News Stand Clean-Up Is Sought

Local Citizens Meet, Consider Problem, Suggestions Heard

By PATRICIA MOORE
Reflector Staff Writer

A group of citizens, meeting last night to discuss the sale of local newspapers and the sale of literature, decided to appeal to the operators of the newsstands to rid the city of this type of literature.

The committee working on the project is headed by John Grier and is composed of representatives of P. T. A. and civic clubs.

Grier last night produced a number of magazines, publications and paperback books to illustrate the type of literature under discussion. Some of the publications showed pictures of nude women in detail, while some made use of vulgar language. "Some of the publications make fornication and adultery very glamorous," Grier stated.

He commented that among the selection of materials, "to me, some of it is pretty shocking." Dr. M. W. Aldridge, past president of the Elmhurst P. T. A., said it was hoped that representative citizens and newsstand vendors, meeting at the Police Hut last night, could discuss their points of view and reach a mutual understanding. However, not all of the newsstand operators were in attendance.

Dr. Aldridge stated that the citizens' purpose is "to prohibit on a voluntary basis the sale and exhibit of obscene literature" in this city. Members proposed instead an emphasis on "good reading."

A move to curb the sale and exhibit of such literature got underway after some members of the Elmhurst School P. T. A. became concerned at the type of obscene literature appearing on the local newsstands, and that children, and even adults, were seeing it, Dr. Aldridge explained.

From there, the Greenville P. T. A. Council enlisted the aid of other community organizations, writing letters asking for endorsement of a proposal to call a meeting of the operators of all establishments that offer "this type of literature for sale" and seek their cooperation in ridding "their places of business of this filth." The letter, dated February 15, said, "We have evidence that many news outlets in our city are making available certain publications that are in our opinion nothing more than purveyors of filth and obscenity. It is the responsibility of our adult citizens to set the moral standards for our youth of today, who will be our citizens of tomorrow." The letter was signed by Mrs. M. P. Bailey, Jr., the president of the Greenville P. T. A. Council.

Some 20 organizations, in addition to the local P. T. A.'s endorsed the proposal. They include Optimist Club, Greenville Woman's Club, American Legion, Boy Scouts, Rotary Club, Civitans, Exchange, Pilot Club, American Legion Auxiliary, Greenville Service League, Jr. Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis, Lions, Greenville Ministerial Association, Council of Church Women, Business and Professional Woman's Club, Moose Lodge, Credit Women's Breakfast Club, Pitt County Safety Council, and Capt. Earl Reagan of the Salvation Army.

Last night, Aldridge explained that the newsstand operators had been contacted and invited to the meeting. During a limited conversation with the operators explaining the purpose of the meeting, Dr. Aldridge said the majority of operators "were 100 percent behind the program."

It was brought out that one operator in Greenville said 40 percent of his sales were from the type of literature under discussion. Dr. Aldridge said his information indicated this dealer was less willing to endorse the program in cooperation with the group's efforts to rid the stands of obscene literature.

However, it was reported that the same newsstand operator said that people under 18 were not allowed to buy the material at his business.

Display Mobile Nuclear Power

Interest of the group was keen as to the availability of such literature on the stands, and whether or not operators had to accept such literature for sale. Grier said obscene literature is "just as free to buy as 'Good Housekeeping.'" Others at the meeting confirmed the fact that such literature could be easily obtained.

As to choice of material on the part of the operators, several representatives, including a newsstand operator, said that newsstand operators did not have to accept literature they did not want for sale. There is not a "package deal" sale of such publications. Mrs. Bailey said she was informed that operators "can take any number of publications, and can cancel any."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rebel air raiders struck at Cuban air force headquarters and Havana during the night, bringing the conflict to the capital for the first time since invaders stormed ashore last weekend, the Cuban radio said today.

The radio reported a twin-engine B26 dropped a bomb on the air force headquarters at San Antonio de los Baños, 25 miles from Havana, the wounded three persons in a strafing run on Havana.

A diplomat in Havana reported a plane that swept over Havana was met by heavy anti-aircraft fire. He mentioned no strafing of Cuban rebel radio station on Swan Island off Guatemala claimed Havana was bombed twice by three planes. It asserted one of the planes attacked Camp Libertad, army headquarters on Havana's outskirts. The diplomat talked by telephone with an Associated Press correspondent at the big U. S. naval base on Guantanamo Bay in eastern Cuba.

He said the plane passed over the city at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday but otherwise "all is quiet for the present." He had no information about the situation elsewhere in Cuba.

The situation was quiet around the naval base. There was little news on the progress of the invasion force on the coastal front southeast and east of Havana.

The government put its firing squads to work, sending two Americans to their deaths. The Castro radio said five men who landed in Pinar del Rio Province of western Cuba to join the rebels were executed, and another group of four was shot for transporting weapons. In the first group was August Jack McNair of Miami, Fla. The broadcast said the second group included Howard F. Anderson, a Havana resident from Seattle, Wash., an ex-Marine who once was the commander of Havana's American Legion post. He was arrested last month.

A Cuban broadcast denied rebel claims of new landings in northern Matanzas and Oriente Province and said an attack against the Isle of Pines had failed. Rebel leaders had asserted earlier this week that the prison island off the south coast had fallen and its 10,000 political prisoners had joined the insurgents.

Information on the progress of the invasion and Castro's defense against it continued sketchy, with neither the government nor the rebel command announcing much and communications with Western newsmen in Havana still cut. The Cuba government radio said fight is continuing in Las Villas Province, where the rebels are believed to have made their main invasion stab.

A correspondent for the Yugoslav newspaper Politika reported from Havana that an invasion force of about 5,000, "armed with tanks and guns, light arms of American production and under protection of airplanes are now without success trying to broaden the original bridgehead in the province of Las Villas, on the southern coast of Cuba."

The Communist correspondent said the invaders captured a village Monday night "but the Fidel forces have reclaimed it in a counterattack, so that the attacking forces are in retreat back at the disembarkation point."

There were other indications that the outnumbered anti-Castro forces were under heavy pressure and there was no word of any nationwide uprising against the pro-Communist regime.

The rebel Cuban Revolutionary Council, in a communique Tuesday, said the "freedom fighters" were being attacked in the key Matanzas area by heavy Soviet-made tanks and MIG jet fighters. The communique admitted "sizeable" rebel losses of equipment and medical supplies.

Cuban exiles in Miami reported hearing a urgent broadcast from inside Cuba claiming the invaders had captured an airfield in Las Villas Province and had isolated Bayamo, a coast seaport in eastern Oriente Province.

The Cuban army radio reported the recapture of Mayari, a town of 5,000 on the north coast of Oriente, indicating it had been in rebel hands.

The verbal war between the United States and the Soviet Union on the diplomatic front was more clear-cut.

Each power warned the other against intervention in the Cuban revolt and each openly took sides—Washington with the anti-Castro forces and Moscow with the Castro government.

President Kennedy bluntly told Premier Khrushchev that the United States would take action "in the event of any military intervention" by the Soviets in Cuba.

Kennedy snapped back a reply to the Soviet leader within 10 hours after Khrushchev had appealed to the President to stop the "aggression" against Cuba and warned Moscow would supply

"all necessary assistance" to preserve Castro's pro-Communist regime.

The Soviet Union followed up Khrushchev's note by demanding in the United Nations that the world organization condemn the United States as an aggressor. Observers thought the General Assembly would settle for another resolution appealing to all nations to refrain from any action that might aggravate the situation.

Kennedy openly proclaimed American sympathy with the forces trying to overthrow Castro and declared "the United States can take no action to stifle the spirit of liberty." The President repeated his earlier declaration that Americans were not involved in the Cuban invasion and would not become involved militarily.

Russian Motion Appears Failure

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly is expected to reject a demand by the Soviet Union that it condemn the United States as an aggressor masterminding the invasion of Cuba.

The assembly instead is believed certain to adopt a rival proposal by seven Latin-American nations appealing to all U.N. members to refrain from any action that might aggravate existing tensions.

The Soviet proposal, introduced Tuesday night by Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin after a new assault on the United States in the assembly's 99-nation political committee, calls for cessation of all assistance to the forces invading Cuba and urges U.N. members to give aid to Fidel Castro.

The Latin-American resolution was expected to win wide support from member states openly concerned over President Kennedy's warning to Soviet Premier Khrushchev that the United States would take action if the Soviets intervene militarily in Cuba.

Kennedy's warning was read to the committee by chief U.S. delegate Adlai E. Stevenson, who delivered a blistering attack on the Castro government and rejected its charges against the United States.

Stevenson declared that Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa had not presented one shred of evidence to support his claims that the invasion Monday had been launched from Florida. Stevenson said Roa and the Soviet bloc representatives had reached a new low in trying to smear the United States with every innuendo and epithet in the book.

He called for a settlement of the Cuban situation by Cubans themselves and denied that the United States had played a role in the invasion.

Zorin termed Stevenson's denials too ridiculous for comment. If both the United States and Guatemala deny that the invaders came from their soil, he said, "Where have these people come from, outer space?"

Roa denied Stevenson's contention that Cuba was seething with discontent under Castro. He asserted that not a single person inside Cuba had joined the invading forces and predicted that Castro's forces would be victorious.

U. S. officials, disclosing this today, said the number of such advisers will not exceed 300. They said the action was taken at the request of the Laos government.

The United States has fully backed Britain's efforts to obtain the Soviet Union's agreement to issue a call for a cease-fire in Laos within 24 hours.

The Soviet Union so far has avoided fixing a specific time for a cease-fire. U. S. officials consider that the Soviet strategy may be an effort to strike the fighting only after a few hours before an international conference is seated to discuss the future of a neutral, independent Laos.

U. S. authorities were more concerned over the military situation in Laos than by the decision of former Premier Souvanna Phouma to skip Washington on his world tour.

Accept Bid On New Police Car

GRIFTON—A bid for a new police car, submitted by the W. H. Jones Motor Co. of Kinston, was accepted by town officials this week.

The bid totaled $1,507.47. Town Clerk Joyce McCoy said. The new car will replace the one currently in use, which is a 1958 model. The new car will be a 1961 model car with delivery within 30 days. The old car will be traded in.

At the Town Board meeting this month, members received bids on the police car, but turned the matter over to Police Commissioner Paul Whitley for further investigation before action was taken.

SHIPS SIGHTED

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A Cuban Navy coastal radio broadcast early today reported sighting ships off Bahia Honda, 45 miles west of Havana on Cuba's north shore.

Inaugural Was A Money-Maker

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite a snowstorm and traffic jams, President Kennedy's inauguration was a financial success.

Inaugural chairman Edward H. Foley said today that 540 checks totaling $1,236,333 are being mailed to individuals and business firms who underwrote the celebration's expenses. Every dollar, he said, is being returned.

Suspect Spies Again In Action

LONDON (AP) — The disappearance of a top-secret British navy document stirred suspicion at Scotland Yard today that a spy ring may have struck again.

The missing paper, detailing new methods of underwater warfare, vanished from the safe of an engineering firm working under contract for the Admiralty, police sources said.

Pedestrians Also Subject To Arrest For Traffic Violation

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pedestrians who violate traffic laws are subject to arrest and conviction in court just as much as motorists who disobey the law, Police Chief S. G. Gibbs said today.

Chief Gibbs made the statement in commenting on a recent outbreak in pedestrian-car mishaps in the city.

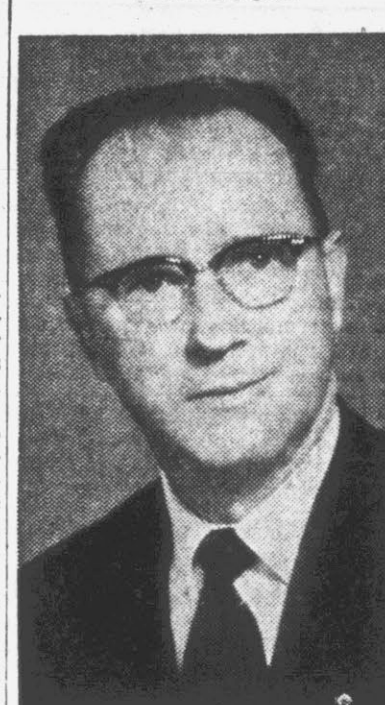

The police official, noting that four pedestrians have been involved in mishaps with cars since Friday of last week, pointed out that there are laws which govern the pedestrian just as laws are made to control vehicular movement.

He explained that generally, pedestrians crossing a street at any point other than within a marked crosswalk, are required to yield the right of way to all vehicles traveling the roadway. But, he emphasized, pedestrians crossing a street in a space marked and set apart for pedestrians and in obedience to traffic signals have the right of way over all vehicular traffic.

Pedestrians, in order to abide by the law, should cross at a traffic controlled intersection, with the green light, and within the marked crosswalk, the chief said. "Traffic is required to yield the right of way to pedestrians crossing with the green light," Chief Gibbs noted.

He continued by saying that pedestrians, "seeing the yellow caution light should be advised

Elected

JAMES W. BREWER
Grand Master of N. C. Masons

Brewer Elected By N.C. Masons

NEW BERN—James W. (Jimmy) Brewer of Greenville at 11 a.m. today was elected Grand Master of Masons in North Carolina at a Masonic meeting here.

Brewer, a Pitt County native and Greenville insurance man, will be formally installed at ceremonies in the Sudan Temple Auditorium here tonight. The installation ceremony, scheduled for 8 p.m., will be open to the public.

The 49-year-old Greenvilleite, at his installation tonight, will become Grand Master of the 63,000 Masons in North Carolina. Duties during his one-year term will require Brewer to travel throughout the state to attend and preside over various Masonic events. He will also preside over Grand Lodge meetings in Raleigh, state Masonic headquarters.

Brewer, a Mason for a number of years, is a past master of the Greenville Masonic Lodge, a past district deputy grand master of the Fifth Masonic District, and steps tonight into his new position from a post as Grand Steward. He was appointed Grand Steward seven years ago by Robert L. Pugh of New Bern, who was Grand Master then.

Several persons from Greenville are reportedly planning to attend tonight's installation ceremony in the auditorium located on Broad St.

Brewer, associated with Greenville insurance firm Hooker and Buchanan for some 15 years, is the son of former Greenville Police Chief Warren Brewer.

Khrushchev Threat Gets Prompt Warning Of U.S. Counter-Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has fired a straight from the shoulder warning to Soviet Premier Khrushchev to keep hands off Cuba.

Kennedy made it clear in a message to the Soviet leader Tuesday night that the United States will take immediate steps to counter any military intervention by outside force in the Cuban fighting.

The President declared moral support for the "Cuban patriots in their struggle for freedom" and said again that the United States intends no military intervention. As Kremlin reaction to Kennedy's message was awaited, officials here reported no evidence of any military follow-up by Khrushchev to his threat to supply "all necessary assistance" to Cuba's pro-Communist Fidel Castro regime.

Khrushchev's threat to aid Castro came early Tuesday in a message to the White House.

In tit-for-tat on Moscow's publishing Khrushchev's note before it reached Kennedy, the White House made public Kennedy's answer at the same time Tuesday night that Secretary of State Dean Rusk gave it to Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov.

Authoritative sources said Kennedy personally devoted much time to wording his reply and conferring with advisers. The result was a comparatively short—500 word—message sheared of usual diplomatic verbiage and using stronger terms than the restrained language Kennedy has used so far in his effort to get along with the Soviets.

Kennedy told Khrushchev: 1. The United States morally supports and will not hinder "Cuban patriots" in "their struggle for freedom" against the Castro government.

2. While the United States "intends no military intervention in Cuba, in the event of any military intervention by outside force we will immediately honor our obligations under the inter-American system to protect this hemisphere against external aggression."

Kennedy referred, as had President Eisenhower in a similar warning to Khrushchev last summer, to the commitments by the American republics under the Rio de Janeiro Pact to act together against any move by an outside power endangering peace in the hemisphere.

3. Rather than using the Cuban situation as a pretext "to inflame other areas of the world," Moscow should join in present opportunities for peace in Laos and the Congo and for agreeing to a ban on atomic tests.

4. Contrary to Khrushchev's claim that communism is "the inevitable wave of the future," the great revolution in the history of man, past, present and future, is the revolution of those determined to be free.

"What your government believes is its own business," Kennedy said. "What it does in the world is the world's business." Kennedy's note made no mention of the rock-throwing demonstrators who broke windows of the American Embassy in Moscow Thursday.

Washington officials said the embassy had authority to protest on the spot if it decided the facts warranted.

For the third day in a row, the administration kept a tight lid on its intelligence estimates of what is going on inside Cuba. Many authorities said they were depending on news accounts—confusing as they are—for their information on the fighting.

One of the House Foreign Affairs Committee members who heard Rusk at a closed-door briefing said he was no more enlightened on Cuba than before. Rep. Armistead I. Selden Jr., D-Ala., chairman of a subcommittee on Latin American affairs, said he would ask for a more complete State Department briefing.

Some U. S. officials tended to discount reports from Cuban exile sources that Castro had thrown Communist-built jet fighters and heavy tanks into the fray. They questioned whether Castro actually had MIG airplanes, not previously reported among the heavy Red arms shipments to Cuba, or whether the fast planes and ponderous tanks would be of such use against scattered rebel forces in difficult terrain.

Area Soil Conservation Office Here Moving In Realignment Program

By HENRY HOWARD
Reflector Staff Writer

The area Soil Conservation Service office located in Greenville—along with five more similar offices across North Carolina—will be relocated May 1, according to the N. C. state conservationist today.

R. M. Dailey, head of the federal program's North Carolina operations, told the Daily Reflector today the moving of the local office—that currently serves 18 counties and 16 work units—is a part of a state-wide realignment of the boundaries of the state's nine areas.

The move, Dailey said, "does not affect the actual Soil Conservation Service work in any single county." He added, "This is just an effort on our part to give our own people better and more direct supervision."

Persons in Greenville affected by the move, Dailey said, will include five of six employees of the present office.

Head of the local office S. L. Daughtridge will be transferred. Also Miss Annie Turner, J. B. Newman, L. D. Hunning and Mrs. J. P. Bullock will be reassigned to Edenton, Dailey said. He said plans for reassigning Daughtridge are incomplete.

The remaining Greenville office employee, agronomist C. C. Abernathy, will "remain in Greenville indefinitely," Dailey said. He said Abernathy will be provided with office space by the Pitt County SCS Work Unit headed by Roy R. Beck since February.

Abernathy serves nearly half the state as a special consultant in the field of agronomy. His location in Greenville, Dailey pointed out, situates him in the approximate geographic center of the area he serves.

Other area offices to be affected by the realignment include the area headquarters in Raleigh, Goldsboro, North Wilkesboro, Salisbury and Waynesville. The remaining three—Greensboro, Lumberton and Newton—Dailey said, "will probably remain as they are." He said those locations are near-centers for their intended areas.

Dailey outlined the purpose of the statewide revision: "We have attempted to equalize the districts on a statewide basis. For example, the area office in Greenville who is responsible for work in 16 work units and 18 counties. That is too heavy a work load for one man to be responsible for."

He pointed out, "Other areas in the state have as few as eight work units. To be more efficient and distribute work more equitably we have undertaken this plan."

He said the new plan would result in the statewide distribution of a maximum of 11 work units and a minimum of 10 among the nine districts.

Dailey emphasized the move would have no effect on the actual work in Pitt County nor the Coastal Plain SCS District (Pitt, Greene, Martin and Edgecombe Counties).

Referring to the space that will not be used by the Greenville area office after May 1, Dailey said he hoped an arrangement could be worked out that would allow the Pitt work unit to occupy some of the office area on the second floor of the County Office Building on Johnston St. in Greenville. "We need it," he said.

He said the families who will be required to move by the plan will be allowed until May 15 to relocate. "We want to give them as much time as possible to make their personal adjustments," he

Dr. Rives Speaks On "Gone With The Wind" Author At Club

Mrs. Harold Forbes entertained members of the Lector Book Club at a three course luncheon Tuesday at the Greenville Country Club. The table was centered with an arrangement of iris, crabapple and azaleas in a silver bowl.

In the absence of the president, the vice-president, Mrs. Herbert Hadley, presented the speaker, Dr. Ralph Rives, a former East Carolina graduate who continued his studies at the University of Virginia and Oxford and is now back at East Carolina College, teaching in the English Department. He is a native of Windsor.

Dr. Rives gave a talk on Margaret Mitchell, who wrote "Gone With The Wind," a novel about the War Between the States. It won the 1937 Pulitzer Prize for fiction and was selected by the American Booksellers Association as the outstanding novel of that year. It was one of the best-selling books of all times. The motion-picture version of the novel, which appeared first in 1939, broke all attendance records. "Gone With The Wind" was published in Braille, and was translated into twenty languages.

Margaret Mitchell was born in Atlanta, Ga., the scene of much of the action of her book. It reflects the Confederate view of the War Between the States. She attended Smith College for one year and later worked for the Atlanta Journal. She wrote only the one book and was killed in 1949 by an automobile at the age of 49.

Mrs. Hadley presided over the business meeting. She first welcomed the guests, Dr. Rives, Mrs. John G. Clark Sr., Mrs. D. E. Jones and Mrs. Fred Blackburn.

Mrs. Hugh Winslow, secretary, called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting.

Mrs. Holly VanDyke gave a treasurer's report. The club voted to send a donation to the Cancer Fund and also to the fund for the summer kindergarten sponsored by the City Council P-T-A.

There being no further business, the librarian Mrs. Charles King gave out the books and the meeting was adjourned.

Simple Fruit Gelatin Can Be Fancy

FRUITED GELATIN—A spirited dessert good enough for company when it is made with spiced fruit syrups plus special flavorings.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

FRUIT DESSERTS are in style. Epicures have always voted for them, but probably you can thank present-day weight-watchers for the popularity of this trend.

So what do we offer? A simple pantry shelf combination—canned fruit molded in strawberry-flavored gelatin, but with a heavenly taste nuance. This subtle flavoring comes from adding clear cherry brandy or white wine to the spiced fruit syrup in which the gelatin is dissolved.

This dessert is good enough for company, and no trouble to prepare. We arranged the drained fruit in a large glass compote, then poured the cooled (but not set) gelatin mixture over and refrigerated it to set. At serving time, all we had to do was to bring the compote to the table—no unmolding necessary.

FANCY-FREE FRUIT COMPOTE

1 can (9 ounces) sliced pineapple
1 can (1 pound) pear halves
1 can (1 pound) peaches
1/2 cup water
5 whole cloves
1 stick cinnamon
1 package (3 ounces) strawberry-flavored gelatin
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1/2 cup clear cherry brandy or white wine

Drain syrup from pineapple into a 1-quart measure. Drain pear and peach halves and add enough of their syrup to the pineapple syrup to make 2 1/2 cups. Slowly heat the 2 1/2 cups fruit syrup with the water, cloves and cinnamon to boiling; simmer 5 minutes; strain. Add gelatin to the hot spiced syrup and stir until dissolved. Stir in lemon juice and brandy or wine. Arrange drained pineapple, pears and peaches in serving dish; pour gelatin mixture over fruits. Chill until gelatin is set. Makes 8 servings.

Bridal Couples Share Honors

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Ives and Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Ives, Jr. honored Miss Judie Cullifer and Raymond Latham, at the Town and Country Restaurant in Williamston Friday evening. Sharing honors were Miss Laura Thigpen, Stanley Purvis, Miss Sue Taylor and Smitty Gray. The couples will be married in the near future.

The guests were greeted by the hostess and host and presented to the honor guests.

Upon arrival a mum corsage was presented to Miss Cullifer. Miss Thigpen and Miss Taylor, white carnation corsages were given Mrs. Cullifer, mother of Miss Cullifer, was given a pink corsage, and one was also given to Mr. Latham's grandmother Mrs. J. C. Wynne, Sr.

The 26 guests were seated at a table from which a four course dinner was served. The table was decorated with a silver bowl holding white snapdragons and fern. On either side was a three branch candelabra. They were tied with bows of white net lilies of the valley and wedding bells, and holding white candles. White net, which was tied to the candelabra, was extended full length to the center piece, being gathered at intervals with sprays of lilies of the valley and wedding bells. Small ivy underlined the entire arrangement.

The place cards carrying out the traditional colors of green and white were decorated with small circles of lilies of the valley, to symbolize the wedding rings.

Humorous toasts were given to the bridegroom. A small book tied with white satin ribbon was passed to each guest to write advice on marriage. The hostesses gave Miss Cullifer silver in her pattern. Miss Thigpen and Miss Taylor were given crystal in their patterns.

Watson of the School of Business at East Carolina College was the speaker at the meeting of the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women, which was held Monday evening in the Alumni House. Mr. Watson's subject was the development of the legal rights of women in North Carolina. He was introduced by Dr. Tora Larsen, chairman of the Committee on Status of Women.

In giving the background for the subject, Mr. Watson cited from history some examples of the oppression of women. Before the discovery of the New World, a woman could not inherit an estate. If she was married, her estate went to her husband. Her education was limited to religion and domestic affairs. Even in this country after the Revolution, a woman could not vote. Her education was limited. Her personal property became her husband's to be used as he pleased. She could not go into business or enter into any contract without her husband's consent. In brief, a woman was a second class servant with many chores and no personal rights.

Mr. Watson said that a great deal had been accomplished for women during the past century. By 1868 a woman's property was still hers, although she could not dispose of real estate without her husband's consent. By 1871 she was permitted to enter into contracts, and by 1891 she was allowed to write a check. In 1913 she was able to collect the proceeds for an injury instead of being a piece of property on which her husband could collect damages. Also, the court would not allow the husband to dispose of property without the wife's consent, and even examined her privately to make sure that she consented without being coerced.

Watson mentioned some restrictions that still exist. A wife cannot disinherit her husband or dispose of property without his consent. She still does not have all the job opportunities that she should have. Since women are as well educated as men, and many have been outstanding, they should have equality of opportunity. Mr. Watson suggested that women's organizations call the attention of the public to existing inequalities.

During the business meeting, Dr. Kathleen Dunlop, chairman of the Committee on the Children's Play, was commended for her excellent work. Dr. Stokes, president of the branch, urged members to attend the State Convention in Charlotte on April 28 and 29. Attention was called to an article in the Sunday News and Observer, featuring Mrs. Robert Lee Hunter, a member and former president of the branch.

At the social hour, refreshments were served by the hostesses: Mrs. James L. Fleming Jr., Miss Hazel Clarke, Dr. Sue Matz, Mrs. M. Austin Perry, Miss Nell Stallings, and Mrs. Gertrude Soderberg.

Faculty Honors Frances Wahl
The faculty of Wahl-Coates Laboratory School entertained in honor of Frances Wahl Sunday afternoon, April 16, at Dilassa, home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lindsay Savage on Farmville Highway. Miss Wahl was presented a corsage and a silver cream pitcher upon arrival.

The guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Savage and presented to the honoree, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rose, Dr. and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins, and Mrs. Ellen L. Carroll. Appetizers and punch were served in the dining room where a pink and white motif was used.

After a social hour the guests signed a guest book which was later presented to Miss Wahl. Members of the Wahl-Coates faculty greeted about 100 guests during the afternoon.

Library Club Observes Week

The Library Club of East Carolina College observed National Library Week at its monthly meeting on April 17. Dr. Corinne Rickert, the featured speaker, discussed the library research made for the presentation of her paper "A Study of Witchcraft in England."

During the talk Dr. Rickert mentioned the British Museum, the Library at Lambeth Palace, the Public Record Office, and the Bodleian Library at Oxford from which she obtained most of her research information.

A short business meeting was held before Dr. Rickert spoke. The meeting was called to order by the president, Vicki Morgan, who also introduced Dr. Rickert to the club. The members of the Library Club found Dr. Rickert a very interesting speaker and her topic most informative.

Dr. Rickert Will Be Woman's Club Speaker

Dr. Robert T. Rickert will speak 2 p.m., after the General meeting of members of the Woman's Club of Greenville on the Drama at their meeting on Friday, April 21. Dr. Rickert is presently Acting Director of East Carolina Playhouse, having served as Assistant Director since 1958. The recent play "The Lady Is Not For Burning" was under his direction, as was the opera "Old Maid and the Theft."

Dr. Rickert has long been active in theatrical work, studying, teaching, and directing theatre groups and summer theatres in Florida and Minnesota. He received his B. A. degree at the University of Minnesota, his M. A. at Miami University, and his doctorate on English Renaissance Drama at the University of Birmingham, England.

Dr. Rickert is co-editor of "Henslowe's Diary," published by the Cambridge University Press early in 1961.

Dr. Rickert's speech will be part of the all-day program of the Woman's Club meeting and will follow the luncheon scheduled for noon Friday. The Fine Arts Department will meet at 11 a.m., followed by the American Home Department at 11:30 a.m. The Greenville Garden Club will meet at

Garden Club Has Meet
The Robersonville Garden Club met with Mrs. R. Austin Williams at her home on Purvis Street Thursday afternoon.

Snapdragons, camellias, gladioli and greenery were used in floral arrangements in the living room and dining room.

After the club collect was read, Mrs. Williams talked on "Color and Texture in Arranging Flowers," referring to a class she recently attended of the North Carolina Garden School held at State College, Raleigh.

Flower arrangement has been taught by man-made rules; therefore, when we have seen one arrangement we have seen all, she observed. Mrs. Zelma W. Schulke, Ohio author, lecturer and flower show judge, says, "There is no man-made set of rules for flower arranging. Make it your own, do it your way and don't copy. Space and spare relationship. Learn to see the negative areas positively; study your materials, think clearly and act boldly. Rhythm and repetition were also discussed. She pointed out two pitfalls of repetition, monotony and too even spacing. Space is becoming a very vital element as was noted in Parabolic Curve. Color was demonstrated in arrangements placed on a card table in front of different color cardboards and a leaf foliage demonstration was given.

Following the program, Mrs. Wallace Roberson, president, presided over the business session. Minutes of the March meeting were read and approved and reports were given by the committees.

Special guests were Mrs. T. J. Lassiter, Mrs. H. C. Hood, Mrs. T. W. Patterson of Smithfield, Mrs. Paul D. Roberson, and Mrs. Claude T. Smith of Robersonville.

First District Is Left Undisturbed

Although heated legislative battles are certain to be waged over the two congressional redistricting proposals now before the General Assembly, it appears a foregone conclusion that the First District will remain largely intact. Under each of the proposals the existing First District would be enlarged to include two additional counties.

This situation is in sharp contrast to opinions which prevailed several months ago when there was considerable speculation that the 14 counties of the present First District would be distributed among other neighboring districts in a reshuffle. At that time it was pointed out repeatedly—particularly from other sections of the state—that the First District already was the smallest of the 12 districts of the states in terms of population. Its population was 32,000 less than that of the next smallest district and 135,000 less than the most populous district in the state.

It was also pointed out, and justly so, that the First District, in spite of its lower population, was at the same time the largest district in the state in terms of geographic area, encompassing more than 7,800 square miles . . . 1,800 square miles more than the next largest district.

The fact that the two proposals now before the legislature do not split up the 14 counties which now make up the First District is of significance. It is also important that the two proposals differ only in that Kemp's bill would add Northhampton and Bertie Counties to the district and Morgan's bill would add Northhampton and Pamlico Counties to the district.

There are certain to be bitter criticisms of the redistricting proposals from some areas of the state and from some individual counties. So far as the first district is concerned, however, the proposals set forth a reasonable pattern for retaining in the northeastern section of North Carolina one of the logical congressional districts of the state. Although the district would be the smallest of the proposed 11 with a population of approximately 300,000, the area covered by the proposed district could hardly be expanded without reaching unreasonable proportions.

Odds Are Against Big Clash Over Cuban War

There is no escaping the fact that the invasion of Cuba by Anti-Castro forces Monday has created a new international crisis only 90 miles from the mainland of the United States.

The Soviet Union has pledged support to Castro's forces while blaming the United States for intervention in Cuban affairs. The United States while expressing sympathy with the effort to overthrow the Castro dictatorship in Cuba has flatly denied any connection with the forces which landed in Cuba.

The two most powerful nations in the world both have direct interest in the affairs in Cuba. The Soviet Union is anxious that its communist foothold in the Western Hemisphere be preserved. The United States would be delighted to see Castro's communist control of Cuba obliterated.

Though the situation in Cuba is one which could quickly bring the United States and Soviet military forces face-to-face, events of recent years indicate chances are against such an eventuality. It is not likely that the United States will directly intervene in the current Cuban conflict. Neither is it likely, we think, that the Soviets will risk direct conflict with the United States in rendering aid to Castro's government.

Questions About Cuban Invasion

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) Five questions stand at the heart of the anti-Castro invasion of Cuba.

What will Russia do? Why did the invaders pick April 17? What part, if any, did the United States play? Are the Cuban people for or against Fidel Castro? If the invaders win, what kind of government will they set up?

In Moscow the government newspaper Izvestia said the Communist world stands behind Castro, called the invaders "American hirelings." The official Soviet news agency Tass said Russia and its allies are ready to help Castro.

Although the Soviet Union and its satellites have given Castro arms, now in his moment of peril further help from them is a long way off unless they send in planes.

There is a limit on what they can do without risking war with the United States.

Twice now in seven years extreme left-wing governments set up in the Western Hemisphere under the American nose have been invaded. In Guatemala in 1954 the government was crushed.

The Communists have been trying to do to the United States what this country has done to them, that is, establish alliances close to American shores. The United States has made such alliances with some of Russia's closest neighbors.

If Castro fails, it would not be surprising to see Russia, or its emissaries, create a crisis for the United States elsewhere. It has been stalling on a cease-fire in Laos, for instance. It could turn Laos into a furnace.

Last Saturday three Cuban air bases were attacked from the air by bombers. Two of the planes later landed in Florida where one of the pilots said he and his companions had deserted the Cuban air force.

This raid apparently was an attempt to destroy alliances planes Castro had left. Two days later came the invasion. They seemed linked. That still doesn't explain why April 17 was the target date.

Perhaps the invaders decided now or never in fear that if they waited much longer Castro might be too well armed to overcome.

There have been repeated reports for weeks that a number of Cubans have been trained as jet pilots in the satellites and that Castro has received from behind the Iron Curtain a batch of jetplanes which are still in crates, waiting to be assembled.

At the United Nations Adlai E. Stevenson denied an offensive had been launched from this country against Cuba. Secretary of State Dean Rusk again stated the U.S. policy of non-intervention.

But Rusk avoided any flat commitment that this country is not giving back-door aid to the rebels. Nor did President Kennedy at his news conference last week say the United States would not help anti-Castro rebels.

He said neither Americans nor American armed forces would intervene in Cuba.

But the New York Times has said flatly Cuban exiles for nine months have trained in this country and Central America for invasion.

What still isn't clear is how many Cubans share the anti-Castro feelings of the rebels. The invaders will have their hands full if most of the Cuban people are pro-Castro.

Cuba has had a long history of dictatorship, and revolts. The anti Cuban exiles in this country range from right to liberal, to say the least. Last month they got together in a coalition called the Cuban Revolutionary Council.

This togetherness may last no longer than it takes to crush Castro. Then who wins, if they win, is anyone's guess.

Public Forum

To The Editor: We could think of nothing more hopeful than to see a new library built on a "site," not a lot. A site where one might envision green grass, flower beds, recreational facilities, a swimming pool. A site that would someday be a focal point of beauty and civic pride where our city today would meet its obligations for tomorrow.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
PATIENCE

Not long ago a friend showed me his extensive collection of American coins. I remarked on how much it must have cost him over the years.

"Not nearly as much as you probably think," he replied. "I have one rule. I almost never break; be patient. I hardly ever buy a rare coin at a high price. I have discovered that if I am patient and wait, I can always find it or trade for it so that it costs me much less."

In our time, when so much emphasis is put on speed and high-pressure accomplishment, patience is a virtue which comes in for relatively little praise. Yet the fact is that patience, as one of the primary qualities, along with such more obvious ones as courage and love, which man needs to survive.

Primitive man understood the need for patience very well. The hunter or fisherman on whose success the life of his family depended had to school himself in the ability to wait silently for the right moment, no matter how long it took.

Civilized man still needs patience as much as ever. Most of life's troubles can be borne if we will bear them patiently and work and hope for better days. Those who lack the patience to endure often end as mental cases or suicides. Everything has an ending at last, and most things, if we give them their course, have happy endings.

Be patient.

Real-Life Stories 'Best'

Time, and the soothing balm of humor, assuage the pangs of income tax deadlines such as Monday's.

It's traditional in our land to grumble a bit, to wish aloud for an end to all taxes, to pray for more spartan government.

On the other hand, income-tax-paying time is a perennial favorite season for cartoonists and comedians. But some of the better imaginative reaction comes from real life.

Due to the restricted nature of my days it isn't easy to round up a selection of post-tax-filing commentaries from the local scene; however, the Associated Press has from time to time provided us with a choice of experiences from a wider front.

And so my thanks to minions and moguls of the AP, because the lighter aspect of the season helps ease what may be for some a painful memory.

Take for instance the story of a taxpayer who wasn't sure how to back up her deductions for drugs and medicines. She showed up at the tax office with five shoe boxes filled with empty pill bottles.

Then, on the West Coast, an aging taxpayer sought help at an IRS office and remarked on leaving: "If it wasn't for taxes and my wife I'd be a rich man. Of course I wouldn't have anything to complain about then."

In another IRS office, those seeking help pick up a number as they enter so they can be served in proper turn. One day (so says the AP, and it must be true) an entrepreneur arrived early and without being observed, snatched a stack of the lower numbers. When others arrived and found only high numbers left, this man began peddling his supply at 50 cents a number.

As everyone knows, Revenue offices get many inquiries by phone.

A woman called one south-western office and asked if she could claim a deduction for safety equipment. Asked to be more specific, she said she was talking about a playpen.

Another woman asked how large a charitable contribution she could claim for her gift of blood to the Red Cross.

Both received discouraging replies.

The IRS runs into just about everything. . . such as the taxpayer who listed an aunt as a dependent, stating he was sending her $50 a month. Asked where the aunt lived, he replied "I don't know. I haven't seen her in five years."

And yesterday's teletype carried the story of a rhyme, mailed with a tax form to the Baltimore office of the Internal Revenue Service. It said:

"Income tax once again this year,
And bringing anything but good cheer;
Each year it seems I pay you more—
Each year I get a little poorer."

I think there's a story to be told about the boom in farm ponds this spring. . . especially in Pitt County.

Last Sunday my brother-in-law, Jim Elks, took me for a ride in the Black Jack area and in a matter of minutes we saw a good dozen or so ponds. Most of them appeared newly-dug; dirt from the excavation still piled high.

"Ever since I've wondered how many more we might have seen had we gone further afield."

The writer has seen nothing like it in the past fifteen years. It might have been a regional trend; it might be generalized. Anyhow, the sight was most encouraging.

Cuban White Paper

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The most amazing document ever issued by the State Department is the White Paper on Cuba. It cannot be read without assuming that the United States is apologetic, in some manner, for the misconduct of Castro. Here is the opening statement:

" . . . The hemisphere rejected at the overthrow of the Batista tyranny, looked with sympathy on the new regime, and welcomed its promises of political freedom and social justice for the Cuban people. The challenge results from the fact that the leaders of the revolutionary regime betrayed their own revolution, delivered that revolution into the hands of powers alien to the hemisphere, and transformed it into an instrument employed with calculated effect to suppress the rekindled hopes of the Cuban people for democracy and to intervene in the internal affairs of other American Republics."

In the first place, the hemisphere — meaning North and South America — did not devote itself to the overthrow of Batista. The subject was hardly important to most human beings. Besides, economically 1956 was Cuba's best year. There is a sectarian group in the State Department which believes that Leftist dictators are evil and Rightist dictators are good. Thus, Stalin was good; Hitler was bad. Thus, Batista was evil and Castro was good; Trujillo is bad, and so it goes. These doctrinaire Fourth Floor deskmen in the State Department disregard history in their desire to establish a world of good men, dictators who call themselves democrats or democrats who are dictators.

The White Paper says: "It is the considered judgement of the Government of the United States of America that the Castro regime in Cuba offers a clear and present danger to the authentic and autonomous revolution of the Americas . . . to the whole of the hemisphere."

This is a new use of the term. Government of the United States. "A considered judgement" of the Government of the United States could be a joint resolution of Congress. Surely at no time has the Congress of the United States or the President in a formal message to Congress referred to the "authentic and autonomous revolution of the Americas."

Precisely what is this revolution? What have the United States and Canada, for instance, to do with this authentic and autonomous revolution?

Surely it is not true, as the White Paper states:

"When word arrived from the Sierra Maestra of the revolutionary movement headed by Dr. Fidel Castro Ruz, the people of the hemisphere watched its progress with feeling and with hope."

Is the Northern part of the hemisphere watched Castro's butchery with "feeling and hope"? From the start, many Americans looked upon it with loathing. What is the White Paper attempting to do—to give the impression that the hope of this country was centered on Castro? Are the authors of this document trying to justify the aid given to Castro by the State Department? Were the men who wrote the White Paper responsible for the support Fidel Castro received from those in the State Department?

In later pages, the White Paper changes its tone and tells what a treacherous role Castro is. It describes the Communist take-over. However, even so, Castro is the poor little darling who is seduced. Note:

" . . . When Castro first went to the hills, the Cuban Communist Party dismissed him as 'bourgeois' and 'putschist.' Only when they saw that he had a chance of winning did they try to take over the movement."

It has not been unusual for the Communists to give the appearance of opposing one whom they support. It is also true that Soviet Russia has often found local Communists to be nuisances and have acted without their knowledge, whipping them into line when the proper time came. Finally, on page 19, the pamphlet reaches "The Delivery of the Revolution to the Sino-Soviet (Continued on page five)

More Motels--The Reasons Why

By ELMER ROESSNER

Wherever you hang your hat, you probably say: "There hasn't been more than one good hotel built in this town in the last thirty years!"

And you may go on: "What's the matter with the hotel business anyway? It's just milking its investment!"

The truth is that the hotel business is more interested in motels, than hotels.

There are many reasons. Cities slap bright new taxes on hotels, inspectors prowling them demanding handouts or repair of alleged violations, unions keep pumping up demands.

But motels escape urban taxes, inspections, regulations and bites; they operate with local, unorganized workers. Sometimes this turns out to be the owner's wife.

EXURBAN LUXURY

Why should a traveler stop at a downtown hotel, paying a heavy rate for accommodations, paying more dollars for parking his car, filling dozens of outstretched hands, bucking fender-denting traffic, and paying 99 cents for drinks he can pour out of a bottle at half the price?

Come, now! I'm not against hotels. Some of my best friends are hotel owners. But the bald economic fact is that many people find motels give more for their money than the downtown luxury hotels do.

And the bald economic facts are that estimates say that a total of $3.1 billion dollars will be spent in American motels this year. That is about a 7 per cent increase over 1960.

Prentice-Hall, in a summary of the motel branch of the hotel industry, says that last year motels took in more dollars than hotels did. It estimates that there were 62,000 motels in 1960, a rise of 4,000 in two years.

LUXURY ABOUNDS

The trend to more luxury is evident to anyone who hits the open road these days. More motels have swimming pools, landscaped gardens, air conditioning, costly furnishings, cocktail lounges, restaurants and unctuous attendants. Some in Nevada are said to have slot machines in the public rooms, or are prepared to send roulette wheels and croupiers to guests' apartments.

All this, as P-H points out, constitutes a market for many industries. Motels are in the market for better furniture, better plumbing, more luxurious conveniences.

They need everything a good hotel needs: furnishings, restaurant equipment and supplies, bedding, soap, tissue, and appliances without end. Everything required for a modern home is also an item to be sold motel operators.

Many motels operate their own shops, selling drugs, souvenires, records, stationery, candies and other items. Many have swimming pools and play areas for local as well as travelers' children. Others have restaurants with such fine cuisine that city dwellers drive out to sup on coq au vin, catfish, bagel mit lox and other specialties.

Whatever you make or sell, it's time to take a new look at the motel market. In 60 days, when the summer traffic starts, operators will be too busy to talk to your salesman.

CODE TELLS HOW TO MEET GOVERNMENT PACKAGING RULES

Companies seeking a government contract, or holding a contract that requires military packaging, may profit by studying "Packaging Requirements Code." It establishes and defines a system for coding essential preservation and packaging data, as prescribed in all Defense Department contracts.

For copies, send $2.25 to Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., for "Packaging Requirements Code, Military Standard 726." Published in May, 1960, it is still in effect.

FOUR LONGTIME DEMOCRATS—These four Democrats held a brief reunion of their own last weekend at the Jefferson-Jackson Day celebration in Raleigh. Left to right are George Cherry of Pactolus, Gilbert Peel of Greenville, U.S. Sen. B. Everett Jordan of Saxapahaw and Sen. J. Ervin of Morganton. They found they had several things in common. All four are Democrats. They all attended the weekend festivities. All four have birthdays in September. And all four will be 65 years old next fall—Jordan, Sept. 8; Peel, Sept. 21; Cherry, Sept. 26, and Ervin, Sept. 27. (Staff Photo)

Red Tape Tangles Battleship Plans

By LYNN NISBET
Reflector Bureau,
Ass'n Afternoon Dailies

RALEIGH — The status of the program for bringing back to this state the famous battleship U.S.S. North Carolina is about to get bogged down in red tape.

When it developed last summer that the battleship, now in mothballs at Bayonne, N. J., could be obtained by North Carolina for a permanent historic attraction and memorial, rather than consigned to Davey Jones' locker as useless surplus material, Governor Hodges appointed an advisory committee to investigate and report on plans to acquire the ship. It was clearly understood that functions of this committee were wholly advisory, and had no legal status except as personal representatives of the Governor.

The committee did a lot of work, including visits to Bayonne to see what it might cost to get the ship to North Carolina, and to Houston to see what the state of Texas had done to install the U.S.S. Texas there.

The committee recommended acquisition of the ship, and surveyed items of towing the ship and berthing it at appropriate place in this state. Before the deal could be completed Governor Hodges was succeeded by Governor Sanford, who requested the same committee to continue its same advisory functions.

Meantime, on March 23 a bill was introduced by Sen. Lunsford Crew (a member of the original advisory committee) establishing a statutory battleship committee with authority to act. That bill was ratified into law on April 4. One of its provisions was that the Governor should appoint the commission within ten days after ratification of the act.

Then on April 14, after the time fixed for appointment of the statutory commission, the original advisory committee held a meeting at Chapel Hill and approved a site at Wilmington for permanent berth of the ship.

The newly enacted law says that the commission yet to be appointed by the Governor shall have the "duty and authority" to select a site for the battleship. Action of the ex post facto advisory committee can be only suggestive, and has no binding effect on the statutory commission when it is named.

Meanwhile, time is running out for action, because there must be raised something like a quarter million dollars or more before the famed battleship can be brought home. There will be no purchase price for the ship, but estimates on the cost of towing from New Jersey to North Carolina, of conditioning the ship for its purpose as a memorial and historic attraction and of preparing a permanent setting for it, range from $200,000 to $600,000.

The only State tax money involved is provision that the battleship commission is authorized to borrow—not receive as a grant—a maximum of $15,000 from the contingency and emergency fund for initial expenses. The time element is important. Governor Hodges, at request of his advisory committee, got extension of time from January 1 this year to July 1 for completing negotiations. But the law requires that application for the grant of the ship must lie in Congress for 60 days before final enactment.

Cares Put Aside For Gay Party

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and members of Congress put the cares of the Cuban crisis aside Tuesday night for one of the gayest parties the White House has known in some time.

About 1,200 guests danced in the huge East Ballroom until the strains of "Good Night Sweetheart" ended the party at 12:30 a. m.—a half hour later than scheduled.

The only State tax money involved is provision that the battleship commission is authorized to borrow—not receive as a grant—a maximum of $15,000 from the contingency and emergency fund

President and Mrs. Kennedy led off the dancing to the tune "Mr. Wonderful" with Vice President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson joining them in a space cleared by aides.

Kennedy, even while dancing, had to pause to shake hands with some of his former Senate colleagues. He and his wife were constantly surrounded by a crush of greeters.

As the special Marine Corps dance band unit in scarlet uniforms switched to "I Love Paris," the Johnsons and the Kennedys switched partners.

Mrs. Kennedy wore a white and pink straw lace sheath with a diamond clip in her bouffant hair. Mrs. Johnson chose the salmon satin gown she wore to the inaugural balls.

It was a formal white tie reception, planned weeks ago, in honor of senators, representatives, Cabinet members and wives—the first such affair of the Kennedy administration. Informality prevailed.

let Bloc." It took a long time to get there in a small paper of 26 pages.

It is unfortunate that the White Paper on Cuba prepared and issued by the State Department labors so hard to reach a conclusion which newspaper readers have already accepted. You can buy the White Paper from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C. It costs 20 cents and is worth that much.

BETHEL'S NEW WELL AND PUMP HOUSE—A 400-foot well, with a capacity of 300 gallons of water per minute, was recently completed here. A pump house for the new pump was constructed at the well site which is located on the opposite side of town from the older wells. Completion of the project provides Bethel with three wells. U.S. And Soviet Relations Fare Better On Broadway

By HENRIETTA LEITH

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. and Soviet relations fared much better on Broadway Tuesday night than over on the East River or in Washington.

On the East River, at the United Nations building, and in Washington, where the diplomats exchanged notes, it was grim and gloomy.

But on Broadway, at the Metropolitan Opera House, it was joy unrefined as 100 Russian members of the Moiseyev Dance Company and 3,700 Americans beamed at each other across the footlights.

The Moiseyev troupe, famed for its precision chorus dances and individual acrobatics, was paying its second visit to the United States, just three years after they made their American debut at the Metropolitan.

Two Soviet ambassadors—Mikhail Menshikov from Washington and Valerian Zorin from the United Nations—were to have sat above the Soviet flag draped beside a United States flag from the center boxes. But the ambassadors didn't show up.

The dancers were too busy dancing—and you have to see the Moiseyev dancers to believe how busy they can be—and the audience was too busy gasping, laughing and applauding to notice anyone's absence.

The audience started applauding seconds after the show started when the "Snow Maiden" drifted across the stage with her handmaids doing a favorite Moiseyev trick of seeming to dance on the air a few inches above the floor.

They laughed at the courting Estonian who dances the polka to flat-on-his-face exhaustion, at the pigeon-toed shimmies of the Hakmuk dancers, and at the hops, whistles, struts and hat-doffing of a Moldavian dance. The Moiseyev dancers seemed to want to convince their audience that every Russian is a very funny fellow who likes to play the buffoon.

Even romance is always amusing to the Moiseyev dancers. The romance between the dancers and the audience never flagged, however. The audience applauded before, during and after each number, and gave the dancers a dozen or more curtain calls, until the dancers finally had to stand still for minutes, applauding back in Russian fashion.

Finally the dancers were called back for two encores. One was a new number called "Rock 'n' Roll," which has the dancers clad in 1960 version beatnik costume but—fortunately for the audience—offers dancing and music of another era entirely—that of Benny Goodman, swing and jitterbugging.

'Clarification' Cost Him $50

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—A young man went to the police station intent on helping officers clear up a mistake. It cost him $50.

Peter Joseph Haden, 24, told the police he was not in jail on a charge of driving while intoxicated, but that it was a friend who had been using Haden's name.

"How did it happen?" inquired Lt. Luther Legett.

Haden said the jailed man had borrowed Haden's car, which had Haden's driver's license in the glove compartment. In response to another question, Haden admitted he knew his friend had no driver's license.

Legett replied: "You are under arrest for allowing an unlicensed driver to operate a motor vehicle. Bond will be $50."

Parachute Team Jumps Daily For Sky-Diving Test

FORT BRAGG, N. C.—“Practice makes perfect” is an old adage that the U. S. Army Parachute Team seems to have adopted.

The team's 18 members are free-falling an average of five times daily, when North Carolina's weather permits, in practice for the “All-American Cup” sky-diving contest at Fort Bragg April 21-25.

“The Cup event is practice, too—for the international sport parachuting meet to be held in France in August,” Capt. James Perry, officer-in-charge of the Team, explained.

Last year, members of the U.S. Army Parachute Team scored heavily in the international event in Bulgaria, and Capt. Perry stated that men of the organization would again be an integral part of the United States Parachute Team.

“We're working on the style and accuracy events that the international meet will be patterned around,” Capt. Perry said. “The All-American Cup meet will be conducted exactly like the international contest.”

An “X” target about 20 paces wide is aiming-point for free-falling practice jumps, just as a similarly-marked spot of the same size—almost invisible from jump altitudes—will be the international event's gauge for accuracy, Capt. Perry explained.

For style, the Team jumpers are “spotted” from the ground with binoculars as soon as they leave the UTA OTTER high above the drop zone, and observed as they make complicated gyrations through bending their bodies to the breeze.

During free-fall, the sport parachutist is an air-foil capable of looping, cutting figure-eights, and making tight turns. “The style with which certain maneuvers are made is graded in international competition,” Capt. Perry stated. “The best becomes style champion of the world.”

Support Rules For Soybeans

The U.S. Department of Agriculture today announced that producers will be required to maintain their 1959-60 average acreage of conserving and idle land on the farm in 1961 to be eligible for 1961 price support on soybeans.

Department officials pointed out that this requirement is aimed at insuring that additional soybean production will be on acreage that has been used for crops in abundant supply such as wheat, cotton, corn, grain sorghum, and other feed crops rather than from land now in conserving uses or idle.

USDA said it wants to avoid increasing soybean acreage at the expense of acreage now under conservation practices. Price supports on the 1961 soybean crop have been increased to insure an adequate supply and to help meet anticipated needs for this important oil crop.

The national average support price for 1961-crop soybeans will be $2.30 per bushel as announced March 22.

Will Participate In 2 Workshops

Annie Mae Murray, director of the kindergarten at East Carolina College, will participate in this month in two workshops at which the care and training of young children will be discussed.

Miss Murray will conduct a workshop at Wake Forest April 19 on “Music for Early Childhood.” The event will be presented on the program of a “Day Care Workshop” sponsored by the N.C. State Board of Public Welfare April 19-20 for people interested in day-care services in Orange, Durham and Wake counties. The music workshop is scheduled for 3-10 p.m. in the Ruby Reid Child Care Center, Southeastern Seminary, at Wake Forest.

Miss Murray will go to Fort Bragg April 28-29 to conduct a workshop for kindergarten and primary teachers in the area. Programs will include discussions of “Science for Early Childhood” and “The Creative Arts in Early Childhood.”

'Damaged More Than His Personality Could Stand'

By DALE NELSON

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — This is the story of a boy and a woman who saw each other for the first and last time in a little corner grocery store.

His name is Michael Andrew Olds.

His mother was 15 and unmarried when she bore him. He has lived in 17 foster homes in his 18 years. A psychiatrist once said he had been "damaged more than the human personality can stand."

The woman's name is Blossom Alia Braham.

She was a former night club dancer who married a man she dated once, and corresponded with, throughout his wartime service in the Navy. At 38, and with two children, she still was a pretty woman.

On the night of March 28, Mrs. Braham entered Al Turner's grocery near her home on Seattle's Queen Anne Hill to pick up some odds and ends for her husband.

Young Olds came in right behind her, brandishing a pistol. He directed Mrs. Braham and Turner behind a counter, forced Turner to put the money from the till into a brown paper bag and then said, "I'm getting out of here fast."

As he left he fired two shots. Both hit Mrs. Braham and killed her. Later, in his confession, the youth said he pulled the trigger because he believed he had seen Turner's hands move.

Then Olds ran through alleys to the home of his mother's third husband, Arne Richstad, where he had been living, and watched television for a while.

"I hid the money in a cardboard box in the garage," he said later, "and I didn't count it until next day. I got $30.30."

He spent the money on food, candy and cigarettes.

Seven nights later, Olds hailed a taxi, pulled a gun, robbed the driver of $11 and forced him to drive around town for 1½ hours, cabby Charles E. Maison, 52, told police the boy had bragged that he was the one who killed Mrs. Braham.

It was a short time later that Patrolman Harold Countryman accosted Olds on a sidewalk and arrested him. The boy at first denied the killing, but broke down the next morning.

The crime shocked Seattle and set people to asking the inevitable question: Why?

Olds gave his own answer, in a way, at a meeting with newsmen after making his confession.

"I guess I have only myself to blame," he said.

M. A. Harmon, chief of Washington's State Bureau of Juvenile Rehabilitation, has another answer.

"The boy pulled the trigger," says Harmon, "but the background of the whole sordid mess began the moment he was brought into the world."

Records show that six months after he was born Olds was found to be so neglected and undernourished that he had to be taken to King County Hospital for treatment.

After that came the many foster homes. The records show, he ran away repeatedly, looking for his mother. When he was 11, he accidentally met her on a bus. She promised to "come see him, but she never did."

However, six days after the boy's arrest, Mrs. Arnold C. Sleipness, 34, a housewife in near-Edmonds identified herself publicly as Michael's mother and said they would "never be parted again."

Mrs. Sleipness bitterly blamed society for her son's plight and her troubled years which followed his birth in a home for unwed mothers. She said the birth resulted from a rape committed when she was 14.

Afterward, disowned by her father and other relatives, she and the boy were shunted from home to home, unwanted and separated most of the time. She stole milk from porches to keep him alive as an infant.

She said that not until six years ago when she met the man who is now her fourth husband did she feel needed.

"I found love and God," she said, adding that the difficult decision to step from obscurity to help her son was encouraged by her husband and minister.

But Mrs. Sleipness said Michael, whom she lost track of seven years ago, had nothing to hold onto.

In September, 1959, when he was 16, court records show that Olds admitted choking a 4-year-old boy into unconsciousness because the child said he "looked like a tramp."

He was committed to the King County Juvenile Court. The court's consulting psychiatrist, Dr. Richard B. Jarvis, said there "am doubtful that Mike ever will be able to make a better than marginal adjustment, for he has been damaged more than the human personality can stand without permanent scarring."

Olds was placed in a custodial school on nearby Mercer Island. He was paroled last May to Richstad. But, says Harmon, he had been "untreatable" by the time the school received him.

"He was starving for the things we take for granted. He never had a chance for the decent things in life."

"In a day when we are thinking of shooting rockets to the moon, we should not allow conditions to exist where a child is starved emotionally and shuttled about helplessly."

And what about Alford Braham, the man the young showgirl met and dated in Youngstown, Ohio, in 1940 and married four years later?

Braham, now 38 and running a parking lot, was in a movie with a son when the police called to tell him his wife was dead.

He too was looking for explanations.

"It was such a senseless killing," he said, "a woman's life for such a little bit of money."

Rumors Afloat On Gary Cooper

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This question buzzed through Hollywood today: Is Gary Cooper seriously ill?

Rumors about Cooper's health arose after actor Jimmy Stewart, near tears, accepted an honorary Academy Award for the lean actor Monday night, saying: "We're proud of you, Coop, all of us are tremendously proud." Cooper was presented an Oscar for his 30 years in movies.

Cooper's wife said her husband couldn't appear at the ceremony because he was in traction for a pinched nerve in the neck.

Cooper's doctor refused to comment on the actor's condition.

Cooper underwent prostate gland surgery last April and the following month he was operated on for an intestinal disorder.

Sen. Cutlar Moore Hopeful His New Auto Inspection Bill To Get Through

RALEIGH (AP) — A veteran lawmaker who helped steer through the Senate a bill calling for compulsory mechanical inspection of motor vehicles said today his legislative goal is to see the measure enacted.

"I worked hard for this bill in 1959 and also four years ago," said Sen. Cutlar Moore of Robeson, chairman of the Senate Roads Committee. "We're hopeful that it will get through this time."

The Senate Tuesday voiced its approval of the bill, which carries the endorsement of Gov. Sanford. The Senate action followed a tearful plea by Sen. Clarence Stone of Rockingham, whose daughter was killed in an automobile accident in 1947.

Not since 1949, when an inspection law was repealed, has an inspection bill reached the floor of either house. Some legislative observers are predicting victory for the bill which now goes to the House.

The measure provides for annual inspection of motor vehicles at state-approved garages and filling stations at a cost of $1. Of this, 75 cents would go to the garage and 25 cents to the state. Items checked would include brakes, lights, horn, steering gear, tires, windshield wiper and registration.

Two other proposals by the Motor Vehicle Department also scored victories in the legislature Tuesday. The House passed and sent to the Senate bills to: (1) stiffen the punishment for pre-arranged racing on highways, and (2) permit auto license plates to remain with their owner when cars are sold.

Moore told the Senate he might be risking his political future by backing the mechanical inspection measure, but "the purpose of this bill is to save human lives — not political lives. It will save many lives."

The strongest plea, however, was by Stone, whose only child was killed in a wreck involving a car with defective brakes. He was near tears when he sat down, and so were many of his listeners.

"On Christmas Day, 1947, when you and your family and the rest of the Christian world sat down to eat your Christmas dinner, my wife and I sat down to bury our only child," Stone told the Senate. "He said the patrolman had off the road."

Ayden Rotarians Hear Cochran

AYDEN—Bill Cochran of the Greenville Redevelopment Commission, discussed proposals for redevelopment in that city at a meeting of the Ayden Rotary Club Friday night.

Cochran displayed a map and several charts to illustrate his talk. Members of the club showed great interest in the discussion, a spokesman said.

During the meeting, the Rotary Club voted to contribute towards the Little League ball park under construction here.

Members welcomed Dr. Wes Gooding, who had been absent due to illness, back to its activities. President Wayland McGlohon presided at the meeting, held at the Ayden Community Center.

Impose Partial News Blackout

RALEIGH (AP) — The legislature's Joint Appropriations Subcommittee will operate under a partial news blackout when it begins the task Thursday of wading through the budget bill for the next biennium.

The 25-member subcommittee voted at its organizational meeting Tuesday to allow the press to attend the report on its meetings, but without using the names of committee members. A similar rule has been followed in a number of previous legislative sessions.

Newsmen representing the Charlotte News and the News Observer left the room after the motion passed. An Associated Press newsmen was the only press representative who remained.

The subcommittee adopted a suggestion by Rep. Roger Kiser of Scotland that newsmen not be allowed to "stand outside the door and eavesdrop." He was supported by Rep. John Kerr Jr. of Warren. A few members voted "no" when the rule was adopted.

Some members said they felt that all proceedings should be reported fully, at first anyway, because of public attention focused on Gov. Sanford's school improvement program.

The full Appropriations Committee gave a vote of confidence last week to Sanford's $70 million dollar school program by deciding to include it in the budget bill.

The subcommittee agreed to start at the beginning of the budget bill rather than take up the school program first.

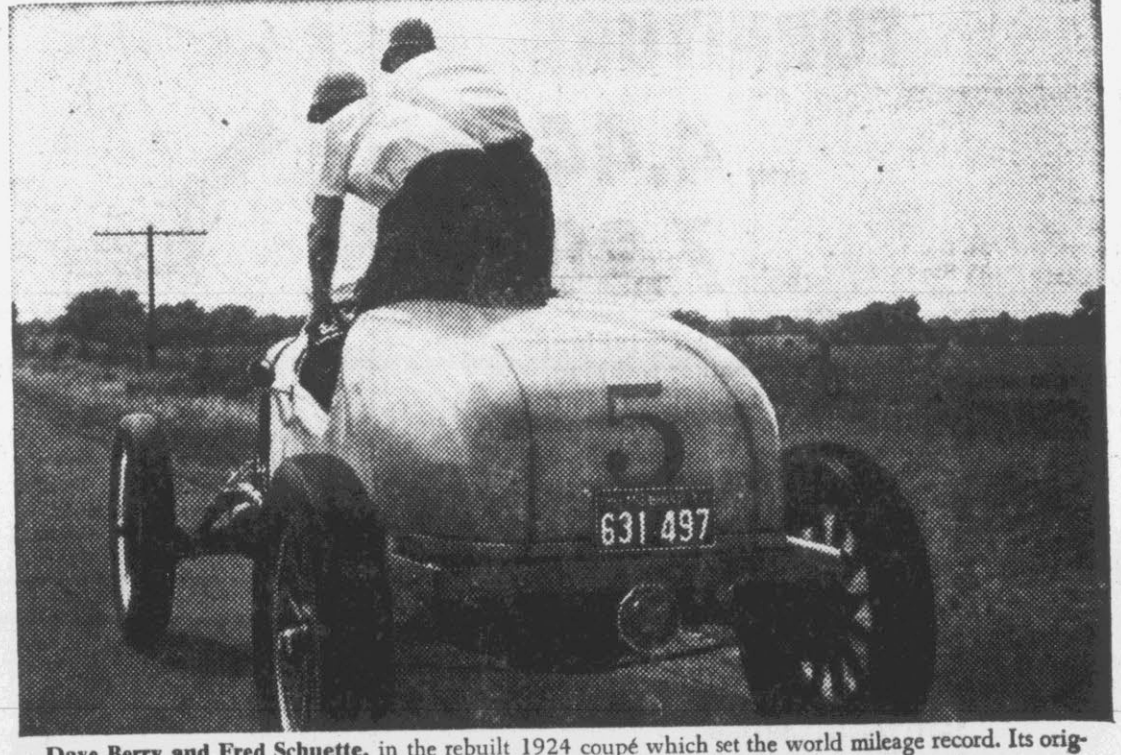

It took six weeks in 1959 for the subcommittee to complete its budget study and report its recommendations to the full committee.

BULLETIN:

Shell Research scientists reveal how they got 168.47 miles per gallon

One hundred and sixty-eight miles per gallon must be a world record. Like most world records, it took enthusiasm and hard work.

The two Shell scientists who hold this record have told us how they managed it. They have also added some tips on how you can increase your car's mileage. Not by using their own outlandish techniques. But by careful driving and today's Super Shell gasoline.

Dave Berry and Fred Schuette, in the rebuilt 1924 coupe which set the world mileage record. Its original frontal area was reduced by about 75 per cent to cut down wind resistance.

SHELL scientists thrive on competition.

Some years ago, an argument as to who could get the most miles out of a gallon of gasoline boiled up into a challenge. And Shell's Mileage Marathon was born.

Shell scientists have competed in this Marathon for several years. Not as a publicity stunt. But purely as a private contest. They use their own cars, time and money.

Not for everyday use

The best mileage recorded so far is a resounding 168 miles per gallon.

Many of the things contestants did to achieve this world record are not recommended for use on the public highway. But they do throw some light on what makes a little gasoline go a long way.

Record-breaking car cost $35

Shell's record-breaking car was a highly modified 1924 coupe (see cut). It was rescued from a junkyard for $35.

The only requirements that had to be met to qualify for the contest were simple.

The car had to have four rubber-tired wheels. It had to weigh no less than 2000 pounds. It had to have at least 100 cu. in. piston displacement. And it had to use gasoline that anybody could buy at a Shell service station.

After that, no holds were barred. The car that won used a standard carburetor from an old one-cylinder engine.

Tire pressures up to 110 pounds

Some contestants inflated their tires as high as 110 pounds per square inch to reduce road-wheel friction.

Muffled radiator and no fan

Many competitors went as far as to remove their engine's water pump and generator to save engine load. But Berry and Schuette ignored this refinement.

However, they did muffle their radiator completely to save heat.

As anybody knows, all cars go better when properly warmed up. But did you know that fast warm-up is specially provided for in today's Super Shell? It contains a gasoline ingredient called "Pentane Mix." This acts in your engine much like kindling acts in a log fire.

NET RESULT: Your car delivers top performance in a hurry.

One push and wheels spin for 30 minutes

Since the contest had nothing to do with wear, many liberties were taken with lubrication.

On the winning car—the wheel bearings were lubricated with light engine oil to reduce drag. It worked.

When the front wheels were jacked up and given an experimental push, they continued to spin for half an hour!

Of course, no Shell serviceman would ever approve of such liberties being taken with your own car's lubrication.

Knowledge passed on

When Marathon Day rolls around at Shell, there is certainly a picnic atmosphere at the testing grounds.

But remember that the Marathon is only a climax to months of serious work. Not everybody sets a record. But every contestant learns a little more about the care and feeding of automobiles. Which, after all, is Shell's main job.

Eventually, every bit of this knowledge is passed on to you in the form of better products.

Today's Super Shell is a shining example. Thanks to continuous engine studies and mileage tests, Super Shell now contains a special mileage booster called Platformate.

Among Platformate's components are benzene, toluene and xylene. These three components alone release 11 per cent more energy per gallon than the finest 100-octane aviation gasoline.

The lesson is obvious. The first thing you do to get extra mileage is to put extra energy into your fuel tank, by using today's Super Shell. Then, if you want even more mileage, take these tips.

1. Don't race your engine when stationary. Every revolution is pure waste unless it is taking you somewhere.
 2. Avoid jack rabbit starts. They waste gasoline by holding automatic transmissions in low gear too long.
 3. Drive at moderate speeds. Your car uses about 40 per cent more gasoline at 60 mph than at 35 mph.
 4. Keep an even speed. Ragged driving uses fuel without using the power it generates.
 5. Keep tires up to their proper pressures. Soft tires soak up power like a blotter soaks up ink.
 6. Get your Shell man to make these checks. Your carburetor should be adjusted periodically. Spark timing should be correct. Fuel filters and air cleaner should be clean. Brakes should be properly adjusted. And your thermostat must be in working order.
- Use today's Super Shell and follow these suggestions. You may get as much as 30 extra miles per tankful. We can't guarantee this saving. But, unless you're a millionaire, it's worth thinking about.

A BULLETIN FROM SHELL RESEARCH — where 1,997 scientists are working to make your car go better and better.

THE HAUNTED STARS

by EDMOND HAMILTON

CHAPTER 10

The countdown was completed and someone gave the fire command. Fairlie visualized the leaping impulse racing faster than thought through remote-control relays. He braced himself. Nothing happened. The technicians were glued to their indicator panels. "I'm getting some kind of a reaction," Raab, the physicist, said. "But very slight." "Thomason, the engineer, said, 'There's no perceptible thrust developing.' He turned and glowered at DeWitt. 'In fact, it appears that this ion-drive develops power even more slowly than the cesium-fueled type we've been working with ourselves. And if that's the case—'

If that's the case, thought Fairlie, there'll be no trip to the stars for anybody. Maybe this wasn't the stellar drive after all. Maybe it was only an auxiliary unit not worth. The needles on the indicator dials gave a sudden convulsive leap and went off the scales. In the gorge the sunlight paled. A shaft of blue-violet radiance lanced out from the cliffs at the right side, turning the red-tawny rock to an unnatural purple. It stood like Bifrost bridge for one eye-blinding moment, its base resting on the opposite cliffs. Then the place where it rested began to erupt in fountains of white fire. Great slabs of rock cracked off and flew wildly about, bounding and clattering. A shock wave hit the bunker, followed by a sonic nothing. He flung himself through the door, and Christensen slammed it behind them both. Fairlie removed himself to the remotest corner he could find and waited for the explosion. Raab was bent over his instruments. "I think I have it now," he said. "Increase the intensity once more, please—careful, that's enough! Now bring it down. Good. Good. Now we have a basis for calculation. Thomason?" "Good here. Thrust readings are well within range. Thrust potential—I don't believe it, but I know it's true. Holy Aunt Hannah. Right out through the roof." Beyond the viewport the blue-violet beam hung steady. There was no eruption, no flame, no molten rock. DeWitt spoke, one of the technicians did something, and the beam faded, became almost invisible then slowly brightened again. "That's the danger point," Thomason said matter-of-factly. "Cut it."

The beam flicked out. DeWitt smiled in a hard peculiar way and his eyes met Christensen's squarely. The other kept out of it. Raab and Thomason were absorbed in their notes. The other technicians were busy checking equipment. Winstedt, the biologist, slid quietly out the door. Fairlie thought it was an excellent idea. They walked together along the rocky path. Winstedt said, "A brilliant piece of work, Dr. Fairlie. I think in the excitement we have all tended to forget who made this possible."

GRAIN PROGRAM SIGNUP—Amos Hudson of Greenville is shown here as he signs up at the local Agricultural Station and Conservation office for maximum participation in the emergency feed grain program. Mrs. Jean Deal, office clerk, helps Hudson with the paper work. Hudson, who operates a farm about four miles south of Grimesland, was one of the earliest to sign up under the federal program aimed at reducing the national feed grain surplus and the $1.5 billion required annually to store it. Signup for Pitt began last Friday at the ASC office and will continue through April.

Car Host May Replace Hop; Men Bewail Trend

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Think about this seriously, men, because that great pastime of girl watchin—as American as baseball and mom's apple pie—is suffering a serious setback across the nation.

Believe it or not, there is a movement to do away with charming young ladies as carhops. If a certain group has its way, in this case the drive-in owners, gone forever will be the charming girl in a colorful and excellently fitted uniform.

In her place — a hairy-armed, male with ketchup and mustard on his shirt.

Carl Merken of Duluth, Minn., the editor of the trade magazine "Drive-In Management" announced the trend at the Wisconsin Restaurant Association convention.

Merken offered several reasons. The male carhop, or car host as the industry likes to call him, is supposed to be more efficient in bringing the wrong order. He's also supposed to be less prone to absenteeism, have a better business mind, be a speedier worker and have more endurance.

This is all open to argument. No one has shown that the female is lacking in these traits.

She has proved herself equally adept at getting the order wrong but does it with a smile and that cute wrinkle of her nose. Absenteeism? Whoever heard of a young lady calling in to say she couldn't be at work because her foot slipped off the brass rail at the local pub and she sprained an ankle. It's invariably a headache. A fast worker? Depending on the size of the promised tip the female can be astonishingly quick. And every woman is known for her endurance. She can look it right in the face for hours and it doesn't bother her.

Merken made one point in his talk that can be accepted.

The male of the carhop species is less likely to flirt with the customers.

Dog Population In For Trouble

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — The large dog population throughout the county is headed for trouble.

Dr. Frank H. Madden, county veterinarian, is testing a dog trap designed like an old-fashioned rabbit trap to catch strays. Built of half-inch steel rod and baited with meat, the trap caught five dogs in four days.

Losses in livestock have prompted the authorities to make their drive on the stray dogs.

Phants Drop Non-Conference Tilt To Wilson

It was a cold day for the Phantoms baseball club yesterday as they bowed 8-4 in a non-conference tilt to a host Wilson team on the windy field.

Larry Roberts, top Phantom hurler, was retired from the mound with a sore elbow. Roberts, according to Phantom coach Phillips, was being nursed for a conference game with Jacksonville Friday.

This second straight loss for the Greenville club stemmed from walks and errors. The Wilson team got off two hits in the game, but eleven walks and a number of errors gave them the win.

and eight hits to Wilson's eight runs, two hits.

Wilson got off to a quick two point lead with a run in the second half of the first inning from a home run by Rogers, and a run by Barwell who was on base when Rogers got off his hit.

The second inning saw the Phantoms rally for three runs while Wilson scored only one to tie the score at the beginning of the third inning.

The third inning, however, saw the Greenville mound walk four men for Wilson. Each of them went on to score, giving the Wilson club a four point lead.

In the fourth Greenville gained a point while Wilson didn't score. The fifth inning saw Wilson score the last run in the game, again from a walk.

The sixth inning saw no scoring and Greenville's half of the seventh ended with three up, three down. Wilson didn't play the final half of the seventh.

Phantom club coach Phillips commented this morning, "It was anything but baseball weather over there. The cold and windy field was really hard on the pitchers. Wilson only got two hits, but those 11 walks and the errors were a big factor in the game. Our hitters were doing all right." The Greenville team will travel to Jacksonville Friday for a conference game and will play here again with Washington April 28 in a conference game.

Minnesota Twins Starting Better Than Old Braves

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's too early to call Washington's move to Minnesota another "Milwaukee miracle." A comparison, however, with Boston's move to Wisconsin in 1953 is interesting.

The transplanted Senators, now the Twins, are faring much better than the Braves did at a corresponding date eight years ago. No matter how they fare in Boston today, the transplanted Twins must go home to Minnesota Thursday with a winning record. In beating the Red Sox Tuesday 3-2, the Twins boosted their record to five victories in six starts and increased their first-place lead in the American League to a full game over the idle Cleveland Indians.

Rain, snow and cold weather wiped out the rest of the AL schedule.

The National League was able to get in three of its four games. Cincinnati took over first place, defeating the Giants in San Francisco 9-1. The Dodgers knocked St. Louis out of its first-place tie, shading the Cardinals 5-4 in Los Angeles. Pittsburgh opened its home season defeating the Chicago Cubs 5-3. Rain washed out the game in Philadelphia with Milwaukee leading 3-1 after an inning and a half.

The Braves in 1953 won their first two but at the end of six games, showed only a 3-3 record. The Braves went on to win 92 games to finish a strong second to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Perhaps the most encouraging thing about the Twins is that each day brings a different player in a starring role. Four shared that role Tuesday, including a couple of pitchers not named Camilo Pascual or Pedro Ramos.

The pitchers who brought a gleam of joy to Manager Cookie Lavagetto's eyes were Jim Kaat, a 22-year-old southpaw making his first start of the season, and Bill Peis, a rookie left-hander, only recently placed on the roster. Kaat held the Red Sox to one hit until the eighth as his mates staked him to a 3-0 lead against right-hander Billy Muffett. When he weakened in the eighth, Cookie brought in Peis, who squelched a Boston uprising and went on to hurl 1 2-3 innings of hitless ball. Outfielders Jim Lemon and Lennie Green furnished the main batting support, getting six hits between them. Lemon walloped his first home run in the sixth and eventually proved to be the winning run. Green cracked four hits, scored the first run and sacrificed the second into scoring position.

BOB BILBRO IS TEAM CAPTAIN . . . for the 1961-62 University of North Carolina swimming team.

CHAPLAIN—Bob Bilbro of Greenville has been elected co-captain of the 1961-62 University of North Carolina swimming team.

He will serve with Bob Briggs, Bilbro, a rising senior, was one of the "big six" last season who carried the bulk of the scoring load for Carolina. The freestyler and backstroke won four first places in 12 meets as the Tar Heels raced to a 9-3 record and the tri-championship of the ACC.

Quarterback Gabriel Wields A Big Bat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roman Gabriel, a tower of strength at quarterback for the North Carolina State football team, has become equally vital to the Wolfpack's baseball squad.

The 218-pound junior from Wilmington, N.C., whose passing led N.C. State's footballers to a 6-3 record last fall, lashed out a three-run eighth inning homer Tuesday in a 5-1 conquest of Duke.

N.C. State's win pushed the Wolfpack to third place in the Atlantic Coast Conference race with a 3-1 record. Duke, meanwhile, was knocked from first to second place with a 4-1 mark.

North Carolina, with Nicky Warren besting Bob Plemmons in a sterling pitcher's battle, edged Wake Forest 2-1 to move into the conference lead. The Tar Heels are 3-0 in loop play and Wake Forest, now 3-2, fell to fourth.

Clemson overwhelmed South Carolina 21-5. In a non-conference game, Maryland lost to Navy 10-4.

Today's schedule has Wake Forest entertaining Virginia Tech in a non-conference battle in the only game. All teams are idle Thursday.

After Tuesday's firing, the teams lineup as follows:

North Carolina 3-0, Duke 4-1, N.C. State 3-1, Wake Forest 3-2, Clemson 3-3, South Carolina 1-3, Maryland 1-4, and Virginia 0-4.

Duke's Butch Williams, who hurled the distance for the Blue Devils, gave up only eight hits, but was hampered by five walks, three of which resulted in N.C. State runs.

The Greenville had picked up additional honors this spring when he was elected president of the Carolina Athletic Association and vice-president of the Monogram Club.

Warren and Plemmons allowed six hits each in the North Carolina-Wake Forest battle. A homer by Len Dellolio started a two-run sixth inning rally that gave the Tar Heels their victory. The winning run was scored by Carroll Bolick, who came home on Heyward Hull's long drive to left centerfield.

Clemson scored 10 runs in the first inning, and then poured it on the hapless Gamecocks, who could get only five hits. Damon Vincent, a sophomore right-hander, was the winning pitcher and also knocked out a double and Homer against South Carolina.

Veteran Champ Ready To Fight Anywhere

LONDON (AP) — Have crown, will travel. Was lightweight champion Joe Brown's pledge today after whipping Dave Charnley in his record 10th defense.

"I am ready to travel anywhere in the world to defend my crown," said the 35-year-old American with the elegant touch, who outpointed the British and European champion in 15 brilliant rounds before 18,000 at London's Earl's Court Stadium Tuesday night.

Even two sets of swollen knuckles and the actions of spectators who jeered the decision couldn't dampen the spirits of the Baton Rouge, La., Negro, who may pocket as much as $50,000 from the bout.

He'll go anywhere to fight, he said, and that might mean the Philippines, where he has an offer to defend against either Flash Elorde or Bert Somodio.

Philippine promoter Lope Sarreal made the bid to Brown and his manager, Lou Viscusi, within minutes of the final bell.

The decision touched off an outburst of booing by many in the hometown crowd. Brawling broke out in some parts of the hall. A butler conked one fan on the head.

Police escorted referee Tommy Little, the sole official, from the ring through a line of jeering fans.

Brown shrugged off the demonstration.

Man, you get to expect this kind of thing when you're fighting away from home," he said. "After all, this isn't Houston."

Most observers agreed that Brown had all the class and deserved the decision after leaving the blood-soaked Charnley with nothing but his fighting heart.

Brown, who stopped Charnley on cuts in five rounds in their first title bout in Houston 16 months ago, opened a cut on the bridge of the Briton's nose in the first round that bled freely the rest of the way. He fought back gamely in the last four rounds but Brown stayed in control.

After the bout, Charnley's right eye was swollen shut and he had a cut under his left eye as well as on the nose. The blow that opened the nose cut also damaged Brown's knuckles on his right hand.

"That was the turning point," said Brown. "In the fifth when I caught him smack on the nose with my right. I knew it was a good punch. I saw his nose split open and I felt my knuckles go."

"I hurt my left hand right after that, so I was forced to take it a little easy. But this Charnley is a real good fighter. A tough guy, and he gave me trouble all the way."

MIGHTY MITE . . . by Pap

"Mighty Mite"

Jim Beatty stands 5-foot-6, weighs 128 pounds and is 26 years old. Just to look at Beatty, one would hardly select him as one of the world's outstanding athletes. Least of all, suspect that he is a sub-four-minute miler and able to more than hold his own running any distance from the half-mile through three miles. Even when he steps out on the track, one can't picture those short, stubby legs carrying him along at a pace to match the longstriding stringbeans in the distance races. Jim's great competitive heart doesn't show until the final sprint to the tape. That's when it becomes apparent that nature gave Beatty something extra to offset his being short-changed in the physique department.

Because of unimpressive build, his victories are very often hailed as upsets. This amuses Jim. Don't folks know that the former University of North Carolina runner has not been beaten at the mile or two miles on the boards the past two seasons? Or that he ran a 3:58 mile last spring? Because Istvan Rozsavolgyi, who had come all the way from Hungary for the avowed purpose of winning the American indoor mile championship, was undefeated in five straight mile races folks figured it to be a great upset when Beatty out-smarted and out-traced him to take the crown. How could they forget the night in Madison Square Garden when Little Jim out-kicked Oregon's Dwyer Burlison in much the same fashion to win the 1960 Baxter mile? Recently, Beatty tipped past Ernie Cunliffe to win a 1,000-yard special in Cleveland. Earlier, Cunliffe had set a world indoor record for the distance.

George Eastment, the Manhattan college and Olympic team coach calls Beatty: "The greatest miler this country has produced." The gentlemen from Hungary, along with a host of other stars, seconds the motion.

Burlington, Winston-Salem And Wilson Win Carolina Loop Openers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winston-Salem, Burlington and Wilson scored victories Tuesday night as the Class B Carolina League opened its season in near-freezing weather.

Julio Guerra hurled a four-hitter in Burlington's 6-0 victory over Durham at Durham, Wilson rallied to six runs in the ninth to defeat Raleigh 12-8, and Winston-Salem scored a 5-2 victory over Greensboro.

Tonight Raleigh plays at Wilson, Durham at Burlington and Winston-Salem at Greensboro.

Raleigh had the largest opening night crowd, 1,337.

Raleigh Manager Enos Slaughter, playing like a youngster, banged out a double, a single and got two walks but his team lost.

A crowd of 437 turned out at Durham's opener and saw Julio Guerra, Cuban Negro from Havana, display top form in pitching Burlington to its victory. He walked only two batters and struck out eight.

A crowd of 700 braved 44-degree weather at Winston-Salem to see the Red Sox down Greensboro behind the pitching of Wilbur Wood.

Eichmann Tells Israeli Court He 'Followed Orders'

Best Announces Crusade Workers

Dr. A. A. Best yesterday announced Cancer Crusade captains and workers assisting in the visitation of local Negro residences and businessmen.

"Actually," says Dr. Best, "the work is already under way, but our principal effort will be made on Saturday and Sunday."

"I'm hoping—all of us are hoping—the response to the Cancer Crusade will be generous. It can't be overemphasized that lives will be saved by knowing and heeding the danger signals of cancer. The Cancer Crusade volunteer is bringing a message on how to save your life, as well as offering an opportunity to contribute to the means of learning how to defeat cancer, the means of helping cancer patients, the means of educating the public against cancer."

POPULATION BEATS CHURCHES

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — In the last 13 years, Sacramento's population has grown twice as fast as local church membership, and only a fourth of the 500,719 residents are now members of city churches, it was disclosed in a citywide religious survey taken by 159 Protestant churches, 15 Catholic churches and a Jewish synagogue.

DR. ANDREW BEST
Captains of the teams of Crusade volunteers have been an-

JERUSALEM (AP)—In his own words replayed today from a tape recording, Adolf Eichmann said he expects the death penalty and is "ready to atone."

"I know that I can expect the death sentence and I don't ask for clemency," the former Gestapo colonel told Israeli police who questioned him after his capture in Argentina last year.

"I cannot claim mercy because I know I am not worthy of it," Eichmann said in the statement, which was recorded in June 1960.

In support of the charges that Eichmann was the operational director of the Nazi plan to exterminate Europe's Jews, the prosecution began replaying extended excerpts from 77 cartons of tape recordings of the pretrial interrogation.

His voice echoing hoarsely through the Jerusalem courtroom while he himself sat listening in the prisoner's dock, Eichmann said that before his death he would like to write a book. He said he wanted the younger generation to know what happened in Nazi Germany and the reasons for it.

Eichmann said he had been told in January 1960 that "I would be brought to trial and that I would not live beyond my 58th year."

He is 55 now. He did not identify the prophet.

"The first part of this prophecy already has come to pass," he said in the recorded statement.

"This case finds me in complete readiness and without any regard for my personality to tell everything that I know."

"I have always been accustomed to discipline from my childhood right through 1945—unreserved discipline."

"I knew what disobedience would have meant for me. But matters of planning until 1945 were not handed to me at any time during the preceding 10 years. I was in a lower rank than the policy makers and planners."

"I cannot claim that I had clean hands. Those who planned and gave instructions, however, got off cheaply by suicide. Others are now dying or are not to be found."

"I know I should have hanged myself in public so that all the anti-Semites in the world would have had these terrible events stressed for them."

Eichmann pictured himself as a man who recoiled from the sight of blood and nearly fainted when he was forced to witness Jews being gassed to death in the Nazi extermination camps.

"I couldn't look. I tried to avert my eyes from the sight. I was too appalled to look," he said.

Dim View Taken By Centenarian

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Robert C. Martin observed his 100th birthday today by reading the scripture.

"The end of time ain't far off," he said. "The Russians have gone too far in sending a man into space. They're trying to outwit the Lord."

The retired carpenter spends most of his time listening to the radio.

"If the news don't suit me, I turn it off," he said.

Air Base Blaze Kills 4 Children

LIMESTONE, Maine (AP)—Four children of an Air Force couple perished in a fire at their quarters on the giant Loring Air Force Base early today.

The Air Force said the victims were: Michael P. 4; Nicholas J. 2; and twins Anthony W. and Mary M., 5 months, children of Lt. and Mrs. William R. Haskett.

The parents were admitted to the base hospital. Mrs. Haskett suffered minor shock and her husband minor cuts.

Capt. J. B. Cotner, Air Force medical officer, said the four children died of asphyxiation from smoke.

In describing his reactions the reactions the first time he saw Jews put to death.

Eichmann also said:

1. The order for the physical extermination of the Jews during World War II came directly from Adolf Hitler. They were transmitted to him, he said, by Reinhard Heydrich, chief of the security police of Nazi Germany.

2. He protested to his immediate superior, SS Gen. Heinrich Mueller, and others, that execution was not the way to resolve "the Jewish problem."

3. He begged Mueller not to send him to the death camps for further reports. He said that when he did go, he saw as little as possible.

Eichmann spoke in a deep, halting voice. There were many long pauses, and many times he told his interrogators, "I don't know. I can't remember exactly about that."

As he listened to the playback, Eichmann's expression changed. Herebefore it had been wooden, impassive, showing nothing.

Today, he leaned back with what appeared to be a satisfied air. A small, almost benign smile played around the edges of his thin lips.

Before the playing of the tapes began, Capt. Ayner Less read to the court a transcript of an interrogation session in which Eichmann said he was testifying freely into the recording machines.

Hasn't Bothered To Count Days

HARLAN, Ky. (AP)—Time hangs heavy for Milt Rankin. He's been in the Harlan County jail nearly four years and might stay four more.

"I've never bothered to figure the day I'm supposed to get out," says Rankin, 33, a former coal miner serving out a $5,000 fine at the legal rate of $2 a day.

The jury that convicted Rankin of running a disorderly house also sentenced him to a year in jail.

Republicans Show Signs Of 'Picking Up Pieces'

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans gave some signs today they are beginning to pick up the pieces of their presidential election defeat and fit together a new pattern of unity.

An invitation for Richard M. Nixon to confer with GOP congressional leaders Thursday was interpreted generally as signaling a decline in criticism by many Republicans of the former vice president for losing the election.

Senate liberals expressed satisfaction over a pledge their views will be heard before the weekly "Ev and Charlie" television program is put on by Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and House GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

Chairman Thruston B. Morton told Republican National Committee members they are going to get the opportunity to pick their own head man as his successor. The committee dutifully elected the men former President Dwight D. Eisenhower tapped when he occupied the White House.

Morton said he expects the party's executive committee, meeting here Friday, to come up with a formula for a nominating committee of sorts. The chairman has declined to name such a committee himself or to recommend a successor.

Because some committee members have been grumbling against any effort to handpick a new chairman, the executive group may set up a committee on a geographical basis to list several names that might be voted on at a June 2 session of the national committee.

In this connection, three new names have been tossed into the speculation over Morton's successor. They are Walter Williams, former undersecretary of commerce and a 1952 Citizens-for-Eisenhower official; former Secretary of Interior Fred Seaton, and former Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield.

However, Rep. William E. Miller of New York, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, still is looked upon as the most likely choice to succeed Morton.

Morton said in an interview that Nixon had written many Republicans asking for their advice on the political issues they think he ought to explore in a 10-day speaking tour he has arranged early in May. He said that when the leaders learned Nixon planned to be in Washington, they invited him to sit in with them. The leaders will visit Gettysburg, Pa., May 1 to confer with Eisenhower.

Dirksen said Nixon had indicated "he would like to have our estimate of the legislative picture and I gathered he wanted to make some political soundings, too."

Liberals won an agreement Tuesday that the Senate Republican Policy Committee will be called into session frequently for an expression of views on issues that may be touched on by Dirksen and Halleck in their program taped weekly for television.

Chairman Styles Bridges of New Hampshire said he thinks these sessions will result in more harmony among the Republicans.

Winners Selected In Talent Hunt Event

WINTERVILLE — Winners were selected in the areas of Spiritual Music, Oratorical and Dancing at the countywide Talent Hunt held for the first time Saturday at the Robinson Union High School here.

Winners included Ervin Cox, member of the senior 4-H Club of South Ayden School; Tyrone Hopkins, member of the senior 4-H Club of Pitt County Training School in Grimesland; Peggy Perkins, Mary Langely and Peggy Chance, members of the senior 4-H Club of Bethel High School; Deloris Council, Bettie Jean Moore, Ella Briley, Bernice Brown and Geraldine Williams, members of the Junior 4-H Club of Sally Branch School.

Mary Davis served as mistress of ceremonies for the event, which was attended by over 200 4-H Club members from throughout Pitt County.

Following the Talent Hunt, all club members were entertained with music and dancing.

Judge Receiving Home Remedies

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Criminal Court Judge L. A. Grayson, who recently denied he had any occult powers to banish warts, now has a large enough stock of home remedies to write a book on the subject.

Remedies started pouring in from all over the country after an elementary school teacher asked the judge's help in getting rid of warts on one of her students.

She said she heard the judge could remove warts by "just looking at them."

Grayson said he'd be "cutting out" warts instead of judging criminals if he had that type of power.

Grayson said he "will give" the whole batch of suggested cures over to the teacher.

Barber Shop Harmony Show Due Here

VAGABONDS . . . of Winston-Salem are one of three quartets which will appear during the Second Annual Barber Shop Harmony Show here April 22. Left to right are Jack Bennett, Pete Cromer, Bob Bennett, and Jap Cromer. The group were Dixie District Champions at St. Petersburg, Fla., in 1952.

The Second Annual Barber Shop Harmony Show, featuring well known out-of-town quartets, will be presented here on Saturday, April 22, it was announced today. The event is being sponsored by the Pitt County Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America. The show will begin at 8 p.m. at McGinnis Auditorium, East Carolina College campus. Proceeds will go to the Rose High band of Greenville.

The Dixie Colonels of High Point, current Dixie District Champions and regional alternates for three years, will appear on the program. Organized in 1957, this quartet is composed of Red Sechrest, tenor; Glad Lawson, lead; Dave Livengood, baritone; and Jerry Livengood, bass. A second quartet which will appear are the Vagabonds of Winston-Salem, semi-finalist, international competition held in Omaha, 1950; finalist in Toledo in 1951; finals Kansas City in 1952; and Dixie District Champions in 1952. The Vagabonds include Jack Bennett, tenor; Pete Cromer, lead; Bob Bennett, baritone; and Jap Cromer, bass. Composed of two sets of brothers, this group organized in 1949.

The Dixiecrats, a local chapter quartet, will also appear. The quartet includes Gilbert Windham, tenor; Don Carson, lead; Les Garner, baritone; and Frank Hill, bass. The Pitt County Chapter Chorus will sing eight to 10 songs of Barber Shop in addition to the above program. The chorus is composed of about 30 men who enjoy singing this form of music. Officers are Frank T. Hill, president of Greenville; John Broom, vice president of Farmville; Bruce Carter, secretary of Greenville; and Charles Little, treasurer of Greenville. This show will turn over to the Rose High Band of Greenville all proceeds, to help the band take a trip to the Cherry Festival in Washington, D. C.

Laos Military Situation Worrying U.S. Observers

WASHINGTON (AP) — American authorities were more concerned today over the dangerous military situation in Laos than by the decision of former Premier Souvanna Phouma to skip Washington on his world tour.

The State Department announced Tuesday night that the Laotian neutralist leader cancelled his projected visit as a private citizen in order to return to Laos "on schedule" by way of Peiping.

Some Western diplomats expressed themselves as "80 per cent certain" that Souvanna Phouma will come here at a later date for talks with President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk on neutralizing the Southeast Asian kingdom.

The State Department pointed out that Souvanna Phouma had planned to cut short his scheduled visit here by one day in order to make a side trip to the Black Sea resort of Sochi for a talk with Soviet Premier Khrushchev. This meant that instead of arriving Tuesday night for a round of talks today with Kennedy and Rusk, Souvanna Phouma would not arrive until late today. He still insisted on returning to Moscow at noon Thursday.

In a note delivered through the U. S. Embassy in Moscow, Souvanna Phouma was informed that Rusk would be out of town Thursday—making a speech in Atlanta—and would be unable to see him.

With a show of pique, officials said, he notified the United States through his secretary in Moscow that he was calling off the U. S. trip.

Washington officials noted that the United States had always felt that Souvanna Phouma could be of more use at home than abroad in arranging a peaceful settlement of the Laos struggle.

Souvanna Phouma had been outspoken in blaming the United States for perpetuating the conflict in Laos. On his arrival Sunday in Moscow, the prince profusely thanked the Soviet Union for providing "unrestricted aid" to his government.

Moscow still recognizes Souvanna Phouma as the "legal" head of the government. The United States backs the government of Premier Bouin Oum which forced Souvanna Phouma into exile last December.

Souvanna Phouma had been entertained in Moscow as an official guest. Traveling here as a private citizen, he would have been paying his own expense.

The prospect of a divided Laos was increasing as the result of advances by the Communist forces of the Mekong River border with rected rebels to within 20 miles Thailand.

Appearing In Voice And Piano Recital Sunday

AYDEN — Nelda Christine Ormond, senior at South Ayden High School, will appear in a piano and vocal recital on Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in the South Ayden School Gymnasium.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Ormond of 1301 S. Lee St., Ayden.

A member of the National Piano Guild for Young Musicians, Miss Ormond attended the National High School Music Institute, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., during the summer of 1959 and in 1960 she studied at Virginia State College.

For the past two and a half years, Miss Ormond has been a private piano student of Dr. Robert Carter and the last one year a private vocal student of Mrs. Gladys White. She will graduate with honors and plans to enter the School of Music at Howard University in the fall.

Miss Ormond's accompanist will be Miss Bettye Franks, music teacher at South Ayden School.

Navy Sees Need Of More Anti-Submarine Weapons

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Red China's growing submarine fleet — it is believed to total more than 20 long-range, modern craft — has added a new dimension to the navy's man-size problem of defending this country's shipping lanes and coasts.

But the big menace is posed by an estimated 400 Soviet submarines, most of them advanced, far-ranging types and some capable of firing missiles, although apparently not as deep-striking as the U.S. Polaris rocket with its 1,200-mile reach.

Rear Adm. Lloyd M. Mustin, the Navy's anti-submarine warfare chief, said in an interview that as things stand "we could win" any test of strength with the Communist bloc sub fleet — but not without losses.

There are others in the Navy, and outside, who contend that the ground for doubt about present U.S. capability in this field.

U.S. Navy officials are operating on the assumption the U.S.S.R. soon will have nuclear-powered subs — if it doesn't have them already.

So far, none have been spotted.

but officials speculated the Soviets may be holding them from view while working out remaining bugs.

The advent of Soviet nuclear subs will multiply demands on U.S. anti-submarine forces, some say by as much as 5 or 10 times.

This is because atomic-propelled undersea craft can stay submerged indefinitely, thus defying surface and air detection. They can travel underwater at more than 20 knots, as compared with 5 or 6 knots of conventional subs.

If and when the Soviets muster 20 or more nuclear subs, the problem of coping with them may take on critical proportions, officials said.

However, "We know what to do about it," Mustin said, claiming the U.S. Navy has the techniques and weapons in quality.

The question, in the admiral's view, is quantity.

At the present rate of acquiring ships, helicopters, nuclear depth charges and torpedoes, supersensitive sonar detecting gear and the like, "We won't cut the mustard," Mustin said.

"We've got to find some means to provide more money for anti-submarine warfare capability or we're going to fall behind," he said.

Over-all, the Communist bloc has about 450 submarines. The United States has more than 100. Of these, 17 are nuclear-powered. In addition, Britain and other nations friendly to the United States have about 100 subs. None are nuclear, although Britain is building its first.

How can U.S. officials speak with assurance of Communist sub numbers?

"We know every one of their subs by name and number," Mustin said, adding that the United States has pictures of many of them, taken by patrol planes.

About 75 per cent of the Soviet subs have been built since 1950. Mustin said the reason the number stays at around 400 is that as new boats join the Red fleet, older ones are retired.

"We believe the Russians have been building nuclear and conventional subs at the rate of about 20 a year," Mustin said.

He estimated the Communist Chinese have been building Soviet-type boats at what he called a "modest but continuing rate" of about five a year.

For the coming fiscal year, President Kennedy's budget calls for funds to construct 13 subs — 10 of them missile-firing Polaris craft. All would be atomic.

Navy anti-submarine warfare specialists indicate they do not yet regard the Communist Chinese sub threat as serious.

They stress it takes more than the subs alone — that it takes a high degree of skill in the complicated technique of undersea warfare. So far U.S. experts do not believe the Chinese have undertaken any effective operational sub training program.

About 100 Soviet submarines are based in Far Eastern waters and conceivably could team with the Red Chinese, if the need arose.

Mustin said that in Soviet submarine operations "geography is against them."

He noted the Soviet Union's main access to the North Atlantic is from bases in the far north, on the Kola Peninsula near Finland.

Narrow outlets from the Baltic and the Black Sea could easily be stopped up and a Communist sub base in Albania would be highly vulnerable.

In the Pacific, chief Soviet sub bases are in southern Siberia and the lower Kamchatka Peninsula above Japan.

Granting conventional subs a maximum practical operational range of 5,000 miles, Mustin said this would permit effective use of Soviet undersea craft as far south as the bulge of Brazil in the Atlantic and the Panama Canal in the Pacific.

Mustin conceded these areas take in the principal water routes connecting the United States with the rest of the free world.

But he said the deploying of antisubmarine forces in the northern Pacific below the Aleutians could pretty well block off Soviet undersea marauders from that direction.

And he implied a similar barrier made up of carriers, destroyers, planes and helicopters could deal with any Soviet sub units coming down from the European north.

Ex-Cabinet Member Is New Jersey Nominee

NEWARK, N. J. (AP) — James P. Mitchell, newly nominated Republican candidate for governor of New Jersey, said today he will call on some old friends from the Eisenhower administration to boost his coming campaign.

Mitchell, former labor secretary, beat out two rivals in the Republican primary election Tuesday. In a victory statement, he said he had the support of many former President Dwight D. Eisenhower; former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Richard J. Hughes, 51, a former judge who won the Democratic nomination with only token opposition, said that if Mitchell brings in national figures, he will consider calling on help from President Kennedy.

Returns from 4,379 of 4,394 districts in the primary election gave Mitchell 199,457 votes. State Sen. Walter H. Jones 156,933 and State Sen. Wayne Dumont Jr., 94,617.

Mitchell's victory over the veteran state legislator installed a new leadership at the head of New Jersey's Republican party, with Sen. Clifford P. Case, a liberal Republican, in command.

Jones ran with the backing of two-thirds of the GOP county organizations. Mitchell and Case said Jones represented an old-line leadership that had squandered the party's supremacy in the eight years since Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner was elected.

Meyner could not run for a third term. He leaves office next January.

Republicans around the nation, many of them graduates of the Eisenhower administration.

chipped in to finance Mitchell's challenge to the GOP leaders in residence. Eisenhower himself kicked off the campaign by presenting a $100 bill to Mitchell.

While Mitchell and Case will be steering the GOP ship in New Jersey it will need some caulking before the November election. Jones, 48, was particularly angry at being tabbed an old-line party boss by some Mitchell backers. Jones heads the biggest Republican organization in the state.

Mitchell, 60, acknowledges his problems when he said soon after he won that his first job would be to patch things up with the Bergen County organization and Dumont's Warren County group.

Dumont, 46, a lawyer from Phillipsburg, the small town that sent Meyner to the state house, never had the backing either of his opponents had and was quickly out of the running in Tuesday's voting.

Hughes is a relative novice at running for office, too. The Democratic nominee's only previous try was an unsuccessful run for Congress in 1938. He served later as an assistant U. S. attorney, a county judge and a state judge. He resigned from the state's second highest court in 1957 because, he said, he could not make enough money to support his wife and nine children.

Traveling Art Exhibits Shown

Three traveling art exhibitions, including the work of both students and faculty members at East Carolina College, are now hung in banks in Greenville, Rocky Mount, and Goldsboro, and will be on view for the remainder of the month.

The art shows, sponsored by East Carolina and its department of art, are presented with the idea of sharing with the public in Eastern North Carolina some of the cultural advantages of the college.

The project of the traveling exhibitions was put into operation through the encouragement of a committee of forty citizens from all parts of Eastern North Carolina who met at the college last January to discuss ways in which the college might help in developing the cultural potential of the area which it serves.

A series of exhibitions has been staged since that time in banks in Rocky Mount, Wilson, Goldsboro, Washington and Greenville.

The art shows from the college, opening April 18, are as follows:

Oil Paintings by Donald Sexauer of the faculty, Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., Greenville; Casein Paintings by Freshman Students, Peoples Bank and Trust Co., Rocky Mount; and Oil and Casein Paintings by Advanced Students of Art, American Bank, Goldsboro.

May Conference On Peaceful Use Of Space Slated

TULSA, OKLA. — The first national conference on the peaceful uses of space will be held in Tulsa, May 26 and 27. The nation's leading authorities in space science, medicine and education, as well as top industry leaders and government planners, will participate in the two-day meeting, which is expected to have an attendance of more than 2,000.

Announcement of this important conference was made at the White House following a call on President Kennedy by Sen. Robert S. Kerr, Chairman of the Senate Aeronautical and Space Science Committee; James E. Webb, Administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and Harold C. Stuart, Tulsa attorney and former assistant secretary of the Air Force, who is the conference chairman.

Sponsors of the conference are NASA and the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce. Eight professional societies and trade associations will co-sponsor.

The conference will feature major addresses by Sen. Kerr, Mr. Webb and Lloyd V. Berkner, Chairman of the Space Science Board, National Academy of Sciences. Present status and the future of manned space flights; the peaceful application of space science to future communications systems, weather forecasting and navigation will be among the subjects covered in a series of panel discussions.

Registrants will also hear first hand reports on the progress of nuclear propulsion of space vehicles, space probes, weather and communications satellites and launch vehicle programs by a group of NASA experts.

Co-sponsors are Aerospace Industries Association of America, Aerospace Medical Association, American Astronautical Society, American Institute of Biological Sciences, American Rocket Society, Frontiers of Science Foundation, Electronic Industries Association and the Institute of the Aerospace Sciences.

PEACE CORPS TIP
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the government's planned "peace corps" program, "the wishes and needs of the people with whom we desire to cooperate should be the prime consideration," says a committee of the Catholic Association for International Peace.

Science At Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Exploding stars, the pulse of a volcano, and a building brick of life are topics of scientific news: Cooked Worlds?

Astronomers recently detected two nova—two stars which suddenly exploded in glowing light and heat and other energy. A nova later subsides to its former faintness.

But the sudden, rapid expansion could well have burned or cooked any nearby planets and their living things or "people." Whether this happened in the case of the two stars can only be a matter of speculation, since no one can know if they ever had planets. The nova were detected by Drs. Jason J. Nassau and Charles B. Stephenson of Case Institute of Technology.

Taking the pulse of a volcano, experts predict that Kilauea volcano in Hawaii is building up to another major eruption. It has been re-inflating itself with magma or molten material from deep in the earth. Another sign is swarms of tiny, shallow earthquakes similar to those preceding major eruptions in 1955 and 1960.

But the exact date for an eruption cannot be foretold, say scientists at the Geological Survey Hawaiian Volcano Observatory, Raindrop Barrage.

The biggest raindrops usually fall at the start of a storm. Winds are the main reason. The larger drops are less affected by winds, hence fall more vertically, while smaller drops are blown out of vertical path, explain Prof. A. Nelson Dingle and Kenneth R. Hardy, University of Michigan Meteorological Laboratory. They add it takes about a million cloud droplets of average size to form one raindrop.

Brick of Life
Proteins of living bodies—the flesh, nerves, hair and tendons—are composed of building bricks known as amino acids. Generally some 20 of them, arranged in specific fashion, make up the different proteins.

Now a new amino acid has been discovered in collagen, the tendon material, by University of Cincinnati researchers. They report it is the first new amino acid found since 1925. The finding opens new fields for research, including the question whether certain collagen diseases depend upon presence or absence of this amino acid.

Watching color TV is usually easier on a person's eyes than a black and white screen, says the Vision Conservation Institute. But color TV helps spot some eye troubles which might otherwise pass unnoticed. For example, far-sighted persons usually can see blues and greens more clearly than red colors, and a blurring or distortion while viewing red colors could signal the need for an eye examination.

Fun, Work And Laughs In Extracurricular Activity

By SANDRA ALLEN
FARMVILLE — Fun, laughter, hard work, headaches, lack of sleep, and minute preparation, all go into the making of successful extra curricular activities.

Highlighting the school year, the Junior-Senior was held last week. "The Old South" applied an appropriate theme in connection with the centennial of the Civil War. Donned in the festive array of the "Old South," twelve waiters and waitresses served at the banquet for the Juniors and Seniors.

A short skit—presented by Su Su Dixon, who portrayed an old-fashioned girl; and Marion Allen, who portrayed a 20th century girl—opened the banquet. Other entertainment was furnished by Ann Staton Everett who did two jazz dances.

Held at the National Guard Armory, the prom's decor consisted of a scene representative of the South long ago. Junior and Senior class officers and their dates officially opened the proms at 10 p.m. with the figure dance.

Following the prom, participants in the festivities, proceeded to the theater to see "Imitation of Life," then closing the festivities was the breakfast.

To bed and sweet dreams for some, to the beach for others, all climaxing an exciting weekend to be remembered for a long while.

Tired and sleepy-eyed, eight students arose bright and early the next morning, April 8, to attend the East Carolina Press Institute held at East Carolina College. Being recipients of two awards, one for the best news story presented to Harry Anderson, and for the best sports story presented to J. Y. Monk, made the day a success.

Two weeks ago the Senior class sponsored the "Spring Follies" production. The top prize-winning class was the sophomore class. A first place in the talent, a second in the stunt, and a second in the queen contest put them in front.

The seniors took a first place in the stunt, the juniors a second in talent, and the freshman candidate, Miss Linda Mosley, reigned over the festivities by being elected as queen for the 1961 Follies.

On April 6, all science projects were displayed in the gym at the annual P.T.A. Openhouse. In the Senior Physical Division, first place went to Ben Moore's project on Chromatography. Second place went to J.Y. Monk, Billy Walker, Eva Mae Lewis, Gina Allen, and Barbara Jean Wheeler's project, "The Study of Ph."

Third place was taken by Harry Anderson's and Julie Jones's project on "The Nuclear Reactor."

In the Senior Biological Division, first place was awarded to the project, "Side Effects of Thorazine on White Rats," by Noel Lang, Eddie Thomas, and Junior. Second place was awarded to Billy Briley and Monty Pickett's project, "The Effect of Radioactivity on Goldfish," and a third place was awarded to Becky Young, Daisy Tyson, and Franchon McLawhorn for their project, "The Chicken Embryo."

The annual Library Club Convention was attended by six local high school library assistants. The students left for Asheville April 13, and returned on April 16. Those attending were Julie Jones, Melba Dixon, Carol Blackley, Brenda Corbett, Evelyn Andrews, and Betsy Allen, accompanied by Mrs. Beverly Batchlor, high school librarian, and Mr. Batchlor.

Certified To Be Commissioner

FOUNTAIN—G.E. Trevathan of Fountain has been officially certified as a commissioner to the 101st General Assembly of the General Assembly, Presbyterian Church, U.S.

Dr. James A. Millard, Jr., stated clerk of the General Assembly, made the announcement today. Trevathan will attend as a commissioner from the Presbytery of Albemarle. He has been appointed to the Standing Committee on Annuities and Relief, which will study proposals concerning the retirement and hospitalization funds and policies for church employees, and the ministerial relief program work of the church.

The Centennial Assembly will meet in Dallas, Texas on April 27-May 3 and will bring together more than 530 church leaders from 80 presbyteries in all the Southern states. The General Assembly is the highest court of the church and meets annually to establish the laws and programs under which the church operates.

His Own Warning 'Home To Roost'

TORRINGTON, Wyo. (AP) — W. R. McBrayer, a Torrington insurance man, sponsors a special feature on radio station KGOS. Whenever the town fire alarm sounds, the station announcer gives listeners the location of the fire and follows it up with "the next time the siren sounds it may be your property."

The alarm sounded recently. When firemen arrived at the scene they found McBrayer surveying nearly $600 in damages done to his car when it caught fire. Molly Pitcher, the heroine of the American Revolution, is buried in Carlisle, Pa.

Liner Leased For Use As Floating University

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — "A director, says the college afloat will visit ports in Africa, Asia and Latin America."

"While at sea, students will attend classes as if they were in any stateside institution," Nichols said.

"In port they will be occupied in field trips, seminars at local universities and visiting in the homes of the people of each area."

"A full college course of 15 credits will be offered for each semester's sailing."

A land-based administration will be located in the continental United States. Operational costs will be met by tuition.

The cost of a semester aboard will include tuition, board, room, passage and land arrangements.

"It will be less than a student's expenses for a year at many land-based institutions and will range from $2,500 to $3,500 depending on accommodations," the announcement says. Junior standing or a bachelor's degree will be required of students.

Officials say they have chartered the S. S. Jerusalem, "one of the most modern passenger liners afloat," from the Zim Israel Navigation Co. of Haifa, Israel.

The trustees include three college professors, a former college president, a former school superintendent, a retired admiral, a retired U.S. department of Agriculture entomologist and a lumber company president. William T. Hughes, president of the Whittier Pipe and Supply Co., heads the trustees.

Castro Regime Has Bad Case Of Nerves

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Associated Press News Analyst
MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cuban anti-Castro rebels can claim one victory today. Their activities have given the Castro regime a bad case of frayed nerves.

It is clear from the sparse reports from the embattled island that the regime is taking desperate measures to prevent the fever of revolt from spreading among Cubans.

That would be according to the rebel plan. It means there is some hope for the ultimate success of the invasion if the preliminary landings at various points on the island are followed up by other stabs intended to keep the Castro regime constantly off balance.

Nuisance air strikes, infiltrations and appeals to the anti-Castro underground have caused the regime to turn to terror tactics in its fear of the enemy within. Obviously the Castro government is attempting to round up and eliminate all possible internal enemies. The effort bespeaks fear that the rebels will accomplish one of their main purposes, to lure defectors to the rebel cause and rally a large sector of the Cuban people to the anti-Castro banner.

The invaders already are battling against fearful odds but, in one respect, they have the initiative. They are the attackers and they choose the time and place for the attacks.

If the invaders make significant progress, there will be indications of it in a wave of sabotage by the underground inside Cuba, such as attacks on electric power installations, communications and other nerve centers.

Merchants Plan Role In 'Salute'

Plans for the Greenville Merchants Association's part in "Pitt County's Salute to East Carolina," to be held April 23-26, were reviewed at Monday's meeting of the local association, spokesmen reported.

D. J. Whichard Jr., Public Relations Committee chairman, told the group that window posters are being distributed to merchants in Greenville and Pitt County, and said many business men are providing gifts for the students.

He added that the Moose Lodge is giving a reception for the college staff, Sunday, and urged that members make reservations for the banquet to be held on Wednesday night at which Gov. Terry Sanford will be guest speaker.

Trade Promotion Committee Chairman Morris Brody reported that Mother's and Father's Day streamers have been ordered and announced that the committee will meet May 4, to work out a city-wide May Promotion program.

One new member, Economy Homes Company, has joined the association recently, membership chairman H. L. Hodges Jr. reported.

President Larry Averette presided at the meeting.

Optimists Hear Project Report

Greenville Optimists Monday sidetracked their scheduled program and heard a report from President Walter R. Whitehurst on a Broadway-type stage production — "Help Mate" — to be sponsored by the Optimist Club in June.

Whitehurst told the Optimists preliminary plans for the June 12 staging of the three-act comedy "have worked out well so far."

The Optimists recently retained services of a representative from Houston, Tex., to assist in assembling a souvenir program for the production.

He reported that the sale of advertising in the program and from ticket sales will be used by the local Optimists in pursuing their motto: "Friend of the Boy."

In Greenville, the club has organized and maintains a junior rifle team, a Junior Optimist Club, an annual oratorical contest for youngsters, a Little League baseball team, and other youth projects.

Panel Compares 2 Alternatives

A panel compared neighborhood conservation with the proposed alternative Urban Renewal plan at a public meeting held in the county courtroom Monday night.

The panel was composed of Attorney Milton C. Williamson, W. C. Clark Jr., Charles D. Cobb, Dr. John L. Wooten, Herbert W. Lee and Dr. E. L. Browning.

A prepared release from the Association for Better Citizenship and Home Ownership, which conducted Monday night's meeting, said that two candidates for council and one for mayor endorsed the neighborhood conservation plan for city-wide redevelopment at the meeting.

The three, according to the release, were Charles M. King, candidate for mayor and J. T. Williams and Ford McGowan, candidates for seats on the City Council.

Their remarks came in independent statements volunteered during the public discussion phase of the meeting, the release said.

Suspects Fire Due To Children

GRIFTON—A grass fire which occurred Monday evening in Forest Acres may have been started by children playing with matches, Police Chief Luther Lewis said yesterday.

He reported that Grifton Volunteer Firemen, answering the call, found a book of matches at the scene. Some of the matches had been struck, while others were still in the book unused, it was reported.

There was no damage as a result of the fire.

Funeral Friday For Mrs. J. T. Jordan

Mrs. Bessie Winstead Jordan, widow of J. T. Jordan, died at her home, 1406 Dickinson Avenue, Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock following several months of illness. She was 73.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home at two o'clock Friday afternoon by her pastor, the Rev. Irby Jackson, assisted by the Rev. A. Hartwell Campbell, a former pastor. Burial will be in Maplewood Cemetery in Wilson. Deacons and former Deacons of the Immanuel Baptist Church will be honorary pallbearers.

Mrs. Jordan lived in Wilson until she moved to Greenville in 1918 with her husband. She had been a member of the Immanuel Baptist Church since that time and served as Financial Secretary of the church for 35 years and as treasurer of the Woman's Missionary Union for 30 years. She had also served on the Board of Deacons. Her husband died in 1953.

Surviving are a niece, Mrs. Bessie Lee Ross of the home; and two nephews, E. W. Rackley of Wilson and Roy Dunn of Wailops Island, Va.

Last Rites Thursday For Charlie Evans

AYDEN—Charlie Evans, 70, of Rt. 1, Ayden, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville Tuesday night. Mr. Evans had been in declining health for several months and critically ill for one week.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 3:30 p.m. from the Britt Funeral Chapel by Rev. Wayne Smith, pastor of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will be in the Dennis family cemetery near Ayden.

Mr. Evans was a lifelong resident of the Ayden community and was a farmer. He was a member of Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church and was a member of the Black Hawk Tribe No. 90, Order of Red Men.

Surviving are his wife, the former Letha Dennis; two daughters, Mrs. W. H. Rector of Arlington, Va., Mrs. W. J. McLawhorn of Alexandria, Va.; one son, J. L. Evans of Indian Head, Md.; seven grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

RESERVE MEET—NROC 7-26 observed its 12th anniversary at a dinner meeting last night. Lt. Col. I. J. Barney, Marine Air Group 26, New River, as speaker told of activities of his helicopter squadron in Project Mercury, the man-into-space program. Shown looking at a photograph of a helicopter pick-up are left to right: Capt. W. E. Campbell, commanding officer of the Rocky Mount Naval Reserve Unit; Cmdr. Grover Everette, commanding officer of the local unit; Lt. Col. Barney and LCDR R. A. Griswold, commanding officer of the Naval Reserve Training Center in Raleigh.

SCOUT NOTES

A total of 101 scouts from nine Pitt County Division troops participated in the division's Second Class Field Day held near Greenville last weekend.

The purpose of the field day was to instruct scouts working on requirements for the rank of Second Class Scout.

Troops represented included Bell Arthur (251), Ayden (176), Grifton (382), Greenville (131, 282 and 191), Stokes (414), Falkland (234) and Farmville (421).

The field day was held on the campsite behind radio station WGTC, west of Greenville.

All scouts of the Pitt Division planning to attend the Division Camporee in New Bern have been urged to assemble Thursday at 8 p.m. in the C. M. Epps High School gymnasium in Greenville.

Scout Executive Rudy Alexander said medical examinations, a

File No Charges In Collision Here

Police reported no charges were made yesterday in a collision which involved vehicles operated by Robert Scott of 1307 VanDyke St. and Ruth Tuller Harrington of Route 3, Greenville.

Investigators, who said the collision occurred on Tyson St. about 4:25 p.m., reported no damage was done to the Scott truck while an estimated $50 damage resulted to the car.

No injuries were reported.

In addition to his Masonic activity, in which he is also a Shriner, Brewer is a member of the Greenville Kiwanis Club. He is a member of the Board of Stewards at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Greenville where he is a member.

He is married to the former Louise Clark of Greenville and they have one son, Clark; and two daughters, Ann and Judy. The Brewers reside at 1001 Colonial Ave.

Brewer, a Greenville resident for more than 40 years, attended the Greenville City Schools and East Carolina College there.

No Damage From Oil Stove Fire

AYDEN—A fire resulting from an oil stove caused no damage to Smith's Store in South Ayden on Sunday morning, police said yesterday.

The fire occurred Sunday morning, when some excess oil caught fire. Firemen, called to the scene, extinguished the small blaze in a matter of minutes, Chief of Police W.D. Brooks said.
