

Laotian Rebels Ignore Bid For Ceasefire; Set Terms

By JOHN GRIFFIN

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The Western-backed Laotian government's noon target hour for a cease-fire in the civil war passed today with no response from the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels.

Prabang, the royal capital 138 miles north of Vientiane, at the ceremonial cremation of the late King Sisavang Vong.

Blaming the Western powers for the civil war, he flew to Xieng Khouang, in the Plain Des Jarres, after a tour of European and Asian capitals that culminated in joint declarations of mutual support with Communist China and North Viet Nam.

The statement said they had decided to exchange ambassadors and sign "in the immediate future" an agreement on economic and cultural questions.

Kefauver Asks Re-Opening Fix Charges Against Executive Of GE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., called today for the reopening of a Justice Department investigation of price-fixing charges against Arthur F. Vinson, a top General Electric Co. executive.

Vinson, a GE vice president responsible for directing major divisions of the company, denied he had instructed subordinates to participate in illegal price-fixing meetings with competitors.

He also swore that, prior to a federal grand jury investigation in the fall of 1959, he was unaware that they had done so.

The FBI reportedly had conducted an investigation and was convinced by Vinson that he was not in Philadelphia at the time.

Long Arm Of Nurse Averted An Interview With Caroline

ANNOUNCING INTERNATIONAL TRADE FAIR... Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles, President Kennedy, Gov. Sanford, Sen. Jordan, Commerce Secretary Hodges and Sen. Ervin.

By DAVID J. WHICHARD

North Carolina newsmen who accompanied Gov. Terry Sanford to Washington yesterday for his conference with President Kennedy missed by a nurse's hand an exclusive and unscheduled interview with the President's three-year-old daughter.

The newsmen were waiting in a room overlooking the White House lawn. A little girl, dressed in red pedal pushers and a white knitted shirt, skipped up on the patio outside the double glass doors of the room.

She stopped, opened the door and took a half step. That's when the long arm of a nurse, close on Caroline's heels, intervened. Little Caroline smiled at the newsmen, turned and followed the nurse back out on the lawn.

They wanted to see what we make in North Carolina," he said. "The purpose of it is to sell something."

$4,080 Job

It was announced today that $4,080 in repairs and improvements will be made to the Greenville Post Office.

The Atlanta Regional Office of General Services Administration has awarded contracts to six federal buildings in the southeast, including the local post office.

Work includes a new oil burner, fuel tank and oil-fired water heater, and the contractor is L. B. Gallimore of Greensboro.

Estimated completion time for the work is 90 days, the release said.

Postmaster J. Knott Proctor stated "We've been looking forward to this work for a long time." He commented that the change had been needed for some time.

Contractor Gallimore was awarded the contract as the lowest of three bidders.

Congolese Army Clamps Down Political Feuds

COQUILHAVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The Congolese army cracked down today on the country's feuding politicians, ordering that none should leave Coquilhaville until they have thrashed out agreement on the Congo's problems.

Soldiers milling around the airport have been told by their officers to prevent any politicians leaving town. Machine guns have been set up along the runways.

Even President Joseph Kasavubu, head of the Congo's central government at Leopoldville, apparently was covered by the military order, although he has made no attempt to leave Coquilhaville.

The Leopoldville government army, headed by Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu, appeared to be in command at Coquilhaville, 375 miles up the Congo River from Leopoldville.

The politicians went there from every Congo area, except those controlled by the leftist Stanleyville regime of Antoine Gizenga.

The conference ground to a halt when Katanga President Moïse Tshombe made a violent verbal attack on Kasavubu and walked out.

Tshombe tried to take a plane Wednesday to Elisabethville, capital of Katanga, but soldiers at the airport arrested him.

Senate Passes Courts Measure

RALEIGH (AP)—Long years of battling to revamp North Carolina's court system ended in the General Assembly today.

This came when the Senate quickly passed by identical 46-0 votes on second and third reading a bill to amend the state constitution so as to provide the state with a "unified and uniform" court system.

The bill was rushed back to the House, which passed it Wednesday for concurrence in Senate amendments. Speedy action also was expected there.

At the committee session, Sens. J. Spencer Bell of Mecklenburg and Frank Banzet of Warrenton, who had belonged to opposing factions in the past, jointly offered amendments to a court measure passed by the House Wednesday.

Sen. John Kesler of Rowan, committee chairman, told Bell, Banzet and the others who worked out the agreement that "I'm very grateful for you coming to this common understanding... I appreciate that by this common understanding we probably will be able to get a better bill than we would have gotten any other way."

Mercury Space Capsule Is Successful In Final Test Before Its Manned Flight

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP)—The Mercury space capsule underwent its final and most severe unmanned test today with this verdict: A man aboard unquestionably could have survived.

Next week an American astronaut at Cape Canaveral, Fla., will stake his life on that finding.

Little Joe VII, a cluster of eight solid propellant rockets, leaped up from this test station of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at 9:04 a.m. with the 3,000-pound space chamber on its nose.

Half an hour later, after a flight that produced stresses even more violent than the extreme conditions that had been planned, the capsule was back on the beach after a parachute-cushioned landing in the sea and fast recovery by a helicopter.

Meantime the vehicle had been blasted loose from the booster by rocket devices intended to save a space flier in case of trouble in the liftoff.

Asked if a man could have lived through it, project manager William M. Bland replied: "Unquestionably."

The aim was to determine whether the equipment would work under the most punishing conditions an astronaut might encounter.

Next comes the real test—probably next Tuesday—at Cape Canaveral, Fla., with man aboard for a longer ride.

Little Joe VII, consisting of six solid-propellant rockets, blasted off at 9:04 a.m. from this Virginia Eastern Shore test center.

The space chamber with two ballast-filled dummies aboard, rode on the vehicle's nose.

In 30 seconds the rocket lifted the 3,000-pound capsule to about 35,000 feet, where a timing device triggered the escape sequence.

The vehicle at that moment was traveling at about 1,200 miles an hour.

Later when a capsule is launched by a more powerful Redstone or Atlas rocket, it will attain much greater speeds but at much higher altitudes where air resistance and the pull of gravity will be greatly reduced and thereby produce no more stress.

At Little Joe's peak altitude of about 40,000 feet, an escape rocket on a tower 12 feet above the capsule ignited and pulled the spacecraft away from the rocket.

Then a small parachute opened to stabilize the capsule, after which a large chute blossomed out and lowered the capsule into the water about five minutes after the launching. A helicopter quickly picked it up.

The sequence was visible from the launch site under bright sunny skies.

Even before the recovery an official reported the operation had gone off under conditions a man apparently could have survived.

The missile took off at an 80-degree angle and arched for 30 seconds through the clear blue sky before the engines burned out.

Today's test by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration designed to subject the Mercury space capsule to the most severe stresses and pressures that could occur on liftoff.

The moment of peak stress today's shot occurred between altitudes of 35,000 and 45,000 feet when the air pressure at the nose of the vehicle rises to 40 times the force produced by a 100-mph an-hour hurricane.

The capsule was the same one launched by Little Joe VI on March 18 and recovered 20 miles offshore, slightly damaged. In that shot the Mercury escape rocket fired prematurely and caused a faulty sequence of separation.

The damage resulting from that shot was repaired and the capsule was in a new condition when launched today.

Dual-Laning All U.S. 17 Is Asked

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Highway Commission has taken under advisement a request that all of U.S. 17 in North Carolina be made dual lane eventually.

The request was presented Thursday by spokesmen for a delegation which asked that the commission develop a master plan for improvements to the highway.

Rock requested the commission to improve a four-mile stretch of U.S. 221 south of Blowing Rock, and to authorize a new three-mile access connector road between U.S. 221 and N.C. 105.

In other action, the commission allocated $22,547 for a special study to determine the economic impact of new highways on areas surrounding them.

Rejected the $93,500 bid for dredging Oregon Inlet. Chief Highway Engineer Cameron W. Lee said the bid was $43,500 above estimates.

Searchers Find Missing Man

Lubie M. Stocks, local attorney and president of the Pitt County Bar Association, was found this morning, apparently in good physical condition, by two members of the Greenville Rescue Squad.

Stocks had been missing since 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. A missing person announcement was made last night on television and radio and highway patrolmen were notified to be on the lookout for him yesterday afternoon.

This morning a widespread search was organized to find the missing man with the Greenville Rescue Squad, Sheriff's Department, ABC officers and Greenville police participating.

Two members of the Rescue Squad, J. Z. Garris and Roy Hardee, located Stocks shortly after 11 o'clock today. He was found in his car which was parked in a clearing about 25 yards from N.C. 43 west of Greenville near the Tyson Creek bridge.

The two rescue squadmen drove down a dirt road to the clearing to find Stocks. Deputies were summoned and Stocks was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for examination by doctors. Observers said he appeared to be all right physically, although it was reported that he did not recognize acquaintances.

Officers said Stocks had been despondent for several days.

A widespread search was organized throughout the Greenville area this morning. The country was divided into several sections and search parties assigned to each area. When Stocks was located the other searchers were notified by police radio.

AWARDING $1,000 TODAY In Scholarships, Prizes

WINTERVILLE — One thousand dollars in scholarships and prizes will be awarded today at the Second Annual Area Health Achievement program, being held at Robinson Union School.

Some 1,500 high school students from 13 eastern counties were expected to attend the program, as well as representatives from A&T College in Greensboro, State Teachers College in Elgin, City University of North Carolina and East Carolina College and other visitors.

A contest of "wits and knowledge" was to be held, with all questions being oral. Dr. Andrew Best of Greenville acted as moderator. The program began at 10 a.m. and was to end at 2 p.m.

First prize was to be a $200 scholarship plus $15 cash bonus; second prize, a $200 scholarship; one additional $200 scholarship and two $100 scholarships, as well as lesser prizes in the amount of $200. Other prizes are to be awarded and distributed among those outstanding students who didn't win the first prizes.

For the most part, participants are seniors in high school, though some juniors and sophomores were to take part. All students have been instructed for the past 25 weeks in a course on personal hygiene under the direction of Dr. Best. This is the culminating activity of that program.

4-H Clubs from Bertie, Chowan and Pitt Counties were also participating in the program. J. T. Snowden of Greenville was to give awards to the winners of the Tuberculosis Emphasis Week Contest held in March.

Dr. Best expressed thanks to the many agencies who have supported efforts in making this program a success.

Israeli Down An Egyptian Jet

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israeli jet fighters shot down an Egyptian MIG jet today over the Negev Desert, army authorities announced.

Reports said the pilot was seen parachuting from the plane, but no definite information on his fate was immediately available.

Army officials said the plane was shot down over Halutza, in the central Negev, Israel's southern desert adjoining Egypt's Sinai Peninsula.

Authorities also said that Thursday four Egyptian jet fighters penetrated Israeli air space farther south in the Negev.

Relief Caravan In Final Stages

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A dozen truckloads of food and clothing for Cuban refugees at Miami make the final stage of their mercy mission today.

Dr. N. M. Harrison, 70, former vice president of High Point, N.C. College, headed the drive to collect and deliver the food and clothing. He said other trucks will join the caravan between here and Miami and it will include 20 or 25 truckloads when it arrives tonight.

Although the President did not make a definite acceptance of the invitation, the fact that he has accepted an invitation to speak at Chapel Hill on that same date led newsmen to the conclusion that odds are heavily in favor of the President coming here to officially open North Carolina's first international trade fair.

In his statement concerning the fair, Gov. Sanford declared, "The North Carolina International trade fair is to open Oct. 12 and we are hoping President Kennedy will come to North Carolina to help us open it. That is Columbus Day and we are inviting our friends overseas to rediscover America in North Carolina."

Chicora Meets At Ross Home

Tuesday afternoon, the Chicora Book Club met at the home of Mrs. Ledyard Ross.

Upon arrival, each person was greeted at the door by the hostess and was given a surprise favor.

Mrs. Ross introduced the following guests for the afternoon: Mrs. Curtis Hendrix, Mrs. Fred Webb, Mrs. Powell Speight, Mrs. Guy Smith, Jr., Mrs. Paul Douglas, Mrs. Jim Lee, Mrs. Ray Minges, Mrs. Badger Clark, Mrs. David Evans, Mrs. Paul Reinartz, Mrs. George Wilkerson, Mrs. Joe Ward, Mrs. Bill White, Jr., Dr. Cathleen Stokes, and Mrs. Steven Bartlett.

After a snack plate and coffee were served, Mrs. Clarence Tugwell, president, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Tugwell introduced the speakers for the afternoon, Mrs. John Farley and Mrs. J.C. Whitehurst, Jr., who are members of the Club. They had chosen Religion in the Far East as their topic but elaborated on the history, practices and beliefs of Hinduism, Buddhism, and Islam; more commonly known as Mohammedism.

It was brought out that although these religions may worship smaller "gods", they have a superior "God" of Allah; each also have sacred doctrines, instead of a Bible, which they follow. All but the Hindus, who thought men were born of a high or low caste, believed that men were created equal. All three religions thought that worldly desires would cause suffering since material things tended to weaken a man's relationship with his God. It was also brought out that these religions were a force of civilization in the Far East. Mrs. Whitehurst and Mrs. Farley used maps and charts to further illustrate their talks.

After a question-and-answer session led by Dr. Cathleen Stokes and Mrs. Paul Douglas, the meeting was adjourned.

Thetis Has Dessert Bridge

Mrs. Julian Vainwright, Mrs. E. L. Clark, and Mrs. Charles Worthington entertained at the Vainwright home on Ragsdale Road Tuesday afternoon at a Road Tuesday afternoon at a dessert bridge for members and guests of the Thetis Book Club.

Upon arrival, the guests were served lemon pudding cake and coffee. The home was decorated with arrangements of flowering shrubs, narcissus, and fleur-de-lis. Each of the four tables set up for bridge and canasta was centered with bud vases, filled with roses.

Exceeding the dessert, the president of the club held a short business meeting. The nominating committee announced the 1961-62 slate of officers, to be voted upon at the next meeting. Mrs. Marshall Whitehurst reminded the members of the Fine Arts Festival Luncheon to be held Saturday, April 29.

At the end of three progressions of play, Mrs. Gordon Lynch was announced as high score in bridge, with Mrs. W. M. Howard winning second high, and Mrs. Roy Hardee low. The Canasta prize was won by Mrs. Charles Lewis.

During the games, the hostesses served lime punch and assorted nuts.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Harold Hoke, Mrs. J. R. Harrelson, Mrs. Harry Rainey, and Mrs. Milton Foley.

Members were reminded of the dutch luncheon and business meeting at the home of Mrs. J. O. Clark, May 9.

Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Bob Smith who is moving to Wilmington.

WOTM Votes Mrs. King Is Lector Hostess Scholarship

A Nursing Scholarship, of $100, for a Pitt County girl attending the new School of Nursing, was voted last night by Greenville Women of the Moose.

The regular business meeting of Chapter 1308 was also marked by decisions to:

- Pay for one underprivileged child to attend kindergarten in the city's new program;
- To send an underprivileged Girl Scout to Camp Hardee this summer;
- To contribute $25.00 to the Pitt County unit's Crusade for the American Cancer Society;
- and to send the Senior Regent of the local WOTM Chapter to the International Convention in Memphis, to be held June 23.

Plans were also made for the North Carolina Academy of Friendship meeting to be held in Greenville May 6 and 7. The Academy represents the first degree in the Women of the Moose, and the chapter will entertain eligible members from all over the state.

A dance honoring all Academy of Friendship members will be held on the night of May 6, with the Bob Jones Orchestra furnishing the music.

Mrs. Charles King was hostess to the Lector Book Club at a three-course luncheon Tuesday at her home in Brookgreen.

The dining room table was centered with an arrangement of white mums in an antique crystal basket. Auxiliary tables were placed in the living room and den.

After luncheon, members and guests were invited into the den for a short business meeting. Mrs. Kenneth Phillips, president, presided and welcomed the guests. Mrs. Hoover Taft, Mrs. Jack Horton, Mrs. Badger Johnson, Mrs. Harding Sugs, Mrs. John Drake, Mrs. Charles Bissette, Mrs. Louise Picklen, Mrs. Charles Gaskins, Mrs. Bancroft Moseley and Mrs. Burt Aycock.

Shower Honors Bride-Elect

Miss Bonnie Hardee, bride-elect, was honored with a shower given by her aunt, Mrs. Hubert Simmons, and Mrs. David Smith at the Chivalo cafeteria Friday night.

On the arrival of the bride-elect was presented a corsage by the hostesses. Spring flowers were used in a variety of arrangements throughout the building. Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Smith greeted the guests at the front door and each guest was asked later to introduce themselves. Mrs. Jesse Jones directed the games. The door prize was won by Mrs. Jake Venters.

The guests were invited into the dining room, where the table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a silver centerpiece filled with white gladiolus and white carnations. Silver candelabras with burning tapers graced the table.

Miss Judith Hardee served punch and Mrs. Harvey Harris served the bridal cakes. The guests helped themselves to salted nuts, mints, potato chips and wedding cookies. Mrs. Graham Leggett, Mrs. Billy Wynne and Mrs. Bill Leggett assisted in serving in the dining room.

After the refreshment hour Miss Hardee and Mr. Smith opened their wedding gifts and displayed them on tables. Goodbyes were said to the guests by Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Smith.

Reviews And Reflections

By JIM POINDEXTER

Greenville's big annual cultural spree is again upon us.

That is, the Community Arts Festival will open Saturday with a luncheon and will continue until May 12. The fare to be furnished will be so carried that we shall take the space here simply to mention the main events which will occur before we go to press again.

The luncheon, 12:45 Saturday, South Dining Hall, ECC, will have as its theme "What Eastern North Carolina Can Do To Raise Its Cultural Activities." A most pertinent subject, this. Its seven sub-divisions will be handled by as many authorities.

We note that Senator Robert Humber will discuss political action as a means of developing culture, and that Dr. Sylvester Green will tackle "The Economics of Culture." We mention these because they point up certain practical aspects of our problem that are frequently ignored.

On Sunday, 3:30, Wright Auditorium, there will be a musical program featuring concertos by Saint-Saens, Chopin, and Rachmaninoff, with the performers the College Orchestra and student soloists.

The dance will receive attention Monday, 8:00, Austin, when a program of classical ballet will be given by students of the Van Nortwick School, Marie Wallace, and Lorraine Graff of the College.

On Thursday, 10:00-5:00, the Seventh Annual Sidewalk Show will take place at the Art Center. Lunch will be available. If past experiences mean anything, this event will have the genuine gala atmosphere of the Left Bank.

In the Center itself there will be an exhibition entitled "Eastern North Carolina As Seen by Its Painters, Its Architects, and Its Photographers." This sounds most promising and ties in with the theme of the luncheon.

A big bouquet to the Chairman, Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Jr., her Co-Chairman, Mrs. S. H. Mitchell, the Woman's Club, the East Carolina Art Society, and the many others who have helped. And a special bunch of roses to Mrs. Marilyn Gordley for the cover design on the program, a booklet, incidentally, which everyone should study, since we have merely run through the main items which it contains for the week.

The City of Death. An outstanding event in the world of books is that Lewis Mumford, the writer on architecture and city planning, has come out with "The City in History." It has been hailed by Allen Lemko, writing in the New York Times, as a work which should last as long as books last. This is indeed high praise, assuming that books will have a long life expectancy in the future.

Mumford's purpose in this work is to show the life-giving and death-dealing effects of environment upon man, and he contrasts the swarming, crawling hives which modern cities are with the green quadrangles of medieval Oxford, and spaciousness of eighteenth century Bath, and other examples of wise building, not just in terms of architecture, but of total layout.

With urbanization lapping America up—indeed the world—Mumford feels that we must plan now for the future of ultimately be lost in Necropolis, the City of Death. (One constant feature of Mumford's style is his liking for such grandiose terms as the foregoing, which may account for the skepticism with which some sociologists regard him and for the wide appeal which he has always had for the general reader.)

El Imperialismo Yanqui. A few weeks ago, we quoted from a letter written by Mort Winstberg, who is on leave from ECC to study Jewish communities in Argentina. Here is an excerpt from his latest communication:

"The current great issue, of course, is the invasion of Cuba. In the past three days I have talked to perhaps 20 different Argentines, and I find that almost all the sentiment is with Castro. I simply can't understand this. How can these people ignore the case of Laos, which is Cuba in reverse? They seem to think that everything the Communists do is fine. They can support rebel fighting in Laos, the Communists can execute suppressions in Poland, East Germany, Hungary, etc. However, when the US chooses to support a rebel action, the rebels immediately become 'paid lackeys of Yankee imperialism.'"

Mort concludes this part of his letter by saying: "I find abhorrent societies like the Birch, which has gotten quite a play in the local press. These will only hasten the destruction of the US. Yet, unless something very radical happens soon, I don't give Western Democracy more than a generation more."

Another View. Quite a different opinion was expressed this week by Dr. Katharine Holtzclaw, former director of the Home Ec department at ECC, who has recently spent a great deal of time in Africa as well as Latin America, representing the State Department. She feels that we still have many friends and much intelligent support in both areas, and that we have no reason for being panicky about our chances in the battle for men's minds.

Tea Honors Counselors

Student counselors who acted as "Big Sisters" to freshmen women in Cotten Hall and Woman's Hall during the 1960-1961 school term were honored at a tea Tuesday afternoon, April 25, in the parlor of Cotten Hall. The tea was given by Miss Hazel Clark, freshman counselor, and Miss Alma Bizzell, dormitory counselor in Cotten Hall, in appreciation for the work done by the student counselors in the past year.

Student counselors are chosen each year from the rising sophomore class to live in freshmen dormitories and to guide the freshmen women as they adjust to college. Counselors are chosen on the basis of leadership abilities, personality, character and scholarship.

Counselors honored at the tea were: Beatrice Barrett, Pinehurst; Joan Francine Cannon, Rt. 2, Ayden; Nancy Coggins, Rocky Mount; Anne Creech, Zebulon; Peggy Daniels, Laurel Hill; Mary John Davis, Hope Mills; Anne DeVane, Clinton; Brenda Dew, Tarboro; Barbara Ellis, Faison; Martha Ellis, Sanford; Gloria Faircloth, Elm City; Glenda Ferrell, Rocky Mount; Becky Lou Forbes, Williamston; Judith Graham, Rt. 1, Efland; Aubrey Holloman, Harrellsville; Mary Jo Lancaster, Windsor; Priscilla Lynch, Roanoke Rapids; Celia May, Bailey; Sallie Mewborn, Grifton; Dawn Reeves, Roanoke Rapids; Annie Marie Riddick, Rt. 1, Hobbsville; Sigma Faye Roberts, Newport; Freddie Skinner, Ayden; Lynda Ann Simmons, Hamstead; Judith Smith, Rocky Mount; Betty Lou Sprull, Aurora; Sylvia Wallace, Bath; and Kaye Williams, Hillsboro.

CUMIN BISCUITS
1 cup self-rising flour (unsifted)
1 teaspoon cumin seeds
1/4 cup butter or margarine
6 tablespoons (about) milk
Stir the cumin seeds into the flour; cut in the butter with a pastry blender until particles are fine. Stir in the milk; all dry ingredients should be moistened but dough should be on the stiff side. Drop dough (with a spoon and spatula) into small buttered muffin-pan wells, filling about 3/4 full. Bake in a very hot (450 degrees) oven 12 to 15 minutes or until tops are browned. Serve at once. If muffin pan wells are 2-tablespoon capacity, there should be 10 to 12 biscuits.

Note: If self-rising flour is not available use 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour and sift with 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Then stir in cumin seeds.

ITALIAN-STYLE PORK CHOPS
6 pork chops (3/4-inch thick)
1/4 cup each flour and enriched yellow cornmeal
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 egg (slightly beaten)
2 tablespoons milk
Sliced Mozzarella or pizza-type cheese
1 tomato (cut in 6 slices)
1/4 teaspoon oregano
Trim excess fat from chops; roll mixture of flour, cornmeal, salt and pepper. Dip in mixture of egg and milk; roll in flour mixture again. Lightly brown chops on both sides in hot shortening. Place in 8 by 12 by 2 inch baking dish; cover with foil. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 1 hour. Uncover; place a slice of cheese (cut to fit) on top of each chop; add tomato slices; sprinkle with oregano. Broil several inches from source of heat until cheese melts—1 to 2 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

That 'Clean' Look

Now it's official that what you wear is not so important as being clean.

At the North Carolina State Inaugural Ball, the only dress rules were that non-dancing male spectators had to wear suits and ties—and "look as if they washed recently."

News And Notes From Grifton

Mrs. J. G. Chauncey entertained members of her bridge club and invited players for three tables of bridge Thursday night at her home on McRae Street.

Arrangements of azaleas and white narcissi were used in the living room where the tables were placed for the games.

At the refreshment hour the hostess served a congealed salad with sandwiches, fruit bars and hot spiced tea.

Mrs. Edward Hart scored high during the progressions and Mrs. W. E. Rasberry was second high for club members among the visitors. Mrs. Conrad Hart was highest scorer and awarded a gift. Making up the tables were Mrs.

Convention To Be Held

The Eta State Convention of Delta Kappa Gamma, National Honorary Society for Women Educators, will take place in Durham April 28, 29 and 30 at the Jack Tar Durham Hotel. The state president, Miss Margaret Flinton, Elementary Supervisor from Charlotte, will preside. More than 300 of the state's outstanding women teachers will attend the three-day session.

Registration will be Friday, April 28, and Saturday, April 29. The convention theme is "And in Today Already Walks Tomorrow."

The featured Saturday luncheon speaker will be Miss Beatrice Davis, Southeast Regional Director from New Orleans, La. Miss Davis received her education in New Orleans Public Schools, Newcomb College, and Tulane University. She has been an English and history teacher, a principal, a supervisor, and at present is a visiting teacher in New Orleans Parish School.

Miss Davis is a member of educational and civic organizations in the nation. She is a leader in the Delta Kappa Gamma Society. She has been president of her chapter and state organizations and is now regional director. Miss Davis was state chairman of the Silver Anniversary and the Special Scholarship Committees.

Banquet speaker Saturday night will be Dr. Guion Johnson (Mrs. Guy Johnson) who recently returned from a research year in Africa.

In Africa Dr. Johnson conducted a study of educational opportunities in secondary schools, colleges, and universities. She is a former Professor of History at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where for 10 years she was research associate in the Institute for Research in Social Science.

Mrs. Ellen Carroll is president of the Greenville chapter. A number of members from Greenville will attend.

Hart, Mrs. Rasberry, Mrs. Conrad Hart, Mrs. G. L. Tucker, Mrs. Sam Nelson, Mrs. Ben G. Tucker, Mrs. Milton Hart, Mrs. Roger Johnson, Mrs. Walter Patrick, Mrs. Roy L. Jackson, Mrs. Woodrow Smith and Mrs. David Parker.

Dessert Bridge
Mr. and Mrs. Don Casey were hosts Wednesday night at a dessert bridge at their home on East Queen Street to their couples club and guests.

Yellow and purple iris and tulips in bouquets decorated the home for the evening. Boston Cream Pie and coffee were served at the dessert hour.

Dr. W. E. Rasberry and Mrs. Willie Paget were recipients of the high score prizes.

Players for the evening included Dr. and Mrs. Rasberry, Mrs. Paget, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Overton Sulter, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Casey, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Sugg, and Ben Wolverton.

Mrs. Quinerly Hostess
Mrs. H. P. Quinerly had as guests for supper and bridge Thursday evening members of her card club. The home on Church Street was decorated with spring flowers. The buffet table was centered with an arrangement of mock orange. After supper, bridge was played at three tables with Mrs. Thurman Williams and Mrs. Walter Murphy high scorers for the evening. Other players were Mrs. J. S. Chanman, Mrs. J. L. Tucker, Mrs. Robert Mewborn, Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Mrs. J. W. Short, Mrs. Richard Nelson, Mrs. Alton Chapman, Misses Bert Johnson, Marie Chapman and Hazel Patrick.

Grifton Book Club
The Grifton Book Club met Tuesday night at the home of Miss Bert Johnson on Church St. Mrs. G. L. Tucker was in charge of the brief business session and the fund for the annual Book Club Scholarship was collected, which is presented each year to a high school senior for the purpose of furthering their education in a trade school.

At the program hour Miss Johnson presented Mr. Ed Casey, chairman for Civil Defense in this vicinity, who gave a talk on the importance of Civil Defense. He stated that not only do we need to be advised and on the alert for danger but the citizens need to be able to do something in case of hurricanes, floods or other disasters when rescue of different types are needed. Instructions on how to be prepared with a family fallout shelter were distributed and discussed by the group. Mr. Casey reported a test of defense system for April 28 for this area.

After the exchange of books the hostess served apple pie with ice cream and coffee. Mr. Casey, Mrs. William Edge and Mrs. Richard Nelson were guests for the evening. Members present were Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Tom Gower, Mrs. Cecil Cobb, Mrs. Alton Chapman, Mrs. H. P. Quinerly, Mrs. Robert Mewborn, Mrs. Bryan Davis, Mrs. J. L. Tucker, Mrs. Thurman Williams, and Mrs. W. I. Bissette.

P-T.A. In Session
Tuesday night in the school assembly room the Grifton High School P-T.A. met with the president, John Christens, giving the call to order and conducting the business session.

Reports were heard and an amendment of the Teacher Scholarship was read and approved; this is a $250 scholarship presented each summer to a faculty member who will study in his or her particular field. The amendment allows this to be granted to an incoming member as well as one already on the roster. Officers for the 1961-62 term were presented as follows: president, Ed Hasley; 1st vice-president, Mrs. James Hudson; 2nd vice-president, Walter Murphy; secretary, Mrs. Paul Fisher; and treasurer, Mrs. John Glenn.

Attendance awards went to Miss Johnson's fourth grade and Mr. Starkey's ninth.

Leonard P. Bloxam of Greenville was speaker for the evening and talked on municipal interests and the importance of these to the town and community in the upcoming bond issue.

Card of Thanks
The family of the late Mrs. J. C. Hamilton wish to thank their many friends for all acts of kindness shown. We thank them especially for the food, flowers and cards. May God bless all of you.

Mrs. Staples Is Club Speaker

Mrs. J.D. Higgins was hostess to the members of the Semi-Cent Book Club on Tuesday evening. She had as her guests, her mother, Mrs. Hayden from Wilmington and Mrs. George Staples.

Mrs. Norman Little, pres., presided over the business meeting. She announced the committees for the coming year and plans were made for the club's party to be held at the Washington Youth and Country Club May 27th.

Mrs. Staples gave the program on Dried Arrangements and displayed some that she had made. She stated that this was the time to collect and dry flowers, seeds and grasses and gave the formulas for drying. They are Borax, glycerin, sand and hanging.

Mrs. Carl Abec won an attractive dried arrangement for the door prize.

Mrs. Higgins served chocolate pound cake and coffee at the conclusion of the program.

THIS GARDEN WON'T WILT

No miracle chemicals, mysterious pruning tricks, or Luther Burbank techniques required for a garden that blooms brilliantly even in winter's cold. This colorful garden I'm talking about is the one you planted . . . then pictured on Kodak film.

What a natural subject for pictures! There's something about a garden still-life that's mighty hard to beat. And for your own garden, there's no camera like a Brownie Flash 20.

It focuses easily on favorite flowers with the three-setting zone system. Then, set exposure for one of the three numbers that fit film and light conditions. No risk of losing good shots—double exposure prevention's built right into the film-winder.

And the flash holder's built into the camera, too. When you cut some flowers, arrange them in a bowl and try indoor shots. We can make an enlargement so handsome that you—and your neighbors—will enjoy it for months to come.

Springtime's garden time. And garden time is 12 months long when you own a Brownie Flash 20 Camera. Price? Just $15.50. (Adv.)

Greenville, North Carolina
Dear Sir:

I would like to thank you for purchasing my steer at the Fat Stock Show of Greenville. I was very pleased with the price you paid for him.

This is some of the history of the steer you purchased. He was bought from Van Taylor of Bethel, North Carolina. He weighed 620 pounds when I bought him on August 25 at 30c per pound. I fed him 42 bushels of corn and 1,000 pounds of Omelene. I also fed him 500 pounds of beef chow and 20 pounds of livestock minerals. He gained 600 pounds during the 226 days I fed him.

I would like to thank you again for purchasing my steer, and it is a pleasure to have a business concern like the State Bank and Trust Company to help make the Fat Stock Show a success.

Sincerely yours,
Stuart Forlines

They Dare Point The Finger?

Allies Bound To Act

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The United States failed in Cuba. The camps in Miami and in Louisiana were organized for invasion. They were camps manned by Cuban refugees who hoped to save their country from Communism. They were willing to risk and sacrifice their lives for their country and they did. They expected the support of the United States. That support was inadequate and trifling. Castro had ample support provided by Soviet Russia.

The object of the expedition was to establish a beachhead upon which the rebels would set up a government headed by Jose Miro Cardona, Dr. Manuel Antonio Verona and Manuel Ray, three important Cubans of varying political complexion. Once the government was actually on Cuban soil, it could be recognized by the United States. Legitimacy would have the value of making it possible for the United States to send supplies to the government which it recognized.

This legitimacy was only important because some of the experts in the State Department felt that the United States could violate the authority of the Organization of American States (OAS). On the other hand the members of the OAS have permitted the violation of the Caracas Declaration, signed on March 28, 1954 and which provided:

"The American republics at the Ninth International Conference of American States declared that international Communism, by its anti-democratic tendency and its interventionist nature, is incompatible with the concept of American freedom, and resolved to adopt within their respective territories the measures necessary to eradicate and prevent subversive activities."

The Fourth Meeting of Consultation of Ministers of Foreign Affairs recognized that in addition to adequate internal measures in each state, a high degree of international cooperation is required to eradicate the danger which the subversive activities of international Communism pose for the American States; and

"The aggressive character of the international Communist movement continues to constitute a threat to the peace and security of the American States, and to the right of each state to develop its cultural, political, and economic life freely and naturally without intervention by other states. . . ."

Further, this Declaration of Solidarity for the Preservation of the Political Integrity of the American States stipulates:

"That the domination or control of the political institutions of any American State by the international Communist movement, extending to this Hemisphere, is a threat to the sovereignty and political independence of the American States, endangering the peace of America, and would call for a Meeting of Consultation to consider the adoption of appropriate action in accordance with existing treaties."

Thus, it is clear beyond peradventure that the member states of the OAS are required to join the United States in opposing the establishment of a Communist satellite anywhere in the American Hemisphere.

The Charter of the OAS arranged at Bogota in 1948, sets forth the purposes of the Organization as follows:

- "A) To strengthen the peace and security of the continent;
- B) To prevent possible causes of difficulties and to ensure the peaceful settlement of disputes that may arise among the Member States;
- C) To provide for common action on the part of these States in the event of aggression;
- D) To seek the solution of political, juridical and economic problems that may arise among them; and
- E) To promote, by cooperative action, their economic, social and cultural development."

Obviously, there is ample evidence to establish that Castro's (Continued on page five)

Demonstration Of Pride In ECC

Pitt County's salute to East Carolina College which was culminated by an address Wednesday evening by Gov. Terry Sanford, was an excellent tribute by the people of this county to the institution which has meant so much to this area.

As spokesmen for the sponsoring organizations pointed out, the salute to East Carolina could only represent a token of the affection and appreciation the people of Pitt County hold for the institution. Even so, the tribute indicated not only to the college, its faculty, staff and students, but to the state as a whole the fact that Pitt County is extremely proud to be the home of East Carolina College. It demonstrated in overt terms the fact that the college is linked closely with the people of the country and that the people are not unaware of what the college means from the standpoint of economic, social, cultural and civic advantages of the community.

From its small beginning, East Carolina College has become important to the state as a whole as well as to Pitt County.

As Gov. Sanford so vividly pointed out, "How can we measure the enrichment of North Carolina's culture—its art, literature, music—which was made possible through the training of young men and women here? Suffice it to say that North Carolina would have been less than it is tonight but for East Carolina College. Certainly the potential we intend to achieve in

Very Aware Of GOP Presence

By AURORA DOLLEY
GOP INFLUENCE — The 1961 General Assembly is experiencing a record number of Republican members, a total of 17. Two of this number are in the Senate and the remaining fifteen are seated in the House of Representatives. Though this proportion may seem less than competitive, considering that there are 120 representatives and 50 senators in all, the GOP members in this legislature present a group demanding recognition. When the chips are down—and experienced legislators face this reality—a bloc of votes is twice as deadly if used in opposition.

By the 66th legislative day, a total of exactly 800 bills has been introduced in the legislature. Sixty-three of these have had a Republican legislator for a sponsor. (In case of multiple listings on bills and resolutions, only the first name has been considered here.)

The GOP members of the General Assembly are holding their own fairly well in this department, introduction of bills. Their proposed legislation averages almost four measures per Republican.

Democrats sponsored legislation averages approximately 4.8 measures per lawmaker, though the Democrats undoubtedly have quite an edge on the minority party in average number of years of legislative experience.

STONE WALL — Though Republicans can introduce bills of their own personal or party preference, seeing those pieces of legislation safely through to being ratified is quite another matter, as many GOP lawmakers will frankly state. In each and every committee, as well as in the halls of the House and Senate, Republicans represent an often helpless minority.

At this point in the session, less than 18 per cent of the Republicans bills have been passed into law. Their Democrat colleagues have been more than twice as successful in this department, with nearly 39 per cent of the Democrat-sponsored bills being ratified.

Twelve other GOP measures have passed the half-way mark, however, and are awaiting committee or floor action in the final legislative branch. One bill, of a public rather than local nature, had passed the House, where it originated, but was amended by a Senate committee before receiving Senate action. It must now get House approval on its amended state.

Eastern North Carolina would not be possible, as we look to the future, as we look to the new day, but for this institution."

The county-wide salute to the college is one which we hope will set a precedent for others to follow in the future. The Jaycees, the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants Association, Moose Lodge and other organizations which had a part in planning and carrying out the salute to East Carolina College are to be commended for their undertaking.

A Ceasefire In Laos No Victory For U.S.

Americans were warned, months ago, there would be more bad news before things began getting better.

The meaning of that warning has been sinking in of late; and realization of a setback in distant Laos is with us today.

Despite Administration hopes for a "neutral" Laos, there is really little ground to hope such a status can be attained. It is far more probable the land will remain divided into two segments: one communist, the other leaning Westward in a haphazard way.

For if a ceasefire is accomplished, as now seems at least possible, it is inconceivable the communist rebels would relinquish control of the nearly half of Laos they now hold. It would be more in keeping for them to consolidate their position and prepare for taking over of the royalist segment at a later date. This in turn would provide them a stepping-stone for further conquest.

The courses of action left open to American policy-makers are filled with obstacles and dark omens for the future.

While Russia apparently put off replying to notes calling for a ceasefire and negotiation in order to allow further communist successes in Laos, it would now appear a ceasefire is less to be desired from our own standpoint.

As long as the military phase of Laos' struggle is in progress, there remains at least an opportunity to recoup.

Admittedly, this is a coldblooded appraisal; but the time seems to have come for restraining gentlemanly instincts when fighting back-alley thugs.

News Assuredly Will Get Worse

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—American newspaper editors were prepared this week for what President Kennedy warned about in his State of the Union message last January: The news will be worse before it is better.

For two days in the big auditorium of the State Department Kennedy and some of his top men briefed editors from all over the country on the problems the United States faces abroad in dealing with communism.

Under the rules laid down nothing they said can be directly attributed to any of them. But if what they said could be boiled down to one sentence this would be it: This country is in for some tough days. There may be wins; but there may also be losses.

The administration is taking seriously Premier Khrushchev's seriously Premier Khrushchev's before Kennedy referred to perilous days ahead—to expect a series of revolutions like the one in Cuba.

At that time Khrushchev said there are three kinds of war: 1. The thermonuclear kind, which the world has escaped so far and which Khrushchev said he wants to avoid.

2. The brush-fire kind—like the Indo-China fighting of 1953-54 and the British-French invasion of Suez in 1956. The Soviet leader said he wants to avoid this kind, too. It could lead to thermonuclear war.

3. The third class war or national war of liberation, such as Fidel Castro fought in Cuba and the one being waged against the Algerians against the French. Khrushchev said world communism fully supports this kind.

The administration considers it tough enough to protect a country from external attack but protecting it from the internal, or revolutionary assault, is a truly formidable task.

But the administration—as if trying to cope with Castro and save Laos and South Viet Nam from a Communist take-over were not enough—may get hit by Khrushchev with a new crisis over Berlin in a few months.

And in the background, more containing perhaps even more explosive danger, is Red China. Right now it's trying to get on its feet. In a few years, if it develops the atomic bomb, it may start moving.

One high official talked of the Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
LIFE AT ITS BEST

The English word "thrill" is derived from an Icelandic word meaning "serf." When a man in ancient times became a slave, either through capture in war or through accumulation of debt, his owner stood him against the door - post of his house and punctured the cartilage of his ear. This was called "thrilling the ear." The man after that was "a thrill," from which we get English word "thrill."

All of which constitutes a helpful little parable. A thrill is generally looked upon as something quite desirable. We speak about thrilling experiences, and Red Chinese this way: 1. The Chinese always have been expansionist. So their claim to Tibet, for instance, is nothing new.

2. But they lack some very important natural resources, like, oil and are horribly short of land.

When they feel strong enough they can turn in three directions: 1. Tell the Russians to move over in Asia to make room for them.

2. Follow a more peaceful path and seek food and other things by trade.

3. Or just try to take what they want—such as natural resources and land—by moving into Southeast Asia.

What this official didn't allow for is the possibility that in a few years—by the technique of the third class kind of war mentioned by Khrushchev—communism may have gobbled up much of Southeast Asia before China has the bomb at all.

If you think all this sounds gloomy, the editors were told the administration does not accept the idea that the decline of the West is inevitable.

But an official said: It's possible that in five years the United States will have lost much of its influence in the world.

This kind of talk a dozen years ago—when this country had a monopoly on the hydrogen bomb and before communism began its big drive under Khrushchev—would have been unthinkable by a government official.

It's a good indication of how powerful communism has become and what misgivings the American government views it.

Quote . . .

"It is a strange paradox that the American people are intensely interested in their health, yet they spend more money on smoking and drinking ($16.6 billion) than on drugs, hospitals and physicians combined" ($15.4 billion)—according to the U.S. Department of Commerce. In addition, they complain about the cost of medical care but are willing, if not anxious, to spend comparable amounts on their socially pleasant poisons—tobacco and alcohol." — Illinois Medical Journal.

Recalling Rogers' Visit

Leon Roebuck, Sr., of Washington, N. C. was a visitor here Wednesday night to hear Gov. Terry Sanford speak at East Carolina College.

He recalled a time many years ago when Will Rogers visited Greenville and made a talk in a tobacco warehouse.

Roebuck remembered that Rogers opened his address by pointing out that he had loured Greenville with Ed Flanagan that afternoon.

"By the way," the great humorist continued, "I've ridden in big cities and little cities, autos and hacks, but I learned

Other Editors Saying Quality Education

(Lenoir News-Topic)
Dr. Leo Jenkins, President of East Carolina College, states that the much discussed goal of quality education for the youth of North Carolina "cannot be achieved unless college facilities are kept staffed with excellent teachers."

After reviewing out-of-state recruiting forays and the loss of his own faculty members to other states, Dr. Jenkins pointed out that both colleges and public schools in the State are losing their key teachers to other areas.

Dr. Williams Flemmons of Appalachian State Teachers College at Boone has said the same thing time and time again.

Contrary to popular thought in some circles, Tar Heel college graduates do not seek the positions in other States. Other States come to N.C. seeking teachers for their colleges and public schools.

As evidence of this we recall visiting the administration building at Appalachian recently and while looking over the large bulletin board we found dozens and dozens of letters from out of state schools begging for teachers and painting for them pictures of financial return that this State cannot touch.

The biggest mistake that the any increases for faculty salaries. Dr. Jenkins concluded, "but never have we asked for appropriations any more important for our State. We are asking for money to keep us on our campuses a creative personality, an art, an influence for our youth, the kinds of men who build the lasting impressions of education when the routine has faded. All North Carolinians have a stake in this appeal; if we succeed, all will benefit from the rewards; if we fail, all must share in the consequences."

more jobs.

If tax remission makes jobs, the obvious corollary is that the present high rate of taxation of corporations (up to 52 per cent of profits) is lowering employment.

No corporation will hesitate to make an investment in plant and equipment if that investment will pay off under present tax schedules. If a new $1,000,000 facility will produce $100,000 in profits after interest amortization a year, no corporation will hold off, even if the government takes $52,000 of that $100,000.

However, if the yield is in lesser ratio, or if the returns are doubtful, management may hesitate. Why $1,000,000 when the government takes a fat half if there is a profit, but the company loses if there is a loss. (Capital losses are deductible only in offsetting capital gains.) The Kennedy proposal, incidentally, is so complicated that, if it doesn't make jobs for constructors and machinists, at least it will make jobs for aca new traffic law here today. The only traffic law you have in Greenville is when you see an open spot jump for it."

That visit was many years ago and I'm sure it was an accurate observation. What's more things haven't changed much.

Roebuck is an admitted admirer of Rogers whose home-spun cowboy quotes are still around the nation. Roebuck recalled that the warehouse where Rogers spoke was extremely hot that afternoon. It was packed with people who came from all over North Carolina to hear the famous man.

Rogers died in an airplane crash in 1935. He was a passenger in a plane piloted by Wiley Post. The aircraft crashed in a fog near Point Barrow, Alaska and Rogers died at 56 years old.

Sen. Robert Lee Humber got in his licks as he introduced Gov. Sanford at the Pitt County Salute to East Carolina College banquet Wednesday night.

"It's taken us a long time to fire this first salute," he told the audience, "but now it's fired. I'm not sure it is a shot to be heard 'round the world."

However, he commented slyly that he would be happy if it were heard as far as Raleigh and heard by the ears of members of the Appropriations Committee.

The governor smiled.

At the same banquet Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, college president, had a few words to say. He recalled that "the first time this institution fielded an athletic team the merchants in town contributed the uniforms."

Referring to the cooperation between the town and college he asserted, "It's been that close."

"The next time someone pips off about Americans being 'selfish, money-crazy capitalists,' remember: In 1960 their capital contributions to philanthropic activities were $43.96."—Elgin (Ill.) Courier News.

"Three salient features have contributed to making the democratic process work in America: first, our faith in it as a way of government; second, our acceptance of the precept that ours is a government of law; and third, our willingness to abide by decisions."—Zion (Ill.) Zion-Benton News.

"Parents spend the first part of a child's life urging him to walk and talk, and the rest of his childhood getting him to sit down and be quiet."—Rockford (Ill.) Register-Republic.

Taxes Do Cause Unemployment

By ELMER ROESSNER
The Kennedy tax proposals constitute a governmental confession that present levies are a cause for unemployment.

The major proposal is for a $1.7 billion tax remission for businesses that make new investments in plants and equipment.

There is little urgent need for new plants and equipment at the moment, such as there was in 1942. In many industries today there is an excess of plants and equipment, so far under capacity, that the industry no longer makes figures public.

The only current shortages may be in plants and equipment to produce hardware to overtake the Russians in the space age, and government contracts in these fields usually provide for plant and equipment expansion and development.

CREATING JOBS
The real purpose of the tax remission, Administration spokesmen agree is to create

countants and tax analysts. COOPERATIVE TAXATION
On the whole, business would prefer tax relief in the form of accelerated depreciation allowances, but will probably accept the Kennedy proposal as the best available.

However, there is much to be said for accelerated depreciation. At present, a corporation spending $1,000,000 for a new facility may deduct, as depreciation, a certain amount each year. There are several formulas, all complicated, but if the cost should be depreciated in the straight-line method over 20 years, the corporation would deduct $50,000 a year as depreciation. That would mean a tax deduction in the neighborhood of $25,000 a year.

Under accelerated depreciation allowances, the corporation would be allowed to charge off depreciation in 10 or 5 years. If five, the company would get a $200,000 deduction each year for five years.

In any case, the corporation would eventually be able to deduct its cost; the government would lose taxes on $1 million in income over 5, 10 or 20 years. Actually, the government would gain, because the new facility would generate added taxable income.

In deducting costs over a short period, the company would save financing costs, since it would regain its investment sooner. In effect accelerated depreciation would be the equivalent of an interest-free loan by the government. Take my word for that; it would take several columns to explain it.

JAPAN TO LIMIT BASEBALL GLOVE EXPORTS
The Japanese Ministry of International Trade has asked Japanese manufacturers of baseball gloves to limit exports to the United States. Reason: The Japanese government fears that if exports are not limited, the U. S. will do so by Tariff Commission action.

HOW THE PURPOSE OF GOD FOR JOB IS FINALLY ACHIEVED

Scripture—Job 42.

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL. "WE ARE now at the end of the book of Job. As you will recall, the book began by God giving Satan permission to try Job with the tormenting experiences of physical suffering, and the condemnation of his friends. But behind all this, God has a purpose for Job. Satan's purpose was to get Job to curse God, and in this he failed. God's purpose is now revealed and successfully brought to an end through these varied experiences."

"So the Lord blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning."—Job 42:12.

"Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might, let not the rich man glory in his riches; but let him glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth Me, that I am the Lord."—Jeremiah 9:23-24.

Sokolsky Col (Continued from page four) Cuba has violated every article of these agreements. The United States is absolved from any responsibility to associate itself with the OAS unless the OAS undertakes to punish Castro's Cuba. Those who seek a legitimate reason for the United States moving into Cuba alone, can find it in the Bogota Declaration. If the other members of the OAS are afraid to punish Castro's Cuba, the United States will have to go it alone. After all, even if they agreed to join in any primitive expedition, it would be the United States that would have to go it alone, for precisely how much help can be expected of the Argentine or Brazil or Mexico? Certainly, time is wasting — as the expression has it. Do we have to stand still until Soviet Russia has established a missile and a submarine base in Cuba?

Sokolsky Col

Palmer conceded that strikes and slowdowns at the base "must have had some adverse effect" on the missile program. But he insisted that the strikers were patriotic Americans "just as interested as anyone else" in seeing the United States beat the Soviet Union in the race for mastery in the missile and space flight fields. Palmer said he has sought to induce the government and the Air Force to reduce overtime. He denied the 12-hour work shifts and six-day weeks that ran electricians' wages up to $764 a week were their desire. Under McClellan's prodding, Palmer said he was willing to negotiate a new contract calling for eight-hour shifts around the clock to take care of rush programs, provided the men are reimbursed for their travel between home and work. He said there was little housing near the base. Palmer sidestepped questions on whether his union's refusal to allow installation of complex prefabricated electrical connections in Titan or other missiles was "a waste of taxpayers' money." But he said he was opposed to waste in the program.

REV. J. T. FISHER will be the Evangelist at Grace Free Will Baptist Church Monday through Sunday (May 1-7). Services will be held at 7:45 p.m. A native of Pitt County, Paramore is now a full-time Evangelist crossing several state lines in his work.

Charge Union's Rules Hike Cost Of U.S. Missile

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators charged today that arbitrary rules of an electricians union threaten to add $3 million to the cost of the Titan missile program.

Defense plans call for 12 squadrons of the intercontinental missiles. Jerome S. Adlerman, counsel to the Senate Investigations subcommittee, claimed evidence that unionized electricians' refusal to permit the use of prefabricated electrical cable connections in the missile would add "a quarter of a million dollars per squadron to the cost, or a total of around $3 million."

The subcommittee chairman, John L. McClellan, D-Ark., demanding new federal laws to curb the rash of strikes and other labor troubles plaguing missile bases, called more witnesses for questioning on this and other matters. "Where is America's patriotism?" he exploded Thursday after hearing testimony of strikes allegedly called to throw projects behind schedule and force payment of overtime wages to laborers at Cape Canaveral, Fla., in a drive to meet project dates.

Robert Palmer, pictured as the top labor official at the base, denied heatedly that any strikes have been called there to force the payment of overtime. He is business manager of Local 756 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. Witnesses have said other unions follow his lead on strike and work slowdown matters.

Palmer conceded that strikes and slowdowns at the base "must have had some adverse effect" on the missile program. But he insisted that the strikers were patriotic Americans "just as interested as anyone else" in seeing the United States beat the Soviet Union in the race for mastery in the missile and space flight fields.

TV Moving Outdoors For Summer Season

NEW YORK (AP)—Television, like its viewers, is beginning to move outdoors for the summer season.

In addition to baseball, there are a couple of sports specials now turning up weekly for the spectators. There are other items of general viewing interest during the next few days, too, but the supply is thinning.

Tonight, for instance, there's NBC's "Young at Heart" musical special (10-11 Eastern Standard Time) with Jane Powell, Art Carney and Gwen Verdon.

ABC premieres its new "World of Sports" series Saturday afternoon (5-6) with pictures and commentary on both the Penn and the Drake relays.

Sunday's highlights emphasize the space age: CBS' "Twentieth Century" (6:30-7 p.m.) is a review of civilian defense in the age of missiles. NBC has a news special, "The Astronauts," which includes interviews with the three candidates waiting for America's first manned missile launching.

NBC's Barbara Stanwyck Show Monday night (10-10:30) is a timely drama: "Yanqui, Go Home," about an American trapped in a Latin-American revolution. Tuesday night's CBS "Thriller," (9-10) concerns a scholarly book dealer who uses his knowledge of literature to learn his wife is unfaithful.

Glenda Farrell and Tom Tully, once a cop in "The Line Up," star in Wednesday's Steel Hour on CBS (10-11 p.m.), in a drama called "Summer Rhapsody."

CBS's "Summer Sports Spectacular" Thursday (7:30-8:30 p.m.) traces the history of the new Los Angeles baseball team. And ABC's "Silents, Please," (10:30-11) is a condensation of D. W. Griffith's classic "America."

HAD 24 QUAKES

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Twenty-four minor earthquakes shook the village of Acapulco in a period of four hours Wednesday, causing damage to about 100 small homes. The quakes caused panic among some residents, and about 70 families fled to Mexico City, 15 miles away.

In Turkey, seven out of every 10 people work on the land.

Not Trustful Of His Jail Trustees

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Sheriff Dale Carson has asked the Duval County Civil Service Board to endorse his request for clerks at the county jail.

"At present, the work is being done by trustys," Carson said Thursday. "We call them trustys. Actually 'riskys' would be a better word for them. You can't trust some of them very far."

All plants, including the onion, make sugar in some form. How- ever, only in cane and beets does sugar occur in large enough quantities to make refining worth while.

Executed, Still Denying Guilt

COLUMBIA (AP)—Quincy Bullock, 48-year-old Dillon Negro, died in South Carolina's electric chair this morning. His last words proclaimed he was innocent in the slaying of a white woman in 1958. "What they got me charged with, I'm not guilty, you know," Bullock said in a barely audible voice as he was strapped in the chair.

"I prayed hard; I've got my soul right with the Lord," he said. Bullock was pronounced dead at 7:10 a.m., three minutes after the switch was pulled.

Among the witnesses at the execution was Jimmy Horne, a companion of Mrs. Carolyn Barfield Walshock on the night she was slain. Horne and Mrs. Walshock were in a car parked near a Dillon cemetery when a gunman fired shots into the car.

Horne fled the scene and summoned police. Mrs. Walshock's body was found the next day.

As Bullock was seated in the electric chair, Horne said: "Hey Quincy, look at me. Quincy, you're going straight to hell, you know that?"

YOUR CANDIDATE FOR CITY COUNCIL

Dear Friends,

The question upon the lips of the voting public of Greenville today concerns Urban Redevelopment and Public Housing. And well it should, for we shall approach the polls May 2 to decide the life or death of one or both of them.

As a candidate for the City Council election, also May 2, I have found opinion on these issues to be the criteria by which many people are making their choice for their representative government for the next two years. At this point, let us not lose sight of the fact that we will have need of a competent City Council, to conduct routine city government and make decisions which will affect us both collectively and individually in the future.

The fact that the present City Council referred these important decisions back to the voters of our city is evidence that no council, present or future, regardless of personal convictions, will decide the fate of these programs. You, yourself, will decide when you cast your vote May 2. Your vote is just as decisive as mine, or any other candidate.

Should I be elected to the council, I would be morally bound to vote as the voice of the people directed me. Charles Dickens said it, "A man ain't got no right to be a public man unless he meets the public views."

Sincerely,
B. Brooks Beddingfield

CHAPTER 18

Nils Christensen looked back at the starship, which reared up like a tower in the plain between the black scar and the first ragged flanks of ruin.

"It looks terribly exposed, doesn't it?" he said. "Out there in the open."

DeWitt grinned briefly. "Still trying to frighten me with thirty-thousand-year-old bogeymen. Well, there's been no sign of them and I don't think there will be. Time wins every war, Chris. But I'll tell you something, I'd be glad to know they did still exist, and I'd be glad to meet them. The Vanrym had a technology that in some ways makes our look childish, and yet the enemy beat them, crushed them, swept them clean out of space. Think what their technology must have been! Think of the things they could teach us."

"Yes," said Christensen. He looked back once more at the ship, and was silent.

"Look for inscriptions, Fairlie," DeWitt said. "Anything, even one word."

They walked slowly among the ruins in the yellow sunlight, under the copper sky.

The Gassendi base, which had presumably been destroyed much earlier than this place on the home-world, had remained intact, even to pieces of cloth and paper, but that was on the sterile Moon where nothing ever changes. Here there were wind and rain, oxidation, bacteria, the ceaseless working of decay. The time-gnawed stones retained no semblance of their former shape or usefulness. Rusty red smears among the grass-roots appeared once to have been metal. That was all. Storm and flood, wind-drifted dust and natural erosion had filled the pits and hollows and brought the high places crumbling down until it was all one level nothingness.

"You won't find any inscriptions here," Fairlie said. "Probably not anywhere, but certainly not on the surface."

DeWitt stood with his shoulders hunched and his jaw set. "We'll dig," he said. "Aerial photography may give us an idea where the center of the city was, the government buildings where the important records were kept. Maybe the vaults would have held all right, especially if they were sunk in rock. We'll dig."

"You'd better be lucky," Fairlie said. "A job like that could take you more years than any of us have left."

DeWitt glowered at him and turned back.

Christensen had been sitting on a stone. He looked exhausted and his breathing was labored.

"You shouldn't have come," said Fairlie.

Christensen smiled and shook his head. "As long as I'm leader I have to come." He gave his hand to Fairlie to be helped up, and Fairlie was shocked at the bony weakness of it.

"Does it strike you as odd," Christensen said, "that the city itself was apparently not touched by enemy action? I've been sitting here and thinking. What we assume to have been the starport was simply erased out of existence, but it's as though the city simply crumbled away because there was no longer any use for it. Do you suppose the enemy had some humanitarian impulses?"

"It's possible. Of course we don't know how much of the population had already perished. But still, from the way Kabler spoke, he didn't seem to expect total annihilation, just the end of all star-voyaging."

They walked back toward the ship, slowly because of Christensen. Fairlie watched DeWitt stride ahead with Thomason, the two broad blocky heads close together, the two sets of square implecable shoulders moving as they planned to rip the windings-sheet from the bones of the city.

"It's no use to tell them," Fairlie said, "but I think they're likely to have their work for their plans. The chances are very small that the survivors of the destruction would have stayed here. I think they would have moved their capital to another place. Total defeat and a complete reshaping of their culture would have been hard enough to cope with, without clinging to a corpse—if you know what I mean."

Christensen said, "Let him waste all the time he wants to. There's a limit on how long we can stay, a limit on fuel supplies for the machines. The less time he has the less trouble he can make."

Fairlie looked all around at the empty plain, the rim of hills with patches of forest on their flanks, the winding of a placid river, the empty sky.

"Do you still think there are people here?"

"Let's say I'm not at all sure

there aren't."

"They certainly haven't been in any rush to get in touch with us," "Maybe," said Christensen, "they don't want to."

DeWitt had been digging for three days and two nights and this was the beginning of the third night. Fairlie sat on a stone and watched sourly. He was tired and the wind was cold, and he was sick of DeWitt and his driving purpose. He was sick of Thomason too. He was rapidly getting sick of Ryn. The whole business was bogging down in stupid anti-climax.

Working with the light scoops attached to the half-tracks, DeWitt and Thomason and their crew had made a sizable hole in the ground. They had picked their spot from the air, where the configuration of the ground seemed to indicate the foundation lines of a complex of unusually large buildings. Now parts of the foundations had been laid bare. They were in very bad shape, but the miracle was that they had survived at all, in any form.

Thomason said the material was some sort of plastic-like cement with the water-resistant properties of glass, so that deterioration had been incredibly slow. The Vanrym had built for the ages. But his age had been too long, even for them.

Floodlights blazed, casting harsh shadows among the ruins. Heaps of dirt lay about, filled with unidentifiable rubble, bits of stone. The scoops gnawed carefully away at more of the same in the excavation. So far there was no sign of anything.

DeWitt was by no means ready to give up.

"We'll just move and dig somewhere else. Sooner or later we'll turn up something. There's got to be something left."

"Why?" asked Fairlie. "Because you say so?" He got up. "Call me if you find a large inscription. I'm going back to the ship."

Christensen was sleeping when he got back to the ship. Every body else, it seemed, was either sleeping or engrossed in work. Fairlie ate and then lay down on his own couch, far too restless and disturbed, he thought, to sleep, but he was physically weary from hours of hanging about the damned silly excavation and he wanted to rest.

He did not know that he had slept until he felt a shaking and roused up started to see the face of the young flight-technician named Smith bent over him.

"Doctor Fairlie, DeWitt's on the walkie-talkie. He wants you right away."

Fairlie tried to force the cobwebs out of his brain. "Has he found something?" He swung his feet to the floor.

Smith's eyes were bright and his voice had a quality of high excitement.

"I don't know, but the way he spoke—I think something's found him."

Congo Education Problems Are Big

Editor's Note—A prime need of the Congo is education, but there are enormous difficulties, both on the higher and secondary level. They are explained in this last of a series on the Congo's big problems by John A. Kennedy, publisher and editor-in-chief of the Sloux Falls Argus-Leader, and Mrs. Kennedy. They just completed a tour of the troubled nation.

By JOHN A. KENNEDY
LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—There were only 19 native Congolese college graduates in the whole of the Congo at the time it received independence last July.

In that fact, according to Dr. M. Dartique, senior educational consultant to the United Nations, lies the explanation for most of the Congo's troubles today.

He had traveled through the six provinces of the country on his special duties as a UNESCO representative several times before. On those trips he questioned the Belgians as to why they didn't send Congolese secondary school graduates to Brussels or other centers for university training.

The answers invariably were, he said, that students who were sent from other African colonies to England, France, or the United States to study came back as "partially educated radicals."

Mrs. Kennedy and I got about the same answers in our tour of the Congo, talking with its experts, inspecting its schools and colleges two years ago to have profited by the mistakes of other nations who sent students from the colonies to study abroad, where they were exposed to political ideas they were not sufficiently educated to be able to criticize.

Educationally, they told us, they thought it wrong to teach the Africans to run before they could walk.

The Belgians started to create a university at Louvainum that would be a credit to any nation. They modeled after the centuries-old institution of the same name in the mother country.

More than $15 million was poured into its modern, beautiful, efficient plant and laboratories.

It opened in 1954 with 33 students described by Monsignor L. Gillin, its president, as an "audacious move," considering the difficulty in recruiting students.

When he visited the Congo first in 1959, they had 450 students in its various colleges, two thirds of whom were Belgians. When we visited this time, all but 10 were Africans. There is a college of medicine, agronomy, engineering, and a school of law is being started. Louvainum's hospital is as modern as any in the United States.

Correction Made On Newer Stone

BALTIMORE (AP)—One of the oldest chiseled errors in Baltimore is preserved in a 146-year-old stone tablet in the yard of the Otterbein Church of the United Brethren in Christ.

In German, the stone records June 4, 1726, as the birth date of Bishop Wilhelm Otterbein, the founder. Bishop Otterbein actually was born June 3, 1726.

The date came from an ordination certificate unaccountably wrong. The error is corrected, in English, on a newer stone memorial installed in the yard in 1913.

Accord Reached On Court Reform

RALEIGH (AP)—The way has been eased for passage of a court revision bill following settlement Thursday night of differences on the legislation.

A Senate Courts Committee was to be called into session today to amend a House-passed compromise bill to revamp North Carolina's court system.

Sen. Lindsay Warren of Beaufort, who led a force in the Senate opposed to the House bill, agreed to accept the House measure if a change was made that administrative control of the court system would be placed in the hands of a special court administrative officer. The House bill would have given administrative control to the Supreme Court.

The change was agreed to by Sen. J. Spencer Bell of Mecklenburg and Rep. H. P. Taylor Jr. of Anson, who represented backers of the House bill.

Both sides issued formal statements in which they said agreement had been reached to amend the House bill which had passed by a 85-28 vote.

The House bill was based on recommendations of the State Bar Association but had been modified to meet objections raised by the Warren group.

Turks, Russians To Link Railroad

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Turkey and the Soviet Union signed an agreement Thursday to link their railroad systems at Sarikamis on Turkey's northeastern border. The accord in effect adapts to current needs an agreement signed in 1922 and never activated.

The new agreement provides for the construction of a standard international gauge railroad from Sarikamis to the Soviet rail station near the Turkish border, as railroad for the new linkup until a new transit center is built on Turkish soil.

Ministry Permits Him To Work With, For People

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The opportunity of working with people and helping them with their problems, according to Rev. Percy B. Upchurch, is what caused him to turn to the ministry.

Rev. Upchurch, a native of Apex, in Wake County, attended Wake Forest College, where he graduated in 1929 with a major in Bible and Religion. He then attended Brown University in Providence, R. I., then went to Yale Divinity School where he received his Doctor of Divinity degree in 1933. He attended the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem, Palestine where he did archaeological research work on a fellowship from Yale.

In addition to the archaeological studies, visits were made to various places in the area. He noted that one of these "visits" included a hike around the Sea of Galilee.

One of the major parts of the archaeological studies, Rev. Upchurch said, included making archaeological maps, putting in sites of ruins of abandoned cities.

Rev. Upchurch, who was ordained in 1934, returned to do graduate work at Duke and Yale. He noted that while at Yale, he made his final decision to enter the ministry.

He explained that prior to this time, he had intended to teach the Bible, but changed his mind in favor of church work because of his love for working with people.

His first pastorate was in Nashville where he remained for two years, leaving in 1937 to become pastor of the First Baptist Church in Monroe.

In 1943 the minister entered the Navy as a Chaplain and was assigned to duty at the Naval Air Station, Boston; the Naval Base at Newport, R. I., and duty aboard the attack transport "Gulford" in the Pacific Theater of Operations.

As a Navy Chaplain, Upchurch visited Japan two weeks after the Japanese surrender. The transport carried Sea Bees to the "home islands" to construct barracks for Marine Corps occupation troops.

Rev. Upchurch resigned his commission as a Navy lieutenant after going to Mullins, South Carolina in 1946, as pastor of the First Baptist Church there. He remained in Mullins until coming to Greenville and the Memorial Baptist Church here in September of 1954.

The minister, noting his work includes preaching, pastoral duties such as visiting members, and administration duties, noted he receives most satisfaction from gaining the confidence of the people... helping them... and promoting the total work of the church so as to meet the needs of the church and the total community.

He expressed the thought that a minister should "broaden himself to the total community". He emphasized that his greatest joy comes from "working with people who have problems and maybe sometimes helping" them resolve them.

Saying that one of the main reasons for coming to Greenville was the fact that he is a native "Tar Heel" and wanted to return to the state, Rev. Upchurch said there is a good opportunity here for church leadership and work with college people.

Noting that ministers deal in intangible matters and may never know when they influence people, he said ministers in Greenville have a great opportunity with their responsibilities in ministering on radio, television and at the college.

A member of the Lions Club and a past president of the Ministerial Association here, the pastor is member of the N. C. Baptist State Convention's General Board.

In the past, he has been president of the South Roanoke Baptist Ministers Association, a trustee of the Connie Mack Childrens Home in South Carolina, a member of the General Board of the State Convention in South Carolina, and a trustee of Wingate Junior College and Wake Forest College.

His hobbies, which include watching all sports, are centered around hunting and fishing.

Noting he preaches to a half-dozen ordained ministers, who are members of the congregation each Sunday, Rev. Upchurch added that one of his main interests in promoting cooperation between the churches and the community... for the interest and betterment of all.

The pastor married the former Mildred Stewart of Henderson in 1935 and they have two children: Sara, a graduate of the U.N.C. Pharmacy School and Joe, a student at State College.

Cuba Is Charging Assault Planned

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Cuba today accused the United States of planning to hurl a military attack at her at any moment, but said she is willing to discuss mutual problems with the United States through regular diplomatic channels.

The Cuban radio in a broadcast monitored at Key West said President Osvaldo Dorticos read the accusation and the peace overture, signed by himself and the Prime Minister Fidel Castro, to Latin-American diplomats whom Dorticos called to the presidential palace.

Dorticos asked the diplomats to relay his words to their respective governments.

He said the United States is making final plans to attack Cuba at any moment with military force in an attempt to overthrow the Castro regime.

If this happens, Dorticos said, Cuba's people will resist to the last drop of blood.

But, said Dorticos in the statement, the Cuban government is in a position to initiate conversations with the United States through diplomatic channels, with a view toward peaceful solutions of problems.

After those, he said, it might be possible to resume diplomatic relations.

New Local Exhibit Shows N.C. As Seen By Its Artists

"Eastern North Carolina As Seen by Its Painters, Architects, Photographers," many of them well known, is the theme of a new show at the Greenville Art Center opening Saturday in co-operation with the Fine Arts Festival.

Francis Speight, foremost North Carolina artist who recently joined the art faculty at East Carolina College, will be among the painters exhibiting.

Others of note include Tran Gorley of East Carolina College, whose paintings have been accepted in out-of-state exhibits; his wife Marilyn Gorley; Charles R. McNeill of Morehead City, watercolorist; Francis Lee Neel of East Carolina College; and W. Frith Winslow of Plymouth.

Also, Effie R. C. Bateman of Greenville; Claude Howell of Wilmington; Mary Duffy W. Hughes of New Bern; Lois Outland of Rich Square; Enola N. Smith of Edenonton; and Joseph Stell of Greenville.

Wesley V. Crawley's Standing "figure" in welded steel will main on display for this exhibit. Crawley is a member of the East Carolina College art faculty.

Architectural renderings of interest to people in this area will include a proposed building for the country club, proposed mall on Evans Street and some renovations at the courthouse.

Architects will be represented by Allen J. Maxwell, Jr. of Goldsboro, photography; Leslie N. Boney of Wilmington, architectural rendering; Dudley and Shoe Greenville; James W. Griffith of Greenville; and J. J. Rowland of Kinston, architectural rendering.

Photographers represented are Aycock Brown of Manteo, Billy Benner of New Bern and Roy Hardee of Greenville.

A special exhibit of sculpture, including Stanley's three-ring model circus, will also be on display. The model circus as created by the late Francis W. Stanley, Goldsboro funeral director, who spent 11 years in the effort. It is one of the most complete model circuses in this country.

Sculptors participating are Eugene Cooper Langford of Roanoke Rapids with "Tree" in metal; "Little Sculpture" in metal and bronze; and "Vortex" in metal and bronze. Nancy G. Monroe of Greenville will display "Richard", portrait of a head; and a figure of adolescence.

Entries by the artists will include Effie Bateman's seascape, "Sentinel of the Pungo," an oil painting which is striking in its use of blues, greens and lavender hues.

Mrs. Hearne will exhibit a seascape, "Sand Dunes at Atlantic Beach" in oil; Howell, "Tobacco Barns" in oil; Hughes, "First Presbyterian Church, New Bern" in oil; Neel, "Pitt County Fair" in oil; Outland, "Peanut Fields," a landscape in oil; Smith, "Edenton Bay," a seascape; Speight, "Bennett's Mill, Edenton," in oil; Stell, "Tobacco Barns," a watercolor which has been given to the center as a gift; and Winslow, "Makey's Ferry," a seascape in oil.

This exhibit is to continue until May 31. The public is invited to visit the Greenville Art Center especially during the Fine Arts Festival, which is co-sponsored by the East Carolina Art Society and the Greenville Women's Club, with cooperation from other organizations.

Those planning to visit the circus in groups are requested to contact the center for a reservation.

U.S. Patience Running Out On Laos Delays

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported near the end of its patience today with what officials privately call Communist stalling over a cease-fire in Laos.

President Kennedy has initiated consultations with allied governments and with congressional leaders on what steps may be taken next to prevent more of Laos from falling to Soviet-backed rebel forces.

New action could include U.S. and allied military intervention aimed at halting the rebel offensive. But informed officials said that Kennedy had not decided finally on his next move.

A State Department statement Thursday night declared "real United States concern over the failure of the Pathet Lao rebel forces" to accept a British-Soviet cease-fire call issued last week-end.

Beyond this concern was a growing anxiety that the rebel offensive could shortly result in the capture of the royal capital, Luang Prabang, and the administrative capital, Vientiane.

Should rebel successes bring the collapse of the pro-Western Boun Oum government, the ability of the Western powers to deal with the Communist challenge in the Southeast Asian kingdom would be almost disastrously crippled.

Beyond the immediate threat to Laos, Kennedy administration leaders fear, is a broader threat to South Viet Nam and Thailand. The United States recently gave both countries new assurances of military support as events may require.

In Laos, there was no indication that the Pathet Lao would call off the shooting at noon today. The royal government set that hour for the halt in fighting to become effective.

Before leaving Washington on a speech making trip Kennedy conferred Thursday with congressional leaders. He told them, it was learned, that the situation for pro-Western forces in Laos was deteriorating and that further moves have to be considered seriously.

Following this meeting, the State Department issued a statement which said: "Today's discussions have revolved around the question of what the approach of the United States and other nations interested in maintaining the integrity of an independent Laos is to be should the Communist rebels prove completely unwilling to grant a cease-fire and work toward a peaceful solution."

The President also had a session Thursday with the National Security Council.

The cease-fire call was part of a package deal negotiated by Britain and the Soviet Union. Another part of the agreement called for a 14-nation conference to open May 12 at Geneva for the purpose of working out a permanent Laotian settlement. Officials indicated that if the cease-fire was not accepted in fact as well as in theory by the Communist side the United States had no intention of going to the conference.

State Department press officer Lincoln White declined to discuss the question of a "cutoff point" for U.S. patience in waiting for the rebel forces, which now hold much of northern Laos, to agree to end the fighting. However, authorities said the Kennedy administration was not willing to wait very much longer.

Both the United States and Britain have urged the Soviet government to see that the Soviet-backed rebels fall in line with the cease-fire agreement without further delay.

In addition to conferring with the congressional leaders, White said, the President also met Thursday with administration officials on the crisis. Altogether several hours of Kennedy's time were devoted to this problem.

The statement issued by White reemphasized the declared U.S. desire for a political settlement that would assure "a truly neutral Laos."

"We agreed to the 14-nation conference," White said, "in the hope that a peaceful way might be found to achieve this status for Laos."

In preparation for such a conference Secretary of State Dean Rusk has created a special task force of State Department experts on Southeast Asia to plan U.S. policy and negotiating tactics. He assigned Ambassador Kenneth Young, new envoy to Thailand, to head the group.

Circle K Club Inducts Officers

Clyde Benny Bowes of Burlington has been elected president of Circle K, an organization for men at East Carolina College. It is sponsored by the Greenville Kiwanis Club.

Bowes replaced Kenneth E. Basinger, of Concord, former president of the club. Mr. John T. Barnhill, District Governor of the Carolinas for Kiwanis, inducted the new officers.

Other officers elected to serve with Mr. Bowes for the 1961-1962 school term were: Jimmy G. Blythe, Seaboard, vice president; Joe M. Flake, Farmville, secretary; and James W. Massey, Pleasant Hill, treasurer.

The Board of Directors includes the four previously named officers and Claude W. Wyatt, Portsmouth, Va.; Walker L. Allen, Greenville; Jerry L. Wilkins, Dunn; Brett T. Watson, Burlington Heights, Va.

Committee chairmen are: Brett Watson, Darlington Heights, Va., program chairman; Claude W. Wyatt, Portsmouth, Va., social chairman; Merle T. Summers, Raleigh, publicity chairman; Joe Flake, Farmville, and Benny Bowes, Burlington, project co-chairmen; Walker Allen, Greenville, Kiwanis chairman.

Dr. John Reynolds of the college mathematics department is the club's advisor.

Annual HD Week Will Open On Sunday

"Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World" is the theme to be used during the 16th National Home Demonstration Week, which will be observed April 30 through May 6.

Mrs. Amelia Capehart, Negro home economics agent of Pitt County, said that nearly eight and a half million women in the 50 states and Puerto Rico are now using home economics extension services of one kind or another to help solve their own home and family living problems. Some of these women live on farms, some in towns and cities.

Home demonstration work is an adult educational program in better homemaking.

Through "show how" and "tell how" methods of home demonstration work, Mrs. Capehart said, women learn to apply the latest findings developed by home economics research. For these "students" no school bells ring, no report cards are issued, no studies are required and no classrooms assigned, Mrs. Capehart continued.

The members of home demonstration clubs choose their own teachers and courses. The program, planned by and for homemakers, is conducted cooperatively by the extension service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and state land-grant colleges and county governments.

The celebration in Pitt County next week will include special events for reaching new homemakers with information about practical help through home visits, radio announcements, church and other community programs and exhibits in store windows.

Through home visiting, home demonstration club members will be giving each person contacted litter bags to use in their cars to help keep Pitt County clean.

This was a project selected by local club members in conjunction with the observance.

Flowers will be placed in churches, home demonstration club members will attend church services in groups and will visit those in the county home.

Exhibits showing some of the work here in Pitt County will be in the local store windows, as well as in stores throughout Pitt County, Mrs. Capehart said. Displays will concern furniture refinishing and spring and summer hats.

GETTING READY FOR NEW SHOW . . . Nancy G. Monroe of Greenville places "Richard" on exhibit for "Eastern North Carolina As Seen By Its Painters, Architects, Photographers." The exhibit opens Saturday at the Greenville Art Center in cooperation with the Fine Arts Festival, which begins Saturday with a luncheon. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Area Order Of The Arrow Meet Over Weekend

Some 25 Pitt County District scouts and leaders are expected to attend this weekend's Area 6-A Fellowship of the Order of the Arrow set for Camp Lejeune.

This weekend's session at the U.S. Marine Corps base is the annual 6-A meeting. Each year the Order of the Arrow, a brotherhood organization of honor campers of the Boy Scouts of America, assembles for training, handicraft, competitive camping skills and to plan ways and means of further developing the camping program of scouting.

Harold Bowers, Greenville scoutmaster, is Pitt District Order of the Arrow Chapter advisor.

Col. G. H. West, institutional representative for scouting at Camp Lejeune, has reported that the Marine base has planned various activities for the scouts' leisure time during their three-day stay-at the base.

The fellowship gathering begins today and adjourns Sunday.

Bethany F. W. B. Announcements

Job 42:1-12 will be the portion of Scripture studied at Sunday school this Sunday and all members are urged to attend. There are classes for all ages and visitors are also welcome. General Assembly begins at 10:00.

The congregation will observe Family Week a week early due to a special service next Sunday. At the 11:00 worship hour the Chancel Choir will sing "Wonderful, Wonderful Jesus" and the Pastor, J. Garland Teasley, will speak on the subject "What Is A Christian Family?" The Acolyte for this service is Sonny McLawhorn. Flowers will be furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dail.

League begins at 6:15 with supper. Sonny McLawhorn has devotions for General Assembly. Last week Betty Jean McLawhorn and Janie McLawhorn won the Sword Drill. The topic for discussion this week is "The Church and The Lord's Supper."

The Sunday School worker's council meets Monday night at the church at 7:30.

The Mid-Week Prayer service and Bible Study is held on Wednesday at 7:30. This week we will study Galatians 2. Chancel choir rehearsal follows at 8:00.

Morning prayer is conducted daily at 9:00 in the Sanctuary.

On May 7, the congregation will have a special Service of Consecration for the new Sanctuary furnishings. Dr. William Burkette Raper, president of Mount Olive College, will speak. The public is cordially invited.

EARLY SALE to Mayor S. E. West kicks off the American Cancer Society's Sword Day in Greenville. Brenda Thigpen (left) and Mrs. Earline Coghill are serving as co-chairmen for Saturday's project in the local Cancer Crusade. Tiny "Sword of Hope" pins will be sold by helpers from Rose High School.

Kennedy Asks Press Consider Some Self-Censorship For Nat'l Security

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER
 NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy urged that American newspaper publishers consider some form of self-censorship in light of cold war threats to national security.

He has given no particulars on what he has in mind. But he says his administration would cooperate wholeheartedly "if the press would consider and recommend the voluntary assumption of specific new steps or machinery."

The President emphasized that he was not proposing government censorship or new secret classifications, which could be abused, on government activity.

He suggested that the newspapers weigh not only whether a story is news but also whether publication is in the interest of national security.

A cross-section of publishers adopted a restrained attitude toward Kennedy's appeal "to heed the duty of self-restraint" in their news columns. Those interviewed supported the general idea, but some insisted on specific guidelines.

Kennedy made his proposal Thursday night in an address before 1,700 publishers, editors and other newspaper executives and their wives at the annual dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The dinner address was part of a two-day speech and conference trip.

Kennedy — deeply concerned over rebel disregard of an East-West cease-fire appeal in Laos — today opens a new series of talks on world dangers with leading Americans and United Nations officials.

Kennedy first scheduled meetings with former President Herbert Hoover and General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. He arranged to drive from his suite in the Carlyle Hotel to the Waldorf-Astoria, where Hoover and MacArthur have apartments.

Then he invited Adlai E. Stevenson, ambassador to the United Nations, and U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld to lunch at his own quarters.

His purpose was to acquaint all four with White House views—and seek their thoughts—on Cuba, Laos and other trouble spots.

Hoover is the fifth leading Republican to confer with Kennedy on world problems in recent days. The others were former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Kennedy said in his proposal for consideration of self-censorship: "If the press is awaiting a declaration of war before it imposes the self-discipline of combat conditions then I can only say that no war ever posed a greater threat to our security."

"If you are awaiting a finding of 'clear and present danger,' then I can only say that the danger has never been more clear and its presence has never been more imminent."

Kennedy said that to meet "this national peril" there are two requirements: far greater public information as well as far greater official secrecy.

He was applauded when he said no administration official should exploit his remarks to censor news, cover up mistakes or "withhold from the press and the public the facts they deserve to know."

He again was applauded—for the only other time in his speech—when he said no president should fear public scrutiny of his program and asked the help of publishers "in the tremendous task of informing and alerting the American people."

The Kennedy administration, he pledged, will make available "the fullest possible information outside the very narrow limits of national security."

Rows of motorcycle policemen enclosed the President's motorcade as it quickly covered the mile and a half from his hotel to the dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria, which earlier had been patrolled outside by anti-Castro Cuban demonstrators. The marchers had pretty well dispersed by the time he arrived.

The drive back and forth and the speech took Kennedy from his suite for little more than 50 minutes. He had dinner with Pierre Salinger, press secretary, and a friend, but there was no word on what other callers he may have had in his 34th-floor suite.

On reaching New York, Kennedy went directly from La Guardia Field to his hotel and stayed there for more than four hours before departing to deliver his speech. He is known to have been in touch with Washington officials on the uncertainty in Laos where continued Communist assaults have forced the United States to consider accelerating aid to loyalist forces.

Kennedy's preoccupation with the alternatives in Laos and other matters caused him to cancel plans to attend a pre-dinner reception with the publishers.

The dinner was the windup event of the annual press week in New York.

Kennedy flies by jet to Chicago this afternoon to address a Cook County Democratic dinner tonight before heading back to Washington.

U.S. Astronaut Takes First Step Into Space Next Week

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
 Associated Press Science Writer
 CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Next week an American astronaut risks his neck and the nation's prestige in a 15-minute partial hop into space.

It's only a toe step compared with Yuri Gagarin's momentous vault completely around the earth in 108 minutes. The American is to shoot 115 miles high, and nearly 300 miles out over the Atlantic.

So why risk it?

History supplies one answer: Columbus pioneered America. But Spain did not win the new continent.

Like Columbus, Gagarin opened the new frontier of space, with treasures of knowledge or practical benefits possibly to be won there. There's a long future ahead for man in space.

But the Soviet Union has not yet offered other nations her rockets — or even the detailed knowledge — so they can duplicate her feat.

Those who would embark into the dimly-charted sea of space must fashion their own rockets and safety systems to get him back in one piece.

The Soviet Union won the man-in-space priority prize because she started several years earlier in working and planning for manned flight.

Now the Soviet Union has a fully-tested rocket which can orbit a five-ton capsule. It is roomy, it is equipped with two escape hatches for safety, the Soviets report. And it could carry enough oxygen and food to keep Gagarin alive for 10 days, if need be.

The hard and goading fact is the United States is not yet sure that her No. 1 operational warhead rocket—the Atlas—can reliably chance sending a man into orbit. Or that he and his one-ton capsule can be safely landed from orbit.

A test of an Atlas boosting an unmanned capsule failed on April 25.

For safety of the human astronaut, the U.S. program from the start called first for a short or sub-orbital flight in the Mercury capsule lifted up by a Redstone rocket. The Redstone is far less powerful than the Atlas, but is an older workhorse rocket which has proved more reliable.

By Soviet standards, it is a firecracker.

The short hop could answer critical questions—could a human stand the crushing force of take-off, half a dozen minutes or more of weightlessness, and could he be recovered safely?

Gagarin's triumphant trip has answered the first two questions so far as a living man is concerned. In fact, Gagarin says he enjoyed the hour or so of weightlessness.

But his trip didn't prove out the American system for launch and recovery, or make American rockets more reliable.

Possibly the United States could sidestep more short-hop tests for man. It might concentrate upon boosting up unmanned capsules into orbit until authorities were confident a man could make the ride safely.

This is what the Soviets did. They have not made it clear whether they sent men up on short rides. They did send dogs up and parachute them down.

This was similar to the up-and-down ride last Jan. 31 of the chimpanzee Ham in a ride powered by a Redstone rocket.

A year ago they launched their first huge spacehop, containing "a dummy man" by some accounts, but didn't get it back.

In August, they retrieved a spacehop containing two dogs. In December, something went amiss and two dogs perished when the spacecraft burned up re-entering the atmosphere.

But in March, twice in a row, they launched and recovered capsules containing dogs. Confidence built up.

That signalled the go-ahead for Gagarin's historic space voyage. The United States just isn't ready for the giant step.

A PLEDGE TO THE VOTERS OF GREENVILLE

BACKGROUND: A question frequently arising during public discussion of Greenville's housing problem is: "Why hasn't something been done about this before?" Another: "Whose fault is it?" This is not time to assign blame. Public opinion is mobilized and the job will be done. Accusations serve no purpose but to divide us.

Actually, the blame belongs to all of us. Ordinances, already in our city code, governing unfit housing and affecting sanitary conditions, have not been uniformly enforced. Prior to now, public opinion has not demanded enforcement. Elected city officials have not created a demand for enforcement. Some home owners assumed they could "get by" when ordinances were not enforced.

Had laws been enforced, our present problem would not be nearly so great. Example: Everyone bought their auto tags before February 15 in order to drive their cars. Everyone made certain their income tax return was filed before April 15. Why? Because we knew these requirements would be enforced with certainty. The same attitude will follow adequate enforcement of local housing laws.

There are structures in Greenville, at this very moment, which are unfit for human habitation. If already existing requirements had been enforced, these dwellings would have already been condemned and would not be contributing to our present problem.

All will admit that existing ordinances, even if enforced, do not satisfy all our needs. New measures are required.

Such a new program has already been offered to the City Council for action: On March 2, 1961, in an official session of the council, a clean up - slum clearance program, NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION, was proposed to the council, along with a strong ordinance, implementing and facilitating NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION.

WHAT IS NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION?

This voluntary program provides for large-scale elimination of slums, blight, and depressed housing conditions without Federal control and without seizure of private property. This comprehensive plan has brought progress to many cities, including Charlotte, New Orleans, and Cincinnati. "Conserve only what should be conserved. Demolish only if salvage is not practical. Allow the owner to keep his property."

HOW DOES NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION WORK?

THE CITY'S PROGRAM

- Inside Running Water
- Inside Private Bath and Toilet
- Adequate Electrical Wiring
- Adequate Chimneys or Flues
- Proper Screening to Maintain All Sanitation Standards.
- Sound Building Structure
- Prescribed Minimum Room Sizes
- Prescribed Window Areas
- Removal of Deteriorated Woodwork and Replacement
- Painting of Weathered Woodwork Inside and Out
- All Dwellings, Yards, and Lots Kept Free From Health Hazards and Accumulations of Litter. This is a Responsibility of the Dweller and Owner
- Adequate Provision That Municipal Officials, After Due Notice To The Occupant and Owner, Correct Any Violation Of The Health, Fire, Sanitary or Any Other Related Code. The City is Empowered To Levy Fines, Correct The Fault And Charge Improvements Against The Owner's Tax Account or, When Necessary, Order The Property Vacated.

THE PROPERTY OWNER'S JOB

- Stepped-Up Program of Enforcing Housing Standards Which Has Been Neglected by Proper Authorities.
- Street Improvements: Widening and Straightening; Closing and Vacating When Indicated; Traffic Engineering.
- Improvements To Schools, Parks, Sewers, Recreational Centers, Refuse Collection, and Other Municipal Facilities.
- Rezoning To Eliminate Overzoning For Particular Land Use and To Encourage Harmonious Development of Vacant and Cleared Sites.
- Off-Street Parking Adjacent to Commercial Areas.
- Replatting of Vacant and Cleared Sites.
- A VOLUNTARY PROGRAM of Acquiring Fee Title For The Uses of Land That Hinder Upgrading Program WITHOUT OUTSIDE CONTROL & CONFISCATION.
- Location of Easements For Public Utilities.
- Cooperation With Owners of Private Property To Achieve Environmental Improvements.
- A HOUSING COURT
If adopted, there will be an effective municipal ordinance, facilitating Neighborhood Conservation. As a safeguard, this flexible program, as a whole and in part, is subject to approval and change by the City Council. Procedures for Urban Renewal have already been made in Washington by law and cannot be changed.

We have met a most enthusiastic response to the NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION program since its introduction. People want to clean up Greenville themselves, through free enterprise and under local control. The vast majority of these have committed themselves to vote against Urban Redevelopment on May 2. Some voters have asked us a very good question which is the key to the whole problem. They tell us: "I want unfit housing eliminated. I don't want to take away another man's home anymore than I would like for my own home to be taken from me. I prefer the voluntary, cooperative idea behind NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION rather than property seizure under Urban Redevelopment. But how can I be sure NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION will be carried out and enforced?"

OUR PLEDGE

The members of the Association for Better Citizenship & Home Government, supporting NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION and opposing Urban Redevelopment, give our pledge that we will attend the first meeting of the newly-elected city council following the May 2 election and that we will ask that the council adopt the recommended NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION ORDINANCE and the NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION PROGRAM.

- ● ● We welcome and urge all citizens to accompany us and support this request.
- ● ● We further pledge to personally follow the policies and procedures of NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION.
- ● ● We pledge our full cooperation with city officials at all levels in carrying out the NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION clean up - slum clearance program.
- ● ● We pledge our full cooperation with our fellow citizens and fellow home owners in achieving the goals of this program.
- ● ● The voters of Greenville can expect and look forward to this pledge being carried out in full. We ask only your trust, confidence and support.

REMEMBER: THE NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION PROGRAM CALLS FOR A HOUSING COURT
● IF NECESSARY, THE CITY IS EMPOWERED TO MAKE IMPROVEMENTS AND CHARGE THE COST TO THE OWNER

LET'S STOP AND THINK

WE ALL AGREE THAT SOMETHING MUST BE DONE TO ELIMINATE SLUM AREAS IN GREENVILLE, TO IMPROVE HOUSING IN GENERAL, AND TO PROVIDE FOR THE FUTURE GROWTH OF OUR BUSINESS DISTRICTS.

NOW ONLY THESE QUESTIONS REMAIN TO BE ANSWERED: WILL WE SOLVE OUR PROBLEMS LOCALLY, THROUGH OUR CITY GOVERNMENT WORKING WITH LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS AND PRIVATE ENTERPRISE? OR, WILL WE ENTRUST THE FUTURE DEVELOPMENT OF OUR CITY TO THE PUBLIC HOUSING ADMINISTRATION, AND THE DEPARTMENT OF URBAN AFFAIRS IN WASHINGTON?

THE UNDERSIGNED MERCHANTS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN IN GREENVILLE WHOLEHEARTEDLY ENDORSE THE LOCAL APPROACH. THE JAYCEE CREED EXPRESSES OUR SENTIMENTS WHEN IT SAYS: "WE BELIEVE THAT ECONOMIC JUSTICE CAN BEST BE WON BY FREE MEN THROUGH FREE ENTERPRISE."

WE AGREE WITH THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, MR. ARTHUR H. MOTELY, WHO STATED IN WINSTON-SALEM ON APRIL 11 OF THIS YEAR:

"It is not possible to have a little Federal Aid! I believe that as surely as a fertilized egg grows into a mature animal of its species, so, too, will a little Federal aid grow into full central government control of the subsidized activity."

"How long can an independent local government remain independent if it is dependent on Washington for planning funds, for financing, for leadership decisions in providing community facilities and Urban Renewal?"

WE BELIEVE:

- That it is wrong to seize the property of private citizens under the guise of Urban Redevelopment when such property is being transferred to other PRIVATE INTERESTS. This is a radical departure from the traditional policy of eminent domain. In the past it has been exercised only to obtain property for such bona fide public needs as schools, highways, and utilities. As business and professional men we know that this new concept of eminent domain weakens the fundamental American concept of property rights.
- That Greenville's Number One Long Term Problem is the procurement of new industry and the expansion of existing businesses. A business climate attractive to New Industry is absolutely essential. To this goal there is no better way to put out the welcome mat than by going on record against Government competition with private enterprise, and against the violation of property rights by our government.
- That if Urban Renewal and Public Housing are defeated at the polls on May 2, the new city council will then adopt a Neighborhood Conservation Program, locally controlled, which will insure the clearance of slums, the improvement of streets, and general beautification of the city. We have conscientiously studied the Neighborhood Conservation Program and sincerely believe that it is better suited for Greenville than the Federally controlled Urban Renewal and Public Housing programs. We believe that Neighborhood Conservation will create far more business activity and more new jobs among the independent businesses and working people of Greenville.
- That the city will be able, through local initiative and capital, to improve not only the residential areas of Greenville but also our business and public areas.
- That our community is a frontier of opportunity—job opportunities, increased production, expanding markets, better living. These opportunities are all local.
- That America's strength has always been in private enterprise, rugged individualism, and freedom from governmental restraint. It can be done! It can be done without Federal intervention.

Final House Reading Of Auto Inspection Bill Is Set

RALEIGH (AP) — A Senate-passed bill designed to plug a loophole in the state's compulsory auto liability law comes up for third and final reading in the House next Tuesday.

Opponents of the measure objected to immediate third reading Thursday when the House passed it on second reading by 54-47.

Before the bill passed, the question of whether it is a citizen's right or privilege to drive a car was debated. Those claiming it is a privilege won out in the vote.

Under present law, when the motor vehicles commissioner moves to suspend the license of a motorist for failure to show compliance with the compulsory liability law, the motorist may halt the action by filing a court petition.

The bill provides that the suspension would go into effect despite the filing of a petition.

Rep. David Britt, speaking in support of the bill, admitted in reply to questions by House members that the measure would put the burden of proof on the accused. But, he added, the motorist who complies with the law is safe.

"We ought to remember that driving is a privilege, not a right," Britt declared.

Rep. Roland Braswell of Wayne (told the House he would "never" vote for a bill that might sacrifice the rights of one person for the sake of catching a few crooks."

Meanwhile, Rep. Austin Jones of Ashe introduced a bill aimed at getting more federal funds for hospital care of persons on welfare rolls.

Jones said the state could gain federal matching funds by spending an additional $1,124,417 during the next two fiscal years. Under the matching formula, payments for hospital care of indigent patients would be increased from $12 to $20 per day.

The Senate passed a bill which would permit county boards of commissioners to invest surplus funds with building and loan companies.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill which would remove legal barriers to marriages between whites and Indians.

The Senate enacted a resolution requesting the U. S. Department of Agriculture to look into the method of setting price supports for flue-cured tobacco. Rep. Byrd

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Leonard Testa is president of the Buffalo Schoolmaster's Association.

Satterfield of Person, who introduced the bill, said he made an investigation which showed price for supports have fallen below the 96 per cent of parity required by law for the past 10 years.

Biggest Movie Comeback By Old Pro Walt Disney

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The movie comeback story of the year is being written by Walt Disney, in the red last year and now enjoying four hits in a row.

Disney is the envy and wonder of his fellow producers. Not only is he rolling in hits. He also has gone against the trend toward sex and sadism in films.

The movie wizard was observed at close hand in his office at the start of one of his busy days. He had already been on a lot tour before most of his workers had arrived. His day would be spent planning and checking every phase of studio projects.

"Having these hits worries me," he said over his coffee. "Everybody at the studio gets happy and I spend my time pulling them down from the ceiling to get to work."

"Last year, the film business was off and we had a lot of expensive pictures, so we didn't do so well. Then everybody was down in the dumps and I had to boost them up and tell them we've been through these periods before."

Disney's golden string started with "Swiss Family Robinson," made for $4½ million and expected to gross $7-8 million domestically. Then came "101 Dalmatians," costing $3½ million with $6½-7 domestic gross in sight.

He expects "The Absent-Minded Professor" to be his biggest moneymaker so far; it could go to $12 million in this country with a $21 million cost. Previewers have already classified his next, "Parent Trap," a surefire hit.

"It's all very nice, but I really don't concern myself too much with how the pictures do," Disney said. "Most of my thinking is two years ahead."

These are the projects in his future book: "Babes in Toyland," his first live-action musical; "Moon Pilot," a comedy about space travel; "Bon Voyage," a comedy about a family touring Europe; "Big Red," about a boy, a man and a dog in Canada; "The Castaways," a Jules Verne adventure. Also in the works is a cartoon feature, "The Sword and the Stone."

One Child Dies, Another Injured In Street Mishap

CONCORD, N. C. (AP)—A 10-year-old girl was fatally injured and her 6-year-old sister critically injured when struck by a car on a busy street here Thursday.

The older girl, Brenda Jean Mauney, died in Cabarrus Memorial Hospital.

Early today, a hospital spokesman said that the younger girl, Cathy Darlene Mauney, was on the critical list.

Police Lt. Harry Polk said the driver of the car, 16-year-old Susan Christine Chaney of Concord, said the girls darted from behind a car into the path of her car and she could not avoid them.

The girls, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Mauney, live on Blumley Street, a few blocks from the North Church Street location of the accident. Church is the U. S. 601 route through Concord.

It was the second traffic fatality in Concord in one day. Earlier Thursday, Roy R. Vancannon, also of Blumley St., had become the first fatality in the city since February, 1959.

When artist Pablo Picasso was admitted to the School of Fine Arts in Barcelona at the age of 14, he was allowed a month to finish one course. He completed it, with honors, in one day.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets weaker. Supplies generally adequate, demand fair to good. Prices paid producers for clean, unsized eggs, delivered nearby grading stations on a grade-yield basis, cases exchanged: grade A large, whites 29 1/2 to 30 1/2; medium, whites 24 1/2 to 25 1/2; small, whites 20 to 22, mostly 21 to 22.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined irregularly early this afternoon in the slowest trading of the week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 3/8 at 242.60 with industrials down 3/8, and both rails and utilities unchanged.

Losses of most stock ticks were narrow. Some fell a point or so and a wide assortment were unchanged.

Motors were narrowly fixed and steels unchanged to lower. The aircraft-missiles and electronics made minor moves, showing no trend. Drugs, tobaccos and rubbers drifted off. Oils, nonferrous metals and chemicals were irregular.

Some of the wide-moving favorites of recent weeks continued to shrink under profit taking but a recovery tendency was apparent here and there. Kerr-McGee Oil erased a 2-point loss. American Machine & Foundry more than halved a loss exceeding 2 points. Philadelphia & Reading was down about 2 points more.

Coppers were mixed. Kennecott lost more than a point. Anaconda gained a fraction.

Union Carbide and United Air Lines were down more than a point each. U.S. Steel, Caterpillar and United Aircraft showed little change.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 5/8 at 678.98.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were unchanged.

Pitt Scouts Bring Home 48 Camporee Ribbons

Pitt District scouts brought home a total of 48 prize ribbons and three citations from the East Carolina Council camporee held in New Bern last weekend.

A total of 375 scouts and leaders representing 19 Pitt District troops participated in the weekend affair that drew some 3,500 scouts from the 20 counties of the Council.

Ribbons were awarded troops for degrees of proficiency in camporee events, handicraft, cooking, campsite layout and maintenance. Also judged were conservation projects, good turns and service projects completed in the troops' respective communities prior to the camporee.

Finish Stay In Fallout Shelter

RALEIGH (AP) — A young Charlotte couple came out into daylight this morning to end a three-day stay in a fallout shelter.

"It's good to be out, but really it wasn't so bad," said Thomas C. McAden.

"If people ever had to spend time in a shelter, I think they'd be amazed at how comfortable it can be," agreed Barbara, his wife.

Gov. Sanford knocked on the door of the fallout shelter in the basement of the Executive Mansion at 9 a.m. Turning to the state Civil Defense officials and news reporters who accompanied him, the governor quipped, "I don't believe they're ready to come out yet."

New Moderator Chosen Today By Presbyterians

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The retiring moderator of the Presbyterian Church, U.S., says race relations are "the towering problem with which we are confronted in the Southland."

"To be neutral on such a question of such far reaching ethical implications and which is rapidly moving toward decision is impossible," said Dr. Marion A. Boggs of Little Rock, Ark., in his final report, Thursday night.

He urged the southern church's 101st assembly to give full support to its 1954 declaration that segregation is "out of harmony with Christian theology and ethics."

At its opening session the assembly elected the Rev. Wallace M. Alston of Decatur, Ga., moderator.

Dr. Alston, president of Agnes Scott College, received 261 votes of the some 350 commissioners attending the assembly.

The other nominees were the Rev. William A. Jones, president of Union Seminary of Richmond, Va., and the Rev. William Childs Robinson, a professor at Columbia Theological Seminary, also at Decatur. Their votes were not announced.

Southern Presbyterians split with Northern members of the denomination 100 years ago over the Civil War. It has about 900,000 members in 19 Southern and border states.

Segregation May Also Be Studied

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The question of segregation may come before Wake Forest College trustees at a meeting here today, but the scheduled item of business for the meeting is the new budget, expected to be about $7 million.

The Wake Forest faculty asked the trustees to modify the school's traditional racial restrictions. The request was prompted by the enrollment application of a 19-year-old Ghanaian student, Edward Reynolds, whose education would be financed by a student group interested in encouraging African students to study at Wake Forest.

The budget before the trustees would include money for operating all units of the college, including the Bowman Gray School of Medicine and two new graduate study programs.

Army Reserve: Durham Center, training facilities, $38,000.

Boatman Runs Aground Fourth Time Off Coast

FAIRFIELD, N.C. (AP) — A Norfolk boatman may be well on his way to breaking the record for running a boat aground in North Carolina coastal waters.

The Coast Guard reported today that W. A. Hall and his pleasure craft ran aground Thursday for a fourth time, this time at the Fairfield bridge on the Pungo River-Alligator River canal.

Record for the course was set several years ago, according to the Coast Guard, when a vessel called the Blue Waters got stuck six times as it moved south through the Intracoastal Waterway.

Hall, who is the only person aboard his boat, the Shaligree, went aground at 4:30 p.m. Thursday. A Coast Guard cutter refloated his boat at 6:49 p.m. The craft had traveled approximately 100 miles northward after running aground three times in less than 24 hours.

Nominates N. C. Postmasters

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has sent to the Senate these North Carolina postmaster nominations:

James C. Barnes, Aultryville; Kelly M. Holmes, Bolton; Jack E. Bolick, Conover; Ralph R. Palmer, Crossmore; Durham H. Mitchell, Fairmont; Louis E. Potts, Highlands; Bonnie L. Mason, Holly Ridge.

William T. Whitten, Hot Springs; Lucille K. Parker, Hubert; Mabel T. Murray, Moyock; Ammie R. Sanderson, Rose Hill; John M. Burkett, Warrensville; Tom B. Rabon, Winnabow; Walker T. Brown, Wrightsville Beach; and Lindsay G. Baily, Yadkinville.

Study Plans For Twin Celebration

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's secession from the Union a century ago and the power of the United States today will be observed together May 19 and 20.

Plans for the twin celebration were studied in Raleigh Thursday by the North Carolina Confederate Centennial Commission, meeting with representatives of the armed services.

SHIP AGROUND

TOKYO (AP) — The American hospital ship Hope has run aground off the east Java coast and has asked the Indonesian navy for help, the Indonesian news agency Pia reported today.

Pia said the vessel suffered no damage but was unable to free herself by her own power.

Six Traffic Collisions Cause Costly Damage Here Thursday

Heavy damage, set by investigating officers at over $7,800, resulted from six traffic collisions in Greenville yesterday.

Macon Jasper Moyer, 64, of 807 Charles St., was charged with careless driving following a 5:45 p.m. collision near the intersection of Dickinson and Line Aves., which caused an estimated $2,500 damage to his car, and an estimated $1,500 damage to each of two other vehicles involved.

Police said the Moyer vehicle pulled from a parked position into the path of an auto operated by Carol Sue Dennis, 18, of 305 Jarvis St., who was headed east on Dickinson Ave.

Senate Inquiry Into Invasion Of Cuba Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate inquiry into the Cuban invasion was postponed today until Monday when Acting Secretary of State Chester Bowles said "several emergencies" would prevent his appearance.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., chairman of the Senate Latin American Affairs subcommittee, announced the postponement after a series of telephone calls to the State Department.

Morse did not say what "emergencies" were involved.

But Morse announced that he and Bowles agreed to invite Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, to attend Monday's closed meeting.

Senate Republicans said that Dulles previously had balked at an invitation to appear before the full Senate Foreign Relations Committee of which the Morse subcommittee is an arm.

Not Much Help In Spanish Class

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police Lt. D. S. Arroyo isn't getting anywhere at all with his program to teach Spanish to officers at Hollenbeck Division Station, in a predominantly Mexican-American district.

Arroyo wrote to the U.S. Printing Office some time ago, requesting Spanish grammars.

A package reached the station Thursday. Arroyo opened it—and found 500 government-printed pamphlets on pre-natal care.

"And," he related sadly, "they weren't even in Spanish!"

Mishap Reported By 4-Year-Old

PITTSBURG, Calif. (AP) — A 4-year-old boy steered a 20-foot skiff into Suisun Bay, about three miles west of here, Thursday night after his father apparently left overboard about two miles from shore.

A Coast Guard search turned up no trace of the man.

The boy, Ricky Painter, told fishermen, "Daddy's in the water."

His father, Ned J. Painter, 42, of West Pittsburg, had taken Ricky bass fishing. Fishermen said the pair had left early Thursday afternoon. The youngster brought the boat back, only 300 feet from his normal mooring, about 5:30 p.m.

Close Race For The Second Time

DUNSMUIR, Calif. (AP) — Robert Dewey, trailer court owner, lost his early April race for high school board member by one vote when absentee ballots were counted in Siskiyou County this week.

Dewey came even closer to the office two years ago. He lost then when a tie vote was decided by lot.

He says he's undecided about being a candidate in 1963.

Six Traffic Collisions Cause Costly Damage Here Thursday

The force of the collision caused the vehicles to strike a third car, parked on the south side of the street.

The parked vehicle was owned by Cozart's Super Market.

No injuries resulted from the collision.

An estimated $250 damage was done to a car driven by Thelma Bryan Hilton, 405 Lewis St., when the car was involved in a wreck at the intersection of Fourth and Harding Sts. at 3:05 p.m.

Police, who identified the driver of the second car as Grace Louise Ewell, 16, of 109 North Elm St., set damage to the car at $200.

Miss Ewell was charged with failure to stop for a stop sign, police reported. They noted her car was headed south on Harding St. while the Hilton car was going east on Fourth.

Large Building Plans For N. C.

No charges were made when cars driven by Janice Dell Waters, 16, of 2614 Sunset Ave., and Patricia Lynn Tripp, 16, of 1104 Rocksprings Drive, collided on Tenth St. near the intersection of Rocksprings Drive about 4 p.m., police stated.

They reported damage to the Waters car to be about $75 while damage to the Tripp vehicle was placed at $150.

One hundred dollars damage, according to police estimates, resulted to a car operated by Gladys Braxton Hardee, 25, of Route 3, Greenville, following a mishap near the intersection of Dickinson and Grande Aves.

Police said Mrs. Hardee opened the door of the vehicle into the path of an oncoming car driven by Sonora Moore of 505 East Ninth St., about 1:25 p.m.

Damage to the Moore vehicle was set at $50.

No charges were made by investigators.

Cars driven by Miss Gladys Brown Smith, Route 1, Grifton, and Durwood William Walker, 32, address not given, collided at the intersection of Tenth Street and Dickinson Ave. about 4:43 p.m., officers reported.

They estimated a total of $90 damage resulted to the cars, and said no charges were made.

An estimated $55 damage was done, investigators reported, when cars driven by Bobby Roger Rollins, 26, Route 2, Greenville, and Nammie E. Deyer, 16, of Grifton, collided at 14th and Charles Sts. No charges were made in the 6:05 p.m. mishap.
