IT'S FOR YOU. THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH. When someone says, "It's for you," our minds begin to buzz with questions. Who is it? What do they want? Good news? Bad news? Work? Pleasure? It's for you! Commanding words that summon our immediate attention. And those words apply as well to the Church as they do to a telephone call. The Church is for you! Its services of worship, its program of religious education, its comforting ministrations in time of spiritual crisis... all for you! And the Church has a vital message—good news for a discouraged world. It has a glorious work before it—a happy fellowship for men, women, and children of noble purpose. The Church deserves your support. It's for you! Copyright 1961, Keltner Adv. Service, Birmingham, Va.

The meeting was opened, business-discussed, sick members remembered with get-well cards. There were 22 members present. Among the visitors, the Council was honored by a visit from Sister Arlene Grey of Concord. She is Second Great Scout of the Great Council of North Carolina. Visitors were recognized and welcomed by the Pocahontas and members. Brother George Davis, past Great Sachem, held the lucky ticket for the door prize.

Honored guest of the evening was Miss Nell Davis, member of Coochee Council, bride-elect, whose wedding will take place June 18. Members had planned a surprise miscellaneous shower for her. Under "Good of the Order" one of the members left to bring Miss Davis in to entertain by playing the piano.

Serving on various committees of the Fine Arts Festival under the direction of chairman, Mrs. J. C. Galloway Jr., and co-chairman, Mrs. S. H. Mitchell, are Mrs. J. H. B. HOME DECORATING TODAY

By MRS. R. W. DAVENPORT
 ANY COLOR IS GOOD IF USED RIGHT

A single color by itself is neither good nor bad, pretty nor ugly. Only when you bring a color into combination with other colors does it begin to have value, for better or worse. Any single color can be graded up or down by the surroundings it is seen against. In short, any color is good if used right.

Any color scheme should be pleasing for a long time—for as long as six to ten years. That is about the life of good paint or paper.

Use bright and loud color schemes for places you pass through, such as lobbies, ticket offices. But for your home you need backgrounds that will be appropriate for a wide variety of acts—from quiet private family living to gracious entertaining of small and large groups, with women wearing all kinds of colors.

Base your color scheme on nature. Use the colors and textures found in nature. Combine them in the same ways and ratios as nature does. Study nature—you will find many shades of the same color. The color found in largest quantity will be soft. Bright colors will be found in small ratio. Patterns and textures are everywhere. Very few are thin and some are dull. Pattern is found, but there is little repeating of pattern. Study nature and from it work out a decorating scheme that will be pleasing for years to come. The Home Furniture Store has skilled personnel to help you plan your interiors. (Adv.)

A Token Symbol Of Our Affections

Pitt County's salute to East Carolina College which begins tomorrow and lasts through Wednesday can only be a token symbol of the appreciation and the deep affection the people of this county have for this educational institution.

For more than half a century now East Carolina College has been a part of Pitt County and the bonds of affection between the college and the community have grown stronger year by year. Everyone is well aware that East Carolina College belongs to all the people of North Carolina, but over the years the residents of Pitt County have taken increasing pride in referring to the institution as "Our" college. It has become as much a part of Pitt County as tobacco and farming, as churches and public schools; as much a part of the life of the county as spring planting and fall harvesting.

Certainly the people of the county are grateful for the growth of the college, for the millions of dollars it annually pumps into the economy of the county.

Day Spent At Winston-Salem

By LYNN NISBET

WINSTON-SALEM—The General Assembly "made a day" Wednesday by holding a brief session in the coliseum at Winston-Salem, at which a number of bills were introduced and others enacted into law. The formal meeting, however, was the least significant of most of the day's events.

The canny citizens of Forsyth, descended mostly from German and Scotch-Irish stock, combined gracious hospitality and superb salesmanship. The hospitality began at Raleigh when the Forsyth folks were hosts at a breakfast before loading the passengers on 14 Greyhound buses for the trip to Winston-Salem. The invitation to all the events included members of the Council of State and high level appointive officials and members of the General Assembly with their wives or husbands, and the clerical staffs of the committees. That added up to some 450 people, and was the largest contingent ever to attend an out-of-Raleigh meeting of the Legislature.

Each bus had a host and hostess who called attention to historic places along the route to the first official stop at Old Salem. Everybody cooperated wonderfully except the weather man. Clouds and cold wind made the hot coffee and cakes served on the Salem Square most welcome. There were a few short speeches and music by the Moravian band which has an unbroken identity nearly two centuries old. There were guided tours of the Old Salem Restoration, into which local people have put hundreds of thousands of dollars and the State a few thousands. There was no direct lobbying, but many suggestions that "we could do much more if we had a bit more support from the State."

Thence to the coliseum for the regular formal sessions of the House and Senate, preceded by a brief welcoming program, in which the chamber of commerce, other business groups and some 5,000 school children from North and western North Carolina participated. The red carpet treatment was literal. A strip of bright red carpet was spread at the entrance.

Next stop was the new multimillion dollar Weeks Division plant of House Hosiery Company for a tour of the plant and a lunch. This plant covers 15 acres of the 60-acre tract—and every room (including the one where high pressure steam sets the shape of the seamless hosiery produced) is air-conditioned. In operation just about a year this plant is not more than 25 per cent complete as to installation of machinery and operation. It employs some 900 people, with a goal of around $500 in two years. Total employment in the Hanes Hosiery plants is recently about 6,000.

After lunch the party was split—the women going for a tour of Reynolds and the men to Reynolds tobacco plants and other private and public enterprises—including Winston-Salem Teachers College, one of the 12 four-year colleges supported by the State. The men and women groups joined later at Tanglewood Park for a reception, and thence to the coliseum again for dinner.

SALESMANSHIP—In all of these events, except the formal legislative session, entertainment and hospitality was featured. Running through the entire day's program was the subtle, but superb, salesmanship idea. Nobody dared mention it, but there was definite intimation that the much-heralded hospitality of the East has nothing on the Piedmont. The same thing was demonstrated two years ago at Charlotte and earlier this year at Greensboro.

Old Salem is mainly a private restoration enterprise, with some State aid. Winston-Salem Teachers College is a State institution, with loyal local support. The coliseum and its adjacent fine building for activities of the blind and the community center for local-public. Tanglewood Park is also local-public, the former home of William N. and Kate B. Reynolds having been willed to the white people of Forsyth county some years ago, and now developed into a park which attracts more than half a million visitors a year. Hanes Hosiery and Reynolds Tobacco are wholly private business enterprises, contributing millions of dollars to the public economy.

It was difficult to distinguish between the wholly public and the wholly private activities. In fact, accurate distinction cannot be made because of overlapping relations. It is equally impossible to limit credit for the hospitality accorded the visitors. That is one of the most significant phases of the whole event. In introducing the "bread and butter" resolution thanking the hosts for their hospitality, Rep. Grace Rodenbough of Stokes noted that Forsyth county was formed out of Stokes in 1849—and had always been good to its mother. The welcome speech at the Hanes Hosiery luncheon was made by Kemp Doughton, long time representative from Alleghany county and former Speaker of the House—and the welcome was not to Winston-Salem but to Northwestern North Carolina.

The whole idea was that private enterprise and government, big cities and small rural counties, east and west and middle parts of the state, must work together to develop all of North Carolina. The visit of the General Assembly to Winston went a long way toward "selling" that idea.

They are grateful for the beautiful buildings and colorful campus which help set Pitt apart from neighboring counties that lack the asset of an institution of higher learning in their midst. They are grateful for the cultural advantages the presence of the college here gives to Pitt County, the countless assets that are taken for granted each day that would not be a part of the life of this county were East Carolina College located somewhere else.

But the close attachment of the people of Pitt County to East Carolina College cannot be measured in tangibles alone such as economic advantages. There is also the bond which has grown up over the years as literally hundreds upon hundreds of young people of this county have received at East Carolina College a higher education which would have eluded them had not the college been close at hand. How does one measure the contribution the college has made to this county because it afforded its youngsters an opportunity for college education? How does one measure the benefits Pitt County has gained because of the many people over the years who settled in Pitt to become good solid citizens because they were attracted here by East Carolina College? How does one measure the contributions made to this county by those people associated with the college over a period of more than half a century?

In the next few days Pitt County will make an effort to show in some small way its appreciation for East Carolina College. But no matter how great the effort, we doubt it could do justice in expressing the feeling of the people of this county for the college.

Perhaps the best indication of appreciation is the everyday expression by Pitt Countians who refer to East Carolina as "Our" college, not out of a feeling of selfishness, but rather out of a feeling of genuine pride in the institution and its accomplishments.

A New Situation With Single Representative

There will be a new situation for Pitt County in May of 1962 when for the first time in decades voters of the county will be electing only one instead of two members of the State House of Representatives.

The unanimous approval by the Senate of the House reapportionment measure makes reapportionment of the lower body of the General Assembly official. It means that Pitt, along with Johnston, Buncombe and Cabarrus Counties will each lose a representative in the General Assembly while Mecklenburg, Onslow, Alamance and Cumberland will each gain a representative.

Under this reapportionment the balance of power between East and West in the state will not be altered in as much as the shift involves losses and gains for an equal number of counties in each section. It does mean, however, that for both Pitt and Johnston, which have been electing two representatives each for many years, the step back to only one representative in the House will necessitate some readjustment.

If Pitt County is to regain a second representative in the House in the future, it will come about because the rate of population growth of the county is sufficiently above that of other counties to warrant another shift of representation, or that the method by which House seats are apportioned is altered.

Castro Holds It All Together

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—"When you strike at a king," Emerson said, "you must kill him."

If Fidel Castro is truly badly damaged, perhaps mentally, as some Cuban rebel reports say he was during an invasion bombing, then the anti-Castroists may have succeeded just as they were conceding their assault had fizzled.

Castro is the cement which holds his regime together, the rallying point for both his supporters among the masses and those close to him. If he's out of the way, Cuba may fall into disorder.

Because of that very possibility it is extraordinary, from a revolutionary standpoint, that an attempt was not made to kill Castro just before the invasion began. Maybe it was.

But in the meantime President Kennedy—who helped the rebel invaders with moral support, if nothing else—suffered damage in Western Europe and no doubt in the Communist and other non-Communist parts of the world. If the invasion was truly a failure—as reports indicate—then it appears to have been badly timed, poorly organized, and clumsily conceived.

Since nothing succeeds like success, if the invasion had overthrown Castro then foreign criticism of American support for the rebels might have receded, provided Castro's successors didn't set up a reactionary dictatorship instead.

Editorial writers from Sweden to Italy, including some in Britain, were critical of Kennedy's handling of the Cuban crisis. Almost all European journals brushed aside Washington's disclaimer of U. S. complicity in the invasion.

It seems reasonable to believe—if Castro has survived and his government has really smashed the attempt to unseat him—that Communist sympathy in Latin America and backward areas of the world will get a lift, for this reason:

Castro was armed with Communist weapons and, according to reports, had the help of Red satellite technicians in training his forces for just such an event as the attempt to overthrow him.

And the failure of the invasion against this Communist citadel only 90 miles from the United States is hardly likely to strengthen the will to resist among American allies in Southeast Asia so close to the gigantic Communist state of Red China and far from the United States.

Kennedy's tough talk to American newspaper editors here Thursday is still not clear in its immediate meaning for Cuba and Castro.

He said that if the 20 American Republics linked with this country in a treaty to resist "Communist penetration" in this hemisphere failed to live up to it, "then I want it clearly understood that this government will not hesitate in meeting its primary obligations which are to the security of our nation."

He did say this invasion was not the "final episode in the eternal struggle of liberty against tyranny, anywhere on the face of the globe, including Cuba itself."

Strength For Today

FUMIGATION

In a great store in New York City which sells thousands of dollars' worth of rugs and carpets every year, fumigation of these floor coverings takes place once a week. Hard as it is to believe, every rug in that place is inspected and fumigated once a week. The reason of course, is quite apparent—that firm doesn't intend to allow moths to destroy in a short time some of the costliest fabrics in the store. The way to guard against them is to make sure that moths never get started.

So careful about rugs and few indifferent about souls! Few people in the world guard their souls as carefully as this firm guards its stock of rugs. Many people can be quite indifferent to the soiled spots on their characters upon which moths thrive. They pay no more attention to their devastating little weaknesses than some people do to their rugs, which they literally allow to be consumed by moths before they do anything about it. But good housekeepers and careful storekeepers guard against moths long before they start to do any damage. Many a man spiritually ailing seems to be quite oblivious to the fact that what he needs is a thorough fumigation of his character.

Orbiting Does Not Upset Me—

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Win, Lose Or Draw

A speaker told a joke over at the 11th District Jaycee meeting in Goldsboro Tuesday night that explained away 50 percent of the prejudice in his old world.

It was about a man who boarded an elevator once. This man was unfortunate enough to have a severe stammer.

"W-w-w-ill y-y-you t-t-take me to the f-f-f-fourth floor" he asked the operator.

"Sure will," the operator replied. "That's the radio station isn't it?"

"Y-y-yes," said the stammerer. "I-w-w-want to be an a-a-a-announcer."

Taking into account the obvious stuttering, the elevator operator frowned, but he decided not to destroy the poor man's illusion.

The elevator stopped at the fourth floor and the man got out. Some time passed and the elevator operator received a call to the fourth floor.

The man re-entered the elevator and they started down.

"Well," said the operator pleasantly. "Did you get the job?"

"N-n-n-no," the passenger replied. "T-t-they don't like J-J-J-Jews."

"Will we have any Allies left? De Gaulle is answering that in his antipathies in NATO and the United Nations. We prefer Algeria, France, then why should France encourage American leadership?"

We might speak of gratitude but as one studies history, he will not find the word, gratitude, anywhere. Politics is a realistic device for survival and one nation may survive at the expense of another, even at the expense of its friends.

Even in the case of Talleyrand, for instance, was that he concentrated on the survival of France. He lived through Louis XVI, the Revolution, Napoleon and the Congress of Vienna, always to serve and to strengthen France. He outwitted greater and mightier men because his purpose was always clear and his target always before him, namely, the survival of France. Talleyrand left a tradition in France which de Gaulle has pursued throughout his career. He has refused to walk to the right or the left of his line and France was never weaker than when de Gaulle asserted France's strength.

This we need to remember at all times: Soviet Russia's progress in 1960 was enormous and the prognosis is that it will continue to make gains in 1961. The African League of Positive Neutralists, call it what you will, surely means that Soviet Russian imperialism is replacing French imperialism in Africa and Asia, and whereas the United States, objected to French imperialism, it shows no courage in opposing Soviet imperialism.

Even in Laos, we have thus far talked more courageously than we have acted, despite the undeniable fact that if Laos goes to the Soviet, South Vietnam and Cambodia must go and that this imperils Thailand and Burma. If anyone in the State Department knows any geography at all, he must know that if the Bay of Bengal is Sovietized, India is a dead pigeon.

The Kennedy Administration must move swiftly. Soviet imperialism is moving too fast and obviously seeks a containment policy against the United States. Kennedy could head a

Other Editors Saying A Complex Matter

(Washington Daily News)

Taxes offer a complex problem not only to state and national governments, but also to county and municipal governments.

If state and national governments seek to alleviate some of their problems by creating extra problems for county and city governments, then we have gained little in the way of economic stability. In fact, we believe we actually have lost.

A few days ago we discussed the proposal whereby the state of North Carolina would demand a three percent sales tax upon county and city purchases. If the state can tax county and city governments, then what is there to keep the national government from taxing state bonds? This could be a vicious course, and one facet of government ought to realize that it is treating a dangerous course to tax a smaller facet of government.

But now a proposal has been introduced into the North Carolina senate, which, if enacted, could upset the economic and tax bases in counties and cities to such an extent that credit in many of them could actually be impaired or ruined.

We speak of senate bill number 126 which proposes a constitutional amendment to provide a $5,000 "homestead exemption" for persons 65 years of age or older.

We talk of helping elderly people, and it is good that we think that way. On the surface of this bill, it might appear to be an attempt to help elderly people. But it is not really that. It is filled with dangerous implications to the economic base of every county and every city government in North Carolina.

Let us bring the matter close to home. Let us take a look at Beaufort county, and a look at the city of Washington. Since at this time the state does not have a general property tax, the matter of levying taxes on property is left to counties and cities. But suppose that every person living in Beaufort county and being 65 years of age or older should find one day that his or her home has an exemption of $5,000 placed upon it. We dare say that the property tax base in Beaufort county would be lowered to such an extent that we would have to add considerably to the present tax rate in the county in order to finance our county government operations.

We offhand would estimate that a vast majority of the homeowners in Beaufort county more than 65 years of age live in homes which are on the tax books at a figure which will not exceed $5,000. All this property would be taken off the books insofar as taxes are concerned. This could be a catastrophe in the financial security of Beaufort county, Washington, and the other towns levying property taxes. It might mean several millions of dollars in taxable property would be removed from the tax base of the various levels of government.

Somebody must make up the deficiency. Beaufort county and the towns would have to find new tax sources or increase present property taxes considerably.

Passage of such a bill as is being proposed could reduce the present debt ratio of every local unit of government in the bond market. After all, a county or city can only borrow money according to the value of the taxable property.

We see many dangers in passage of such a bill as is now being proposed. We do not look for the bill to be passed, but the people ought to be aware of what to expect should such a bill become law while the people are indifferent to the possible consequences.

All of us must admit that fixing taxes is a difficult job. To undermine the tax base in county and local government units at a time when people are being called upon to pay more taxes—not less—could play havoc with county and local governments.

Let us not be lulled to sleep on this matter. When it comes to pay the tax bills we'll awaken then. Let us do so now while this bill is being discussed.

chemicals, the cost of cleaning up after birds if prodigious. But as long as they haven't a place to perch, buildings stay fairly clean.

Next time you see a public building that has all square corners and sides of aluminum, stainless steel, ceramics or tile, don't say, "How ugly!" Instead, say, "How beautiful is the saving in taxes that building makes possible!"

And some day, perhaps, all our public monuments will be of smooth slabs shaped like the starling-proof Washington monument in the nation's capital.

SIGNIFICANT RULING FOR WORKERS, EMPLOYERS

The guaranteed annual wage plan does not escape income taxes, the Internal Revenue Service has ruled. (Rev. Rul. 61-68)

Under these plans, employees are guaranteed a certain number of straight-time hours a year and if they do not work them, the employer pays for them anyhow.

The new ruling holds that pay for time not worked constitutes "wages" for Federal employment tax purposes. Thus, the employer must pay the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act and withheld income taxes on unworked pay. At the same time, the employee getting this pay is liable to income taxes upon it.

Many Policy 'Cooks'

President Kennedy is having a tough time formulating his foreign policy. Perhaps too many cooks are at his broth, Rusk, Bowles, Stevenson, Harriman, to say nothing of Walter Lippmann. It has been suggested that each of these persons could be Secretary of State. Perhaps the difficulty is that each one would like to be or presume that he is Secretary of State.

As one goes back to read President Kennedy's campaign speeches and his first Inaugural Address and then looks at the record, they do not jibe. Something happened between the Inaugural Address, barely three months ago, and today to change the attitude of this Administration toward its foreign policy.

Professor Hans J. Morgenthau, one of the more competent students of American policy, makes an interesting point concerning men and policies. He says: "The new men must work within old circumstances, domestic and international, and the circumstances will put their excellences to the test. Regardless of their convictions and intentions, they are the prisoners of the past—of established institutions, policies, and habits of mind."

Thus, as regards the Cuban situation, the United States is bound by the error of negating the Platt Amendments and making itself a part of the Organization of American States, which means that such neutralist countries as Ecuador and Brazil, to say nothing of Venezuela and Mexico have to be consulted before we defend Miami. Actually, the United States does not have to do anything this country does not choose to do, but it is difficult to get out of entangling arrangements. The policy of disengagement, which is a new concept of isolationism, is very difficult to get out of entangling the United States disengage itself from obligations solemnly undertaken?

Thus, "the emancipation of the colonial and semi-colonial people of the world has entered its last stage in Africa," complicates our affairs to a point where we have driven Belgium out of the Congo and are now interfering with Portugal in Angola.

Will we have any Allies left? De Gaulle is answering that in his antipathies in NATO and the United Nations. We prefer Algeria, France, then why should France encourage American leadership?

We might speak of gratitude but as one studies history, he will not find the word, gratitude, anywhere. Politics is a realistic device for survival and one nation may survive at the expense of another, even at the expense of its friends.

Even in the case of Talleyrand, for instance, was that he concentrated on the survival of France. He lived through Louis XVI, the Revolution, Napoleon and the Congress of Vienna, always to serve and to strengthen France. He outwitted greater and mightier men because his purpose was always clear and his target always before him, namely, the survival of France. Talleyrand left a tradition in France which de Gaulle has pursued throughout his career. He has refused to walk to the right or the left of his line and France was never weaker than when de Gaulle asserted France's strength.

This we need to remember at all times: Soviet Russia's progress in 1960 was enormous and the prognosis is that it will continue to make gains in 1961. The African League of Positive Neutralists, call it what you will, surely means that Soviet Russian imperialism is replacing French imperialism in Africa and Asia, and whereas the United States, objected to French imperialism, it shows no courage in opposing Soviet imperialism.

Even in Laos, we have thus far talked more courageously than we have acted, despite the undeniable fact that if Laos goes to the Soviet, South Vietnam and Cambodia must go and that this imperils Thailand and Burma. If anyone in the State Department knows any geography at all, he must know that if the Bay of Bengal is Sovietized, India is a dead pigeon.

The Kennedy Administration must move swiftly. Soviet imperialism is moving too fast and obviously seeks a containment policy against the United States. Kennedy could head a

Birds Influence Our Architects

By ELMER ROESSNER

This is not, as you may suppose, the Packing Case Era of American architecture. It may better be termed the Pigeon Period. In some cities it could be called the Starling Century.

A state official, who has a bit to say about new state structures, explained it to me.

"Our architects have eliminated cornices, eaves, recessed windows, oriels, fenestrations, and ledges for a sound reason. It's not to make buildings look like packing cases or checkerboards on end. It is simply to deny pigeons a place to roost or bar the starlings in cities they have invaded."

"But you've always had pigeons. Even the old Romans had them." I protested.

"Yes, but we didn't always have today's labor rates," he said. "Even with modern power equipment and more potent chemicals, the cost of cleaning up after birds if prodigious. But as long as they haven't a place to perch, buildings stay fairly clean.

Next time you see a public building that has all square corners and sides of aluminum, stainless steel, ceramics or tile, don't say, "How ugly!" Instead, say, "How beautiful is the saving in taxes that building makes possible!"

And some day, perhaps, all our public monuments will be of smooth slabs shaped like the starling-proof Washington monument in the nation's capital.

SIGNIFICANT RULING FOR WORKERS, EMPLOYERS

The guaranteed annual wage plan does not escape income taxes, the Internal Revenue Service has ruled. (Rev. Rul. 61-68)

Under these plans, employees are guaranteed a certain number of straight-time hours a year and if they do not work

them, the employer pays for them anyhow.

The new ruling holds that pay for time not worked constitutes "wages" for Federal employment tax purposes. Thus, the employer must pay the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act and withheld income taxes on unworked pay. At the same time, the employee getting this pay is liable to income taxes upon it.

Contracts Awarded Friday For Hospital Equipment

UN Congo Funds Finally OK'd

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The General Assembly wound up its marathon 15th session early today after staving off financial disaster by approving a $100 million Congo peace operation fund.

The assembly finally agreed on the measure after hours of wrangling and corridor haggling that followed an earlier attempt to get the required two-thirds majority for a similar proposal. The final vote was 54 to 15 with 23 abstentions.

Latin American nations who had opposed the move finally yielded after they faced an alternative of the assembly staying in session until the financial problem was solved.

The wrangle over Congo finances reflected the stormy tone of the session which was highlighted by the Soviet Union's all-out attacks on Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold and the entire U.N. Congo operation.

The session opened on a dramatic note with an all-star cast headed up by Soviet Premier Khrushchev. It came to a turbulent end with the United States and the Communist bloc swapping bitter charges over Fidel Castro's Cuba.

In one of its final acts, the assembly adopted a resolution calling on all countries to take whatever peaceful steps they can to remove existing tensions between the United States and Cuba.

The proposal was adopted 59 to 13 after the assembly upset a decision of its main political committee and killed off a provision assigning the role of peacemaker to Latin American nations. The United States had backed the defeated proposal.

A high spot of the session was the entry of 16 new African nations and the young Republic of Cyprus in the world family.

Her suit was filed Friday against Fawcett Publications, publisher of Cavalier magazine. She claims an article last November was calculated to defame and ridicule her. Jonas-Whitener Race Shaping Up RALEIGH (AP)—The state's only Republican congressman Rep. Charles R. Jonas, would face Democratic Basil Whitener in the 1962 election under a proposed redistricting bill expected in the General Assembly next week.

The bill to be introduced by Greene Rep. Herbert Hardy, is an alternate to a measure sent in by Rep. Ed Kemp of Guilford which would place incumbents Harold Cooley and L. H. Fountain in the same district.

The General Assembly must redistrict the state to conform to the 1960 Census result which cost North Carolina one of its 12 congressmen.

Under Hardy's bill, Jonas, from Lincoln County, and Whitener, who resides in Gaston, would be placed in a nine-county district with heavy Republican voting strength.

However, the proposal would strip from Jonas Mecklenburg County, his voting stronghold. Mecklenburg would be included in a five county district with Union, Richmond, Montgomery and Anson, the home county of incumbent A. Paul Kitchin.

The Jonas - Whitener district would include the counties of Cleveland, Gaston, Lincoln, Catawba, Burke, Caldwell, Avery, Watauga and Ashe.

Under Hardy's plan, all but the First District would contain between 400,000 and 487,000 persons. The First District, which would include 15 sparsely settled counties would have a population of only 278,000.

This was viewed as a concession to influential State Sen. Lindsay Warren of Beaufort in an attempt to gain his support for the measure.

Army Considering New Divisional Structure

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army staff has come up with a preliminary plan to revamp the structure of its infantry division in the interest of greater flexibility and tighter command on the battlefield.

This means abandoning the five-battalion group concept adopted only five years ago and substituting a structure in which 10 infantry and armored battalions could be grouped under three brigade commands in various combinations as the battle situation dictated.

The pentomic division—as the present unit is called—totals 13,748 men. It was not clear whether the new type of division would be bigger.

Asked about reports that Secretary of Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr. had approved the proposed reorganization, the Army said Stahr had been briefed "on a study entailing changes" in the division structure. It said the secretary "approved the briefing for further analysis and study by the Army staff."

Scrapping away the government-ese, this indicated that Stahr had approved the broad plan, but that many details remain to be worked out. Officials stressed it would take a long time before the new division structure would be enforced. They said there is no target date yet.

But it seemed virtually certain that the pentomic division was on its way out. It apparently never lived up to its billing as best suited to the battlefield of the atomic era. That's where it got its name — "pent" for the five main units and "tonic" for atomic. There is no name yet for the new type division.

Actually, the Army appears to be returning to something not unlike the triangular division structure of World War II—a structure that was junked in 1956 on grounds it wasn't adapted to the nuclear age battlefield. The triangular division was based on three infantry regiments.

There were signs that in practice it may have been found that the "pentomic division had too many subordinate commanders to deal with, and that this made the organization unwieldy.

In addition to the five main infantry battle groups, the pentomic division commander had to exercise control through the leaders of five artillery battalions, a tank battalion and various support units—a total of 18 in all.

Under the new concept, the 10 battalions — with necessary support elements such as ordnance, engineers, signal units, and the like — would be grouped under three brigade commanders, who would be responsible to the division chief.

This would simplify command problems.

As for flexibility, the commander could tailor the makeup of his brigade to fit the combat problem facing him — perhaps more infantry battalions in one instance, more tank battalions in another.

Individual battalion strength could be changed to meet specific requirements.

It was reported the plan contemplates assigning army aviation units — for reconnaissance, casualty evacuation and similar tasks—at the battalion level.

Arrest Man For Taking Auto

Sea-Launch For Rocket Mockup

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP)—The Navy says the launching of a 10-ton rocket mockup from the surface of the ocean "proves space vehicles of any size can be lofted into the sky from the open sea."

The Navy said that full scale tests are next.

A Major Institution Had Its Small Beginnings

RAWL IS NEW CLASSROOM-BUILDING . . . students gather in front of modern structure.

Product Of Fifty Years' Growth

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Once upon a time there was no East Carolina College; there was no East Carolina Teachers College; nor even an East Carolina Teachers Training School.

Little more than 50 years ago there were no red brick buildings along Fifth St. The carefully trimmed hedge row now along that street was non-existent. Austin, Fleming, Wilson, Ragsdale had never been heard of and, naturally such buildings as Rawl and Jones were far in the future.

Only a half century ago, what is now the East Carolina College campus along Fifth St. was woodland. The campus between Tenth and 14th Sts. was wilderness. And Greenville, in those days was only a small town. Its boundaries ended at Colaniche St., leaving the area that is now East Carolina College in the country.

Then the dream of a teacher training institution spurred local leaders to make an effort toward obtaining the college for Greenville. There was a bond issue to finance Pitt and Greenville's portion of the cost. The story of how Haywood Dail ate negative ballots to assure passage of the bond issue has been told.

Of course, the bond issue passed and on July 2, 1908 Gov. Thomas J. Jarvis broke ground for the six buildings which were to make up the initial campus of East Carolina Teachers Training School.

Doors Opened

On Oct. 5, 1909 the proud little school opened its doors to 104 female and 19 male students to begin what has become one of North Carolina's great institutions of higher learning.

In its early years, the school offered only one and two year degrees but eventually the need for a full four year curriculum was seen and in 1922 the first degrees were granted.

This led to a name change and the institution became East Carolina Teachers College. In later years the curriculum was broadened even further and in 1951 the school became East Carolina College.

All this brought on growth in enrollment, campus and academic standing for the little training school and the original $100,000 investment by Pitt County and Greenville began to bear fruit. For, as the school grew so did Greenville. The area across Fifth St. became known as College View and it became a fashionable residential section.

Then the residential area gradually surrounded the college campus and finally went far beyond. Soon college authorities saw they, too, would need more land, and in 1951 the property between Tenth and 14th Sts. was purchased. The wisdom of this has been proved now that two giant men's dormitories stand on the property with another slated for construction. This section, too, is near full and the state has purchased more land beyond 14th St.

Big Growth Period

But East Carolina College's greatest growth was reserved for after World War II. Prior to the end of the war the peak enrollment had been 1938 - 39 when 2,050 students were entered. This dropped off during the war to 1,442 in 1945-46. From then on student body growth was steady. In 1950 it was 1,891 and in 1960 enrollment was 4,599. Over that ten years the total enrollment increased by 143 percent.

There was a parallel between the college's growth and Greenville's growth during the 50s. Greenville's ten-year growth, according to the census, was from 16,724 to 22,603 or 35.2 percent. This percentage was one of the best for a city of comparable size in North Carolina.

Pitt County, too, showed a good population growth during the period while many agricultural Eastern North Carolina counties showed population decreases.

Of course, much of this population increase was due directly to the student increase because students are counted in Greenville's population by the U. S. Census Bureau.

Too, much of it came from the increased size of the college's staff practically all of whom make their homes in Greenville.

Now East Carolina College has truly taken its place as a great institution of higher learning. Its influence is strongly felt throughout Eastern North Carolina and indeed, the entire state.

For Greenville and Pitt County, the $100,000 investment has been returned many times. But, more important, the cultural and spiritual values of the college to the community can never be measured monetarily.

PRETTY COED . . . is seated on steps in front of the Health and Education building.

Pitt's Salute To East Carolina Is Underway

Pitt County's Salute to East Carolina, sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees, is now underway.

Tomorrow churches will devote portions of their services to East Carolina. Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock the Greenville Moose Lodge will entertain for the faculty and their wives. This will be in the lodge auditorium.

Monday and Tuesday gift certificates will be distributed to students on the campus. Miss Greenville will ride in an electric golf cart to distribute the certificates.

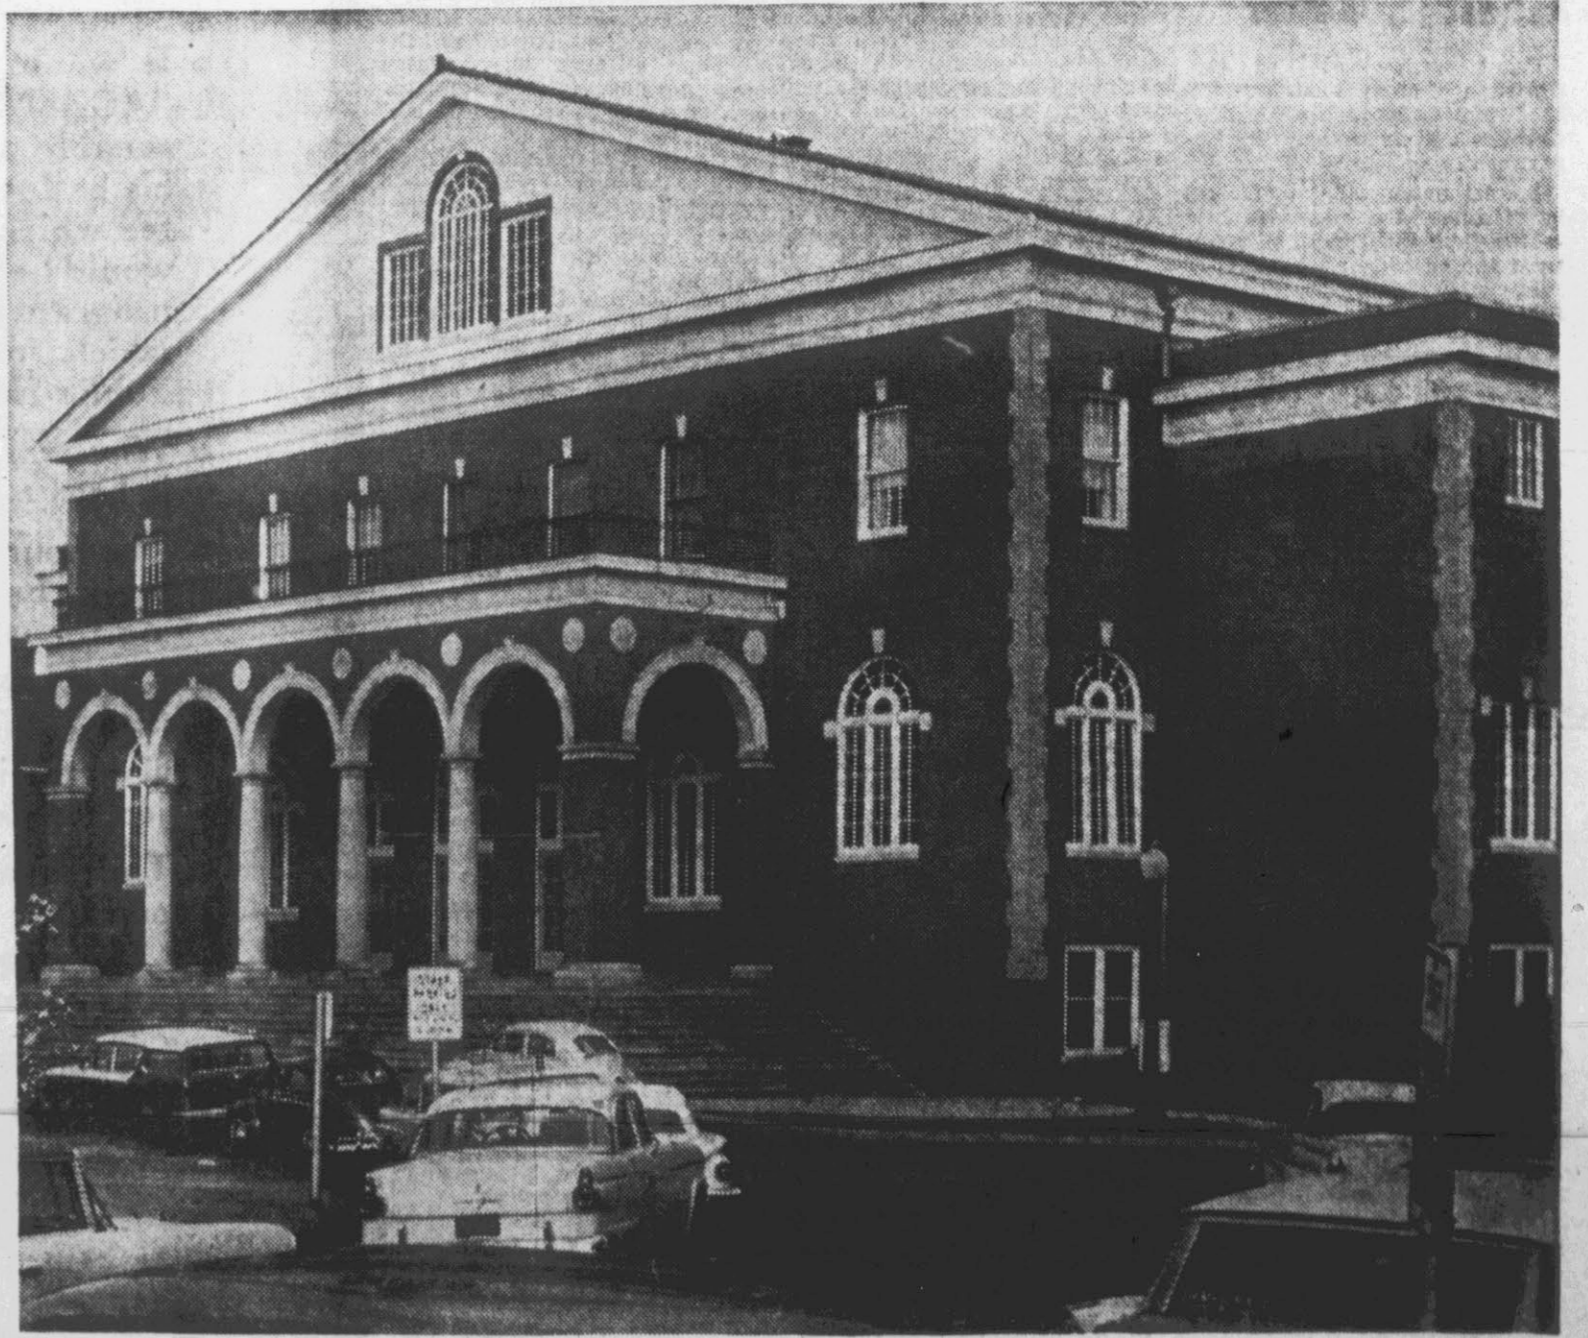

Highlight of the salute will be a banquet Wednesday evening with Gov. Terry Sanford as speaker. The banquet will be held at the college dining hall beginning at 6:30. It is in conjunction with the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet with the Jaycees and the Merchants Association participating to honor East Carolina College.

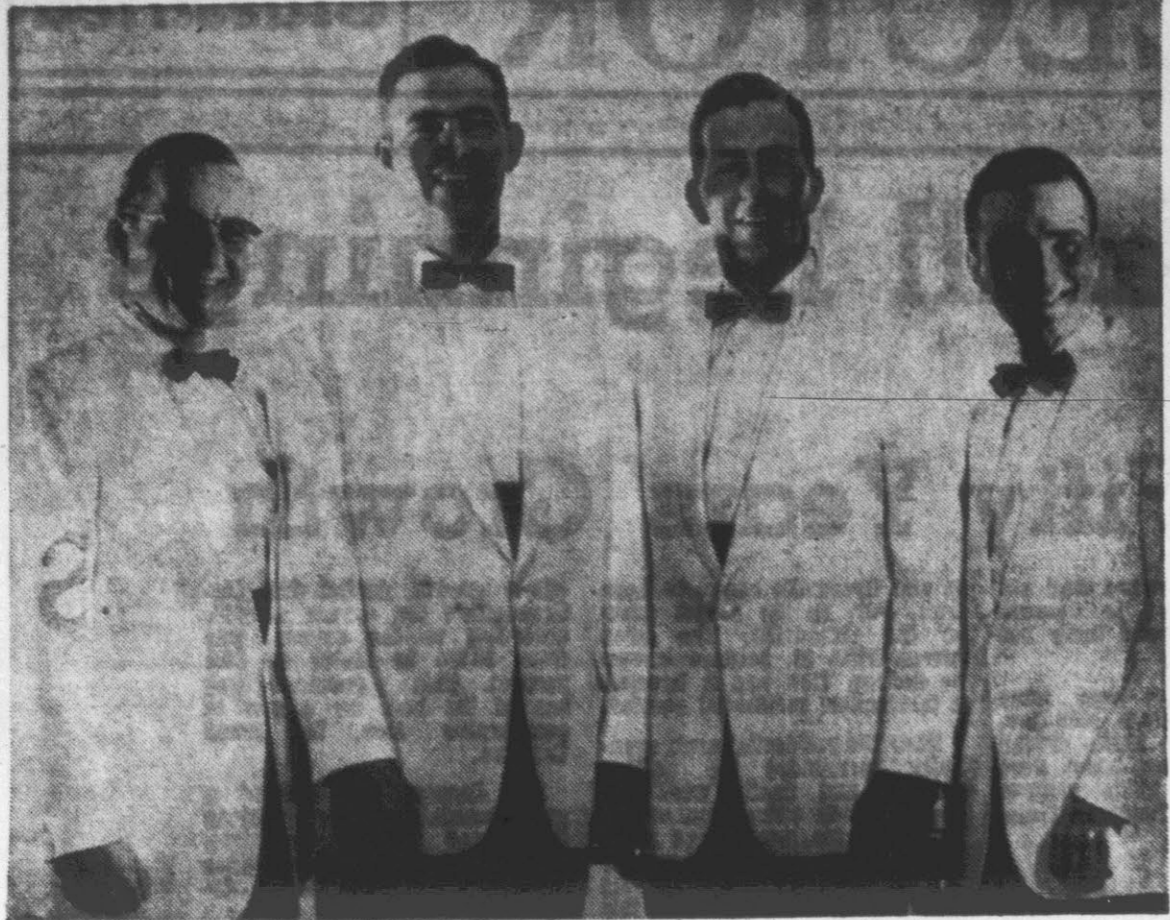

STUDENTS LEAVE AUSTIN . . . one of original campus buildings, it may soon be replaced.

WRIGHT BUILDING . . . this was once the college's gymnasium but with growth has been converted to Student Union.

DIXIECRATS QUARTET . . . are one of several quartets who will appear in the second annual Barber Shop Harmony Show here tonight at 8 p.m. in McGinnis Auditorium. The show is being sponsored by the Pitt County Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Singing in America. The Dixiecrats are a local quartet. Proceeds will go to the Rose High band.

SCA Candidates Open Campaigns

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON

Candidates for SCA office presented their campaigns to Rose High students at the annual Elections Assembly yesterday.

After Erskine Duff, president of the Student Co-operative Association, welcomed the group and Jean Crawford gave the devotion, Larry Roberts, vice-president and chairman of the elections committee, explained that each of the thirteen candidates running for the six offices would be allotted four minutes apiece.

The candidates, with their campaign managers, in the order in which they appeared, follow:

Revolving Representative: Tom Irons (Dallas Clark) presented a skit based on the popular television program, "The People's Choice." Cleo, the talking dog, explained why Tom was her choice as well as the peoples'.

Nancy Tribbey (Craig Worthington) was proclaimed as the candidate "for those who think young."

Nancy Harrington's skit included an old man who finally was able to convince his wife that she should vote for Nancy. (Emmett Koonce and Bill Norman.)

A group of Dogpatch citizens explained in poetry why everyone should help elect Pat Worsley. (Phyllis Moore)

Secretary: Four sailors in a song explained why Anna White (Ruth Clark) was their "Honey Bun." A sextet of senior boys sang "Mostly Martha" and two other songs expected to be the "top three" next year if Martha Henderson (Rose Clark and Janice Laughter) is elected.

A group of Martians, first sighted by Dr. James D. Nicholson in his Bethel observatory, came to Earth especially in order to vote for Donna Whitley. (Ann Hunt)

Treasurer: Several of this year's senior class returned next year to find that the candidate the people elected instead of Joe Waldrop (William Allen) had written bad checks and was going to jail. Joe College explained that he could have told them!

Donna Gammon presented a musical skit for the campaign of Allen Van Dyke. (Myrtle Moon Bilbro) Wearing black tights and a large green dollar sign, she sang and danced while explaining his qualifications.

Vice - President: A group of basketball players urged students to vote for Jimmy Jenkins. (Leon Williamson)

Bill Moye (Lynda Hunning) won all of the awards at the Academy Rewards during his skit. Various "Hollywood" celebrities presented the Rewards while other celebrities were on hand to receive them for him.

President: Using the Dragnet theme, Jack Barnhill and Lester Brown gave the students Billy Neal James' (Elbert Felton) record and showed his mugshots.

A poetic recitation by Scott

Smiley told everyone the qualifications of Johnny Reynolds (Bill Wade) as candidate for treasurer.

Cheerleader Elections
Graduating cheerleaders, the adviser, and specially-invited judges selected next year's cheering squads at try-outs this week.

Junior varsity cheerleaders chosen on Wednesday include the following: Vicki Ricks, Peggy Bentley, Judith Brinkley, Barbara Reck, Dolly Overton, Judy Van Dyke, Donna Forbes, Martha Sue Taft, Nancy Harrington, Lynn Dodson, Myra Dupree, and Myra Ficklen.

New varsity cheerleaders selected Thursday include Brenda Bowden, Lina Christopher, Linda Davenport, Jeri Sue Clark, Ross Clark, Gigi Guice, Jayne Willis, Donna Whitley, Barbara Minges, Frances Harvey, Betsy Coughlan, Diana Hodges, and Martha Hoot.

Seniors to take Test
Seniors will take the Iowa Test of Educational Development (ITED) Tuesday and Wednesday at the Rawl Building of the college.

The purposes of this two-day achievement test include pointing out weakness in the high school curriculum and showing to each student the areas in which he is weak. Scores for these tests are expected to be back by mid-May.

Tobacco Support Rates Said Low

RALEIGH (AP) — A tobacco marketing specialist says it appears the average 1961 flue-cured support rate has been set too low.

J. H. Cyrus of the State Department of Agriculture indicated that the rate should be $56.05 a hundred pounds instead of the announced $55.50 per hundred.

Cyrus wrote Friday to Director Joe R. Williams of the Commodity Stabilization Service's Tobacco Division and questioned the federal Agriculture Department's method of arriving at the parity figure on which the support price was based.

In his calculation, Cyrus said, it appeared that cost figures for 1958 had been dropped and those for 1957 substituted.

Parity is figured on the basis of the cost of things farmers buy during the previous three-year period.

A difference of one-half cent a pound on a normal crop would amount to some $6 million in farm income.

The wrangle over tobacco prices began several weeks ago when a North Carolina legislator said he had learned that the federal Department of Agriculture had not been providing supports at 90 per cent of parity as required by law.

Rep. Byrd Satterfield of Person County renewed his attack Friday by releasing figures which he said showed that farmers who turned their leaf over to the Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp. during the past 10 years have received some $50 million less than they would have been paid if the support level had been 90 per cent of parity.

Satterfield said tobacco marketing specialists of the State Agriculture Department had supplied him with the figures at his request.

The Difference Is Exactly $8

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — For 11 years, Frank Greco has been cleaning classrooms in Clifton High School. Now he'll teach in one.

Greco, 39 and father of three, is to be graduated from Montclair State College. For him the new job means a pay boost of $8 a week.

AN UNFAIR BALLOT

BACKGROUND: In an official meeting of the City Council on February 2, 1961, a motion was passed "TO HOLD REFERENDUM FOR URBAN RENEWAL AND PUBLIC HOUSING" (emphasis ours) on May 2, 1961.

In an official meeting of the City Council on March 2, 1961, an alternative slum clearance program, NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION, was proposed to the Council, along with a proposed ordinance, implementing and facilitating NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION.

On April 13, the Council met to adopt the ballot for the May 2 election. Instead of adopting a clearly worded ballot, NOT SUBJECT TO MIS-INTERPRETATION by any voter, the Council phrased the questions in a manner which would lead some voters to an unwarranted conclusion in favor of Urban Redevelopment and Public Housing.

LET US EXPLAIN:

THE BALLOT SHOULD READ (BUT DOES NOT)

- FOR URBAN RENEWAL
 - AGAINST URBAN RENEWAL
- AND
- FOR PUBLIC HOUSING
 - AGAINST PUBLIC HOUSING

What would be more accurate, more logical and more easily understood by the voters than this?

Now, let's see what the Council came up with. This is the way your ballot will read:

- For Urban Redevelopment and Slum Clearance of the Shore Drive Area
- Against Urban Redevelopment and Slum Clearance of the Shore Drive Area
- For creating a Housing Authority to determine the needs for Public Housing
- Against creating a Housing Authority to determine the needs for Public Housing

THE ADDED UNDERLINED PHRASING IS BIASED AND UNFAIR, IN OUR OPINION, BECAUSE:

- It couples Urban Redevelopment with slum clearance, a goal which is also desired by those opposing Urban Redevelopment and favoring Neighborhood Conservation.
 - Urban Redevelopment is not synonymous with slum clearance. There are many features of Urban Redevelopment. Slum clearance is only one of them. The ballot brings in this single feature and omits the rest, many of which are unfavorable.
 - There is a false implication that there can be no slum clearance without Urban Redevelopment.
 - The ballot implies that voting against Urban Redevelopment is voting against slum clearance. This is false on face value. Neighborhood conservation will do the job without Federal control and without seizure of private property.
 - It would give an impression to many voters that one is voting only "FOR" or "AGAINST" a Housing Authority to determine the need for Public Housing. Any reasonable person would not object to "determining a need" and might be inclined to mark his ballot "FOR." No person would object to a study of the problem by a local committee which was unbiased and selected from no single group. But, by voting "for" they would be voting for a permanent housing authority, empowered to start a Public Housing program upon approval from the City Council. The "study" is a red herring on the ballot which, in our opinion, is calculated to lure some voters who otherwise would vote against Public Housing on a properly-phrased ballot.
 - Why was "A Public Housing Authority" changed to simply "A Housing Authority?" Is it because "public housing" has the unpopular image of authority with the voters?
 - The boundaries of the "Shore Drive Area" have never been clearly defined, and seemingly change from time to time. On this ballot, one will not know exactly what he is voting for when it refers to "Shore Drive Area."
 - By referring to "Shore Drive Area," the ballot would lead many to conclude that Urban Redevelopment would be restricted to that section. But actually, the Redevelopment Commission would have the authority to extend the project to any area of Greenville, subject to Council approval, if it so desires.
 - This "shadow" thrown across the ballot should cause all citizens to stop and take a second look at Urban Redevelopment and Public Housing.
- "A PROGRAM IS ONLY AS GOOD AS THE FAIRNESS OF ITS PRESENTATION TO THE PUBLIC."
- If Urban Redevelopment and Public Housing are as good as claimed, WHY DOES IT HAVE TO BE CAMOUFLAGED ON THE BALLOT?

THE HAUNTED STARS

by EDMOND HAMILTON

From the novel published by Torrey Books; © 1950 by Edmond Hamilton; distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Robert Fairlie stood shivering in the cool night wind and watched the Cassini rocket come down.

That was not at all what he and the others were at the airfield for, but the first flick of orange brilliance caught his eye, high up and brighter than any of the stars. In a few seconds it came again, and now it was lower. Fairlie understood that these were the braking blazes.

They came closer and closer together, sliding down the sky, until they melted into a tall pillar of white flame.

Close beside Fairlie, Christensen, chief of Lunar Project, grasped the arm of Rendell, the Secretary of Defense, and pointed.

The motion jogged Fairlie out of his hypnotic fascination with pillars of fire. He looked away from the descending rocket, following Christensen's gesture, and in the same quadrant of the sky he saw a shadow moving downward as the rocket moved, but going silently, barely outlines in a flickering of bluish light.

The starship.

He heard someone draw a quick sharp breath. The rocket was crashing down to its landing now, roaring and shaking the earth, but it no longer seemed as mighty and majestic as it had. Beyond it the starship settled as lightly as a blown leaf upon the ground, and the very absence of flammings and thunderings and earthshocks was proof of a controlled power awesome to contemplate.

The Cassini rocket cut its jets. In the deafening silence that followed Fairlie saw the faint blue flicker of the starship die, and he stood numb and speechless, knowing that he had seen one of those moments of history which decisively divides two eras. A new thing had come into the world.

No. Not new. It was sometimes hard to remember that. Hard to remember that ships like this had flown the stars thirty thousand years ago.

A jet went bucketing noisily toward the ship.

"Carefully timed," Christensen was saying, "to coincide with the launching and return of the regular lunar flights, so that foreign radar wouldn't pick up our ship and wonder about it. I hope the trick worked."

Rendell said sourly, "Whoever got hold of those tapes isn't fooled. They'll probably be testing a ship themselves soon, if they haven't already."

Christensen sighed. He turned to Bogran, Lisetti, and Speer, who had watched the landing with Fairlie.

"You have every right to see this, and theoretically you should have every right to know the full results of the test. But you know the situation. Security says that only Fairlie comes beyond this point. So I'll have to ask you to return to your quarters."

They nodded to Fairlie and got into one of the waiting jeeps and rode away. Fairlie felt very much alone. He tagged awkwardly behind Rendell and Christensen, behind Winsted and the other top brass, first into a jeep and then into Christensen's office, where he sat in a corner unnoticed while cryptic but very tense and hurried cables were made, chiefly by Rendell. After what seemed quite a long time Glenn DeWitt, Christensen's assistant, came in with two technicians, Raab and Thomason.

DeWitt shone with a strange hard radiance. There was something almost ferocious about his joy, his triumphant exultance.

"The test," he said, "was an unqualified success." He looked around at them, his gaze resting finally on Christensen. The look was a challenge, as tangible as the striking of a spear against a shield. "Our reports are ready—you can study them at your convenience, but both Dr. Raab and Thomason will bear me out."

Raab and Thomason made known that they would.

"We've been farther outside the Earth than men have ever been before," DeWitt went on, "since the Ur-men themselves. The drive functions perfectly. All possible preliminary sidings have been completed. Dr. Raab and Dr. Thomason agree with me that there will never be a better time than now to initiate our expedition to Altair."

"Then," said Rendell, "I see no reason to delay it further. The final word must come from Washington, of course, but from the conversation I have just had with the White House I think there is no doubt that the word of the Security Council will be. So let us get down to details."

DeWitt said, "As regards the organization of the expedition, I—"

"Yes," said Rendell, cutting him short, "Dr. Christensen will discuss that with you."

DeWitt's face became hard and wary. "Very well. But I would like to remind both you and Dr. Christensen that his authority will end as soon as the ship takes off, and therefore—"

Christensen said, "I'm going with you." And he added, "In command."

Fairlie straightened up. He saw DeWitt's look of amazement change to one of cold fury.

DeWitt turned to Rendell. "I protest—This project has been mine from the beginning. I've brought it through in spite of ev-everything Christensen could do to stop me, and now you—it's unfair. It's— He had no more words.

"I have my authorization," Christensen said quietly, "straight from the White House."

"I see you've been busy behind my back."

Rendell said, "There's more to it than that." There was a sharp little edge to his voice. "Your extreme preoccupation with the necessities of the project has caused you to lose sight of its larger implications."

"Don't bother with the diplomatic English," DeWitt said. "Just tell me what's behind this."

"War," said Rendell. "That's a nice simple word, isn't it? Easily understandable. The charges of an American missile-base in Cassenick have already disturbed the world. If it is learned later on that an American military mission went out to the stars, we'll have the hell and all of a world crisis on our hands."

"No weapons will be snatched out of your hands, DeWitt," said Christensen. "But there are other things to be thought of."

"You're still afraid."

"Yes, I fear the single-minded man, no matter how able."

DeWitt shook his head. "You fear more than that. The future. New ways, new thoughts, things beyond your understanding or control. You're afraid of how we will use them, so you interpose yourself as a block, an obstacle. I'm sure you're tired of limboing over your head, Christensen." He added cruelly, "You're too old to go. You'll die out there."

Christensen nodded. "Possibly. That doesn't change matters now. Get used to the idea, DeWitt."

They stood looking at each other.

Finally DeWitt said, "All right." He sat down.

Christensen turned to the others. "Gentlemen—"

They all sat down. The discussion began. Fairlie sat with them, joining in when his field became involved but mostly only listening and watching faces.

He was beginning to feel uneasy that the conflict between Christensen and DeWitt might prove to be the biggest hazard that Operation Darkness was likely to face.

Claims Damages By Radioactivity

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—Death and misery came to the Preston Mitchell Ranch in slow stages two years ago.

Many of his sheep became sick and died. Others staggered drunkenly around the rolling hill country of the Wyoming-South Dakota border area. In all, 127 of the animals died. The Mitchells sold 327 others.

Then Mitchell, his wife Laura and their six children also were afflicted with a strange malady. Their hair fell out. They became violently ill, apparently without cause.

These claims and others were made Friday in a U. S. District Court suit in which attorneys for the Alland, Wyo., family ask $94,461 in damages from the federal government.

The suit claims the agonies are the result of radiation poisoning. Without detailing the claim, attorneys for the family say that negligent handling of radioactive material by Atomic Energy Commission personnel caused a radioactive fallout on the Mitchell Ranch on April 17, 1949.

They say the fallout contaminated vegetation and water on the ranch 15 miles west of Belle Fourche, S. D.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

How hope is strengthened through spiritual understanding of the Bible will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

Readings from the Bible in the Lesson-Sermon on "Probation after Death" will include this passage from Romans (15): "For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope."

A correlative passage to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (p. 446): "To understand God strengthens hope, enthrones faith in Truth, and verifies Jesus' word: 'Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.'"

The Golden Text is from Revelation (3): "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment."

Cupboard Is Bare Awaiting Budget

PINE HILL, N. J. (AP)—Mayor Michael Piazza earlier this month refused to approve the borough budget.

Trash and garbage have been piling up, uncollected, for a week, and the borough police car can make only emergency runs—it has $2 of gas left, paid out of the pockets of the three policemen.

The clerk-treasurer told the Borough employees who came to collect their pay Friday "Nothing doing. The cupboard is bare. I'm not getting paid myself."

Piazza says the budget of $195,349 is too big. The borough council could override the mayor, but it has not been able to get a majority vote to do so.
