Six-Room Rural House Lost To Flames

DESTROYED BY FIRE... yesterday was this six-room house on the Galloway farm about two miles west of Grimesland. The house, owned by Mrs. W. S. Galloway of Greenville, was occupied by the Raymond Williams family. Officials of the Grimesland Fire Department, which responded to the call, said the blaze was discovered between 4:00 and 4:30 p.m. when members of the family, working in a field nearby, saw flames coming from the roof of the dwelling. According to Mrs. Galloway, the house was insured, but the Williams family's possessions, of which only little was saved, were not. An electrical shortage is thought to have been the cause of the blaze.

President And His Top Advisers Confer On Deepening Laos Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy discussed the deepening crisis in Laos today with his top diplomatic and military advisers. New U.S. moves were being considered under urgent consideration. Some officials said the possibilities to be considered ranged all the way from further waiting for a cease-fire to the extreme of U.S. and Allied intervention under the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO).

Russia has agreed with Britain on the principle of a cease-fire between the Soviet-backed rebel forces and the pro-Western forces of Premier Boum Oum, but the Reds have stalled on fulfilling the cease-fire agreement. Today's conference was announced as a meeting of the National Security Council, but some officials who do not regularly attend its meetings were observed entering the White House.

These included Charles E. Bohlen, the State Department's top-ranking expert on Russia; Edward R. Murrow, director of the U.S. Information Agency; and Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr. Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, arrived carrying maps and charts. It was the security council's third meeting in eight days with Laos coming in for primary attention.

The council met last Saturday, and again Thursday. U.S. officials said today that by delaying the effectiveness of a cease-fire in Laos, the Communist-led rebels seem to be trying to compel the Boum Oum government to treat them as victors and accept them as the effective government in Laos.

This interpretation was based on a rebel demand that the government send delegates to a truce talk at Communist headquarters. The Soviet news agency Tass said that Prince Souvanna Phouma, whom the Communists treat as the legal premier instead of Boum Oum, had given the Lao government 48 hours to send delegates to a conference at Xieng Khouang.

1,377 Voters Added By City

A survey of registrars for the municipal election books shows 1,377 persons were registered during the three Saturdays that the books were open. Veteran observers described it as the largest registration ever. City Clerk William Moore estimated there were approximately 7,500 names on the books prior to the registration. However, some of the names are inactive. Poll holders said a few of the names listed as new registration were name changes for persons already on the books but this is only a small percentage of the total figure.

Laos Gov't Official Under White Flag Unable To Arrange A Truce

LUANG PRABANG, Laos (AP) — A government emissary journeyed into no man's land under a white flag today, hoping to meet pro-Communist rebels and arrange a truce. He failed to make contact. The hard pressed royal government, meanwhile, ordered its troops not to fire on Pathet Lao rebels unless fired upon. Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, government military strongman and deputy premier, dispatched the white flag of truce from the administrative capital of Vientiane in what he called a gesture to prove "our good will for peace."

Attack Launched By Laotian Reds

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Two hundred pro-Communist rebel troops launched a dawn attack this morning on government positions just 44 miles north of Vientiane, military sources reported. The rebels attacked Ban Keun, the government city in the district 10 miles east of the north-south highway between Vientiane and the royal capital of Luang Prabang, informants said. More than 300 royal troops were rushed to reinforce Ban Keun's garrison of one company. A helicopter returned to Vientiane from the front with four wounded royal soldiers, but details of the fighting were scarce. Just hours before, Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, the pro-Western government's military strongman and deputy premier, sent out an emissary with a white flag, hoping to work out a cease-fire date with the Pathet Lao rebels.

Trophy-Winner In Health Achievement Program

First Birth Of Siamese Twins

Pitt Memorial Hospital recorded its first birth of stillborn Siamese twins during the past week, Administrator C. D. Ward said today. The twins were stillborn prematurely, the attending physician said. Permission has been given by the parents for the Siamese twins to be preserved at the hospital for scientific purposes, it was learned.

Rocket On Launch Pad For U.S. Man-In-Space Effort

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The U. S. space program will thrust closer to that of the Soviet Union one morning next week when the first American astronaut is rocketed on a high arc ride into near space. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, announcing plans for a limited man-in-space shot, made official today what has been an open secret here for days. The tall, white rocket and the space capsule atop it already are in place on the launch pad. NASA said the launch—climaxing about 2½ years of Project Mercury preparation—will come about an hour after daybreak "in the next week or so."

From other sources, it was learned the shot is set for next Tuesday morning, if all goes well. That would be 20 days after Soviet air force Maj. Yuri Gagarin became the first known man to orbit the earth. The Soviet Union claimed he did so in a five-ton space craft. Next week's U. S. manned space trip will not be as ambitious. In the lingo of space agency people here, an orbital voyage by an American is "still down the road." It may come later this year.

Petition Asks Action On Facility For Aged

Thirty Pitt Countians last night signed a petition asking the Pitt County Commissioners to set machinery in motion that would result in a new county-built facility for the care of the aged and disabled in Pitt County.

He outlined the various needs of the county as indicated by a survey conducted by the society about a year ago. Various members of the group described experiences with various types of nursing and boarding homes.

At a meeting of leaders of the county's various communities held here last night, the community representatives signed the letter addressed to Robert G. Little, chairman of the commissioners. Specifically, the document asks the commissioners "to appoint a committee to study this question and recommend the best course for the county to follow in obtaining a fully qualified nursing home for the citizens."

He said there may be a possibility of the location of a church affiliated nursing home here provided the town, county or an individual would provide a large donation. Still, he said, such a home would probably not be considered "for several years yet."

The petition, introduced by J.H. Waldrop of Greenville, was approved by unanimous vote before it was circulated for signatures.

Discussion showed the group was in general agreement that the proposed home should be built by the county and leased for operation to private business. Priority should be given to Pitt Countians spokesmen said.

The group included doctors, professors, farmers, bankers, mayors, merchants and others. Dr. Stephen Bartlett, chairman of the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society's Committee on the Aged, presided at the meeting that lasted about one and one-half hours. Bancroft Moseley of Greenville, who reported he had investigated the matter, said it appeared to him private investors to build and operate a nursing home facility are not available.

Details of the project and its operation, according to the group, would be left to the discretion of the county commissioners and its official study group.

Early this month, the medical and dental society adopted a resolution asking the commissioners to call for a bond election to finance construction of such a facility.

Long Project

EUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — The Communist government plans to build one continuous housing project 40 stories high and 1.5 miles long with 20,000 apartments, a local newspaper says.

Says Who?

HONOLULU (AP) — Honolulu theater columnist Phil Mayer and his Japanese-born wife were discussing a review of a visiting Japanese singer's performance. "It says here all Japanese have trouble pronouncing some things in English," said Mayer. "Rike what?" asked Mrs. Mayer.

Goldsboro Likes Public Housing; Aldermen Vote Building Of 225 More Units

(Editor's Note: In view of the upcoming referendum on urban renewal and public housing, the Daily Reflector asked Gene Price of Goldsboro to prepare an article on Goldsboro's public housing. Price is managing editor of the Goldsboro News-Argus. This is his report.)

By GENE PRICE GOLDSBORO — Mrs. Ruth Jackson has a special reason for liking federal low rent housing. Ten years ago, she and her children lived in a four-room hovel. The roof poured when it rained. There were gaping cracks in the floors and walls and doors.

Each family is carefully screened before coming into the units. Veterans and families of deceased veterans get priority. A big factor is the family's income. Families of two or three cannot get the units if they make more than $2,600 a year. The limit on a family of four is $2,800 and the limit for a family of six or more is $3,000 annual income.

Water for drinking, cooking and bathing had to be hauled from next door. The family was served by an outside privy.

With what she was making working in a laundry, taking in ironing on her own and baby-sitting at night, she couldn't afford to pay much more. And decent housing to keep a family of four dry and warm comes at a much higher figure in most North Carolina cities.

They need not be ashamed to bring their little friends home. Mrs. Jackson is only one of the families that occupy the Goldsboro's present 600 low-rent housing units.

Under construction are 225 more units that are being built on the city's infamous "Hell's Bottom" and "Edmundson Hill."

Each family is carefully screened before coming into the units. Veterans and families of deceased veterans get priority. A big factor is the family's income. Families of two or three cannot get the units if they make more than $2,600 a year. The limit on a family of four is $2,800 and the limit for a family of six or more is $3,000 annual income.

Once in the units, the family can make up to 25 per cent above the limit. But when income exceeds that, the family is financially able to get housing on the private market and must move out and make room for those with lower incomes.

Legal Bird For A Worm-Hunter

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—An early worm hunter has gotten the legal bird from the state attorney general's office.

An involved reply from Asst. Atty. Gen. Frank Langley quoted an Idaho statute which says: "Every person who willfully commits any trespass by maliciously injuring or severing from the freehold of another, anything attached thereto, or the produce thereof, is guilty of a misdemeanor."

IS IT A Compliment?

When someone says, "Your Johnny's just like you," is it a compliment, or is it an accusation? Whether you like it or not, children do follow in their parents' footsteps.

Johnny learns that kindness and courtesy are virtues, because you are kind and courteous. He learns to love good books and music, because you love them. He learns, through your example, to speak truthfully.

And if going to church and church school regularly is also a part of your usual routine, Johnny will develop that habit just as he has these others.

Then it is a compliment when someone says, "Your Johnny's just like you," for you are doing all within your power to lead him in the right direction.

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plans to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

In Keeping With U. S. Traditions

Great stress in recent days has been placed on the "free enterprise" aspect of slum clearance by local foes of urban renewal and public housing with the implication that urban renewal slum clearance programs are contrary to the accepted principles of our national philosophy.

If such were the case, it is inconceivable that administrations under four separate Presidents of the United States—Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy—would have advocated the programs and called for their expansion. If the programs were contrary to accepted American traditions, it certainly would not have received the repeated endorsement year after year by members of Congress, the most direct representatives of the people that we have in our federal government.

If the programs were not in keeping with the American system, it is inconceivable that more than 1,000 cities and towns throughout the United States would have undertaken them for the betterment of their respective communities and their citizens.

Certainly the programs have not stifled private enterprise in Charlotte, Greensboro, Raleigh, Goldsboro, Rocky Mount, Wilson and other cities and towns among the more than 20 in North Carolina which have undertaken one or both of them. It is not logical to assume they will have an adverse effect upon private enterprise in Greenville through the clearance of slums and area redevelopment through private enterprise.

It should also be kept in mind that in every community urban renewal and public housing programs are under the control of commissions composed of local citizens appointed by the local City Council.

To the individual who has endeavored to carefully evaluate urban renewal objectively, there can be no question about local control of the program. The plan is developed by a local commission appointed by the local governing board. When the final plan is completed, two separate public hearings are held in order that local citizens can voice their opinions on the proposed plans and revisions—if necessary—can be made. And finally, such a program can be undertaken only if it receives approval by the City Council.

Should the programs be undertaken by Greenville they would be carried out under the direction of locally appointed commissions comprised of local people, and work on the projects would be done by private companies which were successful bidders on various phases of the work.

Urban renewal, in short, is tailor made to fit the needs of the particular community by citizens of that community.

If Greenville voters on Tuesday vote in favor of the programs, we are confident that Greenville will find—as other communities have found—that urban renewal offers the surest, most logical and most economical way to achieve the goals of slum clearance and better housing facilities for its people.

Rare Tour For N. C. Visitors

By LYNN NISBET

INTEREST—The travel counselors from other states visiting the lower Cape Fear section this week were introduced to places and historic facts of interest which even most North Carolinians do not know about.

Orton and Airlie plantations are well known and in recent years a good deal has been heard about Old Brunswicktown, now being restored by the Department of Archives and History. But the school histories do not tell much about the fact that Brunswick was at one time the most active and important exporting port in the United States, or that four governors under the crown lived there, and that Governor William Tryon was living there when he built the famed palace at New Bern. The walls of St. Phillips church are standing with gaping windows. The restoration folks have cleared up the grounds around the church and graveyard and constructed very adequate access roads. The site of the old town is closed to any but foot traffic and there are signs all around warning against digging or removing dirt or any article. From little pieces of broken table china, the archaeologists have been able to reconstruct entire homes and living habits.

Fort Fisher, on the other side of the Cape Fear and nearer its mouth, is another place just gaining recognition. The old fort protected the mouth of the river and the port of Wilmington and kept that port open longer as the "life line of the Confederacy" than any other. When the fort was captured by the Federal navy early in 1865 it spelled doom for the Confederacy—and meant the end of the war was near. What many historians do not emphasize, if they know, is that the battle at Fort Fisher was the biggest naval engagement in all history up until the battle of Jutland in World War I.

NEW AND OLD—The environs of Old Brunswick and Fort Fisher afford striking illustrations of contrast between the old and the new. Just a few miles down river from Brunswick is the ultra-modern munitions depot of the United States Army. Within shouting distance from the monument marking the site of Fort Fisher is one of the main radar detection centers of the Air Force. It is the home base of the 701st Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron. Although the complement of the squadron is only 250 men, it is a vital link in the chain of control and warning points around the world for the protection of America. The visiting travel group was admitted for a brief tour of the facilities and display of how the big screens record the data gathered by the huge windmill equipment outside.

In a matter of seconds after an airplane is discovered anywhere within two or three thousands miles, and fails to answer challenge calls, interceptor and fighter planes will be in the air to investigate—and if not satisfied to destroy the strangers.

At the State port more attention was given to explaining the handling of freight, and a big Norwegian ship was discharging and taking on cargo. The visitors were more interested in human travel, and were pleased to hear of plans to expand passenger facilities at the State docks and for a close-to-town municipal dock to be built by the City of Wilmington. Several members of the party lose interest in entering the fumigation building when told that the gas used is the same type as used in the death chamber at Central Prison.

Speaking of ships, nearly all the people contacted voiced enthusiasm about the decision to return U.S.S. Battleship North Carolina to Wilmington. No doubt was heard anywhere that the money to effectuate the acquisition and transfer will be raised promptly, or that the ship will much more than pay its maintenance as a tourist and educational attraction.

BODIES—There was an interesting story about some of the bodies buried in the National Cemetery at Wilmington. Most of the graves are marked by plain little stones, indicating an unknown. The cemetery was established to bury the Union soldiers and sailors who fell in the battle at Fort Fisher, although there are a few Spanish War soldiers buried later.

Legend is that the Federal authorities offered a cash reward for every "body" recovered from the battle area and delivered to the cemetery. Because it did not specify "human bodies" or bodies of Union service men, some canny local citizens brought bodies of animals which were duly interred—and the reward paid.

HOME FOLKS—The longest distance traveler on the tour was Cecil H. A. Duke of the San Francisco Automobile Club. It was his first visit to this part of the country, his second into the South. When he walked into the Surf Motel at Wrightsville Beach and Sherman Peck, one of the proprietors spotted his lapel badge, he smiled and offered his hand. "I'm glad to welcome a visitor from my home town," he said.

Pete Camak, manager of the Greater Wilmington chamber of commerce, presented Bud Willson of the Hugh Morton enterprise as the MC for some of the events as a "native North Carolinian." Bud expressed appreciation for being adopted, but confessed he is a native of Bar Harbor, Maine, although a long time resident of this State.

Great Accomplishment By General Assembly

Senate passage of a compromise court reform bill similar to the one passed by the House of Representatives virtually assures North Carolina will soon begin to move toward much-needed reform of its court system.

The bill, which calls for a constitutional amendment, still has to have House confirmation of amendments attached by the Senate. This, however, is almost certain to be forthcoming since the Senate amendments represent a compromise between opposing factions of the Senate. The fact that the court reform measure has come out of the 1961 legislature without a major battle in either house will greatly enhance its approval by the people of the state when they go to the polls to vote on the constitutional amendment the bill provides.

It is indeed a tribute to the leaders who effected the compromise legislation on court reform that the General Assembly has indicated its approval. It is also, we think, indicative of the legislators' recognition of the fact that North Carolina desperately needs a unified and uniform system of courts.

Passage of the court reform measure will be recognized as one of the major accomplishments of the 1961 General Assembly.

Self-Censorship Is Questionable

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and members of his administration suggest the American press, for the sake of national security, might practice self-censorship of the news. It is not clear: (1) Whether the administration has thought this through; (2) Whether it is uneasy about the amount of information being printed on American foreign involvements; or (3) Whether the administration is planning to take some foreign action soon.

But the idea is to keep the Communist world from learning every American move, even though this might deprive the American public of information vitally affecting it. Kennedy made the proposal in a speech Thursday night in New York. Unusual White House activity—a series of top level conferences—earlier recent days has caused some speculation that the President may be considering some foreign action, such as intervention to save Laos or South Viet Nam, or some move involving Cuba.

In the past week members of the administration have complained some misinformation was printed about Cuba. But no one has done more to confuse information on Cuba than administration officials who talked anonymously and contradicted each other. But the question of how much thinking Kennedy has done on the subject before suggesting self-censorship by the American press is caused by an episode earlier this week.

On Monday and Tuesday Kennedy and some of his top men talked in the State Department auditorium to newspaper editors gathered from around the country. The purpose was to give them a fill-in on America's foreign problems. While the administration laid down a rule before the talks began: Although what the officials said could be reported, none of them could be identified by name as saying any of it.

Their remarks could only be attributed to "high officials" or "authoritative sources." Thus newspaper readers were deprived of full information. They were left to wonder who each "high official" was and who was responsible for saying what.

But at the same time the Washington Post reported the administration let a correspondent from the Polish Communist party daily Tribuna Ludu, sit in

Every Time A Formula Seems Near

By DON SCHLIENZ

There's A Door Nearby

Our links with faraway and exotic places are much closer than the average Eastern North Carolinian thinks.

Anyone who visits the state port facilities at Morehead City is standing in the doorway that opens out to all corners of the world.

At Morehead City port you may see a ship sailing for Rotterdam, Singapore, Port Said, Djakarta, Saigon or Bangkok; Manila, Surabaya, Bremen, Antwerp or Penang.

In fact, you name a remote port of call and someday an announcement will be made that a ship is sailing from the North Carolina port to the fourth corner of the world you choose.

It's all just a little bit bewildering, unless you knew about it. But less than two hours away from Greenville there is a gateway to the Tropics, to Europe, the Orient, the Middle East, the Dark Continent.

If you are a dreamer, you have here the stuff of dreams; if there runs in your veins the blood of seafarers, traders and old merchant kings, then again you cannot fail but to be moved.

Shipping activity out of Morehead City in the last week of April was impressive in terms of numbers and variety in ports of call.

The N.C. Ports Authority mailed The Reflector a list of sailings. Ships going to Belgium and Germany, the Philippines, Indonesia, Hongkong, Egypt, India, Japan, Korea, the Canal Zone, and countries of South America. In all, twelve sailings from Morehead City Port are listed from April 21 to and through April 30.

The ships are flying under such diverse flags as British, Japanese, Norwegian, German, Dutch, Danish and the United States.

Only yesterday the Heidelberg (Hamburg-American Line) sailed from Morehead City for Antwerp, Rotterdam, Amsterdam, Hamburg and Bremen. Today, the Black Falcon (Black Diamond Steam Ship Co.) left for the same ports with the addition of Bremerhaven. On Sunday, the Travata (Norwegian) leaves for Manila, Hongkong, Bangkok, Singapore and Djakarta. The Johannes Maersk (Danish) is sailing for Manila, Hongkong, Bangkok, Saigon, Talaos, Keelung and Naha on that same day.

I wish I could tell you why these ships made Morehead City a port of call. That strikes me as being something Tar Heels ought to know.

A vision has stirred the imagination of North Carolina people—a pattern of railroads and busy truck routes, reaching from western reaches of the state to our coastal ports.

It's unlikely that on your next trip to the coast your mind will be distracted from the serious business of fishing, sunbathing, swimming etc.; but the ocean is the greatest highway in the world. We still haven't begun to use it as it might be used.

Prestige Hasn't Grown

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY
Copyright, 1961, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

During the 1960 campaign, John Kennedy raised the issue of American prestige. Never before in American history had any candidate for the Presidency based his campaign on the decline of the prestige of his country. It was a sharp blow at the morale of the country.

If the picture of the United States in 1960 were compared with 1860, the picture would have to be that in 1960 our prestige was higher, but if the standing of this country in the world were compared, say, when Theodore Roosevelt was President with the last years of the Eisenhower Administration, one would have to say that we stood higher in Teddy's day. During the campaign, the debate sounded silly to those who held that prestige is unmeasurable. The Conservatives held that those who possess and use force have prestige and those who turn the other cheek, get slapped twice. Lyndon Johnson, running for Vice President, put the Democratic argument concisely when he said in Boston:

"Under no single Administration in American history has the position of our nation in the world declined so far and so fast as it has under the present (GOP) Administration."

This is very tough language and President Eisenhower took to television and denounced the denunciation. Nixon thought that the prestige of the United States was at an all time high, which Governor Rockefeller believed was an exaggerated statement.

So, let us have a look at this word, prestige, as we reach May in 1961. After the Cuban debacle, our prestige, as a competent and prudent people, has hit a new low. When this country was defeated in Korea by a small, defeated China, many nations reviewed their positions and became neutralist. Such an opportunistic politician as Nehru of India organized a positive neutralist group, which having decided that the United States is impotent, adjusted its thinking to support Khrushchev.

The defeat in Cuba, if it remains a defeat, will require many a government in the American hemisphere to review its position. It is absurd to suggest that the United States had nothing to do with the Cuban rebel activities. The leaders of the Cuban rebels were in the United States; and in a lesser extent, in New Orleans. They were known to many persons and their activities were almost public. Some of them discussed their plans with newspapermen.

Throughout the period of preparation, the question was regularly brought up as to which of the various rebel leaders would have the support of the State Department and the CIA. No secret was made of seeking support; no secret was made of the CIA's support of the Verona group. Surely every secret agent of interest governments was on the job getting this kind of information, and while some of it may have been increased and exaggerated, those who had a right to be best informed agreed on the basic data of CIA aid to Cuban rebels.

I think that most Americans are pleased that the rebels should have been aided for two reasons: 1. Because Castro is so despised in this country; and 2. Because it was obvious to the man on the street that Castro's noisy courage was backed by real strength. Therefore when the rebels made for the beachhead, it was generally assumed that the CIA had ample supplies. It now turns out that both assumptions were incorrect. The CIA's information concerning Cuba seems to have been no better than it was concerning Suez or Hungary or Iraq, or the Summit Conference at Paris or the attitude of schoolboys in Tokyo who kept President Eisenhower from visiting that country.

It is clear that the CIA needs an overhauling both as to personnel and method. It employs too many political philosophers who do their own evaluating and too few ordinary spies who provide data without evaluation. By the time whatever comes to the CIA reaches a President for a decision, it has been muddled.

Other Editors Saying Approved, Says Times

(Wilson Times)

Governor Sanford and North Carolina made the headlines in the New York Times Sunday. There is a picture of Governor Sanford with the headline "North Carolina Spurns Education." It is an announcement of the approval of the Sanford education plan and means to finance it.

The story goes on to outline "one of the most ambitious public school improvement in the South." This is certainly true. The budget request is given including the $110,700,212 increase in the present two year school expenditure program of $361,068,134.

The goals of the program are given. And the story says "that the Sanford plan will pass." In fact we got this information from what we consider a reliable source.

The story frankly tells of the adroit manner and political persuasion he has followed convincing the Governor's strategy to that of President Kennedy.

"He had enlarged several state boards and thus enhanced his patronage powers. And he has devised some innovations and strategy that have impressed many more experienced politicians."

"His administration leaders reversed the finance-appropriation process. After a careful nose count, they brought up the education program in the appropriations committee and it carried by a voice vote. This action in effect, presented the finance committee with an accomplished fact," the story goes on to say.

The food and medicine tax is called a "daring political gamble." It is no longer. For all the legislators are saying the opposition to putting on a sales tax on food and drugs has died out, the legislators are not taking any chances.

The opposition is still there but the legislators will not have to be counted as "for or against." The tax will be in the package and the legislators will vote for the general revenue bill. They can say there were some features they did not like but they had to accept them along with the good.

There are several paragraphs in the New York Times story devoted to the work that must be done after the legislative program is passed, as putting into operation the objectives.

Educators everywhere are watching in hopes the Governor's program will provide the needed leadership for other states, so says the article. The one point that stands out is the confidence the story expresses. This ties in with what we have heard from reliable sources. There has never been any opposition to the goals for education, but in the means of obtaining the objectives.

If there were any doubt as to the passing of the program the story would not be in the New York Times. For every angle has been carefully planned. The sales tax on food and drugs will be passed and the legislators will never have to take the criticism. It will be part of the omnibus revenue bill.

And to wrap up the story the last paragraph tells of the "cries of protest" at first against the food and drug tax. But as no substitute was found to bring in the revenue "many of the dissidents have promised grudgingly to back the food tax."

It is all over but the shouting. Food and drugs are the basic elements of life and health. You cannot have a healthy body without adequate food. Medicine or drugs are needed to cure the sick and in many cases to prolong life.

But the sales tax on food and drugs is as good as a reality, so says the story in the New York Times.

'Stop Order' Ban Being Studied

By ELMER ROESSNER

Other stock exchanges are studying the action of the American Stock Exchange in prohibiting stop orders in round lots. Some may take similar action.

Stopping stop orders has two purposes:

1. It can prevent a slide in price from turning into an avalanche.

2. It can curb speculation. A stop order is an order given a broker to sell a stock if it declines to a specified point.

Suppose an investor buys 100 shares of Consolidated Amalgamated International at $75 a share. To prevent a great loss, he gives his broker a stop order, or a stop-loss order. This is an order to sell the stock if and when the stock falls below a certain price, say $70.

Stop orders are also used to insure a profit. If CAI rises to $85 a share, the investor may order a stop sale at $90.

885, the investor can place a stop order in which he specifies that the stock is to be sold whenever the price falls 5 points under the peak. In this case, if the dangling order is based on 5 points, if the stock rises to 890, it will be sold if it slips back to 884.

All this seems lovely. If an investor buys a stock that goes up, he can always be sure of a profit and try for an added gain without any risk. That's the way it looks.

But it doesn't work out that way. Stop orders provide that the stock is to be sold when the price falls to a certain point. But there is no assurance that the price won't fall further before the sale is made.

SNOWBALLING
Suppose an investor holds CAI at $80 and places a stop order at $78. When the stock falls to that point, the broker offers it for sale. But the next bid may be only $76, and the stock is sold for that price.

Now suppose various investors put in stop orders at $78, $76, $74 and $82.

When the stock drops to $78, a block of it will go on the market. But the next bid may be only $76. So another block of stock goes on the market. And if the next bid is $72, still more stock is offered and successive stop sales may send the price skidding down.

By eliminating stop sales, the American Exchange prevents these automatic price avalanches. Furthermore, by eliminating stop sales, the exchange tends to warn away those speculators who want to take profits without taking risks of losses.

ODD LOTS NOT INVOLVED
The regulations do not apply to odd-lot sales—those of less than 100 shares—because the odd lots rarely amount to enough to influence price levels. There are also stop-limit orders, which specify that a sale should be made at a certain price, but not below another price. Thus, a person holding at $80 could place a stop limit order specifying that the stock is to be sold if the price falls to $78, but at no price less than $76.

In this circumstance, the investor would be left holding the stock, but his action would not start a slide.

Orders can also be placed to sell stock when it rises to a specified point.

NO TIME FOR MANAGING
Too many managers get too much data and too many reports, said a man whose business is selling machines that compute and process data. He is Owen Smith, vice president of Statistical Tabulating Corp. He told a St. Louis meeting of accountants that:
"Computer technology is outdistancing computer sociology. The problem today is not getting more and more information. It is the need of management to get this information in the form that it needs it and in time to take effective action."

A COCKTAIL PARTY . . . Friday afternoon climaxed the day's activities of Ladies Invitational Golf Tournament at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

A cocktail party and the presentation of numerous prizes topped off the first Women's Invitational Golf Tournament yesterday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. One hundred-ninety-eight ladies paraded in and out of the clubhouse during the festivities.

The color of the ladies' attire depended upon the town which they were representing in the tournament. Tourney officials cooked up the idea of assigning each city or town with a certain color for the purpose of identification.

Slacks, Bermuda and walking shorts, knee socks, and straw hats with various different spring colors strung through them typified most of the dress for the tournament.

A large arrangement of spring flowers used on the appointed table created a pleasant atmosphere in the clubhouse ballroom, as the ladies chatted with the hosts and other celebrities.

Mrs. A. J. White of Greenville, chairman of the tournament, was pleased with the success of the affair, and expressed hopes of similar invitational tournaments in the eastern part of North Carolina in the very near future.

SEE THE SPRING COLLECTION OF FLOOR COVERING

Spring is the time to bring a tired house to life. Nothing will do as much to brighten homes as fashionable flooring, in fresh new spring color combinations. Choose an exciting floor covering with ideas for matching fabrics, accessories and furniture.

If your preference is for the fresh, always-new simplicity inspired by furniture from Japan, China and Korea, then choose a monochromatic flooring design. Biscuit tones will set a calm Far Eastern mood untroubled by the demands of modern living.

You will find a touch of Spring in the simple lines of the Carolina Rocker (Kennedy rocker). Team it with brown and white floor covering.

If you would like an Italian look, use two shades of green together. Turquoise and olive would be springlike and cooling for the summer to come.

For any decorating it is wise to choose the floor covering first and work from there.

The Home Furniture Store will take samples in the new fashions in flooring to your home and let you make your selection there. Be sure and see the Spring collection soon.—(Adv.)

Methodist Lay Leader Speaks At Dinner Here

J. Nelson Gibson, lay leader of the North Carolina Methodist Conference, was guest speaker at the congregational dinner of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church at East Carolina College last night. He praised the annual Every Member Canvass as having brought spiritual development and worthy financial support to churches that follow the plan. In a stewardship message, he pointed out that the church is the only institution that is fully dedicated to doing all the will of God in all the world for all people. He said the church deserved and needed the sacrificial support of all its members. Jarvis Memorial Church is nearing the end of its 10-week program of the Every Member Canvass. About two hundred visitors will gather at Fellowship Hall Sunday at 8 p.m. for the first of three training sessions, with E. Hoover Taft, Jr., a training chairman. Loyalty Day will be observed May 14, when the trained visitors will go in pairs into the homes of the members to explain the proposed local and benevolent program for the new year. The proposed program, as approved by the Finance Commission and Official Board, would cost an estimated $89,180. The pledges will determine whether the proposed program will be adopted into the final budget. Sunday from 7 to 8 p.m., in the sanctuary, J. C. "Chick" Dunn of Lake Waccamaw will tell of the work of the Good Shepherd Home in helping alcoholics to a sober and Christian life. Monday at 7:30, Dr. Malene Irons, a member of the church, will speak on the effects of alcohol on the human body. A combined Official Board meeting and Quarterly Conference will be held in the Chapel Tuesday at 8:00, with Dr. A. J. Hobbs, district superintendent, presiding. Stewards, trustees, and other church officials for the new church year will be elected.

By FRANK CORMIER WASHINGTON (AP)—Public confidence in the American Stock Exchange has been threatened, according to government lawyers, by two members accused of massive market rigging. Attorneys for the Securities and Exchange Commission said Friday multiple wrongdoings attributed to Wall Streeters Jerry and Gerard Re "have struck a heavy blow at that market." The exchange, the second largest in New York City and the nation, promptly issued a statement saying it has instituted a number of new rules and policies since the SEC inquiry began. It expressed confidence these "will prevent the recurrence of a similar situation." The exchange has suspended the Res pending a decision in their case by the SEC. Evidence against the Res, fa-

Find Body Of Missing Boatman

KITTY HAWK, N.C. (AP)—The body of a Virginia boatman was found near here Friday 85 miles from where he disappeared from his boat three weeks ago. Currituck County Coroner J. Bryan Smith said the body was identified by a driver's license in a wallet as Harold Edward Oglesby, 35, of Virginia Beach, Va. Two sailors found the body washed ashore near Caffey Inlet. Oglesby disappeared from his 33-foot cruiser, Sea Hawk, in Lynnhaven Roads, Va., April 7 after putting a pilot aboard a tanker. The boat, motor idling and running lights on, was found drifting several hundred yards off the Lynnhaven Inlet fishing pier. The coroner said there was no evidence of foul play.

Herring Season Being Extended

RALEIGH (AP)—Because of inclement weather which has kept commercial fishermen ashore, the Conservation and Development Department has extended to May 10 the season for catching herring in state-controlled waters. The department announced Friday that the shad season would close May 3. Both seasons were to have ended Tuesday, but they were extended because of the weather.

ther and son, was summed up in a 98-page brief filed with the five members of the SEC. The Res, exchange specialists who conducted the daily auctions in about 20 stocks, were accused of illegal peddling nearly $10 million in rigged markets. The investigators noted that the alleged chicanery was uncovered following 30 years in which "the confidence of the public in the operation of the exchange markets has been slowly rebuilt" following the scandals of the early depression days. In a brief of their own, the Res conceded that punishment is warranted on the facts of the case. However, they contended that Gerard Re's violations were unwarranted and asked that he be dealt with lightly. A number of unsuspecting celebrities were indirectly involved in the operations of the Res, according to the case record. These included Chuck Dressen, manager of the Milwaukee Braves; Cookie Lavagetto, manager of the Minnesota Twins; Toots Shor, Manhattan restaurateur; Vincent F. Albano Jr., a Republican leader on New York's East Side, and Abraham Gellinoff, chairman of the law committee of New York's Tammany Hall, the Manhattan Democratic organization. The SEC brief said these and others were persuaded by the Res to open brokerage accounts through which they invested in stocks favored, for one reason or another, by the Res. According to the brief, the Res had illegal authority to buy or sell for these accounts at their own discretion. By using "hip pocket" orders of this kind, the investigators said, the Res were able to arrange strategic transactions designed to influence the course of the market. The brief indicated the celebrities were wholly unaware that the operation was questionable. Shor told investigators he bought 3,000 shares of Thompson-Starrett Co. Inc. after hearing the stock touted by Jerry Re at a political dinner. He said he had only the one transaction and sold out at a loss of nearly $3,000 because "I figured I was wasting more time looking at the Wall Street thing than I was looking at the sports pages." The brief said: "Some preferred customers of the Res were put in on a sure thing, that is, the Res purchased shares and then immediately sold them at a profit—the preferred customer only exchanging checks with the Res." Albano testified that, in one 10,000-share transaction, he gave Jerry Re a check for $18,000 and simultaneously received a check for $22,950. The exchange, in its statement, noted it had brought charges against the Res even before the SEC acted. This occurred late in 1959. After lengthy hearings, the exchange's business conduct committee recommended that the Res be found guilty of violating rules designed to prevent market operators from driving down stock prices by selling short.

High Readings In 2 Florida Cities

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—High temperature records were broken in two Florida cities Friday. The reading at Miami Beach was 91, a new high for April 28 and only two degrees below the all-time high for April. Sarasota recorded 90 degrees, two degrees above the record 88 set in 1953.

Kluxers Set Own Building Ablaze

ATLANTA (AP)—Police said a group of Atlanta Ku Klux Klansmen who often burn crosses on Stone Mountain, accidentally set fire to their own headquarters. They said fire caused much damage to the meeting hall when a trash can in which cigarette butts had been dumped smoldered overnight and blazed up Friday.

The Board of Governors acquitted the Res and, according to one witness, this was very upsetting to Edward T. McCormick, the exchange president, and Joseph Reilly, the present board chairman. These men convened an evening meeting of the floor transaction committee, fined Jerry Re for a number of minor infractions and suspended him for 30 days. Paul Perzell, general partner in Emanuel, Deeltjen & Co., a brokerage firm, was an exchange governor at the time. He told SEC investigators this was the second case in which the governors had exonerated members against whom charges had been filed by exchange committees. "It just left a bad taste in my mouth," he said, adding that he declined to run for reelection to the board as a result.

Boy Leaped On Runaway Bus In Rescue Attempt

NEW YORK (AP)—Little did Sabino Romano, 12, realize as he walked out of Our Lady of Pompeii Roman Catholic Church after a morning visit Friday that in seconds he would hold the lives of dozens of his classmates in his hands. The boy heard screams and saw a driverless bus rolling down Carmine Street in Greenwich Village toward several dozen of his classmates standing in the sidewalk. He leaped through the open rear door of the bus, ran to the driver's seat and slammed his foot on the brake pedal. The bus kept rolling. He grabbed the steering wheel and tugged until the bus hit the curb and finally ran into the church steps, where it stopped a few feet away from the youngsters. Police said the brake system apparently developed a defect while the unattended bus was parked.

CD Test Shows Many Persons Would Needlessly Die

By HARRY KELLY
WASHINGTON (AP) — A full dress civil defense test — with sirens and deserted streets — has proved the nation's warning system is "fast and reliable," but indicates many persons "would die needlessly."

That's the official appraisal of Friday's first phase of Operation Alert 1961—a test aimed at dispelling public fatalism by pounding home what might happen if 100 targets across the country were flattened by nuclear missiles.

President Kennedy sounded the warning himself shortly after the test began at 4 p.m. Eastern Standard Time when regular television and radio broadcasting stopped for half an hour.

Going on the emergency Conelrad channels, Kennedy told the nation war was not expected, but he warned:

"Common prudence demands that we take all necessary measures to protect our homes, our institutions and our way of life so that they can survive should an enemy thrust war upon us."

"Unless individual Americans plan to protect their own families, the most ambitious and carefully organized activities of the government will prove inadequate."

A few hours later the director of civil and defense mobilization said many people aren't prepared.

"The first hours of the simulated nuclear attack have already indicated that many would die needlessly because they do not know the primary emergency preparedness measure for their own protection against radioactive fallout," said Frank B. Ellis, adding: "As the exercise attack continues, we expect that our estimates of the number of fallout casualties will increase greatly."

The nationwide test was the climax of three days of efforts to prepare 7.5 million federal, state and local government employees, assigned to shoulder emergency duties during and after an actual attack.

No final critique was in, but parts of the test apparently ran smoothly.

"We have proved once again that our national warning system is fast and reliable," said Ellis. "We have positive knowledge that the emergency broadcast system, operating only with Conelrad stations, is ready on short notice to maintain the flow of life-protecting information from government to the people."

There was the darker side, too. "But we cannot escape the fact that most people do not yet realize that fallout shelter space already exists within numerous buildings and structures," said Ellis. "At small expense it could be made adequate to protect at least one-fourth of our population."

He said Kennedy was asking for funds to identify and mark some shelter spaces.

"From this basic minimum," said Ellis, "we must press forward, step by step, to establish a national fallout shelter program that will assure the survival of most of our people if nuclear war ever engulfs us."

The public's part varied from city to city. In some places the test had frightening realism—deserted streets, empty schools and silence.

When the sirens blared in Washington, 5,000 officials grabbed brief cases and sped from capital offices to secret relocation centers in a half dozen neighboring states. There they would carry on if Washington were blasted to dust by bombs and missiles.

New York put on one of the most effective demonstrations. Within a minute after the first shriek of sirens, Times Square had become as still as a country crossroad. Cars and trucks stopped and people dodged into subway entrances and shelter areas. Wall Street's narrow sidewalks were cleared within two minutes.

In Illinois — as in some other states — Gov. Otto Kerner declared an emergency. A nucleus of state government was moved 90 miles from Springfield to the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana.

About 55 pacifists gathered before New York's City Hall to protest the exercise by ignoring it. About 20 were arrested. Others remained, singing—"America the Beautiful." Some students staged sitdown demonstrations at Columbia University and City College. But there were no disturbances.

A few students at three New Jersey universities — Princeton, Rutgers and Drew — defied the sirens.

At Bates College, Lewiston, Maine, a group picketed the front of the college library and passed out leaflets complaining that the test diverted attention from the real problem of preventing nuclear war. A rival group picketed them with a sign, "Pacifists do not speak for Bates."

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Missile Base Slowdowns Said Inviting A Tough Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said today costly strikes and work slowdowns at missile bases invite a tough new law to outlaw unions responsible for such things.

McClellan said his Senate Investigations subcommittee in hearings this week produced "evidence beyond any reasonable doubt" that organized labor at the Cape Canaveral missile base abused the strike weapon to enrich its members at taxpayers' expense.

The subcommittee has heard a parade of witnesses denounce the 109 strikes and uncounted work slowdowns reported at Canaveral in the last 4½ years, charging these have inflated costs by millions of dollars and slowed the program.

McClellan said it was clear that most of the strikes were called on flimsy grounds with "the premeditated purpose" of throwing missile projects behind schedule.

so workers could draw overtime pay in a rush to catch up.

The subcommittee has produced evidence that many plumbers and electricians drew wages up to $764 a week, including overtime computed at four times the regular wage rate.

Robert Palmer, top labor leader at the base, has acknowledged strikes "must have" slowed the missile program. He denied any strike was designed to force overtime wage payments, and swore he never authorized a walkout.

Palmer is business manager of Local 756 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. Witnesses have said other unions follow his lead on strike and work slowdown matters.

Joseph W. Morgan, Teamsters Union general organizer in Florida, invoked the Fifth Amendment constitutional provision against possible self-incrimination when asked Friday about his own role in a strike which virtually paralyzed the base for four weeks in 1957, near the peak of the rush to gear up missile programs.

McClellan told newsmen he may draft legislation to protect missile bases and other defense installations from crippling strikes.

THIS HOUSE OF GOD WILL BE DESTROYED UNDER URBAN REDEVELOPMENT

DO UNTO OTHERS AS YOU WOULD HAVE THEM DO UNTO YOU

A REQUEST FROM FOUR HUNDRED AND EIGHTY MEMBERS OF THE SYCAMORE HILL BAPTIST CHURCH, CORNER OF FIRST AND GREEN STREETS, NORTH GREENVILLE:

A plea from the Membership of the above mentioned church, inasmuch as the Urban Renewal and Shore Drive Project in this area, if voted in, will involve the house of God and homes in this given area. The Sycamore Hill Baptist Church was founded and organized on the given spot where it now stands in the year of Our Lord 1867 by our forefathers, who served God and worshipped. Two hundred and more of their bodies now sleep on this same spot, which they landmarked for the coming generations to serve God and to maintain the homes in this area of our city.

May I, as pastor of this disturbed group of members, humbly pray that you all read your Bibles, this chapter and verse: The Book of Proverbs, 22nd chapter, 28th verse:

"Remove not the ancient landmark which thy fathers hath set." We ask that you do vote on the second day of May, 1961, against Urban Renewal and Shore Drive in this marked area.

Winterville Added 100 New Voters For Election

WINTERVILLE — Registrar Frances Dixon reported today that 100 new voters have registered for the coming election here during the three Saturdays the books were opened.

The new names brought the number of registered voters for Monday's elections to 450.

Mrs. Dixon estimated that between 300 and 350 voters would go to the polls to vote in the election of a mayor and one alderman of the town. She explained that in last year's election, about 300 persons voted in the alderman race.

Candidates for Mayor include Walter Dail, a member of the board, and head of the town's utilities for the past 12 years, and political newcomers, L. I. Rouse and W. H. Moye.

Dail, engineer at Pitt Memorial Hospital, announced that he would be a candidate for the office after Burrey Tucker, who has served six terms as mayor of the town, announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Moye, a carpenter and Rouse, a contractor, both new to politics, filed for the office about a week after Dail.

Two other political newcomers, G. M. Vincent and Raymond H. Cox are seeking election as aldermen. The winner will replace Dail on the town's official governing body.

Vincent is owner of the Vincent Electric Company of Winterville, while Cox is employed by F. Worthington and Sons there.

Voting will begin at the town hall at 6 a.m. and the polls will remain open until 6:30 p.m.

Members of the board of aldermen whose seats are not being contested this year are Sam W. McLawhorn and E.C. Hines.

Winterville aldermen are elected for a three-year term, with one elected each year. The mayor is elected every two years.

Grifton Decides On Bond Issue, Officials Monday

Suspended Term Is Given Woman

A 31-year-old Negro woman, convicted of manslaughter earlier this week, was given a five-year suspended sentence and placed on five-year probation Thursday in Pitt County Superior Court.

Mary Lee Thompkins of Portsmouth, Va., was placed on probation under the five-year suspension by Judge Albert W. Cowper. She had been charged for murder in the Farmville slaying of Amos Thompkins. The jury Monday returned the verdict of guilty of manslaughter.

In Thursday's session that wound up this week's term of court, Judge Cowper heard two more cases.

Thomas Cherry Jr. of Route 1, Bethel, was placed on probation for three years after being sentenced to concurrent one-year jail terms for charges of forgery and uttering a forged check and larceny to which he pleaded guilty. Cherry was also taxed with court costs.

Alfred E. Hardy of 1407 Vanduyke St., Greenville, pleaded not guilty to charges of embezzlement. At the close of the State's evidence, a defense motion for non-suit was allowed.

Pitt County Superior Court convenes again May 22 for a one-week mixed term.

Potato Growers Attend Meeting

BETHEL — Nearly 150 sweet potato growers from a four-county area gathered here last night for a free barbecue dinner and a program aimed at cultivating interest in increased production of high-quality sweet potatoes.

Pitt County Agent S. C. Winchester said today, "We had a successful meeting. Those attending heard informed speakers discuss sweet potato production, marketing and processing."

Following the barbecue dinner provided by Bethel sweet potato broker Bob Cullifer, Pitt Sen. Robert L. Humber opened the meeting by outlining its purpose.

Dr. J. C. Williamson Jr., marketing specialist; Henry M. Covington, horticulturist; and Dr. Maurice W. Hoover, professor of horticulture, discussed marketing, production and processing methods of sweet potatoes. All three men came here for the meeting from N.C. State College in Raleigh.

A feature of the meeting was the explanation and demonstration by Dr. Hoover of the preparation and use of a newly-developed flake form of sweet potatoes. Dr. Hoover's demonstration showed the increased desirability of high-quality sweet potatoes for use in the preservation method.

Water Supply

The water issue would provide extended water service for all citizens of Grifton. At the present time, there is no town water supply on the south side of Contentnea Creek, which is a part of the town of Grifton. Those residents get their water from local wells.

The fire hydrant system would also be expanded. The fire hydrants originally were installed in the downtown area and in outlying residential districts, but they aren't located in all the districts. Mayor Gaskins has pointed out that there should be a fire hydrant within 500 feet of any house in town.

Town officials have applied for a federal grant to help finance the sewage project, but the issue must pass in the bond election in order for Grifton to be eligible for a federal grant. The grant would total about $32,790.

Seven Running In Ayden Race

AYDEN — Seven candidates are running for election on Monday, May 1, in the town of Ayden. However, Mayor S. F. Peterson will be unopposed for re-election. Judge Leon Kittrell, judge of Ayden Recorder's Court, also is unopposed, and Commissioner Edison Gibson is unopposed for re-election from the third ward. Competition looms in the races in the fifth ward and in the first ward.

The first ward voters will decide between Commissioner Norman Dail, seeking re-election, and former commissioner R. H. Worthington. Worthington, who served one term as commissioner in 1957, was defeated for re-election by Dail in 1959.

In the fifth ward, James H. Braxton, the only Negro candidate, will oppose commissioner Harry Mumford who is seeking re-election.

Mayor Peterson is seeking election to a three-year term this year, proposed by the Town Board in order to balance the town's election system. The mayorship will return to a two-year elective term in 1964.

Commissioners Mumford, and Gibson have served terms in the past. Mumford is engaged in the grocery and market business here, while Gibson is in the cafe business and Dail is in the grain and feed business.

Worthington is in the dry cleaning business. Braxton is an insurance salesman.

New Roof For Boy Scout Hut

FARMVILLE — At a special meeting of the Board of Commissioners, held at the Boy Scout Hut Monday it was decided to put new shingles on the roof at an estimated cost of $650. Mayor Pro-tem Howard D. Moye presided.

The board appointed James H. Kilpatrick as alternate registrar, and Curtis H. Flanagan alternate pollholder to fill vacancy created by the recent death of Fred C. Darden.

System Present Program

The present sewage was built to accommodate 600 people but it now is used by over 1,100 people, according to the State Stream and Sanitation Commission. The State Stream and Sanitation Commission has notified the town that it needs a new sewage plant and has granted Grifton temporary permission to continue using its present plant until November 1, 1964.

A new sewage disposal plant would accommodate 3,500 people and sewer line extensions would be made on Saint David, Saint Joseph and Wall Streets, Cannon

Batten Speaks At PTA Meet

By BRENDA HART

PACTOLUS — Dr. J. W. Batten, a member of the East Carolina Education Department, spoke on Tuesday night to approximately 150 persons gathered for the final school year here.

Dr. Batten, who has a doctorate in earth and space science, was a member of the committee that helped train the seven astronauts for the United States. In the education field, Dr. Batten has held the position of teacher, principal and superintendent.

In his address which he called "Introduction to Space," Dr. Batten outlined the solar system and its various parts, going into detail concerning specific sections and speeds.

He stated that once we reach outer space, there are possibilities that man has never dreamed of that can benefit the entire human race. Dr. Batten stressed the importance of boys and girls studying and acquiring knowledge for, in the near future, they will be world leaders.

The group saw colored movies of Mrs. Minnie J. Standell's fifth grade trip to Raleigh and Chapel Hill.

Big Role For Mental Health Clinic

RESTFUL RECEPTION ROOM . . . and a cheerful receptionist greet persons arriving at the clinic. The Pitt County Mental Health Clinic is fortunate to be in its own building. (Reflector staff photo.)

CHILDREN DO NOT ESCAPE . . . mental illness. This youngster is engaged in a conference with the trained psychiatric social worker, who obtains information about both him and his family before the psychiatrist steps in. (Photo by Stuart Savage.)

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mental Health Week is being observed April 30-May 6. The local Mental Health Association has scheduled displays and programs to help inform the public about mental health. Free literature is being given upon request, courtesy of the association. The following article was written in conjunction with Mental Health Week, as the result of an interview with Dr. Philip Nelson, director of the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic.)

By PATRICIA MOORE Reflector Staff Writer

His name is Johnny. His father works in a textile mill and his mother is a housewife.

Johnny was referred to a mental health clinic because of his failure to attend school. His case was accepted because it was felt that his problem — school phobia — represented an emergency in psychiatric terms.

According to Johnny's mother, Johnny was unable to attend school because, upon awakening in the mornings, he experienced headaches as well as nausea and vomiting. For a period of three weeks, he had continued these symptoms and his mother had kept him out of school.

The family lived more than 125 miles from a mental health clinic and they were unable to afford transportation to and from the clinic. Consequently, continuing therapy was out of the question for Johnny.

In the course of a few interviews, the psychiatrist explained to the parents and to the child that it was absolutely essential that Johnny attend school.

The mother had been under the conviction that forcing her son to attend school might be harmful.

However, armed with support from the clinic, the mother was able to compel her son to attend school. Evidently the child has gone ever since.

Who should come to a mental health clinic? And what goes on at this clinic?

Dr. Philip Nelson, director of the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic, believes that anybody should inquire at a mental health clinic who thinks that he might need help, or whose family or friends or physicians think that he might need help.

Usually, the clinic gets referrals from doctors, the courts, department of welfare, teachers and from former patients.

Ill Person

The emotionally ill person generally is characterized by being very sensitive and having a tendency to distort facts. Therapy is intended to help that person adjust to his life, and to assume a more mature pattern of behavior, which is suitable to his status as an adult, Dr. Nelson opined.

When a person first comes to the clinic, Dr. Nelson explained, he as well as his family are seen by Mrs. Sara M. Proctor, the psychiatric social worker. She obtains a history of the patient and his family, and, if necessary, she writes away for reports of previous hospitalization prior to Dr. Nelson's seeing the patient on the next visit.

If the patient appears to Mrs. Proctor to be an emergency case, Dr. Nelson arranges to see the patient between his already-scheduled appointments, which is sooner than he would see a non-emergent case.

Often the emergency cases require hospitalization, and this is arranged usually through commitment procedures, which are handled by the clerk of Superior Court.

Occasionally patients can afford private care and are referred to a private hospital for psychiatric care.

Therapy

When the non-emergent patient is seen on his second visit, he receives a psychiatric examination, Dr. Nelson said, and if therapy seems to be indicated, plans are worked out with the patient concerned.

If the patient is a child, this generally means one hour a week with the patient and another hour a week with his parents, Dr. Nelson noted.

If the patient is an adult, he probably would be admitted to one of the therapy groups which meets for one and three-quarter hours each week. It can also mean that the patient will be given medication and will then be seen on a continued basis for a follow up.

In very rare instances, a plan is set up for a patient to be seen in individual psychotherapy on a regular basis. "We do very little of this," Dr. Nelson commented. "He gave two reasons: because it is felt that group therapy is a therapy of choice for most of the patients, and also because there is not available personnel to give much individual therapy."

Group therapy consists of eight to ten patients, whereas in private, only one patient is seen at a time.

Through therapy, mental health personnel try to help the individual learn to handle his own problems in a more mature 10-county area served in theory by the Pitt clinic has a population of 450,000. In reality, patients from 22 counties are being treated at the clinic.

Work in mental health has been aided here by the attitude of the public: one outsider commented that never had he observed a community so willing to cooperate in efforts toward better mental health.

Mental Illness

Statistics issued by The National Association for Mental Health, New York City:

At least one person in every 10 has some form of mental or emotional illness, from mild to severe, that requires psychiatric treatment.

Mental illness is known to be an important factor in many physical illnesses, even cancer, heart disease and tuberculosis. At least 50 percent of all the millions of medical and surgical cases treated by private doctors and hospitals have a mental illness complication.

With good care and treatment, at least seven out of ten patients can leave mental hospitals partially or totally recovered.

Congo's Only University Needs Students; Secondary Schools Lag

By PATRICK MASSEY

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—On a high hill amid rolling African grasslands stands the Congo's first and only college, a scholarly haven from the havoc that tortures the rest of the country.

Here at Lovanium University scholars struggle to substitute learning for the ignorance and superstition that still flourish in the Congo 80 years after Henry Morton Stanley passed by on his expedition to open up a dark land.

To the gray stone buildings come the cream of Congo youth, many of them from remote jungle villages who strive to set aside tribal hatreds in order to learn about medicine, law, or nuclear science.

The violence that tipped the newly-independent Congo last July found little echo at Lovanium. It was examination time. High marks meant much more than hot politics.

At times Congolese officials threatened to take over the university. But the students organized a guard roster to protect professors and sent delegations to the capital demanding non-interference with the university.

Lovanium was left in peace. And when Col. Joseph Mobutu overthrew Patrice Lumumba, he came to Lovanium seeking men to govern the country.

The faculty picked its brightest students and sent them to Leopoldville. Under Mobutu, they ruled the Congo for five months. Lovanium was founded in 1954 with the grudging approval of Belgian colonial authorities, the backing of Belgian religious and educational authorities, and funds from such charitable groups as the Ford and Rockefeller foundations.

Originally, it was a subsidiary of Louvain University in Belgium, but is now independent. It is operated by the Roman Catholic bishops of the Congo.

On-the-spot organization fell to Msgr. Luc Gillon, the bustling, burly cleric who is university president. He founded Lovanium on Kimunze Hill, eight miles from Leopoldville.

The university opened with 33 students. Last year it had 485. Because of the July turmoil, fall enrollment shrank to 438 students—345 Congolese, 29 Europeans and 64 Africans from outside the Congo.

Tuition is $50. Each student has his own room, for which he pays $9 a day. Meals cost $1.50 a day.

Instruction takes place in light and airy lecture rooms. For recreation, there is a swimming pool, football, volleyball, basketball and tennis. Social activity centers around the student clubhouse.

The university has 85 professors, with about 50 more part-timers. Nearly all are European; about 25 are priests.

From the beginning, Msgr. Gillon resisted pressure to restrict study courses to the narrow range of subjects which many deemed suitable for a backward, struggling nation. He argued that a university atmosphere, with a capability for developing new learning as opposed to the simple imparting of fixed knowledge, could not flourish without a full range of academic facilities.

Lovanium can study law, languages, psychology, philosophy, mathematics, economics, theology, political science or nearly any other course he would expect to find in highly-developed Western universities.

Medical students take their practical courses in the large and well-equipped clinic on the northern arc of the college grounds. Close by is the Congo's first nursing school.

Med students take a 7-year course. The first seven years will end next July and Lovanium hopes to graduate its first two doctors.

Students of nuclear science work on the only experimental nuclear reactor in Africa. The presence of the reactor in the heart of a primitive country makes governmental authorities both proud and slightly nervous. The United Nations maintains a permanent guard of 15 soldiers around the reactor house.

But despite its range of curriculum, Lovanium's major problem is finding students. While primary education has long been established in the Congo, there is a dearth of secondary schools.

"Lovanium could be developed to take up to 1,500 students in two year's time and up to 3,000 in four years," says Msgr. Gillon. "But we have to recognize that, because of the lack of secondary school graduates we are unlikely to attain this student population which the country so sorely needs."

He wants to double or even quadruple the Congo's secondary school enrollment within the shortest possible time.

Unless this is done Lovanium University will remain cut off from its most vital raw material—young men and women with minds sufficiently groomed away from savagery to be trained to raise the Congo from its long shadows of darkness and despair.

THE CAMPUS OF LOVANIUM Substituting Learning for Ignorance

Eichmann Case Can Last Through June

By RELMAN MORIN

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel's evidence against Adolf Eichmann is so massive that indications today point to July, or later as the earliest possible date for the end of the hearings.

"We hope to complete our proof by the end of June," Atty. Gen. Gideon Hausner told the court.

Eichmann, has been indicted — and faces a possible death penalty — in 15 counts of "crimes against the Jewish people and crimes against humanity."

The former gestapo officer's trial in Jerusalem is nearing its fourth week, and the three judges have expressed dissatisfaction over the pace of it.

"I hope the court will understand the difficulties which face us," Hausner told them. "We have to prove the detail of all the counts in the indictment, and bring evidence with respect to matters that took place over a period of 12 years in a whole series of places."

"We cannot do justice to our case unless we are given time to do this. We can't strangle our own case."

He told the judges the prosecution as of today, is running a half day ahead of its timetable. "This isn't enough," replied Supreme Court Justice Moshe Landau, president of the three-judge tribunal.

When the prosecution completes its case, Dr. Robert Servatius, chief defense counsel, will have his turn. Servatius has given no indication as to the character of the defense, or how long it will take to present. He won't say whether he intends to put Eichmann on the stand.

are living today in Germany and Austria. Servatius says they should testify in Jerusalem — provided they will come here. Under an Israeli law, ex-Nazis may be liable to arrest, and Hausner said the government cannot give a blanket guarantee of immunity.

Justice Landau, searching for a way out of the impasse, said: "We are ready to permit, and the attorney-general consented, that the said witnesses, be cross-examined before the foreign court."

He urged Hausner and Servatius to work out a method of examining witnesses outside Israel, and said, "We prefer that this should come about as quickly as possible."

Meanwhile, the prosecution prepared to bring in witnesses to describe the Nazi operations against Jews in Poland, and then in the Soviet Union. Thereafter, the picture will be shifted to what the Nazis did in western Europe — France, Holland and Belgium — during World War II.

Eda Lichtmann, telling the most harrowing story yet presented by an eyewitness, is due to return to the stand later in the hearings. She was living in a village near Cracow, Poland, when the Nazis marched in during September 1939.

She testified that her father was one of a group of Jews shot to death in the first days. She said she saw Jewish children killed when they cried. Young men forced to simulate Polish guerrillas in action against the Germans, were slaughtered in the forest, she said. "Their arms and legs were broken first."

Radioactive Loot Mailed Police

MILAN, Italy (AP)—A sealed plastic envelope containing dangerously radioactive cobalt was mailed anonymously to police Friday. It was stolen two days ago from a booth at the Milan Sample Fair.

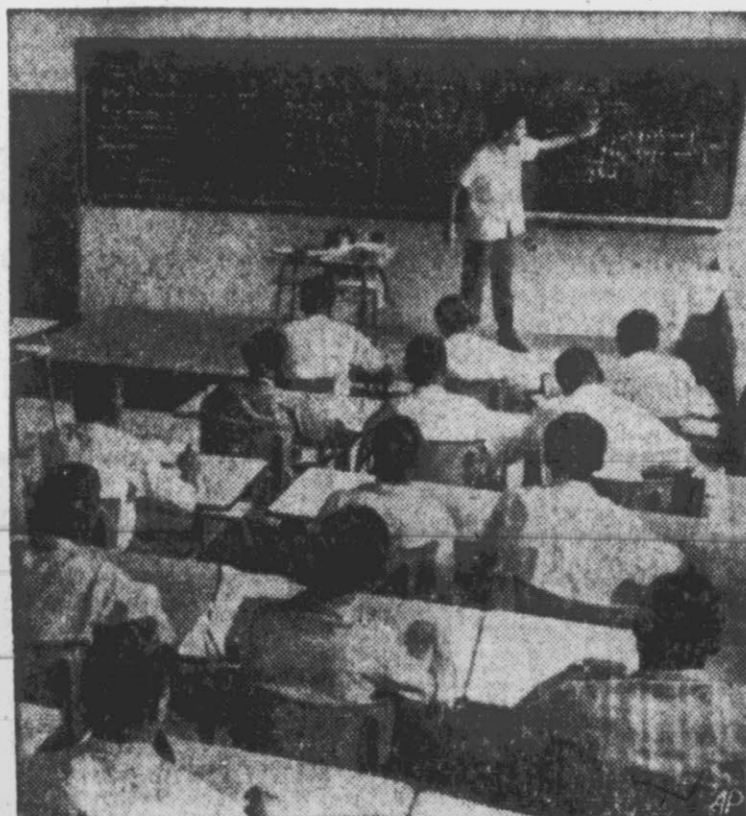

Police had used radio-TV to warn the person who took the envelope not to open it.

Police received the precious envelope enclosed in a larger envelope. A letter with it said the writer was returning the smaller envelope without opening it after hearing the warnings.

Little Meat And Gasoline Scarce

MOSCOW (AP)—Not only has the meat supply practically run out for Muscovites just before May Day—now they are out of gasoline.

For the past two days it has been impossible to buy high octane at either of the only two filling stations in this city of seven million. Friday there was no regular (70 octane) at most stations either.

FIRST PHANTOM HOME . . . In yesterday's game with Washington was Kroghie Andresen. First man to score in the first inning, Andresen was followed by four more Greenville men to give the Phantoms a five run finish over Washington's one run.

The Greenville Phantoms rolled over Washington 5-1 in a conference baseball tilt here yesterday to bring the Greenville club to a 3-2 conference standing.

Andresen, Brock, and Williamson led off for the Phantoms with three runs in the first inning to give the Greenville club a lead from the start of the game.

The score held at 3-0 until the fifth inning when the Phantoms scored again. This time James scored and was followed by Brock for his second run of the game.

Washington rallied for one run in their half of the sixth inning. Woodward made the one scoring run for Washington.

A fast double play sparked the Greenville defensive play in the third inning. The play was made from B. Williamson (third) to L. Williamson (second) and from there to James on first.

Morris pitched for Greenville during most of the game, but he was replaced by Harrington for about an inning and a half.

Harriette White Wins Top Honors In Women's Invitational Event Here

Harriette White, a former Tennessee golfer, won top honors in the first Women's Invitational Golf Tournament held at Greenville's Golf and Country Club yesterday with a score of 79 on the 18-hole course. The four-time winner of the Greenville ladies club championship shot a 41 on the back nine, then a brilliant 38 on the front links for the best score of the day.

A field of 198 ladies out of 206 who registered for the all-day event participated in the first ladies tournament of its type in the eastern part of North Carolina.

Mae Gravelly of Rocky Mount won the second place spot in the tournament after finishing in a tie with Phyl Anderson of Cherry Point. Both had scores of 84. Gravelly won the runnerup position in a sudden playoff with Anderson.

The playoff was the only one of the day, and fortunately it was, because after Gravelly and Anderson teed off, the rains began to fall. However, Gravelly's head may have been dampened, but her shooting was not, as she birdied the first hole in the sudden death affair.

Mrs. White, a tall brunette, led the championship flight throughout the affair. Her driving and iron shots kept her ahead of the pack, and her putting was above par. Along with winning the number one spot in the tournament, Mrs. White also won another prize for the longest drive from the tee on hole number nine. Her drive was 245 yards.

In the nine-hole handicap tournament, Mrs. E. H. Marrow Jr. of Tarboro copped top honors. Teammate, Mrs. William Adler, also of Tarboro, placed second in the handicap affair.

Other first and second place winners: First flight: Johnnie Crockett, Williamston; Evelyn Falkner, Kinston. Second flight: Kat Barnes, Wilson; India Sprye, Rocky Mount. Third flight: Nora Lee Corbett, Smithfield; Millie Wright, Greenville. Fourth flight: Cleo Barnhill, Tarboro; Evelyn Daughtridge, Rocky Mount. Fifth flight: Bee Morton, Washington; Dot Croom, Goldsboro. Sixth flight: Mrs. R. J. Works Jr., Rocky Mount; Mrs. M. H. Thompson, Washington. Seventh flight: Plymouth. Nine-hole handicap: Mrs. E. H. Jarl Bowers, Washington. Eighth Marrow Jr., Tarboro; Mrs. William Adler, Tarboro. Shortest drive on No. 9: Nancy Ninth flight: Pearl Wilkinson, Smithfield; Kathryn Carter, Rocky Mount. Tenth flight: Ann Larson, Goldsboro; Mrs. R. M. Allen Jr., Greenville, 3 1/2 ft.

No Youngsters In The Final Round

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—The old saying stipulates that youth will be served—but it's not so in the 61st North and South Amateur Golf Tournament.

Fifty-year-old Dic Chapman of Palm Beach, Fla., met 45-year-old Bill Hyndman of Huntington Valley, Pa., today in the 36-hole finals after each put out a much younger man in semifinal play Friday.

Hyndman birdied the third extra hole from 7 feet to eliminate the 30-year-old defending champion, Charlie Smith of Gastonia, N.C. Chapman put out Cobby Ware, 22, of Augusta, Ga., and 1.

Chapman was runner-up in this tournament in 1934 and won it in 1938. In 1940 he won the U.S. Amateur title and in 1951 won the British Amateur after finishing second there in 1947 and in 1950. Chapman was five over par against Ware, bringing his total to four over for 82 holes.

Hyndman was two over against Smith and has been seven over for 85 holes, including a 21-hole match and another that went 20.

Hyndman was runner-up here five years ago to Hillman Robbins and has lost four times in the semifinals since 1953.

Chapman fell one behind Ware after taking a seven on the par five 10th. They put their third shots in the same trap, but Dick needed three putts after blasting out. He didn't lose another hole. He swept 13, 14 and 15 with pars and closed out Ware with halves in par on 16 and 17. Ware missed putts of 4 and 6 feet for birdies.

Hyndman went 2 up on Smith for the second time when the chunky Carolinian three-putted the sixth hole, his only such lapse in the tournament. Charlie birdied eight or nine and parred 10 for a 1 up lead.

Hyndman's birdie from 5 feet on top of Smith's 9-footer for a par squared it on 14, but a buried ball in a trap on 15 put Hyndman one down again.

He seemed headed for another losing hole on 16 after his tee shot hit a fairway trap and Smith hit a good drive. But Charlie put his second in a trap, just barely got out, Hyndman went on to make good par five and they were even. They falved 17 after a fine out from a trap by Hyndman and 18. They parred the first two extra holes, Smith saving the 19th with a rough 6-footer and Hyndman the 20th from 5 feet.

It was here that Smith suggested that he might be penalized a stroke for touching his ball on the green with the club before actually stroking it. But it was determined that the ball hadn't changed its position and no penalty was in order. He then proceeded to sink the 2-footer.

Each was on in two on the 21st. Smith about 35 feet above the hole and Hyndman 7 feet away. Charlie's putt slid 3 feet to the side and Hyndman made his for the victory.

Smith had seven consecutive one-putt greens starting at the eighth

Another No-Hit By Warren Spahn

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Warren Spahn, 40 years old and a wonder, has scored another no-hitter.

The Milwaukee Braves' southpaw great faced the minimum of 27 batters in handuffing the San Francisco Giants 1-0 Friday night for his second no-hitter in his last six National League starts.

"It's just a crazy wonderful game," Spahn said. "Here I go 16 years and throw a no-hitter. That's enough for anyone. But here I've done it again. It's just crazy — but wonderful."

Spahn, who reached a milestone in his career by holding the Philadelphia Phillies' hitless in a 4-0 victory in Milwaukee last Sept. 16, posted his 29th league triumph while dazzling the Giants.

The biggest left-handed winner in National League history — and truly destined for baseball immortality — he suffered two momentary lapses of control. However, he recovered quickly on each occasion, getting the next batter to hit back to him for the start of a double play.

"How do you figure it?" Spahn asked. "All those years of coming so close and now two of them. Sure, I was trying for a no-hitter, but I figured one in a lifetime was enough, so I was just out there trying to protect that one-run lead."

Spahn, who turned 40 just last Sunday while hurling a 3-1 victory over the Pirates at Pittsburgh, became the second ever to fire a no-hitter. Cy Young pitched his third and last hitless game at the age of 41 in 1908.

As usual, Spahn rewrote the record book with the triumph. In addition to being the biggest southpaw winner in league history, he also holds the circuit record for shutouts with 52.

The Giants hardly got a loud foul off the deliveries of the picture book pitcher with the big kick. It was a drag bunt by pinch-hitter Matty Alou which nearly took the lustre off the terrific performance before 8,518 fans with one out in the ninth.

Spahn, a perfectionist on the mound, afield and at bat, turned in the brilliant play himself. He raced over and scooped the ball to first baseman Joe Adcock to just up the speedy Alou.

Needing just one out, Spahn got pinchhitter Joe Almatiano to hit a hard grounder to shortstop Roy McMillan. The ball bounced off McMillan's chest, but he pounced on it and threw out Almatiano by a stride.

Spahn struck out five in addition to the pair of walks which led to double plays. Charlie Lau, a reserve catcher, committed the only Milwaukee error. Lau dropped a foul pop by Ed Bailey in the ninth, but Spahn took Lau off the hook by striking out the San Francisco catcher.

Spahn was given all the cushion he needed in the first inning when the Braves scored an unearned run off Sam Jones. Frank Bolling singled, went to second on a passed ball and scored on Hank Aaron's two-out single to right.

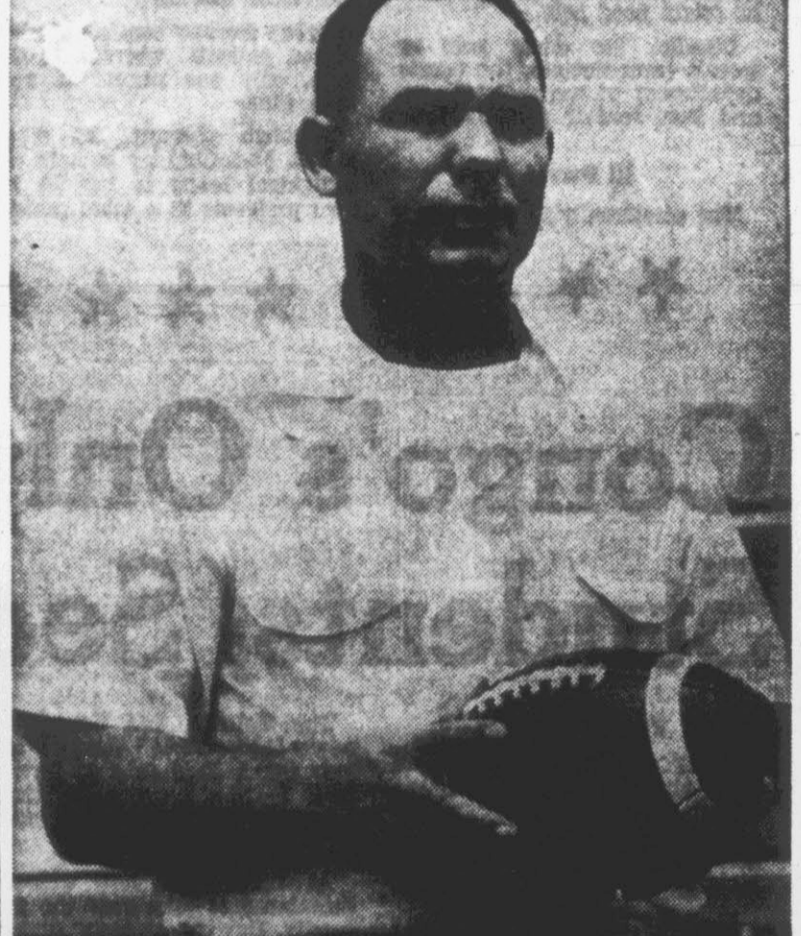

Jones struck out 10, seven in the first three innings, and walked five in being outduelled in search of his third straight triumph. The Giants' big guns, including Willie Mays, just couldn't cope with Spahn.

As a result of the pitching masterpiece, the Braves moved past the Giants and Pittsburgh into first place with a 6-4 record.

As for Spahn, who's willing to bet that he won't pitch another no-hitter for victory No. 30?

Arnold Palmer Making Up For Losing Streak

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, whose throne as the biggest man in golf has been taken over by a 25-year-old upstart, was on the way to making up some of the lost ground today as he led the $30,000 Texas Open into its third round.

Palmer won more money last year than any man in golf history — over $80,000—but this year he woke up to find young Gary Player of South Africa leading him by some $11,000, with the tour almost half over.

So Arnie got busy and Friday he shot an eight-under-par 63 to grab the lead at the halfway mark in the Texas Open with 130.

He sets out today three strokes ahead of young Al Geiberger of Santa Barbara, Calif., and eight strokes to the good over Player as he seeks not only a repeat as champion of the Texas Open but his fourth tournament victory if the year.

If he bats the $4,300 first money he can pull within about $7,000 of Player.

Palmer said he wanted to overtake Player in the money race but won't be playing many tournaments at the end of the tour due to other commitments, including the British Open. But he's going to make a big try.

Geiberger was in second place with 133 while Jack Burke of Houston and Al Balding of Toronto to Canada, were tied for third place at 134.

Modified Stock Racing Enters Its 5th Week At Edgcombe Speedway

TARBORO—Unlimited modified stock car racing enters its fifth week at the Edgcombe speedway, located five miles south-west of here, this Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A field of twenty or more cars are expected to take the green flag in two 10 lap heats and a 10 lap consolation event at 3 o'clock.

These events will be followed by the extra long feature race that will run for 35 laps over this one quarter mile clay track.

The stock cars will have unlimited modified T-bird, V-8

Chevy, Buick, Ford, GMC and Pontiac motors as well as modified and unmodified flat head Ford motors.

Jim Torrie has won the last two features with his modified T-bird powered car and he will be looking for his third win Sunday.

"This makes Jim the driver to beat so far as the other drivers are concerned."

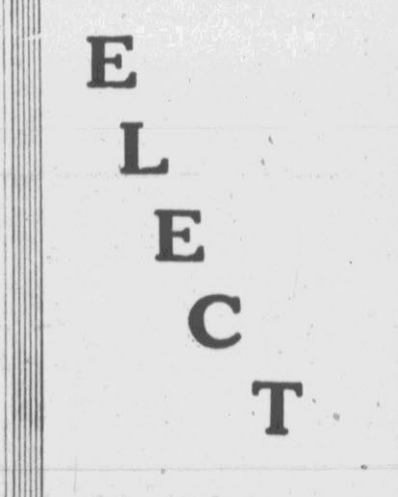

Races at the Edgcombe Speedway are sanctioned by the NUBAB organization of Norfolk, and are promoted by Jim Creech, John Stokes and Guy Wilson.

Ivy Leaguers Are Rough On Abilene

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Don't tell track coach Oliver Jackson of Abilene Christian College those Ivy Leaguers can't be tough to beat. He knows different.

Abilene had its sights set on winning four of the eight relay titles at the Penn Relays this weekend, the distance medley, 440, 880 and the mile. But along came Yale Friday and then there were three.

Yale whipped the runners from the Southwest in the distance medley, although it took a record breaking performance to do it: The Elis won in 9:53.9 bettering the 9:55.3 set by Villanova in 1958.

Expecting Finish Wilkesboro Dam Project Before The 1962 Deadline

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of three articles about the Wilkesboro Reservoir, which, when completed, will control water flow of the Yadkin-Pee Dee river in the Carolinas and establish a big recreational area.)

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP)—Preliminary work on the huge Wilkesboro Dam project for the control of flooding in the Yadkin and Pee Dee River Basins in North Carolina and South Carolina, began last August. This work consisted of the relocation of a portion of North Carolina 288 around the dam by the construction of 6.39 miles of new highway.

The contract was let, after competitive bids were received, by the Charleston District Engineers' office to the Clement Brothers Construction Co. of Hickory, N.C., for $720,631.

Though the company's bid was considerably lower than others, the company was in a favorable position to bid on the main dam project and on Aug. 30, 1960, it submitted the low bid of $2,598,376 and received a contract.

Ground breaking ceremonies were held Sept. 25. Clement Brothers began work in earnest by moving in heavy equipment late in September and was soon moving 15,000 to 20,000 cubic feet of earth a day on the combined road and dam project.

Col. John R. Thompson, Charleston District Engineer, under whose supervision the project is being constructed, says all phases of the work are on schedule with a few minor exceptions and added that some phases are well ahead of schedule.

"There seems reason to believe at this time that the entire project will be completed well ahead of the December, 1962, target date," he added.

When the project has been completed, more than 2,800,000 cubic yards of earth, of which 230,000 cubic yards are solid rock, will have been removed.

The first project was the stripping of 200,000 cubic yards of fill from beneath the dam site. Next came the excavation for the concrete conduit and stilling basin. This was mostly rock totalling more than 10,000 cubic yards, and was removed by blasting.

The McGill Contracting Co., under sub-contract to Clement Brothers, began pouring concrete for the conduit late last year and this work is now almost 30 per cent complete.

Working in extremely cold weather.

er, the concrete contractor devised an ingenious system to prevent halting the work. Concrete must be "cured" at temperatures above 40 degrees for five days.

The contractor covered the fresh concrete with tarpaulins beneath which he placed heaters. The dam itself is now beginning to rise and the huge, 12-foot conduit beneath its base is nearing completion.

Clement Brothers expects to work on the north end of the dam until possibly June at which time the river will be diverted and full-scale filling of the south side of the dam will commence.

Paving of the new highway is expected to begin in May. The 148-foot high dam will also contain a roadway along its crest.

The Wilkesboro Project, now so near realization, had its beginning 32 years ago when first studies toward control of the Upper Yadkin were started by concerned North Carolinians who had seen the basin swept time and again by disastrous floods.

In 1945, the Corps of Engineers proposed a dual purpose dam for flood control and a power generating plant of 23,300 kilowatts but this plan ran into opposition and the plans were changed to contain dry detention dams in the system.

The next year, Congress authorized construction of two retention dams on the Yadkin and two on Reddies River and in 1947 Congress appropriated $70,000 for the engineers to study a complete flood control program. The next year, $75,000 more was appropriated.

The Corps of Engineers in 1949 changed their recommendations to one dam on Reddies River and said they believed one dam would be enough on the Yadkin River.

From 1950 to 1953 because of the Korean Conflict and subsequent events, all plans were suspended and in 1955, Congress appropriated more money and engineer studies revealed that the single dam would suffice.

Designing of the dam began in 1957 when Congress appropriated $160,000 for this purpose. A scare was thrown into the interested parties, both civilian and military in 1958 when Congress passed the Flood Control Act requiring that local funds also be used in this type construction.

The North Carolina General Assembly in 1959, quickly passed an enabling act that would allow local participation.

That year, the federal government appropriated $1 million to initiate construction. After much missionary work by North Carolinians, last year voters of Wilkes County and Winston-Salem approved bond issues to finance the local participation with each paying about $600,000.

Collins, 24, said that to keep his night boss from discovering he couldn't keep up with his job he took home the files on some 4,000 traffic violation cases rather than filing them. Collins said he intended to return the files when he got caught up with his work. Collins' boss found out Friday. He suspended Collins.

Schools Advised 'Waste No Time'

BATH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Sanford warned public schools not to waste time on what he called non-essential activities "so that the students and teachers will have time to carry out the jobs assigned to them."

In a speech to a father-son banquet of the Future Farmers of America at Bath Friday night Sanford told the youths to make sure that too much time is not given to club activities and contests so that regular instruction suffers.

The admonition for better use of school time was of a four-point outline Sanford delivered for the betterment of the state's school system.

He said: "The first is that we must provide a much higher level of financial support for our schools than we have been providing."

"Second, we must make teaching truly a profession with the highest quality of training and of performance demanded and paid for."

"Third, we must insist upon better balance in the curriculum of studies and activities provided in the public schools so that each student will have the opportunity to learn what he needs to learn in order to prepare himself for tomorrow."

The governor said, "Any youth that fails to get the best education he is capable of getting is failing in his responsibility to himself, to his state and to his nation."

First Church of Christ, Scientist

Man's God-given freedom from sin and temptation will be explained at Christian Science services this Sunday.

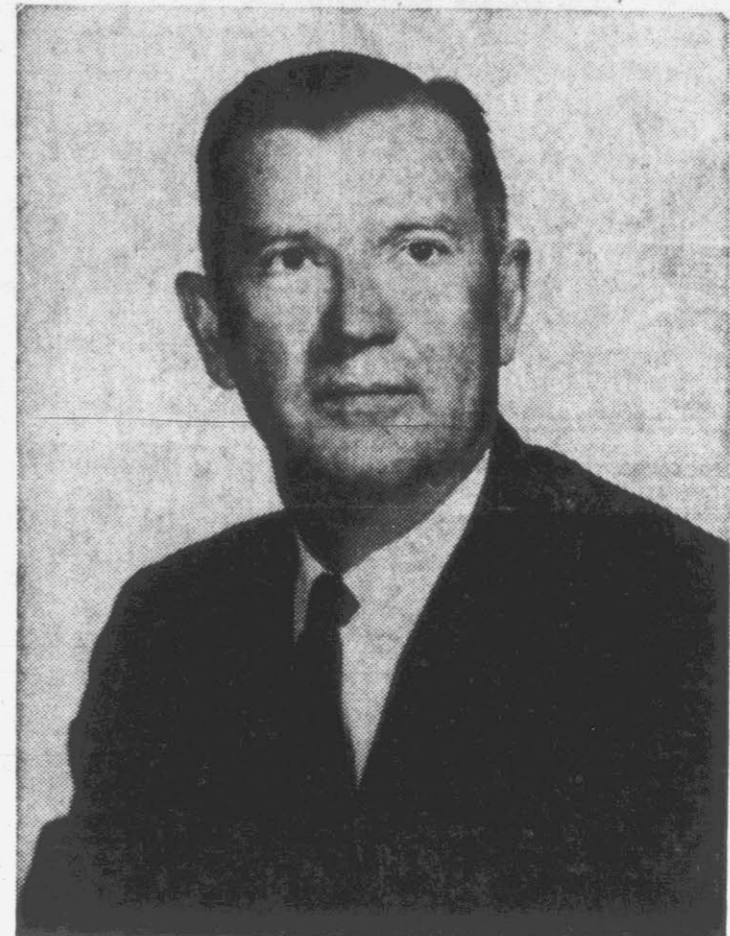

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon on the subject "Everlasting Punishment" is the Golden Text from Ezekiel (18): "Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read (p. 315): "The likeness of God we lose sight of through sin, which beclouds the spiritual sense of Truth; and we realize this likeness only when we subdue sin and prove man's heritage, the liberty of the sons of God."

A selection to be read from the Bible states: "For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure. Do all things without murmurings and disputings: That ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world." (Philippians 2:13)

VOTE FOR Charles M. King - For Mayor In May 2nd. Election

My Fellow Citizens:

I seek your support of my candidacy for the position of mayor of our city in the May 2nd election. During my term on the City Council, I have become acquainted with many phases of our city government and have learned something of the conditions to be met if Greenville is to adequately meet the needs of the future for all its citizens.

The key to Greenville's future is a united effort of all our people working in harmony to reach the goals desired by all and to solve the problems which beset us. Being mayor of Greenville needs the advice and support of many, many people, both in and out of the city government, and the support and interest of every citizen.

My creed has always been that there are at least two sides to every question and that there is something to be gained by listening to all sides. Every single person and every group of people should be encouraged to be heard in regard to our City's affairs, no matter how large or small. When that happens, Greenville cannot help but move forward.

There will be differences at times between various groups of our citizens over what is the best road for Greenville to travel. This is a healthy situation, for only by full public discussion can the best choice be made. But it should never be forgotten that all groups have the best interests of Greenville at heart. Whatever decision is made on a particular question, every effort should be made to compromise differences in a practical way which is fair to all. This is important because once a decision is made, it takes everybody to make it work. I want to bring to your attention some of the problems your city faces and some of the goals it must achieve in the next few years. I know these are not all the problems facing us by any means.

- *** More jobs and increasing our income. Extend full support to the Pitt County Industrial Development Commission, create new local industry and commerce, develop and encourage businesses which have stood-by Greenville through the years.
- *** An adequate, supervised recreation program, conveniently located in the various areas of Greenville.
- *** Cleaning-up all the areas of Greenville that need it. Elimination of unfit housing. The program selected must be fair. Local businesses, local workers, and local capital should be employed for this as much as possible.
- *** A positive program of creating mutual good-will between our city and the adjacent areas outside the city limits. This is important to Greenville commercially now and also in planning for an orderly expansion of our city. We must encourage our outlying citizens to want to be in the city limits. Cooperation on such mutual problems as fire protection, utilities, and schools is important.
- *** Promotion of U.S. Highway 13 for North-South traffic. With completion of the Norfolk-Hampton Roads bridge-tunnel in 1963, the potential is unlimited if we make proper plans and cooperate closely with other Eastern North Carolina communities. This promises several hundred new jobs and will be a new industry in itself.
- *** Cooperation with groups working to get air service for Eastern North Carolina.
- *** Faster development of Green Springs Park and other recreation areas.
- *** Improved library facilities. Cooperation between the city and private citizens, civic and social groups is especially important for success here.
- *** Policies promoting better flow of traffic, including traffic engineering, and planning for expanded parking facilities
- *** Street, Curb and gutter improvements, allocated equitably throughout Greenville.

This list by no means completes our present goals and problems as we all realize. We know there will be additions in the future as times change and new conditions arise.

All these matters cannot be dealt with completely overnight. It will take time, patience, hardwork, enthusiasm, and cooperation.

Sincerely yours,
CHARLES M. KING

To The Citizens Of Greenville

Greenville has always been my home, I was born and reared here. With the exception of three and one-half years spent in the Armed Services, I have lived in the City and maintained a business here.

For the past eight years it has been an honor, and I deem it a privilege, to serve on the City Council of Greenville.

We all know that Greenville has grown extensively in the past few years. Growth such as this must of necessity be attributed to Progress since Growth and Progress do move hand in hand. Naturally, being a native of Greenville, it makes me doubly proud of the opportunity which has been mine to strive and work for this great forward movement during the past eight years, as I have served you on your City Council.

Perhaps there have been times when questions have arisen for decision when my thinking and vote on the matter did not coincide with yours, but after much careful thought and consideration I voted for what I considered right and best for Greenville, as a whole, both then and for the future progress of our City.

Regardless of the outcome of the Straw Vote on Urban Renewal, you can be assured that I will abide by the wishes of the people on this matter.

My primary purpose in asking for your support in the coming election is that I may continue to have the privilege of representing you and doing all in my power to help Greenville live up to its slogan, "You'll Get More in Greenville."

Since our City has grown so large it will be almost impossible for me to personally contact each of you. If I should miss seeing you please accept this letter as my personal invitation to you for your vote and support May 2nd.

Sincerely,

Faculty-Monogram Club Cage Game Entertains Rose Students

By CRAIG WORTHINGTON
 Rose High students attended the one-hundredth annual (?) Faculty-Monogram Club basketball game during homeroom yesterday.

This event, scheduled for the benefit of the Monogram Club, is a contest between male faculty members and those seniors in the Monogram Club who do not play basketball.

Faculty Phants for the game included James D. Nicholson, Richard G. Phillips, Jerry Warren, James Pritchette, Neil Howell and student teachers Kirby P. Branch, Joel B. Hudson, and Noah M. Seymour.

The Monogram Club' team members were Dallas Clark, Don Joyner, Tex Hooks, Scott Smiley, Phil Coleman, Bill Wade, Garris Evans, Chappy Bradner, and Skip Wright.

Referees included Orren E. Dowd, representing the faculty, and Larry Roberts and Rick Saive representing the Monogram Club.

The play was divided into four-minute halves. As the play progressed, the referees became more and more lax about counting the players and soon all the players were on the court together.

During free-for-all or other minor interruptions, the cheerleaders—Russell Fields, head; and Kroeg, his Andress, Drew Perry, Wayne Sumrell, Ed Smoot, and Jimmy Jenkins—led the spectators in rousing cheers.

In spite of the baskets made by both sides, the Monogram Club was declared the winner 6-0.

Most of the more than four hundred fans agreed that the game was fair and expert basketball—at its worst.

Seniors Complete Tests
 For two hot muggy days this week Rose High's seniors labored tirelessly in a small auditorium at the college over what seemed to be an endless stream of questions.

By the time many of the seniors reached the 800th question, they were seeing little black ovals dance back and forth before their eyes.

The event? Annual Iowa Tests of Educational Development (ITED).

Given by George McRorie, senior adviser, these tests included nine one-hour sections designed to find out just about everything the student knows or has been exposed to during his years in school—and out of school.

Answers were marked on a sheet of blacking in one oval corresponding to the number of the correct answer. However, the ovals were numbered on the answer sheet so that the students really had to keep alert in order to mark the right ones.

Several students found, to their extreme disgust, that they had answered an entire test in the wrong answer section.

When these results are returned about the middle of May, the scores of the school will be ranked with those all over the nation. In addition, each student will be told how he ranks in the class according to the tests.

The results of these tests are used mainly to aid teachers in planning their courses and to aid students in locating their weaknesses as compared to other students.

SIPA Trip
 Representatives of "The Green Lights," Rose High's newspaper are attending the annual convention of the Southern Interscholastic Press Association this weekend in Lexington, Virginia, on the campus of Washington and Lee University.

Ruth Clark, Melinda Coleman, Esther Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. Hassell H. Worsley left early Thursday morning for the convention.

Thursday's activities included registration and get-acquainted sessions. All day Friday was devoted to discussions and lectures by some of the prominent journalists in this country.

Saturday's program included sessions with the contest judges at which they explain their criticism of contest entries and the final awards luncheon.

Supreme Court To Make First Ruling On A 'Religious Test'

By JULES LOH
 Associated Press Writer

For the first time the U.S. Supreme Court has been called on to interpret the constitutional prohibition against a religious test for public office.

Does the 174-year-old provision, never before contested in a federal court, rule out requiring an office holder to swear he believes in God?

This was the question Supreme Court justices were asked to decide Thursday when they listened to arguments in the case of Roy R. Torcaso of Wheaton, Md.

Torcaso received an appointment as a notary public two years ago but was denied his commission when he refused to declare that "I believe in the existence of God."

The Maryland constitution requires state office holders to profess such belief, and does so in the same provision which prohibits a religious test.

Article 37 of the Maryland constitution stipulates:

"No religious test ought ever to be required as a qualification for any office of profit or trust in this state, other than a declaration in the existence of God."

The U.S. Constitution says only that "No religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust."

Last June Maryland's Court of Appeals, the state's highest bench, upheld a lower court ruling disqualifying Torcaso. It was the first time the highest court of any any moral accountability for conduct not only renders a person incompetent to hold public office but to give testimony or to serve as a juror."

Roanoke Rapids, N.C. (AP)—Lt. Gov. H. Cloyd Philpott says he does not believe the legislature will adopt Gov. Sanford's suggestion that it submit any tax changes to a vote of the people.

"I think the members of the legislature realize it is their responsibility and that they can't pass it back to the people," he told the Eastern North Carolina Press Association Friday night.

The organization ended its meeting today after a clinic on offset printing and a business meeting.

Philpott predicted the assembly would enact most of the governor's $70 million school program.

He added, however, "The Appropriations Committee will eliminate some of the items they consider least important."

In response to a query by Ashley Futrell, publisher of the Washington Daily News and president of the North Carolina Press Association, Philpott said the newspaper industry has made "a good case" in its protest against Sanford's proposed circulation tax.

Futrell said he felt the tax "singles us out" because other advertising media "are not being called on to pay."

Sanford has proposed elimination of sales tax exemptions on items such as food and drugs to pay for most of his school improvement program.

In his tax message to the legislature in March he suggested that the tax changes be subject to final approval in a statewide referendum. However, the governor has not pushed this part of the program.

Philpott said he felt it would set a bad precedent by enabling lawmakers "to get themselves off the hook."

There were 49 executions under civil law in the United States in 1959.

Mental Health Week To Be Observed Next Week

Sunday will mark the beginning of Mental Health Week, a week filled with tours of hospitals and special schools, and activities throughout the state as well as in Greenville.

Mayor S. Eugene West last week signed the proclamation which declared Greenville would participate in the observance. Displays and exhibits will tell the story of mental health, a free movie on mental health will be shown and a bus trip to Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro has been arranged here.

Several television programs have been planned to coincide with the observance. Dr. Frank Fuller, president of the Pitt County Mental Health Association will appear on the Friday, May 5, "Carolina Today" on WNCN and a special program on mental health has been planned for the "Let's Go To College" broadcast.

Special displays will be exhibited in schools and libraries throughout Greenville as well as in downtown stores. Materials and publication on mental health are available without cost in the Telford Building, through the courtesy of the Pitt County Mental Health Association.

Regarding the bus trip to Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro, Dr. Fuller said that students in training to be counsellors, psychology majors and others will leave about 9 a.m. Tuesday, May 2 from Rawls Building on the East Carolina College campus to make the tour.

Other state hospitals and special schools will be open for visitation throughout the week.

Farmville Adds 243 New Voters

FARMVILLE — Registration of 243 citizens, who had become eligible to vote in the municipal election since the last one, has been reported by C. A. Lilley, registrar, whose books were closed April 28 following the customary preliminary period.

Lilley, registrar, James Kilpatrick and Arthur P. Joyner, pollholders, will be in charge of the election to be conducted at the fire station on N. Main St., Tuesday, May 2, from 6:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Voters will choose from probably the longest list of candidates in Farmville's history, fourteen: three for mayor and eleven for commissioner. The election will be marked also by having Farmville's first woman candidate entered for municipal office, Mrs. Frances Joyner Harper.

Candidates for mayor are: Frank Allen, W. E. Joyner and O. G. Spell, Charles S. Edwards, the present mayor, and some who are yet to be named.

Candidates for commissioner: Jack Allen, Dr. S. H. Aycock, Jr., Mrs. Frances Joyner Harper, Joe D. Joyner, Robert Joyner, Tommy Lang, C. C. Mashburn, Jr., Howard D. Moyer, Oliver Murphrey, Sam Wainwright and W. C. Wooten. Moyer, Murphrey, W. E. Joyner and Wooten are members of the present board.

Rep. Arends Says Southerners Are Joining The GOP

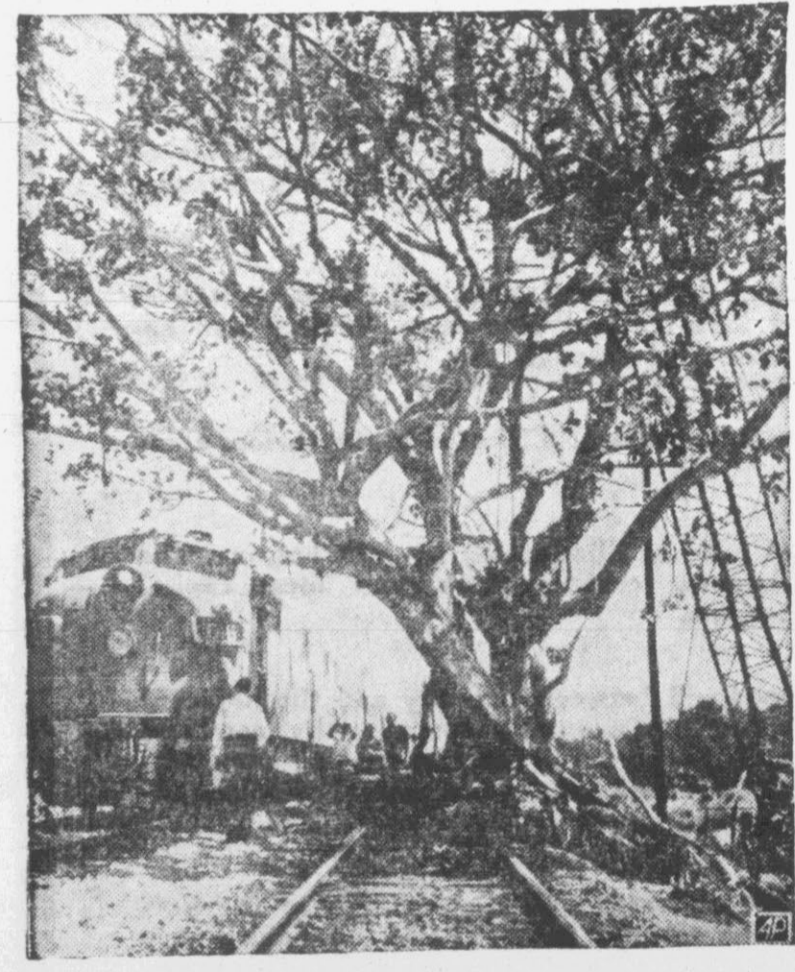

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—The Republican House whip, Rep. Leslie Arends of Illinois, says "an ever increasing number of Southerners (are) actively affiliating themselves with the Republican party."

Arends spoke here Friday night at a rally to support a GOP slate for city offices in next Tuesday's election. He was introduced to the 150 present by Robert L. Gavin of Sanford, the unsuccessful GOP candidate for governor in the 1960 election.

If North Carolina is a traditional Democratic stronghold, Arends said, it didn't show in the November election.

"It is a stronghold of traditional Americanism," he continued. "If there's anything solid about this area of the South, it is your determination to adhere to those principles of government that have made this country the richest and strongest in the world."

THE HAUNTED STARS

By EDMOND HAMILTON

From the novel published by Torquell Books; © 1960 by Edmond Hamilton; distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 19

Fairlie ran to the communications room of the starship with Smith, the young fish-technician, following closely. Fairlie picked up the field telephone and said, "Fairlie speaking Over."

DeWitt's voice came crackling out of the ear-piece. He was almost incoherent. "—out there somewhere. One of the boys heard it—then me. I'm sure of it, Fairlie. But it's dark as the pits of hell out there. I want you. Get out here. I want you to talk to them, if they're there."

The line went dead.

Fairlie stood shivering. Smith cleared his throat. "Doctor Fairlie, Sir. Uh—could I come with you?"

"You bet you can," said Fairlie. "You can do more than that. You can hold my hand all the way."

He left instructions for someone to be in the communications room every minute. If Christensen awoke he was to be advised, but Fairlie could not see any reason to rouse him now.

Fairlie and Smith hurried out of the starship. The night was very dark with clouds and the wind drove at them.

They picked their way precariously among the stones. A light moisture flicked suddenly across Fairlie's face, flung by the wind. He shivered. Rain.

There was a comfort in the floodlights, the voices of the men ahead, the prosaic machines. Nothing was working now. The men stood or sat close together, their eyes moving anxiously around the perimeter of vision. They blinked and shrugged deeper into their clothing as the thin rain swept at them. Fairlie could not see either DeWitt or Thomason.

"They're waiting for you," one of the men cried out. "Over there somewhere." He pointed. "That's where we heard it last."

"Just what did you hear?" Fairlie asked.

"Voices," the man said. "At least that's what it sounded like. People talking, as though they didn't think they'd be overheard, but the wind carried it. Then DeWitt began shouting and they shut up." He looked at Fairlie. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm not, thought Fairlie. He moved farther from the center of the light, into a dimness of shadows and rain. He called DeWitt two or three times before he got an answer, and made out the shapes of two men sitting on a hump of rock hunched forward like two vultures on a tombstone.

"Where the hell have you been?" DeWitt said, getting up. He waved his arm at the night. "There's somebody out there. We know it, we all heard them. Call to them. Make them understand we're friends."

"I've told you before that in all this time the language will have changed," protested Fairlie. "Can't you see that? The chances of their understanding me are about nil."

"Don't give me scholarly obstructionism now," DeWitt said violently. "How do you know you won't get through to them? Go ahead. Try."

Fairlie felt both irritated and nervous, it was almost hopeless, but he moved a little distance away from the light, into the shadow. He called.

"No. Nothing."

The light rain stopped. A dull, dim purple gleam of moonlight came through the clouds. It did not make the night much brighter, but even that little was better than nothing. They strained their eyes.

Nothing.

"Try again," DeWitt said fiercely, and shoved Fairlie onward. "Please!" shouted Fairlie into the dark wind. "We must speak with you, it's important for both of us. Please show yourselves. We come in peace."

DeWitt caught at his arm. "What's that?"

They froze, listening. And suddenly Fairlie knew that someone was there, hidden, watching—knew it as plainly as though he saw them.

"Please understand!" he shouted. "We are your own kin, part of your own history, come back."

This time there was no doubt. From out of the dark plain there came a sound of laughter.

Forgetting his fear, Fairlie ran toward it.

"Where are you? Please come out."

More laughter. Light, mocking laughter, one voice, no two voices, perfectly human. The wind broke the sound, tossed it here and there. Fairlie went among the stones, turning now this way, now that, pleading, calling.

In the dim purple glow something moved. It ran swift and stooping from one shadowed hump of rock to another.

Fairlie chased it.

He ran with all his might. Laughter followed him. Now he was angry and he ran faster toward the hump his eye had marked. It was far away from any other shelter and if the person behind it ran again he would see him even in this abominable light.

Nothing stirred. Fairlie ran toward the hump, stretching out his hands.

A creeper caught his ankle and threw him heavily to the wet ground. He heard somebody move close by. Desperately he cried, "Don't run!" and struggled to his knees.

He stopped there.

He was looking into a face. The dull purple light showed it only as a paler smudge against the darkness, but even so Fairlie got an impression of beauty.

Even so, he knew it was the face of a woman.

Courts Bill Action Caps Assembly's Week

By ROBERT A. WILKS
RALEIGH (AP)—The General Assembly capped its liveliest week of the 1961 session by breathlessly rushing through a compromise court improvements measure.

The bill, passed on third reading by the House Wednesday, was amended and passed by the Senate unanimously Friday and whisked back to the House for concurrence. The House vote for concurrence was overwhelming.

The measure got better than the three-fifths majority in both houses required of a Constitutional Amendment. Now it must be voted on by the people in an election this fall.

If the Constitutional Amendment is approved by the people, the legislature would be employed to set up over a 10-year period a uniform system of district courts to replace the present hodge-podge inferior court set up.

The General Assembly also would be directed to create an office to handle court administration. Under the measure, justices of the peace would be re-named magistrates. They would be appointed by Superior Court judges and their income would not depend in any way on the decisions they render.

"The action climaxed a long battle for court reform."

There was discord, however, on some other issues facing the General Assembly this week.

The Joint Finance Committee broke up in disagreement over appointment of a subcommittee to consider tax bills for financing Gov. Sanford's school improvement program. The House and Senate committees will meet separately at least for the time being.

An apparent agreement between opposing sides on small loan legislation melted away in the heat of a House Banks and Banking Committee meeting. Rep. Irwin Belk of Mecklenburg charged that the substitute measure backed by

Rep. Roland Braswell of Wayne "is not a compromise. It is against the interests of the public."

A fistful of amendments designed to strengthen the bill was offered and Rep. Herb Hardy of Greene, committee chairman, promised action next Tuesday "if we have to meet at night to do it."

Progress was made in traffic safety legislation.

The Senate enacted a bill extending indefinitely the life of the compulsory vehicle liability insurance law, and hope was expressed that amendments will be made to improve the statute.

The House Roads and Highway Safety Committee gave a strong vote of approval to a Senate-passed bill setting up a mechanical inspection program. Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt promised the group the program would have all the good features of the program repealed in the 1940s and none of its delays and inconveniences. The committee also reported favorably on a bill to lighten up the point system for traffic violators.

The House gave second reading, 54-47, to plug a loophole in enforcement of the state's vehicle financial responsibility law. The bill would allow a license suspension order to remain in effect while the courts decide on a driver's petition to stay the order.

There were these other developments during the week:

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill requiring a 24-hour wait between application for an issuance of a marriage license, if the applicants are under 21 and do not have their parents' written permission.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill legalizing marriages between Indians and Whites. The Senate Committee on Congressional Districts got nowhere in considering a bill to realign districts so as to put Reps. Harold Cooley and L. H. Fountain in the same district. Meanwhile, Rep. Hardy put in a bill that would realign districts so as to throw Republican Rep. Charles R. Johnson and Democrat Basil Whitener into a contest.

Two House bills were introduced to make the state eligible for millions in federal matching funds. One would amend the law on definition of dependent children to include those in need because of a parent's unemployment. This was given a favorable committee report. Another would appropriate additional funds to the Public Welfare Board to provide hospitalization for recipients of public assistance and for the medically indigent.

If Seems Okay If Government Is A 'Price-Fixer'

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Price fixing is a dirty term to consumers—particularly when they suspect the price is fixed higher than it would have been under free competition.

But price fixing today is also a confusing term because it is so widespread. And sometimes it's illegal but sometimes it's okay and often it's done by the government itself.

Price fixing is much in the news today because in Washington a Senate subcommittee is hearing testimony on an antitrust conspiracy for which a federal judge fined 29 makers of electrical equipment nearly $2 million and sent seven of their officials to jail for a month. The offense was illegal price fixing and bid rigging.

But some of the defendants pleaded that if the companies in that crowded industry hadn't divided the market amongst themselves the largest ones could have driven the small ones to the wall.

The antitrust laws also frown on any domination of an industry by one or a few companies to the detriment of competition.

Many businessmen are confused about price-fixing bans, because it is customary to try to stop price wars by agreeing on an equitable price that will let all concerned function at a profit instead of a loss.

Businessmen regularly gather in conventions, national or regional, to discuss their problems—such as rising costs that affect prices. Many of them ask tariff protection against imports of foreign goods that could undercut domestic price levels.

Others note that many states have so-called fair trade laws which permit a manufacturer to set the retail price of his product under certain circumstances and forbid maverick retailers from selling below this fixed price.

The comparison shopper is a fixture in the retail world. This type of scout finds out what other merchants are charging for an item so that his employer may adjust prices accordingly. This is free competition and legal.

Consumers are used to many legal forms of price fixing—such as rent controls in some states. Consumers accept barbers in a community all charging the same price for haircuts. And the public expects the price of a man's labor to be fixed by bargaining between his union and his employer, often with a public official or two sitting in.

Governments also regulate many prices closely.
