina College Student Government Association, attracted audiences estimated at 3,500 people. Many who wanted to attend were unable to obtain seats. Opening Tuesday, March 21, the musical attracted capacity audiences, many of whom stood to see the performances. Closing performance Saturday night, March 25, was scheduled after more than 1,000 people, eager to attend, had been turned away at the door of McGinnis auditorium during the week. A smash hit, and the most popular in a series of annual spring musicals, begun under the sponsorship of the Student Government Association in 1952, the Rodgers-Hammerstein operetta of love and war in the South Seas was presented with a cast of more than thirty students in name roles, a chorus of men and women, a corps of dancers, and a 27-piece orchestra.

"Is It Possible To Re-Dye Garments Satisfactorily?"
—Mrs. F.S.C.
Dear Mrs. F.S.C.:
According to the Garment Dyers Guild of America, research done by the industry has made it possible to re-dye almost any fiber, natural or synthetic, from dark to light almost as easily as from light to dark. The one exception is Orlon and some satisfactory re-dyeing is being accomplished with this synthetic fiber, too. Old complaints about re-dyeing are being overcome. The nation's modern wholesale dye houses now service local cleaners as well as their customers. The standard dyer's chart offers customers some 38 different shades. Expert dyers can now achieve almost any desired shade from a sample swatch. The great draw-back to good re-dyeing is the condition of the fabric on which the dyer must work. It is impossible to determine exactly the extent of wear to which a garment has been subjected. That makes completely guaranteed re-dyeing a question. However, some amazing results are being obtained. If a garment passes the inspection of the dry-cleaner and the re-dyer you can expect normally good results. Dyers usually turn back, without charge, any items in which excessive wear makes a first-class re-dyeing job impossible. If you have some perfectly good cottons, play suits, slacks, shorts or children's clothing which you want transformed in color, take them to your dry-cleaner and discuss the possibilities. You'll be amazed at the finishing which not only changes the colors to please you, but which will restore the original fluff, sheen or finish to many materials from terry cloth beach robes to corduroy slacks. It's fashionable and thrifty to see what can be done through re-dyeing.—(Adv.)

Six Arrested On Liquor Counts

Two Negroes were arrested Saturday and four were arrested Sunday on charges of possessing non-tax-paid whiskey, Pitt ABC officers reported today. Officers said Annie B. Mayo, 48, of 112 Colanthe St., was arrested Saturday at her home when three gallons and one quart of illegal spirits were allegedly found in her bedroom. Charged with illegal possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale, she was placed under a $200 bond for appearance in City Recorder's Court April 3. Howard Brown, 42, of 301 Boyd Ave. was charged with possession non-tax-paid booze for sale when officers found two gallons of whiskey in his home. He was also placed under a $200 bond for city court April 3. Making the arrests were ABC officers J. M. Ward, H. B. Lilley and Walter Taylor. Lilley and Constable W. H. Crandall arrested four Negro men yesterday after they stopped a car being driven by William Henry Harris, 37, of Route 1, Stokes, and allegedly found a small quantity of illegal liquor in the car. Harris was charged with possessing and transporting non-tax-paid whiskey and operating without an operator's license. The other three, John Williams, 57, Robert Mitchell, 38, and James Ward, 42, all of Route 1, Stokes, were arrested on charges of possessing non-tax-paid whiskey. All were placed under $200 bonds and the auto is being held pending court action, officers reported.

Walden String Quartet Playing Here Tuesday

The Walden String Quartet, one of the most progressive and gifted chamber music ensembles to appear before American audiences in recent times, will play at East Carolina College Tuesday, at 8:15 p.m. in the McGinnis Auditorium. The program is co-sponsored by the Sarah Sprague Coolidge Foundation and the College Entertainment Committee. It is scheduled as one of ten attractions offered on the East Carolina College Entertainment Series for 1960-1961. The quartet was founded in 1934 by four artists who were then playing in the Cleveland Orchestra. The name of the group comes from Thoreau's classic "Walden." The Waldens have won international renown not only for their superb technical ability and unanimity of expression but also for their comprehensive repertory. They have been critically acclaimed for their performances of the standard literature. In addition, they have played several hundred new contemporary works, in public, on the air, and on records, many of which were world premieres. The quartet has toured extensively both in America and in Europe. Their recordings are available in the Columbia Masterworks series and under other labels. Members of the group are now in residence at the University of Illinois. They are Homer Schmitt and Bernard Goodman, violin; John Garvey, viola; and Robert Swenson, cello.

Safe, But Calls It 'Sloppy Job'

BONNER SPRINGS, Kan. (AP) — "I brought the plane in, but I did a sloppy job." Mrs. Lloyd J. Frevert, 46, gave that explanation Sunday after she crash-landed a light plane in the first landing she ever tried. Her husband, 47, owner of a finance firm in Kansas City, Kan., had died of a heart attack and slumped against the controls, putting the plane into a dive from 2,000 feet altitude. Mrs. Frevert and their son, William, 13, pulled Frevert's body away from the controls and she bounced the plane down into a pasture four miles southwest of Bonner Springs. A wheel was torn off as the plane slid to a halt. Mrs. Frevert suffered a head injury and hospital attendants said her condition was serious. William escaped with bruises. The family was returning from a relative's wedding in Valparaiso, Ind., and was only 2 1/2 miles from their destination when Frevert was stricken.

Astronomers speculate that the planets Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto may consist largely of solid hydrogen.

'Temporary' Action Likely To Stay

The extension of unemployment benefits for an additional 13 weeks as an anti-recession measure of the federal government opens a new avenue for a "temporary" governmental measure to become a permanent part of economic structure of the nation.

Certainly there are people in many hard-hit sections of the country who will benefit greatly by being able to draw an extra 13 weeks unemployment compensation. And even in the future when unemployment is not nearly the problem it appears to be today, there will be those who stay out of work longer than the period previously designated for unemployment insurance payments.

Having become a part of the unemployment compensation program as an emergency measure, will the extension of unemployment payments continue after the emergency has passed?

The new law specifies that an unemployed person may draw additional unemployment payments for which he is eligible for a period equal to one-half the duration of the original benefits. Since some states already provide unemployment payments for up to 26 weeks, it will mean in those states a person may draw unemployment for as much as 39 weeks in any year. Thus a person who becomes eligible for payments would be entitled to draw unemployment compensation for all but 13 weeks of the year.

The law also specifies a two-year time limit for the additional weeks of compensation and it has been estimated that some three million unemployed people may receive nearly a billion dollars in extra compensation during the period.

As an anti-recession measure, the program will alleviate many serious conditions during the period of high unemployment. As a permanent part of the unemployment compensation structure, however, the program could quickly become a distinct liability rather than an asset to the economy of the nation. It could serve to encourage unemployment on the part of some individuals who may not be anxious to work anyway. The cost of the program, which is considerable, would put a heavier tax burden upon those who are gainfully employed. Because of the increase in payroll taxes required to finance the additional program, it could push higher the general cost of both goods and services throughout the economy.

If this temporary measure follows the pattern of other steps taken under the same label and becomes permanent, it will not only place an additional heavy tax burden on the economy but also will give permanent status to the philosophy that an individual who meets certain requirements while working one-fourth of the year is eligible to be paid compensation for not working the other three-fourths of the year.

Single-Shot Vote Ban To Bolster Democracy

The Reflector is in sympathy with the aim of the legislative proposal to halt single-shot voting in North Carolina through a state-wide law that applies to primaries and general elections.

It is unfortunate, however, that the legislature has to consider enacting such legislation in order to insure that voters will discharge the responsibility they have as conscientious citizens.

There have been many instances in which many voters obviously voted for only one person from a field of several candidates to fill several posts. It happens where a county has two or more seats in the General Assembly, or where members of the City Council or Board of County Commissioners are elected at large rather than from designated areas within the political subdivision.

The bill provides that the ballot would not be counted if the voter marked the ballot for fewer candidates than the number of posts to be filled.

It is the responsibility of the individual citizen as a voter to participate in the naming of officials to each elective office. The voter who marks his ballot for only one of several elective offices—and does so to use the single-shot vote as a political weapon—is hardly shouldering his responsibility to participate in the election of all officials.

Passage of the bill will strengthen democratic government throughout North Carolina and will assure a more accurate reflection of public sentiment at the ballot box toward all elective offices.

Stand Taken On Shorter Week

By RALPH ROBEY
President Kennedy is the first chief executive of this nation who has ever said definitely that he is opposed to a "reduction of the work week." This is a statement of substantial importance.

As far back as the depression of the thirties, labor leaders were urging a shorter work week as a means of helping employment, and just a few years ago the same idea was placed high on the list of demands of some of the larger unions. Even now we have the proposal being discussed in top quarters of the labor movement, with indications that this will be asked for in coming negotiations.

Mr. Kennedy's comment came at a regular press conference. He was asked: "Mr. President, labor unions want a shorter work week to cope with automation and unemployment. Are you for it and if so, would you prefer a shorter work day or a four-day week?"

The President's reply was: "I am opposed to a shorter work week. I am hopeful that we can have employment high five days a week and forty hours, which is traditional in this country, and which is necessary if we are going to continue economic growth, and maintain our commitments at home and abroad."

Several comments need to be made in appraising this answer. First, there's nothing "traditional" about forty hours a week. Many persons can still remember when the standard work week was much over forty hours, and in some lines of employment that still is true. On the other hand we have some industries which have reduced the work week to well below forty hours and this is a part of their labor contract. Forty hours a week is merely a point where, in certain instances, overtime must begin. Second, forty hours a week is less than many persons prefer to work. This is shown by the extent of so-called moonlighting which means having a second job. Granted, in many instances the reason for the second job is the desirability, or necessity, of making more income, but that is not the sole reason, and shortening the work week, without a corresponding reduction of pay, which labor will not consider, increases the cost of production which means either higher prices or lower profits, and in both instances hurts employment.

Third, the proper way to solve the unemployment problem is to create more jobs, not spread the work. This will involve, as we have said so many times, more capital investment to increase the efficiency of production, the development of new and better products, more reasonable taxes on both individuals and businesses, more regulation of labor union leaders, lowering of prices as a result of increased productivity, and still harder selling on the part of business managers.

Fourth, with this statement by the President, business management should have the courage to be more firm in resisting unjustified demands by labor union leaders. This does not mean that no wage increases should be given, but it does mean that management should remember that whenever there is room for increasing wages there also alternatively is room for reducing prices, and a reduction of prices may be much better than higher wages for everyone concerned.

Finally, the President by this statement placed himself in opposition to labor union thinking more clearly than by any.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
GREAT WORLD TEACHER
Many years ago Dr. Frank Laubach, a teaching missionary, became convinced that illiteracy is the greatest problem confronting humanity today. Over a period of years he worked out a system by which he could teach illiterate adults to read. Incredible as it seems, he uses this system in languages with which he himself is almost entirely unfamiliar save for a little nest of key words. He has developed a series of symbols and pictures by which people who do not know one letter of their language from another learn to read in a few weeks. He started this system among the Philippine natives. The old chieftain of the tribe among which Laubach first worked was so impressed by this educational method that he laid his hand on his sword and cried out to his people, "Now you learn to read or I'll kill you!"

Laubach felt this was not a good slogan with which to conquer the world so he chose, "Each one teach one." The promise to do this is the cost of the course. Laubach has succeeded in teaching sixty million people to read.
For this man who has taught the equivalent of whole nations to read, the statement from the Book of Daniel (12:3) certainly applies: "They that be wise (or are teachers) shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever."

He Seems Pretty Big—

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Conservatives See Trend

Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.
Numerous organizations appear all over the country which have a conservative tinge. Not all of them are philosophically or politically oriented, but what is interesting is that there are so many of them; that they range from college groups to adults; and that while they do not yet show up in labor unions or women's clubs, they form their own associations which take on appreciable sizes.

Some day some one will appear who will mobilize this conservative force politically and produce a third party of great strength and large numbers. In fact, such an element is developing in the Republican Party under the leadership of Senator Barry Goldwater who will undoubtedly be a Republican candidate for the Presidency at the 1964 Convention. Senator Barry Goldwater represents the increasing conservative strength among intellectuals. Richard Nixon would surely have been elected had he recognized the conservative ground-swell.

This trend is serious and sincere. It does not matter that some of its expressions are absurd. Again, the day is not far distant when a philosophic leader will appear among them, a 20th Century Alexander Hamilton, who can state the Conservative cause in terms that are understandable and pertinent and relate themselves to the course of events. This kind of thinking is developing in the "National Review" and in "Human Events."

The focus is still on criticism rather than upon a constructive program. Criticism is not sufficient to generate enthusiasm for a cause; there must be positive thinking, and that will come, too. It will come principally out of younger people who are rejecting the frozen terminology of the New Deal and of Keynesian economics and are asking the pertinent questions relating to the greatness of the United States in 1917 and 1941 and its meekness today when the most it can beg for is neutrality. These younger people ask whether Soviet Russia is really so strong and the United States so weak.

President Kennedy seems to be missing the strength and potency of this ground-swell. His second and third echelon appointments give the impression of an alliance with the A. D. A. One cannot expect a Democrat to be as conservative as, say, Herbert Hoover, but it is not to be expected that, in 1961, the concepts of 1933 will be popular with the nation. This never happens. Each generation uses its own idiom and speaks its own language and most often represents the immediate past against which it rebels. The present younger generation in this country is very critical of the failures of recent Administrations. The questions they ask will have to be answered before the 1964 election.

The voters were not cognizant of the political life of the Franklin D. Roosevelt regime. Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam, the monuments of America's diplomatic failures, are only names in books and indistinct ones at that. They compare John Hay's "Open Door Policy" of which they read, with Eisenhower's retreat before the Red Chinese in Korea and wonder what has happened to their country.

Politicians are not always mindful of the next generation; they become set in their ways. It is particularly difficult for those who believed that the New Deal was a revolutionary movement in American life to discover that their grandchildren regard them not only as old fogies but as reactionaries. The lively, excited grandchild's mind that way; others adopt a lackadaisical attitude, an attitude (Continued on page five)

Other Editors Saying ... Story Of Sales Tax

(Wilson Times)
When did the sales tax go on foods? How long was it on? You would think this easy to answer. But it isn't.

"We The People" says the sales tax was born in May, 1933. You recall that Governor Ehringhaus had the courage to advocate it to save the school. An emergency existed, schools were closing, teachers had had no pay for months.

Governor Ehringhaus campaigned against the sales tax and luxury tax, "as economically unsound, ethically debatable and the last expedient of desperation."

In a courageous and statesmanlike manner he saved the schools with the sales tax. Those were the dark days of 1933 when the state's finances were on the brink of bankruptcy.

Even then the nine basic foods were exempted: flour, meal, salt, lard, milk, molasses, meat, sugar and coffee.

We do not have the wording on the 1935 session but "We The People" says the exempted food items were put back in the bill and for two years we had "an almost across the board sales tax."

The Greensboro News says the 1935 General Assembly "exempted all food purchased for home use from the tax illustrating again the deeply instilled feeling against a tax on food."

Going back to the 1936 campaign, Governor Hoy promised to restore the exemptions.

Both sources agree that in 1940, under Governor Broughton the sales tax on food except meals in restaurants, was exempted based on analyses of developing trends:

More highway tax resistance: President Kennedy's proposal to keep the $41 billion highway program going with higher taxes on trucks, fuel, tires and tubes has met tremendous resistance from truckers. But even stronger opposition is being developed by James Hoffa, boss of the Teamsters Union. His close associates figure that if business can stand another boost in trucking rates, the increase should go to the men behind the wheel, not the government.

Intensified talent hunt: Despite the large number of unemployed, corporation recruiters are beginning to work over campus more intensely than ever before. Outstanding grads are being offered more blandishments than ever before. The reason: as automation and competition increase, big employers want brains, not bodies, more than ever.

Together nylon: An inexpensive process to produce nylon-7, hitherto a laboratory curiosity, has been developed. It has superior qualities for use in tires, fish lines, apparel and other uses and eventually will lend to cheaper and better products in those fields.

But the sales tax on foods and drugs is said to cost each person and family a ridiculous amount. But the total comes to $50 million on the essentials, as foods and drugs.

What will be the outcome of the present fight? Will the tax go on to finance the mammoth education improvement program? There is much fat that can be cut without hurting the quality as desired by everyone.

But if the sales tax is put on foods and drugs you may expect as many political heads to fall as in the beginning days. The issue will be fixed for the next election. For you cannot separate taxes and politics.

Also money alone won't produce quality although quality requires money.

The real issue is this: Is that much money needed at one time? And how is the best way to raise the money?

More highway tax resistance: President Kennedy's proposal to keep the $41 billion highway program going with higher taxes on trucks, fuel, tires and tubes has met tremendous resistance from truckers. But even stronger opposition is being developed by James Hoffa, boss of the Teamsters Union. MORE CHOPS
Plentiful lamb: The bacon in sheep - raising states indicates that lambings are 4 per cent ahead of last year, promising a slight increase in lamb supplies, but not enough to shrink prices much.

Much more plentiful pork: The pig census indicates about 8 per cent more pork this year than last. However, even with that gain, pork production will be less than the 1950-59 average. Farrowing later this year is expected to rise.

Rise in chemical sales: Acceleration of the missile program and the coming pickup in industrial production will increase sales by the chemical industry during the remainder of the year. However, the increase will be moderate because of heavy inventories held by many users.

COPPER PRICES
WEIGHED IN AFRICA
Few people watch news from Africa more closely than people in the copper and brass field.

So far, Katanga province has been keeping up supplies of copper. But if civil war in the Congo spreads into the mining area, world copper and brass pieces are certain to rise. Africa has been producing 13 per cent of the copper used in the Free World.

HERE'S BRAND NEW WAY TO INCREASE AUTO SALES
"The ability to pay has long been the basis of American taxes," the Old Promoter remarked today.
"Lucky you!" I replied.
"So why not apply it to auto taxes?" he asked. "The trend toward compact cars is cutting into auto and gas taxes. Now if we could scale taxes so that a rich man would pay triple taxes if he bought a compact, and a poor man would pay only nominal taxes, then the rich would be tempted to buy more big cars and the poor would be encouraged to buy more small ones. This would increase car sales, provide more jobs, and increase aggregate taxes. Everybody would be happy."
"Especially the government spenders," I said.

Change In Our Living

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass.—From a strictly statistical point, the government's cost-of-living index today stands at 128 compared with 110 ten years ago and 60 twenty years ago. However, the great difference is due to the changes made by Washington in the things included.
NO WATER, GAS, OR ELECTRIC BILLS

When I was a boy our water came from rain on the roof which we collected in a brick cistern in the cellar of the house. Every night my father would pump this water from the cistern to a tank on the top floor of our house. This gave us running water on all floors. Our heat came from anthracite coal and my job each morning was to get up at six o'clock and build a coal fire in the kitchen stove. There were no incandescent lamps or electrical gadgets in those days. We were happy with kerosene lamps and candles. Today the water, gas, and electric bills amount to about $20.00 per month for the family.

Monday was then wash day, and mother used her own homemade soaps which she had allowed to dry in the attic. We heated the house with a coal furnace. My father put in the coal four times a day and I "shook down" the fire and took out the ashes. Moreover, these ashes were carefully sifted by me and 20 per cent of them were used over again. There were no vacuum cleaners. My mother every Friday would sprinkle tea leaves on the carpets to "lay the dust" while sweeping the carpets with a broom. There was then only one laundry in Gloucester, a city of 15,000-20,000 people. "Dry-cleaning" we never heard of! But we all were well dressed and happy. My father owned the leading "dry-goods" store of the city. He personally unlocked the store door every day (except Sundays) at 7:00 a.m. and personally locked the door at 6:00 p.m.

FOOD AND CLOTHING

Then there were no super markets, but many grocery, meat, and fish stores all competing one with another. Prices of food are higher today, but so many food items are frozen or prepackaged that it greatly simplifies housework. As a result the housewife today has time to do outside work, from which she gets more than enough money to pay the extra food bills. My mother had a kitchen maid to whom she paid $3.50 per week. This would cost $30 or more per week today, but owing to these new frozen and precooked foods very few homes need any maids. Hence, although the food bills are higher, yet the saving in the homes is tremendous. My mother made my sister's clothes and my pants. These I pressed at night by carefully folding and sleeping upon them.

Looking back on those happy days, the only big price increase I see at present is in haircuts, which were then only twenty-five cents. We all shaved ourselves with long-blade razors. "Gillette's" were never heard of. There was no bathroom; we shaved and washed in cold water, and sometimes had to crack the ice to get the water. But we were healthy and happy. We, moreover, were taught to take good care of our clothing because it had to be passed down to sisters and brothers.

TRIPS AND AUTOMOBILES

Rents considerably higher today than they were 20 to 40 years ago; but the tenant gets a far better place to live. Furthermore, a family can now buy a house at a low rate of interest, paying only $500 or less down with 20 years in which to pay the mortgage. This situation did not exist 20-30 years ago. Furthermore, it is usually easy to rent a room per week. Renting a room was in my day impossible. Shoes cost double now; but we walk so little that they cost less per year. Almost everyone rides to school or to work, or even to play, in school-operated buses or in their own automobiles. Speaking of autos, a new Ford car 40 years ago sold for $500, compared with over $2000 today; but you can buy today by a good second-hand Ford for a good self-starter for $500 and it is a much better car than the new Ford of 40

Significant Week About To 'Separate Tables' Begin For N.C. Legislature Cast Announced

RALEIGH (AP) — Lawmakers returned to Raleigh today for what may prove to be the most significant week of the 1961 General Assembly so far.

On the schedule are the beginning of revenue hearings before the Joint Finance Committee, possible action on a Senate redistricting bill, and hearings before the House Banking Committee on proposals to tighten up the state's small loan laws.

The House Insurance Commission will also begin considering what to do about the 1957 compulsory liability coverage law for motorists, an act which expires shortly unless the assembly continues its life.

Rep. J. Shelton Wicker of Lee, co-chairman of the Joint Finance Committee, said the next three weeks would be the most important as far as the questions of taxes and educational improvement are concerned.

Wicker's committee begins hearings Tuesday on eight revenue bills which have been set in to help finance Gov. Sanford's $106 million school program which would fall $70 million shy of fulfillment without new taxes.

The most far-reaching measure was introduced by the Sanford administration and would levy the 3 per cent sales tax on food to finance the bulk of the program.

As alternates, other lawmakers have proposed taxes on soft drinks, tobacco, boosts in the whisky tax and other items they feel would be easier to bear than food. Three of the alternate measures have been submitted by Republicans.

Durham Sen. Claude Currier's Senate Election Laws and Senatorial Representation Committee is expected to consider his measure to redistrict the upper house Tuesday.

Observers feel it will squeak out of the committee, but run into trouble on the Senate floor.

The House Banking Committee opens small loan proposal hearings Tuesday. Before it are two measures, one sent in by the State Banking Commission providing for sweeping controls over the small loan firms, and the other, a less stringent measure, sent in by Rep. Roland Braswell of Wayne.

Students and faculty members at East Carolina College and townspeople of Greenville will join forces in the production by the East Carolina Playhouse of Terence Rattigan's "Separate Tables." The play is scheduled for three performances April 10, 11, and 12, at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium.

A tremendous success in both London and New York, "Separate Tables" will be the fourth major production for the 1960-1961 term by the college dramatic club.

Philip Barry's "The Philadelphia Story," Christopher Fry's "The Lady's Not For Burning," and Emyln Williams' "Night Must Fall" were presented by the organization earlier in the school year.

Rattigan, prominent British playwright and author of such theatrical successes as "O Mistress Mine," "The Winslow Boy," "The Browning Version" and "The "Separate Tables," an unusual play on the tragedy of human loneliness. "Separate Tables" is a double play including the dramas "Tables by the Window" and "Table Number Seven."

The cast has been announced by Dr. Ralph H. Rives, assistant director of the East Carolina College Playhouse and director of the production.

Lois Garren of Greenville, graduate student at the college, will appear in the contrasting roles of Mrs. Shankland, narcissistic divorcee, in "Table by the Window" and of Sylvia Railton-Bell, frustrated spinster, in "Table Number Seven." An experienced actress with a professional background, Mrs. Garren played Juliet in the 1960 production of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" at East Carolina College and has appeared in other Playhouse productions.

Dr. H. D. Rowe of the college English department will have the dual roles of Mr. Malcolm, Mrs. Shankland's divorced husband, in "Table by the Window," and Major Pollock, fraud and liar in "Table Number Seven." Dr. Rowe will be remembered by local audiences for his superior performance in "The Gaine Mutiny," presented by the Greenville Little Theater.

Others in the cast include Mary Retha Rice of Greenville and Catherine Labaume of Paris, France, as maids in the Beaugard Hotel near Bournemouth, England; Marilyn Gordley of Greenville as Mrs. Railton - Bell, British "battleship," Minnie Gaster of Rt. 1, Elon College as the mouse-like Lady Matheson; Patricia Reynolds, graduate student from Wilmington, as the eccentric Miss Meacham; John F. Quinn of Greenville, as the elderly exschoolmaster Mr. Fowler; Wesley Howard of Kinston as Charles Stratton, young scientist; Sue Stocks Taylor of Greenville as Jean Tanner, his lover and later his wife; and Ruth Lambie of the college faculty as Miss Cooper, manager of the Beaugard Hotel.

Dr. Rives, who directed "The Philadelphia Story" for the East Carolina Playhouse in the fall quarter of 1960, will be assisted by J. Alfred Willis of Gloucester, N. C., East Carolina sophomore, as stage manager.

tude of the very tired, beaten, useless human being who cares nothing about what is happening or why, who does not know more about Khrushchev than Kasavubu; who whistles wearisome tunes and reads broken rimes and works as little as his small life will tolerate. These are the Beatniks, the generation that has gone to hell as a reaction to the progressivism of their elders. They do not want the world to go forward or backward or in any direction so long as they can find a girl of their own kind who will live with them according to the new mores of a degenerating society. Those who survive their youth without permanent damage will grow up as conservative opponents of Keynesian waste and of rebel against their idiosyncrasies by adopting pride in strength as a virtue. Already there are such signs and one waits out the trend to become an avalanche.

The next decade will be conservative in all aspects of life in all the countries of the West. We are on the verge of a new era.

years ago. Even with the increased cost of college education any worthy boy can get a scholarship, but the increased income which he now receives the first few years after graduating more than offsets the increased cost of tuition.

The real reason for the present "high cost of living" comes from the money spent for recreation, travel, and other diversions. There were no radios or televisions when I was a young man and the entrance fee to movies was only a dime or 20 cents. Nor were there any country clubs or cocktail parties.

In closing let me give the average budget today of a family of four (for each additional child the father must increase his income).

Annual Income	Food	Clothing
$ 6,000	$1650	$ 720 (40%)
10,000	1900	1100 (30%)
Housing	Transportation
1st line $6,000 income, 2nd $10,000
$1595	$ 865 (40%)
2700	1100 (40%)
Church and Benevolence	Recreation
1st line $6,000 income, 2nd $10,000
$270 (5%)	$ 600 (10%)
700 (7%)	1800 (18%)

In the above I have not specified the cost of educating the two children,—due to scholarships, government aid, summer work, and other factors. Hence, to the extent that the father is obliged to pay toward this, something must be pared off all the six items above except Church.

I repeat: This shows that "Recreation" is the reason for today's increased cost of living. Certainly gifts to benevolence (hospitals, etc.) and the church should be increased rather than decreased. Whether or not the $6000-man can save anything is a question, although money spent wisely on the two children should be a good investment. The man getting $10,000 should, however, save something (perhaps 6 per cent) for investing in good stocks in addition to educating his two children

Ernest Leader In Providence Win

By HUGH FULLERTON JR. Ernest, a scrappy sophomore from Providence College, and Jack Foley, a sharpshooting Holy Cross Junior, today were named the outstanding players of a 1961 National Invitation Basketball tournament and led the tourney's all-star team selected by The Associated Press.

Ernest, a fiery competitor who took charge of the Providence team and led it to a stirring 62-59 victory over St. Louis in the final game Saturday, was selected as the most valuable player in the tournament.

The award was earned as much by his "take charge" qualities of leadership as his individual contributions to the Friars' triumphs over Holy Cross in the semifinals and over St. Louis in the final.

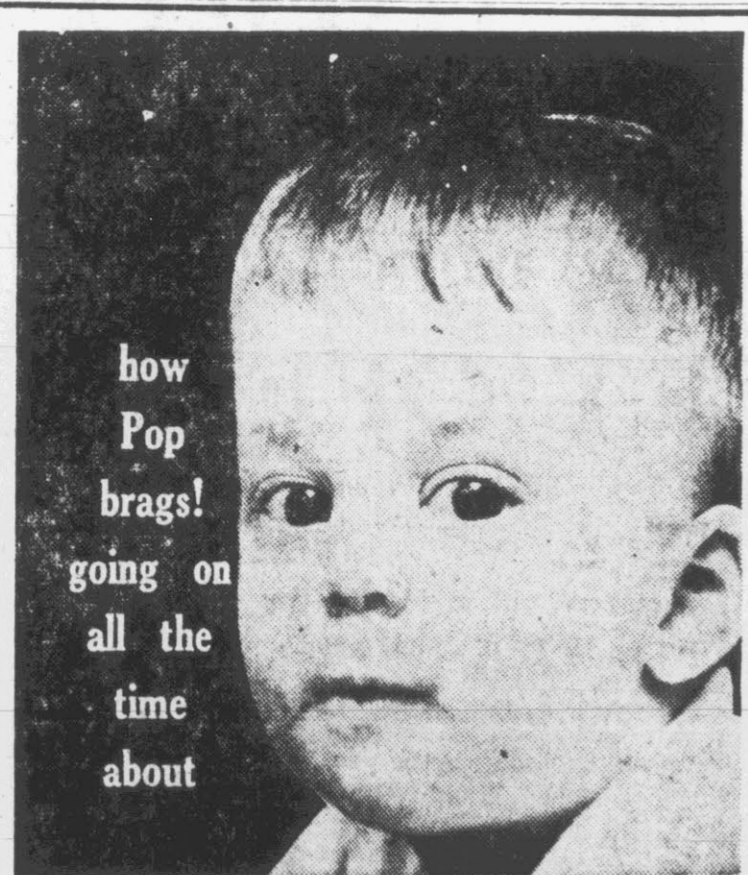

Foley, whose fall-away jump shots looked almost unstoppable, scored 120 points in four games, falling just four short of the NIT record set by Maurice Stokes of St. Francis (Pa.) in 1955.

Joining with them on the team were Jim Hadnot, the 6-10 Providence center; Glen Mankowski, St. Louis guard who played a solid game on offense and defense all through the tournament; and Al Butler of Niagara who gave a brilliant individual performance though his team lost its only tournament game.

The second team was composed

Cincy Ends Ohio State Streak

By SKIPPER PATRICK KANSAS CITY (AP)—Great defense. Near-perfect ball control. Add a dash of enormous courage and you have the explanation for the Cincinnati Bearcats' 70-65 overtime victory over favored Ohio State in the NCAA basketball championship game Saturday night.

Ranked No. 1 nationally, riding a 22-game victory streak and seeking its second straight championship, Ohio State went into the fray a 7-point favorite, but the Buckeyes must have failed to reckon with the salty Cincinnati defenses.

Cincinnati senior, hit five of six shots from the field in the opening minutes of the second half and the warning sign was up for the Bearcats.

Thacker and Tony Yates, a pair of classy sophomores, and veteran Bob Wiesenbahn led a late second-half spree that had Cincinnati ahead 61-59 until the Bucks' Bob Knight sent it into overtime with a driving basket with 1:41 left.

Phants Play At Wilson Tuesday

Greenville's baseball team, still trying to play its first game after two rained out dates, jumps into action tomorrow afternoon in Wilson against the 4-A Cyclones.

The Greenville club is reportedly short on pitchers but is sound defensively and has some ample hitters. Coaches Bo Farley and Bud Phillips figure pitching to hold the key to a winning or losing season.

Larry Roberts, a strong righthander, will probably open against Wilson tomorrow. A senior, Roberts played outfield last season but same some pitching duty in American Legion ball last summer.

Behind Roberts are a couple of inexperienced righthanders, Spencer Harrington and Bernie Morris. Kenny Joyner, listed as an outfielder, may also be used as a pitcher.

The infield appears to be in good shape with Billy James at third base, Kroghie Andresen at shortstop, Leon Williams at second, Rodney Knowles at first base, and Romey Brock behind the plate.

James and Andresen were starters last season, with both being capable slick men. Knowles and Brock are both freshmen. The latter is expected to be one of the better hitters on the club while Knowles, a lanky first-sacker, should develop as the season progresses.

Williams, the second baseman, moved to Greenville from Elizabeth City and should help the club a great deal.

Starting in the outfield against Wilson will probably be Joyner, Ed Smoot and Jack Foley. Smoot has been the most impressive of the trio this spring.

Sharman Sparks Celtics' Win

BOSTON (AP)—Bill Sharman, who almost saw his career ended in midseason, today had literally shot the Boston Celtics into the National Basketball Association playoff finals.

The former Southern California ace, now in his 11th NBA season, missed five weeks' play in December-January due to a muscle tear in his left leg.

The defending champion Celtics defeated Syracuse 123-101 Sunday and wrapped up the best-of-seven Eastern Division series, 4-1.

Favored St. Louis rallied to deadlock the Western Division series with Los Angeles at two games each with a 118-117 triumph Saturday night. They meet in St. Louis tonight.

With the game still hanging in the balance, Sharman and fireman Frank Ramsey took charge. In the final three minutes of the third period they tallied 11 points between them for an 88-83 lead after Sam Jones' jumper broke a 73-73 tie, the 16th deadlock of the contest.

In less than 12 minutes, Sharman had registered 21 of his 27 points.

Other Greenville wrestlers ousted in the first match were Don Joyner, Gary Monroe, Ronnie Williams, and Van Harris.

Appalachian, seeking its fifth straight crown, finished a close second with 55 points. Asheboro was third with 43 points, followed by New Bern with 41, Charlotte Myers Park 35, Burlington 28, Wilkes Central 27, Salisbury 21, Greensboro 20, Greenville 15, Marion 13, and Greensboro Page 12.

Player Finishes Ahead Of Dodger's Podres Flashing Mid-Season Form Field; Palmer Is Second

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Gary Player today had a nice $3,500 present for his son, Mark, whom he saw for the first time Saturday although the boy was born Feb. 17.

Player, from Johannesburg, South Africa, has been over here since the first of the year playing the golf tournament tour. His wife, young daughter and new son arrived here to join him Saturday in the midst of the $25,000 Sunshine Open Golf Tournament.

The stocky invader won the event Sunday by one stroke with a 72-hole total of 273 and the $3,500 top money boosted his 1961 earnings to $25,981.

With Arnold Palmer charging down the stretch in his typical fashion, Player bogeyed the 16th and 17th holes, and faced the necessity of birdying the final hole, which Palmer already had birdied for a 274 total.

Player's second shot was in a sniping trap 120 feet from the pin on the 488-yard par 5 hole of the Bayside course. His blast carried the ball five feet from the cup, and he sank the putt. It gave him a 69 for his final round as Palmer carded a 68.

Southpaw Johnny Podres, sore-backed hurler who has had the tools but never the stamina needed to win 20 games has brought the Los Angeles Dodgers winning streak to six with the second route-going performance of the exhibition season.

Showing no signs of the back trouble that has plagued him throughout a standout major league career, the 28-year-old left hander flashed mid-season form Sunday as he went all the way in a five-hit 2-0 victory over Baltimore.

Podres, who never has won more than 14 games a season in his eight years with the Dodgers, struck out seven and walked four. He also drove in the only runs against the Orioles with a sharp single to center in the second inning.

The batters grabbed the spotlight for San Francisco and Minnesota. The Giants rapped the Chicago Cubs 15-10 with a 19-hit outburst that included five homers, while the Twins belted Kansas City 18-4 on a two-homer, 18-hit attack.

In other games, Chicago's White Sox edged Pittsburgh 2-1, Philadelphia nipped St. Louis, 5-3, New York defeated Cincinnati 6-2, Milwaukee whipped Detroit 7-4, Cleveland beat Boston 9-3, Washington bopped the Braves B team 5-1 and the Los Angeles Angels topped San Diego of the Pacific Coast League.

Podres, joining Cub rookie Jack Curtis as the only pitchers to go the distance so far this season, allowed only one extra base hit—a double by Gus Triandos. The Dodgers were checked on six hits by Steve Barber and rookie John Papa.

Rookie catcher Tom Haller powered the Giants attack with two homers, one a grand slam job in the first inning. Orlando Cepeda, Willie Mays and pitcher Jack Sanford also connected for San Francisco, while Al Heist and Jerry Kindall countered for the Cubs.

Four unearned runs in the first and a six-run rally in the sixth gave the Twins their victory over the A's. Bob Allison drove in three runs for Minnesota with a homer and two singles, and Jose Valdivielso also hit for the distance.

Pinch hitter Earl Torgeson stroked a two-run single in the eighth to wrap it up for the White Sox and became the club's leading RBI man with nine. The Pirates had scored in the first on singles by Dick Schofield and Bob Skinner and an infield out.

The Phils took advantage of two St. Louis errors and a misjudged fly ball, scoring all their runs in the fifth off Bob Miller. A two-run homer by rookie Leroy Thomas and the nine-hit pitching of Ralph Terry and Danny McDevitt gave the Yankees the edge over the Reds.

Roy McMillan and Wes Covington homered as the Braves downed the Tigers, despite Al Kaline's first roundtripper and a single, double and homer by Jake Wood. Eight runs in the first three innings clinched it for the Indians as Jim Grant limited the Red Sox to one run in six inings. Joe McLain pitched seven-hit double in the third gave the Senators all the runs they needed from Ted Bowfield and Jerry Casale.

PAUL HORGAN'S GREAT HISTORICAL NOVEL A DISTANT TRUMPET

CHAPTER 26

Laura Hazard worked along with Kitty Mainwaring, trying with light talk to keep an agreeable atmosphere.

Kitty said, "remembering her words with the commanding officer. I think he might have shown more confidence in my judgment."

"Oh," said Laura, "confidence. Nobody ever means exactly the same thing by it."

"I never expected you to be cynical," said Kitty.

"I am not cynical. Perhaps I am realistic, though. It's amazing how realistic being married makes you."

"Were you a romantic little thing once upon a time?" asked Kitty.

Laura laughed. "I suppose so. Though I actually think my husband was—and is the romantic of the family. He was so serious when he courted me!"

She smiled reflectively. "I had all sorts of questions I was dying to ask him, but he was so seriously in love with me that I couldn't even begin to ask them. And now I know I was right not to ask them. Confidence, I said just now—well, it meant that I had confidence in him."

"What were the questions about?"

"You can guess. What his love affairs were before we were engaged."

The innocent statement struck Kitty like a blow. She knew that before knowing her he had had no love affairs. His image came back alive in her mind. Was it possible? She had thought herself free of him, for the sake of another. But that other one had cast her away before him, and she was alone, alone, not in the world, but in her love for herself. She felt hysterical and struggled not to cry out.

Laura noticed nothing and added, "And then, the only girl he knew after we became engaged was you, Kitty, way out here at Fort Delivery. He wrote me about you. I was so jealous! I wondered how pretty you were, and why you made curtains for his room. Oh! I was a wretch!"

She smiled with the comfortable reliance of a wife and mother on the solid foundations of her world. It came close to destroying Kitty already of desperate mind.

"Stop it!" cried Kitty. "What are you insinuating, under all that? There was nothing, nothing at all, between Matthew and me! I tried not to let it go that far! He was so lonely, and nobody else seemed to understand him, here, and who could blame him for — who could blame me for — oh good grief! What am I saying! Oh, please, never, never speak of it to him! He meant nothing disloyal to you—oh, it is so hard sometimes to know what is right and what is not! Laura! Why did you lead me into telling you!"

She covered her face and ran out the back door of the house. Laura watched her in bewilderment, and then the meaning of Kitty's vagrant and tortured words came home to her. First denying, Kitty seemed to end by confessing, without precisely saying so, that Matthew had been her lover. Oh, now said Laura to herself, no, not at all. It was not so. But she had a dry sick taste in her mouth, and putting away what she was doing for the hunt breakfast she left Kitty's house. First she turned to go home, but if Matthew were there, what would she say to him of what she had just learned? She said she must have a little time to come to her senses and to know how to meet her husband. She turned to headquarters and sought Mrs. Prescott.

"Laura, my lamb, what on earth is the matter?" asked Jessica on seeing her.

"I can't have it," gasped Laura and fell into a chair. It was a few minutes before Jessica extracted admission of the heart-breaking doubts which Kitty had given to her. Jessica listened with a gaze of sorrow.

When Laura fell silent, Jessica said, "Well, Laura, my darling, I am glad you came to me. A little time is good to have at a moment like this. And, my dear, remember that Kitty Mainwaring is in a frightful state. How can we take seriously anything she may say? She feels a terrible snub, from forces too great to contend with, in this promotion thing. It may have driven her out of her wits in a way. And then, from what you tell me, she did not actually say what you think she meant, did she?"

Jessica paused to see hope in Laura's face, but in her own memory she saw again the betrayals of feeling which Matthew and Kitty had made so long ago. But what, actually, had happened between them? She had no proof of anything. Laura had more, now, than anyone had ever had before. It was true to Jessica's nature that all possibilities must be faced, sifted and put in their places. Without now confirming Laura's dread, she moved to open out for the young wife a passage to safety for the rest of her life, if she should ever need to follow it.

"Laura, my darling, you must never lose confidence in Matthew. If you are to live with him and love for all your days. I do not for an instant concede that what that pitiful hysterical little creature said to you may be true. But listen to me: even if it were true—not that it is true, remember—even if it were true, do you think you would do well to let it destroy everything you love!"

"Oh, Mrs. Prescott! How can you!"

"Are you weak or strong?"

"I don't know why you ask that!"

"If you are strong, you will know how to suffer and yet still make a future for others which will do them good, not harm, my dear Laura."

"But I could not stand it, if it were true, to think of him bringing me here, right back where that woman is, and going on, pretending that nothing—oh, no, I can't!"

Jessica put her arms around her.

"Oh, yes you can, or rather, you could, if you had to. Laura, look at me. Whom do you love?"

Laura looked at her with tear-blurred eyes.

"I did love him."

"You still do. You always will. Now, ask yourself this. Do you love him as he is? If you do, that means you love everything he has ever known, because that is what has made him as he is. Or do you love some other Matthew that you want to make him into?"

Is it really your husband you love, or only what you think your husband ought to be? If it is the latter, how do you know you are so right as all that, to take the power of making someone into someone else?"

Laura was ruefully interested in these arguments. Her breaths went easier, and she began to think instead of feel. She wished she might have time to think over what Mrs. Prescott had said to her. Her heart hurt when she thought of Matthew going hand-somely and healthily about his day, all unaware of the crazy danger that hung over him and his family. She said so, "What shall I do, though?"

"Do you really want to know, or are you just asking?"

Challenged, Laura said, "I really want to know."

"Well, then, my dear child, do nothing."

"Nothing? You mean not even ask him to deny it?"

"Not even ask him to deny it. If it never happened, you must behave as if you never heard of it. Not that this will be entirely easy. I know that, but oh, Lord, Laura, which of us can't be an actress when she has to be?"

This forced a smile from Laura. She thought of her mother. Then she frowned and said, "But how could I ever see or speak to that little creature again, after what she has said?"

"Oh, that'll come easy. You'll see. You know her pretty well, now. You can afford to be kind."

Laura stood up.

"I will not do anything for a day or two, I promise. But Matthew and I have to be honest with each other, and we shall have to talk about this eventually. But by then we can both be calm about it. Wouldn't it be terrible, Mrs. Prescott, not to know if it were true or not, all my life?"

Jessica wanted to say, Perhaps to know would be worse, but she held her tongue, and kissed Laura, and sent her home.

A tragedy or a rescue is the big question as "A Distant Trumpet" continues tomorrow.

Agree On Terms To Fight Fires

NEW YORK (AP)—The fire aboard the aircraft carrier Constellation last December has resulted in a fire-fighting agreement between the Navy and the city.

The Brooklyn Naval Yard fire killed 50 persons and touched off heated exchanges between naval and city officials over methods used in battling it.

The agreement, announced Friday by Mayor Robert F. Wagner's office, provides that if the shipyard asks for assistance, the city fire department will have direct charge of the fire-fighting operations.

Fertilizer In A Fish Pond Helps Make The Fish Grow

Fertilizing a fish pond to make the fish grow may sound odd, but the Soil Conservation Service reports that it works.

According to R.M. Dalley, State Conservationist, more than 40,000 ponds have been built in this state as part of basic conservation plans developed by landowners in cooperation with Soil Conservation Districts.

These ponds offer a tremendous potential in fish production. When a pond has a desirable balance between the bass and bluegills and is properly fertilized, between 100 to 300 pounds of fish per acre can be produced annually. The average annual catch on such a pond runs between 150 and 170 pounds per acre.

This is how fertilization of a fish pond works. A farmer spreads a chemical fertilizer such as 8-8-2 or 20-20-5 over the shallow parts of his pond. This is the first step in the "food chain."

The elements in this fertilizer are used directly by microorganisms in the water known as plankton. These are tiny plants and animals that, where present, give fertile water its greenish color.

The plankton provides food for aquatic insects such as stoneflies, mayflies, dragonflies, caddisflies, and water beetles. The more plankton in a pond, the more food there will be available for insects, and consequently, the more insects the pond can support.

The next link in this food chain is the small bass and bluegills who feed upon the insects. Then these smaller fish in turn are fed upon by larger bluegills and bass.

Man becomes the final link in the food chain by catching and consuming the fish and continuing the cycle by supplying more fertilizer.

If a pond is not fertilized, it must depend on the nutrients available from the surrounding land and the decay of leaves, grass, aquatic plants, fish and other life within the pond itself.

Very few ponds are naturally fertile enough to grow large crops of fish. As a result, more and more landowners are seeking advice through their Soil Conservation Districts on ways to add the needed fertility.

Priorities Set For SCS Work

Arch J. Flanagan of Farmville has announced the establishment of priorities of work areas for soil conservation work in Pitt County. Flanagan, chairman of the Pitt County supervisor board for the Coastal Plain Soil Conservation District, said Grindle Creek watershed received top priority.

Johnson's Mill Tail watershed was assigned 2nd priority, Conetoe Creek watershed, 3rd; Swift Creek watershed, 4th; and Little Contentnea Creek watershed, 5th priority. Tranter's Creek watershed was assigned 6th priority and the remainder of the County 7th priority.

Flanagan said, "Soil Conservation Service personnel assisting the District will begin next week scheduling their work according to these priorities."

"This is the only way we can help landowners in these watersheds meet the farm planning requirements of the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act," Flanagan explained.

Tips

By S. J. WEEKS
Pitt County Tobacco Agent

A good supply of healthy tobacco plants is an important part of a tobacco production program.

When fertilizing your tobacco plant beds enough nitrogen should be used for the plants to grow reasonably fast. But do not use so much nitrogen that it causes injury to the seedlings roots and stems during dry windy weather.

Plants grown in the presence of too much nitrogen may be excessively tender, and they may not live as well when transplanted. Also, plants injured by fertilizer burn may be more subject to damping off in the bed and certain stem rot diseases when transplanted in the field.

Sometimes additional nitrogen applied as a topdressing is needed to give the desired growth. Some factors that determine needs of nitrogen topdressing are: (1) fertility of the soil, (2) amount of fertilizer used before seeding, (3) material used for weed and disease control, (4) weather and (5) appearance of the plants.

During cold, wet springs, the quantity of nitrate nitrogen which is readily available to the plants may be quite low in the plant bed soils. The conversion of organic to ammonium and ammonium to nitrate form of nitrogen is slow under these conditions. It may become advisable to topdress with nitrate nitrogen.

Nitrate of soda supplies the desired nitrate nitrogen needed to stimulate early growth of tobacco plants. When additional nitrogen is needed apply three to five pounds of nitrate of soda per 100 square yards of bed. Light application of pelletized or granular nitrate of soda can be broadcast on the beds if the plants are dry.

Avoid the use of organics such as dried blood, feather meal, tankage and cottonseed meal in topdressing the tobacco plants. Before organic nitrogen can be used by the plants, it must be converted to usable forms. Organics frequently increase difficulty from plant bed insects. They also increase the development of green algae and slime on the plant bed soil, which encourages the development of damping off and loss of plant stand.

PTA MEETING

The Sallie Branch Parent-Teacher Association will meet Wednesday night at 7:30 at the school. Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

Continuing Shift To Tractor-Use

RALEIGH—During the next two years, North Carolina farmers will continue to shift to tractors with more horsepower.

A recent state-wide survey shows that in 1961-62, about 69 per cent of new tractors purchased will be in the 25-35 horsepower range. At present, about 57 per cent of tractors on North Carolina farms are in this range.

The survey was made by J. C. Ferguson, extension agricultural engineer at N. C. State College, with the help of county agricultural agents.

The survey also showed that about 9 per cent of the new tractors would have 55 or more horsepower, as compared with 7 per cent now.

Tractors with 25 horsepower or less will decline, the survey shows. About 36 per cent of presently owned farm tractors are in this category. An estimated 22 per cent of the farmers planning to buy tractors this year and next say they want a tractor in this power range.

The Farm Scene

By S. C. WINCHESTER
Pitt County Agent

Pitt County farmers have made wonderful progress in producing corn. The average yield estimate for the 1960 crop was 60 bushels per acre. This compares with an average yield of 20 bushels in 1940, just 20 years ago.

This is a 200 per cent increase in 20 years. Greater per acre yields are possible on many farms in Pitt County.

Insect Control: The application of an insecticide to the soil to control such insects as corn root worm, wire worm, cut worm, bill bug and grubs, will help insure a full stand of corn this year.

Many poor stands of corn can be accredited to insect damage. Recommendations are to apply two pounds Aldrin, or one and one-half pounds Dieldrin, or two pounds Heptachlor actual materials per acre.

These materials can be applied as a dust, spray, or granular form to the surface of fields and disced in immediately after application and should be applied up to 30 days before planting, or may be applied directly in the row at planting.

Weed Control: Of all ills and problems of corn production, weeds and grasses are probably the greatest. Weeds and grasses consume plant foods and moisture that should be used by the corn plant.

For instance, a sheep burr plant uses twice as much plant food (nitrogen, phosphate, and potash) and three times as much moisture as a stalk of corn producing two nice ears of corn.

Science has provided the necessary materials needed to do an adequate job of weed control in the corn field. These materials are: Simazine, Atrazine, Randox, and 2-4-D. Any of these materials may be used as a pre-emergence spray.

In growing corn 15 to 30 inches tall, one of the most effective ways to control weeds is by the use of 2-4-D in the liquid nitrogen side dressing and sprayed on the weeds.

Proper Fertilization: Many acres of corn are grown each year with inadequate amounts of fertilizer. The best way to determine the amount and kind of fertilizer for your particular field is to have your soil tested.

In the absence of a soil test a general recommendation would be to use 400 pounds of 5-10-10 per acre on corn following a lightly fertilized crop. Use 350 pounds of 6-6-12 on soils high in phosphate and when corn is following a heavily fertilized crop. In each case apply 80-100 pounds "N" at 5-7 weeks when the corn is two feet high.

When other factors of corn production are in line, these three practices described here will help you produce more corn per acre thereby increasing your net returns from corn production.

ASC Reminds Cotton Deadline

Pitt County cotton growers were reminded today of the April 5 deadline for releasing cotton allotments to the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The local ASC office urged: "Any farmer who does not plan to plant at least 75 per cent of his allotment should be sure to release the acreage that will not be planted in order to protect his allotment from being reduced in the future."

It warned: "Any farmer planting less than 75 per cent who did not release the remaining part of the allotment to the county committee will receive an allotment reduction in 1962."

Ready For Action On New Emergency Grain Program

Pitt County's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation has reported it stands "ready for action" pending further instructions from State ASC Administrator A. P. Hassell regarding the U. S. Department of Agriculture's new emergency feed grain program.

Local office personnel, the county committee and community committees have wound up their preparatory operations prerequisite to the program's going into effect. During last week the county committee set an average index for each ASC community in the county. Community committees Friday established productivity indexes for each farm in the county.

The local ASC office said it is ready for sign-up under the program as soon as the go-ahead signal comes from Raleigh.

Two weeks ago the office began a feed grain survey to determine usage on each farm in the county. The survey has been completed and Office Manager Wayne L.

Wang termed it "highly successful."

Preliminary operations to prepare for the grain program have been accelerated to allow it to go into effect this crop year.

Under the plan, growers will be able to place a part of their grain or sorghum acreage in conservation practices. In return, they will receive 50 per cent of support price for the commodity that would have been produced on the acreage. Certificates will be issued that will be redeemable in cash or grain.

DOW SOIL FUMIGANTS make the difference!

Preplant treatment with Dow Soil Fumigants can result in a 25% to 100% increase in yield plus higher quality tobacco. Every dollar you spend on Dow soil fumigants to protect your tobacco crop can return up to five dollars in extra profits!

Telone® fumigant is the most effective, most economical soil fumigant you can use to control meadow (or lesion) nematodes and cyst-forming nematodes. Telone goes farther, requires fewer refill trips. And, it's clean and clear, won't clog spray nozzles. If stinging or stunting nematodes are present in your soil, use Dowfume® W-85, the high-strength ethylene dibro-mide soil fumigant. Either Telone or Dowfume W-85 will control root-knot nematodes.

Your nearby Dow dealer is listed below. He can tell you how, when, and where to apply the right Dow soil fumigant to ensure a healthy profit from your next tobacco crop. See him today!

Martinique Riots Take 3 Lives

PARIS (AP)—Three persons have been killed and 25 injured in strike riots among field workers on the French-owned island of Martinique in the West Indies, according to information reaching Paris.

These reports said workers cutting sugar cane struck last Friday and rioting broke out later in the village of Lamentin.

Police intervened to protect the manager of a plantation and the rioting touched off a wave of strikes among dock laborers at Fort de France.

A great drought in the Colorado Wetherill Mesa put an end to farming and hunting activities of the Pueblo Indians who were cliff dwellers in that region.

Youth Held For Phone Vulgarity

AYDEN — Concluding a two-month investigation, the Ayden Police Department yesterday took into custody a 15-year-old Negro youth who has been accused of making vulgar telephone calls to women here.

The youth admitted making the calls, often asking women for dates. Chief of Police W. D. Brooks said. He was placed in the custody of his grandparents yesterday, prior to being turned over to juvenile authorities in Greenville.

The case was broken Sunday after a woman received a telephone call from a stranger. Knowing that calls had been made to women in Ayden for several months, she engaged in conversation and agreed to meet the youth at a spot outside Ayden, Chief Brooks stated.

Immediately after the call, the woman notified Ayden police, who went to the proposed site of the meeting, and after a limited search, found the youth hiding behind a barn near his grandparents' home. The youth made his home with his grandparents, and unknown to them, had been making the calls for about two months, police said.

Assisting in the investigation were Officer Ed Hudson Sr. and Constable Joel Wingate. The telephone company was commended for cooperation in the case.
