Gray - Taylor Married Sunday

BETHEL—The marriage of Miss Sue Godwin Taylor and Smith Fenton Gray took place on Sunday, April 23, in the Bethel Baptist Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. N. Cooper. Mrs. John Mayo of Bethel, organist, and vocalist Miss Betty Rose Hockaday of Four Oaks presented the music.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Irvin Taylor, Jr. of Bethel. Mrs. Ezra Fenton Gray of Franklin, Va. is the mother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Smith Fenton Gray

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of pure silk organza over taffeta fashioned with a scalloped neckline of Alencon lace. The lace bodice was re-embroidered with seed pearls. The skirt was accented with baby tucks extending into a chapel train of unpressed pleats, appliqued with Alencon lace. Her veil was a mantilla of lace accented with seed pearls and silk organza roses. She carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations, roses and lilies-of-the-valley centered with a white orchid.

Miss Judith Carole Cullifer of Bethel was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Brenda Faye Langdon of Raleigh, Miss Patsy Faye Hunter of Winston-Salem, Miss Kay Godwin of Tarboro, Miss Bobbie Garrenton and Mrs. Reuben Irvin Taylor III, sister-in-law of the bride, of Bethel. The attendants wore street length dresses of ice blue lace and white silk organza and matching veils. They carried baskets of pink pompons mixed with pink and red snapdragons.

Miss Elizabeth Sawyer of Norfolk, Va. was junior bridesmaid. Little Miss Beverly Taylor and Julie Taylor were flower girls. They wore dresses similar to those of the bridesmaids.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of pale blue silk organza over taffeta embroidered with sequins and rhinestones. She wore matching accessories. Her dress was accented with a corsage of white cymbidium orchids.

The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of mauve embroidered silk organza with accessories to match. Her outfit was accented with a corsage, also of white cymbidium orchids.

Neil Howell of Greenville was best man. Ushers were Jackie Applewhite of Courtland, Va., Reuben Irvin Taylor III, and William Wayne Taylor of Bethel, brothers of the bride, Frank Davis of Franklin, Va., and Edward Branch Walthall of Alberta, Va. Mrs. Ruth Thomas, Mrs. Burton H. Taylor, and Mrs. James L. Sawyer, aunts of the bride, entertained at a reception after the wedding at the home of the bride.

After a wedding trip to Western North Carolina, the couple will reside in Tarboro.

The bride attended East Carolina College and is employed by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company in Tarboro.

The bridegroom attended East Carolina College and is employed by Glenoit Mills, Inc. in Tarboro.

Dr. Robert T. Rickert of East Carolina College faculty, spoke to the Woman's Club of Greenville at the luncheon of the club Friday. His subject was the theater in general and specifically in Greenville.

Dr. Rickert said that basically the theater is made up of all other arts. Of the graphic arts, painting fits in easily. Dance and music are integral in the theater. Including all arts an artist is part of the problem as artists are usually not amenable to regimentation. It is part of the directors work to get them together. He thinks the theatre is the most complicated of all art forms.

Theater work is not exactly democratic. When you use people to express what one wants to express, one works with extremely personal factors, continued the speaker.

"Good theater is not accidental," stated Dr. Rickert. "There are rules and basic skills." For example, in our language we read from left to right and our eyes move more easily from left to right, we have a tendency to move to the right. Therefore on the stage, to show action smoothly and successfully action usually moves from left to right. However an unsympathetic character often enters from the right.

The basic geometric pattern in theater work is based on a triangle with people of greatest interest at the apex. The audience or imaginary points can be used as the other two points, you need not necessarily use three people on stage.

Dr. Rickert feels that the play "The Lady is Not For Burning", which he directed this past year for the East Carolina Playhouse, was theater at its finest.

Dr. Rickert Speaks On Theater To Woman's Club

Dr. Rickert stated his main concern is the theater in Greenville. He is committed to the point of view, expressed by others, that East Carolina College should be the cultural center of this area.

"Is it possible, he asked, and 'if it is possible is East Carolina a copy of something or valid?' His idea is that 'it must be valid in the ideal.' To do so, one needs well trained artists, that take the theater seriously and have some idea of what they are doing (treat materials, that is, people with respect).

Dr. Rickert ended by saying "You can have valid creative exciting theater here in Greenville—say in three years—You do not have to accept second rate, if you want the best you can have it."

A business meeting of the Woman's Club followed the program. The President, Mrs. Sam Mitchell, presided.

Two new members were accepted by transfer, Mrs. Emerson Sweet, and Mrs. W. N. Jackson, Jr.

Mrs. Mitchell announced the state convention of the Federation of Women's Clubs in Pinehurst in May. She will be a delegate from the club to the convention.

The program chairman, Mrs. Tige Gardner, stated that the next meeting will be a dinner meeting on May 25 at 6:30 at the club.

The Home Department chairman, Mrs. H. R. Rogers, announced there will be no special meeting of that department in May.

The Chairman of the Fine Arts Department told of the Fine Arts Festival and gave out programs. She asked members to buy tickets for the luncheon on the 29th as soon as possible.

The club gave a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Jr., and Mrs. Sam Mitchell, Co-Chairman of this year's Fine Arts Festival.

A report from the Public Affairs Department (formerly Junior Woman's Club) stated they will serve lunch at the Sidewalk Art Show on Thursday, May 4. Contributions of cake, sandwiches, were requested.

Miss Mamie Ruth Tunstall, Litterbug chairman, reported on her recent meeting with the Mayor and others regarding clean-up week. She felt we have seen results from it but asked members to remember "clean up is not just for one week—keep Greenville clean".

The President asked members to remember their responsibilities and vote in the city election.

Mrs. Hollowell reminded the club of the dessert bridge at the Moose Lodge on Tuesday April 25 for the Cancer Fund.

The Fine Arts Department and the American Home Department met in the clubhouse in the morning before the luncheon. The Garden Club met at 2 p.m. following the General Meeting.

The Garden Club expressed its thanks to Mrs. J. Hicks Corey and Mrs. L. L. Rives and others who helped to make the recent Fashion Show, luncheon, and card party a success.

Plans were discussed for the decorating of the dining hall at East Carolina College for the Fine Arts Festival Luncheon and the committee announced.

The May meeting of the Greenville Garden Club will be a luncheon meeting on Friday May 12th at 12:30 when new officers will be installed. The gratitude of the club was expressed to Mrs. P. E. Wells who has been President of the Greenville Garden Club for the past three years.

Announcement was made of the Washington Standard Flower Show at the Orr Masonic Lodge in Washington, N. C. on May 4.

Upholstery Finish

Now almost any upholstery fabric that suits your taste, your home decor, and your budget can also be practical—because some stores will apply a stain-resistant finish without extra charge.

With this special treatment, oils, greases, and liquids can be washed off the fabric before they form stains. Just wipe the surface with thick soap or detergent suds before the soil has a chance to set or penetrate, and rinse-wipe with clean damp cloth. This on location "laundry" method is also highly effective for removing ordinary soil.

With The Farm Women

By MAIDRED MORRIS
WARREN WOMEN MAKE BRAIDED RUGS — Leaders who attended the northeastern district craft workshop last summer are now putting their training into practice," says Miss Emily Ballinger, home economics agent in Warren County.
 Mrs. H. C. Willis, Mrs. John Skinner and Mrs. William Skinner held a workshop for 12 home demonstration club women and taught fundamental techniques for rug braiding. "Along with construction techniques, the instructors also discussed blending of colors," reports Miss Ballinger.
LAMPS STYLED IN ALLEGANY — In Alleghany County, 10 oil lamps, and vases are being converted into electric lamps. Recently, 37 lamps were wired with all fixtures complete.
 Mrs. Frances Wagoner, home economics agent, says the women learned to make shades at local club meetings. Now, they are in the process of making shades to complement their lamps.
REMOVING STAINS FROM FABRICS — Do you know how to get stains out of fabrics? Home Demonstration Club leaders in Cabarrus County have cautioned members about correct use of some removers, especially chemical ones.
 Mrs. Sara Stewart, home economics agent, says leaders stressed treating stains while they are fresh, testing for color change on sample material or hidden seam, and cautioned against hot water and iron heat which might set stains permanently.

SOIL TESTING DRIVE — Earlier in the year, Home Demonstration Club women in Lee County took soil samples of their garden and flower beds and sent them to the soil testing laboratory.
 "Now the food supply leaders are explaining the recommendations to the women so they can lime and fertilize their gardens," says Miss Mary Estelle Doyle, home economics agent.
MONEY SAVED ON SPRING BONNETS — Mrs. I. L. Heath recently conducted a hat-making workshop which was the third held in Craven County. Miss Rebecca Colwell, home economics agent, says 45 hats have been made by club women.
 "These 45 hats cost $155.25 an average of $3.45 each," reports Miss Colwell. "This is about one-fourth the cost of hats of the same quality bought in stores. They have saved about $466.00 by making their own spring bonnets."
COUNTY WINNER IN SEVEN PROJECTS — Ruth Lindsay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Lindsay, Almond, Rt. 2, was winner this year in seven 4-H projects.
 Miss Sonia Wells, assistant home economics agent in Swain County, says Ruth froze 600 quarts of fruits and vegetables, canned 500 quarts of food, prepared and planned 78 meals and 200 dishes and worked on home grounds beautification.

New Bars Of Soap Symbolized White House Hospitality
 First ladies have their little idiosyncrasies just like everyone else! Mrs. Harry Truman's, for example, was new soap.
 When she "ran" the White House, she insisted that a new bar of soap be placed in a powder room every time it was used, and also in each bathroom if there were house guests. Thus, all guests at the Presidential mansion could enjoy the little luxury of washing with fresh, unused soap.
 This report comes from a recent book about Lillian Rogers Parks, who served for thirty years as White House seamstress and maid.
Announce Adoption
 Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow W. Wooten of Falkland announce the adoption of a son, Woodrow Wilson Jr., born November 18, 1960 and adopted April 20, 1961.

Nice Step Up The Economic Ladder

An increase in North Carolina's per capita income to $1,584 during 1960 represents another step up the ladder for this state which has experienced a constant increase in its economic development in recent years.

The fact that North Carolina moved from 45th to 44th place in per capita income among the 50 states should prove a source of satisfaction to Tar Heels. At the same time, the fact that North Carolina ranks among the bottom seven states in per capita income should continue to be a source of grave concern for the people of this state.

It is significant that while the national gain in income for 1960 compared with 1959 was approximately five per cent, the gain for North Carolina was about seven per cent. In dollars, however, North Carolinians gained only $80 in per capita income over the previous year while the average gain on a nationwide basis was $83. In spite of the fact that North Carolina moved up a peg in the rank of states, its per capita income was $658 below the national average, three dollars farther below the national average than was the case in 1959.

These comparisons show that in spite of the fact North Carolina has moved from 46th place among the states in 1958 to 44th place in 1960, it still has a great deal of "catching up" to do. During these years North Carolina has put a great deal of time and effort into developing its own economy by attracting industries from other areas and by creating new jobs through home-grown enterprises. It has experienced one of the greatest periods of economic growth in its history so far as new plants, new jobs, new payrolls and capital investments are concerned.

In spite of what has been a significant rate of growth, however, there remains a tremendous gap between the per capita income of North Carolina and that of the nation as a whole. In spite of its economic growth, North Carolina still ranks in the lowest 15 per cent of the states in per capita income.

North Carolina, if its position is to improve, must continue to place even greater emphasis upon its own economic development. The momentum in this direction generated in the state in recent years must be increased to an even higher rate. Any let up on the part of the state or its individual communities in seeking economic growth could cause North Carolina to slip backward down the economic ladder it has been so laboriously ascending in recent years.

There have been important accomplishments in the state's economic growth and its goal for a higher per capita income in recent years, but certainly North Carolina has not yet attained a position satisfactory to itself in relation to the other states of the union.

A Multi-Ring Circus For World Attention

The rapidly changing picture of international crises shifts the focal point of world attention about the globe with such speed that one might liken it to trying to watch a multi-ring circus with main acts going on simultaneously in each ring.

Just a few weeks ago the world's attention was focused on the Congo where strife and confusion threatened the international peace and the United Nations was—and still is—striving to bring order out of chaos. Suddenly the unusual war in Laos became the focal point of attention with the Western nations seeking a cease fire from the Kremlin in order that some curse short of all-out war might be found to bring a solution to the problem in that tiny kingdom.

Last week attention turned to Cuba where an ill-fated invasion, with the moral support of the United States, was repulsed by Castro forces and the United States was accused of international aggression. By the time Castro appeared in a four-hour radio and television telecast to heap blame on the United States for the invasion of Cuba, however, the Cuban situation has taken a back seat to headlines about the mutiny of French troops in Algeria and rumors of an attack from Algeria upon the French mainland.

While all of these represent major international crises, they have come in such rapid succession that none of them has been resolved. Each has caused an increase of tension and has brought about only a temporary shifting of world attention. They are problems heaped one upon the other and sooner or later unless some solutions are found their weight is bound to reach a breaking point.

Cubans Offered No Inducements

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — The main lesson from the Cuban invasion disaster is that you can't bribe something with nothing.

What the invasion lacked was ideas and enough muscle. But the lesson here applies elsewhere.

President Kennedy said last week: "There are from this useful lessons. It is clear that the forces of communism are not to be underestimated in Cuba or anywhere else in the world."

Fidel Castro, at the beginning of his war against Fulgencio Batista's dictatorship, seemed to have nothing much more than resentment.

Comfortable lodging can be found in most cities for $5 to $6 a day, leaving enough for the employee to eat out of his pocket. But majority of the employees attending conventions and business conferences must stay at places where the room rental is from $8 up, leaving no allowance for food. The proposal for actual expenses after thorough audit is honest and realistic.

When he took over, even though he became a dictator, he put in this reform and others. It's easy for Americans, with their distaste for dictatorship, to think that because they despise Castro all Cubans do. But there are two kinds of dictatorship.

One is simply repressive, selfish, and ignores the people's needs. There is the other which rallies support with benefits or promises of benefits long overdue.

Castro's is the latter kind. To assume Cubans after a long history of dictatorships, value freedom above all else when they haven't had the kind of freedom Americans enjoy, is simply to think of Cubans in American terms, not in their terms.

There was some astonishment—and the American Central Intelligence Agency reportedly badly advised Kennedy on this—that the Cubans didn't rise up and sink Castro when the invasion began.

If in Asia, or Africa or Latin America the Communists promise needed reforms and benefits for this country simply puts its effort into fighting communism, particularly if it backs re-education.

There are people who live a life of continual strangulation. They are in agony from morning until night, and it would be hard even for them to set down on paper precisely what they are worrying about. They are simply strangling their lives.

Concern? Yes. Worry? No. There is a vast difference between them.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
Watch Out For That Difference The word "worry" comes from an Anglo-Saxon word which means "to strangle."

This is most suggestive, for worry is indeed something which strangles us. We should always be concerned over financial matters, the welfare of our children, our standing in the community, the state of our physical, mental, and spiritual health, the conduct of our business. The word "concern" means to be interested in, attentive to something. If we are not interested in or attentive to our business it soon goes to pieces. But it is one thing to be concerned over our business and another thing to worry about it.

It is one thing to keep a pretty close tab on children and to know where they are and what they are doing and thinking. It is another thing, however, to have them on our minds to such an extent that we get precious little joy out of them. We may in all good conscience aspire for a better job, a higher station among our fellows, a larger income. We need to be concerned about all the factors involved in these situations—but not to worry about them. To worry means "to strangle."

There are people who live a life of continual strangulation. They are in agony from morning until night, and it would be hard even for them to set down on paper precisely what they are worrying about. They are simply strangling their lives.

Concern? Yes. Worry? No. There is a vast difference between them.

'Status' With A Bonus

"Status" has caught up with the writer. It took time. In this case, status is represented by a small plastic-covered card suitable for carrying in a wallet.

In big red letters, the word "Press" stands out as though it were a neon sign. There is also a small amount of descriptive data and a thumb-nail mug shot of the bearer.

I figure if it's necessary to flash my press card just once in my next twenty years of newspapering, the card will have more than served its expected and intended purpose.

For the past fifteen years no one has cared much one way or the other about my having any other identification than a driver's license and a social security number.

When Candidate John F. Kennedy came to town I was given some official-looking press credentials in the event duty called me away from my ivory tower. Alas, no such summons was sounded; nor was Mr. Kennedy's timetable compatible to my own. There was no opportunity to slip away for a ringside seat during his visit. History bears witness this had no adverse impact on the Kennedy candidacy.

In the old Army it was different. Anybody without at least three identification cards or tags or something, just barely qualified to wear a uniform. I remember carrying enough ID cards, papers, etc. to require a wallet all their own. Relatively speaking, money was a non-essential.

One can readily understand the necessity for press cards in metropolitan areas; and they gained status in the hey-day of B pictures in Hollywood.

The movie capital ground out dozens of those semi-epics featuring ace newsreel cameramen flashing their press cards and racing to the scene of heroism or tragedy; sharp-eyed and sharp-tongued reporters that on head with press card prominently stuck in the band group; or gaining entry to places where the common herd could not enter because of the magic in a casually-shown press card.

So these little items have through the years acquired a measure of status all their own. Possessing one, it follows, should impart some.

For my part, I get something extra. Where . . . on the card . . . it gives weight and height and age. I get no bonus.

But where it specifies hair . . . it reads red. No mention of a thinning tendency nor the spread of silvery threads. Just "red".

Love that press card!

Sunday night's television show by Jack Benny proved to be one of his best of the season. I think he has been saving it for months; to use the show when the topic was most timely. (It had to do with going to New York to sign a new contract.)

Two reasons suggest a delayed showing was involved: Mary Livingston played a role; and soon after the present season got underway it was publicized Mary was returning for one show in the process of being filmed. I've waited and waited, but Mary didn't show until this past weekend.

Another reason: twice the script obviously called for a reference to coffee. Twice the sound track was clipped so that word was unheard. . . . which suggests it was prepared before the show's present sponsors were acquired.

One of them is a tea company.

Public Forum

To The Editor:

Of course it is proper and fitting for a candidate to place an ad with his picture in the paper just before election time, but I didn't know that it was customary, proper or fitting for a doctor to run an ad and his picture in the paper just before an election. But that certainly is a whopper of an ad that Ray Donald Minges, M. D., of Route 1, ran with his picture in The Daily Reflector of April 20. But one of the most revolting things about that ad is the stamp of approval which the doctor puts upon the alleged stealing of an election by Haywood Dail here in Greenville "approximately 53 years ago." Are we to understand that he says in reference to this allegation that he doesn't think the proponents of Urban Renewal so called can win this May 2nd election unless they steal it, and that they intend to do just that? What the doctor says about it certainly is capable of such interpretation.

Now you proponents of so-called Urban Renewal write and talk as though you think progress will die with you when you die. But we who oppose you in this matter believe in progress, too; only we resent that falsely so-called progress which you advocate which is only achieved by trampling upon the necks of your fellow beings driving them from their homes and taking them from them. You seem never to stop to think of what God Almighty thinks about such things. In fact you seem to think you know more about what is right than God Almighty himself. In spite of the contempt which Martin Luther poured out upon the Law of God, or false interpretation placed upon the Law of God, or any of his real estate away from him against his will. In his effort to establish a perfect form of government with a perfect people abiding by perfect laws, the Lord God handed down the decree that, except in a walled city a subject of that law could not sell any of his real estate to any other person and give a title in perpetuity to the same. Of his own free will he might sell a lease for a number of years, to the same. But in no event could he even sell a lease on his real estate for a time in excess of fifty years when the year of Jubilee rolled around.

When the year of Jubilee rolled around any property sold to have been "sold" by one man to another automatically reverted to the owner who is said to have "sold" the same, for it was not an actual sale, but a mere lease that had been given deeply resent your repeated casting of contempt and dishonor upon that institution by trying to glory such thievery as that of a stolen election.

the champion of progress that he tries to palm himself off as being; and if he has the interest in East Carolina College that he professes to have, he will stop trying to glorify such thievery, thus casting reproach upon that institution as standing there a monument to a stolen election, through which it is alleged to have been born into the world. Surely the President and the members of the board of trustees and the friends of East Carolina will like the poppa-and-momma store is moving to extinction. It cannot last another 50 years. Then it will join the blacksmith shops, the streetcar lines and the local breweries in history.

There will be noble efforts to keep the family farm alive.

The present Administration is taking steps to keep it prospering—Congressmen will bleed from the pores in declaring it the bulwark of American independence. Orators, recalling roseate memories of boyhood in the country, will stir defenses of the American farm. But, in the end, they will find they are defending an anachronism. They might as well defend the right of youngsters to shoot marbles on the dust of Main Street. Main Street has been paved for a quarter of a century.

The family farm is rapidly becoming an out-of-date as a hand-permarlets sell comparable meats for.

So it is on farms. Small farmers must pay higher prices by far than the giant spreads do when buying. In many instances, big farms can sell produce at lower prices than small farmers can "make" the same crop.

Automation—or at least farm machinery—is a big factor. The big farm, with machines the family farmer can't even afford to rent, can prepare more land faster and cheaper. The big farms can shoot products to market through networks of trucking services cheaper and faster than independents can get their goods to market.

Big farms can delay or hedge sales; the small farmer must sell when his crop is made. Big farmers, with shrewd legal guidance, can drink the cream of government aid; the small farmer gets only the skimmed milk. Government figures, as familiar to John F. Kennedy as to me, show the trend. In 1930, there were 6,289,000 American farms. In 1954, there were 4,782,000. There are fewer today.

In 1930, there were 80,620 farms of 1,000 acres and over; in 1950, there were 121,362. There are more today.

In 1940 the farm population was counted at 30,547,000. In March, 1960, the total would have been 19,934,000 by the same system of tallying. But the Census Bureau noted that the farm population had been determined by the question, "Is this house on a farm or ranch?" Naturally, that took in many people who were really not farmers. So the questioning was changed to determine the size of the farm and the annual income. And a few days ago the Census Bureau reported that in 1960 there were only 15,987,000 Americans living on real farms.

Revolt Against Republic

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Constantly mail comes in from many parts of the country which says that the United States "is a republic not a democracy." In words, Government is a play on the exercise of power by those who are in control of the machinery for the management of men and production and distribution. The United States is a representative republic which means that this country is governed by representatives of the people in Congress assembled in accordance with the Constitution.

There are those who say that the trend in this country is toward democracy which, in the United States, would mean the submission of government to direct pressure of the people. The assumption of those who want to keep this a republic rather than a democracy is that the structure of government must be retained, despite wars and economic dislocation. No country can afford to be static and the United States is not static. Government is constantly changing its form and application as the affairs of the country change. It is impossible to engage in wars under the constitutional limitations of the Jeffersonian era. Constitutional changes, by amendment or judicial decision, beginning with the first Ten Amendments and coming down to the Brown Decision have been constant.

The War Between the States resulted in significant constitutional alterations by war. The 14th and 15th Amendments were basic constitutional changes. Therefore, those who want to keep this a republic rather than a democracy, are raising an issue which is not of significance at this moment in our history. In fact, what we need to face now is the fact that for better or for worse, this country is in a period of transition, the nature of which no one can foretell.

H. S. Tuttle of Eagle River, Wis., pertinently asks how the country is to be saved: "By electing a President who could and would reverse the tide? That is patently impossible the way our national elections are rigged these days."

"Or by electing a roster of Congressmen who can and will fend off the terrific pressure of special interest groups, and do the right thing by this country and its people? . . ."

What Tuttle advocates is not so much impeachment as recall and his advocacy is for democracy, that is, for direct decision by the people, not through representatives chosen for a fixed period, but by popular pressure. If the people do not like a decision of the Supreme Court, the Court should be impeached, according to this doctrine. Judges would not exercise live in terror of a mob that would, without knowledge or preparation, dictate decisions. The terror of the French Revolution was of this nature. Instead of orderly government, anarchy would prevail. Mr. Tuttle jumps all over Chief Justice Earl Warren. Of him, he writes:

"Warren, as I read the record, has time after time disgraced his high office, disregarded the Constitution, flaunted and abused the Congress, rendering its work futile, disenfranchised the states of the union from rights set forth in the Constitution, coddled Communists and helped the conspiracy at every turn."

"Having committed such widely acknowledged atrocious deeds, why should not Warren be called to the bar of justice to answer? That is the one civil way of bringing culprits in high places to account — impeachment. If we do not avail ourselves of this safeguard we slide to oblivion."

This is really amazing. I do not hold with many of Justice Warren's views but these paragraphs represent a violent response to political agitation. In the 1930's such words and phrases appeared in "The Daily Worker," the organ of American Communism. In 1960, members of the John Birch Society accept such ideas in the name of conservatism.

Jungle Drums Will Resound In Churches

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The eerie boom-boom of jungle "talking drums" will sound in 39,000 Methodist churches across the country this Sunday.

The message of the drums, Africa's ancient and effective system for relaying news from village to village, is one of distress: "People of God! Give us help!"

This plea is part of a crash program to obtain doctors, food and funds to aid the troubled Congo.

To dramatize its "Bishop's Appeal For Africa," the Methodist Church has provided recordings to all its congregations, including the drumbeat signals and a narration by television commentator Walter Cronkite.

"The earthquake that is shattering human values in Africa is a continuing society catastrophe which threatens all Africa," says Bishop Newell S. Booth, head of Methodist work in the Congo.

"We must help Africa's Christians deal with it."

The Congo, for 100 years a bastion of African missionary work has 6 million Christians in a population of 13 million. But chaos attending independence has upset much of the order of church, medical care and sustenance.

"About 200,000 people have been displaced, driven from their on the land. In the meantime, the man who had sold the lease on the same had the right to redeem his land and take full possession thereof at any time he might find himself able to refund to the leaseholder the amount of rent he had paid for the years to intervene between the time of such redemption and the year of Jubilee. And even in a walled city the man selling his house and lot in perpetuity could redeem the same at any time during the first year after the sale by only returning to the buyer the money he had paid for the house and lot. You just simply couldn't take a man's real property away from him under the Law of God without the man's consent. Now that is what God thinks about "property rights," regardless of what proponents of so-called Urban Renewal may think to the contrary.

Now, there is a better road to progress than by way the advocates of Urban Renewal want to cram down our throats. Why not let the city make any improvements the tenant pays for which the land-lord refuses to furnish? Then let the city collect the rent on the house until such improvements are paid for by the rent; after which return full land-lord rights to the owner? That certainly would be a more Christian way to handle this matter than the "Urban Renewal" way. But the idea of confiscating a man's home or even his rent property because he is unable to own a bath tub is an abomination in the sight of God. I dare say there are people in this town living in the best of houses who never saw a bath tub, or even electric lights until they were possibly half grown. There isn't any use of being fools for the want of sense. Let's be reasonable and humane about this thing.

Most sincerely,
W. T. C. Briggs

Were such thinking not so widespread and such a genuine and sincere response to distress at the vast changes that are taking place in this country, one would put it all down to ill-considered repetition of agitational slogans. But actually, Mr. Tuttle's views are proof that many of our people do not understand our form of government at all and they do not understand that their liberties are assured only if the liberties of others are assured by the structure of the law, no matter how unpleasant the law may be.

A sobering note was added to the installation by Trustee Eli Bloom who said "this would be one of our happiest days except for the realization that today we buried one of our Trustees, George Johnson, a devoted Moose, a former Secretary, and director of the degree staff." Only a week ago, he said, the hospitalized Johnson expressed as one of his main concerns "was to come back to the Moose Lodge. I shall never forget it."

Drop Free Rides For Reporters

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department has clamped down hard on free rides for newsmen.

The department has distributed to the three military services and all unified commands a document, "Guidance No. 21," saying that it is against department policy to provide travel for news media representatives, except under extraordinary conditions.

The guidance statement added that it was departmental policy to encourage news personnel to travel by commercial means. Some correspondents had complained that they received less service from public information personnel at military bases after arriving by commercial means rather than by military plane.

School Employees Ask No Pay Hike

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP)—A school employees' union here wants any pay raise postponed indefinitely and has so informed the school board.

Michael J. Melvin, president of the Dearborn School Employees Independent Union said, "It may be unusual, but we believe this is where unions have to recognize their own responsibility."

Melvin cited a slump in revenues, generosity of Dearborn taxpayers in the past, and a desire to keep taxes from rising. His union represents the bulk of 585 maintenance and operational employees of the public school system.

Multi-Million Dollar Insurance Fraud Found

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The FBI hunted seven more persons today after arresting a score of civilians and servicemen on charges of perpetrating a $14.5-million insurance swindle.

Twenty persons were arrested in six states Monday, and the FBI said about 1,700 fraudulent authorizations for insurance premium allotments had been discovered at the Army Finance Center here. The center processes payrolls for the entire Army.

Insurance companies apparently were the heavy losers, because of commissions paid to salesmen. Allan Gillies, FBI special agent said the forged authorizations were slipped past finance officers at Ft. Jackson, S.C., and Ft. Dix, N.J.

The fraud involved forging soldiers' names and serial numbers to an Army form authorizing deduction of allotments for families, other purposes. It can be initiated at the company level or at the post finance office.

In most cases the insurance allotments were not deducted, but why they were not was not explained. The FBI said it "didn't want to give away our case but you can say these forms got into the channel to the finance center by illicit means."

Forty-five field offices took part in the investigation, which started after Brig. Gen. Frederick J. Kendall, finance center commander, reported last October the detection of fraudulent allotment authorizations.

Gillies said the government has recovered $70,000 which had been paid to "seven or eight well-established insurance companies" as monthly premiums on insurance with a face value of $14.5 million.

Don A. Tabbert, U.S. attorney, said commissions obtained fraudulently by insurance salesmen "probably exceeded $600,000."

Walter J. Schuchman, special assistant to the commanding general of the finance center, said, "I think a more realistic sum would be about $250,000."

Ceramics Students Selling Pots For Scholarship Fund

Advanced students of ceramics at East Carolina College are now engaged in the project of making and selling 100 pots to raise money for a scholarship for summer school study by one of their members.

During the 1961 Fine Arts Festival in Greenville the students will conduct a sale of pottery made and donated by members of the group. A hundred pieces of ceramics, of varying types and designs, are now being completed and will be offered to buyers at the annual Festival Sidewalk Art Show Thursday, May 4, at the Greenville Art Center. Prices will range from $1 to $3.

Paul R. Minnis, faculty member of the department of art, is directing the student group in their project. Students engaged in the enterprise, he said, have worked enthusiastically to make quality ceramics for the sale, which they expect to become an annual fundraising project.

The scholarship will be awarded this year by members of the student group. It is expected that the recipient will do summer work in an out-of-state college and return to the college here to share new ideas and experiences with other students of ceramics.

Leaders in the project are Priscilla Kilgore of Greenville; Robert D. Schmitz of Erie, Pa.; Forrest McD. Matheson of Taylorsville; Edward E. Lancaster of Vanceboro; Nelson Dudley of Greenville; Nancy Graves of Snow Camp; and Robert Butler of Greenville.

Pres. Kennedy Takes Responsibility For U.S. Role In Cuban Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has again made it clear that he takes full responsibility for whatever part the United States played in the ill-fated Cuban invasion.

The White House issued a statement Monday night which said: "President Kennedy has stated from the beginning that as president he bears sole responsibility for the events of the past few days. He has stated it on all occasions and he restated it now so that it will be understood by all."

"The President is strongly opposed to anyone within or without the administration attempting to shift the responsibility."

There was no elaboration on the White House statement but it apparently was prompted by sharp Republican reaction to a remark by Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall trying to shift the blame to Dwight D. Eisenhower with early planning of last week's rebel landings in Cuba.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and former President Harry Truman were to be filled in today on Kennedy's Cuban policy.

Kennedy invited the Republican governor to the White House for a mid-afternoon briefing on the invasion and the problems of combating pro-Communist Fidel Castro's Cuban regime.

He assigned Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to fly to Missouri for a similar talk with Truman.

Late last week Kennedy discussed the situation with Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

While the effect of these discussions may be to lay the groundwork for bipartisan support for any future moves by Kennedy against the Castro regime, informants said this was not the President's purpose.

The briefings were described as an exchange of views on what has happened.

(The New York Times said today the Kennedy administration is considering application of a total embargo on United States trade with Cuba.)

The question was taken up in the National Security Council Saturday as part of a search for a new policy on Cuba, but no decision was reached, a Washington dispatch to the Times added. The story noted that exports to Cuba already have been heavily curbed and now consist largely of foodstuffs and medicines.

(The story also said in part: Informants said this was not the President's purpose. The briefings were described as an exchange of views on what has happened.)

Straw Vote Held By Lions Club

A Lions Club straw vote last night re-elected Mayor S. Eugene West and approved urban renewal and public housing.

The straw vote, taken among members of the club, gave 27 votes to West and 15 votes to Charles M. King, his opponent in the May 2 municipal election.

The vote on the urban renewal issue was 27 in favor and 10 against. There were 19 votes for public housing and 15 against.

Dr. M. W. Aldridge was high man in the City Council straw vote. He received 38 votes, Wesley Harvey received 29, Dr. Ralph Brimley 26 and Ford McGowan 21.

State Probation Officer for Pitt County Harry Douglass was speaker for the Lions meeting. He told the club that whereas the parole officer supervises persons who have been in prison and paroled, his department supervises persons who are put on probation by the courts rather than sent to prison.

The department's primary aim is to rehabilitate these persons to society, Douglass added. There are now 104 people on probation in Pitt County and 4,200 in North Carolina.

Lions from Walstonburg, Farmville and Grifton were here last night to attend a zone meeting along with Greenville. Zone chairman Ron Weber conducted the meeting.

Jim Gilliland announced that the annual broom sale will be held May 15. Vic Forrest presented a speaker's lectern which he built for the club.

Staff Members In Five Hospitals, Schools Cited

Members of the staffs in five hospitals and schools in North Carolina treating and training the mentally ill, have been cited by the National Association for Mental Health to receive Psychiatric Aide Awards.

Announcement of the names of the recipients was made today by Mrs. J. B. Spilman of Greenville, Executive Director of the North Carolina Mental Health Association.

Award winners announced were Mollie R. Gupton, Murdock Cobb, Butler; Minnie Pearl Cobb, Cherry Hospital, Goldsboro; Nell Kendrick McSwain, Broughton Hospital, Morganton; William Ralph Johnson, O'Berry School, Goldsboro; and Jerry Wayne Thompson, Veterans Administration Hospital, Salisbury.

The awards will be presented to the recipients during Mental Health Week, April 30-May 6, by officers of the North Carolina Mental Health Association.

The awards are going to attendants in the five institutions who have shown an outstanding record of service to the mentally ill.

"So many times we neglect to recognize the attendants who serve so well in the overall program of treatment and care of the mentally ill," Mrs. Spilman said. "These awards, in a small way, will indicate to these valuable members of the personnel groups at the various institutions in the state that the people of North Carolina and the nation are highly appreciative of their dedication and contribution to the fight against mental illness."

Michal, Waynesville, Western Vice-President of the association, will present the award at Broughton Hospital at Morganton. Mrs. Spilman will present the award at Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro, and Mrs. Robert M. Fink of Raleigh, member of the association's board, will present the award at Murdock School at Butler.

The New York Herald Tribune quoted Nixon as calling Udall's remark "cheap and vicious partisanship." It said Nixon expressed belief that Kennedy does not approve of what Udall said.

In more backwash of the Cuban invasion, the U.S. intelligence system drew more criticism.

An administration official said the Central Intelligence Agency not only grossly underestimated the Castro military force and power to prevent an uprising, but also gave no advance warning on the French army insurrection in Algeria.

But another informant disputed this. He said the White House had received CIA reports giving the names of the French insurgents and what they were likely to do.

The question was taken up in the National Security Council Saturday as part of a search for a new policy on Cuba, but no decision was reached, a Washington dispatch to the Times added. The story noted that exports to Cuba already have been heavily curbed and now consist largely of foodstuffs and medicines.

Pirates Explode For 19-5 Shellacking Of Catawba

By LEONARD LAO Reflector Sports Writer

SALISBURY — The East Carolina diamond team lost two North State Conference baseball games last season, and both were at the hands of Catawba Indians.

Four East Carolina hitters blasted home runs in the hard-hitting affair, and one Indian batter also added a fifth four-bagger.

All-State and All-Conference basketball guard, Cotton Clayton led the winner's attack at the plate with three hits in five trips to the dish, including a home run, a triple and a single.

Pitcher Nathan Greene went the distance for the winners, striking out nine Indian batters and walking two in the nine-inning affair.

Medford, who had won sixteen straight games over North State opposition, suffered his first conference loss in his four year career at Catawba.

East Carolina managed to score in each inning with the exception of the second, fifth, and ninth.

Clayton got things started in the initial frame, batting in the number two spot.

Letfielder Gary Pierce got things going for the Buc again in the third. With two mates aboard, the hefty Pierce poled a 355-foot shot in the same vicinity as Clayton's homer.

The Indians fought back in the bottom half of the third, and managed to push a pair of runs across before Greene could put out the fire.

A double by third baseman Floyd Wicker got things started in the fourth. Then second sacker Spencer Gaylord doubled to score Wicker.

Pirate coach Jim Mallory began to substitute freely after the fourth inning uprising, but the Catawba pitchers could not contain the Buc reserves at the plate either.

An error, followed by two Indian walks loaded the bases in the eighth frame.

The Pirates took on Wake Forest this afternoon at Winston-Salem in a non-loop affair.

Tomorrow the Buc put the finishing touches on their six-game tour with a doubleheader against the High Point Panthers.

Basilio Quits Boxing For Good

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — Carmen Basilio, his battle-marked face showing the effects of almost 10 years in the ring, started a new life as a gentleman farmer today.

The craggy-jawed former world welterweight and middleweight champion announced Monday night that he was finished with boxing for good.

"Right now," said the 34-year-old Basilio, "I'm going to rest for about a week, think things over and take care of my apple trees."

He started out as an onion farmer and barely eked out a living before he turned to fighting. Now he has about eight acres of apple trees on his suburban Chittenango farm.

"I've done a lot of work on it, but there's plenty more to do," he said. "I'm moving slowly and getting help from experts. You might say I know my onions, but I still don't know my apples."

Basilio took a bad beating from Paul Pender last Saturday in Boston. Pender, defending his New York Massachusetts-Europe version of the world middleweight championship, not only won a decisive decision, but had Basilio off his feet for the first time in his career.

While he wouldn't come right out and say so, that undoubtedly helped Basilio — an ex-Marine who always was willing to take two punches to land one — make up.

"I've had a couple of good job offers," Carmen said, "but I don't want to talk about them until I make up my mind which one I'll take. I'm in no hurry."

Basilio was born in nearby Canastota, N. Y. He fought 79 times and 11 of his bouts were for world championships. He won his first title, the welterweight, when he knocked out Tony Demarco on June 10, 1955.

Nat'l League Race Lives Up To Predictions

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer

At the start of the season, the National League managers predicted a five-team race with a sixth team, the Cincinnati Reds, having an outside chance. The league standings today make the pilots look like geniuses in the guessing department.

Only one game separates the first four teams after two weeks play. Another game separates the seventh-place Milwaukee Braves from the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers. San Francisco, St. Louis and Pittsburgh, the other three in the top-rated five, are tied for second place.

In the only game played Monday Pittsburgh edged Milwaukee 7-6 to drop the Braves one game out of the cellar.

Three games were played in the American League. Detroit's first place Tigers defeated the New York Yankees 4-3. Cleveland thrashed Baltimore 5-1 and Minnesota beat Kansas City 10-6.

Every National League club can change its position today. San Francisco would take over first place by beating Los Angeles. St. Louis could share the top rung provided it defeats Milwaukee and the Dodgers lose.

Pittsburgh, by beating Philadelphia tonight also could stake a first-place claim. If the Giants beat the Dodgers, the other game pits Chicago against Cincinnati, currently tied for fifth place.

Bob Friend won his third without a defeat for the Pirates but he needed ninth inning help from Clem Labine. The veteran right-hander allowed only five hits through eight innings and went into the final frame leading 7-4.

Wes Covington's single, an error and a sacrifice produced one Milwaukee run. Friend got John Demerit to fly out but when John Logan singled in a run, Manager Danny Murtaugh summoned Labine from the bullpen.

The Pirates collected 13 hits off four Milwaukee pitchers. Mo Drabowsky, in relief, was charged with the defeat. Pittsburgh scored four runs in the fourth, kayoing starter Bob Buhl, but what proved to be the winning run was scored in the eighth. With two out, Gino Cimoli singled and Dick Groat followed with another single. Cimoli slipped rounding third. In the rundown that followed, he managed to elude the tag and slid safely across the plate.

Thirty-Two Matches Due For North-South Ams

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thirty-two matches were scheduled in today's North and South Amateur Golf Tournament first round after qualifying play had produced a mighty mile medalist in 5-4, 140-pound Wayne Jackson of Hampton, Va.

Jackson, a 26-year-old senior at Randolph-Macon College, shaved two strokes from par on each side of his trip around the 7,000-yard Country Club at the Pinehurst No. 2 course at the Pinehurst National Golf and Country Club Monday, posting a 34-34-68. Three years ago he also won the medal, with a score of 70, then bowed out in the second round.

His opening round opponent today was Dale Morey of Morganton, N. C., who in 1953 won the Western Amateur and was runner-up in the U.S. Amateur to Gene Littler, now a professional.

Jackson was one of nine men in the field of 137 who bettered par.

Second to Jackson by a stroke were Dillard Traynham of Greenville, S. C., and Dud Wysong of McKinney, Texas.

Traynham shot 36-33. Wysong made it in 34-35. Traynham was placed atop the second half of the draw against the uneven match at 2:28 of the second with Clay a badly beaten young man.

Johnson said he knew this first defense of the title he won Feb. 7 with a kayo of Jesse Boudry at Miami Beach, wasn't going to last long.

"He (Clay) is a good puncher but a very slow puncher," said Johnson. "I could see his left jab coming. I knew then all I had to do was let him lead that left and cross with my right and it wouldn't be long."

Beloff stopped the fight in the second after Clay went down for the third time. Under Pennsylvania rules, three knockdowns in one round automatically ends a fight.

The crowd of 6,738 which paid $39,993, stood and cheered Johnson's performance. The former bricklayer and drummer earned his biggest purse since putting on the gloves in 1946—$13,188, 40 per cent of the receipts. Clay's 20 per cent amounted to $6,594.

Where does Johnson go from here? He has to wait and see whether Moore, who is recognized as light heavy champ in New York, Massachusetts and Europe can make the weight for a title defense June 10—against Gullio Rinaldi. If Moore doesn't get down to 175—there is doubt he can—Johnson may substitute for him.

Major League Stars By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting — Bubba Phillips, Indians, hit his first grand slam homer in eight major league seasons and led the Indians to a 5-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Presently the Eastern County League standings are: Greenville 3 2; Hobgood 3 2; Falkland 3 2; Oak City 1 3; Leggett 2 2; Enfield 2 3.

Johnson Disposes Of Clay But Still In Same Old Rut

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harold Johnson, fresh from a successful defense of his National Boxing Association light heavyweight championship, today found himself in the same old rut—waiting for Archie Moore.

Johnson, 174, scored a second-round technical knock-out over Von Clay, 175, a fellow Philadelphia, Monday night.

Clay, 21, with a 13-3-2 record before the scheduled 15-rounder, never had a chance. Johnson, 32, veteran of 16 years in the ring, knocked him down once in the first round and three times in the second.

Referee Dave Beloff stopped the uneven match at 2:28 of the second with Clay a badly beaten young man.

Johnson said he knew this first defense of the title he won Feb. 7 with a kayo of Jesse Boudry at Miami Beach, wasn't going to last long.

"He (Clay) is a good puncher but a very slow puncher," said Johnson. "I could see his left jab coming. I knew then all I had to do was let him lead that left and cross with my right and it wouldn't be long."

Beloff stopped the fight in the second after Clay went down for the third time. Under Pennsylvania rules, three knockdowns in one round automatically ends a fight.

The crowd of 6,738 which paid $39,993, stood and cheered Johnson's performance. The former bricklayer and drummer earned his biggest purse since putting on the gloves in 1946—$13,188, 40 per cent of the receipts. Clay's 20 per cent amounted to $6,594.

Where does Johnson go from here? He has to wait and see whether Moore, who is recognized as light heavy champ in New York, Massachusetts and Europe can make the weight for a title defense June 10—against Gullio Rinaldi. If Moore doesn't get down to 175—there is doubt he can—Johnson may substitute for him.

Large Gaps Seen In Soviet Laos Proposals

By LEWIS GULICK
WASHINGTON (AP)—Top U.S. officials today saw a large gap in the Laos cease-fire plan which could let Communist-backed rebels spring another military offensive before the proposed 14-nation peace conference gets under way.

They emphasized that this hazard is one of many which will have to be surmounted in the long and uncertain struggle to get an effective international agreement for a neutral, independent Laos.

Britain and the Soviet Union, as co-chairmen of the 1954 Indo-China settlement which created Laos, Monday issued their long-awaited peace proposal. They called for a cease-fire to be checked by a three-nation control commission, then a 14-nation parley on Laos' future to start in Geneva May 12.

The cease-fire gap showed in the text of the proposal as published Monday night. The plan set no specific date for a halt to the fighting, beyond saying it should stop before the Geneva parley begins.

U.S. authorities portrayed the Laotian government forces as ready to stop their shooting promptly. But they feared the rebels, backed by mounting Soviet-airlifted supplies, would open a final push to seize additional important parts of the small Southeast Asian kingdom — perhaps fighting right up to the eve of the conference.

The allies' diplomatic bargaining position already has suffered heavily from rebel advances in a drive that since December has captured large areas of Laos adjacent to Communist North Vietnam and threatens to split the country at its narrow waist.

The State Department served notice that without a verified cease-fire, the United States will not go to the Geneva meeting.

Press officer Lincoln White underlined the military situation, stressing that the cease-fire is up to the rebels.

While voicing U.S. "satisfaction" with the British-Soviet plan, he denounced the rebels' week-end advance through strategic Vang Vieng as an 11th-hour offensive toward the capital of Vientiane.

The British-Soviet proposal said nothing about the Soviet arms airlift or U.S. aid to the Laotian government forces. U.S. strategists planned to keep American assistance flowing at least until there is a guaranteed halt to the outside Communist aid.

Southeast Asia Treaty Organization plans to step in as necessary to keep the Reds from swelling the country were said to be in readiness should the Communists try further major actions before or after the Geneva conference gets going.

U.S. officials saw a long, up-hill fight in their efforts to salvage Laos from unremitting Communist pressure.

After a halt to the shooting, a first step would be to get the control commission of members from India, Canada and Poland on the scene to make sure neither side was violating the cease-fire.

At Geneva, an early question could be who is to represent Laos, one of the 14 nations invited. The United States recognizes the government of Prince Boun Oum. The Reds say Souvanna Phouma is premier.

All the participants profess to favor an independent Laos which would be "neutral." Washington fears the Communists mean a "neutrality" aligned with Moscow-Peking.

The United States wants an effective checking system to police an agreement on Laos' future neutrality, while the Reds have a long record of opposing such controls.

If the Communists do agree to peace in Laos, U.S. strategists are concerned over the possibility that they will devote their massive military buildup in that area to an offensive against a richer prize — neighboring South Vietnam — which is already under attack from Red guerrillas.

Simple To Indentify The Married Male

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—You can bet a man is probably married if — His wallet bulges with family photos instead of money.

He breaks into hollow laughter whenever someone asks, "Anybody here got change for a $5 bill?"

The same woman gives him lunch money every day. Or, if the briefcase he carries to work in the morning contains a sandwich and a piece of cake.

He has a guilty look if a pretty blonde stops him on the sidewalk to ask a question.

In a supermarket he puts into his shopping cart a package of detergent, six cans of dog food, 12 boxes of breakfast cereals and a packet of bird seed.

Every year or so he goes around with a haunted expression asking, "Do you know anyone who would like to give a nice home to anywhere from one to six kittens that don't even have their eyes open yet?"

He gets periodical phone calls at the office in which his only part of the conversation consists of "Yes," "Uh huh," "Well, if you say so," and "Okay, dear."

Buying a new lawnmower interests him more than spending a day at a racetrack.

He laughs loudest whenever anyone tells a mother-in-law joke.

On rainy days he always wears rubbers or carries an umbrella; in winter he is always bundled up — as if by someone who didn't want to lose him.

He never gets a letter that smells of perfume, and if he did it would scare him half to death.

He can rarely discuss a new first run movie being shown at a downtown theater, but he is an authority on all the old films that inhabit television.

He always asks to have his vacations when school is out.

Pausing before the window of a travel agency, he looks yearningly at the posters of the places farthest from where he lives — preferably those showing life in Tahiti.

He shines his own shoes and, as often as not, they look like they need a shine.

The personal drawer in his office desk contains aspirin, a bottle of soda mint tablets, some unpaid bills.

He never opens his check on payday. He simply puts it in his mouth and heads for home.

By these signs you can tell him — the happy married man, backbone of civilization.

Four Cent Tax On Gasoline Now Likely To Be Retained

By EDMOND LE BRETON
WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal tax on your gasoline will continue at 4 cents a gallon if Congress follows the lead of the House Ways and Means Committee. And Congress usually does.

The committee Monday approved a compromise bill to send an additional $900 million a year into the fund which finances the pay-as-you-go federal superhighway program.

Without such a boost, Congress was told, the program might stretch out as much as five years beyond 1972, when the 41,000-mile network of superhighways is scheduled to be finished.

Beside extending the one-cent "temporary" part of the gasoline tax scheduled to expire July 1, the tax-writing committee approved a series of tax increases on truck operations and voted to divert from the general fund to the highway fund the proceeds of half the excise tax on trucks and buses.

At present the two funds divide the 10 per cent tax. Under the committee plan the highway fund would get it all. Passenger automobile excises would not be affected.

Spokesmen for truck management and labor, who complained that President Kennedy's original recommendations would have dealt their industry a cruel blow, won substantial points in the final compromise.

The increased taxes on trucks and the commodities they use add up to about $150 million a year, instead of about $300 million as Kennedy recommended. The motor fuel tax extension is estimated to be worth $600 million a year. The other $150 million, in effect, comes out of the general treasury as a result of the excise tax switch, and therefore increases the Kennedy administration's budget balancing problems. The administration asked Congress not to make any such move.

The committee turned down Kennedy's proposal to step up the tax on diesel fuel, used by trucks, from 4 to 7 cents a gallon.

It voted for these hikes in taxes affecting trucks:

- Increase from $1.50 to $3 per thousand pounds in the use tax on trucks over 26,000 pounds; increase in the tax on tires, now 9 cents a pound, and tubes, now 9 cents a pound, to 10 cents; increase in the tread rubber tax from 3 to 5 cents.

Kennedy had recommended boosting the use tax to $5 and the tread rubber tax, along with those on tires and tubes, to 10 cents.

Ex-Convict Gets 50-Year Term

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP)—A young Martinsville man who has been at odds with the law since his teens was sentenced Monday to 50 years in prison for the armed robbery of a North Carolina police chief.

A jury in Henry County Circuit Court set the penalty after convicting James Curtis Weatherman, 22-year-old ex-convict, of robbing Spray, N.C., Police Chief Wiseman Terry at pistol point last Dec. 16.

Weatherman's troubles however, seem just to have begun.

Within the new few weeks, he faces trial in the same court here on a charge of maliciously wounding Terry with six pistol shots after the robbery near Philpott Lake.

And North Carolina authorities have indicated they will place a variety of charges against the youthful house painter, among them armed robbery, kidnapping, and breaking and entering.

Terry testified Monday he was investigating a break-in at Spray last Dec. 16 when Weatherman, waving a pistol, climbed into the chief's police cruiser and forced him to drive 30 miles to the Henry County area of Philpott Lake.

Once there, Terry told the jury, Weatherman took his wallet, knocked him out of the car, and shot him six times as he lay helpless on the ice-covered asphalt highway.

Weatherman denied guilt and when asked by Judge John D. Hooker what he had to say after the jury verdict was read, replied: "Nothing except that I am innocent."

Reno, Nev., was named for Maj. Gen. Jesse L. Reno, a Union Army officer who died during the Civil War.

Renew Attack On Hammarskjold

UNITED NATIONS (AP)— Soviet delegates Monday renewed attacks on Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold in the U.N. Economic and Social Council and its committees.

In the council Soviet delegate E. N. Meez refused to vote for a program of listing national parks and reserves throughout the world because Hammarskjold was supposed to draw it up.

The council however, approved the program, 15-0.

In the council's social committee, which reviewed reports on its long-term project on freedom of information, Soviet delegate V. I. Saphozhnikov attacked a U.S.-French draft resolution because it called on Hammarskjold to circulate the reports to members.

Hope They're Rid Of Boy Stowaway

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Immigration officials think they are rid of Angel Molina, 15, who gave them a hectic time.

He arrived here Wednesday as a stowaway from the Canary Islands aboard the Colombian ship Azurite. At first he said he was a Cuban refugee seeking asylum. Later he gave six other versions of how he happened to be here. When none of those tales proved acceptable he made a dash for freedom but soon was caught.

The Azurite sailed for South America late Monday and Molina is believed to have gone with it.

Reconciliation In Crosby Family

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former Las Vegas showgirl Sandra Drummond says she and her husband, Philip Crosby, have reconciled.

She petitioned Monday for withdrawal of her separate maintenance suit filed against the son of Bing Crosby March 24. She had charged mental cruelty and had sought $2,500 monthly support for herself and their two children.

She said Crosby, part of the Crosby brothers singing team, earns $75,000 yearly.

THE HAUNTED STARS

CHAPTER 15

The doctor was moving busily about the starship, checking pulse rates and blood pressures, making notes. His name was Reichler. He was young and his face had already regained most of its color. Winstedt, the biologist, still clung to his couch, looking like a collapsed paper bag. Reichler checked him twice, assured him he was all right, and passed on. There was an astrophysicist beyond him, a reasonably young man named Wiley, and beyond him a geologist and a mathematician whose names Fairlie could not remember.

Beyond them Christensen sat on his couch with his head in his hands. There was something about the sagging, quiescent posture of the great broad body that woke a sudden pity in Fairlie. Reichler spoke to him but he did not answer. He spoke again, and this time Christensen looked up with a slow dazed look and said, "I'll be all right. Just let me alone."

In spite of his sickness, in spite of his fear, Fairlie's heart began to beat with a powerful excitement. The excitement did not last long. Fairlie sat with Christensen, Winstedt, and DeWitt in the small, functional lounge room that served them for every activity but sleeping. They took turns at it, arranging sleeping hours so that only half the personnel was on deck at any one time and then reshuffling the groups so that only half the personnel was on deck at any one time and then reshuffling the groups so that there was a change of faces. After a sufficient number of shufflings all the faces became repugnant and all the conversation unbearably familiar.

"Is it possible," Fairlie asked, "to be bored on a flight to Altair?"

"The human animal is infinitely adaptable," Winstedt said. "It's not only possible. It's inevitable."

DeWitt said, "I'm not bored. Just waiting." He smiled and stretched his arms, then settled again into his chair. He's telling the truth Fairlie thought. He's like a cat, rested, relaxed, patient, letting the time go by.

"This is because you know what you're going for," said Christensen, "and you're convinced you're going to find it. That's the one advantage of the single mind. No doubts, no uncertainties. No second thoughts. The rest of us—" He glanced around. "We don't know."

Winstedt grunted. "Philosophical considerations aside, I am sick of looking at the same damned walls and eating the same damned tasteless food. How much longer, DeWitt?"

DeWitt grinned and shook his head. "Who knows? Since we passed the light-barrier we're technically nowhere, and there's no time in nowhere."

"The chronometers still work," Winstedt said.

"Sure. They're mechanical, they measure the same intervals they always did. But how do we know what the intervals mean here? How do we know how much our own time-sense has been distorted? We're outrunning light and that means that in a sense we're outside of ordinary time."

Winstedt nodded. "And I'm sure the math boys are having fun with the problem. Meanwhile I'd just like to know how much longer I will be cooped up in this trap."

"Well," said DeWitt, "the Ur-men used an arbitrary system as a point of reference in computing time on these voyages. By their reckoning, about three more weeks until we re-translate into normal space and see how close we came to hitting Altair."

Christensen said, "What happens if your calculations are wrong, if the translation of the mathematical symbols was just a fraction in error?"

Fairlie had heard that question before. Christensen seemed to be fond of asking it.

DeWitt said softly, "Go ahead, Chris, needle all you want. Hope all you want. We'll make it. I'll make it, too."

"Did I say you wouldn't?"

"Once. And every time you meet me you look into my face with that intent and hopeful look." Christensen smiled. "I'm not going to make it that easy for you."

Don't be too sure, thought Fairlie, and resolutely looked away from Christensen. The strain had been hard on all of them. The violent wrench of take-off, the unavoidable mental anguish that built with the building of the drive-potential, wondering what would happen when they crossed that uncrossable barrier of light-speed, feeling horribly alone and lost. Then the plunge into the nameless hyperdimension, guided by nothing at all by a set of equations, symbols, and directives worked out thirty thousand years ago and strained into modern English through the doubtful brain tissues of one Fairlie.

After that the unnatural aspects of the life aboard this ship that was not a ship at all but a tightly-sealed trap, became even more hideously unnatural.

Briefly they had seen the stars. They had looked out upon the universe and seen an incredible vastness swarming with suns and galaxies of suns, beautiful with a billion billion lights shimmering purely in the clean dark, and it was terrifying but it was not dull. Not in the least dull. But the tremendous power of the drive hurried them faster and faster, building velocity until the stars were distorted and drawn out into strange lines and finally into a nightmarish and unreal gloom.

The ports were closed. They sat blind inside the ship and felt curious and unpleasant changes taking place in themselves, in their time-sense, in the action of their blood, the beating of their hearts. There were some odd reactions. Dr. Reichler wallowed in a perpetual feast of aberrations and hallucinations. Everybody used opiates to sleep, and still they had nightmares.

It was hard. Mentally and physically hard on everybody, even on DeWitt, though he showed it less than anyone. But it had been hardest of all on Christensen. He had lost weight. His face was grayish, his eyes deep-sunk and shadowed. Fairlie suspected that he had sustained some serious physical damage in the take-off, the strain perhaps aggravating some latent condition that might never have bothered him if he had stayed on Earth. Reichler was worried about him. Fairlie knew, though nothing had been said out loud.

Perhaps, thought Fairlie, when we land he'll pick up again. And he was surprised to find how much Christensen had come to mean to him. During the voyage, as he had watched DeWitt and listened to him, he understood more and more how vitally important it was to have a man like Christensen in command.

If anything happened to him it could be very bad both for the expedition and for the world, maybe even for two worlds. In a situation here anything at all might happen, where they could not even guess at what they might find on a totally strange planet. It needed a man with judgment and the ability to see more than one side to a problem.

There was more to it than that, though. Fairlie liked Christensen as a man. He had had more opportunity to know him here, where the close confinement threw people together whether they would or not. He had talked with him, glimpsed something of the complexities underlying the hearty Viking exterior. Christensen was a thinker and Fairlie believed that that as much as the physical strain was tearing Christensen to pieces.

DeWitt had his problems, his strains and stresses, but they were all on one level. He could deal with them. Christensen was different. Vast areas of thought and conjecture were open to him that DeWitt never heard of, and the farther he wandered in them the harder it got. Fairlie had done some wandering himself. He felt for Christensen. He hoped very much that nothing would happen to him.

Fairlie has to face eventualities that he'd never thought of. Continue the story here tomorrow.

Rejuvenating Wall St. May Take Ten Years

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Wall Street is thinking big these days—about how it should look as well as about how high is up for stock prices.

But planning how the famed financial district can be saved from decay, made more useful and more glamorous is one thing. Getting it done is another.

Men backing the big rejuvenation of Manhattan Island's lower tip say the plan is really moving now.

"We've made good progress in two years of trying," says David Rockefeller, chairman of the Downtown-Lower Manhattan Association. "It may take 10 years to get everything done. But the chances look good now, both of getting official approval and of raising the money."

The younger brother of New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is president of the Chase Manhattan Bank, which is moving into the new 60-story building in the area it thinks should continue to be the world's financial capital.

"The association's plan for the area is to the interest of all concerned," David Rockefeller said in an interview. "Beating back encroaching decay will benefit those already here. The planned new buildings will bring together allied public and private groups now scattered."

"And the local government, which must approve the changes, will benefit from getting his tax returns from areas where decay has reduced receipts almost to nothing."

The association's plans have all the modern trappings—the latest in architecture, such as a circular building for the new home of the New York Stock Exchange; a $355-million building cluster to bring together all the activities of the great harbor that make it a world trade center; a hotel for out-of-town tycoons and lesser lights having business in Wall Street; and middle-income housing in walking distance of Wall Street jobs.

The powerful Port of New York Authority, an agency of the states of New York and New Jersey, has come out as sponsor for the $355-million world trade center. The New York Legislature has approved the plan. The authority now awaits similar action by the New Jersey lawmakers. Then it can draw up detailed plans and arrange financing.

The authority's record of financing bridges and tunnels and making them pay and pay and pay has given its security offerings top rating. Rockefeller foresees no financing difficulties if the authority gets the official go-ahead.

Still to be decided is whether the authority will sell some of its completed projects, or lease them. The New York Stock exchange, say, might rent the proposed new trading quarters instead of owning them outright.

Housing developments, apart from the world trade center, require federal and city approval. But Rockefeller insists that this should be forthcoming and that real estate interests are ready to go ahead at once under Title I for slum clearance.

Quality Is A Greater Problem Than Quantity In Getting Student Nurses

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two articles dealing with the nursing situation in North Carolina.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quality is a bigger problem than quantity in recruiting students for hospital schools of nursing.

"We're getting girls with beautiful high school transcripts—all A's and B's—and they can't read, write or spell," reported the director of a school of nursing.

Another nursing school director agreed that actual recruiting of student nurses is only a part answer to the widespread shortage of professional nurses in hospitals.

"Girls who want to go into nursing need to be straightened out on what courses to take in high school," she said. "A business administration course is not good for nursing. Our applicants need a basic college preparatory course—math, English, chemistry, biology, sociology, psychology and I think the day is coming when the schools may require physics."

According to a survey of hospitals conducted by a group of North Carolina afternoon newspapers, there is generally no shortage of applicants for nursing schools.

Shortages in the nursing field begin in the first year of nursing school, usually by the end of the first six months.

A Duke Endowment survey completed this year found that about one of every four students entering a hospital school of nursing drops out before completing training. Three of every four drop outs occur in the first year.

Financial or disciplinary problems are not the major causes of drop-outs. The major reasons are problems with the educational standards and with the students' family plans (most commonly marriage).

Duke University in Durham reported that it never lacks for applicants in its 300-student school of nursing.

A Watts Hospital, also in Durham, has 25 per cent more applications for its accredited nursing school than it can accept.

High Point Memorial Hospital expects to have 80 to 90 applicants next fall from which to choose 32 student nurses.

Winston-Salem hospitals find that a more-than-adequate supply of applicants for the schools of nursing permits the selection of only "the cream of the crop."

A Baptist Hospital spokesman said that an education building or para-medical building would permit a doubling of the student nurse enrollment.

Hospitals in Western North Carolina are enthusiastic with the interest being stimulated by Health Careers for Western North Carolina, a non-profit organization devoted to the recruitment of para-medical personnel, including student nurses.

As a result of the unique recruiting organization, 214 young people entered some type of medical vocation last September. This was 33 more than in the preceding year.

A High Point hospital administrator has voiced the concern of several hospitals over the financial operation of schools of nursing. Administrator W. R. Peters predicted that sooner or later hospitals operating nursing schools will have to seek outside aid (he suggested state aid).

Peters figures that the actual cost of a student nurses' training in her three years in school is $836 per year—giving a generous allowance for the services she performs for the hospital during training. This cost, over and above the $300 tuition paid by the student nurse, must be paid by patients in the hospital.

Dr. Sample B. Forgue, director of Watts Hospital in Durham, figured that educating a student nurse costs the hospital $610 a year, a year over and above the fees she pays.

Many hospitals are cooperating schools for licensed practical nurses. In several cases, these schools offer classroom work under city school supervision and actual nursing duty in the general hospitals.

In Goldsboro, each class of practical nursing being conducted by Wayne Memorial Hospital in cooperation with the city schools has had the maximum 25 students enrolled.

There have been about 10 schools for licensed practical nurses established in North Carolina in the last six or seven years. Others are planned.

W. W. Lowrance, administrator of Memorial Mission Hospital in Asheville, reported his institution provides on-the-job training for nurses' aides. "This," he said, "has been of considerable help to us."

Story Behind A Switch That Won An 'Oscar'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— "Burt Lancaster wants to talk to you about a movie," said Shirley Jones' manager. "I don't know what the role is, but it might be a shady lady. So dress sexy and look old."

From just such beginnings are Oscars won. That's the way it started for the winsome Miss Jones, whose film career was dragging until she played the racy Lulu Baines in "Elmer Gantry."

"When I went to talk about doing the part," she recalls, "I wore a dress that was cut down to here and fit tight around the hips. I also wore my hair up, so I wouldn't look so young."

"Burt and the producer, Bernie Smith, were for me from the start; they had seen me do a TV drama with Red Skelton, in which I played a couple of drunk scenes and committed suicide. Richard Brooks, the director, wasn't so sold on me; I think he had some other else in mind."

"But Burt was insistent and I got the role without making a test, though I would have been willing to make one. Brooks still wasn't for me until after the first day of shooting."

She convinced him—and the Academy voters. It was one of the notable switch-castings of recent times, her turning from musical comedy heroine to fallen woman. It also gave her a whole new film career to replace one that had been drifting.

Not that she is going to specialize in portraying tainted butterflies. Matter of fact, she is now back in the musical comedy dodge, playing Marian the librarian in "Music Man."

The musicals almost did her in, as far as films. She was immediate fame by being chosen by Rodgers and Hammerstein as their film Laurie in "Oklahoma!"

When she finished "Carousel" her studio, 20th Century-Fox, told her it had no films for her—"because we aren't planning any musicals." She protested that she could do non-musicals, but to no avail.

Talented Child . . .

third grade years. A student goes through these levels as rapidly as he completes the work. The eighth is an enrichment level.

In the county "itinerant teacher" idea, Thomas Strickland teaches classes in the Farmville and Ayden schools in science. Mathematics is also taught in the Ayden School.

Alford and Dr. Scott noted that the same type of enthusiasm prevailed among participating students and teachers in the county schools as in the city schools.

It was pointed out in discussion by Rose that one of the questions in connection with the program was that if the "leaders" were taken out of a group and placed in another program, would the remaining children feel "leaderless." He said that leadership develops in every group, in answer to that question.

Dr. Bixler strongly emphasized that to keep the program effective, there is constant evaluation and constant re-grouping. These evaluations insure school officials that they are meeting the needs of the group, getting the right children and are conducting the necessary program.

It was also pointed out by Dr. Bixler that acceleration in this program refers to subject acceleration, which enables capable students on the eighth grade level, for instance, to take ninth grade subjects. Acceleration does not refer to skipping grades, he said.

Concluding the meeting, Rose said that as far as the city program is concerned, "We hope this program will be continued." Grouping in city schools began in 1957, before the state study was organized.

As research director, Dr. Bixler termed himself an "inter-pretive writer." This will be his final visit here in connection with these particular centers this year.

The next step will be action by the legislature.

Contributing To Kindergarten

Contributions to the summer kindergarten program, being sponsored by the City Council P-T-A, have been made by several organizations, it was announced today.

Among those contributing are the Clio Book Club, Presbyterian Local Fund, Round Table Book Club, Greenville branch of the American Association of University Women, Fidelity Class of Memorial Baptist Church and Athenaeum Book Club.

The summer kindergarten program will be open to children who will be six on or before Oct. 16 and who have had no previous kindergarten experience. Money received from civic organizations for the program will be spent for those children who are not able to pay the regular fee.

CLAMORING FOR REFRESHMENTS . . . are these East Carolina College students at the College's Student Union. In cooperation with Pitt County's Salute to East Carolina College, merchants who deal directly with the College Union, this morning supplied free coffee and donuts to the students. Soft drinks, ice cream, cookies and cakes were distributed to the students at the Union this afternoon. Music from the juke boxes at the Student Union was also supplied free today as a token of appreciation.

Damage Set At $1,150 In 3-Car Collision Monday

Damage set at $1,150 resulted in a three-car collision at the intersection of Evans and 10th Sts. yesterday about 12:03 p.m., police reported today.

Officers said car driven by Mildred Smith Wallace, 26-year-old Negro of 1208 West Third St. and William Harvey Hales, 26 of 1008 Cotanche St. collided when the Wallace vehicle turned in front of the Hales car.

Investigators noted the force of the collision caused Mrs. Wallace to lose control of her car, and the vehicle crashed into a car stopped for a red traffic light at the intersection.

The driver of the third auto was listed as John Thurman Clark, Jr., 39 of 146 Longmeadow Road. The Wallace car was traveling West on 10th St. while the Hales car was going East, police reported. The Clark auto was stopped, headed North, on Evans St.

Heaviest damage, estimated to be about $500, was done to the Clark car, while an estimated $400 damage resulted to the Wallace vehicle. Damage to the Hales car was placed at $250.

Mrs. Wallace was charged with failure to yield the right of way, in the collision, while Hales was charged with having improper registration plates on his car.

the animal, he lost control of the bicycle and ran into the path of the car.

The youth was treated for a cut on his forehead and a bruised left leg, and released.

No charges were made in the 6:43 p.m. mishap.

Withdraws As ECC Student

Alvin Gene Bennett, 23, of Bassett, Va., arrested about 1 a.m. April 22 by police on charges of public drunkenness, withdrew yesterday from East Carolina College where he was a student.

Bennett was taken into custody by officers after the youth ran from behind the Sigma Sigma Sigma Sorority house at 803 East Fifth St., and was chased onto the ECC campus by police.

Murder Case Heard By Superior Court

A murder trial consumed the morning half of today's session of Pitt County Superior Court.

Mary Lee Thompkins, Farmville Negro, faced first degree murder charges in the Feb. 2 slaying of Amos Thompkins in Farmville.

With Judge Albert W. Cowper presiding, the court disposed of eight cases yesterday.

The trial of 25-year-old Jay Leo Stokes of Route 4, Greenville, on charges of procuring perjury was expected tomorrow.

The Grand Jury yesterday indicted Stokes on the perjury charge that grew from hit and run and careless and reckless driving charges in Greenville City Court.

Stokes was acquitted on the traffic violations counts in March when 22-year-old Negro William Nathaniel Brown testified that he, not Stokes, was guilty of the charges.

Several hours after Brown was tried and sentenced to 18 months on the roads, he sent word to municipal court that he had lied on the stand. It was then that Judge Charles H. Whedbee issued a warrant for Stokes' arrest, charging subornation of perjury.

Cases disposed of yesterday included: Mervin Jarvis Cherry, 39, Washington, N.C., speeding (74 m.p.h. in 60 zone), $50 and cost.

Melvin Bruna Morris, speeding (65 m.p.h.), $10 and cost.

Linwood Ragland, 43, Route 5, Greenville, pleaded not guilty, motion of non-suit allowed.

Floyd Dennis Pennell, 29, Route 6, Greenville, $100 and cost.

Johnnie Willis Jr., 39, 1217 Davenport St., improper brakes, pleaded not guilty, jury verdict of not guilty.

Offers Reward In Stolen Sign Case

Local police reported today that Phil Goodson, a local realtor, is offering a $25 reward for the arrest and conviction of a person or persons who stole a sign from one of his houses at the intersection of 14th and Railroad Sts. last night.

The sign, according to the report, was "Vote Against Urban Renewal."

Detectives said the case is being investigated.
