

'Space Telescope' Put In Gov. Sanford Promises Better Orbit At Cape Canaveral; Day Coming For N.C. Teachers Signals Loud And Clear

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A complex "space telescope" was fired into orbit today to explore radiation mysteries of the universe.

The 95-pound satellite named Explorer XI sped away from this test center at 9:17 a.m. in the nose of a 7-foot Juno II rocket. All four stages of the booster ignited successfully and propelled the payload into orbit at nearly 18,000 miles an hour.

More than two hours after launch the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced that "tracking stations at Johannesburg, South Africa; Woomera, Australia; San Diego, Calif., and East Grand Forks, Minn., confirmed that the satellite is in orbit."

The exact orbital path and other details were not immediately known. The telescope was aimed at a course which would swing it between 300 and 750 miles above the earth. Project officials said good signals were being received from the satellite.

The success gives U.S. scientists the world's first astronomical observatory in space.

The assignment is to study space rays outside the air envelope which interferes with reception on earth.

The shot looked good from the start. At a news conference later Charles Cole, the project engineer of Jet Propulsion Laboratories which made the upper stages of the rocket, said the launching appeared to be normal and there was every indication orbit was achieved.

He said confirmation could not be made until the satellite had made one pass around the earth. The test was only indirectly related to the man-in-space program which suffered a serious setback Tuesday. In that trial, rocket failure cut short an attempt to put into orbit and bring back to earth just such a space capsule as a Mercury astronaut will ride. The Atlas booster wandered off course and was intended to be called Explorer XI.

Today's satellite—to be called Explorer XI—was planned to give United States scientists the world's first astronomical observatory in space.

The specific assignment is to measure Gamma rays. High-energy Gamma rays stream out from cosmic sources such as the Milky Way and other star-cluster galaxies. They are associated with nuclear activity and scientists believe they may be the keys to information about the elements making up the universe.

The early portion of the flight appeared to be normal as the Juno II sped across a clear sky, disappearing from sight about 2½ minutes after launch.

"North Carolina has stopped expecting teachers to work for apples and yearbook dedications and we are going to do right by our teachers from this day forward," Gov. Terry Sanford told a Pitt County Salute to East Carolina College gathering last night.

The governor spoke at a banquet in New South Dining Hall which climaxed the county's salute to the college.

Gov. Sanford declared, "The Executive Branch of your State Government and the Legislative Branch are working day and night in Raleigh to improve the status of its pay scales for teachers."

The governor, who campaigned on better teacher pay scales and has recommended substantial pay increases for teachers to the Legislature, urged ECC's education majors to "stay with us and help build North Carolina's schools."

"North Carolina has expressed its faith in you students by its support of this institution," he declared. I trust you students will prove your faith in North Carolina by marching with us as we move forward. By so doing, you will lift the greatest salute possible to your own East Carolina College."

Gov. Sanford pointed out that East Carolina trains more teachers than any other college in the State and is fifth in the nation.

He reminded that the college has educated more than 84,000 men and women over the years. "From this number have come many of the teachers, the principals and superintendents of our public schools, and professors for our colleges," he declared. "A goodly number of bankers, businessmen and industrialists also have received their training here."

He pointed out that there are students from 91 of the state's 100 counties enrolled and there are students from 32 states and ten foreign lands.

The governor referred to other contributions of the college "for which we have no mathematical measure."

"How can we measure the enrichment of North Carolina's culture—its art, literature, music—which was made possible through the training of young men and women here."

"Suffice it to say that North Carolina would have been less than it is tonight but for East Carolina College. Certainly the potential we intend to achieve in Eastern North Carolina would not be possible, as we look to the future, as we look to the new day, but for this institution."

The governor drew applause when he referred to college president, Dr. Leo Jenkins, as one of the never-tiring administrators of the college. He described Dr. Jenkins as "a man who is doing one of the outstanding jobs in North Carolina education today."

"I believe though, the highest tribute belongs to the faculty members," he continued. "I know of one member of this faculty who, after 12 years of dedicated teaching here, recently helped place a student of hers at a salary of $1,000 more than she is being paid."

"Here tonight from this platform, I want to assure that faculty member that North Carolina is going to do better for her and for all her colleagues."

Gov. Sanford told the ECC boosters that "everything we have is not located in Chapel Hill and Raleigh. Proud as we are of our University, East Carolina College has created for itself an unchallenged role of leadership in the field of higher education in Eastern North Carolina."

He paid tribute to such early leaders as Sen. James L. Fleming, W. H. Ragsdale, Gov. Jarvis and J. Y. Joyner for their contributions to the institution.

Kennedy Discloses Plan To Name Ethics Coordinator

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said today he intends to appoint an officer to coordinate ethical standards in the government's executive departments and agencies.

This officer would report directly to him, Kennedy said in a special message to Congress on conflicts of interest.

"Regulation of ethical conduct," Kennedy said, "must be coordinated in order to ensure that all employees are held to the same general standards of conduct."

At the same time, Kennedy proposed a broad overhaul of conflicts of interest laws. He also urged adoption of specific codes of conduct in every government agency relating to private contacts over pending business. Kennedy was understood to have a "no exception" rule in mind on such contacts, which would include members of Congress.

White House aides described the message as the most far-reaching document on ethics ever submitted to Congress by a president.

Kennedy said he will, by executive order, shortly blueprint those things which a government employee may not do if he wants to continue on the payroll.

Kennedy did not indicate whom he intended to appoint to the ethics post. But, there was immediate speculation that the job might be offered to James M. Landis, former dean of the Harvard Law School.

Last December, Landis, 61, special assistant to the President for regulatory agencies, prepared a report on the agencies for Kennedy, then President-elect. Among other recommendations, Landis proposed that an office be created within the executive branch to "assist the President in discharging his responsibility of assuring the efficient execution of those laws that these agencies administer."

Kennedy said he would charge his ethics coordinator with these responsibilities:

Preparing for presidential proclamation general regulations as needed.

Developing methods of informing government personnel about ethical standards.

Conducting studies and accumulating experience leading to more effective regulation of ethical conduct, including the formulation of rules in areas not yet regulated.

Sanford, Kennedy Confirm Fair Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—With the White House rose garden as a setting and President Kennedy lending a hand, Gov. Sanford of North Carolina formally announced today an international trade fair will be held in his state this fall.

Sanford said the fair, first state sponsored event of its kind, will open Oct. 12.

He expressed the hope that President Kennedy "will come to North Carolina to help us open it."

The city where the trade fair will be held was not announced. Charlotte, Greensboro and Winston-Salem have been mentioned in speculation. Graham Jones, the governor's press secretary, said the site is still open to any city.

Sanford said the fair will be to show people from all over the world "North Carolina's manufactured goods and international trade potential of our state."

The governor flew to Washington with an entourage of about 40, including 30 representatives of North Carolina news media.

Five airplanes brought the party from Raleigh, N.C., landing at National Airport promptly at 10 a.m. They arrived at the White House shortly after 11:30 a.m.

Sanford said in a statement announcing the fair that it "will offer management, salesmen and buyers the big opportunity of seeing the products of thousands of North Carolina manufacturers, ranging from textiles and tobacco to furniture and electronics."

"The international trade fair in North Carolina and the resulting increase in international trade which we firmly expect from the fair will have beneficial effects on North Carolina production and trade."

"While minor in itself," he added, "we believe it will be an important step in the right direction for the solution of the problem of the gold imbalance. We trust this fair will set a pattern for selling American goods and spreading American good will abroad."

"In view of the importance of this fair to the United States generally and to North Carolina in particular, I have asked President Kennedy to give it his attention, his interest and his assistance."

"The U.S. Department of Commerce, is cooperating in many ways."

"North Carolina has accepted the President's challenge: We are not asking what the federal government can do for us. Rather we are asking what we can do for the United States with the exchange of trade ideas and good will."

"The North Carolina international trade fair is to open Oct. 12. We are hoping President Kennedy will come to North Carolina to help us open it. That is Columbus Day and we are inviting our friends overseas to rediscover America in North Carolina."

Urban Renewal Is Changing Norfolk

(Editor's Note: Norfolk, Va., is one of the most advanced cities of the nation in Urban Renewal. In view of the local May 2 referendum on Urban Renewal and public housing, The Daily Reflector asked Frank Sullivan, business writer for the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot to prepare an article on his city's progress. This is his report.)

By FRANK SULLIVAN

A stranger visiting downtown Norfolk any work day this week might be reminded of the heart of London after a World War II air raid.

On second glance, however, he'd be convinced the town was being wrecked by a battery of huge crane-like machines and bulldozers.

The second observation would be more correct for Norfolk literally is rebuilding the heart of its downtown business district. It's part of the work of the Downtown Redevelopment Project, third such undertaking in the city and largest in the South.

It's a big undertaking considering that 400 business establishments and nearly as many families are being relocated. The next step will be the redevelopment phases, some aspects of which already are giving evidence of what downtown Norfolk's new skyline will look like.

If you should be approaching Norfolk via the tunnel from Portsmouth for the first time in several years, you'll see the new Public Safety Building overlooking the waterfront, the structure, representing a cost of $4.5 million, is the first unit of the new Civic Center which will be completed late in 1963. Other units will be a 13-story city hall and a States Courts building.

There are other showpieces, symbolic of the new business district in the making. Maritime Tower, a five story basic structure, topped by eight floors of office space, dominates the two-block space on Monticello Avenue, formerly occupied by the old City Market and Municipal Building. It cost $6 million to erect.

Several blocks north on Monticello Avenue is the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel, a 13-story combination facility which contains hotel and motel facilities, three floors of offices and more convention facilities than you'll find anywhere else in Tidewater. Located on a 5.5 acre tract, construction and installations will cost $6.5 million, but the tax return will be better than 22 times what was received from hotels and blighted structures formerly located there.

The Golden Triangle Motor Hotel is in the 123 acre area of Redevelopment Project No. 1, first in the nation to reach the execution stage. Launched late in 1951, it is now nearing completion.

Within the same project is another good argument for urban renewal, a half-mile long "industrial strip" between Tidewater Drive and the Norfolk & Western Railway, which contains about $6 million of new distributive type commercial buildings.

The tax return to the city runs better than six to one over what previously was assessed, but never fully collectible.

Another urban renewal showpiece is the Medical Center, an $11 million undertaking in which

Cease-Fire Call Asked For Laos

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Laotian government today proposed a cease-fire at noon Friday as fears rose among Westerners in Laos that resistance to pro-Communist rebel attacks was nearing collapse.

The call for a cease-fire was broadcast by radio and given to the Russians for relay to the Lao rebels, but there was no indication of any quick agreement from the rebel side.

Western sources in Vientiane, the administrative capital of Laos, said there was no report of major fighting since the rebels Wednesday captured Muong Sai, a trading village 55 miles north of Luang Prabang, the royal capital.

These informed quarters referred to the dropping morale of royal army soldiers, battered by the Communist-supplied Pathet Laos in the weeks of political maneuvering for a truce.

Whether the new airlift of arms to royal troops, launched Wednesday by the U.S. Air Force, could stem the tide was a question. Washington declared the flow of arms will continue until a cease-fire is reached.

Both sides have agreed to a cease-fire but the rebels appear in no hurry to agree to a date as long as they continue to extend their control over wide areas of Laos.

Stamped 'OK'

RALEIGH (AP)—The House Committee on Roads and Highway Safety today stamped its approval on a bill to require inspection of motor vehicles.

The inspection measure, described by its backers as a stride towards highway safety, already has passed the Senate.

The House committee's action brought smiles to Sen. Cutler Moore of Robeson, sponsor of the bill.

There was a scattering of "no" votes in the committee. Rep. Carson Gregory of Har- net, an opponent, asked for the ayes and noes. "Some of us want our votes recorded," he said. But the chairman, Rep. Dwight Quinn of Cabarrus, ruled that no such record is kept in committee.

The bill would require annual inspection by licensed garages of a vehicle's brakes, lights, tires, horn, steering mechanism and wipers. Registration also would be checked.

The fee would be 75 cents for inspection and 25 cents for the state sticker showing the vehicle passed.

Another Kennedy Measure Passes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate plans to send President Kennedy today legislation carrying an estimated $200 million in benefits for needy children of unemployed parents.

The House quickly cleared the compromise bill Wednesday. No Senate opposition is apparent.

This will be the sixth of the 16 items on Kennedy's legislative priority list to reach the White House. He submitted the list in February and has since expanded it considerably.

The fifth point to be cleared by Congress, the $394 million depressed areas bill, was passed by the House Wednesday and sent to the White House. Kennedy is expected to sign it today.

Another major item on the list, minimum wage legislation, virtually was wrapped up in final form Wednesday by Senate House conferees. Full agreement is to be reached on Monday, with floor votes coming up later next week. A bitter fight is expected in the House, since the compromise bill will be close to the Senate version.

Two other of the 16 points are expected to make progress today in Senate subcommittees.

The housing group plans to complete its work on the President's $3.2 billion 1961 housing legislation.

The education subcommittee headed by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., begins its closed-door consideration of the $2.3 billion public grade and high school grant bill.

Morse's group is expected to approve this measure 8-1 although it is uncertain how quickly the action will come. The subcommittee completed lengthy public hearings on the legislation last month.

The dependent children bill was asked by the President as emergency legislation because of high jobless rates in many communities.

Under the present aid to dependent children relief program, payments are available only to orphans or to abandoned children.

The bill changes this to provide the benefits to children in families where the breadwinner is out of work.

The new program is optional with the states and runs 14 months to June 30, 1962. The administration estimates only about half the states will participate but that these will be ones with the majority of the eligible families.

Sponsors of the legislation said some unemployed fathers had abandoned their families in order to make them eligible for present relief payments.

Issued Himself Traffic Ticket

BURR OAK, Mich. (AP)—Police Chief Ralph Barry issued a traffic ticket to himself Wednesday on a charge of "not looking where he was driving" when his patrol car was involved in a minor collision.

The chief said he bumped into another car when he took his eyes off the road to wave at some school children.

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN
In his book "Creative Gardens," James C. Rose deals with modular gardens as well as other types. The advantage of the modular gardens is the economy of having standardized garden units with which the gardener can change the design as he pleases. The initial outlay may cost more than the fixed garden with its paved terrace and plant areas but the fact that you can change designs and rearrange your garden at very reasonable cost makes it far cheaper in the long run. You can do most of the rearranging yourself. The only parts of the garden that remain fixed are the trees and few types of shrubs you may wish to keep. However, if you use only bulbs, annuals and perennials, the only features you retain will be the trees.

The modular system can also be applied to the terrace you plan to put up against your house. The essential parts for this type of garden are prefabricated concrete slabs and pool pans. The slabs are 35 x 35 inches and one inch thick. You can pour these slabs yourself. Build your frames out of one inch by one inch wood. Place this on level ground area or on top of a piece of plywood. Pour one half inch of concrete—insert a piece of chicken wire and then pour the other one half inch of concrete. Level this off and let it cure under hay straw. You can add color to concrete if you don't care for the gray coloring of the concrete.

Pool pans of tin should have the same measurements of the concrete slabs (35 x 35 inches) and one inch deep. These pans can be painted blue, light green or dark green, according to your taste.

Slabs and pans should be laid on four inches of level sand. Leave one inch space between slabs and a one inch space where pans and slabs meet and fill this area with sand. It is imperative that the four inch base of sand be level. You can have color at almost any season that you can sit outdoors comfortably. Use iris, tulips and spring bulbs in the early part of the growing season. As the season advances, switch over to colorful annuals. You may want a few azaleas for fixed features. A neat hedge of Jap Holly also can be used in a fixed area. Plant dogwoods outside the area.

The use of the above plants with colorful concrete slabs and painted pans filled with water should give you an outdoor living room that is restful, colorful and a bit different from the usual areas of this type.

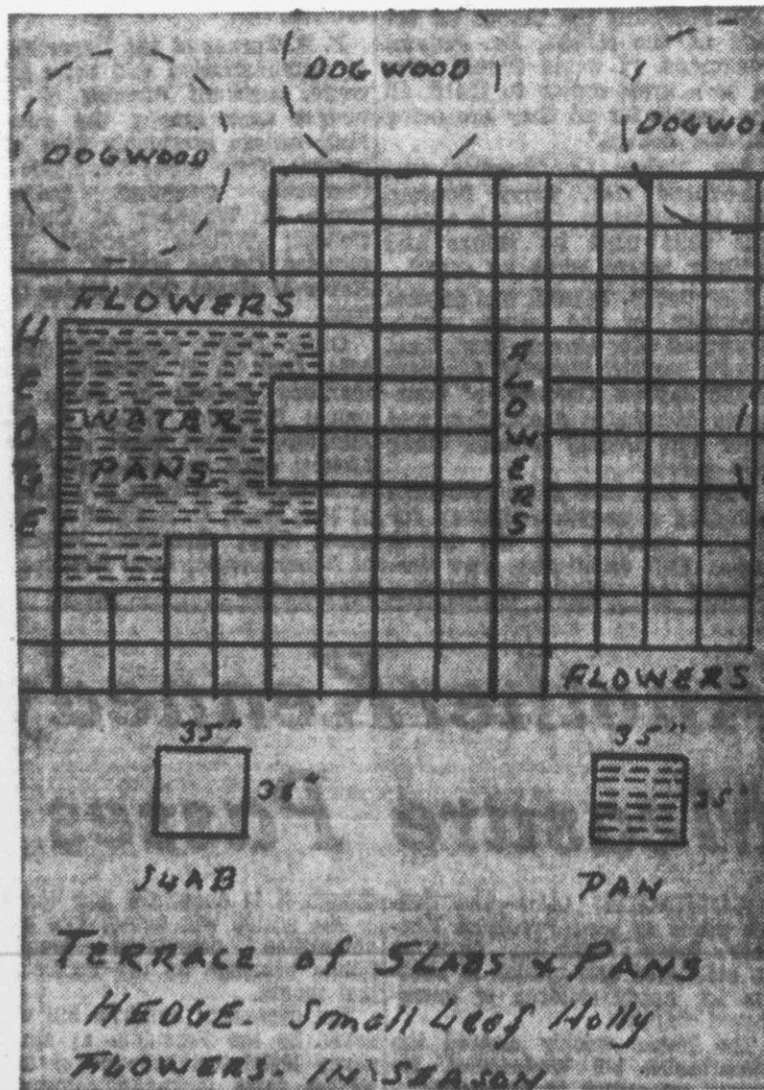

If you are interested in this type of garden or terrace, get a copy of the book "Creative Gardens" by James C. Rose. It is published by Reinhold Publishing Co., New York.

Garden Club Has Meeting

The Dig and Delve Garden Club met recently at the Greenville Country Club. Coffee and doughnuts were served by hostesses Mrs. Jack Minges and Mrs. Branch Armistead.

A short business meeting was held by incoming president Mrs. Craven Hughes, during which she appointed the committees for the coming year. The club voted to change some parts of the Constitution as to membership and annual dues.

The program was devoted to a workshop on flower arrangements and each member brought her own materials. Mrs. Richard Heller then commented on each arrangement and gave many helpful hints.

They Almost Set Back The Clock

Significance to be found in the sudden collapse of revolt in Algeria will not be overlooked by weather-vanes of French political life nor by the world at large.

An acid test of President Charles DeGaulle's preachment of "Algeria for the Algerians" has been met, and the doctrine survived.

There may be other tests, but logic dictates—and your Frenchman boasts none other is so logical—future tests will come to naught as long as DeGaulle is at the helm. And it may well be his lessons will leave an imprint on his successors.

The remarkable thing about the DeGaulle triumph is that only three years ago Frenchmen looked on Algeria as simply a part of France. Now there is an obvious majority who recognize that claim is at best an illusion.

If there is bewilderment in the outside world at the futile gesture of four retired generals in sparking the revolution, one can at least call it honest bewilderment.

To brand their action "folly" is to put the case mildly.

Success, for them, would have necessitated an overthrow of the government in metropolitan France. There was no alternative. To accomplish that might well have called for a suicidal civil war, an invasion of France and the destruction of all that has been accomplished toward bringing their homeland out of post-World War II chaos.

Suppose, for a moment, the mutineers accomplished their purpose. What then?

If the whole energies of France, after seven years of fighting and pacifying in Algeria had failed, how could they imagine success?

They could not have looked into the future with honest appraisal.

President DeGaulle recognized from the beginning he had to coax his countrymen into accepting the idea of an independent Algeria and to rely on close economic and cultural ties, forged over the years, as a basis for close and harmonious relations.

The foolhardiness of his militant dissidents almost set the clock back three years.

Cuba Is Poor Grounds For Judging The CIA

Americans are reading and hearing a lot about shortcomings of the Central Intelligence Agency these days.

That agency is on the griddle for what many suspect to have been miscalculations and a fumbling of the Cuban invasion.

Memories are also being refreshed as to the famous "U-2 Incident"; a case which dominated the headlines of only slightly less than a year ago.

As for the U-2 story; we suspect that while many minds were appalled by the timing of that particular flight, more distress was felt at having been caught. There can be no "time-outs" in watching an implacable foe.

And in the case of the Cuban invasion, only a very few people are in a position to know all the facts of CIA participation, thinking and advising.

We suspect, as does most of the world, the intelligence agency was up to its ears in the sad story. But how much of the blame they should rightfully bear in the failure, is impossible to evaluate. There were many heads and many hands in the undertaking.

This is not to suggest critics of the CIA are pointing fingers without reason. Failure is something not to be condoned. But something good may come out of the fiasco: a shaking of any complacency in our so-important intelligence service, the imposing of fresh determination to avoid future errors, and a self-critical analysis . . . with remedial measures . . . that will result in a better CIA.

The attention of Americans is only focused on Central Intelligence when there is reason to think the agency has committed a "boo-boo". It doesn't happen often, and when the story is aired it's a big one.

We never know how often success crowns their efforts, we never know how many times they have pulled off a major feat in their field. Yet, we presume CIA is functioning 24 hours daily, seven days a week. What we don't know makes judgment impossible.

Faceless Voices On U.S. Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—So many key men in the Kennedy administration got under the cloak of anonymity these past few days it looked like a tent.

But it makes you punchy when an authoritative source, who won't let his name be used, is contradicted by a high official who can't be named.

It started last week when reporters began asking why the Cuban invasion failed so miserably.

They talked to one of the most important men around Kennedy. But he didn't want to be identified. So an "authoritative source" was quoted as saying:

1. Former president Dwight D. Eisenhower and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon encouraged President Kennedy to go ahead with plans for the invasion.

2. United States intelligence was faulty in its reports on how much armament Fidel Castro had and the likelihood of a hoped-for Cuban uprising.

3. Pretty soon Andrew Hatcher, Kennedy's assistant press secretary, issued a statement which denied part, but not all, of what the "authoritative source" had said.

Hatcher denied Kennedy and Eisenhower had discussed the invasion before the inauguration. But he didn't deny U.S. intelligence fell on its face.

On Monday a top-ranking official, who said he couldn't be identified by name, told newspaper editors: U.S. intelligence was away off the beam on Cuba.

He said:

1. The Cuban underground and U.S. intelligence miscalculated the amount of arms Castro had and the degree of support Cubans would give the invasion.

2. U.S. intelligence was caught short when the French generals revolted in Algeria.

3. U.S. intelligence, of course, meant the Central Intelligence Agency, which is America's organization for overseas spying. Allen W. Dulles heads the agency.

On Tuesday, talking to the

I received written reply from three (3) of the concerns and telephone calls from two (2) others. The sum total of all answers was, "NO".

Now the injection of the "ism's" into this program and the duel of name-calling and personalities may well serve its purpose and win for one faction or the other the election. But, what about the real issue? Where and how do you find a decent house to call a home?

Unless there is some genuine interest in the one real issue, that of "Home-ism", I'm afraid this whole mess is just another "tempest-in-a-teapot" and the voters and the guy looking for a roof over his head will still be in the same place—without! # First Birthday Plunge

At first, he just sat there. Right smack in the middle of the table.

Oh he was interested, alright. It was a brand new thing for him and it was obvious he didn't quite know what to make of it all.

With a little prompting he leaned closer to the single burning candle and gazed into the little flame. Still, he had not uttered a sound. His usual frequent and boisterous outbursts were conspicuously missing.

As he gradually adjusted himself to his new surroundings, he became braver by degrees. First he began turning his head from one object to another. Next he waved his little hands and arms softly, almost carefully.

But within minutes, he joined the fun. He suddenly reached out both hands and retrieved two handfuls of his first birthday cake.

He had no way of knowing he was one year old. Only his parents had been planning this party for several days. In fact, he would never have missed his first birthday party if his first anniversary had been overlooked.

Actually, we had no intentions of forgetting the little tyke's first birthday. Even if we had wanted to, we couldn't have done it.

And we had a big time. We were tickled to death to watch our year-old son plunge into that devil's food cake with white icing.

And plunge into it he did. His mother, of course, had bathed and dressed him to perfection for the occasion.

Apparently he had little regard for her efforts, because it was only minutes after he finally joined the party that he was virtually covered with his first birthday cake.

Of course his clothes were covered. But, on top of that, he had cake and icing all over his face, in his hair and even in his eyes. Funny thing is he never whimpered once.

Usually a strong advocate of unlimited freedom to roam the house at will, he was quite content to sit in the middle of the kitchen table and dabble in his cake.

After his first attack on the cake, he sat very still beside it and using his right index finger, he carried tidbits of the white icing from cake to mouth.

Like we said before, he would never have missed such a party had it not occurred. He would have been completely undisturbed if his parents had forgotten his first birthday.

But he had a ball at this one after he got warmed up good. And one sure bet is that from here on he'll help us make sure we never do forget one.

GRATITUDE

"Who thanks quickly, thanks twice" an old saying tells us. It is a true one. There is nothing like sincere gratitude, warmly and promptly expressed, to lift the spirit of a generous giver and make him feel doubly repaid for what he has given.

Real gratitude is more than formal courtesy. It is more than a smile on the face and a "thank you" on the lips. Real gratitude comes from the heart and from the mind—from the heart, because only a person who knows the feelings of love and kindness himself can appreciate those feelings behind another's gift or good deed; and from the mind, because the gratitude of the truly grateful person arises partly from a comprehension of the act of another and what it means. The expression of real gratitude draws out the grateful man. It expands him, makes him even, at it were, with the giver of the gift for which he is grateful, and thus enriches the giver by making his gift that much more valuable.

Ingratitude does just the reverse. The silence of the ungrateful man comes from repressed feelings and an unimaginative mind. By being ungrateful, one reduces his own responsiveness and ability of understanding, and he is a smaller person by just that much.

"The Lord loveth a cheerful giver"—and a cheerful thinker, too.

As has happened often in the recent past, Americans spent less for autos, but more for gas and oil. And the food bill continued to rise. Drugs rose, perhaps because of aspirin and diet drinks.

The revised figures for February showed some curious results compared with a year ago. A sub-group—women's apparel,

Abolish Income Taxes?

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Now it is the National Committee for Economic Freedom that comes along with a proposal to abolish the Income Tax. This has to do with the proposed 23rd Amendment which has passed the Legislatures of Wyoming, Texas, Nevada and Louisiana. The proposed Amendment reads:

"Section 1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution.

"Section 2. The constitution or laws of any state, or the laws of the United States shall not be subject to the terms of any foreign or domestic agreement which would abrogate this amendment.

"Section 3. The activities of the United States Government which violate the intent and purposes of this amendment shall, within a period of three years from the date of the ratification of this amendment, be liquidated and the properties and facilities affected shall be sold.

"Section 4. Three years after the ratification of this amendment the sixteenth article of amendments to the Constitution if the United States shall stand, repealed and thereafter Congress shall not levy taxes on personal income, estates, and/or gifts."

Unfortunately Section 1 is utterly impossible if we are ever to defend this country. The manufacture of the atom and hydrogen bombs or the atomic submarine involves our government in considerable business enterprise. If we are forced to go into Cuba alone these costs will be greater.

Those who favor this Amendment say:

"The Proposed 23rd Amendment," would force the sale of the land and facilities of federal corporate activities back to the American people from whom they were taken, and thus cut the National Debt more than $65,000,000,000.

This program ignores the fact that we are engaged in war with Soviet Russia and that it is necessary to have allies, to have bases abroad, to purchase land in this country. It is difficult to understand the mathematics of their proposal in view of President Kennedy's statement that the United States will not abandon Cuba to Communism. That statement involves the United States in costly expenditures and in continued military preparations.

The Income Tax is not a wise tax in a capitalist country and it is collected with brutality in this country. Also there is obvious waste in the cost of Government. Let us say, without figuring too closely, that the waste is as high as $10,000,000,000, which is twice the amount estimated by the Hoover Commission. We still have to find about $80,000,000,000, to meet essential expenditures, about $40,000,000,000 of which goes to war and defense.

Those who favor abolishing the Income Tax do not propose to make us defenseless and turn us over to the kindly ministrations of Khrushchev or Castro. True, the Income Tax takes a great deal of our income, but these devils will take all of our capital.

That being so, their problem obviously is not so much to abolish the Income Tax as to propose another form of taxation that might be more equitable and just. Certainly, one thing that can be done is to make it a felony to move funds abroad with the object of avoiding or evading, choose your own term, taxes. It should also be law that funds deposited abroad to evade or avoid taxes are not inheritable by Americans and may be totally confiscated if brought back in any form. This might help a bit and put some crooks where they belong.

But that still would not solve the problem. There would nevertheless have to be taxes for the manufacture of rockets and missiles and submarines, to say nothing of other purposes. If we are not to have the Income Tax, we might use a Transactions Tax, but the amount needed would be about the same.

As our economy stands today "duties and excises" will not bring in enough to take care of an $80,000,000,000 budget or even a $70,000,000,000 dollar budget.

To the Editor:

I read with increasing interest the letters, ads and editorials on the Urban Renewal program vs. Neighborhood Conservation and the varied opinions of the American Association of the subject. However, I find one very basic and important item missing in these discussions; where and how do you find a decent place to live in Greenville?

On February 6th of this year I wrote to twelve (12) organizations in this City that should be interested in the above subject and asked the following two questions: (1) Is there any opportunity to buy or build under a VA Loan or under any other plan that would allow a steady wage earner to get a home with little or no down-payment? (2) Is there now under construction, or planned for future construction, any rental housing priced between seventy-five and one

Retail Sales Turning Upward

By ELMER ROESSNER

Retail sales are gradually turning higher, but the process so far is slow.

February sales were at a slightly higher rate than January sales; March sales rose about 1 per cent, and sales so far in April have been going ahead, although the early Easter makes exact comparisons difficult.

Total retail sales in March were $17.9 billion. After adjustment for seasonal variations and trading day differences, the total was about 1 per cent above that in February, but still 4 per cent under March, 1960. And the February sales were 1 per cent above those in January, on an adjusted basis, and 1 per cent under February, 1960.

TREND IS UP

The Federal Reserve index of department store sales gives a quicker, though narrower, figure than the Department of Commerce figures for all lines.

These show a total 2 per cent gain in department store sales so far this year. This net gain was registered despite the technical decline during the first half of April, when post-Easter figures this year were compared with pre-Easter figures in 1960.

This is indeed encouraging. If current figures are as good or better than figures in the same period in 1960, when there was a bit of a boom, we're all right. Jack.

DURABLES DOWN

Commerce's preliminary figures for March indicate sales of $17.9 billion compared with $17.4 billion in March, 1960. These showed a decline in sales of durable goods, but a greater rise in sales in non-durables.

Durables, by the way, are things that last a little; non-durables are items that are eaten, drunk or worn right away. A suit that lasts 10 years is a nondurable, but an auto that wears out in two is a durable, such is our civilization.

Here is a comparison of March sales, in millions, of the major groups:

|                              | 1961    | 1960    |
|------------------------------|---------|---------|
| Food group                   | $4,713 | $4,356 |
| Eating & drinking places     | 1,261   | 1,215   |
| General mds                  | 1,873   | 1,691   |
| Apparel                      | 1,201   | 956     |
| Furniture                    | 755     | 803     |
| Appliances                   | 755     | 803     |
| Lumber, building, farm, etc. | 1,071   | 1,022   |
| Automotive                   | 3,174   | 3,587   |
| Gas svc. stations            | 1,414   | 1,397   |
| Drug and proprietary         | 626     | 603     |

As has happened often in the recent past, Americans spent less for autos, but more for gas and oil. And the food bill continued to rise. Drugs rose, perhaps because of aspirin and diet drinks.

The revised figures for February showed some curious results compared with a year ago. A sub-group—women's apparel, accessory and specialty stores—was up 20 per cent, furriers were up 8 per cent, stationery stores were down 19 per cent, and camera and photographic supplies stores were down 24 per cent.

Sales of typewriter stores were down 29 per cent, while sales of book stores were up 22 per cent. This may mean that Americans are giving up ideas of writing their own books and are buying those of professional authors.

Urban Renewal Is Changing Face Of Norfolk

private enterprise also participated. The $2.8 million Medical Tower was built and financed by a progressive group of some 30 doctors and dentists.

Other units on the center which occupies about 35 of the 135-acre Atlantic City Redevelopment Project area, are the new $5.5 million Norfolk General Hospital central wing. Physically connected to the hospital is the pediatric center of the King's Daughters Hospital. Nearby is the new Public Health Center housing under one roof all the bureau departments and other health agencies previously scattered over the city.

And ample land area is being reserved for a Medical College which could make use of the facilities of the Medical Center and the Norfolk College of William and Mary, Virginia's most rapidly growing higher institution of learning.

To understand what catapulted Norfolk into the national limelight as sponsors of one of the more significant urban renewal programs, you'd have to look at the city as World War II ended.

Picture in your mind a war swollen community deflated overnight by the departure of thousands of war workers and members of the military returning to their homes as fast as modern transportation could get them there.

Left behind was a distraught citizenry, particularly those who realized that the tax base of the city—the central business district—was suffering from the decentralization of business during the war, and the incursion of slums which even then interlarded some of the principal business areas.

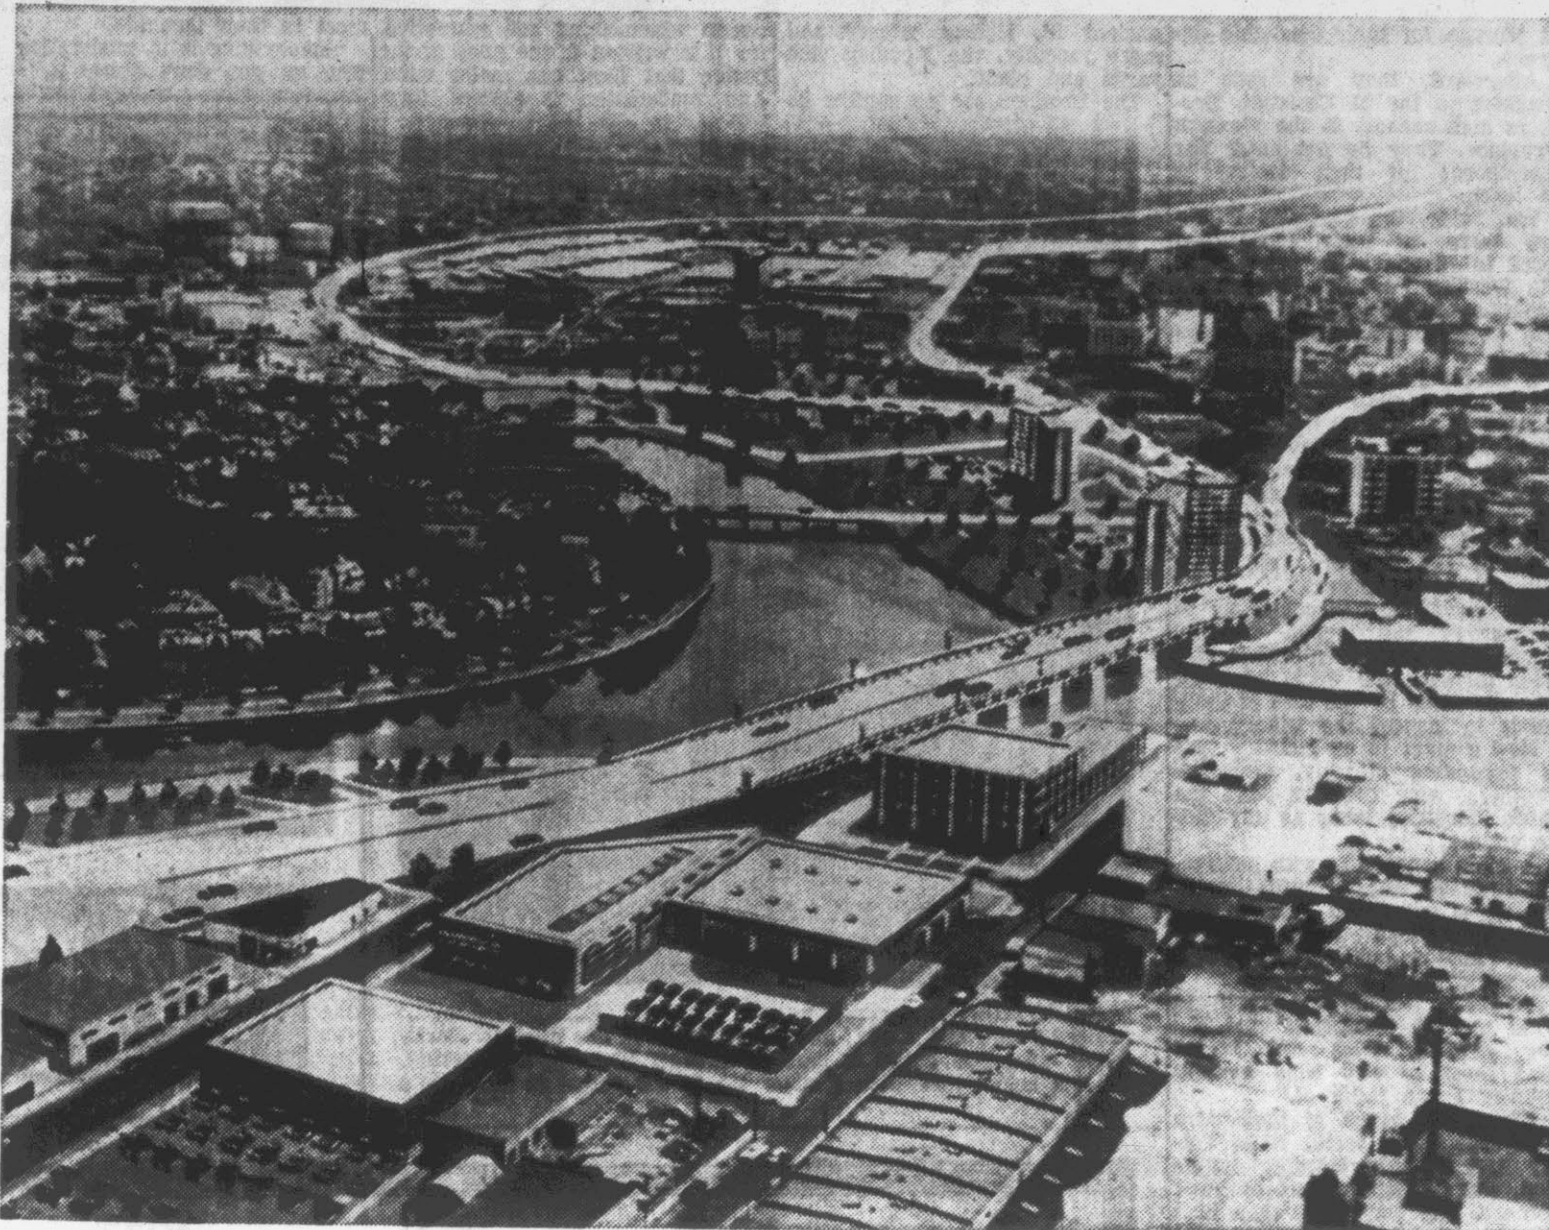

Aggravating the situation was the location of the central business district, flanked as it is on two sides by railway tracks and on the other by the Elizabeth River. Furthermore, vehicular traffic entering and leaving the downtown area had only one railway underpass which assured uninterrupted travel. Motorists had to resort to a 300-year-old ferry system to get to neighboring Portsmouth. Practically all downtown streets were narrow and winding, designed more for traffic of the nineteenth century than the motor age.

But thanks to urban renewal, a new era has dawned. A number of grade separations—both under and over-passes have reduced the problem of the rail encirclement. The ferries have been replaced by the first bridge tunnel to Portsmouth and a second underwater crossing is under construction.

A water barrier to the west was removed with the opening of the Hampton Roads Bridge Tunnel Nov. 1, 1957, and the biggest barrier of them all—Chesapeake Bay—will be breached late in 1963 when the $200 million Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel is completed.

But more pertinent to the central business district is the fact that a new urban highway system has been superimposed on the slum areas under attack. It will be integrated with Norfolk's approved $200 million link with the Interstate Highway System now under study.

So much for highways. The big problem Norfolk faced in launching its urban renewal program was the relocation of some 5,000 families in the slum areas earmarked. That was partially met by a 3,000 unit public housing allocation under the Housing Act of 1949, first to be issued, thanks to the foresight of the Norfolk Redevelopment and Housing Authority in anticipating the legislation.

An additional 1100 units were made available under Section 221 of an amendment to the housing Act. Under that section, housing—rental or for purchase—is made available to families who have to be relocated to clear the way for a Federal or related project.

Urban Renewal is big business—at least here in Norfolk. The three projects now under way embrace about 500 acres, but projected ahead are even larger undertakings in the aggregate.

Total expenditures for work within the project areas will run over $182 million, but if you take into consideration related undertakings and work stimulated by urban renewal outside the project areas the total bill will run close to $1 billion. Private enterprise is footing most of that bill.

What does it cost the city? "Peanuts," Mayor W.F. Duckworth, who has held the office for nine years, will tell you.

Actually, the city's share is one third of the net cost of the redevelopment project, the balance being paid in the form of a direct grant of the Urban Renewal Administration.

But that's not all. The city, in meeting its one third of the net cost obligation, can credit necessary public works—schools, streets, right-of-way fire and police stations, and many other improvements to its share of the cost.

It's no secret that Norfolk is further advanced than any other American city in its urban renewal plans. Why? Charles L. Kaufman, chairman of the Norfolk Redevelopment and Housing Authority, tells visiting delegations and officials from other cities, the answer is "harmony."

"In no single instance," he declares, "has a member of City Council voted negatively on a proposal of the housing authority."

There are others who add to Kaufman's remarks by pointing out that the knowhow and dedication of Kaufman and four other commissioners contributed to the success of the program. They receive no compensation.

So did the knowhow and dedication of the executive director, Lawrence M. Cox, who has been with the authority since 1940 and was in public housing work in Washington before that.

He's one of the top authorities in urban renewal and housing and frequently has represented the United States in such matters abroad.

News And Notes From Bethel

Mrs. Robert Joseph Whitehurst left Monday for Atlanta, Ga. where she will spend sometime with her sister, Mrs. Bill Pritchard.

Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Barbee have returned to their home. They left last week for Chapel Hill where they visited with their daughter, Patsy. From Chapel Hill they went to Burlington where on Sunday morning Rev. Barbee preached for Rev. W. D. Sabiston III at Phillips Chapel in the Burlington District, and he dedicated in Christian Baptism Susan Robertson Sabiston, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Sabiston. Susan was born January 5 in Burlington. The Sabistons formerly lived in Stokes.

At the district meeting in Scotland Neck recently, Miss Camille Staton of Bethel was elected president of the Rocky Mount District Women's Society of Christian Service and Mrs. J. L. Brown was awarded an Honorary Life Membership.

G. F. Whitehurst represented Johnson Memorial Presbyterian Church at the spring meeting of Albemarle Presbytery in Wilson last week.

The Sunday School Workers' Council of Johnson Memorial Church met in the church with Mrs. Arthur Boyette on Wednesday night. Further plans were made for the Bible School June 5-9, which is to close with a covered dish supper on Saturday night, June 10.

Mrs. J. T. Nelson of Fresh Meadows, Long Island, and Mrs. Don McKay, the former Joyce Nelson, and two boys of Pond Woods, Saddle Road, Sony Brook, N. Y., arrived in Bethel last week to visit Mrs. Nelson's sister, Mrs. Clara Robertson, and Mr. and Mrs. Wadley. Mr. McKay came by plane Friday night to join them. Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. McKay and children joined Mr. and Mrs. Julian White and family in Greenville. From there they went to Atlantic Beach for the weekend.

Monday, Mrs. Nelson and the McKays returned to New York. Jimmie Moore, A-13C, Keesler A. P. B., Mississippi, was joined by his brother, Steven, in Charlotte for a visit with their grandmother, Mrs. J. S. Moore, last Friday. They returned to Charlotte Tuesday.

Mrs. J. B. Hooker is confined in her home with a fractured bone of one foot.

Bridal Luncheon
The Hilma Country Club in Tarboro was the setting for a Bridal Luncheon Saturday honoring Miss Judy Cullifer, Mrs. Charles Ward and Miss Betty Cooper.

Honorees and their guests were greeted by the hostesses, Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst, Mrs. R. P. Michaels Jr., Mrs. J. M. Butterworth, Mrs. Dave Speir, Mrs. Leighton Blount Jr. and Mrs. Curtis Martin.

A theme of pink and white wedding bells created the atmosphere for the three course luncheon. The bride's table was centered with a circle of bridesmaids ringing bells; mock orange and lily-of-the-valley surrounded the unique grouping. The honorees were presented white glabella corsages tied with pink ribbon and their places at the table were marked by wedding bells tied with lily-of-the-valley streamers.

A bridal bouquet of azaleas and lily-of-the-valley made the juice table a focal point in the club. Large arrangements of tulips, bridal wreath, azaleas, gladioli and mock orange were used in decorating.

Approximately 40 guests attended.

Book Exchange Club Meet
Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Carey Hammond and Mrs. Sam Dewar were hostesses to the Book Exchange Club when it met in the home of Mrs. Hammond.

Mr. John C. Coughlan, science teacher at Bethel High School, presented the program on guidance and counseling in our schools. He explained the purposes of the guidance program and explained how it is carried out in different schools. Mr. Coughlan has done extensive work in the fields of guidance and psychology and cited examples and cases that he has worked with during his training and experience.

The hostesses served refreshments consisting of congealed salad, pickles, nuts, crackers, cake and Coca-Colas to the members and guests present.

A short business session was held and books were exchanged prior to adjournment.

DotDee's School of Dance
DotDee's School of Dance will present "Tap To Inn" Friday night at 8 o'clock in the Bethel High School auditorium.

M. Y. F. Officers To Be Installed Sunday

Winery Industry Provides Substantial Education Aid

By P. D. ELDRED
NAPA, Calif. (AP)—Brother Timothy once ordered Rose wine in a restaurant.
"Sorry," the waiter apologized, "but we are out of Rose."
"It doesn't matter," replied the genial brother. "Just bring me some red and some white and I'll make my own."
And he could, too.
Brother Timothy is the winemaker at the Christian Brothers' famed Mont La Salle winery in the Napa Valley foothills where some 1½ million gallons of wine is produced yearly in the interest of education.
Some 200 miles away, at Reedley in the rich San Joaquin Valley, another Brothers' winery turns out more brandy than any other American firm. About 40 per cent of the brandy consumed in the United States is produced by the Christian Brothers.

All the profits from this vast wine and brandy business go to support Christian Brothers schools, most of them high schools, in the United States and the Philippines.
The dedicated Brothers, concerned only with achieving the educational goal set by a young French priest nearly 300 years ago, receive no personal compensation for their work.
Brother Timothy, a tall, powerful man with a fine sense of humor and a passion for collecting corkscrews, will tell you that his only real personal possession is his pen. The Order allows the Brothers, because of their teaching work, to own a pen, but nothing else.
When Jean Baptiste de La Salle founded the Order at Rheims, France, in 1680 to provide a Christian education for youth, especially the poor, he scarcely could have foreseen the unusual success of the Christian Brothers' winemaking venture.

Or that grapes ripened in California's sunny valleys would, one day, provide a most substantial means of financing the schooling of so many boys.
Today, at peaceful Mont La Salle, adjacent to the modern winery with its stainless steel equipment, is the Order's Novitiate and headquarters for the Western Province.
There, only 70 miles from bustling San Francisco but in a setting so remote that the quiet is almost startling, study some 25 boys beyond high school age and 70 in the junior department.
Those who have completed high school studies receive intensive religious training for 18 months, then go to St. Mary's College at Moraga for their academic degrees.

Afterward, they are sent as teachers to the 11 Christian Brothers high schools in the Western Province. They do not enter the priesthood; for their destiny is to teach.
Worldwide, the Christian Brothers carry on their educational work in 72 countries, but outside the Western Province the schools are financed through the dioceses and contributions; not winemaking.
A deeply religious and thoughtful man, Brother Timothy was trained as a teacher but, as winemaker at Mont La Salle, he has become a technical expert.
Each Friday he eats his breakfast standing up, in commemoration of the crucifixion, as has been done by the Brothers ever since founding of the Order.
His extraordinary collection of corkscrews has topped the 300 mark. They have been sent to him from all over the world by visitors who come by the tens of thousands to inspect the winery.
Now a giant in an industry that is expanding steadily, Christian Brothers' wine business pays the same industrial taxes as any other vintner.
A main concern is with continuous improvement of the quality of the wines which, in general with other American vintages, Brother Timothy believes rank with the world's best.
"We are leading the world in wine making techniques and, on the average, ours are better than those of any wine making country I can think of."
With 1,000 acres of their own vineyards in the fertile Napa Valley and the big Reedley operation, the Christian Brothers have come a long way since they first started making sacramental wine from a three-acre vineyard at Martinez in 1868.
They gradually found themselves involved in a growing commercial production to meet the increasing costs of running their schools.
Now their wine storage capacity has reached seven million gallons, of which about 1½ million are marketed annually. The remainder is kept for aging.
From a start in the educational field at St. Mary's College, the Brothers expanded into the Napa Valley 30 years ago when they bought the old Theodore Gier vineyards and built the Mont La Salle winery and the Novitiate with its high-domed chapel.
Ten years ago they acquired the ancient St. Helena winery and, more recently, the Reedley vineyards and plant.

The Brothers see no conflict between winemaking and education, for it is written in the rules of the Order that they can make wine. And moderation is always foremost in their thoughts.
Everything is in moderation so long as you don't abuse it," observes Brother Timothy. "You can make a pig of yourself eating applesauce."

BROTHER TIMOTHY, winemaker at the Christian Brothers' winery near Napa, Calif., inspects a bottle of his product. Corkscrew atop the bottle is part of Brother Timothy's collection. It is a boar's tusk with a silver tip in the shape of an eagle's head.

WINE FOR EDUCATION—The novitiate of the Christian Brothers (top) and their famed winery (bottom) nestle side by side amid the vineyards near Napa, Calif. Profits from wine-making enterprise support the Christian Brothers' schools.

GE Chief Executive Wins Strong Vote Of Confidence

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Ralph J. Cordiner, General Electric Co. chief executive, emerged today with a strengthened hand after an accounting to stockholders on GE's price fixing troubles.
But thunderheads loomed in Washington, where his turn was awaited before Senate investigators to clear up testimony linking the GE top brass with admitted antitrust offenses of second echelon officials.
Cordiner won a topheavy vote of confidence from shareholders at GE's 69th annual meeting

Wednesday following a grilling by a small but vocal minority.
Then the directors, overwhelmingly re-elected, in a sometimes unruly, 6½ hour session renewed Cordiner's tenure as chairman and gave him in addition the title of GE president.
Cordiner, 61, had doubled as acting president since the early retirement in February of Robert Paxton from that position. Paxton gave reasons of health for laying down his duties.
Paxton has been invited to appear before the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee.
Most but not all of the annual meeting fireworks were touched off by James B. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers, and Wilma Soss of New York, president of the Women's Shareholders in American Business.
In a showdown vote on their main proposition, Carey and Mrs. Soss were smothered by a ballot of 69,856,355 to 1,404,830.
By that margin, their demand was rejected for an independent inquiry to determine whether Cordiner and other directors should "reasonably" have known of illegal activities within the company before federal antitrust indictments were handed up naming 16 company officials.
All the GE men drew fines for conspiring with representatives of 28 other manufacturers of heavy electrical equipment to fix prices and rig bids. Three also were sentenced to 30 days in jail apiece.
The outcome Wednesday was a foregone conclusion since management held proxies from a vast majority of the company's 436,000 stockholders. About 2,800 of them attended the meeting.

In an angry moment, Mrs. Soss had shouted at Cordiner, who presided: "I am your employer. You're not an act of God."
Rallying to Cordiner's defense was Benjamin A. Javits, president of the United Shareholders of America and a brother of Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.
Javits praised the way Cordiner "cleaned our house so swiftly and completely" and said GE stockholders "have much to be proud of."
By votes of 98 per cent and more, shareholders turned down seven other resolutions opposed by management, including three more sponsored by Carey in relation to price-fixing and three designed to curb the GE stock option program for executives.

Kappa Alphas Install Officers

New officers of the Gamma Rho Chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order at East Carolina College have been installed and have begun their duties as leaders in the social fraternity.
Robert Hart of Portsmouth, Va., succeeds Fred Daniel of Spring Hope as president of the college chapter.
Other officers of the fraternity who will serve with Hart are James Bass of Goldsboro, vice president; Robert Raines of Raleigh, recording secretary; Gene Horne of Scotland Neck, corresponding secretary; Raymond Gilkin of Beaufort, historian; Fred Lassiter of Edenton, treasurer; Mitchell Moon of Lynchburg, Va., parliamentarian; Robert Jackson of Wake Forest, sergeant at arms; and Willie B. Massey of Lynchburg, Va., custodian.
Officers of the Kappa Alpha Order are elected each spring to serve for a period of one year.

Underground Center In Texas

BATTLE CREEK, Mich.—Construction of an emergency regional headquarters for the United States, the huge underground control center near Denton, Texas, will start about June 1.
The reinforced concrete structure, which has been called "a milestone of U.S. civil defense progress," is designed to withstand a nearby H-bomb blast and protect its occupants from fallout. It would serve as a nerve center for the U.S. Government if other centers in or nearer Washington, D.C., were knocked out.
The 142 by 172-foot, two-level center, estimated to cost about $2,000,000, will be the headquarters of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization's Region 5, which now occupies aboveground facilities at Denton.
Two hundred persons could be accommodated on a day-to-day basis in the self-sustaining structure, or 500 persons for 30 days on an emergency basis. Among internal facilities would be an intricate communications center and the latest computers for resources evaluation.

ARMY BUILDUP

CAPE TOWN (AP)—James J. Fouché, the South African defense minister said Wednesday the army is being brought to "war strength" due to threats of internal uprisings and invasions by Negroes. He said the army's efficiency should be greater than during either of the two world wars.

CHAPTER 17

The dark land fled past beneath the starship, giving back only an occasional gleam of moonlight from some quiet lake.

Then Nils Christensen, the chief of Lunar Project, gave a low cry and in the same instant Robert Fairlie thought he saw a flicker of light in the night below.

Not light.

They vanished behind the swift rush of the ship, leaving only an impression of reddish-yellow pinpoints grouped together.

Christensen said, "Did you see it?"

"I saw it."

"A town?"

"I don't know. Probably not. Could be a lot of other things, fire, volcanic action."

Christensen was not reassured. "Whatever it was, DeWitt won't rest until he finds out." He shut his eye. "For a while there I thought—But I guess we aren't going to find it that simple."

After a while he added, "I guess we couldn't expect it to be."

The ship plunged over the rim of morning. And as though it had been waiting for them to find it, they saw the huge fused blackened scar in the midst of the tawny plain, and between the scar and the low hills beyond they saw the wild grasses interspersed with scattered stone in a way that was unmistakably not natural.

There was a period of waiting while various tests were run.

During the wait DeWitt came to the lounge for a meeting with Christensen, Winstedt, Raab, and Thomason were there, and Fairlie.

Outside the port it was mid-morning. The yellowish-white sun shone, wind rippled the grass in long running waves to the edge of the black scar where all life stopped.

It might, Fairlie thought, have been Kansas on a fall morning, except that everything was subtly wrong. The whiter sun made the sky a coppery color by contrast or refraction. The tints of soil and grass were not right, nor the shapes of things—a shrub, a tree, the grass-blades themselves, a sudden flight of strange birds as big as geese winging low with plumage like blue fire.

"I think we ought to agree on a plan of action," DeWitt said. "And I think we might as well be honest, too. You're not well, Chris. You're not physically able to lead any expeditions. So I would suggest we vote on a change of—"

"I'm still on my feet," said Christensen. "I plan to stay that way. There will be no change of leaders."

DeWitt said softly, "So you saw the lights, too."

"There's no proof that they were man-made."

"But you think they might be. If the planet was totally ruined and empty you wouldn't care, you'd be glad to take to your bed and rest. But you're afraid."

Christensen turned toward the port. "Look out there. Tell me what made that hideousness."

DeWitt continued to look levelly at him for a moment, and then turned and glanced almost indifferently at the black farspread blotch that glistened faintly with a glassy shine in the sunlight.

"We don't know what did that until we make some tests," he said. "But we can make a pretty good guess. Probably the same type of weapon that destroyed Gassendi."

"And after all this time not a single blade of grass will grow," Christensen shook his head. "What was here before that weapon struck? A great city, I would guess, covering half this plain, and a starport covering the other half, where the ships came and went. One blow, and now there is nothing. Doesn't that frighten you when you think of it, DeWitt?"

"Yes, it does. It frightens me to think of such power in anybody else's hands. That's why I want to find it first." DeWitt's voice was brutal with impatience.

"You're a dreamer, Chris. You think if you don't want war it won't come. You think it will respect your wishes. I tell you it isn't a matter of wanting war or not wanting it. I tell you it's a matter of self-defense. If a man comes at me with a big club, I want a bigger one to hit him back with."

Christensen said heavily. "There's sense in that. I admit it. But there are other considerations."

He paused, then said slowly. "We'll explore this immediate locality first. If there are people they may contact us here. If not, we'll try and find those lights again. Oh, and DeWitt—"

Very softly Soft as the paw of the tiger before the strike.

"What?"

"If there are people, remember that this world belongs to them. We didn't bring a ship back to the stars just to start up another war, even a small one." He turned around to face DeWitt, smiling a hard smile. "And remember, they might be the ones with the biggest club."

The tests were satisfactory, to no one's surprise. Atmosphere, pressure, gravitation, temperature, and radiation count were all slightly different from Earth's constants but all of them were well within the limits of tolerance. They could open the hatches and step out.

They did. And for the first time the true alienage of the planet hit them full force and head on.

Chiefly, Fairlie thought, it was the sunlight and the colors. All air burned white-tinted-with-yellow in a coppery sky, and all the landscape ran to tawny reds and shades of gold and brown and very odd greens. The coloring of the clouds was superbly impossible.

There were sounds, small rustlings and cryings and calling. Unseen things stirred in the grasses and among the stones and there was no way of knowing what they were, whether harmless or deadly, until they were caught and studied.

It's beautiful, Fairlie thought. It's beautiful, and strange, and for Pete's sake what am I doing here?

It remained to be seen what the bacteria would do to them. Winstedt said. In the meantime they would take antibiotics and hope.

By the second day after landing, preliminary preparations were going forward nicely. The towering ship, their base and home, was the center of antlike activity.

The light helicopters and tractors, slowed in disassembled form had been unloaded and were being assembled. Reicher had thoroughly tested the water, and pronounced it good. Winstedt, commanding all the help he could get, had plunged into work in this biologist's paradise and hell.

Not until then did Christensen, with DeWitt and Fairlie and the two other specialists who had no urgent work at this moment, Raab and Thomason, start out for a look at the broken stones beyond the black scar. With them went Graeme, the chief flight officer, and a husky young flight technician named Smith.

They walked. The blacked fused material of the scarred area had millions of infinitesimal cutting surfaces that abraded skin or leather like tiny razors. They avoided it. It was a bleak ugly thing, reminder of ancient violence, ancient agony. This was part of the battleground, Fairlie thought. Men died here, and their dying left a mark a hundred miles long. What a day it must have been, the day it happened.

"We'll know a lot more when the films have been processed and studied," DeWitt said. The mapping cameras had been operating, of course, during every moment of their landing spiral. "With any luck they should show us the position of those lights. In the meantime we're trying all radio frequencies in the hope of making some contact."

A city that was made a lifeless shambles without any sign of enemy action—what happened? Continue the story here tomorrow.

TOO NEAR DEATH

MANILA (AP)—Doctors said today Robert McCann, 60, recently freed from a Red Chinese prison, is too near death with cancer to be moved to the United States.

JAMES B. JOYNER, now attending Roanoke Bible College at Elizabeth City and preparing for ministry of the Churches of Christ, will be visiting his home congregation Sunday. Joyner will bring the message for the Mount Pleasant Christian Church, Greenville Route 6.

Epidemic Dangers In Congo Growing Worse

EDITOR'S NOTE — John A. Kennedy, publisher and editor in chief of the Sioux Falls Argus-Leader, and Mrs. Kennedy have just concluded a visit to the troubled Congo. In this second of three articles on the nation's basic problems, Mrs. Kennedy describes the work of an embattled hospital.

By BRUCE LEE KENNEDY
LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—They brought a 14-year-old youngster, half-paralyzed, into native Katambo Hospital the other day. A cursory examination showed the child was suffering from polio.

Nine others were already in a ward in this institution, one of the two in Leopoldville taken over and operated by the Congolese last summer.

"What are you doing for these children?" Sister Edoardo, the medical sister superior was asked.

"All we can do is put them to bed and hope this is not the start of a polio epidemic because we have no vaccine and have only very limited technical facilities for treatment, and very few doctors, technicians and nurses."

Sanitary conditions in the Congo have disintegrated terribly—the Belgians used to spray for mosquitoes twice a week with helicopters, and three times a week during the rainy season. Additional spray tanks then roamed the streets, taking care of lawns and gardens to curb the rise of mosquitoes and the dreaded tsetse fly in the swamps. A little spraying was being done a few weeks ago but this too has vanished for lack of equipment and material.

The sister's worry could be a genuine one for only a small percentage of the sick people come to the hospital and then only as a last resort—whether because of fear, ignorance or superstition. I could not find out.

Katambo is a cluster of many one-story buildings, started by the Belgians years ago as one of a variety of hospitals and dispensaries which they had spread throughout the six provinces of this now troubled land.

We visited many of them when we were in the interior in 1959. The sister had been working there for many years.

I made my tour with Clare Hayes Timberlake, wife of our ambassador. She is "Julie" to the nuns and to the many native assistants who greeted her warmly. She works there every Monday.

morning, bathing babies and assisting in every way possible.

Mrs. Timberlake devotes an additional two afternoons each week teaching English in a secondary school.

Sister Edoardo took us into classrooms where 29 students between 14 and 17 years of age were learning to be assistant midwives. They have to take them at that age as otherwise the girls would be married.

All babies are delivered by midwives here. A doctor is called to the maternity section only in grave cases.

Only about 25 per cent of the Congolese women come to the hospital to have their babies. To our eyes this one seemed quite unsanitary and of very low standard but it is far superior to giving birth to a baby in the bush.

Most maternity cases are kept in the hospital for a week—at least until the baby's cord is healed so as to prevent infection that could develop after they return to their primitive wattle huts.

After the birth in the maternity room, the mothers walk to their beds in a nearby ward, taking their babies with them. There is a basinette at the foot of each bed but as I walked around the wards, I didn't see a single baby in its basinette—they were all in bed with their mothers.

The student midwives wore short white uniforms, sandals, and blue bandanas. Both their uniform and the bandana were embroidered with EAL, for "Ecole Assistantes Accoucheurs." One girl's uniform was very soiled and the sister reported that it was almost impossible to teach them cleanliness.

I saw a one-day old baby whose mother died having her eighth child. She had been in labor for 24 hours when she arrived at the hospital. "We could have saved her," Sister Edoardo said, "if she had been brought to us earlier."

In one of the wards there were about 40 children with various illnesses. Many of their mothers were with them as well as their brothers and sisters who had no one to care for them at home.

The screens on the windows had many big holes made by patients or parents who wanted to get back to their families or their friends. It was impossible to keep the screens repaired so there are many flies, and some mothers were fanning them away from their sick children.

In the kitchen, six men, dressed in khaki aprons were preparing lunch for 387 patients registered that day.

There were three Africans, who were dressed in white, in the street-patching project begun.

Street-Patching Project Begun

AYDEN — Workmen have begun on a project which will eventually mean that streets will be patched throughout town, Town Manager Cleveland Paylor said yesterday.

flizing room and I peeked into two operating rooms where European surgeons were at work. Two of them had red crosses on their uniforms.

In the laundry and sewing room men were doing the work. Sister Edoarda said the laundrymen had struck the week before. They wanted to work from 7 a.m. until 2 p.m. She said those hours were impossible as the clothes would not dry in that time and if left unironed, would mildew. There were huge washing machines but no dryers.

We met the new superintendent who was in an air-conditioned office, the only cool room in the hospital. He was a very young Congolese and had no medical experience. I left feeling grateful that the hospital had the wonderful Belgian sisters who dedicated their lives to helping the sick of the Congo.

Paschal To Head Pitt Committee

Dr. Herbert R. Paschal, Jr., of East Carolina College will serve as chairman of the Pitt County Committee of the N. C. Confederate Centennial Commission.

As one of 62 county committee chairmen, Dr. Paschal will direct county programs here as well as county participation in the statewide festival, which will be held in Raleigh May 19-20.

In North Carolina Confederate Centennial Commission was authorized by the 1959 General Assembly and has as its charge the planning and conducting of the 100th anniversary of the War Between the States.

Twenty-five members of the commission are appointed by the Governor, each for a two-year term. The commission consists of ex-officio of the superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Charles F. Carroll; the director of the Department of Conservation and Development, Hargrove Bowles, Jr.; director of the Department of Archives and History, Dr. Christopher Crittenden.

Tu Die In Airplane Crash Fighting Big Forest Fire

COLUMBIA, N.C. (AP)—An official of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co., and the pilot of a plane in which he had gone aloft to help direct the fight against a huge forest fire, were killed Wednesday when the plane crashed.

The victims were John E. Earl, 45, of Manteo, chief forester of the company, and Albert Murray Mann, 24, of Manns Harbor, a company pilot.

Earl was killed in the crash, and Mann died in a hospital here about three hours later, Tyrrell County Coroner Jake Walker said.

The cause of the crash is not known. A spokesman at Manteo

Airport said Mann called the airport by radio just before 5:30 p.m. and said he was coming in.

"That was the last we heard of him," said an airport spokesman. Meanwhile, more men and equipment were thrown into the battle today in the hope of bringing the fire under control. The fire has consumed an estimated 7,000 acres of timberland of the paper company.

The fire is in a remote area about 10 miles southeast of this Eastern North Carolina community.

State Forester Fred Claridge ordered personnel from other forestry districts into the area to help the 90 men already fighting the blaze.

The U.S. Forest Service sent a

TBM water bombing plane to New Bern to stand by to fight any fire developing in the Croatan National Forest and to aid state foresters if needed. Three state-owned planes are being used.

One theory about Wednesday's plane crash was that the plane became enveloped by smoke and the pilot was not able to get his bearings.

Mann is survived by his widow, two children, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mann.

Earl is survived by his widow, and two children.

Nigerians War On Damp Rot

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Preserving the national archives is a major problem in Nigeria.

The archivists fight a constant battle against mildew, rot and complete disintegration while temperatures and humidity hover around the 90 degree mark.

And they share with the country's other people the continual war against Nigeria's clammy tropical climate. Perspiration mopping is almost a national occupation.

The colorful Nigerian national costumes, for both men and women, are made of lightweight materials which are not susceptible to mildew.

Whites from overseas with heavier clothing try all sorts of safeguards against mildew. In most cases it's a losing battle.

Pins and paper clips rust in a few days. Watch straps wear out in a few weeks. Shoes not used regularly quickly take on a green mildew coating. Even books treated with special fungicides and insecticides come apart.

Bathrooms are stocked with astringents and powders in the daily struggle against skin irritations caused by constant perspiration.

Clumsy Thief Easily Caught

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Oscar Tellez Celaya, 28, couldn't escape with a portable television set from an appliance store. He was just too clumsy.

Officers said Celaya attempted to slip out with the small set but stumbled into a large world globe, knocking it to the floor and alerting the store owners.

And when he tried to outrun pursuit he crashed into the side of an auto and was captured.

Aborigines Show Population Rise

DARWIN, Australia (AP)—The native aborigines, often called a "dying race"—are increasing in Australia's Northern Territory.

Welfare Director Harry Giese told the Legislative Council the Territory's native population is 16,000.

But, he added, the birthrate indicates there would be 18,000 by 1965 and 26,000 by 1980.

There are some 40,000 full blood aborigines in Australia today, compared with an estimated 350,000 when the white man arrived in 1788.

Name Confusion 2nd Time Around

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP) — Lake Erie High has given the University of South Carolina some confusing moments. When professors ask his name, and he gives it, the usual response is:

"No! No! I want to know your name, not where you went to school."

It's the second time around, too—Lake is a Junior, and his father attended the university years ago.

New Bern Wins Triangle Track Meet; Phants Trail

New Bern walked away from a North Eastern Conference track meet here yesterday with 48 points for top position in the meet.

Trailing New Bern was Jacksonville with 38½ and Greenville with 29 points.

Roanoke Rapids placed a close fourth with 28½ points, Tarboro was fifth with 24 points and Elizabeth City followed with 8½. Washington failed to score.

The track team competition in Guy Smith stadium went on almost all day despite strong wind, dust clouds, and later in the afternoon, rain. Conference coaches thought several conference records had been broken and were very optimistic about North Eastern conference chances in state competition this year.

Events yesterday went according to the following listing which shows the first five places.

SHOT PUT: Sasser, (T), 50' 1½"; Pratt (J); Gizzard (RR); McArthur (G); Cook (J).

HIGH JUMP: J. Sasser (T) and Potter (NB) tied for first place, both boys jumped 5'6". Three men tied for third place in the event. They were Hopkins (RR), Bonners (RR), and Dunnaway (J).

In the MILE RELAY New Bern was first with a time of 3:43.9 and was followed by Roanoke Rapids, Jacksonville, Greenville, and Elizabeth City.

Top man for the day Steele from Jacksonville who took three first places, the 220, the 100 yard dash and the broad jump.

Sasser from Tarboro and Stokes from Kinston both took two first places each.

The meet was supervised by Coach Odel Welborn of East Carolina College.

The state record for the 100 yard dash is 10.1 and was set in 1926. It was last run in 1957. This year Steele from Jacksonville has done it in 10.1 several times. He also holds the broad jump record from last year. His jump record is 22'7".

Sasser, a Tarboro team member, challenged the state Shot Put record yesterday also. His 50 feet 1½ inches is just a little short of the state record, 52 feet, 11 inches.

A Kinston coach commented this morning, "We are very happy over here to see the North Eastern Conference challenge these state records. As soon as the tabulations are finished I think we will find that a few others are in danger too."

Track is a growing sport. I have watched it expand each year and I see some good competition in this conference. There is also some fine competition coming in for the sectional meet next week.

The sectional meet is scheduled for Friday, May 5 and will be held here in Guy Smith stadium. Sectional meets are being held in Greenville, Raleigh, Winston Salem and Charlotte this year. The top four boys in each event from each section will go to the state finals in Raleigh on May 12.

Wrigley Field Is Coming To Life With Shiny Hope

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A ghost park for three years, Wrigley Field comes very much to life today with a big league stamp, a bright new finish and shiny hopes for its infanter.

That would be the Los Angeles Angels, who make their home town debut as the real baby of the American League.

The opposition is the Minnesota Twins, a transplant from Washington, D.C., but brand new as far as Minneapolis and St. Paul are concerned.

Some 15,000 fans are expected to attend the 1:30 p.m., PST, opener, with some 5,000 more seats available if needed.

Hundreds of the customers will be familiar with Wrigley Field and followers for more than two decades of another Angel era, the now extinct Angels of the Pacific Coast League.

The batteries: For the Twins, Carmelo Pascual (1-0) and Earl Battey; for Los Angeles, Eli Grba (1-1) and Earl Averill.

The new Angel fans suffered with the club on its initial road trip in which they encountered horrible weather, seven losses and one lone victory, that in the opener against Baltimore April 10.

Dick Cole Named Cub Manager

CHICAGO (AP)—Dick Cole, former infielder for the St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates and Milwaukee Braves, has been named the 10th coach for the managerless Chicago Cubs.

Cole, 34, was out of baseball last year. He started this season with Houston of the American Assn. He is to report today and spend the next two weeks helping Coach Bobby Adams work with the Cubs' infield.

Head Coach Harry Craft is the present director of the Cubs, replacing Vede Himsel who served as head coach the first two weeks and now is in San Antonio assisting another of the Cubs' coaches, Rip Collins.

Other coaches are Elvin Tappe and Goldie Holt, on the Cubs staff; Charley Grimm, roaming the farm system, and Verlon Walker and Fred Martin, with Wenatchee, Wash.

Will Captain '61 Duke Footballers

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Halfback Jack Wilson of Raleigh, an outstanding runner and defensive player, will captain the 1961 Duke football team.

Wilson was elected Wednesday night in a vote of the lettermen. Dave Unser of Norfolk, veteran end, was elected alternate captain.

The Pittsburgh Pirates enjoyed their best success last season against Cincinnati, winning 16 of the 22 games played.

PHANTOM BITES THE DUST . . . a few yards short of the finish line Allen fell and lost his lead. Bystanders commented Allen would have won the event had he not encountered this misfortune.

ALLEN IN THE LEAD . . . Greenville's Bill Allen leads the 440 yard dash in yesterday's North Eastern Conference track meet here.

Charlie Smith Has 'A Mission' At Pinehurst

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP)—Charlie Smith, a man with a mission, is three matches away from repeating as North and South amateur golf champion.

The trick was done last in 1938-39 by Frank Strafaci of Miami, a second round victim of Wednesday's double round that reduced the field to quarter-final size for today.

Smith survived two 1-up scorchers, winning the 18th hole each time, to move into a meeting today with fellow North Carolinian Bill Harvey of Greensboro.

Dale Morey of Morganton, N.C., and Bill Hyndman of Huntingdon Valley, Pa., met in the other upper bracket match.

In the lower half, Dick Chapman of Palm Beach, Fla., winner three years ago, drew George Rowbotham, from King of Prussia, Pa., and Cobby Ware, ministerial student from Augusta, Ga., played Charles Lewis of Little Rock, Ark.

The winners will meet over 18-hole distance in the semifinals Friday, with a 36-hole championship duel Saturday.

Smith had to pull out all stops to get by Perky Cullinane of Washington, D.C., and Dr. Ed Updegraff of Tucson, Ariz.

Smith, a light hearted, 30-year-old automobile dealer from Gastonia, N.C., turned tiger last spring long enough to win here and follow through with a victory in the Southern Amateur, beating Cobby Ware in the finals.

He came here hoping to make a strong showing in defense of his title to impress the Walker Cup selection committee. Charlie has his heart set on earning a berth on the team that will oppose a picked squad of British amateurs at Seattle, Wash., Sept. 1-2.

Smith parred the 18th from three feet to edge Cullinane who led by two after three holes.

His afternoon match, with three holes in a half-hour thundershower, was a classic under the conditions. Charlie shot six birdies at Updegraff, who beat him out of one of the holes with one of his two eagles and won two others with birds. On the last hole Smith canned a five-footer for a par after the doctor's six-footer had hit the hole and hopped away.

Smith had saved the 17th with a 15-footer, one of five putts of 10 to 25 feet he made.

Harvey, who says he can't putt, and that is an understatement, banged in an 18-footer on the last hole to beat Dud Wyson of McKinney, Tex., 1 up. In the afternoon he disposed of three-time champ Bill Campbell of Huntington, W.Va., 4 and 3.

Dale Morey, staying around par all week, won from Ed Tutwiler of Charleston, W.Va., and Peter Green of Franklin, Mich., last year's runnerup, 2 up.

Hyndman, who three-putted four times before surviving a 20-hole with Bill Davidson of Nashville, Tenn., put out Jim Pulliam of Columbia, S.C., 5 and 4. He banged in putts of 35, 12 and 25 feet to win the first three holes on the back nine and was three under par. Pulliam had put out Herb Deurham of Dallas, Tex., 3 and 2.

Cobby Ware was five over par.

East Carolina Sweeps Double Header In High Point

HIGH POINT—The East Carolina baseball nine won their sixth and seventh straight conference games of the season without a league setback yesterday, dropping High Point College in a North State doubleheader, 17-3, and 7-0.

Larry Crayton and Lacy West combined their pitching talents to limit the Panthers to a measly seven hits in the two seven-inning affairs.

Crayton, the winning pitcher in North State Conference history, got credit for his fifth win against only one loss for the season. The chunky southpaw limited the Panthers to four hits and three runs. Crayton gave up two runs in the fifth when he had trouble finding the range of the plate. Three walks and a single produced the Panthers runs. In the third, Crayton also had control trouble, walking a pair and giving up a single for the other High Point tally.

West, hurling his first college shutout in only his second college game, set the Panther batter down in high style, striking out six and giving up only one free pass.

At the plate, it was a day for Gary Pierce. The husky Pirate leftfielder had a field day against the opposing pitching staff, blasting three home runs in the twin-bill. One four bagger came in the initial contest, and Pierce added two more in the nightcap. He led off in the fourth frame of the second game with a round tripper, then stepped up again in the fifth stanza and clouted another out of the park. The three blows gave the righthanded hitter a total of five home runs so far this season, all five coming on EC's six-game road tour.

The Pirates socked out 11 singles and three extra base blows in the first contest. Along with Pierce's homer, there was a triple and a double. The triple was by Crayton, whom Pirate coach Jim Mallory terms as just as dangerous a hitter as any on the ball club. Shortstop Glenn Bass led off the first contest with a double.

Pierce gathered 1-3 of the Pirate hits in the nightcap, getting three hits out of a total of nine. And with two of them homers, he couldn't have asked for a better day at the plate. The Delaware native drove in three of seven Buc runs, also.

High Point's Willard, a fast handed shortstop, was the only Panther batter who could get any ware native drove in three of seven Buc runs, also.

Texas Open Field Against Arnold

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—The storied Texas Open, started in 1922 as the first "big money" golf tournament, swings out today with the field concentrating on beating Arnold Palmer out of the $4,300 top prize.

Palmer, the defending champion, is a mild favorite to repeat but if he does it will be over the best entry in the 35 years of a tournament that once was the top on the winter trail but has been shifted to spring and to a new course.

The $30,000 event will be played over the par 71, 6,616-yard Oak Hills Country Club course, which Palmer already has found to be suited to his talents. He shot a 6-under-par 65 in a pro-amateur Tuesday.

Gary Player, the man from South Africa who is leading all the four players in money won—$46,417.50—will be considered a top threat. There also are 11 others of the leading 12 money-winners, including Jay Hebert, champion here in 1957 and last weekend winner of the Houston Classic. Hebert is the fifth money-earner.

Peter Thomson, the Britisher; Kel Nagle, current British Open champion; Tommy Bolt, Doug Ford, Jack Burke, Dow Finsterwald, Billy Maxwell, Ken Venturi, Mike Souchak and most everybody who has been winning high money on the tour are in the field. These include 14 of the 15 first place winners of the year. Only Bob Rosburg, who took the Bing Crosby, is absent. That's because of a hand injury.

A National League night game crowd was set at Los Angeles when 67,550 paid to see the Dodgers beat the Cubs 3-2 in the opening game of 1960.

Tar Heels' 4-0 Record On Line

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina puts its 4-0 Atlantic Coast Conference record on the line today in a baseball game with Maryland.

The Tar Heels, making their final road trip of the season, meet Wake Forest Friday and Duke Saturday. Today's contest, the only one for ACC teams, also is the first of three conference games for the league-leading Tar Heels. They entertain Clemson Friday and South Carolina Saturday.

Maryland takes a 4-4 league record and a 6-8 overall mark into today's game. North Carolina, winner of its last five games, is 9-2 overall.

In Wednesday's games, South Carolina lost its eighth straight, 13-2, to the Citadel, and Wake Forest was hammered 21-5 by Virginia Tech.

The Citadel's Chick Devens allowed only five hits, while his teammates jumped on South Carolina's Perry Ellison for eight runs in the first three innings. The game was interrupted five times by rain.

VPI got 19 hits off four Wake Forest pitchers, eight of them in a wild fourth inning in which Tech scored 11 runs. Sixteen VPI batters went to the plate in the fourth inning. They were helped by three walks, three Wake Forest errors, and one wild pitch. The inning lasted over 40 minutes.

Wake Forest's Roger Coon, whose 29 runs batted in this season puts him just five short of the record, failed to drive in any runs. He got one hit, a double, in four trips to the plate.

Cuban Invaders Outgunned Says Survivors Of Landing

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — A Cuban invader who says "we never had a chance" against Castro's troops today. He was rescued from a life raft in the Caribbean Sea.

Manuel Penabaz, 27, and four companions were picked up early Tuesday 55 miles south of the Isle of Pines by the S.S. Louise of the Caribbean Steamship Co. The ship was due to dock at Ingleside, just off Corpus Christi Bay, early today.

"When we landed we tried to get the best position we could, but we have no chance," Penabaz told Spencer Pearson, Corpus

Garry Moore Is Unwilling To Take On New Sponsor

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Garry Moore, star and principal salesman of his own television program, is in the unusual spot of being reluctant to take a new sponsor on his show. It is, he feels, a matter of personal "integrity."

One of the current sponsors of Moore's Tuesday night CBS variety show is an auto manufacturer. The sponsor will leave the show at the end of the season, and CBS has found another automobile manufacturer who wants to take over the spot next fall.

Moore himself isn't talking for publication about the situation, but a member of his staff confirmed a trade report that the performer feels that if he abruptly switched from praising one make of car to another, the public's faith in him as an individual would be shaken.

Lewis R. Holding, president of the First Citizens Bank and Trust Company, Smithfield, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Society for Advancement of Management at East Carolina College on Wednesday, May 3, at 7 p.m. in Rawl building on the campus.

SAM, a national professional organization of management in industry, commerce, government and education, stages each year a series of monthly meetings, conducts seminars and round-table discussions, visits industrial plants for talks with executives, and participates in community services which give students an insight into management.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina and Harvard Business School where he received the M.A. degree, Mr. Holding will speak on "Opportunities in Banking."

Willoughby D. Ferebee of New Bern, president of the organization, has announced that students and faculty members of the East Carolina College business department have been invited to attend the meeting. Others who are interested are welcomed to be present.

A progressive businessman interested in the future of Greenville.

Christ-Caller-Times staff writer Wednesday in a ship-to-shore radio interview.

Penabaz, a lawyer from the Oriente Province who joined the forces attempting to overthrow Fidel Castro, said that the heavy fire from Castro's army literally tore the invading forces to pieces.

He said Castro's army was armed with tanks, machine-guns and mortars from the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia. He said the Castro forces had many planes from the United States and Great Britain.

"We had only a few B26s and Payton Bruhl, captain of the were completely without air support for our troops," Penabaz, who speaks English well, said.

"But we will go back," he said. "The next time we will need equipment. We do not need people. We need good planes."

Penabaz said that after his unit was pushed back to the shore by Castro's heavy fire, he and his companions found a life raft from an invasion ship that had been sunk and they put out to sea. He said he knew of no other invaders who escaped Cuba.

Of confidence from shareowners S.S. Louise, said all five were in good condition although they were suffering from thirst, exposure and cuts and bruises when rescued.

Penabaz identified his companions as Jose Francisco, 25, a law student from Santiago; Rebe Alvarez, 30, of Oriente Province; and Orlando Rodriguez, 25, of Havana. He declined to name his fourth companion, explaining "his family is in Cuba."

Penabaz would not say from which country the ill-fated invasion of Cuba was launched, but added it was not the United States.

He said that Castro's army was made up mostly of boys ranging in age from 15 to 20 years. He said the Castro forces had many military advisers from the Soviet Union, Communist China, and Korea.

Wilkesboro Reservoir Is Basically Simple

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Basically, the Wilkesboro Reservoir Project in Wilkes County, is simple so far as engineering is concerned and contains, at this time, four principal features:

1. A dam across the Yadkin River in the vicinity of Brown's Bridge, about five miles upstream from Wilkesboro.
2. A spillway is being excavated through earth and rock on the north side of the dam which will discharge water into Fish Dam Creek. This spillway is to be unlined and will have no gates.
3. When and if floods fill the reservoir to its planned capacity, this spillway will automatically divert the excess water from the reservoir.
4. A 12-foot diameter conduit with control gate has been inserted through the south abutment of the dam at its base and this will regulate release of water from the reservoir to the river below, keeping it at a level stage.

When the reservoir above the dam is filled to the level of the spillway it will have a capacity of 152,000 acre feet. (An acre foot is comparable to an area a little smaller than a football field covered with one foot of water or about one-third million gallons.)

The reservoir depth itself can be divided into three layers. First there is a sediment pool at the bottom with a capacity of about

Transplanting Banyan Is Costly

PALM BEACHGARDENS, Fla. (AP) — A 75-ton, 80-year-old banyan tree has been transplanted, but it took eight hours to do the job which cost $11,000.

Chicago millionaire John D. MacArthur spotted the 60-foot high, 125-foot spread tree in the yard of Mima Hicks' home and wanted it for the entrance to this new incorporated city MacArthur built.

Three surgeons treated the huge tree for four months prior to the 10-mile move which was accomplished Wednesday by using two large draisines to place it on twin lowboy trucks.

Three crack passenger trains, the East Coast Champion, City of Miami and Silver Meteor, were delayed when the tree was carried over Florida East Coast Railroad tracks.

DANCER IN HOSPITAL

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dancer Gower Champion entered Cedars of Lebanon Hospital Wednesday for what his doctor termed "a checkup and a rest."

2.5 billion gallons. This is to provide space to retain the estimated accumulation of sediment for 50 years and to provide a pool sufficient for the conservation of fish in the event of extreme droughts.

Secondly, there is the "flow regulation pool" with a capacity of almost 10 billion gallons which is provided to augment flows in the Yadkin below the dam during low water periods and also to provide a relatively stable pool 1,470 acres in area which will afford recreational and fishing at all times.

The third layer will be the flood control pool with some 40 billion gallons which is sufficient to contain the entire flow of the 1940 record flood without the necessity of releasing any water into the Yadkin downstream.

Col. John R. Thompson, Charleston District Engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, in charge of the construction said that it is contemplated the reservoir will operate as follows:

"Whenever the flow in the Yadkin River at Wilkesboro, five miles downstream from the dam, falls below 144,000 gallons a minute, enough water would be released through the 12-foot conduit to make up the deficiency.

"When the flow-regulation pool is full," he added, "the releases from the reservoir would be equal to the water that flows into the reservoir at its upper end, within the capacity of the river below.

"When more water flows into the reservoir than can be taken care of by the river below the dam, the surplus water will be stored in the flood control pool (third layer) and released as conditions downstream permit," he said.

The Engineers are certain that the operation of the reservoir will result in a substantial reduction in flood levels from the Wilkesboro to the High Rock Reservoir.

"The flood damages to properties in the Wilkesboro-Elkin areas alone that would be prevented by operation of the reservoir is estimated to average $247,000 annually," Col. Thompson said.

The effect of the reservoir in maintaining stable water levels below the dam will, no doubt, be an important factor in the future development of the Yadkin Valley, Col. Thompson believes.

Speaking of the recreational potentials, Col. Thompson said these values will be greatly increased and said new business and new population will be attracted to the area.

The flow-regulation pool will provide a stable water area of 1,470 acres. The normal pool will be about 10 miles long with a shore line of 55 miles.

"Fish and wildlife interests consider that it will provide a superior fish habitat," the colonel said.

"Intensive use for boating, swimming and other water-related sports can be expected to develop. There will be at least five or six access areas which will be opened to the public and further development of the recreational potential may be expected in the form of private, organizational and commercial installations," he said.

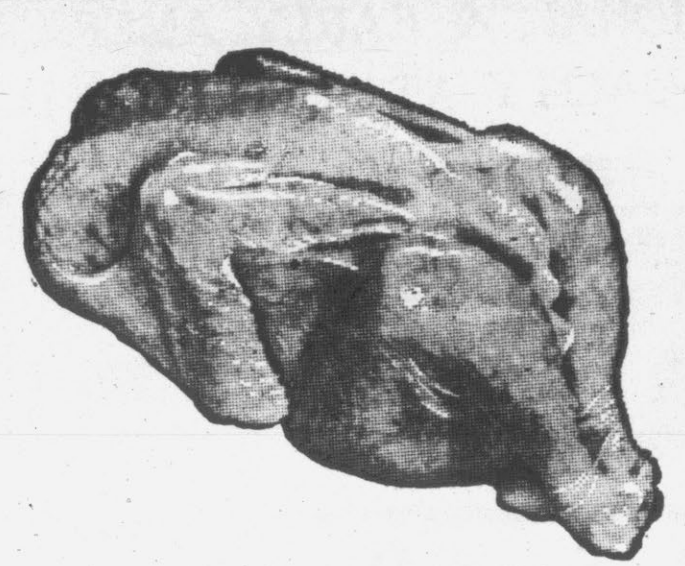

Col. Thompson said the formation of the project now under development will be after many conferences with and the cooperation of the U.S. Army Department of Conservation and Development, the N.C. Stream Sanitation Commission, the Recreation Commission and the Committee on State Parks.

Cuban Caravan Paused In S.C.

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (AP)—A motor caravan of Cubans was on its way from here today to Washington, D.C., where the group plans to appeal to President Kennedy for assistance in ridding their country of Dictator Fidel Castro. The Caravan arrived in this area Wednesday night, and planned to spend tonight in Woodbridge, Va., before arriving in the nation's capital.

At least 80 Cubans from the Florida area in two buses, and several more in two automobiles, registered in motels here. Many more were in motels between nearby Santee and Bamberg. One of the group, Bart B. Roca, engineer from Coral Gables, Fla., said Washington has been chosen as a meeting place for anti-Castro Cubans from throughout the nation. He estimated there were 158,000 Cubans who are opposed to Castro in various parts of the country.

A woman who said she had been in the Cuban Diplomatic Corps until she left Cuba five weeks ago said there is evidence to indicate that Fidel Castro takes orders from his brother, Raoul. She said Raoul is under the control of Moscow.

The woman, who declined to give her name, said there were about 25,000 Red agents in Cuba. She said she felt President Kennedy would support anti-Castro Cubans out of motives of self-preservation for the United States.

Spruill Believes Reform To Lose

RALEIGH (AP)—A veteran House member says he believes the Senate will defeat a House-passed bill which would revamp North Carolina's court system.

Rep. C. Wayland Spruill of Bertie told the House Wednesday "I'm almost persuaded to vote for this bill, but I promised my friend in the Senate, Lindsay Warren, to vote against it. I believe this bill will be defeated and his bill will be more to your liking."

The court measure passed the House on third reading Wednesday by 81-24 without debate. The compromise bill touched off lengthy debate Tuesday before it passed on second reading 85-28.

Warren, an influential senator from Beaufort, has announced he will oppose the bill in the Senate. Both bills would provide for a uniform system of courts below the Superior Court level. However, Warren contends that more authority be left with the legislature to decide the conduct of the courts. The House bill would place the State Supreme Court in administrative authority over the entire court system.

Meanwhile, the Senate placed on its calendar for next Tuesday a bill to amend the State Constitution to prohibit any county from having more than one state senator.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a resolution calling for a study of fine-cured tobacco price support levels to make certain they fill the requirement of the law for 90 per cent of parity.

A host of new bills was introduced. One would require that a person be able to read and write to get a driving license. The measure was signed by Rep. Dwight Quinn of Cabarrus and several others.

Japanese Visit Gen. Eisenhower

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—A delegation of Japanese nationals visited former President Dwight D. Eisenhower Wednesday, presumably in the interest of encouraging him to pay a visit to their country.

A projected trip to Japan last summer when Eisenhower was President had to be called off for security reasons because of anti-American riots in that country. An Eisenhower aide said there would be no statement from him concerning discussions with the Japanese group.

HERBERT EDMOND . . . has traveled far on his thumb.

Trusty Thumb Has Taken Tar Heel To All 50 States

Is hitchhiking the way to see the world? A man who claims to have traveled 49,000 miles in visiting all 50 states wouldn't recommend it to everybody.

"I wouldn't advise everybody to try it," said Herbert Edmond of Burlington, whose trusty thumb has carried him across the nation. "They might not be as lucky as I have, to be honest with you."

The 66-year-old unmarried Negro passed through Greenville yesterday on his way to New York where he hopes to land a spot on a television show on the strength of his travels.

To demonstrate the hazards of the road, Edmond recalled a time in Philadelphia when a car stopped, he reached for the door handle and the vehicle sped off.

"It threw me down but it didn't hurt me," Edmond said. "A state trooper got him in less than three blocks but I didn't file any charges."

Edmond observes a couple of good rules in accepting rides, however. He said he won't ride with "hot rodders" or in stolen cars, if he is aware of it.

Edmond claims he started his travels ten years ago at an age when most men are beginning to slow down. He had been hired by a salesman to drive him to Texas.

RELIES ON PRECINCTS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon reiterated Wednesday the key to Republican victory in 1962 and 1964 is precinct organization. He addressed 1,000 women at a GOP "school for politics."

Edmond wound up stranded in Mexico and took to his thumb to return home. He liked it so well that such traveling became a way of life with him.

Prior to the trip to Dallas, Edmond had done little traveling, although he had been to Greenville once 25 years ago. He had worked with the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. in Burlington until wanderlust overtook him. Now he takes odd jobs at the various places he visits to earn enough money for his needs. And his needs are simple. He travels light but his baggage includes a sleeping bag which simplifies finding a place to lay his head at night.

To visit the 50th state—Hawaii—Edmond caught a cattle boat which docked in San Francisco. The ship mileage, incidentally, he does not include in the 49,000 miles of travel which he claims.

What city has impressed him most? Portland, Oregon. "I love that place. I love the west coast, but North Carolina is good enough for me. I think we have a nice southern state, better than the northern states."

Edmond, who says he just righted but his baggage includes a turned from Hawaii, expects to end his wanderings now. He plans to return to Burlington to stay.

Equipped For Overnight Hikes

ELMIRA, N. Y. (AP)—Youngsters going on overnight hikes with the Elmira YMCA Fun Club don't intend to be "caught short" in any emergency.

The list of items taken on hikes includes: flashlight, canteen, cook kit, knife, fork, spoon, knapsack, sleeping bag, waterproof ground cloth, poncho, scout knife, matches, notebook, pencil, handkerchief, an emergency dime for a telephone call, wallet, jacket or sweater, food for three meals, sneakers or moccasins, comb, towel, toothbrush, toothpaste, bathing trunks.

First Infantry Gives Blood Well

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP)—The First Infantry Brigade's latest contribution of 715 pints of blood to the Red Cross bloodmobile here has increased its donations in 1961 to 1,004 pints.

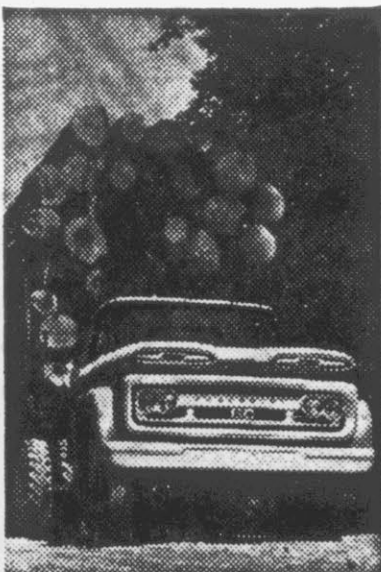

The brigade set a record for blood contributions at this infantry center last year.

TRUCK ROUNDUP

Western star Roy Rogers spreads the good word for your local dealer! "Right now he's making it easier than ever to own America's easiest riding truck. That's Chevy—the truck that saves you plenty with its special brand of Independent Front Suspension."

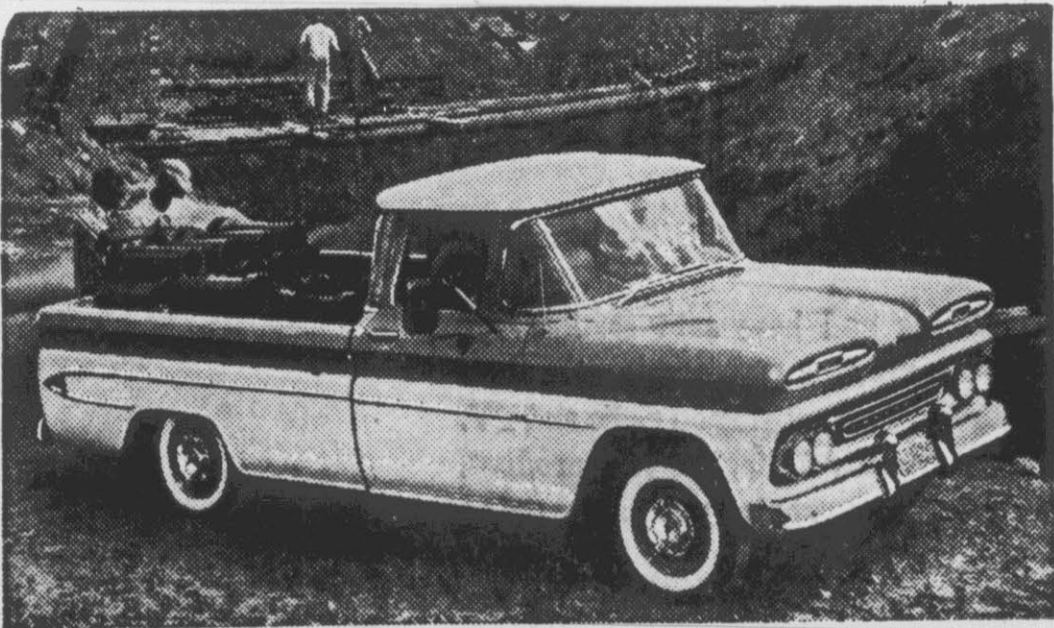

Just pick the model that fits your job and you can be sure you're putting your truck dollars where they'll do the most good. You'll get a super-efficient power to capacity ratio, a truck that's Sturdi-Bilt clear through, a king-size cab to keep your driver happy. And savings that just naturally go along with Chevrolet's I.F.S. ride.

You save on maintenance costs. I.F.S. lengthens truck life and protects cargoes by soaking up as much as 78% of all objectionable road shock and vibration. Your truck keeps working for extra thousands of miles! How in the world can you go wrong! Especially now—during truck roundup time!

Chevy's hefty Jobmaster 6, standard in Series 60 middleweights, is known far and wide for its fuel-saving performance.

CHEVROLET LES TRUCKS

Chevy's famous Thriftmaster 6 does the saving in this Fleetside model. It's the most highly respected truck 6 ever put under a hood. It's best known for economy and dependability—for pulling more loads over the years than any other truck engine. The 135-horsepower 235-cu.-in. Thriftmaster's standard in all Chevy pickups.

Lutz-Schramm Offices Are Moved To Ayden

AYDEN — In a centralization move, the general accounting offices of Lutz and Schramm have been moved from Pittsburgh, Pa., to Ayden.

Curt Cavileer, vice president and general manager with the Beatrice Food firm, returned to Ayden as a result of the move. Cavileer was associated with the Lutz and Schramm division of Beatrice Foods in Ayden from 1955 until 1958, when he moved to Pittsburgh. Lutz and Schramm manufacture pickles and relishes at the Ayden location.

Cavileer explained that moving the general accounting offices of Lutz and Schramm from Pittsburgh to Ayden was "basically a centralization of all accounting, placing it under one roof." Previously part of the accounting was done at the Ayden plant, part at the Detroit factory location and the balance at the general offices in Pittsburgh. Now all the offices have been consolidated.

Commenting on the expansion move by the Ayden firm, Dr. C. Sylvester Green, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, said, "Pitt County people are greatly pleased that Lutz and Schramm have found this area so acceptable that it is expanding its operations here. Alongside our desire to have new industries in the county is a sincere hope that those fine firms we sow have will be able to further expand."

He continued, "This is real progress, and the people of Ayden are joined by all of Pitt County in congratulating Lutz and Schramm."

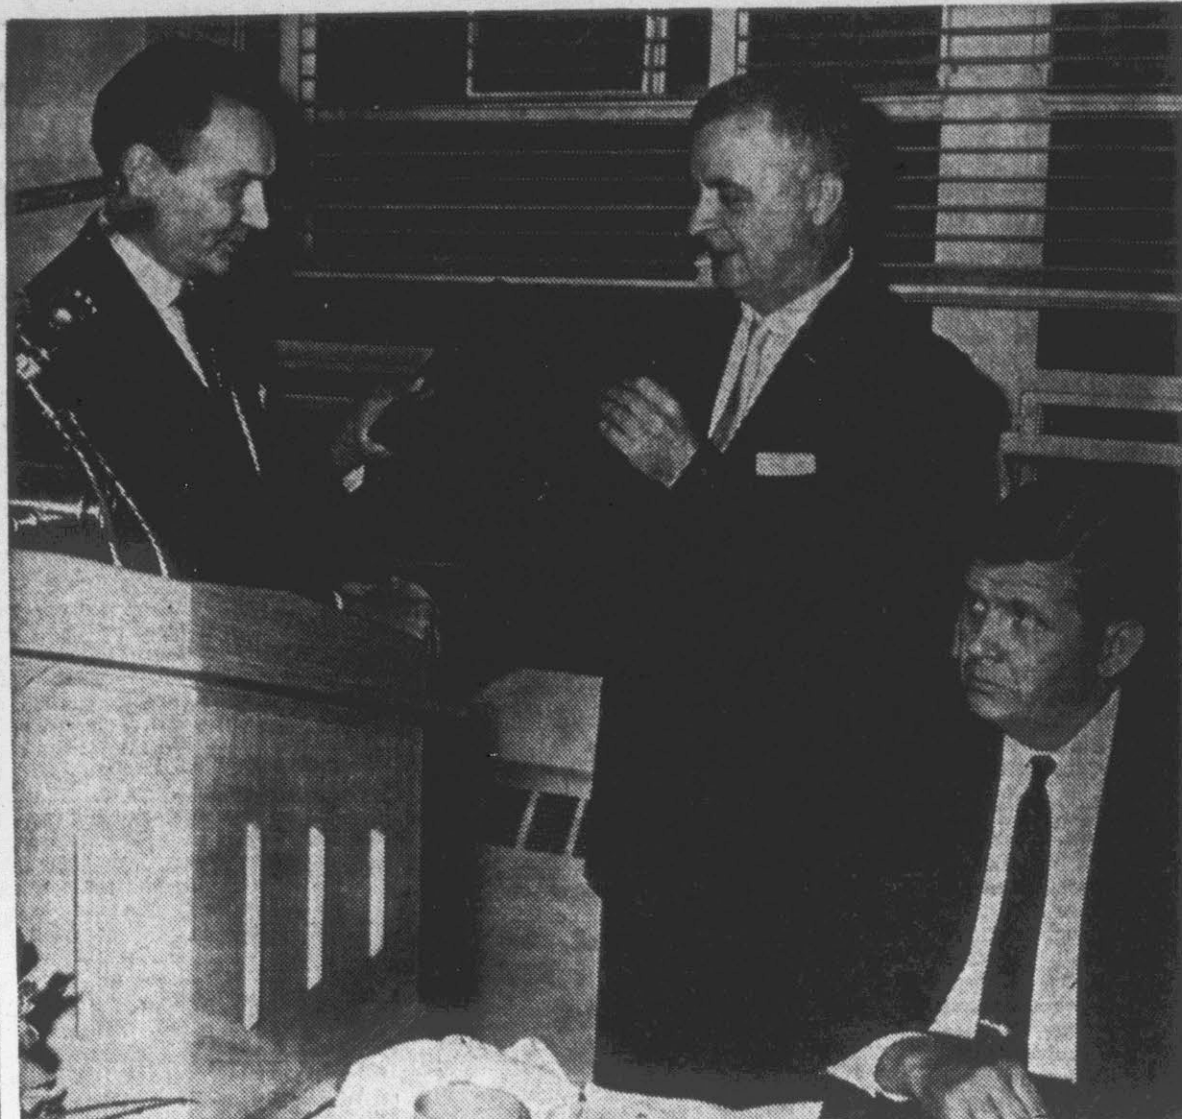

Two other staffers moved from the Pittsburgh office with Cavileer: Ray Hertler, office manager in Pittsburgh who retains that position in Ayden; and Mrs. Clare Rettinger, supervisor of accounts receivable department. Their families contemplate moving at a later date.

Cavileer's wife and three children will probably move here the summer following the termination of school in Pittsburgh. He is a native of Pennsylvania.

As a result of the moving of the accounting offices to Ayden, five new persons have been added to the office staff at Lutz and Schramm.

As guests arrived they were invited into the living room and patio where beautiful spring flowers were used for decoration.

After dancing, guests were invited into the dining room where they were served lime punch party sandwiches, potato chips and party squares by Kathy's mother. After which the honoree opened her gifts. About 30 attended the party.

Honors Husband

Mrs. Gordon Roebuck entertained at a birthday dinner honoring her husband recently.

The invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. G.H. Roebuck, Mrs. Ethel R. Clark, Miss Kate Roebuck, Gordon L. Clark, G.H. Roebuck Jr., William S. Cherry, Everett B. Parker Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Julius Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whitchard.

The house was decorated throughout with various arrangements of spring flowers.

Tables which were set up in the dining and living rooms were centered with vases of pansies. The dining table was covered with a white cut work cloth, and centered with a large white cake decorated with pink and green.

A two course dinner consisting of turkey and country ham was served buffet style by Mrs. Roebuck, assisted by Mrs. Ross.

Mrs. Quinton Cherry has returned home after a three week's visit with relatives in New York, Salisbury, and Maryland.

Finance Committees Go Their Separate Ways On Big Chore

RALEIGH (AP)—The House and Senate finance committees went separate ways today in tackling the job of handling the bundle of tax bills before them. This procedure could lengthen the job of drafting a tax bill to finance Gov. Sanford's $70 million school improvements program.

The House finance group voted Wednesday to turn the tax bills over to a subcommittee for study and recommendations to the full committee. The Senate committee voted following lengthy wrangling to continue discussions of revenue proposals before deciding what course to follow.

The House Finance Committee will discuss various tax proposals for several days before turning the bills over to the subcommittee which will be appointed by Chairman Shelton Wicker of Lee.

The two finance committees, which have been meeting jointly, held separate sessions Wednesday after the governor's supporters were blocked Tuesday in an attempt to have the tax proposals turned over to a joint subcommittee.

State Revenue Commissioner William Johnston was to appear before the Senate finance group today to discuss the amount of revenue that would be derived from the various tax proposals.

Gov. Sanford has proposed a tax increase on liquor and elimination of exemptions, including food and drugs, from the 3 per cent sales tax to finance his school program. A number of tax bills have been introduced by lawmakers who oppose a tax on food and drugs.

The House subcommittee would be authorized to work with a Senate finance subcommittee if one is named and if it seems advisable several members said they felt much time could be saved.

Strikes Back At Practical Jokers

NIAGARA FALLS (AP)—Robert Pieroni isn't a man to take a joke lying down.

Friends began playing pranks on Pieroni after he bought a small sports car. They put it in a used car lot with a "for sale" sign on it. Then they drove it into a restaurant. Finally they hoisted the car 30 feet onto the roof of another restaurant.

Pieroni decided to play his own prank. He arranged with a friend, car down.

City Court Judge Francis L. Giles, to have his joking friends subpoenaed. After hearing the evidence, Giles gravely announced: "Case is adjourned to the restaurant where the car is. We'll have lunch on these practical jokers and figure out a way to get the car down."

Castro Harangues Cuban Invaders In TV Program

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Fidel Castro today staged a marathon harangue before nearly 1,000 captured rebel invaders in a dramatic Cuban television show interrupted once by an apparently accidental burst of gunfire.

The Cuban prime minister appeared momentarily startled when a guard's weapon discharged.

Then, he raised his arms over his head, urged the large Havana Sports Palace crowd to remain calm and said: "Don't anybody move. Everyone put their weapons where they belong."

Minutes after the unexpected interruption, Castro continued his long political and economic lecture to a captive audience seated in bleachers and guarded by soldiers armed with automatic rifles.

"You all thought you were going to be assassinated, didn't you?" Castro asked.

"Yes," the prisoners roared back.

"Instead," he said, "you have been treated politely." Most nodded agreement. Last Sunday Castro had strongly indicated the prisoners might face the firing squad.

After Castro spoke of the danger of American aggression against Cuba, several of the prisoners excitedly grabbed microphones and pledged to fight off any attack. The rest of the prisoners roared their approval.

At one point Castro was asked by one of the prisoners if his government was "completely Communist." He shouted back: "The Cuban people have a right to a Communist government if they want one. Ours is a Socialist government."

Castro's public appearance, only the second since the April 17 invasion, climaxed a five-day parade of captives before Havana's TV cameras.

Each prisoner stood and gave his name and home town. The television audience was asked to search the sea of faces and telephone in if they recognized any of the prisoners as "criminals of the dictatorship."

Encountered Hot Temper Hazard

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (AP)—Add this to the hazards of a quick temper.

A physician treated a Lockport man for hand and wrist cuts, police said, after the man put his fist through the window of another motorist's car. They said the splintering punch followed a brief dispute over right of way.

No charges were pressed. Officers said a passenger explained: "That guy took a swing at my buddy but I guess he forgot there was a window in between."

Growing Menace Of Kangaroos

DARWIN, Australia (AP)—W. H. Petrick, a member of the Legislative Council, says the kangaroo menace in Central Australia is worse than ever.

He told the council 14,000 'roos have been shot on his own cattle station in the past two years.

"In the Alice Springs district they are well on the way to destroying the country completely," he said.

"They destroy the grass before it seeds. As a result, even after good rains, there is no growth in many areas."

ANTI-CASTRO RALLY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—About 400 University of San Francisco students and noon-hour spectators rallied Wednesday in Union Square against Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba. A demonstration against U.S. intervention in Cuba was staged in the square last week.

RECEPTIVE!

Readers Welcome
Newspaper Advertising
...It's Not an Intrusion!

People really want newspaper advertising and have said so. Surveys usually show well over 80% in favor of newspaper advertising; less than 70% for magazines; and under 40% in favor of advertising on radio and TV.

Your advertising's first job is to win a friendly feeling for your product. It stands to reason you will win more friends by running your advertising where most people want it.

If you want to sell more people you have to reach them when they are receptive. Newspapers reach more of the most receptive people.

Police On Night Beat Find Business Places Unlocked

AN OFFICER . . . checking door of building.

There is an old saying that goes, "It is too late to lock the barn door when the horse has gotten out."

Someday some Greenville merchant might just wish he had stopped to check his "barn door" before he left the place of business. It might have prevented that robber from gaining entrance to his store.

Greenville police report that over the past few weeks, 24 doors and windows have been found unlocked or open by officers on their regular nightly check of local firms. Since the first of the year, officers reported 115 occurrences.

Officials, who in the past have urged business men to double check all doors and windows before they leave for the day, explain that it takes from one to one-half man hours of working time for each door and window found unlocked at night.

They explained the time by outlining the steps followed by officers when a building is found open. First the officer, after making a quick check of the building, calls the police department to report the building is open. A radio car is then sent to the scene with two additional officers to stand by.

The officer working on the desk at the Police Department, in addition to dispatching the car to the scene, calls the owner or manager of the firm and requests that he come and lock his door.

When the owner arrives, a thorough check is made of the building by the owner and the officers. The door is then locked, and the man on the "beat" starts checking again. . . for someone else's unlocked business.

Police officials emphasized that in addition to the time it takes for officers to check doors—time taken away from other duties—an open door is an open invitation to a robber. It makes it just that much easier for a law-breaker to gain entrance to the building, rifle the contents of the store, or, if he takes nothing he may cause severe property damage, police officials reminded.

GE Stockholders Are Facing Up To Damage

By SAM DAWSON

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The reputation of a business—or business in general—can be a fragile thing. And General Electric officials and stockholders assembled here today are tackling this problem: How can a damaged reputation be mended?

They all know there has been damage aplenty. And so do a multitude of other business executives. Their employees and their stockholders have had varying degrees of jitters ever since GE and 28 other makers of electrical equipment ran afoul of the anti-trust laws.

In February, they were fined nearly $2 million after pleading guilty or no contest to charges of price fixing and bid rigging. Seven officials, three of them GE men, went to jail for 30 days.

The public also is looking over the shoulder of GE executives and stockholders today.

In some quarters, the entire business community's code of ethics has been questioned. Some say that the United States vaunted system of capitalistic and competitive enterprise has been put in a bad light before the world.

The problem is being tackled here in typical American fashion. The stockholders are meeting, openly asking an accounting, and then voting on the re-election of the 16 directors.

The GE chairman and president, Ralph J. Cordiner, says the way to mend the company's reputation is to admit the past faults and tighten up regulations and inspections to see that it doesn't happen again.

His critics include James B. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, who is demanding a vote of censure, without any hope of getting it.

The free-for-all taking place here at the annual meeting of the GE shareowners has wider implications.

The public has been asking: How could such a widespread law violation go over a period of years?

Those admitting they were in the price-fixing conspiracy apparently accepted it as a way of corporate life. Some of the men who pleaded guilty said that was how one behaved if he wanted to get ahead, or even hold his own, in a big company.

Some GE stockholders are taking a down-to-earth stand. They are worried about what will happen to company sales, if the furor about past practices isn't silenced.

Others are worried about what will happen to GE's financial future as a result of damage suits growing out of the antitrust sentences. And the business community in general is worried because some critics have used the case to attack all business standards, to discredit business politically, to talk of punitive laws and more government regulation.

Mandian Indians say the aurora borealis is visible when medicine men and warriors of northern nations are boiling their prisoners in huge pots.

Sweet Potato Meeting Set In Bethel Friday

BETHEL — A meeting for Pitt County sweet potato growers and farmers interested in growing sweet potatoes is scheduled for the Bethel High School Gymnasium here Friday.

Robert J. Cullifer, owner of the R. J. Cullifer Sweet Potato Co., the Bethel Sweet Potato Auction Co., and other sweet potato brokers in Bethel will provide a free barbeque dinner for all growers attending the meeting.

The dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. with the meeting of growers in a four-county area to follow. Farmers interested in sweet potatoes have been invited from Pitt, Martin, Edgecombe and Wilson Counties.

On the program will be Sen. Robert L. Humber who will outline the purpose of Friday's meeting as it opens.

Dr. J. C. Williamson Jr., assistant director of the N. C. Extension Service in charge of marketing, will discuss recommended marketing procedures for sweet potatoes.

Henry M. Covington, Extension Service horticultural specialist, is scheduled to discuss with the growers the latest tested methods of producing high yields of sweet potatoes. His address is entitled: "How to produce 300 bushels of top quality potatoes per acre."

Dr. Maurice W. Hoover, associate professor of horticulture at N. C. State College, will discuss new research in the use of sweet potatoes as a food product.

Scheduled for special discussion at Friday's meeting is a newly-developed process for packaging and marketing sweet potatoes.

Laboratories in Louisiana, according to Pitt County Agricultural Agent S. C. Winchester, have developed a procedure for preparing the product in flake and puree form for use in making sweet potato pies and puddings. Tests along this line also have been conducted at N. C. State College in Raleigh.

Lawmakers Like Summer School

RALEIGH — Legislators are considering a bill which would authorize the operation of summer schools in the State, and a House committee admittedly was ready to give the go-ahead to the measure—until the question of bus transportation came up.

The House Education committee, considering a measure introduced by Rep. Glen Hawfield of Union and Dan Drummond of Forsyth, seemed inclined to give a favorable vote on the bill until it was discovered that transportation of pupils had not been provided for.

The bill, which would permit any North Carolina city or county Board of Education to use local funds to operate schools in the summer, is designed to provide for uniformity of instruction and standards.

Introducers of the bill told the House Committee on Education that their primary concern was for utilization of existing public school buildings, extending an enrichment educational program to students throughout the state, and for a limited amount of makeup work and acceleration.

Several committee members balked at the idea of accelerated courses of study, but were reassured when told that individual school systems could, as many are now doing, discourage graduation at an earlier age by instituting courses without credit. Such courses are sometimes labeled "interest courses."

A subcommittee has been appointed to see whether county buses would be used in summer school transportation.

Chemical Society Meeting Tonight

KINSTON — Dr. G. M. Kosolapoff will address the Eastern North Carolina Section of the American Chemical Society tonight on "Chemistry in USSR" at DuPont's "Dacron" plant here.

Dr. Kosolapoff was born in Russia, but received his college training in this country, earning a Sc. D. in chemistry from the University of Michigan. He is presently a Research Professor at Auburn University's School of Chemistry.

The evening meeting will be preceded by dinner in the Plant Cafeteria at 6:30 p.m.

Grand Master Of Masons Visits DeMolay Chapter

The Creasy K. Proctor Chapter, Order of DeMolay, was honored recently with a visit by the Most Worshipful James W. Brewer, grand master of Masons in North Carolina.

Grand Master Brewer, who is chairman of the advisory council for this chapter, assured the chapter members of his support as grand master as well as the support of the Grand Lodge in the work being done by DeMolay in North Carolina.

At this meeting, officers and members of the chapter wore the newly acquired chapter robes for the first time.

Eddie Meeks, freshman at East Carolina College and a past officer of the state chapter, was present. He has been assisting members in chapter procedures.

This chapter is sponsored by Greenville Lodge 284 A.F. & A.M. and meets every second and fourth Tuesday nights.

'We're Going Back' Say Cuban Invasion Survivors

THE CIRCUS HITS THE BIG TOWN—Dancers and gaily painted elephants share the stage as they go through their opening paces for the crowd on the first night of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus in New York's Madison Square Garden.

By ROBERT D. CLARK

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—"We're going back. And the sooner, the better."

That was the defiance hurled today at Fidel Castro by two rugged, sun-tanned Cubans who said that in surviving the bloody repulse of their invasion force they learned lessons that will help them "next time."

The men, 35 and 42, smiled when asked if they and brother rebels were demobilized.

"We're only on leave," one said. "In a few days we're going back to training camp."

"Where?"

"Fidel would like to know. Guatemala? Nicaragua? He's not even close in his guesses so far. The men he captured didn't know where they trained for the invasion of April 17. They traveled by night and were restricted to the training area."

His companion, a big man with prematurely gray hair and a bristling mustache, said he was an Oriente rancher. Both declined use of their names because of danger to relatives still living under the Castro government.

In a cozy southwest Miami parlor where they sat with their families, they described the rebels' pull-out April 19 under fire and attack by growing hordes of Castro troops.

"Our force—about 1,500 men—was able to land without difficulty the first day. It was four or five hours before the invaders met any material opposition," they related.

"Most of the opposition came the next day (April 18)—wave after wave of troops; Stalin tanks and a large number of cannon."

"We had landed five tanks, but the turret of two were out of commission."

"Our weakness was especially in lacking airplanes that could match the performance of the Sea Furies and jets that bombed and machinegunned our men. Next time, we will have to have aviation that can compete."

"One ship of ours only was sunk—the 2,500-ton Rio Escondido, whose ammunition exploded when the craft was struck by a rocket. All the other ships got away. Not once did the Castro navy interfere with operations off Bahia Cochinos while we were landing and evacuating."

"We captured more than 200 Castro militiamen and troops—and had to leave them behind. Some we confined in a building on which was painted a cross. The men in there were killed by a Castro bomb. Some had hammer-and-sickle tattoos."

The two Cubans said they were on the beach all day of the 19th, ferrying rebels to evacuation craft by outboard motor boat. They said they brought 51 to safety that way.

"Our men fought waist-deep in water," the younger man said. "The badly wounded had to be left behind. An airplane was to evacuate them but it could not land under the attack of Castro's aviation."

"Our men fought waist-deep in water," the younger man said. "The badly wounded had to be left behind. An airplane was to evacuate them but it could not land under the attack of Castro's aviation."

"Four Castro planes were shot down."

"We did not have a chance to examine the bodies of Castro pilots killed. But their flying formations convinced us they had been instructed by foreigners."

The two rebel survivors estimated their brigade faced numerical odds of 100 to 1 by the time they withdrew.

They said that Castro grossly understated both his own and the invaders' casualties when he announced 80 or so of each side were killed. They refused to set a figure but said the death toll was much worse.

They ridiculed Castro's contention that the invasion force was wiped out.

"We evacuated at least 150 to 200 by ship," they said. "A good number of our forces also fought their way into the Escambray Mountains."

Stokes Trial Is Being Delayed

Solicitor Robert D. Rouse Jr. said today a case in which a Route 4, Greenville, man is charged with procuring perjury will not be tried during the current term of Pitt County Superior Court.

Rouse said investigation is continuing into the case involving 25-year-old Jay Leo Stokes. The solicitor said this week's term, presided over by Judge Albert W. Cowper, will adjourn today.

Stokes' case was docketed for trial this week but the trial was delayed to permit further investigation. Stokes was indicted by the Grand Jury Monday.

In cases heard yesterday, Billy S. Whitehurst, 19, of 1312 Vandike St., Greenville, drew a six-month suspended sentence after pleading guilty to speeding, careless and reckless driving and failure to stop for a red light and siren.

The youth's sentence was suspended upon the conditions he not operate a motor vehicle for three years and pay a fine of $100 and court costs. He was also placed on two years' probation. He was charged with speeding at 80 miles per hour in a 35 m.p.h. zone.

Willie Williams, 54-year-old Fountain Negro, was acquitted on charges of manslaughter. The court directed a verdict of not guilty after Williams had pleaded not guilty.

A case against Luther B. Jenkins of Greenville was not prosecuted. Jenkins was charged with accessory in larceny.

The next term of Superior Court here is scheduled for May 22.

Showers Arrive Ahead Of Time

The scattered showers originally forecast for tonight arrived this morning, ahead of the weatherman's schedule. And more than likely, they will continue for awhile, with slightly cooler temperatures.

Thursday's morning temperatures ranged from a low of 57 at 4 a.m. to 60 degrees by 8 a.m., Vance Briley, Jr., of the Greenville Utilities Plant said. Wednesday's temperatures varied from a low of 59 to a high of 84. The high today probably will be in the 70s, and no higher.

Rainfall up to midnight Wednesday was .25 of an inch, as measured at the utilities plant. Winds ranged from 20 to 35 miles per hour at the highest, here in Greenville yesterday.

For Friday, the weatherman has predicted gradual clearing and a little warmer.

Kennedy ...

Kennedy said, "is honest people in a good ethical environment."

And, the President affirmed a confidence in the integrity and dedication of the vast bulk of government workers. "Venal conduct by public officials in this country has been comparatively rare," he said.

However, the President said he intends to issue executive orders to:

- Prohibit gifts to government personnel which appear to be designed to influence official conduct.
- Forbid government employees from using for private gain official information which is not available to the general public, such as for stock market speculation.
- Prohibit employees from seeking "anything of economic value" from anyone whose private interests may be affected by actions of the employee or his agency.
- Ban outside employment "incompatible" with government work.

Regulate in fore detail the conduct of presidential appointees, including the White House staff.

Apply government-wide standards to continuance of property or stock holding by appointees in the executive branch.

Kennedy found that five of seven general statutes covering conflicts of interest were enacted before 1873.

Some, he said, leave important areas unregulated. Others, Kennedy said, often serve as a bar to securing "important personal services for the government through excessive regulation when no ethical problem really exists."

President Orders Inquiry As To Barring Of Negroes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy today ordered an inquiry to find out whether Negro Democrats were barred from a fund-raising dinner in Columbia, S.C., Wednesday night at which Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges spoke.

"We are looking into the matter to see whether Negroes were in fact barred," Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said. He would only say "that people at the White House" are doing the looking.

As a general policy, Salinger said, cabinet members should not speak at functions where people of any race are barred because of race.

Salinger, in response to an inquiry, said Kennedy read accounts this morning of a controversy over whether Negroes were barred, and directed that it be looked into.

Negroes complained they were unable to buy tickets for the dinner. Hodges made his speech, as scheduled, but later issued a statement saying the question of a segregated or non-segregated meeting was not mentioned when he agreed to address the dinner.

As a cabinet member in the Kennedy Administration, Hodges added, "I would not knowingly attend a public meeting which was deliberately or arbitrarily segregated."

Salinger was pressed as to his exact meaning when he spoke of a general policy against cabinet functions. He replied that cabinet officers, being aware of the general policy "will carry it out."

John McCray, leader of the South Carolina Progressive Democrats, said he tried to buy 14 tickets to the dinner but was turned down.

Minor Damage In Two Wrecks

Minor damage resulted from two collisions investigated yesterday in the City of Greenville.

An estimated $75 damage resulted from a wreck on Dickinson Ave. about 4:04 p.m. Investigators reported.

Drivers involved in the collision were identified as Elaine P. Powell of Route 5, Greenville and David Lee Elks, 29 of Route 6, Greenville.

No charges were made.

The second collision occurred at the intersection of 10th and Cotanche Sts. about 6:45 p.m. and involved vehicles operated by Barry Ward Willis, 19, of Greenville, and Sidney Moore Harrell, 24, of 544 Cotanche St.

Total damage to both cars was estimated to be about $85.

Willis was charged by officers with failing to give a proper hand signal while Harrell was cited for improper passing.

No injuries were reported by police in either of the mishaps.

Suspect Wind Removed Sign

Greenville detectives today resign reported stolen Monday has been closed.

Investigators said the sign was found near the house at 14th and Railroad Sts. from which it was reported missing and "returned back to the house."

In their report, the detectives wrote, "We believe wind blew the sign off."

Phil Goodson, owner of the dwelling and sign, reported it stolen and offered a $25 reward for the arrest and conviction of the ones responsible.

Talk Friday On Home For Aged

Representatives of Pitt County communities are expected at a meeting here tomorrow night for the purpose of discussing possible methods of obtaining a new home for the care of the aged and disabled citizens of Pitt County.

Scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Community Room of Wachovia Bank at Fifth and Washington Sts. here, the meeting marks the first gathering of community leaders to discuss a proposal by the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society.

At its April meeting three weeks ago the society adopted a resolution asking the Pitt County Commissioners to call a bond election to finance such a facility with at least 50 beds to replace the often-criticized Pitt County Hospital.

The society patterned its proposal after the Lenoir County Nursing Home, a facility built with a $200,000 county-wide bond issue and leased for operation to private enterprise.

Other counties in North Carolina have answered the statewide county home problem with similar facilities—some built with public funds, some by private business.

Dr. Stephen Bartlett, chairman of the society's Committee on the Aged, was a member of a group that visited the Lenoir County Nursing Home and reported his observations to the society prior to its action on the resolution.

All Pitt Countyans interested in the project have been invited to attend tomorrow's meeting.

Stringed Instrument Class Gave Program

The Stringed Instrument Class, under the direction of Roy Bennett of the East Carolina College Music Department, presented a program at the recent meeting of the Wahl-Coates School P.T.A.

The class was organized in January and is composed of students in the Greenville Elementary Schools.

Madame Labumue conducted a French class with fourth grade students. The entire conversation was French and the class sang French songs.

Mrs. Clay Burnette, president, presided at the meeting.

The May meeting will be the annual picnic at Elm Street Park on May 17.

Rites Held For Mrs. Frank Lineberger

BETHEL — Mrs. Ethel Hughey Lineberger, 48, wife of Frank Lineberger, died Wednesday morning.

Funeral services were held at Avers Funeral Home Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Terry Agner, pastor of Our Redeemer Lutheran Church. Another service will be held later in Newton. She was formerly of Conover and had lived here nine years.

Surviving are her husband; her father and step-mother, Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Hughey of Portsmouth, Va.; one brother, Fred Hughey of Conover; three sisters, Mrs. Ruby Sherrill of Hickory, Mrs. Mary Moore and Mrs. Zephania Griggs, both of Columbus, Ohio.

Get peanuts off to a good start ... kill growth-choking-weeds with PREMERGE

Both weed and grass seedlings are readily controlled in peanuts with Premerge®—and at low cost. A treatment with Premerge now gets plants off to a good start toward bigger yields, and reduces the need for early cultivations. This is especially important during wet springs when cultivation is difficult or impossible, and when there is greater danger of soil compaction. Premerge is a time-tested and proven farm herbicide. Get Premerge today for a better peanut crop!
